RING TOO SMALL

Essex Groom Feared Loss of Bride but She Made It Fit

J. F. Ferguson, of Essex, made a mistake in ordering the wedding ring for his fiancée, and that nearly caused a postponement of his wedding. With his betrothed, Miss Leveia Allen, he came in from Essex yesterday, and engaged Rev. James Livingstone to make them man and wife in the parlors of the Iroquois Hotel.

When the words "with the ring I thee wed" were spoken, the groom attempted to slip the ring on the bride's finger, but the ring was too small. The groom grew very excited, thinking he was going to lose his bride, but the bride quickly-wittedly overcame the difficulty by putting the ring on her little finger.

The ceremony was then completed, and the happy couple left for the Pan-American on the honeymoon.

A $200,000 ROBBERY.

London, Sept. 12.—The Marquis of Anglesey was robbed last night of jewels valued at $200,000, which were taken from a room at Walsingham House while he was at the theatre. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of a Frenchman named Gault, on suspicion of being the thief. Gault, who disappeared, has been in the service of the Marquis of Anglesey only three weeks.

NEGRO LYNCHERS

Three Kentucky Blacks Meet Violent Death From Mob of Their Fellows.

Cairo, Ill., September 12.—A mob of negroes last night broke into the jail at Wytheville, Ky., across the river from this city, and lynched three negroes, Frank Howard, Sam Reed and Ernest Harrison. They hanged the men to a cross beam in John McCauley's mill.

The crime for which the men were hanged was the murder of an old and respectable negro, Wash Thomas. Last Saturday night they waylaid Thomas on the railroad track, hit him with a club, killing him, and then robbed the dead body.

The murderers confessed their crime before the mob. Everything was quiet in Wytheville to-day and the bodies of the men were still hanging at noon.

SOUGHT DEATH

Paris Woman Threw Herself Into a Hamilton Sewage Basin.

Hamilton, Sept. 12.—Miss Maggie McEvoy, of Paris, Ont., attempted to commit suicide by throwing herself into one of the settling basins at the Ferguson avenue sewage disposal works yesterday morning. The woman came here about a month ago, and being ill and despondent, she went to St. Joseph's Hospital. She left the institution this morning and went to the disposal works. Willie Taylor saw her, and immediately gave the alarm. Peter Filman rushed to the rescue and pulled the woman out. Afterwards she was taken to the hospital. "It is not believed she is in her right mind," Miss McEvoy has no friends here.

SON OF PAUL KRUGER SURRENDERS TO THE BRITISH

Constabulary Post Attacked by Boers who Were Repulsed—Trial of Burgers Accused of Violating Oath of Neutrality.

London, Sept. 12.—A despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria to-day, announces that C. Kruger, a son of the former President of the Transvaal, and Captain Ferreira have surrendered.

SEVEREST PENALTY ASKED.

Pretoria, Sept. 12.—The trial of the ten Boers accused of violating their oath of neutrality was concluded yesterday. The prosecutor made an able speech. He declared that the prisoners were guilty of a cowardly crime. Believing themselves in security, they instigated others to go out and fight.

They belonged to a dangerous class. Knowing that resistance to the British was hopeless, they ruthlessly furthered unnecessary suffering and death. He asked the court to impose the severest punishment. The trials will begin at Johannesburg to-day of sixteen prisoners.

METHUEN'S CASUALTIES.

Mafeking, Cape Colony, Sept. 12.—The British casualties in the great Maritz Valley, Sept. 6 and 8, when General Methuen was engaged with Vantander and Delarey, driving them from a strong position, were 25 killed and 50 wounded, including Captain Croft.

PRESIDENT'S CONDITION GRAVE SUFFERED SERIOUS RELAPSE

The Physicians, Nurses, Brother and Cabinet Officers Were Hastily Summoned to the Chief Executive's Bedside.

Buffalo, September 12.—At 3 o'clock all of the physicians were gathered at the bedside of the President. It was stated that digitalis was being administered to the President.

2.50 a. m.—President McKinley experienced a sinking spell shortly after 2 o'clock. The physicians are administering restoratives to him with the hope of reviving him.

A general call has gone out to the physicians and the members of the cabinet now in the city.

Dr. Park reached the house at 2.50 and shortly after him came Secretaries Hitchcock and Wilson.

The Associated Press has been authorized to say that President McKinley is critically ill.

Drs. Myer and Mann came to the Milburn house at 2.40. It was stated that their call had no special significance, although it was known that they were sent for.

The summoning of the physicians at this hour was regarded as significant, but no statement as to its purpose was immediately obtainable.

At 2.48 a. m. Abner McKinley, brother of the President, was called to the house. He came by carriage and pressed into the house at once. A messenger was dispatched at the same time to summon two absent nurses.

The impression is created that the President has taken a serious turn for the worse, but an expression from those within the house was unobtainable.

Several messengers were hurried from the house, and it was understood that they carried despatches to the absent members of the cabinet and relatives of the President. Additional lights burn in the Milburn home and the household is astir.

Beyond the statement that the President is critically ill no further announcement has been authorized, but it is manifest that the wounded President faces a grave and menacing crisis. Alarm can be read in the actions of those to whose nursing and care he is committed.

The scene about the house is a dramatic one. The attendants can be seen hurrying about behind the unshaded and brightly lighted windows and messengers come and go hastily through the guarded door. Outside half a hundred newspaper correspondents are assembled awaiting news. It is understood that aside from digitalis, no other restorative has been used.

The following was issued by the President's physicians at 2.50 a. m.: "The President's condition is very serious, and gives rise to the gravest apprehension. His heart does not respond properly to stimulation. He is unconscious. The skin is warm and the pulse small, regular, easily compressible and 128, respiration 30, temperature 100."

Buffalo, September 12.—Midnight.—The President's physicians have issued the following bulletin:

"All unfavorable symptoms in the President's condition have improved since the last bulletin. Pulse 120, temperature 100."

The following bulletin was issued by President's physicians at 8.30: p. m. "The President's condition is not quite so good. His food has not agreed with him, and has been stopped. His pulse is not satisfactory, but has improved in the last two hours. The wound is doing well. He is resting quietly. Temperature 100.2, pulse 128."

BAD MONEY

Counterfeit Currency Said to be Circulating in Chatham—Police Investigating.

Complaint has been made to the police authorities that some counterfeit money was passed in Chatham last Saturday. No clue has been found as to the identity of the offender.

This work has evidently been going on in Chatham for some time, but the efforts of the police to do anything towards capturing any of the sharks have been fruitless.

Officer Groves was stopped on King street one Saturday night about two weeks ago by a man who had seen a stranger, evidently a sharper, try to pass some counterfeit money on a Jew on the market. He went up to the stand and bought a very small trifling article and pulling a large roll of money out of his pocket and offered a bill in payment of the article he had purchased. The Jew refused to take it, whereupon the man offered another dollar, which was accepted.

A search was made for the man in question but no trace of him could be found. The police are keeping a sharp lookout for all such offenders and if any are caught, they will be severely dealt with.

ACQUISITION

The Planet Enlarges its Staff and Adds Special Despatches are now Expected From Italy.

This morning The Planet received a "Cartolina Postale Italiana" from ex-Mayor T. A. Smith, who is now travelling in Italy.

Its contents were in the characteristic style of the genial T. A. and his hand-writing in the Italian is just as legible and picturesque a transcription of the language of the continent of alpine, as were possible in the King's English.

He writes from Chiese di S. Maria in Montesanto in Piazza del Popolo-Roma.

The services of The Planet's special linguist and translator were brought into requisition and the message was transcribed as follows:—

Rome, Aug. 30.—If you wish a correspondent in this place remit cash at once to buy a pencil and a pad.

T. A. S. It is some time since this great home journal received word from its own special correspondent in Rome and an immediate cablegram was dispatched fulfilling T. A.'s conditions and confirming his appointment in that capacity.

Planet readers can prepare themselves for all kinds of sensational special cablegrams from the Vatican.

A team of horses attached to a hay rack belonging to Mr. McGeechay, becoming frightened at an L. E. & D. R. R. train on Colborne street, took to flight and before they had reached the C. P. One of the horses was hurt quite badly in the mouth, and the whiffle tree was broken. The driver was unhurt.

BACK PAY

"C" Battery Men Still Fighting to Secure it From the Dominion Government.

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 12.—A number of the members of "C" Battery, that did such effective service in the Boer war, particularly in the relief of Mafeking, are still fighting for the back pay which they contend has been unfairly withheld from them by the Government. On the recommendation of the commanding officer, the Government withheld from them a sum equal to that which the men received from the Rhodesian Government. A number of the Battery boys, 72 of whom went from Hamilton and surrounding districts, met last evening and decided unanimously not to parade in Toronto during the visit of the Duke of York to receive their medals, unless their claims were settled by the Dominion Government. They claim the medals should be presented in Hamilton during the royal visit here, and that there is no necessity for the extra expense of travelling to Toronto.

WHY SOME WOMEN FELL IN LOVE WITH THEIR HUSBANDS.

Feeling Reasons That at Times Influence the Fair Sex in Matters of the Heart—The Woman Who Won and Wedded a Woman Hater.

If there is one question more than another to which it is difficult to get or give a satisfactory answer it is surely this: "Why did you fall in love with your husband?" In 10 cases out of 20 women would probably confess candidly that she did not know or else she would declare conclusively that she did because she did, and that ought to end the matter.

In the rare cases where the lady condescends to declare her reason the answers are both interesting and instructive.

"Whatever made you marry the prisoner?" a London magistrate asked a woman whose face bore "striking" evidence of her husband's affection. "Because he punched all the other fellows' heads," she answered, "and nobody else dared make love to me."

Another good lady confessed that she fell in love with her husband because he was the "only man who ever dared to snub her." While other men were stumbling over each other to pay her court and attention, he always treated her with absolute indifference and even rudeness.

The consequence was that she determined to bring him to her feet and his knees. She succeeded, but lost her heart in the attempt.

"I fell in love with my husband," one lady recently declared, "because he was the only man about whom no one was ever heard to say an unkind word. Even the women, although he paid them no special attention, were agreed that he was 'a dandy'; and, although he was plain, almost to ugliness, and old enough almost to be my father, I loved him and determined to marry him long before he had any such thought of me."

Not long ago a Yorkshire lady of wealth and beauty shocked her friends by marrying a poor cripple. It had come to her ears that he had long loved her in silence and had counted each day happy if he only caught a distant glimpse of her. She discovered that he was a devoted son and brother and a man of unusual gifts and culture for his humble position, and, moved by one of those sudden, generous impulses to which some women are liable, she sought an interview with him, told him that she had learned his secret and offered him her hand and fortune. This may appear a strange and improbable thing, but thousands know that it is literally true.

Another lady whose marriage resulted from a similar impulse gives this explanation of it. Among the friends of her family was an old bachelor with a reputation for earnestness who had known her from a child and had often nursed her in early days. To her he had always been gentle and kind, and she had loved him "in a way" as long as she could remember.

One day she said, "Why have you never married, Mr. —?"

"Marry, my dear? Why, no one would ever marry a grumpy old man like me!"

"Of course they would," she answered indignantly. "Why? I would marry you myself!"

"Thank you, my dear," came the unexpected answer. "Then we'll consider the matter ended."

In spite of her surprise and misgivings the girl loyally kept her promise, and she has never had reason to regret her "moment's indiscretion."

A lady friend of the writer married her husband for the very illogical reason that he was an avowed woman hater. He made no secret of his aversion to the fair sex and declared it so constantly that, as she says, "I vowed I would convert him and make him change his mind, at least so far as one of my sex was concerned." It was not difficult to convert, for within 12 months he had forsaken his creed so far as to conduct one of the "hated sex" to the altar, and now he declares that he "loves them all."

The Home of Echoes.
Many valleys described in guide-books as "whispering valleys" are favorite resorts for tourists in all parts of the world. Few, however, exceed in wonder a valley at Stanfield in Essex, England. The rector of this parish in giving a careful account of his own experiences states that his house stands on a hill 238 feet above sea level, rising in rear to 300 feet, while in front the ground slopes away to a stream 100 feet below and again rises 180 feet on the opposite side. From the rectory the bells of 14 or 15 villages may be distinguished, while across the valley footsteps and voices in conversational tone may be heard at half a mile.

Milk and Water.
"Pa," said little Willie, "why do they speak of the 'milk in the coconut'?"
"It's more like water," replied Mr. Cushman.
"And that's why they call it milk, very probably."

What has become of the old fashioned child that cried so hard that it held its breath?

Whales are never found in the Gulf stream.

The dial of the punching machine won't answer that question. Strength depends on the condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. When the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are diseased, the body fails to receive its full supply of nourishment and hence grows weak. That is why no man is stronger than his stomach.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and the allied organs of digestion and nutrition. The food eaten is then perfectly digested and assimilated and the body is made strong in the only possible way—by nutrition.

"I was troubled with indigestion for about two years," writes Wm. Bowler, Esq., of Julietta, Idaho. "I tried different doctors and remedies, but to no avail. I wrote to you and you told me what to do. I suffered with a pain in my stomach and I felt that it would kill me. Now I am glad to write this and let you know that I am all right. I can do my work now without pain and I feel that I owe you a great deal for what you have done for me. Five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and two vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets' cured me."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets stimulate the liver.

TOUR SHORTENED.
Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 11.—It is settled that the Duchess of Cornwall and York will not visit British Columbia. She will accompany the Duke as far as Banff, and after a brief visit there will return to Poplar Point, 40 miles west of Winnipeg, and there await the return of his Royal Highness.

This arrangement has been made on the advice of the physician accompanying the Royal party, and is necessary on account of the Duchess' delicate condition of health.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be the only member of the Government to accompany the Duke on his transcontinental trip.

KILLED WITH A STONE.
Port Burwell, Sept. 11.—John Ball, who has been working on the government job in the harbor here, was fatally injured yesterday about 11 p. m. He was engaged along with others in unloading stones from a scow. The men had to change the position of the scow, and Ball helped to do it. One of the men above thought the way was clear, and he threw a stone weighing about forty pounds, off the boat. Ball was standing below and it struck him on top of the head. Ball was rendered unconscious, and did not rally. He died at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The stone fell a distance of seven feet. Ball resided at Cling Lake, near this village. He had been employed on the government job about three months. He was 48 years of age and leaves a widow and seven children.

PRAIRIE DOGS AND RATTLESNAKES.

They May Live Together, but They Are Not the Best of Friends.

"Of course you have heard it said," remarked the man back from the west, "that rattlesnakes and prairie dogs are close friends, rent the same house and make a happy family."

"It certainly is a fact that the reptile is generally found in the prairie dog village. But I was once witness of a little scene which went far to prove to me, at least, that a prairie dog loves a rattlesnake somewhat less than is commonly supposed. I was riding after cattle in Wyoming not far from the Colorado line when it came off."

"Prairie dogs form the principal crop in those parts, and their quaint antics never failed to amuse me. On this particular occasion I had managed to get close to a colony and waited for developments. Considerably apart from the others, two dogs were sitting with their noses close together. They appeared to be very much concerned over the movements of a big rattler which was lazily crawling about near them. When the snake moved a length or two, the dogs became excited and danced like little lunatics, but if the rattler ceased his motion there were the cute little cusses, with their noses together, standing somehow to keep abreast of his majesty without seeming to follow him."

"Once the snake coiled, and then the dogs had business elsewhere, but when he straightened out they were on deck again. The rattler in the course of his wriggles came to a hole and stopped there, as though undetermined as to whether it would be worth while to enter or not. Now the prairie dogs began to act in the most unaccountable manner, as though they had been feeding on loco weed and had suddenly felt the effects. They danced on one hind foot and rolled over. They dashed up behind the snake as though they were aching to push him into the hole, and over and anon they would come to attention, with noses together—talking, I suppose."

"But they didn't have much time for these goings on, for the snake soon began to slip into the hole. The dogs, though very intent upon his movements, remained perfectly quiet until the last of him had disappeared. Then they got to work in earnest, and the way they kicked the dirt into that hole was a caution."

"They worked in a systematic manner. When the entrance was well filled with loose dirt, they tramped it, and then threw in more dirt and tramped that. They were not satisfied until the entrance to that hole was blocked and packed down with dirt until it was as solid as the original soil."

"Then the little rascals seemed to be tickled half to death and rubbed noses times innumerable before they slipped off to look for another lazy snake. All of which makes me think that, although the rattler lives with the prairie dog, perhaps he comes, like your wife's relations, without any invitation and without paying any board."

A Chalk and a Ginger Diet.
I have known many instances of girls, in their foolish desire for a "genteel" paleness, eating dry rice and chalk and refusing as much as possible a flesh diet. Chalk certainly and probably rice eaten in excess in this way would tend indirectly to induce pallor by deranging the digestive organs and obstructing the natural secretions of the body. Habitual constipation alone is a frequent cause of anemia.

Half a century ago the plump and rosy cheeks of a Buckinghamshire village found that they, with their robust charms, were neglected by local swains, who favored pale and languishing maidens from the metropolis. To construct this deplorable condition some of the girls endeavored to modify their rotundity and make themselves pale or fair by eating ginger. Others indulged in chalk and scraped skin, and a few tried all three. They succeeded more or less in producing pallor and sickness of appearance, but the young men were not attracted, and after one of the "ginger chews," as they were called, died the practice happily declined.

Only Wanted Time.
One night group of men were talking in the smoking room of the house of commons about a measure which it was proposed to recommend to the consideration of the government and on which we were all understood to be in complete agreement. Suddenly a member who had up to this time offered no objection and had, indeed, sat in absolute silence—though he was well known for an extraordinary aptitude in spinning out talk on the most trivial subject—broke in with the words, "I suppose there is something to be said on the other side." "I dare say there is," Thomas Sexton observed, "and if we had a couple of months to spare you are just the very man to say it, but, then, you see, the matter is coming on the day after tomorrow, and there really is no time." So the little group broke up.

Disinfecting.
In disinfecting a room it is desirable to seal it as tight as possible. This may be done by pasting together newspaper strips cut two inches wide, with a preparation made by soaking two teaspoonfuls of powdered gum tragacanth in one pint of cold water for an hour and then placing the bowl containing it in a pan of boiling water and stirring until the gum is all dissolved. Six of the strips should be pasted together, and then pasted over all cracks of doors and windows, leaving the exit door to be sealed after the fumigator has been started. Gum tragacanth is easily washed off and does not discolor paint or woodwork.

So Does She.
"Oh, papa," cried Marie, "do you know the meanings of Christian names? 'William' means good. I wonder what 'Arthur' means?" And the girl blushed—oh, so prettily!

Papa put on his severest aspect. "I hope Arthur means business," was the reply.

THE LOCAL BUDGET

The telephone inspector is in the city.

Dr. McKeeough was in Tilbury last evening on professional business.

Wm. Foreman, Jr., left this morning for a few days' visit to the Pan-Am.

Dr. J. J. Walters, of Hamburg, spent yesterday with Dr. J. W. Rutledge.

W. H. Eberle and John Croft left this morning for a visit to the Pan-American.

As the Planet goes to press Wm. Carlyle is reported very low at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Game Warden Quallins has returned from a trip of inspection to the shooting grounds along the St. Clair.

James Ritchie, and two daughters, Misses Eliza and Jennie, are spending a few days at the Pan-American Exposition.

The annual tournament of the Lawn Tennis Club is being held today. It was postponed yesterday on account of the rain.

The work on the new granolithic sidewalk was commenced on Lacroix street on Monday. It is now nearing completion.

The death occurred on Wednesday, 11th inst., of Louise Sylvain, beloved wife of T. Sylvain, teacher, of Big Point School. The funeral took place this morning from Big Point Church to the Big Point cemetery.

Geo. Stephens, Quinn & Douglas have now steel whiffletrees, which in all probability will eventually take the place of the old style wood whiffletrees. Call and see them; if you do not want the steel you can have the wood, as we keep both and our prices are right.

Some of the attractions booked for the local theatre during September and October are: "Humbly," Sept. 18; "Brace of Patridge," Oct. 3; "Brownies," Oct. 4 and 5; "Bostonians," Oct. 17; "The Span of Life," Oct. 19; "A Telephone Girl," Oct. 21; "A Homesman Heart," Oct. 23; "Shipman Bros.," Oct. 25.

Mr. Robert Ferguson, of East Kent, was a solid and useful member of the Legislature. He did not pretend to be a speaker, and had little love for the front of the stage. But he was always for the public as against private interests, and had a hard common sense that made him impervious to the appeals of interested lobbyists. He was successful in his business enterprises and happy in his social relationships, and carried with modesty and dignity the local honors which he so freely received and so well deserved at the hands of the community in which he was best known and therefore most respected.—Toronto Globe.

As Common as Glasses Are

There are not as many worn as there should be. Few people commence wearing them soon enough. Not enough attention is paid to the earlier symptoms of eye trouble.

People put off getting glasses as long as they possibly can. It isn't the proper way to do.

Glasses will CURE the milder cases. Wear them for a time and then they may be laid off.

More advanced cases may need the constant wearing of glasses.

We are always ready to examine your eyes. We will give your case our closest attention.

CONDITION IS CRITICAL

Planet Specials this Afternoon Report McKinley's Relapse as Alarming.

Vice-President and Many Distinguished Physicians Summoned by Special Train.

Special To The Planet.

Buffalo, Sept. 13.—The President's physicians report that his condition is practically unchanged since the 9 o'clock bulletin. He is sleeping quietly.

Special To The Planet.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 13.—The latest detailed description of the President's condition was given by Col. D. S. Alexander, who said as the understood Dr. Rixey's description, that the mere physical features of the wound were entirely eliminated from the case and a collapse of the heart absorbed all attention. While a slight improvement gave a gleam of hope, the condition was so serious that it will require a most remarkable rally to restore confidence.

Mark Hanna arrived from Cleveland by special train this morning at 10.20. Mrs. Duncan and Mrs. Barber, the President's sisters, reached the Milburn house. They were followed shortly by Senator Saurbans, of Indiana.

It now appears that all the President's relatives had been summoned from Canton and Cleveland.

Mayor Diehl called at 10 o'clock, with him was Wilson S. Bessell, former Postmaster General. Dr. Mann informed the two callers that if the President survived the day there would be cause for renewed hope.

The patient, he said, was in a state of collapse, although his heart was slightly strengthened.

Special trains from all parts of the Eastern States are being rushed to this city with prominent Government officials and personal friends of the President.

The detective force at the New York Central Railway station has been doubled, and extra precautions will be taken to prevent any assault upon the arrival of noted men.

At two o'clock the President rallied slightly, the saline solution which saved Mrs. McKinley's life in San Francisco had proved in a measure effective.

ROOSEVELT SUMMONED.

Special To The Planet.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Vice-President Roosevelt has been telegraphed for.

PHYSICIANS EN ROUTE.

Special To The Planet.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Dr. Mann was urged this afternoon to make an authorized statement regarding the distinguished President's condition, in addition to that contained in the bulletin. This he declined to do; but in response to inquiries he said, "No, I can say nothing about any crises in the case. A patient may continue in the condition in which the President now is for some time, and then pick up, or not, as the case may develop. The President is in a very serious condition, but it is absurd to say he is dying as was stated by some persons this morning. I cannot make any further statements about the case just now."

Dr. Janeway and Dr. Johnson are on their way here. Dr. Edward G. Janeway, of New York, is probably the most noted diagnostician in this country. He is the man who pulled Rudyard Kipling through his critical illness. Dr. W. W. Johnson, of Washington, is a recognized authority on gunshot wounds in the abdomen. They are coming on special trains. The President is perfectly conscious, despite his extreme weakness.

SOME IMPROVEMENT.

Special To The Planet.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 13, 3.30 p. m.—The President has more than held his own since morning, and his condition justifies the expectation of further improvement; he is better than yesterday at this time. Pulse 123, temperature 99.4.

FOR PEACE

President Shaffer Instructed to Negotiate in the Great Strike.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 12.—The Iron Trade Review this week says indications now point to an early settlement of the steel strike. According to Pittsburgh advice, President Shaffer has been instructed by the Executive committee of the Amalgamated Association to negotiate for peace on the best terms obtainable, and it is probable that the strike will be settled on the terms offered by the United States Steel Corporation last week.

Youngstown, Ohio, Sept. 12.—President W. E. Corry, of the American Steel Hoop Company, arrived in Youngstown yesterday afternoon with other officials of the company. They will hold a conference to-day with the Amalgamated men regarding a settlement of the strike.

SHAMROCK'S CLOSE SHAVE

Lipton's Yacht Caught in Fierce Squall Lasting ten Minutes.

Capt. Sycamore's Fine Work Kept her off Dangerous Shoal.

New York September 12.—In all of her ten trial spins in these waters and sixteen or more on the Clyde, Shamrock and crew never had a more exciting experience than they had during ten minutes this afternoon when the yacht was caught in a fierce squall that came out of the west and blew at the rate of fifty miles an hour, as recorded at Sandy Hook weather station. The squall came so suddenly that the men had no time to shorten sail except to take in the fore staysail so that the yacht had to take it with the whole mainsail, jib and a working gaff topsail set. She was off the bell buoy at Sandy Hook bound in after a short spin as far as the middle of Gedney channel.

Just before the squall struck her she was trimmed so that Shamrock would weather the red buoys on the north side of the channel. She had just filled away on the port tack when the squall hit her on the lee side, putting her aback and in irons. The water as far as the eye could reach was feather-white, and the wind fairly screamed through her shrouds as she gathered sternway.

Things began to look serious for the challenger. Capt. Sycamore never lost his head, but shifted his helm and then, as the yacht began to gather headway, she felt the full force of the wind. Down she went until her rail was out of sight, and the water was boiling up around her hatches. The tall mast was leaning at an angle of between 35 and 45 degrees, and there was not a man who watched her, but expected to see the mast go by the board. Gradually she righted and forged ahead, but a new danger threatened.

The yacht was now out of the channel and heading direct for the east point of that dangerous shoal known as Flynn's Knoll, where there is only fifteen feet of water, and she draws about twenty-one feet. Fearing that she would strike, some of the crew hailed the tug Lawrence, but the tug could not have reached the yacht in time. The moment she had sufficient headway to go about Capt. Sycamore jammed his tiller hard down and the boat responded, staggering up into the wind, until the big mainsail slatted like claps of thunder, and it looked as if the jib would jerk his helm and send her. But not a rope yarn parted and as she filled away, heeling down again to the danger angle, she cleared the shoal, and was soon out in deep water again. The squall had been a narrow escape, but the squall had not yet spent its force, and the strain on the mast and gear for the next five minutes was something terrific. Standing on the wharf, it was impossible without holding on to something. Mr. John Hyslop, the measurer of the N. Y. Y. C., and the first American yachtman who has sailed on the Shamrock, with Mrs. W. G. Jameson went below when the squall struck the yacht, so as to be clear of the spars and gear if anything had carried away. The others remained on deck, hanging on to the weather rail until the weight of the squall had passed. Then a couple of men were sent aloft to unlatch the jib, and it came down. A few minutes later the tender Lawrence passed the yacht a line, the mainsail was lowered and the yacht made fast to her moorings at 2:30.

Before the challenger was made fast Sir Thos. Lipton was alongside in his launch from the Erin. Springing on deck he anxiously inquired of Mr. Watson if anything had been carried away. He was told that nothing had, and the day was lost our mast on the other side. Capt. Sycamore was in a very tight place in that narrow channel but he brought her out of it by good handling.

When seen a few minutes later on board the Erin by an Associated Press representative, Sir Thomas said: "No big sloop was ever subjected to such an awful strain as that. I have Mr. Hyslop's word for it and Captains Walker and Hall, of the revenue cutters Greaham and Chase, both of whom have been about 40 years at sea, say they never saw a vessel behave so splendidly in such a blow. Why, the yacht was nearly on her beam ends. It did not look anything like a hand the day we lost our mast on the other side. Capt. Sycamore was in a very tight place in that narrow channel but he brought her out of it by good handling."

MUSICIAN MET REAL ROW

Maple City Man of Melody Developed Troubles of his own.

Sought to be Gallant But the Unreasonable Husband Didn't see it That way.

There is a certain Maple City musician, who is said to have experienced all the discomforts of being misunderstood—especially when there is a lady in the case.

He took a ride to a neighboring village the other day and report has it that he was driving a very fine racer. He was evidently well aware of the excellence of the animal he was handling, and pulled up in front of one of the hotels, feeling rather uppish and confident.

He stopped with a loud "Whoa!" which attracted the attention of all of the farmers who were lounging around the hotel, tied up his horse and with a somewhat lordly air, walked into the hotel to have a chat with the landlord.

The conversation was rather general at the start, but they soon commenced to talk of horses. This was evidently the chance that the producer of harmony was waiting for. He threw himself back in his chair, stuck his thumbs in his vest arm holes, and emphatically exclaimed:

"I've got a horse out there that can reach in quality any animal ever produced in Kent."

The landlord, who is somewhat of a horse fancier, was strongly inclined to doubt the truthfulness of the statement, and voiced his opinions in a manner that did not way pleased the musician, who at once put up a strong defence in favor of his horse.

After arguing the matter for some time, they decided to go out and view the horse in question. By this time a large party, including a goodly number of ladies, had congregated in front of the hotel, to see what new visitor had arrived in town. When the landlord and his guest put in their appearance matters came to a climax. The horse fancier saw at a glance that the animal which had caused all of the disturbance, was nothing more than a "common everyday horse," and did not hesitate in telling him so. This rather riled the other, and for a time it is said, some very eloquent language was used. The landlord, however, was willing to give him all the show he could and suggested that he would like to "see him trot."

The man of melody thought that now was the chance to show his gallantry and he politely turned, and selecting one of the ladies standing near, asked her if she would care to have a buggy ride. She gladly accepted the most kind invitation, pleased with the distinction so generously offered.

Unfortunately, however, for the musician, the lady in question was the landlord's wife. They drove down the road together, the Chathamite forgetting all about the beauty points of his animal and the argument he had had with the landlord, and thinking only of the pleasure he was giving in the drive.

After they had driven several miles he was rudely awakened from his joyful thoughts by the voice of the lady by his side, who was enquiring if he did not think it would be advisable to return home. The other had not once dreamed of this, but when he thought it over he decided that probably it would be just as well if they did, and he accordingly started out on the shortest road home, which, after all, was not so very short.

When they finally alighted at the hotel, the unfortunate soloist was considerably alarmed to see, through the flickering light of a dimly burning lantern, that he was looking down the muzzle of a double-barreled shot gun.

He did not wait to enquire whether or not the gun was loaded, but jumped into his rig and this time he gave the landlord an excellent opportunity to judge of the speed of his racer.

Professional duties have not called him to the village in question since, but the landlord of the hotel is patiently awaiting his arrival—with the shotgun.

COURT CASES

Quite a Large Docket To-day at the Local Police Headquarters.

James Burgess, appeared at the police court this morning charged with a serious offence—that of pocket picking.

It appears that Burgess, who is an employee of the William Gray & Sons Co., Limited, was on the Moccabeen excursion to Sarnia and Port Huron yesterday and when coming back he took a pipe and a package of cigarettes from the pocket of James Clements.

Burgess explained his action, saying that a number of boys got together, and he did it to have a joke on Clements. Clements did not like the joke, and immediately prosecuted. The case was adjourned until four o'clock this afternoon.

Jones, of Buxton, charged with assault, was given two years in the Kingston penitentiary.

Siddall came up again charged with assault, and was remanded for a week. Martin Curlye was dismissed on a charge of selling liquor during prohibited hours.

The case of James Graves, grain buyer, charged by Robert Bryan with assault, was dismissed.

DEWET'S BROTHER

Story of his Capture by James Stratton, now on his way to Colorado.

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 12.—James Stratton, who has papers to show that he has been honorably discharged from the British army, and who claims to have been the scout who captured Christopher De Wet, brother of General De Wet, the Boer leader, passed through Windsor yesterday, on his way to his home in Denver.

Col. Stratton was serving with the Border Horse, under Gen. Brabant, when Gen. French gave the orders for the capture of Christopher De Wet, who was found in his house at Dewetskops, 23 miles from Kroonstadt.

Stratton, according to his story, evaded two pickets and entered De Wet's house in the dead of night, placed a revolver at the Boer's head, and, leading him out through a rear exit, again got beyond the pickets unnoticed.

Stratton went to Johannesburg eight years ago. He was among the seven thousand men taken to Pretoria by Cronje upon their refusal to fight for the Boers, and was confined there until released by Lord Roberts several months later.

DIED WITH PRAYER UPON HIS LIPS

William McKinley Bravely Entered the Unseen at an Early Hour.

Special To The Planet.
Milburn House, Buffalo, Sept. 14.—6.30 a. m.—William McKinley, president of the United States, died peacefully at 2.15 this morning.

He was conscious almost to the end. His last words were addressed to his wife:

"God's will, not ours, be done."

Since midnight the solemn gathering at the bedside have awaited the end, all hope of a rally having been abandoned.

The end was perfectly peaceful, the President dying with a smile on his lips.

The hideous success of his foul act has not yet been communicated to Crogosz.

Troops were called out during the night to guard him, as there was much talk of lynching. The armories were guarded that the people might not be able to get arms.

The whole of Buffalo is in the deepest mourning and profound sorrow is universally evident.

The Pan-American Exposition is practically deserted and will probably be temporarily closed.

No arrangement as to the obsequies has yet been made.

FIGHT FOR LIFE

Hopeless Struggle Kept Up All Yesterday.

Milburn House, Buffalo, Sept. 14.—Before six o'clock it was clear to those at the President's bedside that he was dying, and preparations were made for the last sad offices of farewell from those who were nearest and dearest to him. Oxygen had been administered steadily, but with little effect in keeping back the approach of death. The President came out of one period of unconsciousness only to relapse into another. But in this period when his mind was partially clear occurred a series of events of profoundly touching character.

Downstairs, with strained and tear-stained faces members of the cabinet were grouped in anxious waiting. They knew the end was near and that the time had come when they must see him for the last time on earth. This was about six o'clock. One by one they ascended the stairway—Secretary Root, Secretary Hitchcock and Attorney General Knox. Secretary Wilson was also there, but he held back, not wishing to see the President in his last agony.

Final greetings of husband and wife were affecting. After friends left the sick room the physicians rallied him to consciousness and the President asked almost immediately for his wife he brought to him. The doctors fell back into the shadows of the room as Mrs. McKinley came through the doorway.

The strong face of the dying man lighted up with a faint smile as their hands were clasped. She sat beside him and held his hand. Despite her physical weakness, she bore up bravely under the ordeal.

The President, in his last period of consciousness, which ended about 7.40, chanted the words of the hymn, "Near to My God to Thee," and his last audible conscious words, as taken down by Dr. Mann at the bedside, were: "Good-bye, all good-bye. It is God's way. His will be done."

All the evening those who had hastened here as fast as steel and steam could carry them continued to arrive. They drove up in carriages at a gallop or were whisked up in automobiles all intent upon getting here before death came. One of the last to arrive was Attorney-General Knox, who reached the house at 9.30. He was permitted to go upstairs to look for the last time upon the face of his chief. Those in the house at this time were Secretaries Hitchcock, Wilson and Root, Senators Fairbanks, Hanna and Burrows, Judge Day, Col. Herrick, Alger McKinley, the president's brother, and his wife; Dr. and Mrs. Baer, the President's niece and her husband; Mrs. Barber and Mrs. Duncan, the President's sisters; Mrs. Mary Barber, Mrs. McWilliams, Mrs. McKinley's cousin; the physicians, including Dr. McBurney, who arrived after 8 o'clock; John G. Milburn, John N. Seachord, Harry Hamlin, all of this city; Secretary Cortelyou and a number of others.

Rev. C. D. Wilson, a Methodist minister of Tonawanda, N. Y., who was the President's pastor for three years at Canton, called at the residence to inquire whether his services were needed, but did not enter the house. Another Methodist minister, who has a church nearby, remained at the Milburn residence for two hours in the belief that his services might be desired.

At 9.37 Secretary Cortelyou, who had been much of the time with the dying chief, sent out formal notification that the President was dying. But the President lingered on, his pulse growing fainter and fainter.

Secretary Root and Secretary Wilson came from the house about midnight and paced up and down the sidewalk. All that Secretary Root said was:

"The night has not come yet." Despite the fact that vitality continued to ebb as midnight approached no efforts were spared to keep the spark of life glowing. Dr. Janeway, of New York City, arrived at the Buffalo depot at 11.40 o'clock. George Urban was waiting for him and they drove at a breakneck pace to the Milburn house. He was shown to the President's room at once and began an examination of the almost inanimate form.

Secretary of the Navy Long arrived at the Milburn house at 12.06. This was his first visit to the city and he had the extreme satisfaction of seeing the President alive, even though he was not conscious of his visitor's presence. Secretary Long was visibly affected.

Vice President Roosevelt had been notified early in the day of the critical state of affairs. There was no longer a doubt that in the approaching death of the President a complete change in the executive administration of government would ensue. When Mr. Roosevelt would take the oath of office was wholly a matter of conjecture.

LAST HOURS

Relatives and Friends Waited at the Bed side for the Dread Summons.

Milburn House, Buffalo, Sept. 14.—President McKinley died at 2.15 a. m. He had been unconscious since 7.50. His last conscious hour on earth was spent with the wife to whom he devoted a lifetime of care. He died unattended by a minister of the Gospel, but his last words were a humble submission to God in whom he believed. He was reconciled to the cruel fate to which an assassin's bullet had condemned him and faced death in the same spirit of calmness which has marked his long and honorable career. His last conscious words, reduced to writing by Dr. Mann, who stood at his bedside, when they were uttered, were as follows: "Good-bye. All good-bye. It is God's way. His will be done."

His relatives and the members of his official family were at the Milburn House, except Secretary Wilson who did not avail himself of the opportunity, and some of his personal and political friends took leave of him. This painful ceremony was simple. His friends came to the door of the sick room, took a longing glance at him and turned tearfully away.

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES SUCCUMBS TO THE BULLETS OF THE ASSASSIN.

THE LATE WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

PRACTICALLY UNCONSCIOUS.

He was practically unconscious during this time. But the powerful stimulants, including oxygen, were employed to restore him to consciousness for his final parting with his wife.

He asked for her and she sat at his side and held his hand. He consoled her and bade her good-bye. She went through the heart-breaking scene with the same bravery and fortitude with which she has borne the grief of the tragedy that ended his life.

The immediate cause of the President's death is unknown. His doctors disagree and it will possibly require an autopsy to fix the exact cause. The President's remains will be taken to Washington and there will be a state funeral. Vice-President Roosevelt, who now succeeds to the presidency, may take the oath wherever he happens to hear the news. The cabinet will, of course, resign in a body, and President Roosevelt will have an opportunity of forming a new cabinet if he so desires.

The rage of the people of Buffalo against the assassin when they learned to-night that the President was dying was boundless. Thousands surrounded the jail and the entire police force of the city and two regiments of militia were utilized to insure his protection.

AFFECTING FAREWELL

Mrs. McKinley Bravely Faced the Ordeal of the Last Sad Moments.

Milburn House, Buffalo, Sept. 13.—Before 6 o'clock it was clear to those at the President's bedside that he was dying, and preparations were made for the last sad offices of farewell from those who were nearest and dearest to him. Oxygen had been administered steadily, but with little effect in keeping back the approach of death. The President came out of one period of unconsciousness only to relapse into another. THE SECRETARY OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, D.C.

The citizens of Chatham desire to express through you, to the people of the United States, our sincere sympathy in the loss of your chief executive. The Canadians in this district look upon McKinley as the noblest and most fairminded statesman that your great Republic has ever produced.

Mayor.

was partially clear, occurred a series of events, of profoundly touching character. Downstairs, with strained and tear-stained faces, members of the cabinet were grouped in anxious waiting. They knew the end was near, and that the time had come when they must see him for the last time on earth. This was about six o'clock. One by one they ascended the stairway—Secretary Root, Secretary Hitchcock and Atty-Gen. Knox. Secretary Wilson was also there, but he held back, not wishing to see his President in his last agony. There was only a momentary stay of the cabinet officers at the threshold of the death chamber. Then they withdrew the tears streaming down their faces and the words of intense grief choking their throats.

After they left the sick room the physicians rallied him to consciousness and the President asked almost immediately that his wife be brought to him. The doctors fell back into the shadows of the room as Mrs. McKinley came through the doorway. The strong face of the dying man lighted up with a faint smile as their hands were clasped. She sat beside him and held his hand. Despite her physical weakness she bore up bravely under her trial.

Then his mind began to wander and soon afterward he completely lost consciousness. His life was prolonged for hours by the administration of oxygen, and the President finally expressed a desire to be allowed to die. About 8.30 the administration of oxygen ceased and the pulse grew fainter and fainter. He was sinking gradually, like a child into the eternal slumber.

PULSE COULDN'T BE FELT.

By ten o'clock the pulse could no longer be felt in his extremities and they grew cold. Below stairs the grief-stricken gathering waited sadly for the end.

There was no need for official bulletins after this. Those who came from the house at intervals told the same story—that the President was dying and the end might come at any time. His tremendous vitality was the only remaining factor in the result, and this gave hope only of brief postponement of the end. Dr. Mynter thought he might last until 2 a. m. Dr. Mann said at 11 that the President was still alive and probably would live an hour. Thus minutes, lengthened to hours, and midnight came with the President still battling against death.

At this midnight hour the Milburn house was the centre of a scene as animated as though it were mid-day, although a solemn hush hung over the great crowd of watchers. The entire lower part of the house was aglow with light and the many attendants, friends and relatives could be seen within moving about and occasionally coming in groups to the front doorway for a breath of air. In the upper front chambers the lights were low, and around on the north side, where the chamber of death is located there were stifled lights, some burning brightly and then turned low.

INCREASING EFFECTS.

Despite the fact that vitality continued to ebb as midnight approached, no efforts were spared to keep the spark of life glowing. Dr. Janeway of New York City arrived at the Buffalo depot at 11.40 o'clock. George Urban was waiting for him and they drove at a breakneck pace to the Milburn house. He was shown to the President's room at once and began an examination of the almost inanimate form.

Secretary of the Navy Long arrived at the Milburn house at 12.06. This was his first visit to the city, and he had the extreme satisfaction of seeing the President alive, even though he was not conscious of his visitor's presence. Secretary Long was visibly affected.

Shortly after midnight the President's breathing was barely perceptible. His pulse had practically ceased and the extremities were cold. It was recognized that nothing remained but the last struggle, and some of the friends of the family who had remained through the day began to leave the house, not caring to be present at the final scene.

Such an intense state of anxiety existed among the watchers that rumors gained frequent circulation that death had already actually occurred. The arrival of the coroner gave rise to one such rumor, and a flood of groundless dispatches were sent, saying that the end had come. These were speedily set at rest, by an official statement from within the house that the reports of death were groundless and the President still lived.

CORONER ARRIVED.

Coroner Wilson said he had been ordered by the district attorney of the county to go to the Milburn house as soon as possible after the announcement of death.

He had seen a reputable local paper issued, with the announcement that the President died at 11.06 and had hurried up so that there would be no delay in removing the body. He was very much chagrined when Dr. Mann met him at the door and told him that his services were not required and that he would be notified when he was wanted. Dr. Mann said the President was still alive and that Dr. Janeway was examining the heart action. There was no hope, but they did not desire gruesome anticipation.

WORKINGS OF LAW

Constitutional Provision for Succession of Vice-President Roosevelt.

Theodore Roosevelt's succession to the presidency is different from that of Chester A. Arthur. Owing to the long illness of President Garfield Mr. Arthur was placed in a delicate position and the question as to whether the cabinet or the vice-president should carry on the duties of the President during his illness was not settled.

James G. Blaine, at a meeting of the cabinet, suggested that Mr. Arthur be called upon to assume the office of the president so as to act in case an extraordinary emergency arise. No action was taken on that suggestion and fortunately no such emergency arose. Hardly had President Garfield breathed his last when Mr. Arthur took the oath of office as President of the United States at his residence in New York City; Judge Brady, of the New York supreme court officiating.

The next day but one, as soon as Mr. Arthur could reach Washington, the oath was again administered at the capitol by Chief Justice Waite of the United States supreme court. The ceremony took place in the senate chamber. In his first message to congress President Arthur recommended that congress take action on the succession to the presidency. The senate ordered its judiciary committee to ascertain what, if further, legislation was necessary. A bill to meet the case was introduced by Senator Garland of Arkansas. The matter was briefly debated in both houses of congress for a number of years, but no legislation was passed until January, 1886, when the forty-ninth congress passed a law based on Senator Garland's draft.

It made no provision for the taking up of the duties of president by the vice-president during the partial inability of the executive, but provided that if the presidency and vice-presidency are both vacant the presidency passes to the members of the cabinet in the historical order of the establishment beginning with the secretary of state. If he dies, is impeached or disabled, the secretary of the treasury becomes president, to be succeeded in a like crisis by the secretary of war, he by the attorney-general, he by the postmaster-general, he by the secretary of the navy, he by the secretary of the interior, and he by the secretary of agriculture.

MUCH MOVED

McKinley's Political Rival Suffered Intense Emotion at the News.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Of the sorrowful tidings of the President's demise, Col. Wm. J. Bryan said to-night to a

The whole Dominion will extend sincere sympathy with the neighboring republic in the bereavement suffered by the demise of its noble President.

The wide-spread interest which is universally felt is well evidenced by the pulse of the Maple City.

The first local news of the fatal outcome of the assassin's attack was given by The Planet at 6.30 this morning by window bulletin. This was followed by a brief Planet extra at seven o'clock, which was scattered through the streets and at the factories.

At 8.30 The Planet issued a second extra giving further details of the last hours and the end.

The news cast a gloom over the entire community. Few rulers held the international admiration accorded to William McKinley and few have been so genuinely mourned. Many flags were at once placed at half-mast and several establishments were fittingly draped.

representative of the Associated Press:

"I cannot believe the President's life is to end this way. It seems impossible. I simply will not believe that he can die from an assassin's bullet until I hear that he has breathed his last. While there's life there's hope." Col. Bryan arrived here from Lincoln, Neb., at 8.50 p. m. over the Burlington road and was driven at once to the Sherman House. He was to have addressed a democratic meeting to-morrow, but when he heard the news from Buffalo he said he would in all probability leave for Lincoln to-morrow morning. While Col. Bryan was talking, his head was bowed and he appeared to be greatly dejected. Over and over again he repeated the words: "I cannot believe his life is to end this way."

"I have already spoken of the horror of which I regard the assassin's crime. I have already spoken of the high personal esteem in which I hold Mr. McKinley. In this moment of sorrow, I cannot add anything to either."

ASKED FOR THE NEWS.

Mr. Bryan asked for the later news from the President's bedside and added: "In the event of his death, I shall have something more to say."

Later when the committee of Carter Harrison's league at whose picnic, Col. Bryan was to have spoken to-morrow, announced that the demonstration had been abandoned, Col. Bryan, in a voice that shook with emotion, read the following:

"I most cordially commend your action in abandoning the contemplated demonstration. We are all oppressed by the grief which has fallen upon the nation. We have no spirit for a partisan meeting at this time for partisan feeling is swallowed up in an universal sorrow. Political controversies, and the disappointments which attend them dwindle into insignificance when we stand in the presence of the tragedy which seems likely to rob the nation of its chief executive."

"We all feel the humiliation that our country has suffered and our hearts are with the lovely woman from whom foul and brutal assassination is taking one of the most faithful and tender of husbands. Whether the heroic struggle ends fatally, as we now fear, or in his restoration to health as we pray it will, you have acted wisely."

WAS DEEPLY MOVED.

When Col. Bryan ceased reading his face was grave. He was shown the latest Associated Press bulletins which he read carefully and with downcast head and when he looked up tears stood in his eyes. In a voice that broke, he indicated the bulletin where in the dying President was said to be murmuring: "Nearer My God to Thee," and said: "Isn't that pitiful— isn't it too pitiful?"

"God's will, not ours, be done," he read in another bulletin giving the President's last words to Mrs. McKinley, and again Mr. Bryan was deeply moved. He made no comment.

IF YOU NEED GLASSES

You Need an Optician's Services.

In fact, you cannot tell whether you ought to wear them or not until you have had your eyes examined. You may know there is something wrong with your eyes from the aching, burning sensations that they experience—and very likely there is—but only an optician, with the latest devices at his command, should be allowed to tell you what it is that is wrong.

And whatever you do, do not attempt to choose a pair of glasses yourself. They might do your eyes more harm than good. Come in, anyway, and get the benefit of expert advice. It's free.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Twenty-Sixth Executive of U. S. Hastening to Buffalo.

Will Likely be Formally Sworn in this Afternoon.

Special to The Planet.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 14.—President Roosevelt arrived in Albany from North Creek at 7.56 o'clock this morning in the private car of Vice-President Young, of the Delaware & Hudson company. The car was immediately attached to a New York Central special train which was in waiting and at 3.02 the train left for Buffalo.

The engineer in charge of the train is limited to Empire State Express time. The President will probably arrive in Buffalo about 1 o'clock.

Great crowds were at the station to meet the train on its arrival, but they were not afforded an opportunity to see the President. The doors of the private car in which the President is traveling were kept locked. The porter was sent out to the station restaurant to get breakfast for the President and his secretary, Mr. Loeb. The police kept the crowd from the steps of the car.

While the New York Central special was being made up Secretary Loeb came to the platform of the President's car and said: "I am very sorry, but the President will see no one at this time."

"Has Mr. Roosevelt taken the oath of office yet?"

"No, sir."

"Have any arrangements been made for Roosevelt to take the oath between here and Buffalo, or at Buffalo?"

"No, sir," Loeb replied, and continued: "You may say that no arrangements have been made at all of any description. I don't know what will be done at Buffalo. No plans as yet have been made. All I can say is this: That on his arrival in Buffalo Mr. Roosevelt will become the guest of Mr. Wilcox, with whom he stopped when he was at Buffalo before."

Buffalo, Sept. 14.—The arrival of the new President, Theodore Roosevelt, is awaited with anxious interest. Numerous telegrams have been despatched to him along the route, but it is not known here whether or not they have been received. Roosevelt is expected to reach Buffalo about 1 p. m. today. It is the belief that he will take the oath after his arrival.

Under the constitution he is now President of the United States, and the taking of the oath is merely a preliminary requisite to beginning the exercise of his presidential functions.

The assumption by him of the office of president means the disintegration of the present cabinet. The resignations of all the cabinet officers will be submitted to President Roosevelt at once and he will be left free to formulate his own policy of government and to select his own advisers.

Who they are is already a matter of active speculation, but it is needless to say that with Roosevelt absent from the scene and shaming in the nation's grief, there can be nothing beyond the realm of conjecture.

MRS. MCKINLEY BEARS UP.

Special to The Planet.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Dr. Wasdin came from the House at 8.40. He said Mrs. McKinley had rested well during the night and was feeling quite strong. She bears up wonderfully well in her grief, and some of the apprehension as to her is passing away.

RAN UP OLD GLORY.

Special to The Planet.

Dantzic, September 14.—When Emperor William heard of the death of President McKinley, he immediately ordered the German fleet to half-mast their flags and to hoist the stars and stripes at their mainmasts.

THE DEATH CHAIR.

Special to The Planet.

Buffalo, September 14.—The wretch, Leon Czolgosz, now stands accused of murder.

The crime was committed with malice aforethought, and as such was murder in the first degree, the punishment for which under the law of New York is death in the electric chair.

NO SORROW

Emma Goldman Showed no Evidence of Regret of the Sad News.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—When shown the Associated Press despatch announcing the inevitable death of the President, Emma Goldman, the anarchist now being held at the Harrison street station, carefully adjusted her glasses, read the bulletin, and, after a moment's pause, without a change of expression, said:

"Very sorry."

Absolutely no shade of regret or pity showed itself upon her countenance.

"I do not see how that can affect my case," she added, "if it is carried out lawfully and legally. They have no evidence against me. Chief Bull and Chief O'Neill have admitted that they have none. They are holding me without evidence. The death of McKinley would only lengthen my term of imprisonment, if they convicted me. I feel very bad for the future of Mrs. McKinley."

RIVALS RACE

A Drug Seller and a Drummer have a Quiet Race in Victoria Park—Rogers Given to Druggist.

A commercial man, a "peaceful" shoe merchant and "I may call" the other a druggist, were a grand trio that formed the personnel of the following episode which took place on Victoria Park yesterday at high noon.

A wager as to the relative speeds of the dispenser of poisons, and the wily and witty drug dispenser, being a noted cyclist, didn't do a thing but drop in the vacuum behind his opponent, and thus saved his windmill from all who are ready to pay. The unpaid taxes of 1900 will be collected by distress with costs from this date, and all delinquents will govern themselves accordingly.

A quiet meeting was held on the corner at the Standard Bank, at 11.45, when all things were suitably arranged and the trio repaired to the old park to settle, once and for all, the difference, supposed to exist.

Immediately upon arriving, hats, coats, etc., were hurriedly doffed, and the referee gave the signal, when, low and behold, away shot the drummer, who is a man of great proportions, but the wily and witty drug dispenser, being a noted cyclist, didn't do a thing but drop in the vacuum behind his opponent, and thus saved his windmill from all who are ready to pay.

SATURDAY STORE NEWS

What is store news anyway, is it to tell you that "this store sells collars, cuffs, etc.?" NO, NO, it's no news to tell you of what you know already. Store news and all other kinds of news should have an element of the unusual about it, else it's no news at all and wouldn't be worth reading. So soon as we have nothing of interest to tell you in connection with our store then we'll have to stop spending money for this space.

September Weather

Makes Oatmeal almost a necessity for breakfast. Few people realize how much care is necessary to make a really excellent rolled oats. It has become such a staple article of diet that it is almost always sold at cut prices. This tends to lower the quality. The sweet nutty fresh flavor of fine oatmeal is usually lacking. In our "pan dried" rolled oats you are sure of getting the best. We buy direct from the mill, get it fresh and get it often.—

COUNTERFEITS

No Trace of the Man who Passed Bogus Money in Chatham last Saturday—Some Solid Advice from Chief Young

No trace has yet been found of the man who passed the counterfeit money in Chatham last Saturday. The police have been doing all in their power to capture the offender, but as yet have failed to do so.

The information was received at the police station too late to be of any use.

"If we had had last Saturday night the information we received about this affair yesterday we could have caught the man very easily. Officer Dezellia saw the man Monday evening near the Rankin House and the Grand Central Hotel. We know him by the description given by the people on whom he passed the money on Saturday. Dezellia thought he acted suspiciously, and made some enquiries, and found out that he seemed to have lots of money. He could do nothing, however, because he did not know of the counterfeit money affair.

"The first information we received was from a bank clerk, who had been taken in by the man in question. He told us on Thursday, but by this time the man had cleared out.

"Yesterday we found out a number of people who were imposed upon, and some also, who refused to take his money. The man carried a large roll of photographed Dominion Bank $10 bills, which were very poor imitations and quite easily detected.

"Those men who refused to take his money, should have reported immediately to us so that we could have had a chance to round him up. Instead, that they waited until it was too late. The police cannot be expected to know of these things if no one tells them."

Protests Strongly Against Bad Side-walks and the Present Bicycle By-Law.

The sidewalk on the east side of Victoria avenue is in a very dangerous condition. The matter was referred to the city engineer, who said: "I have inspected the walk and condemned it and it should be torn up and thrown out into the road. The people here seem to prefer to walk on a bad sidewalk and have the privilege of kicking those to walk on a good sidewalk and have no reason for complaint."

"If I had been here early in the season I would have agitated strongly against the present bicycle by-law," continued the city official. "The present by-law is absurd. The idea of fining a man who rides on the sidewalk when no one else is on it is purely nonsensical, when you take into consideration the fact that push carts heavily laden with ladders and other trucks are allowed to be wheeled along the sidewalk. I would far rather meet a bicyclist on the sidewalk than one of those carts."

AT THE HELM

Roosevelt Assumes Control—No Political Upheaval Likely to Follow.

Washington, Sept. 13.—The news of the expected death of President McKinley came as a crushing blow to the nation's capital. Nowhere perhaps had the citizens been so full of confidence in the ultimate recovery of their beloved President and the buoyant bulletins of the past week from the sick bed had lulled them into a false sense of security, which made the shock terrible when the news that the Buffalo tragedy would have a fatal ending came to them.

All day long the bulletin boards were surrounded by crowds waiting in suppressed excitement for the latest word from the Milburn home, and numerous newspaper extras were eagerly snapped up. Little work was done in the great executive departments, as at the slightest excuse the clerks would drop their pens and turn to talk in awe-stricken groups of the chance that their chief magistrate had against death in the gallant fight he was making in the far-away city on the lake.

The three cabinet officers in the capital to-day were pictures of distress. Two days ago Secretary Hay had left his chief apparently on the road to recovery, and to-day Postmaster-General Smith, who had left Buffalo even later, and reached here this morning, said that when he came from the Milburn home yesterday the President was, according to his best information, surely on the mend. The post-master general returned to Buffalo on the 7:15 train to-night.

HAY'S SORROWFUL DUTY.

Secretary Hay had engaged accommodations to to-night's New England train, intending to return to his New Hampshire summer home for much needed rest, but cancelled the order early in the day, as on him devolved important functions at once on the President's demise. He divided his time between the state department and his home, waiting for the end in patient resignation, prepared for his sorrowful duty of conveying to the nation the news of the demise of the third American president through the agency of an assassin's bullet within the short space of one human life.

As the senior member in rank of the cabinet upon Mr. Hay's shoulders also will rest the burden of government of the great republic in the short but important interval that must elapse before the vice-president, under the terms of the constitution, assumes the cares and responsibilities of the great presidential office.

At his home at Woodley, Secretary Gage awaited the news. During the day he had been at the treasury department and in touch with financial affairs, in order that the President's end might not cause any commercial disturbance. Gen. Gillespie, acting secretary of war, stuck at his post in the war department for the purpose of making such army orders as the sad event would force him to issue. He got into communication with Gen. Miles at Seattle, and the latter notified the department that he would return immediately.

NO POLITICAL CHANGES.

The fact that physicians had given up all hope caused some discussion among the public men in the city of the probability of an extra session of congress and of early changes in the cabinet, but the consensus of opinion was that no cabinet changes or important departures in public policy were at all likely for some time to come, and that congress would not be assembled until its regular session in December.

All the cabinet, the chief diplomatic officials and the head of important bureaus, according to custom, will tender their resignations to relieve the President of embarrassment, but it is believed, Mr. Roosevelt would follow the precedent set by President Arthur after Garfield's demise and request them to continue in office. Some of the cabinet members are not in good health and would sincerely welcome a relief from their duties, but all would waive their personal desires and continue until such time as they could be relieved easily, if indeed they request relief at all.

Under the presidential succession act a cabinet officer becoming chief magistrate must call an extra session of congress, unless that body is to meet in regular session within 20 days; but this requirement does not apply to a vice-president succeeding to the office of his dead predecessor and, it is believed, no extra session would be called in the absence of statutory requirements, as the three months intervening until December can be bridged over without difficulty and there is no special occasion for congress assembling.

In many of the local churches to-day men and women assembled for quiet prayer that the life of the President might be spared. The largest of these meetings was held at the Metropolitan Methodist Church, where the President and Mrs. McKinley worshipped. Here many women offered earnest prayers that the life of the President might be spared. A number of them quietly told of pretty incidents on the part of the President that they had witnessed and dwelt especially on his fondness for children.

"Do you remember children's day," said one of the Sunday school teachers, "when he invited the little boys who could not find seats to come in his pew? They were so proud and happy."

"They say that just a little while before he was shot," broke in another, "he had shaken hands and spoken the kindest words to some little child."

Thus incident after incident illustrating the kindness, the love, the charity, the religion of the President was recalled by the little group of women standing around the empty pew.

"We were very much pleased with the design you sent. It was beautiful and appropriate." (The Victoria Ave. Greenhouse receive such words of commendation every day. Telephone No. 181.

MONTE CARLO OF TO-DAY AS SEEN BY DR. McKEOUGH

Splendid Descriptive Lecture Delivered in Victoria Avenue Methodist Church Last Evening.

It was literary evening at Victoria avenue Methodist League last night and a very fine program was well carried out. The program was as follows:

Devotional exercises, conducted by F. Thompson.

Topic—Mr. Humphrey.

Recitation—C. Heath.

Duet—Mrs. Thompson and Miss Fife.

Address—Dr. McKeough.

A talk—M. House.

Recitation—Edna Hicklin.

In calling on Dr. Geo. T. McKeough for his address, the chairman, Mr. Thompson, said: "My worthy friend, the doctor, shortly after his return from his European tour promised, when asked by myself, to give a talk on some part of his trip, but it seemed as though something turned up every time to prevent the doctor's coming until this evening. The subject, Monte Carlo, although a very notable one is still a very naughty one, but many lessons, no doubt, will be learned from the doctor's lecture on the subject." A very hearty vote of thanks was given Dr. McKeough after he had concluded his splendid address.

One of the interesting features of travelling, said the lecturer, are the people one meets. On the road from Genoa to the Riviera, our travelling companion was an American lady from Kansas who was doing the world. She had already visited Australia, Japan, China, India, including the famine districts, Egypt and a portion of Europe. She was amusing, intelligent and courteous, but gave one the impression that a bath, and a little grooming, would have improved her personal attractions. She was seeing the sights of the Riviera at present, and her baggage consisted of a bottle of wine, and another of boiled water, wrapped up in a newspaper. She had a dread of typhoid fever, but her sanitary precautions did not extend to the use of a tooth-brush, or a "robe de nuit." She did not wish to be encumbered with any "trunk," she informed us, and had left a small bag which she had carried almost around the world, at Genoa.

The Riviera is an Italian word signifying "coast," and is usually applied to a narrow strip of land separating the Alps and Apennines from the Mediterranean, along the southern shore of France and Italy, and includes a number of celebrated and popular health resorts, Cannes, Nice, Mentone, and the far-famed principality of Monaco with its notorious Monte Carlo. It is one of the most fruitful and picturesque countries on the globe. The entire region is one of beauty, a paradise for the rich. The railroad runs closely along the shore, on one side being the beautiful tideless sea with its marvellous coloring and on the other, vine-clad hills and stately mountains. Swiftly passing through such delightful scenery with constant changing panoramas, "the consummation of all that is beautiful in nature," we too soon reach our destination.

Monte Carlo is one of four small divisions which make up the principality of Monaco, the whole realm covering only eight square miles, the smallest kingdom in the world, with a population of about six thousand. The province, which has had a varied and interesting history, is ruled over by an apparently autocratic prince but who in reality, is a mere cipher in the hands of a rich and powerful stock company. The present ruler is known as Prince Albert, and he has held sovereignty since 1889. It is so far as I know, the only country in the civilized world in which no taxes are exacted from the people. The little standing army of one hundred soldiers, the educational interests, the hospitals and other benevolent and charitable institutions, the justice account, the police and fire departments, light and water, are all supported and maintained by the profits of the great gaming palace which has made the place so notorious. The most astonishing feature of the payroll, is the expenditure for the maintenance of the churches and clergy, who receive a liberal share of the ill-gotten spoils of the alluring tables. Monte Carlo is probably situated in one of the most beautiful spots in the world.

Thine olive trees, thy crags as wild, Thy skies are blue, as when Minerva smiled."

In front the sapphire sea washes its entrancing gardens, to the east is seen the beautiful coast line of Italy, to the west the town of Monaco with its palace and grey walls, a miniature Gibraltar, occupying a tongue of land jutting out boldly into the Mediterranean. Behind are interminable mountains, upon whose graceful slopes thrive luxuriantly orange and lemon groves, intermixed with olive and myrtle trees, and spotted with there with picturesque villas. On the summit of one of the mountains outlined against the blue sky stands the ruins of a Roman tower majestic still. The loneliness, necessary to commemorate a victory of Augustus Caesar over the Ligurians twenty centuries ago. One cannot but regret that one of the most charming resorts in the world should be associated with so much wickedness and immorality, but notwithstanding such a beautiful environment, the supreme attraction in Monte Carlo is the Casino, or "circle of the strangers," so called because none of the inhabitants of Monaco have access to its gaming tables.

Erected about forty years ago by M. Bligny, a clever diplomat and villain who had but little difficulty in buying the required privileges from the then bankrupt ruler. The Casino is now in the hands of a wealthy syndicate, whose capital is several millions and who have agreed to pay the Prince $5,000,000 for the right of carrying on their profitable business for fifty years. The expenditure necessary for maintaining the institution is enormous. Nearly two thousand men are employed whose salaries amount to about half a million dollars a year. A large sum of money upwards of a hundred thousand dollars is paid to the press of France and England, partly as hush money to restrain them from persecuting (and exposing) suicides, and partly to advertise their attractions. Although fabulous sums are paid out by the company, their receipts are immense, being last year nearly five millions of dollars, notwithstanding that it was an unusually dull season, as many of their patrons are English, and the South African war evidently interfered with their pleasures and extravagance. The railway station is at the foot of one of the terraces in front of the Casino, which is reached by a broad stairway. On arriving at the top you are in the heart of one of the loveliest gardens of the world. Gorgeous and fragrant flowers are lavished everywhere amid the most luxuriant shrubbery of aloes, prickly pears, palm trees, eucalyptus and lemon trees, and as you walk through the perfumed air the strains of soft, dreamlike, sensuous music are heard, charming enough for paradise, performed by one of the finest orchestras to be found in Europe; divine attractions, the allurements of which are to be found within the magnificent Moorish temple, dimly seen through the giant palms and shrubbery.

A visit to the casino is certainly an event of a life time. You enter a large, magnificently decorated entrance hall, where you present a visiting card, and are at once referred to the office, where are attendants of all nationalities, English, French, German, Russian, and Italian. You undergo a slight cross examination: your name, age, occupation, and address are requested, and if satisfactory you are presented gratis with a number and a ticket which will admit you everywhere, to the buildings, to the tables and the grounds. Your first impression on entering the magnificently furnished and richly decorated rooms devoted to gaming, is the absolute quiet and calm that prevailed in the somewhat crowded rooms, nothing disturbed the apparently tranquil scene, except the chink and jingle of the gold and silver coins, and the mechanical voices of the croupiers, exclaiming, "Messeurs fait votre jeu," and a moment afterwards announcing the winning numbers. The player is only kept in suspense for a moment after the money is staked. The tables were surrounded by a number of seated players, with a second circle standing behind, playing over their shoulders. There were two games played, one known as "roulette" and the other as "rouge et noir." In the former played with a wheel and marble, the stakes were from one to four dollars; the latter, which was played with cards, the stakes were never less than four dollars, and as much as two thousand. Several times during the evening the latter amount was put up at one time, by different players. It was interesting to watch and study the various players, Italian Grand Duke, a beautiful Italian princess, a member of the English government, a German count, several members of the English aristocracy, numerous wealthy Americans and a popular novelist, were pointed out to the occupants of the tables. There were young women and old women, one or two veritable looking hags and at least seventy years old, and decorated with diamonds and paint, and whose deformed and jewelled hands could scarcely grasp their gold; some lost their money as if it were dirt; others betrayed their feelings more strongly and could be seen repressing intense emotions. Many had flushed faces and a feverish expression in their eyes, others were cold, pale, and calculating. Adjoining the gambling saloons is the Atrium, an immense hall, where the tired or excited guest lounges or promenades. Most of the men were in evening dress and many of the ladies wore rich and elegant costumes, adorned with a wealth of jewels. Good form and strict etiquette were in evidence at all times.

With few exceptions the bank was those who were fortunate enough to win for a short time would continue to play, and in the end almost invariably lose.

During the season nearly one hundred trains enter and leave Monte Carlo daily and Sunday is the busiest day of the week.

Intimately connected with Monte Carlo is the subject of suicides. As a matter of fact, in an English theatre, "that there is not a brick or stone in the building that is not cemented by the blood of a suicide." The company suppress all news, so far as possible, of suicides. Secret panels and doors exist throughout the building and in the event of such a calamity the victim is almost instantly and quietly disposed of. It has been estimated, however, that there are almost one hundred and fifty a year. In the event of one losing all his money at the tables, the poor victim is photographed, given a second class ticket home and the guards instructed never to admit him again. Such is Monte Carlo.

The Turn O'the Year

First hints of autumn are appearing—A stray red leaf amongst the green; a touch of asperity in the evening air, dark at seven o'clock.

It isn't summer, and it's hardly fall. Not time perhaps to put warm weather clothes away for good, but time to tone them up with a bright new item or two—For instance, the straw hat that's getting rusty can be retired in favor of a trim fedora; and a new silk tie with a touch of color in it puts a man more in touch with the time of year.

Then there's the question of heavier underwear and socks. They are both important just now in point of health.

And don't you want an umbrella before the fall fair season sets in?

Of course we should not remind you of all these wants if the wanted things were not here.

The province, which has had a varied and interesting history, is ruled over by an apparently autocratic prince but who in reality, is a mere cipher in the hands of a rich and powerful stock company. The present ruler is known as Prince Albert, and he has held sovereignty since 1889. It is so far as I know, the only country in the civilized world in which no taxes are exacted from the people. The little standing army of one hundred soldiers, the educational interests, the hospitals and other benevolent and charitable institutions, the justice account, the police and fire departments, light and water, are all supported and maintained by the profits of the great gaming palace which has made the place so notorious. The most astonishing feature of the payroll, is the expenditure for the maintenance of the churches and clergy, who receive a liberal share of the ill-gotten spoils of the alluring tables. Monte Carlo is probably situated in one of the most beautiful spots in the world.

Thy skies are blue, thy crags are wild, Thy olive tips as when Minerva smiled."

In front the sapphire sea washes its entrancing gardens, to the east is seen the beautiful coast line of Italy, to the west the town of Monaco with its palace and grey walls, a miniature Gibraltar, occupying a tongue of land jutting out boldly into the Mediterranean. Behind are interminable mountains, upon whose graceful slopes thrive luxuriantly orange and lemon groves, intermixed with their feathery trees, and spotted here and there with picturesque villas. On the summit of one of the mountains outlined against the blue sky stands the ruins of a Roman tower majestic still in its loneliness, erected to commemorate a victory of Augustus Caesar over the Ligurians twenty centuries ago. One cannot but regret that one of the most charming resorts in the world should be associated with so much wickedness and immorality, but notwithstanding such a beautiful environment, the supreme attraction in Monte Carlo is the Casino, or "circle of the strangers," so called because none of the inhabitants of Monaco have access to its gaming tables.

Erected about forty years ago by M. Blanc, a clever diplomat and villain who had but little difficulty in buying the required privileges from the then bankrupt ruler. The Casino is now in the hands of a syndicate, whose capital is several millions and who have agreed to pay the Prince $5,000,000 for the right of carrying on their profitable business for fifty years. The expenditure necessary for maintaining the institution is enormous. Nearly two thousand men are employed whose salaries amount to about half a million dollars a year. A large sum of money, upwards of a hundred thousand dollars is paid to the press of France and England, partly as hush money to restrain them from persecuting and exposing the gambling and to advertise their attractions. Although fabulous sums are paid out by the company, their receipts are immense, being last year nearly five millions of dollars, notwithstanding that it was an unusually dull season, as many of their patrons are English, and the South African war evidently interfered with their pleasures and extravagances.

The railway station is at the foot of one of the terraces in front of the Casino, which is reached by a broad stairway. On arriving at the top you are in the midst of one of the loveliest gardens of the world. Gorgeous and fragrant flowers are lavished everywhere amid the most luxuriant shrubbery of aloes, prickly pears, palm trees, eucalyptus and lemon trees, and as you walk through the perfumed air the strains of soft, dreamlike, sensuous music are heard, charming enough for paradise, performed by one of the finest orchestras to be found in Europe; divine attractions, the allurements of which are to be found within the magnificent Moorish temple, dimly seen through the giant palms and shrubbery.

A visit to the casino is certainly an event of a life time. You enter a large, magnificently decorated entrance hall, where you present a visiting card, and are at once referred to the office, where are attendants of all nationalities, English, French, German, Russian, and Italian. You undergo a slight cross examination; your name, age, occupation, and address are requested, and if satisfactory you are presented gratis with a number and a ticket which will admit you everywhere, to the buildings, to the tables and to the grounds. Your first impression on entering the magnificently furnished and richly decorated rooms devoted to gambling is the absolute quiet and calm that prevailed in the somewhat crowded rooms, nothing disturbed the apparently tranquil scene, except the clink and jingle of the gold and silver coins, and the mechanical voices of the croupiers, exclaiming, "Messeurs fait votre jeu," and a moment afterwards announcing the winning numbers. The player is only kept in suspense for a moment after the money is staked. The tables were surrounded by a number of seated players, with a second circle standing behind, playing over their shoulders. There were two games played, one known as "roulette" and the other as "rouge et noir." In the former played with a wheel and marble, the stakes were from one to four dollars; the latter, which was played with cards, the stakes were never less than four dollars, and as much as two thousand. Several times during the evening the latter amount was put up at one time, by different players. It was interesting to watch and study the various players, a Russian Grand Duke, a beautiful Italian princess, a member of the English government, a German count, several members of the English aristocracy, numerous wealthy Americans and a regular novelist, were pointed out to us by one of the attendants among the occupants of the tables. There were young women and old women, one or two veritable looking hags at least seventy years old, decorated with diamonds and paint, and whose deformed and jewelled hands could scarcely grasp their gold; some lost their money as if it were dirt; others betrayed their feelings more strongly and could be seen repressing intense emotions. Many had flushed faces and a feverish expression in their eyes, others were cold, pale, and calculating.

Adjoining the gambling saloons is the Atrium, an immense hall, where the tired or excited guests lounged or promenaded. Most of the men were in evening dress and many of the ladies wore rich and elegant costumes, adorned with a wealth of jewels. Good form and strict etiquette were in evidence at all times.

With few exceptions, the bank where those who were fortunate enough to win for a short time would continue to play, until the end almost invariably came.

During the season nearly one hundred train enter and leave Monte Carlo daily and Sunday is the busiest day of the week. Intimately connected with Monte Carlo is the subject of suicides. An actor once said in an English theatre, "that there is not a brick or stone in the building that is not cemented by the blood of a suicide." The company suppress all news, so far as possible, of suicides. Secret parcels and doors are set throughout the building and in the event of such a calamity the victim is almost instantly and quietly disposed of. It has been estimated, however, that there are almost one hundred and fifty a year. In the event of one losing all his money at the tables, the poor victim is photographed, given a second class ticket home, and the guards instructed never to admit him again. Such is Monte Carlo.

The Turn O'the Year

First hints of autumn are appearing—A stray red leaf amongst the green; a touch of asperity in the evening air, dark at seven o'clock.

It isn't summer, and it's hardly fall. Not time perhaps to put warm weather clothes away for good, but time to tone them up with a bright new item or two—For instance, the straw hat that's getting rusty can be retired in favor of a trim fedora; and a new silk tie with a touch of color in it puts a man more in touch with the time of year.

Then there's the question of heavier underwear and socks. They are both important just now in point of health.

And don't you want an umbrella before the fall fair season sets in?

Of course we should not remind you of all these wants if the wanted things were not here.

Montreal, Sept. 14.—The royal yacht Ophir and H. M. S. Diadem, Niobe, Indefatigable and Tribune passed Fame Point at 3.22 p. m. H. M. S. Quail at 12.40 p. m.

Quebec, Sept. 14.—The city is crowded with strangers, but the weather is far from being promising or propitious. It has been raining all the afternoon, and the inspection of the militia by Major-General O'Grady Halley, in the presence of His Excellency Lord Minto, was interrupted by rain and had to be abandoned. According to the latest news, the Ophir was at Father Point at 4.30 o'clock this morning, and was detained there on account of the fog. Sir Wilfrid and a party went down the river at noon, but were unsuccessful in meeting her. She could not be found in the thick fog. If the fog clears, she is expected to arrive in the morning. If the weather clears favorably there will be a gay time. The city is ablaze with hunting and electricity for to-morrow and Tuesday nights. A most elaborate address of welcome has been prepared in Quebec to be presented in the name of the citizens, to their Royal Highness in the chamber of the Legislative Council, at 11.30 to-morrow. The address is in the form of an album, about 15 x 12 inches—an elaborate work, bound in the finest scarlet morocco and embellished with the arms of His Royal Highness the Duke of Cornwall and York.

THE DUKE MAY ATTEND THE FUNERAL

London, Sept. 14.—It is learned by the Associated Press that King Edward is considering the advisability of the Duke of Cornwall and York attending the funeral of President McKinley. The foreign office heartily indorses the suggestion, subject to the approval of the United States cabinet, and the consent of King Edward, who, under the circumstances, is obviously the most concerned. It is said that if it is decided to be advisable for the Duke of York to attend the funeral, the Canadians will doubtless gladly put up with the disturbance of their program consequent upon such a momentous diversion of the royal tour. As regards this suggestion and other official details connected with Great Britain's efforts to honor the dead President, great uncertainty prevails, owing to the Marquis of Lansdowne, the foreign secretary, being at a sequestered spot in Ireland, King Edward being in Denmark and the cabinet being scattered over the United Kingdom. The Sunday Special presenting the question of the attendance of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York at the funeral of President McKinley, says: "In view of the deep concern the King has manifested from the moment the President was shot, there can be doubt that the attendance of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York would be received with warm gratitude by the United States; and, despite questions of etiquette, the King may well feel that such an opportunity of strengthening the good relations of the two great English speaking peoples should not lightly be put aside."

'T'WAS SOLEMN SABBATH IN CITY SANCTUARIES

Maple City Mourned with those who Mourn.—Fitting Tributes Paid the late President of the United States.—Pastors Draw Lessons from his Life.

Lord Minto, Governor-General of Canada, has caused the following message to be sent to the mayors of all cities and towns in the Dominion: "In consequence of the lamented death of President McKinley, it is desired by His Excellency that the flags on all public buildings shall be placed at half-mast as a mark of respect. You will please give this information general publicity."

"R. W. SCOTT, Secretary of State."

Mayor Sulman, of this city, had anticipated the wishes of His Excellency, as he had ordered the flag on Chatham's city hall placed at half-mast early Saturday morning.

Other flags throughout the city with that of the American consulate were also flying at half-mast.

Yesterday was a solemn Sunday in Maple City churches. In every sanctuary appropriate reference was made to the terrible tragedy which has befallen the neighboring republic. The music, too, was of a fitting character to the occasion.

ST. ANDREW'S.

In St. Andrew's Church yesterday morning Rev. Dr. Battisby referred to the death of President McKinley. He said that momentary relief was obtained a few days ago, by encouraging telegrams, but that was of short duration. Sadly and suddenly the end came, and the nation, as well as the civilized world, was plunged in sorrow.

Nowhere is that sorrow more genuine than in the British Empire. Had the Czar of Russia or the Emperor of Germany been the victim one could understand it. But President McKinley was a man of peace, a Christian gentleman, living in a free country where the tyranny of the East is unknown, and all classes are protected. Even from a political standpoint he had few enemies. No president had done as much to foster kindly relations with Great Britain, nor has there been one so highly thought of there. Had one of the ex-presidents, still living, been in power for the past three years, there might have been trouble with Great Britain by officious meddling. But President McKinley has drawn both nations closer together, and had he lived, happier results would likely have followed.

We sorrow to-day as Canadians, we sorrow as British subjects, and mingle our sympathy with the stricken nation. May the mantle of Elijah fall on Elisha, and may he prove himself to the chariot and horsemen of Israel.

And let us not forget his helpmeet and companion in life. The nation will live to forget its sorrow, but not so the widow. Her grief is her own, while she has the sympathy of the world. Her husband knows more now than he did one week ago, of the great mystery of godliness. He is now free from the anxieties of state and the troubles of life, and where no anarchist shall ever enter.

VICTORIA AVENUE METHODIST.

Rev. T. T. George delivered an excellent sermon last evening on the death of President McKinley. He said: "It is a rare thing within a year to mourn twice the deaths of chief executives of two nations so closely connected as Great Britain and the United States. Not long ago we mourned the loss of our most beloved Queen, but now we mourn the loss, not of one of the British nation, but the President of the Republic to the south of us. So to-night we mingle our expressions of sympathy with the tears and sorrow of our cousins across the way. For the third time they have lost their President by the hand of the assassin. It used to be said: 'Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown.' But now you might say: 'Uneasy lies the head of the chief executive of the Republic.' At the present time the American nation is at peace. They seem to know how to fight a political battle and afterwards bury the hatchet and have no ill-will towards each other and you will find that among those who mourn the late President's loss most are those holding the highest positions in the opposing party. The late President lived a pure life at home and in society. We have yet to learn of one single instance in which his integrity is compromised and also one act in his life that has marred his character. His home life has been very beautiful. His wife, when he was elected, thought that the social attractions would prove too much for him and turn his head, but we find his wife spending her evenings at home knitting comforts for the hospital children while he sat beside her studying up the duties pertaining to his position. This shows that the chief pleasure of the husband should be in the companionship of the wife and not in the social function of the world. He was essentially a strong man. He performed in his life such tasks that a weaker could never have accomplished. His various acts show him to be a leader of men. It seems that the disrespect for law and order in the States has become great."

er. Look how they have burned the negro at the stake right in front of the Government and the Government cared nothing about it. God save us when the chief executive of a country fails to defend the life of the vilest criminal and bring him to a proper trial. The man who does not hold the administration of justice in respect is a dangerous man to society. It is a hard thing to say, but there seems to be very little value placed on human life here. The law as a protecting and sheltering arm of society is trampled in the dust by both high and low.

In Acts 18th chapter and 17th verse you will find the following words: "And Gallio cared for none of those things." As a Roman magistrate, he viewed with indifference the abuse in his presence of an innocent citizen, and if I were to give a reason for the assassination of the late President it would be the disrespect of law and justice by all classes of the Republic. I care not who we may be, the man who does not hold law and justice in respect is a dangerous element to society. When I compare and study the civil administration of this nation with others I find two things standing out prominently, (1) disregard of the value of life and (2) disrespect for law as the prohibitive and sheltering arm of organized society. The high and the low claim the right to criticize with equal freedom the actions of the Supreme Court and the acts of legislative bodies. Justice has suffered much, but nowhere more than by those whose duties it has been to enforce it. No foe so deadly as he who disregards the sacredness of right and privilege. God save us when our administrators will ask it is safe to bring a criminal to proper trial and impartially administer justice. It is then no longer a question of right but one of policy. Woe to those who sow to the wind for they will reap the whirlwind. I hope in the name of all that is good that he who now assumes the sceptre will signalize his administration by an impartial administration of justice to the criminal and to the criminal mob.

God help us and help those to the south of us to learn to maintain the institution of civil government. The choir sang as an offertory "Sleep thy last Sleep" by Baraby. Miss Baxter sang a solo entitled "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," by Aubron. Miss Bruckin rendered as an instrumental solo, "Nearer My God to Thee." The church was nicely straped for the occasion.

WILLIAM ST. BAPTIST.

At William St. Baptist Church yesterday, special prayer was offered up for Mrs. McKinley, wife of the late President, for the American people, and for the new leader of the people, Mr. Ross, while in conversation with The Planet, said that he thought the papers were so full of the late President that he had become great.

MONDAY, SEPT. 16.

"LEST WE FORGET."

The profound and painful sensation, which has been the experience of the whole of Christendom as the result of the tragedy which has removed the foremost figure of the great republic to the South of us, will do good if it result in an inspiration to thought.

In the mad rush for wealth and influence, so characteristic of our American cousins, all seems sacrificed. Brought face to face with an appalling national loss—the hideous result of an assassin's act—will the people pause and contemplate? How much has the nation been sacrificed to the individual? Has not patriotism been laid upon the altar of personal ambition and aggrandizement? Is it not nearly all lip loyalty over there?

The universal prosperity of the people alone is conducive to the success and strength of the state. Men in high places who win wealth upon the beggary and graves of their fellow citizens are not true patriots. Would it not be well for America—in the broadest sense of the term—if there were a stay in the wild rush for personal prominence and men progressed with the welfare of their land constantly before them.

To-day the United States, nominally recognized as a Christian country, is characterized by political rotteness, atrocious lynchings, labor heaaval desecration of the Sabbath, laxity of morals and an appalling evil. It is a serious, stern arraignment but alas! a true one.

And the republic has a proud history, dating from the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers.

Perhaps the present affliction will cause the strong minds of the great nation to arise and act. It is to be earnestly hoped that it may.

If drunk with sight of power we loose wild tongues that have not been in awe,
Such boasting as the Gentiles use,
Or lesser breeds without the law,
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget.

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard—
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not Thee to guard,
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on Thy people, Lord,
Amen.

ROOSEVELT SWORN IN

Affecting Scene During the Ceremony That Made him President.

Were Poisoned Bullets Used by Assassins?—Physicians' Verdict—Mrs. McKinley Bears up Well.

Milburn House, Buffalo, September 14.—President Roosevelt reached Buffalo at 1.40 this afternoon, accompanied by his private secretary, William Loeb, Jr. An immense crowd, which had been waiting his arrival for hours, was gathered about the station eager to catch the first sight of the President. The train, however, did not enter the station proper, but the President landed at the terrace. When he left the train an escort of the Fourth signal corps formed about him and conducted him to an automobile which his friend, Ansley Wilcox, had in waiting.

The demonstration which greeted his appearance was in keeping with the solemnity of the occasion. Those who saw him did not raise a cheer, but attested their respect by lifting their hats.

As soon as he entered the vehicle the chauffeur turned the lever and the automobile went skimming away to the residence of Mr. Wilcox on Delaware avenue. Twenty mounted police clattered along on either side could with difficulty keep the pace which the automobile set. President Roosevelt declined to make any statement whatever for publication. "I was so shocked," said he, "by the terrible news brought to me last night and by the calamity which it entailed upon the country, as well as by personal sorrow which I feel, that I have had no time to think of plans for the future conduct of the office which has been so suddenly and sadly thrust upon me."

The President arrived at the Wilcox home at 1.45 o'clock, his only attendants being Mr. Wm. Loeb, Jr., his secretary, and Mrs. Wilcox.

CALL OF CONDOLENCE.
With hardly any conversation he retired at once to his room, where he remained and dressed. At 12.30 o'clock he was ready to leave for the Milburn House where he desired to make his official call of condolence. He was escorted by a detachment of the Fourth signal corps and mounted police. So rapidly did his driver proceed that his escort was left a couple of blocks behind, with the exception of the commanding officer and a Lieutenant of police.

The President was attired in a black frock coat and dark striped trousers, and wore a silk hat. He was somber of countenance and appeared to feel both the solemnity of the occasion and its responsibilities for him.

He alighted at the Milburn House at exactly 2.28 o'clock. He was accompanied to the house by his host, Mr. Ansley Wilcox and one of the secret service force.

It was 3.15 when President Roosevelt came back to the house. He was accompanied by a detachment of the Fourth signal corps and mounted police. He was accompanied to the house by his host, Mr. Ansley Wilcox and one of the secret service force.

WHERE HE WAS SWORN IN.
The place selected was the library of Mr. Wilcox's house, a rather small room, but picturesque, the heavy oak trimmings and the massive book cases giving it somewhat the appearance of a legal den. A pretty bay window with stained glass and heavy hangings with a background, and against this the President took his position. Surrounding him were the five members of the cabinet, Secretaries Root, Hitchcock, Long, Wilcox and Postmaster-General Smith, near by were Senator Depew, Judge of the Court of Appeals, Haight, John Seathard, Mr. and Mrs. Ansley Wilcox, Miss Wilcox, Geo. P. Sawyer, Drs. Mann, Park and Stockton, Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Sprague, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Milburn, Secretary of the President, Wm. Loeb, Jr., Secretary to the deceased President Cortelyou, Dr. and Mrs. Chas. Carey, R. C. Seathard, J. D. Sawyer, Wm. Jeffers, official telegrapher of the United States senate.

and Judge of the United States District Court John R. Hazel.

JUDGE HAZEL NERVOUS.
Judge Hazel stood near the President in the bay window, and the latter showed his almost extreme nervousness by plucking at the lapel of his long frock coat and nervously tapping the hardwood floor with his heel.

He stepped over once to Secretary Root and for about five minutes they conversed earnestly. The question at issue was whether the President should first sign an oath of office and then swear in or whether he should swear in first and sign the document in the case after.

TOOK OATH OF OFFICE.
At precisely 3.32 o'clock, Secretary Root ceased his conversation with the President and stepped back while an absolute hush fell upon every one in the room said in an almost inaudible voice: "Mr. Vice-President, I" then his voice broke and for fully two minutes the tears came down his face and his lips quivered, so that he could not continue his utterances. There were sympathetic tears from those about him and two great drops ran down either cheek of the successor of Mr. McKinley. Mr. Root's chin was on his breast. Suddenly throwing back his head as if with an effort, he continued in broken voice:

"I have been requested on behalf of the cabinet of the late president, at least those who are present in Buffalo, all except two, to request that for reasons of weight affecting the affairs of government, you will proceed to take the constitutional office of President of the United States."

Judge Hazel had stepped to the rear of the President, and Mr. Roosevelt, coming nearer to Secretary Root, still in a voice that at first wavered, but finally became deep and strong, while as if to control his nervousness, he held firmly to the lapel of his coat with his right hand:

"I shall take the oath at once, in accordance with your request, and in this hour of deep and terrible national bereavement, I wish to state that it shall be my aim to continue absolutely unbroken the policy of President McKinley for the peace and prosperity and honor of our beloved country."

AN IMPRESSIVE SCENE.

The President stepped farther into the bay window and Judge Hazel, taking up the constitutional oath of office, which had been prepared on parchment, asked the president to raise his right hand, and repeat it after him. The President raised his right hand as the judge said a few words at a time, and the President, in a strong voice, and without a tremor and with his raised hand as steady as if it were from marble, repeated it after him. "And I do swear," he ended it. The hand dropped by the side, the chin for an instant rested on the breast, and the silence remained unbroken for a couple of minutes, as though the new president of the United States was offering silent prayer. Judge Hazel broke it, saying, "Mr. President, please attach your signature to the document."

The President, turning to a small table near by, wrote, "Theodore Roosevelt" at the bottom of the document in a firm hand.

NOTE TO FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVES.

Washington, September 14.—The following circular note was sent to the foreign representatives accredited to the government of the United States late this afternoon:

Department of State,
Washington, September 14, 1901.

Sir—It is my painful duty to announce to you the death of William McKinley, President of the United States, in the city of Buffalo, at fifteen minutes past two in the morning of today, September 14. Laid low by the act of assassin, the week-long struggle to save his life has been watched with keen solicitude, not only by the people of this country, who raised him from their own ranks to the high office which he filled, but by the people of all friendly nations, whose messages of sympathy and hope while hope was possible have been most consolatory in this time of sore trial.

Now that the sad and I request you to be the medium of communicating the sad tidings to the government of the honored nation you so worthily represent and to announce that in obedience to the prescriptions of the constitution the office of president has devolved upon Theodore Roosevelt, vice-president of the United States.

(Signed) JOHN HAY.

MRS. McKINLEY.

Milburn House, Buffalo, September 14.—It is definitely learned to-day that it was Mrs. Barber, Mrs. McKinley's sister, who broke the news of her great loss to the stricken wife. She went from the bedside of the dead president to the wife, whose condition was such that it seemed best to remove her from the sick room before the end.

Mrs. McKinley is occupying a large south room in the Milburn house, overlooking Delaware avenue and Ferry street. Through the drawn shades, the early morning light was breaking when Mrs. Barber told her that the dead president had passed away. Mrs. McKinley, whose extreme delicacy was for years the President's great sorrow, received the news with unexpected calmness and at once acquiesced in the request of her physician and family to leave the details of the sad ceremonies in which the entire nation is to join entirely in the hands of the official and personal friends who are assembled.

All day long she has remained quietly in her room, stricken to the soul, but bravely bearing her sad burden, because she desires to make her sister, who is lovingly called the late President, would bid her do so.

Dr. Rixey, who for years has guarded her from all excitement, and was in constant attendance during her recent illness in San Francisco, is much encouraged by the way she is bearing up at present, although it is quite possible the strain of the next 24 hours may make it desirable for her to return with her sister to Canton to avoid the serious strain of a state funeral.

SUCCESS FOR BIG FAIR

Splendid Prospects for the Great Peninsular Exhibition.

Buildings Renovated and Repaired—
Many Improvements—Big Entry List

The Directors of the West Kent Agricultural Society are doing all in their power to make this year's Peninsular Fair a success, and no doubt they will be rewarded for their labors in this respect. Secretary Robinson is at present very busily engaged receiving entries for all classes of competition, and applications for display space.

Space in the main building is being very rapidly allotted, and is already nearly all taken. The building is being thoroughly cleaned and repaired, adding greatly to its appearance.

The one great feature in the Fair this year will be the horse races. There are a number of races booked and consist of farmers' races, free-for-alls and others. Already a large number of entries have been received and it is expected that the competition will be very keen. There is no doubt that the Fair this year will greatly exceed the one last year.

HOME WORK

Citizen Who Thinks the Little Ones
Get Too Much of It.

"I can't understand why under the heavens," said a prominent citizen, "and one very highly versed in educational matters—to The Planet this morning, 'that in this advanced stage of civilization, the teachers in the public schools should give so much home work to little children, as they do."

"I refer only," continued he, "to the little children who are just starting to school, and who are in the first, second and third classes. I think it is a very big mistake to overburden these little tots with homework. I think, also, that it is entirely unnecessary. When they are so young, they have plenty of schooling, and studying during school hours without making them study at home, which is simply wearing out their constitutions and spoiling them for their work they will necessarily have to do when they get more advanced in their studies."

"Then also, there are little boys and girls who have very nervous constitutions, and when these are unavoidably caused to neglect to do their homework, they are afraid to go to school for fear of punishment."

"It is also very trying to the parents at home, who have to show their children, and help them in their work. There are several duties which are bound to arise, and which prohibits the parents from so doing, and when the scholar goes to school the next morning with unprepared lessons, the teacher naturally infers that the children are at fault."

"This is a matter which should receive the serious attention of our public school principals and teachers."

SARNIA VISIT

Chatham Macabees Will Hold Big Gathering in October.

Tent No. 8, K. O. T. M., held a very large and enthusiastic meeting last Friday, when a number of candidates were initiated into the mysteries of the Order. This lodge is one of the largest and strongest Orders in Chatham and is gradually coming to the top.

On the 31st of October the lodge has arranged for the Sarnia degree team to come to Chatham, when it is expected that fully 40 more candidates will be initiated. It is also expected that a uniformed company of Macabees from Port Huron will be present to assist in the work of initiation. A large hall will be engaged for the occasion and it is expected that October 31st will be a red letter day in the history of the Macabees in Chatham. The Sarnia and Port Huron teams will come on a special train from Sarnia.

The local lodge of Macabees is about 250 in number, and it is expected that the number of members will be doubled during the next year.

A Lady's Lunch

Has been rudely defined by some cynic as "dops and sweets." And after all there's more truth than poetry in the definition. Ice cream and cake may satisfy the palate, but they are far from satisfying to the stomach, which requires that food be nutritious first and nice afterward. By careless eating women pave the way for stomach "trouble," and its kindred miseries.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is confidently commended as a cure for diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. By curing diseases which prevent the assimilation of food it enables the body to be built up and strengthened in the only way known to nature—by food digested and assimilated.

"For twelve long months I suffered untold misery," writes Mrs. Mollie Colgate, of Randolph, Charlotte Co., Va. "No tongue could express the pain that I endured before I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicine. I was not able to do anything at all. Could not eat anything except bread and tea—if I did the top of my head hurt so it seemed it would kill me, with all that I could do it would burn like fire. But now, since using your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription,' I can eat a little of almost anything I want, and can do a good day's work as well as anybody else. Am better than I have been for years."

INDIAN HOUSEKEEPING.

A Sioux Girl's Story of How Her Tribe-women Live.

I am going to tell you something about the uneducated Sioux women, their dress and their home life. The Sioux woman does more work than the man does. Of course, the women do not know very much about housekeeping. In fact, they don't know anything about it. They live in log cabins, with only the ground for the floor, and they have but one room. In that room they have their beds in one corner, their stoves around the sides, and they often have beautiful beadwork hanging on the walls. They have a large stove as near the center of the room as they can. On that stove you will always find a coffeepot and teakettle, and they are always kept full. If the women have coffee to drink, they are happy. They think it is a great medicine; they call it the black medicine.

In the summer the Indian women do most of their cooking out of doors. They put short poles on each side of their fire and a third stick across from one to the other, and on this they hang their kettles. The women wash and boil in almost always sitting in their tepee doing some kind of beadwork.

The women are always getting up some kind of a feast—that is, they have them very often—and especially if one of their sons or daughters gets married they will spend their last cent to make a great feast. They have a certain man go around and tell every one to come to that feast whenever it may be; then when he has come back and told them that he has told every one the women give him a horse. When they have the feast, the women all dress up in their brightest colors, paint their faces and put all the beadwork they can on their little children. They have a great time talking, especially the old women and men.

The women's dresses are made with only two seams, one on each side, so it makes a very loose dress. It is short in the back and front and long on the sides, and they almost always wear a long, beaded belt and a shawl. In fact, they wear a shawl all the time. When it is not around the head and shoulders, it is tied around the waist. They never wear a hat of any kind. Even on the hottest days they are bareheaded—Sioux Girl is Good Housekeeping.

ANIMAL LIFE.

A good camel will travel 100 miles a day for ten days through the desert. The lobster is its own most deadly enemy. The young ones scorn all other food when they have a chance to eat one another.

The stupid policy of hunters in South Africa has led to the almost total destruction of a host of wild animals, the quagga among them.

Dragon fly grubs are most destructive to the fry of fish. Out of 50,000 turned into a pond one April only 54 could be found the following September. The pond was infested by dragon fly.

Bees are known to be excellent weather prophets. There is a common country saying that "a bee was never caught in a shower." When rain is coming, bees do not go far ahead, but buzz close to their hives.

A falcon which strayed from Fontainebleau, near Paris, in pursuit of some other bird, was found next day at Malta, in the Mediterranean. Another falcon is said to have returned from Andalusia, Spain, to the peak of Teneriffe in six hours.

When taken young, the hedgehog may be completely tamed and made familiar, allowing itself to be handled with impunity with the dog and cat upon terms of perfect concord. It feeds indifferently upon bread and milk, meat, etc., and keeps up a regular nocturnal chase after insects.

All Wives or Widows.
"When a girl is born in India," relates a woman missionary, "the first question asked is, Whom shall she marry? Every high caste girl must be wedded at 12 and to a man of her caste and her horoscope. He may be comparatively young, middle aged or old, immoral, diseased or brutal. It makes no difference, if his caste and horoscope agree with hers. A woman in India is perfectly helpless.

"She is generally married at 8 or 9, but does not become a member of her husband's family until she is 12. If it should chance that her husband die before that time, she becomes a child widow, the most despoiled of creatures. A curse is believed to be upon her, and if she goes the ordinary course she commits suicide in desperation. There are 72,000 child widows under 9 years of age in India. There is no wedding or being won in India. Every girl over 12 is wife or widow."

The Indignation of Loneliness.
At a time like the present, when the marrying age of the average man of the middle classes is being more and more postponed, the physical ill of bachelorhood come increasingly under the notice of the medical man, says the London Lancet. The experience of countless generations, from the red Indian of the woods to the white shirted doctor of a modern party, has perpetuated the lesson that a man should not eat alone or think much at this time, but should talk and be talked to while he feeds.

Antiquity of Tin.
We find that brass, and consequently tin, existed in Tyre, the great seaport town of the Phoenicians, on the coast of Syria, about 1000 B. C. They are frequently referred to in all works relating to tin or to Cornwall. The Phoenicians were merchants and carried on an important trade from the ports of Tyre and Sidon. These cities rivaled each other in magnitude, fame and antiquity.

Not Interested.
"My dear sir, you should at least pay the interest on this bill."
"I shall do nothing of the sort. It's not my interest to pay the principal nor my principle to pay the interest. See?"

A False Counselor.
Family Solicitor—How is it you have sunk so much lower than all your companions?
Jack—I took your advice, sir, and started at the bottom. I staid there.—Exchange.

The Real Need.
Mamma—We must get a nurse for the baby.
Papa—Nurse be hanged! What he wants is a night watchman!

IF YOU NEED GLASSES

You Need an Optician's Services.

In fact, you cannot tell whether you ought to wear them or not until you have had your eyes examined. You may know there is something wrong with your eyes from the aching, burning, sensations that they experience—and very likely there is—but only an optician, with the latest devices at his command, should be allowed to tell you what it is that is wrong.

And whatever you do, do not attempt to choose a pair of glasses yourself. They might do your eyes more harm than good. Come in, anyway, and get the benefit of expert advice. It's free.

So is an examination.

IT'S CURIOUS CONTENTS

Maple City Workman Discovered
Lady's Lingerie Et Al in his Dinner Basket.

His Amused Colleagues, However,
After Admiring his Exhibit
Gave him Food to Eat.

He was a Mason—whether a free mason, a brick mason, a stone mason or just an ordinary everyday mason, has nothing whatever to do with the following.

He is a workman and is employed at present at the Dowsley factory. It may also be stated that he boards at the Park House, and as it is inconvenient for him to walk from the factory to the hotel for his dinner, he generally takes it with him in a fairly good sized basket.

Friday evening an up-town dress-maker sent a basket over to the Park House for a certain Harwich young lady, who was to call for it on Saturday.

The mason, Saturday morning, as usual took the basket from a neighboring table, and went to work. At dinner time he took it to a shady corner, and first pulled out a pair of gloves.

"Now, I know," said he to himself, "that I have kicked on Charlie Mount's beef steak, but I did not think I would get it in this form." So down into the basket he hand went again to pull out—what do you think?

No, it wasn't, you're wrong. It was a lady's jacket. But there were several other things that we won't mention.

The other workmen who were looking on, took compassion on their blundering colleague, and gave him a share of theirs. That's all.

Buffalo, Sept. 16.—The case of Leon Czolgosz, the assassin of the President, was presented to the grand jury this morning. A number of witnesses were present for examination.

EASTERN VISITOR

Visits the Canada Flour Mills and is Delighted with the Flour that They Turn Out.

J. P. Cox, of Halifax, was in the city on Saturday and called on his friend, N. H. Stevens, president of the Canada Flour Mills Co.

Mr. Cox is one of the oldest and most successful flour dealers in Halifax, to whom the Canada Flour Mills Co. have sold very heavily for a number of years. This is Mr. Cox's first visit to Chatham, although he has been doing business here for about twenty years. He is a very shrewd observer and anxious to get all the knowledge possible about the quality of flour.

He watched with interest the process in the Canada Flour Mills from the first breaking of the wheat to the finishing of the flour. He was delighted with the system of making granulated corn meal and the kiln drying meal as well as the machinery for screening and sifting.

He also took great interest in noting how the flour barrels are made by machinery and the process of kiln drying the stock, and was surprised when he saw the quantity of cooperage, bags, etc., used for packages in an institution of this kind.

He remarked afterwards that previous to his Chatham visit, he had no idea of the amount of capital, machinery and men necessary to handle a business of this kind.

He also expressed himself as thoroughly delighted with the counties of Western Ontario. He thinks that we have the finest country he has ever seen both for farming and fruit growing.

Mr. Cox leaves here for Boston en route home.

The management of the Rankin House, is in the hands of Mr. Ed. Kennedy for this week, during Mr. Peck's absence at Buffalo.

John Head, foreman of the gas department of the Chatham Gas Co., has returned from spending his holidays in Cleveland.

WHO WAS IT?

Cries of an Apparently Drowning Man Heard on the River Last Night.

"Help! Help! for God's sake, Help!" were the cries heard distinctly about 10.45 last evening by Wm. Neahr, employed by Dr. Duncan, coming from near the bridge on the opposite side of the river.

Neahr, who was at the time hitching up a horse, immediately ran to where the cries seemed to have come from, but found nothing. He at once told Dr. Duncan, who telephoned to Officer Dodson of the occurrence.

Dodson came on the scene and together with Neahr and Mr. Peters, the night man at the lime-kiln, with a lantern searched along the dock, but found nothing and heard no more cries.

Mr. Peters, when interviewed by The Planet to-day said that he had also heard distinctly the cries heard by Neahr.

"There is no doubt in my mind," continued Mr. Peters, "that there was some one there and in great distress, because the cries were of a man in such a position. I searched along the docks at daylight this morning in case there should have been a hat floating on the river, but found none."

BREAK DIVORCE

O. L. Lewis Will Test the Validity of a Decree Issued by the Dakota Courts.

O. L. Lewis leaves to-morrow afternoon for Watertown, Dakota, with a view to testing the validity of the divorce decrees of that state.

Mr. Lewis is acting for Mrs. Parker in a very peculiar legal suit, which involves an alleged case of bigamy.

Parker says he has experienced a very strenuous and unsatisfactory matrimonial career and is earnestly desirous of ending it right now—by legal process.

The lady who now bears the name of Mrs. Parker was previously married. She lived with her first husband for some years, but a divorce granted in Dakota gave her freedom and she returned to her home in Howard township.

Here she met Parker and they were shortly after married in Detroit. Matrimonial disagreements have resulted and Parker now claims his freedom, alleging that he was never legally married. Mrs. Parker has engaged Mr. Lewis with a view to testing the validity of the Dakota divorce.

H. D. Smith, of Ridgetown, is representing Mr. Parker.

PROCLAMATION OF PRAYER

Roosevelt's First Appeal to the American People is to Unite in Divine Worship.

Sets Apart a Day for Supplication to God and Submission to his Will—His First Official Edict.

Buffalo, N. Y., Saturday, night, Sept. 14.—President Roosevelt to-night issued the following first proclamation:—

"By the President of the United States of America.
"A proclamation:—

"A terrible bereavement has befallen our people. The President of the United States has been struck down—a crime committed not only against the chief magistrate, but against every law-abiding and liberty-loving citizen.

"President McKinley crowned a life of earnest love for his fellow men of most earnest endeavor for their welfare, by a death of Christian fortitude; and both the way in which he lived his life and the way which, in the supreme hour of trial, he met his death, will remain forever a precious heritage of our people.

"It is meet that we, as a nation, express our abiding love and reverence for his life, our deep sorrow for his untimely death.

"Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do appoint Thursday next, Sept. 19th, the day on which the body of the dead President will be laid in its last earthly resting place, as a day of mourning and prayer throughout the United States.

"I earnestly recommend all the people to assemble on that day in their respective places of divine worship, there to bow down in submission to the will of Almighty God, and to pay out of full hearts their homage of love and reverence to the great and good President, whose death has smitten the nation with bitter grief.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.
"Done at the city of Washington, the 14th day of Sept. A. D. 1901, the ninth hundred and one, and of the independence of the United States, the one hundred and twenty-sixth.
(Seal.)

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT, by the President.
"John Hay, Secretary of State."

SAD DEMISE

Mrs. Richard Abbs Passed Peacefully away at the Residence of her Son—Funeral yesterday.

On Friday last Mrs. Richard Abbs died, at the residence of her son, William Abbs, near Indian Creek, on the Gravel road, in her ninety-third year. Her remains were taken to St. Joseph's Church, yesterday afternoon at three o'clock, and afterwards interred in St. Anthony's Cemetery.

Over half a century ago, Mr. and Mrs. Abbs came to Canada, from England, and first took up their residence near Louisville, but, not being accustomed to a farming life, they sold their property, and came to this city about 1860, purchasing the residence now owned by Judge Bell, on Victoria avenue, and adjoining Dr. Fleming's present residence. They resided here until some years after the death of Mr. Abbs, who was a most intimate friend of Judge Wells.

For the past twenty years the deceased has resided with her son, near the farm of Abraham Huff in Harwich.

There were four sons and three daughters in the family, and only three sons survive their mother, who reached such a great age.

RESERVED

Decision Held Over in the Arbitration Proceedings at Sycamore.

Some time ago residents in the vicinity of the Sutherland-Innes Mill, at Sycamore, petitioned for the establishment of a public school there. In consequence, S. S. No. 1, Romney opened a school in the Forester's Hall, but this, after being conducted for over a year, was closed this summer, the people of the vicinity petitioning the council of Romney and Tilbury East to establish a separate section.

In consequence a board of arbitrators, consisting of Inspector Park, ex-Warden Geo. Robinson, of Romney, and W. F. Robertson, of Tilbury East, was appointed to consider the matter.

The board met on Saturday in the Forester's Hall, Stevenson, for the purpose of taking evidence. W. N. Thompson was the leading witness for the petitioners; W. C. Estabrook, G. W. Coatsworth, S. S. Brown, Henry Atkinson, H. H. Freshland, Jas. Foster, and others, appeared on behalf of the various sections interested. On account of the large amount of evidence adduced, the arbitrators deferred decision till the 28th inst.

SEASON WAS SUCCESSFUL

Last Band Concert Excursion to Rond Eau was Splendidly Patronized

Rapid Growth in Popularity of the Summer Resort—Good service of Regimental Band.

The last band concert of the season was held at the Eau Friday, when an exceedingly large crowd from Chatham, Blenheim and Ridgeway took advantage of the excursion to pay the last visit of the season to Chatham's favorite summer resort.
The 24th Regiment Band played excellent music for the dancing, which was indulged in continually until the train left on the return trip.
The L. E. & D. R. have had a particularly prosperous year with their band concert and special trains. Their service at all times was everything that could be wished for. Their success this year is undoubtedly to a large extent due to their excellent train service. Their train hands are a courteous and obliging lot of men and deserve great credit for the way in which they have handled the large crowds that have attended the band excursions this summer.
The Eau is becoming more popular each year. New cottages are being erected and the place is generally becoming to have a more neat and up-to-date appearance. No doubt the next season will be far more popular than the one just ended.

SHAKESPEARE FORGERIES.

Remarkable Book Sold by Auction

Among the thousands of books that formed the library of Mr. E. J. Stanley, M. P., and are now undergoing disposal in an eight days' sale at Sotheby's was one precious product of the ingenuity of that arch forger of Shakespeare, Samuel William Henry Ireland, and it was sold the first day. It is the quarto volume which deceived the world when it was published in 1796 under the title of "Miscellaneous Papers and Legal Instruments Under the Hand and Seal of William Shakespeare, Including the Tragedy of 'King Lear' and a Small Fragment of 'Hamlet,' From the Original MSS. In the Possession of Samuel Ireland of Norfolk Street."

In the book world the reign of the rogue is but a span, but the inventive Ireland's was rather long drawn out, and Boswell on his deathbed, kissing the forged manuscripts and believing his lips to be sanctified by the process, was not the only great man who was taken in by the swindle. This book is not only interlarded with manuscript copies of the original forgeries, but is also preceded by an account in manuscript signed by Ireland of the suppression, on the discovery of the forgeries, of the original issue of folio. Ireland's success is but a record of human credulity. Young Ireland was first tempted by his father's unintelligent enthusiasm for Shakespeare to forge an autograph of the poet on a carefully copied old lease. His audacity grew with the growing credulity of his dupes, and ere long locks of hair, private letters, annotated books, etc. were plentifully produced, and all inquirers were put off with lying explanations. Boswell, Wharton, Dr. Parr and hundreds more were deceived, but those like Malone, really qualified to judge, denounced the imposture from the first.

Ireland's audacity now reached the folly of producing a deed of Shakespeare's bequeathing his books and papers to a William Henry Irelande, an assumed ancestor. A new historical play was announced, entitled "Vortigern," and carefully concealed until its production by Sheridan at Drury Lane, but it was rapid and un-Shakespearean and was hopelessly condemned. The old man now began to smell a rat and demanded an explanation from his enterprising son. It was forthcoming in the form of the confession in manuscript affixed to the volume sold the other day. "In order," one reads, "to further obliterate as much as possible every vestige of Shakespeare's production I further committed to the present reprint, reserving no more than the annexed copy," which as a literary curiosity consequently ranks unique. It was bought by Mr. Jackson for £122.

Different Dueling Methods.

Viennese duelling methods are quite different from those of Paris. The chief characteristic of Parisian duelling is its publicity and harmlessness. In Vienna perhaps not so many duels are fought, but those that are generally result in the letting of considerable blood, and they are always quietly managed. The other day a woman was convicted in Vienna for renting her apartments for duels. For years she has made this a profitable business, and at her trial she admitted that in the last three or four years over 200 duels had been fought in her parlor. Everything was so arranged that there was not the slightest publicity, and as the fights always took place before 6 in the morning the chances of the police finding out anything about them were small. In fact, Frau Pietsch might have gone on doing this indefinitely had not her husband objected to it. He had begged her to stop, but she wouldn't. Then he got a separation from her, and it was in his suit that her occupation was made public.

The only success is to do one's duty.

NO DANGER.

There is no danger of throwing money away if you take Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure for rheumatism. In a little while you will say it is the best spent money you ever invested in your life. S. Donaldson, postmaster, Dufferin, P.O., Pittsburgh, Ont., was lame for two years and could not get out of a rig. One bottle of Dr. Hall's, with the Climax Iron Tonic Pills, cured him. This great blood purifier is put up in bottles containing ten days' treatment. Price 50 cents a bottle at all drug stores or The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

"Drusilletta! What a funny name! Aren't you anxious sometimes to change it?" "I'm a good deal anxious to change my other name."

To put the break on the wagon going down the hill is a help to the driver when the wagon is heavily loaded. But what driver would think of applying the brake to a loaded wagon going up hill? If he did this sensible man is in the condition of pulling a load up hill with the brake set against him. When his stomach is out of order, and the allied organs of digestion and nutrition are impaired in their functions, a friction is set up which has to be overcome in addition to the performance of daily duties. A foul stomach makes a bad condition of the man with a disordered stomach has often to grope his way through the day's business like a man in a fog. He forgets appointments. Problems seem presented to his mind "wrong end to." This condition is entirely remedied by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It puts the stomach and digestive and nutritive system into a condition of perfect health and gives a clear brain, a steady hand and a light step for the day's duties. When constipation clogs the channels of the body, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will work an effectual cure of that disastrous disease.

Wearily Brain Workers.

Fagged out, ideas come as slowly as molasses. You think of things just a minute or two too late. Snap! gone! The buoyancy that made work a pleasure is gone. The doctor would tell you that you are run down, not eating enough nor digesting enough. Your stomach needs aid, your digestion needs a boost, and your blood needs Phosphorus and Iron that it may be formed readily. Now Ferrozone is a wonderful nerve bracer and blood maker. It's food for the blood and nerves, it will make a strong quickly and permanently. Sold by McCall & Co.

It will generally be found that those who sneer habitually at human nature and affect to despise it, are among its worst and least pleasant samples.

Acute and Chronic Rheumatism are equally influenced by the almost magical pain-subduing power of "Pain-Killer," a valuable remedy of value to five times the quantity of any other rheumatic remedy. Nervine cures because it reaches the source of the disease and drives it out of the system. Nervine is an unusually good rheumatic cure, and makes many unusual cures. Just rub it in the next time you have an attack. The immediate result will surprise you. 25c.

topey on the President's body that death resulted from gangrene of the wounds, led to much discussion of the causes leading up to this gangrenous condition. It was issued at 5 o'clock, and is as follows:
The bullet which struck over the breast bone did not pass through the skin and did little harm. The other bullet passed through both walls of the stomach near its lower border. Both holes were found to be perfectly closed by the stitches, but the tissue around each hole had become gangrenous. After passing through the stomach the bullet passed into the back walls of the abdomen, hitting and tearing the upper end of the kidney. This portion of the bullet track was also gangrenous, the gangrene involving the pancreas. The bullet has not yet been found. There was no sign of peritonitis or disease of other organs. The heart walls were very thin. There was no evidence of any attempt to repair on the part of nature and death resulted from the gangrene which affected the stomach around the bullet wounds as well as the tissues around the further course of the bullet. Death was unavoidable by any surgical or medical treatment, and was the direct result of the bullet wound.

THEORY OF BULLET BEING POISONED.

It developed that Dr. Wadsworth, one of the attending physicians and an expert of high standing in the marine hospital service, strongly supported the view that the murderous bullet had been poisoned and that this was one of the moving causes for the gangrenous condition.

The area of this dead and gangrenous flesh was a source of much surprise to the surgeons, requiring a circumference about the size of a silver dollar about the internal wounds. Aside from their official signed statement, the doctors were rather averse to discussing the autopsy but some general expressions were secured on the points involved. Dr. Matthew D. Mann, the surgeon upon whom fell the responsibility of operating upon the President, immediately after he was shot in the course of a cursory talk, said:

"First of all, there was never any contention or unseemly discussion among the physicians as to the method of treatment in a case similar to the present, one in importance. In no case was there a better understanding as to what should be done. We worked together as one man, there were no differences of opinion sometimes among us as to which was the better mode of procedure under certain conditions, but the minority always were convinced."

DEATH RESULTED FROM GANGRENE.

"Among the criticisms that were made as to the insufficiency of the original examination and the failure to locate the bullet at the time of operation were the justest. 'I think the report made to-day.' Dr. Mann replied, 'is a sufficient answer to your question. It shows very plainly that the location of the bullet had been found. The X-ray instrument was not used, as the appliances were not handy. This serious damage was done to the organs through which it passed—not to the locality where it now rests.'"

A Great Memory.

What memory can do is illustrated in the case of a New York tailor who cannot read or write. He is probably the most widely known man in his business, as for many years he has done business with New York's firemen and policemen. Almost every man of these two bodies has dealings with this tailor, and each month between the first and tenth days he visits every station house and engine and truck house to collect his dues. It is said of him that in all the years he has dealt with the firemen and policemen he never was known to make a mistake of a cent, although all his records of transactions have been kept in his head.

Fingert's Ambitious Projects.

"Get me another doctor, Eli," Mr. Pingree said to Colonel Sutton when ill in London. "Get me a good one. I don't want anything to happen to me now. If they will only take care of me now, I am willing to sign a contract with the Almighty to pass away quietly and without a murmur at the end of two years. I have so much to do."

Fossil Coral in Georgia.

Within the last two years several remarkable reefs of fossil coral have been discovered near Bainbridge, on the Flint river, in Georgia. One reef so found consisted of coral heads, some of them more than 10 feet in diameter. Between 25 and 30 species have been recognized in these Georgia reefs. Geologists say that they belong to the tertiary age.

dent, that he could not say any more on the subject but, perhaps, after the funeral he would give an address on the subject. Mr. Ross said he did not see how anyone could conceive of such a plan and action as that of the assassin.

CHRIST CHURCH.

The services in Christ Church were especially impressive yesterday. The memorial service in the morning was not very largely attended owing to the unfavorable wet weather, but all present were visibly touched by the very earnest and feeling way in which the Rev. Mr. Ross, of the death of President McKinley. In the evening there was a large attendance, and Mr. McCosh again referred briefly to the last hours of the late chief magistrate of the United States.

At the morning service Mr. McCosh based his remarks on the last clause of Numbers 23: 10; "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last be like his." He depicted the circumstances that gave birth to the laudable life contained in the text and the corrupt character of the prophet Balaam, who first uttered it. The wish, he said, to die the death of the righteous, is very wide spread and there are few who are not deeply impressed at the courage and peace of a true Christian, dying in calm possession of all his mental faculties. And yet many who wish to die the death of the righteous, do not, and will not, live the life of the righteous. If you can tell me how the departed lived I will quickly tell you how he died. The question, How did he live? is of much greater importance than the question how did he die? Was he zealous for God's honor and God's house. Was he thoughtful, upright, kind and honorable? Did he give liberally of his time and money towards the spread of God's kingdom? Mr. McCosh then tenderly referred to the brave and peaceful death of President McKinley, and the beautiful evidence he furnished to the "whole world of his child-like faith in Jesus—After," said Mr. McCosh, "the fatal shot had been fired by the dastardly assassin, and while the blood was trickling from the wounds he could plead for the murderer and say, 'Don't hurt him; he didn't know what he was doing.' Such a prayer, he drew nearer and nearer to Jesus, and he chanted with his dying lips that beautiful hymn, 'Nearer my God to thee, nearer to thee.'"

Mr. McCosh then spoke of his great mental powers and administrative ability, and placed the distinguished statesman and earnest Christian in comparison with some of the unread thoughtless young men who talk in the most flippant way of those truths about which they know nothing.

The lessons, prayers, and hymns were of an appropriate nature. Miss Maude Oliver sang with wonderful effect, "Nearer my God to Thee."

At the evening service Mr. McCosh again referred briefly to the death of the President, and drew some lessons from it. Rev. W. H. G. Colles assisted at the evening service.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.
Rev. W. E. Knowles preached a sermon last evening especially adapted to young people. In dealing with his subject he dealt very strongly with the importance to the young people, which lies in the choosing of good associations and companions. In illustrating his subject he said:—

"President McKinley has taught the world many lessons. The reason of his ability to do this is undoubtedly due to his discretion in choosing his companions when he was a young man. As a result he was honored and beloved, not only by his own people but by other nations as well. Millions of British people now stand with bowed heads in honor of the late President, who commanded the honor and respect of all who knew him. Mr. McKinley was not a man who gloried in anything pompous. He was always retired, modest and humble and, as a result, there will be no pomp or heraldry at his funeral. He will be buried, perhaps, in the little town where he was born, but his funeral will be marked with all due respect and sorrow."

He also dwelt on the sterling qualities of Mrs. McKinley as a wife of the great President. Her influence for good which she brought to bear upon him as a result of her constant association with him, no doubt helped to strengthen him in performing his duties as President of the United States.

As a contrast he mentioned the deed of the assassin, Czolgosz, as the result of evil associations. He caught the spirit of murder from a woman. It did not come from his own breast. If he had been more careful in choosing his associations he would no doubt have turned out a better man than he did.

The music included the exquisite solo "Thy Will be Done," by Miss Ada Ross, the quartette "Crossing the Bar," by Mrs. John Cooper, Miss Ross, and Messrs. Brackin, and the anthem "Kindly Light." As an organ voluntary the Dead March in Saul was played.

PARK ST. METHODIST.

Rev. Dr. Hannon, in his sermon last evening, referred very feelingly to the life of the late President McKinley. He spoke of him as one of the great-est men that the United States has ever produced and one whose life is well worthy not only of admiration but also of imitation. In speaking of him he said:—

"There are some statesmen who if commended must be commended for their public measures, as their private character will not always bear looking into. Other statesmen are worthy of commendation principally for their goodness of character."

"McKinley, the late President of the United States, is worthy of commendation in both respects. He is to be honored both for his public measures and the goodness of his private character."

"Mr. McKinley was an American, loved by his nation, but he was also a broad, intelligent ruler, fair to all nations. His attitude towards Great Britain during the late South African war was such as to endear him to the British statesmen and people."

"Mr. McKinley was a Methodist but he was a man of high respect to people of all religious denominations."

The doctor then referred to the last words of the dying President, "It's God's way. His will be done"; also to his desiring religious service and his chanting the hymn "Hearer my God to Thee."

He also made a point of showing that although his earthly hopes were stricken down in a moment, his hope of Heaven remained sure and steadfast. In closing he spoke of McKinley's value as an example, as a man of truth and piety and even his dying words will bear good testimony as heard by all nations.

The music by the choir was also very appropriate. Among the selections were, anthem by the choir, "Crossing the Bar," Woodward; solo by Mrs. Milton Bogart, "Thy Will be Done," Marston, and "Nearer My God to Thee" by the choir.

The choir loft and the pulpit were very tastefully draped, the credit of which is due to I. L. Brock. Directly behind the pulpit were two flags, British and American, entwined together, symbolic of the peace which reigns between the two nations.

The Turn O'the Year

First hints of autumn are appearing—A stray red leaf amongst the green; a touch of asperity in the evening air, dark at seven o'clock.

It isn't summer, and it's hardly fall. Not time perhaps to put warm weather clothes away for good, but time to tone them up with a bright new item or two—For instance, the straw hat that's getting rusty can be retired in favor of a trim fedora; and a new silk tie with a touch of color in it puts a man more in touch with the time of year.

Then there's the question of heavier underwear and socks. They are both important just now in point of health.

And don't you want an umbrella before the fall fair season sets in?

Of course we should not remind you of all these wants if the wanted things were not here.

ASSASSIN CZOLGOSZ INDICTED FOR MURDER OF MCKINLEY

Prompt Work was Done by the Grand Jury at Buffalo—Two Eminent Lawyers Appointed by the Court as Counsel for Him.

Buffalo, September 16.—Leon C. Czolgosz, alias Fred. Nieman, was indicted to-day by the county court grand jury for the crime of murder in the first degree, in fatally shooting President William McKinley at the Temple of Music in the Pan-American exposition grounds at 4:15 o'clock on the afternoon of September 6.

When arraigned before Judge Edward K. Emery, in the county court, the prisoner stubbornly refused to answer questions repeatedly asked him by District Attorney Penney as to whether he had counsel or wanted counsel. The district attorney then suggested that inasmuch as the defendant refused to answer, counsel should be assigned.

Judge Emery assigned Hon. Lorin L. Lewis, and Hon. Robert C. Titus, former supreme court justices of this city, whose names had been suggested by the Erie County Bar Association. Czolgosz probably will be arraigned again to-morrow morning to plead to the indictment.

District Attorney Penney presented the evidence in the murder case to the grand jury. Aside from surgeons and physicians in the case no witnesses were sworn, other than those who were in the Temple of Music and witnessed the shooting.

THE INDICTMENT VOTED.

At 4:15 this afternoon, just exactly ten days after the shooting, the grand jury voted unanimously to indict Czolgosz for murder in the first degree. At 4:41 o'clock the secret indictment was presented to Judge Emery in the county court. Then ensued a wait of an hour, but the rumor that the murderer was to be arraigned spread and in a short time the court room was crowded.

Great secrecy was maintained as to the place of confinement of the prisoner, but it is believed that he was locked up in the temporary jail at the Erie county penitentiary, where prisoners have been kept while the jail has been undergoing repairs. After the indictment the prisoner was driven from the penitentiary, a mile from the city hall, to the jail across the street from the hall.

Czolgosz was then taken under a strong guard from the jail through the tunnel under Delaware avenue to the basement of the city hall and up the stairs to the court room on the second floor. The prisoner was shackled to a detective, and another detective held his other arm; Assistant Supt. Cusack marching in front and a number of patrolmen behind.

When the prisoner was taken before the bench the crowd in the court room surged about him on all sides. They were compelled to resume their seats. Czolgosz is of medium height, of fairly good build and has light curly hair, but a ten-day's growth of beard on his face, gave him an unkempt appearance. Apparently he feigned insanity, but not stupidity, and his glance roamed about, but his eyes were always down cast. Not once did he look the county prosecutor of the judge in the face.

REFUSED TO ANSWER.

"Czolgosz, have you got a lawyer? Do you wish a lawyer? You have been indicted for murder in the first degree; do you want a lawyer to defend you? Czolgosz, look at me and answer."

District Attorney Penney fired these at the prisoner, his voice rising with each succeeding question, but Czolgosz stubbornly refused to answer. The district attorney respectfully suggested that counsel be assigned to defend the prisoner and ascertain what he had better do as to his plea to the indictment before arraignment. Judge Emery then asked the prisoner before the bench if he had counsel, but there was no answer, despite the fact that the police officer told him the judge was speaking, and that he must answer.

The court then said: "Czolgosz, you have appeared for arraignment in court without counsel, the law makes it the duty of the court to assign counsel. The bar association of the county has considered the matter and suggested the names of gentlemen of high character for such assignment. The court has seriously considered the question, and after much consideration has concluded to follow the suggestion made by the Association. The court therefore assigns the Hon. Lorin L. Lewis and the Hon. Robert C. Titus as your counsel."

CROWD SURGED AFTER PRISONER
Judge Emery directed the officers to notify the attorneys and remove the prisoner.

Czolgosz was handcuffed to the detective, who started out of the court room with him.

The crowds surged after them, but found the exit barred by policemen. Outside the court room door the prisoner was surrounded by policemen and hurried down stairs into the basement, whence he was taken through the tunnel to the jail across Delaware avenue. Whether he was left there for the night, or taken elsewhere the police refused to say.

District Attorney Penney said that Justices Lewis and Titus would be notified and given an opportunity to talk with the prisoner, and that he hoped to arraign Czolgosz to-morrow.

EMPIRE'S HEIR APPARENT WELCOMED TO LOYAL DOMINION

Royal Party Arrived at Quebec Amid the Thunders of the Salute—Greeted by Thousands of Loyal and Enthusiastic Canadians.

Quebec, Sept. 16.—The Ophir arrived in the harbor this morning with the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, and their suite on board, and was saluted with the firing of cannon from the Citadel and fleet of warships. The Governor-General and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who were waiting, boarded the yacht and extended the country's welcome. It was 12:30 p.m. before the royal party were ready to leave the vessel, and in the meantime a heavy squall had blown up which rendered landing somewhat difficult.

Quebec, which has been singled out for the distinguished honor of being the spot designated as the first landing place in the Dominion of Canada for the heir apparent to the British throne and his amiable consort, has royally received and welcomed their Royal Highnesses. The civic and military festivities in our old city will certainly surpass anything of a similar nature ever theretofore witnessed in the old Dominion of Canada.

The old Quebec was found to take the foremost rank among the cities of Canada in the demonstration of its loyalty. At 8:30 a. m. His Excellency the Governor-General, his staff, and accompanied by the Prime Minister of Canada, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, K. C., M. G., proceeded on board the H. M. S. Ophir.

At noon the royal party landed on the King's wharf, where they were received by the commander of the Canadian militia, Vice-Admiral Bedford and staff, and some of the members of the Federal Government—Messrs. Dobell, Tarte, Fielding and Davis. A hundred men from the British warships furnished the guard of honor. The royal party landed amidst the thunder of the royal salute from the batteries of the Citadel and from the fleet. The scene was extremely impressive. The escorts were furnished by the Queen's Own Canadian Hussars, of Quebec, and the Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars, of Montreal. The guard of honor at the Parliament buildings were furnished by 100 men from the 8th Royal Rifles and 100 men from the 9th Battalion, both Quebec rifle corps.

At the close of the presentation of the address at the Parliament buildings, the royal procession proceeded in the same order to the Citadel where the guard of honor to receive him was composed of 300 men from the 8th, 9th and 10th. The crowds at every point of vantage and in the streets of the royal procession was simply tremendous.

To do fitting honor to the Duke and Duchess, however, Quebec has made great preparations. The decorations throughout the city are of a most elaborate nature. Flags and banners float from every house; the little, narrow streets with their old stone buildings are a mass of color; the public buildings are all handsomely decorated; arches have been erected at several points where the royal procession will pass; emblems of welcome are to be seen everywhere. At the King's wharf, where the royal party landed, four pillars decorated at the end of the wharf bears the word "Welcome." The street along the line of march from the wharf to the Parliament buildings to-day were lined on both sides with troops at a distance of a yard apart.

To-day the streets of Quebec echoed to the tread of soldiers, and to the sound of the military bands. There with flags, banners and the royal arms have been erected, and an arch are some 3,500 men altogether, comprising the Quebec regiment and a troop of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, under command of Colonel Lesard, and the parade is to be held on Tuesday morning.

The garden party, which was to have been held at Spencerwood by Hon. Parent and Lieutenant-Governor Jetté, in honor of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall, was cancelled by the request of the Duke, out of respect to the late President McKinley.

This afternoon at four o'clock the Duke and Duchess of York visited Laval University, where the degree of LL. D. was conferred on the Duke. In his reply the Duke spoke in very flattering terms of the loyalty and devotion of the Catholic Church to the Empire.

To-night the city was ablaze by one of the greatest illuminations ever seen here. Every public building, besides a great number of private ones, were brilliantly illuminated. But the coming feature of the evening was the display of the river. The entire fleet of ten warships, including the Ophir, being decked out from stern to stern, with an innumerable number of smaller craft were also illuminated. On Dufferin Terrace a choir of 1,000 voices, accompanied by two or three massed bands, rendered popular airs. The royal party, in addressing the whole scene from the balcony of the King's bastion at the Citadel, an unfortunate accident occurred on board the steamer Frontenac, which had been chartered by the Hon. Mr. Tarte, Minister of Public Works. Some bombs became ignited on board, causing an explosion. Hon. Mr. Tarte had his face and hands injured. Hon. Dr. Horden, minister, fell down a hatchway, injuring himself severely. His face is badly cut and burned, while Miss Fielding, daughter of Hon. W. S. Fielding, was severely injured, as was also Mrs. J. N. Virens, of Montreal, whose dress ignited, and caused her to be rather badly burned.

CORN YIELD

Farmers in Dover Have Been Particularly Successful This Season.

"I took a ride through Dover Sunday," said Col. Sam. Holmes to The Planet this morning, "and I was surprised to see so many fields of corn cut and ready to husk. The farmers all through Dover are at present very busily engaged with their corn crop, and they say that they will have a better yield than they have had for some years. The work is being mostly done with corn harvesters, which are being purchased very readily this year."

This is good news, considering the fact that during the earlier part of the season it was thought that the corn crop would be a very poor one this year.

such a situation would be a suggestion that the victim work. The fellow who wants bread must grow it. The fellowman who wants bread make something that the farmer take in exchange for it. But Anarchist does not offer this prescription. She tells her dupes "if you do not get it on your demand take it by force." Thus gospel of laziness is followed by appeal to theft. (Those who do theft are tyrants. "You can do yourself with sticks and stones," Emma Goldman, "when attacked by a tyrant." The idleness that is to be sustained by theft is therefore to be accompanied by violence. Violence, ever, is to be directed against who stand by law and order, against the higher individual to more harm it is that he be assaulted. "I tell us," concludes the woman by despatching one tyrant without change of society, that any tyrant will take his place. Year is true, and another hero will up to meet over such new tyrant. Wherever there is a Caesar must be a Brutus." This doctrine that provokes murder attacks upon rulers such as that President McKinley. Free speech all very well, but when such speech rubbied as this is addressed weak minds it is about time in Abbe censor.

The Montreal Witness, to which we are indebted for the above summary, believes that Mr. Jones has got to the philosophic core of the question, and to its only final solution, but admits that the abnormal fortunes which exist on this continent are the result of false legislative conditions, which it is possible to abrogate by a properly educated national vote. The Planet's opinion is that we shall have all sorts of semi-socialistic and socialistic experiments in legislation to remove injustice before we reach the goal, which we take to be a community of rightly acting individuals, governed from within by their own free will and best impulses and co-operating for the common good on the basis of full equality. The time will come, not our day, though, when, to use George Eliot's words, "It will be a natural instinct to stretch out a hand to help one who needs support, as automatic and irresistible as it is now to turn our hands to keep ourselves from falling."

A gang of men was put to work once cleaning the yacht's hull. They will remain on the dock until Friday or Saturday.

The Shamrock II., at the Erie dry dock, is being burnished by the crew and the dock hands. The boat is being stripped off her rudder, it being smooth enough to please designer Watson.

HE WON A NEW CHAIR

A CASE WHERE NERVE AND PERSISTENCY GOT THEIR REWARD.

The Station Master Called the Division Superintendent's Bluff and Went Out Through the Door Instead of Through the Window.

Several division officials were informally congregated in the superintendent's office of an eastern railroad one afternoon when the conversation turned to the subject of elaborate office furniture, suggested by a new office chair which had been presented to the venerable superintendent by his subordinates as a birthday remembrance.

"I never see an office chair like that without being reminded of me at almost the commencement of my railroad experience," remarked the traveling freight agent.

"I commenced my railroad career as 'spare agent' for the Central Vermont back in the sixties when 'Old Man' Halloway was superintendent of the northern division of that road. I only worked about six or eight months in that capacity when I was assigned to a new station just opened near St. Albans, Vt., the headquarters of the division. I shall never forget the pride and satisfaction which I experienced in the possession of that, my first regular position. Were I to be elected to the presidency of this road tomorrow I doubt if it would afford me anywhere near the self-satisfaction that I derived from the fact that, while there in the Green Mountain State, like everything else in life, though, there was a drawback to my complete happiness, and that drawback lay in the fact that, while all the rest of my station equipment and office furniture was entirely new, the chair which they sent me, judging from its appearance, had seen several years' service at some other station before being sent to me.

"Well, that chair didn't harmonize with my ideas any more than it did with the rest of the office furniture. I immediately sat down and wrote the superintendent at some length, stating the case in all its details, which, when summarized, amounted to the fact that an old chair had been sent me in error in place of a new one, and I asked him to see that the mistake be rectified. I sent the letter on the morning train, thinking, of course, that the new chair would be forthcoming on the last train from St. Albans that night; but, although I watched every incoming train from St. Albans with anxious, expectant eyes for over a week, the coveted chair did not make its appearance.

"Thinking the letter must have been lost or mislaid, I wrote another, stating the case at more length than on the former occasion. On the following day I received my second letter back with an endorsement across the corner that a new chair could not be provided just at that time and for the present I would have to get along with the one I had as best I could. This somewhat dampened my ardor, but did not entirely discourage me in my efforts to secure the new chair. I importuned the train dispatcher at least three times a week and made it a point to communicate my want to the trainmaster, the roadmaster and every one else whom I saw and who I thought would have any influence whatever with his predecessor absolutely, and asks the present members of the Cabinet to retain their portfolios.

President Roosevelt has announced that he will continue the policy of his predecessor absolutely, and asks the present members of the Cabinet to retain their portfolios.

First milk dealer—Do you put water in your milk?
Second milk dealer—Sir, you insult me. I use ice—not to dilute the milk, but to make it cold.

For the tenth part of a second I was completely nonplused; but, not desiring to be bluffed, I caught up the chair, swung it over my shoulder and, with a "Thank you, Mr. Halloway; this will do very nicely," I started to depart as I had come, through the outer office, where his small corps of clerks were at work. Seeing my intention and evidently not wanting me to go in that way, he directed my attention to a side door leading directly to the street, and, opening the door, he bowed me out of his presence with as much grace as if I had been the president of the road. I afterward learned that it was several weeks before he got another chair to replace the one I had taken. In reply to the master mechanic's query shortly after as to how he came to give his chair to Clarke he replied, with a smile, "Well, to tell you the truth, I had no more idea that he would take that chair than I now have that you will shoulder this office and carry it away."

"Whether the episode gave me any prestige with the 'old man' or not I am unable to say, but I was promoted to one of the best stations on the line."

Good Health

Is doubtless the highest human good. It is especially so to women, to whom it means the preservation of beauty, happiness in the home, and the enjoyment of social duties. There can be no good health for any woman who suffers from womanly diseases. Her complexion fails. Her flesh loses its firmness. Her eyes are dull. She has no home happiness, no social enjoyment.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the diseases which destroy the health. It establishes regularity, drives disagreeable drains, heals inflammation, and cures female weakness. It gives good health to women, which means tranquil nerves, a good appetite and sound sleep.

"I was a great sufferer two years ago with female trouble and I wrote to you for advice," says Mrs. Mattie Hays of Tullahoma, McDonald Co., Missouri. "You outlined a course of treatment for me. I followed your directions, and now feel like a different person. I never expected to hear from you when I wrote to you. In three days after I commenced taking your medicine I began to feel better. I took twenty dollars' worth of the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I bought it for five dollars at a time, and also four vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets. I would not take one thousand dollars for the good the medicine has done me. I can't praise it enough. I wish all who suffer with such troubles would give Dr. Pierce's medicine a fair trial. I can work all day—doing anything, walk where I please, and feel good. Many thanks to you for your kind advice."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Murders and Then Marries.
Augustus B. Wythe in his "Modern Alamyntes" describes an interesting custom observed at Yefju, by which a long engagement is brought to a happy ending.

A RUSTY KEY.

It Cleared Up a Forgotten Murder and Hanged the Murderer.

"Small things sometimes tell big tales and unravel mysteries of long standing," said an old detective who has seen long service in running down criminals in various parts of the country. "The most singular case that ever fell under my care was a case in which a white man had been murdered in some mysterious way, and the body was put away and all efforts to locate it were out of the question. Suspicion fell on a negro, and he was arrested, but subsequently was released because of the absence of proof to connect him with the crime. The body was missing, and it was certain that the man had been murdered and robbed by some person familiar with the surroundings. The negro had worked for him, but had been discharged because of impudence.

"Ten years elapsed. All interest in the crime had died out. One day some negro blackberry pickers came to a key in the limb of a bush. The body was found in the bush, and the bones of a human form. When the matter was reported, I was sent out to investigate the matter, and I gathered up the bones, cut the bush down and took everything to the police station. We went back over the list of missing men.

"There was a captain connected with the department who possessed a wonderful memory, and he turned up all his list of the missing men. I thought to state here that the negro had remained in the community and had by his industry bought a few acres of land on which stood the house which had figured in the mysterious disappearance ten years before. 'Cut that key out for me,' said the captain, and it was cut out. He had a consultation with the chief and, without telling me where he was going, asked me to go with him.

"We traveled about four miles and drove up to a little house late in the evening. There was nobody at home. 'I guess we might as well go in,' the captain said, and, pulling the key from his pocket, he shoved it into the lock, turned it and opened the door. We waited for the negro after locking the door again, but he never returned. The house was watched all night, but the negro never came. We grew suspicious and soon learned that he had fled upon hearing of the discovery in the briar patch. Flight strengthened the evidence of his guilt. He was arrested in a neighboring state, returned, tried and convicted and finally executed.

"The key which solved the mystery had got caught in a twig that sprung up in the briar patch, and but for this fact the mystery would have never been solved."

A Great Puzzle.

In one of the old castles of northern England visitors are shown two rooms which are connected by a door. A singular mechanism. Each room is joined by an alcove, used as a sleeping room apartment, and the doors of the adjoining alcoves turn on a pivot in the center of the partition wall.

This ingenious device was the invention of one of the ancestors of the present proprietor, who was a great pleasure in frightening and mystifying his guests.

When one had gone to bed in the green room and the other in the blue, the doors were closed, and the visitor found himself in strange quarters, with clothes that were not his own.

It is said that this fun-loving lord lost a rich inheritance by disturbing the restful moments of a wealthy aunt, who never forgave the trick her nephew played upon her.

She Did So.
"Always," said papa, as he drank his coffee and enjoyed his morning breakfast. "Always," children, change the subject when anything unpleasant has been said. It is both wise and polite."

That evening on his return from business he found several of his flower beds despoiled, and the tiny imprint of slippered feet silently bearing witness to the small thief.

"Mabel," he said to her, "did you pick my flowers?"
"Papa," said Mabel, "did you see a monkey in the city today? We had a 'Never mind that. Did you pick my flowers, Mabel?'"
"Papa, what did grandma send me?"
"Mabel, what do you mean? Did you pick my flowers? Answer me, yes or no."

"Yes, papa, I did, but I thought I would change the subject."

Time Needed For a Leg's Toilet.
Insurance collectors, visiting many families daily, have odd remarks sometimes. A collector called the other night upon a railway watchman. A little girl came to the door and said, "I guess you can't see father because he's got his leg off." The collector looked sympathetic and said in a shocked voice: "My, oh, my! How did that happen?" The girl made answer: "Oh, he takes it off every night before he goes to bed. He's got a wooden leg." Her father didn't care, she added, to go to the trouble of putting the leg on again until next morning, as it required 15 minutes to adjust the straps.

Just as He Thought.
"If I were to ask you to marry me, what would you say?"
"Why, Mr. Brown," she faltered; "really this is so sudden."
"I thought so," he answered; "that's about what they all say. Much obliged." And then he said it was time for him to go.—Exchange.

An Ancient Automobile.
The archives of Antwerp show that in 1479 the communal treasurer was authorized by the magistrates of the town to pay a bonus of 24 livres d'Artois to a man named Gille de Dem as a reward for his gift to the city of a "carriage set in motion by mechanical means only."

Love's Endearing Phrases.
We once saw a Billville matron calling to her husband, who was digging bait in the garden, "Honey, if you don't drop that hoe an fetch me in a cord of wood I'll break this wash pot over your head, honey!"

An Expedient.
"Didn't you have trouble in getting me many antiques?"
"Dear me, no; I had them made to order."

BLOWN DOWN

Heavy Winds Worked Serious Loss in Western Orchards.

Thousands of dollars' worth of apples were blown from the trees in orchards throughout this western section of Ontario by the gales which blew Sunday and yesterday. The loss will be felt severely by farmers, who all had a short crop as it was. Apples were selling in the orchards at as much as $2 per barrel.

The trees were not entirely stripped in every instance but probably none escaped altogether. Fall apples suffered more than did the winter varieties, of course. The result will be to flood the evaporators with work. Apples are much too scarce to be allowed to remain where they fall until picked up by the live stock, and the evaporators have taken the place almost entirely of the old system of drying the fruit in the kitchens of the farm-houses.

DOG INJURED

Deputy Humane Officer McGregor investigated a Canine's Case Yesterday.

The attention of Humane Officer McGregor was called to the case of a little Scotch terrier dog which was run over by a vehicle on Barthe street yesterday. It was supposed by the parties giving the information that the dog's leg was broken. It was left lying on the road during the whole of yesterday forenoon and was evidently in great pain; no one claiming it.

On enquiry and investigation, Mr. McGregor learned that, since the dog had been taken in charge by Mrs. Robert, who was giving it the best care and attention possible. Upon examining it, he found that the dog's leg was not broken, and if attended to, it would soon recover from its injuries.

The animal in question is a very valuable Scotch terrier and evidently someone's pet. It is supposed to have been lost, and after wandering around through the streets, was run down by a buggy. The owner has not yet claimed it, but will doubtless do so when he is informed of the whereabouts of his pet dog.

BOMBS EXPLODED

Accident on Government Steamer at Quebec—Three Cabinet Ministers Hurt.

Quebec, Sept. 16.—A serious accident occurred on board the Public Works Department's steamer Frontenac tonight, in which Hon. J. Israel Tarte, half the members of the Federal Cabinet had their lives endangered, while three ministers of the Crown and three ladies were injured. Mr. Tarte brought a party of friends down from Montreal on the Frontenac, and tonight, on the occasion of the illumination of the harbor, invited a number of the ministers and their friends to come aboard. The party included Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Greenhalgh, K. C., of Montreal; Mr. Clague, and Miss Clague, Sault Ste. Marie; Hon. F. W. and Mrs. Borden, Hon. James Sutherland, Hon. A. G. Blair, and Miss Blair, Hon. Clifford and Mrs. Sifton, Hon. W. S. and Miss Fielding, Senator Mackay, Senator Scott and Miss Scott, Mrs. Turcotte, of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Clement, Ottawa, and others.

Twelve bombs for throwing showers of rockets were piled on the bridge, and by some unknown means one was ignited and exploded, prematurely setting fire to the others.

Some of the ladies were wearing light summer skirts, and they were ignited, but fortunately, with the exception of Mrs. Greenhalgh, whose legs were painfully burned, all escaped lightly.

A number of them rushed for safety to the wheel-house, which almost immediately caught fire. The men of the party hurried to pull them out of their predicament, and one of the rescuers, Hon. James Sutherland, had his hands badly burned.

Mr. Tarte himself, who was operating a searchlight, was thrown by the force of the explosion, and had his face badly bruised and cut and his right hand burned. Mrs. Turcotte suffered slight burns on the arms. Mrs. Borden's dress was uninjured. Miss Fielding's hair was burned.

Admiral Bedford sent a launch from the flagship to lend assistance, and the Eureka, another government vessel, also came to the rescue.

Hon. Dr. Borden had the misfortune to sprain his ankle in stepping from one vessel to the other.

The fire was quickly extinguished.

A POSTMASTER SUICIDES.

Milton, Sept. 16.—Postmaster St. Hannel committed suicide this morning about 10.45 in the back room at the post office by shooting himself through the head with a revolver. Death was instantaneous. He was about 45 years of age, had been in the best of health and spirits, and attended to his duties this morning, as usual. As far as can be learned, his finances are in good shape, and the cause of his taking his life cannot be ascertained. A wife and six children, the eldest 11 years of age, survive him.

THE INQUEST

Enquiry Will be Made Into the Death of Julius Bourdeau on the Railroad.

The inquest into the cause of the death of the late Julius Bourdeau, who was killed on the C. P. R. track near Tilbury yesterday by No. 6 express, has been adjourned to meet on Thursday next at 7.30 p. m. in the old Town Hall.

Many theories are advanced as to the cause of death. It is claimed that Bourdeau has been suffering from insanity for some time, and that he committed suicide by standing on the track and waiting for the train to strike him. He, however, has been confined in the asylum at London, and was let out, as he was apparently perfectly well as far as his mind was concerned, so that some are caused to doubt the theory of suicide.

It is claimed that deceased was very deaf and that he stepped on the track and did not hear the approach of the train which caused his death.

Deceased was taken to Tilbury last night and will be buried to-morrow morning at Tilbury.

WEAKNESS

OF MEN AND WOMEN
Could we read the hearts of every man we meet, what a load of sorrow and despair would be disclosed. Indigestion and Blood Diseases have caused more physical and mental weakness than all other causes combined. They strike at the foundation of manhood; they sap the vital force; they undermine the system, and not only do they often disrupt the family circle, but they may even extend their poisonous fangs to the next generation. If you have been a victim of early sinful habits, remember the seed is sown, and sooner or later you will reap a harvest. If your blood has been diseased from any cause do not risk a return later on. Our New Method Treatment will positively cure you and you need never fear any return of the disease. We will give you a guarantee to that effect. We would warn you against the promiscuous use of mercury, which does not cure blood poisons but merely suppresses the symptoms.

WE CURE OR NO PAY.
Don't Let Your Life Be Drained Away. There is no room in this world for mental, physical or sexual dwarfs. Our New Method Treatment will stop all the natural losses, Purify the Blood, Strengthen the Nerves, Restore Vitality, and make you a man of you. If you are in trouble, call and consult us. Consultation is Free. We treat and cure: Blood Diseases, Venereal, Stricture, Unnatural Discharges, Gleet, Kidney and Bladder Diseases, Nocturnal Emissions, and all the ailments arising from the above. Everything confidential. Consultation Free. Books Free. Question Blank Free for Home Treatment.

A SUNBURNED BALDHEAD.

The Curious Result That Showed After the Burns Were Cured.

"Some time ago I read about a man who went to the Sullivan-Karain prize fight and who was so badly sunburned that he could not wear a laundered shirt for a week after the fight." "I was at that fight, and I know that the story about the heat of the sun on the spectators there that day in the piny woods of Mississippi was no smoke or article or fairy story either. But I know no man who bleeds the sun for what it did for him that day. That man is Major Ed Hughes, a gentleman sports and gambler and for many years at the head of the fire department of Louisville. Major Hughes was a warm friend of the immortal John L. and was in mortal fear at the time that he would not be able to get leave of absence from the city council that he might come down to New Orleans for the fight. The leave of absence was so uncertain that he had to decline the invitation of the champion to become his bottle holder in the contest that was fated to go down in the history of pugilism as the last fight in America under the London prize ring rules, calling for bare knuckles. But Major Hughes finally got his leave of absence and hurried down to New Orleans, arriving here late in the afternoon, but a few hours before the special trains were to leave for Richmond.

"In the fighting crowds on the train going out to the fight a scrap started in the coach in which was Major Hughes, and in some way his straw hat was knocked off in the scrimmage, and it was lost out of the window. In that crowd of sunbaked faces, and so the major showed up at the ringside with no covering to his head. His head, if anything, was bolder than the proverbial billiard ball. As the rays of the sun struck that oval and shiny surface they glistened and ricocheted from it and were thrown with almost blinding dazzlement into the eyes of the spectators.

"When Sullivan saw his old friend, he had Muldoon call him into their counsel, and he never tried to protect his head with a handkerchief. The result was that after the five hours spent in that roasting sun the top of the major's head looked like the red back of a boiled lobster, but he made light of it and helped in the general celebration of Sullivan's victory.

"The next morning the major's head was a great big blister. Not a speck of the cuticle of his head but was blistered, and he had to hunt vinegar and cold cream and all the other remedies known. But on his head, from where the collar struck it at the back of the neck and brows in front, the blisters feasted. Later a scab formed over all his head, and when this fell off, mirabile dictu, there was a fuzzy growth all over his head. The fuzz became hair, and in a few weeks the major had as fine a head of hair as any man of his age."

CULINARY CAPERS.

Uncooked bananas are difficult of digestion. The thicker the piece of beef is a mode the juicier the meat.

To test pulled bread break it, and it crumples to pieces. White-fleshed fish is more easily digested than the pink flesh ones.

Meat, fish and fowl should be quickly seared on the outside when cooked. Potatoes, cucumbers, celery or lettuce are the best accompaniments for fish.

If you dip the hands into cold water when making raw fish into balls, it will not stick.

Clean the beets before boiling them, but be careful not to break the skins if a bright color is wanted after they are done.

In cooking onions and cabbage plenty of water should be used, and it is well to change it at least once because of the strength of the flavors.

A few of the youngest pods are sometimes thrown into the kettle in which peas are boiling, considerable sweetness and flavor being obtained from them. Unless the peas are picked fresh from the garden, a little sugar to restore their natural sweetness will be an improvement.

Honor Paid a Lincoln Letter.
This letter has been engrossed, framed and hung in one of the Oxford (England) university halls as a specimen of the purest English and the most elegant diction extant.

Dear Madam—I have been shown in the files of the war department a statement of the adjutant general of Massachusetts that you were the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the battlefield. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any word of mine which should attempt to be a guide you from grief of a loss so overwhelming.

But I cannot refrain from tendering to you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the Republic they died to save. I pray that our Heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom. Very respectfully yours,

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

The Helpful Hen.
The city boy in the country also has "experiences." The Portland Argus tells of a little lad who by spending the summer on a farm learned many things.

It was a new experience for the little fellow, and everything was delightfully unfamiliar. He found out for the first time that hens made eggs, and this knowledge filled him with a desire to see one of them at work.

Being a patient waiter, the lad finally had his wish gratified, and, exultantly seizing the product of the cackling fowl, he marched into the house with his prize. "Let me have it," said the farmer's wife, "and I'll cook it for your dinner."

"Oh, I guess the hen cooked it all right," replied Master Carl. "It's warm."

Baggageman's Backache

A Berlin Baggageman Recommends Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.

Hauling heavy trucks and lifting heavy trunks strains the back and injures the delicate fibres of the kidneys.

No wonder so many baggagemen complain of backache and kidney troubles.

For baggageman's backache, as well as for all kinds of backache, kidney, bladder and urinary troubles, there is no remedy equal to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. Read what Mr. Geo. Bremner, baggageman, G. T. R. station, Berlin, Ont., has to say about them: "For three or four years I have suffered from a severe backache due to kidney troubles. I have tried all kinds of kidney remedies, but am forced to use until I procured a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets of A. J. Ross, druggist. I never had much relief. The tablets, however, soon took hold, and the result is comfort again. I am only too pleased to recommend them as easy, safe and sure."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

GOOD WORK

George Buskin, of the North-West Mission, making his annual visit to the Maple City.

Geo. Buskin, of the Colportage Mission, of Algoma and the Northwest, is making his annual visit to Chatham in behalf of the 18th year's work of the mission in supplying the Holy Scriptures and scriptural literature there, among the laborers, Indians and settlers, upon the broad principles of Evangelical Christianity, not limited to any denomination, ministering the Word of Life alike to all upon its own merit, whether to Jew, Gentile, or the Church of God, as ability and opportunity afford.

In social life, both among the cultured and untutored. While grateful for divine and human help received in the past, duty and privilege demands perseverance to the end. During the past year nearly 3,000 copies of the mission stock have been sent out in four languages, also tracts and magazines, and also eight various new editions of books and tracts have been published by the mission, numbering about 30,000 copies. There is still an indebtedness to various persons and firms, of $1500 for supplies, affording those the Lord has made his stewards the privilege and opportunity to assist His cause. The donations of Chatham last year, were $27.50, which the missionary gratefully acknowledges. As yet no cash investments have been made in behalf of the ten-acre agricultural homestead and dwelling colony, for the industrious poor, long advocated by the mission, and necessary for social well-being.

"What would you do if you had a million dollars?" said one plain every-day man.

"Oh," replied the other, "I suppose I'd put in most of my time comparing myself with someone who had a billion, and feeling discontented."

"Who is that whistling?" asked the teacher, looking over the assemblage of juveniles.

"Me," promptly replied a new pupil. "Didn't you know I could whistle?"

MY LADY.

'Tis not her kind yet mastering air,
Nor is't the glory of her hair,
Nor yet the beauty of her eyes,
With the deep look of soft surprise;
'Tis not the wit so often heard
Where wisdom lines each story word;
Where wisdom lines each story word;
My dainty lady's sovereign power
Hangs not upon the passing hour;
The years may roll, and still the same
She is my lady all her days.
And yet they fall full short of all
That keeps me still my lady's thrall.
The secret why my lady's reign
Can never turn to change or pain
Is known alike to man and elf,
It is that she is just—hereafter.

STALE BREAD AND NEW.

Indigestion Should Not Wait Upon One More Stale Bread.

New bread is well known to be less digestible than stale bread, although it need not be so. There can be no question, however, of the vastly superior flavor of the former, and hence the preference of many people for hot rolls for breakfast. So far the palate would appear not to be a safe guide to digestion. Hot rolls, however, when masticated properly, should not offer any difficulty to the digestive system. A slice of stale bread on being broken with the teeth resolves into more or less hard, gritty particles which, unless they are softened by the saliva, would be almost impossible to swallow. The particles would irritate the throat and the gullet. The fact is, therefore, that man is compelled thoroughly to masticate and to impregnate stale bread with saliva before he swallows it. This act, of course, partially digests the bread and thus makes it in a fit state for digestion and absorption farther on in the alimentary tract.

This is why stale bread appears to be more digestible than new bread. New bread, on the contrary, is soft, doughy or plastic, and there appears to be no necessity to soften it with saliva; hence it escapes the preliminary digestive action of the ptyalin of the saliva. New bread, in other words, is in reality "bolted," and "bolting" accounts for many of the ills arising from dyspepsia. Accordingly, hot rolls should be enjoyed for breakfast without fear of dyspepsia so long as the bread is good and so long as pains are taken to masticate it thoroughly.

When a dog is given a piece of meat, it will be noticed that he "bolts" it. There is not much reason why it should stay in the mouth, for the mouth, beyond reducing it by the aid of the teeth to a convenient mass, cannot deal with its digestion. But if the dog be given a piece of bread, supposing he eats it at all, he will keep it in his mouth for some time and will almost labor over it before swallowing it. The dog thus teaches a very important physiological lesson.

It is a curious fact that stale bread is not more dry than new bread, for on submitting stale bread for a short time to a high temperature it regains its condition of newness and becomes soft and plastic, and this in spite of the fact that some moisture is of necessity driven off in the operation. It is probable that in new bread there is free water present, while in stale bread the water is still there, but in a condition of true chemical combination, and it is this combination which compels us thoroughly to moisten and to masticate stale bread before we consign it to the gastric centers.

Ancient Bookkeeping Methods.

The collection of Assyrian and Babylonian records at the British Museum has revealed more of the domestic life of people who lived 5,000 years ago than is known in the case of our own countrymen 1,000 years ago. Such was the opinion expressed by Mr. W. St. Chad Boscawen when he explained these relics to an interested audience. The clay bricks and cylinders beneath the glass cases were covered with characters testifying to a completely organized system of justice, marriage, divorce and commerce.

The bookkeeping of 5,000 years ago was shown to be wonderfully accurate. A curious form of record is that preserved in the form of baked clay tablets, which were incised in clay envelopes, also inscribed with the terms of the transaction, so that a double record was provided against the possibilities of damage. The "open and closed evidence" spoken of by Jeremiah is supposed to refer to this system. The practice of recording on a brick the name of the king, of the building and of the city in which it was being erected has had the advantage in modern days that an odd brick may become the means of disinterring a city hitherto unknown.—London Chronicle.

Mexican Tortillas.

Tortillas are thin, flat cakes fried on a piece of sheet iron over a brazier of charcoal. They are made of corn soaked in water all night, then mashed into paste with a roller on a hollow stone called a metate, identical with those used by the Indians long before the Spanish invasion. The corn is shaped into cakes by the patting of the hands that is often heard as one walks past humble Mexican homes. They have the sweet taste of the cereal, but are too tough for American digestion. Often they are folded together and used as scoops for the compounds, hot with chili pepper, that are dear to the Mexican palate or as plates on which to spread frioles.

Plant Sensitiveness.

A French investigator finds that plants are sensitive to certain poisons in quantities so minute that they completely baffled chemical analysis. For instance, a plant showed the effects of sulphate of copper dissolved in 700,000,000,000 times its weight of water—a state of dilution scarcely imaginable—less than one-thirtieth of an ordinary method. This raises the presumption that the character of the vegetation of a country may depend on minute quantities of toxic substances present in the soil.

Romantic.

Dick—Do you like romantic girls, Harry?
Harry—I guess not! When you make a hole in your salary buying them expensive dresses, they tear them apart, repeating, "He loves me, he loves me not."

Though the choice of a husband and wife should be slow and deliberate, half the people look as if they had made choice in the rivalry and confusion of a fire sale.

Theatrical

A BIG SUCCESS.

The title of the coming comedy suggests a satire, and such it is, with more laughs to the square inch than were squeezed into "Charlie's Aunt." The author, Mr. Fred Marsden, has taken for his theme a young Jersey man who does not think the name given him by his parents, quite in keeping with his ambitions, so he christens himself, Jack Luster, a name which he has heard is the shining cognomen of one of the first families of Virginia. Armed with this trade mark of aristocratic lineage, and his ability to tell "white lies," he weds a dashing widow with much success. But, strange to say, the widow is also sailing under false colors. The comedy keeps up its respective claims to aristocratic descent, and herein complications take place which give the audience no end of fun. At least they have to come down to earth, and every body is happy, especially those who succeed in getting good seats for the performance. The comedy favors the French school, but is perfectly whole some and will especially delight the ladies.

Roland Reed's successful comedy, "Humbly," will be presented in this city to-morrow night by Mr. Walter Hodges and his associate players. The play is one of those side-splitting comedies of which "Featherbrain" probably is the first seen in this country, and which gave the American public a

To put the break on the wagon going down the hill is a help to the horse, when the wagon is heavily loaded. But what driver would think of applying the brake to a loaded wagon going up hill? If he did, his sensible horse would probably balk. Many a man is in the condition of pulling a load up hill with the brake set against him. When his stomach is out of order, and the allied organs of digestion and nutrition impaired in their functions, a friction is set up which has to be overcome in addition to the performance of daily duties. A foul stomach makes a foggy brain, and the man with a disordered stomach has often to grope his way through the day's business like a man in a fog. He forgets appointments. Problems seem presented to his mind "wrong end to." This condition is entirely remedied by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It puts the stomach and digestive and nutritive system into a condition of perfect health, and gives a clear brain, a steady hand and a light step for the day's duties. When constipation clogs the channels of the body, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will work an effectual cure of that distressing disease.

SLICING A RATTLER.

THE COLORADO WAY OF TURNING THE DANGEROUS TRICK.

Dexterity and Daring of the Cowboy in Cutting Off the Head of the Rattlesnake After Its Ineffectual Attempt to Strike.

"Did you ever see a cow puncher kill a rattlesnake with a knife?" said a Colorado citizen now in town. "When I first went west, I punched cattle on the Sunset ranch, one of the largest in southern Colorado. I was a tenderfoot, fresh from the east, but no swell head about me. That saved me a lot of trouble. The boys were dead willing to put me next, even to a 14-year-old broncho never halter broken. Among other things, I learned how to kill a rattlesnake with a bowie knife. I killed one with a knife to make my standing good, but after that a gun or a pitchfork was good enough for me."

"I have seen a plainsman ride up to a small rattler, jump off his horse, kick at the waving head, avoid the strike and as the reptile came down place a heel upon its neck, coolly take a knife from his belt and dispatch it. I have also seen a live rattler thrown up on a haystack machine, and I have seen the men working on that stack jump, roll, tumble and slide to get away. They could not see the rattler; that was all. In the open they would have played with it."

"A rattlesnake is harmless out of coil. For that reason it wastes no time in getting back into coil after the spring. It will not strike unless it is perfectly sure it can reach its object. Therefore the cowboy must get into coil, reach the snake's spring. It can reach half its own length, and sometimes more. Of course the larger the snake the more coils, and the more coils the more vicious the strike."

"Dick Haynes was a young dave who would go out of his way to play with a rattler. I have seen him kill at least a dozen with a knife, and I saw him when he got saw, enormous in size, and a bulldog's jaw. Dick stopped just long enough to size up its length so as to get an idea of its spring, and then went in on it."

"The strike came like a flash of lightning. The snake struck the ground with a sound like the cracking of a whip. Dick was beside itself with rage. It lay, coil upon coil of smooth, glistening length, showing the long reach and powerful spring in reserve. Out of the coils two feet more of body and neck rose straight in the air, and above all that black, forked tongue, with glowing eyes and fangs, and fro, waved, slightly, and to fro."

"Dick stepped in again, more cautiously. He reached the knife nearer and yet nearer to that swaying head. I knew he was getting too close, but I feared to speak to him. Then came the strike, with that marvelous dash of speed. Dick's knife flashed and the snake lay squirming, a headless thing, upon the ground."

"Let's get to camp," said Dick. "I got me in the thumb."

"We jumped for the saddles and started on a mad run for home. Dick rode with his thumb on the saddle horn and his knife in his other hand."

"If she begins to swell, off she comes," said a.

"We reached the ranch, and while Dick poured down whisky we examined the thumb. We could find nothing, not the slightest wound. The snake had struck the handle of his knife, and the strength and suddenness of the impact made Dick lose his nerve. It was a good thing for him. He never went after a rattler again without a long '44."

Going All the Time.

"I see a Wisconsin man claims to have solved the perpetual motion problem."

"That's nothing. I have a model of a perpetual motion machine at my house now."

"Sure."

"What do you call it?"

"Jimmie," and it was 5 years old its last birthday.

Concession to Superstition.

The Pitiful Helplessness of Nervous Sufferers

Results of Human Maladies That Impair and Destroy Brain, Spinal Cord and Nerve Cells.

Symptoms That Indicate the Approach of Locomotor Ataxia, Paralysis or Nervous Prostration.

Helplessness is more to be dreaded than any amount of pain or suffering. It is helplessness that makes the approach of old age so much regretted. In the great majority of cases helplessness of body or mind is the result of a wrecked nervous system. You cannot meet a person having the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion, such as irritability, nervousness, neuralgic pains, loss of energy and vitality and inability to concentrate the mind, without calling to mind many terrible examples of paralysis, locomotor ataxia, prostration, insanity, or some form of helplessness and suffering.

On account of their gradual and insidious approach nervous diseases are most liable to be neglected. But they never wear away of themselves. The nerve force that has been wasted must be replaced. The most effective means of creating new nerve cells and revolutionizing the nervous system which is known to this age is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Natural and gradual in its upbuilding effects and truly marvellous in its curative influence, this great food cure promptly and certainly arrests nervous waste and sets in action the process of restoration. It makes pale, weak, nervous men, women and children strong and well. 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50. At all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

If you can buy shoes of us cheaper than you can buy them elsewhere, is there any good reason why you shouldn't do it? Do you think the people that are asking you to pay exorbitant prices for shoes would pay you more for an article than they would your competitor? ACCIDENTAL OMISSIONS

Still More of them Coming to Light in the taking of Chatham's Census.

Edward Coyne and Family Were Left out on the Count Besides Others Before Alluded to.

"I think I am slightly by the government officials," said Ed. Coyne this morning to The Planet scribe. "My family and housekeeper who live on Raleigh street were never called on by a census enumerator at all. Now I've got three boys, all of whom I am sure will make a showing in the world. Probably some day one of them might be Premier of Canada or mayor of Chatham or some other highly honorable position, and I think they should be included in the population of our great Dominion."

"Among others that I know of who were not included in the census was Mr. Papp and a family of five. And say, I got a guess on that Detroit Free Press Canadian population contest, and according to the late report of the census department I am about a hundred thousand behind, but if there have been as many missed in other places as there have been in Chatham, I don't think I will be far off."

It is not necessary to point out that The Planet has before given instances of this and the above is only another instance of those "accidental omissions" Commissioner Vaughn admitted had taken place.

Theatrical

A GOOD SHOW.

Manager Brisco of the Grand, has received the following communication: Guelph, Ont., Sept. 12, 1901.

Mgr. Opera House, "Humbug," played here last night to fair business, but nothing like it should have. It is a nice, clean show and deserving of good patronage. Everybody in the house was well pleased.

Yours sincerely, O. A. MANNING, Mgr. Guelph Theatre.

HUMBUG COMPANY.

The London Free Press says:—On Saturday evening last Manager Loudon, of the Grand Opera House, telephoned Mr. Cairns, of the New Grand, that the "Humbug" Company, which plays here to-night, was an exceedingly clever organization, and that it could be recommended to the patrons of the local theatre. Mr. Loudon said that those who saw the performance on Saturday evening were much pleased with it. Popular prices—50c, 35c and 25c—will prevail, and theatre-goers will have their first opportunity of seeing some of the New Grand's scenic equipment.

This company will appear in the Opera House in this city to-morrow night.

Of Humbug, the farce comedy which fills the local bill to-morrow evening, the Hamilton Herald says:

Fair sized audiences were at the Grand Saturday night. Popular prices—50c, 35c and 25c—will prevail, and theatre-goers will have their first opportunity of seeing some of the New Grand's scenic equipment. The Hamilton Spectator, always inclined to be critical in theatrical matters, says:

A fair-sized audience witnessed the presentation of Roland Reed's mirth-provoking comedy, Humbug, at the Grand Opera House on Saturday evening. The company was on the whole a capable one, and judging by the applause the fun-makers elicited was greatly enjoyed. The piece abounds with funny situations and provides innumerable opportunities for the funny man to get in his fine work, and Walter Hodges, as Jack Luster, the Humbug, accepted them all. He was ably assisted by Miss Annie Leonard, as Mrs. Amanda Bertram-Ponsby; Fred Strong, in the role of Jackson Luster, and the other members of the company.

KENT BRIDGE CONCERT.

The anniversary tea meeting of the Kent Bridge Presbyterian church was held last evening and proved a pronounced success.

Ald. McColl, of Chatham, presided, and made a capital chairman, handling the program in his own inimitable style. Mrs. John Cooper and Wm. H. Brackin, also of this city, contributed much to the musical part of the proceedings.

The program was as follows:—Solo—The Lost Chord, Mrs. Cooper. Address—Levine Cummings. Solo—Hosanna, W. Brackin. Address—Rev. Mr. Noble. Recitation—Miss Murray. Duett—Mrs. Cooper and W. Brackin.

Address—Rev. Mr. Buckbough. Recitation—Miss Johnson. Solo—Angus McDonald, Mrs. Cooper. Address—Miss Murray. Solo—Death of Nelson, W. Brackin. Address—The pastor, Rev. Mr. Robertson.

NOTHING LIKE

MALT BREAKFAST FOOD

For Nourishing and Making the Little Ones Happy

The proper feeding and nourishing of the child just after weaning should engage the most serious attention of the mother. The great majority of prepared foods produce irritation of the stomach and bowels because of improper and unscientific manufacture. This irritation of the digestive organs develops into serious complications that often prove fatal. Malt Breakfast Food is the ideal health food for children of all ages. It is free from starchy substances, easily digested and assimilated, is richer in flesh and bone producing elements than other foods, and has a deliciousness that captivates the taste of every child. If you would like to see your child grow strong, try Malt Breakfast Food for one week and note well the grand results. Your grocer can supply you.

A Number of Unarmed Natives Suspected of Being Shot by Boers.

Cape Town, Sept. 17.—General and Lady Hildyard will sail for England on the steamship Hawarden Castle next Thursday.

Col. Scobell, who has been operating against the Boer invaders in the northern part of the colony has returned to Cape Town.

It is reported that the Boers have shot six unarmed natives in the Steynsburg district on suspicion of being spies.

A Cape policeman named Fivaz, who was lately made prisoner by Van Reenen's commando, has arrived at Hopetown. He stated that he and two native boys were taken on a farm at Winterhoek. In the morning they found five Boers around the house, and escape was impossible. The Boers shot the two natives, and made Fivaz walk to their laager at Strydenburg. Van Reenen declared that he intended to keep him prisoner, make him walk ahead of the commando until he dropped and then abandon him. Van Reenen, however, subsequently yielded to the request of Malherbe, and released him. The commando then went to Kree Kloof, where they caught two native scouts from Prieska, whom it is stated they intended to shoot. Mr. Wright, a farmer, asked Van Reenen to spare their lives, and merely to give them a beating. Van Reenen, however, made no reply, and departed, taking the scouts with him. Later on Wright heard shots, and afterwards found the scouts' bodies lying on the road a mile away. The Boers also jumbled one of Mr. Wright's native boys.

ROOSEVELT RETAINS CABINET AND ENDORSES MCKINLEY'S POLICY

The New President is Very Earnest in his Determination That no Change in the Course of the Government Shall Come Through Him or His Administration.

Washington, September 17.—President Roosevelt at 3 o'clock to-day convened his first cabinet meeting held in Washington. At this meeting the President asked the members of Mr. McKinley's cabinet to retain their respective portfolios throughout his term and announced that his administration would follow the policy outlined by President McKinley in his Buffalo speech.

After the obsequies over the late President, the cabinet, at President Roosevelt's request, assembled at the residence of Commander Cowles, where the President is staying until after the funeral, principally for the purpose of informing their new chief of the state of affairs in their respective departments. The President desired to learn if there were any matters of moment requiring his attention before his departure to-night for Canton. He was assured that there was nothing of pressing importance.

The President then addressed his advisors collectively, as he had previously done individually, requesting them all to retain their respective positions in his cabinet. Mr. Roosevelt expressed the hope and expectation that every member would serve throughout his term, for, he said, he intended the appointments as if he had just been elected to the presidency and was forming an original cabinet. The President said, however, there was one difference between the present tender and that of an original offer, namely, under the present circumstances they were not at liberty to decline.

PRESIDENT'S POLICY.

Upon being asked by a member if resignations should be formally presented in the usual manner, the President answered that his action at this meeting had precluded the necessity of presenting resignations.

The discussion turned upon the policy of the administration, and Mr. Roosevelt announced that he regarded the speech of the late President at the Buffalo Pan-American exposition, the day previous to the tragic shooting as outlining the policy to be followed by the administration. It cannot be learned at this time whether or not all the members will be willing to serve the full term.

The cabinet members, with the exception of Secretaries Hay and Long, will accompany the remains of the dead President to Canton to participate in the funeral ceremonies on Thursday.

Secretaries Hay and Long remain in Washington at the President's request. Mr. Roosevelt, thinking that some members of the cabinet should continue in Washington. Besides holding the cabinet meeting President Roosevelt saw a few callers during the afternoon. At 7:30 o'clock he and Commander Cowles left the latter's residence for the Pennsylvania railroad station to take the train to Canton.

Mrs. Roosevelt will leave here at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning for Oyster Bay, Long Island.

PLEA OF NOT GUILTY ENTERED FOR ASSASSIN CZOLGOSZ

Prisoner Himself Refused to Say a Word and Paid no Attention to the Tokens of Mourning.—Crowds Hissed Him.

Buffalo, Sept. 17.—Leon F. Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley, was arraigned before Judge Edward K. Emery, in the county court at 3 o'clock this afternoon on the indictment for murder in the first degree in fatally shooting President McKinley in the Temple of Music at the Pan-American Exposition, on September 6. Again the stubborn prisoner refused to plead, or even to utter a word around, and the Hon. Loran L. Lewis, ex-supreme court justice, entered a plea of not guilty. The accused will be tried in the supreme court next Monday morning.

Crowds flocked to the city hall to-day to see the prisoner, but the uncertainty surrounding the question as to whether or not counsel could be secured for him, saved congestion of the court room and corridors of the hall.

The most notable incident of the day was the hissing of the prisoner by the crowds who surged around him as he was being escorted down the stairs still draped in mourning garb. The strong guard of patrolmen and deputy sheriffs had been dispensed with, so that the people were able to get nearer the prisoner as he passed to and from the court room.

As a result of the urging of President Adelbert Root, of the Erie County Bar Association Judge Lewis one of the attorneys assigned as counsel by Judge Emery yesterday, called at the Erie county jail at 2 o'clock this afternoon to see the prisoner. Czolgosz refused to talk to Judge Lewis and even refused to answer questions as to whether or not he wanted any counsel. Judge Lewis said that nevertheless he would appear for the prisoner upon arraignment even if he decided not to accept the assignment of the court.

PRISONER WOULDN'T TALK. Absolutely no demonstration having been made against the prisoner yesterday the authorities decided that the strong guard was unnecessary to-day. Czolgosz was taken from the jail through the tunnel under Delaware avenue to the city hall by Detective Solomon and Geary, being handcuffed to the latter.

In passing from the basement of the city hall to the court room on the second floor, Czolgosz was compelled to pass close to the black and white bunting with which the pillars, ceilings, windows and stairways of the city hall were draped, when the body of the President was lying in state on Sunday, which garb will not be removed till after the burial Thursday. These evidences of the city's grief apparently made not the slightest impression on the prisoner, and he gave no more heed to them or the large portraits of the President tastefully draped with American flags, than he did to the questions of the court or district attorney. The prisoner entered the court room just as the city hall clock was striking 3 o'clock, and as many of the curious spectators as could surge into the court room behind him, a murmur ran through the audience, but the gavel of the judge and the staff of the clerk, soon restored order. As soon as Czolgosz was before the judge and the handcuffs were removed, District Attorney Penney began the formal arraignment. He read the principal charges of the indictment in a voice of severity, and asked: "How do you plead, guilty or not guilty?"

Not a sound was uttered by the prisoner. He stood mute before the bar of justice, apparently continuing his feat of insanity, which was noticed for the first time when he was taken into court yesterday.

TRIAL ON MONDAY. When the prisoner refused to plead the district attorney asked him if he understood what had been read, and receiving no answer, told him that he had been indicted for murder in the first degree, and that he could answer "yes" or "no." For an instant Czolgosz glanced at Mr. Penney, and it was thought he intended to speak, but he did not.

Judge Lewis then addressed the court at length, saying that he had called upon the defendant, but had been unable to ascertain of any wish on the defendant's part, as to the employment of counsel. He said that his associate, Judge Titus, was in Milwaukee, and that he had appeared informally to enter a plea of not guilty on behalf of the defendant, as the law required such a plea under the circumstances. He asked permission to reserve the right to withdraw the plea and enter a special plea or interpose a demurrer if, on consulting with Judge Titus, they should decide not to ask the court to assign other counsel.

District Attorney Penney gave notice that he would move to have the indictment transferred to the supreme court for trial, and would also notice the trial for next Monday morning. "I know of no reason why defendant should not be ready next Monday," replied Judge Lewis. At his request, however, the orders will not be entered until Judge Titus returns, which will probably be in a day or two. Judge Lewis said he might also take an order of the court for aliases to examine the prisoner, as the district attorney had informed him that eminent alienists had examined the prisoner on behalf of the people. This gave rise to the belief that a special plea of insanity may be entered by the counsel for the defense.

WHY SHE OBJECTED.

"I'll never go anywhere with a shirt-waist man again," she exclaimed angrily.

"Does it shock your sense of propriety?"

"Oh, no; I think it looks all right, but—but—"

"But what?"

"Why, when you are walking with a shirt-waist man he is the one who attracts all the attention."

A Number of Unarmed Natives Suspected of Being Spies Shot by Boers.

Cape Town, Sept. 17.—General and Lady Hildyard will sail for England on the steamship Hawarden Castle next Thursday.

Col. Scobell, who has been operating against the Boer invaders in the northern part of the colony has returned to Cape Town.

It is reported that the Boers have shot six unarmed natives in the Steynsburg district on suspicion of being spies.

A Cape policeman named Fivaz, who was lately made prisoner by Van Reenen's commando, has arrived at Hopetown. He stated that he and two native boys were sleeping on a farm at Wintehook. In the morning they found five Boers around the house, and escape was impossible. The Boers shot the two natives, and made Fivaz walk to their laager at Strydenburg. Van Reenen declared that he intended to keep him prisoner, make him walk ahead of the commando until he dropped and then abandon him. Van Reenen, however, subsequently yielded to the request of Malherbe, and released him. The commando then went to Kamee Kloof, where they caught two native scouts from Priska, whom it is stated they intended to shoot. Mr. Wright, a farmer, asked Van Reenen to spare their lives, and merely to give them a beating. Van Reenen, however, made no reply, and departed, a with the scouts with him. Later on Wright heard shots, and afterwards found the scouts' bodies lying on the road a mile away. The Boers also spared one of Mr. Wright's native boys.

"We were very much pleased with the design you sent. It was beautiful and appropriate." The Victoria Ave. Greenhouses receive such words of commendation every day. Telephone No. 181.

ROOSEVELT RETAINS CABINET AND ENDORSES M'KINLEY'S POLICY

The New President is Very Earnest in his Determination That no Change in the Course of the Government Shall Come Through Him or His Administration.

Washington, September 17.—President Roosevelt at 3 o'clock to-day convened his first cabinet meeting held in Washington. At this meeting the President asked the members of Mr. McKinley's cabinet to retain their respective portfolios throughout his term and announced that his administration would follow the policy outlined by President McKinley in his Buffalo speech.

After the obsequies over the late President, the cabinet, at President Roosevelt's request, assembled at the residence of Commander Cowles, where the President is staying until after the funeral, principally for the purpose of informing their new chief of the state of affairs in their respective departments. The President desired to learn if there were any matters of moment requiring his attention before his departure to-night for Canton. He was assured that there was nothing of pressing importance.

The President then addressed his advisors collectively, as he had previously done individually, requesting them all to retain their respective positions in his cabinet. Mr. Roosevelt expressed the hope and expectation that every member would serve throughout his term, for, he said, he tendered the appointments as if he had just been elected to the presidency and was forming an original cabinet. The President said, however, there was one difference between the present tender and that of an original offer, namely, under the present circumstances they were not at liberty to decline.

PRESIDENT'S POLICY.

Upon being asked by a member if resignations should be formally presented in the usual manner, the President answered that his action at this meeting had precluded the necessity of presenting resignations.

The discussion turned upon the policy of the administration, and Mr. Roosevelt announced that he regarded the speech of the late President at the Buffalo Pan-American exposition, the day previous to the tragic shooting as outlining the policy to be followed by the administration. It cannot be learned at this time whether or not all the members will be willing to serve the full term.

The cabinet members, with the exception of Secretaries Hay and Long, will accompany the remains of the dead President to Canton to participate in the funeral ceremonies on Thursday.

Secretaries Hay and Long remain in Washington at the President's request. Mr. Roosevelt thinking that some members of the cabinet should continue in Washington.

Beside holding the cabinet meeting President Roosevelt saw a few callers during the afternoon. At 7:30 o'clock he and Commander Cowles left the latter's residence for the Pennsylvania railroad station to take the train to Canton.

Mrs. Roosevelt will leave here at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning for Oyster Bay, Long Island.

ONE FRIEND OF THE SPARROWS.

He Cities Many Good Deeds Done by the Chatterbox.

I see in magazines and papers so many articles denouncing the sparrow that I feel it my duty to tell of my 35 years of close companionship with this little chap. While I read the accounts of his alleged murders and depredations on other birds, I have yet to see any such disgraceful acts on his part, writes A. L. Fraser.

My experience with him has proved to me that he is the farmer's best friend. He is the first little fellow in the spring to pounce on and destroy all the caterpillars and insects that are destructive to the farmer's crops, and he keeps pecking away at these vermin until the grain is ripe. Then the crops are so far advanced that they are safe. All he then asks in return for the benefit he has been to the farmer is a little grain to carry him through the fall and winter.

So few know the reason for the introduction of the English sparrow to this part of the world that I wish to give it. Many years ago the streets of New York were lined with beautiful trees. In the spring, as soon as they began to put on their summer foliage, they were attacked by an ugly-looking green worm called the inchworm. These would devour all the leaves, leaving the tree perfectly bare, and then hang from the trees in millions by a silken thread. They became such an intolerable nuisance that a great many people had the trees cut down to get rid of them. After the introduction of the sparrow, this nuisance ceased to exist. He did his work bravely and well. This certainly is a proof of the benefit he is to the farmer. You can depend on it that he destroys more harmful insect life in proportion than he takes back in pay for what grain he eats. While now and then there may be cases of disgraceful acts on his part to other creatures, he has always behaved himself in my presence.

At this writing he is living in peace with the catbird, robin, brown thrush,oriole and many other birds in and around my premises. The little chap cheers us with his presence and cheery note all winter. Thousands of them are killed off by deep snow, cold and want of food. Not only is he a benefit to us in the way above mentioned, but he is a shield, a protector to all the other birds, in that he gives up his life to tramp cats, hawks and the boy with the rifle. If he were not with us, surely all the other birds would have to suffer.

I saw an article in one of our magazines advising the wholesale destruction of the sparrow with grain soaked in poisoned water. What a terrible combination that is to get in the hands of some idiot who would use it and destroy numberless other feathered songsters. Last winter one of my neighbors soaked corn in poisoned water and scattered it for the destruction of crows. He killed a bevy of quail. I saw the dead birds. Besides, many other birds have suffered with the quail.

Before condemning this little chatterbox make your home with him summer and winter, and the more you see of him the more you will see his value to the farmer, and you will find on the long, cold and dreary days in the country in winter, when all the other warblers are in the sunny south, these little innocents will brighten your pathway with their cheerful notes.

Rattlesnakes.

From the effective character of their weapons of offense and defense, rattlesnakes have a great advantage in the struggle for existence against all animals except man and his domestic companion, the pig. Hence in unsettled localities in North America they are abundant, especially in the warm regions of the south and west. In many places they are the most abundant species of snake, as, for instance, on the plains, where no species is as often seen as the Crotalus confluentus. That they have been much more abundant in many wild parts of the east than at present is indicated by the great quantities of their bones which are found in the caves of the limestone regions of the Mississippi valley. The pig, as is well known, will destroy and eat rattlesnakes with impunity. It is said that the poison is not sufficiently introduced into the circulation to cause death, owing to the thick adipose layer with which the domesticated pig is covered.

A Little Incongruous.

An English paper says that soon after Lord Galloway entered the British house of lords he was presumed so far upon his relationship to the Marquis of Salisbury as to write to Disraeli to ask for the office of master of the buckhounds, and he was favored with a reply which read somewhat as follows:

"I am sorry that I cannot recommend you for the office of master of the buckhounds, as her majesty dislikes having anybody connected with the royal household who uses bad language, but I will recommend you for the lord high commissioner to the general assembly of the Church of Scotland."

Hitting His Pa.

Wicked Willie—Paw, I was good yesterday and went to Sunday school when Tommy wanted me to go to Solmer park and see the monkey in a cage. Ain't you going to give me something for it?

Paw—No, my son; you should be good because it is right to be good.

Wicked Willie—Ah, gwan! Didn't you tell me the last time you licked me that you didn't want your little boy to grow up good for nothing?

Caged Baby Girls.

In Polynesia baby girls of a year old are placed in wicker cages, and in cages they remain until the time they are married. Happily the children do not seem to mind much, and they grow fat and healthy. At the age of 12 years or thereabout most of the little damsels leave their cages to be married.

Johannie and George.

Teacher—Why do we all love George Washington?

Johannie Jones—Cause dere ain't no school on his birthday.

The man who elbows past women for the purpose of getting a seat in the car never crowds a lady out of her pew in church.

There are some men who always impress one as having been the kind of babies that had to take worm lozenges.—Atchison Globe.

In Two Minutes

They'll be another car. But the man can't wait. He chases the car and swings on, panting and hot, but satisfied. He keeps this gait up all day. He works that way, he lurches that way. He continues this until his stomach "breaks down" and nature compels him to "go slow."

Business men who have impaired their digestion by hasty eating will find in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery a cure for dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. It does not give mere temporary relief, but it effects a radical cure. It strengthens the stomach, nourishes the nerves and purifies the blood.

"For six long years I suffered with my liver, kidneys, and with indigestion, which baffled the best doctors in our country," writes E. L. Russell, Esq., of Woolsey, Prince William Co., Va. "I suffered with my stomach and back for a long time, and after taking a cart-load of medicine from three doctors, I grew so bad I could hardly do a day's work. I would have deathlike pains in the side, and blind spells, and thought life was hardly worth living. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets,' as advised. Before I had taken half of the second bottle I began to feel relieved. I got six bottles and used them, and am happy to say I owe my life to Dr. Pierce and his medicines."

A Clever Chinese.

"An amusing thing occurred while I was at Yokohama," says a recently returned traveler. "An official notice of the government which had been published in the Japanese newspapers said that all Chinese who desired to depart must do so by a certain date or else remain until the war was over. Thereupon, Ah Shing, a big clothing dealer of 16 Water street, called all the Chinese together, and they all agreed to go. They got their goods to the dock, and finally aboard the steamer, with themselves, and the steamer pulled out. At the last minute it was found that the wealthy merchant had held his goods and slipped back to the city. He at once resumed business, having got rid of all opposition merchants, and is now rolling in riches."

After Thoughts.

About the queerest thing in the world is other people's notion of what is funny.

Better be content with your privileges than make trouble by insisting on your rights.

It would be shocking to think that our neighbors has as poor an opinion of us as we have of them.

In making up our minds we sometimes find that the material at hand is not what is best suited for the work.

Little things should not annoy us, of course; but it does seem that for the man who drums the arm of his chair and taps the floor with his foot, a dungeon cell is the proper place.

Stopped a Mountain's Journey.

A Lausanne correspondent writes that the Swiss engineers have succeeded in arresting the progress of the Moving mountain, near Neuchatel. The measures taken to save the village and valley from destruction were extremely daring and original. They consisted in building a huge cement wall to hold up the mountain, whose sides were full of small crevices, those also being filled with cement. By these means the mountain became firm and most of the danger has passed.

THE LEAVES.

Up go the leaves in a merry blaze
Through the shining autumn day
To blend in the falling, sunny haze
And ride on the wind away.

They have done their duty the summer long;
They have gathered an ample store
To feed the buds of the mother trees;
Now their busy life is o'er.

But by and by, when the May winds blow
And the spring verdure weaves,
In field and garden will bloom again
The souls of the autumn leaves.

CHARACTER IN SMOKING.

Fanciful Theories About Habits of Tobacco Users.

A man may possess a most secretive nature; he may have a face as destitute of meaning as a stone wall, and a manner of speech absolutely noncommittal, but watch him over his cigarette; note his manner of holding it between his lips or his fingers; see how he puffs the smoke out of his mouth, what he does with the ash, if he consumes the cigarette to a mere stump or throws it away half finished, and, sure as fate, you will read his character like a book. Cigarettes, I said, are much better character revealers than a pipe. A man sticks a pipe into the side of his mouth and puffs away, and there's an end of it. You desist, and quick to make friends, quick to forget them, I shall be much astonished. One notices men very often taking their cigars from an upper waistcoat pocket into which they have been stuffed. Too poor to buy themselves a cigar case? Not a bit of it, but too untidy to keep one or too lazy to arrange their cigars into one. And the same men almost invariably bite the tip off their cigars instead of using a penknife or a cigar clipper, a shocking habit that not merely soils the mouth with tobacco grit, but disarranges the outer leaf, often spoiling an otherwise excellent smoke.

The cigar once happily prepared for smoking, observe how your man holds it between his teeth. But stay! The operation of lighting has been so interesting, quickly and lavishly, letting loose threads of tobacco dangle over the brim while he applies the match. If he be not good, alert, quick to make friends, quick to forget them, I shall be much astonished. One notices men very often taking their cigars from an upper waistcoat pocket into which they have been stuffed. Too poor to buy themselves a cigar case? Not a bit of it, but too untidy to keep one or too lazy to arrange their cigars into one. And the same men almost invariably bite the tip off their cigars instead of using a penknife or a cigar clipper, a shocking habit that not merely soils the mouth with tobacco grit, but disarranges the outer leaf, often spoiling an otherwise excellent smoke.

The majority of men hold their cigars between their teeth and puff the smoke out on either side of it. A large minority hold them on a dark night, you catch sight of the gleam and protruding just below the ear. Others, again—and these, as a rule, are persons of viraculous temperament—seldom keep their cigars for two consecutive moments between their lips. They take a few puffs, and then the cigar is given a rest between finger and thumb.

A man of determined character, energetic, pugnacious, a man of action, betrays himself by virtue his cigar an upward tilt while consuming it—a favorite method with the Yankee, to whom the above epithets are distinctly applicable. The contemplative, dreamy individual will let it droop toward his chin, while level headed persons—and fortunately they form the vast majority—hold theirs horizontally. Naturally impatient persons frequently attempt to remove the cigar from their mouths when speaking to you, while others of a sullen, brooding disposition chew the end into horrible pulp. And is there anything more eloquent of stings than the habit, largely indulged in by Germans, of sticking the stump of a cigar on the small blade of a penknife and consuming it until the glow almost touches the lips?

Fooled by a Woman.

Conductors don't always triumph. The other day a sweet faced little matron on a Castro street car looked up at the knight of the punch with a bewildering smile and said:

"I haven't a cent with me, but my husband is to get on at Powell street, and he will pay you. That will be all right, won't it?"

"Certainly," said the conductor, ringing up a fare, and he looked happy for several blocks.

When the car reached Powell street, she was the first to get off and was on the sidewalk before the conductor had recovered from his surprise.

"The nerve of her!" he said. "It's a wonder she didn't ask for a transfer."

Virtues of Goat's Milk.

Goat's milk has the advantage over cow's milk of being free from tubercle bacilli and can be taken quite fresh. Contrary to general opinion, the taste is not disagreeable if the animals are properly selected and properly kept, being considered of a more delicate flavor than cow's milk. The quantity of fats, casein and salt varies greatly in the different varieties of goat. For infants and dyspeptics the weaker milk may be chosen, while the stronger answers better for delicate subjects.

Nye and Riley.

When James Whitcomb Riley and Bill Nye traveled together, giving a joint entertainment, the humorist had great fun with the poet. Once, in introducing Riley and himself to an audience, Nye remarked, "I will appear first and speak until I get tired; then Mr. Riley will succeed me and read from his own works until you get tired."

Undoubtedly.

First Passenger—I wonder why we are making such a long stop at this station?

Second (a traveler of experience)—I presume it is because no one happens to be trying to catch the train.

The most satisfying things in life are love and sympathy. But these, like fame, must come spontaneously and indirectly if they come at all and not be sought as a specific end or direct aim in themselves.

SAD CASE

An Unfortunate Charged With Lunacy Before Judge Houston To-day.

Stephen Finn came up before County Magistrate Houston this morning, charged with insanity. It appears that Finn, whose mind is without doubt "unhinged," has lately been in a dangerous condition and endangering the lives of the farmers who reside near him. It is claimed that he has a habit of apparently aimlessly, standing in his kitchen door and firing off a revolver, also of stealing the property of neighboring farmers. The evidence, however, did not show that he was, what might be called, dangerous, although from his actions in court the Magistrate was satisfied that he "was not all there."

This, however, would not warrant his imprisonment, as in order to convict him, the evidence would have to show that he was a dangerous man. Dr. Charteris made a brief examination of the man's condition but was not prepared to say that he was a lunatic. The case was adjourned for a week, in order to give the Crown an opportunity to produce such evidence as would warrant the Magistrate in sending the prisoner to the asylum. In the meantime Finn will be held in custody. J. G. Kerr appeared for the prosecution, and J. B. Rankin, K. C., for the prisoner.

A GOOD FAIR.
Last year the directors of the West Kent Fair promised us a good exhibition and we got it. They had a good attendance, and by careful management were able to meet all the obligations of the year, and in addition they were able to reduce the society's liability about eight hundred dollars. This was so very encouraging that they determined to make the Fair this year much better than ever and place the society on an independent basis and make their financial position very much stronger.

This is the only County Fair we have, and the directors naturally look to every resident of the County and city to do everything possible to help it along. Take pride in it, Mr. Reader, and make it a success. The directors devote very considerable and valuable time to the promotion of our annual exhibition; they do it only from good will for the welfare of the city and county; they are not paid in any manner whatever, and it is only right that they should receive every possible assistance and encouragement.

Everything looks very promising for the exhibition this year on October 8, 9, 10; entries are rapidly coming in; space in the main building is well taken; the implement and stock exhibits promise to surpass those of any past year.

Let us all lend a hand and make it a success.

WITH HER HATCHET

noise subsided. Mrs. Nation said—"Give me back my hatchet."

The barkeeper refused, but Mrs. Nation said she would make him, and to get rid of the lady the drink-mixer handed over the hatchet.

"A good-looking man like you should be in a better business," said the old lady. "Aren't you ashamed of yourself? Just think how many homes you have smashed, while I defend them. Give it up, young man. The Bible says: 'Strong drink is raging.' Leave this business and do better."

Then Mrs. Nation went out, and the crowd followed. The mayor stood in a doorway to see her go by, but a prominent school trustee pointed out his worship and Mrs. Nation went up a stairway after him. The mayor had to stand, and Mrs. Nation shook hands with him and told him she hoped he helped to carry out the law. His worship was holding a cigar.

"I do," answered the mayor, and he looked up the stairs as if he was in a hurry to go.

"You're in a hurry, are you?" asked the lady, and Mayor Morris said "Yes," and Mrs. Nation shook hands and bade him good-bye.

She went down to the Hub Hotel, on Sussex street, and lectured the bartender about selling liquor, and then smashed a number of bottles with her hatchet. Two policemen put her out of the hotel and took her up town to the Russell.

To-night Mrs. Nation gave a lecture and denounced the liquor traffic and told about her troubles in Kansas. Afterwards she walked to the hotel, followed by a cheering mob, and Mrs. Nation only escaped to her room with difficulty. The crowd wanted an open-air speech. When Mrs. Nation was on the street in the afternoon she accosted many people who were smoking and told them that they might be better employed. A reporter was introduced to Mrs. Nation, and a clergyman, and he told the temperance man and a member of the minister's congregation.

When Mrs. Nation met the smooth chief she praised him for his society, and afterwards went to the police station and addressed the policemen, telling them to always do their duty. Mrs. Nation says people are divided into two classes—home defenders and home offenders. She may stay in Ottawa another day, and will probably go to Toronto to lecture in Massey Hall. Public opinion is divided in Ottawa as to whether the woman is sincere or crazy or merely a fakir. She is a kindly-looking woman.

Light entertainments appeal to the popular tastes now-a-days, and Roland Reed's comedy, "Humbly," with Mr. Walter Hodges and Miss Anne Leonard assisted by a cast of metropolitan favorites, will be seen at the Grand to-night with its exceptionally strong company, headed by Walter Hodges and Miss Anne Leonard, is an attraction fully abreast of the times. The play not only has a plot—which is something foreign to plays of this kind—but it introduces catchy music and dazzling costumes, also clean specialties.

PRESERVING THE SABBATH

Rev. Mr. Shearer Addressed the Local Executive of Lord's Day Alliance.

Complaints of the Sale of Detroit Sunday Papers and Intoxicating Liquor in the Maple City.

The Executive committee of the Lord's Day Alliance met last night in the lecture hall of the First Presbyterian Church to confer with Rev. J. G. Shearer, of Toronto, general secretary, who addressed the committee about the general outlook, which is much more promising than at any time before.

Since last visiting Chatham Mr. Shearer has been over all Canada in the interests of the Alliance, addressing meetings, organizing branch alliances, etc. He reports that in that time the number of such organizations in Ontario has grown from 90 to 160 and that almost every place of any importance in the other provinces and in the N. W. T. is similarly organized. Three features of the work prominent at present Mr. Shearer reported upon, much to the encouragement of the local committee:

First—The movement among organized labor men to co-operate with the Alliance in seeking to protect every man in his right to the weekly rest day. This began in British Columbia but has since become general. In Toronto the Trades and Labor Council has publicly declared its willingness to work in co-operation with the Alliance in seeking (a) to secure legislation which will make it unlawful for corporations as well as their employees to work on Sunday; (b) to obtain and make general the Saturday half-holiday; (c) to sustain the authorities in enforcing the Lord's Day Act against all offenders, among the most common of which are sellers of liquor, ice cream and soda water, tobacco, Sunday papers, etc.; (d) to assist in preventing Sunday excursions. In Toronto these labor men number nearly 10,000. It means much, therefore, to have their active co-operation in preventing the Americanizing or Europeanizing of our Canadian Sabbath.

The second movement is one among outstanding laymen in all walks of life, who are coming to appreciate at its full value the service the Lord's Day Alliance is rendering to Canada, and are identifying themselves prominently with it. He instanced the fact that the mayors of Port Huron, Port Arthur, Sudbury, Parry Sound, Orillia and many other towns are presidents of the organization in their respective towns. No less than eight of the local presidents are among the candidates recently nominated for the legislative assembly.

The third thing reported by the general secretary is the fact that the Ontario Government has recently undertaken the enforcement of the Lord's Day Act. It took action through its local officials against Sunday excursions in Port Huron, Toronto, Brockville and Ottawa, and in three cases out of four was successful in having offending steamer captains fined. It has put a stop also to the sale and delivery of American Sunday papers in various points, such as Niagara Falls, where one defiant vendor was fined $10 and costs. This dealing also with Sunday work in mining towns of New Ontario.

The committee had under consideration some local forms of Sunday business, among others the sale of liquor and Detroit Sunday papers, which has assumed alarming proportions and the officials whose duties it is to attend to the enforcement of the law against these evils will be expected to do their duty. The Executive agreed to secure, if possible, Rev. Dr. Johnston, of London, to address the annual meeting, which will be held on Thursday, Oct. 17th.

Rev. Mr. Shearer goes to-day to Brantford where on Thursday he, in company with John Charlton, M. P., Rev. Chancellor Wallace, of McMaster University, Rev. Dean McKenzie, of Brantford, Rev. F. A. Cassidy, Guelph, D. J. O'Donoghue, of Ottawa, and others are to address the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada on the subject of co-operation between organized labor and organized Christianity, in defense of the weekly Rest Day.

HONORS FOR PROF. PHILP.

The September number of the quarterly magazine "Trustee," of Elkhart, Indiana, publishes a letter from "Canuck," in which he describes the London Camp this year. In doing so he says: "The camp was very successful from every standpoint. Mr. W. Philp, formerly of Sarnia and Chatham, was appointed brigade bandmaster and he gave every satisfaction. The bands in the field were under the instruction of Sergeant Major Cockburn, the 1st Brigade with several good soloists, namely, Clarence Robinson, solo cornet; Roger Philp, solo trombone; Charles Philp, solo euphonium; Albert Philp, solo Eb clarinet and a delay; also M. O'Rourke and E. F. Bauer, solo Bb clarinet, the latter from Detroit. The band while in camp were much sought after. This was the 190th military camp of which Mr. W. Philp was appointed brigade bandmaster, and he asserts that he is good for as many more."

AGREEMENT ARRIVED AT

City and Lake Erie Railway Representatives Discuss Colborne St. Spur.

City Solicitor Wilson Will Draw up a By-law in Accordance with the Settlement Submitted.

The committee of the city council held a consultation with General Manager Woollett and Solicitor Cockburn, of the L. E. & D. R. R. Company, yesterday afternoon, re the Binder Twine spur on Colborne street.

This is the meeting which was arranged for at the last meeting of the City Council, so that some amicable arrangement might be made as to the two by-laws which have been submitted governing the putting in of the spur.

One of these by-laws was prepared and drawn up by Mr. Wilson, the city solicitor. In it he made certain provisions which he claimed were necessary to make, in order that the city might be guarded against any actions for damages, etc. He also claimed that it was drawn up the same as all other by-laws that he has drawn up governing the putting down of railway spurs.

This by-law was submitted to the Lake Erie Company, but their solicitor objected to some of the clauses that were included in the by-law, and drew up one to accord with his views and submitted a copy to the Council, saying that it was the only by-law under which the railroad would put down the spur.

The City Solicitor, in his turn, objected to Mr. Cockburn's by-law, claiming that it left the city liable.

There were present at the meeting yesterday afternoon Messrs. Cockburn, Wilson and Woollett, of the Lake Erie Co., Mayor Sullivan, and Alder, McCoig, Cowan, Marshall and Fleming.

Mr. Woollett said that Mr. Cockburn's by-law was drawn up according to the Railway Act. He would like to work in harmony with the Council, but he did not wish to assume a greater risk for the railway company than he should.

Mr. Cockburn stated two objectionable points in Mr. Wilson's by-law. One was that it did not state where the spur would commence, and the railway wished to start at Prince street. The other was that the company would be obliged to remove the siding at any time. He contended that the work of putting down the siding would cost about $1,000, and if that clause were omitted, the company might be ordered to take up the track the day after it was put down, and thus be at a great loss of time and money.

It was finally decided by Mr. Cockburn and Mr. Woollett that if it could be arranged by the city to have a satisfactory by-law drawn up by their solicitor in which it was specified that the spur should be commenced at Prince street, and that also, in the event of the Binder Twine Co. becoming defunct and no other industry is commenced on their premises the railway company shall pay the city a certain rental and still have the use of the track laid down in the spur, he would be perfectly agreeable to the railway company.

It was decided to meet again next Friday afternoon at two o'clock, when the by-law will be drawn up and matters finally arranged.

BEAT 'BURG

Baseball Season in Chatham Brought to a Successful Close—Another on Waddell.

The local baseball season was brought to a close yesterday with a game with the Wallaceburg nine. The game was a fairly good exhibition but was rather slow at times.

Arnold and Bowers did the pitching for the locals and had the boys from the Glass Town well in hand all the time.

Anderson and Clancy did the twirling for the visitors, and the latter pitched an elegant game, having good speed, excellent control and also finding his position in fine style. Hewson, the local center fielder, made a phenomenal running catch and had three timely assists to his credit.

Other features of the game were Sowerby's base stealing, the Maple City second baseman twice pilfering home while the ball was being returned from catcher to pitcher, and Clancy's sharp, clean fielding.

The "line-up" was as follows:
Chatham—Hewson, l. f.; Cook, s. s.; Sowerby, 2nd; Bowers 3rd and p.; Konyer, c.; Arnold 3rd and p.; Mouch, l. f.; Scott 1st b.; Baden, r. f.
Wallaceburg—Anderson p.; Bourassa 2nd; Appleford l. f.; Kelly, c.; Duncan 1st b.; Elliott s. s.; Clancy 3rd b.; Earley, r. f.

Score by innings:

Wallaceburg..... 0 0 1 0 1 1 0 5—9
Chatham..... 2 1 2 3 1 0 4 0—13

ANOTHER ON RUBE WADDELL.

They are telling great stories on Waddell. The latest illustrates a little method by which he wins the farmers to his side. Just as he was about to pitch the ball into a Libertyville game he paused a minute or so and eyed the third baseman meditatively.
