Are You Drinking Pure Cocoa or Cocoa Mixed with Starch?

Cocoa is made by grinding cocoa beans and pressing out some of their fat or "cocoa butter". The removal of the excess fat leaves the cocoa more perfectly digestible.

A common way to cheapen cocoa is by adding starch.

A leading English physician says that starch added to cocoa reduces the "nutritious gluten and stimulating theobromine."

Lowney's contains no starch. It is as pure as cocoa can be made.

It is produced in our spic-and-span factory at Montreal. Lowney's Cocoa conforms with every requirement that goes to make cocoa wholesome and appetizing.

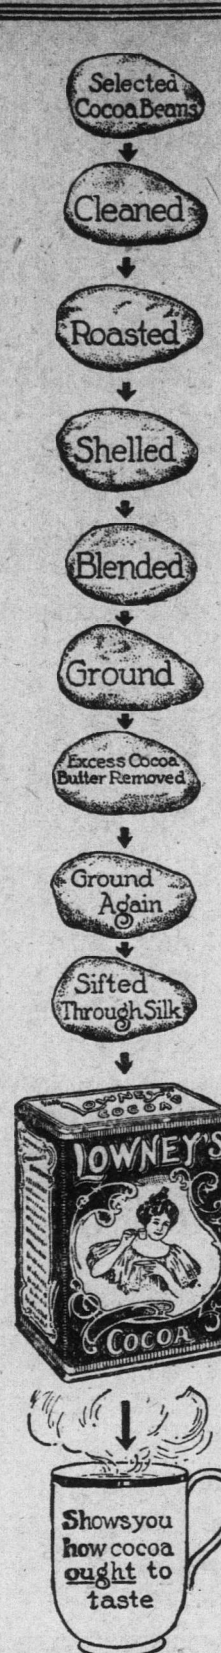

You will never learn how delicious cocoa can be until you have tasted Lowney's.

Sold by grocers. In tins—10c to 50c sizes.

WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XIV.

"Boy, indeed!" I retorted, rather aggrieved, and caressing my mustache, which was almost long enough to curl at the ends by this time. "Come, I like that! I've got the advantage of you in point of size, at any rate, madame."

"If I am not so large as you, you are not as small as I," quoted Ned gaily.

"And don't want to be, you little bit of a thing!" I said, looking down at her, for indeed her pretty cropped head did not reach my shoulder, although to be sure we Chavasses were rather celebrated for being "out-sizes" among mankind. "So you won't take me? All right; you'll never have such another chance, you know. You had better think of it."

"Much obliged; but you see I don't aspire to such a distinguished alliance."

"But think how you'd be able to bully me."

"That's just what I shouldn't like. I'd quite as soon be bullied as bully."

"And you think there is some one else with whom you would leave the bullying out altogether, I suppose?" I said.

"I was thinking of Yorke, of course—I was mostly thinking more or less about him and 'his love for Natalie Orme, which he was so determined to consider hopeless, and wondering too if it was only my wish which made me think him mistaken. She had crossed over to the fire and sunk down in my mother's big chair, and, with her hands clasped behind her curly head, was looking up at me idly. But, despite my suspicions, I was not prepared for the rapid emotional flush which overspread her small brown face as I spoke. Her linked fingers dropped, and she sat-up, staring straight at me.

"What are you talking about, Ned?" she said, in a voice which was neither so imperious nor so sharp as she tried to make it. "I—I don't understand you," she said, tremulously.

"The little hypocrite!" I thought, glad for my friend, and feeling sure that, of the two men who loved her, she certainly was not blushing for Fraser Froude. But to speak of Roger to her was certainly none of my business, and I promptly changed my tactics.

"Why, Holmedeane isn't too lofty for you to aspire to, is it?"

"Holmedeane?" she repeated, staring at me.

"Just so. Does it strike you that Fraser Froude, Esq., is a bully?"

"What do you mean? I declare I think you are crazy, Ned. What has that tiresome man to do with me?"

She said it so innocently and wonderingly that I was astonished in my turn.

"Well, I like that, Miss Innocence!" I said, laughing. "What do you suppose he comes here incessantly for?"

"Why, because he likes to," she returned, dubiously, with a puzzled face. "He says he is awfully lonely at Holmedeane. Oh, Ned"—the facts of the case seeming to break in upon her all at once—"you don't think he comes because—because of me?"

"Why, of course he does!" I said, decisively.

"Oh, the ridiculous man!" she cried; and with that the unsympathetic girl burst into a peal of merry, most unsentimental laughter. "He must be crazy, Ned—what old Batsbin calls 'daff'!"

"All right. You'd better tell him so."

"And so I will, if he ever says anything to me. Oh, how ridiculous!"

"Then you really mean that you won't be Mrs. Froude?" I said, laughing almost as heartily as she had done.

"Never!" she cried, tragically. "I'll marry you first!"—and then we both laughed again, like the couple of children we were. We were both silent for a little while—perhaps because we had laughed too much, or because we had talked enough. I leaned back in my chair with my hands in my pockets, watching Ned as she sat staring at the fire thoughtfully, her elbow on her knee, and her round chin supported upon one small brown hand. How pretty the little dark piquant face was! I thought. No wonder Roger loves her, poor old chap! And then my thoughts wandered off I hardly knew, whether, until I was aroused by Ned asking pettishly if I was trying to mesmerize her.

"I was only thinking," I said, rising up.

"And what about, pray?"

"You."

"Then I wish you would do something more amusing. I should have been asleep in another five minutes what were you thinking about me?"

"I was wondering—" I broke off and, with a bluntness which must have been startling, brought out what I had really been thinking of. "I say, Ned, you didn't leave a disconsolate swain behind in Jamaica, did you?"

I had expected her to laugh, but she did not. She simply stared at me, and the color in her face gradually faded out. Then she said slowly, in an odd startled tone—

"What made you think of that?"

"Goodness knows! It came into my head."

"Then I wish it had not," she said, shortly, shrinking back into the big chair.

"Then there was somebody?" I persisted, curiously, feeling surprised enough.

"Of course there was."

"And you never said anything, you sly little monkey! Who was it, Ned?"

"I wish you wouldn't talk about it," she returned, fretfully. "I hate to think about it or to talk about it."

"Why?"

"Because I do."

This was emphatic and decisive, but not satisfactory. I stared at the fire for a minute or two, trying manfully to bottle up my curiosity, but it was too much for me, and out came another question—

"You might tell a fellow, Ned. It's only I, you know; and I thought we were too good chums to have secrets."

"Well, I will tell you if you like," she said, in a quieter tone, thoughtfully holding out her hands to the fire. "But it is only you, you know, Ned."

"Of course. Who is he?"

"The son of a neighbor of ours in Jamaica. My father and his were friends."

"And he was your lover, was he?" I said, in a disconcerted tone, thinking solemnly of Roger.

"Yes, for longer than I can tell—from the time I was a child, I think."

"What was his name?"

"Raby St. George."

"Whew! What a name! I say, Ned, what do they call him when he's home?"

"What nonsense you talk!" she said, with the same unusual pettishness which she had displayed before, and then, sinking down in her favorite posture on the edge of the fender, fell to staring at the fire.

For a few minutes I sat in uncomfortable and rueful meditation. I had not expected this complication. Poor old Roger! Confound this unknown Raby St. George! I thought. What did he want in my friend's way?"

"I suppose we shall have him coming over here after you before long!" I said at last discontentedly.

Ned twisted on the fender to look at me.

"What do you mean, Ned? Who will come after me?"

"Why, this blessed Raby St. George!"

"Come after me?" she repeated.

"Yes. Won't he?"

"Oh, no, no! I hope not—I hope not! Anything but that!" She sprang to her feet, and looked at me with her little face so utterly scared that I stared at her in surprise. "Oh, Ned, if I really thought that he would come here after me, I believe the fright would kill me!"

If I had stared before, I stared harder now. It was no joke—she was in earnest—her face and voice showed that.

"What—aren't you fond of him, then?" I blurted out.

"Fond of him? I hate him! I shudder when I think of him; it has frightened me to utter his name. I hope that as long as I live I may never see or hear of him again."

"In the name of all that's wonderful, why?"

"Because I am afraid of him."

"You are! What has he done?"

"Frightened me always," she returned, in a quieter tone, sinking down into the big chair again. "Don't look so moon-struck, Ned. I'll tell you all about it since you have made me speak of him at all, which I had always meant not to do. I am quite serious, and I tell you that I who have never feared anyone else, am afraid of Raby St. George."

"Yes? Well?" I questioned.

"It is all very well to say 'Well'!" she returned musingly, resting her chin on her hand as she again looked at the fire; "but I hardly think I can make you understand—you don't know him," she added, with a shiver.

"And don't want, if he's such a queer customer," I supplemented, still intensely curious. "Go on, Ned. Did he propose to you, or what?"

"Oh, yes—more than once and more than twice! He would not take 'No' or an answer—he persecuted me, frightened me. I sometimes think, Ned, that if I had stayed in Jamaica he would have made me, marry him in spite of myself."

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 29, 1913.

Notes and Comments.

Ash Wednesday comes next week.

The winter so far has been most changeable. One day we have bright Spring days, and the next intense frost. Yesterday we had a great range of temperature all in one day. In the morning rubbers were in demand to keep feet dry and at night the roads were sheets of ice and dangerous to limb in the dark.

The excuse for the withdrawal of the Franchise Bill appears most inadequate. The bill is a Government measure. The Grey women suffrage amendment is non-governmental. If the amendment is out of order, then the Speaker might have been afforded an opportunity to rule it out of order, and the original bill would have been intact. If the amendment is not out of order, but merely doubtful and unfair, surely the House could have been trusted to deal with it.

If under either pretext the amendment had not been received, the original bill would have been safe, and women franchise could have been dealt with in a separate bill.

We do not expect to see the British Parliament properly attack the problems of poverty, unemployment and a living wage until the adult workers of the nation have greater control over Parliament. Starvation wages and a gaunt poverty stalk the streets of the richest nation in the world. Parliament in past centuries has wronged the workers, and it is now high time for workers to have sufficient control to remedy the evils they have inherited from the past.

A Fake "Oath" Exposed.

Elsewhere in this issue we publish a letter from Mr. John Fenelon, who as Advocate of the Terra Nova Council of the Knights of Columbus, takes official cognizance of a document which has been circulated as a copy of an oath, which it was alleged the Knights of Columbus are called upon to take. Mr. Fenelon points out that this imaginary "Oath" antedates the Society itself, and in days long before the Knights of Columbus came into existence, it was used to use Mr. Fenelon's words, "used to slander the Catholic Clergy and in particular the Society of Jesus, to whom it was falsely attributed." He also points out that with some verbal alterations the oath worn slander has been revived and directed against the Knights of Columbus and widely circulated in the United States and Canada, during the past year, and that it is now being circulated in Newfoundland. Mr. Fenelon is clear, definite and convincing in his denial that any such oath is in use. "The so-called 'Oath' is from the beginning to end a tissue of falsehoods, false in the letter, and false in its spirit. Nothing bearing the slightest resemblance to it is to be found in any part of the ceremonial of our Order." We also direct attention to the exposure which was made of this fake in Seattle, Washington, by a committee of three Protestant business men of that community. Words are not adequate to express the execration which every right-thinking man must feel at the fabrication and circulation of a most horribly inhuman and cruel libel on a community of gentlemen. The words and the make-up of the document itself afford full, conclusive and convincing proof that the oath is a false fabrication and a cruel fake, which is corroborated by the sentiments embodied which are so repulsive and loathsome that they shock every sentiment of decency and honor, and are a slander on our common humanity. To every thinking man a perusal of the document itself is enough to prove it is a fake. But when in addition to this we have the testimony of a Protestant committee who were afforded full facilities to investigate, and the unequivocal denial made officially by the Society itself, a speedy end should be put to the circulation of this cruel calumny. Elsewhere we publish the editorial comments of the Daily News on this foul slander. We cordially second the efforts of the Knights of Columbus to put an end to this calumny.

BIG RECEPTION AT BRIGUS—We had a message from Mr. Coaker, stating that he had a great reception at Brigus. There was a band, fringing of guns and a display of hundreds of flags. Last night a meeting was held.

POLICE COURT—A case of lewd and abusive language was withdrawn. The owners of two unlicensed dogs were summoned, but paid up before the cases were called.

The Knights of Columbus.

During the past three months, a cowardly slander on the Knights of Columbus organization, has been imported from abroad, and has been widely disseminated throughout Newfoundland. The very savagery of the wording of the alleged "oath" in itself should be sufficient evidence of its falsity. Among the Knights are men whose record is untarnished; whose charity is proverbial; and whose humanity and tolerance have done much to bury, we had hoped for ever, the sectarian strifes of bygone generations. As Christian men, as gentlemen and as citizens, their feelings must have been harrowed and outraged by the knowledge that not alone their honor but their very civilization was being held up to question and scorn. But his plain and unqualified statement in this morning's issue, Advocate Fenelon, speaking on behalf of the Knights of Columbus, with admirable self-control, in language almost more courteous and generous than the intolerable character of the slander warrants, has effectually disposed of this matter. Who may be responsible for the introduction, printing and circulation of this "blasphemous and horrible travesty" in Newfoundland, we neither know, nor wish to know; but should the parties responsible be discovered, the Knights of Columbus will have a very obvious duty to perform in the public interests as well as their own, and in their vindication at the hands of Justice they will have the cordial and sympathetic support of all who believe in the principles of civil and religious liberty, as exemplified by the doctrines of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man.—Daily News.

Given Medals

The four members of the Brigade—Lieut. Ledingham, Corporal Langmead and Privates Auckinleck and Luscombe—who were amongst the contingent at the Toronto Exhibition, were presented last night with medals which are similar to those given the C. L. B. boys, by Capt. Goodridge, following an inspection by the Battalion. These promotions were then announced.

Captain Macnab to be Quarter-Master; Lieut. Montgomery to the rank of Captain in charge of A. Co., Lieuts. J. Nunnis and W. Herder, attached to A. Co.; Lieuts. Ledingham and Baird appointed to B. Co., under command of Capt. McKay.

Shoppers Killed.

McKinney, Texas, Jan. 23.—Seven persons are known to have been killed and 13 injured when the three storey Oddfellows building, occupied on the lower floor by a dry goods and men's furnishing establishment, collapsed here to-day. Five dead had been removed from the wreckage at seven o'clock, two others died shortly after being taken to hospital. Three of the seven injured in the hospital are thought to be fatally hurt. Fire broke out immediately after the building collapsed but was extinguished within an hour. Vigorous efforts to rescue any living victims was made at once. The dead are:

Ross Welch, Miss Katie Milligan, Miss Bessie Wade, Russell Helgill, four years old; N. R. Prestley, Clerk, Mrs. Mary Stiff, clerk; Miss Eva Hearty, clerk. The number of shoppers unable to escape from the building before its collapse has not been learned. A special sale was in progress and the store is said to have been crowded. That the greater part of the shoppers escaped is believed. Clearing away the smouldering debris was impeded by lack of mechanical facilities. Nearly the entire male population joined in the rescue work, digging in relays. The estimated loss was about $75,000.

Threw Child Into Furnace

Seized by the hair and forcibly thrust into a blazing furnace in the cellar of the academy of the Notre Dame du Bon Conseil, 714 East Craig Street, Montreal, was the terrifying experience of Kittle Marcovitch, a 12-year-old girl, who resides with her parents at 76 Wolfe Street. Kittle went to the academy for a music lesson, on Friday last, but as the teacher had not arrived, Cyrille Chartrand, the furnace man, offered to show her the heating apparatus. With childish curiosity, the girl accompanied Chartrand to the cellar, but hardly had she entered the lower regions, than the man attacked her. The girl screamed wildly and, endeavoring to silence her, Chartrand seized the child and hurled her into the furnace. Hearing the sound of footsteps, Chartrand hurriedly made off, and the girl was able to make her escape, but not without serious burns about the head. She was removed in the ambulance to the General Hospital. Chartrand was taken before Magistrate Lanctot on a charge of aggravated assault. He pleaded not guilty and the preliminary investigation was fixed for to-day.

All trains are very narrow, long or pointed; because of their narrowness they have a tendency to turn over, so should be lined their full length with a contrasting color of the material of the gown.

The Suffragettes have lost no time in opening up their campaign. In Dublin they made a concerted attack at noon, to-day, on the windows of Dublin Castle, a number of which were smashed. Three disorderly females were arrested. In London similar vigour was displayed. Their leader, Mrs. Drummond, sent an ultimatum to Lloyd George when he refused her request to receive a deputation, on the ground of other engagements. She wrote: "I and other members of the deputation intend to wait upon you in the Commons at 8 this evening. We trust you will make the necessary arrangements to receive us." Two of her associates were sentenced to a fortnight's imprisonment to-day on a charge of resisting the police while in execution of their duty, when they dispersed the Trafalgar Square meeting last night. Mrs. Despard, a sister of the famous General Sir John French, was offered the option of paying a ten dollar fine, but refused and was promptly jailed. A fourth suffragette was sent to prison for seven days. Mrs. Despard, addressing the magistrate, after sentence, said she would probably repeat the offence when released. Some sympathizers in the court room, who made a demonstration when sentence was pronounced, were ejected. Three suffragettes, Mrs. Hopkins, Mrs. Cousins and Mrs. Connery, arrested for breaking fifteen window panes at Dublin Castle, were sentenced to a month's imprisonment, with hard labor, each. General Mrs. Drummond, Mrs. Pankhurst and four other suffragettes were arrested this evening for refusing to leave the Commons, after failing in their attempt to interview Lloyd George. A window smashing campaign became general during the evening, and no less than 21 women were locked up in one station. The militant tactics were resumed to-night. While the deputation Lloyd George had refused to see, were trying to force into Parliament against an overwhelming force of police and were placed under arrest, other bands of women went through Whitehall breaking windows in Government buildings, and through Cockspur St., where the big plate glass windows in the shipping establishments were destroyed. Other women visited Oxford and Regent Streets, and acted similarly. Later, post boxes were attacked and liquids poured into them. In the outlying suburbs the women also took steps to bring their cause before the public by damaging property. In Trafalgar Square, some unruly boys tried to "duck" four of the suffragettes in the fountain, but were frustrated by the police. The twenty-one women arrested outside of Parliament Buildings, have been allowed out on bail.

Knights of Columbus Officially Refute Horrible Slander.

LETTER FROM JOHN FENELON, ESQ., ADVOCATE, TERRA NOVA COUNCIL, KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 28th, 1913.

Sir,—Within the past few weeks there has been circulated throughout the country a document, purporting to be an Oath taken by Knights of Columbus and to contain a statement of the obligations taken under it. This document is blasphemous, indecent and seditious to a degree which would appear incredible to anyone who has not seen a copy of the supposed "Oath"; yet agencies are actively at work disseminating it through St. John's and the outports, and using it to stir up the bitterest feelings of sectarian animosity. There is already abundant evidence that they have achieved some temporary success.

With the persons who are responsible for the circulation here of this disgraceful slander, I am not concerned at present, but I ask in the interest of truth and fair play, to be allowed to place before the public some facts in connection with the document in question that will enlighten them as to its real nature and safeguard them from doing their Catholic fellow-citizens, who are members of the Knights of Columbus, a very cruel injustice by giving even a moment's credence to the malignant falsehood that is being circulated against them.

This imaginary "Oath" antedates the Society known as the Knights of Columbus, and in days gone by was used to slander the Catholic Clergy and in particular the Society of Jesus, to whom it was falsely attributed. Word for word, almost, and with merely the verbal alterations necessary to connect it with the Knights of Columbus, this outworn slander has been revived in all its hideousness, directed against a new Society and assiduously circulated within the past year throughout the United States and Canada as it is now being circulated through Newfoundland. The so-called "Oath" is from beginning to end, a tissue of falsehoods false in the letter and false still in its spirit. Nothing bearing the slightest resemblance to it is found in any part of the ceremonial of our Order.

I should like to draw the attention of your readers to the result of a recent controversy which took place in Seattle, Washington, in connection with a public statement made in that City, on September 1st, 1912, in the course of which it was alleged that this same "Oath" was the Oath taken by Fourth Degree Members of the Knights of Columbus. As a result of this statement the Knights in Seattle voluntarily decided to submit to a committee of Protestant gentlemen, the printed ceremonial containing the actual obligation taken by Fourth Degree Members of the Order. The following newspaper extract gives the result of the investigation:

"The gentlemen to whom this obligation was submitted are H. C. Henry, railroad contractor and president of the Metropolitan Bank, J. D. Lowman, president of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce; J. E. Chilberg, Vice-president of the Scandinavian-American Bank of Seattle. The signed statement of these gentlemen follows:

"COMMITTEE FINDINGS.

"Honorable Catholic gentlemen of this city have placed for examination in the hands of the undersigned two papers. One, the actual fourth degree obligation taken by each person upon becoming a member of the Catholic organization known as the Knights of Columbus; the other, a printed circular purporting to be the above mentioned obligation. This latter is a blasphemous and horrible travesty upon the real oath, and as fair-minded citizens of this city, we cannot allow an atrocious libel upon the large body of our public-spirited Catholic fellow-citizens to stand undisputed. We declare further, that the obligation taken by the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus is one of loyalty and patriotism to our flag and nation, and that the said obligation binds those who assume it to the exercise of the highest type of American citizenship.

"Signed at Seattle, Wash., this 31st day of October, 1912.

H. C. HENRY,
J. D. LOWMAN,
J. E. CHILBERG."

I should like to add by way of comment on the last paragraph of the Committee's Report, that members of our Order under the Canadian and Newfoundland jurisdictions, are animated by the same loyalty to their "flag and nation" as those under the American jurisdictions feel toward theirs.

It is hard to imagine a more complete vindication than the Knights received from these three Protestant gentlemen of unimpeachable standing in Seattle, and in conclusion I may say that in the event of our finding it necessary here to have recourse to legal proceedings in order to silence this infamous slander or to punish its utterers, we would be equally content to leave it to a jury of our Protestant fellow-citizens to vindicate us in Newfoundland.

Yours faithfully,
JOHN FENELON,
Advocate,
Terra Nova Council,
Knights of Columbus.

Don't Scold an Irritable Child.

See if Tongue Isn't Coated, Stomach Sour and Bowels Waste Clogged.

Mother! Don't scold your cross, peevish child! Look at the tongue! See if it is white, yellow and coated! If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means that little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and foul, constipated waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little waste clogged bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowels cleanser and regulator needed—a little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixer of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

Frosty Up West.

At 8 p.m. yesterday there was a regular cold wave on the West Coast and other places along the line of railway. The thermometer registered 5 below at Bishop's Falls; 10 below at Quarry; 10 above at Humbermouth, 4 at Fort aux Basques and at Clarenceville 15 above. On this side it was no very cold but was intensely frosty late at night with a strong breeze of N. W. wind.

Two Operations.

Naval Reservist Fred Churchill who while going to his home in Portugal Cove, fell and broke his jaw bone, is getting better in the hospital. After the fractured bone was set another operation had to be performed as some smaller bones were found to be broken. He suffered much pain as a result of the accident.

Streets Dangerous.

Owing to the rain which fell Monday night and the succeeding frost the streets and hills are now in a very dangerous condition. The sidewalk of Water Street can only be compared to open air skating rinks, and the proprietors of mercantile establishments, if no others do it, should throw ashes on them to prevent patrons receiving broken limbs.

Standard of Value.

A rich American wanted to buy valuable pictures by the square foot, but he found they were not sold that way. He was in the same position as a person who bought yeast cakes by size or weight, instead of considering the bread-making qualities. White Swan Yeast cakes make more and better bread than ANY others of ANY size. Send for free sample. White Swan Spices & Cereal Co.

New Saw Mill.

The new saw mill erected by Mr. A. Hall, formerly of James Baird, Ltd., at Portugal Cove Road, is now in full operation and employs quite a number of hands. There is plenty of good wood in this section, and already Mr. Hall has contracts to cut millions of pieces for factories in the city. His enterprise is to be commended.

Bruces Passengers.

The passengers which arrived by to-day's express and which came to Port aux Basques on the Bruce at 9.20 on Monday were:—J. R. Irving, Edward Seeley, Mrs. A. Ferguson, W. C. Gear, P. J. Young, Miss M. Gear and several second class.

Police After Boys

Since the cold spurt of weather has been ushered in it is no uncommon occurrence to witness scores of boys playing hockey on the different streets in the city and complaints have reached the police authorities that not a few people have sustained injuries by being struck with the hard rubber puck they use. This is particularly the case on the higher levels as only a few days ago an aged woman, passing in that section, was struck a stunning blow in the head. In consequence of the reports received some of the police members are now going around endeavouring to capture the youths engaged in this wayward and dangerous sort of pastime on public thoroughfares.

Cod Pie tiu'.

By the Gloucester mail we learn that codfish is very plentiful now at Channel, Rose Blanche and neighbourhood and good catches are made when the weather permits of the men getting on the ground. The fish is sold for 3½ cents per pound frozen, which is a ½ cent in excess of last season. Halibut was never as scarce as at present, and before the Gloucester came down the coast not a pound of this succulent denizen of the deep had been taken from the water.

While passing down Water Street yesterday forenoon when just west of Williams' Lane a girl narrowly escaped being brained. The heat of the sun melted a lot of ice on the slanting roofs of the buildings on the north side and it suddenly came to the sidewalk with a crash. Fully 50 lbs. of it fell and some large pieces of ice hit her on the back. Had she been a little slower in walking she would have been instantly killed, as the whole mass would have descended on her head.

MOUTHS.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Don't you just enjoy seeing a nice looking middle-aged woman—a well-groomed, trim, erect woman, — who has not felt obliged to throw all pretensions to style and good grooming to the winds, just because she happens to have left the fiftieth milestone behind her?

I do. And the other day I caught sight of an exceptionally fine example of this rare species—or rather I thought I had.

She was sitting across from me in the trolley car, and at first I caught only fugitive glimpses of her between strap-hangers. She wore the trimmest of tailored suits and a simple, a thoroughly stylish hat was placed at the right angle on her charmingly fluffed gray hair. And then, just as I was saying to myself, "well that woman's husband and children must be proud of her," a group of strap-hangers moved on and gave me a full face view.

Whereupon I changed my mind. For the woman's face was completely marred by a very ugly mouth.

It was one of those tight, hard mouths that spoil the prettiest faces. It wasn't an essentially ugly shape,—in fact, it was probably very pretty once upon a time,—but it had evidently been distorted into its present condition by the temperament of its owner.

And truly, that hard repellent line across her face completely marred her face and indeed the whole effect of her otherwise charming appearance. If you are any student of faces at all, you must surely have noticed how many of the faces you see in the trolley cars, in the streets, in the shops, in short, everywhere you go, are marred by ugly mouths.

I don't mean intrinsically homely mouths, but mouths made ugly by the character, habits and temperaments of their owners.

How many tight mouths, how many sensuous mouths, how many discontented mouths, how many haughty mouths we see everywhere. When once in a while we catch a glimpse of a sweet, sensitive, beautiful mouth, it is like finding a wild flower growing in the cracks of a city pavement.

Have you noticed, too, how rare is a mouth with the corners turned up? There are at east ten straight, even mouths and ten others with mournfully drooping corners, to one with the peppy, upward curve which means that the owner of that mouth has the priceless gift of happiness.

We make our mouths more than any other feature of our faces. Our lives write themselves out in the shape of the mouth and the lines about it with striking clearness. It doesn't seem as if even a child could fail to see the hardness of some mouths. Mouths advertise a man or woman's character as blazingly and blatantly as an electric sign.

What is your mouth saying about you?

Is it a charm or a deformity, an advertisement or a warning?

Look in the glass and see.

Ruth Cameron

For The Nervous Woman,

Or the woman who experiences hot flashes nothing is so good to soothe, quiet and calm the nervous system as a pure glyceric extract of native medicinal plants, and made without alcohol, which has been sold by druggists for the past forty years, and more women suffer from dizziness, or fainting spells, hysteria, headache, bearing-down feelings and pain. All these symptoms of irregularity and female disturbance are relieved by the use of this famous "Prescription" of Doctor Pierce.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system, and in particular to the organs distinctly feminine. For over-worked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, it is an excellent appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

"My disease was called retroversion," writes Mrs. LYDIA McDONALD, of Meosota, Mich., Route 1. "I had nervous chills and numb spells and they would leave me very weak. Then I had inflammation and the doctor said I had a floating kidney. I doctored seven months with our family physician. He said I would have to have an operation. Then I stopped taking his medicine. After taking three bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicines I have not had any nervous chills or weak spells. I am better than ever."

"My daughter is now taking the 'Prescription' and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, also the 'Pellets' for nervousness and weak, tired feeling. These remedies have helped her ever so much in a short time. We have great faith in your medicines for female troubles."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets induce mild natural bowel movements.

Mrs. McDONALD.

Household Notes.

Tarnished silver can be brightened if placed for a short time in boiling water in which a fair-sized lump of washing soda has been dissolved.

A weak solution of carbolic acid applied carefully to ink stains on carpets will remove them. If this changes the color, it may be restored by ammonia water.

To keep the table salt dry and soft, dry it, then crush it under a rolling pin till perfectly free from lumps; and sift into it a tablespoonful of cornstarch.

A recipe for axle grease is a pound of tallow, half a pound of castor oil, quarter of a pound of black lead. Melt the tallow and rub the whole together.

Vaseline stains may be removed from wash goods by soaking in wood alcohol and rubbing with the hands, then wash in hot soapsuds. Keep the alcohol away from fire.

A good play dress for a child can be made from a man's worn shirt. Cut it Dorothy style, and the work is very little, not to mention the saving in the youngster's clothes.

Before putting away spare silver clean it thoroughly, then wrap it in dark blue paper with camphor balls in the parcel, and it will be found bright even months afterward.

RELIEVED HER RHEUMATISM

She's Glad She Picked Up a Sample Bottle of Douglas' Egyptian Liniment.

Mrs. R. Mead, Sr., an Auburn, Ont. lady, tells this interesting story of how she conquered her ancient enemy, Rheumatism.

"I have been a great sufferer from Rheumatism for a great many years. I have used different medicines but they have never done me much good. We picked up a sample bottle of your Liniment at our gate and I used it, and to my surprise it relieved me wonderfully. We secured two bottles from our store-keeper and I must tell you it relieved the pain, and I would not be without it now."

It is hard to understand how Douglas' Egyptian Liniment can so quickly and so surely relieve the most torturing pains of man or beast. But it can and does do it, where other remedies utterly fail.

is spoiled if the oven is too hot. As soon as the cake has risen and taken a rich brown color the heat should be lessened to what cooks call a "soaking heat" and the cake should be kept in this moderate heat until a pointed knife or a skewer stuck in the middle of the cake without uncooked paste sticking to it.

Milk

By H. L. RANN.

Milk is a pale beverage which is coaxed from the lowing kine with the bare hands, allowed to ferment and then sold to the ultimate consumer by the half pint. Nearly all of the milk which is sold to strangers has to be diluted with a good quality of cistern water, in the ratio of about 16 to 1, in order to prevent the purchaser from becoming inebriated.

Milk is manufactured in large quantities by the domestic cow, which stores it up during the day time and lets go of it hurriedly in the hush of twilight, at the request of the hired man. Whenever the hired man meets a cow which is reluctant to perform this simple household duty, he appeals to her finer nature by striking her heavily with both feet. Sometimes this renders the cow dissatisfied, and she retaliates by running one leg through the milk pail.

When milk has stood around in comparative idleness for several hours, without being tampered with by the cat, it grows a rich yellow roofing, called cream, which is skimmed off several inches below the surface. What is left is then bottled and sold to people whose stomachs are perfectly fearless. No cream is allowed to enter a milk bottle unless the proprietor of the dairy is afflicted with attacks of intermittent blindness.

Milk never turns sour until it is time to spray it into the morning coffee, when it has to be revived with sal soda. If it has gone so far that a putorator can't reach it, it is used as a substitute for lemon extract in making pies, pancakes and dyspeptics.

Condensed milk is a pre-shrunken product which is considered a great delicacy by people who have never seen any kind of cream except the complexion bleach. It will keep indefinitely in the house of a man who has once lived on a farm.

Buttermilk is a salubrious by-product which can be enjoyed by anybody with a cultivated taste and a cast-iron will. It is harder to cultivate a deep thirst for buttermilk than it is to read Browning without.

The Late Mr. Thos. C. Duder

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Since my departure from St. John's, now twenty years ago, welcome bundles of your brightly edited paper have reached me at irregular intervals, but it is many months since I saw a copy until this morning. This has obviously been sent to draw my attention to the death of a greatly cherished friend, Mr. Thos. C. Duder, late Stipendiary Magistrate of Bonne Bay.

May I be permitted to pay brief tribute to one of the blithest and kindest souls I have met in a ministry of 30 years? Since I returned to England the ranks of my Newfoundland friends have been cruelly thinned and the tidings of their loss has given me great grief; but between myself and "Tom" Duder there was especial intimacy. I knew him first during a happy sojourn in your northern capital. In charge of the branch establishment of E. Duder & Co. at Fogo, he was not very accessible nor was he altogether remote.

At least twice during the rigorous winter of 1882 and 1883 he came to preside over certain functions at Twillingate, his fine roan horse Charlie drawing his sleigh over the glistering highway of the frozen sea. Mr. Duder's well set-up form and merry, open, health-tanned face, his underlying spirituality, his cheery speech, made him a favourite visitor with our congregations in the north.

During my stay in Bonnavista I saw less of my friend, but on my marriage and removal to Musgrave Harbor he and his became important factors in our lives.

My wife, a Londoner, will never to her dying day forget the solicitude of her Fogo friends from the moment she landed at the stage, on the sheltered side of the island, on a night too wild to admit of the s.s. Plover entering the harbor. We were entertained at Mr. Duder's hospitable home, finding true English comfort there, until conditions favored our passage down the coast to Musgrave Harbor.

Manse. The tender ministrations of those days left an ineffaceable impression, and my wife was overcome with emotion as she read her friend's obituary this morning.

The happiness of my pastorate at Cochrane Street, St. John's, was much enhanced by the fact that Mr. Duder had removed from the north and joined the membership of that Church. Of his help to me in my work there, I will simply say this: Amongst many loyal friends, there was none whose backing I valued more.

Thomas C. Duder was a Methodist by training, by conviction, and by choice. He had the gift of utterance, and in public prayer, in the days when I knew him, he had exceptional power. He had strong English sympathies, and his last visit to the Old Country was a haunting joy for long afterwards. My English friends who saw much of him and Mrs. Duder, were captivated by them both, and on the hypothesis that these were simple colonialists heartily congratulated us on our surroundings.

I find it hard to realize that this firm friend of 30 years will not be there to meet me when I pay a long-contemplated return visit to your rugged, but always, to me and mine, enchanting shores. I hope for Newfoundland's sake that Christians of his manly type are being multiplied. May I respectfully give, through your hospitable columns, assurance of our very deep sympathy with the widow and family and friends of my beloved associate of a day, distant according to the counting of the years, but brought into strong relief by his passing.

Very faithfully yours, FREDERICK R. DUFFILL. (Wesleyan Minister). "Roundthorn" Sale, Manchester, England.

A Mystery That Baffled SCOTLAND YARD.

One of Britain's Sensational Undiscovered Crimes.

In the year 1908, there lived at a house in Long Acre, situated at the corner of Langley street, a family of the name of Isaacs. The family consisted of Mr. A. Isaacs and his wife, several sons, and a sister of Mrs. Isaacs. There were also two maid-servants in the house. Mr. Isaacs, senior, was a well known fruit salesman in Covent Garden Market, his sons being also employed at the same place.

The ground floor of the house in question consisted of a shop for the sale of fruit; there were two doors, one giving access to the shop and the other leading to the rooms above, where the Isaacs family lived.

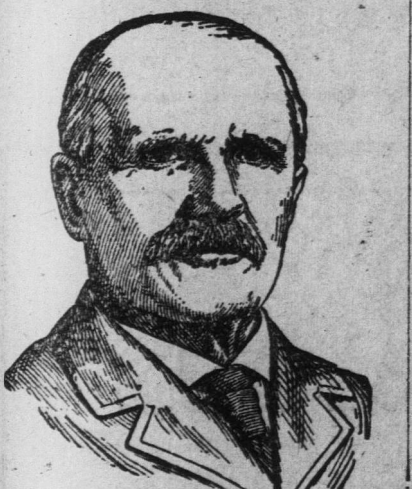

The latter was a pretty serviceable door, protected with an iron grille. There was a short and narrow passage, and then came the staircase. Another staircase led down to the kitchen.

On the first floor front was a sitting-room; on the second floor, also in front, was situated the bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Isaacs. In this room and immediately behind the door was an iron safe, which was built into the wall. On the floor above slept Mrs. Isaacs's sister and the maid-servants.

Only Women in the House.
That was the precise disposition of the various occupants of the house

How He Escaped An Operation

And Was Completely Cured of Piles of 14 Years' Standing by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Doctors say that about one person in every four suffers more or less from piles, and who can imagine a more annoying, torturing, disagreeable ailment?
After trying a few treatments without success, and as the ailment grows worse, the medical doctor is consulted. An operation, he says, is necessary. You think of the suffering, expense and risk to life itself, and hesitate before taking such a step.
In many thousands of such cases Dr. Chase's Ointment has made thorough and lasting cures. Read this letter for the proof.
Mr. Charles Beauvais, a well-known citizen of St. Jean, Que., writes:—"For 14 years I suffered from chronic piles, and considered my case very serious. I was treated by a celebrated doctor who could not help me and ordered a surgical operation as the only means of relief.
"However, I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and obtained great relief from the first box. By the use of three boxes I was entirely cured. This is why it gives me great pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from piles as a treatment of the greatest value."
Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Mrs. Isaacs eventually recovered, but unhappily she was not able to render much material assistance to the police in tracking down the culprit. She afterwards stated that she saw a man in her room, although she saw him but vaguely. All she could say of him was that he was a tall man, dressed in a blue suit, and had "long fingers."

Now this description might or might not be accurate. One has to take into consideration the fact that the lady was in a dazed condition, that it was still dark, and that such particulars as she gave might very well have been inaccurate even had the light been good. And for this reason: The human power of observation never errs so much and so frequently as it does on points of measurement and color.

So that poor Mrs. Isaacs' "tall man" might very well have been short or only medium, his clothing green or grey, and as for his "long fingers"—well, that is really too vague to be of any use at all. Practically the only one that was forthcoming was a certain button which was found on the floor of the bedroom, a "spotted button" which had evidently fallen from a man's waistcoat.

As no such button was missing from the waistcoat of any of the family must have been left behind by the assailant. This was certainly a clue, but unfortunately it led to nothing, and male occupants of the house, it clear-ly Isaacs was attacked in her sleep and was able to get only a mere glimpse of her assailant ere she became unconscious—going from one condition of unconsciousness, as it were to another. She afterwards recovered, as we have seen, and rang the bell.

The safe having been cleared, the man or men walked quietly downstairs again and left by the front door in the ordinary course. Their departure at such a time and place would not arouse any suspicion.

There is a fine chance in this case for some amateur Sherlock Holmes to distinguish himself by tracking down "the man with the long fingers."

The Cracksmen Knew Nothing.
But there are certain remarkable features about this crime, this "unsolved mystery" of London.

In the first place it was no ordinary burglary committed on the usual lines or methods adopted by the professional "cracksmen"—to give him his technical title. The intimate knowledge which the criminal or criminals possessed of the habits of the Isaacs family and the "ins" of their house was certainly remarkable.

We admit that before a "cracksmen" who is really worth his criminal "salt" ventures upon a "burst," he does take the utmost pains to acquaint himself of such details, but in the present case we shall find something more than this customary display of "inside" knowledge.

For instance, no forcible entry was made into the house in Long Acre, the burglar having gained access in the ordinary way with a key. How did he get possession of the latter?

Well, just prior to the burglary the key of the front door, which was usually kept downstairs in the kitchen, mysteriously disappeared, and shortly after as mysteriously reappeared. Was it taken by somebody for the purpose of procuring a duplicate? If so, who was it that took it and was able afterwards to replace it?

Again it must have been known to the burglar or burglars that the key of the safe was always kept under the pillow where Mrs. Isaacs slept, for the safe was opened in the ordinary way with it, and not forced open.

There were some finger-prints on the door of the safe, but these were too blurred to be of any use. But even if the prints had been quite plain they would not have been of any more use unless the man had been previously convicted. That should be borne in mind in regard to finger-prints; also the fact that there are at the present time heaps of criminals about, who are literally steeped in crime, yet have never been convicted.

Therefore, the finger-prints of such criminals would be of no use whatever as clues, inasmuch as they keep only the finger-prints of convicted criminals at headquarters.

But there is even a still more remarkable feature of this crime than any we have yet described, and it is this: It transpired that just prior to the burglary Mrs. Isaacs had a considerable amount of money deposited in a certain bank.

It suddenly and subtly came to her knowledge that the bank in question was not safe. She heard a report to that effect.

Now this alarmed her to such an extent that she straightway proceeded to draw the money out and invest it in some other concern. This locks an innocent enough incident on the surface—vague reports of the supposed instability of banks are by no means uncommon—but if we view it in the light shed by other contiguous incidents we shall find that it is anything but innocent.

For instance, Mrs. Isaacs was in the habit, as we have seen, of keeping money as well as jewellery in the safe in her bedroom. What more natural than, having drawn a large sum of money from a bank suddenly, she should straightway and for the time being deposit it for safety in the safe in question. And this is undoubtedly what Mrs. Isaacs would have done.

But, strangely enough she changed her mind even on the way from the bank and with the money still in her possession. She did not go straight home with it as it was undoubtedly surmised she would, but decided instead to take it straight to another establishment and there invest it, so that the money never reached Long Acre at all.

Elizabeth, N. H., Jan. 19.—In a fire believed to be of incendiary origin in a frame tenement house here to-day, a woman and her two children were trapped on the third floor and burned to death. Two men were injured, one probably mortally by jumping from a third storey window. Mrs. Louis Simbro and her two daughters, two months and four years old, respectively, are dead. Rafael Murillo, a boarder, is in a hospital in a critical condition. Charred bodies of mother and children were found in the ruins.
