A Cheerful Heart.

(By Cardinal Gibbons).

The cheerful man not only has sunshine in his own heart, but he diffuses it around him. When he enters a room, the company feels the warmth of his presence, and their hearts expand with pleasure. He exerts on their spirits the same influence that the electric lights, when they are turned on in this cathedral, produce upon your senses. The gloomy man, on the contrary, repels them, and casts a dark shadow over them. O, my brethren, what is wealth or honor to a man! What is a kingdom to him, if the kingdom of his soul is dark and desolate, and overshadowed by the clouds of sadness and despair! What was the pomp and splendor of Herod's court! What was the sound of revelry and the most delicious music to him, when there was no responsive melody in his soul! What were the bewitching smiles and graceful figures that glided through the dancing hall! What was the sumptuous banquet when his heart sickened at the contemplation of the incestuous marriage, and of his innocent blood of the Baptist which he had shed!

How true are the words of the Prophet: "The wicked are like the raging sea which cannot rest, and the waves thereof cast up dirt and mire. There is no peace to the wicked, saith the Lord."

What should be the basis of our joy? The foundation of our gladness of heart should not rest on our temporal possessions. I am, indeed, from denying the legitimate acquisition of wealth. For if judiciously employed it contributes to the alleviation of human misery. But what is not lasting cannot be stow the fullness of satisfaction. We have a very uncertain tenure of our riches. They may take wings and fly from us. We will certainly part with our wealth at the hour of death.

Nor should our happiness rest on the power we may exert, nor on the elevated place we may fill, nor on the honors conferred upon us, no matter how well merited they may be, or how sincerely they may be bestowed. The disciples returned to our Saviour full of joy and complacency after their first mission, because they had wrought miracles. Our Saviour admonished them not to take complacency in a power that was only delegated to them: "Rejoice not in this but that your names are written in Heaven." O how capricious and treacherous is human applause, as we see from daily examples! A few years ago J. G. Blaine was, perhaps, the most popular citizen in the United States. He was called by his admiring friends "the plumed knight." He drew thousands to him by his personal magnetism. He almost became President and would have obtained the coveted prize were it not for the ill-timed speech of a fanatical preacher. His name to-day is well-nigh forgotten. His memory awakens no enthusiasm, and I do not know whether there is a monument over his grave. He himself became profoundly impressed with the vanity of earthly glory. On the occasion of a visit to me shortly after his defeat, he enumerated on his fingers the name of the Presidents who were weighed down by the cares of the state, or whose public careers were suddenly cut short by death.

Do not make the pleasures of life the subject of your delight, for some of those pleasures are base and shameful, and they are all of brief duration. Our glory as citizens of God's kingdom on earth does not consist in the pleasures of the table, but in the God-given grace of the Holy Ghost. Solomon possessed all these temporal advantages of which I have spoken. He ruled a kingdom, and so pleasure that his heart desired, was denied him. Yet he left us the solemn verdict that "all is vanity and affliction of spirit."

What then should be the basis of our joy? What is the oil which should feed this blessed lamp of cheerfulness? St. Paul tells us when he says: "Rejoice in the Lord." We should rejoice because we can look up to Heaven, and claim as our Father the Creator of the universe. We should be glad of heart, because we are the brothers and sisters of Jesus Christ by adoption, that we were redeemed by His precious blood. We should rejoice that we are heirs prospective of the Kingdom of Heaven, and that the eye hath not seen, nor heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man what things God hath prepared for them that love Him. We should be filled with delight by the thought that one day we shall enter into our eternal rest, when "God shall wipe away all tears from (our) eyes, and death shall be no more, for the former things have passed away."

What intensifies this spiritual joy is the reflection that no man and no earthly power can rob you of this happiness which awaits you. You lose wealth and health, and place and power, you may be incapable of relishing earthly pleasures, but no man may wrest from you, against your will, the interior delights of the heart.

Another feature of this alacrity of soul is that it is not reserved for a few or for a particular class of persons, but you all may participate in it, no matter what may be your condition of life. This is a remark of St. Leo. You that are young should be light-hearted of heart, because your innocence renders you dearer to God. You that are old should rejoice, because you are nearer to the pinnacles of victory. You that are in a state of righteousness, should be glad, because you are more conformable to the standard of Christ. You that are sinners should rejoice, because you are invited to pardon. You that are wealthy may rejoice, because, like Zosimus, you may make your riches subservient to the comfort of others, as well as to your own gratification. You that are poor should be glad, because you imitate your Master, who being rich, became poor for our sakes, that by His poverty we might be enriched.

If we study the life of St. Paul we will find that the dominant note in his character was joy amid sufferings. His apostolic ministry was a continuous scene of privations and hardships. Yet notwithstanding all these sufferings, or rather because of them, the heart of Paul was habitually joyous, for he knew that every stripe and every trial would be put to this account on the Lord's day. "I rejoice," he says, "with great joy in the midst of my tribulations. I am as sorrowful yet always rejoicing, as needy yet enriching many, as having nothing yet possessing all things." Again he says: "We rejoice not only in hope of the glory of the sons of God, but we glory also in the tribulations, knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience trial and hope, and hope confoundeth not, for the charity of God is poured forth in our hearts by the Holy Ghost, who is given us. Here is a golden stairway ascending like Jacob's ladder, from earth to heaven. The first step, which is tribulation, rests on the earth, and the last step, which is hope, reaches heaven. Let us like the apostle joyfully ascend this heavenly stairway. From tribulation let us ascend to patience; from patience let us ascend to trial or approval; from approval to hope; let us ascend to the spirit to the kingdom of heaven. "For the Spirit Himself giveth testimony to our spirit that we are the sons of God; and if some, beise also, heirs indeed of God, and joint heirs with Christ."

Let me offer you in conclusion a few practical suggestions. First of all, endeavor to establish the reign of joy and sunshine in your own heart. To accomplish this blessed result, three conditions are necessary. First, you must have a pure and upright conscience before God. Second, you must maintain an habitual spirit of benevolence toward your fellow man; for you cannot have serenity in your heart so long as it is clogged by the burdens of carnal passions.

Once you have planted the blessings of joy within you, let its beams radiate throughout your household. Let the husband be a source of joy to his wife, and the wife to her husband. Do not permit the clouds of gloom and melancholy to gather up your brow. Let the children be as lesser lights in the domestic firmament, diffusing the rays of sunshine on their parents. No matter what may be the storms you may encounter in the ocean of life, do not let them invade the harbor of your home. Be cheerful at your meals; cheerfulness is a good digester. A gloomy temper produces dyspepsia. Imitate the primitive Christians: "What took their meat with gladness and simplicity of heart."

Above all, worship the Lord with gladness of heart, for God loveth a cheerful giver. He wishes to be served, not with the silliness, gloom and reluctance of a slave or a hireling, but with the alacrity of a son. Come to the house of God on the Lord's day, not as to a place of mourning, but as to the bright home of your Father. Be animated with the sentiments of the Royal Prophet, when he exclaimed: "I will go in the altar of God, to God Who rejoiceth my youth." If the house of God is associated with feelings of joy in our innocent childhood, why not go to the days of our evening and youth, for the former things have passed away. Is He not the Father of the transgressor as

Was Troubled With Liver Complaint For Three Years.

Prince Luitpold of Bavaria.

On March 12 next, Prince-Regent Luitpold will have completed his ninetieth year. The Bavarian people have been planning a grand national demonstration to honor the occasion, but in a letter to his Ministers for Home Affairs the Prince makes the request that the day be kept only in the simplest manner. His wish will be respected, and, in lieu of the festivities that were being arranged, a great national fund is to be collected and presented to the Regent. The aged Prince has shown marked interest in the charitable and benevolent enterprises flourishing in his kingdom, and the purpose of his people will be to enable him, through a birthday fund, to aid nobly certain institutions for the care of young people and veteran soldiers, which have been special objects of his solicitude.—America.

Bohemia.

The attempt to remove the obstacles to necessary legislation in the forthcoming meeting of the Reichsrath in Vienna, due to conflict between the German and Czech parties, appears to be hopeless. The chronicle has already referred to the Commission, in session for some time back in Prague. The mutual understanding hoped for from its deliberations has not come about. Many now propose the appointment of a Permanent Commission, to which all matters in dispute between the two peoples in Bohemia shall be referred for final settlement. This proposal is not acceptable to the Czechs, who refuse to agree to it until the tribulations now before the Bohemian Landtag will have been finally settled. As the Germans claim to find in the taxation question the one obstructive weapon still left to them, they are not inclined to concede this demand. To add to a difficult situation the City Council of Prague has just entered unanimous protest against the requirement of the use of German, as well as Bohemian in all official proceedings. The meeting of the Reichsrath in Vienna, which had been fixed for November 20, is in consequence deferred.—America.

Emperor William Visits Beuron.

The German press reports a noteworthy utterance of Germany's ruler during his visit to the Benedictine monastery at Beuron, November 13. Addressing the abbot and a number of Catholic dignitaries gathered to welcome the Emperor and his party, William said: "I look to you to help me keep my people religious. This is very important, as the twentieth century has got loose ideas which can be successfully combated only with the help of religion and the support of heaven. My crown can guarantee me success only when it relies on the word and personality of Our Lord. The government of Christian princes can be carried on only according to the will of the Lord. The altar and throne are closely united and must not be separated." The Emperor went to Beuron chiefly to see the heroic bronze crucifix presented to the monastery by His Majesty a few weeks ago, but his announced visit of half an hour was drawn out to an hour and a half, so interested did he show himself during his tour through the monastery buildings to examine the notable art treasures and the splendid library with which the Beuron Benedictines have enriched their ancient abbey.—America.

Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa.

A veritable edition de luxe amongst railroad pamphlets has been issued by the Grand Trunk to proclaim amongst tourists and travellers the glories of the cities of Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa. The brochure is beautifully printed, and generally arranged in the artistic style of earlier days, when the ornamentation of a volume was regarded as an important incident to its presentation of reading matter. It is also very well written, and gives an interesting description of three of the most interesting cities in Canada, with many illustrations from photographs that have not hitherto been published. It will be sent to any address on receipt of a two cent stamp, apply to Mr. J. QUINLAN, D. P. A. Montreal.

Doings at Ottawa.

The discussion in the House on the resolution of Mr. Mackenzie of North Cape Breton that the time had arrived in the commercial and industrial development of Nova Scotia when the Intercolonial should be extended into the non railway counties of the eastern section of that province, did not lead to any definite conclusion.

This is what occurred on the 15th: After a conference which lasted from nine o'clock in the morning until the late afternoon, the huge gathering of farmers who had principally from the west, completed resolutions and memorials which they presented to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his government in the chamber of the House of Commons next day.

Mr. R. L. Borden was particularly vigorous in his demand that the government should make up its mind speedily regarding the future usefulness of the Intercolonial. He believed it was the will of Canadians that the road should still continue to be owned by the people.

Hon. Sydney Fisher, with that disregard for the interests of the farmers which has been such a feature of the policy of this administration, refused a resolution brought forward by Dr. Sproule setting forth that the agricultural, horticultural and animal industries would be benefited by the establishment of abattoirs and a more efficient system of cold storage under government supervision.

tion to the markets in the best possible condition. It may surprise some to know that during the past twelve years the exportation of cattle has decreased from 211,000 head to 157,300 head last year. This does not show an expansion and development of the country.

The memorial presented in support of the tariff resolution compressed the argument for lower tariff into about six thousand words. It starts off with a statement that when the National Policy was first introduced it was on the understanding that when the protective industries had time to develop and get firmly established the protection would be withdrawn and the people relieved of further protection for the benefit of industry.

The resolution which had evoked the greatest interest, however, is that upon the tariff. It reads as follows: 1. Reciprocal free trade between the United States and Canada in all horticultural and animal products; spraying materials, fertilizers, fuel, illuminating and lubricating oils; cement, fish and lumber.

In addition to the tariff resolution, which was moved by E. C. Drury, one of the Ontario delegates, the following were the subjects of other resolutions; Hudson Bay Railway.—That the railway and all terminal facilities be constructed, owned and operated in perpetuity by the Dominion Government, under an independent commission.

This is a report of proceedings on the 16th:—"I think I can go as far as government ownership, but not government operation," was the nearest approach to a definite statement that Sir Wilfrid Laurier made to the huge delegation of farmers that waited on him in the chamber of the Commons today.

The farmers had presented to the premier an effective plea of government ownership to remedy existing and serious evils which are eating their hearts out.

that he did not even refer to it in his reply. They asked for legislation to effect the incorporation of co-operative societies. The premier did not think it worth while to reply to this, either. Nor did Sir Wilfrid Laurier utter one word regarding their resolution on the bank act.

The situation among the farmers' delegates is so crucial that a number of the Liberal members of the delegation went to the premier Friday evening and laid the necessities of the case before him in the plainest possible terms. They pointed out that the farmers had asked for bread and he had given them a stone.

The resolution which had evoked the greatest interest, however, is that upon the tariff. It reads as follows: 1. Reciprocal free trade between the United States and Canada in all horticultural and animal products; spraying materials, fertilizers, fuel, illuminating and lubricating oils; cement, fish and lumber.

Nice Words for Grand Trunk Pacific.

A member of a party who journeyed into the Peace River District last July and August, and travelled over the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Winnipeg and Edmonton writes to the company as follows:—"I desire to congratulate the Grand Trunk Pacific on its excellent service, and I want to go on record as saying that no matter which way one views it, your line has certainly delivered the goods. Our party thought it nothing short of marvelous that in two years time railroad should be running as only the G. T. P. runs. The engine was as enjoyable as the smooth-running road-bed."

My Mother.

(Translated from the French by Maria Lindsay.)

Yesterday, in trying to bring out of me that which is dead, faded hair in which my mother taught me to read.

This souvenir of my mother's childhood is filled with memories of my own childhood days.

A strange thing! this thought that my mother had been a child.

My mother was born forty years of age when I was born.

The memory they cherish of her, if not dearer, will be more sacred, and all that is venerable in age will be added to the grandeur of motherhood.

This old worn book in which my mother taught me the difficult art of reading; this book which belonged to her in her school days, brings back to me the fact that she was once a little girl.

The hope of seeing again my mother made me long ago believe in eternal life.

Many pretend that our feeble intelligences are incapable of conceiving the extent and perfection of the joy reserved for the elect.

Yes, for him whose heart is truly filled his mother is immaculate.

Moreover, it is not natural that I should evoke only under the guise of motherhood her for whom I was always a little child.

When she died she was seventy-one years of age and I was thirty-three.

And my mother knew it.

Not only do I recall her thus, when crushed by sorrow I could find no comfort save in embracing my mother and drying my weeping tears on her cheek.

So careful of that step at the foot of the stairway. Do not take cold. Have you a headache? I pity those who do not realize with a tender smile these childish recommendations.

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, my joints that are stiffened and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Hood's Sarsaparilla removes the cause of rheumatism—no external application can. Take it.

Not that she ever for one moment doubted my respect and my love.

Should these pages fall into the hands of a young man, may they stop him on the brink of some serious fall.

It is thirty years since I lost mine, and I had always the heart of a son.

The hope of seeing again my mother made me long ago believe in eternal life.

Christ who has placed His Mother so high in the Divine Kingdom will bless the prayer of a son and a Christian.

Christ who has placed His Mother so high in the Divine Kingdom will bless the prayer of a son and a Christian.

The best things of life are gone before we appreciate them.

When she died she was seventy-one years of age and I was thirty-three.

And my mother knew it.

Not only do I recall her thus, when crushed by sorrow I could find no comfort save in embracing my mother and drying my weeping tears on her cheek.

So careful of that step at the foot of the stairway. Do not take cold. Have you a headache? I pity those who do not realize with a tender smile these childish recommendations.

end of the rainbow, we trudge listlessly, looking back, rather than forward.

The gem knows naught of its own beauty of the sunlight of his own glory.

The trees in the garden of life are loaded with fruit that turns to dust and ashes in the mouth, not that the fruit has lost its savor.

What is the meaning of this promise whose performance we never know until it is too late?

It is the old, old lesson taught to the slow intelligence of the children of men, that the beauty of the world, the value of friendship, the late-born perception of all that is worth while in life, are flashed before our eyes for an instant and then withdraw taking courage from the realization, we may go on valiantly.

What great value men attach to a prize! What will they not do and risk for the sake of it!

Mr. J. H. Richards, 1922 Second Ave. East, Vancouver, B.C., writes: "Allow me to write a few lines in praise of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup."

BECAME SO WEAK AT TIMES COULD NOT WORK.

Mr. George W. Wood, Ontario, Ont., writes: "Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills make the weak heart strong and the shaky nerves firm by increasing a strong and restorative influence to every organ and tissue of the body.

"The flesh must be crucified," (Gal. v. 21.)

The second pearl is obedience.

The third pearl is humility.
