Knox Church Entertainment

The Entertainment in connection with the anniversary services of Knox Church held last Monday evening, was one of the best of the season. Mr. Geo. E. Morley, Dramatic Elocutionist, of London, was the principal entertainer of the evening, and was well received. Miss Ivy Farant, of Hamilton, appeared for the first time before a Waterdown audience and received great praise from all who heard her. The Cummins Brothers of Millgrove, and Mr. Stewart Mitchell assisted with the program in their usual pleasing manner. Rev. Russell McGillivray of Burlington, who officiated at the Sunday services, favored with a solo.

Waterdown Debaters at Zimmerman

Between thirty and forty young people of the Methodist church motored to Zimmerman on Wednesday evening last. The occasion was an inter league debate, one of a series arranged by the District League in a competition for a shield. The subject was "Resolved that travel is a greater means of education than reading." Miss Lyons and Mr. Alex Thompson represented the Waterdown League in support of the negative. Their opponents were Mr. King and Mr. Hunter. The Judges were Rev. C. S. Jones, Dr. Mortin and Mr. Fisher of Burlington. Refreshments were served and a very enjoyable time was had by all.

Locals

A very successful dance was given by the local Orange Lodge in the Hall here last Wednesday night.

The Tennis Club are sending out invitations for a dance to be held in the Memorial Hall next Wednesday night.

Miss Fox of Bartonville, and Mrs. Albert Slater of St. Catharines, were guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Langton over the week end.

Thanksgiving was quietly observed in the village. Many spent the day out of town with friends and relatives. Those who motored had an exciting time finding their way home the fog.

Rev. T. H. Bole, B. A., will preach in the Methodist Church on Sunday, November 16th. In the evening he will illustrate his sermon with a series of excellent lantern views on China. These views were shown at the recent Centenary at Toronto, and are of the very best.

Chicken thieves are again busy in this vicinity. A few nights ago they visited the farm of Geo. Pearson and took a number of fowl, returning the next night and taking all his geese. At the same time a large flock of young pullets disappeared from Mr. Gordon Buttenham's hen house.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McDonald wish to thank the members of Grace Church A. Y. P. A. for the lovely present which was presented to them at the Parish Hall last Tuesday evening.

W. A. Bazaar

The annual Bazaar of the Women's Auxiliary of Grace Church will be held in the Memorial Hall on Wednesday afternoon, December 3rd. Fancy work, aprons, home-made baking and home-made candy will be on sale, and afternoon tea served. In the evening a concert will be given by the Robb Concert Company of Hamilton presenting a program of rare excellence and variety, with Hilda Robb, a violoncellist of entertaining ability; Miss Ethel Robb, winner of many laurels as an elocutionist; James R. Robb, one of Canada's most brilliant violinists; and little Rhoda Robb, a musical monologist with captivating manners. Also Mr. H. J. Reeves, baritone, of Hamilton, and Miss E. Dale Sinclair.

Address on Deaconess Work

Miss Wilcox, Superintendent of the Deaconess Home, Hamilton, will give an address in the Methodist Sunday School room on Thursday evening, November 20th at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Young Ladies, Bible Class and the Mission Circle. There will be a silver collection. Everybody is cordially invited.

Millgrove

A number of our young people attended the 100th Methodist Missionary Anniversary held in Toronto last week.

The Millgrove choir sang at the Freelon services last Sunday morning.

The W. M. S. gave an At Home in the church basement Wednesday night.

The Torch Bearers class met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lillycropp, Waterdown, last Wednesday evening.

Mr. O. A. Sherwin, of Clappison Corners addressed our Sunday School last Sunday morning.

Mr. Walker Jennings of Hamilton attended church here last Sunday.

The two Misses English of Hamilton visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lysle last Sunday.

Fall plowing is the order of the day here now, and most of our people are thankful for a good crop.

A Fowl Supper will be held in the Millgrove Town Hall on November 17th, celebrating the Forty third Anniversary of the Millgrove Methodist Church. On Sunday the 16th Divine services will be held at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. Rev. S. J. Kelly of Stratford will preach at both services. The Carlisle Choir will sing in the morning and Lowville Choir at night. After the supper on Monday night a concert will be given featuring the Blue Bell Quartette, one of Toronto's finest male quartettes; The Ladies Quartette of Hamilton consisting of Mesdames Begg, Teace, Smith and May; Misses Vera Nicholson, Waterdown, and Hattie Lambier, Millgrove Elocutionists, and Stewart Mitchell, Waterdown, Pianist. Addresses by Rev. Judson Kefty and Rev. F. J. Fydel. H. A. Drummond, Reave of East Flamboro, will act as chairman.

Here and There

The annual statement of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the report which the company's president, E. W. Beatty, made to the shareholders at the annual meeting are matters of first rate interest, not only to the fast growing number of Canadian citizens who are part owners in the great railroad, but to all interested in Canadian progress and development. By reason of the way in which the company's operations touch all phases of Canadian life and enterprise there can be no pronounced depression or prosperity in any part of the country without its being reflected in the earnings of the Canadian Pacific. There is a barometer of the country's foreign trade also in the results of the operations of the company's steamships upon the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. Thus there was considerable reason for gratification in the president's statement made at the annual meeting on May 7th, that the operations of the company had been conducted throughout 1923 in a satisfactory manner and with satisfactory results. Mr. Beatty pointed out that gross earnings for the year, which had totalled $195,837,089, were greater by $9,162,000 than those of 1922. Working expenses, however, increased by $7,984,000 to $158,358,079. This large increase in operating costs was due to large expenditures made upon the property in order that it might be kept to the highest possible physical standard and capable of rendering the best possible service to the community. As a result the property was never in so excellent a condition as it now is. Net earnings for the year were $37,479,010, an increase of $1,177,000.

The total tonnage moved by the company during the year amounted to 30,852,994, an increase over that of the previous year of 3,108,408, due to a heavier movement of grain, lumber, manufactured articles and general merchandise, the largest increase being in grain and grain products. Mr. Beatty pointed out that this satisfactory condition had extended well into the present year and that due to favorable operating conditions and heavy traffic net earnings for the first quarter of 1924 had increased over those of the same period last year by $1,253,814. Referring to the Government system of railroads, Mr. Beatty said that the difference between it and the Canadian Pacific was largely in name only and in the accident of personnel of shareholders. The securities of both systems were owned by private investors throughout the world and there was a significant steady increase in both Canadian and British holdings of Canadian Pacific common stock. Two phases of the general railway situation called for criticism. Under a statute passed in 1919 the Government-owned lines may construct branches without approval as to location and other details by the Railway Commission. These lines may parallel or duplicate the lines of any other company operating in the country. The Minister approves and parliament authorizes the expenditure. Mr. Beatty stated that in his opinion it was equally in the interests of the Canadian people and of all Canadian railroads that the company should be in the same position in this respect. The other phase was the result of the Crow's Nest Pass agreement of 1897. It had established statutory freight rates under conditions of operating costs which no longer exist and differences in rates which would not be permitted under the general Railway Act because of their unfairness in relation to commodity rates on other articles and to the rates existing in other parts of Canada. The greatest advantage to shippers as a whole would be secured if all rates were made subject to review and change as conditions warrant the tribunal constituted for purpose.

In referring to the outlook for the future, Mr. Beatty said that while there was no doubt of a domestic and foreign recovery in part to the districts, generally, the first quarter of the year was satisfactory. The earnings would probably be about the same as last year and, generally speaking, soft conditions were expected. "If the total yield approached that of 1922," said Mr. Beatty, "it will undoubtedly be a very extensive autumn business and a vastly improved psychological and financial situation throughout the country. There is no pessimism in my mind of either the domestic or foreign trade, though it is expected to be rapid."

CLARISSA'S CHANCE

By George W. Tuttle

Middle life and a waster—this was Harry Vandeman! It was born and bred in him, the product of three generations of wasters. No wonder the great Vandeman farm had shrunk to a scant 50 acres. Thriftless habits had fallen on his shoulders like some never-to-be-worn-out garment. The old farm was naturally fertile, but the smallest leak will drain the largest barrel in time, and the mortgage was about to be foreclosed.

Certainly the farmer's case seemed hopeless. One grizzled farmer remarked: "You couldn't shoot thrifty habits into Harry Vandeman with a shotgun!" and still another remarked: "He would plant corn in Indian summer and set out fruit trees in dog-days if it were not for that daughter of his!"

Ah, here was the only key that could unlock that run-down Vandeman clock. The only daughter Clarissa, now 18 years of age! The family mantle of thriftlessness was surely sliding from the old man's shoulders. It seemed as if a generation entirely had passed away when she was only twelve years of age—living with a waster who such discouraging business that Mrs. Vandeman threw up her hands. As Clarissa was an only child, she now kept house for her father.

said the discouraged agent, "Vandeman is taking thrift by proxy!" Those who had found Vandeman an easy mark soon said, one to another, "Watch out for Clarissa!"

How the farm prospered! The cows and the hogs fattened on what had been beforetime wasted. The hens cackled: "Eggs, eggs, eggs for Clarissa!" The berries gaily elbowed each other from the vines. Prosperity smiled, and said, "Clarissa and I are partners." Not only was the interest paid regularly but the savings account flourished. The hand of thrift was at the helm and the old farm responded nobly.

When difficulties came a very determined Clarissa said, "This thing is going through!" Sure enough, that mountain of difficulty was tunneled through in just five years, and the last payment was made on the mortgage. About that time a prosperous young farmer engaged Clarissa as assistant manager and life partner, a permanent situation at raising berries, and— all, children with thrift and ambition, for that mantle of Vandeman shiftlessness was clean worn out.

Farm Queries Answered by Radio.

The agricultural knowledge slowly gathered by devoted masters of the world's oldest science will be made available to the farmers of Eastern Canada by means of an arrangement just entered into between Macdonald Agricultural College, St. Anne's, and Marconi radio station CFCF.

If a farmer has a problem which needs solution, or is anxious to have advice upon some phase of his work, it will only be necessary to write to Marconi station CFCF, Montreal, and the matter will be turned over to the college for attention.

The replies to the inquiries thus received will be broadcast, together with the enquiry, from station CFCF during the Monday and Friday evening broadcasts at an hour which will be published later. In this way not only the original enquirer, but other farmers who possess radio sets will benefit from the advice given out from the college.

This new step forward in radio service was made possible through the whole-hearted co-operation of Professor F. C. Harrison, principal of Macdonald College, who has offered to assist in every way to make the scheme a success.

NEW STRENGTH FOR WEAK STOMACHS

Indigestion Disappears When the Blood is Enriched.

The urgent need of all who suffer from indigestion is a tonic to enrich the blood. Pain and distress after eating is the way the stomach shows that it is too weak to perform the work of digesting the food taken. In this condition some people foolishly resort to purgatives, but these only further aggravate the trouble.

New strength is given weak stomachs by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills because these pills enrich and purify the blood. This is the natural process of giving strength and tone to the stomach, and it accounts for the speedy relief in stomach disorders that follow the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The appetite revives, food can be taken without discomfort and the burden and pains of indigestion are dispelled. Miss Mollie Averill, Clarendon, Man., proves the value of these pills in cases of this kind. She says: "Some years ago I had a terrible attack of stomach trouble. My stomach rejected all food and I could not even keep down a light custard. I tried some tablets recommended for dyspepsia, but they did not do me a particle of good. Then I got medicine from a doctor, but with no better results. By this time I had changed from a robust, healthy girl to a complete skeleton, losing flesh daily. Then my parents asked me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I began their use. After taking them for a short time I began to feel better and continued the treatment until I was completely restored to health. Since, on rare occasions when I have felt the need of a tonic, I turn to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they never disappoint me. Most members of our family have at some time taken the pills with good results, so I now always recommend them to all in need of a reliable tonic."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Wanted—A National Anthem

The Government of the Irish Free State is seeking a national anthem for Ireland, and a competition has been suggested as the best means of finding one.

Curiously enough, the only European national anthem written to order was the Norwegian, composed by the poet Bjornson. The old Portuguese national hymn is unique in that it was written by an emperor, Dom Pedro of Brazil; although the ex-Kaiser, announced during the war that he had written a new hymn for the German nation. Apparently, however, it was never published.

The famous Russian national anthem is noteworthy in that the tune, by the composer Lvoff, was written before the words, which were composed afterwards by command of the Czar.

The authorship of our own National Anthem has never been definitely settled. Its tune has been appropriated by both Germany and Denmark for national hymns.

A Master Stroke.

When John Jacob Astor first went trafficking among the Indians he did not carry a gun but a flute. He could only play a few Dutch tunes, but these enchanted the Indians and they voiced their approval of his salesmanship by exchanging their wares for his "beads any pipe." It was a master stroke of salesmanship, for it secured the friendship of the Indians and must have been one of the earliest practical applications of harmony in business.—Harry Collins Spillman.

Speaking is An Art.

Perhaps the very first lesson that needs to be learned is that speaking is an art—an art like reading and writing; and that, like them, it does not come by nature. Whatever an orator's natural endowment, he can excel only when he has carefully cultivated his gift, perhaps by practice alone, perhaps by study of the masters, perhaps by both. If he is candid he will confess that true ease in speaking comes from art, not chance. As those move easiest who have learned to dance.

"When Hearts Command"
By ELIZABETH YORK MILLER
"When hearts command,
From minds the sagest counsellings depart."

Hugo smiled unconcernedly and shrugged his shoulders.
"That was all gone into when they tried me for shooting him. We needn't rake it up now."
"Certainly not, Hugo," Jean agreed hastily. "Only—whatever money Mrs. Egan has, you can make no claim on it. You're about the last person in the world who could do so."
Hugo's smile broadened a little. He looked almost enigmatic.
"She'll pay," he said, with a satisfied nod.
Jean and Jean exchanged glances. Gaunt tapped his forehead significantly.
"You frightened the poor lady," he said with brutal directness. "No doubt she thought you still safe at Broadmoor, and to be suddenly confronted by the man who shot down her husband—well, she'd likely promise anything."
But Hugo was unaffected by this reference to his crime. He smiled—a smile—it had become a smirk—light in his waistcoat pocket and a packet of cigarettes, lit it in such a way that a few out, and swung her, thus displaying perfect confidence she had asserted.
Back to the original man, and he made use of the did not believe in—Hugo's that was to come from Mrs. Egan.
"Well, you can pay me back when you've more money," he said, and swept all the bills and memoranda into his pocket.
Jean's eyes filled with reproachful tears and Gaunt leaned across the table and took her hand, patting it gently.
"Let me do anything for you, Alice?" he asked. "Could I be cruel enough not to give you one little morsel of pleasure?"
Hugo looked at him sidewise—a mingling, admiring gaze—and blew a perfect shower of sparks. "You needn't be cruel, Jean," he said. "Old Hector means and of course we can pay him when Mrs. Egan settles her share."
Mrs. Egan gave in, but principally she was dreadfully short. They would have to pay rooms at the hotel in lieu of notice, and taking this little note nearly so cheap as it was to be at four o'clock that she considered that Gaunt was a little extravagant in his price. The thing had been with a wife she had hoped it would be a business deal. She had never have man. Such a thing need not make any difference at the hotel. Behind him Carrie Egan and the trail of unkind gossip which only a word or two from her might start. There was also Philip Ardeyne to be considered.

Jean had watched Dr. Ardeyne closely—oh, so closely. Could one say there was the slightest change in his manner towards Alice? Jean had not detected any. "Uncle John" seemed to have been accepted by him without question.
Her mind reviewed uneasily all that had taken place during the past five hours. Hadn't she herself made a few blunders? Her brows drew together in the weary effort to recall; her lips puckered dismally. How many times had she said "Hugo" instead of "John"? Perhaps it was only her imagination.
"I must see about things," she said vaguely. "You'll stay to supper, Hector?"
"I'll stay, but there's nothing for you to see about. Go in and lie down for awhile."
"Yes, you must take care of yourself," piped Hugo. "Hector and I have a lot to talk about. Men's talk. We haven't seen each other for so long, you know."
Jean hesitated for a brief moment, but she realized that Gaunt really wanted her to go, so she went, wondering what they would talk about when they were alone together.

CHAPTER XVII.
Dr. Ardeyne finished first with his share of the packing. Hugo's slender belongings all went into the two handbags and it did not take long to dispose of them.
The doctor was just about as unhappy as a man in love can be when things are not going altogether well. To begin with, there was the unalterable fact that he cared more for Alice than he had ever believed it would be possible for a man to care for any woman, and he was old enough to know his mind in that respect. Quite apart from any feeling of chivalry, there was his love for her. Yet what sort of a marriage could their be? How could he explain to her that she must never have any children? It was an explanation which would involve a great deal of suffering and humiliation for her.
On the surface, Hugo Smarle was no more than eccentric, and no more eccentric than thousands of other people. But this history of the Smarle family was a terrible one; and "Uncle John," the apparently harmless eccentric, had spent fifteen years of his life in captivity, a criminal lunatic. Yet not—in Philip Ardeyne's opinion—a dyed-in-the-wool homicidal maniac. Smarle's asylum record had been carefully kept, of course, and never once during the whole of those fifteen years was there one mark against him for violence or even for bad temper. He had been at times sulky, depressed, peevish, irritable, mischievous—but those adjectives apply to sane people as well as to lunatics. Confined in such a place as Broadmoor, with but the faintest hope of ultimate release, it would be strange indeed if a man did not occasionally lose patience and self-control. On the whole, Hugo Smarle's asylum record had been excellent. But one could not overlook the fact that he had killed a man, and although they had set him free as sane, he was by no means normal, and there was no way of being sure that, given certain circumstances, the old mania would not assert itself. Ardeyne wished there was an extra room at the Villa Charmil, so that he might propose himself as a guest.
He felt that he ought to have a clear understanding with that preposterous Mrs. Carnay, but it would be difficult to broach the subject to her.

As he waited on the verandah of the hotel for Alice and the chambermaid to finish with the trunks, he dealt with the matter.
His conscience and his reason were against this marriage. A different man might have complained loudly, if only to himself, that he had been trapped into the engagement. For that was what it was. Yet sometimes he felt a little sorry for Mrs. Carnay. She lived with such passionate unselfishness for her daughter, was so determined that Alice should be happy, that Ardeyne—now sharing those sentiments—could not altogether dislike her.

At this hour of the day the hotel verandah was always more or less deserted, and the doctor had it quite to himself. He ordered a cup of coffee and smoked a cigarette while he waited in the pleasant shadow cast by the big awnings. It was a very hot spring day, and already the various birds of passage were beginning to wing their way north, or to think about it. There would be no more new arrivals. Ardeyne's own holiday was drawing to its close.
As he sat on the balustrade, swinging one foot and thinking his gloomy, tangled thoughts, Mrs. Egan's car rounded the steep driveway and came to a stop before the hotel entrance. Her chauffeur, now restored to health and her service, jumped out and immediately got into conference with the assistant concierge. There was a ringing of bells and some shouting from the concierge to the lift-boy and from the lift-boy down a speaking tube to the porters' office. Then the chauffeur came back, walked around the silver car punching the tires in turn with his fist, opened the bonnet and looked into the engine, then lit a cigarette and began to undo straps on the luggage carrier. The lift-boy and assistant concierge came out to watch him, and presently the head waiter was seen hovering about inside hospitably ready to speed the parting guest. It gradually dawned upon Philip Ardeyne that Mrs. Egan might be going away.

This suspicion was confirmed presently by the appearance of her maid and luggage. The chauffeur and one of the porters began to strap on a couple of motor trunks; the maid, dressed for travelling, put small bags, rolls of rugs, umbrellas, parasols, golf-sticks and tennis racquets into the tonneau, reserving enough space in a corner of the seat to tuck herself away.
Last of all came Mrs. Egan, hatless as usual, but encased in a big white coat and loose driving gloves. The chauffeur disposed of his cigarette and touched his cap. Everything was ready. The young manager stood near at hand to wish her good-bye and many happy returns; the head concierge, with his upturned moustache and ready smirk, had taken command of the door of the car.
"Going away?" Ardeyne asked, a little superfluously.
Mrs. Egan looked sidewise at him. There was a question in that glance, but he did not know what it was.
"Yes," she said. "I'm tired of this place. I'm going home."
"To England?" asked Ardeyne.

"N—no." She laughed a little nervously. "England isn't my home, really. I'm going to Kingston—Jamaica. I've just been looking up the boats, and I can catch one at Marseilles on Wednesday."

Ardeyne regarded her attentively. She certainly had the furtive manner of one who is running away. But from what? Surely not from Hugo Smarle. It should be the other way about, if anything.

"Ten't this rather sudden?" he asked.
Carrie Egan nodded and displayed her fine teeth in a smile, the quality of which was a little uncertain. She was a mysterious creature, hinting, always at subtleties which the ordinary mind is not quick enough to grasp. Here, as one might say, at a moment's notice she was flinging off to a distant portion of the world as unconcernedly—or less so—that Mrs. Carnay had taken the Villa Charmil.
"To tell you the truth, that awful little man, Smarle, gives me the shudders," she said. "Phil, you are a demon. You never let on that he was a relation of your precious Carnays and that you'd have him in tow. I suppose he's your patient?"

HEALTH EDUCATION

BY DR. J. J. MIDDLETON
Provincial Board of Health, Ontario

Dr. Middleton will be glad to answer questions on Public Health matters through this column. Address him at Spadina House, Spadina Crescent, Toronto.

Keeping school children up to a normal standard of health and efficiency is an important part of public health work at the present time. One reason for the urgent necessity of this work would seem to be due to the fact that, as a rule, very little medical or nursing supervision is given to the pre-school child, and consequently it arrives at school age with its physical defects, if any, uncorrected. The medical supervision of school children is at the present time much more in vogue than the supervision of the pre-school child. This is, in a sense, regrettable, because if the defects were corrected earlier, they would not cause so much trouble, and it often happens that when the child has arrived at school age, the defects have already caused irreparable damage. A squint, for instance, unattended to in early childhood, will result in defective vision which often cannot be successfully treated after the child has reached the age of five or six years. Numerous cases have come to the attention of child welfare workers where a squint was allowed "to right itself," and in consequence this child a year or two later has practically the use of only one eye.

one year of age. It is now recognized, however, that the child between infancy and school age cannot be excluded from any system of control and supervision if the best results are to be obtained. It is, consequently, now the aim of all complete schemes for the workers to keep in touch with the children aged one year to five years and to endeavor to conserve their health during the early years of growth and development, when so many chronic and disabling diseases are apt to originate, if there is a failure to observe the early signs of perverted health.

The movement in favor of conserving infant and child life is now viewed on even broader grounds. The desirability of watching over the health of the expectant mother, of bringing to full term the large number of premature births that are known to occur, and of providing skilled attention at the time of birth is everywhere recognized. The solution of the problem of infant mortality is to be found through a variety of means. One is increased educational facilities for mothers, and especially young mothers, to learn the art of child-craft, another is breast-feeding, another is regular and periodic examination by the family physician. Some means must be found for providing the necessities of life in the way of wholesome food and healthful surroundings for the mothers of the poorer classes who are fighting year in and year out against destitution and want.

THE FALL WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Canadian fall weather is extremely hard on little ones. One day it is warm and bright and the next wet and cold. These sudden changes bring on colds, cramps and colic, and unless baby's little stomach is kept right the result may be serious. There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Origin of the Piano Recital.

Public pianoforte recitals now form so large a part in the life of musicians and music-lovers that we do not always realize they are a comparatively recent development. Private recitals of various kinds, and generally of an informal nature, have been common since the days when David played the harp before King Saul, and as a rule they have been in the houses of the rich and noble. The first public pianoforte recital in London was given in 1768 by John Christian Bach, a son of the composer of the B minor Mass, who settled in this country as a teacher, winning a great reputation for his command of graceful and light music and being generally known as "the English Bach," just as John Field, the Irishman living in Russia, was known as "the Russian Field." The custom did not become general for three-quarters of a century after this, however, and it was Liszt, who was born in 1811, who first really made them an important feature in a pianist's career.

Council of Education Plans Programme

Sir Robert A. Falconer, K.C.M.G., President, University of Toronto. Mr. Vincent Massey, Member, Board of Governors, University of Toronto. Sir Arthur Currie, G.C., M.C., Principal, McGill University. Mr. E. W. Beatty, President, Canadian Pacific Railway, Chancellor, McGill.

THE recent announcement that the third triennial conference on Education and Citizenship to be held under the auspices of the National Council of Education will take place in Montreal in 1926 recalls the invaluable work this organization is performing. Under the Honorary Presidency of His Excellency the Governor-General and the Presidency of Mr. Vincent Massey, President of the Massey-Harris Co., Toronto, the Council includes many of Canada's leading citizens, among them Sir Robert A. Falconer, K.C.M.G., President of the University of Toronto; Sir Arthur Currie, G.C.M.G., Principal of McGill University, and Mr. E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It has as its principles: (1) That education should concern itself with the development of character and should provide a full preparation for life; (2) That education is a spiritual process; (3) That education is imparted by personality—its success or failure rests with the teacher; (4) That education is everybody's business; and (5) That Canada's education must be Canadian in its ideals.

The principal activities of the Council are twofold. The National Lectureship Scheme is a plan under which distinguished men and women—both Canadians and visitors from Great Britain and other countries—are engaged to speak on education (broadly interpreted) throughout Canada. The Bureau provides an organization for the exchange of information between the Provincial departments of education for the reception and diffusion of ideas from outside the Dominion and for disseminating data concerning education in Canada to the outside world. Until the Council established this bureau, Canadian educational authorities were dependent upon the American Bureau of Education of Washington for all educational information.

The Council was formed as a result of a conference held in Winnipeg in 1919 and attended by over 1,200 persons from all over Canada. The second conference was held in Toronto in April of 1923 and was attended by about 1,500 persons, representing the nine provinces. This conference, through many brilliant speakers on the programme, among them Sir Michael Sadler, Sir Henry Newbolt, Lord Robert Cecil and Sir Robert and Lady Baden-Powell, sought to set forth the Council's conception of the role of Education as a citizen builder.

The plans for this third conference now pending were laid at a meeting held in Montreal, presided over by Sir Arthur Currie, in the absence of the Chairman, and attended by several of the leading officers of the Council in the persons of Mr. Vincent Massey, President; Mr. S. B. Gundy, Chairman of the Finance Committee, and Major F. J. Ney, Executive Secretary.

At present, the Council is engaged in preparing a programme for the second triennial period. It has secured as Educational Secretary Professor J. A. Dale, of the Social Service Department of the University of Toronto, whose duties will include the editorship of a series of small volumes on educational problems. The success of the National Lectureship Scheme inaugurated last year, which established important contact with the leading minds of Great Britain, will be followed up, beginning in September, by contributions from Dr. Finley, Editor of the New York Times and once a Commissioner of Education for the State of New York, from the Stratford-on-Avon Shakespeare Fellowship Players, under the direction of Mr. Bridges Adams, and from a number of other distinguished speakers.
