THE HEIR OF Lancewood

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"He is living and well," returned Gerald; "he is on his way now to America with one who will take the greatest care of him—one who will make him a good, honest, honorable man. He is so young that he will soon forget all about Lancewood. He can live in affluence, if you please, but away from here, and Lancewood will remain in proper hands."

She stood like one turned to stone; the setting sun shining on her face showed that it was white, and cold, and still as the face of the dead. She never moved nor spoke. The shock was so terrible to her that in after years she wondered that it did not kill her.

"May Heaven forgive me," she said slowly—"and you also! I can never pardon myself, Gerald. I feel like a murderer."

"Nay," he returned; "so far as the boy is concerned, the change is far better for him; instead of growing up a dissipated, unprincipled, spoiled tyrant, he will be made a useful man and a good member of society. He would never have been that here."

"Shall," she said, dreamily, "I do not understand. You were away in London when Oswald disappeared—how could you have been concerned in his abduction?"

"I went to London merely to obtain a disguise," he answered. "Shall I tell you the story of the abduction, Miss Neslie?"

She bent her head for a minute and then, raising it, said—
"Yes; tell me all—tell me every detail."

CHAPTER XXXV.

"Tell me all about the abduction of little Oswald," repeated Miss Neslie to Gerald Dorman.

"I will tell you everything," he promised. "I had planned it in my own mind even before I had left your side on the evening that you gave me your ring. I told you I was going to London on the morning following; I thought you understood that it was for this."

"I never even dreamed of it," said Vivien, slowly.

"I went to London and there purchased for myself the disguise of an old man—a white wig and a white beard. These, with a broad-brimmed hat, so disguised my face that I hardly knew myself. I next purchased the dress of a little girl, and then I returned to Lancewood. For days I wandered about here, watching an opportunity to waylay the boy; that opportunity came at last, when I found him by the banks of the river. He did not know me, and I persuaded him to go into the woods with me."

He stopped abruptly—a low moan from Vivien's lips had startled him.

"Miss Neslie," he said, "believe me, the evil is not without remedy. Just as I would have died to do it, I would die to undo it."

"Tell me all," she said, presently.

"I will tell you. In the disguise I had purchased I met the child, and he did not know me. I took him into the woods, and, by telling him some story or other, persuaded him to change his clothes and put on the little girl's dress that I had bought. He enjoyed the fun, and talked all the time; then, I leading him by the hand, we walked down to the river-side, and, unseen by him, I threw his hat and cape into the water—further down I flung in his whip. Many people who afterward joined in the search met that day an old man and a little girl, as they thought, without the least idea who they really were. Then we went straight across the country, took a main at a leading junction, and went to London. My brother, who is devoted to me, has undertaken the entire charge and education of the boy; but he does not know who he is, and he treats all he says about Lancewood as the result of a diseased brain—or, if he suspects, he says nothing. I have promised him five hundred per annum, and with that he is to provide handsomely for the boy. He will be well fed, well dressed, well educated; he will have the training of a Christian gentleman and will be taught a trade or profession, whichever he prefers. He likes my brother, and remained with him willingly enough."

"But, asked Vivien, in a low voice, "Did he not cry for his home or his mother?"

"No; the novelty of traveling, and going to sea, more than compensated for home. Indeed, Miss Vivien, I do not think the child ever liked his mother. He is so young; at his age every impression soon fades. Before he has been a year with my brother he will think his life at Lancewood a dream. I posted my letter from London, that I might not appear to be in any way mixed up in the affair. I spent the greater part of my time in Liverpool, making preparations for the boy's departure. I assure you, when I saw him last, he was living and well; he stood on the deck laughing and waving his hand to me. I assure you also of another thing—he was a far better boy when he went away than he had ever been here. My brother is a good man, who will train him well. If he suspects any mystery at all, it is nothing like the truth. He may imagine that the boy is Lady Neslie's son—he does not know that he is heir to Lancewood. The advertisements and rewards that attracted so much attention never met his eyes."

She stood quite silent, leaning against the passion-flowers; then suddenly she raised her face to the blue sky.

"I did not mean you to act as you have done," she said. "That day I was mad with shame and misery, but I did not mean it—I swear I did not. And I did not think you would take me at my word."

He looked at her sadly.

"I understand. On that day you felt capable of anything; afterward you repented."

"I did not think much of it afterward," she replied. "Gerald, my brain is not clear—I am dazed. I forget if I really meant it. I forget if I felt sorry afterward. I only remember that I thought anything better than to let Lancewood fall into such unworthy hands."

His face brightened.

"Then perhaps, after all, I have not displeased you?" he said. "Remember that I would die for you, and that death would be more acceptable to me than your displeasure."

Defy Dyspepsia!

Among the symptoms of Dyspepsia or Indigestion may be mentioned a heavy, cutting pain soon after eating; a distended, full feeling of the stomach and bowels; belching of wind and flatulence; a burning sensation in the stomach, which indicates acidity; heartburn; palpitation of the heart; oppression of breathing; pain under the ribs and shoulder-blades; headache through the temples and eyes; dizziness, coated tongue and constipation; sometimes nausea or vomiting.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt is the natural specific for all these conditions. Being an antacid, it immediately relieves the acidity of the stomach and stops the fermentation. It stimulates the secretion and muscular action of the stomach and bowels, and overcomes the constipation. When its use is kept up the normal action of all the organs of digestion is re-established.

Sold everywhere at 25c. and 60c.

She looked at him with sad dreamy eyes, his meaning quite lost upon her.

"It can all be remedied, Miss Neslie," he said. "You have but to say the word, and I will undo the evil. I will go at once to America and bring the boy back. I can say that he was stolen by tramps or gypsies. I can fabricate a story that will have every appearance of truth. I can say that he was stolen for the sake of the reward that would be offered. Lady Neslie would be so delighted to recover him that she would be quite content to pardon the theft. I should tell her that those who had stolen the child awaited her promise of full pardon before returning him. Trust me—even as I have done this deed, I will find some way to undo it. Miss Neslie, everything rests now in your hands. On the day that you wished the boy got rid of you may have spoken unguardedly, under the influence of unbearable irritation; afterward you may have repented what you said; but now you have time to think, so I leave the matter in your hands. If you say 'Yes,' I will bring the boy back at once, and take all the consequences upon myself; if you say 'No,' I will let him be where he is. It is for you to decide."

She stood motionless, her hands clasped together; she heard the rustle of Mr. Greston's paper, the faint ripple of the fountain, the sweet whisper of the wind; she heard, and it all seemed to her outside her own life—she was alone with this terrible decision before her—alone with the terrible secret that had almost slain her. Should she say "Yes," and see the old times renewed in all their horror—see mixed with her train of followers return—see ruin, destruction, dissipation, even shame, once more at Lancewood—see the ill-trained child of a strolling player master and lord? Or should she say "No," and see more than the ancient honor of Lancewood revive? Should she say "Yes," and purchase for her own soul peace, even at the price of Lancewood? Or should she say "No," and never know peace again?

How long they had both stood there they did not know; hours might have passed in the agony of that interval. At last Vivien raised her face once more to his. It was quite colorless, with an expression in the eyes that afterward never quite left them.

"I have decided," she said, in a hoarse whisper. "Let matters remain as they are."

He caught her hands in his own.

"Do you mean it? You will not repent, you will not regret it?"

"I mean it," she said—"no strolling player's child shall be lord of Lancewood. I shall never repent or regret my decision—it is for the best."

And that was the sin of her lifetime. Once before, she had said the same thing, but it was in the hurried passion of the hour, when she was goaded past all endurance. Now there was no anger, no passion. She stood under the calm summer's sky, the world at rest, the wind whispering of peace, the flowers of Heaven. She had time to reflect, to deliberate, to judge calmly; and she decided that things should remain as they were—that the heir of Lancewood should not regain his inheritance; and so she committed the sin of her lifetime.

Gerald saw her bow down over some crushed passion flowers in her hand—flowers not more crushed than the noble soul that had fallen into such an abyss of guilt.

He did not interrupt her—he stood patiently by her side, watching her intently, longing to say some word of comfort or hope, but not daring to do so. Then the sun set and the dew began to fall—he saw some drops on her dark hair and some on her dress, and bowels; belching of wind and flatulence; a burning sensation in the stomach, which indicates acidity; heartburn; palpitation of the heart; oppression of breathing; pain under the ribs and shoulder-blades; headache through the temples and eyes; dizziness, coated tongue and constipation; sometimes nausea or vomiting.

He never forgot the face she raised to his, so white was it, so full of pain and anguish, the dark eyes dim with unshed tears. His whole heart went out from him in a passion of pity.

"Miss Neslie," he said, "now that we are here, talking for the last time, I hope, of this subject, which distresses you so greatly, I take courage and venture to speak to you of my reward."

"Your reward?" she echoed.

"Yes; you remember your words—that to the man who would save Lancewood you would give your life? You remember that?"

"Yes," she said faintly.

"I do not ask for your life; I ask for your love. You remember the king of old who said, 'Ask of me what you will—even if it be half of my kingdom—and I will give it to you?' You have said more than that to me; I ask for your love."

She looked at him vaguely, as though she did not understand.

"I know," he said, "that I am far beneath you—only the greatness of my love elevates me and places me by your side. I have no money, no position, but I love you with a devotion of far more worth than gold or lands. Your father trusted me; you have trusted me. He left you in some measure to my care—my whole heart and life lie at your feet."

She interrupted him suddenly with a gesture of command.

"Hush," she said. "I did not understand before; you are making love to me!"

"I am laying my heart, my life, my soul, my love at your feet," he replied. "Words are all too weak to tell you how I love you. I have loved you from the first moment I saw your beautiful face, and I shall love you until I die."

"Yet you have helped me to sin terribly!" she said, with a shudder.

"Is it a sin that takes power from worthless hands and gives it to a noble woman who will use it nobly? Is it a sin to save a boy from the worst of all lives—that of an idle profligate—and make of him an honest man? Even according to your own creed, Miss Neslie, is it a sin to take Lancewood from the child of a strolling player and give it to a loyal descendant of the grand old Norse race?"

"Yes," she answered sadly. "You and I may use what sophistry we like—we may gloss it over, we may call it by any fine name we choose—none the less it is a mean, pitiful, terrible sin."

"Will you undo it?" he asked patiently.

"I have told you 'No.' Do not torture me," she replied quickly.

ITALY PREPARES FOR WINTER.

New York, Aug. 18.—More than 2,500,000 yards of material will be required in the manufacture of 800,000 overcoats, orders for which are said to have been placed by the Italian Government, through its purchasing agency in this city with the C. Kenyon Company, Sigmund Eisner and Heidelberg, Wolf & Co. There are two separate orders calling for 400,000 overcoats each. It is reported that contracts for much of the material have been made with Massachusetts mills, principally in the Pittsfield section.

The American Woolen Company and S. H. and C. B. Newhouse, it is said, have received Italian orders for more than a million pairs of blankets.

"Reports regarding activity by Belgium and France," it continues, "are said to be without foundation, as it is declared on good authority that the supplies on hand for those Governments are sufficient for some time to come."

There is nothing better for the girl's play outfit than bloomers and a middy blouse.

The neckline, as well as the waistline, is not a stationary thing. It may be high or low.

FORCING OF DARDANELLES—RUSSIAN STRAITS ALREADY FORCED.

LONDON, Aug. 25.

Forcing of the Dardanelles and an attack on Constantinople may be looked for at any moment now, is the opinion of military authorities here. Rumors were rife to-day that the Straits had already been forced by the Allies, and one official, stating that he had it on unimpeachable authority, but refusing to give details, made the following enigmatical statement: "Something of such importance has already occurred at the Dardanelles that the price of wheat will shortly be greatly affected."

It is probable that many of these rumors take their origin in a statement from Athens, this morning, that two British cruisers had penetrated the Dardanelles, sunk four Turkish transports and destroyed several shore batteries, a story that caused great enthusiasm in London to-day.

On the heels of this story came the French official statement, issued to-day, telling of great British gains on land and the sinking of a Turkish transport by a French aviator.

Though all this proves that terrific fighting has been taking place on Gallipoli Peninsula recently, the British War Office and Admiralty have made no official statement, but a report from General Sir Ian Hamilton is expected at any time.

Other stories from Athens state that the Turkish capital is overflowing with wounded; that every hospital and every spare public building in the city is filled, and ships

FORCING OF DARDANELLES—RUSSIAN STRAITS ALREADY FORCED.

LONDON, Aug. 25. Forcing of the Dardanelles and an attack on Constantinople may be looked for at any moment now, is the opinion of military authorities here. Rumors were rife to-day that the Straits had already been forced by the Allies, and one official statement that he had it on unimpeachable authority, but refusing to give details made the following enigmatical statement: "Something of such importance has already occurred at the Dardanelles that the price of wheat will shortly be greatly affected." On the heels of this story came the French official statement, issued to-day, telling of great British gains on the coast and the sinking of a Turkish transport by a French aviator. "Though all this proves that terrible fighting has been taking place on Gallipoli Peninsula recently, the British War Office and Admiralty have made no official statement, but a report from General Sir Ian Hamilton is expected at any time. Other stories from Athens state that the Turkish capital is overflowing with wounded; that every hospital and every spare public building in the city is filled, and ships in the harbor are being used as refuges for the wounded. All this testifies to the desperate nature of the struggle. The belief that the Turks are really running short of munitions is beginning to be held here.

NEWS AGENCY DESPATCH.
 NEW YORK, Aug. 25. A News Agency despatch published here this afternoon, under date Athens, Aug. 25, says: "Two Allied cruisers penetrated the Dardanelles yesterday and bombarded Kastanza batteries with considerable effect."

A PRIVATE CABLE.
 MONTREAL, Aug. 25. A private cable received in Montreal this afternoon by a person who has friends in the Dardanelles region, stated that the Allies were through the famous Straits.

BOOMB CONSTANTINOPLE.

LONDON, Aug. 25. Bombardment of the outskirts of Constantinople by a Russian aeroplane squadron, resulting in the death or injury of 41 persons, was announced in a despatch from Athens to the News, according to these advices, the attack was made on Monday on the Asiatic suburbs of Constantinople. A number of bombs were dropped, throwing the people into panic, thirty Turks, eight Greeks and three Armenians were killed or wounded.

PROGRESS IN THE DARDANELLES

PARIS, Aug. 25. A French official report on the fighting in the Dardanelles between Aug. 20th and the morning of August 25th, relates that the British left wing has made progress against the Turks, occupying 800 yards of Turkish trenches in the northern zone of the fighting, and that a French aviator on August 20th was successful in sending to the bottom a large Turkish transport.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Aug. 25. In Artois last night throughout the entire sector to the north of Arras, artillery fighting was of a highly spirited nature. Furthermore there were engagements with hand grenades. In the vicinity of Souchez and Neuville, around Roye and in the neighborhood of Lassigny, artillery exchanges yesterday and last night, continued actively. From Champagne district and from the Argonne the only reports received refer to fighting in which several men were employed. In the Vosges there were, yesterday, engagements with hand grenades. On the Barrenkopf, a French aviator threw down bombs on the railroad station at Lorrach, in the Grand Duchy of Baden, 25 miles to the southwest of Freiburg.

BERLIN OFFICIAL.

BERLIN, Aug. 25. A hostile aviator last night, dropped bombs on the town of Offenburg. The material damage done was insignificant. Twelve civilians were injured, several seriously. Offenburg is a manufacturing town on the Kinzig River, 17 miles south of Karlsruhe.

THE EXCHANGE PROBLEM.

LONDON, Aug. 25. A meeting of bankers was held here yesterday to decide what steps should be taken to assist the Government in the effort to improve the exchange rate situation between Britain and the States. It was made clear at the meeting that unless bankers were prepared to support the Bank of England, in dealing with the problem it might become necessary to raise the bank rate.

SOLDIERS' ALLOWANCES.

LONDON, Aug. 25. In sentencing a soldier for fraud in connection with separation allowances, Magistrate Treloar to-day remarked that he understood the nation was now paying something like $200,000,000 a year in these allowances to the families of soldiers absent at the front.

HONOR BRITAIN'S DEAD.

LONDON, Aug. 25. A telegram from Copenhagen says that the Danish steamer Vidal sailed for Hull to-day with the bodies of 14 men who lost their lives as the result of an attack on the British submarine E-13 by a German warship, after the submarine grounded last week on the Danish Island of Saltholm. Before the departure of the Vidal, a funeral service was held at Copenhagen and attended by Lieut.-Commander Layton and other survivors of the E-13, members of the Danish cabinet, Danish naval officials, and representatives of the British Legation. Danish bluejackets bore the coffins between decks and placed them in an improvised chapel. The coffins were covered with hundreds of flags, with seraphs, and the Danish and British colors. Vast throngs assembled at the waterfront. The people stood steamed out accompanied by Danish torpedo boats. The Vidal was saluted by guns and flags of the forts. All the flags in Copenhagen were half-mast.

WASHINGTON AND COTTON CONTRABAND.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25. From Ambassador Page, London, the State department to-day received the text of the proclamation putting cotton and cotton products on the list of absolute contraband. The State Department will now proceed to prepare a note to the British Government, holding that because cotton has many other extensive uses than the manufacture of explosives, it cannot lawfully be regarded as absolute contraband.

GERMAN PLOT FOILED.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 25. Details of a plot, which was to culminate in the seizure of Vancouver and other cities on the Pacific coast, has just come to the attention of the authorities of this city. The details of the plan are said to have been worked out by Alvo von Alvensleben, a German broker of Vancouver, who was in Berlin when war was declared. The information obtained at Vancouver to-day is that while in Berlin, Alvensleben cabled to a "Tautonic" resident of Vancouver, asking him to call a meeting of trusted Germans, to start an agitation for inviting here Admiral von Spee's squadron, which was then on the China coast. Many committee meetings were held. If arrangements had succeeded, the Chinese and Scharhorst would probably have been in local waters when war broke out, ready to attempt to take possession not only of Vancouver, Victoria and Prince Rupert, but of the coal mines of Vancouver Island, in which German capital is heavily invested. The Germans planned control from here of the Pacific cable and the route to Vladivostok.

JAPAN AND THE ENTENTE.

PARIS, Aug. 25. "My first care will be to draw still closer the bonds uniting Japan and the Powers of the Triple Entente," said Baron Kikujie Ishii, the former Japanese Ambassador to France, who recently became Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Okuma Cabinet, to a representative of the Petite Journal. "Is not the fate of Japan," asked Baron Ishii, "entirely bound up with that of the Allies? Nay, I go further. After the war the relations of Japan and the Triple Entente must remain not a whit less close, not only in the interest of each, but still more in that of the world's peace." To an inquiry as to what aid Japan intended to give to Russia, the Baron said that since the beginning of the war, Japan has been sending arms and ammunition to Russia, in the presence of the grave difficulties through which Russia is now going, it is an imperative duty for us to consider what more can be done in order to give her the maximum of help."

NO OFFICIAL NEWS.

BERLIN, Aug. 25. The American Ambassador called on Foreign Minister Jagow last evening and asked for information concerning the sinking of the steamer Arabic. Mr. Gerard learns that the Government had no official news whatever on this subject.

SAIJS WITH SURVIVORS.

LONDON, Aug. 25. The steamer St. Paul, which sailed from Liverpool for New York to-day, had on board a number of the survivors of the steamer Arabic. Virtually all the berths on the St. Paul were occupied. A number of passengers, who had engaged accommodations, however, cancelled their passages at the last moment, owing to what were considered here as acute relations between the States and Germany, arising from the sinking of the Arabic.

A SWEDISH PROTEST.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 25. Another protest has been made to the German Government by Sweden. The complaint in this instance has to do with shelling the Swedish steamer Gothland, which subsequently was taken to Cuxhaven by the Germans. The Swedish Government states that the steamer carried no contraband.

GERMANS CLAIM ADVANCE.

BERLIN, Aug. 25. Russian advanced positions to the southwest of the fortress of Brest Litovsk, were broken through yesterday by the Germans.

NEUTRALITY AGAIN IGNORED.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 25. The Telegraf learns from Vlieland that a Zeppelin dirigible passed over that island off the Netherlands to-day, travelling from an eastern to a northeastern direction. The Vlieland is off the entrance to the Zuider Zee.

GERMANY'S SUBMARINES NUNBER 28.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 25. The German undersea fleet at present comprises 58 submarines, according to a neutral authority returned to Denmark from Germany. Germany's Battle fleet, according to the same authority, consists of 25 warships. Six thousand marines from Kiel have been sent to the eastern fighting front to reinforce the pioneer service army. It is stated.

GERMANY APOLOGETIC.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24. Count Von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, has received the following instructions from Berlin, which he has communicated to the Department of State: "So far no official information is available concerning the sinking of the Arabic. The German Government trusts that the American Government will not take any definite stand, hearing only reports of one side, which in the opinion of the Imperial Government is not to be quickly in attendance. We are glad to hear Mr. Brunlee is somewhat improved since." CORRESPONDENT.

ARABIC AFFIDAVITS.

LONDON, Aug. 24. The American Embassy has transmitted by cable the list of seven positions taken by Washington at Liverpool, six of which were from Americans aboard the Arabic, and the seventh from Capt. Finch. The last is regarded as particularly noteworthy, as it is unusual for the skipper of a ship to furnish an affidavit to any Government other than his own. All deponents state under oath that the Arabic was pursuing a peaceful course, and that she was not warned. All declare either that they saw the torpedo or heard the shout of a torpedo coming, also that the Arabic made no attempt to escape or ram the submarine.

THE BULGARIAN MYSTERY.

LONDON, Aug. 24. A despatch from Berlin to Amsterdam states that the Bulgarian Government has informed the Foreign Minister at Berlin, that Bulgarian negotiations with Turkey have come to an end. The Vessische Zeitung infers from this that an agreement has actually been reached. Other papers state that if an agreement has been reached, it deals only with the rectification of the frontier, and contains no political clause, bearing on the war.

BALKAN LEAGUE RUMORS.

LONDON, Aug. 24. A despatch from Rome to the Daily Telegraph says that the Balkan League is to be reconstructed, with provision for putting a combined army of 1,000,000 men in the field.

ROMANIA'S SIGNIFICANT MOVE.

COLOGNE, Aug. 24. According to the Cologne Gazette, the railways in Roumania, have received orders to place all rolling stock at the disposal of the Minister of War by September 14th.

RUSSIAN AUXILIARY TORPEDOED.

BERLIN, Aug. 24. The German Admiralty to-day announced that a German submarine had torpedoed and sunk a Russian auxiliary ship, at the entrance of the Gulf of Finland.

THE GERMAN STRENGTH.

LONDON, Aug. 24. A statement from an authoritative "British source" on Germany's strength in men, and her losses, was made public here to-day. The statement asserts that about July 31st the Germans had 1,800,000 men on the western battle front, and 1,400,000 on the eastern front, a total of 3,200,000 men on the actual fighting line, while there also were 1,120,000 Austrians opposed to the Russians. There were, in addition, convalescents, invalids and others. "It is impossible to say," the statement declares, "how far the reserve troops have been armed and equipped, but the fact that the total number of men on the two fronts is only 3,200,000 seem to show that this is about the largest number the Germans will be able to put, fully equipped, into the fighting line."

AEROPLANE COMMITTEE.

The full Aeroplane Committee will meet to-night in the Board of Trade Rooms at 8 o'clock. —aug26.11

Hr. Grace Notes.

Mrs. George Snow and her little boy are in town on a visit to Mr. Snow's brother, Mr. George T. Gordon. The schr. Studlands sailed to-day for Labrador, where she will do some fish collecting for her owner, Mr. E. Simmons. Miss M. Butt, teacher at the Presbyterian School, and a number of her pupils left on this morning train for Bay Roberts, en route to the camping grounds at Shearstown, where the balance of the week will be spent with the birds and flowers. May they have a pleasant time. Dr. Goodwin, dentist, returned from Brigus by Saturday night's train, where he spent a busy week. Mrs. Ballam, of Boston, nee Miss Lizzie Kennedy, formerly of this town, is here on a visit to friends. Mr. W. A. Munn was in town for a few days this week. He was accompanied by his little 7 year old son, Henley, the lad who captured the big salmon at Salmonier a few weeks ago. Hon. R. A. Squires, Minister of Justice, returned to St. John's by this morning's train. Mr. Alex. Noel, of the General Post Office, St. John's, is spending a few days with friends on the South Side. Mr. Ian M. Thompson, who had been on a visit to friends at Pogo, returned to town on Saturday last. Master Henry Crocker met with an accident this forenoon while at work in the Shoe Factory, and broke his arm in two places through being caught in the machine belt. Mr. John Brunlee was taken suddenly ill on Wednesday night last and died, when he was quite near, at the hospital, where he was quickly in attendance. We are glad to hear Mr. Brunlee is somewhat improved since. CORRESPONDENT.

THE HARVESTERS.

The harvest is ended, the harvest of wheat, and toilers who wended around in the heat, at stacking a r d shocking a r d loading the racks, a r e cityward walking, w i t h aches in their backs; they're cheerfully going where troubles are burned, intent upon blowing the money they earned. They labored like thunder their money to get; you'd think from that plunder they'd part with regret; you'd think they would save it, and, when it must go, with teardrops they'd lave it, the teardrops of woe. But that sort of action would give them a pain; there's no satisfaction in anything sane. Their thoughts they are giving to painting the earth, to nights of high living and wassail and mirth. And that is the reason why hoboes abound; in harvesting season ten million are found. The children of sorrow, who never can win, all thoughts of the morrow connected with gin. When farmers are calling for help, for their wheat, you see the bums falling all over their feet; you see them come drilling from alley and mews, to sweat for a shilling and blow it for booze.

A SETTLEMENT REACHED.

The strike or dispute that was on at Sydney, as previously alluded to in the Telegram, has been settled, an agreement having been come to between employers and employees. The dispute arose over the employment of aliens while Cape Bretonites were left idle.

SHOULD HANG SOME EDITORS.

"Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch, the English author, who has a commission in the Cornwall Pioneers, speaking at a recruiting meeting at St. Austell said he had not read the newspapers for six weeks. He was a believer in the liberty of the press, but if some of the proprietors of English newspapers had had what they deserved during the month of May and the early days of June, they would have been hanged. They did much worse work in heartening the enemy and disheartening England, and did it more deliberately than any man who had yet been shot as a spy," he said.

The Problem of the Near East.

Recent notes from Berlin, via Sayville, and from Athens seem to be maintaining their ill repute for unreliability. There is no confirmation of the Sayville report that Turkey has purchased the benevolent neutrality of Bulgaria. The Germans themselves now admit this, and news from other sources show that negotiations for bringing in Bulgaria with Roumania and Greece as active participants in the war on the side of the Allies are still progressing. How far Serbia and Greece are prepared to go to satisfy the aspirations of Bulgaria to hand over territory inhabited by Bulgars has not yet been published, and it is on this point that the action of Bulgaria is balanced, follow while Bulgaria like other Christian States of the Balkans has a historic hatred of the Turks, born of five centuries of oppression, they are determined to seek satisfaction for the wrongs they suffered at the hands of the Greeks, Serbians and Roumanians after they had brought Turkey to boot in the Balkan wars.

The Greek news as to the success of the Allies in obtaining command of the Narrows of the Dardanelles is much like most of the news of Dardanelles operations received from Athens. It has proved unreliable. Official news from Sir Ian Hamilton has made this clear. Some success has been made after terrible fighting, but the true objective has not yet been attained. The troops from the dominions, Australia and New Zealand, have not been able to maintain command of the heights of the plateau at Chunak Bahr and Sari Bahr, which they attacked first about fortnight ago. The main height is 971 feet and as it is about five miles from a second narrow "inside The Narrows," it is of the highest importance in obtaining a command from the North East of the most difficult and crooked part of the Dardanelles. Hope, however, is held out that by the end of September this objective will be reached. The participation of the Balkan Christian States would lead to an attack on Adrianople and the Tchatalja lines and an approach to Constantinople, which has been called the back-door. It would lead to a great expenditure of munitions by the Turks, concerning the supply of which the Turks like the Russians appear to be experiencing great difficulties. It would also lead to a diversion of much of the military strength of the Turks from the Dardanelles, weaken the forces opposed to General Hamilton and very materially increase the chances of the successful forcing of the Dardanelles and the obtaining of command of both sides of the Straits and allow the Fleet an entrance into the Sea of Marmora and its participation in attacking Constantinople, which must be done before a seaway is open to South Russia.

Here and There.

WEATHER.—A strong South West wind with rain prevails to-day. The temperature ranges from 60 to 63 above.

EARL OF DEVON.—The Earl of Devon left LaSalle at 8 p.m. on Tuesday last, coming south and is due here this evening.

A TOTAL WRECK.—The banking schr. Alice M. Lake which was ashore at Cow Head last week, has been condemned as a total loss.

A WARM DAY.—Yesterday was a warm day in the city. At noon the thermometers registered 84 in the shade. It was equally warm up country.

Christian Brothers' Schools, St. Patrick's and Holy Cross, will re-open on Monday, Aug. 30th.

CONFERENCE AT BERLIN.
BERLIN, To-day. Ambassador Gerrat at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, received a request from the German Foreign Minister Von Jagow, to call upon him, and left a luncheon party to respond to the invitation of the German Foreign Minister for a half hour with the Foreign Minister. Ambassador Gerrat afterwards would say nothing regarding the conversation.

LONDON BUDGET.
GALLIOLI OBJECTIVE NOT ATTAINED.
LONDON, To-day. An official report of recent operations in the Gallipoli Peninsula issued last night sets at rest rumors, which have been in circulation for several days, crediting British troops with having broken out or outflanked the Turkish forces opposed them. The report states while the ground gained is of great value, the true objective has not been reached. In the first attacks early in the month the Australians and New Zealanders reached the summit of Sari Bahr and Chunak Bahr, commanding positions on the West Coast Peninsula, but through the failure of the new landing party at Suvla Bay to make the progress expected, the troops from the Dominions were compelled to fall back. Another attack was made last Saturday but on this occasion, having lost the advantage and surprise, the British could not reach the summit and were compelled to retire again. The report admits heavy British losses, but adds those of the Turks must have been heavier. Altogether the British hold a front of 12 miles along the West Side of the Peninsula, and at some points have penetrated a considerable distance into the interior. The Turks are making a very stubborn defence of their positions, but the Allies are confident with the strong forces at their command and the assistance of the fleet, the Dardanelles will be forced before the arrival of unfavourable weather.

ADDITIONAL TROOPS LANDED.
LONDON, To-day. Recent operations on Gallipoli Peninsula have enabled British troops to extend materially the area in their possession and to connect their lines along a front of more than twelve miles, according to an official statement. The statement indicates also that additional troops have been landed on the Peninsula, although no details give the point stated simply that further reinforcements have arrived. It is stated that losses have been very heavy but that the Turks suffered more severely than the British. The public is warned that the resolution of this war should be made the true objective of operations has not been gained, and that further serious and costly efforts will be required before a decisive victory is won.

HOLD FIRM.
PARIS, To-day. An account of an audience granted him by Emperor Nicholas, was telegraphed to the Matin by an English former French Minister of Foreign Affairs. "Peasants speak to me in affectionate terms and every day receive from them several addresses saying 'Hold firm for we are all behind the Emperor.' The Emperor is quoted as saying: 'The Monarch's voice was firm and clear.' M. Cruppi says, as he is a Frenchman, he will do everything to carry the war to an end until victory necessary to free Europe is assured. The Emperor added, 'France can count on my inviolable will to struggle on until complete victory is achieved.'

RUMOR OF SEPARATE PEACE.
PARIS, To-day. A rumor is current in Athens that Turkey has threatened to sign a separate peace with the Allies unless Germany declares war on Italy, according to a special despatch to the morning papers.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL ALL FACTORIES.
PARIS, To-day. The Government now has under control all factories able to produce cannon, rifles, projectiles and explosives, said David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, in an interview with Charles Humbert, editor of the Journal. It also controls all foundries, machine and tool factories, and not one pound of metal or one detached piece is turned out by the vast industrial machine which is not destined for the use of our armies. This war must not be fought with heavy chests, but with machinery. From what Lloyd George showed him, M. Humbert believes British preparations are in many ways more ample than those of the French. He declares the army now in training will be one of the most powerful in the world has ever seen, and when it will be possible to tell what has been accomplished by the British the universe will be dumb with admiration.

SERBIA'S REPLY RECEIVED.
LONDON, To-day. Serbia's reply to the Quadruple Entente note, respecting concessions to Bulgaria, was handed to Baron Sonnino, the Italian Foreign Minister, yesterday, according to a Rome despatch to the Daily Telegraph.

A Clever Pony at Gallipoli.
The antics of a Uist pony at the seat of war in Gallipoli are a source of delight to a Tobemroy lady, who owned the animal before it was commandeered, says the Morning Post. "She knew Polly to be acute enough, for she often watched her as she robbed certain hen roosts of newly laid eggs. The pony stalked likely hens while pretending to be busy gathering her usual food close by. At the Dardanelles, to the intense amusement of certain sections of the transport service, Polly lies down when she hears the scream of a shell coming in her direction, stretches out her forelegs, puts her head to earth, and shuts her eyes. She is apparently dead, but she leans to one side, till the danger has passed. Then Polly rises again and takes her Tobemroy gunner on her broad chestnut back."

FULL SATISFACTION.
BERLIN, To-day. If the commander of the German submarine exceeded his instructions in sinking the steamer Arabic, the German Government will give full satisfaction to the United States, Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg informs an Associated Press correspondent in an interview to this effect last evening.

SIR EDWARD GREY'S LETTER.
LONDON, To-day. Sir Edward Grey has sent a letter to the press replying to a speech delivered in the German Reichstag last week by Dr. Von Bethmann, German Chancellor. In the letter Sir Edward deals at length with the charges that Belgium had trafficked her neutrality with Great Britain and her allies after exploding the story of Britain's proposed disregard of Belgium neutrality, the Kaiser's Foreign Minister reminded of his scrap of paper disregard of treaty obligations, points out how Germany planned a rapid advance to France and then Russia. In concluding Sir Edward Grey says "What is the German program as we gather it from the speech of the Chancellor and public utterances in Germany, but to control destinies of all other nations, to be the shunt of peace and freedom big and small nations." Those are the Chancellor's words, and an Iron peace and a freedom under Prussian shield, and under German supremacy, Ger-

SHOOTING SEASON!

Give a glance at our gathering of good Guns and gunner's gear. We have Guns that will kill anything from a grouse to a grizzly, and you can bet your bottom bill these Guns won't snap, but they are a sure solid snap this shooting season.

We have traps which will trap anything from a bat to a bear, and will bear the biggest black bear ever bagged by Billy Bidden between Badger Brook barrens and Brooklyn Bight, bottom of Bonavista Bay.

Lest We Forget the Lusitania.

More than three weeks have gone by since our Government for the first time called upon Germany to disavow the Lusitania massacre and to make reparation in so far as such a wanton crime will admit of reparation. Not even an acknowledgment as yet has been received from Berlin, much less an answer. The only intimations emanating from German sources are to the effect that it is the purpose of the German Government to ignore all of our Government's demands of May 13 in respect of the Lusitania and to "let it go at that."

There are those who see in the cessation of Germany's murderous manner of submarine warfare sufficient answer to our Government's demands. They would have the President swallow his words of May 13, which were solemnly reiterated in the notes of June and July. They would have the world forget that as long ago as February 10, our Government warned Germany that it would be held to "strict accountability" for the loss of an American life on the high seas. Americans may forget, but the world will remember to America's shame if we abandon our dead to their fate, and continue not only to maintain friendly relations with the Government which we have arraigned as their unregenerate murderer, but to represent that Government in all the capitals of the world whose nations are now at war with Germany. The American Ambassador in London, Paris and Tokio to-day is also duly credited by each of those Governments as the German Ambassador. In his dual capacity, therefore, he is the envoy of a Government whose citizens have been done to death on the high seas, as well as of the Government responsible for their death and contemptuous of all demands for disavowal and reparation.

War with Germany is not desired by many Americans, nor would it be wise for the nation to go to war over the Lusitania in view of the fact that there has been no repetition of that crime, but because we should not go to war is surely no reason why we should continue on terms of amity and friendship with a Government which ignores the solemn demands of the President supported by the unanimous voice of loyal Americans. The press of the nation was so prompt and fearless in its condemnation of the Lusitania massacre that it is difficult to believe that the same newspapers which called upon the President "to suit the action to the word" and compel Germany to render "strict accountability" for the loss of the Lusitania should be followed by the severance of all diplomatic relations between the two countries. We can but wonder what course of action or inaction it is the President's purpose to follow, in view of the silent contempt with which Germany treats his last Lusitania note.—Boston Transcript.

Everyday Etiquette.

"What are just the times a young man is required to raise his hat to a woman?" asked Bob.

"When he acknowledges a woman bow; when walking with a lady and either one meets a friend; when it passes a man friend accompanied by a woman; when offering his seat to a woman; when drawing to one side to allow a woman to pass; when giving information asked by a woman when restoring anything she has dropped; and when a woman he meets with receives a courtesy from another man." were his father's instruction

The Faults We Hate.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"She's the most obstinate woman," said my neighbor. "I can't bear her. I don't see how her husband ever gets along with her. He must be either very wishy-washy or very saintly." In her fervor she laid down her knitting and gazed at me as severely as if I were in some way to blame. I'm not, for I don't even know the woman except by hearsay. So I squeezed down a desire to laugh and turned the subject by admiring my neighbor's poppies. They are the petted darlings of her heart, so the severity at once melted. Why I Wanted To Laugh. You may wonder why I had to squeeze down a laugh. You see, it's this way. Obstinance is the particular fault for which my neighbor is noted. She is a dear woman, but even those who love her best know that that is her prime fault. And here she was with evident unconsciousness telling me how she disliked her prototype in the fault of obstinance. Do you know I think there is a tendency in all of us to especially dislike our own peculiar faults when they appear in other people, and quite without recognizing them as our own. This is not the first time I have heard anyone express a dislike for someone whose character resembled his own. The woman who cannot seem to help trying to dominate her home, her husband, her children and everything and everybody with which she comes into contact, confided to me the other day that she could not overcome her dislike for a certain woman. Everyone Notices The Resemblance. And to behold, that woman is so like her in temperament that other people often speak of the resemblance. Again an otherwise charming girl who is inclined to be a wee bit insincere is always ready to say a sharp word—almost the only words of criticism she ever speaks—about anyone who is insincere. So it goes. Myself, I have a haunting suspicion that the people I feel antagonistic to are not as unlike me as I could wish. The moral? When you find yourself intensely disliking anyone, look out, or rather look in. If you have a friend who will be frank with you make him tell you if you are like that. And if you find yourself guilty then let your own abhorrence help you overcome the fault. Question—A great many young people marry when but few facts of life have come before them; they therefore have few opinions, because they have little knowledge. Such marriages are based on amorous sentimentalities. When the one ceases to love on account of having outgrown the other, intellectually is it not an outrage that they should remain thus united? Or do you think it better for them to try and make a working success of such unions?—A Subscriber. Answer—You ask a question to which it is dangerous to give a general answer. The best thing to do depends on many factors, one of which is whether there are children, another the feeling which has taken the place of love; is it passive indifference or active hate? You can't preserve the home where hate rules, because it isn't a home but a prison.

BATTLE OF CRECY 1346. Edward III. laid claim to the French throne and landed in France and began the struggle known as the 100 years' war. This battle ended in a great victory for the English arms.
SIR ROBERT WALPOLE born 1676. The great Whig Statesman of the early part of the 18th century. He extended the scope of the British commerce greatly by his theory of "making the exportation of our manufactures, and the importation of the commodities used in the manufacturing of them as practicable and easy as may be."
FRANCE CONSORT born 1819. As Consort of Queen Victoria he endeavored himself to the people and in every way assisted the Queen in making her reign a memorable one.

Stomach Troubles Due to Acidity.

Stomach troubles such as indigestion, wind, and stomach-ache are simply evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach, and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the fermenting food. Such fermentation is unnatural, but may involve most serious consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation and to neutralize the acid, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, probably the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of water immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation, and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments. Bisurated magnesia can be obtained from any druggist. It enables the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by poisonous gas and dangerous acids. Bisurated Magnesia, No. 25 E. 26th St., N.Y.C.

Close Call From Being Drowned.

On Tuesday evening a seven year old boy named McCrudden had a narrow escape from drowning. He had been romping about Stabb & Co's dock in the East End of the harbor. He was in a crouching position in the stern of a boat and lost his balance and went into the water head long. Robt. Croke, the 13 year old son of Mr. Thomas Croke, Wood Street, heard the splash. He immediately jumped into the boat alongside to save the drowning boy, who had just disappeared from view as Croke put his right arm over a foot, beneath the surface and grasped young McCrudden by the hair, pulling him into the boat. The victim was then in an exhausted condition. An alarm was given to workmen nearby who lifted the lad to the pier, where he was rolled and a lot of water taken out of him. After a while he came around and was able to proceed home. From what we could gather from another boy who was present, there is not the slightest doubt that the boy McCrudden would have met a watery grave but for the prompt rescue by Croke.

 Hon. Treasurer: Dr. H. A. Des Voeux, 14, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W., S.S.15.
 Dear Sir,—I must thank you very heartily for the donation you have sent to this fund from the Medical men in Newfoundland. It is indeed good of them to subscribe, and we most warmly appreciate their self-sacrifice in doing so. I enclose formal receipt for the amount.
 The Sir W. Des Voeux you mention was not my father, but a cousin of his.
 I am sending the list of names which you have sent me to the Editors of the Medical Journals for them to publish if they have space.
 Again thanking you most heartily,
 Yours very truly,
 (Sgd.) H. A. Des VOEUX,
 Hon. Treasurer.

Our Regiment's Color.
 The color recently presented to our regiment was the gift of the Nfld. Branch of the Daughters of Empire. It has a white silk field with the cross of St. George in crimson silk. The arms of Newfoundland are worked in black on a white silk ground and are connected by gold bands and lettering on a royal blue silk ground. Surrounding the arms are red and white roses, purple thistles and green shamrocks tied with red, white and blue ribbon. The Imperial Crown which surmounts the arms is in gold with jewels embroidered. That our boys prize it and guard it is a foregone conclusion, but the color will be especially dear to them because it represents the gift of the Daughters of Empire in their Island Home.
TWO WAR PICTURES.
 The latest Zeppelin raid in the southeastern counties of England tributary to London must be regarded as the most successful of the series, for ten non-combatants were killed and thirty-six injured or wounded, the casualties including twenty women and four children.
 As a companion picture to the achievement of the Zeppelins there is the behavior of the British naval officers who overhauled the German trawler Gurdun, and when asked for time for lowering the boats to save the crew, replied:
 "You can take the whole ship. We shall not harm you."
 This may have been magnificent but it was not war as the Germans conduct it at sea and in the air.
 The story that the men on the trawler Gurdun cheered the British officer for his magnanimity may nevertheless be true, as these Germans were simple fishermen and not combatants engaged in executing "rightfulness."—N. Y. Sun.

Serious Accident on Railway.

While attempting to board a morning train at Kelligrews, yesterday, Mr. George T. Hudson, draper of this city, lost his grasp of the hand rail with the result that he was thrown from the train with much force and was seriously injured. He is now in hospital with his right leg broken in three places, a deep wound in his scalp, and his back badly bruised. Mr. Hudson left here in the 8.45 train yesterday morning to go as far as Whitehouse to spend the holiday with some friends there. On reaching Kelligrews he and several other passengers detained to speak to some friends who had assembled on the platform. When the train started to pull out there was quite a rush, and Mr. Hudson was one of the last to try and board her. He grasped the hand rail of the rear car but as the train had by this time gained speed, he was unable to hold on. He was thrown towards the platform with considerable force, which broke his leg and caused him to fall backwards on some stones that lay between the track and the platform bruising his back and inflicting a deep wound in his head. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and was taken to the waiting room of the station where everything possible was done for him until the arrival of Dr. Mitchell, who went out by special train as soon as news of the accident reached the city. One of the nurses of the General Hospital staff, who happened to be spending a holiday at Kelligrews, rendered valuable assistance and volunteered her services together with another young lady experienced in First Aid coming along to town with the injured man who suffered much pain on the way. The wounds were temporarily dressed by Dr. Mitchell and on arrival in the city Mr. Hudson was taken to the hospital in the ambulance. On inquiry at the hospital to-day, Dr. Keegan kindly informed the Telegram of the nature of his injuries. He has already been stated, and says that there is a good chance of recovery unless unforeseen complications set in.

Mr. Rolfe Making Good

The many friends of Mr. William Rolfe, the young Englishman who lived amongst us for a while, and who did business for the firm of Messrs. Holmwood, will be glad to hear that he has now gone into business under the name of Rolfe & Co. His address is West India House 96 98, Leadenhall Street, London. Mr. Rolfe, while here, was a guest at the Crosbie, and made many sincere friends. The Telegram extends to him its felicitations on his success, and hopes that it may augur of still greater advancement in the near future.

"Don't Worry."

Don't worry about things that you can't help.
Worry kills success, some people are worrying all the time about some things that have happened or might happen. Drive out of your mind completely your past troubles and misfortunes, they cannot be helped now. Use the coming events that you worry so much about are not really so bad when they actually happen. Better employ in the solution of problems of real help to your present and future.

A better preparation is not to be found for helping you to get over all your unnecessary worries than—

Sir Edward Grey.

By A. G. Gardiner in Atlantic Monthly

His efforts for peace during the last fatal week of July are on record; and no one who saw him in the house during that tremendous time, when the chamber seemed darkened with impending doom, can doubt either his surprise at the sudden blow or his passionate desire to save Europe from the coming disaster.

When someone met him after his speech of August 3, and rather ineptly offered his congratulations on what Mr. Balfour had called the most momentous speech made in parliament for a hundred years, he turned away with the remark, "this is the saddest day of my life."

I am told that at the cabinet council next morning more than one minister broke down under the dreadful strain, and that Sir Edward Grey was among them. But, indeed, there were more tears shed in England in those tragic days than ever before. And they were not tears of weakness, but of unspeakable grief.

His Personality.

If Mr. Asquith's intellectual mastery of the house is supreme, Sir Edward Grey's influence is not less remarkable as a triumph of character. In many respects his equipment is undistinguished. He has travelled little; it is jocularly said that he made his first visit to Paris when he accompanied the King there a short time ago. He is not a linguist; he is wholly insular in his tastes, almost unknown in society, much more devoted to fishing than to politics; speaks little, and then in the plainest and most unadorned fashion; is indifferent to the currents of modern life, and turns from his literature to the quietism of Wordsworth, Walton and White's "Selborne"; is rarely seen in the house, and then seems to stray in, as it were, like a visitor from another planet.

And in spite of all this he exercises an almost hypnotic influence on parliament! The detachment of his mind, the Olympian aloofness and serenity of his manner, the transparent honesty of his aims, his entire freedom from artifice and from appeals to the "gallery," all combine to give him a certain isolation and authority that are unique. His speech has the quality of finality. Mr. Asquith wins by sheer mental superiority; Mr. Lloyd George wins by the swiftness and suppleness of his evolutions; Sir Edward Grey wins by his mere presence, and the sense of high purpose and firmness of mind which that presence conveys.

It is a favorite jest of his enemies that no man can be quite so wise as Sir Edward Grey looks. Like some other products of the Balliol system, he is more advanced in his views, and more popular in his sympathies than

Her Three Sons Killed.

Survivor of Lusitania Disaster Receives Sad News on Landing in New York. New York, Aug. 17.—An interesting story of a mother's part in the European war was told by Mrs. Phoebe Amory, of Toronto, who arrived from Liverpool yesterday on the Orduna. Mrs. Amory has four sons in the British army, and expects her fifth, who is married and an engineer on the Canadian Pacific Railway, will respond to the call to arms as soon as she reaches her Canadian home. Mrs. Amory is a Lusitania survivor. When Mrs. Amory stepped from the deck of the Orduna she received a communication which informed her that her three boys had been killed in the fighting in the Dardanelles. Her eyes filled, but she smiled through her tears, and declared that while they were all fine young men, they could not have died in a better cause.

If Catarrh has Spoiled Your Hearing Get Cured To-Day by "Catarrhazone"

Don't Stay Deaf Any Longer—Follow the Procession—Use Catarrhazone. Nine cases in ten of hard hearing are curable. By curable we don't mean relievable—we mean that the sense of hearing can be permanently brought back. Catarrh usually causes that deafness. Cure the catarrhal condition and you remove the cause of your poor hearing. If you were sure you had catarrhal deafness you would use a real cure at once—of course you would. There is a cure for you—one that is inexpensive—pleasant to use—and sure to do its work thoroughly.

Catarrhazone is no experiment for deafness. Thousands before you have cleared Catarrh out of their heads by the aid of Catarrhazone and have thereby been cured of deafness. No batteries or miniature telephones to bother you—no internal medicine to take—you have simply to follow special directions for the Catarrhazone Inhaler. Do this and you'll find a wonderful improvement in short order. Any druggist can supply you Catarrhazone, or you can for $1 secure it post paid under plain wrapper from the Catarrhazone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Amusements.

"TOYS OF FATE" AT THE CRES-CENT.

A great Lubin masterpiece in two reels: "Toys of Fate" is the headliner at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. "A Foolish Agreement," if you were penniless and a few hundred dollars would save you from utter ruin, if that sum were deposited in a safe and you knew the combination of that safe could you resist the temptation to take the money? Harry Wallace and his friends fall under the test. The French Melies Company presents two good comedies: "Their First Quarrel" and "A Good Excuse." Mr. Harvey Collins sings classy songs, go and hear him.

BIG HOLIDAY BILL AT THE NICKEL.

The Million Dollar Mystery drew large audiences to the Nickel Theatre yesterday. The holiday attendances at this high class theatre are always large and yesterday was no exception. The fourteenth episode of The Million Dollar Mystery is a most interesting one. These there were such interesting subjects as "The Creed of the Clans," "The Halted Career," "Forbes Law Duguid was in splendid form. Those who could not attend yesterday are invited to-day to-morrow there is a big social drama, entitled: "By the Governor's Orders," with the clever actor, Maurice Costello in the leading character.

BRITISH THEATRE.

Another spontaneous and most brilliant success was scored by Madame Olive Timmons and Mr. P. J. McCarthy at the above Theatre last night when they sang the latest American serenade "Underneath the Stars," the accompaniments being played with consummate skill by the popular and well known Mr. Allen. The blending and colouring of their ensemble singing showed their beautifully artistic ability to its fullest advantage. The applause was frequent and most enthusiastic, the audiences showing great appreciation of their brilliant work. This celebrated trio will appear to-night again at 8.30 and 10 o'clock. In the afternoon at 3.30 Madame Timmons will repeat her success of yesterday entitled: "The Message of the Violet." The pictures are well up to the British standard, the two reel feature: "The Pines of Lorey" being one of particular interest. This is a very stirring drama, the leading characters of which are in the capable hands of Marc MacDer-mott and Miriam Nesbitt.

A SPLENDID SKETCH AT ROSS-LEY'S.

There is another delightful programme at Rossley's to-night. The high-class and talented Russells will be seen in a wonderful playlet entitled "The Wishing Ring," a very strong plot and something quite out of the ordinary. Olive Russell will sing "Mother Macree"; this lady has a pure baritone voice as well as a high soprano voice and is a wonderful vocalist. Jack Russell will present his musical monologue entitled: "The Black Sheep of the Family," this alone is worth ten times the price of admission. The Russells are the finest artists that have ever appeared here. On Saturday Don, the marvelous performing dog, will do some clever tricks for the children, also the Royal Punch and Judy show. Don't let the children miss this, lots of fun.
