Dr. Garner, of Cowichan Lake, was a Fernie visitor for several days this week. On Monday he was a guest of the Rotary Club and gave a very interesting talk on the big timber operations which are carried on near Cowichan on Vancouver Island. He told of the immense timber still standing and the great danger involved in logging operations. The doctor also gave a very glowing account of the fishing in that locality. He extended a hearty invitation to any Fernie friends who might be in that neighborhood to look him up and he would endeavor to show them some sport in the fishing line.

LOOKS LIKE BIG STRIKE

Atlantic City, Aug. 9th.—Hope that anthracite operators and miners might reconcile their differences in time to avert a suspension September 1st, faded to-night. John L. Lewis, President of the United Workers of America informed Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the anthracite operators' conference, that further negotiations were useless until the operators abandoned their opposition to wage increases and adoption of the check-off.

Mr. Lewis' communication was in reply to Mr. Warriner's comment of last Thursday on the original Lewis' Letter which had preceded the break-up of the scale conference on the previous Tuesday.

Writing from the Hotel Ambassador under date of yesterday, Mr. Lewis addressed Mr. Warriner at the operators' conference, Philadelphia, as follows :

"I acknowledge your favor of the sixth instant. I do not desire to quibble over the fine shades of meaning affecting words and involved phrases. It remains that your Atlantic City conferees informed the mine workers' representatives, including myself, that they would reject any demand that would disturb the factor of mine costs. In addition they rejected the request for the full recognition of the union for some other mysterious reason.

"Your letter confirms the position of your committee. Be it so. We do not have any further inclination further to argue when judgment has been given. I wil be glad to hear from you when you abandon this position.

"I note your reference to my previous comments on arbitration. I can well understand your natural irritation in the premises. I referred, of course, to the arbitration preceedings of some years ago, when the final decision of the arbitrator was changed between twilight and dawn. You might if you wished, accept the reference as a compliment from the mineworkers to a skillful adversary.

"We really do not care to arbitrate. Thanks for the offer. We know that you think the medicine would be good for us, but frankly we have little faith in your diagnosis. It will be long before we recover completely from your previous arbitration treatment and until we do, we will modestly decline to accept your prescription. Very truly yours, John L. Lewis."

GLOVER—McPHEE

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the Manse on Tuesday morning when Jean La Mila, eldest daughter of Mrs. Margaret McPhee became the bride of Mr. Cyril George Glover of this city, Rev Burns officiating. The bride who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Stewart McPhee, looked charming in a gown of gold georgette crepe with picture hat to match, and carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas. Miss Anna McPhee, who attended her sister as bridesmaid, wore a dainty dress of rose georgette. Mr. Thomas Baker supported the groom. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was given at the home of the bride's mother. A three tier wedding cake, surrounded by pink and mauve sweet peas centred the table at which the bride's mother presided. The guests included only relatives and immediate friends. Mr. and Mrs. Glover left for Banff and Calgary the bride wearing a fawn ensemble suit with hat to match.

A bad automobile accident occurred on the road between Fort Steele and Wasa on Sunday, when a car of chief Greenwood of Fernie collided with the car of Otto Busse, a tourist from San Francisco. Mr. Greenwood, with his family, was traveling north, while Mr. and Mrs. Busse were on their way to Cranbrook.

The rear wheels of the two cars met in such a way as to cause the Greenwood car to swing around back of the other car and to go down the bank. The car kept on its wheels, but all the glass was broken. Mr. Greenwood was badly cut. Mr. Busse was able to go on to Cranbrook, and Mr. Greenwood's car was taken to the garage in Fort Steele for repairs. Mr. Busse was charged on Tuesday by chief Greenwood with driving to the common danger. He claims, however, that the chief was driving too fast.

Victoria—A town-planning act was laid on the table of the Legislature last session for consideration by those interested during the recess. It is understood that it is the intention of the government to bring this up for discussion at the next session, and municipalities have been asked to express opinions on it and offer suggestions or recommendations. Several councils have requested legislation of this sort, designed to help them in laying out towns and preventing congestion.

Low railway fares for harvesters will be in force in BritishColumbia to the prairies from August 8 to 31, the arrangements to this effect having been made by the superintendent of government employment bureaus. The harvest will call for the services of about 60,000 men and it is estimated that this Province can supply about 6,000. The rates are the same as last year, that is $10.00 from Vancouver and $11.00 from Victoria to Calgary or Edmonton and a half a cent a mile from either of those points to the destination. The rates are effective from interior points. Similar low rates will be available for the return trip on the production of a certificate that the holder has worked in the grain fields.

To compel strict observance of the Liquor Control Board regulations re lating to beer parlors several of these places have had their licenses suspended for two weeks. The rejuirements as to cleanliness especially must be lived up absolutely, the commissioner states.

Speaking of immigration, La Presse says: "It is indispensable to undertake a publicity campaign covering all parts of the British Isles, our side of the question and above all refute the lies and ineptitudes of certain unscrupulous persons. If we do not do something in this way and continue to give carte blanche to our assailants, we can only expect the riminution of immigrants to become yet more marked."

WONDERFUL CHARITY WORK

The charge of selfishness brought against the United States may be in part controverted by the work of the Rockefeller Foundation, which in its constructive charity knows no geography nor race, but only mankind. Only a map of the world can give an adequate idea of the breadth of its benefactions. It fights yellow fever in Brazil, crosses the seas to help medical centers in Europe and Asia, recrosses to make war against malaria in America north and south of the isthmus, and goes down to the antipodes to help in the general welfare along another front. Thus, we are reminded, American millions and American servants of science work persistently and silently, everywhere against the ravages of war, pestilence and disease. In a review of the Foundation's work for 1924, President George E. Vincent records that the trustees administer a fund which represents a per capita of $1.50 for the people of the United States. The income, if raised by popular subscription would call for a fraction of over seven cents per head annually. Last year the Foundation expended $3,195,951 on public health activities; $3,225,027 in promoting the interests of medical education, and $700,663 for miscellaneous work of a beneficial character. Here is an outline of the year's activities:

"Underwrote for $350,000 a plan for publishing an international abstract journal of the biological sciences; began issuing bulletins reporting progress in medical education in many countries; helped to spread international knowledge about medical equipment and teaching methods through surveys by staff members, commissions of scientists, visiting professors, and travelling fellows; hastened developments in the medical schoools of the universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburg, Wales, Montreal, McGill, Sao Paulo, Hongkong and Siam, and of the American University of Beirut, mainained a modern medical school and teaching staff in Peking; aided three other medical schools and seventeen hospitals in China; helped to improve the teaching of physics, chemistry, and biology in in two Chinese and nine foreign institutions in China and in the Goverment University in Siam; had a part in the development of professional training for sanitarians and hygenists at Harvard University and in schools and institutes in London, Prague, Warsaw, and Sao Paulo; gave funds for nursing education at Yale University and in schools and hospitals in Brazil, France, Jugo-Slavia, Poland and the Philippines; kept a mobile staff on guard against yellow fever in Mexico and Central America; at the request of Brazil joined in an attack upon this disease from eleven centers along the northern coast; helped to show the possibilities of malaria control in 13 American States and made malaria surveys in Haiti, Porto Rico, Nicarauga, Brazil, Italy, Palestine, Queenland, and the Philippines; either continued or began anti-hookworm work in connection with thirty two states and countries in the West Indies, Central America and Mexico, South America, Europe, and the Far East; contributed to the budgets of rural health services in 207 countries in 24 American States and in New Brunswick, Brazil, France and Czecho-Slovaka; continued to aid the epidemiological intelligence service of the health section of the League of Nations; contributed to the League of Nations' international study tours or interchanges for ninety-nine health offices from twenty countries; provided directly of indirectly fellowships for 864 individuals of thirty- three nations; lent staff members and made minor gifts to many Governments and institutions for various kinds of counsel and aid, and assisted in other undertakings in public health, medical education and allied fields."

The only way to do anything worthwhile and lasting, says the report, is to concentrate for considerable periods upon vital activities in limited fields, and so effort is centered for the present on public health and medical education. YYet it is felt that in time other things may also offer opportunities. Help is given, we are told, only for demonstrations of innovation and improvement. The Foundation takes no interest in the merely quantitative expanse of routine activities. There must be promise of qualitative advance in a giveen piece of scientific, administrative or education work. Moreover the Foundation withdraws entirely when a project has become self-directing and self-sustaining. Again following the plan of Providence, help is given to those who help themselves. The Foundation is co-operating with the Health Section of the League of Nations, and the outlines of a coordinated world health service begin early to emerge. Now and then, writes President Vincent, some one has asked whether such aid as is given by the Rockefeller Foundation does not imply a kind of condescension, whether the Foundation does not seem to covet the role of a corporate Maecenas of medicine. To this he says:

"The answer is that the very nature of the work precludes a feeling of chauvinism and of patronage. To visit many countries, to note the things in which each excels, to meet men and women who are contributing to the world's store of scientific knowledge and skill, to learn of their plans and needs, to make easier the migrations and interchanges of scientists, to facilitate that commerce of ideas which enriches all lands—to have a share in all these things is to realize that scientific progress, the development of education, the fostering of the fine arts, are not the work of one country or race but of continuous international intercourse. The Rockefeller Foundation within its chosen field seeks to share in the common task as a means of realizing the purpose of its charter, the well-being of mankind throughout the world."

The report of the Foundation is widely quoted and commented upon, not only as an enterprise which is slowly but surely winning the age-long fight against disease, but as a lever which is lifting international relationships into a higher plane. Speaking specifically of the Foundation's fight against yellow fever, the Detroit News believes it safe to believe that not many years hence will be no yellow fever anywhere in the world, and remarks, 'the chief glory for this achievement belongs to America, whose doctors discovered how to conquer the disease and whose Government and rich men furnished the funds for the greatest of successful campaigns." What the world owes Mr. Rockefeller, observes the New Haven Register, can not be estimated, and what science has gained and will gain by the continued, unstinted use of unlimited wealth, time alone can tell.

"Surely the benefactions of the Foundation pass the understanding, possibly, even the most intimate with their ramifications, while they are unknown quantities to the vast majority of the people of the world."

WESTMINSTER ABBEY, LONDON

Westminster Abbey, London, has been styled as "British history in stone."

The building as it stands today is largely the workmanship of the thirteenth century, and was fostered by Henry the third and Edward the first. There are records of other churches on the spot that go back as far as the year 616. Later monarchs have added special chapels and the towers are fairly recent. The height, width and beauty of the Abbey are most impressive in themselves but the chief attractino to the visitor, and the pride of the Londoner, is in the numerous graves of the lengthy list of famed and heroic persons who have expanded the boundaries of the Empire or added to its laurels.

The walls and much of the flooring are faced with the monuments to the dead, although the monument is not an unfailing sign of interment within the Abbey. On many of the monuments the name of Canada is cut. Amongst these may be found monuments to General Hope, Governor of Quebec, who died in 1789; the Marquis of Lansdowne, a beloved Governor-General, and Colonel Townshend who fell in the attack upon Quebec in 1759. Next to the last mentioned is an elaborate memorial to Major John Andre, who was executed as a spy during the American revolution.

The Royal chapels are very rich in decoration. Numerous sovereigns are buried in the Abbey and a vast number of other royalty and nobility share the sacred spots with them. Of recent years burials in the Abbey have been very few. The limited space makes a slowing up necessary. The last great funeral in the Abbey was that of the unknown warrior, who was brought from Flanders and placed below the Abbey floor with all the honors that the Empire could bestow.

During a brief fishing trip in Colorado, Vice-president Dawes is reported to have caught over a hundred mountain trout. Many local anglers would like to know how the "Dawes plan" for landing the elusive trout operates.

BANNING BATHING GIRLS

Bathing beauties are banned as an advertisement for Cape May, New Jersey, and The Christian Century (Undenominational) ventures to hope that Cape May's refusal to send a representative to a bathing-girl contest at Atlantic City may be the happy augury of a return of sense to American municipalities. To this religious journal it is difficult to see anything but viciousness in these annual displays. For,

"As they are conducted, they pander to the prurient and expose their participants to temptations which no community has a right to set in the way of its members. Careful investigations, made by organizations such as Y. W. C. A. and the women's clubs, have shown that from beginning to end, these contests work to undermine the moral stamina of the girls who are in them. They begin with local competitions, fostered by sensational newspapers. In these, crowds are gathered to watch while 'judges' pass on the 'points' of empty-headed girls who pose in abbreviated bathing-suits. From these local contests the winners pass to a week at the seaside resort, where, in every possible way, their physical attractions are exploited, and they are subjected to a sort of flattery which leads many of them into dangerous paths. The city which tries to advertise itself in such a way has a curious sense of civic pride and responsibility. The city manager of Cape May is only talking sense when he says, 'We can not see the propriety of young women being sent with pomp and circumstance to Atlantic City, or any other city, once a year to be measured, weighed, appraised and gazed on by a curious multitude. Call us old-fashioned if you like, but count Cape May out. We will keep our beautiful girls at home.'"

Do not blame the "silly" girls too much, says the San Francisco Monitor (Catholic) in censuring a bathing-girl contest at Santa Cruz. Rather,

"Place the odium, if you are not too far gone to resent these panderings, on the yahoo secretaries of Chambers of Commerce, and the uncultured newspaper editors who promote these pagan shows. Bathing-beauty contests are the highest contribution made to American civilization by the Babbitts. We need not dig in deserts to find pictures of ape men and stone-age missing links. The gibbering chatter of the male judges and onlookers at Santa Cruz has enough of the baboon expression to convince us that Beauty Contests have nothing to do with city planning or resort development."

SUDDEN DEATH LURKS IN THE BANNED BOTTLE

Alcoholism caused 250 deaths among its policyholders in the first 6 months of 1925, according to a survey completed by one of the largest insurance companies. The death rate from that cause was 2.8 per 100,000 population. In the same period there were 15 deaths from wood and denatured alcohol poisoning, nearly double the number in the corresponding period last year.

Cirrhosis of the liver, which the report says is closely associated with alcoholism, caused 548 deaths during the first six months of 1925, compared with 475 in the same period in 1924.

In the three and one-half year period, January 1st 1922 to Junes 30th, 1925, the company has charged to alcoholism the deaths of 1402 industrial policy holders, 1388 of them occurring in the United States. The report bears out the facts as the authorities have discovered them—that sudden death lurks in the sort of alcoholic concoctions being unlawfully offered for sale in the United States: The drinker consumes them at his own risk.

The company finds another discordant note in the health record of the half-year in the increase of violent deaths. Accidents are mainly responsible for an increase of 5 per cent in the six month' period over the like period of 1924. Among the negroes there was an even greater increase. More negroes are being drowned and fewer whites. The report concludes with the following statement:

"Automobile fatalities continue to show a rising death rate, indicating that despite renewed efforts of various agencies interested in public safety, no impression is being made on the unfavorable record for these casualties.

Speaking on the subject of a self-supporting Empire, Mr. Amery, the British Secretary of State for the Dominions, has put the question of supporting home products in this way: "The man, and still oftener the woman, who goes into the shops, determines the course of employment and the course of development, and, indeed, the whole future of the nation and the Empire. Too often you fail to realize what is the real fact, that it is the purchaser who is the real giver of employment. The real key to economic development and to employment lies with the purchaser."

Even when a man wants the earth he doesnt want it thrown at him in the form of mud.

A typical commentary on Canada's inaction in attracting Old Country immigrants is found in the fact that perhaps not one in a thousand people in this Dominion knows who is the Federal Government's present Immigration Commissioner in London. As to the number of people in Britain who know who he is, perhaps there are only one in one hundred thousand.

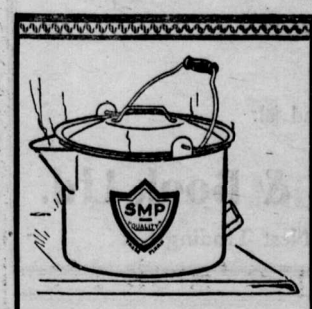
IODINE SALT AS PREVENTATIVE OF GOITRE



The prevalence of goitre through the western country has received a good deal of study by medical men as to its cause and a possible preventative. The Washington State Department of Health has been quite aggressive in the matter, and in the opinion of Dr. George J. Mohr, Director of Child Hygiene, thousands of children of the state will be prevented from having goitre.

Dr. Mohr says that from examinations carried on for years it would appear that 35 to 40 per cent. of school children are affected by goitre, the thyroid gland giving evidence of change in one-quarter of the children of the state at the age of six. This enlargement of the thyroid gland has been shown to be due to the lack of iodine salt in the food and water taken by the person affected, and it has been found that a sufficient quantity may be taken in a small chocolate-covered tablet given once weekly throughout the school year to prevent the disease. It is claimed that iodine salt is a preventative and should not be used for those already affected. Iodine salt is provided free by the state and Dr. Mohr says that all children should be provided with it before they become affected.

The aggressiveness of the health department of the neighboring state is to be commended. British Columbia authorities should make themselves familiar with the possibilities of this preventative and let our younger generation have advantage there may be in its use.

MUST SEEK SOLUTION

The Toronto Saturday Night says: The present conference between Pennsylvania coal operators and the officals of the Miners' Union will in all likelihood result in a stalemate, and furthermore it looks pretty much like like the last kick of union domination in the Coal fields of the United States. Within the last year or two the non-union fields of that country have increased their production very materially while the unionized fields have steadily lost tonnage. That is to say the Kentucky, West Virginian, Alabama, and Tennessee coal districts, which are largely, if not completely non-union, have either held or increased their tonnage, comparing the present year with former periods, whereas the unionized districts of Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio have all lost enormously in tonnage. Indeed the soft coal trade in the last named four states is shot to pieces and many mines, hitherto productive have closed until such time as there is a decided change in the situation.

As regards the anthracite trade these mines mines have also been losing steadily their custom under union domination. The public has its back to the wall and is refusing to pay the prices asked and it is stated authoritatively that in order to market anthracite it has been found necessary to sell twenty per cent. of the year's output, that is to say 18,000,000 tons, at a small loss in order to get it moving.

Such being the case there is not the slighest chance for Mr. Lewis and his friend of the mineworkers union to force from the operators another advance in the wage scale, which in turn would be passed on to the consumer. Up to very recently the hard coal consumer has stood the gaff of ever advancing prices, but apparently the limit has been reached. The operators with their sales departments close to the public pulse realize this and the Miners' Union should have sense enough to realize it also. They are simply killing the goose that lays the golden eggs in their insatiable desire for higher and yet higher wages.

The coal-consuming public have been robbed and frozen and scared sufficiently long by the miners, be the operators or workmen.

BRITAIN CHOOSES LESSER OF TWO EVILS.

Rather than be confronted with a coal strike the Baldwin Government has voted 351 to 16 to subsidize the coa industry to the extent of $50,000,0000. Thus the strike has been postponed and perhaps permanently averted. The miners are happy because a threatened cut in wages and longer working hours have been obviated. The owners are comforted in the donation from the public chest to recompense them for any losses.

Premier Baldwin frankly states that while the subvention, as they call it overseas, will cost the British public $50,000,000, the strike would probably have incurred much heavier losses.

Members of parliament of all parties appear to have felt the same way about it, as the almost unanimous vote indicates.

Great Britain has chosen the lesser of two evils and the public, as usual, foots the bills. A sort of nine months truce has been declared and, in the meantime a royal commission will look into the general situation to ascertain if deficits in future can be avoided without exposing the miners to reduced wages and longer hours.

Two former premiers naturally criticize the Baldwin solution of the problem. Ramsay Macdonald chides the government for its failure to take action until an emergency developed. Lloyd George calls the government's action "nationalization in its worst form." Both, however, supported the resolution as the easiest way out.

English editorial writers are divided on the question. The net verdict appears to be that out of it all some permanent solution of the coal situation will come and a recurrence of the problem will be averted.

A Simple Shampoo—

A simple and inexpensive shampoo, and one which leaves the hair soft, glossy and with a delicate aroma, is to take a basin of warm water and make a free lather using Baby's Own Soap. Rub well into the scalp, rinse with warm and then cool water. Dry in sun and wind if possible.

This simple shampoo is excellent for hair and scalp and costs very little as Baby's Own Soap is sold at 10c. a cake by most dealers.

Pomeroy Explains Color Photography In "The Ten Commandments"

Roy J. Pomeroy, technical director of "The Ten Commandments," the Paramount Picture coming to the Orpheum Theatre explains the marvelous natural color photography of the picture in these words:

"We used what is known as the technicolor process to film the Egyptian scenes. In them one sees the children of Israel crossing the desert. The bright barbaric colors of the thousands of people and their animals against the sombre grey sands has a remarkable effect on the observer.

"Contrary to earlier developments in the field of photography, these scenes do not flicker or cause eyestrain, neither do the colors run together. It is as clear as the ordinary film, and has that added novelty of color whic htakes it out of the stereotyped type of spectacles.

"Engineers and photographers of the Technicolor Company aided us in taking these scenes of "The Ten Commandments."

"The only apparent difference in a color equipped camera is that two films pass behind the lens simultaneously, while in the ordinary camera but one film is used. Prisms separate the reds and greens of the scene being taken. Thus on one film are recorded the red tints and on the other the green.

"When they are combined at the laboratory a red filter eliminates everything from the film except the green, and a green filter eliminates from the red film all but the red. The two films are then cemented together in such a way that the finished print shows the blue, yellow, orange, gold and straw colors, as well as down at Cowley Alberta.

"The natural effect would be for one to forget the story and study the colors. But to such a height has the dramtic intensity been maintained, that the color just adds to what already is a powerfully strong picture."

Because you can't keep cool this hot weather don't get hot at all your friends.

A LETTER TO DAD

I am writing this to you though you have been dead thirty years.

I feel that I must say some things to you, things I didn't know when I was a boy in your home and things I was too stupid to say.

It is only now, after passing thru the long, hard school of years, only now, when my own hair is gray, that I understand how you felt.

I must have been a bitter trial to you. I believed in my own petty wisdom and I know now how ridiculous it was, compared to that calm, ripe, wholesome wisdom of yours.

Most of all, I want to confess my worst sin against you. It was the feeling that I had that you "did not understand."

When I look back over it now, I know that you did understand. You understood me better than I did myself. Your wisdom flowed around mine like the ocean around an island.

And how pathetic, it now comes home to me, were your efforts to get close to me, to win my confidence, to be my pal.

I wouldn't let you. I couldn't. What was it that held me aloof? I didn't know. But it is tragic—that wall that rises between a boy and his father, and their frantic attempts to see through it and climb over.

I wish you were here now, across the table from me, just for an hour, so that I could tell you how there's no wall any more; I understand you now, Dad, and God, how I love you and wish I could go back and be your boy again.

I know now how I could make you happy every day. I know how you felt.

It took a good many years for this prodigal son—and all sons are in a measure prodigal—to come to himself. I've come. I see it all now.

I know what a rich and priceless thing, and one least understood, is that mighty love and tenderness and craving to help which a father feels toward his boy. For I have a boy of my own.

And it is he that makes me want to go back to you, get down on my knees to you and ask you to hear me, Dad, and believe me.—From Commerce and Finances.

Commenting on the lack of immigration to this country, The Montreal Star says: "It is undeniable that Canada could do much more than she is doing to encourage immigration and to attract the right kind of immigrant to this country. The onus lies upon the Government here, not across the Atlantic. It is high time that we woke up to the necessity of action."

George Morris Bosworth, Chairman of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, who died in London, England, on the morning of July 26th, from septic poisoning following an operation for appendicitis, was with the company almost from its inception. He was 68 years old when he died, joined the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1882 and was head of the steamship service for nearly seven years. When informed of Mr. Bosworth's death, E. W. Beatty, K.C. chairman and president of the company, stated that in his opinion Mr Bosworth had had no equal in the country as a manager of railway traffic and added that "the company deeply regrets the passing of another of the old guard, whose ability and effort so largely contributed to the company's success."

CORRUPT OFFICIALS

Nation-wide corruption among Prohibition agents in the United States is revealed in newspaper versions of reports from forty Federal district attorneys to Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of the prohibition unit, and "an order terminating the services of all prohibition agents" is to go into effect September 15. According to press accounts, "release of the agents is understood to be designed to give the new administrators a free hand" and an opportunity to "decide which agents they desire to reappoint, if any." As we are told, the Federal district attorneys asserted that to their knowledge corruption prevails in at least 40 per cent. of their districts. All this, thinks the New York Times, 'simply justifies the predictions that were made when the Volstead Act becomes law. To get that bill through Congress, the Anti-Saloon League consented with its eyes open to have political spoils made of Prohibition enforcement." The Memphis Commercial Appeal asserts:

"When prohibition went into effect, enforcement fell into hands of men who hang around court-houses—ex-policemen and deputy sheriffs. Most of the appointments were political and many of the appointees, of course, were out of jobs. These men drew from one hundred and fifty to two hundred dollars a month. Often the bootlegger was in a position to pay from five hundred to one thousand."

Discussing the government's object in "making public its finds about prohibition enforcement corruption," the Boston Globe says:

"The treasury department will, no doubt, find the Federal district attorney's reports a handy bludgeon with which to extinguish some of the obstreperous. Meantime Washington is debating whether this is to be the last real attempt to enforce prohibition in America."

These rumors of scandal "grate harshly," admits the Buffalo press, which adds, however: 'Scandal is a natural result when laws are enacted with so little regard to the principles of government," while the Chicago Tribune says:

"We knew that the people most devoted to Volsteadism are the rum-runners, beer-runners, bootleggers and law enforcers, who are getting more money out of prohibition than they ever earned before or ever could earn otherwise. Citizens who drank before prohibition do not haggle over the prices. They pay and there is enough money in the business to corrupt enforcers."

"For much of this corruption,'" observes the Kansas City Journal-Post, "the people themselves are responsible to the extent that so many are themselves arrayed against the law of the land" for—

"The lack of sympathy with the Prohibition law provides the opportunity, in many instances, which is commercialized in official connivance with violation of the law. There are enough honest men in the country to enforce the la whonestly and fearlessly. The problem is to replace with them the crooked agents who are false to their trust."

The Releigh (N. C.) News and Observer believes that 'it is not remarkable that some of the army of Federal prohibition agents should be corrupted. The remarkable thing is that more of them are not. If no bribes were offered, there would be none accepted." In the judgment of the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot, "with the official cleansing approximated it will be easier than it is now to form a clear idea as to the enforceability of prohibition," and the Ohio State Journal observes:

"If General Andrews is as wise and courageous as he seems to be he will permit the practical politicians and the professional reformers to rage, and will go quietly ahead in his own way and make his effort to find honest and capable men for the work in hand and to give the possibility of enforcing the law as it stands its first real test."

Nowhere in the press is there any indication of surprise at the corruption revealed, and the Kansas City Star declares, "There will be a general feeling that the twenty-three district attorneys who failed to report corruption must be blind to what is going on around them." Moreover, the Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald says:

'Recent Federay conviction of law officers in Alabama had prepared the people of this State for further proof that law officers are not all in earnest."

In "Prohibition Inside Out," Maj. Roy A. Haynes, prohibition commissioner, remarks: "Few men in any line or caling are subjected to the temptations which beset the prohibition enforcement agent at almost every turn.":

"The powers of evil arrayed against him exhaust human ingenuity in building traps and pitfalls to check his progress, corrupt him, and discredit him in the eyes of the courts and the public. The largest bribe of which there is a record in the enforcement unit was a weekly retainer aggregating in the maximum $300,000, offered a prohibition agent by a group of brewers who had conspired to resume the manufacture of pre-war beer on a mammoth scale, and flood the States of Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virvinia, New Work and New Jersey with their produce. These brewers sought to buy not the active approval of the prohibition agent, but merely his promise to 'look the other way' while they proceeded with their illegal scheme."

It is apparent that only two years ago, when 'Prohibition Inside Out" was written, Major Haynes had a high opinion of his men. Corruption was exceedingly rare , he believed, and further on in the book we are told: "As the result of temptation in scores of forms and unceasingly offered, forty-three employees of the prohibition unit have been adjudged guilty by courts since the beginning of this administration. Even so, the force was 99 per cent. honest."

Germany is not among the nations that are suffering from a decreasing birth rate. That country is rapidly overtaking the losses she suffered in man power during the war and the other losses she suffered through the cession of various territories. In 1914 the population of the German Empire was 68,000,000. A census of the present republic just taken gives a total of 62,500,000, but this does not include the 7,500,000 people living in the Saar region containing the coalfields being governed by an international commission. Germany lost some 7,000,000 by the cession of territory. She lost 2,750,000 by deaths during the war and the estimate is that she is short 2,500,000 because of a decreased birth rate during the war period. Germany took a census in 1919 and another this year. This year's shows 3,350,000 people more than in 1919, so that in five years there has been an increase of 5½ per cent. in her population. There are few nations, if any, growing at this rate.

In the event of the date of the Dominion election being deferred until next year a dearth of campaign ammunition is feared. The stock in the party arsenals is about exhausted and nothing would be left but a few blank cartridges.

Laxatives do not overcome constipation

LAXATIVES and cathartics provide temporary relief only. Their continued use leads to permanent injury. In time, says an eminent physician, an almost incalculable amount of harm is done by the use of pills, salts, mineral waters, castor oil and the like.

Physicians advise lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt the habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

Since the first of April up to the present time approximately seven million pounds of various fish have been landed at North Sydney, N.S., by local fishermen. The catch made so far this season is far in excess of any previous year's catch in the history of this port.

All tourist and motorists records are being broken at Banff this year. There are three times as many campers as in any other year and 2,400 more bathers than in 1924. The Canadian Pacific hotel here and at Lake Louise reports bookings as being unusually heavy.

More Alberta provincial savings certificates were sold in the first six months of this year than in any full year previously, even including the big record year of 1920. Since the beginning of the current year up to the end of June, the total sales amounted to $1,401,600. There is now close to $7,000,000 outstanding in savings certficates.

Radio receiving licenses held in Canada at the end of last month numbered 56,063, according to a statement issued by the Federal Government. Ontario leads all provinces with a total of 28,507. Quebec occupied second place with 7,882 licenses, followed by Saskatchewan with 6,551; Manitoba, 4,443; British Columbia, 3,392; Alberta, 3,004; Nova Scotia, 1,435; New Brunswick, 735; Prince Edward Island, 87; Yukon, 22; and Northwest Territories, 5.

A consignment of 21 fox hounds from the famous Mendip Hunt Pack, in Somerset, England, was brought to Canada early in August by the Dominion Express Company for the Toronto Hunt Club. The English papers published photographs of these splendid animals and expressed gratification that good British hounds were being used on the hunting fields of Ontario. This is the third such consignment brought out by the Dominion Express within recent weeks.

The delegates to the Empire Press Conference at Australia who came from Britain and passed through Canada recently spent several days in the Canadian Pacific Rockies and enjoyed themselves trail-riding and hiking among the beauty spots that surround Banff and Lake Louise. Lord Burnham and several other distinguished British journalists established new walking records in covering the distance between Wapita and Emerald Lake in two hours, while it took the trail-riders on ponies two hours and a quarter to cover the same ground.

Representing education authorities and the public and secondary schools of Great Britain, about one hundred teachers from the United Kingdom arrived recently at Montreal on the "Empress of Scotland" and are now touring the country. Before their departure they received a congratulatory message from King George and on their arrival were tendered an official reception by representatives of the Quebec provincial government, prominent educationists and were entertained to dinner at the Chateau Frontenac by E. In a recently published monograph on "The Transportation of Canadian Wheat to the Sea" Miss L. M. Fair, M.A., makes the following comparison of Canadian and United States rates to show to what extent the resources of our railways are organized for the benefit of western producers:—

The "railways," whose centenary we are celebrating, still pass in America, as "railroads"—and in the early days the two terms seem to have had equal vogue in this country. Scott in 1931 wrote of "railroads," and Corbett in 1832 of "rail-ways" with the hyphen, and though an engineering journal in 1838 declared for the general adoption of "railways,'" Ruskin two decades later still clung to "railroads" in his tirades against steam traction. It is curious that Americans should cling to "railroad," which commemorates the descent of the railway from the old coaching roads and ye speak of "engineers," "conductors," and "ticket office" in place of our "drivers," "guards," and "booking office," which perpetuate the old stage-coach terminology.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation, and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

For more detailed information see the Bulletin "How to Pre-empt Land."

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ten head.

PREVENT FOREST FIRES — IT PAYS

ORGANIZED LAWLESSNESS

The performances of the lawbreakers who make their headquarters in the United States, while somewhat disquieting from many points of view are interesting from a new point of view. There are all kinds of lawbreakers actively operating at the present time on the other side of the border. The forces of outlawry are graded in rank, beginning with the most fearless, who will not hesitate at committig murder, if murder is necessary to attain their objective, and ending with the common purse snatcher.

To us the most interesting characteristic of the lawless brigade, which seems to be recruiting its forces so rapidly that it will soon attain the dignity of a grand army, is the loyalty of the members to one another. There are auxiliary forces attached to the army of outlaws. When a bandit is caught in the meshes of the net of the law there are always plenty of witnesses ready to appear in any court, even if the court be a Canadian one, to testify to his innocence. The thoroughness of the criminal organization is so complete as to be amazing even in this day of organizations of all kinds.

The criminal organization also has an ethical code of its own. If a member of the gang "peaches" on his confederates, his punishment is sure, swift, and summary. Disloyalty to pals is generally a capital offence. The offender knows this, and tries in vain to elude the consequence of his weakness. Sooner or later the bullet or the knife gets him. That is the difference between the criminal code of outlawry and the criminal code of the country.

Then if by any chance a murderer is caught and condemned, that does not end the matter. It results in the most interesting of all the developments connected with the administration of criminal law. New forces are brought into action. For a suitable consideration any number of alienists, psychiatrists and "ologists" will go into the witness box and testify to the abnormality and the irresponsibility in the temperament of the malefactor.The court gravely weighs the evidence of the specialists and the arguments of the lawyers and suspends the sentence in order that it may give the case its most serious consideration. A sentence suspended is seldom a sentence executed. Money, which appears always to be at the command of the wonderful criminal organization, has won the day. The temperamental murderer is committed to an asylum for the mentally irresponsible, nominally for the term of his natural life, actually until his case has ceased to be notorious. Then a motion is made for his release on the ground that his reason has recovered its normal poise. The State has lost interest in the case and the motion is passed.

But in connection with such criminal proceedings there are usually some qualifying circumstances. If the criminal is an obscure person without money, and is not a member of the organization, he will be tried as speedily and sentenced as quickly as it is possible for the law to try and sentence an offender. Circumstances sometimes alter cases in the courts of law.

We do not contend that there is no ground whatever for the conduct of the alienist who is ready for a consideration to appear in any court and declare that any or every person charged with crime is afflicted with the terrible incumbrance of an abnormal temperament. There must be something wrong with the mind of any man who would rather kill another man in cold blood and take his money than earn an honest living by doing useful work. We do not contend that organized society must be protected against organized outlawry; that the sane and the industrious must be assured of protection against the acts of outlaws, who, whether from habit or temperament, think no more of shooting a man or cutting his throat than they would think of crushing a cockroach under their feet. Crimes against society cannot be suppressed by permitting the idea to gain currency in criminal organizations that there is something wrong with the head of every cruel murderer, and that therefore the murderer should be an object of human commiseration rather than object of human detestation. If the laws were relentless in pursuit of criminals of all degrees of criminality and remorseless in dealing with criminals after they were caught, the criminal records of this Continent would not be a terrible reproach to the people of the Continent.

We note that the alienists of the United States have discovered a new form of criminal dementia. The name of this disease is not derived from either "the Greek" or "the Latin." The experts in mental ailments say a man convicted of murder and under sentence of death is suffering from "cell-shock." We have no doubt the poor chap is suffering from a shock of some kind but a better name for it would be "gallows shock." The man in this case was sentenced to death, and twice was on the point of being executed when he was reprieved. That was a shocking experience. If the culprit or the innocent person, as the case may be, is afflicted with any imagination at all, he has twice suffered the agonies of death by hanging.

Here and There

According to the official records one hundred and thirty whales have been caught by the Victoria, B.C. whaling fleet so far this season. The sperm whale is the most plentiful this year.

It has been estimated that over one hundred and fifty thousand people attended the Calgary Stampede this year. A historical pageant more than five miles long was the opening feature of the jubilee.

With an estimated attendance of five thousand each, twenty conventions have been booked to take place in Montreal for August, September and October, according to figures from the Tourist and Convention Bureau of that city.

It is expected that when Hon. Honore Mercier, Minister of Lands and Forests, returns to Canada, a thorough organization of the aviation branch of the Quebec Lands and Forests Department will take place. It is reported that the Province is to purchase several more hydroplanes, to be used for forestry research work, as well as for combatting forest fires and other work.

Church dignitaries, statesmen and thousands of laymen congregated in ancient Quebec to be present at the wonderfully impressive ceremonies attendant upon the burial of the late Cardinal Begin. The Basilica, which has only recently been reconstructed and opened to the public, presented a scene of colorful beauty and majestic dignity while the profoundly sorrowful services were being recited.

At this year's Cross-country Ride and Pow-wow of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies it is expected that approximately one hundred riders will cover a new trail which extends from Marble Canyon on the Banff-Windermere Road over the Wolverine Plateau and past Lake O'Hara to Hector, while between 250 and 300 are expected at the Pow-wow near the Wapta Bungalow Camp. While out west Field Marshal Earl Haig signed on as a member of the Trail Riders.

On the occasion of the departure from England of a party of one hundred school-teachers on board the "Empress of Scotland" to visit Canada and study educational methods here, His Majesty the King sent the following message to the International Education League: "His Majesty congratulates the League upon the happy conception of the undertaking which will give opportunities to study the educational system in Canada and to gain an insight into her history, development and general resources.

That 69,000 harvesters would be required to handle this year's crop, of which the East would be expected to supply 50,000, was the estimate arrived at last week at a conference of various governments held in the Canadian Pacific offices at Winnipeg. In the meantime the Canadian Pacific Railway has taken all necessary steps to transport the army of harvesters. Their colonist cars and special equipment has been overhauled and the company is now fully prepared for its annual rush of harvesters.

WHEN LABOR IS SLAVERY

"Now we are all slaves," says a a black man in Portuguese Africa fifteen years after formal emancipation. "The slaves were better fed than we forced laborers are, for we are not property." They were better clothed too, and better housed, say the investigators sent to Portuguese Africa by Prof. Edward Alsworth Ross of the University of Wisconsin, who embodies their findings in a report to the League of Nations. As explained by G. Ellis Porter, the conditions complained of are a result of the abrupt abolition of slavery. "It was immediately necessary to find a substitute for slave labor," he tells us. "Work of two kinds was essential—that on government roads and improvements, and that on the large plantations. It could be done only by the natives. Importation of white laborers is out of the question. But it was almost impossible to get the negroes to work." Writing in the Philadelphia Public Ledger, Mr. Ellis continues:

"Their needs are simple. They have their little huts and ground. They grow their own food. What they want from the outside world is not much more than a length of cloth for a garment and a blanket each. These things they can get in exchange for a fowl or two or a couple of bags of surplus rice. Why should they work on the roads and plantations?

"They wouldn't—except under compulsion.

"So the Portuguese Government outlined a scheme and put it into effect. It established a system of compulsory paid labor. The Government requires so and so many men and women from each village for stated periods on the roads. The planters are permitted to hire laborers for the fields and other work from the Government.

"The system might work in a perfect world of perfect government officials with perfect subordinates. Two or three months' labor a year required of a certain percentage of the natives and paid for might be regarded as no more onerous than an ordinary tax. As a matter of fact, the negroes of Portuguese Africa are supposed to work out their head or hut tax in this manner, plus a certain additional service, Even civilized people recognize the necessity of working to pay taxes."

But "the system has not worked well," we are told, and the New York Times thus presents in brief the ten conclusions reached by Professor Ross:

"1. The labor system, virtually state serfdom, which has grown up often claims so much of the natives' time and strength they are no longer able to give adequate attention to the production of food in their own gardens and fields.

"2. There is little evidence that any considerable part of the wages turned in trust to the officials by the employers of natives hired from the Government actually reached the hands of those to whom it belongs. It appears that the typical thing is for the earnings of those commandeered laborers to be embezzled.

"3. The amount of unpaid labor exacted of skilled natives is not frequently so excessive that the youngmen see nothing to be gained by their acquiring skill in the missionary schools.

"4. Motor roads have been extended far beyond need of the colony. Their construction imposes a crushing burden on conscripted, unpaid, unrationed natives, for the most part women.

"5. There appears to be wide-spread labor-stealing; i e., the planter arbitrarily refuses to give credit or pay for certain days or half-days of labor.

"6. The officials do not appear to be in a strong position with respect to fellow nationals, the traders and planters, and rarely venture to guard the rights of the native as against the claim of a white man.

"7. The native policemen grossly abuse their authority for purposes of lust, spite or extortion.

"8. The Government provides practically nothing in the way of schools, medical care, emergency relief or justice against the white trader.

"9. The treatment of natives in Portuguese territory compares so unfavorably with that experienced by the natives of Rhodesia or Belgian Kongo that there is a strong tendency to emigrate across the frontier.

"10. In Portuguese Africa the amount and manner of collection of hut taxes impose severe handicaps upon the natives.

Rev. Jose Pacheco Monte, a Portuguese missionary, denies all this in Fall River (Mass.) Era Nova, and the New Bedford Independente declares:

"The natives of the Portuguese colonies are treated neither better nor worse than the natives of the colonies of other nations. In the interior of Africa neither England, France nor Italy treats the natives by methods different from those adopted by Portugal.

"Everybody knows, the native people in the interior of the African continent know, that it is entirely impossible to maintain amongst them European authorities or anybody fully civilized and able to employ the means of control used by the civilized world. For his reason it is imperative that authority be vested in other natives, who are only half-civilized themselves, and, therefore, too ignorant to maintain discipline by persuasive means. The result is obvious: when a half-civilized individual finds himself clothed with authority, especially amongst a semi-savage people, his native instinct compels him to force into submission by coercion and brutality those who disobey his commands.

"We do believe that in some remote districts in the interior of the Portuguese colonies there have been cases of cruelty to the natives, but those instances, as have been proved by the investigations of the Portuguese Gorernment, represent only isolated cases and the functionaries responsible for them have been severely punished.

"The natives must be dealt with in a way as humane as possible, it is true, but the psychology of the semi-savage negroes is absolutely different from that of civilized people and, therefore, it is necessary to deal with them in harmony with their own habits and laws.

"We are sure that, as on the former occasions, Portugal will present to the League of Nations a concrete defense based on real facts, thus destroying the unjustified attacks of which, once more, she is a victim."

Hammer a Sheet of Rubber And What Happens?

NOTHING — your hammer does not harm the rubber because rubber is elastic. And that is the characteristic that makes "61" Floor Varnish so durable - elasticity.

Hammer a Sheet of Glass And What Happens?

WRECKAGE — the glass is shivered into a thousand pieces because it is brittle. And this same thing in a lesser degree, is what happens to ordinary varnishes

A CRIME COMPARISON

The Chicago Tribune draws a comparison between crime in that city and crime in Canada. Of course the comparison is very favorable to this country. No country or city would care to have as black a record as Chicago.

So far this year Chicago has had 227 murders, or more than one a day. If the same pace is maintained until the end of the year the total will be 391. In 1922 Canada, with a population of slightly less than 9,000,000 had 56 murders. Chicago's total for that year was 225. Chicago had one murder for every 11,849 of population while Canada had one for every 156,-919 of population. Relatively, Chicago had thirteen times as many murders as all Canada. In 1922 Canada obtained 19 convictions for 56 murders, a record which is far below that of Britain, but in 270 murders in Chicago last year only 65 convictions were obtained.

is being blazoned before the world these days. The newspapers of that city instead of trying to conceal or minimize the facts, tell the whole story, in the hope that pitiless publicity will effect a remedy, or at least awaken public conscience sufficiently to deal promptly and effectively with the thug and gangster.

The Toronto Mail and Empire says: "Mr. King has no heart for the Empire or for developing trade relations within the Empire. When he went to the last Imperial Conference, and when one of his colleagues went with him to attend the Economic Conference of the Empire, he was careful to make a statement showing his aloofness from Empire affairs. Under such a politician, bound to an anti-protection programme, pledged to reciprocity with the United States, and taking every occasion to show bad manners towards the Mother Country and the Empire, there can never be the close commercial relations that ought to exist between Britain and Canada, and Canada cannot have prosperity. His Government is the one encumbhance and hindrance o Canada's development within the Empire."

HORRIBLE MURDER

An Elk Prairie feud came to a head last Tuesday afternoon when the Government road gang working under Foreman George Whiting, reached the Mansfield ranch and commenced work pulling up a fence which was on the surveyed right-of-way. Mansfield came to the gang and ordered them to stop but they paid no attention to him and he went to his house returning with a rifle and commenced shooting. One shot went through the calf of Frank Norstrom's leg and another through his foot. Another shot tore through Abel Norstrom's clothing beween his arm and his body but only inflicted a slight wound. Mansfield kept up shooting and George Whiting was slightly wounded in the shoulder before the gang broke and ran for shelter. Mansfield went back to his house and obtained a horse and after pursuing Whiting for a short distance made oc into the bush. The Provincial Police were notified of the shooting and an armed posse took up the chase but nothing was seen of Mansfield again until Wednesday afternoon when Whiting, who was returning from Natal by car, was murdered in cold blood, just half a mile from his home.

Whiting had been to Natal to have his wound dressed and while there he called up District Engineer Hayne here by phone shortly after four o' clock in the afternoon, and told him that he had been advised by Sgt. Greenwood to remain in Natal until Mansfield had been captured, but he was going out home first before he came back to Natal to stay. He then apparently left Natal and when he was climbing hill near Wilson Creek, Mansfield jumped into the roadway and without a word of warning fired two shots, the first hitting Whiting in the head killing him instantly, the bullet entering his forhead and almost completely blowing off the top of his head.

Sgt. Greenwood, immediately on receiving word of this second outrage, spread out a large cordon, comprised of B. C. Provincial Police, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Alberta Provincial Police and specials, detailing his men in circular position around this district. Provincial Constable Smith, of Elko, was detailed to watch Mansfields home and about seven o'clock Wednesday evening he saw Mansfield in the bush and approached to within thirty yards of him when Mansfield spotted the Constable and unslung his rifle and pointing it at Smith ordered him to stop. Smith had a revolver in his pocket and made no move to get it, but Mansfield said "You can't reach me with that but I have something that can reach you." With remarkable coolness while looking down the barrel of a rifle, Constable Smith talked Mansfield into ejecting the shells from his rifle and gave him a promise that he would not use the handcuffs, that he would allow Mansfield to go to his house, change his clothes, and take him to the Fernie jail giving him protection enroute. The constable carried out his promise and Mansfield was brought to the Fernie jail that evening under escort of Sgt. Greenwood, and Constable Smith of the Provincial force and Sgt. Hanna and Constable Gunn of the Mounted Police.

He was brought up in the Police Court Thursday Morning and formally remanded for eight days. A. I. Fisher, K. C., has been retained as counsel for the Crown at the inquest and the preliminary trial.

BIGGER MILL AT PREMIER MINE

Milling capacity of the Premier mine in the Portland canal district is to be doubled, according to R. W. Wood, president of the company, who has returned from 10 days visit to the mine and other properties. The capacity when the new work is completed will be more than 400 tons of ore a day. Asked regarding the reported purchse of control of the Forty-Nine mine by the Premier interests, Mr. Wood replied that his company now were examining the Forty Nine with diamond drill. The only other shippnig mine in the district is the Porter-Idaho, on Marmot river, which is getting considerable tonnage down to tidewater for a shipment this month.

FERNIE GIRL DROWNED

While playing with two little companions, Eileen Manning, three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manning fell ito a backwater of the Elk River, at the foot of Cox Street in Fernie Annex this afternoon was drowned.

There were no eye witnesses of the accident excepting her little companions, who when they discovered Eileen had fallen into the water bravely attempted a rescue. They got hold of her all right and managed to pull her out of the water on to the bank and called for help. Some adults heard the cries and rushing to the river bank, and noticing the child's condition, attempting artificial respiration while a phone call brought Dr. Corsan to the scene wthin a few minutes, but although ever effort was made to save the little girl's life, she did not recover.

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION

A large number of members and citizens interested in sports assembled at the Vets rooms on Monday evening last. The various committees reported everything favorably progressing in their respective spheres. Harry Sharpe reported that several of the business men, fraternal societies and individual characters had decided to join in the parade. The G. W. V. A. will have a float in the parade. But will not be a competitor. W. Howarth on behalf of the finance committee, gave a glowing report of the generous response to the subscription list. The baseball events under the direction of Mr. Kastner promises to give the patrons value for the money. Paddy Hughes in charge of football events informs us that Messrs Glover and Liphardt have donated a challenge shield to be competed for annually, winners to hold for one year. (This is extra to the regular prizes). The park events under J. Rigg and J. Greenough and as chairmen of committees, are well under way. The dance committee advise us that in spite of the obstacles placed in this way, in securing the Victoria Hall, arrangements have been made to hold a dance under novel conditions, during which Highland dancing exhibitions will be given by Mss Jean Gault of Calgary. Coleman pipe band will be here in full force thus delighting the hearts of Bbraw Scots. A further meeting will be held tonight at 7.'0. Get out and boost.

CROSSING ACCIDENT

At about ten o'clock yesterday mornning, the Eastbound Soo Freight No. 92 crashed into an automobile driven by Mr. William Huston, of Blairmore, Alta., at the level crossing on the C.P.R., about one mile east of Hosmer station.

Huston was accompanied at the time by his sister, Mrs Edward W. Brown, wife of ex-Provincial Treasurer Edward Wallace Brown, of Winnipeg, Manitoba. The car was carried or thrown a distance on nearly eighty-five feet from the crossing and was a total wreck. Hutson and Mrs. Brown were buried under the wreckage and when brought out were both found to be suffering from serious injuries. They were taken on board the west bound passenger train and brought to the Fernie Hospital.

This morning the hospital reports that Huston's injuries were not so serious as at first believed and that he is well on the way to complete recovery. Mrs. Brown, however, was in a very precarious condition when she was brougtht here, having sustained a fracture of the right leg just below the knee, several cuts about the head, a slight concussion and bruises about the body. The concussion, however, has since disapeapeared and she passed a pretty fair night and is now resting much easier. Her condition is improving slowly and despite her injuries, she is keeping quite cheerful.

Mayor Irvine spent a couple of days in Calgary this week.

ROAD WORK DISCUSSED

The City Council held their regular meeting in the Council Chamber last evening with Mayor J. S. Irvine in the Chair. Aldermen Kerr and Tully were absent.

There was some discussion regarding the appointment of a City Auditor to fill the position made vacant by the resignation of G. F. Johnson, and a motion was passed appointing Messrs. Hallowell McLaughlin & Co. for the year ending December 31st, 1925, at a fee of $400.

Harold Wheeler and Charles Howarth, on behalf of the Labor Day Sports Committee, waited upon the Council and formally requested that the City make some necessary repairs to the fences at the park prior to Labor Day.

The usual sheaf of accounts were passed for payment.

The road work now being carried on in the city, came up for lengthy discussion. The Mayor reported that Baker Avenue was now practically completed and it was the intention to now proceed with Thompson Street repairs as the rock crusher was now located close to that street and by so doing they could take advantage of the short haul for crushed rock. He also advised putting on a double shift and working sixteen hours a day so that the work could be hurried forward and the crusher moved to Coal Creek when Thompson Street was completed, so that advantage could also be taken of a short haul to Victoria Avenue. These points were fully discussed and the Council approved of this plan.

The matter of repairs to the park fence was left in the hands of the Park Committee to investigate.

Alderman Lees reported that he had visited Fairy Creek dam and would recommend that the intake be cleaned out. Mayor Irvine assured him that this would be done.

HON. DR. KING FOR KOOTENAY

Vancouver, Aug. 16.—Setting at rest rumors that he might seek to represent a constituency at the coast, Hon. J. H. King, federal minister of public works, announced last evening before leaving Vancouver for Ottawa that he will seek reelection in the district of East Kootenay in the next federal election if he is nominated.

Dr. King said he expected to return in September to make a tour of British Columbia. He added that his tour did not have any bearing on a possible general election, which subject he said has not yet been seriously discussed by the cabinet.

"While the suggestions that have been made by my friends at the coast that I should run in a coast constituency at the next election are very enticing, it is a big wrench to break old associations, and I have decided that if the East Kootenay convention wishes to nominate me I shall again be a candidate in the district where I have fought all my political battles since 1903." declared Mr. King.

"The people of the Kootenay country have been very good to me," he said. "I have been in the political game there for more than 20 years, and, while it is not a coast constituency, it is a very important district where great development is to be looked for in the near future.

"It is my custom to make a tour of the province each year, and I would have done it on this trip but pressing business demands my return to Ottawa at once," he added. "I probably shall be back here by the middle of September and make my annual tour of the province during the months of September and October."

It was learned from officials of the Liberal party that no nominating conventions in the Vancouver region are to be held by the Liberal party util Dr. King returns, which means that if the decision is for an election, they will be held in the second or third week of September.

Mr. and Mrs. George Tupper, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Morgan, of Wayne, were visitors in town on Tuesday. They left here for a motor trip through the west.

FERNIE FOLK HAVE FIRE

The following news item from the New Westminster Columbian refers to Frank Perri and his sister Mrs. Scarbo, recently of Fernie, B.C.

A trail of blood on the sidewalk on Sixth street, from the corner of Fifth avenue is thought to mark the path taken by an incendiary who set fire to a small building at that point early this morning.

The building is a frame structure, about twenty feet square, on the south-east corner of Fifth avenue and Sixth street. It has been in use for a short time as a shoe store. The sign proclaims Frank Perri to be the proprietor, but his sister, Mrs. Scarbo says she bought Perri out and that he went to Nanaimo last Friday.

Firemen, responding to an alarm about a quarter to five this morning, found the interior of the store well alight but experienced little difficulty in extinguishing the flames, which were among the shelving and cardboard boxes containing shoes, and in the ceiling but not on the outside of the building.

There was found, stuffed in between the shoe boxes, the remains of some underwear which had been saturated with some highly inflammable and sticky liquid. This stuff, whatever it is, burns exactly like gasoline. Fire Chief Watson cut off a piece of it and touched a match to one corner In a flash the whole piece was wrapped in flame.

Detective Sid Bass of the city police was called in, and is making an investigation.

There is no doubt in the mind of Chief Watson that the place was deliberately fired by some person. The blaze was quite obviously started in the corner where the saturated underwear had been placed, and there was absolutely nothing in the building to account for a fire starting of its own accord either in that or any other spot.

When the firemen arrived, the the enclosure, on Fifth avenue, near quite fresh. They led from the gate of bloodstains on the sidewalk were the back door of the building, round the corner and south on Sixth street for a considerable distance. The theory is that the incendiary either cut himself or had a bleeding at the nose and there is evidence also that someone, perhaps the incendiary, was taken sick and vomited at the corner of the street, possibly overcome by the smoke that filled the little store before he had completed his work.

Mrs. Scarbo informed Chief Watson and Detective Bass that the stock was insured for $4,000 and that there is a mortgage on it of $3,000.

Perri came here recently from Fernie, and apparently brought the stock with him.

The movement of harvesters to the prairie grain fields has already begun and quite a number have gone from Fernie.. It is estimated that six thousand men will have gone east from British Columbia by the end of the month. The Department of Labor has been instrumental in securing low railway rates going and returning and the employment offices are enlisting men.

RED MONSTER OF MOSCOW

Port Angeles, Wash., Aug. 13.—In an address here today before the state convention of the American legion, Representative John W. Summers, in discussing "The Red Monster of Moscow," said:

"The history of the world is interwoven with plots, intrigues and conspiracies, but until the present decade the world has not known a conspiracy so diabolical in its designs and so far-reaching in its purposes as the red monster of Moscow. Never before has any group of men deliberately set out to achieve by intrigue and violence the overthrow of the established order of society and the recognized governments of all nations.

"One who has studied this hideous monster at close range says:

"The great conspiracy affects every one. Its aim, everywhere, is the forcible seizure of power, by any and all means; the enslavement, in the name of "revolutionary discipline," of the workers and farmers; the immediate execution or imprisonment of all conservative and liberal leaders, including moderate socialists and moderate labor leaders; the expropriation, eviction and slow extinction of the upper abasement of all the more successful individuals, of whatever class, to the profit of the less successful; the dissolution of the family; the forcible moral and intellectual corruption of all children, male and female, in the name of materialistic philosophy and communist theory; the destruction of religion and the church; in short, the extinction of western civilization and all its traditions, and the formation, amid the ruin of all that now makes living worth the while, of a new materialistic, communistic world order , under the iron dictatorship of the immediate heirs and followers of Nicolai Lenin."

"Wherever in the world there are white-livered, pale-blooded patriots, disaffected minorities, social or political troubles, or disorder from any cause, there the insiduous propagandist plants the seeds of the great conspiracy.

"Do you ask proof of the red menace in America. The let me quote from the attorney general of the United States who says

"One of the most potent and far-reaching influences in stirring up discontet, race prejudice, and class hatred in this country is the large number of radical newspapers and other publications which are given wide circulation.

" 'Many of these publications frankly urge the overthrow of the government. There are 22 radical newspapers published in foreign languages in this country and 105 radical newspapers published in the English language. In addition, 144 radical newspapers published in foreign countries are received and distributed to subscribers here.

" 'These newspapers and publications more than any other one thing, perhaps, are responsible for the spread of the bolshevik, revolutionary, and extreme radical doctrines in this country.

" 'It is almost a noticeable fact that a great many of these publications are virtually void of advertising matter, which indicates that they are receiving money from outside sources to further their propaganda.' "

"No more important duty devolves upon us than the patriotic education and direction of Americans and aliens who, from environment or lack of education or from the effects of propaganda, are disposed to turn against our own government. Let me suggest to you as individuals and as legion posts the important duty of protecting your own communities—not by buse nor by strong-arm methods but by diplomatic direction and leadership.

"The alien who would come our way must come either for a temporary residence or else he must come with an open heart and mind ready t oblend with our citizenship in upholding the highest ideals that the world has ever known.

"In our generosity we have opened wide the door, and while admitting the millions who have become real Americans we have also admitted other millions who never have, who never will become American citizens. These are the tools that are readily grasped by the agitator, the I. W. W., the anarchist and the revolutionist in carrying out his unholy designs against our national standards.

"But, while we scrutinize our immigrants we must also turn the searchlight upon ourselves. We must develop and carry forward a common sense program that will reach both young and old, both alien and American. Our industrial laws must be eminently just and reasonable. We must go more than half way in instilling a new patriotism, the patriotism of our Puritan fathers."

HOW TO PRODUCE A BETTER RACE

Can we produce in Canada a better, more efficient, and a happier race? This is the question that the recently formed Division of Education of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council under Professor Peter Sandford and A. D. Hardie, N. A., have set out to answer.

For months these experts in conjunction with an Advisory Committee composed of biologists, hygienists, psychologists, educationalists, and noted figures in the church and women's organizations have been searching for an answer which is not merely theoretically acceptable, but is definitely practical throughout the Dominion.

Findings are to be later embodied in official publications of the Division of Education of the Social Hygiene Council, but a forecast of them is now available from recent pronouncements made by the directors of this department.

The answer to all three questions is yes, but the end in view of attaining better health, greater happiness and usefulness, as well as a prolongation of human life, in this country is dependent, here as elsewhere, on the somewhat slow process of education of the whole people in what life is and how it should be lived.

Starting with the thesis that if one entire generation can be fully educated in all that scientific standards of personal and social hygiene my mean to themselves and children, it is ostulated that the succeeding generation will be an improved race.

In the opinion of these experts and their notable Advisory Committee the question will be shown to resolve itself, in its final analysis into the problem of educating parents, because parents are the teachers in the preschool years, a period of life now being recognized as the most important for not only laying the foundations of health, but of morals and character as ell.

The report will emphasize the point that when parents are taught to realize that a child is made or marred physically, mentally and morally before he ever sets foot in a school, there will be a much greater readiness on their part to know and to teach the science of life.

A fundamental recommendation in the report will be that instruction of children from very early years shall be given in suitable form for their limited understanding but with neither evasions or sentiment, through such sciences as botany, zoology, phsiology and household science, with more advanced knowledge of a protective character imparted not later than the age of ten to both boys and girls.

The paramount importance of training children from babyhood in right habits, and proper attitudes of mind will be emphasized, while the dangers of aloofness or silence about vital subjects on the part of parents will be pointed out along with the need of establishing confidential contacts with their children, and of implanting in them gradually an ineradicable respect for themselves, the family and the race.

Throughout the recommendations of this report will run the conviction that proper education of the young will depend first on instructed parenthood, secondly on the active co-operation of school, church, and medical fraternity in ensuring a logical continuation of the work of building up a generation of instructed youth and thirdly on the imperative necessity at all times of keeping away from an over emphasis on sex, while offering instruction to allay all natural curiosities and recreation or other wholesome activities to provide for both physical fitness and healthy minds in the young of the race.

Mr. A. A. Purcell alludes to the British Empire as "a huge slave plantation; and yet Mr. Purcell has a seat in the British Parliament and is one of the Empire's law-gvers.

PROVINCIAL POLICE

British Columbia police are about to undergo a metamorphosis, and from a band of plain clothes men they will soon emerge as nattily khaki clad officers, a la South African Constabulars, or Royal Canadian Mounted Police, with variations.

Some of the uniforms have arrived and the Vancouver staff have been attempting to find tunics and other garments which fit. The hand of a tailor will be needed to reef in the slack now enveloping the thin ones; and the excess can be used to advantage in uniforms intended for corpulent constables and sergeants.

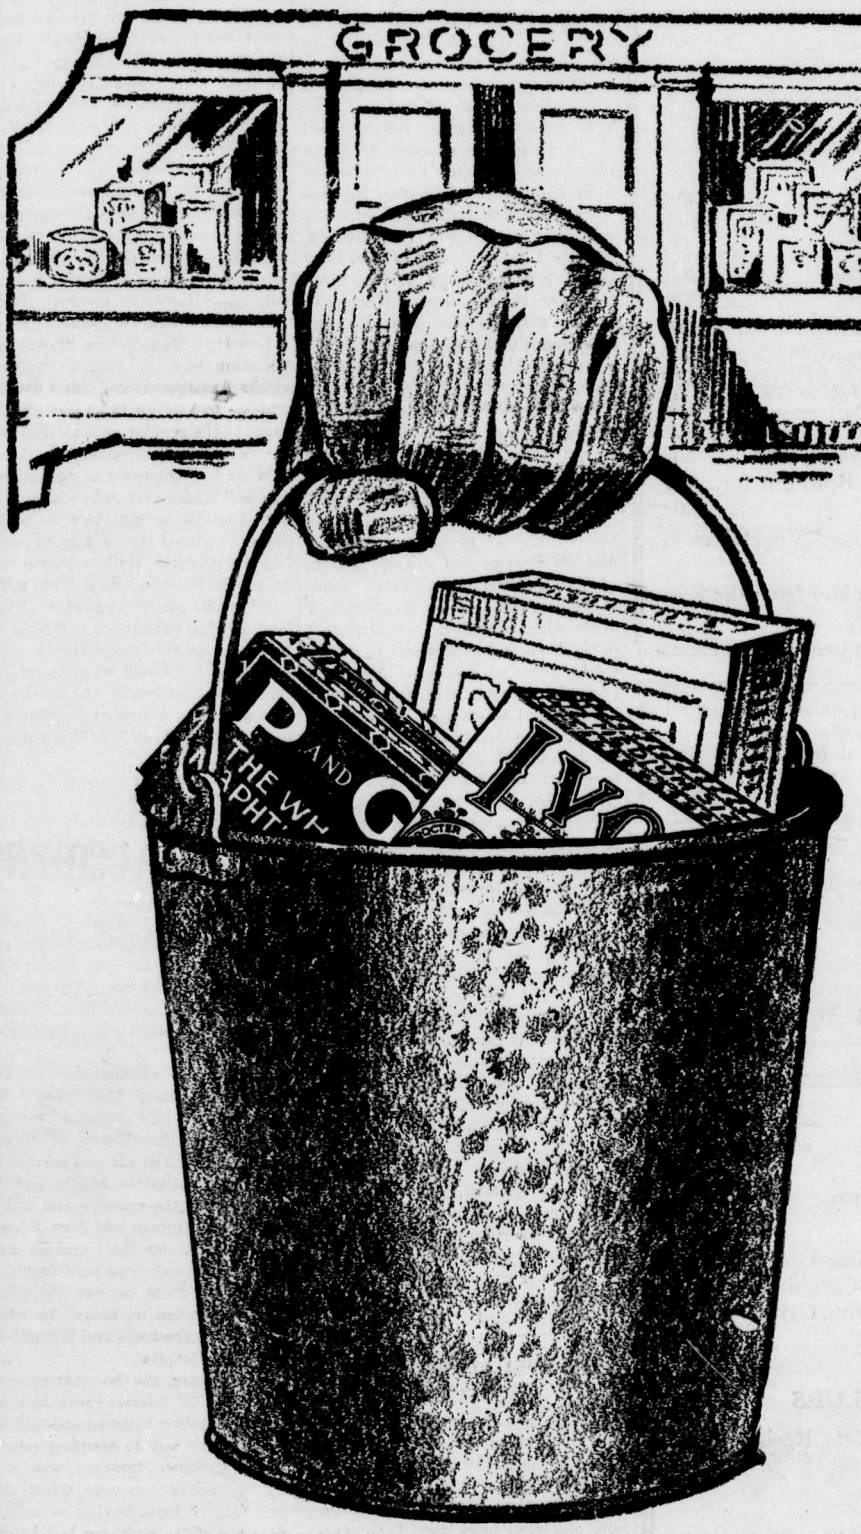
Perhaps the greatest disappointment has been over the high riding boots. Either the boots are at fault or the British Columbia police feet are peculiar. In any event, the feet descend as far as the bend of the ankle; but will go no further.

Surrounding the tunic and the man inside is a heavy leather belt, from which suspends a revolver holster, and extending across the chest and over the shoulder is another strip of leather, intended for ornamental and useful purposes.

Beautiful designed badges, being the province's coat of arms surmounted by a crown, with the words "British Columbia Police," decorate the uniforms.

Polishing of buttons will be a regular daily duty for members of the force.

Arrangements are being made to enable the office staff to wear long trousers; the concensus of opinion being that cord breeches, high boots, and spurs, are not necessary for this kind of work.



The uniform is completed by a wild and wool sombrero. These have not yet arrived.—Kimberley Press.

Statistics just published show that Canadians to the number of 125,000 entered the United States during the year ending June, 1925. This figure and similar statistics for the past few years constitute a very compelling reason why the Government of Mr. Mackenzie King should not be returned to power.

If Premier Dunning of Saskatchewan enters the Cabinet of Mr. Mackenzie King he is throwing away the substance for the shadow. In Saskatchewan he has over four years of power and emolument ahead of him. At Ottawa the probabilities are that his tenure of office as a Cabinet Minister will not last as many months.

HON. DR. KING AT CALGARY

The Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, interviewed in Calgary, said: "No I have nothing to say about a general Federal election. It had not been seriously considered when I left Ottawa two weeks ago, and I have heard nothing of it since.

"The Government is not alarmed at the outcome of the last two elections in the maratime provinces. The fight was a local one indicative in no way of the feelings of the people in Dominion policies. The present Government recently arranged a trade agreement with the West Indies which materially benefited shipping and other industries in the maratime provinces. This has won favor for the Government in these provinces.

Dr. King will arrive at the Cabinet meeting a few days late as a result of the inspection of the new road from Lake Louise to Field and the extension to meet the provincial road connecting with Golden. Travel over the loop to Golden connecting with the Windermere will be possible next year, he thinks, in any case the road to field will be open to Field next spring.

"The Banff-Windermere road is bringing the Americans in by the thousands by motor car. The new road to Field and the Loop when completed will hold them in Canada for a longer time. The longer they are in Canada the more American money will go into the coffers of the Canadian people and with the yearly increase in motor travel the roads will soon pay for themselves. California has hundreds of thousands of motor tourists each year. The mountains are the logical spots in the hot summer season. The hundreds of thousands of tourists who visit California will visit the Canadian Rockies as soon as the chain of roads is completed and as soon as the system becomes known to the majority of the traveling public across the line,' he concluded.

Dr. King said he had had a very busy trip, as he had only been away from Ottawa for about three weeks, and during that time had been as far as Victoria. Dr. King commented on the big business being done at Vancouver and of the new dock and pier there.

"Not only is trade with the Orient increasing, but also with the United Kingdom," he said. "The Blue Funnel Line has transferred its headquarters from Seattle to Vancouver, which is a very good sign."

Dr. King does not expect to make any more stops on his way home except at Port Arthur and Fort William. He is accompanied on his trip by Mrs. King and his secretary, G. Heldman.

OLD EGYPT SEEN IN "THE TEN COMMANDMENTS"

Renewed interest in the glories of ancient Egypt resulting from the discovery of the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen are reflected in Cecil B. DeMille's "The Ten Commandments."

Months before Cecil B. DeMille started work on "The Ten Commandments" he had Egyptologists do research work as to the costumes, accessories, and buildings of that Biblical era which the first part of the picture portrays. They delved into ancient books and went to the far corners of the earth in order to collect such information as was necessary to make the picture authentic in every detail.

With the benefit of all this knowledge, about eight months before the Exodus scenes were taken, preparation work was started in desert locations which resembled those described in the Bible. Engineers built sphinxes, pyramids, and a city whose walls were 109 feet in height. In less than eight months a city was erected which had taken the ancients as many centuries. When completed, it was used for only eighteen days. Egypt lived again for a fortnight.

"The Ten Commandments" is coming to the Orpheum Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday next, with an all star cast.

The Cranbrook Courier says: The Wardner news in this week's Courier contains a bit of information well worth pondering over. A lad of that town found an overcoat on the public highway, in the pocket of which was a wallet containing several hundred dollars, without any marks whatever to identify same. The lad turned the money over to his mother, who, upon learning that a tourist had returned to Wardner seeking the lost money, turned over same to him. The crux of the story lies in the reward given for the return of the money. This kindly hearted individual handed the boy 20 cents for his honesty. If this tourist does not die from enlargement of the heart, it will be no fault of his own. The least his kindly heart should have prompted him to give woul be fi25.00.

NEW CHEVROLET

Competitors of the Chevrolet Car are in some instances spreading the untruthful rumor that the recent reduction in Chevrolet prices was for the purpose cleaning up old models as a new model is coming on the market, this report is not correct, and we have been advised by the factory that they have no thought of producing any new models as the reception accorded the New Chevrolet this year would make such a procedure absolutely unwarranted.

The price reduction is based on sound economics and a desire to share with the public economies effected by the enormous production secured with the New Chevrolet.

Phone or call when we will be pleased to demonstrate this wonderful New Chevrolet to you.

There is only one way to kill all the Flies

This is it—Darken the room as much as possible, close the windows, raise one of the blinds where the sun shines in, about eight inches, place as many Wilson's Fly Pads as possible on plates (properly wetted with water but not flooded) on the window ledge where the light is strong, leave the room closed for two or three hours, then sweep up the flies and burn them. See illustration below.

EDITORIAL ECHOES

WHY IS HAY FEVER

An eastern newspaper suggests that men of medicine turn their attention to hay fever. There is no doubt that a remedy for this distressing and mysterious malady would prove a great blessing for a large number of persons throughout the world. We call it a mysterious malady because it is so. What is its cause and why must its victims suffer annually in spite of all they do to prevent its recurrence? Those upon whom it has laid its hold know almost to a day when they will be called upon to again endure its agonies.

Because hay fever is more prevalent in August than in any other month it is popularly supposed that pollen from flowers is the cause. But why pollen from Augusts flowers and not from those blooming in other months of the year? To answer that the adherents of the pollen theory pick on the golden rod. But hay fever claims its victims in places where there is no golden rod and residents of large cities who never are within miles of that popular wild flower at any time often suffer the most severely. And if pollen is the cause of the disease why are not all who live in the country afflicted and all who live in the city immune?

The writer who suggested that physicians turn their attention to hay fever may or may not be a sufferer but in any event he puts up to them a puzzle worthy of their fullest consideration. That it is not ordinarily a fatal malady does not make the hay fever problem less important. The fact that it seemingly is such a simple and more or less harmless affliction makes it seem that the answer to the problem should be easy to discover. Seemingly of a similar nature to influenza, it is not so often fatal, but it causes a great amount of suffering each year.

The very mysteriousness of the disease should be a sufficient motive to cause some physician to determine to conquer it.

THE CLEAN TOWN

Cleanliness, it has been said, is next to Godliness. A dirty individual is neither clean spiritually nor mentally. Dirt makes for ruin physically, mentally, morally. This is as true of a town as of an individual. The dirty town, the town full of rubbish, of untidy houses, of muddy streets, of unsanitary conditions, is non-progressive materially, morally and educationally. Neither moral nor material advancement flourish in dirty, unkempt dwellings or in unkempt towns.

If any town or city is ambitious for advancement, or if even a few of its men and women are ready to devote their time and energy to the betterment of the community, the surest way to achieve success is to clean up—make back yards and front yards clean, make streets clean and keep them clean, encourage the people to beautify their homes and their yards, stimulate a love for and a pride in their homes and in their towns, repair the tumble-down yard fences, paint up, make things as clean outside as they should be inside, and then that community will look up mentally, morally and materially.

No community which does not clean up and paint up, which does not do its best to have clean streets and clean yards, has any right to look up and face the world.

It might be said a dirty town makes a dirty people; a dirty people makes moral and material dirt and decay. It is the duty of all men and women to make their homes and their home towns just as clean and attractive and beautiful as possible. He who fails short in this respect falls short of his duty to God and man, it matters not what else he may do.

OF SCHOOLS AND FASHIONS

The streak of the conventional which keeps men from expressing their own ideas for fear of seeming peculiar is never responsible for any of the great creations or accomplishments in the worlds history.

Fashions in art, music, dress, and the like do not foster individual genius, but serve rather to depress and engulf it. J. G. Huneker went so far as to say that "There are no schools in art or literature, only good writers and artists. There are no types, only individuals." This is a cheering word from one who was well able to pass an opinion on the subject; and it may serve as a warning to those enthusiasts who are all too eager to follow the hue and cry of a new fad in the fine arts.

The attractive thing about a fashion is that its features are plainly apparent to the one who would follow it, nd he has to do little or no thinking on the subject himself. It is clear, therefore, that those who shrink from mental activity and creative thought will be found among the ones who most closely cling to the accepted "school" or fashion.

The individuals who have reached achievements in their chosen field have done so because of patient unrelenting toil, together with the conviction that their message is peculiarly their own use and hence worthy of beautiful expression.

Great Northern Maintained "City-on-Wheels" for Knights Templar

A city within a city was established in Seattle during the week of the Knights Templar Conclave when the railroads serving the Pacific Northwest utilized their splendid trackage facilities for taking care of transportation, parking and storage of the hundreds of Pullman sleeping, baggage and dining cars which were required for bringing the thousands of Sir Knights and their wives from all States of the Union.

The picture above shows a portion of the special trains parked on parallel tracks of the Great Northern Railway, immediately adjoining the King St. Passenger Station in Seattle. The tracks, within a few feet of each other, are readily accessible to auto, and visitors had all necessary facilities such as information bureau, telephones, telegraph, post office, restaurant, news stand, parcel room, baggage room, ticket office, all but a few feet distant.

The ease with which the special trains and cars were accommodated in Seattle, say Great Northern passenger men, was a revelation to railroad representatives from the East who were in Seattle during the week. The latter were unanimous in saying that no city in the country has better track arrangements, or such convenient locations for parking trains of Pullmans that are thus occupied by passengers in lieu of hotel accommodations. The facilities here available will, it is believed, be of considerable importance in helping the Pacific Northwest to secure other great conventions in the future.

Death came suddenly to Mrs. Francis Simpson, wife of Albert Simpson, of West Fernie, on Thursday morning. Deceased had been ailing slightly for a few days, but nothing serious was anticipated. Upon going to her room on Thursday morning at 9 oclock it was found that she had passed away from a heart attack. The funeral will take place on Sunday.

Fernie district had rather a heavy list of mishaps this week. Commencing Tuesday with the shooting up of the road gang, it continued with the murder of George Whiting on Wednesday, on Thursday there were two minor accidents at Coal Creek, the level crossing accident at Hosmer, the drowning of little Eileen Manning in the Elk River and a couple of auto accidents on the Morrissey hill.

On Tuesday evening Mrs. A. Watson and Mrs. J. Wallace gave a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Mary Liphardt, who is to be a September bride. The table was prettily decorated with mauve and pink sweet peas, and mauve streamers extending from a large white bell to the edge of the table. Several musical selections were rendered during the evening by Miss Liphardt, Mrs. Laws, Mrs. Asselstine and Mrs. Watson, Miss Marjorie Broley presiding at the piano. Miss Liphardt was the recipient of many useful and lovely gifts.

The Cabinet at Victoria will this week decide upon the approximate date of the next session, chiefly as to whether it shall be held at the same time as for the past few years or whether it will be put back to the former time, that is, during the early months of the year. The Premier has been taking the opinion of the members of the Legislature and will be able to report as to what their views are. There are arguments pro and con in regard to both practices.

There were two slight accidents on the Morrissey hill yesterday. A party of tourists from Vancouver, traveling in a Gray Dort, lost control of the car coming down the hill, the driver turned into the bank and the car upset, but fortunately did not go over the bank. One lady passenger was badly cut by glass from the wind shield, but the others were uninjured. The other accident was caused when a Dodge car skidded at the corner on the hill, smashing a wheel. There were no casualties in this affair.

The Lethbridge Cubs, baseball champions of Southern Alberta this season will be here on Sunday next to play the game which was scheduled for last Sunday but had to be postponed on account of rain. The Cubs have been going strong in Southern Alberta this season and would have met Fernie in the Chapionship series had they seen their way clear to remain in the series. This will be the first opportunity the local fans have had this season of seeing the Southern Alberta Club in action, and it will probably be the last as the Lethbridge team expect to close their season as soon as Fernie plays the return game at Lethbridge.

The total number of forest fires which have been reported to the forest branch up to August 15 is 1913, as compared with 1621 up to the same date last year. It was hoped the rain which fell would have some influence in reducing the fires but in spite of that there were 211 outbreaks reported last week. On the coast, however, the situation has caused less worry. Sixty-two fires were caused by one electric storm, and one of the worst of the coast fires, which destroyed twenty homes of settlers, was due to the snapping of a steel cable and the ignition of a dead tree. The present hazardous conditions are common to the entire Pacific northwest, and in the states adjoining British Columbia great loss is being experienced. The cost of forest patrols in this Province is given by the Minister of Lands as being one-half per cent. per acre.

SETTLEMENT IN NOVA SCOTIA

Canadians will be glad to learn that the Rhodes government of Nova Scotia has been able to effect even a temporary settlement between the British Steel Corporation and the striking miners, come ten thousand of whom have been jobless for many months.

The Nova Scotia government will remit one-fifth of its coal royalties for the period of one year, while the wage rate will be based upon the 1922 scale, which is some six or eight per cent. below that of 1924. The checkoff controversey is still in the air, but the government hopes to adjust this by means of a secret vote among the men it being generally understood that the workmen are by no means a unit as to the value of having the Corporation take from their monthly pay, whether they like it or not, union dues to be passed over to the miners' union. Naturally the Corporation is not in love with the checkoff system, any more than is any other group of employers, for it serves just one purpose and thatthat is it keeps the union one hundred per cent. efficient.

While there is still much in the air as pertains to anything like a permanent adjustment, the Hon. Mr. Rhodes and the members of his government are to be congratulated on making headway.

One should not shut their eyes to the fact that the Reds are still active and the decision to go back to work on the terms proposed by the Rhodes Government was by no means unanimous. The return to work proposal was carried by a majority of 1,133, out of a total vote of 6,693, some three thousand hands refraining from casting ballots, while in some districts there was a substantial majority against the proposed adjustment.

In this general row between the Corporation on the one hand and the miners on the other a third party has not been heard from and that is those who have invested their money in these undertakings and have long been without cash returns. The stock of the Dominion Coal Company is widely held by small investors, who can ill afford to do without their interest, to say nothing or having their securiy next to worthless so far as a resale is concerned.

A thorough investigation into the coal industry of Nova Scotia must of necessity follow. There should be nothing to hide on either side. A complete show down as to cost of production and incidentally methods of mining before a competent board can do no possible harm, and would go far toward bringing something permanent in the way of industrial peace.

Here and There

The first batch of last winter's furs brought from the Far North by the steamer "Distributor," from Aklavik, has arrived at Edmonton, Alta., and is valued at approximately $1,000,000. Good catches of furs were reported throughout the north.

Sockeye salmon fishing around Vancouver, B.C., for the first three weeks of the current season, while not as active as last year, has, so far, resulted in fairly good catches. The latest reports indicate a catch to date of 55,000 cases, which is 2,000 cases less than last year.

While the members of Dean Sinclair Laird's party of school teachers from Ontario is returning East from their tour of the country the party of British teachers, who landed in Canada recently, is now travelling through the West on a special Canadian Pacific train to gain knowledge of the country and information concerning its resources.

Construction of the half million dollar storage and power dam on the Muskosh River, authorized at its last session by the Ontario Legislature, has been commenced. The proposed work is designed to control the flow from the Muskoka Lakes basin and will enable the linking up of power development in that district with the Eugenia-Severn system.

Passenger traffic over Western Lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway to date this summer has been particularly heavy, and a large number of special trains and special cars being operated for British, Canadian and American tourists. Lake side and summer tourist travel to the annual exhibition at Saskatoon and other Western points required the operation of special trains.

Construction of one of the largest and most modern departmental stores at Winnipeg, Man., by the Hudson's Bay Company will be proceeded with immediately, according to an announcement by Mayor Webb of that city. A start upon the company's building programme here was assured, stated Mayor Webb, with the passing of a by-law by the City Council providing for a memorial boulevard flanking the Hudson's Bay property.

During the first half of August two important Ontario railway towns celebrated their Old Home Week and held pageants illustrative of their local histories and industrial activities. These were North Bay and Smith Falls, both of which held C.P.R. Days and were the meeting points for thousands of railroad men, who assisted in the pioneering work of the districts. The Old Home Week at North Bay marked the graduation of that town to full-fledged cityhood.

The funeral in Montreal recently of the late G. M. Bosworth, chairman Canadian Pacific Steamships, was attended by E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and nearly all the directors and executive officers of the company. An impressive and dignified procession followed the ceremony, a cortage being formed by the Company's police and officers and men from the crews of Canadian Pacific steamships.

A party of thirty prominent American society people, scientists and artists succeeded recently in blazing a new passage along the Wolverine pass across the northern Canadian Pacific Rockies with the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies. The Riders this year have many famous men among them and six separate countries are represented. Twenty of the members wear gold and enamel buttons, showing that they have ridden 2,500 miles along the mountain trails.

CANADIAN ARMY MEDICAL

The Toronto correspondent of the London Times has the following reference to Sir Andrew McPhail's history of the Canadian Army medical services during the war, the publication of which record has given rise to the caustic reply from Lieutenant Colonel Bruce, of Toronto.

The history of the Canadian Army medical services during the war written by Sir Andrew McPhail, of McGill University, and published by the King's Printer, is certainly to excite strong feeling and to produce grave differences of opinion.

The author denounces the "shoddy war contractors" and describes Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia during the first years of the war, as a swashbuckling incompetent. He says that Sir Sam Hughes was obessed by the belief in the necesity of civilian control of the army, and the Medical services were selected by the Minister as the ground of his struggle for control of the Army, and upon that ground he fell."

Sir Andrew Macphail also passes severe strictures on the report by Col. H. A. Bruce on the organization of the Canadian Medical Services. He says: "Sir Sam Hughes' Overseas Militia Council was largely composed of business men, but that term was used in those days to designate persons who were infallibly wise in giving a decision upon subjects of which they knew nothing. The Minister never had the confidence of the army after it became an army. When he resigned there was a sense of deliverance. His career was a warning to democracy of the inevitable man that will arise when defence in time of peace is a matter of no serious concern. His fate is an admonition to all men lest they attempt things beyond their control."

It is revealed that as early as 1911 the Canadian General Staff had drawn up plans for the mobilization of a Canadian Expeditionary Force of 24,000 men. But it was ordered that the moblization plans should be kept secret business "of what is going on in Europe," and because "if its existence became known in certain quarters natural, but erroneous, deduction might lead to a great deal of mischief."

As to the Canadian Medical Service Sir Andrew Macphail says that it never broke down and was never in danger of breaking down. He states, on the authority of one officer who went through the war, that the Canadian troops suffered more misery on Salisbury Plain than in the Flanders campaign. He admits that it was not for any selfish reason or because of neglect that these troops were located by the War Office in an open camp instead of private billiets. The explanation was that the troops had not been fully trained at Valcartier, and their training had to be continued in England. It is alleged that the deliberate policy of Sir Sam Hughes was to segregate the whole Canadian Army from the British Expeditionary force, but in this the Minister miscalculated the complaisance of his colleagues and the temper of the army

Referring to the Ross rifle Sir Andrew says that the Canadian soldiers "had freed themselves from their Canadian rifles with a thoroughness that will never be understood until the Ypres Canal and Dickebusch Lake give up their secrets. They re-armed themselves with rifles taken from their dead English comrades, and found themselves with an order that laid themselves open to the charge of theft."

He condemns severley the policy of segregating wounded Canadians in hospitals controlled by Canadians. The Babtie Report, Sir Andrew says, will remain as an authenticated document upon which rests the vindication of the Canadian Medical Services.

The chapters of Sir Andrew's book dealing with the Medical Services is highly controversial and has already called forth a denial by Dr. Bruce and a criticism of the Government for selecting Sir Andrew as a war historian.

On The Road To Nelson

(1) A Canadian Pacific Lake Steamship plying between Nelson and Kaslo on the British Columbia lake district. (2) "The Canyon" near South Slocan on the Kootenay River. (3) Bonnington Falls. (4) "The Pool" near Nelson on the Kootenay Lakes, B.C.

On the road to Nelson, whether one enters from the east or west, new beauties charm the eye at every step. Murmuring pines and fir tree cast their shadows along sunny roads, while wayside flowers gladden the eye.

Even in winter, it is equally picturesque, when snow crystals adorn the trees and shrubs, with flowery jewels, their shadows casting strange pictures across the soft snow covering the sleeping earth. For winter in the mountains of British Columbia is a season of joyous sport and out of door life!

Along the way, as the Kootenay makes its downward dash to the Columbia, appear falls and rapids. Two of these are utilized for electric power, by the West Kootenay Power and Light Company, which distributes power for three hundred miles, and the City of Nelson power company, which provides its citizens with heat and light and power from this source. Beyond another of these rapids is the famous fishing ground, known as Slocan pool, where fishermen from all over the world have tried their luck through dark and sunny days.

While the fishing may take time and patience, if the season or the bait is not just right, not so the scenery, for the beauty of the entire riverside may be seen from the car window when passing between Nelson and Castlegar, whence two routes are provided to the Pacific coast.

—Mrs. W. Garland Foster.

BUY CANADIAN GOODS

L'Information (Montreal): The question does not concern the buyer alone. The dealer and the manufacturer have also a very large part to play in the matter. There is no earthly use in all these fantastic campaigns, and this disbursement of considerable sums of money; a customer is not going to buy goods in one place when he knows that he can get the same quality of merchandise at a better price in a neighboring locality or at some distance away. There is no sentiment in this—it is purely a matter of business. A customer, after all, does exactly as the merchant does. The latter purchases from the manufacturer or wholesaler who gives him best prices. If the manufacturer or wholesaler is situated in another province, will he have any scruples about purchasing outside the province? How can one expect the consumer to act otherwise?

Lord Birkenhead, the Secretary of State for India, has denied that there were "bitter controversies" in the British Cabinet on the subject of the proper provision of cruisers and other vessels for the Navy. There have been no bitter divisions, he says, and "I have not heard on either side one angry word." There was no divergence of opinion in the Cabinet as to whether the Government was to abandon in the smallest degree the security known to be indispensable to national existence. The desire was to bring about security with economy and in this direction an accomodation was reached.

ENGLAND MORALLY SOUND

Conditions of crime in England give the press there a feeling of reassurance, because the record shows that there has been a great improvement since crime reached its zenith after the war. At the same time, they are encouraged by the fact that since 1914 more than twenty prisons in England and Wales have been closed, which is said to be "practically a third of the total.' Yet, it is pointed out that the decrease in the number of persons sent to prison does not mean such a great falling-off in crime as would seem, but that the improvement in the situation, according to social reformers, is due to the gradual effects of probationary rather than prison treatment for offenders. There are now only about forty prisons in use throughout the country, according to the London Daily Express, which says that these are by no means fully occupied. This astonishing reduction in the number of jails reflects the 75 per cent. decrease in the number of persons sentenced to imprisonment since 1913, says this journal, which adds that the total prison population in the year 1923-24 was only 58,216 as against 167,000 ten years earlier. We read then:

"The great increase in the use of probationary measures for adults and Borstal institutions for young people which has brought about this decrease in the prison population, has resulted in the Prison Commissioners assiduously carrying out, during the past few years, a policy of closing down and selling prisons which are no longer needed.

"Ipswich prison opened its gates to its last prisoner this week, leaving Norwich jail to serve all Essex, Suffolk, and Norfolk. On Monday and Tuesday a great sale will be held of all the surplus equipment and furniture of the prison in Carliol Square, Newcastle-on-Tyne, which was closed some months ago.

"Even the contents of the prison chapel will come under the hammer. An oak altar, an oak Glastonbury chair, an organ in polished oak, a Bible, and a Roman Catholic altar are among the lots. Fiber pillows, blankets, and clothing will be sold as well."

A prominent official of the British Home Office is quoted by this newspaper as saying that "the reason for the closing down of the prisons is simply that fewer and fewer people are being committed to prison." He adds that "the tendency nowadays is to reform a man or woman, if it is in any way possible," because, to quote this official further:

"Prison does not reform a person who commits a crime, and should only be used as last resort.

"The great decrease in the number of people committed to prison is largely due to the increased use of probationary methods. Greater care is taken of people under probation, and the sending of boys between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one to Borstal institutions instead of to jail is now bearing fruit.

"There is no doubt that the time will come when prisons will be used only for habitual criminals, for people in connection with whom all attempts at reform have failed.

"I do not think that any more prisons will be closed now for some time. The prisons which have been closed have been shut down in the interests of economy. Persons committed to prison in an area in which the local prison has been closed are now sent to a neighboring jail."

A number of the prisons which have been closed, The Daily Express goes on to say, are now being used as dwelling places to meet England's dire shortage of houses. Also, we are told that many were used during the war by the War Office for barracks or as places for the confinement of conscientious objectors.

During the first few yers of this century, The Daily Express advises us, approximately 500 people out of every 100,000 of the population were sent to prison each year, while today the percentage is just over 100 in 100,000. The greatest drop has necessarily been in summary convictions such as for drunkenness and similar offenses. But, this newspaper adds:

"The decrease in the number of persons sent to prison is not, however, an indication that crime has decreased in proportion. Indeed, in 1923 more than 110,000 crimes were known to the police to have been committed. This figure was the highest recorded during the sixty-seven years in which such a calculation had been made.

"It is recognized now, however, that crime has shown a decided falling off since reaching its zenith after the war. Social reformers believe that this is due to the gradually working effects of probationary rather than prison treatment for people committing criminal acts."

A comparison of crime conditions in England and in the United States and in France interests the Manchester Guardian to remark that while crimes of violence in England, according to a recent Blue-Book, are becoming less frequent, squads of expert police marksmen were not long ago patrolling Chicago and according to the Chief of Police of that city, making "work for hospitals and not for lawyers." The Guardian goes on to to say:

"Nor is Chicago an oasis of criminals in a desert of law-abiding Americans. A Judge of the Supreme Court of America has given it as his cheerful ouinion that there are 'at least 135,000 women and men in the United States who have unlawfully taken life. This view is at least not upset by last year's figures, which showed that while there were only seventy-one murders in England and Wales, with a population of forty millions, New York's six millions brought off between them two hundred and seventy murders, and Chicago's two millions two hundred and seven murders. So we may comfort ourselves here, after escaping our traffic perils, by reflecting that methods more violent are not very likely to be used against us."

On the other hand, says this Manchester newspaper, England's Paris neighbors, whose chauffeurs have a Gallic verve and dash about them that make the boulevards, to say the least, no safer than our streets, can not keep their spirits up by remembering that their criminals are becoming less common. Thus the Paris Municipal Council is said to have been discussing what is to be done about the increase in assaults by day and night, and burglaries, and we read:

"The Prefect of Police argued that at least 2,500 more police were needed to give Parisians satisfactory protection. Whether he finds, as some of our English officials are finding, that the added burdens of traffic control in busy centres absorb policemen who might otherwise be guarding the suburbs he is not reported to have said. But Paris, equally with our own cities, will certainly want more and more men on patrol duty, so one fears that the ratepayers of Paris will have to resign themselves to some addition to their police force."

Washington press dispatches indicate that England's crime statistics are of interest to that city because they reveal that "while England is putting signs of 'to let' on its prisons, prisons in all parts of the United States are overflowing." An Ottawa press dispatch to the Montreal Gazette relates that while recent Canadian crime statistics are not available at the moment, it was stated at the Dominion Bureau of Statistics there has been "a marked increase in crime since the war," altho it is pointed out that "crime in Canada decreased during the war period.' According to this Ottawa dispatch—

"The penitentiary population of Canada has varied only a few hundred during the past four years and the 1924 figures are lower than the two preceding years. In the penitentiaries controlled by the Department of Justice there were in 1921, 2,150 prisoners; in 1922, there were 2,640 prisoners; in 1923, there were 2,480, and last year there was a drop to 2,225 "Of the total penitentiary population of Canada last year 692 were at Kingston, 551 were t St. Vincent de Paul, 266 at Dorchester, 199 in Manitoba, 224 in British Columbia, and 29' in Saskatchewan.

UNIONISM RAMPART

Urionism in Great Britain is riding a high horse. The shackles of unionized tyranny are all too apparent in direct contrast to the United States and Canada where unionism, according to statistics, is on the down grade. On this continent the combination of coal miners and railway workers going on strike, because the demands of a coal miners' union were not met is a contingency that fortunately we are not likely to face.

The America Federation of Labor, over which the late Sam. Gompers presided so many years, has latterly been steadily losing ground. For instance, the membership of that body in 1920 was 4,078,000. This year the membership has been reduced to 2,865,000. The reason is that the intelligent workmen have lost sympathy with artificial restrictions on a workman's daily output and with any labor union policy responsible for such restrictions. On the other hand the average British workman is ever trying to stretch a one man job so that it will reach over two or three men. In consequence production costs are too high.

In the British Isles housing conditions are by no mens ideal among the workmen. There are not sufficient houses, and the great majority that exist do not come up to decent standards of convenience and comfort. Honest endeavor has been made to better these conditions, but the unions have such a strangle hold on the building trades that it is impossible to build dwellings at anything like a moderate price. Workmen's dwellings that before the war could be purchased for £300 are now selling at £1,200, and rents naturally where the Rent Act permits an increase are in proportion.

In the United States and in Canada closed shop rules are going by the board. For instance, take the city of Detroit, one of the most prosperous industrial centres in the United States and one whose growth over the last few years has been nothing short of marvelous. Detroit is today essentially a non-union centre to the point of where people are not bothering their heads as to whether or not a workman belong to a union. Men there are hired or fired on their merits and demerits, as the case may be. The Unions have nothing to do with it one way or the other.

Another striking example is San Francisco which has been able to free itself from the tendencies of organized industry which for years had been squeezing out its industrial life. Boston is also an excellent example of the open shop principle.

The printing trades of both the United States and Canada have within the past two or three years been able to free themselves from the closed shops with all its hampering, senseless and irritating rules and regulations, and from a first hand knowledge of the situation I would say that it would be hard to find a printer in the present open shops who now would of his own violition prefer a union card and union rules and regulations.—Saturday Night.

Put Your Roofing Problem Up To Us

Years of experience have taught us which roofings "look good" and which are good.

We know no better value than Barrett Shingles. They're beautiful. With a weather surface of real slate—red, green or blue-black—they add value to any house. And they're fire-safe—won't rot or rust—never need painting or staining. Low in first cost, they're lowest in cost per-year-of-service.

Barrett ROOFINGS

For a durable, moderately priced roof that looks expensive, nothing can compare with Barrett Shingles.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation, and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ten head.

Rev. Wm. Burns gave a very interesting talk at the Rotary luncheon on Monday last taking as his subject the industrial problems as he saw them in the east. He told of the flood of cheap German goods which wer pouring into Canada at less than half the cost they could be manufactured for in this country. He had been in close touch with a number of big men in the east who discussed these problems with him and he was able to give a most interesting outline of the situation. It would seem that the problem was a big one and would take the brightest minds of the country to solve if our manufacturers were to survive. Cheap money, cheap labor and long working hours are producing goods in Germany which coming into competition with our Canadian manufactured product, produced under high wages and short hours puts them out of business.

SOCIALISM SPEAKING

London Daily Herald: We have carried he development of Capitalism further than it has been carried anywhere else. We sacrificed our rural population, we gave up the balance between manufacturing and agriculture. For a time this seemed to be justifying itself. But even its apparent success depended on our being manufacturers for the world. We are no longer in that position, so the system has broken down.

FERNIE WINS TWO GAMES

The Lethbridge Cubs came very close to realizing one of their ambitions on Sunday last when they came within an ace of defeating Fernie in a exhibition game, but the locals had too big a lead and won by a score of seven runs to six.

"Big Six" Geoghegan went on the mound for the visitors and after a very wild start tightened up and pitched good ball for the balance of the game. Jacobs for the locals was in rare form during the first five innings, only allowing two Lethbridge batters to reach first during these frames. He struck out seven men to Geoghegan's six, and did not issue a single base on balls, while his opponent was generous in this matter, donating no less than seven.

Fernie got off to a good start when Geoghegan walked Hovan and Shand, who scored when Yanosik threw wild to first. In the next frame Dunlap singled, Morgan walked, Jacobs was safe on an infield hit, Sang let one past him and Dunlap came in. Morgan and Jacobs scored on Hovan's two bagger, the latter scoring on Steinert's sacrifice fly, and Fernie had a clear lead of six runs. Lethbridge did not look like getting a score until the sixth innings, when Geoghegan singled and came home on R. Greenway's triple. Fernie took another run in the sixth, Shand getting a base on balls, stealing second and scoring on Steinert's two bagger. In the seventh frame Fernie had the first real blow up of the season. Three should have been retired before a run was scored. Three errors and four singles allowed the Lethbridge line-up to bat all the way around and score five runs before they were finally retired. They had a good chance to tie the score in the ninth innings, John Ferko, first man up, smacking out a two bagger but remained there while Jacobs struck out the next man up and had two assists to first on the other two.

(Lethbridge Herald)

For the second time in four days the Lethbridge Cubs bowed before the Fernie Miners when the B.C. invaders walked off the field at Henderson pary Wednesday night with a 5-2 victory stuffed in their bat bag. For the second time "Big Six" Groghegan was chalked up with a defeat at the hands of one of the fastest amateur clubs in Western Canada. But for the second time he had reason for satisfaction over his showing in defeat.

The game last nignt resolved itself into a pitcher's duel between Lefty Blair and Norman Geoghegan. The visiting portsider had a wealth of stuff and struck out 15 batters but the Cub moundsman was not far behind, accounting for a good round dozen by the same route. Where Geoghagen fell down is found in the walk column, eight Miners being granted passage to first while the southside slanter from the sister province did not issue anything gratis until two men were down in the 9th spasm. Then Johnny Ferko worked him for the lone walk. The local twirler was more miserly when it came to yielding singles, six hits being the sum and substance of the invaders' hickory display. The Cubs laid on the horsehide for eight perfectly good clouts.

The crowd was one of the best of the season and the game was certainly worth four bits of anybody's money. With a couple of exceptions it was errorless ball, every run scored being of the bona fide earned variety. Thrills came thick and fast and did not let up until Geoghegan struck out in the 9th inning with men on bases.

Fans, after viewing last night's exhibition will have no doubt as to the strength of the B.C. aspirants for the Alberta provincial baseball honors. They play ball from the floor up. Fernie had the edge last night and earned their win but they had no sinecure and they had to strut their stuff.

Fernie threatened in the first inning but were unable to get a tally across. Geoghegan opened up generously and passed Hovan, first man up. Shand struck out. Hovan stole second and Steinert singled sending Hovan to third "Six" pulled himself out of a bad hole by striking out the next two men. In the second the visitors did not look formidable getting a man to 1st on a walk and having him die there. Rushcall sent a ball out into deep centre in this inning that looked bad but Greenway made a beautiful jump and stabbed the ball to rob the portly clouted of at least a two-bagger.

The third was a one-two-three procession.

Fernie tallied twice in the fourth innings. Barger singled and went to second on McTeer's sacrifice, Rushcall drove the ball out of the field via the right fence and both he and Barger scored. Geoghegan hit Dunlap, struck out Morgan and walked Blair. That left him with a couple of men on the paths and prospects for more runs looming up. Hovan went out, however, Geoghegan to Morrison, retiring the side.

The fifth and sixth innings were merely parades with Geoghegan and Sang doing most of the work. The seventh frame produced a brace of counters for Staff Wilson's proteges when Geoghegan passed Hovan and Shand in succession and Steinert connected for a two base clout scoring both runners. Another pair of strikouts prevented further damage in that inning.

The visitors scored another in the ninth on Steinert's two-bagger followed by Barger's long single.

Yanosik scored both of the Cub tallies on his homer and his 3-base clout assisted by Greenway's single. In but two innings did the Cubs seriously threaten, other than those in which they counted. In the seventh the locals looked good for an addition to their meagre horde but they were nipped before any runs materialized. Two runners died on bases when Geoghegan's hot grounder was gobbled up by Morgan who played a consistently steady game. The threat in the ninth came when G. Greenway hit for two bases after one man had been retired. Johnny Ferko collected his walk, leaving a man on first and second. Clendennin was put in as a pinch hitter but failed to deliver, striking out for the second man down. It was up to Geoghegan. He strove valiently to plant the ball in pastures distant but it was not for him. He whiffed and the game was over.

BRING IN OPEN VERDICT

Natal, Aug. 25.—The injuest touching the death of George Whiting, government road foreman, alleged to be shot down in a lonely spot some miles north of Natal last week, and for which crime Jesse Mansfield, Elk Prarir rancher, is charged with murder, was reopened by Coroner A. C. Murray last night at Michel.

The testimony of four witnesses dealing exclusively with the shooting the day preceding the murder was heard. Abel Nordstrom, Sr., lying in a hospital cot, recovering from what he believes to be gunshot wounds in his left limb and foot, stated that on the day in question, as a member of the government road gang, he was engaged in plowing. His son Abel, jr., was driving the team and George Whiting, deceased, was supervising the work. Other members of the road gang were near by.

According to the witness, Mansfield, early in the afternoon, came over where the gang were plowing and ordered them to come and do the plowing inside his (Mansfield's) fence, placing a time limit of five minutes for this operation to be commenced.

This witness could not recollect any other statement made by Mansfield but was very positive that within the five minutes he opened fire on them from a distance of 75 feet, firing the first shot from an erect position, then dropping on one knee and continuing. Witness felt something strike him in the leg, and sought safety behind a stump, where he fainted.

Abel, Nordstrom, jr., testified that Mansfield came from his house, told the gang he would give them five minutes to plow the alfala patch, returned to his home and then came back with a gun in his hand. Wen but one minute of the allotted time remained, witness said, Mansfield fired four shots, one of which grazed the right side of his body well up underneath his right arm. This witness remained with his team in full view of Mansfield all through the shooting.

Tony Ricco, Italian, testified by means of an interpreter that he was about 35 feet distant and claims Mansfield's remark to the gang was "catch you now," and thereupon fired several shots from a 33 rifle.

John Arnold another of the road gang, stated he was 80 yards from the party and heard Mansfield say, "I give you five minutes to get on to it." Following this, Mansfield fired four shots generally in the direction in the direction of the men and his gun jammed. In remedying this, Mansfield's gun was discharged in the opposite direction.

The proceedings then adjourned until Tuesday,

At the continuation of the Whiting inquest, Tuesday, J. Arnold and George Whiting, jr., son of deceased, testified as to hearing the reports of two gun shots fired apparently in rapid succession. This was about 5.30 Wednesday evening, August 19. At the time the witnesses were at the Whiting residence. Immediately thereafter these witnesses accompanied by others left the Whiting ranch in a car and within less than half a mile traveling in the direction of Michel, they came upon the government road truck and immediately behind it on the ground the lifeless body of George Whiting, sr. Lying beside the body within a few inches of the left hand was a rifle. Witness Arnold described the condition of the gun as he saw it as "It was fully wide open and two shells in." Illustrating for counsel this was shown as the bolt of the rifle drawn back and two cartridges in the magazine exposed.

Wm. Weaver, Elk Prairie dairyman, testified that on the evening in question about five-thirty, he saw George Whiting, sr., drive by his place in a Ford truck. He watched the receding car until it passed out of view on Wilson Creek hill a short distance beyond and within less than a minute after he heard two shots fired close together. Having knowledge of the previous day's shooting affair in the vicinity of Mansfield's ranch he deduced something serious had happened and endeavored to notify the authorities by telephone. He subsequently saw the body of George Whiting and identified it and later in the evening when viewing the scene of the fatal shooting found an empty 256 calibre rifle shell. Coroner Murray also produced a 33 calibre rifle shell picked up by him in the vicinity of where Whiting's body was found when he made an examination of the scene after being officially called.

The inquest then adjourned until Wednesday.

On Thursday morning the coroner's jury returned the verdict that "he met his death on August 19, 1925, presumed to have been caused by a bullet wound fired from a rifle by some person or persons unknown."

At the final sitting of the inquest the first witness was Sidney Weaver, who stated that about 5.30 the evening of Aug. 19, he heard two rifle shots fired within five or six seconds of each other. The sound of the shots came from the top of the hill above Wilson Creek near witness' home and in the vicinity of where George Whiting's body was later found.

Twelve year old Ettie Volpatti testified that about 6 pm. the same evening, while driving along the Elk Prairie road she saw a man whom she did not recognize crouching on the hillside with a gun in his hands.

Herbert Travis, of Natal, identified a rifle found beside Whiting's body as his own, he having late the same afternoon upon the request of Whiting loaned him the rifle with a box of 20 cartridges.

Constable Brindley of Natal, related his activities from being notified of Mansfield's participation in the shooting up of the government road gang on Aug. 18, to the finding of Whiting's body shortly before six o'clock on Aug. 19.

Constable Smith, of Elko, but who had been assigned to duty on Elk Prairie after the first shooting affair was reported, testified as to his participation in the search for Mansfield during the nights of Aug. 18 and 19, being stationed at Mansfield's ranch house, but Mansfield did not return home. He was notified as to two shots being heard from Wilson Creek locality, when, motoring up the valley with Const. Brindley shortly before 6 o'clock, and visiting that place found George Whiting's body. He made a brief examination of the scene, at which time several others were present, ordered the body removed, left two constables on guard and accompanied by Wm. Porter proceeded to Mansfield's ranch. Here he assigned Porter and Constable Ward to outpost duty. While endeavoring to seclude himself he was attracted by seeing a small dog coming from the bush nearby, immediately followed by a man with a rifle. He recognized this man as Mansfield and proceeded towards him, Mansfield advancing toward him. When about 25 yards apart Mansfield ordered Constable Smith to stop. Then a discussion ensued, following which, upon being assured he would not be handcuffed and would be permitted to return to his home for change of clothing and a meal, Mansfield ejected the shells from his rifle and submitted to being placed under arrest.

Constable Smith stated that he repeated the statutory warning to his prisoner and they then proceeded to Mansfeld's home. "While in the room," said Constable Smith, when Mansfield was changing his clothes, he said to me, 'How is the old fellow I shot yesterday?' I said, 'Oh, pretty good.' Mansfield then asked where was he shot, and I said in the leg. 'Oh,' he said, 'I didn't want to shoot him. He was dodging in the way. It was Whiting I wanted.' Mansfield then asked me, 'How is Whiting?' I told him he was dead, whereupon he replied, 'I thought so; I saw his face twitch when I shot him today. He is no good. He has been a robber of me and my family. I am glad I shot him. I have done my duty.'"

Miss Rita Jones, aged 15 years, of Cardinal, Ont., late of Fernie, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Royal Baker, Pitt Street, made quite a lengthy swim the other day when she started from Colquhoun's Island and swam to Dr. Robertson's cottage and up, against the current, to Mr. Nelson Charlebois' cottage, a distance of about a mile and three quarters, without a rest. Mr. Royal Baker followed her in a row boat, but Miss Jones was as fresh as a daisy when she left the water and did not require any help over the entire course.—Cornwall Standard.

THE ENGLISH SITUATION

A momentous precedent was set up, say newspapers in both Great Britain and the United States, when the Baldwin Government obtained a vote of $50,000,000 in the House of Commons to subsidize the coal-mining industry. The alternative was a strike, "and that is something which I am not going to inflict upon the people of Great Britain if there is any honorable way out of it," declared the Prime Minister. And it is certain, asserts T. R. Ybarra, in a London dispatch to the New York Times, that the railroad workers would have struck in sympathy, "thus plunging Great Britain into industrial chaos." "The desperate expedient of a subsidy was employed only as a last resource to prevent a calamity unprecedented in the industrial history of the country," says A. G. Gardiner, in a London dispatch to the Consolidated Press Association.

The "subvention," as it is called in England, is to be continued for nine months, during which time a commission will endeavor to get at the facts of the coal mining industry. "On its face," explains the Philadelphia Inquirer, "the Baldwin proposal is to grant a subvention to the mine-owners under terms that will require them to pass along a portion of what they receive to the miners. This is a make shift that is likely to cause no end of trouble. Neither the unions nor the owners care a rap about the consumer, who is already taxed to the limit." To the Chicago Journal of Commerce, "it is hard to see what Great Britain gains in the present instance." For—

"It may be that this subsidy will cost the British people less in money than would a mine strike. But there are other losses than money losses. There is such a thing as a loss of government pretige.

"If a subsidy to allow the mine owners to maintain the miners' wage scale why not a subsidy to allow the railroads to maintain the railroad employees' wage scale; The Baldwin Cabinet has avoided a general strike, which might have been disastrous politically;but in preserving its own continuance in power, the Cabinet has set a precedent which may lead to a whole series of holdups by organized labor."

Furthermore we are reminded that "there is something for us to think about" in the English situation. "The concessions granted the miners and mine-owners," points out the New Orleans Times Picayune, "probably have stiffened the necks of the American labor leaders in charge of the anthracite negotiations." According to the Kansas City Star:

"This singular action of the British Government was taken under a theory that appears, on examination, to work out to an exactly opposite conclusion to that apparently intended. The theory was that the settlement would prevent an increase of the price of coal to the public, because it was recognized the mine-owners, if they had to meet the miners' demands, would pass the increased cost of production along to the consumer. But it is quite obvious that in subsidizing the coal industry the Government has itself done that very thing, for every shilling that it pays to the owners to pay to the miners, it will collect a shilling from the taxpayers. This is how every Government subsidy must work out in the end, because Government, as an institution, hasn't and never can have a penny of its own, either to spend or give away. What it gives to one business, industry, or individual it must take from another, and it is the purest fallacy to suppose that in this case the British Government has kept down the price of coal. It has put it up just where the mine-owners would have put it up if they had met the miners' demands directly instead of through the Government.

"The doctrine to which the Baldwin Government has given recognition has dangerous and far-reaching implications. Followed out, it will ultimately put the British taxpayers into all kinds of private industry, railroading, shipping, housing and agriculture. And not for profit. The Government gets nothing but the losses, and these it makes good by taxation. An amazing extension of the functions of government, but probably a logical enough one following the experiment of the unemployment dole. From putting a premium on unemployment it was but a step to putting a premium on losses in private industry. Embarked on this of course, it is not easy to see where the British Government is going to stop. Its predicament ought at least, to be a warning to other Governments not to start."

Great Britain, we are told by the Chicago Journal of Commerce, is losing her coal markets because the cost of production is too great. Until next May the industry will be subsidized, in order to keep up production. But, asks this business daily:

"Will the treasury payments cease then? Is it the experience in England, is it the experience in America, that a strong and well organized minority will permit a government to cease a regular money payment?

"England with her doles to the unemployed, England with her unemployed army of a million and a quarter or more—this England certainly has a bad enough morale now. The subsidy makes it worse.

"When various members of a family receive doles, they manage to live—not so comfortably, perhaps, as if they were employed and were drawing wages, but still they live. And they live without working.

"If a man goes to work he surrenders his dole, so he chooses to live on this dole. He is discontented because it is not larger. And those who are at work are discontented because others are living without working.

"Bad morale. And then, to make that morale worse, there comes a surrender to the mine unions. The Government pays millions to keep the miners working at a wage not justified by the price of coal in the markets of the world.

"It certainly looks as if England needs a show-down between the majority of her people and her labor dictators."

"All this trouble—unemployment doles and competition from Ruhr coal—goes back to the war," says the Camden (N. J.) Courier, which maintains that "mankind can not devote five years to destruction, and then finish its job of reconstruction in five—or fifty—years." But the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle believes that—

"The least defensible policy to American eyes is the system of doles under which a million and a quarter persons out of work draw weekly stipends from the Government. Of course the destitute must be provided for; no one must be allowed to starve; but the doles which maintain the unemployed in idleness put a premium on worthlessness, and are making hosts of them unemployables who do not want and will not take offered jobs. Young women will not do housework;young men want easy work or none, and these young people are content to get married and live in fairly well fed indolence as wards of the state. That system removes incentive to better their condition."

There are many American editors, however, who believe that Prime Minister Baldwin had no other alternative when it came to the question of a subsidy or a strike that would paralyze British industry and trade. "Bitter as the subsidy pill is, it will be better than any makeshift settlement if it leads to the fundamental reorganization of the industry," thinks the New York World, and the Philadelphia Public Ledger favors the subsidy because "it extends the dole system to industry as well as to the unemployed." Continues The Ledger:

"The direct grant from the British treasury to mine owners will be paid in wages to men who are at work instead of to idle men. Work instead of idleness is being subsidized. Since the British taxpayer must support somebody, it is better that it be a worker than an idler.

"This British surrender to the black mailing of coal would be unthinkable on this side of the Atlantic, but to the British this mixed dose of politico-economic nostrums seems the only present remedy. The war left the subsidy germ in British blood. Doles and war grants were easy to start, but no British statesman has found a way to stop them.

"There is a new British generation, of non-working young men and women, bred in idleness. They have never done a day's work. Since 1919 they have cost the Treasury $1,000,000,000. For six years, 6 per cent of the population has been supported by the taxpayers.

"The dole is now recognized as the most disastrous blunder Great Britain has made since the war. There can never be a genuine adjustment of British industrial troubles so long as Great Britain supports this army of dependents and parasites."

INJUNCTION AT DRUMHELLER

An injunction to restrain 40 or 50 miners, members of the Red Deer Valley Miners' Union, from picketing, threatening, intimidating or otherwise interfering with any employee in the mines at Drumheller, asked in behalf of Jesse Gouge and other operators in the Drumheller field, by A. L. Smith, K.C., was refused by Mr. Justice Boyle in Supreme Court Chambers on Tuesday morning. Mr. Smith at once went before District Court Judge McNeill, who granted the order asked for. In support of the application for the injunction, Mr. Smith filed an affidavit of Mr. Gouge setting forth an agreement between the operators and the U.M.W. of A., and the fact that a considerable number of men had started to work, and others desired to work under that agreement.

The affidavit further set forth the fact that acts of picketing, stone-throwing and assaults upon various employees had taken place and that threats had been made to them and their families.

Mr. Smith showed from a long list of authorities, both English and Canadian, that these acts were illegal, both by statute and under the common law, and quoted cases where under similar circumstances injunctions had been granted, to restrain such picketing.

Mr. Justice Boyle said that he agreed with Mr. Smith's statement of the law, and that if he thought the granting of the injunction would do any good, he would give it, but that the police could stop violence by arresting these men. He declared that if proper instructions were given by the attorney-general to the commissioner of provincial police, it would be stopped at once. He therefore refused to grant the injunction asked for. Mr. Smith at once went before Judge McNeill, who on the presentation of the facts of the case at once granted the injunction.—Calgary Herald.

EXPENSIVE MONEY

While physicians are exulting over the fact that during the past 10 years the probability of life of a human being has increased from 51 to 56 years, the United States Treasury Department is worrying because in the past 10 years the probability of life of a paper dollar has decreased from one year to seven months.

Paper money is getting too expensive and the department says something must be done about it.

Away back in the early days, the only kind of money in use was cattle. The terminology of this early finance stays with us yet. The Latin word for cattle, "pecus," gives us our "pecuniary," etc., today.

In those days the currency wore out. But when a man's bankroll got weary, he could kill it and roast it—a sort of having your cake and eating it too,

The invention of coins and paper currency speeded up commerce. But two factors today are making it too expensive:

1. The lowered value of the dollar, which makes it necessary for the people to carry a third again as many bills to purchase their needs, and thus wear out just that many more bills.

2. The growth of garage and gasoline business, which necessitates the handling of money with oily hands—something fatal to paper currency.

There are between four and five billion dollars' worth of paper money in circulation in United States. Whenever one of these bills is replaced, it costs the Government a cent-and-a half. If every dollar bill has to be replaced every seven months—and each one costs the Government more than 2 cents a year—the Government practically pays two per cent interest on all one-dollar bills in circulation.

The day of cattle is gone. The day of leather counters has gone. The day of gold dust and gold nuggets has gone. Paper money seems to be going. What next?

MUFFINS

1¾ cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 egg, ⅔ cup water, ½ cup Carnation Milk, 2 tablespoons fat. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add milk and water to well beaten egg, and add to first mixture, then add melted shortening. Bake in greased muffin tins fifteen to twenty-five minutes. This makes ten muffins.

CINNAMON BUNS

⅔ cup water, ½ cup Carnation Milk, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cake compressed yeast, 4½ cups flour, ½ tablespoon cinnamon, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup raisins, 2 tablespoons shortening. Soak yeast in a little warm water. Mix lukewarm water, Carnation Milk, sugar, salt, beaten egg and melted shortening. Add two cups flour and beat well. Allow to rise in a warm place until spongy. Now knead in the other two and one-half cups flour, making a smooth, elastic dough. Let rise in warm place until double its size, turn on lightly floured board and roll about half-inch thick. Spread with soft butter, sprinkle with the cinnamon and sugar and scatter over all the raisins. Fold or roll this and cut in little buns or rolls. Allow to rise to double its size and bake in a hot oven fifteen or twenty minutes. This makes thirty-two rather small cinnamon rolls.

This coupon entitles you to one copy of Mary Blake's Cook Book which contains over 100 carefully tested recipes. Cut out this coupon and mail to Carnation Milk Products Company, Ltd., Aylmer, Ont.

ROYAL BANK OF CANADA

Amalgamation with Union Bank Effective September 1. Enlarges Royal Bank Service in Canada. Bank is doing Important Work in Fostering Canadian Trade.

To the mind of the average person, the name, The Royal Bank of Canada, does not adequately convey the manifold activities of this Canadian institution with over 800 branches in Canada and with over 100 branches established in such countries as Cuba, the British and French West Indies, Haiti, Argentina, Brazil, British Guiana, British Honduras, Costa Rica, Colombia, Peru, Uruguay, Venezuela, as well as in London, New York, Paris and Barcelona, nor does the average business man realize the wide and varied service this Bank is able to render without going outside its own organization.

The Royal Bank of Canada has done much to foster Canadian trade abroad and the value of its service to exporters and importers lies, not in its regular banking business alone, but also in its willingness at all times to supply information regarding markets and marketing conditions, tariffs and confidential credit reports, etc. The value of this type of service is to be found in the fact that information is gathered direct by Managers who are not only on the spot, but know intimately local conditions.

In a little over fifty years, The Royal Bank of Canada has grown to an institution of international importance and today holds a foremost position amongst the great banks of the world.

The Royal Bank of Canada was incorporated in 1869 as "The Merchants Bank of Halifax." Its name was changed to the present title on January 1, 1901. The Head Office was transferred from Halifax to Montreal on March 2, 1907.

During the last two decades, a vigorous policy of expansion has been followed. The assets of the Union Bank of Halifax were purchased by The Royal Bank of Canada on November 1, 1910; of the Traders Bank of Canada on September 1, 1912; of The Quebec Bank on January 2, 1917, and of The Northern Crown Bank on July 2, 1918.

The Bank's facilities for serving the public Canada have been greatly increased by the purchase of The Union Bank of Canada, announcement of which was made by The Minister of Finance at Ottawa, on May 22, 1925, and which was unanimously ratified by the shareholders of both banks on July 21. At the meeting of The Royal Bank shareholders held at the Head Office in Montreal, it was decided to increase the authorized capital of the Bank from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000, as it has always been the practice of the Bank to keep its authorized capital somewhat higher than its paid-up capital.

The purchase of the Union Bank of Canada has added another 270 offices to The Royal Bank's original chain of branches in Canada, thus giving the Bank a total of over 800 branches in the Dominion and more than 100 abroad. The merger will bring the total assets of The Royal Bank of Canada well over 700 million dollars with deposits of over $600,000,000.

The Union Bank of Canada was established in 1865 and has been regarded as particularly a Western Bank. Its Head Office was in Winnipeg and the majority of its branches served the farming sections of the Prairie Provinces.

The absorption of the Branches of The Union Bank of Canada by The Royal Bank of Canada was effected on September 1, 1925.

The Dominion government has this week forwarded to the liquidator over a million dollars to meet this first demand. The payment to those having deposits of over $500 will commence about Oct. 1. The Hon. Dr. King, when visiting Fernie a couple of weeks ago, assured us that every working man who is a depositor, no matter to what amount, will receive his full share of the 35 per cent allotted by the goverment. This will mean that Fernie citizens will draw down about $215,000 from the bonus. About $200,000 was paid out here when the first dividend of 25 percent was issued, and it is expected that a further dividend of 10 per cent will be realized from the assets, which will bring Fernie's total share up around $500,000. The remaining $300,000 will be a total loss it is expected. At least half of this amount belongs to the city and business concerns.

There was quite a lot of criticism of our local member, the Hon. Dr. King,, Minister of Public Works, in the early stages of the campaign for government reimbursement, but we have since learned that had it not been for his untiring efforts on behalf of the depositors no action would have been taken by the government in the matter. There was strong opposition from government members in Eastern Canada and in parts of Quebec and had not the Hon. Dr. King practically put the gun to the head of the government the matter would have been dropped and the depositors would not have realized a cent from the government.

SIDELIGHTS ON REAL SHIEK ARE GIVEN BY ACTRESS

Interesting sidelights on real sheiks are supplied by Wanda Hawley, who recently returned to Hollywood after spending six months in Egypt, and who will be seen here at the Orpheum Theatre on Friday and Saturday in "The Man From Brodney's," a Vitagraph special production based upon the famous novel of the same name by George Barr McCutcheon.

Upon her return to this country, Miss Hawley expressed her delight in getting away from the "sheiks" who have become standard-bearers in literature and drama of today.

Miss Hawley takes exception to the general conception of what a sheik really is. She reports that the spelling of sheik is wrong. In Egypt the spelling is "sheykh." Even the pronunciation is wrong, according to the actress. It is pronounced "shake."

Miss Hawley says the average sheik is 50 years old. He is dignified to the extreme. If he is a Bedouin he respects white women like angels. If he is an Egyptian no white woman will have anything to do with him, she reports.

"And regardless what his race," Miss Hawley adds proudly, "he doesn't come one-two-three in a race for love-making honors with our own American lads. And for riding, the sheik has been overplayed. He can't even do as well as our own cowboys.

In "The Man From Brodney's" Miss Hawley appears as the flirtatious Lady Deppingham, one of the heirs to the rich island of Japat, in the South Seas. J. Warren Kerrigan plays the title role. In the all-star cast besides Mr. Kerrigan and Miss Hawley are Alice Calhoun, Miss DuPont, Pat O'Malley and Kathleen Key.

CLIP THIS AND PIN ON WIFE'S DRESSER

Cincinnati man tells how to shrivel up corns or calluses so they lift off with fingers.

Ouch ! ? ! ? ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn or hardened callus stops soreness at once, and soon the corn or callus dries up and lifts right off without pain.

He says freezone dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any drug store, but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels. If your druggist doesn't have freezone, tell him to order a small bottle for you.

MOOSE DO GOOD WORK

Mooseheart, Ill., August— Tommy Smith, 15 years of age, from Philadelphia, a student in this Loyal Order of Moose city-home and vocational school has had dental work done which if paid for at commercial rates would cost at least $5,000.00, according to expert dental surgeons.

Tommy came to Mooseheart several years ago, being eligible after the death of his father. Before havingthis $5,000.00 worth of dental service done he had what are called "peg teeth." They did not meet for what is known as the "bite and there was no cutting or chewing surface. When teeth are not used, they decay. His teeth had not reached the stage of decay at the time he was first given service. On account of his teeth not meeting for "the bite" his mouth and face were out of shape.

The chief Mooseheart dentist made a cast of Tommy's mouth and showed it to Director General J. Davis, and explained the unusual case. Mr. Davis was so interested in the case of this fatherless boy, that he gave instructions that everything must be done to rebuild this boy's teeth, face and mouth, and he said with emphasis, "Go the limit!"

Then followed conferences of dental surgery experts, and examinations of the boy's teeth. All agreed that it was the first case of the kind known to them. After getting complete history of the case, following a research into the history of the family, they set to work studying the problem. It was decided that the boy's teeth could be built to normal size, and further, that his mouth could be reshaped and also that his face could be reshaped. Surgery work was done to get the bones of the boy's mouth into their proper places. After his mouth was reshaped, every tooth was crowned with porcelain and gold, and built to correct size so that the "bite" was opened a quarter of an inch more than it was before the work was commenced.

In addition to this kind of service he is being given facial athletics, so that all the lines of his face and mouth will be worked into their proper places, which will give him a more natural expression.

An athletic program has been arranged for him consisting of striking a punching bag, running short distances and other kinds of strenuous exercising for a period of at least 4 years, to compel him to breathe thru his nose, and in this way strengthen his mouth. This will push his tongue to the roof of his mouth and force his jaws to spread.

He has two brothers and a sister here and their teeth are excellent and they have fine looking faces. This was one reason the dentists had of knowing that Tommy's face and mouth could be reshaped.

If this youth had not been enrolled at Mooseheart, his teeth and mouth and face would not have been taken care of—the prohibitive cost would have prevented it—he would have shunned society and have become an outcast, on account of his face and mouth being out of shape, and the natural result would have been that he might have drifted toward the path of crime.

Mooseheart service has no limitations. The policy of the Mooseheart governors is that there will be no restrictions as to money or service, if a Mooseheart child has any physical defects, which may be corrected by medical, surgical or dental service.

Fathers who belong to the Loyal Order of Moose buy Mooseheart service for all their children by paying four cents a week. This, in case of the father, is complete payment for a home, with every necessity of life provided and also an education until they have completed the high school course, and also have learned a useful trade or vocation.

FOURTEEN POINTS OF LOVE

Seattle Post Intelligencer: The wife who devised fourteen points to insure in compiling them but lacked tact in matrimonial happiness displayed skill commanding her husband to accept them. The points included gentleness, non-interference, division of responsibility, fair support, no drudgery, reasonable allowance, personal independence, co-operation, leisure, truth, fidelity and similar rights which most wives should possess.

But her husband objected because she dictated the conditions like a conquering general serving an ultimatum on a defeated foe. So the fourteen poits fell and the marriage is on the rocks.

Wiser wives may gain every one of the points without difficulty by winning them one by one. Women know far more about men than me n know about women. Many a domestic diplomat has carried the fourteen points so deftly that her husband is unaware that he has conceded anything. A husband does not need to be head of the house to be happy. He only needs to think he is.

ADVERTISING DID IT

Wrigley, the chewing gum man, has explained how he built up a business of millions of packages a day.

He has done it by sticking to his one line and advertising it. He spends over a million dollars in buying newspaper space to tell the world about 5 cent chewing gum. He has educated people to chew gum and to chew Wrigley's. He did not stop shouting as soon as he attracted attention.

He says you must keep it up or they will forget you. Whether yours is a 5 cent or a $50,000 business, keep telling about it.

THE BERBER CHAMPION

La Stampa (Turin): Abd-el-Krim realizes that even in case he is defeated by the French, his fame in Africa will be magnified and he will remain the hero of his people. If the French pursue him into his own domain, moreover—that is, into the Spanish zone—it is probable that the Morocco question will be raised as an international issue, and that he can make a good claim for the recognition of the Riff Republic. If, on the other hand, the French remain strictly on the defensive, he will have successfully asserted his title as champion of the Berbers, and can boast of having given the enemy a hard fight, while enriching his followers with no little booty.

Irate Parent—While you stood at the gate bidding my daughter good night, did it ever dawn upon you—

Holmes—Certainly not sir. I never stayed as late as that.

CIVIC CLEANLINESS

Cowichan Leader: Slow but steady improvement is being made by the city of Duncan each year and everyone hopes that this spirit of progress will be maintained.

One regrettable feature, however, is the unseemly litter of paper and rubbish which is strewn over its main streets and particularly in the gutters.

No one will blame the city fathers for the condition as it exists but upon them rests the responsibility of either cleaning up or stopping the scattering of rubbish.

The contrast between the two streets is most marked in the mornings after the former have been cleaned up. There is surely no reason why one section of the city should have more benefits than the others.

Clean city streets should be a source of pride to its inhabitants. This would tend to cleanliness in back yards, would encourage people to beautify their homes and surroundings, and would prove to the outsider who visits here that Duncan has as much civic pride as any other town on the continent.

Storekeepers have some responsibility in this matter as much of the rubbish left scattered around is evidently the covering of packages suplied by them.

Let us have a cleanup and let it mean that no more shall individuals be allowed to riscard upon our streets and roads that which will tend to detract from our comunity improvements.

PREVENT FOREST FIRES — IT PAYS

WOULD ABOLISH DEATH PENALTY

Let the assassins begin it, once said a Frenchman in commenting on a movement to abolish capital punishment. But the League for the Abolition of Capital Punishment, which recently opened offices in New York City and expects to start its campaign in October, believes that capital punishment is a relic of barbarism and should go the way of the rack and the thumbscrew. The League will start by introducing a bill in the New York Legislature to abolish legal killing, and then will carry the campaign into every State in which the gallows, the electric chair or the gas chamber are implements of the law. Eight States have already abolished capital punishment, according to Miss Vivian Pierce, secretary of the League. These are Michigan, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, Kansas, Maine, Minnesota and North and South Dakota. Forty States and the District of Columbia, she says, continue to execute murderers. Four States—Oregon, Washington, Arizona and Missouri—reestablished capital punishment in 1918, largely because of the war hysteria, says Miss Pierce. As quoted in press reports, Miss Pierce sets forth the League's views:

"Thinking people today favor abolition. The law always lags behind the best thought of the time. Penologists regard capital punishment as a relic of barbarism. The penalty falls almost invariably on the poor, the ignorant and the helpless.

"Quite aside from the findings of enlightened penologists and scientists, there is enormous popular demand for abolition. Few realize that in the last few years there have attempts to abolish capital punishment in Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Utah, Vermont, Massachusetts, Indiana, Nebraska, Delaware and New Hampshire. These campaigns have been brief and discouraging. Often they were inadequately financed and organized. We believe that with a national organization always on the watch to lend aid, these costly defeats will be unnecessary. It takes enormous effort to convince a State Legislature of the will of constituents. Often, as in the case of Tennessee at present, the Legislature is manned by reactionaries."

But the League is likely to encounter a serious opposition. The movement, says the Syracuse Herald, is a difficult job, a queer one undertaken at a queer time. Continues The Herald:

"In the line of unpropitious undertakings, we must award the palm for unseasonableness to a movement for the conservation of murderers at a stage of American history when and where the blood of an unprecedented number of victims of murderers is crying to heaven for vengeance. Doubtless the good men and women engaged in this most untimely project are ready with the claim that, inasmuch as murderous hands have not been stayed by the fear of the rope or the electric chair, it is desirable, in the interest of public safety, to try the penalty of life imprisonment for a change. But we have confidence enough in the common sense of the majority of the American people to believe that they can never be hypnotized by the plea that if they only consent to substitute a prison sentence for the death penalty, the fiends who plan the killing of their fellow creatures, from one diabolical motive to another, will at once turn over a new leaf.

"What this State needs is a League for the prompter and better execution of existing penalties against murderers and desperadoes of every description. The fault is not in capital punishment, but in the painful multiplicity of failures to enforce it."

The problem is approached from the wrong end, in the opinion of the Buffalo Express, which remarks that when individuals cease to punish those who offend or oppose them by killing, there will be no occasion for the State to kill. As The Express sees it

"A league to develop saner and more wide-spread abhorrence of capital crimes would do the most effective work to end capital punishment. The trouble with movements which approach the subject from the other direction is that they encourage the disposition to regard capital crimes as trifling matters or even as individual rights when the person decides in his mind that he has sufficient provocation. There are too many persons now who appear to have no conception of the right of others to live and only realize the horror of death when they find themselves in execution cells."

DEATH NOT NATURAL EVENT

That death is not a natural event, but in its essence abnormal and accidental, and that bodily persistance through indefinite time is a characteristic of all living cells, is maintained by an eminent French biologist in a recent work reviewed by Lucien Chassaigne in Le Journal (Paris). The indefinite renewal of primitive animal life by division has often been cited by biologists, but until recently it has been believed that this could not be maintained forever. The work of two investigators in Russia, continued for 13 successive years, during which five thousand generations of one of these creatures were recorded, makes it probable that this opinion is an error and that living matter in itself is not subject to natural death. Writes cluding chapter:

"Under the title, 'Immortality and Rejuvenation in Modern Biology,' Dr. Metalnikov, of the Pasteur Institute, has just published a volume that should be read by those who have deliberately decided to grow old and die. Here is the first sentence of the concluding chapter:

" 'What we have just written forces us to maintain our conviction that immortality is the fundamental property of living organisms.' And further on, 'Old age and death are not a stage of earthly existence.'

"This, I repeat, is set forth under the egis of a scientific establishment that has no equal in the world and of a scientist whose opinion is universally respected. What shall we say of it ?

"Most religious and philosophic systems assert the immortality of the soul. The positive sciences have been somewhat skeptical. The idea seems to them contradictory to all that we know, of animal life. Animals originate as a tiny germ which becomes an embro developing into an adult organism that grows old and finally dies. This means the disappearance of the faculties of life that so clearly distinguish it froman inanimate object. Now there is no scientific evidence to show that at this moment the soul does not disappear with the body, and that it continues its existence separately. Biologists can not even conceive the separation of soul and body, so strong and indissoluble are the bonds that unite all our psychic manifestations with our bodily life. An immortal soul for them would have to mean an immortal body. But what if it were even so ? What if our bodies were even indestructible ? This is what Dr. Metalnikov sets out to prove scientifically.

"Death is a permanent and tangible phenomenon only in the case of man and the higher animals. It is not so for plants and for the simple animals or protozoans. These last, composed often of a single cell, just observable under the miscroscope, are nevertheless without the chief faculties that characterize the higher animals. They move about by means of their vibratory cilia, seek their food, hunt creatures smaller than they, react to irritation of various kinds, and multiply. But this multiplication is not effected by means of special organs as in the higher animals, but by the division of the whole organism into two equal parts. The common infusoria that abound in fresh water thus divide once or twice every 24 hours. Each daughter cell continues to live like the mother cell of which it is the issue ; it feeds grows and divides in its turn. And never in this constantly renewed cycle of their life, do we meet with the phenomenon of natural death, so characteristic and so universal in the higher animals. The infusorium is subject only to accidental death, such as we may cause by the addition to the water where it lives, of some poisonous element or heat.

"Experiments on this matter are of early date. The first were by Dr. Saussure in 1679, Having placed an infusorium in a drop of water, he saw it split up before his eyes. Four days later it was impossible to count the number of creatures. Some authors thought that this reproduction facility was not unlimited. Maupas, who forty years since made a minute study of it and succeeded in observing 700 successive generations of a single species, thought that it was finally subject to old age and death.

"But the more recent work of Joukovsky at Heidelberg, of Koulagin at Petrograd, of Calkins, in England, of Weissmann, and of others, leads to the contrary opinion. The degeneration observed by these workers was due to autointoxication caused by not renewing the culture-medium.

"Decisive experiments were made in Russia in 1907 by Woodruff and by Metalnikov himself. Begun at Tsarkoi-Selo, they continued until the tragic days of the 1917 revolution and were renewed at the University of the Crimea. These investigators took an infusorium found in an aquarium, whose characteristics are well determined, and in thirteen years, in 1920 had obtained 500,000 successive generations. They consequently had come to study minutely the conditions of reproduction and nutrition. They were able to determine the artificial causes that to disappearance or enfeeblement and to conclude that they were numerous and often apparently very trivial. A few figures may give some idea of the energy at the disposal of this simple cell in the creation of livng matter.

"If we suppose that each infusorium divided only once a day (it really does so oftener) in thirty days it would produce 11,073,747,324 infusoria.

'In two months the number would be so great that it would be hard to express it in figures. It will be more convenient to do so by dimensions.

"Supposing that a cubic millimeter contains about 1,000 nfusoria, we shall have in forty days a billion cubic millimeters of infusoria or a cubic meter (about a cubic yard) of living matter, in two months we shall have a million cubic meters, and in four months the volume of living matter produced by a miscropic creature would be greater han the earth itself.

"According to Woodruff's calculations, an infusorium will produce in seven years about 4,473 generations, so a number of cells expressed by the number 2 raised to the 3340th power. This would form a protoplasmic mass more than 10,000 times as large as the earth.

"Some thought is necessary to get an idea of the extraordinary creative force possessed by a microscopic living cell that assimilates and builds up its protoplasm with such marvelous energy and speed.

"In several hundred years, the necessary conditions of nutrition and reproduction being maintained, a single living cell would in its multiplication fill the whole visible universe, including the sun and the planets.

"We are thus forced to say that a uncellular body possesses within it the power of immortality.

"Now we ourselves are made up only by the juxtaposition of simple cells."

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation, and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers up to ten head.

Simon Taylor, of Cranbrook, has erected a large sawmill just south of Phillipps canyon, in order to cut the last stand of pine timer in that district. It is a beautiful piece of timber and should have been reserved by the government as a natural park. Had the stretch of fine timber between Elko and the boundary line been reserved some years ago it would have been worth millions as a tourist attraction. Lumbermen were allowed to go in and today most of it is little better than a desert. And the pity of it, too, is that almost every company who started in business in that district, with the exception of Charley McNabb, has failed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson and Mrs. J. Reney, of Ontario, are visiting their sister, Mrs. Wm. Ingram, of Fernie.

Mrs. Thomas Allen of West Fernie had her right arm broken close to the arm pit last Sunday afternoon, through being thrown out of Mr. Lyas' rig, in which she was driving along the Elk Lumber Co. camp road.

HON. MANSON AT LUNCHEON

The Fernie Board of Trade, at their monthly luncheon today, had as their guest Hon. A. M. Manson, Attorney General of British Columbia, who is at present touring the province in his capacity of Grand Master of the Masonic Order in B.C.

Accompanying the Attorney General were Inspector of Municipalities Robert Baird, Mayor Sutherland of Kelowna, Major Mallandaine of Creston and Inspector W. H. Dunwoody of Nelson.

Immediately after luncheon, Harry Douglas, president of the board, called upon Mayor Sutherland to address the board, and speaking briefly, the mayor commented that on this, his first visit to Fernie, he was very pleased to note that this city had its busines section made up completely of fireproof buildings, a feature rarely to be seen in the interior of B.C. He thanked the board for their invitation and hoped that he would be able to again visit the city.

The Hon. Mr. Manson then spoke for about half an hour and gave a very enlightening address on the problems of government in B.C. He stated that this province was in a very peculiar position, standing alone as regards government duties from the other provinces of Western Canada. He pointed out that while industry in the prairie provinces was practically confined to grain growing and subsidiary developments, B.C. had agriculture in every phase, mining, fishing and forestry, placing much greater burdens upon the ministers of the provincial cabinet, whose duty it was to attend to these under their various departments. Taking his own portfolio for instance, he gave a very lucid outline of the many different tasks he was called upon to carry out, enumerating no less than 24 entirely different "Departments of Grief," as he humorously called them, which came under the supervision of his department.

Touching upon the wealth of natural resources in the province he stated that "we have merely scratch the surface" up to the present time and that development work was being vigorously carried on throughout B. C., and every phase of industry was progressing by leaps and bounds, pay rolls were advancing rapidly and, he believed, the province would soon be fully recovered from the period of hard times which followed the Great War.

Comparing the populations of the Western Provinces, he stated that municipalities in B.C. comprised the smallest area as compared with municipalities in other provinces. He stated that this meant that the provincial government had to take care of practically every little matter coming up in all the settlements and isolated points in the remaining territory, problems which other western governments were very rarely called upon to handle. Road building in B.C. was an entirely different proposition. The flat rolling prairies presented none of the difficult road problems when compared to the mountainous nature of this province. All these features of government were expensive but the benefit of them would be felt in the near future when the province became more thickly populated and the wealthy natural resources were being fully developed.

In concluding he stated that he had noticed something in the newspapers yesterday which meant a tremendous aid to B.C., perhaps not so much in the interior as at the coast. This was the equalization of freight rates on the grain haul to the Pacific coast, as announced by the Board of Railway Commissioners at Ottawa.

President Douglas thanked the speakers for their addresses and closed the luncheon by calling on the members to stand and sing "God Save the King."

UNFINISHED GOVT. ROADS

Roads going to Ruin, is the way the Rossland Miner puts it. "The road from Rossland to Trail is in a deplorable condition. Much of the excellent work done by the Government has been destroyed by the heavy traffic which passes over the road. In many places there are deep ruts an dthe epensive work in getting a most excellent foundation—because the new work was never given a surfacing of fine sand—has been and is being destroyed. Where the work was given a coating of fine sand, which is close at hand at many points and should not be expensive to place on the road, it is in the best of shape and promises to hold out as was intended.

Overtures made to the Government by the Rossland Board of Trade, which body could see the impending danger of not completing the new work by either sanding or oiling, fell on deaf ears, and it will not be long until the road will be in as bad condition as before the new work was commenced.

It would not require a great expenditure to preserve the work already done, and it is to be hoped the Government will take up the question before it is too late, and a much greater expenditure will be necessary if the road is to be maintained.

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION

Given good weather on Labor Day everything indicates well for the G.W.V.A. sports. The parade will leave the school grounds at 10.45 a.m. and proceed along Pellatt avenue past the hospital, turn McEvoy street to Victoria avenue, turn at W. R. Wilson's to Baker avenue, down to Gemmil street, back down Victoria avenue to King Edward hotel, turn to depot and disperse at Vets rooms. Coleman Pipe Band will lead the parade.

A large program of events is scheduled for the Park. Teams from Coal Creek, Michel, Fernie and Kimberley will compete in the football events. Five teams have entered for the junior baseball. The senior ball game has not been definitely decided. The prizes are on view at Cy. Glover's.

The skating rink has been fixed up with a new floor for the dance. Novelties will be introduced. Patrons are requested to ask for "Life Savers," which will be provided free of charge. A hot dog stand will be a feature of the evening. Best music with latest hits.

A torchlight procession under the auspices of the Dramatic Order Knights of Khorassan, who are holding a special ceremonial here, will take place.

Now, Mr. Auto Owner, we require your presence on the morning of the parade. Let's go. Help the boys.

DOUBLE HEADER FOR SUNDAY

Edmonton All-Stars, having eliminated the Calgary White Sox in the semi-finals of the Alberta Senior Baseball Championship, by taking three straight games after Calgary had won the first two, are now preparing to meet Fernie in the final series for that title.

The first two games of this series will be played in Fernie on Sunday, the first game being called for 1.45 p.m. sharp, and the second for 4.30 p.m. sharp. The games must start as scheduled as the Edmonton club must leave Fernie on the Sunday night train to permit several of their players to return to work on Tuesday morning.

The Edmonton team are reported to be a real fast aggregation and greatly enhanced their reputation by defeating the Calgary White Sox, a team which was comprised of the pick of the Calgary City League, so two games of classy baseball seem to be assured the Fernie fans for Sunday.

The Alberta Championship title will be won by the club winning three games out of five, and this will also give the victors the right to travel to Vancouver to meet the winner of the B.C. Championship for the Inter-Provincial title. The Fernie team will likely leave here for Edmonton next Wednesday to play whatever games are necessary to decide the winner, at Edmonton, on Saturday, Sept. 12.

The Fernie team have to put up a very heavy guarantee to bring Edmonton here on Sunday and it is up to the citizens of Fernie to come and boost their club so that they may be able to cover expenses. Should the Fernie team win the title the advertisement of having a championship ball club will mean considerable in itself to the city.

SHERMAN RESIGNS

"I am in hopes the men of District 18 will see the folly of internal strife and will get down to a basis of unity whereby the United Mine Workers of America will be of some benefit to its members," remarked Robt. Livett, international representative, in the course of an interview with the Calgary Herald on Wednesday. The affairs of District 18 have been turned over to Mr. Livett by William Sherman, when the latter resigned the presidency of the district.

Robt. Peacock, the secretary-treasurer of District 18, it is stated unofficially, has also resigned his position, and intends shortly visiting the old country. Mr. Peacock at the present time is out of the city.

Mr. Livett is not entering upon his new duties as a "greenhorn." As a matter of fact he has been in District 18 for the past 19 years, during which time, in addition to being a thoroughly practical coal miner in Canada, as well as ten years spent in Durham, England, mines, he has held many important positions in the U.M.W.A.

"What is your opinion of District 18?" he was asked.

"Decidedly unsettled," he replied, "and the causes are many. While we have a good class of domestic and bituminous coal the methods adopted in preparing the coal for the market are greatly inferior to those employed on the other side of the line. Of course the natural conditions in many parts of the United States are such that the coal is easier to clean than in Alberta."

Mr. Livett said that he deplored the state of the mining industry at the present time, not only in Canada, but throughout the whole of the North American continent. He said the industry was fully 50 per cent overdeveloped.

"Before the coal mining industry in this province will improve to any great extent there will have to be a revolution in mining machinery and methods and many miners will have to seek other vocations. There are too many men in the mines," he said.

Mr. Livett has been in District 18 since 1906 and the greater part of his experience has been in Fernie, Frank, Hillcrest and Bellevue. He was working in the latter mine when 31 men were killed in the explosion which occurred there on Dec. 10, 1910, and was one of the rescue party at the Hillcrest disaster, June 19, 1914.

Since 1907 he has held various official positions in District 18. He was the first president of the Hillcrest local of the U.M.W.A. and for many years was president of the Bellevue local and for some time was full time secretary of the latter union when he became international board member of the miners' organization, which position he filled until April, 1919, when the fight took place with the O.B.U.

When the commission was appointed by headquarters, Mr. Livett became international representative and for two years was placed in charge of the affairs in District 18. Upon autonomy being restored by headquarters to District 18 he was elected to the position of international board member, which position he held for another two years when he was defeated by Rod McDonald in 1923. He has been International representative in District 18 since that period.

It is understood that Rod McDonald will remain here in the meantime and will work in co-operation with Mr. Livett in looking after the affairs of the international organization. Mr. McDonald has had a long experience in coal mining here. His brother, John Angus McDonald, was the first secretary of District 18, which position he filled with distinction from 1904 to 1908.—Calgary Herald.

NEW TIPPLE AT BLAIRMORE

Construction of a new tipple and air washery, all of steel, for the International Coal and Coke Company, at Coleman, was announced on Saturday morning by H. Garnett, of the Manitoba Bridge and Iron Works, Ltd., to which company the contract has been awarded for a sum approximately a quarter of a million dollars.

This is said to be one of the largest engineering operations of its kind to be undertaken solely by a Canadian company in the Western Coal regions. The new tipple and air washery will also be when completed, one of the few of its kind on the continent.

O. E. Whiteside, for the International Coal and Coke Company was in Calgary this week, and completed the arrangements for the contract, Mr. Garnett announced.

The contract calls for immediate construction, as soon as foundation work is in shape for operation on the steel structure. Mr. Garnett stated that the whole job would be completed by Christmas.

CITY COUNCIL HOLD SESSION

In the absence of Mayor Irvine, who is out of the city on business, Acting Mayor Stewart took the chair at last evening's regular council meeting. All the aldermen were present with the exception of Ald. Dicken.

A letter from Robert Baird, Inspector of Municipalities, requesting an expression of opinion from the council on the matter of submitting legislation which would permit councils to appoint a city manager, was read and tabled until next meeting.

Harold Wheeler, on behalf of the G.W.V.A., waited on the council and requested that some minor repairs be made at the city park before the Labor Day celebration. The council assured him that these would be attended to immediately.

Several reports on places of business in the city were submitted by the fire chief and ordered filed.

A resolution passed by the Saanich council and forwarded here for endorsation, containing suggestions that the provincial government be asked to distribute a portion of the gasoline tax collected in municipalities be distributed among the various cities, was discussed and finally ordered filed, the council being of the opinion that if this was done the loss of revenue to the government would in all probability have to be made up by some other form of taxation.

A resolution from Courtenay, B.C., to the effect that as municipalities were charged with the enforcing of the Act regarding beer parlors within their limits, a portion of the license should be paid the municipalities, was presented. The council were uncertain as to the present disposition of these licence fees and the city clerk was instructed to obtain information on this point for the next meeting of the council.

The council after some discussion, passed bylaw No. 273, being the Mayor's Salary Bylaw, which provides for the payment of $500 salary to Mayor Irvine.

MANSFIELD PRELIMINARY

The preliminary trial of Jesse Mansfield, of Elk Prairie, charged with the murder of George Whiting, government road foreman, commenced at the court house before Stipendiary Magistrate Cope last Wednesday morning and is still in progress. The evidence submitted so far is in effect practically the same as produced at the inquest into Whiting's death, reported last week.

The most unconcerned person in the court room appears to be the prisoner, who does not seem to be in the least perturbed about the proceedings going on around him.

The preliminary on the murder charge may be completed today but there is still another to be held on the charge of shooting with intent to kill, which happened the day before the alleged slaying of Whiting.

PROHIBITION IN UNITED STATES

The Literary Digest says: A drinker when in Europe, but thinking so much of the Constitution that he lives up to the Eighteenth Amendment when at home, a young New Yorker, recently challenged the Manufacturer's Record to question the prominent business men, professional men and educators whose views favoring Prohibition were set forth in the Baltimore periodical three years ago, and discover if they had not changed their minds since then. In his letter to the editor, he said: "I have noticed during the past several months an increasingly large number of voices in the public prints telling of the failure of Prohibition. I know no one among my friends here in New York who feels the same way toward the eighteenth amendment as I do, and it seems to me that in other parts of the country there is becoming a more and more decided disregard for prohibition." But he calls for another survey of these same business executives asking them if they still believe in the eighteenth amendment to be worth while; whether or not they believe the good accomplished among the poorer classes has been out weighed by the heavy drinking of the well-to-do classes and the disregard of law among all classes." His challenge was accepted, and the Manufacturers' Record now tells us:

"Out of considerably more than 100 letters so far received, only three express any change of views on the prohibition question.

"Running through many of these letters is the thought that the only people who are really violating the law to any large extent are men and women of supposed respectability and of social standing. The laboring man rejoices in the results which have been achieved. The testimony of the employers of hundreds of thousands of working people is absolutely unamious on this point.

Reviewing the replies received, the Manufacturers' Record tells us:

"Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the Board, United States Steel Corporation, New York City, said: 'I am more and more satisfied that the prohibition legislation should have been passed, and that it should be more rigidly imposed.'

"President J. E. Edgerton, of the National Association of Manufacturers, wrote: 'The abnormal lawlessness of the present time can not be reasonably attributed to Prohibition, for since the World War there has been manifestly a general revolt against constituted authority in every field of organized activity. My own opinion is that, except for Prohibition, the situation in that respect would be infinitely worse. The proof is yet lacking that a blind tiger is more dangerous than one with two eyes.'

"Former Governor of Massachusetts Eugene N. Foss, president of the B. F. Sturtevant Company, Inc., Boston, said, 'Personally, I do not believe that the country will take any backward step on the question of Prohibition, but we shall find that the law will be more respected as time passes. When one considers how long the drink habit has prevailed, the wonder is that enforcement has been as efficient as it has thus far proven.'

Meanwhile, R. H. Scott, president of the Reo Motor car Company, Lansing, Michigan, is convinced that the return of public drinking-places would make the motor-car a menace on the highways, and would stop the sale to a large extent, of the cheaper cars, as the money would be spent over the bars." The array of testimonies run on:

"I believe to any fair-minded person it would be self evident that train operation could not be made safe if employees were permitted to use intoxicating beverages.—Charles Donnelley, president of the Northern Pacific Railway Co., St. Paul, Minn.

"I believe that our efforts toward sobriety on the part of employees have been greatly aided by the National Phohibition laws.—Carl R. Gray president of the Union Pacific System.

"I am still firmly of the belief that Prohibition was an ephocal step for American welfare.—J. P. Reeves, treasurer of the Chicago & Eastern Railway Co.

"That Prohibition laws should be vigorously enforced; they should no more be relaxed than should the laws against robbery and murder.—Joseph W. Marsh, president of the Standard Underground Cable Co.

"As an employer I know it is a great benefit to the laboring class—our welfare workers are strongly in favor of the law, largely on account of the benefit to the working class.—Otis N. Pierce, president of the Grinnell Manufacturing Corp., New Bedford, Mass.

Impressed by this long and imposing list of replies, the Birmingham, Alabama Herald feels "that the almost complete unamity of advocacy of Prohibition should serve to offset some of the studied contrary propaganda," and the New York Times, assures us that the writers' faith in Prohibition is due to nothing but what they themselves have seen of the effects; but the Ohio State Journal remarks that we don't know what these gentlemen's sentiment on this great question would be if General Andrews should ever succeed in fixing things so that the captains of industry couldn't get anything themselves. Moreover, Capt. W. H. Stayton, national chairman of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, tells the Baltimore Sun that in the first survey made by the Record, the questionnaires were addressed almost exclusively to the persons who had signed a petition to Congress, urging enactment of the Prohibition law," reading on—

"There is not an open-minded one in the lot and it is not to be expected that they would admit prejudice and recant at this time. They are the type that three years ago looked at a tree and declared it to be red—to-day it still is red to them.'

"Captain Stayton critized in particular what he called an attempt of the survey to represent labor as being highly satisfied with Prohibition. He termed as grossly unfair the efforts to get labor's views on the question by going to employers instead of the working men themselves.

"If the Manufacturers' Record wanted labor's views, why didn't it go to the laborers? he asked. Why did it go to capitalists?

"E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation and one of those listed among the supporters of Prohibition, has said that he favors Prohibition because it promotes the ability and disposition of his men to work. That is what the manufacturer wants—more work. But is he interested in the man's happiness.

"Captain Stayton declared that there is a growing feeling among laboring men that whether or not they wanted their beer it was their belief that their employers had loaded their cellars and thus were fortified against the beverage drought. He said he believed this sort of feeling to be far more dangerous than prohibition."

FLOUTING NATURE

Biologists of John Hopkins University have just issued a report outlining their conclusions after an exhaustive comparative study of "superiority" among various races of mankind.

It should be interesting to the white nations, because it shows that, while at present the "Nordic" is occupying a dominant place in world affairs, he is dissipating his superiority as fast as a sickly sentimental social system will let him.

This report premises that some races are undeniably inferior. Australian aborgines, Pacific Islanders and some Negroid types are unmistakably regressive.

In tests of average mentality the Jews come first, Chinese second, and the Japanese, Caucasians and certain Indian peoples third. The Jews have the largest proportion of superior individuals and very few idiots, imbeciles or morons.

The reason the Jews stand at the head of the list, say these biologists, is that for a thousand years racial intolerance and persecution have weeded out the weak. Mediaval gridirons and howling Christian zealots made short shrift of the inferior strains in the Jewish race.

Similarly in China. The Chinese too stupid or too lazy to take care of himself starved to death long ago.

It is nature's way of improving the race. Those unfit to live are crowded out. Only those who are mentally and physically progressive remain to breed their kind.

But the Caucasian, the "Nordic," is frittering away his superiority, diluting his racial intelligence and poisoning his ancestral wells by coddling inferior types and neglecting the simple principles of scientific breeding.

Insurable morons are permitted to propagate at will. Society takes mental and physical weaklings of the most hopeless types and even encourages them to breed and pollute the race with their inferior offspring.

The Nordic is flouting nature. And unless he soon gives serious thought to the improvement of the breed, only an age of persecution and hardship can save him from sinking into hopeless inferiority with a millstone of degeneracy around his neck.

"Lizzie, me girl, I ain't seen your Harry in three weeks!"

"Yas, an' I reckon you won't for a month or two, Gertie. He got life this time."

POISINING THE PUBLIC

When discussing the unsanitary methods which still prevail in England in regard to storing, handling, and distributing food stuffs, an English friend remarked that perforce the British people must be a healthy race naturally, else they would all have died long ago of slow poisoning.

I am reminded of this by the recent action of the British government in adopting new, and what is to them stringent regulations, respecting the use of adulterations and preservatives in foods.

Presumably there are places in England where one may may obtain fresh milk fit to drink and cream that contains no preservatives, but it was never my fortune to discover it. In London milk is delivered from door to door by a man pushing a hand cart upon which reposes a battered metal can of large size and uncertain age. From the cart dangles measures of different sizes. It is from such outfits, unprotected from the sun and dirt, that London gets its milk. No wonder it has to be boiled as soon as received by the householder to keep down the bugs and no wonder the cream tastes like a chemist shop. The handling of milk in a sanitary manner, common enough on this continent, is apparently unknown in England.

Then, again, there is the general lack of ice. The average English householder does not know what ice in the household means. In consequence meats and everything else spoils in an incredibly short time in the hot summer days. In London if one desires ice it must be obtained from the fish monger at a price beyond the reach of all but the wealthy, and as for ice chests they may be said to be non-existent.

The butcher shops hang their meat and fowl out in the dust and dirt, and the fish are handled in the same manner. During the heated spell in the spring of this year the stench from blackened meats and half putrid fish in the London shops was such that it seemed to call for some action. But apparently it was all accepted as part of the ills which must be accepted without complaint.

Aside entirely from the question of health the financial loss sustained by spoiled foods in Great Britain during the protracted warm spell in the early part of the summer must have run into a great sum.

The general use of chemicals for the preservation of foods of all kinds has been brought about by the shortage of cold storage plants and the lack of ice, so that it has seemed necessary to dope all sorts of food, everything from milk to sausages receiving their full share, and much of it to a dangerous extent.—Saturday Night.

WHAT FOOLS THESE MORTALS BE!

Dearborn Independent: Puck was right, for few of the highest type of the animal creation, even among the wisest, have closed their careers without a display of folly. Old Ben Franklin wrote his own biography, narrating in its pages what he termed his follies, without realizing that to tell intimate incidents is folly in itself. Yet Franklin was a sage and philosopher. Recently a public speaker asserted that no scholar should be graduated until he knew the federal constitution by rote. Knowledge without understanding is of little value, and a parrot may be taught to repeat the wisdom of the sages; but if a candidate for political honors were to rest his laurels entirely on his ability to repeat either Roberts' Rules of Order or Cushing's Manual, his reputation as a parliamentarian would suffer. Moreover, a knowledge of the history of the framing of the constitution and its interpretation in the courts is as essential to understanding as the language of the document. The student must pass an examination in civil government before graduation. His own language in that test is the best criterion of his understanding.

END STOMACH TROUBLE, GASES OR DYSPEPSIA

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach-headache, you can get relief in five minutes by neutralizing acidity. Put an end to such stomach distress now by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by food fermentation due to excessive acid in stomach.

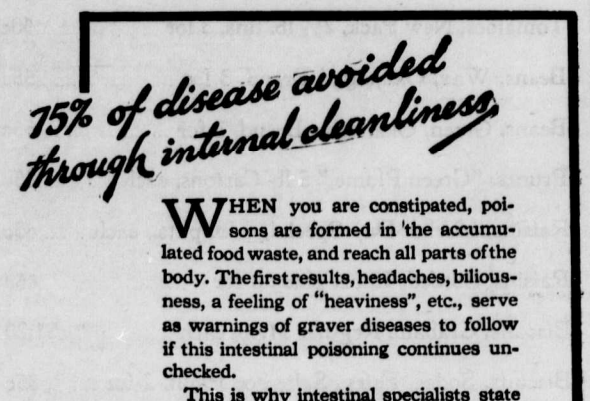
REMARKABLE CAST FOR "SINGLE WIVES"

The phrase "all-star cast" may well have been invented to describe the First National production, "Single Wives," which comes to the Orpheum Theatre on Monday and Tuesday next.

The featured roles are played by Corinne Griffith and Milton Sills, who are seen together on the screen for the first time. Miss Griffith plays the part of Betty Jordan, a role said to be especially suited to her and one giving her excellent opportunity to depict the sort of roles that have made her famous.

Milton Sills plays opposite Corrinne Griffith in a role different than anything he has heretofore essayed. In this picture he will be seen as a modern business man in contrast to his work in "The Sea Hawk"—the husband who is settled in his home and business, who has left behind him some of that glamour and romance that belong to youth and the days of courtship.

Betty Jordan's mother, Dorothy Van Clark, played by Kathlyn Williams, who was selected especially because of her suitabilty to the role. Lou Tellegen, known to followers of the stage as leading man to Rejane, Duse and Berndardt, is the third corn of the triangle.



Henry B. Walthall, the beloved "little colonel" of "Birth of a Nation" fame, plays the role of Franklyn Deter, who loves Dorothy Van Clark. Walthall is a very human character, differing radically from anything in which he has been seen. Phyllis Haver is once again to be seen in a first National picture, this time in the role of a sweet and happy wife. Phyllis is the Marion Eldridge of the story.

Phillips Smalley as Tom Van Clark, fast living husband of Dorothy; Jere Austin as the lovable family physician, Dr. Walter Lane, and John Patrick as Billy Eldridge, make up the balance of the remarkable cast.

"Single Wives" was directed by George Archainbaud from the original screen story by Earl Hudson.

A curse word for stenographers: "By Gum."

75% of disease avoided through internal cleanliness

WHEN you are constipated, poisons are formed in the accumulated food waste, and reach all parts of the body. The first results, headaches, biliousness, a feeling of "heaviness", etc., serve as warnings of graver diseases to follow if this intestinal poisoning continues unchecked.

This is why intestinal specialists state that constipation is the primary cause of three-quarters of all illness, including the gravest diseases of life.

Physicians Advise Lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste, and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless. Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

Montreal Star: Good books, inspiring poems, clean stories, sweet music, are all elevating and within the reach of most parents. A public censorship is difficult; a censorship in the family is possible. It is there that habits of right thinking are formed, a thirst for the beautiful created and a love of knowledge inculcated. These form the best safeguard against low and defiling things. It should be possible to exercise as much care to quarantine the mind against the contagion of immorality, as to ward off infectious diseases from the body.

NEWS FROM THE CAPITAL

Victoria.—Premier Oliver officially opened the Harrop-Long Beach ferry on the west arm of Kootenay Lake, 15 miles from Nelson on Saturday, Aug. 22nd, Hon. W. H. Sutherland, Minister of Public Works, sharing in the ceremony.

Lieut. Governor Walter C. Nicol laid the corner stone of a new hospital building being erected at Nanaimo to cost $150,000 on Saturday, August 22nd. A guard of honor was supplied by H.M.S. Capetown, then lying in Nanaimo Harbour, and the Nanaimo Silver Cornet Band was in attendance. The ceremony was in connection with the eighth annual convention of the British Columbia Hospitals Association in session at Nanaimo. Hon. Mr. Sloan remarked that it was fifty years since the inception of the first hospital at Nanaimo. The time had come when a new one was very necessary and he thought the Government would be prepared to do its share towards the completion of the building.

D. G. Laird, an expert sent by Dean Clement of the University of British Columbia, has been making a survey of the agricultural possibilities of the country adjacent to the Pacific Great Eastern Railway between Pemberton and Quesnel.

Efforts are being made by the Nevada Transcontinental Highway Exposition to have British Columbia send an exhibit to the exposition which will be in progress at Reno in 1926. The B.C. Government and City Boards of Trade, Publicity Bureau and other bodies have been solicited in the matter. The exposition authorities suggest that British Columbia put up its own building at Reno.

A convention of automobile clubs will be held at Vancouver from Oct. 3rd to 5th at which delegates from every important auto club of America will probably form a new organization to extend the service and assistance that may be obtained by affiliated clubs throughout British Columbia, Alberta, Washington, Ore., California, Montana, Idaho and Utah. The program includes proposals for unification of traffic laws and highway signs. It is expected the visitors will visit Yale Canyon section of the new Provincial Highway.

Appropriate ceremonies will mark the approaching opening of the term of the University of British Columbia to mark its 10th anniversary. General Sir Arthur Currie is expected to deliver the convocation address.

RADICALISM IN CANADA

Dalhousie Review: The moral force which radicalism exercises by means of holy pretensions, sacred catch phrases and emotional appeals,, is its greatest menace to modern society, next to its tendency to consolidate and conserve what it thus secures in the way of legislation or fixed custom. Its tendency is more and more to enslave, and to bind rational opinion. In this it has been effective to a much greater extent in the United States than in Canada. But it is insidiously and constantly at work here. Unless by a special effort we cast off its tenacles while there is yet time, we shall awaken before long to find ourselves no better off than our neighbors, among whom the Ku Klux Klan is now busily engaged in uprooting whatever of personal freedom legislation has left untouched.

IMPERIAL OBLIGATIONS

The Round Table (London) : Just as Great Britain, by virtue of her membership of the British commonwealth, is under a tact obligation to ensure the national security of Australia or South Africa, and so on, so the dominions, by virtue of their membership, are under an equivalent obligation to ensure the national security of Great Britain. They can remain detached from any direct participation in a great part of that medley of European problems with which Great Britain has constantly to deal by virtue of her geographical position, just as Great Britain remains detached any direct participation in those special American-Canadian or South African-Portuguese problems which also originate in geographical contiguity. But in those matters which affect the security of any nation which is a member of the commonwealth, or the interests of the commonwealth as a whole, the dominions and Great Britain are all equally concerned.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of our Darling Clara, who died September 3rd, 1922. Thre years have passed, dear Clara,

We miss your smiling face, dear,
But it comforts us to know
That you'll be wating for us,
When it comes our time to go.

The pitch kettle at the Fernie-Fort Steele Brewery caught fire Monday afternoon just after the men had finished their day's work. The fire call of the brewery whistle called them back and the men soon had the fire extinguished with very little damage caused. The pitch threw off extremely dense clouds of smoke while it was burning, so that it was impossible for the men to get into the room and apparatus was requisitioned from the Mine Rescue station to allow the fire fighters to get at the seat of the flames. Slight damage was caused to the kettle and a ventilator, but the concrete structure of the room kept the flames from spreading.

Ald. Wm. Dicken is in the hospital as a result of a bad accident at his ranch last Saturday forenoon, in which he was rather badly smashed up. He was knocked down and the wagon passed over him. He was brought to the hospital and on examination he was found to have sustained a bad fracture of the right leg just below the knee and extending upward under the knee cap. His left arm was also broken just above the elbow and he also received a nasty wound on the right thigh. This is the second accident Mr. Dicken has had at his farm this fall. CONSERVING GASOLINE

"Breathing losses of fifty million gallons of gasoline yearly will be checked by the use of ballloons to store vapor, it was reported to the American Chemical Society at its recent meeting in Los Angeles. This method was described in a paper prepared by Messrs. Wilson, Atwell, Brown and Chenick, chemists of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, who asserted that it is the first to prove economically effective in preventing evaporation losses from gasoline stored during winter and spring in anticipation of the tremendous summer demand. They are thus quoted:

"Chemists throughout the industry have been alive to the importance of this problem, but its practical solution has proven very difficult. Considerable improvement has been made by substituting steel for wooden roofs and making them tight enough to keep wind from blowing through, and these improvements have been quite generally made.

"There still remained, however, the 'breathing loss,' amounting to over 8 per cent. a year. This is due to the daily changes in temperature, the heat of the sun during the day expanding the air above the gasoline and vaporizing enough gasoline to expel through the vent pipe which must be provided, several thousand cubic feet of rich gasoline-saturated air from a modern storage-tank holding around 3,000,000 gallons.

"At night the vapor space cools thirty or forty degrees and sucks back fresh air, which in turn becomes saturated with gasoline and is breathed out the next day. While spraying or insulating the tanks and various other methods have been used to reduce the loss, no satisfactory and economical way of preventing the loss has been found until now.

"A special gasoline-proof fabric has been developed, and from it have been constructed large balloons or breather bags which are housed in galvanized iron buildings and connected to the vapor space of the storage tank.

"When the gasoline-saturated air in the top of the tank expands it merely goes into the breather-bag while the temperature is rising, and is sucked back again when the tank cools off at night, thus preventing any loss. The leather bag is weighted by a special system which keeps the pressure in the top of the tank substantially balanced at all times, preventing losses through small openings which it is hard to eliminate entirely.

"One 18,000 cubic feet balloon will care for two or more large gasoline storage tanks, and save about 14,000 gallons of gasoline per month under average weather conditions. Automatic release and intage valves are provided to care for pumping to and from the tank, or exceptionally large "breaths" beyond the capacity of the balloon."

Two of these balloons have been in use for over two years by the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana without, it was said, showing signs of deterioration, and during the past winter and spring over sixty balloons have been installed by the Company to protect all its gasoline storage tanks, as well as a number of working tanks. The method, it was declared, will also prevent losses of the gasoline fraction from stored crude oil, and from other volatile liquids, such as benzol. One of the principal problems involved was making a fabric which would be impervious to gasoline vapor. All ordinary gas-tight fabrics, such as rubber, oil-cloth, etc., allowed large quantities of gasoline to escape, but the new fabric made of closely woven cloth impregnated with a mixture consisting largely of gelatin, glycerin, and water, is almost completely impermeable to such vapors. The fabric is flexible, soft and leathery to the touch.

MOTOR CARS IN CANADA

Canada produced a total of 132,580 motor cars during 1924, a decrease of nine per cent. from the maximum attained in 1923, but exceeding in number the production of any other year.

The output in 1924, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, included 98,365 passenger cars, 18,043 trucks and 16,172 chassis valued in the aggregate at $88,480,418 at factory selling prices. Capital invested reached a high point in the industry at $60,766,886, as contrasted with slightly over $60,000,000 in 1923.

The number of wage-earners employed throughout the year averaged 7,782, and salaried workers numbered 1,045, making a total of 9,277 in 1924 as compared with 9,305 in 1923. Twelve firms reporting in 1924 were all located in Ontario.

Canada was slightly less active in foreign fields in 1924 than in 1923. Imports during last year fell away 9.7 per cent. to $28,954,700.

Exports declined from $37,359,069 in 1923 to $31,501,442 in 1924. More trucks were exported than in the previous year, but the estimated value was slightly below that of 1923. Passenger cars fell away in both number and value, but the export of auto parts was higher than in any other year.

Motor vehicles registered aggregated 652,121, including passenger automobiles, motor trucks and buses, motorcycles and licenses issued to motor-car dealers, but not including farm tractors and trailers, as these latter are not required to be registered in all provinces. The increase in the total number of motor vehicles registered over 1924 was 65,271.

Gasoline tax was collected in five provinces, Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia. Ontario has imposed a tax of three cents per gallon in 1925. New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan, states the report, are still without a tax on gasoline.

BURNING "GEORGE"

From Daytona, Fla., there recently came a news item concerning a ceremony that had been held on the beach, under the stage directorship of a group of town boosters. The effigy of "Let George Do It" was dragged along the beach, subjected to vigorous mauling and finally disposed of at the stake. Onlookers were pledged to never again neglect their civic responsibilities—to vote, to make true tax returns, to support the best man for the public job and to give whole-hearted encouragement to the officials who were elected. It was a cleverly arranged reminder and those who witnessed the ceremony declare it made a distinct impression, but the thought persists that it will take more than the burning of the effigy of "Let George Do It" to bring the public to a realization of its responsibilities. The conditions that the boosters' club of Daytona, Fla., are trying to correct are not peculiar to that city. There isn't a city or town in the United States or Canada that could not justifiably burn a replica of the Daytona "George" at the stake. Letting George do it at all." Carelessness and indifference are the most contagious diseases extant in the land—George to do your voting and he, in turn, leaves it to you, and it isn't done at all, the omission hits you right in the pocket book.

She: Why do you call my father "Friday"?

He: Because his footprint made an awful impression on me once.

Here and There

More than 100 persons joined the ride of the Trail Riders of the Rockies on their horseback journey from Banff to Wapta Camp, via Marble Canyon and Lake O'Hara. The ride started on August 8.

Grain figures issued by the Harbor Commission of Montreal show that on August 1st all grain shipment records were broken by one day's delivery of 2,277,712 bushels of grain to outgoing ships. Harbor officials state that this is the first time that grain shipments in one day have topped the two million bushel mark.

Installation of machinery at the new annex of the Dominion Textile Mill at Montmorency Falls, Quebec, will be started by January first next. About 300 additional employees will be required to operate the plant. At present there are about 1,300 employed at the mills.

A prophecy that the Orient would become in the very near future a really large importer of Canadian wheat was made recently by Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works. In predicting increased Orient trade in grain, Dr. King pointed out that imports of wheat from Canada for 1923-1924 increased by 400 per cent.

Over fifteen thousand men left the east on the first harvesters excursion from the east to the wheat fields in the middle of August. Four other excursions are to follow from Toronto later in August and September, when it is expected that the majority of the remainder of the 50,000 men required for the harvest will travel west.

British teachers touring Canada under the auspices of the Overseas Educational League are now enjoying all the various forms of entertainment to be found in the Canadian Pacific Rockies. They have been riding trails, hiking, fishing, motoring, bathing in the sulphur springs at the Banff Springs Hotel and were the guests at a dinner there given by J. M. Gibbon, secretary of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies.

Confidence of United States capital in the Dominion, optimistic preparations for the new Canadian financing, prospects of a good crop, large United States purchasing in Canada, and heavy expenditures of American tourists in the Dominion, were some of the reasons offered by New York financial experts for the consistent above par stand of the Canadian dollar on the New York exchange. The Canadian dollar is now at a premium on the New York exchange.

The total number of students in Canadian universities and colleges in 1924 was 52,639, or nearly one in eighteen of the total population, according to a bulletin issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Under the category of colleges, the total number in 1924 was 83. Of this total six are agricultural, two technical, two law, one dental, one for pharmacy, one for veterinary science, 28 theological, 39 affiliated, one school for higher commercial studies, one college of art and one military college.

During the coming winter Canada will see the debut of a new transportation device known as the Snow-motor. This consists of two hollow cigar shaped cylinders or drums to which flanges, resembling cork screws, are attached. These drums are fixed to an automobile or tractor in the place of the wheels and, by rotating actually float the machine over the snow. The snow-motor is regarded as especially valuable in the transportation of lumber; it can negotiate snow of any depth and can operate in countries where other methods of transportation are impossible or too costly and can also make roads which other vehicles can use. It is manufactured in Detroit and will be on the market in Montreal during the coming winter.

GERMANY PUTS ONE OVER

"It is a somewhat singular feature of the coal mining industry that practically the whole of its output is used to-day in much the same way as it was a hundred years ago. Alternative and even subsidary methods of turning it to account has not emerged.—Dr. W. Carrick Anderson.

"All Germany is excited by the fascinating but serious scheme for turning coal into oil on the grandest national scale. The governments of the Reich and of Prussia have already agreed to subsidize to the extent of $1,000,000 the first experiments on a commercial basis.

"In this cause of scientific development throughout the whole industrial system, workers and employers, Socialists and capitalists, are prepared to go hand in hand. It is already prophessied that while this country is dawdling over its own ideas, Germany will gain a long lead as the chief oil-producing country in Europe."—Mr. Garvin in the Observer.

Coal is just as obstinate in the scientific world as in the political sphere. Dr. W. Carric Anderson, after writing the above extract, explains in the Glasgow Herald the efforts of the scientists in the past and the hope that is now on the horizon after a hundred years of practically no progress. Mr. Garvin, too, utters a warning as to what is happening in Germany. Dr. Anderson in dealing with coal, observes :

"This complex substance, or group of substances, the product of ancient life in swamp and jungle, contains carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen and sulphur—that is to say, most of the elements necessary to the processes of life. They are also elements that enter into a thousand articles contributing to the comfort and embelishment of civilized peoples in every land.

"Yet in spite of the possibilities that these things suggest, it is the case that practically every ton of coal raised to-day is either directly burned in its raw state or is converted into gas or coke for lighting or heating by a process not essentially different from that inaugurated by Murdoch more than a century and a quarter ago.

"Many improvements have been made from time to time in appliances and plant, and these have resulted in greater economy of heat production and in the recovery of by-products that at first were allowed to waste. But in the treatment no new principle has been introduced.

"Even low-temperature carbonization, not yet established on a commercial basis, can hardly be regarded in any other light than as an extension of the old-established gasworks practice on lines dictated by the requirements of modern city hygiene.

"This remarkable circumstance is not directly attributable, as is sometimes suggested, to the failure of a particular form of social organization or to the baleful influence of any single group of people within it, but is due entirely to the nature of the substances with which they have to deal.

"Coal is at once an intractable and a sensitive subject, not readily affected by the gentler methods of the chemist and breaking down very completely when more severely handled, into gases, vapor and coke. It is almost entirely insoluble in the liquids ordinarily employed as solvents in been impossible to extract any considerable part of it for examination, and and its complete conversion into liquid substance capable of distillation has till lately been found impossible.

"These are two of the most useful avenues of approach in seeking knowledge of an unknown solid, and their non-availability in the case of coal has much to do with restricting knowledge of its nature. It is for this reason that experiments carried out in Germany during the last few years by Dr. Friedrich Bergius on the liquefying of coal possess a more than ordinary interest.

"To trace the origin of this new development it is necessary to go back to the year 1899, when experiments carried out in Newcastle revealed the fact that about 20 per cent of Durham coal could be dissolved by long boiling with the liquid known as pyridine.

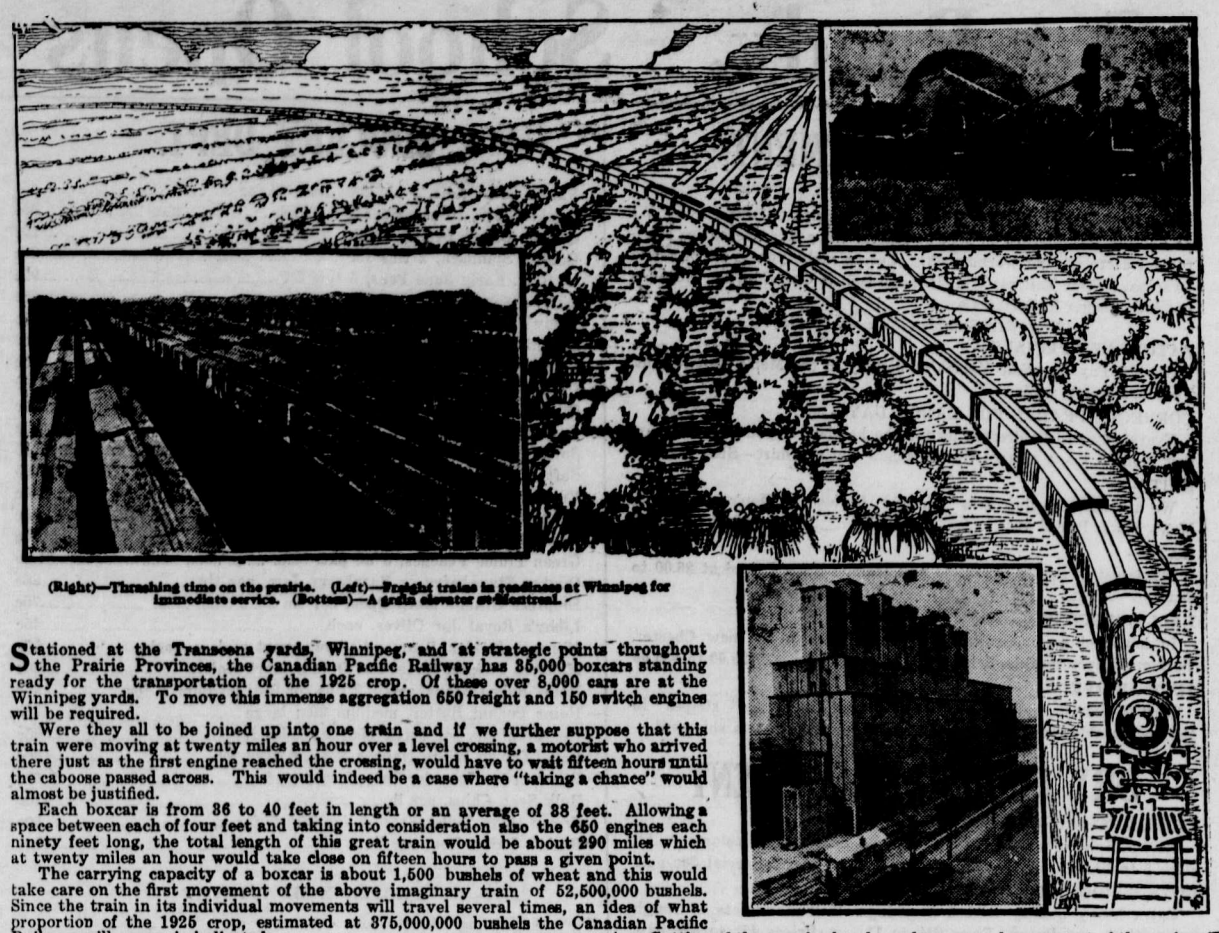
"Two years later investigations made in the University of Glasgow proved that similar quantities could be got in this way from Lanarkshier, Stirlingshire, Indian and Japanese coals. Pyridine was thus established as a general solvent for part, at least, of the substance of coals."

After describing some of the recent experiments of the German scientist, Dr. Carrick Anderson adds:

"Sufficient detail has not yet been furnished to admit of a judgment on the commercial possibilities of the Bergius proposal. The scientific interest is great, and it can hardly fail to add materially to the information already existing with reference to the structure of the coal minerals, and thus in time to benefit their practical handling.

"But the liquefaction of coal by a method industrially feasible and not too costly in working would mean much directly for a commodity menaced today by the competition of electricity (honille blanche) on land and of oil at sea. It is too early to speak of that consummation, having been reached in the Bergius process.

"Its pressures are formidable — though not as unthinkable as they would have been reckoned a few years ago, and there is much to be learned about the handling of the process and of the products. But the apparent absence of coked residues in operating suggests that a continuous process of converting coal into oils is a possibility not entirely remote, and the large scale plant which the inventor has erected at Mannheim may be expected to throw further light before long on a development of word-wide importance."



Mr. Garvin's remarks on this problem, printed in the first cloumn, should be read again here. He then states in the Observer:

"There may be exaggeration in these visions, but it would not be safe for us to go to sleep on that assumption. It must be remembered that chemists of many nations have been at work for years upon this great problem of conversion — perhaps the biggest thing in the whole field of industrial life since the invention of steam-power.

"Through every year since the war various researchers have felt more and more confident that they would conquer the difficulties. Prof. Bergins thinks that his process is far superior to anything elsewhere and will increase several fold the present value of coal while eliminating smoke. Probably he does not know all that is going on elsewhere.

"None the less, very important and practical people believe that Germany will find her fortune in the new method, and that in the dye industry notably her supremacy will be more dominant than ever."

Train 300 Miles Long to Carry Crop

Stationed at the Transcona yards, Winnipeg, and at strategic points throughout the Prairie Provinces, the Canadian Pacific Railway has 35,000 boxcars standing ready for the transportation of the 1925 crop. Of these over 8,000 cars are at the Winnipeg yards. To move this immense aggregation 650 freight and 150 switch engines will be required.

Were they all to be joined up into one train and if we further suppose that this train were moving at twenty miles an hour over a level crossing, a motorist who arrived there just as the first engine reached the crossing, would have to wait fifteen hours until the caboose passed across. This would indeed be a case where "taking a chance" would almost be justified.

Each boxcar is from 36 to 40 feet in length or an average of 38 feet. Allowing a space between each of four feet and taking into consideration also the 650 engines each ninety feet long, the total length of this great train would be about 290 miles which at twenty miles an hour would take close on fifteen hours to pass a given point.

The carrying capacity of a boxcar is about 1,500 bushels of wheat and this would take care on the first movement of the above imaginary train of 52,500,000 bushels. Since the train in its individual movements will travel several times, an idea of what proportion of the 1925 crop, estimated at 375,000,000 bushels the Canadian Pacific Railway will carry, is indicated.

Among the engines used in the hauling of the wheat trains are some of the most powerful in the world. Reckoning in the weight of coal carried, the heaviest of these engines weighs about 380,000 lbs. while the boxcar, loaded with grain, weighs 140,000 lbs. The average grain train is composed of forty boxcars, so the weight is about 6,000,000 lbs. or 3,000 tons. The total number of such trains would be 875 which would give a total weight of 2,625,000 tons.

Cutting of the crop is already under way and movement of the grain will commence about the end of August and will continue until the close of navigation on the Great Lakes which is generally between the 10 and 15 December. During the banner crop year of 1923, the Canadian Pacific Railway operated in connection with the movement of the grain approximately 5144 trains and 25,720 men were required to handle the traffic. In that year the Canadian Pacific Railway moved 220,000,000 bushels.

One of these here guys that writes epigrams said that cleanliness is next to godliness, but down at our house where we don't have a gas heater, cleanliness is next to impossible.

DEFENCE OF INDIA

Field Marshall Birdwood writing in the United Empire, says : "We have to realize that India is a vast subcontinent, composed of a heterogeneous population of some 315,000,000 people. There are bound to be murmurings and rumblings somewhere under the surface. The fact that there are not speak volumes. We have to remember that there are many thousands of well armed tribesmen on the North-West frontier belonging to some of the fiercest and most warlike races in the world—people who look upon fighting even the most bloodthirsty murders as things to boast about. They are really Ishmaelites with their hand against everybody, and that again is only natural when you know that no man reaps or sows unless he is fully armed lest his neighbor should take advantage of him. It is among such inflamable material that Bolshevist agents have been distributing gold and carrying on Bolshevist propaganda in an increasing degree as one means of destroying the British Empire. This being the case, one has to realize we cannot be free from anxieties and that we must at all times be fully prepared to defend the lives and safeguard the interests of our law-abiding fellow-subjects in India.

ITALIAN PROSPERITY

Sir Phillip Gibbs, writing in the London World to-day says : "People are working. The trains are punctual. Trade is improving steadily. Financial economics and sound financial measures have put the country on to a good basis of international credit. Crime has decreased in all districts, except where rash people challenge the authority of the Fascisti and get their heads battered. There is no sign of decadence and despair in the spirit of the people. Italy is throbbing with energy in the northern towns, and even in the south, where climate and blood and age-long traditions of a happy-go-lucky people conflict with efficiency, there is a real improvement in social conditions. The beggars have been cleared off the streets of Naples. Poverty is not so frightful in the crowded courtyards. Dirt is not so encrusted.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation and improvement for agriculture purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agriculture purposes, and which is not timber land, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 5,000 feet per acre east of the Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites or timber land, not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 10 acres, may be leased as homesites conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ten head.

LABOR DAY A SUCCESS

The annual Labor Day celebration held by the Fernie branch of the G. W.V.A. last Monday scored a great success in every department, financially and other wise.

Led by the Fernie and Coleman pipe bands, the parade got under way practically on time in the morning, and after passing along the main streets of the city disbanded, and the sports got under way. The first of these was the bicycle race on Baker avenue and it resulted as follows: 1st L. Mafolio; 2nd Jack Connick; 3rd W. Brown.

At the city park the semi-finals of the football competition for the Challenge Shield, with gold medals as first prizes and miniature cups as second prizes, were started. Coal Creek and Michel teams provided a hard fought contest in the first game, which resulted in the elimination of Coal Creek by a score of two goals to nil.. Kimberley and Hillcrest then took the field. After putting up a strenuous opposition, Kimberley collapsed in the later part of the match and Hillcrest won by four goals to two.

Fernie Intermediates and Michel Seniors then took possession of the diamond and put up a really fine exhibition of baseball. The local boys scored a run in the third innings and looked like holding this lead to the end, but in the last frame they went to pieces, and costly errors, coupled with a brace of hits, gave Michel two runs to take the lead, and they then retired Fernie in the one, two, three order to win. Sofko and Kasmer for Fernie; Krall and Sadlish for Michel, were the batteries.

After a short recess, Hillcrest and Michel football teams came on the field to play off the final of the football competition. In the opening stages Michel looked like easy winners and kept the Alberta boys well into their own territory. Following a corner kick the ball went back out to Littler, who scored for Michel from almost an impossible angle. There was no further scoring until well on in the second half, when Hillcrest broke away and Seaman sent over a perfect centre to McVey, who had no difficulty in equalizing. Time up came and 20 minutes' overtime was played without further score. By mutual consent of all the players on both sides the team captains tossed up to see who would take first prize. The Hillcrest captain won, giving Hillcrest the shield and medals.

During the afternoon a large program of horse races, foot races and other athletic events was carried out on the race track, the most important of which were the mile and half mile foot races. J. Thomson took first prize in both races, and 15 year old "Skinny" Eastwood took third in both. Harry Eastwood took second in the half mile and L. Cartlidge took second in the mile.

A feature which drew a large gallery of spectators during the greater part of the day was the Highland dancing competition. The various events in this contest resulted as follows:

Highland Fling for Beginners— 1st Emily Morris, 2nd Jean McCormick, 3rd Phyllis Lawrence, 4th Margaret Markland.

12 Years and Under—

Highland Fling—1st Jessie Nichol, Calgary; 2nd Doris Young, Vancouver; 3rd Irene Reed, Fernie.

Sword Dance—1st Jessie Nichol, Calgary; 2nd Doris Young, Vancouver; 3rd Janet Brown, Fernie.

Seann Truibhas—1st Doris Young, Vancouver; 2nd Janet Brown, Fernie; 3rd Gladys Arbuckle, Coal Creek.

15 Years and Under—

Highland Fling—1st Alice Murdoch, Calgary; 2nd Florence Cameron, Vancouver; 3rd Jessie Burnett, Calgary.

Sword Dance—Tina Thomson, Fernie; 2nd Florence Cameron, Vancouver; 3rd Alice Murdoch, Calgary.

Seann Truibhas — 1st Florence Cameron, Vancouver; 2nd Alice Murdoch, Calgary; 3rd Tina Thomson, Fernie.

Open—

Irish Jig—1st Jessie Burnett, Calgary; 2nd Alice Murdoch, Calgary; 3rd Jean Grieve, Lethbridge.

The cup for the winner of the highest number of points was won by Miss Alice Murdoch, of Calgary, who led Miss Doris Young, of Vancouver, by only one point on the final count.

Miss Jean Gauld, accompanied by the entire Coleman Pipe Band, at the close of the competition, gave an exhibition dance, "The Highland Laddie," which drew a tremendous crowd to the dancing platform. Miss Gauld is the Dominion Highland Dancing Champion, and her exhibition dance here well merited the plaudits it received.

In the evening the D.O.K.K.'s paraded through the streets prior to holding their annual initiations, and provided their usual amusing features en route.

At the Skating Rink a novelty dance was held and the dancing space was taxed to capacity, but everybody entered into a carnival spirit and thoroughly enjoyed themselves. At intervals Miss Gauld and her class of pupils from Calgary, and many of the prize winners in the dancing competition, gave exhibitions, which included the Foursome Reel, the Sailor's Hornpipe, the Irish Jig and the Highland Fling. Pipers Strachan and McLeod supplied the music for these dances.

PLANE SEIZED NEAR WALDO

A large aeroplane passed over Fernie eastbound at about 2.30 o'clock on Thursday afternoon headed east, and returned westbound in little over an hour. This is only the second airplane to pass over this part of the country and it drew quite a lot of attention. For many it was their first opportunity of seeing a flying machine in the air.

On the return trip the pilot made a forced landing near Waldo on account of fuel shortage. The pilot, who gave his name as W. F. Krammer, is being detained and his plane is under seizure for failure to report to the customs authorities on entering Canada. His statement to the authorities is that he was hired in Spokane to take a passenger from that point to Lethbridge on account of sickness in his passenger's family. He was unable to get across the summit and landed, allowing his passenger to catch the evening train, and was on his way back to Spokane when he was compelled to make a landing at Waldo for fuel.

SUNDAY'S BALL GAMES

The opening games of the Alberta Amateur Baseball Championship played here Sunday resulted in the Fernie Miners taking the first game by a score of four runs to nil and Edmonton winning the second by a score of 6 runs to nil, and both teams will meet at Edmonton next Saturday on even basis to fight out the battle for the title.

Fernie dished up real classy baseball to defeat Loblick, the hurler who won all three games from Calgary in the semi-finals, and at no time during the entire nine innings did the visitors look like scoring. Blair on the mound for the locals had Edmonton completely at his mercy and only allowed three hits, Wilson geting one in the first, Clark one in the fourth and Campbell one in the eighth, all singles and these were the only visitors to reach first base. No Edmonton player reached second.

Loblick pitched nice ball for the visitors but wobbly support in the second innings together with three hits gave Fernie two runs in that frame. Edmonton field tightened up after that however and prevented the locals from scoring any further runs until the eighth frame when Shand and Steinert connected for a two bagger each and Bishop singled to bring in two more runs for Fernie.

The second game was a complete reverse in the order of proceedings, Edmonton giving Goldsworthy airtight support when the Fernie field went to pieces at critical moments.

Goldsworthy, although not a registered player, was permitted to go on the mound for the visitors, and pitched a sterling game, and with his support letting nothing by him, came through the nine innings without a score being registered. Fernie had several splendid opportunities for breaking into the scoring column during the first six innings, having men around to third on several occasions, but failed to hit when hits would have counted.

Edmonton, although collecting nine hits off Jacobs' offerings, have no earned run in their six tallies collected. Four bad errors and a couple of passed balls, contributing mainly to Fernie's downfall.

The visitors opened the scoring in the second innings, two singles and an error at short let two runs in. In the next frame two singles and a passed ball added he third run. In the fourth Campbell led off with a three bagger, and should have been picked off at the plate but Barger threw wild and the fourth run was chalked up. There was no further scoring until the ninth when two singles, an error and a passed ball gave Edmonton another two runs to bring their total to six.

Red Stuart of Calgary and George Auld of Fernie had charge of the games and Manager Gorson of the Edmonton team stated that it was a really surprising exhibition of handling games, there wasn't a single decision given either at the plate or on the bases that there was the least question about. He was loud in his praise of the sportsmanship shown him by the Fernie management and players assured and them that he would certainly reciprocate it at Edmonton when the Fernie boys go north next Saturday.

SEEMS NEARER REALIZATION

Creston, B.C., Sept. 7.—Inspection of the C. P. Hill claims on Iron Mountain ten miles east of here, was completed at the end of the week by "Billy" Wilson, the well known Great Falls, Montana, geologist, at the instigation of W. R. Wilson, president of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., Fernie, who is at present in England conferring with a group of British capitalists who are willing to start a small steel plant at Fernie, if a sufficiency of iron ore is available to warrant such an undertaking.

Reports reaching town are to the effect that the inspection Mr. Wilson made convinced him that the ore body is ample and on the strength of his report it is expected the Hill holdings will be thoroughly explored by diamond drilling. Mr. Wilson's examination confirms previous reports that the Iron Mountain ore is a high grade hematite, low in prosphorous.

SANDY WINS AT PINCHER

Pincher Creek, Sept. 8.—The final competitions in the Crow's Nest Pass golf tournament at Pincher Creek were marred by a nasty wind which made real championship golf impossible. Play began at 10 a.m. with A. Watson of Fernie, opposing J. P. Alexander of Pincher Creek, in the final for the men's open championship. Mr. Watson won six up with five to go. The win was a foregone conclusion among golfers, but Mr. Alexander played a fine game and although beaten made Mr. Watson work hard for the win. The local player fell down badly on a couple of shots and also had hard luck on others. On three holes against him he should have had a half. On the seventh hole Alexander made about the best drive seen during the tourney. It was a good 285 yards and landed him within easy distance of the green. However, he fell down on his putting and lost the hole. Mr. Watson played a steady game and took advantage of every break. This is the third time that Mr. Watson has won this cup.

Mrs. Lawe of Fernie won the ladies open championship from Mrs. Harrison of Lethbridge, two up anad one to go. At the end of the first nine holes Mrs. Lawe was five up but Mrs. Harrison rallied and staged a great recovery. It looked for a while as if she would pull through with a win but Mrs. Lawe made a classy 12-foot putt on the 17th hole to half in three and win. Mrs. Harrison was not quite as steady as the winner and fell down a few times on her approach and putting. This is the fourth time that Mrs. Lawe has won this event.

In the final of the men's first flight Mr. Murdock had to return home and Mr. Booth won the match by default.

Mr. Rhynas and Mrs. Gillis of Blairmore, won the mixed foursomes with Syd Wallis and Mrs. Harrison of Lethbridge second.

In the ladies two ball foursomes Mrs. Huntley and Mrs. Gearhart were first with Mrs. and Miss Farmer of Blairmore, second.

HISTORY OF PREMIER MINE

Premier Mine, Portland Canal, B.C.'s leading precious metal producer, has paid $7,388,000 in dividends to the middle of 1925. First dividends were paid in 1921.

No wonder it has proven a sensation and focused the attention of the mining world on that section.

The last report, covering 1924 operations, estimated 147,880 tons of broken ore in stopes containing .55 ounces of gold, 17.3 ounces of silver, or about $21 a ton. On the fourth level there is said to be 420,000 tons of $20 ore unbroken. There are numerous other ore bodies exposed and not taken into account.

And all these millions were missed by New Yorkers by only o few feet, much less than the Farmer's Bank operation missed the Keeley's famous deposits.

R. K. Neill was the lucky individual who came along and won success on the Premier when others failed. The New York syndicate spent $100,000 and abandoned the operation. Neill went in right after, over 40 ft. of snow and put several men to work.

A tunnel run by the New York people had paralleled the ledge. Neill advanced a crosscut they had started, and disclosed ore with the first round of shots. The Eastern people missed millions by a few feet.

Several other crosscuts driven from the tunnel by Mr. Neill opened ore that contained $65 to $1,000 in gold and silver to the ton in a body of important width. He sacked and packed out, under great difficulty, 184 tons of ore that brough him a check for $112,000. From that moment the success of the mine was assured.

On an expenditure of $4,000 he put in sight more than $3,000,000 worth of ore in two and one-half years. The cost of the development was greater, but $4,000 was all of the initial capital expended before profits began to accrue.

It is a very interesting story, the history of Premier. O. B. Bush tells it well. He landed in the Stewart area in 1910. A prospecting syndicate was formed and they staked the Cascade Falls group, now of the Premier. J. D. Morrison had later staked there, and when Bush had some samples assayed and got $42 in gold and 671 ounces of sillver, he says, "I proceeded to make a deal with Logan and Morrison for the property. We settled on the following terms: $200 cash, $1,800 in 30 days, two lots in Prince Rupert on Cow Bay valued at $3,500 net, and 500,000 shares at 25 cents in a company to be formed. The deal went through on that basis. Then, to round up the group, I bought the two claims of Dr. Kergin and Dr. Richards, giving a lot in Stewart and 240,000 25-cent shares.

"I then hired a man to go up and get samples to take to Vancouver. We put a shot in the Simpson showing and the samples ran from 250 ounces to 3,088 ounces in silver and $166 in gold. Then I formed the Salmon-Bear River Mining Co., capitalized at $1,000,000, divided into 4,000,000 shares of a par value of 25 cents each. But by this time the boom in mining shares in the Portland Canal district had flattened out and it was impossible to get any money at all. We had one of the biggest properties in the whole camp, with ore running over $2,000 to the ton, and could not raise a dollar. We worked all winter on the proposition of trying to interest capital, and by spring all we had was about $250 in the treasury, and $800 worth of assessment work to do before July, 1911.

"In the spring I started up to the property and met Logan in Prince Rupert and asked him if he knew of a good man to put in charge of the property, and he said he thought Pat Daly was about as good as I could get under the circumstances. I hired Pat for $2.50 cash and $2.50 in shares per day. On the boat I met Jack Hoveland and hired him for $2 cash and $2 per day in shares.

"We landed in Stewart on the first day of May, 1911, and started up the valley to the present Premier mine. I sent Scotty and his partner ahead with about 250 pounds of suplies, and it took us three days to get to the Pictou claim. We started work on the Pictou showing, a silver and lead outcrop, doing considerable surface work, and then moved over to the Richards and Kergin claims and started work on an enormous lead and zinc blowout. Considerable tonnage of low-grade ore was developed by a series of open cuts, but the values were better on the surface than anywhere else. This lead and zinc ore ran northwest and southeast. As soon as the snod dis appeared we did a little work on the Simpson high-grade ore with just fair results. It was really a diamond drilling proposition, but there was no trail over which to get the outfit in and no money in the treasury to do any real work. The ore zone was faulted; large portions of the mountain had slid down the hill, taking the vein with it, and we could not pick up the vein where it should have been on account of the overburden. As a matter of fact, I did not find the extension of this ore till several years later. We drove a few short tunels on the low-grade ore zone and then closed down for lack of money.

"Some time later, Rolfe, a mining engineer representing an Eastern company, examined the property and found the high-grade ore on this part of the mountain that had slid down the hill, and put several open cuts at different places along the vein, but for some reason he did not bond the property. H. R. Plate, representing the Thompson interests of New York, examined the property and took a bond on it for $150,000. Plate started No. 1 tunnel on the high-grade ore and followed it for about 70 or 80 feet and then drove along the side of the ore for about 150 fet without crosscuting. He drove No. 2 tunnel farther down the hill on the low-grade ore and went through it in about 70 feet. No. 4 tunnel was started to cross-cut the low-grade ore at depth and the values found were very unsatisfactory. After all this work he threw up the bond on the propery. In justice to Mr. Plate, his mistake lay in considering that the low-grade ore zone and the high-grade ore zone were one and the same, and he had every reason to believe that this was the case owing to the faulted condition of No. 1 tunel. Plate came to the conclusion that the northwest zone (low grade) turned on the Premier and ran aproximately east and west. J. J. O'Neill, Dominion government geologist, and G. A. Clothier, provincial government mining engineer, came to the same conclusion years later.

"After Plate turned the property down, I gave Pat Daly a lease of the property, but Pat could not make the grade and he got R. K. Neill, of Spokane, to go up and examine the property. Neill sized up the property the first time he was on the ground and came to the conclusion that the low-grade had nothing to do with the high-grade ore at all. He got Messrs. Trites, Wood and Wilson, of Fernie, to back him, and inside of thirty days had a cross-cut tunnel in the high-grade ore. Neill continued the workings in No. 1 tunnel and ran several cross-cuts, one of which was 6 feet long, averaging $65 to the ton in gold and silver. He then continued No. 1 tunnel where Plate had left off and turned a little to the right, and in less than 10 feet was in high-grade ore. He continued this tunnel through a dyke 42 feet wide and struck very high-grade ore after passing through it. Some of the assays taken across the width of he tunel ran over $350 to the ton in gold and silver, and the assays taken on the surface directly over this ore assayed $13 to the ton in gold and silver, showing that he values increased with depth.

"During the summer, Neill drove five or six cross-cut tunels, besides following the ore for several hundred feet in No. 1 tunnel, and to give some idea of the values obtained after the ore was sorted, the following results were obtained on a shipment of over 300 tonus: Gold, $183.60; silver, 148.6 ounces, the value of which amounted to $322 to the ton in gold and silver, figuring silver at $1 per ounce. Neill continued development work until Sam. I. Silverman interested the Keith and Guggenheim interests to take over the control of the property. These interests bought control and agreed to take up the treasury shares to develop the property at 60 cents per share on a $5,000,000 capitalization."

Success has crowned the operation ever since.

CONKLIN & GARRETT SHOWS WIN FAVOR IN FERNIE

The Conklin & Garrett Shows, the big All-Canadian Shows that have been exhibiting here since Monday are without doubt the best Shows of the kind that have ever come to Fernie, and as a consequence the kiddies of this district are having the time of their life. To enumerate the various attractions would take too much time and space, but chief among the rides that appealed to the kiddies was the ever popular Merry-Go-Round, the Giant Ferris Wheel, and for those that like a little spice with their run was the newest of all rides, the sensational European invention, the Thriller.

Chief among the various side shows are the Conklin & Garrett's wall of Death, featuring Mr. Speedy Williams Carry's Wild West Show. This Show is a real wild wester and a Show that was more than popular with the pleasure loving public. A show that caused more than ordinary comment was Conklin & Garrett's Museum, featuring Lucille Parker, the two-headed baby. This, without doubt, is the only freak of its kind on exhibition and something that should be seen by all.

The writer, being of an inquisitive turn of mind, found out a few interesting facts concerning the big show, and chief among these were that the big show has a personnel of one hundred people under the personal management of J. W. Conklin. The Show is a whollly Canadian show, as it never leaves the Dominion. It has been on the road twenty weeks, and has travelled over ten thousand miles. The headquarters of the show are in Vancouver., B.C.

The show will be here till Saturday night and those that have not availed themselves of the opportunity of seeing this attraction should not miss the chance.

FRENCH-CANADIAN YOUTHS' LONG TOUR

Joseph de Gagne and Honore Julien Walking Across the Continent to S. America

Joseph de Gagne, 21, and Honore Julien, 19, two French-Canadian youths, of Montreal who are on a hiking tour from Montreal, with San Salvador, Central America, as their destination, arrived in the city last evening from Saskatoon. Since October 27, 1924, when the young adventurers started their long trek, they have covered about 8,000 miles. Over six thousand miles of the distance has been covered on foot, while the lads have accepted auto lifts to cover the other two thousand.

Mr. de Gagne was formerly a member of the reportorial staff of the Montreal La Presse and The Montreal Daily Star, and he is writing an account of his experiences on the trip for several newspapers.

Starting from Montreal the hikers proceeded into the United States by way of Detroit and passed through Indiana, Illinois, Nebraska, Colorado, Iowa and New Mexico, before finally landing in Tucson, Arizona, where they were advised by Judge Hammell, of that city to postpone their hike through Mexico to San Salvador on account of the mid-summer heat. The lads then turned their faces north again and hiked back to the international border and crossed into Canada at Kingsgate. Once back in Canada they stopped off at Waterton Lakes for a week and then touched Moose Jaw, Regina, Brandon and Saskatoon and finally arrived in Calgary.

From here de Gagne proposes to go to Banff and then over the Windermere road back to Kingsgate and then on through the States and Mexico to San Salvador.

Upon reaching their objective the lads will start on the homeward trek, going through to New Orleans and up the Atlantic coast to Montreal.

Mr. de Gagne, who is an artist of remarkable ability, is painting sketches on the trip which he sells in order to help out with their expenses. The lads were presented with a Hudson Bay blanket through the courtesy of the manager of the store and the manager of the Alexandra hotel, where the hikers are staying while in the city.

They arrived in Fernie on Wednesday of this week, staying at the Northern Hotel, and called on the mayor, the chief of police and the local newspaper.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation, and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ten head.

GEOLOGISTS AT WORK

The increasing importance of British Columbia's mineral areas is being recognized by the government Geological Survey of Canada, and this year Ottawa has quite an army of men busy in the various parts of the province. It is true that in the eyes of the general public that spectacular gold and silver metals command the greatest attention, hence such great interest in Portland canal. However the great lead, zinc and copper deposits, of which B.C. abounds, are of equal importance and promise to give that promise world dominance in industrial development as years go on, and other world deposits decline. In dealing with the activities of the Geological survey in B.C., this year, Dr. Collins, the director, says :

"It is becoming evident that the coast range batholith, a great mass of granite rock that extends the length of British Columbia and Yukon, was the source of much of the mineral wealth of the Cordillerean region, and that deposits of silver, lead-zinc, copper, gold, etc, are distributed along its flanks. This year practically the whole field of programme in British Columbia is directed towards exploration of known mineralized areas related to the coast range granite, or towards exploration of promising, but little known areas along its margins.

C. H. Stockwell is investigating and maping Galena Hill, Yukon, one of a group of areas containing rich silver-lead ore deposits, of which Keno Hill is best known.

W. E. Cockfield is examining various deposits lead-zinc and other ores near Atlin. He is chiefly occupied, however, in exploring the eastern margin of the Coast Range granite from Atlin southeastward toward Telegraph Creek.

W. A. Johnson is resurveying the placer-gold bearing gravels in the vicinity of Dease Lake, Cassiar district. The Cassiar gold field was discovered in 1874, and in the first year produced gold to the value of $1,000,000, but in time production declined, and for many years has had no output. Last year, however, new discoveries, alleged to be rich, were made and this year there has been a considerable influx of prospectors. Mr. Johnson will investigate the possibilities of the placer deposits. It is expected that some of the prospectors will remain in the Dease Lake region and turn their attention to search for ore deposits in the solid rock formations. To render assistance in this work, F. A. Kerr has commenced a geographical and geological exploration in the region around Dease Lake.

J. A. McDonald is making a topographical survey of two- 15 minute quadrangles (about 400 miles square) of the Bear and Marmot River mineralized areas, on Portland canal, contoured maps on a scale of one inch to the mile will be prepared as a basis for later geological work.

G. Hanson has gone into explore and investigate the mineral possibilities of the region between Smithers and Usk, on the Canadian National Railway. This will include the investigation of the mineral deposits of Hudson Bay Mountain.

J. R. Marshall is continuing the exploration of another section of the Eastern margin of the Coast Range batholith in the vicinity of Ootsa and Eutsuk Lakes, south of the main line of the Canadian National Railway. This region is comparatively easily reached by way of the long narrow lakes it contains, and some deposits of lead and zinc have been found there.

V. Dolmage is continuing exploration in yet another section of this eastern margin of the Coast Range batholith around Chilko and Taylayoko Lakes. Gold, limonitic iron ore and other economic minerals have been found in the vicinity.

H. T. James is examining in detail the copper ore deposits at Britannia, including the Britannia mine, and will make a detailed geological survey of the area in which the mineral deposits occur. These lie near the western side of the Coast Range batholith, not far north of Vancouver.

C. E. Cairnes is making a detailed study of the geology and silver-lead ore deposits of the Slocan mining district.

A. C. T. Sheppard has in hand a topographical survey of a 15-minute quadrangle (about 200 miles square) just north of the Sullivan Mine at Kimberley. A map for publication on a scale of one mile to the inch will be prepared as a basis for a subsequent geological survey in the same area. There is some reason for believing this area to be favorable for lead-zinc deposits.

J. F. Walker will explore a comparatively little-known area lying between the Windermere and Lardeau map-areas, north and northeastward from the head of Kootenay Lake. He will also make a preliminary examination of reported recent discoveries of titaium ores in the vicinity of Golden.

C. S. Evans will examine and map the country on either side of the Rocky Mountain trench (valley of Columbia River) from Windermere northward. A study of the area is required for a better understanding of the geological history of southeastern British Columbia.

STRONG CAST FOR "SILENT WATCHER"

Bessie Love and Glen Hunter are the featured players in "The Silent Watcher," an adaptation of "Mary Roberts Rineheart's story "The Altar on the Hill," which appears in the Saturday evening Post. The picture was made by Frank Lloyd, producer of the Sea Hawk, and will be First National's offering at the Orpheum Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

The "Silent Watcher," pictorially relates the story of Joe Roberts, secretary of John Steele, famous lawyer and senatorial candidate and their respective family and business affairs. The story is said to possess much of intense human appeal and considerable human appeal and considerable wholesome humor and reaches its climax when the secretary is called to police headquarters and given the third degree in an effort to attach the blame for the murder of a girl, with whom his employer had been in close association, and of which the boy knew nothing. Many surprising developments are said to occur when the youth finds the girl to have been shot by a gun registered in his name and in an apartment he had rented for his employer in his own name.

Hunter, in interpreting the role of Joe Roberts, is reported to have given one of the finest dramatic performances the screen has ever seen, and Miss Love, as Mary Robert, likewise reaches dramatic heights, previewers state.

Hobart Bosworth, veteran of stage and screen, plays the senatorial candidate, John Steele, and Alma Bennett is cast as Lily Elliott, a flirtations soubrette who falls in love with the politician. Gertrude Astor, Lionel Belmore, DeWitt Jennings, Brandon Hurst, Aggie Herring and George Nicholls are others in the supporting cast.

COMMUNICATION.

Fernie, B.C., Sept. 4th, 1925.

To the good Citizens of Fernie.

We are camping in your fine tourist camp on the edge of your beautiful city and the courteous treatment we are receiving from your caretaker and his good wife, Mr. and Mrs. C. Stephenson, words cannot explain. In fact we feel the same at home with them as when we are in our own home in Indiana. May God's beautiful sun shine bright on the lives of your good citizens for keeping such a fine tourist camp and many times after we are back in Indiana our thoughts will wander back to the little city of Fernie.

Yours sincerely,
A. A. Huff and Wife.

PARCEL POST CARRIED UP TO 15 POUNDS

The Honorable Charles Murphy, Postmaster General, announces that the postal service will now accept parcels weighing up to 15 pounds for transmission through the mails. The limits of size for parcels accepted for transmission by post will remain as at present.

Constable Cameron this week picked up a young fellow who had come into the city. He had in his possession a suit case in which was an exact duplicate of everything he was wearing, even to his armbands, all of which were new. It is suspected that these are stolen goods and the young fellow is being held pending investigation.

New Westminster and one or two other places which are in "dry" districts as determined by the plebiscite held at the time of the last general election have approached the government with a view to getting a new vote, at which, no doubt, those making the requests would hope to see the decision against beer parlors altered. On the other hand, there are those in "wet" districts who think that a new vote there would also demonstrate a change of view. The cabinet has carefully considered the matter and has come to the conclusion that if a substantial proportion of the electorate, as shown by a petition from at least forty per cent., want a new vote they can have it, but that as it is not desirable to have the situation disturbed by frequent plebiscites this must end it for three years in that locality.

HISTORY OF SULLIVAN MINE

The Financial Post says the Sullivan Mine in British Columbia, owned by Consolidated Mining & Smelting, is one of the richest mines in the world to-day. Its ore reserves run into millions. This mine represents a triumph in metallurgy. Its lead-zinc deposits, which a few years ago were almost neglected, are to-day in great demand as a result of the discovery, after years of painstaking effort and study, of an electrolytic method of separation of the ores, and reducing them to concentrates. The great mines at Kimberley resulted.

In May, 1892, Pat Sullivan, John Cleaver, and Mike Holland left the Coeur d'Alene country, in the State of Idaho, to seek their fortunes in the Kootenay Lake region in British Columbia. They were aided in their venture by James Cronin, afterwards locator and owner of the St. Eugene Mine at Moyie. Two months later the party broke up, Sullivan and Cleaver crossing the mountains from Crawford Bay, on Kootenay Lake, to the head waters of St. Mary's River, the course of which they followed down to Ft. Steele. Here they found a good deal of excitement about the North Star Mine, and joined by Ed. Smith, who was familiar with this part of the country, they determined to return and prospect in its vicinity.

On reaching the North Star they found all the hill located, but impressed with the exposure of Galena there they decided to continue their search, in the course of which they crossed Mark Creek and prospected on the other slope. The second day out, Pat Sullivan found the outcrop. Four claims were located, one for each of them and one for James Cronin, who next year came up to see these claims and also the North Star. At Fort Steele he heard of the St. Eugene ore and returned to Moyie, where he located the St. Eugene and Peter claims. Going back he looked over the claim staked for him on Mark Creek and decided to abandon it and devote his attention to the St. Eugene.

In 1896 the Sullivan group was bonded to A. Hanson, of Leadville, but the bond was not taken up. It was then bonded to Col. Redpath, Judge Turner and Associates, who formed the Sulivan Group Mining Company.

Up to 1899 the development consisted of surface trenching and shallow underground work. In 1898 and 1899 the Kimberley branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway was built to connect with the main line at Cranbrook. The year 1900 marks the beginning of systematic development and the first shipments of ore were made to the Hall Mines smelter at Nelson and to the Canadian smelting works at Trail. At the end of three years, after shipping some 4,000 or 5,000 tons, carrying 35 to 40 per cent. lead and about 15 oz. silver to the ton, it was decided that sufficient tonnage had been developed to warrant the erection of a smelter.

In 1903 construction was started and a smelter (of sorts) rose into being at Marysville. The following year this smelter was entirely remodelled. (Refer Annual Reports of Minister of Mines for 1903 and 1904.) Finally after smelting some 75,000 tons the smelter closed down for good late in 1907.

The reasons for failure to operate profitably have been attributed to insufficient development of the ore-bodies, lack of efficient sorting methods, and metallurgical problems due to the complex character of the ores, while the drop in the prices of lead and silver may have been a factor which discouraged further expenditures.

However, at the end of its smelting career, the Sullivan Group Mining Company became financially embarrassed with many creditors, the principal being the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company, which obtained judgment under which a seizure was made, subject to the interest of the bond holders.

"In 1909 the bondholders and the creditors, including the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company, reorganized the company under the name of the Fort Steele Mining and Smelting Company.

In December, 1909, the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada, took a lease and bond on the Federal Mining and Smelting Company's holdings in the Fort Steele Mining and Smelting Company. They immediately took steps to improve the grade of ore mined and installed additional sorting facilities on the surface. This had such a marked effect on the grade of ore shipped that further improvements in the sorting plant were made.

"The underground development and diamond-drilling convinced the officials of Consolidated Mining and Smelting that the mine contained a large tonage of complex ore which would become valuable when a satisfactory process of extraction had been developed, also that there were high-grade ore-zones which could be worked during the interval and smelted for lead in a suitable smelter with a proper ore mixture. Subsequently, towards the close of 1910, the option on the stock of the Federal Company and on that of some of the other shareholders was exercised, and the control passed into the hands of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co.

After the acquisition of the Sullivan group and adjoining claims, the metallurgical problems were attacked in earnest and the output of the mine gradually increased until in 1914 the Sullivan became the largest lead producer in Canada, which distinction it has retained ever since. It may here be noted that during the Great War zinc was badly needed by Great Britain and her allies, which fact, no doubt, stimulated the efforts of the company's staff to arrive at a process by which the zinc could be separated from its intimate association with iron and lead sulphides and economically converted into a commercial product. No expense was spared in this direction by the company, and the results of the experiments were such that in 1911 construction of a large electrolytic zinc-refinery was started at Trail, and in 1916 regular shipments of zinc ore were commencer since which date zinc has been one of the principal products of the Trail plant.

Up to 1919 the production was derived entirely from the upper workings, which are situated at an elevation of 4,500 feet above sea-level. Here the ore bodies were attacked by a long adit-tunnel known as the 1,000-foot level, which has been driven into the hill for 3,600 feet and from which stoping has been carried up to the surface.

Two enormous ore-bodies separated by a zone of pyrite were encountered on this level, the downward continuations of which are now being developed on the 3,900-foot level. In the upper portions of the vein near the surface square-set timbering was necessary, but as depth was gained a pillar-and-room system was adopted which proved entirely satisfactory owing to the toughness of the quartzite hanging wall.

During the earlier period of the mine's history selective mining for lead ore was resorted to, and the zincky material was left in the pillars. In one section of the vein, carrying high-grade lead ore, cribs were successfully used instead of pillars.

FRENCH FINANCES

John Bell in the Fortnightly Review: "Paradoxical as it may seem, the case of France is pathetic and yet full of hope. Her finances are in a terrible mess. At the time of writing the pound is still worth more than 100 francs. For nine months the Chamber and Senate had been engaged in producing a balanced budget. France has had an internal debt of 150,000,000,000 francs in perpetual and long term rents and 130,000,000 francs in short term securities. Her foreign debt is of a crushing character. She owes England £600,000,000 and America $4,137,224,350. Her budget deficit was 4,000,000,000 francs. France has no trade crisis, no large numbers of unemployed workers to maintain. In fact, she is importing thousands of foreign workmen every week, for her own manual labor is not sufficient for her needs. In a certain measure she is prosperous because she is able to utilize this foreign labor, for M. Calliaux stated in the chamber the other day that without its industrial concerns would have to be shut down, with the result that French workers would be idle. Economically and industrially France is as prosperous as she could wish to be.

JUGGLING WITH MILLIONS

Premier Mine offered one million dollars for Selukwe's 50-odd per cent. interest in B. C. Silver. The price was to be paid in two years.

Selukwe of London countered with an offer to sell for $5,000,000, payable in five years. They are still negotiating.

Premier paid Grant Mahood $100,000 for his minority in B. C. Silver—about one-third of the stock.

Business men and manufacturers of British Columbia are trying to inaugurate a "Buy at Home" campaign to stimulate business, and business certainly needs a stimulant. With about $20,000,000 going out of the province for booze and another $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 being spent on racehorse gambling, it will require a life-size stimulant to put business where it belongs. Just as soon as business interests find out that the booze and business do not mix we will give more attention to business and less money to booze and gambling, and business conditions will right themselves. His Hearing Restored

The invisible ear drum invented by A. O. Leonard, which is a miniature megaphone, fitting inside the ear entirely out of sight, is restoring the hearing of hundreds of people in New York city. Mr. Leonard invented this drum to relieve himself of deafness and head noises, and it does it so successfully that no one can tell he is a deaf man. It is effective when deafness is caused by catarrh or by wholly destroyed natural drums. A request for information to A. O. Leonard, Suite 436, 70 Fifth Ave., New York City, will be given a prompt reply. [Adv.

Conklin and Garrett's WALL OF DEATH

THE SOLDIERS' PROBLEM

You see a quiet man of middle age trying to board a street car. Girls elbow him aside. Young men beat him to it. The motor man growls impatiently.

"All aboard! Come on, come on!"

The middle aged man flushes with chagrin. His chin is up, but he takes his place in the jammed car, without dignity. Two girls make faces at his waistcoat, because there is a daub of something on it.

Who is this plain person we have selected for special notice?

He is a modern Cincinnatus returned to the modern plough. He is a man whose name is known to every man, woman and youth in this country. In tones of brass, his name has been shouted with pride by a joyful and exalted nation. In his day thousands of men stood at his beck and call, even unto life and death, in his day, a day of danger and death, of castrophy and peril, he stood out far and alone, one of perhaps thirty men on whose nobility of character and gifts of courage and vision millions of his fellow citizens pinned their ardent faith.

The king has shaken his hand.

That unfortunate small daub of grease on his waistcoat falls, by an odd concidence upon the very spot where he is free to wear several of the highest and oldest honors the British Empire can bestow on her great. But the girls with their knees showing, and making faces at him, do not know this.

They are of the opinion that he is merely some sort of a professional old fellow, a lawyer or a manufacturers' agent, who whittles out an existence in a dusty little office, with a command consisting of one elderley stenographer and one glum office boy. And they are right.

Cincinnatus, when he saved Rome and to the astonishment of his fellow men, went back to the plough, had at least this advantage: Everybody in Rome knew him. When he went down street for a bolt at the hardware dealers, Romans lifted their hats to him and slaves bowed to the pavement.

But this middle-aged gentleman, formerly a high officer of the Canadian corps, a mighty man in a mighty time, begs pardon when a dashing young fellow shoves past him in the street car. He begs pardon for being unavoidably in the way.

What are the war commanders doing now?

Do great soldiers make great civillians?

And why don't they?

Canada is full of distinguished soldiers who will not even use their old rank in the telephone directory.

Men who stood eight years ago on a pinnacle of national honor with not more than a handful of others, whose names were spoken by all men with pride, and on whose character a nation set its hopes, have now withdrawn into obscurity where nobility of character cannot offset business acumen.

The qualities that make a man a great soldier, it appears, are not often the qualities to make him a success in the business and professional world.

Amongst the Canadians, the highest rank was given to or was won by men who had been playing soldier, either professionally or as a hobby, for a long enough time to have the technical side of the game down fine. Currie was supreme commander at the finish, and his four division commanders were Macdonnell, Burstall, Loomis and Watson. Currie, a partner in one of the insurance and real eastern firms in Victoria, spent all his spare time from his youth until Aug. 4th, 1914, soldiering enthusiastically in the militia. The fact that the first few years of his hobby was in the artillery, starting as a gunner, and the second phase with an infantry regiment may even have important bearing on the fact that he was selected as the best qualified officer to be commander of an army corps consisting of all sorts of arms.

Macdonnell and Burstall were professional soldiers, the first with the Royal Northwest Mounted Police and later with the permanent force, and Burstall a life long officer of artillery with the permanent force. Loomis, member of a prominent engineering and contracting firm in Montreal, made the militia his hobby, and Watson, a newspaper proprietor and editor took his fun in soldiering.

Currie has left commerce for the presidency of McGill University, Macdonnell, the professional soldier, is head of the Royal Military College; Burstall, the professional soldier, is high in the department of Militia and Defence. Loomis has returned to his engineering and contracting and Watson died, an editor and proprietor.

It is not amongst the highest commanders—professionally or as amateurs highly qualified for high rank—that are found most examples of the fact that the qualities that make a man a great soldier are the same qualities which help to make him a failure in the civil world of business and affairs.

Must a soldier have practical common or business sense?

Absolutely. There is nothing more horribly practical, ordered and businesslike in the world than warfare. No business office on earth can compare with an ordinary regimental orderly room for bar, hard practical efficency. Is there a factory in the Dominion that is run as carefully coldly, efficiently and properly as any regiment of the Canadian corps was run, day after day, under every sort of condition?

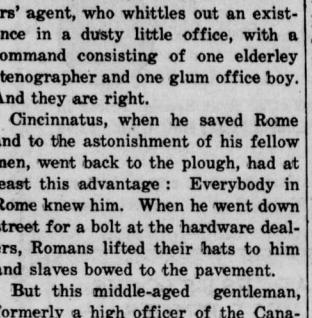
The men, who, at the top of an organization of tens of thousands of men, employed them, clothed them, fed them, housed them, moved them from job to job, and planned and designed the risky, hard and deliberate work they had to do, must have been men of practical sense of the first order. They must have been men with logical thinking machines. They must have had keen vision and foresight. Routine must never have staggered them, however gigantic the scale. What made our greatest soldiers was not courage and valor. That was the trick of the pick and shovel men at the bottom of the payroll. But the quality that made a colonel the keeper of a thousand men in health and safety and good order; that made the brigade general the chief safeguard of fourthousand men, that they were not wasted or thrown away, that there job was rendered as practical and economical as possible; that made the higher commanders and their officers the planners of battle and raid, of stand pat or withdraw, the players of the big stakes, the men who moved their cumbersome engines and plants and employees about the chess-board of war; these were surely hard and practical brains.

Most of Canada's generals were men of substantial business standing before the war, and have returned to comfortable conditions. Since most of our high commanders were men selected from men who won senior rank in the Militia, it is necessary to be a man of more than average income in order to play up to the rank, it is easy to see that most of them would fall back after the war, into good law practices, well established manufacturing or financial houses, and so forth.

Why is it that a man who could with great distinction manage a thousand men not merely in the difficult confusion and climax of battle, but in the long routine of training and organization, trench holding and resting, cannot manage a hundred men in a moderate business enterprise. Being a colonel was no easy job. Production had to be up to par all the time—and production in a regiment meant the condition of the men at all times as well as the delivery of the goods on battlefields. He had to have forsight, quick wits, a wide grasp of many diversified technical subjects.

But there are in civilian life distinguished colonels who so far appear to be wholly unable to obtain any distinction whatever in business or professional life. They do very moderately well. They are not headed for the poor house. But they are not the unquestionable leaders they were in the cold hard glare of army life.

One Canadian colonel had no experience of business beyond salesmanship before the war. He was a modest success certainly. He was known as a blunt, straightforward fellow, not highly promising, who lacked the acumen, the smooth performance which marks the highest class of salesmen.



In the war he went from lieutenant to colonel in fifteen mounths. Of course death and disaster made way for him. But out of a great many available men he was chosen to command because he was blunt, straightforward, honest as the day, and lacked that subtlety, that smoothness with excuses, that promptness with explanations which spoiled a good many colonels. If he didn't know, he said he didn't know, if he couldn't do it, he said he couldn't do it. If he failed, he admitted he failed, and wanted to know what was next to do. He was a young colonel and a practical success as soldier.

Another, a much younger man, who left college to go to war, became one of the most affectionately regarded senior officers in Canada ever sent overseas. He commanded a regiment at the close of the war. He served in many capacities, including the staff. He was one of those ideal officers you read about in Kipling, who played no favorites, and to whom all men looked white. His administration work was smooth beyond belief. The troops recognized him as a great soldier, for he managed his command as if it were a squad rather than a battalion. And he was personally a brave and valient man.

On his return to civil life he tried four or five different jobs and failed in all. All men looked white to him. And all sorts of men skinned him, cheated and did him. His various employers abandoned him with bewilderment. To-day he has no job at all. He is in New York with splendid letters of introduction.

Many of the older colonels have fallen back into their old offices which somehow look shabbier in comparison with the fine figure their occupant cut as a soldier. A good many who were modest men in their way before the war, became inspired with their success in the army, feeling that there were unsuspected talents the war had disclosed, and on their return they started to step out with a confidence their previous civil experience had never inspired. And soon they possessed were not quite right qualities for engaging in a large way in the business world.

A colonel who was wounded early in the war and who served with distinction in administrative posts afterward returned to his financial partnership and within six months had almost bankrupted it.

SHORT SESSION CITY COUNCIL

At the regular session of the city council last evening, in the absence of Mayor Irvine, Acting Mayor E. K. Stewart took the chair. All the aldermen were present with the exception of Ald. Dicken.

The report of Chief Anderson on the case of H. Fenwick, who recently died at the Fernie hospital, was read. The report stated that Fenwick was taken to the hospital in a precarious condition and the police had been unable to get any information as to whether he had any living relatives. The council decided that the cost of the funeral would be borne by the city.

The question of proposed legislation on city managership, tabled from last meeting, came up again for discussion and the council passed a motion to the effect that they were in favor of legislation being passed which would permit municipalities to appoint a city manager if they should desire to do so, but were not in favor of this appointment being made compulsory.

A report from the Chief of Police as sanitary inspector, regarding stables, was read. It stated that with the exception of two parties all stable owners had complied with the bylaw regarding manure containers. One of these two parties had promised immediate action; the other had made no attempt to comply and that he also owned a stable which was becoming a public nuisance. The council gave instructions that the Chief give fair warning to this party that his stable must be brought up to the requirements of the bylaw and if no action was taken following the warning, to prosecute.

W. W. Golightly received the contract for repairing the roof of the fire hall, and C. M. Walde the contract for repairing the roof of the city hall.

The Mayor's Salary Bylaw, providing for the payment of $500 for the year 1925 to Mayor Irvine, was finally considered and passed.

The usual sheaf of accounts were passed for payment.

Road work came up for discussion and it was decided to continue with the program previously outlined as far as weather would permit. It is expected that Victoria Avenue work will be started within a week or so.

SCHOOL PUPILS FIELD DAY

The Annual School Pupils Field Day will be held in the City Park next Wednesday afternoon, weather permitting, and promises to be a real day of sport for the children. The Rotary Club have kindly consented to aid the school staff in the starting and judging in the various events.

A request is made that all owners of cars who would transport children from the school to the City Park, leaving the school grounds at 12.40 p.m. next Wednesday, communicate with the Principal of the Public Schools as early as possible. Cars will be required both before and after the sports.

There are 33 events on the program and the first event will start at 1 p.m.

Boys of all grades, up to and including Grade 9, may compete for the Rotary Cup, to be awarded on points.

"THE MIKADO" AT THE GRAND THEATRE, SEPT. 25

"The Mikado," Gilbert & Sullivan's most popular comic opera, will usher in the 1925 theatrical season in Fernie on Friday, Sept. 25. This will undoubtedly be one of the most pretentious and satisfying offerings that will visit Fernie this season. This being the 40th anniversary in the life of this famous gem, Brandon Brothers are giving the opera a production and a cast worthy of its reputation and undying popularity.

The clever lines and catchy music of "The Mikado" that have been played and sung around the world are none the less enjoyable because of their many years of life. The music and jests of "The Mikado" are as old wine. Persons leave the theatre whistling the familiar melodies of "Three Little Maids," "Titwillow," "The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring" and the famous "Madrigal."

Brandon Brothers, who are sponsoring "The Mikado," are well remembered for their other operatic productions, are bringing an organization of thirty gifted singers to Fernie. The principals are all possessed of excellent voices and the chorus is composed of fresh, young singers, many of them capable of taking the principal roles. The costuming and scenic effects are rich and beautiful and complete to the last detail.

The production is of far greater size and quality than usually visits Fernie and the engagement should be an event in the musical and theatrical life of the city.

The admission prices are extremely reasonable and as the seating capacity of the Grand theatre is limited, lovers of the best in music and good wholesome amusement should make their reservations early.

MANSFIELD SENT UP FOR TRIAL

The preliminary trial of Jesse Mansfield, on charges of attempted murder in connection with the shooting up of the government road gang at Elk Prairie on Aug. 18, and with the murder of George Whiting, the following day, were concluded here on Thursday after nearly two weeks' duration.

Stipendiary Magistrate E. T. Cope committed Mansfield for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction on both charges. He will be taken to Nelson jail to await trial at the Fall Assizes to be held in Fernie next month.

THE LIBERAL CONVENTION

Cranbrook, Sept. 14.—On Saturday evening in this city the Liberal nominating convention for East Kootenay riding took place, the Hon. Dr. J. H. King, minister of public works, being again placed in nomination. The hall was crowded to the doors and long before the meeting started standing room only was available. There was quite a large percentage of ladies in the gathering. From Fernie alone there were forty representatives, and a contingent of 53 from the Golden country were also present. Delegates were present from every part of the riding and their reports were very enthusiastic.

R. Randolph Bruce, of Invermere, presided at the convention and Ald. MacPherson, of this city, acted as secretary. Dr. King's name was placed in nomination by H. E. Douglas, of Fernie, and was seconded by Mr. Cornell, lumberman, of Golden, and was enthusiastically and unanimously received.

Dr. King reviewed some of the accomplishments of the government in East Kootenay, mentioning the Banff-Windermere road, the new road being built from Lake Louise to Golden and Field, the expansion of the experimental farm at Windermere and the expansion of the government telephone system.

Dr. King said that the government policy in mining matters, particularly in the establishment of a bounty on lead and zinc and the copper bonus had benefited the district greatly, allowing of much increased activity at Trail and Kimberley. Speaking of the Home Bank, Dr. King said that if the Conservative government of 1916, when they knew the condition of the institution, had closed it out, no loss would have resulted to the depositors. He outlined the government's measures for relief in this connection and criticized the attitude of Mr. Meighen in this regard. Reference was also made to the development the government had undertaken at Vancouver and other coast points, which he said would prove of benefit to the entire western provinces. The coast this year could take care of the Alberta grain crop and half of Saskatchewan's.

Dr. King read telegrams from the coast urging him not to accept the nomination for East Kootenay and offering nominations at the coast, but the Dr. said he preferred to stay with the old riding in which he had lived so many years.

FERNIE WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Fernie people are just beginning to realize that they have a real honest to goodness baseball team. But it took a lot of hard work and real victories on the part of the players to bring home this fact. The team has covered themselves with glory during the week end by defeating Edmonton in three out of four games for the championship of Alberta. The boys have defeated Calgary twice, Lethbridge three times and Edmonton four games out of six in the past few weeks, thus demonstrating their superiority and earning the right to meet Vancouver for the championship of Western Canada.

The team arrived in Edmonton about 3.30 p.m. on Friday, after a 20 hour ride on the train and a short time afterward were busy working out on the diamond. The weather was cold and raw and only a small crowd turned out for the game, which was called for 5.30. Pat Jacobs occupied the pitcher's box and Carl Steinert caught. The boys showed good form and started the scoring, but Edmonton was right after them and at the end of the sixth had our boys down 4-2. In the seventh, however, they stepped on the gas and brought in three runs in no time, but by this time it had become quite dark and the good umpire protested against continuing the game. Red Stewart backed his decision and the game was called. It was a disappointment to Fernie as the score reverted to the previous innings, which cost them the game. However, Fernie won the sympathy of the Edmonton fans as it looked like a real steal and throughout the remainder of the series they received all kinds of applause and encouragement from the grand stand and bleachers. The following account of Saturday's games is from the Edmonton Bulletin:

The pennant—if any — emblematic of the Alberta amateur baseball Championship for the 1925 season will flaunt in the mountain breezes that blow around Fernie, and if the Fernie team has any sense of the fitness of things they will see to it that it is lettered "BLAIR." The series for the title was concluded here Saturday, when two games were played, and Fernie, with Blair on the hill in each session, won both, the scores being 4-1 and 2-1.

The visitors, after losing the game played Friday evening, were up against the proposition of taking a pair of victories on Saturday and they surely fooled everybody who thought they were incapable of performing the feat. Both games were fine exhibitions of the diamond pastime, and while the entire Fernie team played like a well-oiled machine, the main cog in the whole works was Lefty Blair. This gent pitched masterly ball for the winners, and "iron-manned it" with great aplomb.

Opposed by Goldsworthy and Smith in the first encounter, Blair had a fairly comfortable victory. Goldsworthy, who started against him, was wilder than a tornado, walked five men in the very first frame, and all through the piece, had trouble in locating the plater. He did not allow the miners very many hits, just a pair—he could hardly get the ball near enough. Smith, who succeeded to Goldsworthy's job in the sixth frame, also was stingy with hits, allowing but one, but the damage had been done before he went to the mound.

Blair was touched up for five bingles in the opening game, but they were very widely scattered, and every time he got into anything that looked like trouble — which was seldom enough—he tightened up and extricated himself without damage.

In the second affair Blair and Goldsworthy again opposed each other, and it was a battle with the result in doubt until the last man was retired in Edmonton's half of the ninth. Twice in this game the locals had glorious chances to take the decision, but in each instance Blair was too good for them. In the seventh the Fernie pitcher was in the awkward position of having the bags loaded and nobody down, but that didn't worry him in the least He retired the side without a run, leaving three runners stranded on the paths, and in the ninth he got out of another deep hole, after permitting but one runner to cross the platter. That's pitching.

Besides bending them past his opponents like a big leaguer, Blair contributed greatly to his evening victory by belting out a homer. It wasn't a clean Ruthian swat, perhaps, but it was good for the circuit nevertheless. The Fernie pitcher clouted the horsehide into right centre with a wallop that was good for at least a three-bagger, but Clark, who tried to stop it with his feet, kicked it farther away instead, and by the time he retrieved it and got it back to the infield Blair had clattered over the pan. It was a priceless blow, as it meant the difference between a tie and a victory in nine innings. In the two games Blair struck out 26 batters—14 in the first and 12 in the second.

There was some spectacular fielding in the two games. Wilson, the Edmonton shortstop, nailed a fiery liner from Hovan for a grand putout and also made several neat plays on fast grounders; McIntyre cheated Blair out of a hit by a fine running catch, and Morgan of Fernie stole a hit from Wilson by as nice a one-handed stab of a scorcher as anybody would want to see.

First Game

It was evident shortly after Goldsworthy went to the mound in the opening game that he didn't have much in the way of control. He walked the first three men to face him, but his receiver helped him out by picking one of them off on first. With two on, Goldy made Barger lift a fly to centre field, and then fooled those who figured he had settled down by walking the next two in a row and forcing in a run. There was something of an argument before these happenings were written into the records. Blair, who eventually drew the free trip that forced over the counter, cracked one down the third-base line that was only foul by inches, and seemingly had cleaned the bags when Umpire Stewart waved him back. Plenty of chin-wagging followed, but his nibs the umpire made a move like he was going to pull his watch his watch on the principal debater and the racket soon

FERNIE WINS AT NANAIMO

The ninth annual field day of the Vancouver Island Mine Safety and First Aid Association held at Nanaimo on Monday, Sept. 7th, on the Central Sports Grounds was most successful, the competition being keen, a feature of the day's events being the absence of a Mine Rescue team from Nanaimo, which fact was commented upon by Secretary Moore at a social time held Monday evening in the St. John Hall at which the prizes were awarded the various winners by the Hon. William Sloan, Minister of Mines, who complimented the teams and individuals upon their success and promised the Coal Creek team he would do his best to have them represent B. C. at the United States champion event next year. The winners of the various events were as follows:

Mine Rescue Competition.—1st, Coal Creek team, Capt. Caufield, with Messrs. Cockburn, Haile, Parker and Graham, 98.8%.

First Aid Competition, Department of Mines' Cup.—1st, Cassidy, Capt. McLachlan; 2nd, Ladysmith, Capt. George Carson. A notable feature of the Ladysmith team is that the team is composed of Capt. Carson and his four sons.

Coulson Cup.— 1st, Cumberland No. 2, Capt. Beveridge; 2nd, Nanaimo, Capt. Simpson.

Ladies, Vancouver Island Cup.—1st, Cumberland, Capt. Mrs. Hudson, last year's cup holders; 2nd, Nanaimo, Capt. Mrs. Turner.

Juvenile Competition, V.I. Cup.—1st, Nanaimo, Capt. L. Wharton; 2nd, Nanaimo, Capt. Geo. Barton.

Two-Man Event.—1st, Nanaimo, C. Wharton, W. Wharton and Geo. Cottle; 2nd, Nanaimo, L. Saaman, J. Kay and J. Scott.

The judges of the First Aid competition were Mine Inspector J. Dixon of Victoria, and H. E. Miard, of Fernie.—Nanaimo Herald.

BOTH WANTED THE STRIKE

Angry suspicion that neither the operators nor the miners really tried to prevent the deadlock that closed the anthracite mines on September 1 finds expression in many an editorial and news dispatch. The consumer of hard coal, confronted by the prospect of paying a higher price for his winter's supply reads with smouldering resentment of the rich profits predicted for the operators and distributors from the large surplus supplies of anthracite already above ground. Nor does he feel any profound thrill of sympathy when the correspondents describe the "festival spirit" in which the miners welcome their enforced vacation. They "are leaping into their holiday in a joyous mood," reports Robert T. Small in a Scranton dispatch to the Washington Star. Many, we are told, are joining the rush to Florida, lured by news of the land boom in that State. Others are starting on motor trips. Still others are withdrawing their savings and preparing to return to Europe. To quote Mr. Small further:

"This is the biannual vacation they have been waiting for and they intend to make the most of it. Clothing merchants and haberdashers throughout the region reported today the usual brisk trade which always follows on order to quit the mines. The miners, expecting to spend much time above ground, are 'dolling up' for their holiday."

The anthracite companies, declares President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, are using the strike "to unload at enhanced prices a greatly augmented tonnage of inferior coal." The miners, retorts an official spokesman for the companies, are using the strike to force a wage advance which would have to come ultimately out of the public's pocket. Another charge hinted at by the operators is that the United Mine Workers Union is sacrificing the anthracite field to serve its purposes in the soft coal industry. But while each side is accusing the other of forcing the suspension for ulterior motives, disinterested journals are blaming them both for this "strike against the consumer." "The periodic coal strikes of recent years have been manifestly directed primarily against the public, and this is even more true of the present strike than of previous struggles," remarks the Buffalo Express. "Both miners and operators have surrendered all claims upon public sympathy," declares the Albany Knickerbocker Press, which denounces the strike as "inexcusable and senseless." Remarking that "neither side to the controversy has shown the right spirit," the St. Louis Star points out that the operators, in a position to profit whichever way the situation developed, "have been arbitrary"; while the miners, "demanding a 10 per cent increase and the check-off, with wage adjustments for those employed by the day, have refused arbitration."

Discussing "The Art of Skinning Coal Consumers," William A. McGarry states in Mr. Ford's Dearborn Independent that "the record of all previous suspensions in the anthracite industry shows that when all the surplus stock in the yards is exhausted the miners and operators get together, hold a three-hour session, and sign a compromise agreement — generally the identical agreement over which they have deadlocked during the earlier stages of the negotiation." To quote Mr. McGarry further:

"If no other evidence were available it would be sufficient to arouse at least a strong suspicion that unsold anthracite has something to do with a suspension of work in the mines. The Government is slowly showing signs of recognizing how the game is worked. The miners are becoming impatient and therefore more outspoken. And even the consumer is learning. He is not stampeding as easily as in former years.

"When the mines closed in 1922 competent observers estimated the unsold hard coal above ground at thirty million tons, and most of that—nearly a half-year's normal supply— was moved in four months. It didn't move with nearly enough rapidity to suit the operators. In earlier suspensions the artificial demand had been even more rapid. This year the growth of suspicion is evidenced by the fact that even a concerted campaign of newspaper, street-car, direct mail, and billboard advertising, all making use of the strike threat, has failed so far to create a 'panic market.'"

Glancing back over the present controversy, which had its official beginning in the conferences between representatives of the operators and the miners in Atlantic City early in July, the New York Times finds the attitude of both sides "cynically unmindful" of the interests of the consuming public:

"Both sides have ample time to compose their differences in peace, had there been a genuine will to peace. Two months ago negotiations for a renewal of the wage agreement were begun. The proceedings dragged on in the most leisurely way four weeks to their final collapse. Neither side has presented its case fully and frankly. The public has no real knowledge of the basic facts at issue in the present dispute. The conferences at Atlantic City were held behind closed doors and the press statements from each side appeared to have been issued primarily to achieve some tactical advantage over the other. The public authorities have also had ample time to use their good offices to bring both parties together. But nothing has been done and the strike is upon us.

"This blind drifting toward widespread public inconvenience—perhaps actual suffering, if the contest is prolonged—is exasperating the American people as it has never done before. But it will serve some useful purpose if it arouses them to displace aimless drift with deliberate mastery. There is need of intensive public consideration of the whole process of mining and distributing coal. Premium prices for coal will bring a general appreciation of the fact that more is at stake than a wage dispute. The idea which emerges in the public mind with each recurring stoppage is that coal is 'affected with a public interest' to such an extent that some sort of government regulation is essential for the public welfare."

Unless all the outward indications are grossly misleading, remarks the Detroit Free Press, both miners and operators were content to have the strike called at this time. But "no reasons have been given by either side which excuse it," declares the New York World, which reminds us that—

"Two years ago the miners received more than they expected in the agreement for a 10-per cent. increase and a strict eight-hour day. The operators business is in a healthy condition. No mines are closing down, as in the bituminous field. No owners are losing money. The industry could have been expected to settle its disputes over the conference table or through arbitration without trampling over public interest. That it has failed so completely to do anything of the sort indicates something more than gross mismanagement of the negotiations; it indicates a selfish desire on one side or both to precipitate a strike for what can be had from it."

In the opinion of the Albany Evening News and Journal:

"The time is coming when the 100,000,000 will refuse longer to be the Begium of this war between owners and employees. The people may learn, indeed, they are learning, that hard coal may be a luxiary instead of a necessity. New England has moved to educate the people to soft-coal substitutes. And there is oil."

The miners and operators "have sown the whirlwind," and "they are now confronted with the prospect of reaping what they have sown," says the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger, which sees the operators losing their market and the miners losing public sympathy. The public, we are told, is already beginning to break itself of "the anthracite habit." It is learning the use of substitutes. According to the Williamsport Sun "the demand for anthracite in the United States in a few years has fallen off 40 per cent. because of the high price of the article and the uncertainty of a steady supply on account of periodical strikes." Some time ago conditions growing out of the war forced Western consumers to turn from anthracite to soft coal and oil, the St. Louis Star reminds us. And since the present strike loomed on the horizon a conference of New England Governors unanimously advised a temporary boycott of anthracite. Says the St. Louis Globe Democrat of the proposed boycott:

"Monopoly is at the bottom of most complaints as to hard-coal evils. Should New England attempt to do by concerted, organized means what the West has already done as matter of individual choice and convenience, and should it persist in the attempt, the result might be rather important in restoring the law of supply and demand. At any rate, a revolt on the part of New England is a revolt in one of the fairest of anthracite's provinces and may mark a turning-point in a domination that has resisted all opposition for more than twenty years."

subsided. Rushcall ended the inning by fanning, and Mr. Goldsworthy was lucky to get back to the water bucket with only one run against him after having issued five walks.

The Edmonton beaver's control was little better in the second frame. He started this session by giving McTeer a pass, Morgan sacrificed, and Hovan was hit in the ribs. Shand then came through with a lusty single to right that scored McTeer and sent Hovan to third. Steinert fanned, but Barger got on when Spiessman muffed his grounder, Hovan still holding third, Goldsworthy later picked Hovan off the bag for the third out. That made it 3-0.

Edmonton's only run came in the fourth, a walk to Wilson, a scratch hit by Spiesman and a wild heave by Blair being the means of manufacure. This run was scored before anybody was out, but the remaining three batters gave Blair no trouble.

There was no further scoring until the sixth, when Smith relieved Goldsworthy. Like his predecessor, Smith was unable to locate the pan at the commencement. He walked the first batter and hit the next. Shand sacrificed the runners along a peg, and then Steinert lifted a sacrifice fly to left that scored Morgan.

With two down and three on in the eighth, McIntyre had a chance to do something for his side, but the best he could do was to ground out second to first.

Blair was never in trouble in this game. His curve was breaking beautifully, and he had a drop that the locals haven't solved yet.

Second Game

Goldsworthy and Blair staged a regular pitching duel in the second game, Goldsworthy losing 2-1, altho his playmates outhit the opposition, Goldsworthy's supporters could not get their bingles when they were worth much, and that just about tells the story. The tougher the going the better Blair pitched.

Fernie started the game on which the championship depended as if they were to pound Goldy off the hillock in short order—but they didn't keep it up. Hovan, first man up in the initial frame— cracked a wicked liner into Wilson's mitt for the first out. Shand hit to almost the same place and got a safety, Steinert walked and Barger got a blow into centre. It looked like a desperate situation, but Goldsworthy calmly proceeded to fan Jacobs and Blair in succession, and nary a run scored. In the third, after Hovan got a lucky Texas leaguer and was sacrificed to second by Shand, Steinert pasted a single to deep left. Hovan attempted to score from second, but snappy fielding, Mahar to Goldsworthy to Campbell, nipped him at the plate. In the net inning Goldsworthy fanned the side.

Fernie's first run came in the fifth. A walk, a wild pitch, a sacrifice and an infield out did the damage, and in the sixth Blair poled out a homer for their second.

Edmonton did not threaten seriously until the seventh, when they had the bases full and nobody down. But neither McLeod, Campbell or Goldsworthy were able to deliver in the pinch, although Goldy hit a liner that nearly tore an arm off Blair for the third out. A foot either way and Fernie's two-run lead would have been wiped out right there.

It was practically the same in the ninth, but one run was as much as Edmonton could get. McIntyre got on with a little bunt, and moved up to second when McDonald cracked a single into right. McLeod fanned, and McDonald was out on a fielder's choice when Campbell grounded to second. Goldsworthy did his best to win his own game by getting a safety into left field that scored McIntyre and sent Campbell to third, but Dagsgard, who was sent in as a pinch hitter, toook three swings and it was all over.

Exhibition Game

In an exhibition game played yesterday, Fernie, with Sikora pitching, made it three straight over the locals, winning by a score of 3-0. Win Johnson pitched for Edmonton, and had one bad inning, the fourth. In this frame a walk, a single, a three-bagger and a passed ball was good for three runs.

FOOD REGULATIONS

A committee on foodstuffs sat in Britain during 1923 and now its recommendations are to be put into effect. The Minister of Health is forbidding by regulation, after a stated period of notice, the use of chemical preservatives in foodstuffs. Boron is to be excluded and also the more harmful formaldehydes. The chemicals, the use of which is sanctioned, are benzoic acid and sulphurous acid, but the use of these is subjected to strict limitations. The new regulations put a new problem into operation and that is the alternative to be devised to defend foodstuffs against the natural processes of putrefaction. There is only a limited amount of cold storage available and while this is adequate in Winter it is doubtful if it will prove adequate in Summer now that the chemicals used in the past are forbidden.

It is conjectured that under the new regulations the railway companies will be compelled to provide cold-storage vans and cold-storage motor vans will also be used, while there will be drastic reforms in the great markets for the preservation of food. In households, too, the practice of having ice chests, such as prevails on this continent, will have to be followed more widely. In the matter of the public health the new regulations are welcomed but it is recognized that there will be immense wastage of food until such time as the different trades and the public generally accommodate themselves to the new conditions.

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation, and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 16 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ten head.

CANADA'S NEW LOAN

Announcement has just been made that the Dominion Government has concluded its financial plans for the year by disposing of a new issue of $75,000,000 fifteen year 4½% bonds through a strong Canadian syndicate, consisting of Wood, Gundy & Company, Dominion Securities Corporation, A. E. Ames & Company, Limited, and the National City Company, Limited. The bonds are being offered to the public through practically every bond dealer and stock broker in Canada, and through the chartered banks.

In arranging for its long term financing in Canada, rather than in another market, the Government has followed the policy that has been almost rigidly adhered to during the last several years, the Victory Loans of 1917, 1918 and 1919 having been planned entirely for the Canadian market and the Refunding Loans of 1923 and 1924 having been offered in the same manner. Short term financing—such as one year note issues—have been placed in United States, where the demand for such bonds is so strong that such borrowing is abnormally cheap. These short term notes, however, are of interest only to the large financial institutions.

It is understood that the proceeds of the new issue will be used for refunding purposes, including the retirement of $42,000,000 of tax-free bonds, which fall due on December 1st next. In this matter also, the strict policy of retiring tax-free bonds by the usual taxable issues is being followed.

The new issue should prove exceedingly attractive to Canadian investors. The maturity is fifteen years— in other words, these bonds run for the same number of years as did the 1934 maturity Victory bonds which were issued in 1919 and which have become so popular. At the price of 97¼ and interest, the bonds will yield the investor an interest return of over 4¾%, which is considered attractive.

Because of the success of the 1923 and 1924 Refunding Loans, it is felt in financial circles that the present issue will be quickly snapped up. Investors who were fortunate enough to have purchased the 1923 issue of Refunding Loan bonds have had the satisfaction of watching their bonds rise in value by more than four points, while those who purchased last year have also witnessed an improvement upon the prices paid. It is a fact that all Dominion of Canada bond issues floated since the commencement of the war are now selling at a substantial premium over the original issue price.

In considering the new loan, another point upon which comment has been made is that new offerings of the highest grade of bonds have been comparatively scarce during the last few months and from all indications the volume of new bond issues will be unusually light during the remainder of the year. There will be no more Dominion Government financing, while most of the Provinces and Municipalities have already completed their requirements.

The best advice to prospective investors, therefore, is to enter their applications as quickly as possible. It is understood that this can be done through any bond dealer, stock exchange broker or through any branch of any chartered bank.

VITAMINE KNOWLEDGE

A summary of present knowledge on the subject of vitamins is given by Dr. D. Breese Jones, who is the chemist in charge of Protein Investigations of the Bureau of Chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture. Vitamins, he says, are essential to growth, health, and life, but they contribute neither energy nor tissue-building material. They are accessory food factors and there are five of them known which have been designated A, B, C, D and E. According to Dr. Jones, Vitamin A is essential to growth and health. Young animals on a diet devoid of it soon stop growing and lose weight, their vitality is lowered and they become less able to resist disease and infection, particularly of the respiratory tract. Growing animals apparently require more of Vitamin A than do adults. It is found abundantly in butter, cream, cheese, whole milk, egg yolk, the liver, heart and kidney of animals, in spinach, lettuce, cabbage, tomatoes, carrots, sweet potatoes, parsnips and green peas, and is present in varying quantities in many other foods. Cod liver oil is rich in this vitamin and the liver oils of some other varieties of fish also contain it.

The lack of Vitamin B, it seems, results in loss of appetite and arrest of growth, followed by various functional disorders and, finally, death. This vitamin is abundant in green plant tissues. Cereals and seeds contain it. Yeast and wheat germ are standard sources. It is found in roots and tubers and is especially abundant in tomatoes. Fruits and nuts are supplied with it. Meat contains it, the heart being the richest in this vitamin and the liver and the kidney having slightly lower values. One of the diseases produced by the absence of this vitamin from foods used is beri beri. This disease is most commonly found among those living chiefly on polished rice. The removal of the germ and seed coats or bran of cereals takes away practically all the vitamins and this explains why bread made from patent white flour is not a wholesome diet.

Vitamin C, Dr. Jones explains, is known as the "anti-scurvy vitamin" because lack of it in a diet causes scurvy, a disease prevalent among sailors, soldiers, explorers and others compelled to live for long periods on dried and preserved foods. An instance of the dire effects of the lack of this vitamin is found in the fact that there were more than 11,000 cases of scurvy among the British colonial troops in Mesopotamia during the latter half of 1916. The sources of Vitamin C are lemons, oranges, tomatoes, cabbage, letture, spinach, green beans and peas, and turnips. It is believed also that oysters contain this vitamin in abundance and milk to some extent.

Dr. Jones says that Vitamin D seems to control to a large extent the utilization of lime and phosphorous in the formation of bone by the animal organism. Its absence causes rickets. Cod liver oil contains Vitamin D in abundance and it is also found in egg yolk and to some extent in milk. Cocoanut oil contains it to a slight amount, but little is known about its distribution in the plant ord. Vitamin E is known as the anti-sterility vitamin. It was originally referred to as Vitamin X, home doubt existing as to whether it should be classed as a vitamin at all. It is found in natural foodstuff, but the knowledge affecting it does not seem to be extensive, in fact all that has been acquired has been assembled during the last two years. Dr. Jones, speaking of vitamins generally, says they should be sought in the garden, or in the market, and not in the drug store. Where it is suspected that there is vitamin deficiency in the diet corrective measures should be used through the substitution of suitable natural foodstuffs. He does not believe in commercial vitamin preparations, many, if not most, of which he says are worthless.

COMMUNICATION

To the Editor:

As a member of the Liberal party, I think certain criticism of the Hon. Dr. J. H. King regarding Home Bank affairs is most unjust. I would simply draw their attention to Dr. King's speech in the House of Commons, as published in Hansard, Page 4155, No. 80, 1925:

Mr. King (Kootenay): This is a claim made by the depositors, many of whom lost their all in the unfortunate occurrences that took place during the years 1916 to 1918. Without laying any blame at the door of anyone, there were conditions existing in the country that did create moral claims, and many moral claims have been assented to by this government. As far as the constituency I have the honour to represent is concerned, I know the people resident there. Many of them come from the eastern provinces, from the Maritimes, many of them come from the Old Country, Scotland and Wales and many of them from the continent of Europe. I have had close associations with these people over number of years, and they are not the type of people who appeal for compassionate allowances. I have seen them under great trials and tribulations. I was in the city of Fernie following the explosion where one hundred of the husbands and sons of the mining people had been killed in one blast. I have seen them when fire destroyed their homes, practically wiping out the city completely, so that they were required to move out for a period. I have seen them also during the periods of epidemics, when there was sickness in every household and death at their doors. I refer to the epidemic of 1918. I know the fortitude of these people and I know that they accepted the situation on every occasion as something beyond their control, but they met it standing up. When I visited the city of Fernie on New Year's day in 1924 I found a body of men and women of an entirely different mind and disposition from that which they possessed under other trials and tribulations.

I think, Mr. Chairman, that this is one case probably in the history of this country when we can take a different view without establishing a precedent, because I hope in our time and generation we will never have conditions existing in Canada such as we experienced during the war period where it was necessary for ministers, on account of the war and conditions then existing, to do probably what they would not have done under normal conditions. I do not think the amendment should be considered for a moment. This subject was under discussion in parliament in 1914. The legislation for the relief of the Farmers Bank passed this House on that occasion, but unfortunately it did not receive the support of the upper chamber. However, those conditions were not comparable with the conditions existing in 1916, 1917 and 1918. I quite agree with my hon. friend from West Calgary (Mr. Shaw), and as the representative from the district of Kootenay, I say that it would be agreeable to me to see their total loss made good to the depositors. The depositors committee I think have shown good judgment and foresight in the that they have, considering all conditions surrounding the claim and the circumstances connected with it, indicated that if the government of Canada or parliament will vote $5,450,000 to be expended in liquidation of their claims, that should be accepted as reasonable and fair compensation for their losses in this connection. I trust that thi sresolution will receive the same support this evening as was accorded it this afternoon. I find in every part of the House a desire on the part of members that there should be some measure of relief, and I trust the bill will carry successfully through this House and also through the upper chamber.

Thanking you for your valuable space. —Liberal.

HARD COAL STRIKE ON

As predicted in these columns the strike of miners in the Pennsylvania anthracite region has come to pass. West of the Great Lakes and east of Quebec it will occasion little comment. Residents in these sections are not deeply interested. Nor for that matter are Quebec and Ontario likely to be so vitally hit as in past years during similar wage disputes and shutdowns.

First of all there is a goodly quantity of anthracite above ground, sufficient it is said to meet all requirements up to the turn of the year. Then again substitutes one after the other have gradually been introduced until now. Quebec and Ontario people are not likely to shiver at the very thought of having no Pennsylvania coal to burn. There are now ways out that were not thought of a few years ago.

For instance coke, manufactured of soft coal which is abundant, is now being generally uitilized, and many prefer it to anthracite. Nor must we not forget the addition made to our fuel pile by Alberta, and which might be larger if that Province could prevail upon its miners to behave themselves long enough to mine the required quantity. The Canadian peat industry is also looking up, for while this fuel cannot fully replace coal it is an excellent auxiliary and useful both fall and spring. There is any quantity of this material in a raw state both in Quebec and Ontario, some eleven thousand square miles of peat bogs, and under improved methods of handling, following many failures, success has crowned the effort. Large centres of population, including Montreal, Quebec, Ottawa and Toronto, are all within striking distance of productive bogs, and we are told officially that for these centres a yearly production of half a million tons is epected.

There is also no inconsiderable amount of good British coal coming this way, and one must add to that factor the burning of oil in furnaces, which only a few years ago was unknown to the householder. Today oil burning plants are no longer an experiment. They are an unqualified success for houses of the better order, and every day sees new installations being made in all our larger centres of population. The doubting Thomases ask how about oil giving out. The answer is that there will be oil long after the anthracite coal mines of Pennsylvania are wiped dry of commercial coal and abandoned.

The average anthracite miner in Pennsylvania, in spite of all that Mr. Lewis of the Mine Workers of America tells the public, is a good deal of a plutocrat. The great majority have money. Many have substantial bank accounts, and it is quite safe to say that the last thing they wish just now is work. Hon. Mr. Davis, United States secretary of labor, stated recently that not only had these miners saved money, but many of them of European birth or with family connections abroad, would shortly be found on their way to Europe on a protracted holiday.—Saturday Night.

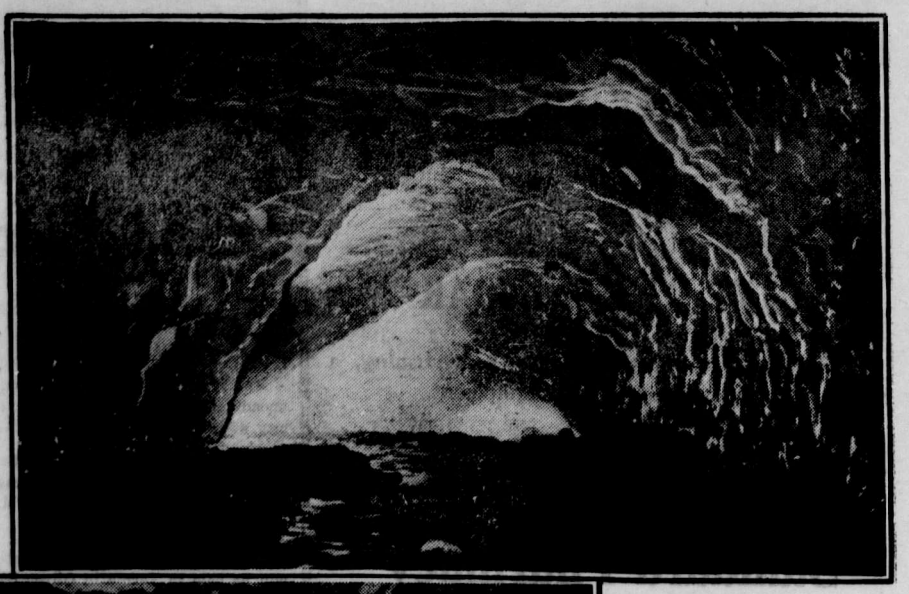
BLANCHE SWEET SCALES HEIGHTS IN ROLE OF TESS

Blanche Sweet bids fair to win for herself the title of the screen's outstanding interpreter of emotional roles. It is not so many months since her "Anna Christie" was being hailed on all sides as one of the particularly bright spots in a year notable for illustrious pictures and performances.

Miss Sweet since undertook to transfer "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" from the pages of Thomas Hardy's classic novel to the screen, under the direction of her husband, Marshall Neilan, who made the picture for Metro-Goldwyn. This production will be the next attraction at the Orpheum Theatre, playing for two days, beginning next Wednesday.

"The two roles are similar enough to form an interesting parallel, dissimilar enough to invite study," Miss Sweet says in comparing Tess and Anna. "Anna and Tess are both women of the peasant type. They are too elemental to walk without stumbling in the complicated maze of an artificial society. They suffer the same personal indignity; they are both left to fight with their bewilderment on discovering how incredibly unreasonable and cruel men can be, even when they claim to love.

"With Anna, I had to portray a character who had no so much of the woman left in her. Tess, on the other hand, is all woman to begin with—full blown and desirable—in fact, too much so for her own good.



"The greatest contrast in the two roles lies in the fact that it is the very quality that Anna lacked — womanliness—that wrecks Tess' life. There is not enough masculine hardness in her character; she has too much unadulterated womanhood in her; and it does not pay to be too simple-charactered in a complex world like ours."

The Halifax Herald says : "One of the greatest menaces of this country today—and particularly to this Province—is the insidious propaganda of men of our own breed in our own country who are linked up with the American interests referred to—who would sell out our whole forest wealth to those interests for the sake of bettering themselves personally. We hope that Mr Barnjum predicts truly when he says that for these and others who sacrifice our country's forest wealth 'the day of reckoning is near.'"

Here is the Summer Home of Mister Jack Frost Himself

THIS is the Ice Cave in Mount Sir Donald, near Glacier, B.C. The light of the sun streams in through the opening at the far end causing the frozen walls to glisten as though built of a thousand times ten thousand diamonds.' It is rumored that this is the official summer residence of Jack Frost himself, to which the Chilly Monarch retires for his annual nap from spring time to autumn.

And this is a scene from Mr. Frost's private grounds, on the roof of the world in the Canadian Pacific Rockies. It is here, so we understand, that Mr. Frost spends most of his time when not asleep in his Cave. For a pastime he enjoys most of all riding around on chunks of floating ice and his favourite food is a good, deep crackly glacier which he prefers coated with a generous frosting of newly fallen snow. When the winter comes and the nights are long and dreary he lets out a wild whoop of joy (so we are told), jumps on a passing snow cloud and sails away over the continent, pushing down mercuries and heaping up snow drifts wherever he goes.

But after all, nobody takes him very seriously these days, for it would be a tiresome old world to live in if Friend Frost didn't come along once in a while and give us something to contrast with the summer.

By order-in-council, effective from August 20th last, of which information has just been forwarded from Ottawa, title to base metals underlying Dominion lands in B.C. is vested in the Province.

The order-in-council states that the governor-in-council, on the recommendation of the minister of the interior, "is pleased to order that the undisposed base metals, except coal, petroleum and natural gas, underlying lands for which Dominion Government patents have been issued under the authority of the Railway Belt Act, up to and including the date hereof, and in which all mines and minerals have been reserved, with the exception of lands within the boundaries of existing Dominion parks and forest reserves in the railway belt, and lands which have been granted for rights-of-way for the Canadian Pacific National Railways, be and the same are, vested in His Majesty King George the Fifth, for the proposals of the Province of British Columbia.'

THE CRIME WAVE

By Walt Mason

We still confront the wave of crime, and hens are stolen every night; unholy villains spend their time in stark defiance of the night. Now in the fair and cultured east some men have formed a moral band, and they will bravely try, at least, to drive this crime stuff frome the land. They've pledged themselves to spare no pains, they'll carry on their grim crusade till Law and Order hold the reins, and all the statutes are obeyed. And I, whose henhouse has been stripped by burglars, seven times or ten, whose faith in government has slipped, would cheer these whole-souled, dauntless men. And if they knock the bandits flat, and crush all specialists in crime, I'll be the first to wave my hat, and say their record is sublime. But ah, my friends, my henhouse stands untenanted by fowls today; nine times profane and vicious hands have borne my cherished hens away. The roosters that would greet the dawn in other times, in ringing tones, are from their coop forever gone, they're vanished, feathers, spurs and bones. I've heard of many splendid schemes to make this country like a church, but in the end they all were dreams, and hens were lifted from their perch. I see good people organize to knock from crime its lasting props, but soon, full soon, the ardor dies, men say, "Let's leave it to the cops." I wish these law defenders well, I hope their plans won't be a wrath; but in my coop no roosters yell, and I confess I've little faith.

An illustration of how genius does not always receive the reward that ought to be its due is found in the fact that Mr. Louis Wain, who has delighted hundreds of thousands of children and others with his inimitable cat studies since the year 1883, is now the inmate of a pauper ward in a mental asylum. Owing to lack of business acumen Mr. Wain did not retain an interest in his drawings. He suffered a mental breakdown and had to be removed to an asylum and to the pauper ward. An appeal supported by such noteworthies as Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. John Galsworthy and Sir Bernard Partridge is now being made to animal lovers and admirers of the work of Mr. Louis Wain to enable him to be removed from the pauper ward.

"I'm being played for a sucker," said the vacuum cleaner as it ran over the rug.

MYSTERY DISEASES

Few people know anything about Sir David Bruce, K.C.B., F.R.S., the retiring President of the British Association, and yet millions owe their life to his extraordinary genius for tracking down the sinister cause of the so-called mystery diseases, and to his courage in carrying on his wonderful work in the wild and savage places of the earth.

A big, quiet Scotsman, with a strong glance and iron jaw, Sir David Bruce more resembles a soldier than a scientist. And as a matter of fact he is a soldier. He entered the R.A.M.C. as a young bacteriologist of twenty-eight —He graduated from Edinburgh University—and retired with the rank of Major-General after the war, after handling the trench fever peril and organizing the anti-tetanus measures which saved tens of thousands of lives.

But his work has not lain along routine army lines. At Malta, on his arrival as a young surgeon, he found the troops ravaged by the mysterious Malta fever. Bacteria was a new word then, and young Bruce, intently examining a smear of the blood of an infected soldier under his microscope, was laughed at by the army medical staff at Malta.

He stuck to his line of investigation and found the germ—and might have found the carrying medium, too. but for his transfer to Egypt in the middle of his work. Twenty years later he went back, took up the threads of his old work, and in a few months traced the germ carrier to the island's goats. Quite unconsciously the army had been feeding the troops, even in hospital, on goats' milk infected with the fever germ! In two years Bruce wiped Malta fever off the island.

In the long interim the scientist was working with his microscope and slides in the wild of the Lebombo Mountains, in north Zululand, and in Uganda, and Nyassaland, and other out-of-the-way places where the British law runs and the British flag flies, solving the strange mystery or sleeping sickness, and the infinite fatal possibilities of the deadly little tsetse fly.

The solving of the sleeping sickness riddle is a romance. Bruce was the first man to investigate the tsetse fly. He made its acquaintance whilst seeking the cause of a baffling cattle disease in Zululand. Then, investigating sleeping sickness in Uganda, he found its germ but could not discover how the germ was carried to man.

Could it be the tsetse fly again? He was assured that the region contained no tsetse fly. But one day, as they were walking along a river bank his wife saw two flies settle on his broad back, and instantly captured them. They were tsetse flies, and they were found to be the carrier of the germ. They lived, the scientist discovered, in the game coverts, by rivers and in valleys, always in the shade, shunning the sun.

At seventy now Sir David Bruce looks a well-preserved sixty. His wife —he married the year he entered the Service—works with him daily in their laboratory at the Lister Institute, of which he is President. Since the war Sir David Bruce spends six months of the year at his quinta in Madeira, where he bathes, boats and walks—and reads in preparation for the spring and summer of tireless research work in England.

Lady Bruce, who is her husband's active colleague, and whose keen eyes do not need glasses yet, even for microscope work, bobbed her hair long in advance of the fashion—back in 1884, when she first began to share her husband's work in the wilds, hunting the solution to the riddle of the mystery diseases.

COMMUNISTS IN BRITAIN

Up to recent weeks Britain has taken little or no action in respect to the Communist agitation and propaganda being carried on in her midst. Scotland Yard has known all about it for a long time past and it has kept the treason and sedition that is being preached under observation. Britain, as in all such cases, is unwilling to indulge in repressive measures. There has been an inclination not to make martyrs so as to provide cheap advertisement for a cause. In the matter of the Communists, however, there are few of them who are aspirants for martyrdom. The practioners of Moscow methods do not bear this ingredient in their fortitude.

Britain is now taking active steps to put an end to the propagada of the cult because public opinion is becoming aroused. It is well that the law should intervene before the citizenship of the country takes law and order in the matter of the Communists into its own hands. There are evidences accumulating that the country has grown tired of providing hospitality for Revolutionary Communists. The constant reiteration that everything should be overthrown by force, that Christianity should cease, that the Constitution should be wrecked, that naval and military discipline should become by-words and that authority should be vested in the hands of Soviet emissaries, at first amused, but now it nauseates the people of Britain. They are slow to move in matters of this character, but there is always a point which is reached when the illegality of force or violence in contradistinction to constitutional agitation must be emphasized. That point has now been reached in Britain. The crescendo of Communist propaganda has grown in insolence so that the time has arrived when it must be checked.

Another spiritist related an experience which was more convincing. The spirit of a Scottish doctor would not listen to an appeal addressed to it in English. It insisted upon the use of the "braid Scottish tongue." We are not quite sure whether it is more amusing than perplexing to learn that we carry our ancient prejudices with us when we enter the mysterious realm of the spirits.

ABOLISHING DEATH PENALTY

In the face of the greatest crime wave ever experienced by a civilized country, the U. S. League for the Abolition of Capital Punishment goes serenely on its way with its campaign. The plan is to introduce bills in the various legislatures, carrying the campaign into every state where either a gallows or an electric chair is now utilized. It is interesting to note that there are eight States where capital punishment has been abolished, while in four other States it had been abolished, but has since been re-established.

It strikes one that these anti-capital punishment people are beginning at the wrong end. What they should do is to insist that these gunmen mend their ways.

The evident difficulty in the United States is that the gunman kills and gets away with it, while in some other countries, notably England and Canada, the law gets away with the gunman. Quick trials and convictions, where guilty, without endless technicalities, is unquestionably the secret which makes for law and order in the British Isles and in Canada. Such glaring instances of a miscarriage of justice as the recent Scott case in Chicago would not be possible in either country mentioned.

In the United States there is too much sobbing over the predicament in which the murderer finds himself and too little over the family of the victim. Money and flowers and such things poured in on R. T. Scott, but we did not hear that anybody paid any attention to the family of the drug clerk whom he murdered in order that he might rob him.—Saturday Night.

Ontario seems to suffer just as this Province does from pilfering motorists. Of these The Toronto Star says: "A farmer near Chatham had a serious quarrel with some motorists who were raiding his berry patch, and before the row ended the farmer was wounded by a knife used by one of the raiders. There are motorists who seem to make a practice of raiding the country—filling the bodies of their cars with apples, corn, peas, beets, anything they can quickly seize and make off with. Not only do they steal that which has value but they do reckless damage to trees and gardens. They break limbs of cherry trees or peach trees for the bloom, and sometimes it looks as if the doing of damage was the object sought."

The last issue of the Gazette contains the regulations which have been promulgated for the registration of trap lines through the province. They give the necessary instructions as to how the aplications shall be made for registrations. It is provided that only one trap line may be registered by a trapper, and the trading in any registered trap line is prohibited.

The alloting of trap lines is left to the sole discretion of the game board, and its decision is not subject to appeal. The registration of trap lines will be for the period terminating on April 30th, following the date of registration and application for renewal of any registered trap line may be made by the owner of the same up to the first day of August following the expiry date of April 30th. If application for renewal of registration of a trap line is not made within the time fixed by the regulations the last registered owner shall forfeit all right to such trap line, and application for the registra of the same may be made by any other qualified person who is possessed of a licence to trap.

SAYS CHEQUES WERE STOLEN

F. M. Allen, cashier of the American Express Co. at Couer d'Alene, who spent a couple of days in Fernie this week, was arrested in Calgary on Thursday afternoon on a warrant issued here, charging him with passing stolen American Express Co. travellers cheques to the value of over $200 in Fernie.

Allen is well known here, having been at one time agent of the Eastern B. C. Railway at Corbin, and later a resident of Fernie before moving across the line. He spent a couple of days in town this week and on Wednesday he made several purchases in a number of the local stores and cashed American Express Co. travellers cheques in paying for these. They seemed to be quite in order and it was not through them the police got on to the fraud, but by Allen getting "generous" and giving away a money order to a local man, who on Wednesday forenoon took the order to the American Express Co. office to be cashed. Mr. Douglas became suspicious about the valadity of the order and wired his head office, who immediately answered stating that this order was one of a large number stolen from their Couer d'Alene office. Mr. Douglas then placed the matter in the hands of Chief Anderson, who made investigations and discovered four fifty dollar travellers cheques had been cashed, and that Allen had left on the eastbound train Wednesday night with the stated intention of travelling to New York. The Chief immediately wired all police officers in cities east of Fernie, giving a description of Allen and requesting them to place him under arrest if found.

Just shortly after 5 o'clock last evening, Chief Ritchie of Calgary notified the city police here that he had arrested Allen, and Constable Cameron left last evening for Calgary to bring the prisoner back to Fernie.

Chief Anderson states that the Calgary police must have made an exceptionally smart capture as it was only a little over an hour from the time he wired until he ceceived advice that Allen was under arrest.

Two special agents of the American Express Co. arrived in Fernie on Thursday evening looking for Allen and are now in the city awaiting his being brought back here.

PUT UP A GREAT FIGHT

The Fraser Cafe Baseball Club, of New Westminster, champions of British Columbia, retain possession of the Gale trophy, emblematic of the amateur championship of Western Canada for 1925, by defeating the Fernie Coal Co. club of this city, three games to one in the deciding series played at the coast this week. Although defeated, the Fernie club put up a great fight and have won a host of friends at the coast on the class of baseball talent they displayed, sport writers on the Vancour dailies agreeing that the Fraser Cafe-Fernie series was the best witnessed in Vancouver this season. Following will be found a report of the four games:

First Game

Billy Maxwell's slashing double to left centre field broke up the game 3-2 with Fernie Saturday afternoon and gave Fraser Cafe a one game lead in the series for the Western Canadian title.

Blair was hurling airtight ball and had sent Seymour and Larson to the showers when Duplin scratched a puzzling roller at second-baseman Morgan. The latter picked the ball cleanly from the dirt, then threw high to first and Duplin pulled up at second. Maxwell let one go by, then slammed the next one to the outfield. Duplin scored and the game was won.

Cafe scored in the second frame and again in the sixth. They plugged along with Olson standing the visiting batsmen on their heads until the seventh.

Blair, first up, singled and Rushcal duplicated. McTeer sacrificed, Morgan fanned, and Hovan drove one through Olson's feet that rolled to centre and both Blair and Rushcal scored when Buchanan foozled Mounger's throw to the plate.

This fellow Blair and his battery mate, Steinert, are not baseball "babes in the woods." They're finished performers, in fact, the entire Fernie squad looks good enough except in one or two spots, notably at first base and in their hitting.

Blair is a southpaw with plenty of stuff, a cool head and a fast brain. He doesn't waste time and has impeccable control. He was hit quite often but the boys from the coal town have hardly had time to get feeling right as they were playing Saturday half an hour after their train pulled in.

The series will go best three in five games, it is understood, and the second match of the series takes place Monday afternoon at 4.30

Second Game

The B.C. champions had a close call to earn the 4-3 verdict, being forced to go into an extra round to gain the decision after the visitors had staged a thrilling ninth inning rally to score two runs. Only a spectacular running catch in centre field by Aubrey Mounger, which resulted in a double play, prevented the smooth working Fernie crew from taking the game.

Jacobs, a big knock-kneed individual, who played first base on Saturda, took the firing line for the Fernie aggregation and, though he did not seem to have a terrible lot of stuff on the ball, got away very nicely outside of about two runs. The Westminster band touched him up for 11 bingles, and were fortunate in bunching some of them. They bunched three for two runs in the sixth after Fernie had taken a one-run lead in the fifth as the result of a double by Blair and two sacrifices. Cafe made a single and double good for another run in after one was down and then stole the ninth and they earned the winner in the tenth when Mounger singled

POLITICAL POT IS SIMMERING

Things are beginning to warm up this part of the East Kootenay riding for the coming Dominion election.

Registration of voters started yesterday and will continue until next Wednesday evening for the Fernie poll. The place of registration is in the Grand theatre block and this poll includes all those in the city of Fernie also all who reside on the city side of the river from Morrissey on the west to White Spruce on the east. The names of all those who were on the provincial list after the last court of revision in May will be retained on the list. The names of those who did not vote at the last provincial election of course were struck off at the revision and they will have to register again for this Dominion election. All who have made application to be placed on the list since the last registration in May will also have to register for this election. The qualification to register is as follows:

Any male or female who is a British subject, 21 years of age, and who has ordinarily resided in Canada for 12 months, and in the electoral district two months before the issue of the writs, is qualified to have his or her name placed on the lists.

The Conservative party have opened up committee rooms in the premises lately occupied by the Dragon barber shop and pool room. The Hon. H. H. Stevens, of Vancouver, formerly minister of Trade and Commerce, and Dr. Rutledge, of Cranbrook, the Conservative candidate, are expected to address a public meeting in the Grand Theatre on Monday evening next, Sept. 28, at 8.30 p.m. Hon. Dr. Tolmie, provincial organizer for the Conservative party, spent yesterday afternoon and evening in the city in conference with the local association.

The Liberals of Fernie have secured and opened up committee rooms in the store formerly occupied by the Lowden Meat Market. Hon. Dr. King, the Liberal candidate, and other speakers will address the electors in the Grand Theatre on Friday, Oct. 2, at 8 p.m.

Calgary, Sept. 24.—George Lane, owner of the famous Bar-U ranch and Alberta pioneer, died suddenly this morning at the ranch. He was a great friend of the Prince of Wales, and in the latter's behalf purchased the royal ranch which adjoins the Bar-U. He was probably the most colorful character in Alberta's ranching history, coming to this country in 1883. He was a partner in the Gordon, Ironsides and Fares Co. for years, and besides operating one of the largest ranches in the west, he farmed on a tremendous scale.

GEOLOGICAL WORK IN B.C.

The Summary Report of the Geological Survey of Canada for 1924, Part A, has been published. It presents in concise form the results of work carried on by field parties of the Survey in Yukon and British Columbia during the summer of 1924. The economic phases of the work are stressed.

W. E. Cockfield describes the geology and mineral deposits of the Upper Beaver area, Yukon, where the discovery of veins of argentiferous galena attracted a great deal of attention. Mineral deposits of Babine mountains are described by G. Hanson who also describes the geology along the Canadian National railway from Prince Rupert to Burns lake. Reports are given by J. R. Marshall on the geology of the Whitsail-Tahtsa Lakes area, by V. Dolmage on the Chilko Lake area and by C. E. Cairnes on the Pemberton area tributary to the Pacific Great Eastern railway. A nickelferous mineral deposit on Emory creek is described by C. E. Cairnes, tungsten deposits near New Hazelton by M. E. Hurst, magnetite deposits of Texada island by C. O. Swanson and the results of deep borings by E. D. Ingall.

A copy of the report can be had by applying to the Geological Survey, Ottawa, or 510 Pacific Building, Vancouver.

DISCOVER HUGE JEWEL CACHE IN LENINGRAD

In a house formerly occupied by the tailor to the Czar, whose name is Lidval, and who now carries on a banking business in Paris, an immense quantity of gold and silver articles, set with precious stones and diamonds, has been discovered. One jewel box was found to contain 47 gold articles of elaborate workmanship and a number of the finest blue diamonds weighing 338 carats. The find also included a great number of gold enamelled cigarette cases, snuff boxes, rings and tiepins.

"THREE WOMEN"

When Ernst Lubitsch directs a picture, it is usually good, and "Three Women," which appears at the Orpheum Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 30 and Nov. 1, is no exception.

It has much more than good direction to its credit, too. The plot is extremely interesting and the cast is excellent. Mr. Lubitsch has lived up to his belief that a picture should not have one star, and has, therefore, given the honors to three well known actresses, May McAvoy, Marie Prevost and Pauline Frederick. The supporting cast, which includes Lew Cody, Mary Carr, Pierre Gendron and Willard Louis, shows a careful selection of talent.

The picture is remarkably well done, to the smallest detail. The photography cannot be excelled. As for the plot, it is sufficiently different and just realistic enough to make it a production of unusual recommendation. See "Three Women," if you are looking for good entertainment.

TURKEYS PLENTIFUL IN PEACE RIVER

Encouraged by the outlet in Eastern Canada for the turkey crop, Alberta turkey raisers are rapidly increasing their output. According to the observations of Mr. J. R. Higgins of the Poultry Division of the Live Stock Branch, who has recently visited the district as far north as Peace River, the present season has been a very favorable one for turkey raising and that shipments east will be heavier than in the past.

The turkey crop for the Valhalla district alone is estimated at between three and four thousand birds and it is thought that there should be a total output in excess of one hundred thousand pounds of dressed turkeys shipped from Grande Prairie tributary points this fall. In the past the breeders from this section have shipped their birds live but this method proved unsatisfactory and steps are under way to organize community turkey kills this year.

Mr. Higgins further states that a number of turkey raisers in the Peace River district are showing increasing interest in the improvement of their stock and that many farmers made enquiries concerning the purchase of good gobblers.

THE SNOW MOTOR

During the coming winter Canada will see the debut of a new transportation device known as the Snowmotor. This consists of two hollow cigar shaped cylinders or drums to which flanges, resembling corkscrews, are attached. These drums are fixed to an automobile or tractor in the place of the wheels and by rotating actually float the machine over the snow. The snowmotor is regarded as especially valuable in the transportation of lumber; it can negotiate snow of any depth and can operate in countries where other methods of transportation are impossible or too costly and can also make roads whilh other vehicles can use. It is manufactured in Detroit and will be on the market during the coming winter.

If only the coming election orators would conclude when they say "and in conclusion."

Third Game

Vancouver, Sept. 22.—With Blair again in the box Fernie this afternoon administered a 6-3 defeat to Fraser Cafe nine in the third game of the series involving possession of the Gale cup and the Western Canada baseball championship. The game lacked the snap of the two previous encounters.

Mounger, also a southpaw, worked for the coast team and pitched good ball but his support was wobbly at critical times. Fraser at third contributed one error, Dollock at short two, while Maxwell in centre field misjudged a couple of fly balls almost deserving of errors, his fielding being so poor.

With ideal weather, another large crowd was on hand to witness Tuesday's game, which was called at the end of the eighth on account of darkness.

Fernie bagged nine hits off Mounger as against six off the veteran Blair. The latter had eight strikeouts to his credit, while Mounger allowed eight of the visitors to whiff the aid. Ruschal of Fernie and Seymour of the coasters, banged out homers, the Fernie man's clout being to deep centre for one of the longest drives of the season.

Shand and Steinert singled in the opening inning but their efforts came to naught for Jacobs and Blair were easy outs. In the second, however, Rushcal opened with a four play swat, McTeer walked and went to second on Bishop's drive to right. Morgan got on on an error, McTeer scoring. Hovan and Shand were out in order but Bishop and Morgan came in on Steinert's hit. Blair made the third out when he took Jacob's turn at bat.

Mounger had no trouble with Fernie in the fourth but in the net, the easterners added another run after two were down through errors by the Fraser Cafe shortstop. Fernie failed to get a runner beyond second in the fifth, sixth and seventh, but in the eighth Morgan opened with a single to left, Hovan popped to Mounger, Shand doubled to right. Morgan scored when Fraser let Jacobs' liner get away to left field.

Fraser Cafe scored in the opening inning. With Pollock out by the strike out route, Fraser singled through the box. The next man fanned but Fraser scored on an infield error off Seymour's bat. Only six men faced Blair in the next two innings. In the fourth after one was down, Crawford scratched a hit and Seymour followed by picking out the first ball for a homer. The fifth looked dangerous for Fernie with singles by Maxwell and Mounger. Blair tightened up however and from then until the end of the game the Frasers failed to get the resemblance of a hit.

Fourth Game

With Erik Olson on the mound Wednesday evening, and the Fraser club playing errorless ball behind him, the New Westminster club defeated Fernie by a score of seven runs to one and brought the series to a close.

The Fernie team had a bad relapse from the class of ball they had been playing in the previous games, no less than six errors being chalked up to their account, all of which came at critical moments and tells the tale of the six run margin the coast aggregation secured.

Jacobs started for Fernie and pitched good ball until he went shaky after two men were out in the third, when he walked Fraser and trying to catch him off first, heaved wild to Barger, allowing Fraser to go to third. Errors and hits followed, and Fraser Cafe had three of the best over the plate before they were retired. Blair went on the mound in the fourth and held well until the sixth, when the balloon went up again and three more runs were scored.

Fernie's lone tally was scored in the first inning, by pretty infield hitting. Hovan led off with a perfect bunt, Shand followed suit, advancing Hovan to second; Steinert and Blair sacificed to send Hovan across the plate. Although Fernie got men on bases several times during the game, Olson was invincible in pinches and sent a regular procession of Fernie swatsmen back to the bench via the strike out method. The game was called at the close of the eighth inning on account of darkness.

Score by innings:

Fraser Cafe ....103 003 00—7 9 0
Fernie ....100 000 00—1 8 6

Olson and Buchanan.
Jacobs, Blair and Steinert.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE GAMES

"The best series of the summer," "Silent Joe Baker confided to Jack Morgan. "Think so ?" asked Morgan, "Absolutely," pronounced Tom Davis.

With that for a start we may proceed to say that no sweeter fielding ballplayers than Fernie have been seen here since Vancouver was a way-station to New Westminster.

Several old timers started talking about the grace of Lou Nordyke as a first sacker after they glimpsed Mr. Barger on that difficult corner. Barger takes 'em out of the dirt, under his feet, behind the other chap's back and sometimes gets 'em so quickly that even Bert Murray can't follow the flight!

Jacobs gave a nice exhibition of chucking. Tall, loose-armed, slightly knocked inward at the knees, he sways the ball over with an easy sidearm delivery that gets the maximum in result with a minimum of effort. Mr. Jacobs illuminates the hillock but his light on first base gets dim occasionally, judging by Saturday's game.

In the aggregate Fernie has everything but sock. They field like big leaguers, back up each other's play and throw with the accuracy of professionals. But—they can't seem to stop swinging their shoulders loose at Olson's slow curves.

Mr. Shand of Fernie is becoming famous. In two games he has been on the thank you end of Olson's shoots three times. Judging by the frenzied calls of the flapper fans, even to be hit by the Mighty "Ole" is a distinction for no other batter has been so honored all season!

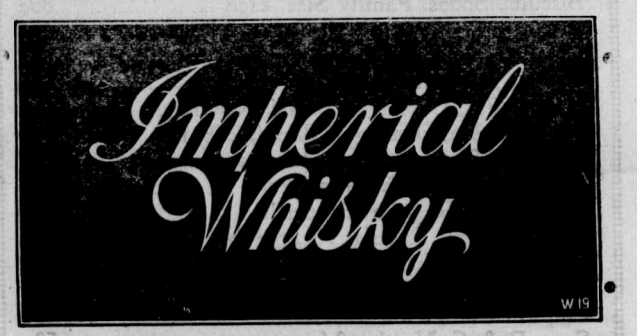
Vancouver fans are enjoying the rare sensation of neutrality. Neither team is a home one and Fernie is taking its share of the plaudits regularly.

When the coal miners—if any—tied it up in the ninth the stands rocked with joy only to do it all over again when Seymour's two base clout won in the tenth.

And then Mr. Olson walked to the mound, looked a pinch-hitter over, dusted him with three of the best, gave McTeer a similar dose, adding a slow grin to cheer him on his way to the dugout and then—then — Ye Gawds, girls, what a man!—he whiffed the next batter!

There was an active crowd in the overflow bleachers last night. As a crowd it was well enough behaved, except it couldn't sit still. Somewhere across Kingsway we've seen that crowd before but it disappeared into a dugout just before Fernie started to hit Edward Rex and was no more.

Seymour's homer brought the crowd up and the stout boy ambled around the paths accompanied by an ear to ear grin. This boy, like Olson, finds it impossible to keep the spotlight off his shapely self. Ruschal's homer was not so clean cut as the ball was relayed in slowly. But it was a long drive to deep centre with plenty of smoke on it.



It is reported that Mr. Morgan, desirous of leaving for California in the morning has instructed the hands to make it three straight! Fernie papers please copy.

What home is without a mother, even so is the Fraser Cafe team without Eddie Olson on the mound.

Fernie showed the first flash of amateurism as ball players when they permitted umpire and scorers to call Jacobs out because Blair wrongly preceded him to bat. In the good old days the opposition was wont to wait properly and woe betide the scorer that interfered.

That earnest worker in baseball's vineyard, Mr. Blair of Fernie, takes his baseball seriously, judging by his intense expression when he tosses 'em over or when he is at bat.

Nothing better in inside baseball has been witnessed at the park for a couple of aeons than Fernie's display in the fifth when they bunted a runner all the way round the paths. Mr. Olson gave a nifty exhibition of certain steps in the Charleston trying vainly to field the pesky rollers.

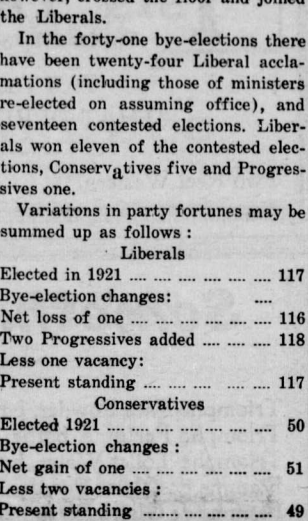
STANDING OF THE PARTIES

Since the last Dominion general elections on December 6th, 1921, there has been remarkably little change in party standings in the House of Commons. When the ballots were counted nearly four years ago, Liberals returned numbered 117, Conservatives 50, Progressives 64, Labor and Independents 4. Should the Government decide to test the issue again this fall, as seems likely, it would go with exactly the same number of members as were returned in 1921; Conservatives would have one less, and Progressives three less. In the latter numbers, however, no allowance is made for existing vacancies. These are four in number. Two, one in New Brunswick and the other in Ontario, are seats last represented by Conservatives; one in Quebec, is Liberal, and the fourth in Ontario, is progressive.



Forty-one bye-elections have been held since the general elections of 1921 and in only three has there been a reversal of party fortunes. In two of these, one in New Brunswick and one in Nova Scotia, Conservatives won from Liberals. In one bye-election, that of West Hastings, Ontario, Liberals won from Conservatives, leaving a net Conservative gain of one seat. Progressives have had only one seat at stake, that of Moose Jaw, and a Progressive was again returned. Two Progressives, Messrs. Hammel of Muskoka and Birette of Prescott, have however, crossed the floor and joined the Liberals.

In the forty-one bye-elections there have been twenty-four Liberal acclamations (including those of ministers re-elected on assuming office), and seventeen contested elections. Liberals won eleven of the contested elections, Conservatives five and Progressives one.

Variations in party fortunes may be summed up as follows:

Liberals
Elected in 1921	117
Bye-election changes:
Net loss of one	116
Two Progressives added	118
Less one vacancy:
Present standing	117
Conservatives
Elected 1921	50
Bye-election changes:
Net gain of one	51
Less two vacancies:
Present standing	49
Progressives.
Elected 1921	64
Less, Two Progressives joined Liberals	62
Less one vacancy:
Present standing	61

The present House of Commons consists of 235 members, but in the next the representation will be increased by 10. Nova Scotia will have two members less; the Prairie Provinces will have eleven more; British Columbia will have one more. In the other provinces, as well as in the Yukon, the representation is unchanged in number.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

Make this beauty lotion cheaply for your face, neck, arms and hands.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

George H. Ham, known throughout Canada as the Grand Old Man of the Canadian Pacific, celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday on Sunday, August 23rd, and was the recipient of a deluge of congratulatory messages from all parts of the country. Col. Ham has been with the Canadian Pacific since 1891 and by his social activities and powers as an orator has made for himself and for the company a veritable army of staunch and faithful friends.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation, and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers up to ten head.

MISS MARY LIPHARDT WEDS J. W. McKAY

On Wednesday, at 8.30 a.m., a September wedding of interest to many Fernie people took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Liphardt, when their daughter, Mary Wenonah, was united in marriage to J. W. Mackay, of the government civil service at Ottawa, and only son of Mrs. Mrs. Mackay and the late Mr. Mackay of that city. Rev. W. F. Burns, of the United Church, officiated.

Quantities of pink roses and lights softly shaded in rose were prettily arranged throughout the rooms. Promptly at the appointed hour the bride, with her father, who gave her in marriage, entered the drawingroom to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Mr. Watson.

The bride's gown of white ivory crepe, with silver trimmings and hand made satin flowers, was very effective, with its train of the same material faced with pale pink crepe and wreath of orange blossoms at right hand corner. Her veil was of filmy tulle fastened to a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of ophelia roses.

Little Gladys Owen, in a pretty frock of pink crepe, made a dainty flower maiden. Mildred Kastner and Jean Liphardt wore frocks of white voile. They held in place long streamers of white satin ribbon, which formed the aisle up which the bridal party passed to the large bow window, banked with flowers and under a canopy of same, where the ceremony took place.

Mrs. R. Maconachie, of Lindsay, Ont., and cousin of the bride, attired in a gown of orchid chiffon with hat to match, made a charming matron.

Miss Jean Corsan, gowned in rose crepe with hat to match, acted as bridesmaid and carried pink and white roses. Mr. Alfred Griner, of Toronto, supported the groom.

While the bridal party was signing the register, Mrs. A. Watson sang "Because."

Mr. and Mrs. Mackay left on the westbound train for Spokane and coast cities before returning to their home in Ottawa.

FIND GRAVES OF MASSACRED CHRISTIANS

Dr. Earl R. Bull, Methodist Episcopal missionary in charge of work in Loo Chow Islands, Japan, has discovered the burial ground of 11,000 Christians, believed to have been killed in an uprising during the revolution of 1637.

An inscription found near the grounds by Dr. Bull states that in all 33,000 Christians were slain, beheaded and buried.

The heads of the victims were buried in one spot and the bodies carried to another place, so there would be no chance of them uniting again, the inscription said.

The massacre practically wiped out all the Catholic converts in the country.

Drumheller, Sept. 24.—Lewis McDonald, alias "Kid" Burns, is out on bail of $1000, personal bail, and two sureties of $500 each, and not $5000 as reported. This is in connection with the assault on Wm. Sherman, former district president of the U.M.W.A.

IN CANS

By Walt Mason

"Long ago," said Vampire Varden, smiling sadly through his tears, "we grew fodder in the garden, succotash and roasting ears. Oh, our spuds and beans were winners, we grew turnips by the peck, and our mothers cooked our dinners in the pleasant vale of Heck. All the good yarbs then invented were to growing children fed; there were onions nobly scented, there were carrots white and red; there were squashes in their splendor, there was eggplant crop and brown, and they all were fresh and tender, cooked before they wilted down. But the world wags on forever, and we change our ways and plans; now the housewife, blithe and clever, feeds her people out of cans. All the garden plot is seeded down to grass and other things which no human ever needed since the world was made, by jings. Nevermore the housewife scampers to the garden for a meal, bringing cabbages in hampers, bringing luscious fruit to peel; no, the garden is deserted where the onions used to grow, where the stately rhubarb flirted with tomatoes in a row. In the modern home I've rubbered like a brownie or an elf; there are cans in every cupboard, there are cans on every shelf, cans are piled up to the ceiling, cans are heaped upon the floor and the modern wife is peeling wholesome garden sass no more. And she wonders while she's pouring dinner from a dozen cans, why the cost of living's soaring, knocking out her saving plans."

THE ANTHRACITE STRIKE

The strike of anthracite coal miners in the United States appears to have raised hardly a ripple of public interest. It is one of the quietest strikes on record. There has been no disorder and no enthusiasm. The men are not receiving strike pay, and, therefore, they have to look for other work. In one of the small towns in the anthracite area a few days ago an advertisement appeared askin gfor a painter. Fifteen miners applied for the work, and all said they were not painters, but were willing to accept laborer's wages to keep occupied. In the search for work there has been an exodus of men from the anthracite region. As a result of the strike the railroads are less busy and are discharging several of their hands and merchants are cancelling orders. The strike is adversely affecting prosperity in the United States.—Colonist.

For the corresponding period of last year the total was $2,289,450 for 1,733 buildings, an increase in value for this year of $745,390.

Heavy shipments of this season's crop of potatoes in Fredericton, N.B., are now being made to the Cuban market from the potato belt on the Upper St. John River, according to the provincial superintendent of the crops and soil division of the Department of Agriculture. There have been large consignments from Carleton and Victoria counties.

OLIVER AND RAILWAY RATES

The following letter from the pen of Hon. John Oliver, is taken from the Victoria Colonist :

Sir,—I have read your editorial in this morning's issue entitled "Freight Rates." If I read it correctly, you mean that the Board of Railway Commissioners is a judicial body and that its decision should be judicial and not political. If that is your meaning, I am in full accord with you.

The Board of Railway Commissioners, in exercising its judicial functions applies the provisions of The Railway Act to the ascertained facts which are placed before it and in this respect, is in a position similar to that of judges of County or Supreme Courts.

Parliament, which created the Board of Railway Commissioners, and which enacted the railway laws which the Board administers, provided a Court of Appeal from the decisions of the Board. The general trend in your editorial would indicate that Parliament should not in any way interfere with railway transportation rates. You would have these rates dealt with by the Board of Railway Commissioners untrammelled by any statutory enactments. If that is your meaning, I beg leave to differ with you.

One of the chief functions of Parliament is to enact laws for the good government of the people, and to protect those who, without the protection of law, would be liable to suffer wrong from others more powerful than they. Experience has shown that with constantly varying conditions, it is wise and necessary for Parliament to enact new and amend old legislation so as to meet conditions as they arise. When a serious grievance exists for which no remedy is provided, it is the duty of Parliament to try and provide a remedy.

In the matter of railway transportation rates, a very serious grievance has existed for many years past and application has been made to the Board of Railway Commissioners in an endeavor to have the grievance complained of removed. These applications have not been fully successful and conditions have arisen from time to time which have satisfied the representatives of the people in Parliament assembled that changes in the legislative enactments governing railway rates, were necessary. Parliament interferred in the interests of the railway companies in 1919; Parliament again interferred in the interests of the railway companies in 1922; and again in 1925 in the interests of the people of Canada. Will you venture the assertion that none of these interferences by Parliament were justified by the conditions which existed? Will you venture the assertion that, failing the removal of grievances complained of by British Columbia by the Board of Railway Commissioners, Parliament would not again be justified in interfering by legislation ?

I am one of those who believe in the paramount authority of the Parliament of Canada in all matters coming within their jurisdiction as set out in the British North Americe Act and when you, n your editorial capacity, deprecate the interference of Parliament with the removal of what a great majority of the people in Western Canada believe to be a very serious grievance, certainly must disagree with the position you have taken.

JOHN OLIVER.

WHEN THE MAHARAJHAS VISIT LONDON

The London Daily Herald (Labor) is attacking the extravagance of the Indian Princes, four in number, who are now visiting England. The proverbial drunken sailor has nothing on an Indian Prince when he is on a spending bee. Of course it is all grist to the London tradesmen's mill, while the London hotel men look upon him as their own fatted calf.

Incidentally these Maharajahs always pay more for what they buy—when they pay—than ordinary folks, but this is balanced up to some extent by the fact that there have been occasions when some of these Great Moguls have proceeded to India without seeing the necessity of settling their bills before leaving, in which case these gentlemen may delay payment indefinitely.

The Daily Herald's complaint is that these Maharajahs, one of which has an income of upward of three million dollars per year, waste their money, while the Indian peasants are short of the necessities of life.

The Maharajah of Patiala, the Herald says, occupies with his suite one hundred rooms at the Savoy Hotel, while twenty limousines are retained for the use of the Prince and his retainers, fifty in number. Included in his suite are two Indian chefs, and the Prince does his bathing in a silver tub brought along for the purpose.

Altogether the life of an Indian Maharajah seems one continued round of pleasure—of a sort—but it is doubtful if their subjects take the same view of it.

BACON AND EGGS.

Diet is largely a matter of climate. Some of the strongest dock laborers in the world, Chinese of a larger mold than we know them here, do their heavy work and subsist well on a menu of rice. Men working on the railway construction gangs on this continent have been known to strike because of a lack of pork and beans. The Australian bushman seems to get along well with flapjack and tea as a staple. In Canada and the United States, the foreigner, especially from the northern countries of Europe, is astonished at such a dish as "a stack of hot-cakes and syrup," served at breakfast. And so it goes.

But John Bull must have his bacon and eggs! Whoever discovered this combination would be cheerfully canonized by the great British public, were he known. And it isn't the worker with his hands alone who starts the day with such a comfortable lining. It would appear that all ranks, even to parliamentarians, face the dish every morning as a natural and national rite.

That delightful prophet, G. K. Chesterton, was perhaps wiser than he knew when he wrote in his latest book :

Why should we British descend to boast of the British Empire when we have bacon and eggs to boast of? They ought to be quartered on the royal arms: three pigs passant and three poached eggs on a chevron. Because bacon and eggs, it is shown, are an essential at night sessions of the British house of commons. During two recent nocturnal sittings, which lasted respectively till 4 a.m. and 3 a.m., members consumed two cases of eggs and more than two sides of bacon each night. This shows that about 1500 eggs and 250 pounds of bacon were eaten during these night hours, meaning that for each member there was something like five eggs and a pound of bacon! "But a number of men simply can't perish such a large amount," some will say; "the law of average forbids it." Yet perhaps they had two feeds apiece between 10 p.m. and 3 a.m.!

Chesterton is right.

THE OLDEST LIVING THING

J. E. Wilson, Toronto builder, is exhibiting a bee, nestling in a solid block of blue stone which he received recently from a quarry near Owen Sound. When the block of stone was split, says Mr. Wilson, it was found to contain a cavity in which was a rosebud, with a bee partly buried in its dried petals. After being dislodged the bee was able to crawl.

Accepting the story as fact, the bee in question is undoubtedly the oldest living creature, anything from 25,000 to millions of years old.

Here and There

Canadian bond sales during the week ending August 10th amounted to $398,579, which brings the total for the year up to $247,059,160. Of this sum $103,335,827 represents the value of bonds sold in Canada; $27,978,333 in the United Kingdom, and $15,745,000 in the United States.

The port of Montreal is well on its way this season to beat all previous records for tonnage received as statistics, obtained from the Harbor Commissioners' office, show that there is a big increase in the number of ships berthed in the port to date, as compared with the number for the same date last year. Up to August 8, 608 boats had docked here and their total tonnage was 1,986,456, while up to August 13, 1924, only 537 vessels had tied up here since the opening of navigation of the 1924 season, and their tonnage was 1,891,367.

One notable feature of the tourist season in the Canadian Rockies this summer has been the demand for saddle horses, according to J. M. Gibbon, secretary of the Trail Riders, who recently returned to Montreal from the west. The practice is growing of sending the horses in advance to points where the trail crosses a motor road and thus one commences one's ride at a point thirty or forty miles from one's headquarters. Thus the great cavalcade of over one hundred riders who participated in the recent three-day cross country ride between Marble Canyon on the Banff-Windermere Highway, to Wapta Bungalow Camp on the Canadian Pacific Railway, was made possible and convenient as it took only two hours to convey the riders from Banff and Lake Louise by motor bus to the points of departure.

Twelve British newspapermen representing some of the most important dailies in Great Britain, are now making a six weeks' tour of the country over Canadian Pacific lines. The party will travel from Halifax to the Pacific Coast taking in all the important industrial and scenic points of the country. They will spend a day at the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto, and will visit the famous Bungalow Camps in Ontario, as well as the beauty spots in the Rockies. They arrived at Quebec on August the 22nd, on the Montclare, the object of the tour being to correct in the minds of representative British journalists the erroneous impressions recently made in England regarding Canada by certain sections of the press.

Under the heading, "The Inconsistencies of Men," C. B. Fletcher contributes the following interesting remarks on freight rates to the August "Railway Review":

"Man's progress is measured by his adaptability to his surroundings and his opportunity to trade with his fellow men by exchanging products. Transportation is the essential instrumentality for trade, commerce or business of any kind.

"The phenomenal prosperity of the United States today is the direct result of the most efficient transportation facilities in the world — railroads.

"Railroad transportation is worth ten times what it costs today to every person in this nation. The railroads haul your meat 500 miles for 36 cents a hundred pounds, you pay from 20 cents for cheap cuts to 60 cents for special cuts of meat or from 60 to 180 times the cost of transportation.

"The railroads haul flour 400 miles for 13⅓ cents a hundred, 7 pounds for one cent. You pay 10 cents a pound for bread or 70 times the cost of transportation.

"You pay one dollar for a meal at a first class hotel on which the freight charges were less than two cents, including everything served, and the coal to cook it, and then tip the waiter ten cents or five times what the railroad received for hauling it 400 miles or more.

"The same man who tips the waiter ten cents will go out and make a speech and complain of high freight rates which are not one-fifth of the amount of his tip.

"Consistency, thou art a jewel!"

NELSON COLUMN IN LONDON

Trafalgar Square, the famous open space in the heart of modern London, occupies one of the finest sites in the world. It stands at the junction of three historic thoroughfares,— the Strand, Whithall and Pall Mall, each crowded with reminiscences of illustrious men and notable events in Britain's glorious past, and from the Square can be seen some of the most celebrated buildings in the British Empire, including Westminster Abbey, the Imperial Houses of Parliament, the Government Offices and Buckingham Palace.

The Square was laid out in 1838 to commemorate Nelson's memorable victory at Trafalgar in 1805, when his crushing defeat of the combined fleets of France and Spain put an end to Napoleon Bonaparte's long-cherished dream of invading England and firmly established Britain in her proud position as mistress of the seas.

In the centre of the Square rises a fluted granite column, 145 feet high surmounted by a statue of our great sailor-hero, whose one eye gazes very appropriately down on the old Admiralty Building with which his name is so closely associated. It was there that he went to receive final orders on the eve of his last voyage, and it was there that his body laid-in-state before being carried to its resting-place in St. Paul's Cathedral. The day before the statue, which is 18 feet high and weighs over 130,000 pounds, was placed in position a beef-steak dinner was served on the empty platform at the top of the column, and an enormous crowd assembled to see fourteen adventurous guests hoisted up in baskets.

At the base of the column are four bronze lions, which were designed by Sir Edwin Landseer, the greatest of our animal painters.. An American tourist once enquired of a London policeman how often the animals were fed, and the would-be humorist was considerably amazed at the prompt reply of the ready-witted constable— "Whenever they wag their tails." The plinth on which the lions recline is a favorite rostrum of mob-orators and cranks, and here they are permitted to denounce the iniquities of the government under the watchful eyes of the police, who very wisely regard this exercise of free speech as a safety-valve. During the days of the late Great War the Square was the scene of numerous recruiting meetings, at which the sentiments expressed by the speakers were more in accord with those of the great patriot above, who so gladly gave up his life in the service of King and country.

Around the Nelson Monument are grouped statues of three other great heroes,—the gallant Gen. Gordon, whose noble and useful life was sacrificed at Khartoum in 1885 owing to the dilatory methods of the government, which disregarded his appeals for relief until it was too late; Sir Henry Havelock, who died soon after his memorable relief of Lucknow during the dark days of the Indian Mutiny; and Sir Charles Napier. whose most brilliant achievement was at Meeannee, in India, in 1843, when he defeated an army of 30,000 with a force of only 2,800 men, one of the most amazing victories in the history of the British Army. On the north side of the Square is a statue of George Washington presented to the British nation by the people of Virginia, while nearby are to be found an imposing memorial to the heroic Nurse Cavell, who was murdered by the Germans in 1915, and a statue of Sir Henry Irving, in which the greatest actor of the Victorian era is depicted in the character of Hamlet.

The Canadian Government has recently acquired the stately home of the Union Club, which was erected on the west side of the Square in 1825 from the designs of the great architect, Sir Robert Smirke, and which will henceforth be the centre of the Dominion's activities in the Motherland, while on the east side are the London headquarters of the Union of South Africa.

The Church of St. Martin's-in-the Fields, which stands in a corner of the Square, bears the royal coat-of-arms above its western portico, for Buckingham Palace, the London residence of the King, is located in its parish, and the births, marriages and deaths of the royal family are recorded in the church registers. The present church is the third sacred building on the site. The first, which was built as far back as 1222, had to be demolished after an existence of three centuries, and the second church was actually erected at the expense of Henry VIII. This unwonted munificence on the part of the much-married monarch was prompted solely by his objection to seeing funerals pass the windows of his palace in Whitehall on their way to the Church of St. Margaret at Westminster.

Many notable persons have been buried in St. Martin's, including Roubilliac, the sculptor; Nell Gwynne, the mistress of the Merry Monarch; and Jack Sheppard, the notorious thief, whose remarkable escapes from prison have been immortalized by Harrison Ainsworth, and whose body was conveyed to the church with considerable pomp and ceremony after being cut down from the gallows-tree at Tyburn. His interment within the walls of a fashionable church is by no means an isolated instance of this honor being paid to the remains of an executed criminal, and in the neighboring Church of St. Paul's in Covent Garden is to be found the grave of Claude Duval, a highwayman, whose taking ways brought him to a violent death on the scaffold.

GREATEST OF BOOKS

The British and Foreign Bible Society has just published its annual report and there is great human interest in what it has to say as showing the growth of the reading of the Scriptures throughout the world. For one thing it is pointed out that there has never been so many English Bibles sold as in the year under review and out of every ten books sold four went to China. In all the sales aggregated 10,000,000 books of a religious nature. It appears that in Moslem countries there is greater anxiety than ever before to study the Scriptures with an open mind, and copies of the Bible may now be found even in the sacred cities of Mecca and Medina, although, as yet, Christian missionaries are not allowed to operate within those precincts. The Society issues books in 572 languages and last year the New Testament was published in nine new ones.

There is one country where the dissemination of the Bible has made no progress and that is Russia. The Soviet Republics forbid the importation of the Scriptures in their efforts to stamp out religion of every kind. On the Continent of Europe, generally speaking, there is a certain clearly defined opposition to the reading of the Scriptures by those who espouse a creed of bigotry which would remove certain knowledge from the lives of mankind. The obstacle in Europe is among the Socialists. There are also centres of population where the propagation of the work is difficult because of the babel of tongues, and in this connection Port Said and Alexandria are specifically mentioned. While there are such handicaps the record of the Society is a marvelous one in an age which is alleged to be given up to materialism. It would seem indeed as if the Bible and other religious works are more widely read now than ever before and that is an excellent portend for the future of the human race.

SORCERER PULLS BLUFF

A duel of challenges between an Egyptian fakir and an eminent French surgeon seems to have left the mysterious wonder-worker in possession of the field, according to the Paris correspondents. The fakir, Tahra Bey, had been astounding the French capital by his apparently magical feats of thrusting knives and swords through various parts of his body, without serious injury or effusion of blood. "From all indications," we read, "Tahra Bey enjoys these feats. He proudly boasts that he possesses the peculiar art of healing wounds at will and controlling the flow of his blood." And we are further told by the New York Herald Tribune, in a dispatch from Paris, that these and other seemingly miraculous feats on the part of the Egyptian led to an amusing controversy "with a well-known doctor, over the question of allowing the latter to perform some little operation without the use of any anesthetic." The correspondent continues:

When the project was first broached of the doctor doing a little cutting on his own rather than allowing the fakir to have all the fun of both cutting and being cut, Tahra Bey was ready and willing. Then he reported in the public press—in which all the proceedings received full publicity—that, being somewhat indisposed, he would appreciate a postponement of the experimental operation. The doctor laughed with scorn, and all skeptics exulted. But a few days later the fakir announced that he was then at the disposal of the medical profession and was confident of his ability to withstand the pain, to stop at will the flow of blood and to knit up any wound that might be inflicted by surgical knives. Then the doctor hesitated and finally withdrew his offer to operate, explaining that the ethics of his profession would not permit him to follow his original plan. Tahra Bey smiled quietly.

But talking about operations and sticking knives into himself are not the only tricks of this astounding fakir. At his first seance, given before a select and specially invited audience of "tout Paris" he mystified all comers with a most amazing stunt. After conveniently falling into a cataleptic fit, his assistants placed the rigid body in a horizontal position suspended without support except for trestles placed under his head and feet. The next move was to place a stone, which must have weighed from 50 to 100 pounds, on his chest. Then the most sturdy of his aids took a sledge hammer and to the accompaniment of flying sparks and women's screams proceeded to pound the rock until it split. The fakir seemed to enjoy it all thoroughly.

Another stunt, paralleling the sword and knife-sticking experiments was resting upon a bed of nails with his body perfectly bare. What added piquancy to the scene and brought cries of alarm from the women of the audience, was that one of these same active aids clambered upon the prostrate body and took a few graceful dance-steps.

The miracle-man's culminating feat, we are told, was to fall into a cataleptic trance and allow himself to be buried alive. The account goes on:

He was placed in a coffin, which in turn, was placed in a large box, which was then completely filled with sand. After some twenty minutes the fakir emerged fresh as the proverbial daisy and explained to the audience that he only remained buried twenty minutes out of courtesy to his guests, as he might have stayed hours, days, weeks, as far as he was concerned.

Tahra Bey, dressed in flowing white robes, a turban on his head, a face like that of a saint, is an imposing figure. He claims mysterious powers and a control over his body that allows him to do absolutely what he will. He is said to be a Coptic Christian, but his feats are those of the Mohammedan fakirs throughout the world.

Well, one thing in favor of balloon pants, you can change them without taking your boots off.

If the good die young the present arising generation will all be centenarians.

Ambling Along With the Trail Riders

The Official Ride of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, commenced this year on the morning of August 8th and ended at Wapta Camp on the night of the tenth. Over a hundred members participated. They rode across country between Marble Canyon, on the Banff-Windermere Highway, to the Bungalow Camp at Lake Wapta.

The Riders, among them a number of prominent society people, scientists and artists, all travelling on horse-back, blazed a new passage across the Wolverine Plateau. Six countries were represented: Canada, the United States, Australia, France, the West Indies and England. The artists, of whom there were six, made sketches of the virgin scenery along the route of the newly discovered trail.

Seven Indians were in the party, six being Kootenays under Chief Louis Arbel, while the seventh was Chief Buffalo Child Long Lance who gave a lecture on the Indian Races of Canada to the Canadian Club of Montreal during the winter, and is rapidly becoming famous as an authority upon Indian affairs.

The artists included Leonard Richmond, R.B.A., and A. L. Leighton of England; Carl Rungius, Belmore Browne and Richard M. Kimbel, of New York, and R. Palenske of Chicago. Paris was represented by the Duc de Nemours, who recently purchased a ranch near Calgary.

This was the second annual Ride and Pow-pow of the organization. On the morning of August the eighth, motor cars conveyed the Riders from Lake Louise and Banff to the point of departure on the Banff-Windermere Highway. There guides and horses were in readiness and the party immediately mounted and the Ride commenced. The trail led up Tumbling Creek, past Tumbling Glacier and on the Wolverine Plateau where lunch was 'served'. The ride then proceeded along the Plateau with the Wolverine Palisades, Mount Helmet and the Washmawapta Icefield and Waterfalls on the left, giving the riders a view of the Ten Peaks on the right.

That night camp was pitched on the Goodsir Plateau and before retiring the campers gathered around the fire for the usual sing-song, in the shadow of the cliff which rises sheer six thousand, five hundred feet above its valley.

On the second day the ride led down to Goodsir Creek and up McArthur Creek, past Lake McArthur. That night was spent of the shores of Lake O'Hara, the camp there being placed at the disposal of the Trail Riders by the Alpine Club of Canada. The day ended again with a sing-song.

On the third day, August 10th, the final ride was made from Lake O'Hara to Wapta Lake, where the expedition was concluded with a Pow-wow, sing-song and pale-face dance at Tipi Camp. It is expected that another ride of a similar nature will take place next year as the undertaking impressed those who took part as one of the most enjoyable outtings they have experienced. Not only does the Ride provide an uncommonly pleasant holiday for sports men from Canada and the United States, but it also serves the excellent purpose of making the scenery and the fishing and hunting facilities of the Rockies known abroad.

RUTLEDGE AND STEVENS

Dr. J. W. Rutledge, Conservative candidate for East Kootenay in the coming Federal election, opened his Fernie campaign with a public meeting in the Grand Theatre on Monday evening, which was very well attended. The speakers were given very attentive hearings and went through their speeches without a single interruption.

Sherwood Herchmer, chairman for the evening, opened the meeting with a few brief remarks, in which he stated that election day was still a month off, and during that time he expected that there would be quite a number of prominent speakers on both sides who would address Fernie audiences.

Dr. Rutledge, who spoke briefly to the meeting, stated that he had been a resident of East Kootenay for 18 years, and although he visited Fernie frequently in matters connected with his profession, this was the first occasion he had spoken from a public platform in this city. He strongly attacked the present government on their tariff policy, which, he stated, was allowing Canada's great natural resources to be exploited by a foreign country. He did not wish to go fully into the issues at stake at this time, he continued, but would leave that to Mr. Stevens, who was to follow him, and would go very fully into all these questions. However, he wished to assure the Fernie electorate that, should he be elected as their representative to parliament, he would do his utmost to reopen the Home Bank depositors compensation issue with a view to securing 100 cents on the dollar for them, as he fully believed that the depositors were entitled to full reimbursement. He also promised to do everything possible to better the conditions of disabled returned soldiers and the dependents of those who did not return. He closed his address with a strong appeal to the electors of Fernie for their support at the polls on Oct. 29.

Hon. H. H. Stevens speaking in advance of what Hon. Dr. King, sitting member for East Kootenay, will probably tell Fernie electors what his government had done with respect to reducing the public debt of Canada, said an attempt would be made to show this had been reduced five million dollars, but in quoting that example the Hon. Minister of Public Works would refrain from acquainting his hearers with the fact that the railway national debt during that same period had been increased by 234 million dollars. Mr. Stevens challenged Dr. King to deny that actually the public debt had not been increased during the present Liberal regime by 229 million dollars.

Mr. Stevens stated that Canda spent more on education than any other country in the world, yet notwithstanding the high qualifications for Canada's sons and daughters the door of opportunity was closed to them in their native land, and in order to secure a livelihood they had to emigrate because industrial and commercial conditions in Canada today, through the government's policy, were languishing.

The question of Senate reform had been in the Liberal platform since 1919 and although Mackenzie King had been in power four years since that time the only observation as to what form this might take was the recent one by the Premier that Providence was helping slaughter the Tory Senate; they soon would all be Grits and no more Tories.

Referring to the matter of the failure of the Home Bank, Mr. Stevens said that when that institution failed in August, 1923, he had addressed himself to this Province should Canada as a country take any responsibility for that failure? The problem was, had Canada any right or duty to pay depositors any of the money lost. "I faced that problem earnestly," said Mr. Stevens, "because after all I believe a public man elected to office owes it to the country to face such problems earnestly irrespective of securing votes or not. Politically I was not affected in the slightest whether I was for or against compensation of the Home Bank depositors, but I did realize particularly in Fernie more per capita suffered keenly through that failure than any section in Canada." Notwithstanding Dr. King's stand that the blame was with Sir Thomas White for allowing the Home Bank to continue operation, Mr. Stevens emphatically denied such to be the case and traced the history of this institution from its inception in 1909 or 1910, when its charter was granted by the then government under the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. "At the very time the application was made by the Home Loan and Savings, that company was seriously financially involved, Mr.

BALL PLAYERS RETURN HOME

Manager Staff Wilson and his bunch of live ball players arrived home in their special car from Vancouver on Monday morning feeling fine after two weeks of strenuous play. For the time being the local team will have to be content with the championship of Alberta, the coast aggregation proving just a little bit too strong for our boys. However, the result might easily have been in Fernie's favor. The first two games were lost by one run each, with the breaks in the both very much against us. The third was an easy win for Fernie, but in the fourth the boys showed the result of the long strain, losing 7 to 1. The Vancouver fans were very fair and readily admitted that Fernie had a real ball team.

In the second series with the Vancouver Young Liberals, Fernie had an easy time. The first game, with Zeke Sikora in the box was a tie, the second game with Bishop on the mound was won, and the last with Pat Jacobson pitching was an easy win. Vancouver fans rather favored the Young Liberals team and thought they had lost to the Fraser Cafe by hard luck, but their work against our boys did not show up nearly as well as that of the champions.

Bob Brown, the Vancouver king of baseball, was greatly pleased with the class of ball provided in all the games. Fernie will have no trouble in securing a substantial guarantee should they be eligible to meet a team in that city on a future occasion. The first five games of the series drew wonderful crowds and hundreds of old Fernieites attended to root for the old home town.

KING AND MACKENZIE

"A real old time Fernie meeting," as one of the speakers rather aptly remarked, was the outcome of the visit of the Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, and Ian Mackenzie, M.L.A. for Vancouver, to this city last evening to speak at a public meeting before the Fernie electors in the Grand Theatre.

The meeting, which was ostensibly called as a campaign affair, appeared as it proceeded to be considered by a large number of those present as an opportunity to question the Doctor with regard to his activities in the matter of Home Bank depositors' relief. Numerous and persistent the inquiries came from the audience, while the Minister responded fully and frankly as the occasion demanded.

At the outset, Dr. King, answering a statement made here Monday evening by Hon. Mr. Stevens, that he had discouraged the depositors while here on Jan. 1, 1924, by stating that they had no claim on the government for relief, the Doctor quoted his statement to the depositors delegation at that time, from the report of that meeting in the Fernie Free Press of Jan. 4, 1924, which quoted him as saying, "That within the four corners of the Bank Act, except by special legislation and for special reasons there is no provision for relief, but if you will make your representations to me I will go back to Ottawa and represent to the government as best I can the matter as you place it before me and try and find some remedy that is not provided in the Act.' "Further," continued the Minister, "I personally met your delegates, Messrs. Smith and Henderson, when they visited Ottawa and secured for them an interview with the Premier, who accorded them a very sympathetic hearing and later championed their cause."

He regretted very much that his political opponents had seen fit to bring the Home Bank question into politics, as it had been thoroughly understood by all concerned that it would be to the best interests of the depositors to keep the issue from politics. However, now that the issue had been raised by the opposition, Dr. King stated he was prepared to accept the challenge and stand by his record here and at Ottawa on Home Bank matters from the day of the bank failure up to the passage of the bill through the house.

Dealing with the question raised by Mr. Stevens on Monday evening, as to why the government had brought in a bill limiting the amount of relief to be paid depositors to 35 per cent, Dr. King explained that the support of the Liberal party had not come from the west. The government's support came largely from the Maritime Provinces and Quebec, where there was only one branch of the bank and consequently the desire to compensate depositors could not be expected to be the same as in Fernie and elsewhere, where the suffering through the failure was truly realized and therefore it was not easy for the government to go beyond a certain limit. A meeting between the Depositors Committee and the Cabinet Council had been arranged and it had been mutually agreed, that considering the 25 per cent already advanced by the liquidators and the possibility of their able to pay from 10 to 15 per cent more from the bank's assets, that if the government would pay the depositors 35 per cent of their total deposits it would be satisfactory to the depositors.

Dr. King reviewed the progress of the Home Bank relief measure through its various phases, and contended that, had the compensation been awarded without discrimination, he felt satisfied the depositors would have generously accepted the 35 per cent as reasonable. The bill as amended by the Senate, he continued, had created a most ridiculous situation. He characterized it now as class legislation, inasmuch as it had created unrest, confusion and animosity among the depositors who happened to be more thrifty than others and had more than $500 on deposit and had to submit to investigation of their circumstances to succeed in obtaining even their 35 per cent.

The reason, he stated, that the government did not place the depositors relief measure in the estimates was that if the government had done so they would have created a most dangerous precedent and would have led to irregularities of government. The Borden government, of which Hon. Mr. Meighen was a supporter, when the question of relief for the depositors of the Farmers Bank was before them, did not place that measure in their estimates, he added.

Touching upon the tariff question, the great issue of the present federal campaign, Dr. King stated that Can-

The civil assize court will sit here early in November. This is the first time that Fernie has had a criminal case for the assize court for a number of sessions.

THE TRIANGLES

(By R. J. Deachman)

Suppose you awoke in the morning with the names of Grit, Tory, Progressive and Labor absolutely out of your mind—forgotten as if they had never existed. Then you would have to examine every problem in the light of common sense. Imagine that someone was explaining Canada's trade position to you and he said: "We are in bad shape. We exported to the U.S. last year only $417,457,174 of Canadian produce. We imported from the U.S. goods to the value of $510,003,256, or $92,546,085 more than we exported." Would you be alarmed? Would you jump to the conclusion that the King government should be turned out because of that one isolated fact?

I think not. Many of those who read this article will recall the election campaign of 1911. The figures used in that campaign covered the year 1910. In that year we imported from the United States goods to the value of $218,004,556. We exported $104,119,675. Our so-called adverse balance of trade that year stood at $113,884,881. You will recall that the Conservative party frantic to save us from such adversity, got into power. As saviours were they a success? In 1913, the last clear year before the war (now under Conservative rule) the imports from the United States had climbed to $436,887,315 — exports $139,161,362, or an adverse balance of $297, 161,362. Evidently the Conservative plan of changing a debit to a credit did not work so far as our trade balance was concerned.

What has happened since? The figures for the year ending March 31, 1925 (see Canadian Trade Reports, Dept. Trade and Commerce, Ottawa) are given above. The adverse balance with the United States has been reduced to $92,546,085. Therefore our adverse trade balance has been cut in three under the King administration. I am not going back to 1913 for that comparison. In the year 1921 under Arthur Meighen our adverse trade balance was over $313,000,000. Now, if you believed, honestly believed, that the protectionist doctrine would change completely the situation in 1911 and it failed, and again it failed in 1913, what do you say about it?

Under Liberal administration this great change has taken place since 1921. If that is a factor with you, then ordinary common honesty calls for you to pay particular attention to the facts. The facts, however, shatter into a million fragments the age-old argument that lower tariffs could cause us to have an adverse trade balance. The King government lowered the tariff.

Is there any answer to these facts?

None.

Advt.

Stevens said, "and the charter never should have been granted. But having granted the charter even then the government did not take the precaution to have the proper legal deposit made before issuing it a certificate as a bank." The bank operated however until the war period when some of the western directors, led by Hon. Mr. Crerar, reported to Sir Thomas White that the affairs were not being properly handled in western Canada and suggested a certain individual be appointed to a post at the head office of the bank in an endeavor to bring about some semblance of order in the affairs. Sir Thomas White asked these directors to thoroughly investigate the situation and report again to him, when if it was still their opinion, he would consider what was best to be done. Subsequently it was reported to the Minister of Finance that the condition had been ameliorated and no action needed in so far as the department of finance was concerned. "Now I am not going to say in the light of what we know happened since that no action should have been taken place," said Mr. Stevens, "I am giving cold facts." Passing through the period until about 1919, there was nothing visible that the Home Bank was getting into any deeper trouble, and at that time Sir Thomas White retired and Sir Henry Drayton took over the portfolio of minister of finance. Sir Henry had the Home Bank and another eastern bank under surveillance and when he went out of office in 1921 there were three banks in Canada which required consideration, the Merchants, the Home and another small eastern bank. Had the government acted promptly in connection with the Home Bank when the true state of its affairs became known it would not have been necessary for it to have closed its doors, as pressure could have been exercised to have it absorbed by one of the other banks. "I tell you this, and I speak advisedly," asserted Mr. Stevens, "had the government of the day of which Dr. King is a member, insisted that the Bankers' Association or any of the major banks do so, the Home Bank would have been taken over and at a comparatively small loss, none of which would have had to be borne by the depositors or creditors, but instead of that they did nothing. They allowed it to go into bankruptcy, the condition of having to close its doors and forcing it to realize on the auction block whatever assets it had."

With respect to liability to the depositors there are many arguments, said Mr. Stevens. Even Dr. King had appeared before a meeting in Fernie on Jan. 1, 1924, and told the people here they had no claim, moral or legal, and that the government could not consider them. At that time it was not thought there would be any reversal of that attitude but when pressure was brought to bear and the effect of votes, a change was brought about on the question whether the government should consider the claims. I took this stand from the very commencement and held it right throughout the whole discussions that inasmuch as this bank had become insolvent during the war and inasmuch as it would have been very inadvisable to have forced the bank to close its doors during the period of the war, whereby it might adversely affect the credit of Canada, therefore the government should recognize it as a war casualty and reimburse the depositors.

At the last session the government brought in a measure to pay the depositors 35% of their holdings. If it was right and proper to pay 35% why could not that bill have awarded the depositors 100%, continued Mr. Stevens. The speaker further stated he had told the committee representing the depositors when he had been interviewed at Ottawa there were two ways to arrange such payment by the government, one by the introduction of a bill and the other by incorporating it in the estimates. He had urged the latter course and had knowledge that the committee had endeavored to have this method followed by the government but the suggestion had been met with refusal and the bill brought down. "I have been up to now giving you facts," said Mr. Stevens, "but in this I will give you my opinion. My opinion is the government when introducing that bill, they expected the Senate to kill it in toto. I believe the government never intended to pay the depositors a dollar." Mr. Stevens stated he had personally interviewed leading senators urging support of the bill to reimburse the depositors and it was subsequently passed as amended.

Since coming into this district Mr. Stevens said it had come to his ears that political opponents were circulating the rumor that Mr. Meighen had publicly declared if elected to power he would immediately impose a duty of $2 per ton on all coal imported into Canada. He had communicated with and received a telegraphic reply from Mr. Meighen emphatically denying having made any such declaration.

Dealing with the industrial situation, Mr. Stevens forcibly stated improvement in this could not be brought about through the low tariff policy of Mackenzie King. Even in this district where there is abundant hematite iron deposits and virtually inexhaustible quantities of superior coal, development of the industries could only be brought about through placing a high protective tariff wall about Canada, when home production would thrive as it does in all other countries that have adopted such a policy.

Victoria—The postponement of the opening of the legislature from October 26th to November 2nd has been received with general satisfaction throughout the province, according to advices received by the various provincial ministers. All parties appear to be agreed that with a federal election called for October 29, it is only fair to set back the opening of the session for a week.

Returns prepared by the provincial Taxation Department show that during this year's racing season the total amount wagered was $3,318,304 as compared with $6,397,565 last year. The revenue received by the province from the pari mutuel tax this year was $167,071, compared with $311,882 last year. This amount is distributed among the municipalities.

At the convention of the union of British Columbia municipalities held in Victoria it was stated by Premier Oliver that provincial grants to municipalities out of provincial revenues is greater than revenue received by the province from within municipal boundaries. The premier made this statement when referring to a request that the municipalities be given a portion of the gasoline tax. In explaining why this request could not be granted Mr. Oliver stated that the receipts from the gasoline tax are used to pay the charges on the money borrowed for highway purposes.

Hon. W. H. Sutherland, Minister of Public Works, addressing the convention of the Good Roads League in Victoria, stated that the province now has over 17,000 miles of roads and 8,000 miles of trails. The progress being made with the highway through the Fraser Canyon is such that the work is expected to be completed next summer. The minister explained legislation dealing with heavy passenger busses which he will introduce at the coming session. This will be designed to protect the users of the highway from the dangers of big busses and trucks and also prevent the destruction of the road surface by undue weights and speeds of vehicles.

Mr. Thomas Brewer, Editor of The South American Journal, has been commenting commercially on the visit of the Prince of Wales to South America. Statistics of last December show that there was £500,000,000 of British money invested in Argentina, Chile and Uruguay. During July and August the appreciation of investments has amounted to no less than £12,059,073. In commenting on this Mr. Brewer says: "We know of nothing that has happened during the last two months to justify the rise except the sentimental one of the Prince's visit. The railways are doing well, but neither better nor worse than in June last, and dividend and other prospects have not changed, so that one can only attribute the vast increment in values to the attention which the visit of H.R.H. has drawn to their merits."

FREEDOM OF ENGLAND

It is hoped in Great Britain that reorganization of the British coal mining industry before the expiration of the Government subsidy will solve the problem of how that industry is to survive and continue to provide the means of livelihood for one-tenth of her population. Optimists predict that the mine owners, realizing the desperate nature of the situation, will work together to increase the efficiency of their business and use every expedient for cheapening production, and that this will provide the solution.

The unhappy truth is, however, that the situation is beyond the possibility of complete redemption, because the factors which have brought it about are world-wide in scope and beyond the power of British economists to alter. All that can justifiably be expected is that greater efficiency in the British mining industry will enable it to retain a fair share of the lessened coal trade of the world. Old-fashioned methods, lack of co-operation, and friction between owners and workers have in the past, it is true, contributed largely towards placing this basic industry in its present position, but elimination of these disturbing factors can only bring partial improvement.

The truth that must be faced is that King Coal, once an autocrat, is now but a limited monarch. Even more than the increase in development of electrical energy from water powers has the growing rivalry of oil as a power-producer been fraught with disaster for the coal industry. The world's shipping, formerly one of the greatest consumers of coal, in turning to oil more and more each year, and apparently the day is not far distant when a coal-burning ship will be a thing of the past, that is if the oil holds out.

The rapidity of the British coal industry's decline is clearly shown by a comparison of the coal export figures before and after the war. In 1913 the amount of coal exported from Britain was 73.4 millions of tons; in 1924 it was 59.2 millions. For the first half of this year export has been at the rate of 49.4 million tons, and during the month of June at 43.7 million tons. At the beginning of August there were reported to be some 300,000 miners receiving unemployment pay, and five hundred collieries had closed down.

The best brains in Great Britain, fully aware of the situation and its dire possibilities, are endeavoring to find a solution. They would do well to consider wholesale emigration to the Dominions. A good British miner can be made over into a good Canadian farmer, and Canada has all the opportunity in the world to offer to him and his kind.

"STOOL PIGEONS"

In dealing with the matter of the employment of "stool pigeons" by the Provincial Government, the Union of B.C. Municipalities might have gone even farther than it did. What it asks is that where, within municipal limits, the Attorney-General's Department has reason to believe that there are infractions of the Liquor Control Act, that department, or the Liquor Board which under it, should notify such a municipality so that it can deal with the offenders. The present system is for the Attorney-General's Department to take the matter in its own hands, send in its "stool-pigeons," and then present a bill of costs, as it were, to the municipalities by subtracting certain moneys from those due to municipalities under the Liquor Control Act.

The Union would have done well to go on record emphatically against the employment of "stool-pigeons" at all. Their introduction into the administrative end of law enforcement in this Province is a slur on the courses of justice. Their creation was the conception of a petty mind. Those "stool pigeons," by virtue of the fact that they violate the law, are themselves within the pale of the operations of justice, although by the connivance of authority they escape prosecution. An immoral standard has been set up on the false assumption that morality can thus be encouraged, and the municipal authorities of British Columbia would have done well, once for all, to have come to a moral conclusion about a matter which affects their administration of the law so intimately. As it is, they want to be notified before "stool pigeons" are employed.—Victoria Colonist.

STAMPEDE CLIMAX IN ZANE GREY THRILLER

Film fans, you who rave about the sensational pictures you have seen, you who have witnessed the screen's mightiest thrills, you who have enjoyed the dynamic action of epic westerns,—see "Wild Horse Mesa" at the Orpheum and you'll have something to brag about!

For stupendous action, for spectacular thrills and for the most gasp-provoking climax ever flashed on the silver sheet, this Paramount melodrama, which George B. Seitz produced from Lucien Hubbard's adaptation of Zane Grey's gripping novel, has them all beat!

Imagine a tremendous herd of five thousand terror-stricken horses charging at top speed across a vast stretch of tableland, headed straight for a treacherous barbed wire corral! This stampede—the final, smashing high spot in the photoplay — is pictured in all its terrifying realism, and was filmed at great personal risk to cameramen and players, many of whom narrowly escaped death from the thundering hoofs of the wild steers.

And this scene comes as a fitting and high-powered finale to a series of tense, dramatic events which have their beginning when Jack Holt, hero of the picture, comes into open and bitter conflict with a gang of outlaws and horse thieves, captained by Noah Beery. Billie Dove is the lovely heroine and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., portrays the fourth featured role, that of Holt's daredevil younger brother.

Just to prove that the story does depart from the regulation western plot formula, it is only necessary to point out that although several hundred Indians play a stirring part in the film, they are on Holt's side and prove of invaluable assistance at a very crucial moment.

The rugged and magnificent wilderness backgrounds are not the least of the photoplay's worth-while features. All of the exteriors were photographed at Red Lake, Arizona, where was found an almost unbelievable duplicate of the Wild Horse Mesa—the actual locale of the story—with thousands of wild horses inhabiting the place. At the Orpheum next Wednesday and Thursday.

HOLIDAYS OVERSEAS ATTRACT MANY CANADIANS

CHRISTMAS at home has a charm for the average Briton that is not to be denied, for nowhere in the world is there a greater observance of the old Yuletide customs than that which prevails in the British Isles. Friends and relatives of those who have come to this country to make their home in the new Dominion, look forward every year to the coming of the winter season, knowing that this is the time when the people of Western Canada have the time at their disposal for lengthy holidays necessary to enjoy ocean travel.

This year passenger travel to Great Britain and to other continental countries, promises to be heavier than for many years, according to officials of the Canadian National Railways in Western Canada, who state the preliminary inquiries already received indicate that more people are figuring on holidays abroad during the coming winter than for some time. Accordingly, officials of the National System are now making their plans for the handling of such business and the provision of Canadian National service between Western Canada and the Atlantic seaboard for the convenience of those who plan overseas trips. Canadian National agents at all points will again ticket passengers on all steamship lines, and, as the traffic warrants, special trains carrying both day coaches and sleeping cars will be operated from various western points direct to the boats' side at Montreal, Quebec, Halifax and other ports.

The charm of English scenery, coupled with that of old associations, draws just as strongly today as ever, and to many a Western Canadian, these winter holidays give the one opportunity of visiting the old homeland scenes and mingling again with childhood friends and with those members of the family left behind when he or she sailed for Canada to find a home in the new Dominion.

Rates and dates of sailings and special trains will shortly be announced by the Canadian National Railways.

COLONIZATION KING

Invermere, Sept. 28.—The formation of the Columbia Valley Colonization association with Dr. F. E. Coy as president, James W. Morland as vice-president, and Askel Christensen as secretary-treasurer, marks a new departure in the settlement of the beautiful Columbia-Kootenay valley. In addition to these chief officers there is a board of directors comprising some of the wideawake business men of the district, including in their number Capt. A. H. McCarthy, R. W. Bartman of Fairmont, A. E. Fisher, Fred Mitchell of Brisco, N. M. Marples and A. C. Laird.

The association had its being primarily at the instigation of Col. J. S. Dennis of Montreal, chief commissioner of colonization and development of that company, who, at a meeting of over 50 settlers of the Lake Windermere district, outlined the purposes for which such an organization had a being, and told of the wonderful success which had crowned the work of some already in existence on the prairies. He said that the C.P.R. was carrying on an extensive colonization plan along with another railway, and that one of the cornerstones was to take care of the newly arrived settlers, and that this would be one of the purposes of the newly established body. To aid the efforts the C.P.R. would give a certain and sure aid.

At the time of the meeting Colonel Dennis also made public that the department of the C.P.R. of which he is the head had just entered into a selling arrangement with the Columbia Valley Irrigated Fruit lands, limited, to handle their holdings in the valley, comprising some 48,000 acres, and they were preparing to do work on a sound business basis along these lines as well.

FRIDAY'S GAME

Three free tickets in succession off Lefty Kaye followed by Blair's sacrifice fly to right centre field gave Fernie Miners the winning run over Young Liberals in the last round of the second game of an exhibition series at Athletic Park Friday afternoon.

The score was 4-3 and the visitors deserved the edge as they outbatted and outfielded the local stars. Miron's homer to the centre field fence gave the Grits the advantage in the first round but Fernie came right back with two counters. Liberals tied it up in the third and took the lead with a run in the sixth. But Fernie batted in a run in their half and put over the winner in the eighth with only one hand down.

Bishop was effective in the box for the Miners, his fast ball proving troublesome to the Libs.

The Louisville Courier-Journal says: "There is no gainsaying that the instalment system encourages extravagances by families that are not able to afford them. This country enjoys a standard of living higher than all the rest of the world and higher than at any period in our history, but it is not always something to boast about. Luxuries often cost more than the mere money paid for them."

"Well, what do we care," mumbled John, rolling over, "so long as they don't die on the premises."

Any fountain pen's usefulness depends upon three things—the nib, the ink supply and the flow.

The nib must conform—the ink supply must be generous, the flow must be steady and continuous.

There is a Waterman's nib to suit every possible style of handwriting. The ink supply in every Waterman's is greater than that of any other pen of similar size. The "spoon" feed—exclusive to Waterman's—is the one method by which a steady flow of ink is assured.

It is because of these features—because of its ability to write properly at all times—that there are more Waterman's in use than all other makes of fountain pens combined.

DO YOU KNOW

That it costs you nothing and it will pay you to thoroughly investigate the Silver Fox Industry?

That statistics show that during the last ten years wild fur-bearing animals have decreased 500% and that fur wearers have increased 500%.

That present and future generations will demand fine furs and circumstances compel us to raise them in captivity?

That the Silver Fox is easily domesticated and adapts itself to pen life better than any other fur-bearing animal?

That statistics show that from 1900 to 1922 that all good Silver pelts averaged $397.50 each?

That when two governments, like those of Canada and the United States, approve and endorse the breeding and raising of Silver Foxes as a business for making "enormous profits," does it mean much to you?

That now is the season to book your orders and be assured of a good quality, and if interested write for full particulars to ada produced more in every one of her basic industries than she could consume at home. She was therefore compelled to export her produce, and was doing so with success, competing in the world markets and disposing of her surplus. This was evidenced in the fact that Canada today has a splendid trade balance in her favor. The return of the Canadian dollar to par was due to this favorable trade balance, he added, and instead of the Canadian dollar only being worth between 80 and 85 cents in the United States a few years ago, it was now equal to American currency. He stated that the Liberal tariff policy had cheapened the cost of production in Canada by reducing import duty on articles required in the basic industries of the country. He also stated that taxes had been materially reduced during the past few years, the sales tax and the income tax both being greatly reduced. The working people were the first to benefit from the income tax reductions as no reduction had been made in the percentage of income taken by the government, but larger exemptions had been made in the case of dependents.

The Canadian paper making industry had made one of the most rapid advances of any industry in the world and was growing with such rapidity that he believed Canada would this year lead the world as a paper producing country. Under the government policy there is no exportation of crown timber today, Dr. King continued. "The only timber being exported is that held by private ownership, which only amounts to about 15 per cent of the timber in Canada."

Ian Mackenzie, M.P.P., Vancouver, followed Dr. King and in opening his address answered a question from a member of the audience as to what the government was doing for disabled veterans and dependents. He stated that along with his comrades they had attended convention after convention, drawn up resolution after resolution and forwarded them to both the Borden and Meighen governments pleading for a Royal Commission to enquire into the condition prevalent among disabled war veterans and dependents of those who had not returned, but without result. When the Mackenzie King government took office these resolutions were again drawn up and forwarded to Ottawa and the Liberal government granted the Commission with the result that the Federal Appeal Board was established and conditions was greatly improved for the disabled men and their dependents. Only last session the government had put through a supplementary estimate for $1,000,000 to be used in this most deserving cause, and showed that the Mackenzie King government, to the returned soldier, was one of sympathy and understanding.

Going into the Home Bank question Mr. Mackenzie stated that the bill as passed by the House of Commons had been "massacred by that decrepid old bunch of Tories," as he styled the Senate, just as they had done with much legislation which would have been beneficial to returned soldiers. He stated that the National Committee of the Home Bank Depositors Association had apparently been satisfied with the measure and quoted their letter to the Premier, under date of May 29, 1925, from Hansard, which read as follows:

"Dear Mr. Premier—After our interview with you and the Acting Minister of Finance, the Hon. Mr. Robb, this day, and the proposals made in reference to the settlement of the claims of the Home Bank depositors, and having regard to the many financial demands being made upon the government, we beg, on behalf of the National Depositors Relief Association, to assure you that the sum of $5,450,000 mentioned by you in our interview this day, is satisfactory to our association and we feel will be satisfactory to the depositors generally in Canada.

We deeply appreciate the broad spirit with which you have met our representations and that the measure of relief you propose is fair and reasonable, having regard to existing conditions.

We beg again to thank you and the Acting Minister of Finance and the other members of the government for the kind interest you have always shown us since the matter came before you, and for the assurance that the necessary legislation will be put through immediately.

Signed on behalf of the National Committee of the Home Bank Depositors' Association.

Passing to the proposed tariff policy of Mr. Meighen, if returned to power, Mr. Mackenzie said that the leader of the Conservative party had stated that within three months he would increase the Canadian tariff by 50 per cent. Such an increase, the speaker added, would undoubtedly be met by swift retaliation by the United States government, one of the eventualities of which might be an increase of $1 or more per ton on coal exported from Canada to the United States and would thereby materially impair the coal mining industry of East Kootenay.

In concluding Mr. Mackenzie appealed to the electors of this riding to support the Mackenzie King government, "which will mean Canadian prosperity and solidarity for the Empire," he said.

WOMEN AS CHAUFFEURS

The American Automobile Association has announced that actual tests, conducted under scientific observation, have proved women drivers as competent, if not more so, than men. We read in the Kansas City Star that the tests were conducted by Dr. F. A. Moss of the Institute of Government Research, assisted by H. H. Allen, who is attached to the U.S. Bureau of Standards. Writes the Washington correspondent of the paper just named:

"Two of the tests in which women outscored the men are of particular importance, because they are among the primary factors that constitute driving ability. These are:

"The speed with which the driver reacts to danger and takes steps to avert it, such as applying the brakes.

"The consistency with which the driver responds in such a situation.

"Not only did the women show a quicker reaction time, but they were also less variable. The groups tested consisted of men and women selected from the students of George Washington University, who had come from all over the country. Precautions were taken so that they averaged about the same as far as previous experience in driving was concerned.

"'Judging from popular opinion,' Dr. Moss said, 'the reaction time of women might not be expected to be radically different from that of men. The experiments fail to substantiate this belief. The average reaction time of the ten college women was 0.56 seconds, while that of 25 men from the same institution was 0.59 seconds.

"'Women also have been accused of being more variable than men and the data is of interest in throwing light on this matter. The mean variability of the ten women students of George Washington University was 0.17 seconds, while that of the 25 men students was 0.22 seconds.

The apparatus used in the tests consisted of a car with two revolvers mounted on the under side of the running board. One revolver was fired by the examiner as a signal for the driver to apply the brakes and the other was fired automatically when the initial motion to apply the brake pedal was made. The shells were loaded with red lead, so that when either revolver was fired a red spot was made on the road. The distance between the two spots, combined with the rate at which the machine was going, gave the reaction time. Said Dr. Moss:

"Speaking of reaction time it is only another way of asking how long it takes the driver to apply the brakes or make any other necessary movement after he sees danger. The average time for 57 individuals was found to be .54 of a second, some ranging as low as .31 of a second and some as high as 1.1 seconds. How important this time element is may be gaged from the fact that a person with a reaction time of 1.5 seconds in a car going 30 miles an hour will have travelled 66 feet from the time he sees danger until he gets his foot on the brake. If he has a reaction time of half a second the car will travel only 22 feet."

Dr. Moss attaches no importance to the popular belief that women are emotional, and therefore, liable to lose their heads in an emergency. He said:

"There is no basis for the assertion that women are more liable to lose their heads. It is largely a myth that society has fostered by playing up the idea that women are expected to be emotional. There is no physical reason why they should be."

Superior strength is no longer a factor in favor of men in driving, we are told. Dr. Moss takes the position that the modern type of machinery is such that strength hardly is called into play and may be regarded as negligible, compared with speed of reaction and intelligence. He concludes:

"Knowledge of the mechanics of a car is important, but there is no reason to believe that men are essentially better mechanics than women. It is just a question of their going to the trouble to learn. One only need mention the skill with the sewing machine, on rifle teams and with the telegraph to show that the inherent aptitude is there."

In Madeira red lights are used as a protection against mosquitoes. A traveller there relates how at a hotel the guests dined on the open verandah, the front of which was festooned round with red electric lamps, while each table had a red lamp with a red shade. The verandah was entirely free from mosquitoes although they were swarming outside in the grounds.

VERY STRICT ELECTION REGULATONS

Prince Rupert News: In view of the election campaign that is now on it will be well for those in authority to look into the very strict regulations that bind the candidate and agents in future campaigns.

The prohibitions of the election law are not merely confined to gross corruption, but extend definitely to the influencing of voters by any of a variety of methods such as fear, fraud, violence, and even by such possible innocent acts as the supply of food or drink, or by the suggestion of benefits to follow from voting or refraining therefrom. The statutory provisions of this subject are very involved, and candidates are advised in the book of election instructions being sent out from Ottawa to see that their supporters confine themselves "to the administrative organization of the electoral district and the political education of the electors."

Another interesting point is that everyone employed by a candidate for pay or reward in relation to an election is disqualified from voting, and it is a serious offence if such a person attempts to mark a ballot. "Candidates and their official agents should, therefore, take effective steps to ensure the abstention from the polls of everyone who serves them otherwise than gratuitously."

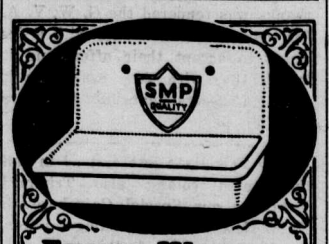
TOO MUCH FOR THE WHISTLE

Railroad whistles use up four tons of water and 1200 pounds of coal for every hour of continuous operation. Dr. A. L. Foley, professor of physics in Indiana University, who has been investigating whistles recently for one of the railroads, estimates that we spend eight million dollars a year in maintaining this "expensive nuisance." Is a whistle necessary? Yes, perhaps; for the track just ahead; but when the noise "spills over" sideways and spreads about all the adjacent country, it is not only useless but annoying. Dr. Foley would move the whistle forward and equip it with a reflector like that used with the headlight, to confine its sound to the region just in front of it; and he would greatly raise the pitch, because the ear is more sensitive to greater frequency of vibration, and the necessary intensity may thus be reduced. In the Railroad Herald, Atlanta, Ga., Victor Green summarizes Dr. Foley's conclusions. He says:

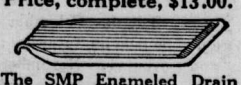


"Dr. Foley's work is the direct outcome of an investigation of the causes of a Pennsylvania railway wreck at Van Wert, Ohio, in which 17 school children were killed. The train, running through a heavy fog, struck a school hack, even though the whistle had been blown and the hack driver had walked on the tracks to listen before proceeding into the path of the speeding train.

"The railway company employed Dr. Foley to test the whistle,, bell and light on the engine. The locomotive was dismantled and its equipment sent to him at Bloomington, where it was set up and tested under all possible weather conditions. The investigator was not satisfied that atmospheric conditions alone were responsible for the failure of the warning signals to be heard. He set up a locomotive whistle at the Indiana University power house and tested the sound for distances up to five miles.

"When students and townspeople objected, the professor made arrangements with the Monon Railway for the use of locomotives of that company. The engine was taken to a turntable and a Rayleigh disk for measuring the intensity of the sound was set up several hundred yards down the track. As the locomotive was pivoted, the intensity of the sound of its whistle was ascertained by the use of this instrument. The steam-dome, the smokestack and any other equipment which is placed in front of the whistle reflect the sound to right-angles of the track, where it is not only useless but a nuisance, according to Dr. Foley's experiments. Twice as much sound was thrown to the sides as forward. The smoke and hot gases, pouring from the smokestack, also absorbed the sound waves.

"A chimes whistle, the kind used by most locomotive builders, was placed in a parabolic reflector in front of the engine, near the headlight. The reflector directed and intensified the whistle's sound as a megaphone does a speaker's voice. In its new position, the whistle again was tested and a sixfold increase of intensity in front of the engine was noted."



The tallest man in the world has been arrested in New York for debit. He was found to be eight feet five inches tall and fifteen hundred dollars short.

Southern Alberta is Beekeeper's Paradise

Upper—Examining the bees in George Riedel's Apiary in the Coaldale district.
Lower—A colony of Bees in the Riedel Apiary.

Southern Alberta's irrigated districts, with their large fields of alfalfa and sweet clover, promise to become the beekeeper's paradise within the next five years.

Two years ago, less than 10,000 pounds of honey were produced in Alberta. Last year, 60,000 pounds were produced — and 32 carloads imported into the West to supply the demand. This year, on the C.P.R. irrigated project at Lethbridge, there will be produced more than 100,000 pounds. And this is just a start.

"Southern Alberta's irrigated districts will be shipping trainloads—not carloads—of honey to the markets within five years" declared Frank C. Pellatt, field editor of the American Bee Journal, Hamilton, Illinois, on the occasion of his visit to Southern Alberta late in July this year. "This is the greatest potential honey producing district in North America."

Today, one apiarist in the Coaldale district on the C.P.R. irrigated project has 600 colonies of bees. This man, C. George Riedel, came to Southern Alberta from California in the spring of 1924 and started with 300 colonies. In 1926 he will have 1800 colonies and will make more than 150 tons of honey. This year his bees will make him about 50 tons, and one wholesale firm having branches throughout the West is handling the whole output.

Each colony of bees makes about 200 pounds in a season, though one colony at the Lethbridge Experimental Farm broke all records for Canada by making 472 pounds in the season of 1923. A record of 21 pounds in one day by one colony was made in 1923 when the bees at the Experimental Farm averages 189 pounds for the season, the high record for the year at the experimental farms across Canada.

A party consisting of twelve Chinese students from Hong Kong and Peking arrived in Montreal recently to take up temporary positions in departments and shops of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in order to familiarize themselves with the railway situation in Canada. They will remain a few months and then return to China to make practical use of the information they acquire.

Among the notable personages who arrived in Canada during the first week in September from Europe were Princess Patricia, Sir Thomas and Lady Grattan, and the Earl and Countess of Mar and Kellie, all of whom were on the Canadian Pacific steamship Mountroyal; James Oliver Curwood on the Empress of Scotland and Baroness Orczy on the Montnairn, of the same line.

Calgary, Alberta. — The No. 4 Royalite well (Imperial), continues to amaze geologists. Its naptha production increased July to 546,135 gallons, 73 degrees Beaume, an increase of 25 barrels daily over the June production. The production continues to increase and the flow of gas at 20,000,000 cubic feet a day is being maintained. This flow will shortly be harnessed to supply Calgary.

Preparations are under way for the holding in Montreal in June next year of the annual convention of the American Association of Railroad Superintendents. J. K. Savage, General Superintendent, Canadian Pacific, was elected chairman of the arrangements committee, and plans were made for the organization of a complete committee to go ahead with the business of making the convention a success.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation, and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ten head.

DESPERATE SITUATION

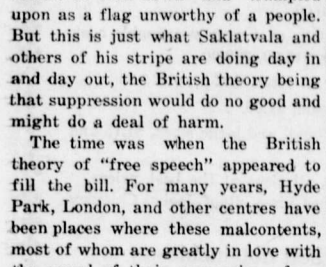
Different countries, different methods. Take Shapurji Saklatvala, Communist member of the British House of Commons. Mr. Saklatvala exercises the privilege in the British Isles of damning his government and preaching far and wide anarchy and revolution. This same Saklatvala intended visiting the United States as a delegate to the Inter-Parliamentary Union, but the U.S. State Department, after perusing his speeches in Parliament and elsewhere, came to the conclusion that Saklatvala's mission was to spread revolutionary propaganda, and he will not be allowed to enter that country.

Things are said on the floor of the British House of Commons which if uttered in the United States House of Representatives would call for the immediate rejection of the speaker, accompanied probably by not a little rough handling. And by the same token the Canadian House of Commons would not be at all likely to remain silent and inactive under like provocation, though we do put up with a deal of unofficial Bolshevism from soap boxers that the United States will not tolerate for an instant. It would indeed be a piece of bravado for one to stand in an open square, even in as foreign a city as New York, and proclaim that the stars and stripes should be torn down and trampled upon as a flag unworthy of a people. But this is just what Saklatvala and others of his stripe are doing day in and day out, the British theory being that suppression would do no good and might do a deal of harm.

The time was when the British theory of "free speech" appeared to fill the bill. For many years, Hyde Park, London, and other centres have been places where these malcontents, most of whom are greatly in love with the sound of their own voices, foregathered for the special purpose of telling all who would listen their various tales of political woe.

For a long period, or until a few years ago when the out-of-work problem became very real, these British Communists made little or no headway. However, it is very different now, for Communism, with or without the aid of the Russian Bolshevists, has become little short of nightmare in the British Isles, and unfortunately it is unquestionably gaining headway.

It is much a matter of no work, and idle people are prone to get into mischief, whether they be rich or poor. When a man is without a job or the means of getting one, he is likely to give heed to a glib tongued Communist even if the theories expounded are impracticable dreams.



From this distance and from a close view of the situation, no earlier than last spring, it strikes the writer that the British Government must meet his crisis with something more substantial than doles, words and Royal Commissions, as has been suggested by one of the shipping magnates, who finds his business shot, his stocks empty and his men workless.

At this writing Great Britain contains million and one-half workless people, who with their families would make up a grand total of some five millions or more. It is obvious that these people cannot be permanently employed, and such being the case the army of malcontents is bound to grow as time goes on.

It is a nice question as to whether or not clapping people like Saklatvala in jail, as would be done in the United States where they will simply not countenance Communism, would have any beneficial effect. In such matters it is easy to criticize but not so easy to forecast what the ultimate effect of such action would be upon the masses. One is bound to admit, however, that these Bolshevik spouters are having a bad effect upon their listeners, and that every Red meeting means more converts to this creed of anarchy and destruction.

Britain's problem is to get rid of her surplus population. This is the obvious solution. Work and regular wages always prove poor ground upon which to grow Communists. The cult cannot thrive where prosperity reigns.

Canadians will watch the trend of events in Great Britain with a great deal of interest not unmixed with anxiety.

Here and There

The total handlings at the new internal government elevator in Edmonton, Alta., since its opening last fall, amount to 2,350,000 bushels. Of this quantity of grain handled, more than 2,000,000 bushels was wheat.

With the completion of the 1926 assessment for Toronto, the Chief Assessor announced that the city's population is now 549,429, or 7,012 greater than last year. The total assessment for 1926 is $891,673,797, which is $16,259,443 higher than for 1925.

A new high-water mark for the 1925 season of navigation in regard to number of passengers landed at Quebec over a week-end, was established during the week-end of September 6th when six boats docked with nearly 5,000 passengers. The three Canadian Pacific steamers, the Montroyal, Marloch and Melita, brought 2,524 of the total passengers landed.

Between four and five hundred travelling passenger agents, representing railway throughout the United States and Mexico, united with representatives of the Canadian railways and steamship companies in Montreal during the week ending September 19th, for the fiftieth annual convention of the American Association of Travelling Passenger Agents.

In succession to Captain James Gillies, who was recently appointed general manager Canadian Pacific steamships in London, Captain R. G. Latta has been appointed to the command of the Empress of Scotland, flagship of the Canadian Pacific fleet. Captain Latta was previously on the bridge of the "Montroyal" and other vessels of the same line.

Arrangements are being made for the holding of the western annual meeting in Winnipeg from November 3rd to 5th of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy The meetings will be held in the Royal Alexander Hotel. Delegates from all points in the West, as well as from Eastern Canada, are expected to attend.

A memorial known as "The Altar of Peace" has recently been unveiled in Stanley Park, Vancouver, to symbolize the spirit of international good-will existing between the United States and Canada. The memorial was raised by joint subscription of United States and Canadian Kiwanis Clubs, and stands on the spot where the late President Harding delivered the last speech of his life while visiting Canada, in July, 1923.

One of the largest shipments of live foxes for export ever to leave Prince Edward Island, left recently for New York for transshipment to Norway. The shipment comprised 200 foxes in all, with a gross value of $40,000. Several small shipments of animals were consigned to Norway last year and this large order has followed the success which the Norwegian breeders have had with those animals previously sent from this country.

As illustrating the volume of grain delivered by the Port of Montreal compared with that of Vancouver, figures given by the Pacific coast port for the crop year ending July 31 last, show Montreal deliveries were six and three-quarters times those from the British Columbia port. Vancouver shipped 25,133,218 bushels of grain for the crop year ending July 31, while Montreal, during this period, disposed of 169,929,018 bushels.

E. W. Beatty, president and chairman of the Canadian Pacific Railway, accompanied by several of his directors is at present engaged in the annual tour of inspection of the company's system. In an address to the directors of the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto Mr. Beatty declared that the "only safe and certain cure for the relief of the Dominion's railway obligations rested upon the country's industrial and agricultural development."

LOOSING PASSENGERS

Former short-distance railroad travelers are now largely using the private motor-car or the public bus, and a writer in The Railway Age (New York) complains that the roads are doing little to meet this competition, and seem to be content to let their short-haul business go by the board as the canal traffic did in the old days. His analysis of the situation, which he makes in two articles contributed to successive numbers of The Age, throws considerable light upon it. An interesting point is the fact that the freight business of the roads has always grown faster than their passenger business, even before the motor-busses entered the field. Says the writer in The Age:

"The decreasing volume of railway passenger traffic, which is only too painfully evidenced by the official statistics, has been almost entirely attributed to the competition of the automobile and motor-bus. No one has attempted to dispute this, but several observers have asked whether the railways have done all that they might have done to meet such competition or to attract new business.

"The heaviest passenger business that the railways of this country ever handled was in 1920. In 1924 the railways carried 24 per cent. fewer passengers than in 1920; the passengers carried one mile decreased 23 per cent. and this reduction was accompanied by a decrease of but one-half of one per cent. in passenger-train miles; and by an actual increase in the number of passenger car miles.

"Comparing 1923 with 1892, it develops that the number of passengers carried on the country's railroads has not quite doubled, and the number of passenger miles has increased about three times. The contrast with the increase in freight traffic is striking because in 1923 the revenue tons of freight moved were about three and one-half times as much as in the average year of the early nineties, while the revenue ton-miles were about five times as large.

"Passenger business has never expanded as fast as freight business. It is likely that one of the factors was the competition of the interurban electric lines. If that is the case, the more recent competition of the motor vehicle is not entirely a new condition.

"The average journey in 1923 was longer by 12 per cent than in 1916, but only slightly longer than in 1920. This would indicate that it was short-haul business that was suffering. Unfortunately, this does not exactly follow. Since 1916, there have been several railroad mergers. This merging of individual lines would increase the average journey per passenger. On the other hand, there is a complication of commutation traffic. In 1524, the average journey of the commutation passenger was 14.6 miles, while that of the other revenue passengers was 60.3, and of all passengers 38.8. This increasing commutation business would tend to decrease the average journey of all passengers."

Bacon is dearer because there is a shortage in pigs. This shortage is emphasized in Britain. In the United States there is a reduction of 25 per cent compared with last year, the figures for five months being 13,226,000 against 17,398,000 for the same period last year. Farmers who keep pigs are now reported to be making a handsome profit, whereas those who sell milk in many parts of the world are heavy losers.

In 1914 there were only 1,711,339 motor vehicles registered in the United States. By 1919 the number had increased to 7,565,446, and by 1924 this figure had more than doubled and reached a total of 17,591,981. This year, owing to increased production, it is anticipated that the 20,000,000 mark will be reached. Last year the total production of passenger cars and commercial vehicles was 3,617,600, worth at wholesale prices $3,168,588,146.

The Union of B.C. Municipalities is to ask for the earmarking of all revenue from the gasoline tax for road purposes, and Premier Oliver says what amounts to an admission that this is actually what has been done. Perhaps if the people were kept more fully informed of the methods employed in the expenditures of their moneys there would be much conservation of the human voice now so often raised in protest and complaint.

All railway experts are agreed that the basis of freight rates must be the actual cost of transportation. When this principle is departed from it is politics and not economics that hold sway.

BRITAIN'S NATIONAL DEBT

The position of Britain's National Debt on April 1 last is shown in detail in a White Paper recently issued. On that date the total deadweight debt was £7,646,371,788, and of this £6,524,771,914 was internal and £1,121,599,874 external. It is shown that in connection with the internal figure there is included £48,523,735 of Funding Loan and Victory Bonds tendered in payment of Death Duties and held by the National Debt Commissioners until paid off or drawn. During the year ending March 31 last the external debt shows a decrease of £4,213,465. The highest figure of the debt was reached on April 1, 1919, and since that date the reduction has reached £243,252,783. Britain has been paying off her foreign debt during the last six years at the rate of £40,000,000 per annum. The internal debt shows a decrease in the year 1924-1925 of £30,038,100.

The effect which the face in the pulpit has upon the congregation is perhaps more serious than most people suppose. Indeed, the matter of facial expression is one which most speakers have a habit of studying with the result that they are not often enough natural. The London Daily News has been commenting on this subject as follows: "One has some sympathy with the cleric, who, rebuked for his unfortunate facial expression in the pulpit, has retorted by inviting the 'fiddle-faced Christians' in the congregation to 'come up and try for themselves'.....It must be very hard for a preacher to know exactly what countenance his congregation expect him to wear. A cheerful countenance is held by some people—and they are not a few—a grave offence. We have known doctors to whom it has proved a serious handicap; and at least one celebrated specialist, whose inspissated gloom was warmly appreciated by his patients."

Some girls have a boudoir at home, while others use the mirrors in the chewing gum machines.

Unveiling The "Altar of Peace" at Vancouver

The President Harding International Good-Will Memorial located in Stanley Park, Vancouver and erected by Kiwanis International through the voluntary subscriptions of its 95,000 members in the United States and Canada, was unveiled by John H. Moss, president Kiwanis International on September 16th in the presence of a large gathering of both United States and Canadian government officials and members of Kiwanis.

The memorial was designed by Charles Marega, a well known Italian sculptor of Vancouver. When the scheme was first decided upon, it was the intention of the American Kiwanis Clubs to raise the funds on their side of the border and to present the memorial to Canada. Canadian Kiwanis, however, insisted upon contributing towards the fund and the memorial was thus erected by the joint efforts of the United States and Canadian clubs.

At the unveiling ceremony, the Dominion Government was represented by Hon. Dr. J. H. King and Dr. G. T. Harding, brother of the late president. United States Kiwanis was represented by International President John H. Moss, and International Past Presidents Victor S. Johnson and Edmund F. Arras. The Canadian Pacific Railway was represented by Frank W. Peters, General Superintendent at Vancouver. Several of the United States delegates stayed over at Banff and Lake Louise and other points in the Canadian Pacific Rockies before proceeding to Vancouver. The memorial itself is throughout a made-in-Canada product, being designed by Canadians and made of Canadian materials and by Canadian labor.

The site of the memorial is the spot where the late President Harding made his last public speech, when just before he died in 1923 he visited Canada. Warren G. Harding, late president of the U. S. A. was a chartered member of the Kiwanis Club at Marion, Ohio, his home town.

An extract from the speech made by the Chief Executive of the United States on that occasion, written in bronze for the memorial, and the possible text of many a murmured prayer of hope of the cosmopolitan tourist who reads it as he passes through the park, is as follows:

"What an object lesson of peace is shown today by our two countries to all the world. No grim-faced fortifications mark our frontiers, no huge battleships patrol our dividing waters, no stealthy spies lurk our tranquil border hamlets. Only a scrap of paper, recording hardly more than a simple understanding safeguards lives and properties on the Great Lakes, and only humble mileposts mark the inviolable boundary-line for thousands of miles through farm and forest.

"Our protection is in our fraternity, our armor is our faith, and the tie that binds, more firmly each year, is ever-increasing acquaintance and comradeship through interchange of citizens; and the compact is not perishable parchment, but of fair and honorable dealing, which, God grant, shall continue for all time."

The memorial, which is known as "The Altar of Peace," has been referred to as the only material symbol of fortification, outside of mileposts, to outline the invisible demarkation of the thousands of miles of border line separating the two countries from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

After a short visit to Vancouver the writer has come to the conclusion that unless the regulations governing beer parlors are changed, public opinion will very shortly close them up. One has only to watch a Vancouver parlor when the doors are closed at 11 o'clock at night, to see anywhere from 25 to 100 young girls trooping out in an intoxicated condition. The men of Canada are in the habit of placing woman on a pedestal and even the worst of them object to seeing their women folks under the influence of liquor. The hotelkeepers of the cities early realized the danger of this condition and asked the government to prohibit women from entering the beer parlors, but their request was refused and now it will only be a short time until public opinion will rise up and put an end to the business.

MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

The regular council meeting, postponed from Oct. 1, was held in the council chamber last evening with Mayor Irvine in the chair. Aldermen Dicken and Tully were absent.

Alberta Peters, on behalf of the Fernie and District Poultry Association, waited upon the council and stated that the District Show was to be held in Fernie on Dec. 16 and 17, and made a request for financial assistance. The council decided to grant $100 to help stage the show.

A letter was read from the Fernie Rotary Club which stated that they had been in the habit of donating $150 towards an annual Fernie Beautiful contest, and now thought that this money would be of greater advantage if placed toward prize money for an annual Fernie Fall Fair. The mayor will call a public meeting in the council chamber on Monday, Nov. 2, to discuss the proposition.

A letter was read from the newspaper, Municipal Canada, requesting the council to provide a photographic cut of the Fernie War Memorial to be published in their Nov. 11 issue, and that the council purchase six copies of this issue. The letter was tabled.

After some discussion on the matter of the special police areas outside the city limits, created by recent orders-in-council, a motion was passed instructing the city clerk to request the government to rescind these orders and confine the police area to the city boundaries.

City Electrician Blackie made a request for an increase in his salary of $25 per month. This was laid over until next meeting.

The Electrician reported that the ignition battery on the fire truck was in bad order and recommended the purchase of a new 12 volt battery. The Fire Chief reported that there was no alarm on the fire truck and recommended that a siren be installed; also an additional gas mask be purchased. The purchase of these was authorized.

Joe Macush offered the city $100 for tax sale Lot 14, Block 100. The offer was accepted, $25 cash and $25 per month.

Next council meeting will be held on Thursday, Oct. 22.

THE BAPTIST CONVENTION

The Kootenay Baptist Association met at Fernie on Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 6 and 7. Delegates from Cranbrook, Nelson, Trail and Rossland were present, and among other speakers present were Dr. J. W. Litch, Supt. of Baptist Missions for B.C. and Alberta; Rev. W. P. Freeman, Supt. of Baptist Young People and Sunday School Work in B.C. and Alberta; and Dr. Heustis, Sec. of the Lord's Day Alliance of Canada.

The Association was opened Tuesday evening by Rev. Mr. Humphries, moderator. Mr. Verkirk, of Fernie, gave an address of welcome, which was replied to by Rev. W. T. Tapscott, of Cranbrook.

The moderator then named the following committees:

Nominating Com.—Rev. Tapscott, Mrs. N. Wolverton and Mr. Boardman.

Resolution Com.—Rev. Tyner, Mrs. Taylor and Mr. Cameron.

Programme Com. — Moderator, Clerk and Dr. Wolverton.

After this an address was given by Rev. Mr. Humphries on "How We Can Best Serve Our Day and Generation," in which he pointed out that every man has his influence. Jesus served His day and generation in his 33 years of ministry on earth, and we serve by our Christian personality. Mr. Humphries reminded us of the old saying, "Actions speak louder than words," and stressed the importance of guarding our words and actions.

Dr. Litch then addressed the meeting on the subject, "The Revelation of God in Jesus Christ." He spoke of the miracles of Jesus, and of the miracle performed on him when He lifted him from a skeptical death and gave him new life in Christ Jesus; and then of the miracles performed when Paul, William Carey and Adoniron Judson were converted to Christ. The meeting closed with prayer by Dr. Wolverton.

Wednesday morning at 9.30 a very helpful devotional service was led by Rev. W. P. Freeman, followed by a business meeting. Mr. Tyner then gave a very splendid talk on "Stewardship." He said men's money belongs to God who made man. He used the story of the talents as a basis of his remarks. A helpful discussion followed.

At 2.30 p.m. the women transacted their business and listened to a talk by Mrs. N. Wolverton on women's part in church work.

Dr. Heustis, Sec. of the Lord's Day Alliance, spoke on "Keeping the Sabbath." Then followed an address on Sunday School work by Rev. W. P. Freeman, of Victoria.

The ladies of the Fernie Baptist Church very graciously entertained the delegates at 6 o'clock to a banquet in the basement of the church.

The closing evening session of the Association was devoted to an address to the young people by Rev. Mr. Freeman; and also one by Dr. Wolverton. Those who heard these addresses were given a real treat.

A vote of thanks was tendered the Fernie people for their kind hospitality to the delegates, and all dispersed feeling that a very successful convention had been held.

PIONEER HAS PASSED AWAY

Death brought sorrow to the community on Monday, when Mrs. H. A. Wilkes passed peacefully away at the family residence on Pellatt Avenue, after a lingering illness of many months. Deceased was one of the early pioneers, coming to Fernie in 1899. She was born in Dublin in 1865 and emigated to Bruce County, Ont., while a young girl. In the early nineties the family came to Alberta, where she resided until coming to Fernie. Deceased always took an active part in church work, being the third on the original Fernie Methodist roll. The first Methodist services in the city were held at her home. The funeral, which took place from the United Church on Wednesday afternoon, was very largely attended. Two sisters, Mrs. Cousens, of Medicine Hat, and Mrs. Bell, of Regina, were with her at the last. The sorrowing family have the sympathy of the community.

Robt. Fitzgerald and Arthur Hayes two men from across the line, are under arrest for stealing a tire and rim off a car belonging to Frank Gallagher. Constable Cameron discovered a clew to the alleged thieves and following it up found the tire in the possession of one of them. His chum hurriedly left the city in a car, but was overtaken near Cokato by the police, who arrested the man and seized the car, which contained a quantity of liquor. The case came up before police magistrate today but was adjourned until Monday. From evidence at hand it would appear that one of the men has a police record.

Work on the new M. F. & M. machine shop is progressing. If weather permits the buildings will be completed in about a month's time. The estimated cost of the buildings is in the neighborhood of $60,000.

One of Fernie's old timers, Paddy Kennedy, former member of the firm of Kennedy & Managan of the Coal City, is visiting Cranbrook this week. Mr. Kennedy is now a resident of Vancouver and is engaged in the selling end of the manufactured lumber business.—Cranbrook Courier.

THE WORLD BALL SERIES

Keen interest is being taken in the World Series baseball games locally and quite a lot of money is changing hands.

Forbes Field, Pittsburg, Oct. 7. — Walter Johnson pitched the world's champion Washington Senators to a brilliant victory over the Pittsburg Pirates today, 4 to 1, in the first game of the 1925 championship series. A vast and colorful crowd of 40,000 filling the field to capacity saw the downfall of their favorites, the National League champions, who were baffled and held to five hits by Johnson, while the Senators hammered Lee Meadows, bespectacled Pirate pitcher, and his successor, Johnny Morrison, for eight safe blows.

Pittsburg, Oct. 8.—Pittsburg evened up the world's series through the mighty stick of Hazen S. Cuyler, who slashed a home run unto the right field stands with one in the last of the eighth inning here today, and Washington fell 3-2. Three home runs accounted for the bulk of the day's scoring, Judge driving home Washington's first mark in the second, and Wright evened the score with a circuit drive in the fourth.

Washington did not go down without serving a determined thrust to cut away the lead in the dying moments of the game. They had three men on in the ninth with no one out, but the best they could carry over was one, and fell short.

Pittsburg, Oct. 9.—Today's game was called off on account of rain.

Fernie Branch of Maple Leaf Legion, No. 53, Loyal Order of Moose, held their first frolic on Friday, Oct. 2. There was a good attendance at the meeting, and after the class in waiting had been initiated in the mystic work of the Legion, the members adjourned for supper, which was provided by the wives of the Legionaires. Each one at the table was presented with a purple flower, the predominant color of the order. After supper the frolic started and was continued up till 12 o'clock, after which a few dances were indulged in. Miss M. Wilson supplied the music.

A number of local artists took part in a W. A. of the G.W.V.A. concert at Michel on Wednesday evening.

THE QUESTION FOR THE WEST TO DECIDE

Most Western Canadian people think the tariff should be reduced very materially on many of the articles of more or less everyday use. Many of these people feel that the King government has not gone far enough on its platform on the tariff.

Most Western Canadian people also think that larger markets must be found for the agricultural products of this country. They recall that in 1911 we had an opportunity to enter the United States market and that that opportunity was offered to us by the Liberal party. Through the influence of the sinister campaign conducted by the high protectionists, through the Conservative party, in 1911 reciprocity was rejected.

Lower tariff and larger markets rank as Western Canadian needs. There is no hope for either of them through the high protection policy offered by Mr. Meighen. The home market is to be our only salvation if he should come to power. The tariff is to go up and not down.

The choice of the electors on October 29th is very clear. A vote for a Meighen candidate is a vote for increased protection and against any possibility of a larger market like that of the United States. Advt.

A vote for Dr. Rutledge is a vote for Meighen — a vote for Meighen is a vote for Higher Tariff.

Magna Charta conferred the right of private, personal ownership of property, which means the right to buy and sell free from artificial restrictions. The imposition of insane, piratical tariffs deprives us of that inalienable right.

Leave nothing undone to win the fight against tariff autocracy.

ITALIAN LABOR PROBLEMS

Rome, Oct. 5.—The most revolutionary step in the treatment of labor problems in Italy in the present generation has been taken with the adoption of an accord between the general confederation of industry and the federation of fascist labor unions.

Under the agreement, each of these organizations, representing respectively the employers and workers, recognizes the other as the sole body with which it is to deal in all questions affecting wages, general labor and employment.

Under it also a serious attempt will be made—backed by all the forces of the fascist movement — to overturn the principles that have governed the relations between capital and labor in Italy for more than 30 years.

The actual negotiations were brought to fruition by Deputy Farinacci, secretary of the fascist party, but the principles motivating them have been espoused by such experts as Minister of Justice Rocco, in accord with general lines laid down by Premier Mussolini.

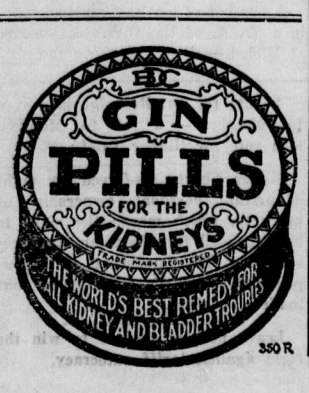
The kernel of these principles is that the old idea of socialist labor unionism has proved a failure because it was based on the theory of a class struggle to obtain the rights of workingmen, whereas the fascist principle, its exponents say, is that the best results can be obtained by class cooperation.

In other words, the fascist idea is that class struggle amounts to cutting off the nose to spite the face, whereas class cooperation means proper recognition, not only of the rights of manual labor but also those of capital, invention, direction and administration.

The fascists hold that the state has an indisputable right of tutelage over both capital and labor, to see that both get a square deal.

The tangible result of the accord will be that workers may belong to whatever organizations they choose, but if they wish to be represented effectively in matters concerning their wages and working conditions, they must belong to the fascist unions, through which all demands to the employers must pass.

Another important point is the abolition of the internal shop committee, the last remnant of the organization created by the workers during Giovanni Giolitti's premiership, when bolshevik workers dictated terms to the managements.



The new accord substitutes for these organizations committees appointed by fascist union heads instead of elected directly by the workmen.

GOOD ROADS NEEDED

At the approaching convention of the Good Roads League it should be emphasized that the needs of the interior are for wider roads if the Province is to reap the full benefit of the money expended upon the Fraser Canyon highway. It is anticipated that this highway will attract many tourists to B.C. Undoubtedly it will, but unless other roads are widened and improved the province will not experience the full benefit.

It is unfortunate that the early builders of roads did not have the foresight to construct them wider when it could have been done cheaply and with little extra trouble. As it is, while the residents may be accustomed to them, they are too thrilling in many instances for strangers accustomed to drive over wide highways at a higher speed than is prevalent here. That there are not more accidents is due to the caution of the drivers, but the continual necessity for the exercise of this quality robs motoring of some of its pleasures, while the resultant advertising is none too favorable.

The scenery along the interior highways cannot be surpassed anywhere for grandeur or beauty, but the condition of the roads should receive early attention. A case in point is the Summerland road, which will be strained to bear heavy motor traffic should such result through the opening of the Fraser Canyon highway.—Penticton Herald.

NOTABLE GROWTH IN FOX FARMING

A large increase in the number of fox farms and in the value of those farms in Canada, is shown for the year 1924 over the previous year. Last year there were 1466 farms, valued at $10,813,833, as compared with 1179 farms in the previous year, valued at $8,284,184. An even larger proportionate increase is shown in the number and value of other fur bearing animals' farms. The animals are; racoon, mink, skunk, marten, fisher, coyote, chinchilla and other kinds of rabbit and karakul sheep. In 1924 these farms numbered 84 and were valued at $125,587, as compared with 48 farms in 1923, valued at $99,445.

B.C. TIMBER SEED NOW IN DEMAND

In four years past there has been shipped from this Province nearly all the forest seed for growing the seedlings, of which cable dispatches tell that the British Forestry Commission will this year set out 39,000,000 trees increasing to 200,000,000 the total set out in the past five years in forest plantations in the Britis[illegible]sles.

This year, states Mr. E. Walmsley, Dominion Timber Agent at New Westminster, the British government has requested a supply of three and a half tons of Douglas fir seed, one ton of Sitka spruce, 200 pounds of lodge-pole pine seed, and a quantity of cedar.

At the same time the New Zealand government has requested 900 pounds of Douglas fir seed, 95 pounds of cedar seed and 50 pounds of lodge-pole pine seed. With the request is an inquiry as to the cost of double the quantity.

Mr. Walmsley states that it is doubtful if any fir seed can be obtained. Since the 1921 crop, the Douglas fir cones have carried no seed. It has apparently been a series of barren years. Neither in the Fraser Valley nor in the Coast and central interior parts of the province have cones carried matured seed. A price of $2.50 per sack for fir cones is being offered by the department. This is $1.00 higher than paid in 1921. To secure Sitka spruce cones, Mr. James Selkirk, chief fire ranger in the Dominion forest service, is now in Queen Charlotte Islands.

In 1921 cones were gathered in every district. In 1923 limited quantities of cones were secured. Last year a few sacks of Sitka spruce cones were received and the first shipment of lodge-pole pine cones.

Reports from field men in Provincial and Dominion forest services are that the Douglas fir seed crop is a failure again this year. Mr. Walmsley is hoping to get 1000 sacks of Sitka spruce cones from Queen Charlotte Islands, the source in former seasons. The lodge-pole pine comes from the north central area of the province.

Looking on the work as an Empire service, the Dominion government has organized and operated the seed extraction plant at cost in making its charges to the British Forestry Commission. The actual cost is but one-eighth of the market price of such seeds. Fir cones yield one and a quarter pounds of seed per sack, lodge-pole pine the same, Sitka spruce two pounds, and cedar half a pound.

Mr. Walmsley comments that since 1921, when the Dominion forest seed extraction plant, which is under his personal supervision, was established at New Westminster, there have been shipped to the British government nearly ten tons of seeds of the leading varieties of commercial timber trees native to this province. Of this quantity, four tons was Douglas fir seed, approximately five tons Sitka spruce and smaller quantities British Columbia red cedar and lodge-pole pine.

Results reported to the Dominion department by the British Forestry Commission show 65 per cent average germination of the seed shipped. Higher results than that have been reported from European countries to whose governments smaller quantities have been shipped.

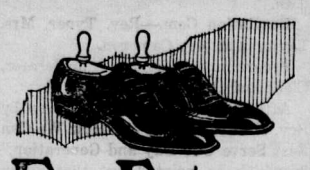
Douglas fir seed and Sitka spruce seed approximate the size, though not the shape, of a grain of wheat. Lodge-pole pine seed is slightly smaller, and cedar seed is extremely small and light.

Experiments with propagation of Douglas fir seedlings in Britain have been carried on for many years. Faced with the problem of replacing the forests in the British Isles cut for timber for war use, the British government made request for such large quantities of seed from British Columbia that the Dominion undertook the work of regular supply and built the seed-extraction plant.

Provided the supply of cones can be secured, the seed-extraction plant has a capacity of 300 pounds of seed every 24 hours. The cones from which the seed has been taken are used as fuel in the drykilns through which all are passed.

This year the plant will have added to it a special winnowing machine sent out by the British authorities, who believe it is an improvement on the ordinary fanning-mill used at present. All seed is recleaned two or three times, double-sacked and labelled before shipment.

Although Great Britain has been the chief recipient of the British Columbia forest seed, New Zealand, Tasmania and Australia have received small stocks, and the governments in each case have asked for more. European countries, supplied on requests from several governments, have been France, Norway, Sweden and Germany.



GOLF FOR 17½ MILES

A remarkable golfing feat has been accomplished near Winnipeg. Hugh Fletcher, the professional of a local golf club, teed off in front of a newspaper office and proceeded to play through the city streets, out into the country, over gravel roads and across pastures and ploughed fields in the direction of the 18th hole of the Winnipeg Golf Club's course.

Walking 17½ miles he reached this goal in 7½ hours, with 282 strokes to his credit, which was substantially below the lowest estimate made of his probable score. He encountered every possible kind of shot, and, strange to relate, finished with the same ball as he started with.

The invisible ear drum invented by A. O. Leonard, which is a miniature megaphone, fitting inside the ear entirely out of sight, is restoring the hearing of hundreds of people in New York city. Mr. Leonard invented this drum to relieve himself of deafness and head noises, and it does it so successfully that no one can tell he is a deaf man. It is effective when deafness is caused by catarrh or by wholly destroyed natural drums. A request for information to A. O. Victoria—The Department of Agriculture has fixed the date for the annual potato show, the fourth, for the period between November 25 and December 2. It will be held in the Armouries at New Westminster and is expected to be a great success.

The Minister of Finance has taken the opportunity more than once of late to state that the government will not abandon its succession duties. There has been considerable agitation in some quarters for such a step, although this form of taxation is very old and is in general force throughout the civilized world. As the minister points out, if this source of revnue was to be done away with it would be necessary to find the three-quarters of a million a year which it brings in by increasing taxation in some other form.

Several compliments have reached the Minister of Mines in regard to his action to prevent wildcat promotions in this Province and to protect investors in legitimate mining propositions. The Canadan Institute of Mining in Vancouver has just passed a flattering resolution on this subject.

That no investor in British Columbia municipal bonds has yet lost a dollar, although some municipalities have had their financial trouble, was the cheering statement made to the Union of B. C. Municipalities at its recent meeting in Victoria by the Inspector of Municipalities. The record was one, he said, of which the Province might well be proud. He detailed the difficulties which had to be met by some cities since the war, requiring legislative action and in some cases the appointment of a receiver, but these have all passed and the municipalities affected are again in good shape financially. For the future the Inspector believes that the people can rely upon a broadened interest on the part of the taxpayers and a greater regard by councils for sound administration to protect them from a repitition of mistaken policies and financial difficulties of the past.

THREE BIG STARS IN GOLDWYN FILM

Marie Prevost, May McAvoy and Ronald Colman, three well known film players, portray the leading roles in the George Fitzmaurice production, "Tarnish," a First National picture sponsored by Samuel Goldwyn, which is to be shown at the Orpheum Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

As Nettie Dark, the gold digging manicurist, Miss Prevost will be seen in a part that is distinctly unusual. Around the manicurist centers a great conflict between two young lovers, in addition to a domestic tangle, in which a doddering, but dandified old man, forgets his better self in order to appease his desire for excitement.

Miss McAvoy portrays the role of the girl in the romantic web. Upon her rests the burden of entangling the domestic mesh and the conflict she has with her lover, played by Mr. Colman. When the hue in her love affair turns to a tarnish and she learns that her lover has had an affair with the manicurist, she breaks her engagement. It is then that Carr realizes that he loves the girl more than aything else in the world, and he compels the manicurist to "square" him with his swetheart.

"Tarnish" is a comedy drama of everyday life, principally that of youth. It reveals certain issues in life, with a sober, simple, yet sweeping, grasp, bringing to light the fact that lust may tarnish, but that tarnish can be cleaned away.

Other prominent players in the cast include Norman Kerry, Harry Myers, Priscilla Bonner, Albet Gran and Mrs. Russ Whytall.

THE OTHER FELLOW'S VIEWS

One gathers from reading the New York Sun and some other journals that those Americans who make speeches or write articles favoring the participation of the United States in the direction of world affairs through the League of Nations and the World Court are propagandists, while those who make speeches and write articles opposing participation in world affairs are orators and statesmen.

It is an old practice to dub any reformer whose activities tend to disturb others as an agitator. Of late, any man of radical views has had to put up with being called a Bolshevik. The men who brought about Canadian autonomy, of which all now approve, had to put up with being called separists. The man who, forty years ago, did not always vote with his party was denounced as a turn-coat, although today it is the acknowledged right of every man in all elections to vote as he thinks fit.

The fact is that it has always been the habit of men to call their opponents names. One takes to it naturally as a small boy nad never outgrows it. If a man holds other views than your own, it is too often assumed that there is something wrong with him—that he is either stupid or crooked. But as the years pass there is to be observed a gradual improvement in the way of an increased tolerance, and among the educated a better perception of the truth, that in almost any set of circumstances there is likely to be honest differences of opinion among honest people.

THE CLOTHES THAT WOMEN WEAR

Too much fault is being found by men with women's dress. Women's aim is to please, and why should they not wear what they like or what they they think will appeal? They know better what suits them than the male sex does. A dress has to be mighty fetching to attract the attention of a man, anyway. He usually has not the slightest idea what it is a woman has worn, particularly if she happens to be his wife or sister.

Here are women today looking smarter than ever, with healthy, comfortable styles, yet the men are crabbing about them as never before. In the old days when women wore hideous leg-of-mutton sleeves men did not protest overmuch. They only jeered mildly when ladies' dresses swept the sidewalks, gathering up dust and dirt of all sorts; when even the smartest dresses looked dowdy.

Old Uncle Jones went into a life insurance office and requested a policy.

"Why, uncle," said the president, "you are too old for us to take the risk. How old are you?"

"Ninety-seven come net August," said the old man, and added testily, "If you folk take the trouble to look up your statistics, you'll find that mighty few men die after they're 97."

"That's me all over, Mabel," said the water from the shower as it fell on the dainty maid.

DO YOU KNOW

That it costs you nothing and it will pay you to thoroughly investigate the Silver Fox Industry?

That statistics show that during the last ten years wild fur-bearing animals have decreased 500% and that fur wearers have increased 500%.

That present and future generations will demand fine furs and circumstances compel us to raise them in captivity?

That the Silver Fox is easily domesticated and adapts itself to pen life better than any other fur-bearing animal?

That statistics show that from 1900 to 1922 that all good Silver pelts averaged $397.50 each?

That when two governments, like those of Canada and the United States, approve and endorse the breeding and raising of Silver Foxes as a business for making "enormous profits," does it mean much to you?

That now is the season to book your orders and be assured of a good quality, and if interested write for full particulars to

COMMUNICATION

To the Editor—Dear Sir:

Now that all constituencies have nominated their candidates it can be told how Hon. J. H. King, East Kootenay's representative in the last Parliament, firmly refused in turn to run in each of the large coast constituencies which for years have been anxious to take the Minister of Public Works away from the interior.

Vancouver, Victoria, North Vancouver, South Vancouver, New Westminster all were ready to give Dr. King a unanimous Liberal nomination. The strongest kind of pressure was brought to bear upon the Minister in Ottawa as long as six months ago to be a candidate in Vancouver where his election was a certainty. In Victoria Liberal leaders sought him as a certain victor over Hon. S. F. Tolmie, one of Mr. Meighen's chief lieutenants. In North Vancouver, South Vancouver or New Westminster he was offered a seat for which he would not have needed even to go through the motions of a campaign. All these offers Dr. King refused from the start. Last-minute efforts to switch him from the interior to the coast likewise failed.

The Coast constituencies had several good reasons for wanting Dr. King to become their representative. For years they have wanted a Cabinet representative, well knowing that a minister is worth half a dozen private members to any constituency. The Portfolio of Public Works, which Dr. King holds and will continue to hold after the election, is regarded on the coast, as in every other part of Canada, as one of the first in importance in the Canadian Government and, from the standpoint of individual constituencies, by far the most important of all. On this account the coast has envied the interior ever since Dr. King was selected from among all the Liberals of British Columbia to handle the public works of Canada.

In the second place, Dr. King's candidature was sufficient to carry any coast riding. By securing him as their nominee Liberal leaders would have cut the Conservatives' ground from under them. Months ago when rumors of Dr. King running in Vancouver spread through Ottawa Hon. H. H. Stevens, the Vancouver member and one of the leading Conservatives in the House of Commons, became frankly alarmed. Conservative organizers began to look for a seat for Mr. Stevens in the East so that he would not have to oppose Dr. King. Vancouver, eager for representation in the Cabinet and particularly in the Public Works Portfolio, unquestionably would have given Dr. King a tremendous majority. Victoria, with the same objective, would have snowed Dr. Tolmie under. The other constituencies around Vancouver were offered to the Minister as "soft spots" where he could be elected without addressing a single meeting.

Dr. King's personal popularity on the coast was not overlooked in these overtures either. No member of the Federal Government is so well known on the coast as the interior minister and no one is so popular. Thepacked audiences which turned out to hear him everywhere on his recent trip to the Coast indicated a personal regard which any local member might envy. On the Coast Dr. King is regarded as British Columbia's Cabinet Minister and the only thing that the Coast regrets about Dr. King is that he represents East Kootenay instead of a Coast constituency.

Only by disappointing some of his best friends and dashing the hopes of many political suporters could Dr. King refuse the Coast overtures made to him in the last few months. From the very start, however, he declined flatly to leave the interior, which is his home and where he has spent the better part of his life. Liberals who came all the way from the Coast to Ottawa during the last session of Parliament to tender him any Coast nomination he wanted were told frankly that the Minister could not accept these flattering offers. And when these porposals were made again with renewed pressure some time ago they received the same answer. Dr. King never had any intention of deserting the interior.

Thanking you, Yours truly,
Liberal.

THE SENATE

All the countries in the world which have drawn from the well of British representative institutions have Senates, not all constituted in the same way, but all created for a similar purpose, that of acting as a check upon the popular assembly. — Ottawa Journal.

And they certainly do act as a check on representative institutions—which is regarded as an excellent thing by those who do not believe in representative institutions, but find it expedient to yield (as much as necessary but as little as possible) to democratic ideas.

Still, if we are to "draw from the well" of British example why not keep on doing so by limiting the Senate's powers of mischief as the British parliaiment has done with the House of Lords?

HEALTH INSURANCE

An opportunity, partially at least neglected in the business world, is that of insurance against ill health. There are many kinds of insurance; indeed, the business has been rapidly developed, but there is much that yet remains to be done in bringing about a fuller realization that ill-health should be made an insurable risk. Lord Dawson recently told the Insurance Institute of London that health insurance as a branch of business is but slightly developed. On the basis of the prolongation of human life and the practical elimination of certain diseases and the curbing of the incidence of others, the field for health insurance is now open. Typhoid fever is almost a thing of the past. There is a decline in tuberculosis statistics. Modern treatment of diphtheria has greatly reduced the ravages of that disease, and surgery during the past half century has developed to such a degree that what were before the emergencies of life and death can be more distinctly measured than in the past.

At present one of the chief menaces to continued good health is cancer. Little progress has been made in the campaign against this disease. It exacts a heavy toll and particularly between the ages of 40 and 60. Diabetes, however, is being coped with, and many other diseases have been brought under control by the extension of medical knowledge. The opportunity would seem ripe for a more widespread development of health insurance. Such insurance could be readily made to appeal to all. It would provide medical benefits and indemnify the insurer against loss of working power. Health insurance is now available to a degree, but not to the extent where the appeal stretches out to all. Wherein it does not a business opportunity is being neglected.

EYE SIGHT INSURANCE

You insure your automobile, piano, home—health. Why not your eye sight?

Proper, scientific examination of your eyes and the application of properly fitted glasses constitute eye sight insurance—and comfort. That is what our service is. We do not use any drugs.

CANADA'S WAR HISTORY

Have you any war diaries, secret maps or official documents of any sort amongst your war souvenirs?

If so, the historical section of the department of national defense at Ottawa would like to have a look at them. For the story of Canada's part in the world war is now being officially compiled.

"The story," says the minister of defense in his latest report, "of a personal experience may often throw light on some point official records leave obscure; and it sometimes transpires that neither originals nor copies of official documents, which have been retained by individual officers or units, are available. There must be many ex-officers and other ranks of the C.E.F. who are in possession of such material, and it would be of immense service to the historical section if the documents could be placed at its disposal."

Despite the fact that there are literally tons of documents and maps now being sorted in this work of writing Canada's official war history, the section undertakes to make copies of such material and return the originals to their owners.

In course of time, the government proposes to issue the complete official history of every unit of the Canadian forces in the war. It will probably be twenty years before it is done. But in the end, the name of every man who took part will be officially in type, every deed of valor described, every move of every unit faithfully set down.

Sir Andrew Macphail's book on the medical services is the first considerable piece of this work to be published.

When you consider that every little incident of the day's routine in military affairs has to be recorded in a written order, and that of every order so written a copy was taken and filed and returned regularly to the base, to be preserved, the amount of material that has been handed over to the historical section has been enormous. Every unit in the army added to this constant stream of paper flowing to storehouses at the bases. A battle resulted in dozens of pounds of documents from each battalion, battery and company.

To clear the air, each unit had to keep a daily "war diary." In this diary were entered all cold facts as to movements, losses or reinforcements.

The six years since the war ended has resuted in a considerable sorting into files of all these documents. And as a foundation, the skeleton histories of all the pre-war militia units has been completed. In a way, this is not very hot war history. But the share of the different militia units in recruiting men for active service is the foundation of the actual war story that is yet to come.

Six regimental histories are now in process of being written by the regiments themselves, these being the 4th C.M.R., the Royal Canadian Dragoons, the Royal Canadian Regiment, the 13th and 42nd Battalions, Royal Highlanders of Montreal, and the 9th Canadian Railway Troops.

The men writing these histories have been helped to the full extent by the historical section. The minister makes the comment with regard to the 4th C.M.R. history, that the war was generally regarded as a stationary war entirely, but it was discovered in this unit's case that in its 42 months of service its headquarters were established in 209 different places.

Another interesting item was the compiling of a list of surviving officers of the whole Canadian Corps who were of the rank of colonel and upwards, and there are in Canada 382 of them.

Ultimately, a bare record of every unit, containing the names of every member and his service, will be got to. Last year, 5700 separate files were completed on different phases of various units. In writing the story of the famous battle of Ypres in 1915, the discovery was made that no fewer than 6 British cavalry regiments and 37 British infantry battalions were attached to the First Canadian division for some period of time in the course of the ten days' fighting.

To record the true, official story of that famous Canadian battle, it has been necessary to get at the records in England of each and every one of these 43 British units, which outnumbered the Canadian units, 43 to 13.

The next official history to be issued following Sir Andrew Macphail's much discussed medical history, is to be the Engineers.

The 4th C.M.R. history, now approaching completion, is being written by a writer selected by the committee of ex-members of the regiment who are trustees of the regiment's canteen fund. It is to be an official statement of all movements, actions and personnel of the battalion's 42 months' service. Following the publication of this history, a group of ex-officers of that Toronto regiment have arranged to use it as the basis of an "Unofficial History of the 4th C.M.R.," which will be a story written in the popular style of fiction, relating in adventurous detail the ups and down of the battalion, its heroes, its characters, somewhat in the "Now It Can Be Told" style.

One would think that every unit in the corps would have by now, after seven years, have published some sort of story of its doings in the war. The principal reason why so few units have written histories is the scatteration of ex-members to all parts of the Dominion, making the publication of a history a gamble as far as paying for itself is concerned.

Most of the troops will be old men before the individual monographs come out. An done of the humors of that day will be the difference between the stories told by the old soldiers—which improve with age—and the story drawn from the documents, which age will not embellish the least bit.

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING.

Premier King has said:

"I Promise the West Impartial Justice and Equal Treatment"

His famous Order-in-Council is concrete evidence that he means to carry out this policy. The Order reads:

> "The Committee are of the opinion that the policy of equalization of freight rates should be recognized as being the only means of dealing equitably with all parts of Canada, and as a means of encouragement of industry and agriculture, and the development of export trade."

Contrast this policy with the statement of Mr. Meighan, which his followers - the Conservative Candidates -- will be compelled to support by reason of the pledges of the Conservative Candidates in the East. Meighan said:

> "There has been a measure of relief for the West by means of equalization of freight rates, which is utterly indefensible."

There you have the policy as it will be applied to the West, of the two parties who now ask your endorsation.

The policy of the Liberal Candidates is to populate the West. Population will come where it is profitable to live. Open Canada's natural trade routes to the world's markets, for the tremendous natural resources of the West. Equalize freight rates Westward, and you will have turned the key that unlocks the door to prosperity.

A definite example of what these discriminating rates are costing the West -- as they affect the fruit growers of British Columbia -- is found in these figures:

> From Grimsby to Montreal, it is 390 miles -- and the rate is 95c per 100 lbs.
> From Vernon to Calgary, it is 340 miles and the rate is $2.40 per 100 lbs.

The same discrimination is applicable to all lines of Western production. This is startingly evident when you ascertain that in the six years previous to 1921, the West contributed $174,000,000 net profit to the Canadian Pacific Railway --- while the East, with its greater population, contributed but $81,500,000 --- less than half.

You must decide whether the man you send to Ottawa shall be controlled by the Canadian Pacific Railway and the interests of the East --- who, for narrow, selfish reasons are antagonistic to the West --- or, whether you will send a man to support a leader in the person of the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, who believe's he is serving the best interests of the whole Dominion by giving impartial justice and equal treatment to the West.

Vote for Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Liberal Candidate

WHEN DOCTORS DO DIFFER

When doctors differ, what is a layman to think or do? As a rule, like members of other professions bound by common interest and the strong if slender cord of ethics, the medical brethren stick by one another. If one practitioner does not in the least agree with another, he politely buries the essential fact beneath long words and technical phrases, on being forced to a declaration of opinion. Occasionally, however, the rare exception presents himself—a medical man who, taking issue with the orthodoxy of his clan, comes right out and says so, in good blunt English that all can understand and no one misunderstand. Dr. Fewster of Vancouver is such a man.

There was a meeting of the anti-vivisectionists in Victoria last week, at which Dr. Fewster spoke on "Medical Fallacies." The matter of his talk was electrifying, and doubtless steps will be taken within the professional circles to discipline him for what many of the regulars will denounce as rankest heresy. For did he not more than hint that the medical practitioner —the medical profession—latterly has usurped the position and authority in ages past claimed and exercised by the priesthood? While the priest of mediaevalism terrorized and terrified his flock by vivid descriptions of hell torments, the modern doctor frightens the common herd with liberal promises of all manner of evils, inclusive of certain death, if they do not accept the complete series of nostrums and anti-toxins put forth by the physicians' cult. Furthermore they threaten to ram their doses down the reluctant throat of the suffering public by the strong arm of law.

This has been amply demonstrated, Dr. Fewster noted, in the steps recently taken by the local government to force vaccination on Vancouverites and Victorians. Fortunately they had as yet got only as far as the schools, but it would be only a matter of time —as in the Army—when all private individuals would be brought under the aegis and compelled to accept the dicta of the medical profession. Dr. Fewster demonstrated how very questionable in force or reliability are the authoritative statistics upon which these ideas are based and on which compulsory edicts are justified theoretically. There is, these days, a prevalent mania for statistics, by reason of which numbers are employed in government offices at the tax-payers' cost, compiling masses of figures upon about every subject under the sun, for verifying or justifying the actions of the medical and other professions in establishing a kind of dogma for doing things repugnant to the genius of a free country and a free people.

It has been only in recent years, backed by the great and wealthy drug syndicates, that these anti-toxins have been forced on the public—their efficacy, at best, still open to question. There were no fewer than one hundred and sixteen drug stores in Vancouver alone, which might well be served by comparatively few had not the drug habit laid hold upon so large a proportion of the modern population, who might be said to subsist on drugs. Most of these tonic nostrums he declared to be based on alcoholic and opiate contents; and many of the addicts, now become so common in the cities, unquestionably traced their slavery back to its origin in the professional practice of giving opiates, often unnecessarily—of which he cited instances where practising doctors had transformed their patients into opium fiends. And this was done, he declared, without conscientious scruple, regarded as a lucrative source of revenue to both doctor and druggist, working in close association.

What is loosely called "the drug habit," Dr. Fewster declared to be growing. With it had come a corresponding filling of the jails and hospitals for the insane, each and all maintained necessarily out of the taxes of the people. It had become a most serious matter—this reinforcement of the criminal population and, worse still, the partially or wholly demented, whom humanity dictates must be kept at the public cost. Speaking personally he said, in twenty-five years' practice in Vancouver, he never had had to resort to any of these new antidotes; while on the matter of vaccination, his mind had been made up after long investigation and serious reflection, that there were many medical fallacies that would not stand up under common-sense examination and were accepted by the public simply on faith, often with serious results. In this connection he cited and contrasted statistics as to smallpox, typhus, measles and various other diseases, taken at the same time from government reports, all of which diseases had decreased in proportion to the introduction of improved sanitation. In connection with recent scares raised as to smallpox, either of vaccinated or un-vaccinated. Most of the cases had, in fact, been nothing more alarming than chickenpox foisted upon the public as smallpox in order to alarm it for its safety and compel unprotesting compliance with professional orders. Of all such diseases, he would himself prefer to have smallpox unvaccinat ed than any of the other diseases, these having a higher ratio of mortality. Out of eleven cases of diphtheria in his own practice recently, he had not lost one; and he had refused to use anti-toxin, the boasted specific remedy.

On the question of vivisection, Dr. Fewster described some of the horrible examples of this phase of scientific experimentation, taken from medical journals, until the more tender-hearted of his audience put fingers in ears, refusing to listen.

"I sympathize with you as to the enormity of such outrages," said the speaker, "but the world must know the truth. The only way to put a stop to such inhuman practices is by rousing the conscience of the public and stimulating its sense of duty, from conscientious motives. It has time and again been proven that nothing has ever yet been attained for the good of humanity through vivisection, and yet thousands of animals yearly are subjected by vivisectionists to cruelties so diabolical in their nature that they cannot be described in words or type. I never yet have known a man who practised vivisection who did not himself become so demoralized and debased that he was ready to work similar atrocities on humanity, without pang or scruple. In the history of the nations, all fell when they began to practice cruelties in their orgies, and taught it to the masses. It was this internal trouble that killed Greece and Rome, Assyria and Egypt. But the height of the greatest civilization of these nations was when the priest and the medical profession combined to lift humanity to the feet of the Infinite and draw down form above the vital forces of Nature for a Divine end, and without cruelties or diabolicism such as characterize those who practice vivisection on either humanity or the lower animals."

"Early in life I was laid up with diphtheria," narrated Mr. Leeming, in moving a vote of thanks to the lecturer, "with eleven others, all of whom died. I alone recovered. This I attribute to the fact that the nurse who had charge of my case destroyed the medicine that the medical man had ordered, that was supposed to cure, but which I verily believe killed all the others. Since then I have always been skeptical as to nostrums and have shunned the drug-stores."

DO WE SLEEP TOO MUCH?

Is sleep, taken in too big doses, a drug which dulls the intellect and fills the body with poisons? Dr. Fred A. Moss, professor of psychology at George Washington University, Washington, D. C., believes that this conclusion may result from a data gathered by a test during which the experimenter and eight of his students subjected themselves to an ordeal of sixty slumberless hours. All of them, four men and four women, in perfect physical condition, we are told by the Boston Globe, emerged from the test apparently none the worse. Long automobile drives through the villages surrounding Washington, dances, singing, frequent and rigid examinations by university physicians, and attention to the routine daily tasks helped to while away the long hours. We read:

"It required courage and tenacity, Professor Moss admits, to fight off the persistent demands of Morpheus; but after the first sleepless night, it was not so hard. Once routed, slumber was more cautious in its future approaches. At the end of the vigil, when they were free to go to their beds, none of the students showed any tendency toward prolonged sleep.

"The tests will be repeated soon. Dr. Moss believes that they have opened up for both physicians and psychologists a research field of the utmost importance, and may have pointed the way to a definite lengthening of human life, even aside from the working and playing time which can be rescued from the oblivion of blankets and mattresses.

"It is too early as yet, he says, to make any definite statement on the results of the tests. All those who took them have returned to their customary activities. The general results, however, seem to indicate that sleep is of little benefit to the mind, and that the only bad effects of prolonged sleeplessness are to be sought in the body, rather than the brain.

"One of the unexpected conditions noticed was that the blood-pressure of every student dropt hourly after the first twenty hours, the rate of decline iscreasing quite rapidly as the vigil progressed. On the other hand, the capacity for mental activity as revealed by the auto parking and army alpha tests decreased very slowly.

"That sleep is essential for the body, Dr. Moss admitted from the first. He is not convinced, however, that the customary eight hours of slumber is beneficial .

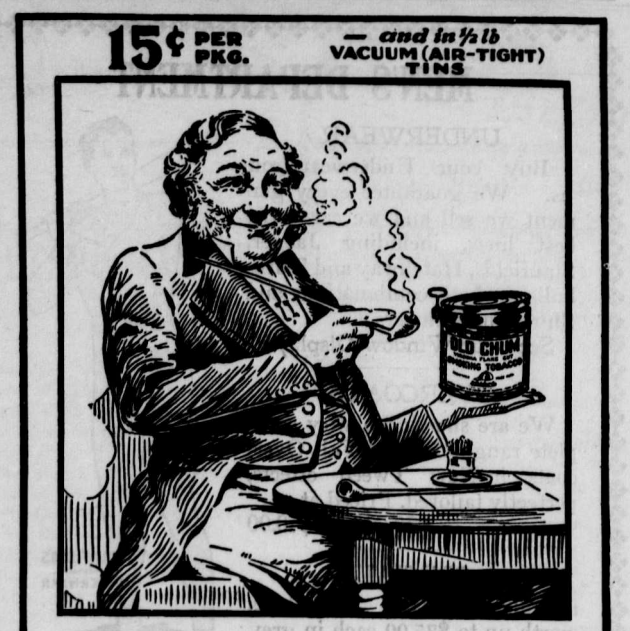
"Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, head of the department of bacteriology at George Washington Medical School, discovered that the white corpuscles in the blood of the sleepless subjects increased sharply as the hours of wakefulness increased. Hitherto physicians have accepted multiplication of the white corpuscles to indicate the presence of infection. Now, it seems, it is an indication also of nervous strain or fatigue.

"On the mental side, Dr. Moss found the notable fact that a man is able to stand sleeplessness no better than a woman. Subjects of both sexes showed about the same reactions at the end. One man of twenty-eight appeared to stand the test beter than a youth of seventeen. But the boy returned to complete normality sooner, showing the recuperative powers of youth.

"Food proved to be a factor. Four of the subjects went on an eighteen hour fast during the test, and felt quite sick at the end. After a good meal, however, they were fully restored, to continue to the end of the ordeal.

"Results which still are to be determined relate to the effect of caffeine. Those who are coffee-drinkers abstained completely. Those who never drink coffee partook of it in considerable quantities. Dr. Moss expects it to prove that coffee really has nothing to do with sleeplessness, in spite of the old-fashioned idea that a cup before bedtime will keep the subject awake.

"He figures that if a third of the customary sleeping time could be cut off, the individual could add five years of working time to the average life."



This may be all very well, comments the Philadelphia Record, but it is to be hoped that the general public will not be inspired to try upon itself any such experiments with the help of prolonging life by stealing hours that have ordinarily been given to the restoration of nature in a comfortable bed, for "it is probably true that some of us sleep too much; but it is equally true that many of us sleep entirely too little. It is a deplorable fact that Americans as a whole are entirely too wide-awake and therefore more nervous than they should be." The New Haven Register thinks that the results of the test explain in some degree the oddities of genius. It says:

"Writers and composers have been known to get their greatest inspirations in the times of wakefulness or in times of stress, and if the experiment at George Washington University bears out the partial conclusion that the body and not the mind suffers by loss of sleep that conclusion would fit with the most modern psychological theory that the greatest height of the mind is reached only by a weakening of the body."

If the object of this test is to prove that we can all get along with much less sleep than we now take or to reassure sufferers from insomnia that their health is not being endangered, some good may come from the experiment, thinks the Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph. We read:

"Thomas A. Edison has always been held up as the classic example of the needlessness of long hours of somnolence. Like Napoleon, he is said to be able to get along with only four or five hours of sleep in the twenty-four. But a recent interviewer tells us that the great inventor is accustomed to lie down for brief naps during the day whenever he can find the time. Probably Napoleon also did more or less dozing in odd moments. Indeed, it is said he possest the faculty of going to sleep in the midst of a battle for a 'cat nap.'

"But most of us would be more grateful to the scientists if they could show us, not how to sleep less, but to get a little more sleep during these nights of wide-open windows and neighbors who persist in letting automobile engines run to the accompaniment of stentorian conversations on the front porch. Not how to keep awake but how to get some sleep is the real problem."

FIRE PROTECTION IS UNFINISHED BUSINESS

That is the conclusion of Raymond C. Willoughby, in Nation's Business, after checking up on the 1924 fire losses in the United States. The records show that nearly 15,000 persons were burned to death in fires last year and more than 16,000 were injured. About 80 per cent were dependents—mothers, children and inmates of state institutions.

That is the tragedy of fire. The property loss is enormous. In 1924 it was $548,810,639, as against $121,437,000 10 years before. The 1924 fire loss was the greatest ever recored by the nation and greater than any other nation ever suffered. It averaged $1,503,500 a day, or $1044 for each minute of the year.

The actuaries check off causes of fire carefully. What do their reports show? Matches and smoking caused losses of $29,054,007; defective chimneys and flues, $20,828,162; stoves, furnaces and boilers $18,658,248; sparks on roofs, $15,931,342; electricity, $14,091,789. Nearly all such fires could have been prevented by proper vigilance and without great expense to the owners. Like so many others, they have let fire protection stand under the head of unfinished business.

THE FERNIE CEMETERY

Some one has said that "a community may be judged by the way it cares for the burial place of its dead." We feel that there is much truth in this statement for we have often noticed that in a community where the moral tone is high the cemeteries of the place are well cared for. This kindly respect and thought for the dead is indicative of those human qualities which alone make civilizaton worth while.

This city has its cemetery on a beautiful hillside overlooking the best view obtainable of our mountain surroundings. The property belongs to the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., who, for a small sum, sell the plots to individuals desiring to purchase. In most places this would be a decided disadvantage, for most of the companies would be slow to improve a non-revenue producing property. However, so far as Fernie is concerned, this matter of company ownership has proved a blessing. Considerable money has been annually spent in improving this property, but during the past summer all previous records have been broken. The cemetery has now been enlarged, thoroughly renovated by the removal of useless shrubs, trees, etc., and surrounded by a sightly and substantial fence. New gates have also been provided at the entrance and exits, and water is available to plot owners. The cemetery is now a credit to this community.

We are sure that the people of Fernie and district will always hold W. R. Wilson in grateful remembrance for the splendid contribution which he has made to this cause. His own funds have augmented what the company would have spent and the work has received his personal supervision. We are glad that Mayor Irvine and the city council saw fit to aid to the extent of gravelling the road leading to the cemetery and some of the roads within its boundaries.

What is now needed is a new and deeper interest on the part of plot owners. There has been a great revival in this respect during the past summer. We trust that the example set by the few will be followed by the many, and if this is done our cemetery can easily be made the most beautiful in the interior of British Columbia.

UNITED CHURCH IN MEET AT END MONTH

Vancouver, Oct. 12.—Opening on Saturday, Oct. 31, and continuing until Nov. 5, the first convention of the British Columbia section of the United Church will be held here.

At the inauguration of the convention, Rev. G. C. Pigeon, D.D., of Bloor street church, Toronto, moderator of the United church, will deliver the address to the delegates who will be representative of all the districts of the province.

It is expected a number will remain in the city to take part in the tenth annual convention to be held under the auspices of the B.C. Prohibition association on Nov. 5 and 6.

At this convention it is understtood steps will be taken to have another plebiscite taken in the near future on the subject of the sale of liquor.

Hon. J. H. King, federal minister of public works, will devote some time to a campaign in support of L. W. Humphrey, labor candidate in West Kootenay. Dr. King's plans, announced before he left the coast for the interior, call for a number of meetings in Yale constituency, after which he will return to the Kootenay country.

URGE HIGHER RATE BY COMPENSATION BOARD

Victoria, Oct. 12. — Far-reaching changes in the Workmen's Compensation Act, so as to provide greater compensation for workmen and their dependents in case of accident, were urged before the cabinet today by a delegation representing all the railroad unions of B.C. and headed by E. J. Solloway.

One amendment to the act proposed by the unions would increase the compensation to injured men from 62½ per cent to 75 per cent. Another would raise the allowance to widows from $35 to $40 a month, and the allowance for each child from $7.50 to $10.

CITY POLICE NABBED HIM

About three weeks ago the city police arrested a young man named Morrison on a vagrancy charge and on looking over the contents of his suit case found that he had a considerable amount of brand new clothing. Chief Anderson suspected these articles were stolen goods and could get no satisfactory explanation from Morrison as to how they came to be in his possession.

Morrison was brought up before the local magistrate and given a term in jail, during which time Chief Anderson sent out descriptions of the clothing to the various police headquarters in B.C. and Alberta. Finally the Alberta provincial police ascertained that the clothing was part of a quantity stolen from the store of W. B. Rogers, at Granum, Alta., and sent an officer to Fernie to take Morrison to Granum to answer a charge of burglary.

In the preliminary trial at Granum Morrison said he came from B.C., and had been on the prairie looking for work. He had come to Granum by a freight train on the night of the robbery and had hid in the basement entrance until everything was quiet and then forced the door. He then walked to McLeod and boarded a freight train, planning to beat his way into B.C., and fell into the hands of the police here on the vagrancy charge.

THE WINNING BALL GAME

Pittsburg, Oct. 15.—In the greatest fighting finish ever recorded in the world's series, the Pittsburg Pirates beat Washington 9-7, and won the world's series here today. Spotted four runs in the first inning, when Vic Alridge lost control and was yanked, the Senators looked easy victors, but the steady drive of the Pittsburg sticks slashed Walter Johnson's delivery for 15 hits, and battled back into the lead.

Peckinpaugh's error in the seventh let the Pirates pull even, and then in the eighth he redeemed himself momentarily when he lased out a homer to put Wasington in front again, but his error in throwing wide to second in the eighth extended the life of the Pittsburg sluggers long enough to enable Cuyler to rip a double to centre, scoring the two winning counts. Carey was the hiting sensation of the day, getting four out of five times up, including three doubles.

Seven hundred and thirty-three former Canadians, who have lived in the United States for more than six months, returned to Canada in the first nine days of October to make their permanent home here. In the same period, 479 immigrants entered Canada from the United States, and the entry of tourists and other non-immigrants reached 376,255.

GETTING AFTER THE REDS

London, Oct. 14.—The police today raided the headquarters of the Communist party in London, and also one o ftheLo ndon branch offices, and arrested six Communist officials. Numerous papers and publications were seized.

The Communist political bureau later issued a statement describing the incident as the "first step in the new attack on the working class."

This, says the bureau, was foreseen, and it relates the party's advice to form a workers' defence corps.

"The Communist party," it declares, "will not and cannot be smashed. Close the ranks, strengthen the party, continue to fight for working class units against the coming capitalist offensive."

The Daily Mail gives the names of those arrested as Albert Inkpin, secretary of the Communist party; John Campbell, editor of the Workers' Weekly; Harry Pollitt, secretary of the national minority movement; E. Cant, party organizer; W. Rust, secretary of the Young Communist league, and T. H. Wintringham, member of the staff of the Workers' Weekly.

They will be charged in the Bow street court tomorrow with conspiring to incite sedition and mutiny. The Mail adds that 2warrants have been issued for two other members of the Communist executive, W. Gullacher and T. Bell.

Albert Inkpin was closely identified with the efforts of the Communists at the recent parliamentary Labor congress at Liverpool to become affiliated with the Labor party.

Harry Pollitt last March was kidnaped from a train from which he was proceeding from Liverpool to attend a demonstration, but after a day or two was released by his captors.

The prisoners were taken to Bow street, but refused to have their prints recorded.

The police took the names and addesses of all the clerks and other employees at the Communist headquarters, which has been the distributing centre of propaganda publications and the Workers' Weekly. Three vanloads of documents, papers, account books, posters, handbills and pamphlets were removed to Scotland Yard, where they will be sorted and examined.

It is recalled that aside from general subversive propaganda, the Communists were accused of spreading pamphlets during the recent maneuvers, and in the various barracks and naval centres, urging the soldiers and sailors to mutiny.

James R. Campbell is the same Campbell who was indirectly responsible for the fall of the Macdonald labor government in 1924. He had been charged with attempting to cause sedition among the armed forces, but the prosecution was dropped owing to the evidence being insufficient to justify conviction.

A motion was introduced in the house of commons that a select commitete be appointed to investigate the action of the attorney-general in withdrawing the charge, but the government declined to accept the motion. Parliament was adjourned, and later was dissolved. The government resigned Nov. 4.

VERY SERIOUS FOR FERNIE

Fernie, B.C., Oct. 15, 1925.

Editor Fernie Free Press:

Would you kindly insert the following as it is a mtter of vital interest to the citizens of Fernie, Coal Creek, Michel and Corbin:

An election issue which vitally affects every citizen of Fernie, Coal Creek, Michel and Corbin was placed before the residents of Canmore, Alta., at a political meeting on the night of Oct. 8. R. B. Bennett, Conservative candidate for West Calgary, and right hand man of Mr. Meighen, the Conservative leader, made the following pronouncement as reported by the Calgary Herald:

"I propose placing a prohibitive duty to keep the American coal out of the country, to give Alberta's industry an even chance against American competition."

The placing of an additional $1.00 or even 50c per ton duty on coal coming into Canada would result in a like increase on our coal going into the United States. This undoubtedly would result in the loss of our present American market without which everyone knows our mines would be obliged to close.

During the past six months our mines at Coal Creek Michel and Corbin have been working steadily, while the mines of Coleman, Blairmore and other Alberta points have worked but one, two or three shifts per week. The American market is wholly responsible for the steady work in the mines of our district, and without the American market we would be faced with an entire closing down, or at any rate with a condition no better than the coal mining towns in Alberta are today.

This is a serious matter we have before us and should be given earnest consideration. We should take no chances on a Conservative candidate being elected in this Kootenay riding. We should protect our home property and our home industry, which is coal mining, by voting Liberal in this coming election. Dr. King, the Liberal candidate, is pledged to a medium tariff policy and is desirous of friendly trading arrangements with the United States, where our future coal markets must remain. Dr. Rutledge, the Conservative candidate, is pledged to support Mr. Meighen and Mr. Bennett, who are both advocating an increased tariff.

It is well to also take heed that the Fordney-McCumber tariff of the United States automatically advances the American tariff with any advance in tariff placed on American coal coming into Canada, and if Mr. Meighen and Mr. Bennett, supported by Dr. Rutledge, were in the position to place a high tariff on coal, Fernie would be industrially doomed.

The records for 1923, and for 1925, up to the end of August, show that shipments of coal through Gateway and Eastport to the United States have been as follows:

	Tons	Value
1923
Jan.-Dec.	452,899	$2,193,969.00
1924—
January	12,469	73,874.00
February	15,340	69,974.00
March	22,947	75,960.00
April	21,912	75,015.00
May	25,297	96,359.00
June	20,942	82,749.00
July	20,755	82,163.00
August	19,873	81,148.00

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

Citizen.

PUBLIC MEETING

GRAND THEATRE, Fernie, WED. OCT. 21 AT 8.30

Speakers: Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Liberal Candidate and Col. Thompson

COMMUNISM AND BRITISH LABOR

The recent action of the British Labor party in bodily kicking out the Reds is in contrast to the earlier Trades Unionist Congress which went more than half way toward accepting Communistic principles. The Congress, while it did not swallow the ideas of the firebrand Wheatley who wants to arm ten million workers to destroy the whole social and industrial organization of Great Britain, and start a millennium on the ruins, certainly gave countenance to every resolution proposed which slanted toward the Russian aim of dismembering the British Empire; and its proposal to hand over the control of factories to shop committees meant of course industrial anarchy. Wheatley's method suggests the wisdom of a rancher who would set fire to his grazing lands and then turn out his cattle to get a living off the cinders; and it is encouraging that British Trade Unionists are not as yet prepared to go to that length.

There is no doubt, however, that Communism has made such inroads on the British masses as to alarm the wiser leaders of the Labor party and to provoke the formation of counter-organizations among the people at large. The historic Conservative weekly, "The Saturday Review," fears that some of these counter measures are, by their impulsiveness, helping to play the Comunistic game. It thinks that Britain should not take every nascent Mussolini literally, any more than it should regard seriously every British aspirant to the fame of Trotsky. It does not think that the cause of government will be helped very much by brawling, even when so-called Fascisti succeed in worsting Communists. It believes that to attack the minority movement of the latter by extra-legal methods, is merely to set going another minority movement, without the international machinery that the Reds obviously possess.

It is pointed out that in Great Britain, Communism would be nothing if it were not that it is getting hold of Trade Unionism. Its strength depends on the extent to which it can acquire control of the machinery of established Labor organizations; and since this is so, it should be attacked within the ranks of Labor. The old Trades Union leaders hold to a belief in parliamentary methods; and the "Saturday Review" is of the opinion that though ultimately Communism is a menace to the nation as a whole, it primarily threatens Labor. On Labor then must devolve the task of fighting it at the present stage. If the Trade Unions do not render Communism powerless by denying it control of their machinery, it will destroy Labor by wrecking all means of collective bargaining. Brawling by outside organizations will not help the cause of internal correction.

However it would be dangerous, not to say impossible, to expect the rest of the nation to stand aside as impartial spectators, while a battle involving its fate was in progress. The suggestion is that the various law-and-order or so-called fascist organizations, should meet the situation not by brawling but by united effort to form one strong, voluntary, law-respecting body, which the government could call on to strengthen its hands in any serious emergency that might arise. If government is to be respected anything that is done should be in co-operation with the government, and not in the form of irresponsible extra-governmental activities. "Is it not," asks the commentator, "playing straight into Communist hands to argue that parliament deserves to be superseded by some caucus of anti-Communists?"

Canadians, in the Winnipeg general strike have already had experience of attempted Red rule and that experience proved the value of citizen effort in strict co-operation with the governmental authorities, and the principles of law and order.

TEACHERS AS PEACEMAKERS

"Scholarship has no racial earmarks," being neither white, yellow, brown, nor black, and from the world's vast army of teachers much may be hoped for in promoting world peace. And, in fact, this is the aspiration of the international educational conference recently concluded in Edinburgh. History, geopraphy, literature, the arts and sciences, are the same the world over. Only the methods of teaching them differ, and the educators, as their actions and resolutions are interpreted by Rev. Walter W. Van Kirk in Zion's Herald (Methodist), have come to realize that the foundation of international peace must be laid in the school room. The Edinburgh conference was reported day by day in the press, and Mr. Kirk has summarized its deliberations in brief.

But first as to a few facts. In 1923 we are told, the National Education Association of America called together a world conference of educators in San Fancisco. A temporary constitution was adopted, and the delegates entered into a covenant with God to cooperate for the elimination of racial and national misunderstandings. It was decided to meet again in two years. That first biennial meeting took place in Scotland's capital. The World Federation of Education Associations had become a reality. Thirteen hundred delegates from at least thirty nations heard President A. O. Thomas declare in his opening address, as it is reported by Mr. Kirk:

"Education has become a cause. Its purpose is the same in all countries. If we would have a thought of the well-being of the future, we must weave the right sort of environmental influence around the children and teach them the virtues the world needs. Whatever we would have appear in the life of the nation, we must first put into our schools. While we are each of us vitally concerned in the advancement of our own country, we must of necessity be interested in the advancement of all. Just as invention and discovery have brought the world into small compass and developed a community more highly sympathetic, so we must establish and abide by international, social, commercial and diplomatic traffic rules.

"This necessitates an international attitude or mode of thinking which we call the 'international mind.' The peoples of the earth must now live together, and we, the teachers of the world's children, must prepare them for these new relations. This does not mean that the new world citizen must be unmindful of his own country, that his patriotism must be discarded, any more than by making a man a good neighbor would require a man to forget his own family.

"We as teachers must do our best to develop in the hearts of the rising generation the spirit of brotherly love and the attitude of the good neighbor. We must practice the Golden Rule among nations as among individuals. We are the keepers of the young and can direct their interest and their attitudes. The greatest problem before the world and the aim most devoutly to be wished is universal and perpetual peace. Education would be a 'slacker,' were it not willing to do its part."

These declarations, writes Mr. Kirk, were received with spontaneous and genuine applause. "The cultivation of international friendship through the functioning of truth had become the order of the day. Heresies and superstitions, all the pet theories of the blind and the mad reckonings of of trouble-makers were one and all to be dragged out into the open and ridiculed into silence."

COAL IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

It is markedly evident that Canada's coal situation as it affects the great importing Eastern industrial area is changing. The raising of the duty on slack coal imported from the United States and the troubles which have beset production in the Republic this year, taken in conjunction with the favorable reception which has been accorded to British coal imports in the past two years, have had the effect of bringing to Canada in the first seven months of 1925 a volume of British anthracite in excess of the total imports of this commodity in 1924.

Taking the Canadian coal situation as it existed at the end of May, the last date at which complete statistics are available, the output of coal in Canada was 74 per cent. of a five-year average for the period, the imports of coal into the Dominion 87 per cent. of the five-year average, and exports but 37 per cent. of the same average. Yet in 1925 period imports of anthracite coal from Great Britain totalled 95,047 tons, against 436,039, as against 25,319 tons of the British product against 1,433,021 tons of the American in the previous year. In other words, whilst imports from the United States remained practically at the same figure, those from Great Britain in the five months increased by nearly three hundred per cent.

The import of British coal has continued substantially at the port of Montreal, and according to authoritative figures, at the end of July 246,316 tons of Welsh and Scottish anthracite had been brought to Canada, as against a total import of 219,327 tons into the Dominion in all 1924. Furthermore, marking a departure in the Canadian coal importing business, 762 tons of British coke were unloaded at the Quebec port.

It is clear that, favored by Canadian importers and consumers, the product from the United Kingdom is gaining a firmer foothold on the Canadian market. At the same time efforts are being continued towards effecting an economic provision of coal for Central Canada from the Western provinces. The combined movements should gradually bring about an amelioration of what has long been the area's most pressing and irritating problem.

RECOMMENDED NEW SCHOOL CHANGES

Victoria, Oct. 12.—Drastic changes in Vancouver's school system are recommended in a report by Dr. J. H. Putman and Dean George Weir of the University of B.C., published today. The commission of two was appointed by the provincial department of education several months ago to investigate conditions in that city.

The report suggests that the Vancouver school administration be headed by a superintendent responsible to the school board and aided by a staff of inspectors in place of the present system under which inspection is carried on, partly by the city and partly by the government.

Establishment of a special training school for subnormal children is recommended.

The school board is criticized for failing in the past to pay sufficient heed to the advice of its inspector in the apointment of teachers.

CRIME COSTS MORE THAN FOOD

Not long ago the Spokesman-Review commented editorially on an estimate of an American Bankers' association official that crime is costing the United States $10,000,000,000 annually. He put the money losses at around $4,000,000,000 and police protection, courts and prisons were credited with the difference. Now the Nation's Business has taken up that estimate and makes some interesting comparisons.

The cost of crime in a year is greater than the entire foreign trade of the United States, which in 1924 aggregated $7,865,422,008. It is greater than the bill for food and kindred products, which totals approximately $9,500,000,000 in a year. Farming production does not amount to enough to pay the crime bill.

The great American textile industry produces only $9,487,000,000 in a year. Lumber and all its allied industries would pay only about one-third of the crime bill annually, their total being around $3,633,000,000.

Uncle Sam, through the federal, state and county jails and penitentiaries, is feeding and clothing 200,000 prisoners. Only a small fraction of the crook population resides in jail at any given time. Those "gainfully employed" in banditry and its side lines are said to number 1,000,000 men and women.

Even the murderers—including the gunmen and the bobbed beauties who run with them—number around 135,000, it is estimated. If they could be herded into one city with nobody to kill but themselves, they would make a city larger than Salt Lake City or Nashville, Tenn. The criminals of the country outnumber the combined populations of Mains and Nevada. More than twice the Nevada population are in jail.

The causes of this crime wave may be many. The cure is simple. It is sure, immediate and severe punishment. Public opinion must be behind that program to make it effective.

PAYING THE PRICE OF THE STRENUOUS LIFE

The Mental Hygiene bulletin makes the startling statement and apparently proves it with the latest available census figures that the number of mental cases in hospitals of the country exceeds the number of other patients of all kinds in the general hospitals of the country. The American Medical Association puts the average daily population of the 4013 general hospitals in the country at 206,024. The bulletin finds that there were 232,680 patients with mental diseases at the same time, regardless of paroles.

The federal census bureau lists 526 hospitals for mental disease and 154 institutions for feebleminded and epileptics. Of these, 165 are state hospitals for mental disease — the so-called insane asylums—55 state institutions for feebleminded—the custodial schools and similar institutions —and 10 state institutions for epileptics.

To care for the 232,680 patients in these places, a large staff of physicians and specialists is required, in addition to nurses and other attendants. At the end of 1922, for instance, there were 1902 physicians in state hospitals for mental disease, 109 caring for feebleminded and 34 for epileptics, state charges only being considered.

Causes of mental disorders are many and yet the experts are agreed that overwork, the pressure of the social, athletic, professional and economic factors of this modern strenuous life is at the bottom of much of it. The statistics show the heavy price the American public is paying.

Happily, the situation is far from hopeless. Institutional care and improved methods of treatment are restoring 60 to 70 per cent of the patients to their normal activities. — Spokesman-Review.

FOR GOLD FISH

A pleasing departure from the customary aquarium is a new large cone-shaped glass bowl in clear, deep green er amber. This ha sa low stand made of wrought iron in a delicate leaf design. This low type of aquarium intended for a wide window sill or large table is said to be a great improvement over the old square or round glass bowls with their ungraceful iron stand. But those who have used the old globe shaped fish bowl with its myriad reflections in the clear glass will be slow toadopt this novelty. The charming and is excellent for its narhigh cylinder shaped fish bowl is very row space. It has great depth to make up for its narrowness and shows up the floating green fronds and darting fish to great advantage.

As a general thing enough is too much.

OLD-TIME MOVIE DRAMA AS BASIS FOR COMEDY

What progress have the movies made in the past ten years?

Samuel Goldwyn, producer of "In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter," the First National picture which will be the attraction at the Orpheum Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday next, discovered recently that the progress has been swift and far-reaching. "In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter" shows the famous partners of the cloak and suit trade in their first venture as movie producers. Their first effort is necessarily very crude and Mr. Goldwyn, in order to show its crudities, went in search of the antiquated scenery and costumes that were used in the movies ten years ago. And the search proved one of the most difficult tasks with which Mr. Goldwyn had ever been confronted.

This picture within a picture, however, is said to be one of the most hilariously funny episodes ever presented on the screen. Their first screen production, "The Guilty Dollar," having proved a dire failure, Potash and Perlmutter attempted a huge spectacle "like Ben Hur, only more original." None other than Rosie Potash is cast as the Roman empress. And when this fair actress, played by Vera Gordon, insists upon eating Swiss cheese sandwiches during the filming of the Roman Coliseum scene, the hilarity is said to reach its climax.

Alexander Carr plays Perlmutter and George Sidney is Potash in this production, which is the second Potash and Perlmutter play which Mr. Goldwyn has brought to the screen. Others in the cast are Betty Blythe, David Butler, Belle Bennett and Vera Gordon.

THE WAGE SYSTEM

The number of those who think the wage system, as the world has seen it operate so far, is in need of revision steadily increases. Nor are all who think so to be found among wage-earners. It is the belief of many that the interests of employers call for a new and better theory of wages quite as clearly as do the interests of the employed.

On Mr. Ford's page in the Dearborn Independent there is a discussion of the subject in which it is asserted that the wage theory, as it has so far been understood, is a false one. That false theory is that "the rate of wages depends on the bargaining power of the worker as against the monopoly power of the employer — business is a pitched battle with wages the terms of armistice." Under that theory both sides lose. Both sides are wrong in accepting that theory. It is not a sort of natural law that there should be this state of war.

There ought to be a better comprehension of the mutuality of interest of all who, whether employers or employed, subsist by means of industries. When people talk of a "living wage" they are groping for something real, yet experiments as to a living wage tend towards low-level living. Mr. Ford says: "A business that does not include a steady and profitable wage scale among the good things it produces is not a very productive business." A business where the dividends are out of all proportion to the wages is lop-sided, yet a business that divided all into wages would be in danger of extinction. The business as a going concern must always be considered, its health ensured, in the interests of all in any way connected with it.

The point Mr. Ford makes is an interesting one when he concludes by saying that the fundamental error is in regarding wages as costs, when they ought to be regarded as profits. They are the water power that drives the business wheel, and it is desirable that they should increase rather than decrease. It is in wages that the worker gets his profits from the investment of his labor in industry. He should gain as the business prospers.

NATIONAL APPLE WEEK

In observance of National Apple Week, which takes place from Oct. 31 to Nov. 6, the Great Northern Railway has arranged to give full co-operation, throughout its entire territory, with the International Apple Shippers' Association, and will use all facilities at its command to spread the fame of Northwest Apples.

During Apple Week this delicious fruit will be served in every form on diners, and Great Northern chefs will vie with each other to create new apple dishes to please the palates of dining car patrons.

Special arrangements are being made to have displays of luscious Northwest "Big Red Apples" in all Great Northern Ticket offices where this is practicable. On its dining car menus and in other printed matter the virtues of our apples will be extolled.

MINERAL OUT-PUT A RECORD

British Columbia's mineral production during 1925 will break all past records of the province, according to present indications. Hon. William Sloan, Minister of Mines, declared in a statement issued yesterday that total production for the current year would reach $60,00,000. For the first eight months, minerals to the value of approximately $41,000,000 have been recovered, and with production steadily increasing it is anticipated that the increase for this year as against last year, will amount to nearly eleven and a half million dollars or 23.10 per cent.

The following table shows the approximate mineral production of the province for the period under review, Jan. 1 to Aug. 31, 1925:

Gold, ozs.	148,000
Silver, ozs.	5,280,000
Copper, lbs.	44,570,000
Lead, lbs.	142,000,000
Zinc, lbs.	75,850,000
Coal, tons (2240 lbs.)	1,584,695
Coke, tons	48,980
Miscellaneous products	$2,000,000

Figuring the value of above on the average price of the metal, the total value for the eight months is estimated at $41,000,000, or but $7,704,-604 less than for the whole twelve months of 1924.

The summary of mining operations is based upon reports from the six resident engineers and the Chief Inspector of Mines, brief reports from whom form an important feature of the summary.

The progress of the mineral industry of the province is shown by the following record of output, which indicates the steady growth which has taken place in the industry in British Columbia:

1894	$ 1,249,531
1899	12,393,131
1904	18,977,359
1909	24,443,025
1914	26,388,825
1919	33,296,313
1924	48,704,604
1925 (first 8 months, approximate estimate)	41,000,000

"The increased production during the current year," says Mr. Sloan, "measured in the common denomination of dollars, is caused partly by increased metal and coal production and partly by increased metal prices. The largest increases reported are in lead and zinc, which are in large part due to the immense production now being made by the Sullivan Mine of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co., the greatest lead-zinc mine in the world. It is interesting to note that the metals, silver, lead, zinc, contained in the crude ores of this mine, are smelted, refined and prepared in finished condition for the market at the company's works at Trail. Copper also shows an increased rate of production, owing to larger outputs by the Granby and Britannia companies. Gold and silver productions are at about the normal rate with the latter showing a slight increase."

The general high average of metal prices, the minister points out, has been one of the factors acting as a strong incentive to mining, not only in British Columbia, but the world over.

Mr. Sloan believes that the present prices of metals are likely to be maintained or increased in the future, owing to the keen demand for the metals. The ever-growing uses and demand for lead and zinc, and the comparatively small known world reserves of ores containing these metals are causes which are practically certain to keep these metals at a high price. The price of copper has been low for the last five years, mainly due to the world production being greater than the demand, but this disparity between the supply and demand is gradually being lessened, and, in the last two months, the price of copper has advanced about one cent a pound. The present price level of close to 15 cents is expected to be maintained.

The political campaign is beginning to warm up. Local Liberals took on a new lease of life when R. B. Bennett pulled off a boner at Canmore, when he stated that he would fight for a prohibitive duty on American coal coming into this country. As the Americans would instantly retaliate with a similar duty, which would be disastrous to Fernie, the local Liberals are not losing any time in using their ammunition. Fernie Conservatives would like to take a pot shot at Bennett, who appears to be a man who will promise anything under the sun if he thinks he can get a few votes.

Mrs. Rachel Hay, of Victoria, President of the Rebekah Assembly of British Columbia, paid an official vst to Esther Rebekah Lodge on Thursday evening. Quite a crowd of members turned out to meet the President. The degree team put their work on one candidate in a very creditable manner. After the regular meeting the members of the Odd Fellow lodge were invited to a social and dance. Miss Anderson, Mrs. Osborne and Frank Alexander rendered vocal selections. Jas. Whithouse was the accompanist. Mrs. Hay will visit Corbin Lodge on Friday evening and Michel Lodge on Saturday evening, returning to Fernie on Sunday for a few days rest after her busy week.

GIVING WITHOUT THE RED TAPE

"He gives twice who gives quickly," believes William J. Conners of Buffalo and West Palm Beach, Florida, who recently announced the creation of a fund of $1,000,000 which is to relieve distress immediately, without red tape, without respect to creeds. The fund will be applied by a managing board, composed of six trustees, two Catholics, two Protestants, and two Jews. In announcing the creation of the fund, Mr. Conners, who climbed from business and political life of his State, stevedore to wealth and power in the observes that he has been fortunate in acquiring riches and that he desires to do something for his home city while he is alive. After long thought he decided that the best charity is one that will "give help to the needy, give it promptliy, without red tape and without any regard to race, religion or anything but need." He expects to increase the fund to $5,000,000. The foundation will be exclusively for the people of Buffalo, the city in which he was born and raised and in which he started on the road to success. It will be independent of any other charitable activity; it will receive first and investigate afterwards. "It will look after the needy, whether the need is of a ton of coal or help to go to a hospital, or help in any way," says Mr. Conners, according to press reports. "Maybe this will start somebody else to do the same thing. I don't know of another foundation exactly the same."

It was undoubtedly the observation —if not the actual experience—of Mr. Conners that charity is often hedged about with so much administrative machinery that it loses much of its sweetness by the time it reaches its beneficiary, remarks the Schenectady Union Star, adding:

"Elaborate office staffs and card indexes are all very well in their way, but the quality of mercy is not strained through a card index. It springs spontaneous from the gushing fountain of love, or it falleth as the gentle rain from heaven upon the place beneath. Something of this sentiment may have restrained the donor from putting his money into a specific object, and leaving it in a foundation to help quickly those who may require aid.

"In so doing Mr. Conners practically indorses the idea of the community trust which is a growing practise among men of wealth. Already many cities have community trust funds whose incomes are dispensed by trustees. The advantages of this practise are many. Even the wisest of men never can know what conditions may be ten or twenty-five years after his death. Those who leave bequests for specific purposes tie the hands of their administrators. The cold hand of death restrains them from employing the funds which they administer in the manner that their own wisdom may dictate as best. There is the further advantage of a community trust that it can receive benefactions from many sources. A single bequest may not make a fund of impressive size, but a number of bequests in the aggregate may create an accumulation of wealth whose income could be most usefully employed."

Of course, there is nothing new in the "aid first" notion, says the Brooklyn Eagle, and "not to be unfair to modernity, the devoted persons who give time and energy to the unadvertised relief work of many of our Protestant churches, to the Roman Catholic and Jewish charities, to the activities of the Salvation Army, have precisely the Conners view."

"But even they are hampered by a by-product of the atrophy of a city civilization—a very large number of men and women who are anxious to be pauperized as ever Pooh Bah was to have his haughty pride insulted with a bribe.

"The "aid first" idea runs from the Arabian Nights to the Fleischmann bread line, which some of us remember. Perhaps it was never worked out in literature so well as in the Mme. de Chantal character which Balzac so lovingly developed in "L'Envers de l'Histoire Contemporine,' taking the name from that of the saint who was the grand-mother of Madame Sevigne. But, new or old, its appeal to Mr. Conners is easily understood. He knows the 'seamly side of life' as well as any man in America, and his sympathies have not been narrowed by prosperity."

Thus he provindes another instance where a great fortune accumulated is to be largely devoted to the benefit of the unfortunate, comments the Utica Observer Dispatch. Mr. Conners has known what it is to be poor and, perhaps, needy, we are told; and "he can do no better with his money than by setting it at work to give that immediate relief that is sometimes most necessary, and which is often delayed or defeated, through the operation of officialdom or tedious organization, until it is too late."

Mr. Conners has known hard knocks, according to the Brooklyn Times, which informs us in a brief sketch of the man that "he began life on the docks, became a stevedore, made a fortune, bought a newspaper, won power as a State politician, added millions, and now wants to help those among whom he has always lived. The Conners Foundation is likely to be one of the nation's great assets."

Love, they say, is like photographic negative—it must be developed in the dark.

Vote for Western Development

Economy! Prosperity!

For the first time since 1913, the Liberal Government announces a surplus in the country's budget—a surplus of $4,816,000. This in spite of a reduced taxation, in spite of the fact that the country under Meighen's leadership spent $464,000,000 in 1921, while in 1925 $350,000,000 was spent by Mackenzie King. For every four dollars spent by the Conservatives, the Liberals spent three!

HOW do YOU feel about the development of your own great West? Whatever your political affiliations, you are bound to admit that 1921 marked a turning point in western progress. Today the world has its eyes on British Columbia—this is the route to the markets of the globe, whether on the Atlantic or Pacific.

You have heard of the diversion of the agricultural products of the prairies over the western route, of the great increase in the annual crop, of elevators raising their huge bins in the great port of Vancouver, of ships from every nation in the world draining their yellow gold.

There has been an industrial development that few can credit. No one can say that this development is not actually due to the Liberal government policy of equalization of freight rates.

From no lesser person than C. W. Beatty, president of the C.P.R., we hear that business activity is greater in Vancouver than any other city in the Dominion.

Do you want the west still to prosper? Are you in favor of progress or reaction? Premier King has declared himself. He says, throughout Canada, that trade is moving to the Pacific. He believes in the policy of equalization—he is for the west—not because he is prejudiced, but because he realizes that the very future of the Dominion hedges on National Unity and equality for every section of Canada.

King has a policy for populating the open spaces; it is the standardization and equalization of freight rates—a tariff that has due regard to the present stage of the country's development, that is light on the implements of production, raw materials for our basic industries, the necessaries of life and commodities from the nations in the British Commonwealth.

A UNIQUE UNIVERSITY

Our readers are doubtless acquainted with the work of the Frontier College. This institution has blazed a new trail in education. The Frontier College instructors live and work with their pupils, going on the employers' pay rolls as regular workers, and spending their evenings and other hours of leisure in giving instruction. This service is quite without charge.

In 1922 the parliament of Canada, realizing that excellent work of a Dominion-wide character was being done by these self-denying teachers, granted the institution a charter with degree-conferring power. Recently Frontier College celebrated its 2th anniversary by pubishing its first caendar outlining courses in Arts.

It is now an institution designed to open wide the door of opportunity to hitherto neglected frontier workers. In a country like Canada where manual workers are needed most of all, and where this class will settle in large numbers in the future, it is necessary to bring education to the worker rather than take him away from his work to obtain an education elsewhere. The Frontier College has always put a premium on manual labor and is prepared to recognize all work of high human value, if well and carefully done. By this step the Frontier College does not wish to compete with the older universities, nor to qualify men for overcrowded professions. It is simply desirous of creating an interest in the homestead, farm, camp, shop, and other unprovided situations generally, believing that the needs of these have been overlooked by the governing bodies of universities. The insanitary shacks of homesteaders, camp bunk-houses, despoiled forests, abandoned farms, and too large a percentage of our population crowded into the cities, have been the result of modes of education that had not spontaneity enough in them to educate our boys and girls in their homes and at their daily tasks.

The Frontier College calendar strikes a new note in education. The older universities encourage a boy to leave home to receive an education. The Frontier College pays him to stay at home and work and think out his own education. Only stay-at-homes are eligible for scholarships.

For a time it looked as if the Frontier College was to be disliked by a few of its older sisters. That day soon passed. University chancellors, principals, deans, and heads of departments, as well as some of our ablest educationists in other walks of life, are represented on its examining board. Every lover of a distinctive Canadian people will wish this experiment success.

Manitoba leads the other western provinces in the matter of higher taxes, according to the citizens' Research that municipal and provincial taxation Institute of Canada, which points out is considerably heavier charge on the annual value of production than in any of the other provinces. The conclusions are based on 1923 figures, and show a total of$21,476,571 of local taxation, against production of different kinds amounting to $124,228,542. The taxation was 17.2 per cent. of the value of production. The percentage in British Columbia was 8.8; in Ontario, 8.7. Manitoba officials complains that this percentage was unusually high in 1923 because of a drop of almost $34,000,000 in the value of production. There was also an increase of about $500,000 in provincial taxation, but there was about the same increase in the four western provinces. In municipal taxation in 1923 compared with 1922, Saskatchewan shows a reduction of over $1,000,000, but the three other western provinces remained about the same figure as the preceding year.

ANTIQUATED AND ARTIFICIAL

The British miners seem to have assumed that the Baldwin government in going to the unprecedented length of granting subsidies or subventions to enable mine operators to continue the existing rate of wages, had shut the operators out of court altogether, and handed the coal situation over to the control of the unions. What was promised would be a permanent settlement has proven the reverse for the miners' representatives have elected to threaten strikes and a renewed deadlock over every petty difference that has arisen since.

To observers in Canada it has long been apparent that the whole coal situation in Great Britain rests on a basis at once antiquated and artificial; owing to the failure of both capital and labor in the motherland to recognize that this is the age of electricity. A situation which enables the miners at any time to threaten paralysis of Britain's entire industrial organization is an absurd anachronism. Alan Bott, an able publicist, who conducts an editorial department in the London "Sphere," has recently drawn the attention of the British public to this fact. Mr. Bott says that labor is in blinkers through its failure to face the realties of modern industrial development, particularly as regards electricity.

The president of the British Trades Union Conference recently announced that its policy "will henceforth be to improve standards of wages, hours, and working conditions, and to intensify trade union action for winning a larger measure of control in industry for the workers." But when it comes to the means by which these ends are to be accomplished, it does not appear that the thinking of labor leaders has advanced an inch beyond the ideas of the nineteenth century—strikes and demands for government intervention. No consideration is given to changing conditions in world-industry whch must inevitably affect standards of wages, hours and working conditions.

As Mr. Bott points out, British labor is still thinking in terms of the steam age, when coal was dominant; when cheap fuel gave Britain manufacturing supremacy, ship-building supremacy and mercantile seafaring spremacy. Today the world at large has entered the age of electrcity and oil; and what Mr. Bott describes as "creeping paralysis" is attacking the three basic British industries of coal mining, shipbuilding and shipping.

The increase in the number of oil burning ships is of course a factor; but more important still is the steady substitution of electricity for steam power in most countries. Canadians and Americans have long been abreast of this movement; and since the war Continental Europe has been rapidly electrifying factories and railways. Italy, lacking coal, but with abundant water power, is electrifying her railways. So is Switzerland. France is planning electrication policies which will mean an annual saving in coal consumption of fifteen million tons. The Scandiavian countries are going in for the same process very widey, and even Soviet Rusia is travelling in the same direction.

Thus Great Britain finds her export trade in coal rapidly diminishing in the face of rising wage costs; and the total production of coal from her mines in 1924 was twenty million tons less than in 1913. Mr. Bott rightly thinks that the economics of coal in relation to industry are a matter of more importance for examination by trades unionists than proposals for a "larger measure of control in industry for the workers," — which cannot alter the basic fact thatthe steam age is vanishing. There is he believes a remedy for the situation which capital recognizes but cannot put into effect without the co-operation of labor; and that is, the use of British coal to develop enough electrical energy to revolutionize British industry. This in the end could hardly fail to improve the standard of wages by increasing the value of the workers' output to a point impossible under present antiquated conditions. Such a development must come to pass unless Great Britain is content to be outstripped by the rest of the world, but it will not be easy so long as trade union leaders continue to talk of capitalists as "our opponents" and direct their thoughts toward using mass-weapons against them and the community at large.—Saturday Night.

NEW GLASS EFFECTS

In addition to colored table glass of all kinds there are new flower bowls, vases, smoking sets and aquariums. Most interesting is some new Mexican glass in a soft, electric blue. The vases are large, intended for long stemmed flowers, and the glass in a graceful twist optic design is made even more interesting by irregularities and bubbles. As the color in this glass is so unusual, the vases should be placed in a window so that the light shines through them. One bowl in the shape of a fat jar seems especially made to hold such flowers as pale pink and yellow gladioli, or branching forsythia.

TOURIST TRAFFIC PAYS

Tourist traffic returns are termed invisible imports. It was stated in these columns recently that the state of California gleans something like $30,000,000 annually from the thousands who motor into its sunshine in search of scenery and beauty. It is conservatively estimated that the American tourist traffic to all Europe takes in the astonishing total of $300,000,000. About a third of this is spent in France. In the "French Debt Problem," just published by the American Institute of Economics, the French tourist income of 1924 is estimated to be $250,000,000, of which Americans paid about $83,000,000. The National Industrial Conference Board of New York estimates France's total income from visitors (all nations) at $304,000,000 in the year 1923.

In view of the fact that the Fraser Canyon Highway will shortly be open for traffic the legislature at Victoria should make a considerable grant towards advertising its beauties and the fact that for the first time American motorists may have the privilege of seeing some of the finest scenery in the world from an auto seat. It costs money to do this, but it makes for returns that are immediately valuable. There are thousands of tourists over the line who have "used up their scenery" and long for new territory to conquer. They make their plans in the winter. The fall will be the time for this province to make its arrangements.—Kamloops Sentinel.

A little heavy thought will do more to cure mistakes than lamentations.

BRITAIN BLOCKS THE WAY

Times have changed in a way distressing to the most progressive British sentiment when Britain is found obstructing the pans of other nations to organize the world on a peace basis while France, though facing much greater military peril, urges that progress be made towards gradual disarmament.

Lord Cecil Roberts is a staunch friend of the League of Nations and a genuine lover of peace. But he is in an impossible position as a minister of the Baldwin government, trying to make the ministry's reactionary foreign policies appear in the best possible light.

The plea of Lord Roberts that arbitration must come after disarmament and security have been arranged and not before is disappointing to his many admirers throughout the world and to many seems like a reversal of his former position. The French view that the nations should first agree to arbitrate their differences and then proceed from that point to a consideration of the lengths to which they could safely go in reducing armaments will command widespread approval. Britain, by refusing to even sanction the holding of a conference on the question of disarmament, in conformity with the treaty of Versailles, and also by vetoing the Geneva protocol, has prevented world society from making headway with plans for the disarmament and security which she considers so essential as a prelude to compulsory arbitration.

Europe is at a loss to understand the changed attitude of Britain towards the League of Nations and her own undertakings to seek the establishment of peace. The smaller nations, in particular, feel that they have lost a friend. Britain is still a member of the league, but the position she has taken up under the Baldwin government has points of similarity with that long held by the United States. Oddly enough, the change in the British attitude may cause the great North American republic to see new merit in the league and in its proposals for outlawing war.

Quality
The most urgent requirement in Canada's Agricultural Products

CANADA produces every year large quantities of wheat, oats, barley, butter, cheese, bacon, beef, eggs, apples, potatoes, grass seed and clover seed that she cannot consume. Her natural outlet for these products is, of course, Great Britain—the one great consuming country of the world with an open market.
Unfortunately, nearly every other country with any surplus of food products seems to want to send its surplus to this same market.
The keenness of the competition on this, our only market, and the energy and resourcefulness of our competitors began to impress themselves upon the Department of Agriculture some time ago, but it is only within very recent years that the real and only way to grapple with this problem has been discovered, or at least put into effect. This Department now believes, as do also most of the farmers of this country, that the "grading" of our agricultural products is the policy and practice that is seeing us through the struggle and will assure us of our rightful place on the British market.
"Grading" means the classifying of products, whether they be hogs, butter, cheese, eggs or anything else, into what might be called in a general way "BEST", "GOOD", "FAIR" and "POOR" classes.
These exact words are not used in describing the grades, but that is what is meant. The purpose served in grading is threefold—
(1) Educational. When the producer sees the relative quality of his product he is spurred on to maintain that quality if it is the "best" or to improve the quality where necessary.
(2) Fair Play. When products are not graded the inferior article for various reasons often brings as much as the superior article, and the credit and advantage of putting the superior product on the market is lost to the one who really deserves it.
(3) Facilitating Trade. The dealer learns to have confidence in the article he is buying and buys more freely, because it is guaranteed by grading, and gradually everybody gets to know what the "best" article really looks like or tastes like. In short, grading brings about standardization and ensures to the producer the best price.
Canada now grades her cereals, grass seeds, hay, potatoes, apples, eggs, butter, cheese, wool and bacon hogs. The results have been in every case beneficial and in some cases quite markedly so, even though the grading system has been in effect in some cases for only two or three years, thus:—
Cheese—Grading began April 1st, 1923. Canadian cheese the year before had fallen into such disfavour on the British market that New Zealand cheese was quite commonly preferred. Today Canadian cheese commands cents per pound higher than New Zealand.
Butter—Grading began same time as for cheese. The reputation of our butter was then indeed at low ebb. Canadian butter today, while not the best on the market, is rapidly improving in quality and gaining in reputation.
Hogs—Over two years ago the Department of Agriculture began to grade live hogs at the packing houses and stock yards. The 10% premium paid by the packers for "select" bacon hogs as against "thick smooths" as classed by departmental graders has done wonders to improve the quality of our hogs and develop the bacon industry.
Best Canadian bacon, which ordinarily was quoted two years ago from 10 to 18 shillings a long hundredweight below Danish, has gradually grown in the estimation of the British wholesale buyer until it is now quoted at only from 1 or less to at most 5 or 6 shillings per long hundredweight below the best Danish.
This improvement in price is, of course, due to quality and has come about very gradually, the spread narrowing down by a shilling or two a month until now it is not at all a rare occurrence to see best Canadian selling on a par with the Danish article.
Eggs—Canada was the first country to grade and standardize eggs. These grades and standards apply not only to export, interprovincial and import shipments, but also to domestic trading.
The basis is interior quality, cleanness and weight.
Standardizing Canadian eggs has established confidence between producer and consumer and between exporter and British importer, and has resulted in a greatly-increased demand for the Canadian egg both at home and abroad.
Other products might be mentioned where grading has worked to the great advantage of the producer and to the advancement of Canadian agriculture.
Already Great Britain recognizes our store cattle, wheat, cheese, eggs, apples and oats as the best she can buy.
It is for us to so improve our other products, particularly our butter and bacon, as to bring them also into this list of "the best on the British market" and consequently the highest priced.
Grading enabled us to do this for cheese, wheat, eggs and apples.
Grading is helping us to do it for butter and bacon.
Quality Counts
Quality is thus the first objective for the Canadian export trade, and, then steady, regular supply. It it along these lines the Department of Agriculture is working by educational methods, and the result of this policy is seen in the growing volume of Canada's agricultural exports Look at these figures :—

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation, and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

DR. KING GETS AN OVATION

On Wednesday evening the Grand Theatre was crowded to capacity to hear Hon. Dr. King, who was cheered to the echo by every shade of political opinion. His assisting speakers, Col. A. Thompson, of Ottawa, and ex-Mayor Gale, of Vancouver, were also given a most enthusiastic hearing.

The chairman of the meeting was H. E. Douglas, who on opening the meeting briefly introduced the speakers and before calling on them, called upon G. Heidman, of Ottawa, who favored the audience with two tenor solos, which were very well received by the audience.

Dr. King, who was the first speaker, stated that his appearance last evening would probably be his last opportunity to address a Fernie audience from a public platform prior to the election. He stated that there had been very little transpired in the political arena since his previous visit to Fernie, but since that time the two leaders of the two old parties in Canada had both toured the west on speaking tours. Mr. Meighen had followed his usual course of preaching blue ruin throughout Canada and avowing that a high tariff was Canada's only salvation. He had stated that high tariff would be placed against Agricultural, Coal Mining and Fishery products. The Premier, on the other hand, had come west and had told the people that the only sane policy of government was in steering a middle course, keeping the tariff at reasonable figures instead of going to the high extreme advocated by the Conservatives, or to the low or practically free trade policy of the third or Progressive party.

"Consider for a moment," Dr. King asked the audience, "what will happen to the American coal market, on which Fernie and district almost entirely depended upon for disposal of their coal, should a high tariff duty be placed on American coal coming into Canada. The Fordney-McComber tariff now in effect in the United States would automatically raise, dollar for dollar, the American import duty on coal to equalize any increase made by Canada. This would mean the virtual wiping out of the export trade from East Kootenay and force Fernie to go into competition with the Alberta and Eastern Canadian coal mining centres for the Canadian markets, which could not handle the tremendous output of these mines and consequently result in either a complete shut-down of the industry or at least the very unsatisfactory short-time method of keeping the mines in operation.

Dr. King criticized the reported statement of Mr. Meighen that if elected he would fix the policy of Canada for the next fifty years, and added that no party making such a statement was capable of handling the affairs of Canada, with its undoubted development within that time. Mr. Meighen has been very inconsistent in his utterances throughout the country, the Doctor said, as apparently he had made statements in one section which might seem favorable to that particular location but very detrimental to others; then when faced with these statements, Mr. Meighen's only reply was a denial. The Premier, he continued, has made the same statements from Coast to Coast, which were that his government only desired to advocate policies which would be successfully applied to Canada as a whole.

Declaring that the Mackenzie King government could have remained in office until early in 1927 had they so desired, Dr. King stated that there were several vital questions to the people of Canada that required an immediate verdict and the Premier had decided to refer them to the people at the polls. One of them was the railway problem. Had the construction of the Canadian National Railways been carried out as originally designed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and had immigration continued normal as in pre-war days, the railway problem of today might not have arisen. "I do not criticize the government of today unduly for having taken over the railways rather than to have allowed them to go into bankruptcy," said Dr. King, "but I wish to point out that the Liberal government since 1921, through inaugurating management of the system under one head and eliminating the previous dual railway administration, had effected great economies." Under this new form of management an operating surplus of thirty-five million dollars had been made in 1923, while in 1921, the last year of Mr. Meighen's government ,a loss of thirty millions ex-

MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

The city council met last evening with Mayor Irvine in the chair and Aldermen Lees, Markland and Tully present.

A letter was read from Mrs. Campbell which requested the city to furnish lumber to renew the basement under her home, which had been destroyed by water from a slough flooding the cellar and rotting the timber. The city will furnish the necessary lumber.

The Provincial Secretary, in reply to a letter from the council which requested the government to undertake to pay half of the cost incurred in the upkeep of the isolation hospital, stated that the deparment did not feel that they should do so, but were willing to pay half of the recent cost of renovating the building, which would be $131. Recent damage to the hospital by some person or persons who had entered the building, to the amount of about $200 was discussed, and in view of the fact that government cases which are placed in the hospital use the equipment which has always been supplied by the city, it was decided to continue negotiations with the government before a final adjustment.

The Fire Chief reported that eight of the fire hydrants were in need of repairs before cold weather sets in. The necessary parts will be procured and the work done as soon as possible.

City Electrician Blackie submitted a lengthy report on the work done and improvements made during the past six months. He submitted as exhibits a large number of pieces of wood cut from trees around the city, which showed that in many cases the wires had been embedded in the branches and undoubtedly had caused loss of energy.

The city electrician will receive an increase in salary from Oct. 1, making it $185 per month.

A letter of complaint from a local business firm regarding the telephone service in Fernie, was read. The writer stated that he had been advised that the switchboard in use at the Fernie central office was practically obsolete and good service from it was practically impossible. He had no complaint against the operators but he desired that a complaint from the city council be lodged at the head office of the company at Cranbrook. The city clerk was advised to take the matter up with the Kootenay Telephone Lines, at Cranbrook.

The sale of a lot at the north end of Victoria avenue owned by the city to Joe Macush for $100 was confirmed.

The Mayor reported that he expected the work on the roads as planned for this year would be completed, with the exception of oiling, within the next two weeks. He also reported that if the weather was at all favorable, an attempt would be made to get some of them oiled before the snow came.

Fernie, B.C., Oct. 22, 1925.

Dear Mr. Editor—During the last three weeks there have appeared in your valuable paper various letters from Liberals, espousing the cause of the Liberal party. I would deem it a favor if you would provide space in your next edition for this letter from a believer in the Conservative policy which Mr. Meighen is now asking the Canadian voters to endorse.

I would like to deal briefly with a few of the inconsistencies of Wednesday night's meeting, held in the interest of the Hon. Dr. King. So far as the Gale is concerned which blew in on the audience that evening, the only thing he left behind was a rather disagreeable odor in the nostrils as a result of the questionable stories he thought would entertain a Fernie audience.

Col. Thompson is a very pleasing speaker, but a number of his statements require looking into, and some of them were very contradictory. He told us that Premier King wanted a majority over all parties in the next house so that he could put his policies in force, intimating as the reason he had not done so was that he only had a majority of one over all parties. Almost in the same breath he went on to say that Premier King enjoyed the confidence of the house in the way no other government since Confederation had, and that he had received the largest majority ever polled in the house before. He spoke of Mr. Meighen's famous tariff resolution moved on June 2, and said the Progressives voted with the government and gave the majority of 120 in favor of the government. How can any voter reconcile these inconsistencies?

Colonel Thompson spent considerable time on the tariff and immigration question and impressed strongly on the audience the argument that if the tariff went up prices went up correspondingly, and he depicted in rather humorous language the Canadian lady who went to Spokane for a dollar's worth of merchandise and was stopped on the border line and had to pay 30c to 50c duty on her purchase she was trying to smuggle in. He forgot, however, to tell the audience that she bought the article much cheaper in Spokane than she could in Fernie, thus emphasizing the Conservative contention that a higher protective tariff does not make for higher prices, as the United States tariff is well known to be the highest in the world.

In dealing with immigration Col. Thompson spoke of Johnny Canuck going over to the United States for a little while to earn the $18 per day which he could earn by going across the border, but he says when Johnny Canuck has earned some of their good American dollars he will come back to Canada to spend it. I doubt it. If Johnny Canuck can earn $18 per day in the United States he is going to stay there and keep on earning it as long as possible. That kind of a country is good enough for Johnny Canuck to live in.

Why does our youth leave Canada and go to the United States? Simply because there is not sufficient work for them here, while there is plenty of work in the United States.

The Colonel sprung a new one on me. He even says that under the King regime the birth rate of Canada is two per cent. We knew the tariff played a very important part in our national life but never knew before that the birth rate was effected by it.

Dr. King did not have much to say. He told us that the government had lowered taxation by reducing the income tax and the sales tax. When the Conservatives went out of power the sales tax in Canada was 3 per cent. Mr. Fielding raised this tax to 6 per cent the first session the Liberals were in power. In 1924 they reduced the tax from 6 per cent to 5 per cent which is still 2 per cent higher than that imposed by the Conservative party. A nice way to boast of reducing taxes. Dr. King also boasted of a surplus of receipts over expenditures. He did this in spite of the fact that our national debt is $200,000,000 more today than it was when the Conservatives went out of power in December, 1921.

Mackenzie King claims this is the most important election since Confederation owing to the fact that if the Conservative party should be elected on Oct. 29 it will mean the disruption of Confederation and the lessening of the ties between Canada and the Motherland.

Do not judge the Conservative party and Mr. Meighen by Mackenzie King's pre-election utterances, but rather by Mr. Meighen's own statement as expressed by him in the House of Commons on the 2nd day of June, 1925, and reported in Hansard as follows:

"We have a great people, a great country, and a latent power for progress unequalled in this world. I believe unreservedly and unwaveringly in the destiny of Canada— the destiny that our fathers decreed, the destiny which already many generations of Canadians have striven nobly to attain—that of a great free nation endowed with an abundant heritage, conserving that heritage, never dissipating it, never casting it away, never weakly surrendering it to make great any country but our own, making the most of our possessions, turning them ourselves to the uses of mankind and in the end finding our natural riches reflected in a grander and more varied civilization, in a larger national stature, in increasing millions of Canadian homes. I believe in the destiny of Canada as a British nation, as the strong son, the elder brother, in this commonwealth—to my mind, to my heart no other future is thinkable. And without questioning in the least degree the fidelity to that future of any member of this House, believing as I do that beside such a destiny there is for us only one alternative. I submit the great article of policy which my words today seek to expound as the firmest safeguard against drifting that other way. But apart altogether from every question of our relationship to the empire or to the world and thinking only of the people of Canada, I present the principles embodied in this resolution as the best for ourselves, best for every interest, best for every province, the principles surest to lead to the union and progress of all."

A Conserative.

Fernie, B.C.

Editor Free Press:

There seems to be a great deal of unrest in the minds of the people of Fernie over a speech made by Mr. Bennett in Canmore some time ago, in which he said that if he were elected he would insist upon the Conservative party putting a prohibitive duty on coal in order to keep out of Canada the 18 to 20 million tons of coal now annually imported from the United States.

This is a statement made by Mr. Bennett in appealing to the voters of his own district for their support in the coming election.

Mr. Meighen has said time and again that if he is returned to power he will increase the duty on all our imports equal to the duty which the United States now places upon similar articles coming into their country. His policy of further increase in the tariff is definitely laid down in his speech in the House on June the 2nd of the present year: "We should have a tariff commission for investigatory purposes, a tariff commission whose investigations will be such that the public will know more clearly and in more detail the actual facts as to the industries of Canada. It should be advisory and advisory only, because never from the shoulders of parliament can responsibility be shifted for the determination of tariff and fiscal policy. Such a commission has been advocated by the Conservative party before. It would be valuable today and will be a realized fact if the Conservative party is returned to power. We can on the advice of a tariff commis-

TOO INTELLIGENT TO BE MISLED

The people of Fernie and district are too intelligent to be misled by the last minute vaporings of a few frantic individuals. Mr. Meighen, the Conservative leader, declared in the House of Commons months ago that his policy was to put a duty on coal. Such action would immediately and automatically raise the United States duty against our coal and shut out Fernie, Michel and Corbin from the American market, thus ruining these places. A vote for Mr. Rutledge (who is a Meighen candidate) is therefore a vote to kill your own town.

VOTE FOR DR. KING AND NO INTERFERENCE WITH OUR U.S. COAL MARKET.

HUMAN OSTRICHES

Just a tiny seed of fruit is said to be responsible for the necessity of some operations for appendicitis, and a minute herring bone in the throat has caused death.

A few years ago two London street performers were to be seen daily. One, a man of color, swallowed pieces of broken glass, lighted matches, chips of granite, and various other indigestible substances. The other, a Britisher, gulped down a number of round stones. As a final effort, the copper collection and the patrolling policeman being favorable, he would swallow a large watch, which could be hard ticking in his inside.

The stones and watch only found a temporary lodging in the Britisher's interior, being brought up the throat and used time after time; but the colored itinerant showman had to find fresh material every time, and when an inquest was held on his body, a miscellaneous collection of coal, flint, nails and other articles was discovered.

These cases are recalled in connection with an extraordinary "feast" indulged in by a Scots Guards recruit in London. This man declared he had swallowed a table knife. Naturally, the assertion was greeted with incredulous laughter.

He persisted in his statement, however, and eventually he was X-rayed. There plainly revealed was the knife, ten and a half inches long, blade downward, in his stomach.

A very difficult operation released the knife. Then it was discovered that this was but one course of the recruit's "meal" Boot-studs, collar-studs, needles, 16 trouser buttons, a bodkin three inches long, and a tooth brush six and a half inches long were also in his interior.

Two packing needles and the toothbrush were retrieved, and then the man was given a rest, the operation having lasted forty minutes.

From this case and other similar instances, it is clear that, while one man may strain at a gnat, another may, so to speak, swallow a camel.

Stories of Gargantuan meals, such as that of Claudius Albinus, who disposed of over a bushel of apples, five hundred figs, a hundred peaches, ten melons, twenty pounds of grapes, and four hundred oysters at one meal — without a pinch of salt — have been handed down through the centuries. Perhaps a few oysters have been added in the process of passing on this particular tradition.

Hardicanute is nearer our own times, and we have it on record that he paid the penalty of gluttony with his death at a wedding feast at Lambeth.

Fuller relates of one Nicholas Wood that he consumed a whole sheep at one sitting and thirty dozen pigeons at another.

Old-time records are full of such stories. According to them, extraordinarly large quantities of food and drink were consumed for wagers at London hostelries during the last quarter of the 18th and the first quarter of the 19th centuries.

There are indisputable instances, recorded for scientific purposes, of remarkable feats of swallowing, like that of Charles Domery, a prisoner of war, interned at Liverpool.

His case is set out in the Medical and Physical Journal. He was 21, and six feet three inches in height. One day he ate 14 pounds of raw cow meat, two pounds of tallow candles, and drank five bottles of porter. Eventually he was allowed the rations of ten men, and "was never satisfied."

In the "Dictionnaire des Sciences Medicale" are particulars of a French soldier who had a partiality for swallowing corks. While a surgeon was attending him at the Hotel Dieu, in Paris, he purloined the doctor's watch, chain and seals—and swallowed them. In the regiment of Hussars he was ordered quadruple rations, but was continually stealing and eating material prepared for poultices in the infirmary.

On one occasion he had the good fortune to find a meal laid for fifteen workmen. He set to and left nothing.

There is the well authenticated case of Kate Hudson ,of Nottingham, who swallowed numbers of needles, pins, sharp pieces of bone and other articles, some of which worked their way through her flesh. She was cured at the General Hospital, Nottingham, but persisted in her remarkable diet, and had to be surgically attended to on various occasions.

Some time ago a woman was taken to the North Staffordshire Infirary. She had swallowed three pennies, three halfpennies, a spoon, a fork, a screw, a darning needle, four smaller needles, four hairpins, three pins, a trouser button, a pen nib and a metal boot tip. She recovered.

The hospitals are frequently called upon for aid in connection with the accidental swallowing of strange articles and a case in London is of interest. A woman brought her little son, aged nine years, and said he had swallowed three marbles.

She hurried off to work leaving the child at the institution, and calling for him in the evening. She was informed that the boy declared he had swallowed the marbles; but the X-rays revealed no trace of them.

When the boy was closely questioned by his mother, it was elicited that the marbles were of sweetstuff. They had melted.

Unfortunately, every case of accidental swallowing—and accidents will happen—does not end so happily. On the whole, it is better to make no experiments. Unusual articles of diet are better left to the ostrich; very little comes amiss to him, but human beings are more delicate.

DR. KING GETS OVATION

isted. Mackenzie King in appealing to the country at this time, desired a mandate from the Canadian people which would be the placing in power of a government at Ottawa not of a group form, but one with a substantial majority, so that all these questions concerning Canada's future welfare could be dealt with as they should be.

In concluding his address, Doctor King referred briefly to the Home Bank question, outlining its main features, and concluding with the statement: "I have done all that was humanly possible for the Home Bank depositors. I endeavored to secure as high a percentage of the depositors' losses for them as the government could possibly pay. I secured legislation which would have paid the depositors, without exception, 35 cents on the dollar. That legislation was destroyed by the Senate. The responsibility for the destruction of that measure does not rest on me." Here the Doctor was interrupted by the audience, who gave him a splendid cheer on this statement. The Doctor then wound up his speech by making a strong appeal for the support of the Fernie electors next Thursday at the polls.

Col. Andrew Thompson, of Ottawa, speaking with regard to what he termed the terrible threats of the Conservatives as to what appalling defeat they were going to administer to the government, stated that to secure only one of a majority in the House of Commons, Mr. Meighen had to effect gains in 72 constituencies and to hold without a single loss the 51 seats he had in the last parliament. This, the speaker said, was impossible and he reiewed the situation by provinces from cost to coast, and gave his opinion as to the probable outcome of the election, the assured return of the present Mackenzie King government.

He went into the question of tariff, pointing out that in the automobile industry the people of Canada did not benefit by tariff protection of automobiles, citing for example the Ford price in Detroit, Mich., and in Windsor, Ont. $145 more was paid by the Canadians for the same car made in Winsor, Ont., than Americans paid for the car made at Detroit, just across the river.

Col. Thompson referred to the statement that the Mackenzie King government's tariff policy was responsible for the exodus of Canadians to the United States. He asked his hearers to remember the date of the year ending June 30, 1924, being the year when the greatest exodus occurred. It was not until April 10, 1924, that the Mackenzie King tariff came into effect, therefore if tariff was to blame, it was Mr. Meighen's tariff that was responsible.

Ex-Mayor Gale of Vancouver in opening his address, stated that at the last general election candidates preached the doctrine "No Trade nor Truck with the Yankees," no truck nor trade with a friendly neighbor with whom we have lived in peace for over a hundred years; a neighbor to whom you have and are selling the products of your mines." This time he continued, the cry is No Truck nor Trade with the British Isles. They do not say that in those very words but they do say that they will abolish the British preference, which has been in existence for so many years. He depreciated those who would "insult" our Ameican neighbors and "I denounce—and think the average Canadian will do the same—the man or party who will at this time dare to suggest that we interfere with our trade relations with the British Isles."

Mr. Gale stated that he believed Canada is on the threshhold of a greater era of prosperity than she ever experienced, but to take full advantage of her opportunities Canadians should staid shoulder to shoulder and work solidly together.

In concluding, Mr. Gale made a very strong appeal for the return of the Hon. Dr. King to Ottawa as the representative of East Kootenay and British Columbia's representative in the Mackenzie King government, which he felt certain would emerge victoriously endorsed by the people of Canada and returned to power for another term.

THE SCOTTISH TARTANS

Every exiled Highlander's heart warms to the tartan. His companions of boyhood he may forget, the associations of his youth, the very clan which carries his name, but his eyes will light up at the sight of the kilt, and he will thrill to the soun dof the bagpipes. Not so, to the same degree, the Highlander of Scotland. Inverness bewails the lack of enthusiasm for the kilt, and it takes Queen Mary to wear a tartan skirt at a gathering in Balmoral castle before plaids become the vogue and the tailors of the north find a stimulant for business. Only at clan reunions does the kilt predominate in Scotland and seldom is the picturesque garb worn except at social functions, as a regimental dress, and by children of school age.

Sixty years ago a cockney with his three boys visited Aberfoyle, the heart of the Rob Roy country, dressed in kilts, "to be in keeping with the customes of the country." Great was their surprise when they found themselves an object of curiosity in the village, and their dialect, combined with their garb, the cause of much amusement. It is long since the kilt was superceded by modern dress, and one might wander for days without seeing it worn other than by sportsmen.

Indeed, the peasants, who used to make their own tartan, lost the art a century and a half ago. Before 1747, when the act was passed abolishing the use of the Highland dress, the cloth was spun and dyed by women and woven by the weaver of the clachan, the dyes being obtained from lichens and herbs. The men made their own kilts, hose and brogues, while the smith in the glen fabricated the brooches and buckles. When the act was repealed in 1782 few persons knew how to make kilts and those who desired them could not afford them.

The Highland garb has its advantages. It was adapted to the rugged, mountainous country and suited the needs of the time. The plaid made a comfortable blanket at night and a warm covering in the day time, and the kilt left men freer than they would have been otherwise to skip over the rocks, to wade across streams and to trudge through bogs and traverse thickets. Even the brogues they wore had holes cut in them to allow water to escape when torrential rains caught them in the open.

But the Highland garb is no longer in general use. Picturesque, it is kept for special occasions and the interest in it is sentimental. To see a regiment of Highlanders march through the street headed by a band of pipers, the drummer swinging his sticks with triumphant step, is to witness a spectacle that will never fade from memory. To listen to pipes in the hills—their natural surroundings—is to hear wild and stirring music that at once enchants and thrills.

The tartan is the embodiment of everything Scottish. To Scotsmen abroad it conjures up memories of Rob Roy bidding farewell to visitors who try to win him away from his life as a freebooter: "Nor has the world a scene that would console me for the loss of the rocks and cairns, wild as they are, that you see around us." It recalls the "March Past of the Cameron Men," played on the brae when bonnets swayed and kilts waggled. It revives a historic and traditional past, a past that is recorded in literature known all over the world.

Generations have come and gone since the clan system, with its multiplicity of tartans, ceased to exist. But while there is mist on the mountains the clan sentiment will endure.

OUTRAGE, SAYS LIVETT, OF DYNAMITING CASE

"God help the coal mining industry and any organization if such men as these get control," remarked Robert Livett, special international representative of the United Mine Workers of America in District 18, in the course of an interview with the Calgary Herald on Tuesday in referring to the dynamiting of the house of W. H. Hopkins, at Drumheller, on Thursday night last. "It was an audacious outrage," he continued, "especially when it is considered that Hopkins has done mcoh for organized miners in that field. It just goes to show to what lengths fanatics will go," he added.

Mr. Livett said that he and Rod McDonald would attend the meeting that had been arranged at Drumheller on Thursday night in connection with the outrage.

SPORTSMEN URGE BOUNTY ON CROW'S KILLED IN B.C.

Vancouver, Oct. 19.—An invasion of crows is stirring the British Columbia game board to take vigorous action with a view to reducing their number.

Not long ago there was a bounty on crows, at first amounting to 10c a head, and later to 20c. The bounty was withdrawn and at present there is no incentive for shooters to rid the country of the black feathered menace. Sportsmen are now uring the game board to resume payment of the bounty.

Not only are the crows proving a nuisance to farmers by pillaging the crops and robbing stock of its feed, but they are endangering the seagull population of the coast as well, according to the petition to the game board. They are increasing rapidly and in some districts they have appeared in such great numbers that sea birds have been forced away from the colonies in which they once held sway.

There was a time, according to experienced hunters, when the Indians were the worst menace to seagulls and other sea birds, for the natives used to rob their nests of eggs, which they regarded as a great delicacy. Now, crows are regarded as much more serious.

Canada's Wool, Woollen and Knit Goods Industry at the C. N. E.

1. Mrs. Cockshutt, wife of the Lt.-Gov. of Ontario, looking exceedingly smart in an "all-Canadian" costume, in which she attended the opening of the Canadian Woollen Goods exhibit at the C. N. E. The two-piece sports costume is of pansy purple trimmed with grey at the collar, cuffs and pockets, the wool being grown, spun, dyed and knitted in Canada. The ensemble coat is of grey marvella, a magnificent specimen of pile cloth with a silken finish from a Canadian loom. The coat has a straight back with godet front, with a shawl collar and cuffs of grey Canadian baby lamb, lined with grey flat crepe silk produced by the silk industry of Canada. Grey shoes and stockings, and a purple cloche hat, completed the "all-Canadian" costume.

2. Exhibit of Canadian Woollen Knit Goods machinery at the C.N.E.

3. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario opening the exhibit of Canada's Wool, Woollen and Knit Goods Industry at the C. N. E.. He is seen wearing a suit of milled worsted made from wool grown on the Alberta ranch of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales. Mrs. Cockshutt is looking at the prize bred Canadian lamb presented to her by the officers of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association.

Tens of thousands of people obtained an entirely new idea of the wool growing and wool manufacturing possibilities in Canada at the exhibit of the Wool, Woollen and Knit Goods Industry at the Canadian National Exhibition. The pillars of wool from the nine provinces of Canada supplied by the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers Association excited considerable comment, and emphasised the fact that although we maintain only 2,500,000 sheep and lambs in Canada, the size, feed conditions and climate would permit the keeping of 25,000,000, and that sheep keeping is the most profitable branch of agriculture. Also that of the 70,000,000 lbs. of wool used annually to clothe the population of our country, some 50,000,000 could be grown here instead of only 15,000,000 lbs. as at present.

The small factory installed with twenty operatives showed the actual manufacture in Canada of fine woollen and worsted yarns, the weaving of fine blankets, woollen cloth and worsted cloth, and the knitting machines making underwear and hosiery. It was a miniature representation of the work that is being done in over two hundred and seventy woollen and knitting mills in over one hundred and forty municipalities.

The finished goods display, which showed what the completed goods looked like after being made on the machines, showed that in quality and style the $75,000,000 worth of goods produced by the industry annually were equal, and in many cases better, than goods made abroad. It conclusively showed that so far as climatic, physical and technical conditions in Canada are concerned there is no reason why 90% of the woollen and knit goods used in Canada should not be produced in Canada.

BANK HOLD-UP AT CRESTON

Creston, B.C., Oct. 20.—Two unidentified men at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon held up Manager A. W. Allen and Teller F. J. Bolton in the Creston branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada and secured $6500 in currency. They escaped through a window and fled on foot toward the open country. A man hunt was immediately organized and it was reported late this afternoon that the bandits had been surrounded.

The entire police force of the district is searching for the second man tonight, hindered by a heavy fog hovering around Goat Mountain. A few members of the posse of 150 officers and residents of the district came to Creston late today with one man and $2700 of the loot, but left immediately in search for the other man without giving out any information as to the man's identity.

The two men entered the bank at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon and threatened F. J. Bolton, cashier, with pistols. As they started to force him into the vault, G. Allen, manager, entered and the robbers seized available currency and escaped through a back window. A clerk and a patron of the bank were in the building at the time and were being forced into the valut along with the cashier when Mr. Allen entered.

The posse members who brought the captured man to Creston said they believed they had the other man surrounded but that the heavy fog may enable him to escape them.

In a few minutes after the Creston bank holdup, first information about the affair reached Nelson in a telephone message from Creston to Chief of Police Thomas H. Long, and in a telephone message from Spokane to the Daily News asking for confirmation of a report that had reached that city.

Inspector W. R. Dunwoody, B division provincial police, at once wired police officers at Fernie and Yahk to arrange concentration on the Creston area, and an hour or two later the inspector himself, Corpl. C. K. Mackenzie and Constable H. W. King, armed with rifles, left Nelson in L F. Gilbert's speed boat, Ladybird, for a quick run to Kuskanook, there to be met by auto.

From eastern points on the Crow, Staff-Sergt. George Greenwood of Fernie, Constable J. Rennar of Kimberley and Constables C. G. Sharp and S. S. Saunders of Yahk, rushed to the scene by motor, joining forces with Constable Harry McLaren of Creston, who was in charge of the man hunt until relieved by superiors.

Every available man in Creston was in the posse. Staff-Sergt. Ernest Gammon of Nelson was advised last night.

Conversing with the Daily News over the long distance telephone an hour after the holdup, Teller F. J. Bolton stated that the bandits were young men and wore no masks. He was under the impression both were clean-shaven and was sure of this in the case of the one who faced him through the bars of the teller's cage. One man covered him with his "gat," while the other covered Manager C. W. Allen, who was at the ledger desk, to the right of the cage.

After having the staff under control, one of the holdup men entered the vault and helped himself to the money there, estimated by Mr. Bolton at that time as $7,500. He said the bandits paid no attention to the money he had in the cage but after getting the money from the vault, made their exit through a window, and made off on foot, having no car in sight.

The young fellow who covered him looked as if he might belong to the Slav race.

At that hour Mr. Bolton said it was reported the men were surrounded at Erickson, Manager Allen being in the man hunt.

Shortly after this conversation, Inspector Dunwoody at Nelson was advised by Mrs. McLaren, wife of the Creston constable, by telephone, that it was reported one man was surrounded in a barn, and the other located on a ranch.

APPEALS IN LIQUOR CASES BEFORE PRIVY COUNCIL

London, Oct. 20.—Two appeals involving western parties are shortly to come before the judicial committee of the privy council. The valadity of two convictions under the Alberta Liquor Act and the Canada Temperance Act are questioned in one case, that of Nadan vs. the King. The convictions were for carrying liquor that was brought into the province of Alberta unsealed and for carrying liquor brought into the province "otherwise than by common carrier by water or railway."

The appellants in the case used an automobile for transporting the liquor in question from Fernie, B.C., to Sweetgrass, Montana, and while doing so traversed a strip of Alberta territory.

sion remove a tariff schedule that protects an industry which assumes monopolistic power, remove a schedule that protects an industry which overcharges the consumer and we can impose special excise penalties upon any industry."

Mr. Meighen also says that this commission will be composed of practical business men and economists who will examine the effect of interfering with the tariff from every angle. The government will only make changes in the tariff after the Cabinet agrees with the conclusions and recommendations which are made by the tariff commission.

Ever since Mr. Bennett made his statement about coal in Alberta, the Premier, the Right Hon. Mackenzie King, and many of his leading lieutenants have stated most emphatically on many platforms in and out of Ontario that no government can place a further tariff against American coal. The Liberals of this district seem to place considerable confidence in the Rt. Hon. Premier and it seems strange that they should be spreading a blue ruin statement in this district, and it is doubtful if the people of Fernie will be misled by such statements from their determination to save Canada from her present precarious position, and place her in a position similar to that occupied by her prosperous neighbor south of the line.

A Citizen.

COMMUNICATION

Fernie, B.C., Oct. 22, 1925.

The Editor, Fernie Free Press:

The Liberals of Fernie are sadly mistaken if they think they can scare the miners into voting for Dr. King. The Home Bank question is still a live one and will be so on election day.

What do we care if a glib talker like R. B. Bennett of Calgary trys to capture the miners vote in his district by telling them that he is going to stop American coal coming into Canada. Dr. King and his followers would be better served if they muzzled their leader, the Right Hon. Mackenzie King, who stated in his speech at Orillia, Ont., the other day that his solution of the coal situation was to cut down the cost of production and every miner knows what that means. Have the miners in this district forgotten that one of the reasons given for taking a recent cut in wages was to stop American coke being sold to the Trail smelter.

A miner with a large family who lost his life's savings and those of his little children in the Home Bank crash asked Dr. King at his meeting two weeks ago a reasonable question and Dr. King's answer sums up in a nutshell his feeling for the sufferers, "You don't know what you are talking about, sit down."

No, doctor, if you fail to be elected you need not worry about the grass growing on the streets of Fernie. Bill Sherman said the same thing.

Thanking you,

A Miner.

FINGER PRINTS OF GHOSTS

London, Oct. 17.—They are fingerprinting the ghosts in London now. Also they are teaching illiterate spirits to read and write. Just because a man happens to be dead is no reason why he should be deprived of the benefits of the higher education.

Sir Artur Conan Doyle, creator of "Sherlock Holmes"—whose flat in Baker street will be pointed out to you by any cockney cabman—has returned from the international psychic conference at Paris full of optimism concerning conditions in the Beyond and pretty pessimistic over the materialism which obtains just now in the Here.

Sir Arthur lives on friendly and affable terms with the spirits who, he says, drop in to chat with him each evening. When a ghost looks over his shoulder Sir Arthur doesn't cower; above all, he doesn't run. He draws up a chair and welcomes it. He even shakes hands.

"Oh, of course, I've shaken hands with spirits—often," he explained in his hearty voice, which makes you think of the outdoors, of golf courses and of riding to hounds; of anything in short, except the Beyond.

"I've seen them, heard them, touched them, talked with them. They've been interviewed, photographed and finger printed. Here—" He picked up two smoked slides of glass: "Here are the ghost's fingerprints."

His tone was so casual that somehow it made the cold prickles run up and down your spine. You took the slides. There were undeniable finger prints on them. The slide purported to be dabbed by the ghost differed radically, even to the untutored eye, from those of the medium.

"Spiritualism has gone beyond the stage where it is something to laugh at," he continued. "The International Psychic conference proved this when thinking men from all over the world met to discuss phenomena which can only be explained on the ground of life after death. Interest in spiritualism is growing in everything, but France is an especially fertile field, for the French are either Roman Catholics, which means that they believe in saints who are, of course, holy spirits — or they are atheists, which means that they have open minds.

"In spite of the many people in England who are enlightened on the subject of ghosts we are as a nation very materialistic. Indeed, the whole world is sadly bound by material things at present and there is a terrible time ahead for us unless we change very soon. I am not an alarmist and don't want to insist on this too much; but the spirits have told me—especially my own 'control,' who is an ancient Arabian — that dreadful calamities are in store for the world in the immediate future. The war was not enough. It did not turn the thoughts of the world toward higher things. Something worse than the war is about to befall us. But—" with a cheery smile that is never long absent—"let's talk of something more pleasant."

So we talked about heaven. Each planet, it appears, has its own heaven and as near as the ghosts have been able to explain it to Sir Arthur, heaven seems to be the outer circle or sphere of many concentric spheres which have the earth as their middle. It is difficult to get direct messages from spirits in the earth's heaven because they are so far away, actually and spiritually. Messages usually come from spirits who are removed from the earth only by one or two spheres.

"They often speak of having come 'a great distance.'" Sir Arthur added, "and, like human beings, the spirits are of many kinds. Some are helpful, some are humorous, some come with the intention of upsetting tables and making trouble. What do we do when the mischievous spirits get into a tantrum? Why, we talk with them and make them listen to reason. In short, we help them—and usually they are grateful."

"There was one spirit, not mischievous, but rather a pathetic elderly ghost, whose gratitude knew no bounds when she was taught to read and write. She had been haunting an English country house for some time, much to the fright and annoyance of the occupants. At last a sympathetic listener, contriving to interpret her fumbling raps on the wall, asked the old lady if she had received any schooling. No, she had not. Would she like some? Rather—(she was an English ghost). So the sympathetic listener hung an alphabet on the wall and by dint of many months of patient lessons the elderly ghost can now deliver herself of messages almost without a grammatical error."

As Sir Arthur says, "It's easy enough to laugh. But it seems a bit difficult for the laughers to explain."

REAL VIEW OF ITALY IN BIG GISH SPECIAL

Would you like to see Rome, the city of the seven eternal hills? Would you like to visit Mt. Vesuvius, Italy's death-dealing volcano? Would you like to enjoy the charm of Sorrento, the jewel of Italy's north — Naples, with its bay of blue—ancient Tivoli, the town of narrow tortuous streets?

You don't have to visit Italy to see these natural grandeurs. They form the setting for Lillian Gish's greatest dramatic triumph, "The White Sister," which is coming on Wednesday and Thursday next, Oct. 28 and 29, to the Orpheum Theatre. Inspiration Pictures determined to bring the fascinating beauty of Italk back to America by means of the screen.

"The White Sister" was chosen as the first film to be reproduced entirely overseas. It has been the outstanding artistic triumph of the present motion picture season and the work of Lillian Gish, the screen's greatest artiste, in the leading role, has been characterized as better than anything she has ever done in the past.

The picture is a Henry King production for Inspiration Pictures, Charles H. Duell, Jr., president, and is distributed by Metro.

FORD CAR MAKES TRIP ACROSS CANADA

Passage across Canada has been made historical by the feat just accomplished with a Ford motor car, standard equipment, which arrived in Vancouver last Saturday.

It made the romantic journey, for the first time by any conveyance other than a railway, entirely on its own wheels. At points of the journey, changes had to be made to flanged wheels, and progress made over the Candian Pacific Railway. Edward Flickinger, of Ford, Ont., was at the wheel, or in the car, every mile of the way. The total mileage was 4793, and of this 853 miles was done on steel tracks.

In Vancouver, before the city hall, the car was welcomed by Mayor L. D. Taylor, who received from the driver a letter, sent by this means of special delivery, from J. B. Kenny, mayor of Halifax, N.S.

After reaching British Columbia, on this epoch-making trip, Mr. Flickinger was met by W. G. Patrick, branch manager of the Ford Motor Co., who acted as pilot to the Terminal City.

Mr. Patrick explained to those present to welcome the car that the trip was made to commemorate the 25th birthday of the establishment of the Ford industry in Canada. It was also fathered by the Ford people to bring to the attention of the whole public the imperative need for an all-Canadian highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Motion pictures taken along the route, which are to be presented to the Dominion government for display in educational interests, will prove the worth of the proposition from a scenic standpoint; the economic feature is an admitted fact.

BATTLE WITH CIVILIZATION

In his speech before the Inter-parliamentary Union, Sir Robert Horne, Britain's former Chancellor of the Exchequer, did not name Russia, in his references to the influences which menace the peace of the world, but anyone who read his speech must be dense indeed if he did not understand his allusions to the Soviet.

"There are enthroned in the government of one of the nations of Europe," he said, "the representatives of a political creed, who openly avow that their first principle is, by violence, and if necessary, by massacre, to force on other nations of the world their system of government by terror.

"Their activities are manifested in many parts of the world, and most conspicuously against the nations of Europe, which they regard as the most stable and therefore most capable of resisting their subversive theories. If they should succeed in any country, farewell to that peace which we seek to preach as the only hope for mankind."

There can be no doubt that the Moscow Soviet which for more than seven years has had its emissaries at work seeking to overthrow existing forms of government in all the civilized nations, is the enthroned enemy Sir Robert Horne was talking of; and that the stable institution which it is most eager to destroy is the British Commonwealth of Nations. Though the traditions of the Inter-parliamentary Union are peaceful and academic it is well that there should be plain speaking. The Union if it means anything is an organization for the defense of parliamentary institutions, and these it has always been the Soviet's aim to destroy. Russia sends no representatives to the Inter-parliamentary union, because it has no parliamentary or representative institutions worthy of the name. It is governed by a system more reactionary than the Czarist regime prior to the establishment of the Douma twenty years ago. And yet there are half-wits everywhere who think they discern in this reaction the dawn of a newer and wider freedom.

Sir Robert Horne and his associates in the British parliamentary delegation must in their hearts thank Hon. Mr. Kellogg, the U.S. Secretary of State, for having refused Mr. Saklatvala, the Parsee Communist member for Battersea, admission to the United States. His presence at a conference designed for the promotion and development of parliamentarian institutions which it is his avowed desire to destroy would have been an absurd anomaly. The fortunate circumstance that Mr. Kellogg had ready made regulations to meet his case has unquestionably saved the other British M.P.'s a great deal of embarrassment. The deliberations of the conference would have been upset by a flood of Moscow theories uttered under the cover of Mr. Saklatvala's prestige as a member of the mother of parliaments. "We are glad," says one British journalist, "that a grand chance for self-advertisement and misrepresentation of the Empire has been denied to Mr. Saklatvala."

It is hardly likely that Mr. Kellogg was thinking of the prestige of the British Empire in inhibiting this fire-eating fire-worshipper. He was probably convinced that established forms of government had enough enemies within the borders of the United States at present without admitting another and exotic specimen of the breed.

E. H. FLETCHER PASSES AWAY

A few days ago there passed away a figure of importance in the history of public affairs in the person of Everard Hyde Fletcher, former Post Office Inspector for British Columbia and the Yukon Territory. Perhaps no function of government is so universal in its everyday bearing upon our daily life as the administration of the Post Office. For his long and able work in this connection the late Mr. Fletcher has avery special claim to be remembered by the inhabitants of this portion of the Dominion. The postal services of the province are a virtual monument to his memory for they were brought into being, for the most part, during the many years in which he was the chief representatie of the Post Office Department for the territory west of the Rocky Mountains.

For over half a century, until his retirement in 1922, Mr. Fletcher devoted the qualities of a first class intellect to the work which he had so much at heart. His official reports covering that long period, couched in faultless English and models of their kind, are material from which the historian of the future will gather much valuable data. His official visits to the scattered outposts of his domain were events of moment to the many friends he made; for with the upright administration of his duties as a public official he combined social characteristics which commanded the admiration of his fellow men. He will be long remembered, and on the roster of pioneers who moulded the destiny of this province since its entry into the Canadian Confederation the name of the late Mr. Fletcher is indelibly inscribed.

The good man prolongs his life; to be able to enjoy one's past life is to live twice.—Martial.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agriculture purposes, and which is not timber land, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of the Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 10 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free or partially free permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ten head.

BUSINESS AND SUICIDE

Suicides, it seems, form a fairly accurate index of economic and social conditions. When business is good, the suicide rate declines; when business is bad, the suicide rate goes up. Moral irresponsibility is also, we are told, becoming an important factor in its bearing on suicide. According to the annual compilation of suicide statistics by Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, of the Prudential Insurance Company, the suicide rate for 1924 was 15.3 for each 100,000 of population. He finds that between 12,000 and 15,000 people commit suicide every year, and the only comfort in this melancholy fact is that the ratio of suicide deaths to population has remained fairly constant since 1899. In 1900, writes Dr. Hoffman in The Spectator, an insurance magazine published in New York, the rate of suicide deaths to each 100,000 population was 15.4. The average rate for the twenty-five years was 17.2. The highest rate for the period was 21.5, in 1908, which seems to bear out Dr. Hoffman's theory—generally accepted, we are told—that there are always more suicides in seasons of economic depression. Times were probably "harder" in that year than they have been since the present century began, actually harder, we are told, than in 1913-1914. By the same token, the time when post-war prosperity seemed at high tide, in 1919 and 1920, was that in which the suicide rate reached its lowest point—12.3 per 100,000.

In contemplating the melancholy subject, Dr. Hoffman writes:

"No matter what we may think about the question, suicide always implies a disastrous failure to adapt the human individual successfully to his complex environment. The crest of the suicide rate in this country was reached in 1908, when the rate for American cities reached 21.5 per 100,000 of population. It declined slightly after that, but during recent years the rate has been about what it is at the present time or a little over 15 per 100,000. The lowest rate was reached in 1920, when it fell to 12.3.

"It seems to admit of no serious controversy that, to a measurable degree, the suicide rate is affected by business conditions and that it is a rough indication of our national prosperity, altho countless other influences and conditions determine its rise and fall. Suicides, like murder cases, are becoming more involved and often difficult of determination. Suicides occur in which the evidence is so confused that there is no alternative but to place them among the so-called 'accidents,' which may successfully hide the fact of suicide or murder, as the case may be."

In the light of more than thirty years' experience with the suicide problem, Dr. Hoffman is convinced that the recorded mortality understates the actual extent of a very serious social problem. He continues:

"Suicides are seemingly today more common among the well-to-do, the well-educated and the well-placed than in earlier years. This would seem to indicate a disintegration of social morality for which the present generation is primarily responsible. It is not feasible to enlarge upon matters of detail but attention may be called to the suicide of a United States Senator last year who stood high in the councils of the nation. The outstanding fact of many individual cases is the indifference on the part of those who are familiar with indications of a mental breakdown typical of borderland cases of insanity and crime. Fortunately, our economic situation is so satisfactory and the outlook for the future so excellent that suicides due to economic depressions are at the present time comparatively few and far between. Finally, attention may be directed to the apparently increasing extent to which suicides commit murder at about the same time, indicative of a state of mind and morals that may well challenge attention.

"It is my firm conviction that much might be done to prevent suicides in many cases if a more deliberate effort were made in this direction. Suicides also could be diminished if the present unrestricted sale of weapons and the reckless sale of poisons were brought more effectively under public control."

All papers agree that the suicide problem is a serious one, demanding careful study, but to the Montgomery Advertiser the implication that there is more moral disintegration among people well placed is resented as an "unwarranted assumption." Even if we admit that there is a higher percentage of suicides among the more favored classes, argues The Advertiser, "it does not imply better character among those who lack everything that makes life attractive." As the Advertiser sees it,

"The life of the poor man is extremely simple, and little involved. Accustomed to poverty, he expects little else, and is reconciled. The well-placed man, the well-to-do man has more contacts with the vital currents and is subject to more shocks; his moral fiber is put to incomparably more severe tests than that of the man at the other social and economic extreme. He has more to lose.

"The illiterate, or poorly educated man may be, and probably is, a dull man. A dull man lacks imagination. His capacity to worry is less than that of the man of keener intelligence. His sensibilities may be less delicate. Personal disaster will be less likey to upset him; but he is not more moral than the highly intelligent, well-educated, well-placed man."

"MYSTERY SEAPLANE"

New York, Oct. 19.—Britain is confident of winning international seaplane honors in the races for the Schneider Cup, at Baltimore, Oct. 23 and 24, with its "mystery seaplane," about which there has been much speculation.

The S-4 as the plane is known, is said to have developed a speed of 226 miles an hour in secret tests, conducted soon after her completion in August and those who saw her then called her "The Flying Bullet."

Captain Henry Biard, who will pilot her in the Baltimore races, was quoted as saying that she had a fair chance of winning, although it was known that the Italian and American entries would develop speed never before recorded by seaplanes.

Th second British entry, the Gloster-Napier III, built by the Gloucestershire Aircraft Company, of Cheltenham, is a racing seaplane of the biplane type and is probably the smallest machine for its horsepower yet produced on floats.

The body of the machine is oval, and the streamlining of both machine and engine has been so constructed that resistance is reduced to a minimum. The size of the body was determined by the bare space necessary to seat the pilot. The wings are built up of spruce. There are two interplane struts, one on each side of the body. The propellor is solid duralumin and the floats also of duralumin, are attached by streamline struts and wires.

The Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King Says ~ "We will give the West Equal Treatment Impartial Justice"

THE WEST MUST COME INTO ITS OWN

Put your trust in men who believe in the West's future — men who in Canada's darkest hour held out hope—men who believed in developing the West.

Under almost insurmountable difficulties, Canada faces the world today on the wave of industrial prosperity. She has met every debt on its due date to her foreign creditors—her dollar is the highest in the world. And the West flourishes. In the last four years, since Mackenzie King took the helm at Ottawa, the West's port, Vancouver, has shown greater industrial development than in all her previous history.

This in the face of the cries of ruination and foreclosure from Meighen and Stevens in 1921. This in the face of the repudiation of Mr. Meighen by Canada's strongest Conservative journal, which styled his outlook at that time, "the whisper of death." And more than ever in the history of the West does the West need friends at Ottawa. Men who will stand in the councils of the nation afraid of no moneyed interests, no combines, no section of their party or rival city of the Dominion.

Such men are the Liberal Candidates. They know they will have the support of the leader of Canada's next Government, the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King. For he has said throughout the country that there must be justice for every section.

The Liberal Candidates are pledged to secure absolute equalization of freights for the West. If it is necessary to make this a national issue in the House of Commons at Ottawa, they will do it.

G. G. McGeer, K.C., Liberal Candidate for Vancouver Centre, said recently:

"There is one Court where we can secure lasting and final justice, and that is the GREAT COURT OF PUBLIC OPINION, the Parliament of Canada."

Vote Liberal, and you will bring about Western development and prosperity for all.

"Our Tariff must have due regard for all parts of the country in its present stage of development," said Mackenzie King recently.

The Liberal tariff is a tariff primarily imposed for revenue. This tariff, which is a tax, should be as light as possible on the people.

Premier King says, "Especially do we believe that the instruments of production essential to the development of our basic industries and the necessaries of life should be taxed as lightly as possible."

CHRISTMAS SAILINGS FOR THE OLD COUNTRY

F. Lefaux, representative of the Cunard, Anchor and Anchor-Donaldson steamship lines, Vancouver, was a Fernie visitor over the week end, and informs us that the Cunard and Anchor-Donaldson lines will have two special Christmas sailings to the Old Country this year. The Cunarder "Ascania" is due to sail from New York, Dec. 12, and from Halifax on the 14th, for Plymouth, Cherbourg and London; and the "Athenia" of the Anchor-Donaldson will sail from the same ports on the same dates for Glasgow, Scotland.

Those contemplating a trip home for Christmas should make early application to either H. E. Douglas, G.N. Ry. Agent, or J. Austin, C.P.R. Agent, as these gentlemen act as agents for the Cunard and associated lines in Fernie.

Mr. Lefeaux reports business at the coast as very good and calls attention to the fact that the three largest departmental stores in Vancouver, namely, Hudson's Bay Co., David Spencer, Ltd., and Woodwards, Ltd., are practically doubling the size of their stores, while the banks are buying and building on better locations, which is indicative of progress.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of our dear Mother, Rebecca Birtwistle, who passed away Oct. 22, 1923.
When for a while we part
This thought will soothe our pain,
That we shall still be joined in heart
And one day meet again.

"THREE LIVE GHOSTS"

The comedy, "Three Live Ghosts," to be given in the Grand Theatre on Nov 2 and 3, will mark the second appearance of the Fernie Players in the local theatre.

This play was first produced at the Greenwich Village Theatre, New York City, on Sept. 29, 1920, where it had a remarkably successful run, and has since proved a very popular screen attraction.

The scene is laid in London and the story deals with the escapades of three war veterans who, for various reasons find it expedient to foster reports of their having been killed in action.

The play is one continuous laugh, due largely to the infectious humor of Mrs. Gubbins, and "Jimmy" Gubbins, the irrepressible Cockney, equally shares the limelight with her.

All the parts in fact are capably handled and the show will undoubtedly be as well received as was "Come Out of the Kitchen," played by practically the same cast a few months ago.

LIBERALS WIN E. KOOTENAY

The Hon. Dr. King showed his good judgment when he decided to seek the suffrage of the voters in East Kootenay, where he was returned yesterday by a majority of 970. All over Canada the Conservatives made deep inroads upon the Liberal forces, but here the Doctor was able to hold the situation well in hand. In Fernie and West Fernie he had a majority of 313. This was largely due to the statement of R. B. Bennett, of Calgary, wherein he stated that if the Conservatives were returned to power they would put a heavy duty on coal.

Dr. Rutledge made a good run throughout the district, carrying his home town by 59 of a majority. In Fernie district he had majorities in Waldo, Baynes Lake, Coal Creek, Michel and Natal. Following is the result in East Kootenay by polls:

ELECTION RETURNS

One of the closest fights in the history of Canada took place yesterday and the result is still somewhat in doubt. If the Hon. Mackenzie King, who was himself defeated in North York, is able to form a government, it will be only by the smallest majority and that with the assistance of all the Progressives, Laborites and Independents who have been elected. Giving the Premier all these and the seats still in doubt he would only have a bare majority of six or seven.

Montreal, Oct. 29.—At three o'clock this morning the Canadian Press accounted for the 245 constituencies as follows: Liberals 89; Conservatives 118; Progressive 10; Independent 1; Labor 2. In doubt 25. In doubt includes one in Prince Edward Island (Queens); one in Quebec (Pontiac); one in Manitoba (Provencher); 13 in Saskatchewan, where Liberals mostly lead; and nine in Alberta.

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—Eight members of the Mackenzie King government have so far gone down to defeat. Premier King himself is defeated in his own riding of North York, Ont. The others defeated are Geo. Gordon, who was appointed Minister of Immigration a few weeks before the election; Herbert Marler, who was taken into the cabinet at the same time but had not yet been given charge of a departmental folio, and James Murdock, who has been Minister of Labor in the King cabinet since its formation four years ago. Mr. Murdock was formerly vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Rt. Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways, concedes his defeat in South Essex. The defeat of Hon. Vincent Massey is conceded. Hon. W. E. Foster, Secretary of State, was defeated in New Brunswick. Hon. T. A. Low was beaten in Renfrew South.

Montreal, Oct. 29.—Hon. Herbert Marler was defeated in St. Lawrence St. George by approximately 1100 majority by C. H. Cahan, his Conservative opponent, this being the outstanding fact of the election results yesterday on the Island of Montreal. R. S. White won without difficulty in Mount Royal, defeating R. L. Calder by two to one. The third Conservative victory on the Island of Montreal was that of Leslie G. Bell. Conservative candidate in St. Antoine. Hon. E. L. Patenaude, who led the Conservative forces in Quebec, was defeated in Jacques Cartier by Rheum, the Liberal, winning by some 700 majority.

Here and There

"Canada has the greatest opportunity of any community on the face of the earth," stated St. Loe Strachy, editor and proprietor of the London Spectator, in the course of a recent address before the Canadian Club. He stressed the advantages the country enjoyed in her large wheat area, electrical energy, wood pulp and mineral assets.

Between 20,000 and 25,000 men are expected to work in the forests of the Province of Quebec during the coming winter, according to the chief forester of the province. It is anticipated there will be a good season in the pulp and paper products, but that the cut of lumber will not be so heavy owing to the low price prevalent for sawn lumber.

Cordial relations between the ports of Quebec and Liverpool were emphasized recently by the exchange of cables by the respective Chief Magistrates of the two cities. The occasion was the Civic Week Celebration at Liverpool when the Lord Mayor, Thomas Dowd, sent Mayor Joseph Samson, of Quebec, greetings to which the latter responded.

A record for October weddings was established at the Windsor Station, Montreal, early in that month, when twenty couples invaded the Concourse on their way to Boston, Quebec, Ottawa and Toronto. Two of the bridegrooms were bounced following time-honored custom. It used to be the fashion to subject brides to this usage, but since the advent of short skirts the practice has been frowned upon.

Establishing what is easily a world record for movement of wheat, grain poured into Fort William and Port Arthur elevators at the rate of nearly thirty bushels a second for the whole of the 24 hours of October 5, from Canadian Pacific Railway cars. In all, 1,704 cars were unloaded during the day and each car carries an average load of 1,500 bushels, representing a total of 2,556,000 bushels.

Driving into stationary trains on level crossings seems to be a favorite sport on the part of a number of motorists judging by reports coming in recently from different sections. The latest is from Galt, where an automobile, in broad daylight, ran into a freight train consisting of 18 loaded and 15 empty cars standing in plain view on a crossing. Fortunately no one was hurt, but the instance is another of gross carelessness on the part of motorists.

The Grand Challenge Cup, emblematic of the First Aid championship of the entire system of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was won by the Weston Shops team, of Winnipeg, champions of the West, against McAdam, N.B., team, champions of the East and last year's winners, after a searching test of the two teams conducted at the Place Viger Hotel, Montreal, recently. The margin between the two teams was so narrow as to be in doubt to the last moment. Weston took 507 points out of a possible 672 and McAdam had 499.

Tourist traffic development throughout Canada has reached such proportions as to equal the value of a fairly good wheat crop, and such development has only just begun, is the opinion of Colonel Phil. Moore, of Yoho Valley, B.C., interviewed recently. He thought that an estimate of three hundred million dollars spent by tourists annually in Canada was not too high. Growth of interest in the Canadian Rockies was very noticeable and although the majority of tourists there were Americans, yet Canadians, too, were beginning to discover them, said the Colonel.

Fort Upton, Col., Oct. 30.—Mrs. H. H. Slaughter back, wife of a rancher, killed 140 rattlesnakes with a club in a two hour battle for her life and that of her three year old child. The fight took place in a field after Mrs. Slaughterback had been cornered by the reptiles.

THE GREAT CIRCLE TOUR

With the completion of the Banff-Windermere Highway there has been opened up in the heart of the Rockies a circle tour, embracing Calgary, Fernie, Windermere and Banff, which is one of the most interesting highways given to mankind. Few people realize that this 400 mile circle is the richest scenic eldorado in the world. Mile for mile, there is no place yet explored where there can be seen such a constant panorama of the startling and unusual in Nature. Certainly there is nothing in the much-heralded American parks that can equal it.

Going south from Calgary, the road follows just where the sea of prairie rolls up to meet the purple foothills. You pass within a few miles of the Prince of Wales' ranch. And truly, you are not surprised that he chose this charming country for his western home. Right here was the birthplace of Canadian romance, and though you see "the cattle on a thousand hills" grazing peacefully, the landscape is full of the suggestion of galloping Indian and re-coated Mountie.

The first real Rocky that you come upon is Crow's Nest Mountain, which takes its name from the Crow Indians, who once nested in it to escape their enemies. Alone in the midst of a level plain, it rises abruptly to a height of over ten thousand feet. Its sides look as though they had been tooled by some giant lathe. Behind the clear-cut cone, you will see seven or eight huge stone figures, so grotesque that—well—if you are not used to the mountains you are liable to get a shock. A little farther on are limestones that resemble nothing so much as a row of unlaunched battleships.

But the awfulness of the mountains is not fully realized until you pass over the Frank slide, where the whole side of the mountain slipped of like a blanket in the night, and covered a sleeping town under millions of tons of rock.

Soon after this you reach the summit of the Rocky Mountains. "Dull would be the soul" who could stand on the top of the Great Divide and not be thrilled. At a point not far from the road the waters flowing into the Arctic ocean and those flowing into the Pacific approximate so closely that an enterprising citizen once cut a toy ditch of a few feet long and diverted the one into the other. This was considered a crime and his Old Man (the Canadian Government) made him fill in his little canal, and let each ocean go the way it listed.

Round Crow's Nest Lakes, which are the ultimate in the picturesque, the road sweeps down to Fernie. From Fernie south you have 30 miles of the craggiest peaks, at once so high and so near that they give you the sensation of having skimmed along them, like a bird or an aeroplane.

This brings you into the Kootenay Valley, where—believe it or not—the air is just a little balmier and the sunshine a little more cordial than anywhere on this continent. If you are lucky it will be just about sundown when (by a short detour) you reach McBain Lake. Talk about the pastel shades of an Egyptian sky! Never were colors so gorgeously delicate, so brilliantly soft, at once so riotous and so subdued! Everyone has seen a glassy lake in which the raggedy peaks of mountains seem to creep along the surface, above and below, and cling to each other like a kiss. But when you have, over all these peaks, an Alpine glow of gold and rose and mauve, with every detail of form and color seen again in the water, the charm of it fills you with speechless delight.

Such scenes are typical of the Kootenay and Columbia. Little lakes of a wierd unearthly blue nestle at the feet of mountains streaked with volcanic black. Canyon and waterfall meet your view at every turn.

It is in such a setting that you come upon the popular Fairmont Hot Springs, which contain one of the highest known percentages of radium. Leaving your rheumatism here, you proceed a few miles further to the Lake Windermere district, which rivals in beauty and is very suggestive of its famous namesake in England. A little farther on you get into the Vermilion Pass, where all the ground is one riot of color. Red and yellow ochre; orange and sulphur; pale green and vermilion, blend into one harmonious polychrome. Sinclair canyon and the Great Stone Face must be seen—they cannot be expressed.

Soon after this you come to Banff and—if you are wise—to Lake Louise, before you complete the circle by going on to Calgary. This is the playground of Canada; the future playground of the world. The Banff Springs, the view down the Bow, the Sun-dance canyon, are all very wonderful. But the one transcendant gem of the Rockies is Lake Louise. Ask anyone who has been there. Its silted streams of moss-grey color. Its terminal moraines. Its valley of wonders. But most of all that view from the chalet! That is a living picture-gallery, hung all round with peak and glacier; and like steps leading to a second story, is its flight of lakes up into the clouds. I think this was the place the great Russian meant when he said: "I will take the woman I love to the top of the mountain and show her the world!"

SANDAW, THE STRONG MAN, HAS PASSED

Eugene Sandow, probably the most popular and certainly the most talked of "strong man" since the days of Samson, has passed out of the picture. Sandow died the other day in London at 58, the result of undue strain, he having lifted his motor car from a ditch to the roadway, thereby bursting a blood vessel.

Old-timers will remember Sandow and his marvellous performances of a quarter century ago. Sandow was by no means a giant in size. Indeed he was a man of medium height, and in street costume would have passed for just an ordinary well built citizen. With his muscles in play, and he had absolute command of them, he was quite another figure. He would lift a grand piano as easily as an ordinary individual might a radio set. He would break stout iron bars, tear packs of cards into pieces, bend and break coins with his fingers, jump over a kitchen table with a fifty pound weight in each hand, and hold up the weight of a dozen men at a time. And withal he was as graceful as a panther.

And what made this all the more interesting was the fact that he developed this marvellous physique through the medium of the simple exercises such as any doctor would prescribe for a business man—that is to say what is known as the application of the "daily dozen." It is said that in his youth he was rather frail and got his first idea of building up his frame through a study of Greek sculptors' art.

Sandow was a German by birth, but became a British subject many years ago and was a popular figure in London where he resided. During the war Sandow undertook to develop the physique of tentative officers and soldiers, and it is said that he was at least partially responsible for putting seventy thousand men into such physical shape as to render them fit for service.

CARDIFF UNEARTHS NOBLE BONES OF 13TH CENTURY

Interesting historical discoveries hape been made as the result of the excavating of the House of the Grey Friars in Cardiff, which has been undertaken by Lord Bute with the intention of opening up this site to the public view, says the London Times. The south side of the church was found to contain traces of five mural vaults. The vault at the east end of the wall contained a male skeleton, supposedly buried in a wooden coffin, as many nails were found near the skeleton. The remains were those of a layman, apparently 6 ft. 1½ in. in height, between 35 and 55 years of age. Later, traces of a second vault were discovered near the first vault, and near by a stone with the appearance of having been dressed. On being cleared, this stone was found to be the lid of a casket which enclosed a leaden casket containing a heart, the whole lying on a skeleton. The skeleton was that of a female between 30 and 45 years of age, about 5 ft. 3 in. in height.

The probable explanation is that Gilbert De Clare (1243 to 1295), who brought the Grey Friars to Cardiff, and founded the friary, intended the vaults to be the burial place of the Lords of Cardiff, for when Gilbert became Lord of the Castle on the death of his father, Richard, in 1262, Cardiff Castle consisted only of what is now known as the Norman Keep. This theory would lead to the conclusion that the male skeleton would be that of the founder, Gilbert de Clare, and that of the female would be his wife, the Princess Joan, daughter of Edward I., who died in 1307. The casket would appear to contain the heart of their only son, who was killed at the Battle of Bannockburn in 1324, and whose body was sent back to Edward II. by Robert Bruce for burial. The Grey Friars was founded in Cardiff in 1280, and surrendered to the Lord Visitor appointed by Henry VIII. in September, 1538. This marked the end of the Grey Friars in Cardiff, for the church was then defaced and pulled down.

SID CHAPLIN in
"THE MAN ON THE BOX"

From the novel and celebrated stage play by Harold McGrath. A frantic tussle for a set of plans for an airplane invention, which rival governments are anxious to secure is the dramatic thread which holds "The Man on the Box" together. Bob Warburton (Syd Chaplin), handsome, dashing, debonair, with a hair-trigger brain that keeps him everlastingly one jump in front of his opponent, is the hero. As a typical cab driver, a groom, a butler, and a lady's maid, Bob keeps eternally on the heels of the valuable plans he is trying to place in proper hands, and makes "The Man on the Box" one of the most distinctive combinations of comedy and melodrama ever devised for the photoplay screen.

Mayor J. S. Irvine paid a short visit to Moosejaw this week. He reports harvesting conditions on the prairie in a very bad condition. Fine weather for a few weeks would mean millions of dollars to the farmers.

Elko went Liberal yesterday by a small majority, the first time on record. Waldo went Conservative, which was also a surprise. Charley McNab must have been asleep at the switch.

Yesterday closed the quietest election campaign in the city of Fernie that has ever been held here. Hardly any interest seemed to be taken by either side right up to election day, but on Thursday both sides got busy and tried to make up for lost time. In the evening the returns were received at Ingram's. The place was crowded until 2 a.m. this morning.

Tom McGladrey met with a most distressing accident at Morrissey yesterday, when his left foot accidentally caught in a hay pressing machine and was almost crushed to a pulp. He was rushed to the Fernie Hospital, where Dr. Bonnell treated the wound and the doctor has hopes that he may yet be able to save the foot, although at first it looked like a certain case of amputation.

STAGE MONEY AND THE K·K·K.

A recent law suit in Canada let the public into some of the secrets of Ku Klux Klan organization. The first point is that an agreement was entered into between interested parties in the city of New York for the organization of the "Ku Klux Klan of Kanada," which effectively does away with the idea that the K.K.K. of Canada originated in Canada.

Next we get some interesting information as to what a nice lucrative job organizing such things may be under favorable circumstances. The evidence went to show that two members of this organizing syndicate were to receive $12,000 per year, and that one member was to receive $6000 per annum.

It seems, however, from the evidence that this was largely stage money, in view of the fact that the Klan did not prosper as to membership as it was expected to do.

DO YOU KNOW

THAT civilization is pushing all fur-bearing animals farther and farther away and practically all wild fur-bearing animals are doomed to extinction?

THAT Silver Foxes are being ranched in cities and country homes in back yards? A space of 10x15 feet makes a suitable sized breeding pen, and women are as capable as men in feeding them.

THAT is costs very little to feed a fox? At our ranch it costs us less than $5.00 for food to raise a Silver Fox to full maturity. You can do the same. Whatever you realize above this for either the pelt or the live for is your net profit.

THAT there are different grades of Siler Foxes? Quality is in the breed of the fox blood; blood lines only will produce finest pelts.

THAT starting with your foundation stock of correct type means highest prices for your pelts?

THAT our ranch has paid special attention to Quality for a number of years; and we have the honor of holding the world's record prices for the finest pelts marketed since the war?

THAT the last fox we killed and pelted was in January, 1924? We sent it to The C. M. Lampson & Co., London, England, who are one of the oldest raw fur dealers, and the raw pelt sold on the open market for $670.00.

We are now booking orders for breeding stock and request you not to leave the placing of your order too late in the season to insure delivery. We start you correctly.

We will ranch foxes for you, if so desired, and we have different plans of selling, to suit your respective needs.

STATIC IS GREAT PUZZLER

Higher power is seen by Dr. J. H. Dellinger, chief of the radio laboratory of the Bureau of Standards at Washington, as the most effective weapon yet found to cope with static. As is the case with most recognized scentists when approached on the subject of atmospheric disturbances, about which so little is known, Dr. Dellinger was not inclined to be positive or conclusive in his statements.

Nevertheless, there seemed to be no doubt in his mind that the use of increased power marked a step forward in the fight. And his argument was very much to the point. Heretofore, in many cases the power used has not been sufficiently strong to break through the louder noises of atmospheric disturbances. Therefore, the increasing of power by stations all over the country, notably the group of 5 KW stations which have sprung into existence during the past year, and the two great new plants — the 50 KW General Electric station at Schnectady, now being operated experimentally, and the 50 KW Radio Corporation station now being built at Boundbrook, N.J., offer considerable hope as foes of static.

"Is there anything known about static now," Dr. Dellinger was asked, "that was not known a year ago?"

"Nothing startling," he replied. "There has been some observational and some theoretical work that is increasing scientific understanding, but it is hard to put down practical examples of very recent progress in actual mitigation of static.

"A number of persons have advanced the theory that static may be overcome by more and more selective sets. A conclusion now definitely reached is that we have gone as far in that direction as it is necessary or possible to go and that manufacturers are making sets as selective as it pays to make them."

Dr. Dellinger, in this connection, cited a careful scientific study by John B. Carson, of the American Telephone Telegraph Company, who concluded as regards static or random interference that it was quite useless to employ extremely high selectivity.

The gain as compared with circuits of only moderate selectivity, according to Mr. Carson, is very small, and is inevitably accompanied by disadvantages such as sluggishness of response with consequent slowing of the possible speed of signalling. This work of Mr. Caron's, which sounds the doom of most of the usual types of alleged static eliminators, is a part of the recent work by this scientist, which won for him the 1924 Morris Liebmann Memorial Prize of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

A development of the past year referred to by Dr. Dellinger was the use of static clicks in the headpieces or loudspeakers as a storm forecaster. He told of the British air forces' experiments, where, with the aid of direction finders they predicted thunderstorms. "I believe it is possible to do this a few hours in advance," the scientist added, "but I don't think as yet it offers great possibilities for long range or definite predictions of value to the broadcast listener.

"From the beginning of radio there have been efforts to find connections between characteristic radio transmission conditions and weather. By and large, the conclusion may now be stated that the effects of the weather are minor in comparison with the effects of atmospheric electricity. While weather conditions are not entirely without effect on radio phenomena, the weather radio phenomena are less definite and less certainly proved than the phenomena associated with atmospheric electric conditions."

Dr. Dellinger then went on to explain that whenever we heard a crash of static it originated in a lightning discharge.

"From a thunderstorm somewhere," he said, "maybe near, maybe a hundred or a thousand miles away—we do not know. The lightning discharge may not even be from the clouds to the earth, but from the clouds upward.

"There is reason to believe some of the electrical disturbances giving rise to static are discharges from the clouds upward just mentioned. The origin of static, we believe, is the same as the origin of the vagaries of radio transmission and getting to be more tied to electrical conditions of the atmosphere above the clouds."

"Do you see the day when static will be conquered?" Dr. Dellinger was asked.

"Anything seems possible these days," he answered, laughing, "but that appears to be among the things that are unlikely. We are making progress and I believe are coming to a better understanding and a partial mitigation of it."

Dr. Dellinger then spoke of some of the available methods for reducing interference from atmospheric disturbances. One of these was the use of a "wave antenna" which is a very low antenna, one wave length or more long. This is used particularly in transatlantic commercial reception. Another method makes use of a combination of several antennas in such a way as to partly balance out the atmospherics.

COMMERCIAL FAILURES IN CANADA FOR THIRD QUARTER

The Canadian insolvency statement for the third quarter of 1925 makes the best exhibit for the period in several years, with 468 commercial failures involving $7,758,011 of liabilities. These figures compare with 480 defaults for $17,394,507 in the third quarter last year, 705 for $11,541,492 in 1923 and with a high mark of 830 failures for $21,578,288 in 1922. The number for the three months recently ended is the smallest reported to R. G. Dun & Co. since the third quarter of 1920, when the defaults totaled 266, and the liabilities at that time aggregated $9,529,712.

The moderate falling off in number of failures from the number for the third quarter of 1924 is accounted for by decreases in Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta, which more than offset increases in Quebec, British Columbia, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan. In Newfoundland, no change occurred. Seven of the ten provinces show increased liabilities, the exceptions being Ontario, Newfoundland and Alberta. The reduction in the indebtedness for Ontario, however, is $11,700,000, while the largest increase is one of $1,630,000 in Quebec.

BRITAIN TODAY AND IN 1848

The London correspondent of the Associated Press reports that the entire English press is aroused by the conviction that "economically and otherwise the nation is bogging down, and that something must be done." "There is evidently a growing realization that England has her own house to put in order."

Sir Philip Gibbs, writing in the Sunday Times, inquires: "Is England done?" Sir Philip puts two arrows in the bullseye when he declares that "a rot is in our social state," and that "the dole system is subsidizing laziness." But it is not clear that the vigor of the nation at home would be bettered by "getting a few million to emigrate from England." Emigration of the more enterprising element has been a prolific cause of the decline in the British character from its old standards.

No one has better described those old standards than Ralph Waldo Emerson in his volume, "English Traits." Emerson was in the British Isles in 1833 and again in 1848. He lectured there in the important cities for several months and enjoyed exceptional opportunities for a profound analysis of the genius of the British people, their history, industries, art, literature, religion and education.

Seven years after his last visit to England, Emerson affirmed that "the creation of wealth in England in the last 90 years is a main fact in modern history," and gave this reason for English wealth and prosperity:

"An Englishman labors three times as many hours in course of a year as any other European. He works fast. Everything in England is at a quick pace."

For the contrast of present day conditions one does not have to turn to American observations. He has only to quote widespread British opinion, much of it from the ablest minds of Great Britain. Emigration to the colonies and enjoyment of that almost unbounded wealth that Emerson wrote about 70 years ago, have sapped some part of the old virility.

Then the holiday spirit has got into the blood of the people. They have let down in their industry and application. Mr. Baldwin, the prime minister, sets an example, British newspapers are complaining, when, returning from a four weeks' vacation on the continent, he gaily remarked that he hadn't read an English newspaper for a month.

Every one in England who can afford it, and a great many who can't afford it, are indulging in the national pastime of week-end holidays, bank holidays, church holidays, labor holidays, royalty holidays.

These are some of the bad practices of the "upper crust." But the "under crust" has its own evil practices. British labor unionism clings to the delusion that the welfare of labor can be advanced by labor en masse restricting its output—by soldiering on the job, by penalizing any ambitious worker who might manifest a rebirth of the fine old spirit that Emerson saw everywhere in Great Britain when he was there in 1848.

The liquor traffic is another prolific cause of the "bogging down," to employ the expressive phrase of a British writer. A great part of the national income is dissolved in booze; and the money spent in the "pubs," the exclusive social clubs, in the gay night life of the upper classes and at their country places at the week-end is the minor evil of the liquor traffic. The major evil is the waste of time and the fuddling of minds rom high strata to low strata.

The hopeful sign is that thoughtful Englishmen are becoming the severest critics of their own national mistakes and weaknesses. All that the British people need to bring themselves back to their old-time wealth and prosperity is a return to their old-time industry, thrift and self-denial.—Spokesman Review.

When Bakeday Comes Depend on Carnation

Uncertainties ruin many a milk dish through absolutely no fault of your own.

You want whole milk—you have only the skimmed milk left after you took the cream from the top; you should have two cups—you just have a cup and a half. Milk you thought fresh is just on the turn.

Why take those risks. Insure with Carnation Milk.

Carnation is just pure, fresh milk, evaporated to double richness, kept safe by sterilization. Nothing is added. Some of the natural water is taken away—all the food value left in.

Get it from your grocer. Tall (16 oz.) cans or by the case of 48 cans.

CANADIANS IN PERU

To the Fernie Free Press, from the Editor of the "Negritos Sand Blast."

Just how a group of Northerners passed a holiday, or "Dia De Fiesta," South of the Equator:

Fears of an impending revolution had just been allayed, when a handful of sporting "Gringoes," representing localities stretching from Puget Sound to Prince Edward Island, not to omit mention in the passing, one lone native of the town of Fernie, B.C., gathered together on the 24th of September last on the hot coastal sands of Northern Peru and staged a big field day, with the sun burning overhead and at a temperature close to 100 degrees in the shade — and the shade was lacking.

Perhaps nothing quite as eventful has taken place in this particular region since our old trail-blazer, Senor Francisco Pizarro made his famous (or infamous, depending on the point of view) landing in the vicinity of Negritos and effected repairs to his fleet with pitch obtained from the mines at La Brea, which latter place, by the way, is only a short distance inland from Negritos.

While nothing in the way of records were broken (a period of years in the tropics tends to slow one up appreciably) the showing of prowess on the part of the various ones of the competitors was of a very high order.

The ladies and children had their chance first, and they filled up the morning program with a clear cut exhibition of athletic art. The men began running wild at 12.30 p.m. and some of the events might well deserve special mention. The 100 yard dash was won by King Houston from London, Ont., in 10 2-5th secs. Spencer Kennedy, of Fernie, got the running high jump at 5 feet 1 in., while Curly Nelson, from Toronto, came second at 4 feet 11 in.

The long jump, standing, was plucked by J. Currie, of Petrolia, Ont., at 9 feet 2 in.; the running long jump going to R. Heard, of Bristol, Eng., at 17 feet 5 in.

We don't know whether Kennedy's profession has anything to do with his running, anyway he was a real live wire in the mile race, covering the sand track in 4 mins. 46 secs., and completing the endurance test 20 secs. faster than his closest opponent. We understand that he used to run wild when he was at home in the Fernie mountains, so we can't expect much else when he gets busy on the level desert.

The big day was admirably closed up with the presentation of cups and prizes in the English Club, Negritos, and a well attended baili, or dance, which extended far into the morning. And so it was that a group of Northerners, sojourning in the oilfields of Peru, passed a holiday, the "Fiesta de Santa Marcedes," just six degrees south of the equator.

BEER DRINKING IN GERMANY REDUCED HALF IN 25 YEARS

Germany, without prohibition, has reduced its annual per capita consumption of beer by almost one-half in the last quarter century, according to figures compiled by Professor Loeckermann, an opponent of prohibition legislation, to support his theory that the German people are solving the liquor problem of their own volition.

In 1900, Professor Loeckermann's figures show, the annual per capita consumption of the foaming brew was 124.6 quarts; in 1924 this had dropped to 63.4 quarts. In 1914, when Germany was at the height of her industrial prosperity, the figure was 103.5 quarts. In the late '90's, Professor Loeckermann says, Germany's annual per capita consumption of brandy was as high at 6.5 quarts, while in 1924 it was only a little more than half a quart.

Professor Loeckermann attacks the movement for local option in Germany, asserting that it is wholly superfluous and is only calculated to retard the development of sentiment against the excessive use of alchohol. He is convinced that the German people automatically are arriving at an impossible job.

SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL

The city council met in regular session last evening. Mayor Irvine in the chair and Aldermen Lees, Markland, Stewart and Tully present.

A letter was read from the Kootenay Telephone Co. stating that they had tested equipment and checked up the local switchboard. They also requested co-operation of Fernie subscribers in checking up any trouble they may experience by at once reporting the same to the local or head office of the company, stating the nature of the complaint, giving the number of the phone and any other data they may have.

A delegation of West Fernie residents waited on the council and requested information as to what procedure they should take to secure the extension of the Fernie city water system to West Fernie and what the approximate cost of the water service would be to them. They also requested that a system of street lighting be installed in West Fernie, and what additional cost would be charged on such a system.

The council entered into a lengthy discussion of these matters with the delegation and it was decided to draw up approximate estimates of the cost of installing these services and when these were secured to place the matter before the West Fernie residents to draw up a petition to be sent to the government with a request for their co-operation in the installation.

The council authorized the purchase of a test meter to be used in checking up the system in an endeavor to locate the source of any excessive line loss that may be existing in the electric system.

The salary of City Foreman Hunt was increased by $25 per month, making it $150.

The meeting called by the mayor to discuss the feasibility of holding a Fall Fair in Fernie will now be held in the council chamber on Tuesday, Nov. 10.

The Mayor brought up the question of Armistice Day observance and it was decided that the city clerk submit the question to the local business men to ascertain whether they would favor closing all day on Nov. 11 or whether they wished to open their places of business for some part of the forenoon.

APPRECIATES SUPPORT

To the Electors of Fernie and District:

I desire to take this opportunity of publicly tendering my sincere thanks to my many friends and supporters in the Fernie and outlying Polling Divisions for their votes and support in the recent Federal Election, and would also express my appreciation for the good work done by them.

While being defeated, I am in no wise discouraged as I know the many obstacles and difficulties which had to be surmounted in the Fernie Riding, and it is therefore with much satisfaction that I count so many votes cast in favor of myself as the representative of the Conservative party and for a change in our Federal government.

Yours very sincerely,
(Signed) Dr. J. W. Rutledge.

Application for $75,000 will be made through the federal government for the completion of the highway to the Rocky Mountain park boundary into British Columbia on the new road reaching on through to Golden. Fourteen miles have to be completed yet, and it is expected that this will be pushed through by the fall of 1926. Six miles were built this year, and the road is in excellent shape now, but the route is not open. The B.C. government has six miles to finish on its share of the road linking up the Banff highway with Golden. The coast province has already done 11 miles of road work. The B.C. highway is 12 feet wide, and the parks road is 20 feet wide.

SUICIDE AT NATAL

Mrs. Katie Grigoruk, of Natal, apparently in a state of great despondency, ended her life last Saturday at her home, by cutting her throat.

From the meagre information gathered, it appears that since the birth of her baby, just nine days previous to the tragedy, she had been very sick and despondent. Her husband, Tony Grigoruk, on returning from his work Saturday, went to bed for a customary nap, and had fallen asleep. He was awakened by the baby crying and on getting out of bed found his wife lying on the floor in a pool of blood. He summoned Dr. Buckley, who pronounced the woman dead. Coroner Murray, after investigation, decided that an inquest was unnecessary and gave his own verdict of suicide.

ROTARIANS ENTERTAIN

An enjoyable evening was spent at the Rotary dinner on Friday last, when the Rotarians entertained their wives and the members of the Public and High School teaching staffs. In all there were about seventy present. The dining room had been beautifully decorated for the occasion by N. E. Suddaby and Geo. Meade, and the tables presented a perfect picture.

Among those who took part in the program were Mr. and Mrs. A. Watson, Mrs. N. E. Suddaby, A. Klauer's quartette, consisting of W. Riley, Jas. Whitehouse, Ward Thomas and himself. James Johnston recited the Scotch selection, "Tam o'Shanter," and Jos. Shell put on a wonderful exhibition of crystal reading, in which he told the past, present and future of all the Rotarians. The teachers had prepared a number of witty songs, which they rendered at intervals during the program. During the dinner Commons orchestra provided music. W. R. Wilson was the speaker of the evening and entertained his audience with a most interesting talk on his recent tour of England and Scotland and conditions as he saw them in the Old Land. Mr. Wilson has a fine line of new stories which he appropriately worked into his address.

APPRECIATION

Cranbrook, Oct. 30, 1925.

I wish to express my warm thanks and deep sense of appreciation to my many friends throughout the riding of East Kootenay for the splendid manner in which they assisted me during the recent election campaign, and my gratitude to those who favoured me with their vote, and made possible the magnificent majority that I secured. I can assure the people of East Kootenay, regardless of their political pursuasion, that it shall be my utmost endeavour, as in the past, to serve their interests at all times, as well as the interests of the people of all Canada, faithfully, conscientiously, and unselfishly.

What Canada needs today is a strong, unified, consolidated people, with common National ideals and purposes, and that is the goal towards the consummation of which I shall devote my sincere and earnest efforts.

With renewed thanks for your splendid support, I have the honour to remain,

Yours faithfully,
J. H. KING.

MANSFIELD GETS 15 YEARS

Jesse Mansfield, of Elk Prairie, who has been on trial at the Cranbrook Assizes this week, charged with the murder of George Whiting, government road foreman, who was killed near his home early in August, was this morning found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to 15 years in prison.

The trial, which commenced Monday, closed Thursday forenoon and the case went to the jury who, after being closeted all afternoon and evening, just before midnight brought in a verdict of "Guilty of Manslaughter," but added a plea for mercy.

His Honor, Justice Macdonald, who presided at the trial, then imposed the above sentence.

Cranbrook, Nov. 4.—Jesse Mansfield, rancher of Elk Prairie, is now on trial here for his life, charged with the murder in August last of George Whiting, road foreman, in consequence of a dispute which arose in putting through a road near the Mansfield ranch. The prisoner is a white-haired veteran, long resident in the section. The foreman of the jury hearing the case is Fred Burgess, city clerk here and the jury are all Cranbrook men. The prosecution is in the hands of A. I. Fisher, K.C., of Fernie, and A. B. Macdonald of Vancouver, and Sherwood Herchmer of Fernie, is defending. The evidence so far consists of that of neighbors of the accused and the deceased, and relates to the weapons in the case, shells for the rifles of both the accused and the deceased, their identification, plans of the scene of the crime, and the establishment of the location of the events.

George Whiting, son of the deceased, on the stand told how his father complained of being shot at the previous day and how he was found lying dead beside the truck the next day, shot through the head the truck being evidently turned in to the side of the road and stalled as he got out hurriedly.

Constable Smith told a dramatic story of the arrest of the accussed, how he had been induced to empty his rifle and give it up, later going into his house for a meal and changing his clothes before being taken to Fernie. The constable also related statements which the prisoner had made voluntarily relating to the shooting, in which he stated the deceased had wronged him and that he had done his duty.

The crown concluded its case before the court adjourned tonight. All the witnesses subpoenaed were not called, but the defence may tomorrow examine some of these witnesses if they desire. Defence will open its case tomorrow and following addresses of counsel and judge's charge, the case in all likelihood will go to the jury late in the afternoon.

ARMISTICE DAY SERVICES

Wednesday next will be the 7th anniversary of the cessation of hostilities in the Great War. Every year since that memorable epoch the local branch of the G.W.V.A. have held a memorial service. This year will be no exception to the rule. Invitations have been sent out to all fraternal societies to participate in the parade and deposition of floral tributes on the Memorial on the government lawn. A special train will leave Coal Creek at 9.30 a.m. for the convenience of the Coal Creek people who wish to be present. Wm. Johnston has again loaned the Orpheum theatre for the service. The route of march will be as last year: Parade leaves Vets rooms at 10.30 a.m. sharp, proceed via Victoria Avenue to Cox St. to the Memorial, deposition of floral tributes and salute, thence by way of Wood St. and Victoria Avenue to the Orpheum Theatre. A two minute silence will be observed, after which the service will be conducted by Rev. H. U. Oswald and Rev. Father McKenna. Hymn sheets will be provided. As this is the first year a holiday has been declared in the miners' agreement a large crowd is anticipated. Don't forget to wear a Vetcraft Poppy.

According to a report from Cranbrook His Honor Judge Macdonald has transferred the trial of Jesse Mansfield on the attempted murder charge to the Fernie asizes to be held here next week.

WELL KNOWN DANCING TEAM TO PERFORM HERE SATURDAY

The Bluebird Dancers, Myrtle Duffy and Alex. Powell, will perform during the dance at the Victoria Hall, Saturday night. This dancing team is well known throughout the United States and Canada and they will undoubtedly be appreciated by lovers of dancing in Fernie.

There has not been much change in the Dominion election returns since last Friday. The house standing today is: Conservatives 117, Liberals 102, Progressives 23, Labor 2, Independent 1. The Premier has announced that the House will be called early after the first of the year.

LIBERALS HOLD RECEPTION

The Hon. Dr. J. H. King and Mrs. King visited Fernie last Saturday evening and were given a public reception by the Fernie citizens under the auspices of the Fernie Ladies Liberal Association, in Victoria Hall.

Mrs. Robt. Duthie, President of the Association, in opening the reception, read the following address of welcome and presented Mrs. King with a lovely bouquet of carnations:

To the Hon. Dr. J. H. King and Mrs. King:

We, the citizens of Fernie, through the Liberal Association, extend to you once again a hearty welcome; remembering that you are really an old-timer among us with a record of devotion to and disinterested zeal in your professional life while here with us. When you entered political life, those who were conversant with your ability, were not surprised that in the B.C. Legislature you soon attained an important post in the cabinet. The unique character of your work in that office, and the splendid results which accrued to the province from your efforts, were very noteworthy, and laid a sure foundation for the successes which followed.

Your outstanding merit was duly recognized and appreciated by the Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, when he sought a minister who could successfully fill one of the most important portfolios in the Dominion cabinet. Since going to Ottawa, you have given to your country, to your Province and to your constituency faithful and enthusiastic service. We fully appreciate your heroic efforts to reimburse the Home Bank depositors; to secure a substantial allotment of public monies for the west; and above all to remove the injustice in freight rate discrimination under which we have been suffering. You have taken so ardent an interest in the development of our resources that, should a steel industry ever be established in the Crow's Nest Pass, we know that everything in your power would be done to give that vital project the encouragement it deserves.

It is an open secret that the citizens of Fernie were seriously agitated over the dark prospect which a high tariff against coal seemed to present to us should your opponents win the election. We feel, however, that in any event we have in you a representative who will champion our interests with untiring energy.

We congratulate you sincerely upon your spectacular success in this contest. We may add, however, that in our opinion the largest share of the credit is due not to the strong organization behind you, not to the rational policies you adopted, but to the unselfish assistance and constant comradeship you received from Mrs. King, whose wifely devotion and gracious charm have won for her the high esteem and love of the people of Fernie.

Dr. King responded to the address on behalf of himself and Mrs. King, thanking the people of Fernie for their splendid welcome and expressed great pleasure in being able to meet so many of his constituents here. Col. Thompson, of Ottawa, and Harry Gale, ex-Mayor of Vancouver, also spoke briefly. A musical program followed with Mesdames Suddaby and Watson, Misses Charlebois, Dicken and Miscisco, and Messrs. Heidman and Wesley Owen contributing.

Refreshments were then served, following which Commons orchestra took the platform and dancing continued until midnight.

READY FOR THE REDS

If the Reds suceed in starting a general strike to paralyze Britain's whole social and industrial fabric, and starve the people into acceptance of Soviet ideas, they will not find the nation unprepared. The work of organizing forces to forestall the infamous plans of the proletarian revolutionists has been undertaken by an eminent public man, Lord Hardinge, who has formed the "O. M. S." or Organization for the Maintenance of Supplies. The new society is not a mere sentimental coterie of frightened enthusiasts but a thoroughly sane and systematized movement designed to effectively utilize the forces opposed to anarchy. For some weeks recruits and financial contributions have been pouring in, and from a speech delivered at Toronto by Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, now on a visit to Canada, it is clear that the more conservative elements of organized labor in Great Britain are not unsympathetic with the idea. Though Mr. Henderson did not mention Lord Hardinge's organization he made it clear that the older labor leaders favor maintenance of supplies to the nation in case of a general strike.

Not long ago in explaining the aims of the "O.M.S." Lord Hardinge pointed out that it was necessary for Britishers to reckon with the possibility of their national life being paralyzed in a way that would involve all classes of society in general ruin. It is deemed necessary therefore to create a voluntary organization which in such a crisis could see the nation through, without involving itself in the demerits of any particular labor dispute.

Volunteers who pledge their services in time of need are being enrolled in large numbers and the field of service is divided into five categories; first, those willing to serve as special constables (as in war time) to be placed at the disposal of Scotland Yard; second, those who will undertake to work public utilities, water, light and so on; third, transport drivers; fourth, messengers and cyclists; fifth, a general reserve available for any branch of work. The organization will be based on a decentralized system under which various boroughs will look after their own local services, while headquarters already established at St. Stephen's House, Westminster, will see to it that their efforts are properly co-ordinated and assistance given where required.

Lord Hardinge has made it clear that there is no military or official support behind the "O.M.S." It is an organized voluntary effort by private citizess to be run on democratic lines, and ready to offer its services to the Government when the necessity shall arise, if it ever does. He has emphasized the point that the organization is purely defensive in purpose, concerned not with any political or party interests, but with national safety in case of a revolutionary attempt to involve British institutions in ruin. Clearly there is no intention that the "O.M.S." shall take the war-path like Mussolini's Fascisti. In that respect it seems to be characteristically English.

"We also desire," he added, "co-operation with any similar organizations so as to prevent, as far as possible, overlapping or waste of energy. If other organizations feel that they can co-operate with us for certain specified purposes we can make the necessary arrangements."

The probable result of Lord Hardinge's well conceived and efficiently organized movement, is that the predicted Red revolution will be indefinitely postponed. It is a case of shutting and guarding the stable door before, instead of after, the horse is stolen. The very existence of the "O.M.S." is an effective answer to the Moscow Internationale which for seven years has been plotting the overthrow of capitalistic government in Great Britain. Properly organized citizenship operating without violence under free institutions is the best antidote to the evils of revolution.

ORPHEUM VANCOUVER SHOW HERE MONDAY

"The Life Story of John Lee," which is to be shown at the Orpheum Monday and Tuesday next, is a true story.

That the public appreciate a story taken from actual fact has been proved by the numbers of records attained by the presentation of the motion picture adaptation of "The Life Story of John Lee," universally known as "The man they could not hang," a human story, where truth is stranger than fiction, showing the tragedy of a man's life, of his poignant sufferings and his final happiness, after episodes which are fortunately of rare occurrence, the final of which in this case is quite unique. The story of John Lee has a thrill and an appeal which would never be present in a fiction narrative. It is the realization that the whole is true and genuine that impresses itself on the spectator. The picture story as it is unfolded on the screen, is described by W. Leonard Howe, the well-known English actor, while vocal items incidental to the picture are sung by Miss Doreen Thompson who will also appear as John Lee's mother in the scenic prologue, depicting the night before the execution. Special orchestration is a feature of the picture.

This is the same company which played at the Orpheum, Vancouver, on Labor Day.

CHRISTMAS EXCURSIONS ANNOUNCED BY C.P.R.

The Canadian Pacific has announced that it will have in effect during the month of December, excursion fares to the old country and Eastern Canada points, as well as to Central United States points, such as St. Paul, Minneapolis, Chicago, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, etc.; also on certain dates in December, January, and February there will be excursion fares to the Pacific coast.

Special through tourist cars will be operated from Calgary on December 1st in connection with the sailing of the "Montrose," 6th "Melita," 7th "Metagama," 12th "Montclare." Special cars will also be operated from Edmonton for these same sailings, one day ahead. In addition, there will be special trains from Winnipeg on December 10th and 13th, in connection with the sailing of the "Metagama" to Glasgow and the "Montclare" to Liverpool, in order to bring those who are going to the old country home for Christmas.

A voluntary report by a committee of engineers and others which has been investigating traffic and other possibilities of the P.G.E. has filed a report with the government. The premier states that the report does not bind the administration in any way. The committee recommends that the line be extended to Prince George in order to remove what they call "demoralizing uncertainty" in that region, that any proposal to complete the line into Vancouver from the present terminus at Squamish be indefinitely postponed, that no further consideration be given to the plan of a cut-off from Clinton to Ashcroft, that a spur line to the Hat Creek coalfields be not constructed unless, and until, the mines are developed and the traffic from them assured, that extension of the line to Peace River be postponed indefinitely, that a survey of hydro-electric possibilities along the line be continued, especially in the vicinity of the Quesnel river, and that a natural resources department be created by the government to give impetus to agricultural, mineral and industrial development in the territory served by the railway. There is certain to be debate upon this and other features of the railway situation at the coming session.

The dispute between the Land Settlement Board and the Sumas farmers regarding the cost of the reclamation works is to be considered by a special committee of the Legislature, a proposal to that effect made by the Premier to the Sumas council and land-owners having been accepted by the latter. At the same time the Premier adheres to his former declaration that he has never suggested that part of the cost of the Sumas scheme, undertaken for the benefit of the land owners of that district, should be shouldered by the general taxpayers of the province.

Great Soprano Greets "Grand Young Man" of C. P. R.

Maria Jeritza, famous singer, at Canadian Pacific Windsor Station, Montreal, with a bouquet presented to her by herfriend Col. George H. Ham, of the C. P. R. (Inset) Candy Roses in a candy vase presented by Mme Jeritza to Colonel George H. Ham.

"How is Colonel George H. Ham of the C.P.R.?" This was one of the first questions asked by Maria Jeritza, the most celebrated soprano of our time, when she visited Montreal on October 9th, 1925. She expressed regret when she learned that the Dean of Canadian Journalists was indisposed, and she sent him a bouquet of candy roses in a candy vase with the wish that his life may long continue to be "lovely as the roses and sweet as the candy." Colonel Ham sent Jeritza a bouquet of cut flowers.

When Jeritza was last in Montreal on March 12th, 1923. Colonel Ham conducted her around Canadian Pacific Windsor Station. Since that time she sang in many countries, being hailed everywhere as a goddess of song and a queen of beauty.

Seldom, if ever have such personal charms and the gifts of a great voice and wonderful dramatic powers been combined as they are in Maria Jeritza.

A few weeks ago she sang in Covent Gardens, London, with great success, winning the plaudits of great audiences.

Jeritza includes English in the many languages she speaks, and at Windsor Station, Montreal, she had an interesting chat with the engine men who guided her train to Toronto, where she sang on October 10th. She gave the engine men some roses from bouquets received from appreciative members of her Montreal audience.

In private life, Maria Jeritza is the wife of Baron Popper of Vienna, described by Colonel Ham as "one of the finest looking men I have ever seen." Baron Popper stands well over 6 feet in height. He and the golden haired, blue eyed, pearly mouthed Baroness make a perfect pair.

Jeritza spends most of the winter singing at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York.

Moscow, Oct. 29.— Discovery of daring plans for the destruction of railways, bridge, aerodromes and military depots in Soviet Russia is claimed by the state political police.

The plot they say was to be engineered by a counter-revolutionary espionage organization on behalf of a bordering state.

The police allege this organization has been collecting military and political information for one of the great powers.

Several scores of persons have been arrested in connection with the plot, many of them former officers and citizens of the Soviet Republic. One, a ormer officer named Narsky confessed the authorities say, that he planned last month, when the soldiers of the Red army were returning from camp, to destroy railway tracks and bridges with dynamite.

The situation will be completed within a few days, when this case will be referred to the supreme court for trial.

ROMANCE IN THE NEWS
(Vancouver Province)

Mr. Somerset Maugham, whose novel, "The Moon and Sixpence," has been dramatized and is being featured at a London theatre, told an interviewer recently that there is a play at every street corner. This leads a writer in the Observer to remark that there is a play in every newspaper. That is rather understating the case. Here are some suggestions for plots from Saturday's Province:

Memorial plaques and scrolls to the number of 4,794 awarded by the King to the next of kin of those who lost their lives in the war are lying unclaimed at Ottawa.

Almer E. Myers, a man with one eye, testified in a Los Angeles divorce court that whenever he took his wife out she manoeuvred to his blind side so that she might flirt with other men.

David Upp Woolsey died in Vancouver on Friday. He was the discoverer of the Le Roi Mine, but did not retain the property, which later developed into one of the big dividend-payers of the West.

A prominent politician, seeking the votes of Vancouver electors, tells them of his rise to greatness, how, as a barefoot boy, he peddled milk, how he became an iron moulder and then a lawyer, and finally, the champion of his fellowmen against greedy corporations.

Nobody gets old any more, because they just kid nature.

A BLINDNESS FOR COLORS
(Kelowna Courier)

We'd like to know why the Canadian post office department cannot decide upon a color for a stamp of a certain denomination and stick to it. Changing colors every little while is most confusing. We have green and yellow 1-cent stamps; green 2-cent stamps; brown or maroon 3-cent and 7-cent stamps; blue and maroon 5-cent and 8cent stamps and blue 10-cent stamps. It must make our postmasters and their assistants dizzy in the head trying to keep track of the frequent changes and their stamp accounts correct.

Internal cleanliness protects against disease

IT is but a step from those immediate results of constipation—headache, heaviness, loss of appetite—to serious disease. Such minor ailments are a warning that poisons from food waste are flooding your body. Keep clean internally.

Your Bath Goes Only Skin Deep

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation

Lavatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favor Lubrication

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Not a Medicine

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water it is harmless.

Get rid of constipation and avoid disease by adopting the habit of internal cleanliness. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

A dispatch from Ogdensburg, New York, of September 9, says: "August emigration from Canada broke all records at this point during August, 1925. Seven thousand three hundred and sixty-seven more Canadians left their native land during August, 1925, than during August, 1924, according to Norman Kull, chief of the local immigration department."

DO YOU KNOW

THAT civilization is pushing all fur-bearing animals farther and farther away and practically all wild fur-bearing animals are doomed to extinction?

THAT Silver Foxes are being ranched in cities and country homes in back yards? A space of 10x15 feet makes a suitable sized breeding pen, and women are as capable as men in feeding them.

THAT is costs very little to feed a fox? At our ranch it costs us less than $5.00 for food to raise a Silver Fox to full maturity. You can do the same. Whatever you realize above this for either the pelt or the live for is your net profit.

THAT there are different grades of Siler Foxes? Quality is in the breed of the fox blood; blood lines only will produce finest pelts.

THAT starting with your foundation stock of correct type means highest prices for your pelts?

THAT our ranch has paid special attention to Quality for a number of years; and we have the honor of holding the world's record prices for the finest pelts marketed since the war?

THAT the last fox we killed and pelted was in January, 1924? We sent it to The C. M. Lampson & Co., London, England, who are one of the oldest raw fur dealers, and the raw pelt sold on the open market for $670.00.

We are now booking orders for breeding stock and request you not to leave the placing of your order too late in the season to insure delivery. We start you correctly.

We will ranch foxes for you, if so desired, and we have different plans of selling, to suit your respective needs.

Here and There

Sport conditions are very good in New Brunswick this year. Harold Chadwick operating hunting camps in the province reports that at the end of September catches of speckled trout weighing 18½ lbs. were taken one day while a hunter took out a big game licence September 23rd and three days later had his deer and bear.

The world's most northerly police post, also the most remote of any human habitation, is to be constructed next year for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at the far end of Ellesmere Island. Building materials and two years' supplies will be cached within easy freighting distance of the point where men will be detailed for patrol duty on the lonely shores of Riel straits.

Appointments recently made through the office of the Comptroller Canadian Pacific Railway headquarters are W. J. Cherry who becomes Freight Claims Auditor in place of J. R. Steele retired under pension rules, and W. L. Moran appointed Assistant Freight Claims Auditor. Both these gentlemen have been connected with the Freight Claims department for many years past.

Because the prospects for hunting and fishing in northern regions of Quebec are more attractive this autumn than they have been for several seasons, the number of residents of the United States applying to the Quebec association for the protection of fish and game for guides and licences is much greater than it has been for some time, according to the secretary of the association.

A very pleasing incident occurred during the visit to Montreal of Madame Maria Jeritza, world-famous operatic star. Col. George H. Ham, "Grand Young Man" of the Canadian Pacific Railway who had met the singer before, sent his felicitations in the form of a bouquet, and Madame Jeritza replied with a bouquet of roses made of sugar with the hope that his days also would be sugar-coated. She gave a one-night recital in Montreal, leaving for Toronto the following day.

Isaac Gouverneur Ogden, vice-president in charge of finance, Canadian Pacific Railway, attained his 81st birthday October 10. Mr. Ogden is as active as ever although he has spent 54 years in railway work. He joined the C.P.R. as auditor of the western division with headquarters at Winnipeg in 1881 and has been vice-president of the system since 1901. Mr. Ogden was the recipient of flowers and congratulations from his colleagues on the occasion of his birthday.

Carelessness and lack of forethought on the part of some unknown motorist at Belleville might have led to serious accidents if it had not been soon discovered that the wig-wag signal protecting the C.P.R. level crossing on the Kingston Road was out of order. Investigation showed that an automobile had driven out of its course and broken the relay case thereby cutting the electrical contact. A watchman was immediately placed at the signal until necessary repairs had been made.

The Montreal Windsor street station police team are the champions of the Quebec district in the First Aid contests held at the Place Viger hotel in that city under the auspices of the Canadian Pacific Railway. They won the contest against teams from Ottawa and Quebec and are now holders of the Gutelius Challenge Cup, emblematic of the C.P.R. First Aid championship of the province. The championship of the New Brunswick district was won by the McAdam team who competed against Saint John and Woodstock.

Breaking New Ground in the Rockies

(1) Surveying the Glacier from a neighboring peak. (2) Paul McIntyre, 19-year-old son of J. B. McIntyre, of Providence R. I., with the Swiss guide Chris Haessler, entering the newly discovered ice cave on the Illecillewaet Glacier at Glacier B. C. (3) The summit of the Illecillewaet Glacier.

The fastnesses of the Rockies abound in virgin territory never touched by the foot of man and one of the latest of these to be traversed is the Illecillewaet Glacier where a new ice cave has been discovered this year of which the photo above gives a good idea. It was found by Chris Haessler, one of the Swiss guides stationed at Glacier B.C., and the ascent to it was made in September by 19-year-old Paul McIntyre, an annual visitor with his family to Glacier, the guide and W. J. Oliver of Calgary. Mr. Oliver describes the adventure as follows:—

"It was a glorious day, Mount Sir Donald was crowned with a circular cloud like a halo; the vegetation was at its peak and with the early morning dew the valley was filled with a delightful fragrance. After walking through massive timber we gradually emerged into jackpine, brush, and on to the tongue of the Glacier, Here were the headwaters of the Illecillewaet River wending its way down the steep valley from this huge Glacier. Our progress from this point was somewhat slower, our good trail had been left far behind; the first 1,500 feet was over rock and morraine, crossing freshets and miniature waterfalls from the ice above. As soon as we reached the ice we adjusted the grampons to our feet, these grampons are made of iron and are similar to a small bobsleigh each having 12 spikes distributed evenly over the surface and about 1½ inches long.

"Travelling along these huge crevasses is very thrilling, at times there was only a walking surface of 2 feet and on either side of this narrow ledge of ice were drops from 1,200 feet. Chris Haessler the Swiss Guide led the way and roped to him was Paul McIntyre and self. Our course over the ice field was continually brought to a halt on account of a huge gulch in the ice being too wide to cross, we would then have to travel either up or down until our guide could locate a place narrow enough to cross. Finally we located the ice cave after travelling along the base of one of these huge crevasses, it proved to be 10 feet high and 20 feet long, the sides were worn like the sands after an ebbing tide and with the strong sunlight that was coming in at its entrance these pieces of jutting ice scintillated like huge diamonds. Right in the centre across the valley, framed by this wonderful oval cave stood the Swiss Peaks and Mt. Hermit.

"Leaving here we travelled on to the ice seracs near the top of the Glacier and it made the unaccustomed stand in awe to see the Swiss Guide and Paul McIntyre run around these ice columns and up and down the sides of their steep ice banks like children at play."

THE GHOSTS A SUCCESS

The Fernie Players, presenting "Three Live Ghosts" on Monday and Tuesday nights in Fernie and Wednesday night in Michel, have firmly established themselves in the favor of their audiences. Not only are they to be congratulated on their choice of plays, but also on their happy faulty of fitting the right people into the parts assigned to them. And they also realize the importance of creating an atmosphere and setting for the particular play they are staging. Consequently an audience conducted to their seats by ghostly spectres and confronted on every side by black cats, spooky hobgoblins and jack o'-lanterns was well attuned for the opening scene of "Three Live Ghosts," which finds Mrs. Gubbins (Miss Dorothy Nelson) and Peggy Woofers (Miss Marion McAllister) exhorting, with mystic rites, the spirit of the supposedly dead Jimmy Gubbins—a particularly clever bit of acting on both their parts and systematically sustained throughout the whole play—characteristic idiosyncrasies never once forgotten, nor was there ever a lapse from the Cockney accent in whih they were perfect. Nor was there a word lost to the audience throughout the whole play, by any one of the actors, a thing that can seldom be said by amateurs. In fact, there was nothing of the amateur about the whole performance, which from the carefully studied "entrances" and "exits" to the winding up for a climax for the "curtain" at the end of each act, had all the earmarks of the professional.

Jimmy Gubbins' dramatic entrance was hailed with laughter and delight and it was easily seen that Dr. Kelman in his impersonation of this inimitable character could do what he liked with his audience, and here again was acting of the professional order at its best. A more expressive back could not be imagined than his in the scene with Peggy and Briggs of Scotland Yard. It spoke volumes and it takes a professional back to do that. And here again Peggy excelled herself and so did Mrs. Gubbins, real acting, to which the audience responded heartily. And what of the other two live ghosts? "William Jones," wanted by the American police, a most difficult of all parts, called in theatrical parlane "Walking Gentleman" difficult because there is nothing to hide ones identity behind, was rendered most carefully and conscientiously by M. Kasmar, who gave a very likable impersonation of the young American, while Miss Dolores Kelman, playing opposite him. was a charming Rose Gordon. And now we come to "Spoofy," the idol and yet ever constant care and worry of his pals—Spoofy, who had hardly a dozen words to speak in the whole play and about whom the whole play and plot hinged. "Spoofy" had the "entrances," the "exits," the "centre of the stage," and the curtain in the last act and possibly three words to speak to help him out—just acting to carry him and his audience through. Mr. Lovell is to be congratulated in his interpretation of the character and on his finished acting, which was flawless. Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Connick as detectives were excellent and the parts of their attendant constables were taken by W. Duncan and P. Kasmar.

Miss Jennie Strachan looked so pretty as Lady Leicester that we wished she had a longer part.

Fernie is most grateful to Mrs. Connick for giving so much of her time and ability for the pleasure of the public and benefit of local organizations. It is possible that the public does not know that the producing of these plays is somewhat expensive. The royalties alone come to $25.00 each night of playing and were it not for local dramatic societies, small towns would have no opportunity of seeing them. Fernie is lucky to have its dramatic society and Mrs. Connick to direct it.

The Fernie orchestra added generously to the pleasure of a very enjoyable performance.

A.F.L. WILL NOT TOLERATE REDS

Once more and in no uncertain way has the American Federation of Labor, which has just concluded its annual meeting at Atlantic City, swung the ax on the Reds. British unions were assailed for their Communist leanings. There was a flat denial of recognition for the Soviet government, while participation in the Anglo-Russian Unity Conference got the cold shoulder.

The voice of the convention registered an emphatic hands-off warning to Russian and other European labor bodies so far as trade unions in the Western hemisphere is concerned. "We return," said the resolution, "to the British workers, and to all workers everywhere, the call to stand by liberty, democracy, freedom, the right of peoples to self rule, and the right of national labor movements to determine their own policies and their right to be loyal to the free institutions of their countries."

The resolution went on to state that the American Federation of Labor will not tolerate in the western hemisphere any old world movement which seeks to impose itself upon American peoples over the will of those peoples, and the Reds were further warned that their propaganda would not be tolerated.

It is thought that this will probably be the last time that any attempt is made to induce the A. F. L. to lend aid to the bedlamites of Europe.

JACKIE COOGAN GOES BACK TO RAGS IN "THE RAG MAN"

For his fourth picture on his Metro-Goldwyn contract Jackie Coogan has a contrasting story as different from "Little Robinson Crusoe" as "A Boy of Flanders" was from Jackie's "Long Live the King."

Instead of the glitter of the South Seas and the palm and jungle-clothed islands of the equatorial zone, the East Side of New York is the locale of "The Ragman," which is coming to the Orpheum Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday next, and the episodes are those characteristically metropolitan. The appeal of the narrative is intimate, and grows out of the singular association of little Tim Kelly (Jackie Coogan), and Max Ginsberg, the latter a dealer in rags, sacks bottles, and old iron.

Into the life of this submerged merchant comes little Tim Kelly, who quickly proves his business shrewdness and the partnership of Ginsberg and Kelly results. How the little fellow not only rehabilitates the spirit of the junk dealer but his finances also, is the plot material of what promises to be Jackie's most human and beguiling picture. The nature of the story is such as to lend itself to comedy, a fact which Edward F. Cline, the director, has been highly competent to develop hilariously.

Jack Coogan, Sr., supervised the production, and the story was written by Willard Mack.

IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS

A considerable section of land in Central Ontario, including the site of Toronto, is said to have been secured from the Indians about the beginning of last century for ten shillings, according to one version of the story, or for $85 according to another version. This "Toronto tract" included "ten miles square at Toronto and two to four miles on each side of intending road or carrying place leading to the Lake de Clai (Lake Simcoe), then ten miles square at the lake and the end of the water communication emptying into Lake Huron.

This resulted from two bargains made in 1787 and 1805, the price, according to the latter being "ten shillings and divers good and valuable considerations given on September 2, 1787," whatever these were. Scarcely less ridiculous seems the price paid for a tract of land extending from the Toronto tract to Burlington, viz., $8500.

This was about the time President Jefferson effected the Louisiana purchase (1803) including all or parts of thirteen states — 550 million acres — for $15,000,000, or less than three cents an acre. A hundred years ago two dollars an acre was a good price for land in what are now some of the best sections in Ontario.

A tract of nine acres was recently sold in a large city for $650,000. This cost the recent owner's grandfather $1.25 an acre in 1843. A nice farm with a log cabin could then be purchased for $200, pork was selling at 1½ cents a pound, cows brought $8 a head, corn was 10c a bushel, and you could get two meals at a tavern for 25c.

Some twenty years ago, when the present writer was bicycling through Nova Scotia, he paid $1.25 at a hotel for supper, bed and breakfast. It was good service, too, but off the line of tourist travel, which even then had assumed considerable proportions.

We sometimes sigh for the good old times when life was simple and commodities inexpensive We must not forget, however, that the picture has a reverse side also, and undoubtedly "distance lends enchantment to the view." As Lorna Doone has it: "For nothing can be broken up, whether lawful or unlawful, without a vast amount of dust, and many people grumbling and mourning for the good old times."

Irving, Tex., wants seven school teachers of the feminine persuasion who do not paint or powder, who do not wear sleeveless dresses with abbreviated skirts, and who are willing to be home at 6 o'clock every evening and remain in town three Sundays a month. School teachers from 85 to 342 years old who are enjoying good health will find this a fine oppor-

British Journalists Give Impressions of Canada

Having completed a ten-thousand-mile tour of Canada from coast to coast and return at the invitation of E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, ten British journalists representing papers from London, Western England, Wales, Glasgow and Belfast, now broadcast to Canadians their views of the Dominion. These journalists were asked to come to this country to study at first hand the economic, commercial, industrial and agricultural conditions of the Dominion and to thus enable them to meet and combat from their own knowledge the misunderstanding and misrepresentation of Canada and Canadian conditions that have been prevalent in the Old Country of late months. Their trip was an unqualified success from every point of view. The impressions follow:—

R. A. COLWILL, Western Morning News, Plymouth.

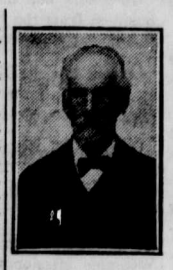
"Canada has given me a true appreciation of what is meant by great open spaces. The possibilities of this vast country are enormous, and you have as yet barely scratched the surface of its wealth. It is a land which offers great opportunities to men of the right type, but this great Dominion is obviously a young man's country, and one where every man must work. You ask no questions as to his antecedents. You merely ask him to carve out his own career. You take a man for what he himself is worth, not for what his father was. In such a land a man who is a man can work and be happy."

W. D. RENTON, Daily Chronicle, London.

"Canada's supreme confidence in her future greatness has made a deep impression upon me. Only men possessed of great vision and almost overpowering energy would have laid so soundly and on such comprehensive lines the foundations which we have everywhere seen for the coming of a great civilization. The nobly planned parliament buildings the ambitious university institutions, the network of railways, harbor facilities, vast water powers, electricity schemes, irrigation works, and cities planned out on princely lines, have been conceived for a great to-morrow. Canada is shouldering financial and other burdens in this task of Empire building which call for sympathy and admiration. It is the white man's burden in the world. One stands amazed that so few people should have accomplished so much in so short a time which encompassed Canada's history."

JAS. F. CHAPTER, Westminster Gazette, London.

"Since I was here in 1911 there has been great improvement in the roads of Canada. Though the country is said to have passed through hard times recently the enormous number of automobiles now in use appears to indicate a return or rapidly returning prosperity. Very many more trees are conserved on the prairie landscape, the planting of which and the more general use of paint for the decoration of dwellings suggests an increasing desire to have homes rather than mere houses. This spirit, it seems to me, will do more for the consolidating of Canada as a nation than any great increase if those whose chief desire is get rich quick and quit."



CAPT. E. ALTHAM, C.B., R.N. Morning Post, London.

"(1) Canada has laid for foundations on generous lines, worthy of a great future. (2) Her waiting spaces and Britain's need for room within the Empire for an overflowing population create a new bond of union. (3) The future prosperity of Canada rests not only upon agricultural development but on increased employment of British labor in both countries for manufacturing her raw materials. (4) Misunderstanding of Old Country conditions is being caused by meagre, misleading, and even malevolent news too often supplied from England to the Canadian Press. (5) The importance of a navy for exports and imports is becoming Canada's growing better appreciated. (6) Canada is a land where men must be men indeed, no wasters, agitators, or traitors to King, Flag and Empire, need apply. That is my predominant impression."

F. G. R. PETERSON, Times, London.

"At the end of a long journey, in the course of which we have crossed the Dominion twice and travelled nearly ten thousand miles, we are returning to our homes deeply impressed with the immense resources of Canada. We have seen life and conditions of labor in the Maritimes, in the industrial centres of the East, on the prairies and at the Pacific Coast. We have set ourselves to learn something of the twin problems of men and markets which face the Canadian people, and the experience which we have thus gained will be of inestimable advantage to us in the future. It will enable us to set the proper value on items of news from the Dominion, to refute baseless charges against its own good name, to make known to the young men of our own country the splendid opportunities that await them, in short, so far as lies within our power, to tell the Motherland the truth about Canada."

H. S. READ, South Wales News, Cardiff.

"Canada is not a country but a continent boundless in rich resources and richer still in the indefatigable energy of a people whose most conspicuous social characteristics is their devotion to education and research, in wise foresight of the future. For its development the great requirement is population, which can best be supplied by co-operative action of home and Dominion authorities in training would-be immigrants for agricultural work. Training is an essential requisition to rescue men and women from unwilling idleness in the Old Country and put them within reach of the abundant opportunities of the New land is to transform them from conditions of penury into sharers of exhaustless wealth, and in so doing to strengthen the Empire. We are greatly indebted to the Canadian Pacific Railway for their invitation to make the tour."

HUGH MARTIN, Daily News, London

"Canada's need is the Old Country's opportunity. Equally Britain's is the new country's opportunity. From the Atlantic to the Pacific seaboards I have heard the cry, "Send us men; send us capital,' and have found conclusive proof that once again the new world has the power to redress the balance of the old; have we and have you the will to make that power effective? It seems to me to be largely a matter of understanding and sympathy. Patriotism is not enough, but translated into terms of mutual help I know is capable of leading us both into a new promised land. Let us pull together."

JOHN A. BUIST, Glasgow Herald.

"Every province of Canada claims that it is the land of opportunity. I believe that each is entitled to make that claim and that the opportunity is for more people who are willing to work primarily on the land and are determined to succeed. The vast open spaces must be populated. As a Scotchman who has met many old countrymen on this wonderful tour via the Canadian Pacific Railway across the Dominion I should like to see a large influx of immigrants belonging to the race which played such a noble part in the pioneer work in the land of promise for the young and vigorous. The Old Country can still produce that type. What prevents them from coming? They lack the means, not the desire. I believe that if our home government and the Dominion Government could agree to assist them to a greater extent than has hitherto been done, the main obstacle to the flow of Scottish immigration into Canada would be removed. The people must be found, if not from the Old Land then taken from elsewhere, but I think you would prefer the old stock."

CHAS. J. JORY, Daily Telegraph, London.

"I became more and more impressed with the boundless possibilities of this great Dominion every day of my tour. From Halifax to Vancouver that impression grew from wonder to amazement. Surely for a man who will work and for the woman who will help him there is no land so rich in resource, so full of opportunities. All honor, then, to the brave men who made this possible, to the pioneers who blazed a nation's way through brush and canyon, who adventured over river and lake and prairie, and to the Canadian statesmen whose vision was not that of ordinary men."

JOHN SAYERS, Belfast Telegraph.

"Canada fills me with wonder and admiration. That a comparatively small population should have accomplished so much in so short a time is marvellous, and from what I have seen I am convinced that the tapping of the Dominion's resources, particularly of Alberta and British Columbia, has only begun. If the two urgent needs of men and capital—British if possible—can be supplied, there seems to be no limit to the future of the country. I am impressed by the loyalty, the beauty, and the pluck of Canada, and I take off my hat to the courage of the early explorers and settlers. They laid foundations upon which it should be an honor to be to-day, Floreat Canada."

Leo Maxse writing in The London National Review says: "Perorations at Pilgrim's dinners and English-speaking Union luncheons on the 'common blood, common history, common language, common ideals and aspirations of the mighty English-speaking peoples' only render confusion worst confounded by encouraging illusions of the similarity of two utterly dissimilar nations. We may be both 'English-speaking'—though on that point opinions differ—but we are not English-thinking, and however mutually likeable Britons and Americans may find one another—and it is a matter of common observation that whenever thrown together they usually get on, especially in remote places—we must all be conscious of the fact that from one cause or another there is little political sympathy between us, as is proved by the greater cordiality of our co-operation in any field but statesmanship."

DIRECTIONS FOR RADIO OWNERS

Interference from Regenerative Receiving Sets:

The following note appears on the back of your Radio Receiving License:—

"When using a receiver of the regenerative type for the reception of raidotelephone programmes, please avoid increasing regeneration to the point at which the receiver begins to oscillate, otherwise you will cause interference with neighboring receiving equipments."—Are You Doing Your Best to Observe This?

A recent departmental survey of radio broadcast reception conditions in the more populated sections in the Dominion indicates that approximately 50 per cent of the "preventable interference" which prevails is caused through the incorrect operation of regenerative receiving sets by the broadcast listeners themselves.

The survey further indicates that most of this interference is due to lack of knowledge of correct methods of adjusting a regenerative receiving set, and it is accordingly hoped that a material reduction in the same may be effected if the broadcast listeners can be persuaded to co-operate in an endeavor to clear the air of regenerative whistles, and with this end in view the following instructions for operating this class of receiving sets have been drafted.

What is Regeneration?—

The principle of regeneration, as used in radio receiving sets, is that part of the output of the detector vacuum tube feeds back into its own input and thus greatly increases the volume of the signal.

The electric waves reaching the receiving set from the transmitting station travel down the aerial wire through the primary coil in the set and so to earth down the ground wire. The weak electric current resulting from this influences the vacuum tube in such a way as to set it functioning.

The resulting output from the plate circuit of this tube is fed back in such a manner as to set up a "field," or influence, in the part of the circuit connected to the input (the grid) of the tube. This "field" induces in the input a current of electricity of the same frequency as that of the received electric waves. The energy, therefore, which comes down the antenna wire is automatically strengthened by an impulse from the output of the detector tube.

What is Oscillation?—

Unless controlled this action will continue until the saturation point or climax is reached, the tube being then said to be in a state of oscillation. When a receiving set is in oscillation, it causes howling and squealing in your own and your neighbor's receiving sets. Regeneration should therefore never be allowed to proceed to this point as it then constitutes a public nuisance.

What Oscillation Does—

On commercial receivers, regeneration is not always described by this name and the dial which controls this feature of the equipment may be designated by any of the following terms: Regeneration, Amplification, Re-action, Varind, Tickler, Sensitivity, Feed-back.

When a radio receiving set in a state of oscillation is being tuned to a broadcast station:—

1. It causes whistles in radio receiving sets, of all types, which are tuned to the same station; this interference may be heard up to a distance of several miles.
2. It distorts the quality of your own music.
3. It uses more "B" battery power and therefore the life of the "B" battery is reduced.
4. It tends to reduce the life of the detector tube.

Zero Beat—

When a radio receiving set, in a state of oscillation, is exactly tuned to a broadcast station it is said to be in a state of Zero Beat. This distorts the broadcast reception and also interferes with neighboring receiving sets which are tuned to the same station.

In a word, regeneration carried to oscillation causes great annoyance to your neighbors, poor reception and expense to yourself, and has no advantages whatever.

Does Your Radio Receiving Set Cause Interference?—

The interfering whistle which you hear in your receiving set may originate in your own set or it may be interference caused by your neighbor. In order to determine this point you may make the following test:—

Leave the regeneration control in a fixed position, slowly rotate the tuning dial, and note particularly the change in sound of the whistle. If the whistle rises and lowers in pitch sympathetically with the movement of your tuning dial it indicates that your receiving set is in a state of oscillation and probably causing interference to other sets. On the other hand, if the whistle does not change in pitch corresponding to each movement of your tuning dial, but simply varies in volume, the whistle is not caused by your receiving set, but is interference produced by some other osillating receiving set in the neighborhood.

Many so-called non-radiating receivers will, under certain conditions radiate and thus cause interference. Make it your business to see that your set is not causing trouble.

If you are in doubt as to whether your set can cause interference you can check the same by making the following test, but be careful to do so at a time when only a few people are listening in, so as not to cause annoyance:

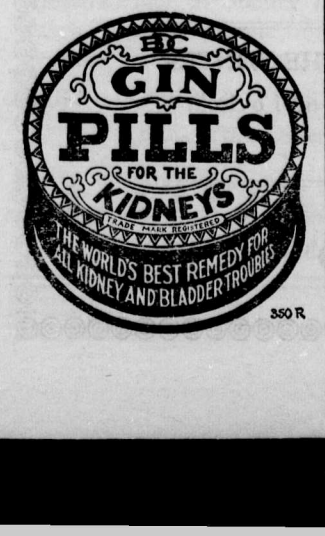
Call a neighbor on the telephone and ask him to listen in on a particular station at a pre-arranged time and then tune your set to the same station. Turn up your detector tube filament to normal and put the regeneration control to its maximum; move your tuning dial five times slowly across the point corresponding to the tuning of that station, then telephone your neighbor and ask him if he heard the interference corresponding to these five movements of the dial on your receiving set. If he heard your interference, the probability is that hundreds of others have also been annoyed at times by radiation from your receiving set. You should therefore learn how to operate without causing this interference.

How To Adjust a Regenerative Radio Receiving Set:

If you will take the trouble to observe the rules which follow, you will obtain greater satisfaction and enjoyment from your radio receiving set and at the same time cause minimum annoyance to your neighbors.

1. Practise on tuning powerful stations first and do not try to pick up weak distant stations until you become expert.
2. Use both hands, one hand for the regeneration control and the other hand for the tuning control.
3. Keep the regeneration control always just below the point of oscillation, your set is then in the most sensitive condition. This is the reason for using your two hands for tuning.
4. If your set then accidentally breaks into oscillation, turn back the regeneration control at once.
5. Do not try to find a station by the "whistle." If your set is tuned just below the whistling point, the signals will come in clear and your regeneration control can then be tuned a little further to increase the volume
6. Do not force regeneration in an attempt to obtain loud speaker volume from a set not designed for the purpose.
7. Do not force regeneration in an attempt to hear stations beyond the range of your set; be content with those you can really hear.

The fact that you once heard a distant station on your receiving set is no indication that you can hear this station regularly, for occasionally a radio broadcast from a distant station is received with extra strength due to some freak condition. When you have tried to tune in a station in the correct manner for a minute or two and are not able to hear it do not unduly increase your regeneration and persistently wiggle your dials, for in so doing you may be causing annoyance to some other broadcast listener who would otherwise be able to receive this distant station on a multi-tube receiving set.



You can accordingly assist in eliminating these whistles by:

(a) Learning to operate correctly yourself.

(b) Not allowing children who are not old enough to understand the correct method of operation, to cause interference from your set. (A crystal receiving set causes no interference).

All Radio Receiving Sets in Canada are required by law to be licensed. Licenses are issued yearly and are required to be renewed on the 1st of April each year. They may be obtained for $1 from local Radio Inspectors, many Post Offices, many Radio Dealers, or from the Radio Branch, Department of Mines and Fisheries, Ottawa.

The proceeds of the license fees are used to maintain an inspection staff for the administration of Radio and for the improvement of Radio conditions in the Dominion.

Here and There

In the last fiscal year 3,843 homestead entries were granted in the Prairie Provinces, aggregating an approximate area of 614,880 acres, while, in addition, 710 soldier grants of 113,600 acres, make up a grand total of 728,480 acres so settled.

In 1915 Canada exported no wheat to China. In 1918 she sent only eight bushels to Japan. In 1924 China imported over 5,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and over 1,500,000 barrels of flour, while Japan took 7,000,000 bushels of wheat and 110,000 barrels of flour. It is predicted these figures will be well beaten for the current year.

The Grand Challenge Cup, emblematic of the First Aid Championship of the entire system of the Canadian Pacific Railway, will be competed for at the Place Viger Hotel, Montreal, November 15. The champions in a knock-out competition among Eastern and Western teams respectively, will fight it out for the trophy.

Plans are already being laid to make the 1925 Eastern International Dogsled Derby an even greater success than in any previous year, and it is reported that the prize money will be considerably increased next winter, with the object of attracting more teams and mushers from the West and the United States.

Fire Prevention Week, October 4-10, was observed throughout the Dominion, and to mark the sense of the importance of the occasion Mr. Grant Hall, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, broadcast an appeal by wire to every officer and employee of the system "to co-operate as in the past and set a good example by thoroughly cleaning up all premises."

Canada's great outlook, says a recent issue of the London Outlook, is that she wants more people, but of the right type, namely, steady agricultural workers with enterprise, initiative and endurance. Enthusiastic letters from emigrants under the joint scheme of settling 3,000 families in Canada are bound to have their healthy effect on relatives and friends dissatisfied with their lot in England.

E. F. L. Sturdee, general Passenger Agent for the Orient of the C.P.R., with headquarters at Hong Kong, has been appointed Assistant General Passenger Agent of the system at Montreal. His duties commenced here in October. He was relieved of his other work owing to ill-health, but the climate of Canada soon restored him to physical well-being. He has a long record of service with the C.P.R., dating back to his first appointment at Saint John in 1894.

LOADING TWO GRAIN CARS A MINUTE IN RECORD CANADIAN NATIONAL MOVE

DELIVERIES of grain to the lakehead by the Canadian National Railways during September just closed exceeded the combined deliveries of September, 1924, and 1923, according to grain figures issued at Winnipeg on Oct. 1st, 18,913 cars were delivered during September, 1925, against 4,651 in September, 1924, and 12,656 in the same month of 1923. The daily average for September, 1925, was 630 cars against the previous record of 322, established in September, 1923.

New records were made by the Canadian National in other branches of the grain movement also. Marketings during the month were 52,207,000 bushels against the previous high mark of 39,770,000, made in September, 1923. Loadings were 27,878 cars and 37,217,000 bushels during the month compared with 22,508 cars and 28,472,000 bushels in September, 1923. Total loadings on Canadian National lines to the end of September this year were 29,284 cars and 39,038,000 bushels, against 11,079 cars containing 14,632,000 bushels at the same date last year.

On several days toward the end of the month, loadings reached from 1,400 to 1,500 cars per day, which during the ten-hour working day required the loading of approximately two and a half cars per minute in order to reach this total. Reducing the time to seconds it was estimated that at least 60 bushels of grain (the contents of a farmer's wagon box) were loaded into a car on Canadian National Western lines every second during the ten-hour working day.

The heaviest week of the season by four million bushels in grain marketings closed on Oct. 1st. Loadings for the week were heavier than any previous week since the opening of the grain season by 1,200 cars or nearly one million bushels. Compared with statistics for the same period last year, the week's marketings were just twice those of 1924, while the loadings were larger by 3,837 cars, or 4,258,000 bushels.

A record week was also experienced at the lakehead, when 6,149 cars of grain were unloaded and 60 boats, carrying 13,292,000 bushels, were cleared for eastern markets. During the same week last year only 2,208 cars were unloaded and 29 boats, carrying 5,806,000 bushels, were cleared.

Canadian National loadings for the week by provinces were: 3,486,000 bushels in Manitoba; 6,970,000 bushels in Saskatchewan; 1,571,000 bushels in Alberta; making a total of 10,475,000 bushels, or 8,580 cars, for the period.

Marketings at C.N. points were: 4,167,00 bushels, Manitoba; 11,825,000 bushels, Saskatchewan; 2,220,000 bushels, Alberta; total, 17,568,000 bushels. This leaves in store at midnight Thursday in country elevators in the three provinces in the order given above: 2,649,000, 12,734,000 and 1,972,000 bushels, a total of 17,355,000 bushels in storage as compared with 6,579,000 bushels at the same date last year.

The movement west is speeding up also, as threshing progresses in the western districts, 417 cars having arrived at Vancouver during August and September. This is just 201 cars more than during the same two months last year.

Death came suddenly to an old Fernie pioneer this morning in the person of John McRitchie. He was one of the early Nova Scotia colony of miners who came here in 1898 and 1899, and was highly respected by all who knew him. Two daughters survive him in Fernie, Miss Mary McRitchie and Mrs. John Robertson; also a son, Daniel, who lives at Coal Creek. The date of the funeral at the time of writing has not been decided on.

The Fernie Players presented the comedy "Three Live Ghosts" in the Michel Opera House on Wednesday, Nov. 4. There was a full house and the audience was a most appreciative ore. Rev. A. Garlick appeared on the stage before the last act to thank the Fernie Players for their kindness in coming down to Michel and giving their services on behalf of St. Paul's Church. A very hearty round of applause greeted them when the curtain was raised for the concluding act. Great credit is due to the artistes for the admirable way in which the production was staged.

I.O.D.E. MAKE PRESENTATION

An interesting ceremony took place on Wednesday, Oct. 28, at the Fernie Annex and West Fernie Schools, when Mrs. Herchmer, Regent of Mt. Fernie Chapter I.O.D.E., presented three pictures to each school.

On Friday, Nov. 6, the annual presentation of prizes for the highest standing in Canadian History in Grades 7 and 8 took place.

The ceremony opened with "O Canada." Mr. Martin, principal of the Public School, extended to Mt. Fernie Chapter I.O.D.E. a most cordial welcome, and wished it were possible they could make visits more often to the school. It gave him great pleasure to welcome an organization that took such a keen interest in the schools and children. He gave a very interesting address on loyalty to King, Country and Empire.

Mrs. Herchmer expressed the very great pleasure it gave her fellow members and self to take part in this presentation, and explained to the pupils what the I.O.D.E. is and what it stands for. She hoped no matter where they came from that they were now Canadians and that they should try and learn all they could about our Empire and Country. They would then become very proud of this great Canada of ours and be proud to take their places as Canadian citizens.

Mrs. J. L. Gates, Educational Secretary, spoke to the boys and girls on Loyalty to Father, Mother, School Work, School Principal and Teachers, and if put into practice with their education, when school days were over, and they would have to earn their own living, they would find many places open for loyal men and women.

Mrs. Herchmer presented to the successful pupils their prizes, which were as follows:

Division 1, Grade 8—James Fisher.
Division 2, Grade 8—Thomas Miard.
Division 3, Grade 8—Emil Aiello.
Division 4, Grade 7—Jos. Mogielka.
Division 5, Grade 7—Frances Quail.
Division 6, Grade 7—Arthur Rutledge.

Miss Wolfenden's class rendered Land of Hope and Glory, which was very much enjoyed by all present.

The next item on the program was the presentation of the Governor General's bronze medal for District No. 10. These medals are given annually to the pupils obtaining the highest marks in the Entrance Examinations. For the purpose of distribution the province is divided into ten dstricts. This distrct, No. 10, extends from east of Revelstoke to the Alberta boundary. To Fernie school came the honor of winning this medal in district No. 10. A Fernie Public School boy, Tom Miard, was the winner, obtaining 442 marks out of a possible 500. Mrs. Herchmer expressed her pleasure in the honor of being chosen to make the presentation. She congratulated the Fernie school, and she paid a great tribute to the winner in securing this distinction for his community.

In conclusion, Mr. Martin on behalf of the school board, teachers and the pupils thanked the I.O.D.E. for the handsome prizes and the great interest taken in all school work. The ceremony was concluded with the singing of God Save the King.

CONCERT AND DANCE AT CROW'S NEST

A charming concert and dance was given by the pupils at Crow's Nest on Saturday evening last. The school hall was beautifully decorated for the event and presented a very pretty spectacle. A very interesting program of songs, recitations and dialogues was rendered, and greatly enjoyed by a large audience. All the pupils acquitted themselves well, Miss Norah Thayler and Master Fred Emery coming in for especial commendation. A surprise feature of the evening was the presentation of a silver pencil to one of the pupils. Two or three items given at the end of the program by two young professionals proved very acceptable. A delightful dance followed to the strains of a three-piece orchestra. A delicious supper was served. Mr. Bowes, the teacher, is to be congratulated on the success of the affair.

Geneva, Nov. 13.—The League of Nations sees general recovery less than it was before the Great War.

LARGE INCREASE IN INSANE IN B.C.

The great increase in the number of insane in the mental hospitals of the Province is causing much concern in official circles. Almost every year additions to the hospitals have to be provided for by the Legislature, and the annual cost of caring for the insane has risen to approximately $750,000. The Provincial Secretary will shortly propose that a special committee of the House be appointed to consider the whole subject. It is stated that in a single year as many inmates are admitted to these hospitals as were in them 20 years ago, that 66 per cent of the inmates are not Canadian born and that 90 per cent of them are not natives of this Province.

THIEVES GET 14 MONTHS

Frank Phillipps and Edward Andresen, two transients from across the border, were sentenced to spend the next 14 months in Okalla prison by His Lordship Justice Macdonald, sitting in County Court here on Tuesday, in the absence of County Court Judge Thompson, who was unable to attend on account of illness.

Phillips and Andresen were arrested by Constable Brindley at Michel on Oct. 30, in possession of a quantity of stolen goods which corresponded to a description of articles of clothing which had been stolen from a section house at Crow's Nest, B.C., just eight hours previously. They were brought up before Magistrate Dickson, of Michel, and at the request of Sergt. Greenwood were remanded for eight days. They again appeared before Magistrate Dickson at the end of that time and were committed for trial.

In the County Court here Tuesday morning they both pleaded guilty and gave as their excuse that they had been on the prairies looking for work in the harvest fields but had been unsuccessful.

WARD IS GIVEN EIGHT YEARS AND TWENTY LASHES

John Ward, bandit, who pleaded guilty to the charge of robbing the Imperial Bank at Creston before Judge Forin, at Nelson, a week ago, was sentenced Wednesday to eight years in the penitentiary and twenty lashes. Ward, caught on the afternoon of the robbery on Oct. 20, with $2700 from the bank in his possession, at first elected for trail by jury, but later reelected for speedy trial, and came up before Judge Forin, pleading guilty, a week ago. At that time His Honor reserved judgment.

In sentencing the prisoner, Judge Forin drew his attention to the fact that he was liable to imprisonment for life for the offence with which he was charged, that of robbery with violence.

The punishment was severe because of the brutality of the crime. Homes and banks in Canada had to be protected from outlaws who were running at large, and the judges of the Dominion were determined that punishment should be inflicted commensurate with a crime of that nature. Further, the record of the accused, on his own admission, had been far from clean. The public had to be protected from such men as he, and therefore his honor imposed the sentence of eight years and 20 lashes.

The charge was laid by the provincial police and the prisoner was undefended.

CELEBRATED ARMISTICE DAY

Armistice Day , despite a heavy drizzling rain, was celebrated in Fernie with the usual eleventh hour Memorial Service in memory of the fallen heroes of the Great War.

With Nov. 11 a schedule holiday for the miners, Mayor J. S. Irvine issued a proclamation declaring Armistice Day a civic holiday, thus closing the schools and all places of business in the city to allow the citizens to participate in the services.

Promptly at 10.30 a.m., led by the Veterans Brass Band playing war time marches such as "Colonel Bogey" and "Old Contemptibles," members of the G.W.V.A., their Ladies Auxiliary, the I.O.D.E., the Fernie Elks, the L.O.O.M., the Italian Society, and a large number of other citizens, left the G.W.V.A. headquarters in parade formation and marched to the government building lawn, saluted the flag and the Fernie War Memorial, placed a number of floral tributes and then proceeded to the Orpheum Theatre, where the Memorial service was held.

At 11 a.m. shary the gathering rose to their feet and observed a complete silence for two minutes, which was followed by the singing of "O Canada." The service then proceeded with the following program: Invocation, Capt. Cormack, S.A.; hymn, "Forever With the Lord"; address, Rev. Father McKenna; hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee"; address, Rev. H. U. Oswald; hymn, "Fight the Good Fight"; Benediction, Mrs. (Capt.) Cormack, S.A.; the National Anthem.

HOCKEY PROSPECTS

Hockey this season will very likely take the form of a city league as in the previous seasons. There seems to be no dearth of talent this year and four good teams should be easily picked to form the league. There are quite a number of newcomers to the city who may be able to cop a place in the Fernie team which will enter the B.C. play-offs.

J. Fred Scott, of Cranbrook, who attended the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association meeting at the coast this week, was elected Vice-President of the Association, so the interior have a representative on the provincial executive who will see that the clubs in this section of the province are not overlooked.

It is expected that a meeting will be called shortly, probably at Cranbrook, of all the clubs in East Kootenay to outline a program for the coming season.

G.W.V.A. HOLD BANQUET

The most successful Armistice Day in the annals of the local branch of the G.W.V.A. was brought to a close on Wednesday evening, when the members and their wives and a number of invited guests sat down to a sumptuous repast prepared by the Women's Auxiliary. The hall was tastefully decorated, the poppy being being very much in evidence. President George Bowen filled the duties of chairman in a very creditable manner. The toast to The King was proposed by Comrade Dr. Bonnell; The City by Mayor Irvine; Our Departed Comrades, by Chairman Bowen; the G.W.V.A. by Rev. H. U. Oswald, replied to by Comrade R. Billsborough, who gave a brief resume of the work of this branch and appealed for greater unity. Vocal and elocution numbers were given by Comrades Wm. Young, W. Riley, and H. Wheeler, with H. Sharpe as monolongist. Comrade Tom Joinson gave several impersonations, which were highly appreciated. Dr. George Kelman and Wm. Howarth officiated at the piano. Opportunity was taken to present Comrade Cowper Stephenson with his Past President's badge, the presentation being pleasingly made by Comrade Dr. Corsan. Cigars and cigarettes were liberally dispensed for the benefit of the patrons of Lady Nicotine. Sherwood Herchmer and others spoke a few words of appreciation appropriate to the occasion. The "King" was heartily sung at the close. It is to be hoped that the spirit of get together permeating the assembly on Wednesday last will not be allowed to fall.

"LIMITED MAIL" IS A FILM THRILLER

"The Limited Mail," the Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen, which begins a two day engagement at the Orpheum Theatre next Wednesday, is a picturization of Elmer Vance's thrilling melodrama of the West, directed by George Hill.

The story concerns the fortunes of Bob Snobson (Monte Blue) a ne'er do well Easterner who turns tramp and joins forces with Spike Edward Gribbon and Potts (Willard Louis), two others of the carefree brotherhood. When the three save the Limited Mail from destruction by a mountain landslide, Jim Fowler (Tom Gallery), the mail clerk, strikes up a friendship with Bob.

Together the two men bring up Bob's motherless little son Bobbie (Jackie Huff) and together they fall in love with Caroline Dale (Vera Reynolds), an attractive little waitress. Bob's past in the form of a chorus girl returns to disturb his romance, and further complications result when Jim is killed in a wreck due to Bob's carelessness in missing a danger signal. Bobbie falls into a stream when he follows Bob in his grief-stricken wanderings, and the man sacrifices the boy to rescue the Mail Train from a landslide.

How Spike rescues little Bobbie, how Caroline's faith is restored and she and Bob find happness together forms the climax to the dramatic story.

"The Limited Mail," filmed in the Colorado mountains, is said to have some of the most beautiful shots ever seen in a photoplay.

MORE REVENUE FROM POTATOES

Toronto Globe.— High prices for farm products too often go hand in hand with short crops, while, conversely, low prices are a concomitant of liberal yields more often than is at all satisfactory to the grower. The farmer naturally longs for a combination of a large production from his fields and a strong market. This year, however, the Canadian farmer finds the former condition obtains as far as his potato crop is concerned. The yield has been light, while prices give every indication of going higher. Owing to a reduction in the harvest of this staple vegetable throughout the country the market recently has shown signs of considerable strength which, if maintained, may result in a larger financial return than was realized last year, in spite of the sharp reduction in the total output. All Eastern Canada seems to have experienced a substantial decrease in quantity of potatoes harvested this year. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics places the crop for the whole Dominion at 41,258,000 hundredweght, compared wth 56,648,000 hundredweight in 1924, and 662,568,000 the average for the five years 1919-23.

NO KLEAGLING WANTED HERE

Victoria Times.— Ministers of the United Church of Canada who met in Vancouver the other afternoon for the purpose of forming a Ministerial Association are to be commended for refusing to hear a delegation from representatives of the Terminal City's branch of the Ku Klux Klan. It made no difference to them that over one thousand ministers of the gospel in the United States were reported as belonging to this organization. The suggestion that the kleagling klansmen of the neighboring republic are merely operating in "an effort to secure the enforcement of the law" and would like to do the same in this country was by no means a reflection of the intelligence of the delegation's spokesman. This is Canada. It is not the United States. The law is being enforced in this country without the aid of gentlemen who dress up in nightshirts and dance a highland fling round a fiery cross on the hillside . When the state requires assistance it will ask for it. Gratuitous interference before that time is likely to cause trouble for state and busybody alike. There are many things for which we admire our friends to the South; but protect us from the hooded gentry.

BOOZE SMUGGLING IN SWEDEN

According to a recent article in "Norsk Toldtidende," says an Oslo correspondent of the New York Herald, the smuggling of whiskey and other prohibited liquors is being conducted in an entirely new way from what it was previously. The tighter control on the fjords and at the Sweedish frontier has made smuggling a little more precarious, and new ways have now been devised.

Prohibited liquors now are actually being smuggled through the customs the most brazen manner imaginable. Some weeks ago 13 bottles of acid were imported from Germany to be cleared at Osl. The officials investigated the contents of three or four bottles and foun dthem to contain acid as per specification. The consignment was being allowed to go through when an official examined another bottle; this was found to contain whiskey.

Recently twenty cases of crepe rubber were held up for examination. Each case contained a thin layer of the rubber, while securely fastened underneath were small tins of brandy. Only a few days ago there were three instances where cases consigned from Hamburg, Holland and England containd whiskey. In each instance the cases were started to contain machinery.

It is understood that special instructions have now been given to all customs offcials to see that every package cleared inwards is duly opened and thoroughly examined. But this does not dispose of the difficulty. What about the thousands of barrels of oil, tar, etc., sacks of sugar, coffee, flour, etc., that are imported? It is the easiest thing in the world to secrete brandy or whiskey in such packages. The customs officials are carefully considering the matter, but it seems impossible that anything really effective can be done.

OUR UNIVERSE

We talk glibly of the sun being ninety-five million miles from the earth. But what conception have we of this distance ? Someone has said that if a child could be born with an arm long enough to reach to the sun, it would be one hundred years before he could feel the burn that would be caused at the end of his finger, and so he would die before the pain was felt.

Feeling, however, travels slowly. But think of the speed of light—186,000 miles a second. Sit at your window, hold your watch in your hand, strike a match. While your watch ticks once the light from the match travels around the world once, twice, thrice—seven times. And yet at this tremendous speed it takes light over eight minutes to come from the sun to the earth. But the sun is a near neighbor compared with those wonderful constellations which illuminate the heavens so brilliantly at night. From some of the near fixed stars it takes light traveling at this inconceivable speed some years to reach us. Years ago when this was first proclaimed by astronomers, it produced an astounding impression. But there has been a change. All that is now commonplace. We have moved on to new wonders.

A distinguished astronomer lecturing in Montreal some months ago stated that the limits of the universe were at least 300,000 light years distant. A light year is the distance light will travel, which is approximately 7,000,000,000,000 miles. Who can contradict it ? This would make the universe extend to 2,100,000,000,000,000,000 miles. Who has the faintest conception of its meaning ?

It is little wonder that Pascal exclaimed, "The eternal silence of the infinite spaces terrifies me," or that Carlyle, when a friend pointed to the brilliant heavens as a "glorious sight" cried out, "Man, it's just dreadful !" and Watson's tribute is

"But oftentimes he feels
The intolerable vastness bow him down,
The awful homeless spaces scare his soul."

THE SCHOOL QUESTION

A few days ago the Colonist gave an account of the financial aspect of our school problems as dealt with in the report of the Survey Commission from which it would appear that unless new sources of revenue are sought and found, our school bill, heavy enough now in all conscience, is likely to become heavier instead of lighter. Another phase of the problem is that of educational results. We are entitled to look for results fairly proportionate to our heavy outlay. A partial answer to this enquiry is given in the chapters of the report which deal with examinations and tests. The public are inclined to attach a good deal of weight to the results of school examinations. They are usually regarded as a measure of the efficency of the teaching and the industry of the pupils. It is an open secret, however, that many persons who have to do with the actual setting of examination papers and the marking of the answers are troubled with serious doubts concerning their value as accurate instruments. A foot-rule, a weigh scale, a thermometer can do accurate measurement. A foot-rule furnishes something better than a mere opinion as to the length of a stick of timber. It measures length. There is no subjective or personal element in the matter.

The question is, what is measured in an ordinary school examination and is the measurement accurate ? Does it measure actual intelligence or is it merely educational acquirement? In the case of matehematics for example, does the examination measure actual matehmatical talent or acquired power in mathematics, or stored-up knowledge of mathematical facts, or the efficiency of a coaching process, or an uncanny luck in guessing what the examiner was likely to ask ? After these questions are answered, there still remain to be considered the wide variations observed in the marking of the same papers by different examiners. The survey commissioners decided to give a series of objective tests for intelligence and achievement throughout the Province which should be, as far as is humanly possible, free from the defects of the regular examination system. The results of these tests are tabulated with much detail in the report and some attempt is also made to interpret and evaluate them.

It is interesting, for example, to learn that male students in the high schools, normal schools and university classes of the first year made higher scores in the intelligence tests than did the females. The survey points out that as males and females everywhere have the same average intelligence there must be some factor at work which drains educational institutions of the brighter girls more rapidly than it drains them of the brighter boys. It is easier for boys to get jobs. The girls must show a higher grade of intelligence if they are to compete in the economic life of the Province. The University of British Columbia is getting a better selection of students than the Normal schools, a condition which obtains in every province in the Dominion of Canada. Moreovere the tests show that our Normal School students are slightly below those of the United States. They also show that graduates and under-graduates of our university do better than corresponding groups in the University of Toronto and in Ohio University. Students in urban high schools show a lower intelligence than those in rural high schools. In the commercial and technical courses businessmen will be pleased to learn the intelligence score is less in the regular high schools. The girls in household science and commercial classes made higher scores than the girls in the regular courses.

The students of the high schools, normal schools and university were grouped according to birthplace and the intelligence quotients of the several groups compared. Six groups were formed ; those born in the Province ; in Canada, but outside the Province ; in the British Isles ; in the U.S.A. ; in Continental Europe, and in the rest of the world. The report states that the low intelligence of pupils born in Continental Europe and the rest of the world is the outstanding feature of the investigation. In this comparison the British Isles stand first and the Province second. The rest of Canada and in the United States are about the same. The foregoing are intelligence scores. The achievement tests are equally interesting. In general science and algebra the B.C. records are superior to those in the United States. In Latin and French our records are lower. It is suggested that this may be due to the influence of the junior high schools in that country. Languages are begun two years earlier and the verbal memory is very active at that stage.

In the elementary schools our pupils surpass the United States norms in all grades except the second in the subject of spelling. In grades six eight more than three-quarters of the B.C. pupils surpass a score that only one-half of the American pupils manage to reach. In every grade our pupils in the elementary schools are superior to the Americans in the tests in silent reading, in hand writing and in Arithmetic. The survey suggests that these "tool-subjects" are probably over-emphasized in our schools. Finally taking the median figures of the various tests for high school, normal school and university students, the best achievement scores were made by the students with the highest rating. Nature is dominant over nurture.

The groundwork for what promises to be a big industry is now being developed by the Singer Sewing Machine Company at Thurso, a point on the Canadian Pacific Railway, on the north shore line to Ottawa. It is planned by the Singer Company to manufacture at Thursc all the woodwork required for their numerous plants in different parts of the world. Work on the new plant is being pushed with all possible speed and it is anticipated that shipments from Thurso will commence sometime early next year.

While the Canadian Railway Commission is besieged with all kinds of applications for reductions in Canadian freight rates, the Western group of railways in the United States is asking for a five per cent increase and the northwestern section of the group is asking more than that "as a measure of relief." Some of these roads are in the hands of the receivers. Yet these American railways already have higher rates than the Canadian roads, the freight revenues in the U.S.A. being 1.293 cents per ton mile on western lines as compared with 1,011 cents on all Canadian railways. The average American rate is 28 per cent above the average Canadian rate. Owing to the low grain rates in Canada, the C.P.R. average rate is 1,011 per ton mile, so that the average rate on American western lines is more than 30 per cent above the average C.P.R. rate.

HUGE ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE

A Deisel electric locomotive has been completed by the Baldwin Electric Locomotive Company, of Philadelphia, which has the largest horsepower of any internal combustion locomotive yet built in the United States, and is approached in horsepower capacity only by the Lemonosoff locomotive built in Germany for the Russian Government. The German locomotive is reported to have developed 1,100 horsepower in tests.

The oil engine of the new locomotive has a rated capacity of 1,000 horsepower. The locomotive's tractive force is 52,000 pounds and total weight 275,000 pounds, of which 180,000 pounds is carried on the driving wheel.

This locomotive has been in service for several weeks on the Reading Railway between Reading and Tamaqua, Pa. It is said to have given a good account from a mechanical and power standpoint, the high tractive force adapting it particularly well to heavy switching service. It has handled 1,000-ton trains from Reading to Tamaqua, a distance of approximately forty miles, about three-quarters of which is seven per cent grade, with an average of 3.3 gallons of fuel oil per 1,000 gross ton-miles. It has moved these trains over the grade at a speed of approximately sixteen miles an hour. On the runs in the reverse direction the fuel consumption averaged one gallon per 1,000 gros ton-miles.

The tests indicate a fuel consumption by the engine of .40 gallons per horse-power hour at full load, increasing to .45 gallon per horse-power hour at half load. The engine operates with very little vibration.

GETTING ALONG WITHOUT ANTHRACITE COAL

In the long and brilliant history of American industry, invention and general aggressiveness, necessity has generally been the mother of invention. The American's instinct for getting along with the best thing at hand and making it better won the respect of his allied soldiers during the World war.

If he can not get the commodity he desires he can usually find a substitute that fills the bill just about as well as the original. That was demonstrated during the war when wheat flour was largely reserved for the fighting forces and the noncombatants were forced to find substitutes for their bread. They did it, liked it and thrived on it.

The east has been worried over the anthracite strike, and many a bin is shy of the winter's supply of fuel. There is no finer fuel in the world than anthracite coal and the eastern householder has viewed the empty bin with apprehension as he remembered hard winters and zero weather and found none of his favorite fuel available at any price.

But a substitute will be available. In a recent week 12,000,000 tons of bituminous coal were mined. Not since last January has so much soft coal been mined in six days, and the amount is rising week by week. For several six-day periods before the record week the output exceeded 11,000,000 tons.

Incidentally, the striking miners and the hard coal operators may find that their row is going to end in loss to both sides. They are quarreling with their own bread and butter while their customers are forced to turn to soft coal and may find it preferable in the end.—Spokesman Review.

Thanksgiving Time.

There's something that is cheery-like around Thanksgiving time,
That makes a person feel as though the season's in its prime;
There's something in the atmosphere
that seems to hold a charm,
Which takes the city folks way back to childhood and the farm.
I can't explain just what it is, but then it's not a dream,
These pictures and their colorings, no
painter's pen can gleam;
For nature has provided well, rich bounties to adorn
The homestead, when the family meets upon Thanksgiving morn.

And while the season's barren, with some snowflakes in the air, Somehow all worry's vanished and
we're free from every care;
A sense of rarest gratitude is spreading o'er the room,
Erasing every atom of lament and doubt and gloom.
There's ecstasy abundant through
November's chilly days,
And air is appetizing at the time of sleds and sleighs.
The purple fields have yielded all their shocks of ripened corn,
And the world is rich with many blessings on Thanksgiving morn.

We miss the turkey's gobble, as he used to strut around,
And all the golden pumpkins that were lying on the ground;
But now the oven's lighted, and its odors seem to rise
Of turkey and its dressing, and of good old pumpkin pies;
There's fruit cake and plum pudding
with a tasty sauce atop,
And candied sweet potatoes, well, I simply have to stop;
It's useless that I try to tell of joys
that take full sway,
When the family gets together on a glad Thanksgiving day.

All the poultry associations in B.C. are helping to make this the best poultry show in the province. There will be quite a number of new features this year which will be worth while seeing, so reserve the above dates for the Poultry Show.

The Fall Assizes, presided over by His Lordship Justice W. A. Macdonald, was completed here Thursday evening after a three day sitting. The only cases to come up for trial were two civil suits: Farquharson vs. Lawe & Fisher, which resulted in a verdict favorable to Lawe & Fisher, although Farquharson secured a $500 settlement. The other case, one of accounting between Farquharson and Lawe, was heard, but judgment was reserved.

Wilfrid Beaudry, who recently discovered a body of galena not far from Fernie, has received the report from the assay office on the samples submitted. The ore runs over $55 to the ton, which is considered high grade and now steps will be taken to ascertain the size of the ore body. On the surface the vein is two feet wide. Mr. Beaudry will endeavor to enlist local capital in the enterprise.

Here and There

Wishing farewell and bon voyage to the celebrated writer of the Scarlet Pimpernel, a bouquet of scarlet pimpernels was presented to Baroness Orczy, when she embarked with her husband, Mr. Montagu Barstow, on the SS. Montclare of the Canadian Pacific line, for England. The presentation was made on behalf of the company by Capt. Geo. Webster and President E. W. Beatty's card was attached. Baroness Orczy came out to Canada to assimilate local colour for a new book, which will be eagerly awaited here.

Motor tourists from the United States brought $150,000,000 in revenue to Canada in 1925, according to estimates of government officials. This sum is equal to a quarter of the value of the Dominion's wheat crop and approximates the value of the annual mining output of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia combined. More than 2,000,000 American automobiles, it is estimated, have crossed into Canada this fall. They carried in the neighbourhood of 9,000,000 persons, or a number equal to the total population of Canada.

C. B. Foster, passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific, states that the success of the crop in the West this year will make money more free and is bound to stimulate travel between Canada and the Old Country. To handle the expected increased volume of traffic, his company, he states, will run special trains early in December connecting directly with the company's Atlantic liners, sailing from the winter port of Saint John, N.B. These liners sail on dates that are calculated to get passengers home to any point in the British Isles or the near continent in plenty of time for Christmas.

Taking the North American moose over to Europe with a view to acclimating it in Northern Europe is in part the aim of Heinrich Carl, Count Schimmelmann, one of the largest land owners in Denmark. The Count and Countess were taken to the Cains river district, where they spent three weeks. During this time they walked an average of fifteen miles a day for twenty days covering three hundred miles on foot, not reckoning the distance they traversed in canoe. They went to the woods of Northern Quebec for another shot at the elusive moose before sailing for home on the Canadian Pacific liner Montnairn

A recent epidemic of motor accidents, five of which occurred in one night, though luckily none of them proved to be fatal, elicited the following editorial comment from the Montreal Star. "That five drivers of automobiles should drive their cars into moving trains within a period of twenty-four hours in Canada would seem to indicate that carelessness is the main cause of accidents. The location of level crossings is either well-known or clearly indicated at a distance that gives even a fast driver ample time to stop. At many such crossings bells automatically ring as trains are approaching. At others, bar gates are let down. Some are open—these almost entirely in the country districts. But despite all safeguards, warnings, signals, and precautions, accidents continue to happen at level crossings with an alarming consistency. In some incidents, indeed, it almost looks as though the drivers were determined to defy all attempts to ensure caution." The paper calls for cancellation of driving license in cases like the above.

Inspector Dunwoody tells a good story of the opinion American crooks have of Canadian justice. The inspector was in New York attending the court of extradition in the case of Cannonball Baker, who was wanted badly in Vancouver on a charge of murder. Baker was pleading for an adjournment and the judge, who was evidently in a hurry, asked him why he did not waive extradition and go before a jury and get it over with. Baker gasped for a moment and said: "Damn it, you know, you don't seem to have much knowledge of Canadian juries." Inspector Bill had to smile quietly to himself.

WITCHCRAFT PUNISHMENT

Witchcraft was punishable by the civil magistrates of ancient Rome, but neither there nor in Northern Europe was the offence considered as antagonistic to religion. In some instances the witch was supposed to work with spirits friendly to mankind, and so, though they feared her profession, a certain section of the people held her in honor.

A change can be noted after the introduction of Christianity. Instead of the powers of the witch being ascribed to Odin, to the gods, to spirits of good or evil repute, the people imputed them all to Satan. They believed that the Evil One had enterd into a compact with the witch whereby in return for her soul at death, he was to grant all her desires and assist her in her projects. From a trick in practical magic and at the worst only a civil offence, witchcraft became a crime of the deepest dye, meriting the most severe punishmnt of both the civil and ecclesiastical powers.

Starting from the fifth century and with slow but sure gains in force and culminating in the fifteenth century, a new character was being substituted for the devil. The finished product was a combination of the characteristics of the Scandinavia Lokke with those of a Satyr of the heathen mythology, a personage wicked and malicious, but rendered ludicrous by the endowment of horns, tail and cloven hoofs. He was said to be able to assume any disguise that suited his purpose.

This belief was not confined to the credulous or to the illiterate. Authors of noted talent relate with due seriousness that the devil once deliverd a course of lectures on magic at Salamanca, duly wigged and gowned; that he lived is great style in a great house at Milan, under the suspiciously approproiate name of the Duke of Mammon. Even Martin Luther had belief in the reality of the Evil One and accused him of stealing nuts at night and of adding insult to injury by cracking them on the bedposts.

The powers ascribed to this fiend were limitless. Through his agency storms could be made to overtake anybody at any time, either on land or at sea; crops and cattle could be injured; bodily harm or illness could be made the fate of any person in disfavor; witches could transform themselves into cats, hares or any desired animal, at pleasure. The witches also were enabled to ride through the air on broomsticks, and it is notable that this means of aerial traffic was the only one believed in at that time, possibly because a broom was a homely article, and other vehicles may not have been so universal.

Witchcraft in England was first made illegal by statute in 1541. Many witches had been severely punished before that year, but this was because the offenders had used their vaunted powers against the lives and well-being of others, not from the legal criminality of such arts themselves. If a person waved his hat in the air three times and accompanied the act with the crying of "Buzz" three times, under the impression that this formula would endanger the life of another, he was, according to Selden, guilty of intended murder and was condemned to death.

In 1562 Elizabeth addede sorcery to the list of indictable offences, which, up to that time, had only included witchcraft, false prophecy and pulling down of crosses.

James I passed some very stringent and minutely worded statutes on the subject of witchcraft and in a few years the delusion, from a local mischief, became an epidemic which devastated every corner of England. From 1612 to 1646 the executions for this crime were enormous. An observer of the time thus describes the class of "criminal" that was arraigned and the sort of "crime" the majority were executed for: "An old woman with a wrinkled face, a furred brow, a hairy lip, a squint eye, a squeaking voice or a scolding tongue, having a ragged coat on her back, a spindle in her hand and a dog by her side— a wretched, infirm and impotent creature, pelted and prosecuted by all the neighborhood, because of the farmer's cart had stuck in the gateway, or some idle boy had pretended to spit needles and pins for the sake of a holiday from school or work." The vomiting of pins seems to have been a favorite means of condemning a victim or "witch", and chief Justice North was the means of causing its discontinuance by discharging a male sorcerer. His supposed victim was in court vomiting pins in great numbers and his lordship was led to suspect something and by closely cross-questioning, found that the woman had the pin concealed in the upper part of her dress and by dexterously dropping her head in her stimulated fits, picked up the pins for each successive ejection.

The tests and tortures resorted to in those days were very severe and the administrators of the law, headed by a brutal ruffian named Matthew Hopkins, called themselves professionally "witchfinder.," This band of official murderers had their regular rounds and on arrival at a town, Hopkins would collect a fee of twenty snillings, for which sum he cleared the locality of all suspected persons. His mode of action was one that made death almost a certainty; he stripped them naked, shaved them to discover the witch's mark, and any scar, mole, blemish, or in fact mark of any kind, was taken as the brand placed there by the devil to mark the woman as his own. He wrapped them in sheets with with the great toes and thumbs tied together and dragged them through a pond or a river; if they sank, it was taken to be a sign that the baptismal element did not reject them and they were cleared; if they floated as they usually would do for a time, they would be accounted guilty and doomed. He kept them fasting and awake and sometimes incessantly walking for twenty-four to forty-eight hours as an inducement to confession of guilt; in fact so abominable were the cruelties perpetrated that victims were glad to escape from life by confession. If a witch could not shed tears at command, if she hesitated over a single word of the Lord's Prayer, she was in league with the evil one.

After many years of the above cruelties the people became furious and a party of them subjected Hopkins to his own favorite test of swimming. He is said to have escaped with his life from their hands, but he was never heard of again.

The last of the legal murders in England was in 1716, when a Mrs. Hicks and her nine-year old daughter were hanged at Huntington for selling their souls to the devil

EPITAPHS AS AN INDEX

Epitaphs are perhaps a better index to the common thought and feeling of an age than the more carefully wrought literature. "Most of the lovieliest epitaphs in the language are to be found in books," says Mr. J. C. Squire, "not on monuments." "Spoon-River Anthology" is hardly admired for the beauty of its thought or the comfort it administers to bereaved relatives. What Masters did for the little mid-Western hamlet of his imagining we find that our British ancestors really did for themselves. A new anthology, "Epitaphs ; Gravyard Humor and Eulogy," compiled by W.H. Beable, proves this. A taste of its quality is given us in the London Observer by Mr. Squire, who observes that "our ancestors when speech was freerer, and acceptance of the social order general, and candor was less embarrassed by snobbery, hypocrisy, sensitiveness, good taste, and other virtues and vices, let themselves go in a manner completely foreign to us." Perhaps nothing brings us nearer the real heart of these ancient peoples or shows us the distance we have traveled from them. Mr. Squire asserts—

"Their frankness achieved sometimes a pathos, sometimes a humor, sometimes even a ferocity completely absent from modern epitaphs, in which discretion has effaced differences. We write "In loving memory," and leave it at that. The idea of deliberate waggery on the tombstone of a dead friend or acquaintance appals us. We don't mind cherishing his memory in conversation by recalling his delightful peculiarities, but we would not dream of putting them on his tombstone. Even a gentle wit we should consider out of place. 'Here lies Fuller's earth' was put upon the stone of a Dr. Fuller; it would not be now. To our thinking we should at least pretend to be deadly solemn when composing an epitaph, too distracted by grief for a play upon words. Certainly some of our forefathers went so far with their jocularity that they ran the risk of hurting the feelings of relatives. Mr. Beable (I do not know whether he is right) ascribes to Jersey the epitaph on a brewer:—

Here lies poor Burton,
He was both hale and stout;
Death laid him on his bitter bier,
Now in another world he hops about.

He gives no ascription whatever for another, which rings like modern facetiousness:—

Here lies John Bun,
He was killed by a gun,
His name was not Bun, but Wood,
But Wood would not rhyme with gun, but Bun would.

"But the country is covered with punning epitaphs. Some are touching, as the one at Lillington on 'Cole':

Then do not doubt, the Cole's not out,
Though it in ashes lies;
That little spark now in the dark
Will like a Phoenix rise.

Others exhibit a mere delight in ingenuity. Jokes are made either about men's names or about their occupations. Our modern reticence scarcely allows us to mention a man's occupation on his stone unless he was something 'important,' and then the bare fact is recorded. In olden times there was often an attempt to make the 'lapidary inscription' a genuine summary of a man's life. Nothing was out of place. A fox-hunting squire in Devon has an epitaph all about the chase. There is a celebrated and frequent epitph on the landlord of the Lion, whose son 'keps on the business still.' At St. Mary's, Cheltonham, there is an epitaph on John Higg, pig-killer, which begins:—

Here lies John Higgs,
A famous man for killing pigs,
For killing pigs was his delight,
Both morning, afternoon, and night.

At St. Michael's, Eastcheap, there is an epitaph on Bob Preston, 1730, drawer at the renowned Boar's Head, which recommends his virtues to other potboys; at Great Walford, Worcestershire, this:

Here old John Randall lies
Who counting from his tale
Lived three score years and ten,
Such virtue was in Ale
Ale was his meat,
Ale was his drink,
Ale did his heart revive.
And if he could have drunk his Ale
He still had been alive:
But he died January five 1699.

At Edwallon, Notts, is a similar but briefer one on a sociable old lady, Rebecca Freeland, 1741:—

She drank good ale, good punch, and wine,
And lived to the age of 99.

The most famous epitaph mentioning liquor may be the one in Winchester Cathedral to the Hampshire Grenadier who died from drinking small beer, the passer-by being recommended to take it strong. On the frontiers of civilization this naive candor persisted later."

Our own land is not entirely overlooked in this collection:

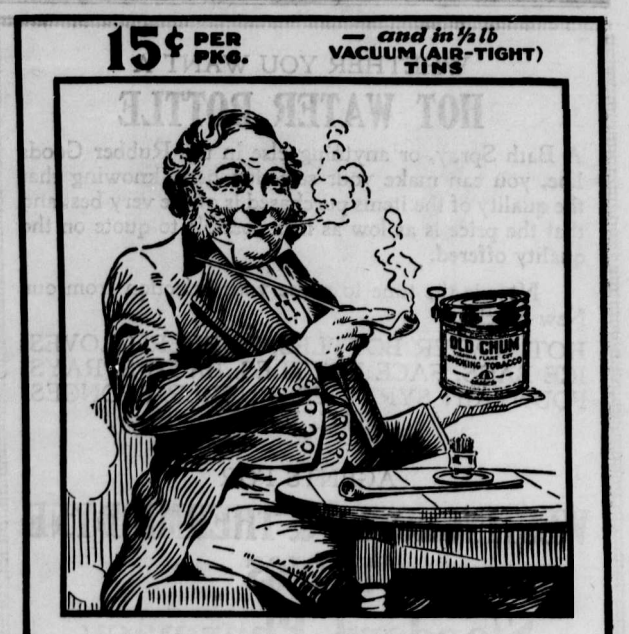
"'She done her best,' is on a child's stone in New York. I doubt the authenticity of the American dentist's epitaph:

Stranger! Approach this spot with gravity!
John Brows is filling his last cavity.

But this from the Far West has the right ring:—

To Lem. S. Frame, who during his life shot 88 Indians, whom the Lord delivered into his hands, and who was looking forward to making up his hundred before the end of the year, when he fell asleep in Jesus at his house at Hawk's Ferry, March 27, 1843."

Really offensive epitaphs cause Mr. Squire a measure of astonishment. Those "abusing the dead, or other people, or even the parson, exposing faults and satisfying grudges" are not absent from this curious assembly:



"There is a depressing prudence about the remark on John Guley's tomb at Crofton Hackett, 'in expectation of the last day. What sort of man he was that Day will discover.' But there is no prudence about this, at Potterne, Wilts.:

Here lies Mary, the wife of John Ford,
We hope her soul is gone to the Lord
But if for Hell she has chang'd her life
She had better be there than be John Ford's wife.

On some stones hell is even indicated as deceased's destination! There is an epitaph at Bideford which reflects on the lady in the next grave; there is one at Wolvrhampton which says that the dead died from over-eating; there is one in Devon which abuses the parson for neglecting the deceased in his last illness. As Mr. Beable mildly says, 'Some of the epitaphs are by no means eulogistic, and would, of course, not be tolerated in these times.' It is not only the abusive which would not be 'toleratd' now. At Easingwold there is this really fine, and obviously just, tribute to a woman:—

Anne Harrison, well-known by the name of Nanna Ran Dan, who was chaste but no prude; and tho' free was no harlot. By principle virtuous, by education a Protestant; her freedom made her liable to censure, while her extensive charities made her esteemed. Her tongue she was unable to control, but the rest of her members she kept in subjection. After a life of eighty years thus spent, she died, 1745.

A despatch from London states that in the past three weks more than 20,000 boxes of Quebec-made cheese have arrived and been sold in London at good prices, the quality, it is said, being of the best. It is pointed out that if Quebec products are to obtain the position they deserve here it is necessary to keep continuous supplies coming, in order to make them known to the general public, rather than to make either isolated or occasional speculative shipments. Along this line, some 7,000 boxes of Quebec-made cheese went forward from here to the London market during the past week.

ORIGIN OF WIRELESS
(London Times)

There has been discovered a record of alleged wireless telegraphy as long ago as 1662. In that year was published a book by P. de l'Ancre, in which the author reported that a man had demonstrated to King Henry of Germany a means of communicating with absent persons. The inventor rubbed two needles against a magnet, and attached them to different clocks. As an operator turned the needle on one clock dial the needle on the other made the same movement, regardless of the distances which separated the clocks. King Henry, it is stated, forbade the publiation of any announcement of the invention!

Jones: How's that?

Smith: She's always introducing bills into the house.

ANIMAL PETS

Los Angeles Times.—The sagacious scientist says that it is 2,000 years since man has domesticated a new animal. There have been a raft of trainers, but there are no more quadrupeds in the barnyard than there were in the days of Caesar. Elephants did work for men, and bears were in harness 4,000 years ago. Nothing much has happened since in extending human companionship to the animal world.

LOCAL PATRONAGE DOES IT

The value of helping Canada by increasing consumption of Canadian products at home was pointed out in the campaign. The people of this part of Canada have given Pacific Milk, made in British Columbia, the position it has today which proves the point of the party leaders and shows what local patronage for local commodities can do.

IS THE UNIVERSE IMMORTAL?

Is the universe immortal? A rather theoretical question as it cannot very well effect man's relation to it, and as it is rather small comfort to know that other worlds may roll on even if this one meets disaster, but it still brings up many interesting points. It is reassuring, for example, to know that the sun will probably burn on for some few milliards of years. At any rate, the question has been interestingly discussed by Charles Nordmann, well known scientific writer, in "Le Matin," Paris, he says:

"Is the universe eternal; or, like man, is it marching on to inevitable death? Ticklish questions, the solutions of which always manage to escape us a little.

"Science in the nineteenth century believed that the universe tended inevitably to reach a stage where all will be leveled down, where there will be no difference in either temperature or movement. This thermic death of the universe results from the Carnot principle. But now recent discoveries have brought a glimmer of hope into the souls of those who have been unable to resign themselves to admit that the universe is perishable.

"It seems well proved that matter may transform itself into energy. A body which emits light, sends forth rays, loses in bulk. Thus we know that the sun diminishes by 4,000,000 tons each second that it sheds its rays on the world. This it seems a goodly amount to lose in bulk, but it is not great when one considers the total mass of the sun, which weighs two octillions of tons—2,000,000,000,000, 000,000,000,000,000 tons.

"At any rate it will require some milliards of years before the light of the sun will fail—a reassuring piece of news.

"But that is not all. It has been proved—so far as may be proved in such a case—that the stars form themselves by condensing as they leave the primitive nebula. This condensation heats them to a maximum beyond which the stars, stil continuing their process of condensation, lose little by little their brilliance until they are finally extinguished. Our sun approaches this deathly state. This is why among the stars it is relatively very small, very dense and hot—some six million degrees on its surface.

"Thus the masses little by little diminish in the universe and wear themselves out in energy. Does this mean, then, certain death? Not at all. To escape from such a fate it suffices that the radiating energy should reconstitute matter, and form in certan conditions, the simplest of atoms, the atom of hydrogen. This possibly is believed in by such scienists of first rank as MacMillan, Lodge and Nernst.

"True, there still remains a difficulty. The stars which no longer shine and have become cold would end by obstructing the heavens. If they were eternal they would be far more numerous than they are. To explain away this difficulty it is enough to admit that the dead stars which accumulate beneath a solid crust, pressures and temperature which are counted by millions of atmospheres and degrees, end by bursting into tiny atoms, thus returning to the universe works their bulk which for a time had been paralyzed. These theories are speculative but are quite compatible with recent discoveries in science. To-day it is conceivable that the world may pass ternally through the same phases and, like the phoenix, arise again and again from its ashes."

THE LOOSE NUT

Los Angeles Times. — The paper spoke the other day about a loose nut wrecking a car. That is one trouble we have. There are too many loose nuts running around in cars. Some of them ought to be locked up. When a loose nut gets tight it may be worse, at that.

HOLLYWOOD AND ITS PICTURE MAGNATES

We note the London "Observer" has been saying unkind things of Hollywood and its picture magnates. The charge is that United States films are lowering the moral and artistic standard of the world. "The Observer" states that the California producer keeps his eye upon the primitive rural community of his own country, for there he finds his largest and best market. The "hicks" according to "The Observer", must be entertained in a manner that does not perplex their unfortunished minds and undeveloped imaginations. Hence Hollywood plays down to them with the result that the world is filled with films that reveal neither poetic nor dramatic inspiration.

Up to a certain point this is no doubt true. But why blame it all on the American "hick"? If there were no "hicks" in England nor in Canada plays which reach out from Hollywood to the "hick" audience would remain at home. In entertainment, in books, in literature generally, in newspapers, people are given pretty much what they want. For instance, a year or two ago jazz furnished the greater part of the noise over the radio. Now one seldom broadcasting station. If played at all gets an evening of jazz from any it is late, when most of us have concluded that we will call it a night and turn in.

The change from bad to good in radio music was unquestionably brought about by a public demand. Listeners-in were tired of the "jiggly" stuff and told the broadcasters so with beneficial results. So it is with screen plays and books and magazines. It is the taste of the great majority that is being catered to. Magazine publishers looking upon circulation—mass rather than class—as their main objective, put in their columns, as the merchants do in their show windows, goods they think will attract attention and thus promote custom.

If we want better books, and better plays and better films and better magazines and better newspapers the demand must come from the public itself. —Saturday Night.

Here and There

All attendance records for the Central Canada Exhibition were broken this year. There was a total attendance of 349,200, or 42,400 greater than the previous record of 307,000, made in 1922.

Production of paper by the Powell River Company, at Vancouver, will be increased 80 per cent by the completion of a $5,000,000 development programme, now under way, according to an announcement made by M. Signs of returning prosperity to Canada are evidenced by the fact that more Canadians are registered in the Canadian Pacific Rocky Mountain resorts during the past week than at any time since the beginning of the year. These resorts, which are usually filled almost entirely by Americans, contain a guest list last week which is 50 per cent Canadian.

Production of gold in Ontario for the first six months of this year amounted to $14,506,219, as compared with $11,810,060 in the corresponding period of last year, according to a report issued by the Provincial Department of Mines. Silver production increased from $3,262,100 to $3,792,662. Total mineral production was $41,560,355, as compared with $37,997,776.

CHARACTER AND HANDWRITING

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

The study of hand-writing has always had a particular appeal both for the scientist and the layman. Handwriting is individual, and it has been the belief of some people that it is possible to read character from the peculiar strokes that human beings make in conveying their views on paper with pen and ink or pencil.

The attempt to read character from the handwriting is so inexact a method as to have little, if any, scientific value. It is perhaps just as inexact a science as the attempt to read character from the features or from personal appearance generally. There are so many exceptions to the standards to be taken into consideration that even expert observers find that the methods fail by the exceptions alone. The apotheosis of folly in connection with diagnosis from handwriting was the attempt of Albert Abrams, founder of the electronic method, to diagnose the dieases from which famous persons in the past may have suffered by placing their signatures in his complicated machine.

Of quite a different order are the studies recently made by Charles L. Dana, of New York, of the handwriting in nervous diseases. For some fifteen years he made patients suffer from such nervous diseases as paralysis agitans, or shaking palsy, writer's cramp, chronic alcoholism, general paralysis, locomotor ataxia, epilepsy, senile deterioration, and other forms of tremor, write their signatures. Also, for purposes of comparison, he had them write the unfamiliar name, "William Shakespeare," and sometimes a long word like "Constantinople." It happened that he had also available facsimiles of six signatures of William Shakespeare, which are definitely known to be the authentic signatures of the great writer himself. These signatures are shaky and uneven.

Dr. Dana collected and examined in all several hundred signatures of patients with nervous diseases. He concluded from his study that there are few nervous diseases or conditions that can be diagnosed by the handwriting alone.

However, in some instances the disturbance is so definite as to afford ready aid in recognition of disease. For instance, patients with paralysis agitans or with certain types of epidemic encephalitis, or inflammation of the brain have tremors which show themselves definitely in the handwriting. The signature shows tremulousness, lack of terminal finish, shaded or heavy lettering and progressive diminution in the size of the letters.

Persons with general paralysis or "softening of the brain" write a signature showing tremor, irregular level, blots, omissions of letters, erasures and similar unevenness. Obviously such a signature compared with the patient's previous signature affords definite indication of change. Patients with geseral paralysis uually have extreme self-confidence, and as might be expected there is no confusion in the terminal letters of their signatures which are finished up well.

Persons with locomotor taxia, involving the arms, write a signature which is formless and confused. In cases of epilepsy Dr. Dana found that the patient began his signature, hesitated and then began over again, showing evidence of a brief attack of epileptic condition during the period.

His comparison of the signatures of Wm. Shakespeare with those of the patients with various nervous diseases caused him to become convinced that Shakespeare suffered with no disease of this kind, even late in his life. However, Shakespeare died at the age of fifty-two years, and it seems reasonable to believe that a man who died at this age and had some trouble with handwriting suffered probably with a disturbance of the blood supply to the brain, such as is associated with hardening of the vessels or disturbance of the regular circulation.

COAL CREEK NOTES

The board of management are holding a series of whist drives and dances in the Club Hall here, the entire proceeds to be devoted to the Childrn's Annual Christmas Tree. Watch for announcement of the next dance.

The school children or this camp were sadly disappointed when it became known that the schools in Fernie were having a holiday on Armistice Day and they were not.

The residents of Coal Creek were invited to a social dance in the Club Hall on Armistice night to celebrate the wedding of Miss P. Atherton to N. Cockburn, both of Coal Creek.

The many friends of Mrs. Arrowsmith will be pleased to learn that she is making quick recovery after her recent operation in the Fernie Hospital.

Bob Holland, our erstwhile tonsorial artist, paid a visit to the Club, renewing old acquaintances. He has secured a position in Fernie.

Dr. and Mrs. Workman, Supt. and Mrs. Caufield and several others were recipients of invitations to the Vets banquet on Armistice night.

A most enjoyable time was spent in the Club Hall on the occasion of one of a series of whist drives and dances arranged by the board of management. Twenty-one tables were occupied. Prizes for whist were awarded as follows: Gentlemen, 1 R. Lees, 2 E. Webster, 3 Dr. Workman. Ladies, 1 Mrs. Branch, 2 Mrs. Frazer, 3 Mrs J. Haile. Refreshments were served. Coal Creek musicians provided the dance music.

Back from an extended tour of inspection over the company's western lines, E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, found a very marked improvement in the West as compared with that which had existed when he last went across the country. He thought the spirit of the people was much more optimistic and with very good reason since he considered it safe to say that 380,000,000 bushels was not too high an estimate for the total Canadian wheat yield this year. He noticed throughout the country a sustained interest in immigration and a more general realization that therein lay the soundest remedy for most of Canada's difficulties.

SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL

Acting Mayor Stewart took the chair at last evening's regular session of the city council, Mayor Irvine being out of the city. Aldermen Kerr and Dicken were also absent.

The feature of the meeting was the attendance of a delegation of residents of West Fernie with an enquiry as to the cost of supplying a street lighting system and waterworks system extension from the city's lines. Their spokesman was T. Hesketh, who stated that the water situation in West Fernie at present was a very serious question. Water in their wells was becoming unfit for use without being boiled and they wished to procure an estimate of the cost of installing these systems so that the matter could be placed before a meeting of the West Fernie people and steps taken to secure provincial government assistance and co-operation in securing these services.

The council told the delegation that to install twenty street lights in West Fernie would cost approximately $1250, while the energy suppiled on a basis of ten hours, would cost approximately $500 per annum. This amount would have to be paid by the residents of West Fernie, costing each householder about 55c per month. The amount could be curtailed by reducing the hours of lighting.

The cost of laying a water system, without taking into consideration the laying of the pipe line across the river, would be about $27,000. The council submitted that if the permission of the government were given to take the pipe line over the government bridge, the total cost of laying the pipe, placing fire hydrants, etc., would be approximately $30,000. These figures covered bare construction work; capitalization and upkeep charges would have to be taken into consideration.

Giving a rough estimate, the council stated that they were willing to enter into a 20 year agreement with the residents of West Fernie, provided that the government would advance the money for construction, that the city would supply the water free of charge for that length of time, charge the West Fernie people a rate to pay off the borrowed money in 20 years and provide upkeep, which would approximately average $2.75 per month per residence. At the end of 20 years the city would take over the system and the West Fernie residents would then be charged the same water rate as those living in the city.

The delegation will call a mass meeting of West Fernie residents and submit the proposition to them for a vote.

J. Reid, who was laid off work as a city teamster last Tuesday, called on the council and wished to know the reason for his dismissal. He stated that he was working on the public works department and had been laid off work by the Fire Chief. Acting Mayor Stewart stated that in the absence of the Mayor the council were not conversant with the matter, but promised to have a council committee look into it, and he so instructed the public works committee.

The City Foreman submitted a report on the work done during the past month and recommended that some river protection work be done to protect the septic tank and the pipe line against high water. After discussion a motion was passed authorizing the Mayor and Public Works Committee that if in their opinion this should be done immediately, to have the work proceeded with.

The City Electrician reported that the efficiency of the electric lighting system had been greatly improved during the month of October, the line loss for that period being approximately only 14 per cent. This, he stated, was due to the cutting of tree branches which had been in contact with the wiring.

ASKS SECRET BALLOT ELECTION CHECKWEIGHMEN

Victoria, Nov. 18.—Tom Uphill, Labor member for Fernie, introduced his annual crop of amendments to the Coal Mines Regulation Act. This year he confines his effort to one provision, viz., to give miners a right to vote by secret ballot for the election of checkweighmen at the mine heads.

TRAIN WRECK NEAR MOYIE

Fireman R. Eley is missing, and Engineer H. Gammon and Trainman H. J. Huxtable are slightly hurt as a result of a train wreck on the Sirdar subdivision of the C.P.R. Crow's Nest line today.

The accident occurred this afternoon when a westbound freight train ran into a rock slide near Moyie, derailing the engine, which tumbled over the bank into Moyie Lake.

Every effort is being made to locate the missing fireman but there is very little hope held out for his rescue as it is reported he went into the lake with the engine and has not been seen since.

HOSPITAL REPORT

The first six months' operation of the Fernie General Hospital by the Coal Co. employees and Citizens Board shows that the hospital has done some good work and has been practically filled most all the time as the following statement shows:

	Admited	Released	Patient Days
May	48	35	485
June	36	35	544
July	53	54	476
August	62	51	649
Sept.	33	38	583
October	40	43	585
	272	256	3321

The hospital has been run to the satisfaction of the Board under the able direction of Mrs. Jas. Marshall, who has resigned the position as matron, and her resignation has been accepted by the Board with sincere regret. Mrs. Marshall will leave the end of the present month and Miss Myra E. Young, of Edmonton, will take over the position. Miss Young comes well recommended and is a nurse of wide experience.

The Board has been busy financing the last six months as new equipment has been purchased to quite an extent, among which has been an electric sterilizer purchased at a cost of approximately $400, and an X-ray just installed and in active operation at a cost of $1200.

The Board feel satisfied as to the past six months of operation. Nothing but praise has been received from patients of the accommodation and attention of the staff.

DENNY RACES ON ASCOT SPEEDWAY

Ascot track, where gasoline torpedoes amuse Los Angeles automobile fans in 100-mile-an-hour antics, provides a background for the climax of "California Straight Ahead," Reginald Denny's current starring picture for Universal, which comes to the Orpheum Theatre, Friday and Saturday.

Denny, who in the last two years has become one of the most popular light comedy stars on the screen, has another of the roles he plays so well in this story by Byron Morgan and Harry Pollard.

He portrays the character of a transcontinental motorist, who meets with varied adventures and thrills and makes use of them in an unexpected way. When he finds himself broke and out of gasoline he uses his traveling bungalow as a lunch wagon and sells chicken dinners prepared by his Afro-American cook.

When he finds that the fiancee who jilted him when he showed up late for their wedding, really is in love with him, he kidnaps her from her motoring party, dashes to Los Angeles, marries her, and then gets back into the good graces of her father by driving his racing car in the Ascot races without the latter's knowledge.

The cast in support of Denny includes Gertrude Olmstead, Tom Wilson, Lucille Ward, Fred Esmelton, John Steppling and others.

CURLERS ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

An enthusiastic meeting of curlers was held on Tuesday of this week for reorganization work for the season. Sherwood Herchmer occupied the chair and gave an interesting talk on culring matters generally.

The election of officers then took place and resulted as follows:

Hon. President: Jas. Johnston.
President: A. C. Liphardt.
1st Vice-Pres.: A. Watson.
2nd Vice-Pres.: Wm. Baldrey.
Chaplain: Rev. W. Burns.
Sec.-Treas.: T. Beck.
Executive Committee: D. Harvie, G. R. Johnston, W. H. Gates.

Wm. Baldrey and Jack Wallace were appointed a membership committee and will endeavor to secure as many curlers for the season as possible.

The annual fee was fixed as follows: Old curlers $15; perfectly green curlers $10. This should be an incentive for new curlers to join.

Old curlers in the past have always been generous in letting new curlers use their rocks and the meeting hoped that the policy would be continued to a greater extent.

An executive meeting was held after the general meeting, when applications for the position of ice man were received. The position was offered to Tom Shorthouse on account of being an old member of the club and having previous experience.

As soon as the membership committee complete their work a meeting of the executive will be called to select skips, who will then pick their rinks.

A very interesting opening bonspiel is being considered by the executive.

UPHILL SEEKS CORBIN ROAD

Victoria, Nov. 16.—It is time the Oliver government built a road connecting Corbin, in the Crow's Nest Pass country, directly with the outside world, Thomas Uphill, Labor, Fernie, declared in the legislature yesterday.

"We've been promised this road, and promised it time and time again," Mr. Uphill asserted. There's something dishonest about a government and with both parties if they will promise a road like this at election time and then fail to build it."

He declared that the grade of the proposed road had been surveyed before the 1916 election, and again before the poll of 1920, but nothing more had been done. Hon. J. H. King, as provincial minister of public works, he said, had promised that the road would be built.

"I won't rest until something is done," Mr. Uphill asserted hotly. It seemed to be the idea of the government, he said, that "when you please Vancouver you please the province."

HIGH SCHOOL ACTIVITIES

Wednesday afternoon the Fernie Board of School Trustees paid an official visit to the High School. Each of the rooms was visited and special notice taken of the activities of the students and teachers at their work. The Board was favorably impressed with the atmosphere everywhere apparent.

Later the members of the Board attended the meeting of the Literary Society. This meeting was held in the Public School auditorium. A good program was presened by the Junior "Lit."

Mr. Herchmer, chairman of the Board, made a very interesting and telling address to the young people. He contrasted the schools of 30 years ago with those of today and impressed on the minds of the students that now was the time to take advantage of their golden opportunities. He outlined a scheme of prizes which would give every student a chance to win.

Mr. Cummings and Mr. Phillips also spoke briefly in an inspirational way, and were listened to with great attention.

The Trustees of the Fernie schools are second to none in their concern for efficiency in all departments of educational work in this city.

G.W.V.A. ELECT OFFICERS

The annual election of officers to guide the destiny of the local branch of the G.W.V.A. was held in the Vets assembly hall, the following being elected:

President—Comrade H. A. Bryant.
1st Vice-Pres.—Comrade W. Brown.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Comrade B. Drew.
Executive — H. Wheeler, E. Baddeley, J. Davidson, J. Manning, J. Rigg, G. Davidson, R. S. Smith.

QUEEN-MOTHER PASSES AWAY

London, Nov. 20.—Queen-Mother Alexandria died today at her country home, Sandringham House, in the presence of King George, Queen Mary and the Prince of Wales, following a heart attack yesterday morning. She did not lose consciousness until the end and suffered no pain after the attack passed. Her 81st birthday would have been reached on Dec. 1.

The advisory board of the Farmers' Institutes is in session at Victoria this week preparing its representations on agricultural matters to be made to the Legislative committee on agriculture.

GAME BANQUET BIG SUCCESS

Cranbrook, Nov. 17.—An event unique in the annals of the East Kootenay took place in this city on Monday evening, when the Cranbrook Rod and Gun Club held its first annual banquet. Its success surpassed all expectations, close to 250 men being present, all of them interested in the great universal recreations represented in the activities of the club, and coming from every part of the Cranbrook district within 50 miles of this city.

The menu at the banquet was composed, in the main, of the wild life found in the district, and which fell to the guns of some of the members when out hunting specially for this event, or fishing in the nearby lakes.

There was baked Kootenay trout, mountain sheep and goat for entrees, and roast venison as well as ducks and partridge. The event proved a wonderful success from the outset, and will be made an annual event in the sportsmen's calendar in this district.

Among the visitors coming from a distance to the function were a dozen or so from various points in Idaho, some of whom motored several hundred miles to be present. They were given places of honor in the program of toasts and speeches that followed the banquet, all voicing their pleasure in attending, and speaking on various phases of rod and gun activity that interested them. Among those speaking at this time were Mesrs. Sammas, Hanson, Reid and Spoor of Bonners Ferry; Game Warden Thomas of Boise, Idaho; and others. Mayor Roberts of this city welcomed the visitors. J. P. Fink spoke to the gathering on behalf of the board of trade and the retail merchants' association, while Alan Graham and C. F. Collins extended congratulations to the promoters of the affair, on behalf of the Rotary and Gyro clubs, respectively.

T. R. Flett, C. P. R. superintendent, was a speaker to the toast of the Rod and Gun Club, and in reply J. F. Guimont, secretary, and for many years one of its most interested workers, gave an interesting resume of the activities of the club since its formation, and what it has accomplished in the interests of those who know the lure of the forest and stream. E. T. Cooper, of this city, president of the club, presided during the function.

Premier Oliver the other day unveiled a memorial tablet to the late O. G. Clark, a forest ranger who lost his life at Port Neville on June 25 last while in the discharge of his duty. After getting some settlers down to the forestry launch from their homes in the path of a fire, Clark went back to make quite sure that no one was left behind and was caught by the fire before he was missed.

The Federal Council of Churches flatly denies that prohibition is a failure. A million industrious bootleggers concur, and also deny most flatly that prohibition is a failure. The thing seems to be unanimous.

AMERICAN HUNTERS GET SPECIMENS FOR CHICAGO MUSEUM

That the reputation of East Kootenay District as the home of big game, has spread far and wide was shown this week when two representatives of the Field Museum of Natural History, of Chicago, returned to Cranbrook from a month's successful search among the hills in the vicinity of Skoocumchuck for specimens for the big museum in the windy city. The district visited was White River and Sheep Creek. The party referred to were J. Friesser, taxidermist of that museum, and H. C. Hollings, of the natural history staff. The particular object of their quest was to secure a close-up of mountain goat, and in this they were very successful, securing as they did an old billy and an old nanny, and two kids. The task of securing such a group naturally differs from the ordinary hunting expedition of taking what you can get. The party which was conducted by Mr. P. V. Stevens, of Skoocumchuck, consisted of Messrs. Crooks, Friesser and Hollings, and 20 pack horses were taken in. Besides the goats referred to, two Elk were also secured, and will be taken to the museum. In conversation with Mr. Stevens it is learned that the party were eminently satisfied with their trip and that arrangements for another trip next year will doubtless be made, as all kinds of game were to be seen. To have specimens of game from the East Kootenay District in a museum such as the Field Museum and so marked is of much value. M. Stevens is no novice in conducting of parties for collection purposes, he having been engaged for the last three years as guide for representatives of the Smithsonian Institute, and the United States Government. Mr. Stevens holds an open permit for the purpose. The Field museum to which the specimens will go is one of the leading museums of the world. It was first started in 1893 and has been since maintained by money set aside by the late Marshall Field for this purpose. The building covers a space 720x360 feet and has on its staff over 200 assistants in various branches. Mr. Friesser and Mr. Holling left on Wednesday for their home in Chicago. —Cranbrook Herald.

CANADIAN GIRLS ALL LOOK ALIKE

The Canadian girl is now one of the most standardized products of a much standardized country, writes Wilson Midghall, Montreal correspondent of the London News. See her sitting on the steps of a slum barracks in Montreal or on the porch of a "country club," and unless you can tell real pears from imitation you will not notice the difference.

She wears so little clothing that there is not much scope for difference in dress, especially as the Canadian working girl spends a larger proportion of her wages on clothes than any other girl in the world. She "rolls" her stockings, from the bottom of the social ladder to the top, though very little topmost rung, as a picture printed in a Montreal paper for that purpose the other day demonstrated, rolls them above the knee. The corset has simply disappeared from the face of the earth and the waists of the ladies, and with it has gone petticoats and other items.

Frocks are sleeveless and reach quite to the tops of stockings if they are not interfered with by a breeze or a dancing partner or the step of a bus. The knee has definitely entered society. The only foundation necessary for a frock is a "step-in," which in England we should call combination or cami-knickers; except that here they combine lightness, thinness, uselessness and charm. False modesty about all this would be misplaced. The lady herself, secure in the consciousness of her own innocence or lack of it, would merely be surprised at the idea.

The Canadian girl, having thus made her dres into a uniform, makes her face into a mask. She "puts on her lips" with lipstick; she has her face massaged into shape; or if she is a working girl and too poor, her friends or her husband perform the office for her. She has her eyebrows "plucked" to give a suggestion of delicacy to a face which often needs it. She rouges, well or badly; and finally adopts an almost babyish simplicity of expression. The result is a terible sameness, which is creeping over the faces of Canadian girls from one end of the country to the other.

All kinds, all sizes, all races, and all ages come into the same mould, or as far into it as they can get. The Jewess "tweezes" the thick black eyebrow which would give character to her face; the Norwegian massages the attractive plumpness from her cheeks. The fattest of elderly matrons tries to "keep that boyish figure" she never had, and tells you that her parson thinks the modern girl is only seeking her rightful freedom.

The Canadian girl's mind provokes a comparison with her exterior. One is tempted to say that the equipment is light, but all near the surface. It is certainly all well managed. She goes into action decisively and quickly. Her physique helps her to do this, for it is without doubt the best in the world.

She stands no nonsense from her "boy friends," but usually makes up her mind what she wants to do, and either plans the trip and asks the boy along, or tells him what it is she wants him to arrange. She does not even leave him his masculine privilège of making love. Her arm will be about his neck at least as often as his about hers.

She decides when she wants to marry him, and when she wants she does. She makes her "dates" frankly, freely, and openly, two a night, and tells the first young man straightly to cut it short. She says what she likes, and does what she likes, yet her morals in the usual limited sense of that poor word, seem to be very good indeed.

Knowledge is power, and the Canadian girl has it. Possibly the future of the world lies more in her always manicured hands than in those of any other section of the human race.

The tireless hounds of science have at last caught up with poor old King Tut. He has stood them off for two years, but with rentless and resistless insistence they have kept on his trail and finally downed him. They have got him out of his coffin and are now to conduct a post mortem to be assured whether the lad died of tuberculosis or whether he was done in with the ancient equivalent of an adverse vote in the house.

These are the things that matter when you are dealing with the corpses of mere kings whose obvious intention in burying themselves securely and secreetly was to be let alone.

Somehow it seems that so much more good might arrive if the energy, assiduity and treasure that had been expended on this discovery had been added to the work of discovering newer and better means of fighting tuberculosis among the living rather than to finding out who died of it a million years ago.

THE ABSENTEE VOTE

Mr. J. Hinchcliffe has voiced a belief that has a strong hold among the right-thinking people in the Province to the effect that the Absentee Vote in Provincial elections should be abolished. The circumstances surrounding the taking and the counting of this vote have laid the Government under a suspicion which no denials have been sufficient to eradicate. Mr. Hinchcliffe goes so far as to say that a continuance of the system is simply giving a "blank ballot to the party in power." No government should rest under this aspersion and what has given rise to it lies in the minds of many people. The government action in burning the absentee ballots in the case of the North Vancouver election has fostered the suspicion that exists.

A Government, in its administrative acts, should be, like Ceasar's wife—above suspicion. Since the Absentee Vote, whatevere the circumstances surrounding its taking and counting (and the safeguards are wholly inadequate), has given rise to a flood of criticism it may be stated definitely that it is not in the best electoral nterests of the Province. It is most certainly not in the best moral interests of the government in power. The Absentee Vote lends itself to venality and venality is for democracy a mortal disease. The Liberal Government now in power in this Province has lost the confidence of the people, because of the Absentee Vote and other exercise of administrative authority. It has contracted the mortal disease of a declining public favor. Mr. Hinchcliffe has done well to resume his attack on the Absentee Vote. The sooner the practice is abolished the better it will be for the morals of British Columbia and particularly for the morals of the Government in power.—Colonist.

"It's Best for You and Baby Too"

WHITE, BLACK AND FOOLISH

The Vancouver Sun says: Aristocratic Leonard Rhinelander came into New York court the other day to ask for an annulment of his marriage. He claimed that his wife deceived him in saying she was white when she was really the daughter of a negro coachman.

Because the story sounded a little wild, his lawyer told the court that Rhinelander had been born with an "inferiority complex" that prevented him from developing mature judgement.

It is eugenically unfortunate that Rhinelander, a white, should have married a Negress. Children of such unions are not always the best.

But it is eugenically more unfortunate that a healthy intelligent negress should have allied herself to an admittedly subnormal man.

So far as children were concerned the black wife would probably have had the worst of the bargain.

If people would worry a little less about the social aspects of marriage and a little more about the eugenic aspects of it, the world would be better off.

This woman's experience is typical of thousands. Ask any physician.

"And to think I was poisoning my own Baby!"

"I couldn't see why he didn't gain. I never dreamed that my constipation was responsible until the doctor told me.

"He explained that faulty or slow elimination of waste matter allowed poisons to form and be absorbed by the blood—and this meant tainted milk for baby.

"He prescribed the Nujol treatment and it made a world of difference to both of us. Now that I know how dangerous constipation is and how easily it is prevented, I am never going to allow myself to get into that condition again."

Nujol helps Nature in Nature's own way

Mothers are the best friends of Nujol. When precious new lives are at stake they seek the remedy that medical authorities approve because it is so safe, gentle, and natural in its action.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body.

Nujol simply makes up for a deficiency—temporary or chronic—in the supply of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular elimination, without overtaxing the intestinal muscles.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. To insure internal cleanliness, it should be taken regularly in accordance with the directions on each bottle. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol to-day and begin to enjoy the perfect health that is possible only when elimination is normal and regular.

Winter Time is Carnival Time in Banff

Banff in winter time is fairyland. Shafts of the sun strike the white snow-covered mountains and valleys of the Canadian Rockies, changing them into a landscape of flashing irridescence. Colors — blue, red, green and purple — dance over the scene, as gaily costumed devotees of the snow shoe, the skate and the ski move in the pastel of the great outdoors.

Fancy skaters swing gracefully into intricate figures on the rinks. Ski jumpers thrill the spectators with their marvellous leaps through the air from the ski jump on the top of a nearby mountain. Ski-jorers dash down the Bow River behind fleet mountain ponies. Blanket-coated snow-shoe trampers take the trail to the snowy woodlands. In the evening, the brilliant scene is softened by the silver gleam of the moon.

Winter time is carnival time in Banff. February 3rd to 17th has been set for the 1926 Winter Carnival, and Mrs. Basil Gardom has been chosen as the fair Queen. A splendid palace of glittering ice, sparkling with myriads of bright colored electric lights is being built for the chosen beauty. With true regal pomp and splendor she will be crowned and seated on her throne as the culminating triumph of the carnival.

Trains pull into the station at Banff. Passengers on their way west stop off to disport themselves in the snowy, gay little town. Passengers on their way east delay long enough to see the famous ski jumpers breaking world records. Passengers from both east and west with Banff as their objective, and snow shoes, skates and skis in their luggage, hurry to attend the festivities in honor of the carnival queen.

MOOSEHEART

Mooseheart is a home and school for children. It is a mission that thousands of loving men and women have taken to themselves to accomplish. These men and women are banded together in the great brotherhood of the Loyal Order of Moose. The Moose is an international Fraternity that encircles the earth. Its founder, James J. Davis, who grew from the humble position of iron puddler to the United States Secretary of Labor, is still the Director General.

You have read the words of the Great Teacher: "Suffer the Little Children to Come unto Me . . . for of Such is the Kingdom of Heaven." In the hundreds of lodges scattered over the continent, this thought is the basis of a ceremony in which the members face toward Mooseheart at nine o'clock and repeat these words, coupled with a silent prayer that God shall bless and prosper Mooseheart. The inspiration of Mooseheart is in these words. More than 2000 children have found or are finding that there is a great, warm, loving heart in this old world and are being raised up as the sterling men and women of tomorrow.

Mooseheart is a vast estate, replete with natural scenic beauty and situated on the banks of the Fox River, 37 miles west of Chicago. The children who receive their training in mind and hand are children of deceased members—boys and girls and babies who have found that, because of this great fraternity, life's pathway is not adverse.

Mooseheart is the child city that provides a home for them, provides training for them, provides that they shall have a chance. It is "The School that Trains for Life."

BOOTLEG JUSTICE

One big reason why Canadians will not rally very strongly around the firey banner of the K.K.K. is because they are Canadians. The next reason is that they will resent the interference of foreigners in their domestic affairs. The third reason is that they have a sense of humor.

Canadians do their fighting in the open. They do not subscribe to the venomous habit of prowling around in a bedsheet.

Canadian justice does not need to be supported by any masked order. If these foreign organizers have the secret of law enforcement up their sleeves, why did they not do something with their countrymen Sowash, Baker, Morris, Stone, Johnston, et al., before Canada had to go to the expense and trouble of hanging and lashing them ?

"Kleagles," "Klazics," and all the rest of the gibberish strike Canadians as funny. They see no reason for dressing up like a spook and acting like a darn fool to do something they can do at the polls in the open.

However, the invasion of the K.K.K. is probably fair enough.

Canada sends United States bootleg liquor which is often not so good. Why then should we deny our neighbors the pleasure of trying to bootleg a little spurious justice to us.

SPUD YIELD IS NOT LARGE

Creston, Nov. 17.—The total potato crop in East Kootenay is approximately 3600 tons, according to Dominion fruit and vegetable inspector A. McL. Fletcher, who was here on an official visit at the week-end, and who is just back from a visit to several points in East Kootenay.

According to the figures given Mr. Fletcher, the average yield has been about seven tons per acre, as the district agriculturist's figures show that nearly 900 acres were planted to potatoes in the area, which stretches from Flagstone on the south, west to the Cranbrook district, and north to Golden, in which latter district, owing to its close proximity to the Dominion experimental farm, considerable attention has been given to spuds.

Mr. Fletcher states that up till this week the growers had been in no hurry to sell, even at offers as high as $50 a ton, and much of the crop is going into storage for expected fancy prices at mid-winter.

Due to almost winter weather putting the harvest of much of the Alberta tuber crop out of the question, considerable tonnage of East Kootenay potatoes has moved into Crow line points in that province, while an ever-increasing demand continues at Kimberley. A few cars have been sold in Minneapolis at very satisfactory returns to the grower.

Although a greatly increased acreage in the Creston district was set out to potatoes in 1925, it is doubtful if the local crop will supply the local needs. The very dry summer kept the yields down to less than a ton per acre on more than a few ranches.

TOURIST TRAFFIC GOOD IN PACIFIC NORTHWEST

Pacific Northwest points enjoyed the largest increase in summer tourist traffic during 1925 of any section of the Pacific coast, according to figures just received by C. W. Meldrum, Assistant General Passenger Agent of the Great Northern at Seattle. Data at hand shows further that neither Europe nor Florida detracted in any way from the number of visitors to this section during the season which ended on Oct. 31.

Forex ample,s aid Mr.Meldrum, Seattle showed an increase of 56.85 percent and Portland 35.32 per cent, as against San Francisco with 24.76 and Los Angeles with 23.78.

A portion of the increase is attributable to the large conventions held on this coast, but the principal factor in the better showing made by the Pacific Northwest over California is the "Three Year Million Dollar Campaign" conducted jointly by the Great Northern, Burlington and Northern Pacific railways.

When the select committee of the Legislature on municipal matters organized for the session with A. D. Paterson, Delta, as chairman, one of the first things to come before it was a report upon the replies which were received to a questionaire which was decided upon last year. This was sent out to the seventy odd councils in the province asking for an expression of opinion on a proposal to change the date of municipal elections from January to December, which latter date is now in effect in Vancouver and Victoria. Of the 37 replies which were sent to the committee, 24 were in favor of a change and 13 were against such a step. Fifteen cities and nine districts expressed themselves for December elections, and 9 districts and 4 cities for January. The committee heard the report and left the matter over for further consideration.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY, DEC. 6.

The Lieut.-Governor His Honor Walter C. Nicol, in endorsing Golden Rule Sunday, Dec. 6, has written the mayors and other represenative citizens of the province asking them to accept the chairmanship of the local committee to secure its observance.

The Chairman of the B.C. Joint Committee of Relief, popularly known as "the Armenian Relief," has received favorable replies from all parts of the province. Asked as to just what Golden Rule observance means, Major Owen replied:

"It means One orphanage meal, not a starvation meal, in each cooperating home, bare boards, simple fare like rice, brown bread, stewed fruit, cocoa, in cups if posible, fellowship with 100,000 or more children in Bible lands who have this fare every day and for whom the orphanage supplies their only food, shelter and present parentage, and a donation to our funds just as if they were about to be turned out for lack of funds or were trying to exist on one meal a day. Bear in mind, these children are the survivors of those who were massacred by the Turks because they became our allies and because of their Christain faith. They are international wards."

W. H. Malkin, the treasurer of the B. C. Committee, is in high hopes from the organization of local groups that Golden Rule Sunday, Dec. 6, will not disappoint the tens of thousands who have reason to hope for life itself upon its wide observance. It was observed last year in over 50 countries and it will have still wider observance this year.

A PROGRESSIVE REMNANT

Toronto Globe.—The passing of the Progressive party as a force in Canadian politics is foreshadowed in the result of the elections just held. In the last Parliament, with a representation at Ottawa of 65 members, it constituted the second largest group in the commons. In the next House it seems probable that its membership will have shrunk to 20, a reduction in strength of more than two-thirds. In Ontario it was virtually wiped out, and in every Western Province, where its influence was presumed to be irresistible, it lost heavily to the older parties.

Shorn and rejected as it has been in so many of its strongholds, its prestige in the Dominion has suffered a blow fatal in a large measure, to its usefulness as a factor in the affairs of the country.

THE DUNCAN INQUIRY

Nova Scotia is hoping great things from the sittings of the Duncan commission which began formal hearings here this week after several days spent in personal tour of the coal fields. Broadly speaking, it is hoped that the government's enterprise in bringing in an impartial investigator from Britain will be rewarded with such a flood of light upon the many hitherto obscure phases of the industrial situation in this province that a continuation of the disastrous labor wars of the last few years will be rendered next to impossible.

Unfortunately similar hopes entertained for other commissions in recent years have come to naught, largely due to the suspicious nature of the Nova Scotia miners. Always has there been some fly in the ointment which has undermined the men's confidence, frustrated the healing possibilities of the commissions and continued the strike nuisance.

The queston of costs of coal has been the main obstacle of the complete success of previous boards. When this phase of the subject was broached the companies invariably put in a plea that to produce their costs publicly would put them at a disadvantage with their competitors. In every instance the commissioners agree, and consented to receive cost sheets privately and in confidence. At that precise moment in each instance the confidence of the miners in the board expired, and its practical usefulness was at an end.

Up to the present moment, the Duncan board has followed much the same routine as its predecessors, and its first big test in the eyes of the Nova Scotia miners will come with the question of costs. How the board will handle that subject, deemed the most important included in its terms of reference, the coal fields public is now eagerly waiting to know and on the course taken the success or failure of the inquiry will largely depend.—The Financial Post.

DESIRABLE AND UNDESIRABLE IMMIGRANTS

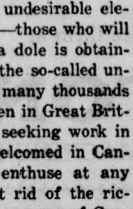
Every Canadian in British Columbia who read the article entitled "Britain May Stop Dole, if it Interferes With Migration to Dominions," which appeared on the front page of the Vancouver Daily Province, on Nov. 6th, must have been amazed by the brazen effrontery of the British emigration policy.

The need of Canada for more good British blood is secondary only to her need of her own people who have been leaving the country in millions during the past fifty years. There is nothing in the world to surpass the general excellency and quality of British blood; it is absolutely dominant in world civilizations, and Canada hungers for more of it.

But Canada wants British blood of the type of our forefathers,—men who who came to this country with a noble desire to create better homes for their children than they themselves had enjoyed; men who had the pioneer instinct and were not afraid of hard work; men who were too proud and independent to endure the unsatisfactory social and economic conditions prevailing in the Old Land in their day; men who wanted land and liberty, a chance to work and an opportunity to live a better life.

This Dominion must seethe with indignation when we learn that the British government will stop the dole, or weekly allowance to the unemployed if it interfers with migration to the Dominions.

Canada sympathizes to the utmost with the Motherland in her present predicament; we would gladly relieve her of a portion of her surplus population, but we do not want that element which prefers a dole to work. Not all, by any means, of the British unemployed, are undesirable characters, but all of the undesirable element in the Old Land,—those who will not work so long as a dole is obtainable—are included in the so-called unemployed. There are many thousands of good men and women in Great Britain who are honestly seeking work in vain, who would be welcomed in Canada, but we cannot enthuse at any policy designed to get rid of the ric-rac and rabble at the expense of Canada. Ontario and British Columbia mental hospitals are crowded to overflowing with the morons and mentally sub-normal element which has been voided by Great Britain; the statements of Dr. Stevens of the Essondale infirmary, which appeared in the Province only a few days previous to the other article referred to, support the truth of this assertion.



Canada welcomes the coming of every clean blooded British immigrant, but she must refuse to accept the scum of British slums. Anything which is not good enough for Great Britain, with a standard of living much lower than that of this country, is certainly not good enough for this Canada of ours.—Canadian.

Here and There

Major-General Sir Fabian Ware vice-chairman of the Imperial War Graves Commission, who has been visiting in Canada during October, has been recalled to England much earlier than he expected. Prior to sailing on the Canadian Pacific liner, Montclare, from Montreal, he expressed the hope that he would be able to come to Canada again next spring so that he could give Canadians in the West some idea of what the Imperial Commission is doing in caring for the graves of western youths who perished during the war.

Robert L. Rice, Jr., of Boston, and J. Y. Cole, of Harvard, took big chances when they attempted to travel by canoe from Rouyn to Angliers at the end of October. Although they started in beautiful Indian summer weather they ran within a few hours into a bad storm which filled their canoe with half melted snow and almost froze them into unconsciousness. Fortunately they arrived in the nick of time at a fire-ranger's hut where they stayed a few days until the storm abated. They were prospecting in the neighborhood and were none the worse for their perilous trip when they finally reached Montreal.

Bob Shawkey, New York Yankee veteran pitcher, who organized the party of major league baseball players now hunting big game in New Brunswick, shot a moose with antlers spreading 56 inches and having 28 points, according to word received at Fredericton, N.B. Shawkey shot his moose the first day the party spent in the woods. This information is conveyed by another party of hunters who passed the camp of the ball players at Nepisiqui Lakes. In the group are some of the best known players in the American League, Eddie Collins, Babe Ruth and Muddy Ruel being among them.

The romance of a world cruise culminated in New York City recently when Dorothy Holmes O'Ryan, daughter of Major-General and Mrs. John F. O'Ryan, of New York, married Darwin Curtis, of Chicago. The couple met for the first time a year ago on board the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France which was then making a tour of the world. It is feared they had no eyes for the world marvels which were unrolled before them on the tour, since it is stated they fell in love at first sight and could only see each other. The marriage was performed by the Rev. Father Francis P. Duffy, chaplain of the "Fighting Sixty-ninth," a regiment commanded by the bride's father during the war.

Good reading for Canadian Pacific shareholders is furnished in the September statement of gross earnings, working expenses and net profits. It has been the most favorable month for the company in a long time. The gross earnings were $18,909,071, the greatest shown in any month since October, 1924. Operating expenses were $12,641,452 and the difference between the two, the net profits $6,267,619, an increase of $1,719,973 over the corresponding month of last year. Net earnings for the first three quarters of this year, ending September 30th, is $1,190,039 greater than the 1924 figures, despite a decrease in gross earnings of over four and a half million dollars. This was made possible by the company's policy of rigid economy.

To bring the Arctic within the scope of tourist traffic is the object of the Marquis M. N. degli Abizzi, winter sports director at Lake Placid, who is organizing pack horse trips of thirty days' duration next year from the Canadian Pacific Rockies as far north as the Columbia Ice Fields within the Arctic Circle. "We are going to swim our horses and outfit across the Saskatchewan River and camp near the sources of the Athabasca which empties into Great Slave Lake and thence into the Arctic," the Marquis asserts. The first of these trips is scheduled between June 28 and July 27 next year.

A NEW AWAKENING

The Irrigation Review. — Today, says Dr. John A. Widstoe, there is a new awakening concerning irrigation. The conditions of success are being studied carefully. The probabilities are that a new era will soon dawn, during which the irrigated farmer will win for himself even a greater prosperity than that which has attained his efforts in the past. An enduring and vital civilization which will contribute strong men and mighty thoughts to the solution of the world's problems, is fast arising "under the ditch.'

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation, and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers up to ten head.

THE ILLINOIS CRIME CALENDAR

Periodically we obtain new tips on the administration of justice from the state of Illinois. A recent issue of the Chicago Tribune contains some piquant revelations as to the kindly spirit in which youthful robbers are treated there. "Pick your own penitentiary" is the latest judicial motto. At Waukegan, Illinois, a lively youth named Jack Durand was recently convicted of robbing the summer home of the president of the Armour corporation and remanded on bail for sentence. In the interim he motored with a party of friends to visit the reformatory at Joliet and decided that its appointments and surroundings were not to his taste. When he came up for sentence he objectd to being sent to Pontiac but expressed a willingness to give Joliet penitentiary a trial. It was announced that he would motor out there next day and inspect it before making up his mind on the question of appeal. Inasmuch as he is likely to spend not less than three years and not more than twenty years there his interest was natural.

Young Durand's conviction does not seem to have diminished his popularjty with the younger set. The Tribune states that he starred on the gridiron on Sunday, Nov. 1st. He is captain of the Lake Bluc eleven and made some brilliant plays against the Highwood team. It was announced that he would make his farewell appearance on the football field before leaving for the penitentiary on Sunday, Nov. 8th. No doubt he was given a good sendoff, and his fellow townsmen expressed their sorrow at his hard luck in getting caught after yielding to the temptation to rob a millionaire.

Further stimulating news as to the criminal justice in Illinois was forthcoming at the trial at Chicago of the Genna gang, an influencial coterie of bootleggers. They were not arraigned for breaches of the liquor law, but for murder. Not long ago they were guilty of a faux pas. They slew two policemen in a running automobile fight. There explanation is that they mistook the policemen for bandits. Thus an ill-adjudged attempt to assist the course of law and order landed them in jail, and they feel agrieved, because according to their story, their relations with the police were friendly. They claim that they have been paying three hundred Chicago policemen for protection in connection with their liquor business and that their payroll for this purpose was $8,000 per month. Evidently the police were not greedy. These figures mean only about $25 per month per cop. But possibly there were many other bootleggers similarly open-handed, so that the police were not asked to starve on a mere pittance. Unfortunately a few indiscreet officers went and spoiled it all by starting a gun fight. A Chicago policeman when he meets a bootlegger should show his badge and ask for money. Then there would be no chance of a well-intentioned and kindly bootlegger mistaking him for a bandit.

..HUNDRED MILLIONS FOR THE.. P. G. E.?

From intimation in the Speech from the Throne and from members in the Legislature it is evident that the Pacific Great Eastern Railway is going to be the battleground of more intended millions.

There are several suggestions for the problem, one of which involves the putting through of a huge loan of $100,000,000 with which to carry construction to the Peace River district.

Some of the legislators seem to have acquired an astonishing glibness in talking about millions. The Peace River country may need another railway, so that it may be tapped by Vancouver, and a feeder might thus be found for the P.G.E., but to suggest that this Province is in any financial position to even consider such a colossal undertaking is verging into ridiculous. To hang another loadstone of $200 on the head of every man, woman and child in this province at a time when capital is being kept out of British Columbia because of high taxation, is inviting financial ruin.

We need economy practised at Victoria above all things. The over-expenditures on the P.G.E., the Sumas lake, the Osoyoos irrigation scheme and the University buildings, have shown beyond the peradventure of a doubt that the present administration at Victoria are not able to undertake development of any considerable size without making a financial blunder.

The time is ripe for every elector of the province to bombard his member with a protest so strongly-worded as to make impossible the sinking of further millions in P.G.E. construcion.—Grand Forks Gazette.

INVASIONS CAUSE KILLINGS

According to Chicago police authorities the killing of better, on the average, than a person a day in the Windy City is accounted for by the fact that bootleggers are invading each others territory.

Here is the explanation in detail by a Chicago police official: "All these shootings out here are caused by only one thing—rival bootleggers scrapping over territory invasions. Things are getting so bad the police will have to mark off the territories with white lines and the names of the bootleggers having prior rights so that these invasions and the resulting deaths will stop."

The above refers directly to the killing of two men as recounted in the Chicago Daily News and indirectly to four other murders that had occurred within a day or two.

The solution offered by this police official may be the proper one, but to many of us it looks a trifle crude. Suppose the State of Illinois hangs a few murderers for a change, and see how that would work.

Judge Marcus Kavanaugh, a distinguished United States jurist, is responsible for the statement that there are 135,000 murderers at large in that country, and that 350,000 men and women make their living either wholly or in part by crime.

In New York City there are 160 murders to 10 in London, and in Chicago thirteen times as many as in Canada. However, even Chicago's record of better than one a day is exceeded on a per capita basis by St. Louis, Memphis, and Jacksonville.

Unquestionably ancient criminal laws and maudlin sentiment, combined with the Volstead Act, are mainly responsible for this condition of affairs. Seven out of ten murderers in London are hanged, while in New York only 1 in 160 go to the electric chair. In fact murdering people in the U.S.A. appears to be a comparatively safe occupation.—Saturday Night.

LIGHTING A CIGAR

In a Tobacco Number of the London Times there appears an article on selecting a cigar and hints on lighting and smoking, from the pen of F. C. Judge. His rules in the latter particulars are few and simple, although not such as are usually thought of by the majority of smokers. He says that a discriminating cigar smoker will not use a wax match since cigars are extraordinarily sensitive to odors and flavors. In a lesser degree the same objection applies to the sulphur of the ordinary safety match. Mr. Judge recommends a wooden or paper spill for lighting purposes and says that in the process the flame should be held about half an inch from the end of the cigar. Thus the end is not carbonized, but the tobacco lights evenly and a very few quick draws create a fine red glow. The cigar should be smoked slowly and evenly. It should not be smoked beyond four-fifths of its length as all the oils become concentrated in the remaining portion. He advocates also that the quality of silence should be demonstrated with the smoking of a good cigar.

Four employees of the Goldie & McCulloch, Galt, have spent a combined total of 222 years in the service of the company. They are still on the job. Each is the possessor of a gold watch, the gift of the company, to commemorate fifty years of service. Evidence of this kind of employer-employee relationship, which exists in many manufacturing concerns in Canada, goes far to destroy the picture that labor agitators would give the public of workers being ground down by slave-driving capitalists.—Financial Post.

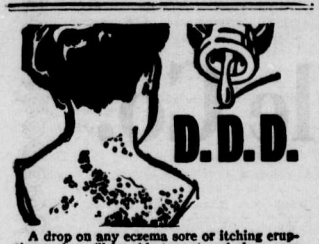
THE ORIGINALS IN 'THUMBS UP'

Canada's famous company of talented soldier artists, known the Dominion over as "The Originals," will appear here at the Grand Theatre on Saturday, Nov. 28th at 9 p.m. in their sensational new musical production "Thumbs Up."

Reports of this latest revue indicate that "Thumbs Up" is a hummer. By far the best offering The Originals have ever brought to town, and the cast includes all the favorites of last season, including Gene Pearson, the phenomenal male soprano; Bob Anderson, the comedian of originality; our old friend Jimmy Goode, Canada's foremost blackface comedian, who returns to the cast; Percy Campbell, who this year is appearing on the stage for the first time since the old days in France; Jerry Brayford; Bertram Langley; Thomas Dunn; Stuant Callaghan, a new and extremely clever toe dancer; while the Musical destines are directed by the capable Leonard Young, of "Duchesss" fame.

Gene Pearson, the "the Male Galli Curci," is rightly entitled to this name for he has a natural soprano voice of marvellous purity and beauty, and uses it with rare facility and charm. It is certainly no exaggeration to say that there is no female impersonator before the public with such command of voice and marvellous stage appearance—there has been none since the old days of "The Male Patti" in Europe.



Bob Anderson, who became famous almost over night, last season, has a tremendous following among fun lovers by reason of his spontaneity and clever character comely. Allan Murray has always been noted for his ability as a dancer and general artistry. Jerry Brayford, with his fine voice; Bertram Langley, of the deep bass; Lionel Broadway, the company's extremely popular juvenile of "Night Time" fame, ar all very clever entertainers.

The re-appearance of Jimmie Goode with the Originals this year has met with much favorable comment. Jimmie is very popular with theatre goers everywhere the Originals have ever played, and the reception accorded him in "Thumbs Up" is proof of his great popularity. He has a brand new line of darkey humor which is a scream of start to finish.

Percy Campbell, the Originals' former business manager, is indeed a welcome addition to the cast. Mr. Campbell is appearing with the incomparable Quartette, which is such a popular feature of this organization, and his many friends throughout Canada are pleased to see him appearing on stage at last.

The action of the Quebec Government in taking steps to prevent the exportation of power generated in that province to the United States, even aft it has been taken to another province, is particularly interisting in view of the fact that power is being developed in Quebec by private enterprise under government regulations while practically all power in Ontario is under control of the public ownership Hydro Electric Commission. Does this indicate that the Quebec government is more Canadian than the Ontario Government.

BARKING DOG SAVES FAMILY

The family of John Sedrovitch, of the Fernie Annex, probably owe their lives, or at least from being placed in extreme danger, to their dog whose barking during the night awoke them to find their home in flames.

They had retired for the night when about twelve o'clock, Mary, one of the daughters, was awakened by the dog howling. She got out of bed intending to let the dog out and when she opened the kitchen door was met by an intense volume of smoke and flame. She hurriedly awoke her mother and the five children and they rushed out of the house in their night attire. Mary noticed that the dog was missing and went back into the now blazing inferno and brought him out. The fire brigade was called out and although they made a quick run to the scene of the fire they could do nothing to stop the blaze and confined their efforts to preventing the flames spreading to nearby buildings. The father arrived home on the midnight train from Coal Creek in time to see the building collapse.

The building itself was covered by insurance, but we understand there was no insurance on the furniture or contents.

TOM UPHILL — VERY BUSY

Victoria, Nov. 23.—Hon. William Sloan adjourned the debate on Tom Uphill's bill to give coal miners the right to elect their own checkweighmen by secret ballot. The Fernie Labor member in moving second reading declared that the action was necessary to remove certain abuses, but predicted that the minister of mines would consult the operators, whom he described as Mr. Sloan's "special friends."

"I want to warn you Mr. Speaker" he declared, "that I am not going to be a good boy unless this bill passes."

Victoria, Nov. 23.—Hon. J. D. McLean in moving second reading of his bill to provide sinking funds for the Pacific Great Eastern guaranteed debentures gave the legislature detailed information today as to the nature of the scheme adopted.

Last year, he said, it was decided to vote $117,000, which would provide a sinking fund to retire in 40 years, the whole $14,000,000 of guaranteed bonds then issued. During the past 12 months, however, the remaining $6,000,000 of the original $20,z00,000 of guaranteed stock had been sold to the public.

The bill this year provides for setting aside $325,000 annually as sinking funds. This sum, said the minister, would retire 40 per cent of the whole issue in 17 years, at the end which the bonds will have matured. To retire the whole issue in 17 years would require an appropriation of $1,000,000 a year, Dr. MacLean stated, and this would be too burdensome, so the whole scheme was being changed.

Victoria, Nov. 23.—If the Lemieux act is made effective in all disputes in British Columbia coming within the scope of the provincial legislature, the lieutenant-governor-in-council will have power to withhold the operation of any section of it. This was made clear in the legislature yesterday, after general confusion had arisen over legislation introduced by Attorney-General Manson to repair the constitutional difficulties caused by the outlawing of the Lemieux act by privy council.

Opposition members contented themselves with securing a clear understanding of the provincial government's powers over the operations of the Lemieux act.

It is expected, however, that they will object at a later stage to the clause giving the government power to prevent the operation of any clause in the act.

Mr. Manson declared that the act had been instrumental in settling many industrial disputes in the past. From 1907 to 1924, he said, more than 500 industrial disputes had been brought under the act, he said, and in only 37 cases had a settlement failed.

"The Lemieux act is evil," Thomas Uphill, Labor, Fernie, told the house, adding that if he found that the interests of the employees were not fully covered by the bill, he would oppose it later in committee.

COAL SHIPMENTS GROW IN DRUMHELLER

Drumheller, Nov. 24.— The coal output in the Drumheller valley is still on the increase. The shipments over the C.N.R. for the week ending November 21 were as follows: Monday, November 16, 296 cars: Tuesday, 301; Wednesday, 310; Thursday, 309; Friday, 302; Saturday, 307; making a total of 1,825 cars as compared with 1,444 the week before and 1,862 a year ago.

Over the C.P.R. the shipments were as follows: Sunday, November 15, 8 cars; Monday, 34; Tuesday, 43; Wednesday, 53; Thursday, 47; Friday, 43; Saturday, 54; total 282 cars, or a grand total of all shipments of 2,107 cars.

HOSMER HOTEL BURNED

An old land mark disappeared from Hosmer early Monday morning when the Hosmer Hotel, operated by Dominic Citra, was destroyed by fire. There were almost a dozen guests of the hotel asleep in the building at the time and they barely escaped with their lives.Tommy Roe and Jimmy McCool, who were among the number escaped only in their night clothes. John Burg proved himself the hero of the occasion. He was the first to discover the fire and risked his life crawling through the dense smoke around to various rooms to awaken the guests.

The cause of the fire is unknown. The building, which was the property of Mrs. John Sorkie, was only slightly insured. We understand the contents of the building were insured for $3000.

The Hosmer Hotel contained the only beer parlor in the town and as it was the only hotel left in that old historic burg, was a great accomodation to lumbermen who are working in that neighborhood. The hotel was also a popular road house for visitors from Fernie and Michel.

MICHEL VETS BANQUET

Armistice Day was a most interesting day to the people of Michel and Natal. The members of the Great War Veterans over sixty strong paraded to St. Paul's Church, headed by the Michel Band. The church service was conducted by the Rev. Garlick, and the church was most beautifully decorated for the occasion with poppy wreaths. In the afternoon the Vets met at the Mchel Football field, where the band played some snappy tunes suitable for the occasion. A fine supper was later served in the Kootenay Hall by the Ladies Auxiliary. One hundred and twenty-seven men sat down to the beautifully decorated tables. Mr. M. D. McLean, who acted as chairman, gave a very fine address after which dancing was indulged in until a late hour. On Sunday the Vets and the Ladies Auxiliary paraded to the cemetery where they put wreaths on the graves of the late D. Gaskell and Mrs. A. Lyons, also on the graves of two unknown soldiers. This service was conducted by Rev. Rickaby, of the United Church, Michel. and Rev. Garlick, of St. Paul's, Michel.

The officers and members of the Ladies Auxiliary wish to thank all those who kindly gave their assistance by donaton and otherwise toward making the banquet a success.

NEARLY 15,000 STUDENTS IN UNIVERSITY OF B.C.

Victoria, Nov. 24.— There are 1447 students enrolled at the University of British Columbia this year, according to information filed wth the legislature today by Hon. Dr. J. MacLean, mnister of education, of these 962 are residents of greater Vancouver and only 47 come from outside the province. The others come from 104 different places in British Columbia. The annual cost per student exclusive of capital expenditure is $447, and each student pays $100 a year tuition fees, except in applied science where the fee is $150.

Of the 749 graduates up to 1924 no fewer than 520 are still residents of the province, 81 of other Canadian provinces, 112 in the United States of whom 28 are taking post-graduate courses, 26 are in foreign countries and 10 have died.

SUCCESSFUL CHAUTAUQUA

Chataqua this year was exceptionally good, and music lovers who had the privilrge of hearing the Howard Russel Art Trio on Friday certainly had a musical treat.

On Saturday afternoon the audience were delighted with the violin selections played by Mr. Toy Duo, who is certainly master of the violin and some of his well known selections were a wonderful treat to those present as well as the delightful singing of Mrs. Toy Duo.

Saturday Evening Dr. Gordon B. Smith gave a most instructive lecture on "The Narrow Gate in the Wall of Life," which deeply interested his audience.

On Monday the Filipinos Musical both afternoon and evening was very entertaining, their catchy airs wining the children as well as holding the interest of the grownups.

Dr. Homer Hulbert's talk on "Adventures in the Orient," gave great food for thought. Dr. Hulbert spent many years in Korea and told of some of the great hardships and struggles she has gone through, and Korea certainly has a great ally and advocat in the Doctor.

In the evening his discourse was entitled "Where the East Meets West," and Dr. Hulbert touched on Japan and how that nation had persecuted Korea and taken every advantage of her in order to gain possession for themselves.

On Tuesday evening the Martin Irwin Players presented "Daddy Long Legs" to an enthusiastic audience. This amusing play was exceptionally well put on and Daddy Long Legs was enjoyed by all, and those not present certainly missed a treat.

BITUMINOUS MEN MAY WALK OUT

Washington, Nov. 23.—Serious fears are entertained here that the strike of anthracite coal miners is to be strengthened by a walk out of their brethren workers, the bituminous miners.

The charges levelled by President J. L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America, in a letter to President Coolidge that certain of the largest soft coal operators are breaking their wage agreement, are interpreted in government circles as meaning that in a last effort to win the anthracite strike Mr. Lewis will attempt to call out the organized soft coal workers.

Nonunion operators in the bituminous field insist they are capable of filling the country's fuel demands should there be a strike in the union mines but the opinion is expressed by those in close contact with the situation that in the event of a soft coal tie up the public would be burdened with still higher prices for fuel than now prevail.

COMMUNISTS SENTENCED

London, Nov. 25.—A verdict of guilty was returned to-day against the 12 Communist leaders tried in Old Bailey on charges of conspiring to publish seditious libels and violations of the Incitement to Mutiny Act.

Albert Inkpin, secretary of the Communist party was sentenced to 12 months in prison. The same sentence was given to Harry Politt, a noted Communist speaker W. Rust, secretary of the Communist league ; Wm. Gallacher, member of the Communist executive, and Walter Hannington. nington.

Sentences of six months' imprisonment were given to seven others : Ernest Cant, London Organizer ; J. Ross Campbell, assistant editor of the Workers' Weekly ; T. W. Wintringham, business manager of the same publication ; Thomas Bell, Arthur McManus, chairman of the British Communist party and member of the executive of the British Communist International ; J. T. Murphy, a member of the British Communist party,, and W. P. Arnot, director of the Party's labor department.

On Tuesday of this week the C.P. R. police, assisted by the city and Provincial police, made a round up of a number of men who had apparently ridden the blind baggage from Moose Jaw to Cranbrook. On arrival here they were taken into rustody and arraigned before Magistrate Leask, when various sentences were meted out to them.—Cranbrook Herald.

The Legislature has unanimously decided that the great increase in the number of inmates of mental hospitals in this province should be inquired into and steps taken to stop the entry into the province of people who eventually become inmates of these institutions. Hon. William Sloan, Provincial Secretary, under whom mental hospitals come, told the House that since 1872 the ratio of insane had increased from one in 2265 to one in 285, and in that time over ten and one-half million dollars had been spent in the care of these people. Of patients now being cared for seventy per cent. had been born without Canada and of the other thirty per cent. only one in ten was a native of this province. A committee consisting of Dr. Rothwell (New Wesminster), General Odlum Vancouver), Messres. McKenzie (Similkameen), Hayward (Victoria) and Harrison (Comox) was named to consider the matter.

CURLES GIVE BANQUET

The Curling Club of Natal and Michel held a very successful banquet on Wednesday evening, Nov. 25th in the Michel Hall, which was largely attended by the fair sex as well as curlers and their friends. The eats were supplied by the Ladies Guild of Michel. Roast turkey was in evidence as well as the other delicacies which make up a sumptuous repast. After justice had been done to the refreshments, a splendid program of musical items, songs, recitations and toasts was rendered, after which a couple hours of dancing was enjoyed when every one left for their respective homes well pleased with the evnings entertainment. Rev. Garlick of Michel filled the office of chairman in a very able manner. Fernie was represented by a number of members of the Fernie Curling Club.

HOCKEY SPIRIT LACKING

The hockey situation in East Kootenay this season seems to lack its usual vigor about this time of the year and appearances now are that Kimberley and Fernie will be the only points where the winter pastime will have clubs who will be able to participate in the annual Provincial contests.

A letter has been received by the Secretary of the Fernie Club from I. Crewe, of Wycliffe, who recently returned from the Provincial Association convention at the coast, which states that Cranbrook is not at present showing any interest and that Wycliffe will only have a scrub team. Kimberely, however, are adopting the plan of having a four team city league for local competition and registering one club with the B.C. Association to participate in the play-offs, similar to the method adopted by Ferne during the past few seasons. This probably means that there will be no East Kootenay Hockey League this year in the western section of the district.

Kimberley Club, however, seems to be very anxious to engage in a series of games with Fernie during the winter and it is probable that a schedule of games between these old rivals will be drawn up.

Hockey in Fernie will be much the same as in prevous years, the moguls holding the four City League franchises are quietly rounding up talent for their team, while it is mooted that the Hockey Club here would welcome the backng of some organization for the Senior Club to participate in the play-offs. A meeting of hockey supporters is being called for Sunday evening to thoroughly discuss the situation and draw up plans for the coming season.

G. W. Spiers, of Fernie, organizer for the Fernie and District Fifteen Hundred Club, is in the city this week in the interests of his organization. He states there are now about a dozen of these organizations at work through out the province. One of the earliest deaths which had to be met by this insurance club was that of the late Damon Foster, who died as the result of an accident on the baseball field last summer and whose beneficiaries received the full amount of insurance, though he had been in the organization a few months only.—Cranbrook Herald.

REFUSES TO STAY DEAD

Anyone who has observed the English press during recent weeks must have noted a widespread revival of interest in the sayings and doings of Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George. Obviously the little Welshman is a statesman who refuses to stay dead. His restoration seems to be due to the fact that he has turned his attention to the field in which his early successes were won—domestic politics. It is admitted that the eclipse he suffered three years ago was due to his erratic courses in the field of foreign politics. Even an old Liberal colleague like Lord Grey of Falloden admits that he viewed the last 2 years of Lloyd George's regime as Prime Minister with acute alarm. It was the sense of insecurity so created that led the Unionist party to withdraw his support and put Bonar Law in his place. Since his downfall his utterances on foreign policy have been discounted though on certain matters Europe has lately come around to his way of thinking.

Lloyd George first achieved fame in his earlier days by grappling with the land problem and it is this problem that has brought him to the fore again. Britain has many domestic problems of profound gravity to worry her at the present time; but the land problem is in Lloyd George's eyes the gravest of all. The rural report of the Liberal Land Committee, recently published is a survey of conditions during the past two years and is supposed to be largely his work. This year the balance in world trade has turned against Great Britain, and he points out that this is in a large measure due to the fact that Britain is compelled, owing to inadequate agricultural production, to purchase vast quantities of food abroad. To pay her food bill and retain a balance in her favor Great Britain should sell a much larger volume of manufactured products than she is able to find markets for. Lloyd George points his finger to one very sinister fact. Great Britain is paying annually four hundred million pounds for food and timber produced abroad. Most of it could be produced on her own soil, yet her land lies half-waste. As "The Sunday Observer" puts it: "We neglect the very gift of God and complain of our state. In the history of the world's economics no such stupendous example of national mismanagement and folly has been konwn."

The former Prime Minister is winning commendation from unexpected quarters as the only contemporary statesman with courage enough to tell the British people the truth,—though some do not agree with the remedies he proposes. He rejects as do nearly all public men irrespective of party porposals for agricultural tariffs. The reason being with the unduly swollen population of British towns, whose inhabitants must be fed as cheaply as possible, no such proposals would have the smallest chance of acceptance by the British electorate. The old yeomanry of a century ago has disappeared and cannot be re-created in time to restore the situation. Lloyd George proposes remedies to increase agricultural production which are nothing short of land nationalization. He would buy out the landlords, good and bad and abolish all ownership great and small. He would turn all cultivators into supervised State-tenants, assuerd of fixed and hereditary tenure on good behavior—the national aim being increased production to reduce the volume of Britain's food purchases abroad. He estimates the population of landless laborers at 700,000 who would be set to work cultivating holdings that are now unproductive. Critics of his scheme point out that he makes no provision for the small holdings system which has brought so much prosperity to Denmark, France and Germany and was working wonders for Ireland before she went on her revolutionary jamboree.

Such critics believe that the state-tenant would never take the same pride in development and increase as the man who owned his own farm, no matter how small. But everyone seems thankful to Lloyd George for calling attention to the grossly uneconomic system which prevails in Britain's agrarian areas. The radical changes he proposes excite less horror than they would have a generation ago, because a great deal of the ancient sentiment has disappeared from land-holding and the relations between landlord and tenant. The war, which wiped out many of the old county families and ruined many others, has led to the land passing into the hands of newly-rich purchasers whose names mean nothing in the history of the county or the nation. A great part of the aristocracy would rather see this land in the hands of the State than of its new owners; and probably most of the agricultural population is of like opinion. Whatever the solution it is plain that the wasteful system whereby half the countryside is left unproductive must be amended if Britain is to avoid complete disaster.—Saturday Night.

MOOSEHEART

Were you to visit Mooseheart—and the invitation to visit the child city is always constant—you like thousands of others would be amazed at the sheer beauty of the place. Beautiful buildings— for home and school— are constructed of granite-faced concrete and the red-tiled roofs set amid the green trees and verdant lawns present a scene of striking contrast. It is like a great park or a country estate with walks that wind, roadways that are intriguing, footpaths that beckon you to their very ends.

Not very long ago the site of Mooseheart was prairie land—rich and fertile. Today its products are no longer the humble vegetables but are cast in a lovelier mold—the upstanding man of tomorrow and the sterling woman equipped to provide for herself or make a home for others.

Mooseheart is a city unto itself with its water system, its watch patrols, its fire department, its hospital, its sanitary measures, its routine of regular hours, its post office, its very own government. Mooseheart is a child city, beautiful, wonderful—where little children may laugh and play, may work and learn, may know that life is good after all.

CAR MAKES RECORD RUN

A noteworthy experiment in railroading came to a successful conclusion the other day when an oil-electric car made the run over the Canadian National Railway system from Montreal to Vancouver in sixty-seven hours, the distance being 2,937 miles, and the average speed 43½ miles per hour.

The car which is operated at a trivial sum as compared with a standard locomotive, represents a new type of transportation designed to meet branch line requirements and bus line competition. It is an oil fuel engine, the lightest of its kind outside of aero practice—operating an electric generator which provides the energy to move the car. The seating capacity of the car, which is car and locomotive in one, has accomodation for 57 passengers.

The Canadian National has built several of these cars in the Montreal shops, some of these now in successful operation, the invention being the work of the motive engineers of the company.

The important point is that motor competition makes it necessary for our railways to find the answer in the operation of small and comparatively cheap units, which can be run between local points at a cost which will allow them to meet the motor car at least half way. The Canadian National appears to have solved the problem.

Another story of the "meanest man" has come from a newspaper office where the proof reader was fired for letting funny mistakes slip through and then calling them to the attention of the columnist.

There was a time when a woman couldn't get anywhere without clothes. Now she can't get anywhere with 'em.

NOVA SCOTIA COMMISSION

Sydney, N.S., Nov. 24.—Commencing his summing up of the case for the miners a few minutes before this afternoon's adjournment of the roy commission investigating the coal industry of Nova Scotia, under the chairmanship of Sir Andrew Rae Duncan, John S. McLeod, dstrict president of the United Mine Workers of America, said he would classify the grievances of the men under three charges, which he has repeatedly made against the British Empire Steel corporation, and wished to reiterate. They were: incompetence, extravagance and impropriety.

He was proceeding to elaborate these when the adjournment for the day was taken. The witness was on the stand throughout the day, and it was anticipated at the time of adjournment this afternoon, that he would conclude his direct testimony before the close of tomorrow morning's session at the earliest.

The U.M.W. district president spent the day reviewing the relationships developng between the company and the miners, from 1922 down to the setting up of the royal commission.

The miners of Nova Scotia, the witness testified, was ready to co-operate in the advancement of the coal industry, but he felt they had never been afforded a proper opportunity. He charged that the corporation had submitted incorrect figures regarding the spread between the cost and selling price of coal, in their negotiations with the men, that the company controlled newspapers which were used for propaganda purposes, that useless officials were employed and that coal was sold to the steel company at less than cost of production. All these things, he stated, "and a hundred and one more" things, tended to a condition of unrest and left the mes with a sense of injustice, which only a fact-finding investigaton could remove.

The witness further produced evidence tending to show, he said, that the company had endeavored to destroy the union.

In Constantinople the police have a new way of dealing with the speeding motorist. They have been served out with wooden planks studded with nails which they are empowered to cast down (nails uppermost) in the path of any motor car which they consider to be exceeding a reasonably safe speed. Commenting on this The Manchester Guardian says: "The idea has about it the 'kind of wild justice' which the great Francis Bacon said was characterictic of revenge, and revenge, though always deplorable, is sometimes sweet.....The plank with nails in it is a most immediate and picturesque retaliation. It is perhaps just as well that, even in Turkey, it should be entrusted only to the recognized custodians of the peace, but it is nice to think that the punishment which so admirable fits the crime s held in reserve by somebody on the risky highways of this harassed world."

A protracted meeting when held in town is a revival.

Here you see Commander R. G. (Jock) Latta, of the S.S. Empress of Scotland, flag-ship of the Canadian Pacific fleet, just before and in action as a member of the "Round-the-World Golf Club", teeing off from the deck of his ship and splitting the fairway far into the ocean with the first ball of the tournament. The idea of the club was first started by I. O. Upham, of the San Francisco Golf Club, who on a $50 bet went ahead with the notion of teeing on foreign golf links across the world, playing one hole on every course with the same ball. He had all kinds of sport from losing his ball on a Chinese links and hiring twelve men to search for it, to finding the Copenhagen Golf Club, Denmark, occupied by the whole Danish army. Before returning to San Francisco he had played on 55 courses. Captain Latta is one of the latest members of the Club and a number of fellow members will sail on the Empress of Scotland on December 3rd from New York on the fifth yearly cruise of the globe undertaken by C.P.R. Vessels. The coming trip will cover 27,320 miles, nineteen countries, every kind of climate, race and tongue, and will return to New York April 10, 1926 from a trip occupying 129 days.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation, and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

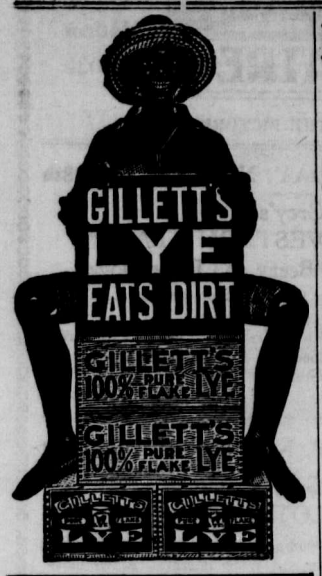
PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES



Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 10 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers up to ten head.

THE NATIONAL FORESTS LURE MANY TOURISTS

Figures compiled in the district forester's office in Portland for the 1925 season show that 3,092,710 visitors were attracted to the 22 national forests of Oregon and Washington. This is an increase over 1924 of 911,178 and is exclusive of the large numbers that visited Rainier and Crater Lake national parks, both of which report large increases.

Forest officials list the visitors as campers, picnickers, transient motorists, hotel and resort guests and summer home permittees and guests. They visited the forests by private automobile, by bus, railroad, electric line, wagon, horseback and afoot.

One of the most interesting things in the report is the evident revival of the popularity of hiking. Oregon's forests attracted 23,674 hikers and Washington's rugged scenic charm lured 31,543 who penetrated on foot many scenic spots not available by automobile, train, or even on horseback. They got the real value of their outing. The Washington increase in hikers was 10,652, a gan of nearly 50 per cent. over 1924.

Leading the eight national forests in Washington in popularity was the Wenatchee forest, which was visited by 686,170 people. The Snoqualmie forest had 268,281 visitors, an increase of 145,806 in a year. TheOlympic forest attracted 88,480, an increase of 30,430, and the Mount Baker forest jumped from 27,498 in 1924 to 38,247 in 1925.—Spokesman Review.

HARRINGTON'S SHOE STORE

BOOSTING FOR TOURISTS

The Vancouver Sun has a timely article on the opportunities of the Tourist business.

The same arguments that apply to Vancouver city apply to Fernie and other cities in East Kootenay. The Sun says:

Vancouver institutions are going ahead with a vigorous programme of building, but what are those institutions and what are the business men of Vancouver doing to provide new customers for greater business volume for Greater Vancouver?

Last year British Columbia industries ranked about as follows:

1. Forestry.
2. Agriculture.
3. Tourists.
4. Mining.
5. Fisheries.

Which of these industries can be taken hold of and promoted to yield the largest increase in profit to this community? Unquestionably the answer is tourists.

The direct and indirect results of what the tourists trade can be made to do for Vancouver, are colossal. We own a picture with a surrounding and an atmosphere that millions of people will pay hundreds of million of dollars to come and see and enjoy. All we have to do is to go out and sell a "look" at that picture to a 120,000,000 audience of people on this North American continent.

Our problem then is simply the problem of a showman, and whether our audience is one hundred thousand people or one million people per year, depends on the effort that Greater Vancouver makes to bring those people here.

And every dollar that we put into that effort will come back one hundred times.

Fifteen years ago, California started in to spend a million dollars a year on publicity. The tourists came and took away nothing but the climate and scenery, while the business men and citizens of Cailfornia took in $100,000,000 annually.

Today, a large store or business in Vancouver could put on its payroll ten new salesmen at forty to sixty dollars a week, or a small store, one new salesman, but how much would those salesmen increase the annual business of that store or how much will those salesmen increase the annual earning power of Greater Vancouver?

But if every store and business institution in Greater Vancouver were to put the Vancouver Tourist Bureau on its monthly payroll for an amount equal to the cost of one-tenth of these employees, what could that Bureau do on an aggressive campaign to bring tourists and industries to Vancouver?

Starting in January, this city could profitably spend, and should spend in 1926, not less than $250,000 in promoting tourists and industries for Greater Vancouver.

We should put the Tourist Bureau on Vancouver's payroll and put it to work to bring in to Vancouver new money, new industries, and new business customers.

FARMERS NOT COMMUNISTS

Step by step the "dictatorship of the proletariat," which was the basis of the Russian Revolution of 1907, is retreating into the limbo of forgotten things; the leaders of the proletariat are turning from the city worker to the peasant, hoping thereby to retain their power as the real dictators of the Russian people.

In their desperate struggle to retain power, the Bolsheviki have been forced to surrender one principle of economic and social theory after another. The American Exchange-Pacific National Bank points out that as a result, Russia is to-day basically more of a "capitalistic" country than many which have never passed through the ordeal of armed revolution.

Thus does history repeat itself; erstwhile apostles of economic uplift settle down to enjoy the exercise of the power wrested from the regime which they overthrew. To-day the Bolsheviki are preaching the doctrine of the dictatorship of the proletariat in every country except Russia. Elsewhere it is still a theory and a slogan; in Russia the dictatorship of the proletariat is no longer a conjuring phrase, it is a defeated and discredited programme.

The Russian peasant is and always has been a capitalist. He is not political minded and shows little interest in the affairs of government as long as government leaves him to manage his own property and conduct his own affairs in peace. And the same is true of the farmer of Canada and other countries. Political movements among the agricultural classes have always been short lived.—Financial Post.

Most people are of the opinion that there is a lot of activity in a chorus girl's dressing room, but as a matter of fact there is not much going on there.

If your lips would keep from slips,
Five things observe with care:
Of whom you speak,
To whom you speak,
And how and when and where.

If you your ears would keep from jeers,
These things keep mildly hid:
Myself and I,
And Mine and My,
And how I do or did.

I Am Going to Put in My Sideshows:

The man who offers a lady his seat in the street car when he doesn't intend to get off at the next corner.

The maid who isn't called to the telephone twenty-seven times a day—at least three of them during dinner.

The uncle who hasn't heaps of money and yet is treated royally.

The son who never asks his father for a check.

The man who never takes a drop—never took a drop, no, sir!

The chorus girl in a movie who doesn't chew gum or smoke.

The novelist who can write a story without a complex, or a single bad word!

Girls who declare they wouldn't marry the best man in the world, some times marry one of the sorriest later on.

Even an optimist can't see much fun in missing a street car.

"A Dollar Down and....."

O, a friend of mine bought a graphophone
For a Dollar Down and a Dollar a Week;
Said he, "It's the easiest graft I've known,
This Dollar Down and a Dollar a Week."
So he bought a rug and a fountain pen,
A leather chair and desk and then
A set of the lives of our famous men
For a Dollar Down and a Dollar a Week.

He bought a suit, a hat and shoes
For a Dollar Down and a Dollar a Week;
He joined a lodge and he paid his dues
With a Dollar Down and a Dollar a Week.
He bought a ring that was fair to see
For the lily white hand of his bride to be,
Got married and paid the minister's fee
With a Dollar Down and a Dollar a Week.

His wife she said, "I must be free
From this Dollar Down and a Dollar a Week."
She sued for divorce and the alimony
Was a Dollar Down and a Dollar a Week.
So week by week he lived until
A ripe old age; then he died, but s'
His friends are paying the funeral bill
With a Dollar Down and a Dollar a Week.

VISITING ESKIMOS ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT TOBACCO

Civilization's many wonders apparently made but slight impression on Savakak, Anatota, Attawinga and Tapita, four Eskimos brought to Montreal by officials of the Revillion Freres Trading Company. The four visitors from the frozen North smiled and were mildly amused by the white man's environment and pastimes, but displayed little enthusiasm for the mechanical marvels which they were viewing for the first time.

The sight of one thing, however, invariably caused the quartet to display all the enthusiasm anyone could demand. Tobacco was unmistakably a tremendously prized article, one that they enjoyed hugely, though they had never in their lives made its acquaintance previous to boarding the good ship "Jean Revillion" which brought them from Baker Lake to Liverpool, Nova Scotia.

As a solace for the rigours of Winter as they know it, all four—after sampling everything in the form of tobacco offered—took away with them to Pagwa, Ontario, a plentiful supply of Millbank Virginia Cigarettes, and of Dixie Bright Plug Smoking Tobacco in the famous vacuum (air-tight) tin. Evidently these primitive people are exceedingly quick to sense value when they encounter it.

"LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS" COMING TO THE ORPHEUM FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Flashing on the heels of that epic of the Great West, "The Thundering Herd" comes another powerful Zane Grey story, in which are woven the might, the romance and the outlawry of frontier struggle, "The Light of Western Stars," directed by William K. Howard, the man who produced "The Thundering Herd."

This latest Paramount production which opens at the Orpheum Theatre on Friday and Saturday, has the popular and virile Jack Holt in the hero role, with Noah Beery and Billie Dove sharing the featured honors.

The setting is laid in the Southwest at the time when the admission of Arizona and New Mexico to statehood enlarged the realm of the cattle country. It is essentially a story of cowboy drama, of deeds of valor that overcome villainy and of gunfighting with the love of a beautiful girl as the prize.

As in all picturizations of Zane Grey's fascinating and colorful western dramas the locations were chosen with the greatest fidelity possible to the actual settings of the novel. Much of the story was photographed in the mountain and desert country of southern Arizona through which winds the historic Apache trail. And for many of the scenes Director Howard took his players into the hauntingly beautiful recesses of the Superstition Mountains.

"The Light of Western Stars" has much of the interest to film fans quite apart from its entertainment values. Dealing as it does with one of the most violent periods of American history, it is tremendously absorbing because it gives us a realistic glimpse of the rip-roaring life in those hectic border days.

The Ladies Aid of the United Church are holding their Annual Bazaar on Saturday, Nov. 28th (tomorrow), in the basement of the United Church. The Bazaar will open at 2.30 in the afternoon and close at 8 o'clock in the evening, tea will be served during the afternoon.

Alfred Cummings will give a short talk on the affairs of the public library at the next luncheon of the Rotary Club on Monday. This institution is badly in need of some real live boosting and it is to be hoped that the Rotary Club will get behind it and make the library a credit to the city.

The regular meeting of the Fernie Poultry & Pet Stock Association will be held in the City Hall on Wednesday, December 2nd, at 7.30 p.m. All members are requested to attend. All Canary Fanciers are also invited to attend this meeting as it is to their interest.

It is the intention of the Association to put classes of Canaries in their show this year and would be obliged if all interested in Canaries would attend this meeting.

Following the success of British Columbia at the Imperial Fruit Show in London comes word of the province's successes at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto and at the live stock show held at the same place. The Associated Growers of B. C. wrested from Ontario premier place in Northern Spys which the eastern province has always held hitherto. In Guernseys, Ayrshires, Holsteins and Jerseys British Columbia breeders took a great number of prizes.

There is a movement on foot to have the drug stores close at the same time as other stores do in the evening. While there are some good reasons for early closing let us hope that the movement is not a success. Since the window lights were put on meter rate, half the windows on Victoria Avenue are in darkness and the drug stores are practically the only bright spots left on the street. If the drug stores close then some better scheme of lighting the main street must be inaugurated or our town will look like a country village.

The chilly weather is stirring up curling enthusiasm. Over sixty-five have already signified their intentin of joining this year and it is hoped to run the number up to at least a hundred. Every lttle town in the district seems to be putting it over Fernie so far as numbers of curlers are concerned. Cranbrook, Kimberley and Michel all have away over a hundred members, while Fernie, which started with nearly 140 has dwindled until last year there were only 75. Are the people in this town losing their pep or what is the matter. Send in your name at once to Wm. Baldrey or Jack Wallace if you would like to join.

H. J. Browne, meterologist, of Washington, D.C., predicts a severe vinter. Be prepared by ordering your storm windows and doors now. Measurements taken and prices quoted by calling a our oftice, or Phone 23.—J. T. Mangan Lumber Co.

CIVILIZATION A FAILURE

Charles Richet, the great French physiologist who won the Nobel Prize for physiology in 1913, has drawn up a terrific indictment of mankind.

Man, he contends, is infinitely more stupid than the lower animals, because man is the only one among the living species that willfully creates his own misery, that wages senseless wars, practices torture upon himself and others, believes in absurd superstitions, poisons himself with alcohol and other stimulants and narcotics, bows down before insolent and imbecile kings and resists all knowledge and ideas that make for progress and betterment.

The descent of man, according to Professor Richet, is a real descent and not an evolution to a higher state of being. The present state of civilization he calls a ghastly failure. We are not superior to the apes and monkeys and other so-called lower animals, but really inferior to them in common sense.

Professor Richet has set forth his indictment of mankind in a book which he calls "Idiot Man or the Follies of Mankind." Instead of designating man as Homo Sapiens (Wise Man), Professor Richet says that man should be called Homo Stultus (Stupid Man).

"Far be it from me," Professor Richet says, "to underestimate human reason. Here and there, in spite of his enormous mistakes, the human being furnishes us with some proofs of intelligence. He has fire; he has language which permits of abstract ideas; he has clothes, buildings, towns, libraries, museums and schools. And a few great minds have emerged from the brutish herd. Therefore man is not destitute of reason.

"But this very reason, instead of being an argument against his stupidity, is a terrific proof of it. To have reason and be unreasonable is much more serious than to lack the faculty of reasoning.

"To persecute Galileo because he said the earth revolved shows some intelligence, but a vitiated intelligence, far more vitiated than that of a shark. The hungry shark rushes ferociously upon the first thing he sees, but he would never be stupid enough to consider Galileo a criminal.

"To take grapes, press them, extract the flowing juice, ferment it, place it in a still on a fire, collect and distil the steam, pour it into multicolored glass bottles and distribute it cleverly among countless thousands of people is an undeniable proof of intelligence. Neither rabbits, cats, nor monkeys, could do as much as this. Yet all this intelligence ends in futility. This flood of alcohol simply preverts the remnant of reason in thousands of people, vitiates their blood and dislocates their nervous system. It would be far better, like rabbits, cats and monkeys, to be ignorant of the distiller's art.

"Let us start with the question of kings. It does very little credit to human intelligence. In the good old days a king, in his boundless power, had the right of life and death over millions of subjects, who were his chatels from his cradle. And, as he was surrounded by a troop of sturdy, unscrupulous, armed retainers, he could even compel millions of people to toil for years on his palace or his tomb.

"Julius Caesar and Napoleon were exceptional being 'Sports'; but most of the monarchs who took them for models were devoid of talent, intelligence and virtue, admittedly inferior to the most mediocre of their subjects; ugly like Louis XI, vicious like Louis XV libertines like Henry VIII, madmen like Caligula, cowards like Nero, cruel like Peter the Great, unbalanced like Charles XII. Their authority was no more dependent on their merits than the flowering of the apple blossom depends upon the migration of herrings.

"This absolute subjection to one master would be extravagant enough if he were a great man; a Pascal; a Rembrandt, a Leonardo da Vinci; a Galileo; a Columbus; a Leibnitz, a Kant; a Hugo. But in reality not one of these noble spirits has ever had any share of power. They have been men of genius—merely that—and as such they have remained isolated among the blind and ignorant mob. The boundless stupidity of human communities has denied them any authority, while idolizing the half-witted.

"Among this slavish, blind, ignorant mob, which was the humanity of the past and is the humanity of today, a few great minds have appeared from time to time, serene and adventurous, ahead of their generation, discovering new truths, loving justice; pale scattered lights which dimly illuminate 'the shadows of our night.'

"These benefactors, great in their genius and daring have no doubt been rewarded by their fellows? Let us see what history says.

"Jesus Christ, that tender mystic soul to whom hatred was unknown, taught forgiveness of trespasses, pity for the poor and suffering and the equality of miserable men bofore the Heavenly Father. New doctrines these, which ought to have changed the face of the world. Well! Jesus Christ was condemned to a painful and ignominious death."

Professor Richet goes on to cite that Christopher Columbus escaped torture by a miracle and died in poverty and exile; Galileo, who invented the thermometer and the telescope, was forced to bow to stupidity and drag out his last days, blind, in a prison cell; Gutenberg, the inventor of printing; Palissy, the founder of paleontology and ceramics; Jenner the discoverer of vaccine; Harvey, the first to realize the value of experimental physiology; all had their lives poisoned by proscriptions, persecutions, law suits, ridicule and poverty.

The mob, Professor Richet contends, always reviles and persecutes the noble minded men of science and thought who strive to liberate men from evil and misery and who call attention to injustice; but the mob always not only submits to the tsars and emperors who make slaves of them but actually reverences and admires the cruel tyrants.

Professor Hichet is especially condemnatory of man's discovery and use of alcohol.

"Man, he says, "found that, by letting certain foods putrefy, he can obtain new products of speciously nourishing apearance. It is revolting enough that he should let pheasants, snipe and venison decay before he eats them; but the harm is not serious, firstly, because these nauseating dishes are reserved for the jaded palates of the chosen few; and, secondly, because the mucous membranes of the stomach is tough enough to withstand, more or less, the asault of these putrid meats.

But as to decayed vegetables it is a very different story. For as they decay, the sugary vegetables produce a terrible poison, which is alcohol. And so, instead of the lawful normal food which the great law of nature ordains and recommends, man revels in putrid vegetables. I say putrid, because alcoholic fermentation is only decay, exactly like any other putrefaction.

"If we were only content to drink these putrefied liquors until we made ourselves sick—but no! we go much further. We have succeeded in extracting their pernicious essence. Man is not content to drink this putrid mess; he distils it; he extracts its innermost essence till he finally draws from the rotten grape a sure and active poison —alcohol—marvellous mighty alcohol."

Professor Richet reserves his greatest wrath for war. "That since the days of Homer, in spite of Plato, Aristotle, Licero, Saint Augustine, St. Jerome, Leonardo da Vinci, in spite of Pascal, Voltaire, Montesquieu, Leibnitz and Kant, humanity should have found no better way of settling its quarrels than by the mutual slaughter of 30,000,000 of its best and bravest is the crushing irrefutable demonstration of intellectual impotence.

"Pitiful humanity has fallen so low that men kill each other without hating each other (the phrase is Bousuet's) and they no longer fill me with pity, but with black shame. Yes, in my inmost being, I am humiliated because I belong to this vile animal species, the most foolish of all created thing.

Among the many follies of mankind, Professor Richet would place vanity among the first, "the stupid vanity of a desire to seem richer and smarter than our neighbors." He denounces the rapidly changing fashions with the enormous sums spent on ornaments including such things as plumes of ostriches, peacocks, birds of paradise and egrets. Yet, "the diamond is a yet mightier lord. But his dignity is not intrinsic, for chemically he is really simply carbon—that is, coal. Crystallized coal, perhaps, but still only coal.

"Note, as an aggravation of man's idiocy, that crystallized coal can be so perfectly imitated that the cleverest experts are deceived. Consequently when a man is mad enough to give 500,000 francs worth of diamonds to a woman, it is not to make her lovelier, since 300 francs worth of paste would be just as dazzling, but because he panders to the lowest instincts of vanity with these expensive stones."

The savages of South Africa hold extended lips to be a mark of beauty, hence they insert instruments in their lips abnormally, so that by the time they are grown they have mouths that are more like the mouths of the great fishes or like the pelican than like men.

The women of more civilized communities, according to Professor Richet, are no less silly than the savages. The Chinese women bind their feet in babyhood. The ears of seven-year-old girls in most European and American communities are pierced for the insertion of earrings and other tortures are self-inflicted by men and women to satisfy a silly vanity.

Man, according to Professor Richet, is the only animal that kills merely to satisfy a lust for killing. The wild animal of the jungle kills when he needs food; but civilized man will go out in the name of sport and kill hundreds of peaceful and happy animals.

Through a long catalogue Professor Richet enumerates what he considers damaging evidence of a man's incurable stupidity, and with a pessimistic summing up says that man should be called "Man, the Super-Fool."

Bob Anderson in his burlesque character song "Why Am I Always The Bridesmaid" with the Originals in "Thumbs UP" at The Grand on Sat., November 28th.

THE ORIGINALS IN "THUMBS UP"

The usual enthusiasm displayed here over the forthcoming engagement of the popular Originals, which company includes most of the original overseas Dumbells, has already broken forth by the announcement that they, "The Boys," will appear at the Grand Theatre on Saturday, November 28th, at 9 p.m., in their smashing new revue, "Thumbs UP." All the stars of the Company, including Gene Pearson, Bob Anderson, Jimmie Goode (back again after a year's absence), Alan Murray, Jerry Brayford, Bertram Langley, Thomas Dunn, Lionel Broadway, Percy Campbell (the latter appearing on stage this season for the first time since the old days in France) have exceptional opportunity for the display of their individual talents. The great number of new skits and dances, song hits, concerted and character numbers, as well as the incomparable quartette, make the entire show move with lightning like rapidity. Everything is new and most of the biggest hits were secured in London by members of the Company, while Alan Murray and the Company's competent director, Leonard Young, have again shown their hand in the production of a 100 per cent. entertainment.

Elaborate costumes, correct lighing arrangements, mirth provoking skits and a thousand good things thrown in for good measure in "Thumbs UP." Gene Pearson is singing the Waltz song from "Romeo and Juliet" among his repertoire of gorgeous numbers. Gene's marvellous soprano voice is even better than before and the ovation accorded him everywhere this year has been phenomenal. Surprises and screams of laughter come to the audience with every appearance of Bob Anderson, his new Dame Number is a riot; Jimmie Goode's new and original line of Darkey comedy is knocking 'em off their seats.—And this isn't a quarter of the entertainment that awaits you in "Thumbs Up" when you see it.

The Originals have their own Orchestra this season.

CALLING A HALT TO CURSING

A campaign against profanity has been started in Italy under the leadership of King Victor Emmanuel, according to a dispatch from Rome, and the Minister of Instruction, Prof. Pietro Fedele, has directed that lectures on the subject be delivered in the schools. It is not known here, of course, how great is the need for such a campaign in Italy; but it certainly behooves us, we are told, to take a leaf out of her book. No people, with the possible exception of the Australians, says the Little Rock Arkansas Gazette, are so profane as the people of the United States. In fact,

"We are notable, and long have been, as a nation of 'cussers,' and now we are developing lady experts in this line. To-day 'damn' is entirely innocuous and 'hell' is innocent, at least so far as language is concerned.

"Profanity has been one of our greatest outputs for many years, and naturally we have developed 'cussers' of wide reputation. One of these, a famous newspaper man, has been known to divide a word with profanity. He declared once that he would fix the 'responsi—— —— bility' for a certain crime if it took all summer. Nearly every town has its profanity champion.

"If the King of Italy's campaigners are successful in Italy, they should be imported to America.

It is difficult now, observes the Pittsburgh Sun, to find a play in which are not used words that formerly were not uttered in polite society. The Sun records:

"There have been some plays in Pittsburgh this year that had a curse in nearly every line, and it has been said that they correctly mirrored life. In one drama foul words were used which no one would have dared to utter in public a few years ago. The excuse given for profanity on the stage is that it is realism. But that hardly excuses the use of nasty words that would be frowned upon in the drawing-room. Unless the growing indifference to profanity is halted, these unpleasant expressions now so commonplace in the theater will be heard in the home, too.

There are those who fancy that no one sincerely objects to swearing. But that is a mistaken notion. There is something to think about in the jocular sign which one sometimes sees hanging in offices: 'Please don't swear. There may be a gentleman present.'" —Literary Digest.

BRITAIN RECOVERING

There are many instances of the remarkable manner in which Britain is recovering from her post-war troubles and it is substantial recovery, all the more stable because it is slow and persistent. Her share in the world's trade continues to increase and she is making stady progress towards the recovery of the total volume of the export trade she had before the war. Within a few years it is anticipated that she will be on a pre-war footing of prosperity again and with full employment for her people. The handicapping feature has been excessive taxation, but this is being steadily reduced through governmental economics. The remedy for unemployment will eventually be found by each industry itself as trade expands. Through all her post-war experience there is being borne in on the people that British workmen are entitled to protection against foreign competition which is eating into their livelihood. It is a choice as The Morning Post says between protection and maintenance of a great army of unemployed persons. Some of that protection is being given by the logical extension of the Safeguarding of Industries enactments and a greater extension is foreshadowed.

GETTING AFTER SHORT SKIRTS

Skirts are shorter than ever in Paris, runs a newspaper line; but the campaign for modesty in women's dress is being waged persistently by the Roman Catholic Church and is now reinforced by the Hebrew Union of Orthodox Congregations in this country. In addition to the orders excluding from the Pontificial audiences women not modestly and seriously clothed, Pope Pius XI has sent another order to the Committee for Assistance in Pilgrimages, forbidding participation in the processions of pilgrims to women not modestly and serously drest, in a manner corresponding with the austerity of the rite of penance which the processions are supposed to symbolize. Writing further in a dispatch from Rome to the National Catholic Welfare Conference News Service, Monsignor Enrico Pucci tells us that admittance to the audience with the Pope was recently denied to thirty-two women and girls because they were not properly clothed. All the Italian bishops, we are told, have published pastorals and instructions containing severe proscriptions against immodest dress. Another dispatch to the same news service reports a similar campaign in Chile, where the Archbishop of Santiago calls women to account for their mode of attire.

Some heat, we are told, was developed over the passage by the Hebrew Union of Orthodox Congregations of a resolution condemning the scant garb of women. Some of the members, according to a report in the New York World, declared indignantly that a church could not prscribe women's styles, while others were equally as positive that the question does lie within the jurisdiction of the churches. The resolution as finally passed is quoted by The World as follows:

"Whereas, modesty and propriety of conduct are enjoined upon Jews by their religious codes, be it resolved that this convention looks with disfavor upon the laxity of conduct so greatly prevalent at present, and particularly on the manner of attire at present customary among the female sex, which can not be considered decent and modest; and we urge the daughters of Israel to clothe themselves with proper modesty, and in particular the ladies attending divine services, so as not to conflict with the holiness of the places of worship."

The strong position of the Roman Catholic Church and now of the Orthodox Hebrew Congregations is in accord with the position taken by other religious bodies and social organizations, notes the Raleigh News and Observer; but, it asks, rhetorically, "Does it do any good? Will any decree except from the fashion autocrats in Paris accomplish the needed reform?" The women themselves are in the clutch of mighty circumstance, observes the New York Times, inclining to the notion that fashion, now aided by comfort and convenience, is still the dictator of women's dress. "With the spread of democracy and the growth of well-being for the masses," we are told, "the decrees, or ravages, of Fashion become well-nigh universal." And now—

"The circumstances point to woman's definite emancipation from the garments that trail, envelop, and clog. If the women of Turkey have abandoned the veil, and the women of India are abandoning purdah, the women of the West will be argued with in vain to retrace their steps; and particularly because here in the West the new fashions embody no such break with tradition. Our modesty standards in dress have largely been artificial. Satirists have long wanted to know why something that was modest in the ballroom is immodest on the street curb, and why the proper thing on the bathing beach is the improper thing on the subway.

"It is largely habit. No one has ever considered the short kirtle of the peasant woman in her national costume to be immodest. That short skirt should be no less proper behind the shop counter and in the business office.

"Why, then, in the face of all these forces working logically for the modern dress, is it assumed that victory may yet rest with the churches? For the reason that when Fashion speaks, economic forces, social forces, psychological forces, emancipations, progress, and all the rest mean nothing. The dressmaker breathes upon them and they are not."

GENE PEARSON, the male Galli Curci and the world's greatest impersonator of beautiful women who comes to The Grand with the Originals New Revue "Thumbs UP" on Saturday, November 28.

GREAT WATERFALL DISCOVERED IN B.C.

Prince Rupert, Nov. 21.—A vast new area, teeming with objects of unusual scientific interest and of unparalleled scenery, has been explored during the last few months by Mr. Harlan I. Smith, of the field staff of the Victoria Museum, Ottawa.

This area, little known to the white man because it is locked away many miles from transportation facilities, and can be penetrated only by rough trails which wind over mountains and through dense forests, many miles from the centres of civilization, has been given the name of Mackenzie Park. In this park Mr. Smith has found, among other things, one-fifth of the known peroglyphs of Canada; a great waterfall which in a point of height may prove to be among the first five in the world.

Huge glaciers stud the mountains in this region, grizzlies and other wild game is abundant and the Indian types offer a rich field for anthropological study. The district was named after Sir Alexander Mackenzie, the first white man to cross Canada, and one of the few men who led an expedition over the Bella Coola Trail.

The great waterfall noted by Mr. Smith, is said to have a drop of 823 feet, which would make it the highest in Canada, the second highest in the Western Hemisphere and the fifth highest in the world.

From a zoological standpoint, the Bella Coola district has few equals, if any, in Canada. Here is a district where mountain goats have been shot from the side of the road; where fourteen bald-headed eagls have been counted on a single tree; where huge sand sharks and sea fans are to be found in the fiords which indent the coast.

For the lover of romance, the artist and literary person, few districts afford the same opportunities as Bella Coola. Among the human types that may be encountered in various parts of the district are Norwegian fishermen, living according to the traditions of their land; Indians, who are among the crack horsemen of the continent; cowboys, French-Canadian trappers and the ubiquitous Chinese and Japanese fishermen.

THE ARCHEOLOGICAL FINDS IN EGYPT

Perhaps the supreme moment in modern archeological research came on November 11, 1925. On that day Howard Carter, in the presence of government and scientific representatives, began the examination of the mummy of Tutankhamen in the Valley of Kings at Luxor. From the musty tomb where the boy king's remains had lain for 3,273 years, the splendors of ancient Egypt were brought to light, dwarfing in richness and magnificence all that had gone before.

The mater-of-fact official report telling of the finding of the Egyptian crown jewels failed to conceal the dazzling character of the beautiful and precious objects discovered. There are passages which read like extracts from a tale of wonder. "Among the objects brought to light were gold amulet and collarettes, superb gold dagger with crystal handle, bracelets of intricate workmanship, a large number of finger rings of intricate workmanship, some having scarabs bearing the king's name, a second dagger more beautiful than the first, several large inlaid pectorals, beadwork ornaments, circlets, etc."

And again, "both forearms were loaded with magnificent jewels..... jewelry discovered upon the king, who lies in a coffin of gold, is far beyond expectations.....on the feet are golden sandals and on the fingers golden stalls."

No living man has ever before gazed on such a find as this. The splendor of the jewels and precious objects must have bewildered those who first gazed upon them. Their intrinsic value is no doubt fabulous, but far greater is their artistic worth. The art of the best lapidaries and goldsmiths of Egypt went into the ornamentation and embellishment of the jewels which were buried with the youthful king. But only the merest details have been given to the world. Comparative secrecy is being preserved, it is obvious, when one remembers the wealth of description concerning the opening of the outer chamber three years ago. When the full story is told, it will form a narrative unrivalled in all archeology.— Calgary Herald.

VOLUNTEER AIR SQUAD

London, Nov. 21.—Voluntary recruiting of the special reserve and auxiliary air force squadrons which are to form an important part of the programme of home defence against air attack was comenced at the beginning of this month, following a speaking campaign by Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary of State for Air, in the Kingdom's industrial centres.

This enlistment of the maximum amount of skilled knowledge of aviation in the country on a voluntary basis is only an experiment, Sir Samuel acknowledges, but is an experiment that must be fully tried, if merely for the sake of economy, for the Royal Air Force is bound to be expensive both in equipment and maintenance depending for its striking power on an entire absence of mechanical breakdown in the air.

The problem before the Air Ministry is to sift from the mass of volunteers the right type of officers and men, with not only the will, but also the practical experience through his profession or trade to build up an efficient air unit of defence with the minimum amount of annual training. No other country has yet endeavored to tackle its air defence problem along the same lines.

The squadrons will, of course, be centered around areas industrial in character, otherwise the skilled force would not be easily available. Equally it is not desirable to have too big a gap between the regular squadrons, always ready for action, and the auxiliary squadrons which are to supplement them as soon as they can be mobilized. Consequently the thirteen non-regular squadrons have been divided into two classes. Seven will be special reserve squadrons, in which one-third of the establishment is definitely regular and the remaining two thirds undergo a very full initial training; and the remaining six have a nucleus of regular personnel for care, maintenance and instruction purposes, and are to obtain their officers and men entirely through the County Territorial and Auxiliary Air Force association.

The peace-time stations of the seven special reserve squadrons will be: London (probably Henden aerodrome), Bristol, Belfast, Lincoln and Norwich, and two other stations whose locations have not yet been decided. Aerodromes near Lincoln and Norwich will be ready next summer. At Belfast and Bristol aerodromes are already established.

The six auxiliary squadrons will be stationed in peace time at London, County of London, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Birmingham and at one other station yet to be decided. At all these the aerodromes and barracks are already established.

These barracks for the stations of the auxiliary force will contain social facilities, ect., workshops and instructional halls, so that the greater part of training in the maintenance of aircraft can be given in the centre of a city. While practical flying, of course, will be carried out at the aerodrome, all the ground work and general training can proceed at the town headquarters.

Each squadron requires approximately 200 officers and men, all highly skilled in various technical trades, such as for instance armorers, blacksmiths, carpenter riggers, aero engine fitters, drivers and wireless operators. If the number of applications to join the special reserve squadron at Belfast are any criterion, there will be no lack of recruits.

They are now planning an old English alphabet with forty-eight letters. The stenographers will then have to use both hands at their work instead of using one to powder their noses.

MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

With the exception of Ald. Dicken, who is still on the sick list, Thursday evening's regular council meeting had a full attendance of the city fathers.

Dr. D. Corsan, Medical Health Officer, in a report to the council, stated he was pleased to report that during the eleven months ended Nov. 30, the cty of Fernie had been entirely free from infectious disease, not a single case having been reported during that time.

The Fernie Library Board, Messrs. Martin, Douglas, Pepper, Burns, Harvie and Rewers, appeared before the council and placed before them a lengthy outline of the situation in which the Library is placed, with a request that the council submit a by-law for the city to take over and operate the Library. (The appeal will be found in another column in this issue).

When the delegation had retired, the council discussed the request and decided that providing the necessary petition signed by not less than fifty ratepayers in the city was prsented to them at the next regular meeting, they would prepare the necessary by-law and have it voted on at the next civic elections.

The financial situation of the Fernie Hospital Board was placed before the council by Mayor Irvine and Ald. Tully and a grant of $300 was made to this body.

Ald. Kerr, on behalf of the public works committee, reported that it was necessary to build about 100 feet of river bank protection work to safeguard the septic tanks against high water and recommended that sheet piling, with six feet centres, be used, to cost approximately $1000. As this work had already been authorized, the city clerk was instructed to procure the necessary material and issue instructions to the city engineer to proceed with the construction as early as possible.

The usual formal motions were passed setting the date for civic nomination as Monday, Jan. 11 from 1 to 3 p.m. local time, and polling, if necessary, on Thursday, Jan. 14.

The city clerk reported that an amount of approximately $22,000 was due the sinking fund to bring it up to its required total, and a motion was passed authorizing the transfer of this amount to the sinking fund.

Mayor Irvine and Aldermen Markland and Stewart were appointed as a court of revision to sit in the council chamber on Thursday, Dec. 10 at 8 p.m. to hear any appeals regarding the civic voters' list.

The West Fernie residents request for water and electric light supply again came up for discussion and the following motion was passed regarding the water situation:

"That the application of the residents of West Fernie for a water supply be received and that as a preliminary basis for negotiations, the council tentatively offer to supply water to the residents of West Fernie, subject to the approval of a bylaw which would be submitted to the ratepayers of the City of Fernie on the following terms:

"That the council would deliver water to an eight inch main at the corner of Block 7 in the city for a charge of 50c per month to be paid for every inhabited house in West Fernie.

"That the mains laid must be of cast iron pipe Class C and the system as a whole be subject to the approval of the city engineer during construction.

"That the rate of 50c above men tioned shall continue for 20 years, after which time the residents of West Fernie shall pay the same rates as shall be in force in the city of Fernie at that time.

"That for such time as conditions permit, where roads are passable and hydrants handy, the city will permit its fire brigade to attend fires."

Regarding the street lighting system for West Fernie, the council decided to submit a proposition to establish twenty 100 watt street lights in West Fernie at a cost to every electric light consumer there of 50c per month if lights were used ten hours daily on a yearly average, or if used on a five hour daily average at a cost of 35c per month. A rider was also added to this motion which would give the city authority to discontinue domestic light service to any consumer who refused to pay their portion of the street lighting service.

UPHILL'S MINE REGULATIONS ASSURED OF SUCCESS

Victoria, Nov. 30.—Amendments to the Coal Mines Regulations act introduced by Tom Uphill, Labor member for Fernie and designed to protect the right of mines to select checkweigh men without interference, were assured of passing the house today when Hon. William Sloan, minister of mines announced that he had no objection to them. The Uphill amendments provide stiff penalties for interference with the miners' selection of representatives to check the amount of coal credited to them at the pit head.

ELKS TO HOLD MEMORIAL

The Fernie Elks first Memorial Service will be held in the United Church on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 6, at 3.45. A cordial invitation is extended to the general public to attend this service. LOCAL VETS ENDORSE UNITY

At a mass meeting of the returned soldiers held in the G.W.V.A. headquarters on Wednesday evening, the Fernie veterans unanimously endorsed the formation of a united organization for all veterans in Canada.

The meeting was addressed by Dr. S. Bonnell, who strongly recommended this step, and by Major H. B. Hicks, of Cranbrook, who submitted his report as delegate from East Kootenay to the Unity Convention at Winnipeg. He stated that the organization had been formed under the name of the Canadian Legion of British Empire Service League, and that Sir Percy Lake, of Victoria, had the honor of being elected the first president of the new organization. All veterans associations in Canada, with the possible exception of the Army and Navy Veterans Association, had signified their willingness to enter the Legion.

Without a dissenting voice the local veterans voted to endorse the movement and it is now expected that early next year, probably about March 1, the G.W.V.A. will pass out of existence and the C. L. of B.E.S.L. will take its place.

Victoria.—It has been decided that motor traffic on the new Fraser canyon road shall pay tolls, probably $5, but residents on the road will be exempt. In view of the cost of the road it is thought only right that the people who will use it should make some contribution towards its maintenance, especially as it will be chiefly a tourist highway. The cost of the road so far has been $893,167, and the work is ninety per cent completed.

ASSOCIATION IS DISSOLVED

Members and past members of the Western Canada Coal Operators Associaton decided at a meeting held on Friday at the offices of the association in Calgary to dissolve the association.

This decision brings to a close an organization which has functioned on behalf of many important coal mining operations in Alberta and South-eastern British Columbia for a period of twenty years. Formed in 1905, and originally composed of operators in the Crow's Nest Pass, Lethbridge, Bankhead and Canmore, the membership grew until at its maximum the association included 35 of the largest mines in the province with a maximum annual production of 5,000,000 tons.

The making of individual agreements last summer between members of the association and their employees marked the initial break-up of the association. The men at that time left their union, the United Mine Workers of America, and the operators similiarly left the association. Since that time the association has not been active, and the decision reached on Friday was the natural expected outcome of last summer.

Victoria.— On Tuesday next the Provincial Treasury will do something that has not taken place in Canada for twenty-two years, that is pay off a portion of the public debt with the sinking fund which has been accumulated for that purpose and thus reduce the gross debt by $3,130,000. The last time this occurred in Canada was in 1903, when Prince Edward Island redeemed an issue of debentures. This has been made possible by the policy adopted under the late Minister of Finance, Mr. John Hart, and being continued by his successors, Hon. Dr. MacLean, of establishing sinking funds for all the Province's long-term debt.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY FORMED

About thirty representative citizens and members of the agricultural community surrounding Fernie met in the city hall on Monday night to discuss the formation of an Agricultural Society and the holding of a Fall Fair.

Mayor Irvine occupied the chair and spoke at some length on the crying need for some kind of an institution of this kind to assist in promoting the agricultural interests of this district.

The matter was discussed pro and con at considerable length and it was finally decided to organize. The following officers were then elected:

Hon. Presidents—W. R. Wilson, A. B. Trites, Hon. Dr. J. H. King and Thos. Uphill.

President—Wm. Dicken.

Hon. Vice Presidents—Capt. Barnard, and Harry Lynn.

Vice President—J. R. Charnock.

Secretary—C. Hesketh.

Treasurer—Geo. Quail.

Executive—Thos. Shorthouse, John Payne, Wm. Whalley, John Cunliffe, Bert Sawyer, Rev. W. Burns.

The annual fee was fixed at $1.00, and Bert Sawyer, Arthur Harrison, John Charnock and Thos. Shorthouse were appointed on the membership committee to rustle members.

The secretary was instructed to secure all the necessary data in connection with the further work of organization and the securing of a charter; also to find out what assistance the government rendered in the holding of a fall fair.

The meeting then adjourned.

HOCKEY BOYS ORGANIZE

The City Hockey League held their annual organization meeting in the 150 Gymnasium last Sunday evening, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Joe Chell.

Vice-Pres.—Dr. W. Workman.

Sec.-Treas.—Hugh McLaughlin.

Executive—J. Skilling, J. Jerue, G. Auld, R. Mahandra.

J. T. Hovan made formal application to the league for permission to enter a Coal Co. team in the league this season, and all of last year's clubs signified their intention of entering teams. This will mean a five team league, comprised of Coal Creek, Northerns, 150's, Bluebirds and Coal Company.

A general meeting is being called for next Sunday, Dec. 6, at 7.30 p.m. in the 150 Gym to draw up a schedule of games, etc. All hockey players intending to participate in the league fixtures this season are urged to hand in their names to Secretary McLachlan before or at the meeting so that teams may be picked as early as possible.

It is expected that much better arrangements will be made with the Rink Co. this season, which will do away with the season ticket and ice fee friction which has prevailed during the past few seasons. The pending proposition is that an admission charge of 25c be charged at all City League games and the Rink Co. take a percentage of the gate receipts. The Hockey League will be granted the use of the ice from 6.45 to 8 p.m. for their games and the players will not be required to pay the $2.00 ice fee or hold season tickets for skating.

AFTERMATH OF STRIKE

Twenty-six persons were arraigned in the criminal court, on Monday, before Mr. Justice Boyle, on charges which arose out of the strike at the Drumheller mines last summer.

Eight charged with unlawful assembly to compel certain persons to abstain from working and to compel the Alberta Block Coal Mining Company to abstain from employing any miners not belonging to the U.M.W.A., will be tried Monday afternoon, by t court with a jury. They are: William Kobenca, Pete Mikolosik, Martin Strela, Pete Maloney, George Rudak, Pete Gariuk, C. de Keyser and Joseph Frodle

Seven are charged with watching and besetting the Alberta Block Mine. They are: Cecil Terris, Louis Haner, John Cotton, Andrew Swedish, William Chadderton and Lambert Renners They will probably be tried Tuesday.

Louis McDonald was arraigned on several different charges, among them being assault occasioning actual bodily harm, on W. E. Sherman, former district president of the U. M.W.A. With him also was charged Terris, Louis Fournier, Louis E. Fournier and Louis Haner. They are also accused of asaulting W. E. Sherman, former district president of the U.M.W.A.

Kobenca also is charged with assaulting D. A. McCauley occasioning actual bodily harm, while Cecil Bone and John Marchinowsky are charged with common assault.

Sadie Squires is charged with obstructing one police officer and assaulting another.

William Schwartz and Leon Delhez were each charged with obstructing a police officer

Louis McDonald was further charged with an assault on Inspector J. J. Nicholson, of the Alberta Mounted Police, and another charge of assaulting Robert Brownwell, was laid against him also.

The court will probably be occupied with the trials most of the week.

A motion to quash the indictment against the first eight defendants was dismissed.

A. A. McGillivray, K.C., who with W. R. Sandercock is defending all of the accused, claimed four challenges of the jury in each. After some argument between James Short, K.C., and the defense council, Mr. Justice Boyle adjourned court till 2.30 to give a ruling on the point. Joseph Shaw is associated with Mr. Short in the prosecution.

NEWS WHEN IT IT NEWS

Many observers believe that the Duncan coal commission is laying the foundation for future trouble by its attitude on the question of publicity for its hearings in Cape Breton. A staff of eight shorthand writers is taking and typing daily the most elaborate report in the history of such affairs in Nova Scotia, but the commission refuses to give or sell a copy to individual newspapers or the Canadian Press.

Although the sessions are technically open to the public, reporters are allowed to attend only on condition that they print nothing except the brief official resume given out by the board at the end of each session.

Protests that such a course is neither necessary nor expedient have failed to move the chairman, Sir Andrew Rae Duncan, who evidently does not much understand the temper of the country. The Nova Scotia miners are the most suspicious mortals on earth. Previous commissions have lost the confidence of the men simply because they held one or two closed sessions for the purpose of receiving confidential cost data which the operators held should not be made available to their competitors. From this it is easy to estimate how enthusiastic the miners are going to be over a board that forbids the reporting of a majority of its sessions.

Whatever good reasons Sir Andrew may have for his attitude, it would seem to be important that in this inquiry the facts brought out should have wide publicity. That will only be obtained by making them available as news as they are available. Whatever the custom in England, newspapers in this country will not give much space to information as passed on by the commission in its repo because the public has been educated to getting its news while it is news. —Financial Post.

GROUPS IN PARLIAMENT

Three Rivers Nouvelliste: Workmen and farmers are well-advised to combine, to unite, to associate themselves for the purpose of demanding and defending their interests, but it is a well-worn truth that they can only succeed so long as they stick to their professional ground and abstain from politics. The Labor Party furnishes us with a striking example of this fact. As long as the workmen's associations abstained from politics and had no members in the Manitoba Provincial Parliament, they were courted by political parties and were granted practically every social law which they demanded. The day, when renouncing this line of conduct, they ascended into the arena and sent to the Manitoba Parliament a Labor group, was the last day of their progress. The other parties combined against the Labor group and thenceforward blocked all social legislation.

DISCOVERY OF ULTRA-X-RAYS

Discovery of Ultra-X-Rays, is a hundred times more penetrating than ordinary X-rays, by Dr. R. A. Millikan, of the California Institute of Technology, recent winner of the Nobel prize for physics, is the climax of twenty years of search for the cause of a mysterious radiation, we are told by Watson Davis, managing edior of Science Service, in its Daily Science News Bulletin (Washington). Two physicists, Sir Ernest Rutherford and J. C. McClennan, noticed an unaccountable effect on their electroscopes in 1903, and the Germans tried to determine its cause by high balloon ascensions just before the World War. Dr. Millikan's own researches have extended over a decade. We read:

"To account for the ultra-X-rays, it is necessary to conceive that space is filled with rays of one sort or another traveling in all directions with the speed of light. This, Dr. Millikan says, is 'a conception which is almost too powerful a stimulus to the imagination.

So far, Dr. Millikan has not proposed a name for the newly described radiations, tho some of his colleagues have suggested callng them 'Millikan rays' in his honor. He gives them a purely descriptive name, 'penetrating rays.' Apparently they merit the title, for according to thier discovery they will pass through six feet of solid lead before they are extinguished, whereas the 'hardest' X-rays, up to the present the most penetrating radiations known are stopt completely by half an inch of lead.

"The wave-length of the 'penetrating rays' is almost unimaginably short, being much less than the wave-lengths of the 'hard' X-rays and of gamma rays from radium, the shortest vibrations at present familiar to physicists. The new rays fit on at the top of the known spectrum, and extend it into regions as yet unexplored. At the bottom of the spectrum are the very long waves of low-frequency alternating electric current, and in the zone above them the radio waves, with possible lengths of a mile or more.

"Then, with rapidly diminishing wave-lengths, come the infrared heat rays, below the visible spectrum of light, then the light waves themselves passing out into the ultra-violet radiations above the spectrum. In this region the wave-lengths are short enough to stagger the average person's imagination— ordinary light waves, for example, average around one fifty-thousandth of an inch in length. Above the ultra-violet come the still shorter waves of the X-rays and the gamma rays of radium; and above these, completng the series so far as now known the new 'penetrating rays.'

"Where the rays come from is an unsolved mystery. They enter the highest atmosphere from the depths of outer space being born apparently of the disintegration of atoms or of their transmutation into other elements. Dr. Millikan states that a sufficient energy for the transmutation of elements could be generated, the process would bring forth penetrating rays as a by-product. But inasmuch as the immense energy of ten million volts or more would be necessary for this, he does not regard the prospect of human production of penetrating rays to be very promising."

CONTINUED PROSPERITY

"There can be no possible doubt that British Columbia may confidently look to ever-increasing prosperity; that it is well able to carry the burden of its debt, in fact, more than any other Canadian Province, and that its financial standing is without peer in the Dominion," declared Hon. J. D. MacLean, Minister of Finance, in concluding a review of industrial and commercial conditions in the Province during the course of his Budget address.

"For mining, fisheries, agriculture, lumbering and manufacturing," he said, "British Columbia ranks third among the provinces in gross production, but per head of population it holds the premier position."

Based on a population of 525,582, the Minister declared, British Columbia had a total production of $391,810,734, or an annual per capita return of $74689. The Province of Ontario, its closest competitor, with a total production of $1,838,868,599, showed a per capita return of $626.74.

Hon. Dr. MacLean declared tha capital invested in the Province in productive enterprises totalled $849,926,435, or $1,620.19 for every resident. As a manufacturing province, British Columbia held third place employing 75,000 workers, with an annual payroll of $106,800 and representing a capital investment of $437,963,970.

"Taking into consideration the total number employed in production form forests, mining, fisheries and manufactories, it is found that labor conditions, in so far as wages are concerned are also better in British Columbia than in any other province in Canada," stated the Minister who, continuing, said that there were 119,083 employees in receipt of an annual payroll of $140,874,183, an average of $1,184 for every worker.

"British Columbia's agricultural production per head of population is $114," the Minister said, "and is exceeded only by Prince Edward Island and the three Prairie Provinces." The farm population, he added, numbered 277,020, while the investment in agriculture aggregated $232,618,000.

British Columbia was second in production of commercial apples, he said, the ratio of Dominion production being 34.5 per cent, the apples from this Province securing the highest price. The Province produced 19.25 per cent of Canada's small fruits and vegetables and 18.75 per cent of the livestock of the Dominion, and this despite the fact that only five per cent of the area of the Province was suitable for farming. The value of agricultural products had doubled in ten years, and amounted to $60,029,224. The average wages for farm help amounted to $775 a year, being the highest paid in the Dominion.

British Columbia leads in Canadian fishery production. The total catch for 1923, being the latest available figures, was valued at $20,795,914, constituting 48.8 per cent of the entire production for the Dominion, and having a per capita worth of $39.68. There were 20,758 persons employed in the industry, earning $2,189,002.The capitalized investment amounted to $24,264,357, of which $5,692,462 represented the value of vessels and boats.

In the 271 operating plants and mines of the Province, the Minister said, 11,680 workers were employed, obtaining in salaries and wages $17,121,493. The capital invested totalled in 1924, $109.030,712. In 1924 the production from British Columbia mines was valued at $48,704,604, which represented 24.77 per cent of the total for Canada, and a return of $92.84 for every person in the Province, being the highest per capita production in the Dominion. This year, the Minister said, it was estimated that mineral production would approximate $60,000,000.

production would appro ximate

"British Columbia takes first place in Dominion production of copper, lead and zinc," said the Minister, "and second in gold and silver; third in coal. The total output of zinc is in British Columbia and fifteen-sixteenths of the entire lead production of the Dominion, is to be credited to his Province."

The premier position among the provinces was claimed by Hon. Dr. MacLean in respect to the output of the forests, the value of which amounted to more than half of the total for Canada. In 1923, the worth of forestry products of Britsh Columbia was $71,656,000, being $134.68 for every resident. There are 237 mills in operation, giving employment to 11,645 workers, who enjoyed a payroll of $14,763,688. Capital invested in the industry amounted to $46,051,396. These figures he explained, related only to the valuation in respect to the primary forest production; they included pulpwood production, but not the pulp and paper industry.

MENTAL DISEASE

Civilization's many wonders appar- From a statement appearing in the Speech at the opening of the present session of the Legislature, it seems that the Government is alarmed about the growth of mental cases in British Columbia. We wonder what, if any, is the solution that is going to be proposed. If it is merely the provision of more hospital accommodation for those who have been certified as hospital cases, it does not seem that much will have been accomplished. What is wrong undoubtedly is incomplete instruction in early mental trouble. What facilities are available in British Columbia for the treatment of early mental cases, and what facilities exist for the instruction in mental disorders of students and nurses? The doctors we know are alive to the importance of studying mental disorders, but, governmentally, there is apathy.

In Britain the National Council for Mental Hygiene has just issued its annual report, and its findings probably apply just as much to British Columbia as they do to Britain for mental disorders are widespread, and not due to locality or climate, but to civilization itself. That report says that, "so far as the great majority of the population is concerned, there are no facilities for treatment worth speaking of, and practically nothing is done to relieve the great suffering which is associated with mental disorder until such time as the patient becomes certifiable and is sent to a mental hospital." It is further contended that the mental nurse receives a very inadequate training and one "wofully below even the minimum which is desirable." Lord Birkenhead in comenting on the report said the idea of waiting till disease has reached a severe and perhaps incurable stage before attempting its treatment is grotesque.

The enthusiasm and energy which is infused into the fight against physical disease extends but a small way in the domain of mental disease, which is regarded as the work of specialists. Those who have studied the question in Britain believe there can be no betterment in the situation until students are brought into contact with early disease and instructed by teachers who are familiar with the signs and symptoms. In other words, the mental hospitals of today do not occupy the place they should rationally for the prevention and cure of mental afflictions. It is significant that Sir Maurce Craig, who has possbly studied the subject more than anyone else, expresses the belief that the vast amount of the mental disorders which fills the mental hospitals today is preventible. British Columbia can learn something of what knowledge asd experience can do in coping with mental disease, and this is the angle from which a select committee of Legislature should work when it is investigating the subject of the increase in the number of patients in this Province.—Colonist.

AS OTHERS SEE US

"In all that vast area, there is no real room for a pessimist."

Such is the considered opinion regarding Canada—her resources, her achievements and her possibilities—expressed in Labor, the newspaper owned and edited by the Railroad Workers of America. Labor is published in Washington, D.C., and is the official organ of all the recognized standard railroad labor organizations of the United States—of the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, the Order of Railroad Conductors, the International Brotherhoods of Machinists, Electrical Workers, Blacksmiths, the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, the Maintenance of Way Employees—in fact, of the workers of the American transportation lines from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The publication numbers its readers by hundreds of thousands in the United States and Canada, and its utterances carry corresponding weight and influence. A pronouncenment by it is necessarily conservative, as it must receive the approval of the leaders of the various organizations who constitute its Board of Directors—men who in the discharge of their duties acquire first-hand knowledge of the progress being made in every part of the American Continent.

In the editorial leading article which features its last issue Labor turns its attention to "our great Northern neighbor," and in pointing to the achievements of Canada has something to say that might well put to shame those among our own people who, from fear or ignorance, indulge in detraction of the Dominion. It refers to Canada as having reached the position of one of the leading granaries of the world, and dwells, in its "Story of Canadian Wheat," an the resolution and energy which transformed the barrenness of the prairies into fields of vast productiveness; on the discovery of Marquis wheat, which enabled the farmers to outspeed the frosts and garner the most perfect harvests in the world; and on the development of Garnet wheat, which enormously extended the outlook for the annual yield by making great northern areas adaptable for crops.

But the tremendous progress made in the production of cereals is not the only feature in the Dominion's material advance which wins the approval of Labor. "The Government of Canada," it says, "is running the biggest single railroad system in the world, and is beginning to make a financial success of it. It is managing its own merchant marine. The Province of Ontario is developing its water power by public action for the benefit of all the people, and visitors are coming from distant lands to see how it is done. Canada has Government telegraphs and a Government radio. Its farmers are successfully handling a gigantic "wheat pool," this ensuring better prices, and are talking about a "flour pool" to mill their wheat and supply the finished product to a hungry world."

How different from the timid opinion presented by many of our own public men and industrial leaders is this estimate of what has been accomplished in the Dominion and of what promises to be accomplished in the near future. It would seem as if, in order to obtain a view of the Dominion in the right perspective, it is necessary to go abroad for information regarding Canada. The fact is that in no country in the world today is wealth so evenly distributed, the prospect for the ordinary man so attractive, or the future of the inhabitants so assured as in Canada. If her people will but be true to her and her destiny, nothing can impede her progress or prevent her attaining her goal as a great and prosperous nation.—Toronto Globe.

The Grain Growers' Guide expresses the hope that in return for the votes of the Progressives to sustain his Government in power Mr. Mackenzie King may reasonably be expected to build at least a few miles of the Hudson Bay Railway. To bring about this aim of the grain growers it would be necessary for the Quebec Liberal members to vote en bloc for the expenditure that would be involved. The Grain Growers' Guide does not anticipate any opposition to the project from the Quebec Liberals. Neither, apparently, does it expect any opposition from Quebec in its advocacy of further reductions in the tariff. The Guide is not shrewd in interpreting Canada's verdict in the late election.

PARIS URGED TO STUDY THE CAUSES OF HER MANY STREET ACCIDENTS

Paris has been advised to establish a sort of Pasteur Institute or laboratory for the discovery of the causes of street collisions. In it would be kept the detailed records of every street accident, and these would be analyzed and classified in an endeavor to find out the main reasons for the alarming frequency of such mishaps and to indicate means of prevention.

It is predicted that until some scientific form of study is substituted for superficial inquiries, accidents will multiply in proportion to the increase in driving licenses. "'For instance," says Louis Forest, of The Matin, who originated the suggestion, "when a driver explains an accident in court by saying that 'the steering gear was broken,' the car didn't obey the wheel,' why does no one find out whether he ever oiled or greased his machine, whether he kept it clean, or whether he simply wore it out by his own carelessness?

"We know from statistics that thirty per cent of the serious accidents occur at street corners in towns and at crossroads in the country. Yet we go on, year after year, making our street corners and our road and level crossings in the same old way, according to the same old pattern. Something could certainly be done. Accidents ought not to be left to chance and then lamented over. They ought to be prevented.

Tide of Christmas Traffic Flows East

1.—Typical Christmas scene in Montreal. 2.—Finish of Eastern Dog Derby in Quebec. 3.—Riding and Ski-ing in Winter.

Ever since that time, some years ago now, when the West was discovered by the East as the most likely place to amass a fortune in the briefest possible time, and the simple words, "Go West, young man!" were the best advice a parent could give a son; well, ever since that time, the young man who heeded the advice has been coming back East at least once a year, and that once is generally Christmas.

Perhaps the young man has amassed no great fortune; perhaps he has; and perhaps again he has fared rather ill; but in any event he usually finds that as Christmas draws near, recollections of his childhood, his Christmas stocking, the tree at home, the plum-pudding or the turkey and cranberries, constitute too powerful a memory to negate. And because these recollections are so potent, transportation companies operate special services to handle what they call the Christmas traffic.

This year the crop has been extremely good; money will be more free in the West than for some time past. The season's work is done and the Westerner will have lots of time on his hands. If he has few financial worries he may spend quite some time in the East; there is much to attract him. There is the social life in the big hotels, where all is luxurious comfort; winter sports such as hockey, skiing, skating, sleigh riding and tobogganing to indulge in, or to watch, if he so prefers, the round of the theatres to make, where he will hear the tunes that will be popular for the year, or see the plays that will be discussed at most civilized dinner tables; and if he has brought friend wife, there are the shops to visit, though many a man has found this a costly pastime, more so perhaps, than poker or the races.

However, from every angle, the season in the East is rich and pleasant. That side of the continent is a magnet for holiday seekers and it is at that particular time that the ancient provinces reclaim their sons, if only for the briefest of visits. This year it will have visitors galore.

The Canadian Pacific Railway announce that many inquiries and requests for reservations have already been made at their agencies throughout western Canada. This would indicate the likelihood of a huge volume of traffic moving in an easterly direction this December. A portion of it will no doubt move straight through to the British Isles and the Continent, as many settlers are originally from those places. The Canadian Pacific will run special trains from all western centres, connecting directly with their Atlantic liners, sailing from the winter port of Saint John, N.B., to all the larger ports in northern Europe.

But the great portion of the traffic will be pointed for Eastern Canada and the company will facilitate its movement by offering special train services and special tourist cars that will obviate the necessity of change at any point along the route, and further than this, special excursion rates will be given. These conditions will prevail from December 5th to January 5th, and will be effective from all stations in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

COURT OF REVISION

CIVIC VOTERS' LIST

Public Notice is hereby given that the Annual Court of Revision for the purpose of Revising and Correcting the Municipal Voters' List of the City of Fernie for the year 1926 will be held in the Council Chamber at the City Hall, Fernie, B.C., on Thursday, the 10th day of December, A.D. 1925, at the hour of 8.00 p.m.

Arthur J. Moffatt,
City Clerk.

Dated at Fernie this 19th day of November, A.D. 1925. N20-3

The formation of an Agricultural Society for Fernie and district is certainly a step in the right direction. This district possesses some of the most fertile land in the province and its growing list of farmers are just beginning to realize the possibilities for the production of all kinds of vegetables and farm produce. With the holding of a fall fair each year, this production would be stimulated and helped to a degree that would be almost impossible to estimate. From Crow's Nest to the International Boundary there are thousands of acres of the most fertile land in the province lying idle, and with the advertising a fall fair would give the district the best of this land would in a short time be under cultivation. It is to be sincerely hoped that the new organization will not rest in its efforts until it has put Fernie on the map as a live farming centre.

* * * * * *

At last an initial move along the right lines has been inaugurated to secure a public library for the city of Fernie. A representative committee of citizens has put the matter up to the city council asking them to submit a bylaw to the ratepayers for this purpose. Every town in the country has its municipally owned and municipally supplied public library and why should Fernie be poking along with its little private library. A petition will shortly be circulated among the ratepayers of the city asking the council to submit this bylaw, and it should be signed by everybody.

Victoria.—A large group of Washington state legislators, headed by Lieutenant-Governor Johnson, presiding officer of the senate, and Speaker Danskin, of the assembly, paid a friendly visit to the legislature of British Columbia on Thursday and Friday last. They were received at the boat by Speaker Buckham, Premier Oliver and Mr. Pooley, leader of the opposition. At the afternoon session of the House leading members of the visiting chambers were accommodated with seats on the floor and the others in the galleries. Here they had an opportunity of seeing how a British legislature is conducted, the business of the day being arranged to let them get a general idea, and in addition they heard the budget speech delivered.

FERNIE OPTICAL PARLORS

J. & F. Block. FERNIE, B.C

LIBRARY BYLAW IS REQUESTED

To His Worship the Mayor and gentlemen of the Aldermanic Board of the City of Fernie:

The Board of Management of the Fernie Public Library respectfully submits to you the following report, recommendations, and suggested budget for your consideration, with a request that you cause to be placed before the rate-payers, at the next municipal elections, for their approval or otherwise, such by-laws as are necessary to authorize the Municipal Council taking over and managing the Public Library.

Reasons for the request:

The Library, like the schools, is a municipal asset, and like them, should be free.

The Library should exist for the benefit of the community as a whole.

The Library should contain the latest reference books, the newest fiction and a plentiful supply of the best magazines and newspapers.

The Library should be housed in quarters of sufficient size to contain both a lending department and a reading room.

The Library should be open from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. daily to provide convenient hours for its use by all sections of the community.

The Library should be sufficiently large and satisfactorily situated to attract the people generally.

The Library should be in the hands of capable managers, chosen because of their interest in the community.

The Library should be an attractive place.

The Library should own a plentiful supply of new books as its own property.

The Library should be in charge of an efficient librarian, who should be on duty whenever the library is open. In this regard it is suggested that if possible a returned soldier be engaged for this work.

Practically every city of any size has a municipal library. Nelson, Cranbrook, Nanaimo, Kamloops, New Westminster, Victoria and Vancouver are among the cities in B.C. which own such libraries.

Fernie has an extra claim. There is no place where the young people may spend their spare time, and the reading room would offer such a place.

If the right books were obtained the Library would soon have a very large membership and the city would be the richer because its people were readers.

The present board is not attempting to transfer its responsibility, but will be willing to give greater attention to the functioning of a larger and better library.

Method of obtaining books:

1. From the Provincial Library as in the past. In this regard the Library Board should submit regularly to the Provincial Library authorities lists of books they rejuire in each shipment.

2. By purchase — The Library Board would take steps to raise funds by entertainments, donations, etc., for the purchase of new books each year, and so avail themselves of the $200 grant annually available from the Library Commission.

3. By donation — Through constant personal appeal to book lovers to make suitable book donations to the Library.

Recommended method of financing:

The present "hit and miss" method of financing the Library is unsound.

1. That a bylaw be submitted to the ratepayers at the next municipal election in January, 1926, in accordance with the statutory requirements of the province, requesting authority by the municipal council to take over the Library and levy an annual tax of one mill on property owners.

2. As the amount of the Road Tax is fixed by the provincial government, the non-property owners be charged the sum of $1.00 per year if they desire to use the Library, provided this would be in agreement with the statutes, which say that a municipal library must be a free library.

3. That a system of fines be instituted when books are kept beyond the tuted when books are kept beyond the stated time by members of the Library.

Suggested budget for 1926—

Librarian's salary	$600.00
Janitor Work	120.00
Rent	600.00
Electric Light	75.00
Repairs, etc.	100.00
Supplies and Stationery	100.00
Freight on loaned books	100.00
	$1695.00

Victoria.—The salmon pack of 1925 has been a big one, and is a close second to last year, which established a record in the history of the industry. The pack amounts to 1,612,962 cases, which is only 134,543 cases below 1924. The sockeye pack has been growing for the last few years, being 378,-[illegible] cases this year, 369,301 cases last year and 334,647 cases in 1923. The pack of springs jumped up this year to 65,120 cases from 27,792 last year. Cohoes and chums are below last year's level.

The drug stores are now closing at 6 p.m., and while it will be quite an inconvenience to a lot of citizens, in the long run it should be a great relief to the drug store proprietors and their clerks to be able to get out and have the evenings to themselves. The life of the average druggist, who works from 8 o'clock in the morning till 10 or 11 at night is hardly worth living. He does not have as much freedom as the darkie had in slavery days. The public will soon get in the habit of making their purchases in the regular daily business hours.

On Saturday evening W. W. Grant, Ltd., of Calgary, broadcasted the news that R. M. E. S. Whiteside, who referred to the very excellent services rendered by Mr. Young during the time he had been commissioner. The operators expressed their best wishes for Mr. Young's future as general manager of the Canmore Coal Co.

MUSSOLINI AS DICTATOR

Unless press correspondents, who have no love for Mussolini, exaggerate the situation, that individual has succeeded in creating for hmself a dictatorship more absolute than anything that has been known since the doctrine of the divine right of kings was abandoned. Even the arch exponent of that theory, King James the First of England, never went so far in putting absolutism into practice as has the former socialist, Mussolini. The old theory was that a monarch was responsible to God alone. Mussolini does not make that claim, possibly because he does not believe in God. He says he is responsible only to the King of Italy, but he makes it fairly clear that if His Majesty fails to do what he tells him his crown will not be in his possession very long. Thus the de facto monarch is Mussolini. The last vestige of the pretence that the Italian government is responsible to the Italian parliment has been candidly wiped out; and Mussolini will appoint ministers who will continue to hold office with or without the consent of the assembly or the electorate. Control of the press, already well under way, has been carried to a point where it will be worse that lese majeste to criticise the administration. Control of the courts to inflict or withhold such punishments as the government approves or disapproves is a part of the new system. A committee has even been appointed to decree what books shall or shall not be published. Of course this form of tyranny is futlie; a secret press will arise in Italy as it always does everywhere when censorship is extreme, more potent than a press that is accorded freedom. The Germans had experience of this during their occupation of Belgium.

From our point of view Mussolini appears to be a madman, but there is no sayng what a statesman can get away with in Italy. The idea of a central government to which all the people owe allegiance, familiar to us for a thousand years, is but fifty-five years old in modern Italy, which had a very long experience of small local and mutually antagonistic dictatorships. What would be repugnant to political teaching as to liberty of the subject and responsibility of governments, which is part of the Anglo-Saxon heritage, means nothing to millions of Italians. They perhaps believe that if they are to have a central government at all, it should be of the strongest and most sweeping character. Time alone will tell! In the meantime Mussolini ranks as the most extreme reactionary in modern history. Even Lenin who exercised and abused absolute powers made the pretence that he was responsible to a great general council.— Saturday Night.

ROYAL CROWN IS REPAIRED

After resting in the vaults of the archives of Hawaii since 1905 in more or less of a battered condition, the crown of Hawaii, last worn by King Kalakaua, has been restored to beauty. Last January the commissioners of the archives broke the seals on the leather case containing the royal headpiece and examined the contents. They found that the crown was badly battered and twisted and that several of its beautiful gems had been removed. Tracing back records, it was found that in 1893, after the overthrow of the monarchy, a man named Ryan, a regular in the enlisted forces of the new Government, had discovered the leather case in a room attached to that of the former Royal Chamberlain. He broke the lock and stripped the crown of many of its gems.

According to the history of the case, the largest diamond was sent by Ryan to a woman friend in Missouri. It was later recovered by the Attorney General of Hawaii through the Attorney General of Missouri. The theft remained a mystery for some time, until detectives found a paper containing $2,500 worth of diamonds in Ryan's room. A story was afterward current that Ryan had used some of the jewels as stakes in "seven-come-eleven." Ryan was arrested, tried and convicted. He later escaped from prison, but was recaptured and deported.

The 1925 Territorial Legislature appropriated $350 for the restoration of the crown. This has been done with "synthetic" gems, but nevertheless the former beauty and glory of it seems to have returned. After a public exhibition of the crown in a Honolulu jeweler's window it was again placed in the Archives Building on the capitol grounds.

"If I only had your lovely skin, Alice!"

"Mine is so bad, not even rouge and powder do any good. But anyone would think you had just got back from vacation. What's the secret?"

"Why, Madge, there's no secret. I would have told you long ago but I felt I couldn't speak of it until you asked me. My doctor told me that constipation was the cause of most skin troubles. Poisons from the waste matter are picked up by the blood and carried to all parts of the body, especially the skin. They were ruining my skin, too, until he prescribed Nujol for me. Nujol stopped the constipation and my complexion began to improve right away. Try it for a week or two and see."

Don't Refuse the Beauty Aid Nujol Will Give

No one needs to have a sallow, muddy complexion. The cause is simple, the remedy is in your own hands. Proper diet, exercise, surface cleanliness and—above all—internal cleanliness. Nujol prevents the formation of intestinal poisons that ruin your health and complexion.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. Nujol simply makes up for a deficiency—temporary or chronic—in the supply of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular elimination, without overtaxing the intestinal muscles.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. To insure internal cleanliness it should be taken regularly in accordance with the directions on each bottle. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

Start taking Nujol today. Very soon you will notice an improvement in your looks. And you can look forward to the beauty and attractiveness that are the natural right of every woman.

VISCOUNT GREY SUMS UP

The life of European civilization will depend upon whether a wiser and more instructed spirits prevails now than before the experience of the Great War, according to Viscount Grey of Falloden, in summing up his story of the years from 1892 to 1916. If this wiser spirit does not prevail, he predicts that our present civilization will perish, as others have done before it, and the future progress of mankind will "depend on the rise of something new, some human agency outside Europe, and perhaps not of European race." If however, such a spirit does exist, he declares that then some things that have hitherto been unattainable aspirations, may, and indeed will be, accomplished. In his memoirs entitled "Twenty-five Years" (Stokes), he continues as follows:

"Rightly considered, this will not lead to the conclusion that under no circumstances are nations to use force. The internal peace of every country depends upon the knowledge that force is available to uphold that law. The greater the consensus of opinion in any country that force should be used for this purpose, the less occasion there will be for the use of force, and the more settled and sure will be the internal peace of that country. So it is with the community of nations. Only a general consensus of opinion not to be lawless, and to prevent any nation from being lawless, will insure world peace. No great country will contribute anything to that peace by saying that there is no principle whatever for which it will stand up, if need be, by the use of force.

"There will be no secure peace till the great nations of the world have a consensus of opinion among them sufficient to inspire confidence that they will stand by each other to avoid, to suppress, or to localize and insulate war. People in Britain, and even more in the Dominions, are as yet somewhat shy of defining exactly what obligation, or pledge, they have undertaken by signing the Covenant of the League of Nations. The United States have hitherto declined to give any pledge or undertake any obligation. Governments can not go ahead of public opinion, and public opinion is not as yet decisive, but here and elsewhere it is not indifferent. This is good, for indifference is the only state that is incompatible with hope."

The public mind is much exercised by a desire to restrict armaments, Lord Grey goes on to say, and it seems to be understanding that competition in armament does not lead to security. He points out then that the next stage is for it to realize that "only a sense of security will prevent growth of armaments," and when this stage is reached, the public will be unmistakably face to face with the "problem of how to produce this essential feeling of security." To solve this problem, he adds, will require the concentrated effort of all the great nations in concert, and if this is to be forthcoming, it will be necessary for them to understand that the solution of this problem is the supreme need of civilized mankind. In his view—

"The most effective change would be that nations should dislike each other a litle less, and like each other a little more. but this aspect takes us into regions of moral or religious speculation. Nations can not help disliking what they do not understand.

"Yet it should be possible for them, after the last war, to find at least one common ground on which they should come together in confident understanding: an agreement that, in disputes between them, war must be ruled out as a menas of settlement that entails ruin; that between nations, as between individuals, the risk involved in settlement by law or arbitration is preferable to the disaster of force. 'Learn, or perish, is the rule for nations as for individuals: by evident necessity, tho the justice of it may seem inscrutable, one nation or one individual can not be saved by separate virtue. A wise individual can not escape being involved in misfortunes of his country-men; one nation may learn, but may yet be involved in the misfortunes of a Continent that does not learn."

The immediate responsibility for exploring what is possible, for iniating and giving the tone to new European policy, Lord Grey declares, rest rather with the Allies, who were victors, than with Germany. It is for them to make the new start in the better way, he contends, and to give Germany her chance of joining in it. The lesson of European history is plain, he goes on to say, and tells us:

"It is that no enduring security can be found in competing armaments and in separate alliances; there is no security for any Power unless it be a security in which its neighbors have an equal share.

"All this, it may be objected, is so obvious as to be common-place—something of which nations must all have been aware for many generations, tho they have not acted on it. The fact that, tho possessing this knowledge, they have not hitherto acted upon it, is represented as proof that they can not and will never do so. We are therefore invited to discard such reflections as are made in this chapter as being counsels of perfection, which could be of no use in practical politics.

"This line of argument is, in effect, based on the assumption that nations are incapable of learning by experience. There is much in history that supports this view, but the tendency to pessimistic acceptance of it is checked by the reflection that man has, in fact, ascended from savagery to civilization and that this ascent has been possible only because men, individually and collectively, have been capable of learning by experience. The Great War has been the most tremendous experience in the history of civilized man, and the assumption that he has learned nothing from it except to prepare for and to make another war is unreasonable. It is not in accord with his past progress. It can only be true if he has ceased to learn, and, if that be so, he will not only cease to progress, but will dwindle and decay; for he can not be stationary."

Lord Grey also remarks that people may say with truth that Germany, by forcing the pace in military and naval armaments, was more than any one else responsible for the evil state of affairs preceding the war, and he charges that Germany's policy of exclusive alliances and armaments after 1870 produced this result. If the Allies, he goes on to say, pursue the same policy that Germany pursued after 1870, the same untoward consequences will follow. Allied exclusive alliances and armaments will produce counter-combinations and armaments— a German-Russian alliance, this time, instead of a Franco-Russian.

AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

President and General Manager Imperial Bank of Canada review Canadian Business Conditions at Annual Meeting of Shareholders.

BANK'S STRONG POSITION

Mr. Peleg Howland, the President, in his address said in part:—This country has again been blessed with a bountiful harvest; the production of grains much exceeding as far as the Western Provinces are concerned that of last year. In the older Provinces the returns will be equally as good as last year; in some fruit sections better perhaps, in dollars and cents.

Manufacturing and trading generally, it is anticipated, will show somewhat better returns than last year, partly through economies and greater efficiency and partly through somewhat increased turnover. The necessity for economy is showing itself in the extension of the chain store system, in syndicate buying and in the tendency to merge on the part of both traders and manufacturers.

Our Commercial Affairs

Our foreign trade increases—our exports growing in greater proportion than our imports with a large balance in our favor, maintaining the Canadian dollar at a premium in New York. Altogether, there has been recently considerable improvement in our commercial affairs, and I think that we may count with reasonable confidence on its continuation for some time, though it must be remembered that a portion of the activity comes from expenditure of the Dominion, Provincial and municipal Governments, on the wants, not needs, of transportation, education, administration and philanthropy—for which we are running into debt—and that our taxation has not been lessened in any direction, but, on the contrary must increase.

The Business Tax

Assessment values of Real Property and Buildings are very high. The business tax, too, has increased with the increase in Assessments. Very high rentals must be obtained on business properties in order to pay the regular tax, the business tax, local improvement taxes, insurance, depreciation, and a reasonable interest return on even their assessed values. These increased rentals must be recovered from some source, or business collapses. I wish it were possible to make all voters realize that they must help to pay these increases in the price paid for goods or services, and that all might join in urging that our affairs be so managed that we may not be further burdened directly by increased rates or indirectly by increased assessments. Surely, we can wait for widened streets, new bridges or subways, and what-not, until we are better able to bear the burdens they impose.

Our Railway Problem

It is of the utmost importance that our Railway problem be solved; that a period be put to the increase in the Country's obligations caused by the expenditure on the Government Road and the deficits for its operation. How can we hope that desirable immigrants will voluntarily seek us out if our burdens are not becoming lighter, or that new enterprises will be established or satisfactory development undertaken if Sales and Profit Taxes give promise of indefinite continuation. Are we not paying altogether too much for our experiment in Government ownership?

Why not get rid of the Road, if a purchaser can be found for it, on a basis that would give a reasonable chance in the future to the buyer and thus peg our loss? Once the country can show a surplus in its revenue, that is real, new heart will be put into the whole community. What defence is there for Public Ownership, if it does not pay? There is no magic about it. There is no inherent benefit irrespective of results.

Substantial Improvement

The General Manager, Mr. A. E. Phipps said in part:—It is most gratifying to call your attention to the fact that the statement before you today shows a substantial improvement in every particular. It is noteworthy that the deposits which fell in 1924 to a total of $88,000,000 have reached the substantial total of $96,000,000. Total assets which shrank during the period of readjustment to $115,000,000 have again risen until they are now practically $125,000,000, while the profits are some $55,000 in excess of last year.

The profits of the year amounted to $1,162,148.73, compared with $1,107,889.99 last year, and after making the customary deductions for dividend, bonus, Guarantee and Pension Fund and setting aside $150,000 required for taxes, there is left to be carried over to the next account $1,098,871.92, compared with $1,039,223.19 last year.

A satisfactory feature of our deposit business is that, notwithstanding the closing of a number of unprofitable branches as mentioned in the Report, the number of depositors of the Bank is not less, but shows some increase.

Our total cash holdings are $26,338,271, compared with $27,153,070 a year ago. This equals 24.16 per cent. of our liabilities to the public which is a very high percentage.

Dominion and Provincial Securities

Investments of the first grade, consisting of Dominion and Provincial Government securities, etc., Canadian municipal securities, and items of that character total $21,918,609. Call Loans in New York are $5,000,000 and our Call Loans in Canada are $6,563,093, a total increase in those three classes of investments of $8,211,389. If we add these to our cash holdings, we get a total of $59,819,964 equal to 55¾ per cent. of our total liabilities to the public, and if we include our loans to Provincial Governments and to Municipal Corporations, $6,509,634, which are very high-class assets, the total is $66,875,829, and the percentage is 61½ per cent., compared with 58½ per cent. last year, which in turn was the highest for a number of years.

Current loans are $50,225,800 compared with $49,356,226—an increase of slightly under $1,000,000. It will be noted that the position of the Bank is exceedingly favorable for taking on desirable commercial loans as soon as renewed business activity brings about a demand for that class of accommodation.

An Interesting Comparison

The following comparisons taken from the Government Return of Chartered Banks for September 1924 compared with the returns for September 1925 are interesting. Total Assets all Banks increased one hundred and forty-six millions, or 5.4 per cent; Imperial Bank increased twelve and a half millions, or 11.1 per cent. Current Accounts all Banks increased ninety-two and a half millions, or 18.6 per cent.; Imperial Bank increased $5,400,000 or 22 per cent. Savings Deposits all Banks increased ninety-one millions, or 7.8 per cent; Imperial Bank $6,100,000, or 10.8 per cent. Current Loans in Canada all Banks decreased fifty-three millions, or 5.5 per cent. decrease; Imperial Bank increased $713,000 or .14 per cent. Circulation all Banks increased four millions or 2.3 per cent.; Imperial Bank $250,000, or .25 per cent.

Business Gradually Improves

Last year and the year before I remarked that conditions were gradually improving and, though business conditions still leave a good deal to be desired, it would seem possible that better times are not far away.

The position of the agriculturist has greatly improved in the last two or three years. The mining of precious metals is improving steadily under favourable conditions. The water-powers of the country are being steadily developed, with a consequent increase in business activity particularly in the production of pulp and paper, which has become a very important industry, and is continually growing so much that Canada is now running neck and neck with the United States of America for the position of the greatest producers of newsprint in the world. Exchanges with London and New York have returned to practically parity.

Caution Still Necessary

The Banking situation has been cleared up, and the losses due to deflation pretty well liquidated or absorbed, and, although there is still need for caution and difficulties will undoubtedly confront bankers and profits will still be hard to get, there is reason to hope that these difficulties will be substantially less than for the last few years. The unsatisfactory features, of course, are that business is still oppressed by heavy and in some cases hampering taxation. The flour milling industry, the lumber industry and some branches of iron and steel production are suffering from lack of turnover and heavy overhead expenses, and we still have the railway situation to face, but on the whole the outlook might be very much worse It is our policy to go on as we have been, not contemplating alliances, but attending to our own business with the best care we can give it for the purpose of rendering service to our clients and obtaining satisfactory results for our shareholders, and I have no reason to suppose that we will not be able to continue to achieve a reasonable measure of success.

EMMA GOLDMAN IN NEW GUISE

The once famous feminine anarchist, Emma Goldman, has re-appeared in a new guise. It will be remembered that a few years ago the United States gratified her desire to live under bolshevistic rule by deporting her to her native land of Rusia. During the two decades or more when she was busy railing against capital in the United States she had neglected the formula of becoming a naturalized American, and had no redress when told that she must go home and be a bolshevik—in the natural habitat of such theorists. A year or so of practical experience of Leninism convinced her the system she had lauded as one designed for the emancipation of the human race was a tyranny worse than slavery. She developed a sudden yearning for liberty of the American brand, but the United States barred her out. It had had an overdose of Emma's speeches. At last she turned to the country which has always been the refuge of people rejected of governments elsewhere—Great Britain. There she found a resting place, but probably she was told that she had best stop making speeches demanding the overthrow of the capitalistic system.

Miss Goldman seems to have taken this advice, and nothing has been heard of her until quite recently. The once perfervid anarchist emerges in a most peaceful and amiable capacity, something like the Hon. Vincent Massey—a critic and connoisseur of dramatic art. She was one of the chief speakers at the autumn conference of the British Drama League, held in Birmingham. Her remarks were sane, —a plea for the more intelligent performance of foreign drama. During her residence in London she said she had seen several Russian plays inadequately presented. Thus a leading dramatist had said that all foreign plays, including those of Tchekov, were freakish. Her comment on this was that the productions were certainly freakish and she urged on the Drama League to use its influence to induce theatrical producers to really study the dramas they essayed to present, and inform themselves as to the life they depicted.

It must have been an unique experience for Miss Goldman to find everyone in agreement with her. If she will confine herself to dramatic criticism her troubles may be said to be over, and she will have the privilege of enjoying a peaceful old age.—Saturday Night.

THE FRENCH IN THE WEST

Edmonton L'Union: Our best friends out here are the English-speaking Protestants. At Edmonton particularly instead of assisting us to interpret the text of the School Law, favoring to the French language, in its widest sense, the English-speaking Catholics have interpreted it in the narrowest sense possible, with the result that, konwing English better than French, our Catholic children have stuffed their heads full of Protestant or irreligious books and American magazines which, almost always, undermine the fundamentals of morality, exalting the brute force of muscle, praising material success, and setting up as models for youth money-makers and movie actresses. For our part, we would rather remain "a hundred years behind the times" and continue our own history.

Here and There

Basking in brilliant autumn sunshine, the coast of British Columbia offers a striking contrast to the severe winter weather already making itself felt in other parts of Canada. On the Coast, golf courses are crowded, the ocean is dotted with figures of bathers taking their daily dip, and pleasure craft still ply the waters.

One hundred thousand dollars' worth of Black Fox puppies were shipped to Antwerp on the Canadian Pacific liner "Melita" recently. In specially built cages they will be conveyed by the Dominion Express across Europe to the farm in Switzerland where they will form the nucleus of a fox-breeding establishment.

Another instance of foolhardiness. A recent report from Hull is to the effect that an automobile, travelling at high speed, crashed through both gates at the Chelsea Road level crossing just as they were being lowered to stop traffic so that a light engine should pass. The automobile smashed its way over the tracks barely two feet ahead of the locomotive.

Arthur Edward Shave, in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway since August 18, 1908, when he was appointed clerk in the office of the Treasurer, has been appointed assistant treasurer of the company. Mr. Shave became assistant chief clerk in the office of the Treasurer in 1915 and was promoted Chief Clerk in 1919.

The apple is a typical Canadian fruit and among the finest grown in the Dominion. It is incomparable as a Christmas gift for friends and relatives in Great Britain. In order to facilitate shipments, the Dominion Express Company are offering special rates. Standard boxes containing about 150 and standard barrels holding about 375 will be sent from Quebec or Montreal up to the close of navigation to any station on a railroad in Great Britain or Ireland at a cost of $3 and $6, respectively.

The bathing beach beauty seldom fails to find her place in the sun.

THE MOONS OF MARS

Dean Swift's prediction of the discovery of the moon of Mars is often referred to with wonder. According to Roscoe Lamont, writing in Popular Astronomy (Northfield, Minn.), it was not so very remarkable after all. The author of "Gulliver's Travels," published in 1726, relates therein that the astronomers of Laputa had discovered that Mars has two moons, the inner one revolving about the planet in 10 hours and the outer one in 21½ hours; no such bodies being known to the astronomers of this earth until 1877, when Professor Hall at the Washington Observatory discovered the two moons; the inner one being found to revolve in 7 hours 39 minutes and the outer one in 30 hours 18 minutes. Exclamations such as "Marvelous!" "Was Swift a Wizard?" "A Second Mother Shipton!" led Mr. Lamont to make a little inquiry into the matter with the following result:

"After Galileo discovered four satellites of Jupiter in 1610, Kepler stated that probably Venus, Mars and Saturn as well as the earth and Jupiter, had moons revolving about them. As the earth has one moon and Jupiter was found to have four, wo would be about the right number for Mars, and it is no strange if the astronomers of Laputa, about 1726, discovered the two moons.

"The reason why Swift took the distances of the moons from the center of Mars as 3 and 5 times the planet's diameter was probably this: He had read in David Gregory's astronomy, published in 1713, the following about Jupiter's satellites: 'Jupiter has four; the innermost of which revolves about semi-diameters of Jupiter from his in 1¼ of a day, at the distance of 5 2-3 center; the second revolves in 3 1-5 days at the distance of 9 semi-diameters.' Five and two-third and 9 semi-diameters are 2 5-6 and 4 1-2 diameters so Swift took those as Mars as 3 and 4.

"It is quite likely, Sir Robert Ball says, that Swift wrote under Arbuthnot's advice. In Boswell's life of Queen Anne's reign, he observed, "I think Dr. Arbuthnot the first among them. He was the most universal genius, being an excellent physician, a man of deep learning, and a man of much humor.'" Swift and Arbuthnot were great friends, and what Swift lacked Arbuthnot could supply. His 'Essay on the Usefulness of Mathematical Learning' is often quoted.

"But when it comes to discovering moons, Anna Kingsford has got Swift, Voltaire and Cyranno de Bergerac beaten before they start. In her book 'Clothed with the Sun' published in 1889, page 282, she says:

"'Here is Jupiter! It has nine moons! Yes, nine. Some are exceedingly small. And, oh, how red it is! It has so much iron. And what enormous men and women! There is evil there, too. For evil is wherever are matter and limitation. But the people of Jupiter are far better than we on earth. They know much more; they are much wiser.'

"No doubt about it. In 1899 astronomers on this earth only knew of four moons of Jupiter, those discovered by Galileo in 1610, but the ninth one was discovered in 1914 by Prof. Seth B. Nicholson at the Lick Observatory. It is 'exceedingly small'; supposed to be about fifteen miles in diameter; just about a good football for Swift's Brobdingnags, but no 'average astronomer' would have found it."

Le Nouvelliste, of Three Rivers, believes that the compulsory vote would be of advantage in Canada. It says: "A law making voting compulsory may have its inconveniences, but we believe that it also has its advantages, and one of these would be to reduce the number of members of only a minority of their community. In Canada such a law would probably work to the disadvantage of the Progressive group; but it would hardly bring about a political crisis such as the country is passing through at the present time. Rather it would assure the return of an absolute majority of one party or the other.

The United States has just put an embargo on Canadian Christmas trees and also on Canadian potatoes. Mr. Mackenzie King would never dream of putting an embargo on anything American, nor will he put an embargo on the export of the raw timber wealth of this country which it is so essential should be conserved for the use of our own people.

The establishment in Algoma of a hardwood industry to employ 700 men is regarded as reasonably assured by Hon. James Lyons, minister of lands and forests. If Northern Ontario gets this important industry, it will be the result of the government's policy of preventing the exportation of hardwood logs. Canada, and all the provinces, should insist on the manufacture of raw materials in the Dominion so far as possible, and thereby insure the profitable employment of Canadian labor and Canadian capital.

"Big Game Hunter Lauds Canadian Rockies

Col. Philip Moore, Princeton Graduate, big game hunter, war veteran, and mountain climber, is so well known in the Canadian Pacific Rockies that, as one guide put it, "he hails a grizzly when it passes him and asks after its missus and the cubs."

Ever since Col. Moore first visited the mountainous regions of Alberta and British Columbia, he has managed to spend part of each year hunting, camping, and climbing mountains. He returned recently from a summer enjoyed in Yoho Valley, where he added a few more miles to his 2,500 mile record on horseback as a member of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies.

The building of good roads through the mountains and the resultant growth in automobile traffic is a new feature which adds greatly to the increase in tourists. The opening of the Banff Windermere road, and the road from Lake Louise to Wapta, thus making a splendid highway all the way from Calgary through the Kicking Horse pass and the valley of the Yoho, has given tourists glimpses of wonderful precipitous canyons topped by some of the most majestic ice-clad peaks in the Rockies.

Then, too, the growth of the bungalow camp idea has been phenomenal this season. Those whom the palatial summer hotels do not attract yield to the lure of log cabins, perched on the shore of a crystal lake, and shadowed by overhanging mountain peaks. With a haversack on one's back, one may hike from camp to camp, or, if one does not scorn the saddle, ride a pony along the leafy trails.

All these pleasures Col. Moore has proved, and intends to lecture this winter, as he has been doing for a number of years, about the marvelous beauty of his beloved mountains. He is not selfish. He wishes others to share the joys of the "lone trail" which has lured him into mountain fastnesses ever since he forsook the academic halls of Princeton.

HOW THE MOTOR SATURATION POINT MAY COME

One of the questions that is puzzling motor-car manufacturers, stockholders in the automobile concerns, and more disinterested observers, is when the saturation point will be established between the number of motor-cars operated and the number of individuals in the population. When that time comes, we read in the Clevelasd Trust Company's Business Bulletin, published in a great motor-making city, "the number of new cars that can be sold each year will be determined by the demand for replacements, the export markets, and the steady but slow increase called for by the growth of population." Since automobiles are being manufactured more rapidly than they are wearing out and greatly out of all proportion to the increase in population or the export demand, "it is clear that such a saturation point will be reached some time."

Now the common assumption has been that when this condition arrives it will come gradually over a series of years and give plain warning of its approach. But the Cleveland writer suggests that very likely it will come suddenly, "like a thief in the night." The obvious method of forecasting the saturation point in automobiles would be to study saturation points of other articles. It is noted that:

"Saturation points of a sort were reached long ago in the cases of the bicycle, the sewing-machine, harvesters, and popular-priced pianos, but the available data are not sufficiently full to make possible careful comparative studies of these examples."

Brown: Did you hear those fool roosters crowng early this morning?

Mrs. Brown: Yes, dear.

Brown: I wonder what on earth they do that for.

Mrs. Brown: Why, don't you remember, dear? You got up early one morning, yourself, and you crowed about it for a week.

She: " wonder who invented that superstition about Friday being an unlucky day."

He: "Oh, some poor fish."

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation, and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

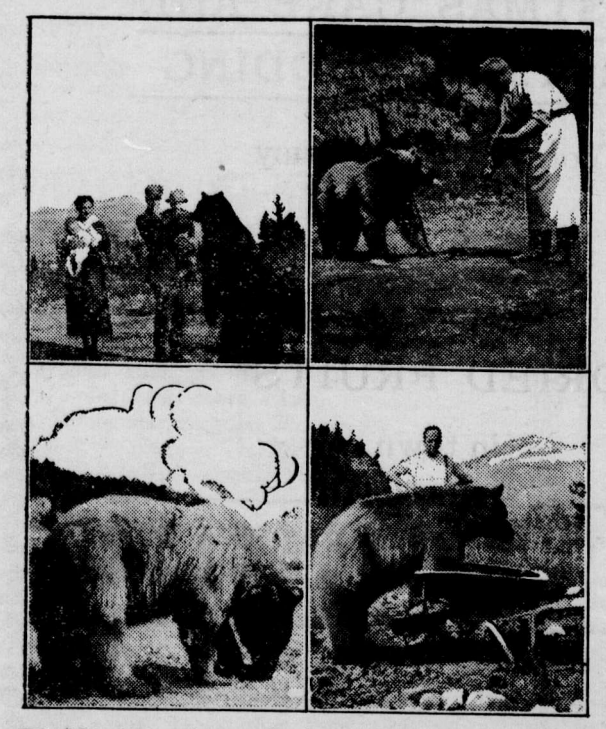
PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.



LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers up to ten head.

BEARS LOSE FEAR OF MAN

BLACK and brown bears at Jasper National Park have become so tame that they frequently visit Jasper Park Lodge grounds in search of food, and, according to the report of Col. S. Maynard Rogers, Park Superintendent, become so bold that they break into cottages and camps for food and have to be destroyed. Photographs show black and brown bears at one of the construction camps at Jasper, where they have learned to regard man as their friend rather than their enemy.—C.N.R. Photos.

PULLS JOKE ON TOM UPHILL

Victoria, Nov. 24.—Monday was a dull day in the Legislature. The business of the afternoon was dragging on so slowly that several of the members were drowsing in their chairs. Hon. A. M. Manson was explaining the provisions of the Industrial Disputes Act and recounting the history of the Dominion measure. Page boys flitted to and fro, passing silently over the thick carpet of the room. All was peace and harmony and the Speaker wore a smile of happy contentment

Then it happenedd. A page, envelope in hand, slipped across the Chamber and stopped at the desk of Mr. Tom Uphill, Fernie Labor member, delivering a letter. The Fernie man lazily opened it—and jumped to his feet.

"Order!" he boomed. "Mr. Speaker, I'm up on a point of order," and he waved the letter he had just received above his head. The attorney-general stopped his reading and looked in amazement at the interrupter.

"It's this," shouted the Fernie man. "This, Mr. Speaker! It's from the K. K. K. Someone at the gate sent it in. It's signed 'K.K.K.' It reads, Mr. Speaker, 'You are known.' Some white-livered.....I say, Mr. Speaker, someone has sent me this and it is not the first. They've been carrying on their tomfoolery at my hotel, too. It says I'm known. Yes, Mr. Speaker, I am known."

Mr. Uphill sat down as suddenly as he had arisen, failing to explain just what his point of order was. The House looked at him for a moment and then took up the business of the afternoon where he had interrupted it.

Major Dick Burde was to have spoken to Mr. Frank Browne's resolution condemning the Ku Klux Klan, but the Alberni member was not in the House and the question was stood over.—Vancouver Province.

"THE GREAT DIVIDE" ONE OF YEAR'S BIGGEST FILMS

Reginald Barker directed "The Great Divide," which comes to the Orpheum Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday net. It is one of the outstanding successes of the American stage and is one of the largest productions on the 1924-25 Metro-Goldwyn program.

The picture for the most part was filmed in Arizona, the locale of the romance.

Mr. Barker was particularly pleased with the assignment, for he was stage director for Henry Miller when the latter triumphed in the William Vaughn Moody play, and ever since he entered motion pictures he has wanted to present it on the screen.

After considering a number of prominent men and women for the two leading roles, Alice Terry and Conway Tearle were selected. They represent the ideal types for the roles of Ruth Jordon and Stephen Ghent, and are worthy of carrying successfully two such prominent and significant parts.

Waldemar Young wrote the continuity and others in the cast are Wallace Beery, Huntly Gordon, Zasu Pitts, Allan Forrest and Ford Sterling. Cedric Gibbons was art director and Harry Schenck assistant director. "The Great Divide" is presented by Louis B. Mayer.

CIVIC MATTERS DISCUSSED

Mayor J. S. Irvine, who was the guest of honor at the Rotary Luncheon on Monday, gave a very interesting talk on municipal affairs in the city. He said in part :

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen : I am somewhat at a loss to know what was in your minds when I was asked to speak to you to-day. Possibly it had to do with the city administration for 1925. But I find that as a Council, we have had very few, f any, serious problems to deal with. However, I will give you a brief outline of what has been done this year and then dwell for a few minutes on some of the problems which appear to me to be likely to arise in the City's administration in the next few years.

As you know the Council decided early this year to concentrate as far as possible on the re-building of roads which had become in very bad condition all over the City, due partly to the fact that so much money had to be spent the past few years on renewing the water mains in the city proper. The next question was what roads should be attended to this year. The desire was to make a first-class road through the city from the south end of Baker Avenue to the Annex School, via Victoria Avenue and Thomson Street. For Victoria Avenue especially we wanted to use crushed rock and as high water does not go down until the first of August and there was no rock available except in the bed of the Elk River or Coal Creek we started first on Howland Avenue, then went on with five blocks of the north end of Victoria Avenue then over to Baker Avenue. As it was possible that we could not get enough rock to do Thompson Street as well as Victoria Avenue and as it was a comparatively short haul from where we were getting our gravel near the bridge over the Elk River in the Annex Extension, it was thought better to finish Thompson Street before moving the crusher up to Coal Creek and therefore, Thompson Street was done next. As the summer was getting along, two shifts of eight hours each were started about this time and when Thompson Street was finished, it was decided to try to do Cox Street from Howland Avenue to Chipman Avenue, and from there connect up with Thompson Street. However, when Cox Street was finished, it was found that the Annex Sewer ran down the center of Chipman Avenue and only one or two houses were connected. The majority of the residents volunteered to connect up with the sewer or at least run their individual connection as far as the boulevard and while this was being done, the crusher was moved up to Coal Creek and work commenced on Victoria Ave. on two ten hour shifts a day. When this was finished an effort was made to do four blocks on Chipman Avenue, but owing to the way the road had been torn up and the weather conditions prevailing, a permanent job was impossible.

To back a little, after the Council decided what roads they wished to do, there was still the problem as to the class of road to put in. Concrete was out of the question due to the item of cost; asphalt, bithulotic and other similar classes of roads could not be attempted, for the same reason. After as full consideration as was possible under the circumstances, and on the recommendation of Mr. Ramsay, one-time City Engineer, it was decided to re-surface with macadam and then treat with asphalt oil.

When Howland Ave. was finished a small shipment was brought in of Calcium Chloride and four blocks were treated. While this may make a satisfactory road material in other climates, I think the most of you will agree that it has not been a success here.

When July came, a car of 60 per cent asphalt oil was brought in and 14 blocks were so treated, five at the north end of Victoria Ave., 6 on Baker Ave., 1 on Prior St., 1 on Hanson St., 1 on Thompson St., a total of 14 blocks out of 45 re-surfaced. Another car of oil was brought in about the middle of September but due to weather conditions, could not be applied.

It is too early yet to forecast the life of oil treated roads but it is hoped they will stand up for two or three years without being re-surfaced. Patching will probably be required in spots. I mentioned that this summer about 45 blocks had been resurfaced. There are approximately 180 blocks of road in the city, so that to give everyone a good road will require another 2 or 3 years. After that with a different outfit, the blocks could be re-oiled and given a new wearing surface of small pebbles or rock chips. If this were looked after systematically for a few years, there should never be any necessity to scarify and haul on crushed rock or gravel as is being done this year.

The new work on the roads this year cost about $20,800.00 which includes the scarifier and the 2nd car of oil not yet used. Other items expended on public works this year to date include the following: Ball Park $456.-95, Warehouse $303.93, Elk River protection $265.40, Cleaning and sprinkling streets $652.49, Sidewalks repairs $621.59, Sewers $754.75, Cemetery roads $271.98, Swimming pool $479.12.

Further work, to the extent of possible $1000 has been started, in the way of river protection opposite the septic tank.

At this point I might state that the financial statement for the year is expected to show some surplus. The Council have decided to borrow sufficent additional money from the bank to bring payments due the sinking fund up to the close of 1925.

PUBLIC SCHOOL EXHIBITION

On Thursday, Dec. 17, there will be an exhibition of school work in the Central School, and the parents and friends of the children are invited to attend and see the work that has been done during the year.

The public, generally, is not conversant with the work done by the children in school, and usually the loudest critics are those with the least knowledge. This exhibition gives everyone an opportunity to visit the schools, to see the up to date equipment, and to examine the work that is being done.

The exhibition will be open from 2.30 p.m. to 5 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., two sessions being arranged for so that everyone may attend.

During the evening, medals won by the senior pupils in the essay competition recently organized by the Great War Veterans Association will be presented.

Pupils will not be admitted to the exhibition unless accompanied by adults, and it is hoped that by this method the school will be crowded both afternoon and evening.

The schools belong to the people. Come and see he work done in them. Cancel all other engagements already made and do not arrange anything else for that day.

Come in thousands to the Central School, Thursday, Dec. 17.

BENEVOLENT SOCIETY REPORT

Annual Report of the Ladies Benevolent Society for year ending Dec. 1, 1925:

The Society held seven meetings, at all of which the President, Mrs. Suddaby, presided.

The financial standing was reported on and was considered sufficient for present purposes. Coal and extras were supplied to some families who were in distress owing to sickness.

The Investigating Committee had heavy work, especially at the Christmas season as owing to strike conditions there was much more distress than usual. The committee co-operated with the Elks and much distress was relieved, and owing to the assistance and bounty of the Elks many Christmas hampers were sent out and help given.

During the year two new babies were provided with some necessary clothing. Several families were also helped out with clothing and some children with shoes and stockings.

The following officers were elected for the year 1926:

President—Mrs. M. A. Kastner.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. A. Watson
2nd Vice-President — Mrs. N. E. Suddaby.
Secretary—Mrs. G. Kelman, Jr.
Treasurer—Mrs. Jas. Marshall.

A DOUBLE BEREAVEMENT

Mrs. G. G. Henderson, wife of ex-Mayor Henderson, passed away suddenly last Monday morning following the rupture of a blood vessel in her head, precipitated by the receipt of a telegram from the coast which stated that her eldest son, Jack, was seriously ill and there was no hope for his recovery.

The telegram containing the bad news was delivered to the Henderson home while Mr. Henderson was out and Mrs. Henderson had apparently gone out to look for him. She was passing the fire hall and was reading the telegram when the attack came upon her and she dropped to the ground. She was rushed to the local hospital but was beyond human aid and passed away shortly afterwards without regaining consciousness.

An hour later, another message was received from the coast to say that Jack had died, but it was later learned that Jack had predeceased his mother and the first message was an unsuccessful effort to lessen the shock to his parents.

Mr. Henderson suffered from the shock of his doubly sad bereavement but is bearing up remarkably well under the circumstances. The other members of the family, Mrs. Lyle Ironsides, of Calgary; George, of Dayton, Ohio; and Stuart, of Kansas City, Mo., are now in the city.

Mrs. Henderson was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Crowe, of Paisley, Ont., and came west with Mr. Henderson to Fernie in 1898, and since that time, with the exception of a few years spent at their old home in Ontario, they have resided here continuously.

Jack's remains have been brought to Fernie from the coast and he will be interred with his mother tomorrow afternoon.

The profound sympathy of the entire community goes out to the Henderson family in their great bereavement.

$100,000 FIRE AT ELKO

The business section of the old historic burg of Elko was practically wiped out at an early hour this morning by a fire which started in the Elk Hotel.

There was little or no fire protection and the citizens, who quickly gathered, could do nnthing to stop the blaze until it cleaned up the entire block.

The loss, which is partly covered by insurance, will be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Among the places destroyed are : The Elk Hotel, valued at about $20,-000; R. Hirtz, general store, loss about $20,000; Geo. Millett, cigar store and pool room, loss about $10,000; Columbia Hotel, loss about $15,000; Ray Hirtz, drug store and confectionery, loss about $12,000.

The little town is stunned by the catastrophe and whether the business men will decide to rebuild again is a question. We understand that most of the insurance is carried by Cranbrook firms.

CHRISTMAS CHEER FUND FOR GENERAL HOSPITAL

At the regular meeting of the Board on Thursday evening a donation was received and acknowledged with thanks from the Miners Union of $25.00 for the purpose of Christmas Cheer for the Hospital.

A joint committee consisting of the House Committee of the Ladies Auxiliary and the House Committee of the Board were named to administer the fund.

Any person or society desiring to donate to this fund started by the Miners Union may do so, and their donations will be acknowledged through these columns.

Send donations to this office or to H. E. Douglas, Secretary General Hospital.

Several complaints have been heard about the siren being used on the fire truck in the middle of the night. This siren is no doubt used to warn traffic to keep the streets clear for the fire apparatus but it is hardly necessary after midnight.

REORGANIZE BOY SCOUTS

The Fernie Boy Scout Troop, which during the past three months has undergone a complete reorganization, is now making excellent progress in Boy Scout work, under the direction of Scoutmaster Donaldson and Assistant Scoutmasters J. Chell, T. Gunn, J. Puckey and J. Reid.

The troop is made up of five patrols of eight boys in each, who are now busily engaged in getting through their various tests. New boys are coming up to the Scout Hall every meeting night and are speedily put to work on their tenderfoot tests.

The problem of securing competent instructors for the boys has now been overcome and with the present staff the entire troop is kept well occupied during the meeting nights. First Aid classes for the Scouts are being conducted at the Mine Rescue Station every Tuesday and Thursday evenings by Mr. Puckey, and are making splendid headway in bringing the boys up to the standard of efficiency in this most important branch of Scout work.

The Fernie Boy Scout Association who are behind the movement here, have called their annual meeting for next Tuesday night in the council chamber, to discuss plans for the coming year, and have invited all those interested in the Boy Scout movement to attend this meeting.

STRIKERS SENTENCED

On Saturday morning at Calgary Mr. Justice Stuart admitted the five Drumheller miners found guilty of unlawfully assembly, to bail in the sum of $500 each, two bondsmen becoming security in $250 in each case. The five found guilty in watching and besetting were admitted to bail in the sum of $200 each, two bondsmen becoming security in $100 each.

The trial of the six miners charged with watching and besetting the A.B. C. mine at Drumheller, on June 25th last, was concluded on Friday with a verdict of guilty by the jury, with a strong recommendation to mercy.

Cecil Terris, Louis Haner, John Cotton, Andrew Swedish and William Chadderton were sentenced to imprisonment for two months each.

Lambert Reners, who was shot by Constable Garr, while endeavoring to escape after being told to halt, was allowed to go on suspended sentence, Mr. Justice Boyle stating that he had already received sufficient punishment.

Of the eight men charged with unlawful assembly two were acquitted, six were found guilty with a recommendation for leniency in the case of the young lad, Pete Mikuloski.

In his case the court gave a suspended sentence of six months, but Wm. Kobemka, C. DeKeyser, Martin Sprela, Joseph Frodie and Pete Gariuk were sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment each.

Testimony was given by two doctors and by Constable Rogers with regard to the wound inflicted on Lambert Reners, and all concurred in the opinion that he had been struck in front by Constable Carr's shot. The defence alleged that the shot had entered from the back.

In sentencing young Mikuloski Mr. Justice Boyle in taking into account the recommendation for leniency by the jury, said that the lad had evidently been led into the affair by older persons who should have known better.

Declaring that from his appearance and from the way in which he had given his evidence he was a bright and intelligent young fellow, his Lordship advised him to attend to his own affairs in future, and expressed the belief that if he did so that some day he would own a mine himself, instead of associating himself with unlawful assemblies.

The friends of all the men sentenced will endeavor to provide bail, pending appeals to the appellate division by Mr. McGillivray.

NEWS OF THE LEGISLATURE

A year ago the Legislature unanimously adopted a resolution recommending that the use of the lash should be part of the punishment for those convicted of trafficking in narcotic drugs. This resolution did not reach Ottawa in time for action by the last Parliament so a few days ago, on the motion of Major Lyons, of Victoria and the Attorney General the House with the same unanimity reaffirmed the resolution and urged the Federal Government to place such legislation before Parliament at the approaching session.

By a bill which has passed the Legislature provision is made for fining members of the Provincial Police for any breaches of discipline, the idea being to avoid publicity in the interest of the men at fault. At present the only way in which a man can be punished is by dismissal or suspension, which of course becomes known to the public. An officer will always have any such fine reviewed by the Attorney General, but it is not anticipated that many occasions will arise for the imposition of one.

There appears to be a likelihood of some members of the Legislature proposing that the sale of light wines be permitted in beer parlors. It is argued that the creation of a sale for such would lead to the manufacture into wine of great quantities of small fruits. On the other hand their is a decided objection on the part of many members to make any change in the law, and it has been announced by the Attorney General that the Government will not introduce such an amendment.

It is likely that the town-planning bill which has been before the Legislature for two sessions will not be proceeded with this year but will be left until next session. It has been in the Municipal Committee, where so many changes were proposed that it is being recommended that it be redrafted and laid over for consideration during the recess.

Only part of the 1924 sinking fund payments were put in. The balance of 1924 and what is required in 1925, amounts to about $22,000. The overdraft of the city on January 1st was $47,000 and it is expected that after settling up the sinking fund, there will be approximately the same overdraft at the end of the year.

May I briefly refer to some problems which may be expected to require attention by the citizens and their administration in the near future.

No doubt some citizens will wonder why your councils have not considered it wise to reduce the mill rate. Some three or four years ago the council found itself confronted with the necessity of renewing the wooden water mains in the city, which would involve the expenditure of about $250,000. The borrowing powers had been practically exhausted. A cash surplus had been accumulated and it was decided in view of the necessity for an improvement in the water supply and for better pressure for fire purposes, to start in on a five year program. The first year, Ithing in 1921 or 22, iron pipe was laid from the power house to the City Hall corner. The program the following year was expected to take the iron along Pellatt Avenue from the City Hall to the Hospital and thence to the Great Northern Railway. It was found in the spring, however, that the wooden pipe was leaking so badly that an effort was made and the iron mains were laid as far as the Elk River. The following year the mains in the annex were replaced. With this work done, the water supply is ample and the pressure is all that could be desired. At the same time, a considerable sum was saved which would otherwise have had to be used in repairing leaks.

The replacement of wooden mains with iron pipe represents only half of the renewal which will sooner or later have to be done. That part of the wooden pipe from the Elk River to the dam and from the power house to the reservoir still remains to be renewed. As the pressure is not so great at either end of the system as in the lower parts of the city it is hoped that this work will not be urgent for a few years yet.

In the meantime, however, there is a great deal of expensive road work to be done ; the lighting system in the town can be improved ; the sidewalks must have attention soon ; the electric light distribution system will require new poles throughout very soon. Some replacements have been made during the last two years ; the overdraft at the bank is taking approximately $3,000 per year in interest charges and should be paid off as soon as possible ; an additional septic tank is required to take care of the amount of sewage which will be delivered when the annex sewers are connected up to the houses. Further river protection work to the extent of possibly $15,000 is needed between the G.N. bridge and the concrete mattress work done in the annex some years ago.

While I realize that all ratepayers desire a reduction in taxes at the earliest possible moment, yet with so many matters requiring a heavy expenditure in the near future, I feel that we should be reconciled to reasonably heavy taxes for the next few years. I know there are some citizens who maintain that work of this nature should be paid for out of the proceeds of 15, 20, and 30 year bonds, but the experience of the City indicates that this is the most expensive way of financing. For instance, one issue of Fernie bonds of $28,000, paying 6 per cent. and running for 20 years represents a total payment of $52,404.20 for sinking fund and interest. Another issue of $40,000 running for 30 years and paying only 5 per cent. will require $85,223.10 or over double the original sum.

Another issue of $5,000 running only 10 years and paying 5½ per cent will require $6,914.50 to finally compjlete the payment.

While I have the opportunity to speak to the members of the Rotary Club of Fernie, may I suggest that one of the main educational matters which is neglected in Fernie has to do with the reluctance and often absolute refusal of many of the business men of the City to accept public office. I do not know how many or whether any of the members of this years council intend to run again next year and I do not wish you to understand that I think you should all stand in one year, but I do think that every business man who is a property owner, owes it to himself and the city in which he makes his living, to serve or to offer himself as a candidate, for at least one year, on the school board and on the council, if only that he may for such a term come more closely into touch with and so better understand the problems which affect hic fellow citizens and himself. My experience in the past eight or ten years teaches me that there is room for considerable educational effort along these lines and I venture to suggest that your organization could assist in such work.

HISTORY OF THE PREMIER

R. K. Neill, of Portland, associated with W. R. Wilson, A. B. Trites and R. W. Wood in the Premier Mine, gave an interesting talk on the early history of that property at the annual banquet of the North West Mining Association held in Spokane last week. He said :"Not all the good mines are gone. In 25 years I have passed over many good prospects. The price and situation were against them at that time.

"There will be plenty of good prospects when we are dead. They always will be found. Three of the greatest mines I developed were turned down. In the Coeur d'Alenes I spent $8,000 and in the first thirty days took out enough ore to pay off all obligations. That was n the Hecla.

"The Kendall Mine in Montana, was small, but it yielded a lot of money. Look the prospects over carefully. That is one of the secrets of success in mining.

"A pretty good little mine was the Premier," (the Company has disbursed eight million in dividends). It was there for anyone to take. I went in there to look at another property when I heard of it. I proceeded carefully in the first examination. After that I spent five days looking over the Premier. It was in a bad situation. It was fourteen miles from transportation. I was told that the snow was fifty-four feet deep in the fall. I commenced to get cold feet.

"The price for the Premier seemed reasonable enough——$150,000. I'm a kind of a Jew. I jewed them down to $100,000 and got six years in which to pay it. I figured I could find out with $5,000 if there was a mine there. I spent $4000 and blocked out $3,000,000. I felt encouraged to build that 14 miles of road. It took three years to do it. The seasons are short. Then it was a horse trail, wide enough to admit the passage of a twenty- inch sled and cost $7,000. But before building the trail I had $7,000 worth of ore sacked to pay for it.

"In the next winter I hauled $54,000 worth of ore and put that into a road the next summer. I chartered a steamship and brought in horses, dogs and camp equipment. On the next morning after unloading from the scow I was confronted with 17 feet of snow. A month was occupied in going from Stewart to the mine. Rain fell the next 17 days and then snow fell. In the spring I shipped 184 dry tons of ore, worth $112,000 to the Tacoma smelter.

"I opened the mine by watching the dollars. I cooked, washed dishes, sharpened steel and kept my own books, when there was no one else to do these things. Had I not done these things I could have broken my associates.

"A fault of mining is that some of the men in it do not know how to spend money. Ninety per cent. of the money is wasted. Ten per cent. goes into the ground. Some men have tried to open a mine by living in town and sending letters and telegrams. These same men want other men to work for small wages and to do the highest grade of work. The successful mine manager is the first on the job in the morning, the last at night.

"The Premier Mine was lost to earlier owners by men who managed by writing letters. If they had done what I did I would not have got the mine.

"The prospector is strong in the back and weak in the head. The first thing he thinks of is to run a tunnel. He should not do this. He should prospect at the surface and if he has indications he should crosscut so many hundred feet apart, so that the man looking for a mine could see what the surface contains.

MOOSEHEART EDUCATION

Busy hands—busy in the right way—bring contented minds. Youthful minds must learn. The school system at Mooseheart is recognized to-day as the world's greatest effort in educational systems of its kind. It is the result of an intensive survey and careful planning. Instruction in fifteen vocations, full academic and commercial courses for boys and girls, are features. The keynote is "Preparation for Life." Anyone who is graduated from Mooseheart is equipped to make his way. He has a High School ducation and a trade. More than that he has self-reliance. He is sure of himself and, consequently, not afraid of the world. Mooseheart graduates have the incentive to win. The Mooseheart graduate is clean in body and mind. He is courteous, yet he is not bashful. He is strong, yet he is not brutal. He is cheerful, because he is full of the strength of life. He is equipped mentally and physically as no other youth could be even in the most careful of private homes to take up life's problems. Mooseheart teaches its boys and girls to be that way. Mooseheart graduates are dignified. Hence they gain respect. Thus equipped, success for them is assured.

LUNACY REFORM

Whatever bears upon what other countries are attempting to do in the way of lunacy reform ought to prove of interest in this province since a select committee of the Legislature has been appointed to inquire into the cause of the increase in the cases of patients in mental hospitals. In London a Royal Commission on Lunacy and Mental Disorder has been sitting for some time, and among the evidence submitted is that of Sir Maurice Craig, which is of particular interest. He says that no branch of the medical profession has been so trammelled by legal enactments as psychological medicine, and as a result its progress has been slow and many men are shy about engaging in it. In the certification of persons of unsound mind an obligation has been placed upon medical men which, in fact, has nothing to do with medicine. The definitition of insanity in the Lunacy Acts has the effect of frightening a large number of conscientious persons from undertaking the care of early cases.

Sir Maurice says that experience has taught him that the harm done by certifying patients in the early stages of insanity far outweighs any advantages. In his opinion if certification were done away with the whole outlook of psychological medicine would be changed. It would then, for the first time, come into line with the treatment of physical disease. The abolition of certification would probably mean that the number of willing patients would increase steadily. His contention is that provison for their treatment should be made in general hospitals, or in special hospitals or clinics which are separate from and not in the grounds of hospitals where certified patients are taken. The unwilling patients should continue to be treated in mental hospitals under some form of provisional notification or certificaton.

Sir Maurice urges that legislation should be passed to allow the treatment of passive or non-voilitional patients on notification only, and of the unwilling class by some form of provisional notification. The present methods employed have created unrest in the British medical profession. Sir Maurice was asked whether the profession would be satisfied if it were relieved of liability for giving a certificate, even if given negligently but honestly, and he replied that he would not like any step taken that would be a declaration that the profession could act negligently as against the public. What appears necessary more than anything else is to reform existing methods so that more valuable information may be obtained in the knowledge of a psychology of insanity. This reform is desirable in British Columbia also, and it is to be hoped that the Select Committee of the Legislature will view the preventive aspects of the problem it is to probe with the increasing attention they deserve. —Victoria Colonist.

Manitoba Bees Set out to Make a Record

Who ever heard of a hive of bees that in one day gathered no less than 25 pounds of honey? If anyone doubts that the busy bee can be as busy as all that, refer him to Mr. W. D. Wright who has a large and prosperous apiary near Souris, which is in southern Manitoba on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and if anybody doubts the fertility of the Province of Manitoba or wonders if the summer suns there shine down on wide fields of glorious bloom, let him read the following which is gathered from the columns of the "Souris Plaindealer."

It was on July 31st last that the hive of bees beside which Mr. Wright stands in the above picture gathered and stored the twenty-five pounds and established a record for this continent and perhaps for the whole world. There was no doubt about its being true, because the Provincial Department of Agriculture made the test. From July 13 to August 3, the hive stood on a scale and every evening when the bees' work was done and they had gathered around their fireside to talk it over, the weight of the hive was taken. The first gain was on July 14 when 1¼ pounds was brought in and from that quantity the daily take varied up to 14 and 16 pounds. But on July 31 the bees got together and made a special effort just to show what they could do in the way of establishing records.

Perhaps they had just discovered that their efforts were being recorded. Anyway we can imagine that the night before, the queen called the crowd together, or perhaps only the captains of teams, and said something like this:—

"Now, boys, the world's got its eye on you and tomorrow's the day we go over the top. Any lad that comes in here with less than his full load gets into trouble and the chap or team bringing in the biggest bag gets a wax medal with my picture on one side and his own name on the other."

And how they worked that day! They worked all the other days of the season too, because the total honey produced for the season was 496½ pounds. Of course there were two or three rainy days when they stayed at home and did chores around the hive, and two or three other days when it didn't rain, but they stayed home anyway to look after the local elections or something like that. And when it was all over no doubt the queen said "Well, it's been a pretty good working season, I'll tell the world," and as always is the case the Queen was right.

Having proved her superiority as an organizer etc., it was natural that wider spheres of endeavour should call to this queen, so Mr. Wright shipped her to a big Bee firm in Alabama who are sending him another queen now, ten of her daughters next spring and three two-pound packages of bees with three more of her daughters in command. The trade was worth $35 to the Floradale Apiaries. The locating, capturing and caging ready for exportation of the Wright queen was witnessed by J. W. Breakey, M.L.A., and a representative of the Plaindealer. She was indeed a very fine lady and was head of an enormous population that objected pretty strenuously to her removal, and you cannot really blame them for that.

Mr. Wright's Floradale Apiaries this year produced almost four tons of honey and he hopes that next year Southern Manitoba and the neighborhood of Souris in particular will again show the world something startling in the way of honey production. In the meantime our friend the queen will continue her campaign for a bigger and better honey crop.

ANITA STEWART IN BIG FILM

In "Baree, Son of Kazan," which comes to the Orpheum Theatre next week, Anita Stewart makes her debut as a Vitagraph star, and she has the support of a superior cast. Two well known players in the production had also roles in the Vitagraph's adaptation of Rafael Sabatina's "Captain Blood," and before that in several other pictures produced by David Smith, who made also this one.

Joseph Rickson, who appears in "Baree, Son of Kazan," as Perriott, father of Nepeese, the French Indian girl impersonated by Miss Stewart, was Hagthrope, the chief gunner in "Captain Blood." Of other Vitagraph attractions, he played the sheriff in "Pioneer Trails," and Tom Chavis in "The Code of the Wilderness." He had important roles, too, in "The Border Patrol," with Harry Carey, and "The Riders of the Purple Sage," with Tom Mix.

Jack Curtiss, remembered for his impressive work as Wolverstone, the mutinuous buccaneer in "Captain Blood," has the heavy role, that of McTaggart, the post factor, in "Baree." He had important parts in such earlier Vitagraph productions as "The Courage of Marge O'Doone," "The Flower of the North," and "Masters of Men," and more recently has been seen to advantage in "The Snob," "The Last of the Duanes," with Tom Mix, Marshall Neilan's production of "The Stranger's Banquet," the Robert Hughes production, "Reno," and "The Gypsy Romance."

Donal Keith, everywhere recognized as one of the coming men of the screen and already commanding a large following, appears as James Carvel, who figures in the romance with Nepeese. Mr. Keith played with Miss Stewart once before. He had the juvenile lead opposite the star in the "Boomerang," the filmed version of David Belasco's play, and also had a conspicuous part in "Secrets with Norma Talmadge.

James O'Neill impersonates Tuboa, the old Indian who rescues Nepeese from the icy river in one of the most moving episodes. He has attracted much favorable attention in recent years as the interpreter of Indian roles.

A BIG MAN NEEDED

The new organization of boards of trade of Canada had its birth at Winnipeg under most uspicious circumstances. There prevailed among the delegates from the Maritime Provinces on the Atlantic and British Columba on the Pacific, and from the Prairie Provinces, Ontario, and old Quebec a spirit of desire for understanding and accomplishment which promises well for the future of this new national body. But what has been accomplished has been but the first step on a path strewn with many difficulties to be overcome if the high goal is to be reached.

What was accomplished at Winnipeg was to create an atmosphere of mutual willingness on the part of the various provinces and the different geographical areas of the country to consider each other's problems in a broad way. These problems are very real. They are economic rather than sentimental. They will not be solved merely by the passing of goodwill resolutions.

All of which is by way of emphasizing that while what has been done has been done well, the success of the effort is altogether dependent upon the future steps to take advantage of the favorable situation created. The solution of the problems faced will demand in the new organization leadership of the highest calibre. Much will depend on the appointment of the executive head. It is a job for the biggest man in sight, and he should be appointed to devote all his energies to the task in hand. In this respect the success of the labor organizations, which appoint their strongest men to their executive offices, as compared with such bodies as the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, where the presidency is regarded as an honorary position, might be considered.

The success of the new national association of boards of trade will depend upon the calibre of the leadership provided. A big man is needed for a big task. Financial Post.

A Christmas Poem for Men Only

That old pick-pocket, Santa Claus, will soon be here again,
Bringing good will (and also debts)
unto a world of men
With jingling sleigh-bells, jovial face and tummy large and wide,
He comes to bring us Christmas gifts, gathered from every side ;
Socks too large, and ties too loud, and shirts with purple stripes.
Two for five cigars that burn (that's all)' outlandish briar pipes,
A book that saw the light of day in eighteen ninety-two,
A dozen cotton handkerchiefs with borders red and blue,
Bath slippers that are far too short,
a golf stick that's too long,
A thing that I'd forgot there was, a set of old Mah Jongg ;
All these and many other gifts we haven't time to list,
Men suffer most at Christmas time—
this of my poem's the gist ;
For men must pay for all they get ;
exchanging gift for gift ;
To contemplate what we recieve is sure to leave us miffed.
So then, what ho for Santa Claus, who comes to pick our purse ;
The old boy's bad enough we grant,
but then he could be worse.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Old-timers caught in the holiday rush and gazing at the wonderfully alluring panorama of the shop windows often fall into reminiscent mood and re-live the Christmases of the long ago. Who does not fondly recall the magic of Christmas in his childhood ?

Most of the presents were home-made. Perhaps grandma furnished mittens knitted by an oil lamp after you had been tucked in bed-thick warm mittens with a long cord that extended up through coat sleeves and around the neck to prevent loss. Aunt Saphronia gave you a basket of Christmas cookies, shaped like animals and stars and covered with delicious colored sugar.

Uncle Tom gave you a watch, and his generosity appalled you if it was the old turnip that he discarded. You can imagine the reaction you would get if you tried giving a 1925 boy a second-hand timepiece.

Most of the presents were useful, in the old days, including a reefer overcoat and a new pair of shoes. As for "boughten presents" they were limited to "the Erie Train Boy," by Alger, Henty's "With Clive in India," a New Testament, a sled, a pair of skates and that most wonderful of old-time toys, a tin monkey that climbed a string.

At that, Christmas of long ago represented proportionately as big an outlay as now, comparing earnings in the two periods.

But the gift itself was secondary to the spirit of the giver. Somehow every grown-up can't help believing the Christmas dinners of those days were superior. The Christmas eve entertainment at the church was as enjoyable as the modern movie. And the ride in a cutter over the deep snow beat the auto-trip of 1925.

Christmas is always changing and to adults never for the better.

POSED AS MILLIONAIRE

Albert Bradshaw, a young Englishman of many aliases, was arrested in Cranbrook on a warrant issued in Fernie, last Friday afternoon, just as he emerged from the registrar's office, where he had secured a license to wed a Cranbrook girl, when he hoaxed into believing he was a millionaire and hired her as his "private secretary," a position he had given her to understand would pay her $350 per month. This will likely be the last of his impostures, however, as he made the mistake of leaving a board bill unpaid when he decided to leave Fernie. While here, Bradshaw went under the alias of E. Sheely and posed as a moving picture scenario writer and very wealthy. He even showed two bank pass books showing deposits of $8000 in each. These, however, Chief Anderson soon discovered had been made out by Bradshaw himself.

Bradshaw was remanded for eight days when he first appeared in the police court here and is due to come up again tomorrow morning, and following the disposition of the Fernie charge against him, he will have to answer many other charges in other cities he has visited, a list of which Chief Anderson is gradually compiling.

ALTAR BOYS' SOCIETY.

An impressive ceremony took place in Holy Family Church Tuesday evening when the local Altar Boys' Club was solemnly affiliated with the St. John Berchman's Sanctuary Society.

This society is a world-wide organization of altar boys. It was officially approved and endowed with many privileges by Pope Pius IX on September 21, 1865. Holy Family Church has the distinction of having the first branch of tte society to be organized in British Columbia, so the ceremony Tuesday evening was of special interest.

Rev. Father McKenna addressed the boys, reminding them of the honor conferred upon them, and instructed them in their duties and obligations as members of the society. He then gave each boy the official diploma, badge and manual. The ceremony closed with the benediction by Rev. Father Ehmann.

The following boys received the membership diploma : Joseph F. Chubra, John A. Turner, Steve A. Bella, John A. Bella, William A. Klauer, J. A. Lubac, M. J. Benisky, S. A. Becker, P. J. Becker, J. F. Becker, Vincent Podbielancik, E. J. Aiello, E. Fiorello, G. McGill, A. M. Rizzuto, J. H. Hughes, F. E. Hughes, J. F. Woydega, W. J. Riley and D. Butala.

Membership diplomas were sent to three former Fernie altar boys, Wm. Turner, Matthew Flood, and Michael Flood, who ar attending college in Edmonton.

SHOULD DEPORT COMMUNISTS

Here is just one more reason why this country should remain British and "white." A Winnipeg reader has sent us "election bulletin No. 1, Communist Party of Canada." The matter contained therein concerns the advisability of electing Mr. Matthew Popovich an alderman in ward 3 of the Manitoba capital. Mr. Popovich also gives us a picture of himself, middle of the page, top of column, so we know what he looks like. Thick set, eyes close together, high cheek bones and shoe brush hair. He is also young, very young we would say without much experience in the affairs of this world.

However, the programme as indicated by his election bulletin is interesting. For one thing we note that Mr. Popovich would cancel the interest charges on all city of Winnipeg bonds. He would take over the Winnipeg Street Railway without compensation, except in the case where the bonds were owned by workmen. Next he would have a "reduction" in the tax rates by an additional levy upon the banks, railways, etc.

Then there is the usual programme of having a living given you whether you work or not, as well as the regulation Bolsheviki stuff about the "dictatorship of the proletariat," a mouth of words invented by Marx, who probably thought thereby to impress the unwashed.

All of which brings up the question as to how much rope the Popovitches and the other Iches should have. Not long since another of the same kidney, and presumably of the same breed, though a femals of the species, hailing from Montreal, in addressing an audience in Nova Scotia, calmly announced that the only solution for alleged wrongs was the murder of all capitalists, near capitalists or would-be capitalists, including the landlords.

In the United States people of this sort go to jail for an indefinite period For instance out in California there is a prison full of like gentry who have been confined since war days, and up to now there is no sign of releasing them.

Individually most of these communists are a good deal of a joke, but it is a moot question as to how many Morons they succeed in influencing. For instance Canada now has well established Communist Sunday Schools, where children are taught to worship the red flag and scorn the Almighty.

Who can tell how far these misguided muddlers, looking for a short cut to Utopia are going to influence the rank and file, mainly foreigners who fail to grasp the first principles of free government and who are more easily influenced by the "mouthisms" of the Bolshies, professional and amateur, than by logic and concrete facts.

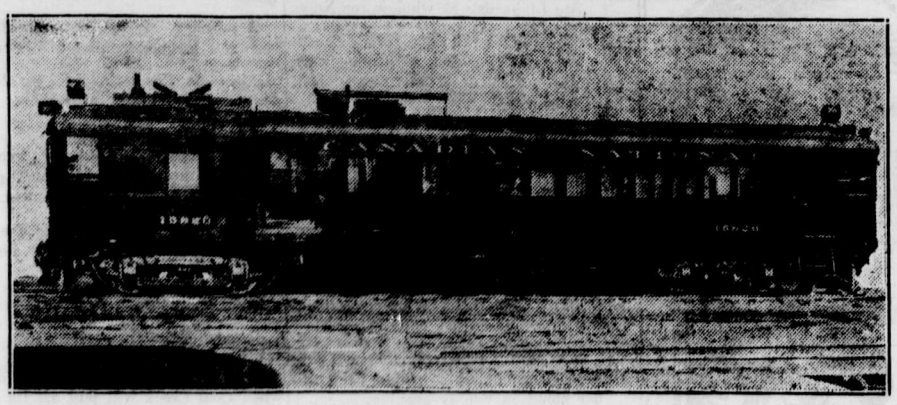
Who ever heard a constructive idea pour from the mouth of one of these people ? Like Mr. Popovich, of Winnipeg, they would tear a city's credit into tatters, giving nothing in its stead. Like this woman in Nova Scotia they would kill the constructive brains of the community, thinking thereby to reap some benefit. Mr. Popovich would bring down Winnipeg taxes and at the same time call for higher wages for city employees. As something sinister, a something they do not quite understand, they would do away with life insurance companies, which when all is said and done are the finest combination of big business and public service ever devised.

People with Communist reasonings were conscientious objectors during the war, but now they have a red flag and are ready to shoot their next door neighbor for not agreeing with their scheme of manhandling human affairs.

Deportation should be the fate of these foreign born Communists, one and all. There is no use jailing these people as they do in the United States. Such action would only bring forth a multitude of weak sentimentalists, the sort that send flowers to condemned murderers but forget all about the murdered.

In this matter New South Wales has shown us the way. For years these Communists have been a thorn in the side of law and order. But now the leaders are to be deported, Tom Walsh being sent back to England where he came from and Jacob Johanntson to Holland, of which he is a native. Premier Bruce's mandate in the matter is clear as upon it hinged the recent general election in New South Wales.

In Nova Scotia we have J. B. McLachlan, the Glace Bay Communist. For 16 years this man has been inflicted upon Nova Scotia coal fields. For years he has devoted his time to making trouble for employee and employers alike. The amount of it is that McLachlan has been able to capitalize his gift of gab and so fool the workmen who support him into believing that he is really benefitting their cause when as a matter of fact he has cast a blight over both the man and his job.



There is no place in this country for the Communist or his theories, which is not to say that all is right with the world, and that conditions could not be bettered. The man with the will to work and without a job or a dollar is the most to be pitied of all living creatures. But half digested Marxian shibboleths, and the tearing to bits of our present civilization, will not make for peace, comfort and happiness. And those who attempt it are Canada's enemies and should be so treated.

—Toronto Saturday Night.

He : Wait a minute. I thought I heard something break.

She : Never mind, that was just my promise to mother.

NEW OIL-ELECTRIC CAR ON CANADIAN NATIONAL

ARRIVAL in Western Canada of the new Canadian National Railways oil-electric car on an endurance run from Montreal to Vancouver under its own power, and its subsequent return to Edmonton where it was placed in service on the Edmonton-Vermilion run, replacing a mixed train service, has created much interest among railway men and the travelling public generally. The new car, shown above, carries approximately 60 passengers, in addition to baggage and express, and made a record run to Vancouver. Other cars of similar type, and also of an articulated type, carrying 120 passengers, have been placed in service in Eastern Canada, where they are giving excellent service at reduced operating cost. More cars are now being built and others are to be sent to the west for branch-line service. The car operates on electricity, generated by a fuel oil engine of airplane type, and the working out of this method of traction by Canadian National engineers gives promise of great reduction in fuel and operating costs. Each of these cars is capable of handling a trailer when necessary.

RUSSIA FIGHTS AGAINST GOD

The Soviet government continues, as its own spokesman once put it, to "wage war on the Divine front." It is true, we are told by anti-Bolshevist Russian editors, that priests are no longer arrested and executed by the dozen, as was the practise two or three years ago, and that ruthless methods of struggle against churches and religion have been replaced by milder and subtler methods. Yet, it is contended, the militant materialism of the Communist party ruling in Russia continues to weigh heavily on the life of Russian believers. Thus we are told further, because of the interference of the Government, the main branch of the Greek Catholic Church, the "Tikhonite" Church, still remains without a spiritual leader. Patriarch Tikhon died in the spring of this year, and a successor was to have been elected within three months of the date of his death. But as Metropolitan Peter, the Keeper of the Patriarchal Throne, is said to have let it be known, the Soviets would not allow a conclave to gather for the election. At the same time, we are told, the government continues to patronize, though unofficially, the "New," or as it is also called, "Red" Church—the Living Church—the Resurrection Church—which in Bolshevist hands is a tool with which to belabor the Tikhonite Church. The "Red" churches recently held their conclaves at Moscow, and decided to support the anti-religious Soviet Government. The official Communist Izviestia of Moscow tells us what occurred at one of these conclaves :

"Bishop Antonin (the chairman), displayed an unusual tenderness for the Communists. He said : "During a recent public discussion on materialism and spiritualism, Lunacharsky (a leading Communist) declared that no prayer has ever been heard. This is not true, for our prayers for the Soviet Power will be heard by the refuges Cyrill and Nicholas Romanoff and by the anti-Bolshevist Bishops. They will hear them and burst with anger. In our temples the Soviets must feel at home. We must say to the Soviet Government : "I love thee."

"The conclave has adopted a resolution in keeping with which the Reintroduce in its masses a prayer for the Soviet regime, worded as follows : 'Lord, grant victory to our Government over its enemies for the welfare of the people.' "

According to Vazrozhdenie, the nationalist anti-Bolshevist daily published in Paris by an influential group of Russian emigres, including the followers of the Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholayevich, it is exactly this subservient tone adopted by the new churches toward the Soviet Government that deprives them of all authority in the eyes of the Russian believers. Every one, says this paper, knows that these churches are a sort of department of the Soviet machinery. It is for this reason, that the new churches control but a few parishes in Moscow and still fewer in the provinces, while the Tikhonite Church commands the sympathies of the bulk of Russia in spite of the persecutions befalling it. The paper adds :

"Metropolitan Peter, the Keeper of the Patriarchal Throne, has been threatened on many occasions. But accepting his lofty post, he was aware of the danger. He knows to what measures the Government and its political police may resort, and yet he has forbidden his clergymen to communicate with the Living Church and to participate in its conclave. This is also known to the fifty-eight bishops who have sided with him as well as to the crowds filling his temples and keeping away from the empty temples of Soviet officials imitating priests."

The Tikhonite Church is still very strong. Persecutions have added to its moral forces instead of weakening them. The anti-Bolshevist liberal Rule, published in Berlin, thinks that the Soviets have abandoned hope of annihilating the church by direct interference, and that they are now relying mainly on the anti-religious propaganda among children whom they want to bring up in the spirit of complete atheism. It says :

"On the eve of every Church holiday anti-religious lectures or shows are organized in Soviet schools. Besides and then an anti-religious show is staged for all schools of each educational district. Members of the Union of Communists Youths, as well as "Red Pioneers," are obliged to attend such shows. The other children are advised not to miss them.

"These shows are usually very primitive and rude. 'Artists' put on enormous blue noses and thick stomachs, and, clad in real ecclesiastic vestments requestioned from churches, move around with crosses in their hands. If the show is staged for several schools at once, the program is enlarged, and children are shown, in addition to the Greek Catholic priest, a rabbi, a mollah, and a Roman Catholic prelate. To provoke laughter the players resort to obscenities and indecent gestures."

Vezrozhdenie thinks that persecutions have frightened a certain number of believers from the Tikhon Church. It is to this fact, it says, that must be ascribed a rapid spread of Baptist communities, which, in the first years of the revolution, when Greek Catholics were persecuted with especial ruthlessness, were tolerated by the Soviets. Their success, we read further in this paper, is due to various causes, among which is their deep piety. For instance,

"Baptists, who can still gather without being interfered with, attract by the sincerity of their creed, by the intelligent simplicity of their prayers, and especally by the purity of their life, which stands out in contrast with the atmosphere of drunken noise, invectives, dirt and debauchery surrounding the 'Communist nuclei.' Their conduct is so unusual that people observe them for a time with profound respect, then visit their gatherings and finally join their communities. The Baptist communion is especially successful in our northern villages, which it has reached partly from Finland, partly from large cities. However, the authortities are now dissatisfied with the spread of the Baptists, and they want to requisition in Petrograd the Baptist Church which has been built by private donations. It is not difficult to predict that protests will have no effect. Baptists were favored as long as they could contribute to the weakening of the Greek Catholic Church; since, however, they begin to develop themselves as a force, they can not help being viewed as an undesirable element which will not be allowed to prosper.

During the month of August 1,132 vessels, comprising 131 trans-Atlantic, 35 coasting and 966 inland steamers, entered the port of Montreal, these having a total net registered tonnage of 1,936,945, while in the same period 1,141 vessels went out, these representing 1,932,145 net registered tons. Since the opening of navigation 757 ocean-going vessels, representing 3,468,965 net tons, have entered the port, are compared with only 649, representing 2,280,072 net tons last year; these figures being up to the midnight of September 5th.

F. F. Norcross, a well-known Chicago lawyer, had an amazing experience recently while staying at the Banff Springs Hotel and playing on the golf course there. His approach to the ninth hole was disputed by a huge bull elk which tossed its antlers and stood pawing the ground with evident hostility as the lawyer prepared to play his ball. Mr. Norcross was about to observe the better part of valor when the bull's attention was distracted by the appearance of a cow elk which made an effective substitute for the golfer and both animals disappeared into the neighboring bush.

THE MINIMUM CHARGE REASON

When the City signs up a customer, they undertake to do more than provide energy instantaneously upon the closing of a switch. For his exclusive use they reserve a portion of the system extending from the customer's premises to the generating plant. This reservation includes portions of high and low voltage distribution lines, lightning protectors, transformers, regulators, switches, sub-stations, transmission lines, generators and other valuable apparatus. The portion thus reserved for the customer must never be used for another, otherwise overloading migh occur if simultaneous demands were made upon it. They cannot govern the time of any customer's demand for current.

It is for this reason that they have minimum monthly charges, although they are not alone sufficient to offset the total fixed charges and, if the majority of the customers did pay considerably more than their minimum charges the rates per kilowatt hour would have to be greatly increased. Many light and power utilities take care of this situation by having a great portion of their rates to consumers based entirely upon the connected load or maximum demand of the consumer. In addition to this they have a relatively small kilowatt hour charge, intended to look after the remaining 20 per cent. of the costs which are not fixed charges. These costs are made up of copper losses, and expenses incidental to the operation and maintenance of the system, which are determined by the kilowatt hour consumption.

Because the landlord's costs go on month after month, he charges for his suites a monthly rate during the life of the tenant's lease, irrespective of whether such tenant is on a holiday at the beach or not. For the same reason the City has a minimum charge. Waking or sleeping, at home or abroad, there is reserved for the consumer a portion of the City's system on which he is expected to pay the fixed charges.

Creation of a new industry in Western Canada covering a product which is now imported into this country to the value of about five million dollars annually is foreshadowed by the samples of hemp now on display at the Windsor Station, Montreal, according to G. G. Ommanney, Development Engineer, Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Ommanney stated that considerable work had already been done in the West of Canada towards the creation of such an industry. Efforts to promote companies have been made in recent months and there is no doubt that fine stands of hemp can easily be grown in certain districts.

Handsome Cup for C. P. Liner Making World Cruise

1. Cup being placed in niche in Library of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France. 2. Cup being presented, left to right: C. S. Quartermaine, (passenger) Staff Captain W. G. Busk Wood, Mrs. Mathew Cope, (passenger) Capt. E. Griffiths, R. N. R. (Commander.) 3. This photo shows the Cup presented to the ship and the Replica given to Commander Griffiths.

At Southampton, the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France was presented with a silver cup 27 inches high weighing 157 ounces on Friday, October 30 by C. S. Quartermaine on behalf of the Round the World Cruising Party on this ship during the winter 1924-25. The cup is a copy of the Gold Entente Cordiale Cup presented to France by His Majesty King Edward VII and was given as a token of their appreciation for the splendid time the passengers enjoyed on their long cruise. The Cup, with suitable inscription, was placed in a niche in the library of the ship and a replica of it was presented to the Commander of the ship, E. Griffiths, R.N.R.

This memento has a specially high value in the eyes of the officers of the ship as it represents the satisfaction of passengers who had made a three months voyage of 34,000 miles under their care. The inscriptions speak for themselves. On the cup is engraved: Presented to the Canadian Pacific R.M.S. "Empress of France" by passengers on the 1925 Cruise in appreciation of a remarkably successful voyage of 34,000 miles. Commander E. Griffiths, R.N.R.

Inscription on the Replica presented to the Commander reads as follows: This Replica presented to Commander E. Griffiths, R.N.R., R.M.S. "Empress of France" by passengers on the 1925 Cruise in appreciation of his skill, tact and unfailing courtesy throughout a most wonderfully successful voyage of 34,000 miles.

With even greater comforts on board the palatial ocean liners than any to be had on shore it is not surprising that cruising has seized the popular fancy. This year many will avail themselves of the opportunity of making the Round the World Cruise on the Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Scotland.

The liner leaves New York on December 3 and returns April 10 via the Panama Canal after visiting over 20 countries en route, including 26 ports of call, and arriving in the Holyland on Christmas Day. Cruise members proceed to Jerusalem and Bethlehem by train after disembarking at Haifa. After a day and half visiting scenes made memorable by the life of Our Saviour the party goes on to Cairo by train.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation, and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free or partially free permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ten head.

The report of the General Hospital for November shows 65 patients treated during the month, 16 of which were carried over from the preceeding month and 23 still under treatment at the end of the month, there being a total of 637 patient days. During the month the X-ray unit was installed and is working very satisfactorily. Miss Young, the new matron, took charge Dec. 1, and it is understood the hospital will be run under her direction.

BULL RIVER HOTEL BURNED

Cranbrook, Dec. 10.—Fire, arising from a cause so far unknown, was responsible for the loss of the Tourist hotel at Bull River, about 20 miles from this city, at an early hour this morning.

Telephone wires are still down but it is understood that the building is a total loss, with almost all of the contents, along with two or three houses nearby.

There is little fire fighting equipment there and a big fire would have to burn itself out.

The hotel was operated by Messrs. T. Howard and G. Thrasher, and though insurance was carried, the loss would be quite heavy.

The hotel would be worth in the neighborhood of $20,000.

LIBRARY BENEFIT SHOW

To meet the liabilities of the present Fernie Library, the committee, with the generous co-operation of Mr. Johnston, have arranged for a benefit picture show next Wednesday night. It is a splendid film, "Baree, Son of Kazan," by James Oliver Curwood, with the popular Anita Stewart starring. There will be two shows, at 7 and 9, and admission is 50c and 25c. There is also a matinee, admission 50c and 15c.

Everybody goes to a movie once in a while. If you only go once a year, make it next Wednesday. Those who attend the movies regularly will enjoy themselves in a good cause. Those who never go or who have engagements next Wednesday can at least buy a ticket. Tickets are being sold by the school children.

This is one of the regular higher-priced shows. There is no advance in price on account of the proceeds going to help the library. Come out on Wednesday and treat yourself and your family. You will pay no more than you always do for the show and you will have the added satisfaction of doing "a good deed in a naughty world."

THE SCHOOL EXHIBITION

Probably the greatest event in the history of the Fernie schools took place yesterday afternoon and evening, when pupils and teachers put on a splendid exhibition of their work, and parents and friends came by the hundreds to see the work of the school and how it was carried on. This was a revelation to many, who did not realize that Fernie has the finest school in the interior of B. C. As the school is Fernie's largest public utility, absorbing over half the taxes, it is very gratifying to see it such a splendid success.

Some teachers of wide experience say that the building and equipment are the best they have ever seen. Anyone who was there yesterday must have had it impressed upon him on every hand that the Fernie teachers for sheer hard work, enthusiasm, pep and interest in their work, as well as for skill and up to dateness in their methods, cannot be excelled. As for the raw material (the children) since they are our own product, it is not hard to believe they are the best ever How then can the school help but be a success?

In the various rooms the spectators saw specimens of children's work in drawing, painting, penmanship, clay-modelling and other forms of self-expression. Every subject on the curriculum was represented. Geography was graphically portrayed by relief maps of plasticine or salt. Topography, climate and natural resourses of countries were vividly conveyed by means of graphs. There were hundreds of specimens shown of flora rocks and minerals of this district. History, natural and human, lived again in splendid models of such things as Fort Lachine, French settlements on the St. Lawrence, mountain villages, rural scenes, Eskimo and Japanese dwellings, Indian camps, muskrat and beaver habitats, palms and camels trekking darkly on a glowing desert sky. There were tables covered with the products of a special country, with cords running up from each article to the place on the map from which it came. There were models of sports, even the Fernie swimming pool being duplicated. The much longed for public library was also visualized. There was a replica of the C.P.R. depot so perfect that the tiny son of one of the C.P.R. employees was moved to ask: "Is my daddy in there?"

A feature of the evening was the presentation of the prizes given by the G.W.V.A. for the best essays on Armistice Day, and there must have been well over a thousand witnesses to this ceremony. Three prizes were given in grade 7 and three in grade 8. They were offered in order to arouse interest and enthusiasm and to keep fresh in the minds of the growing generation the meaning of the great struggle and sacrifice which culminated in that Day of Days. About 200 essays in all were submitted.

In grade 8 the first prize went to Virginia Cummings, second to Verna Balok and third to May Markland.

In grade 7, first was won by Clarisse Schupe, second by Ladie Guerr, and third by Adele Sylvester.

The two first prizes were beautiful gold medals shaped like a shield with sprays of laurel and maple leaves, a beaver and suitable inscription. The equally artistic second prizes were silver maple leaves with gold inscription plate, while the third were maple leaves of bronze.

Too much cannot be said in appreciation of the high-minded patriotic and public-spirited attitude of our Veterans, firstly for donating the prizes at all, and secondly for choosing such artistic and valuable ones. There's nothing small about the Fernie Vets.

Mr. Martin introduced the matter of the presentation of the medals, saying there was one industry in Fernie greater than coal mining, which kept larger numbers at work, and in which we were all shareholders. That was the schools.

Wm. Gates, representing the school board, thanked the G.W.V.A. in a neat speech for putting on the essay competition.

Dr. Bonnell, in a very versatile and graceful manner presented each child with her medal after a brief but impassioned address. The doctor, always fluent, is never so inspired as when he gives rein to his ardent and glowing patriotism. He said many days are celebrated, many names are great, but the greatest day in Time was that on which the most hideous conflict

POULTRY ASSOCIATION HOLD BANQUET

The Poultry Association held a banquet at the Northern Hotel on Wednesday evening in honor of the judges, Mr. Hayden, of Calgary, and Mr. Good, of Nelson.

There were present members of the Association, members of the city council and others, with W. M. Dicken, vice-president, in the chair.

Mr. Hayden stated that the show just held was a most successful one, particularly as to the quality of the poultry exhibited, and that in fact at least one bird would take high honors at even the International Poultry Show at Toronto, which is the best show held on the American continent. He strongly recommended the members to go out after prizes at other shows, as he was certain that efforts in this direction would be well rewarded. He stated that very great credit was due to the Superintendent of the show for the manner in which it was handled.

Mr. Good also briefly addressed the gathering and then ably entertained the company with several Scotch songs.

During the course of the evening musical selections were given by Evans orchestra; Mrs. Whitehouse, who gave a beautiful rendering of Tosti's "Good Bye"; a male voice quartette, Messrs. Klauer, Thomas, Riley and Edgar, who contributed several numbers in a most entertaining way.

Several members spoke of the work of the Association.

The Northern Hotel deserves great credit for the magnificent spread provided at the banquet.

DISCUSSED CITY FINANCE

Matters pertaining to city finance and the sinking fund were the main topics of debate at the last regular meeting of the city council for the year held last evening, with all the members present except Ald. Dicken.

Chief Anderson waited upon the council and requested the repeal of bylaw No. 205, a Retail Stores Bylaw, which he stated did not cite any authority for its enactment. He said that this subject was at present before the Legislature and when they came to a decision on the matter a new bylaw could be drawn up. The council repealed the bylaw.

Additional lighting on Victoria avenue was again discussed. The city clerk submitted quotations he had received showing the proposed additions would cost about $1000. The question was left over for the next council to decide.

The city clerk reported that he had purchased as a sinking fund investment $28,500 Dominion of Canada Bonds maturing in 1944 bearing 4½ per cent interest. The price paid was $96.80.

A lengthy discussion as to the advisability of selling the $67,000 Victory Bonds maturing 1934 now in the sinking fund and reinvesting in Dominion of Canada 1944's, brought out the fact that if this were done the sinking fund would immediately gain over $2000, which would aid somewhat in reducing the levy for city debt next year. The city clerk was authorized to carry out this transaction and to call for local tenders on the Victory bonds.

Due mainly to sinking fund investments the city from year to year has accumulated a surplus in the sinking fund. This could be used to reduce the mill rate required for city debt each year.

Ald. Stewart said he was of the opinion that there was at present sufficient surplus in the sinking fund to practically wipe out the Home Bank losses. The city clerk was requested to go over the sinking fund books and present a statement to the special meeting to be held on Dec. 28, at which meeting the council also expects to finally discuss the question of maintaining a public library and prepare a bylaw to be submitted to the ratepayers on election day.

The city clerk was instructed to get in touch with the mayor of Cranbrook and request him to wire the Attorney General supporting a wired request which is to be sent from the Fernie council, asking that wherever the word time is referred to in legislation pertaining to municipalities, that the word "local" be used instead of standard and thus avoid confusion in Fernie and Cranbrook, where mountain time is used.

The man without prejudice may be found only within the cemetery.

THE LIBRARY BYLAW

Some four years ago, under the provision of the B.C. Library Act, a Library Association was formed in Fernie. It was the intention of the Association to make a beginning and lay the foundation for a public library more in keeping with the needs of the city. It was expected that the city council would give a substantial yearly grant to aid the Association in their work. This grant has not been forthcoming, however, and consequently the library has not developed as was expected. The time has now come when the present project must be abandoned and a more progressive policy adopted.

The Provincial Act provides that if a bylaw is submitted to the ratepayers and receives sufficient support, a public library shall be established and operated by a board appointed by the city council. In accordance with this Act, the present Association has presented a petition, signed by some fifty ratepayers, asking the council to submit such a bylaw. The council has acquiesced in this. The bylaw has been prepared and will be presented to the ratepayers early in January.

If this bylaw receives the support of the ratepayers it is the intention to have a public library and reading room on the ground floor in some public place, open certain hours, morning, afternoon and evening. The city thus providing for the upkeep will expect different organizations to assist in adding new books from time to time. The Provincial Act provides that the province shall assist to the amount of $200 per year provided that $400 is raised locally for this purpose, and pro rata for smaller amounts. This would open up the way for a library which in a few years would be a real asset to the city.

We have now reached a crisis in the library situation. Shall we abandon the library project or shall we establish a public library which shall be an educational asset and a credit to our city? It is now up to the ratepayers to decide the issue.

HAD A VERY BAD RECORD

(Cranbrook Herald)

In bringing to a halt the operations of the imposter who was in the city last week carrying on fraudulently in matters of the heart, as well as in material spheres, Chief of Police Halcrow evidently pulled up someone whose reputation was already known unfavorable in other places. This is indicated from the following which appeared in the Calgary Herald of Wednesday:

With the arrest of D. A. Seitz, 29 years, at Cranbrook, B.C., on charges of false pretences, the police have completed a search which has been going on for several weeks now, and efforts will be made to have Seitz brought back to this city to answer several charges.

Chief Ritchie is now in communication with the authorities at Fernie to ascertain what disposition is to be made of the case at Fernie, and what steps will have to be taken to have him returned to this city.

According to the police, numerous complaints were received regarding this man, who was known as Albert Bradshaw, W. Laemmle, T. A. Noble, E. E. Sheeley, T. A. Neilan and "Hon. Donald Mount Nelson." He is alleged to have taken orders here for Christmas cards, representing himself as an agent of the Caxton Press Co., of Regina.

The police received a letter from the Caxton firm, advising them that Seitz was not an authorized canvasser and had no right to take orders. He had accepted orders from more than 25 Calgary people when the police got wise.

The police are prepared to lay several charges against Seitz, alleging false pretences in connection with cheques. He secured a suit of clothes and an overcoat from a local firm, and also received $25 from the landlady of a house where he roomed, and is said to have represented himself as a representative of a moving picture firm.

The police have received word that Seitz represented himself as "Hon. Donald Mount Nelson," son of a millionaire, and gave a cheque for $200 to a charitable institution at Cranbrook, B.C. The authorities claim that Seitz is wanted in Regina and Medicine Hat, as they have received circulars asking for his arrest.

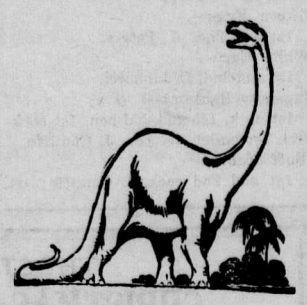
"REVELATION" HAILED AS TRULY BIG FILM



Hailed as the finest story of the year, Metro's special production of "Revelation," by Mabel Wagnalls, will come to the Orpheum Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday for a run of two days. This picture, which tells the story of a girl model of the Paris Montmartre who found her soul when posing as the Madonna of an old legend, is said to be the greatest directorial achievement of George D. Baker, who has had such successes to his credit as "Slave of Desire," "Toys of Fate" (with Nazimova) and many others.

A really all-star cast has been used in the production. It includes such players as Viola Dana, Monte Blue, Lew Cody, Marjorie Daw, Frank Currier, Edward Connelly, George Siegmann, Kathleen Key, Otto Matiesen, Bruce Guerin, and Ethel Wales. "Revelation" promises great entertainment.

No use to pay evangelists to make you feel mean when an afternoon nap will do it.

WHAT IS IT?

It grew to a length of 70 feet and a height of 20 feet, as big as fifteen elephants. Find out about this monster at the Orpheum soon.

A WARNING!

The U.S. Postal Service is laughing at the story of a postoffice inspector who went into the hills of Arkansas to check up a village postoffice. The neighbors said the P.M. had gone fishing. The P.M. reached into his back pocket, took out a bunch of letters and running over thme for the addresses, said, "Nope. Nothing for ye," and went on fishing.

CORBIN NEWS

The anniversary of the Corbn Lodge No. 64 I.O.O.F., was held on Dec. 4th.

The public was cordially invited to a masquerade dance which was the dance of the year without exception. There were some very good cosumes, and the judges had a very hard time to pick out the winners. Mrs. Reid won the Ladies Best Dressed prize, she was dressed as a Turkish Lady of Fashion. H. Brnes won the Gents Best Dressed prize, he was dressed as a Toreador.

The best home-made costume prizes were won by H. Ferguson and L. Elms, they were dressed as Zulus, and Miss L. Hunger and Miss E. Eddy as the best comic prizes were won by hobo and wife.

Chief Greenwood, of Fernie, presented the prizes and spoke of the very sociable evening everyone appeared to be having. The committee, on whose shoulders the success of the evening rested, are to be congratulated on the swell time everyone had.

Victoria.— The Attorney-General has introduced in the Legislature a bill to consolidate the various insurance acts in one general act, the only classes of insurance not included in the bill being marine and mutual. The provisions of the law are tightened up in many particulars for the better protection of the assured. It has been decided not to prohibit insurance in unlicensed companies so as to protect the public against possible monopoly, but such companies are prohibited from soliciting in the province and the tax on premiums is to be 5% instead of 2%. In spite of a strong demand by insurance interests against the part-time agent it has been decided not to change the law permitting these. Hereafter insurance societies and clubs will have to incorporate under the Societies Act. Automobile insurance must in future be written by resident agents.

THE SCHOOL EXHIBITION

that ever rocked the world was brought to a close. Our hearts were full with pride when we heard the Dr. tell how large a part our own dear country, though small in numbers and poor in capital, played. How Canada was put on the world's map at that time, as the staunchest, bravest, finest country on the face of the globe!

K. Bryant, the popular president of the G.W.V.A., and always a felicitous speaker, addressed the gathering on behalf of the Vets.

Mr. Barton very generously brought his radio over to the school and set it up, entertaining the audience during the evening with all the delightful things that were on the air.

All in all, this second Fernie Public School exhibition was a splendid success. The get-together spirit which it fosters between school and community is invaluable and both principal and teachers deserve great credit for the way it was put on.

MT. FERNIE CHAPTER I.O.D.E.

At the regular monthly meeting of Mt. Fernie Chapter I.O.DE. held on Dec. 12, it was decided that henceforth a short report of their meetings be sent to the local press, as customary with other chapters.

The meeting was opened by the Regent in the chair with a brief silence devoted to the memory of the beloved Queen Mother.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted, reports of committees received, letters of thanks and appreciation read from members to whom flowers had been sent during illness, and from a returned soldier family who had been assisted in temporary need.

Arrangements were made and date decided upon for the annual banquet for Entrance Class girls.

$10 was voted towards Hospital Christmas Cheer, $5 towards the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, and $15 toward the G.W.V.A. Christmas tree.

Mrs. Charles Bennett was elected a member of the Chapter.

The Regent reminded the members that the nomination of officers and councillors would come up at the next regular meeting in January, names to be posted and voted upon at the following February meeting.

Annual fees are due and should be paid in order to have the privilege of voting at the nomination and election of officers.

The meeting closed with "God Save the King."

COMPENSATION ACT CHANGES

Victoria, Dec. 15.—Changes in the Workmen's Compensation act introduced in the legislature today by Attorney General Manson provide:

1. That compensation shall be paid to injured workmen for the full period of their disability, provided that it lasts 14 days. This removes the previous three days' waiting period for which no compensation was paid, except that where the man is laid off for less than two weeks he still suffers the three days' loss.

2. That the compensation payable to orphans shall be raised from $12.50 to $15 per month This is in line with the scale of compensation in other provinces.

3 That foster mothers shall be entitled to aid on the same basis as real mothers in respect of orphaned children until these children are 16 years of age, and provided that she carefully cares for them. Mr. Manson stated that while labor organizations had asked further changes, these would have imposed heavy financial burdens on industry and possibly have killed the goose that lays the golden egg.

An old Fernie pioneer passed away last week in New Westminster, in the person of A. K. Farquharson, father of Archie Farquharson, of this town. Deceased, who has reached the advanced age of 85 years came to Canada from Scotland when he was 21 years of age. He first located in Parry Sound district, Ont., where he lived for ten years and then moved to Algoma where he resided for another ten years. In 1898 he came to Fernie shortly after the steele reached here and erected a large boarding house where the Napanee Hotel now stands. Shortly before the big fire he moved to the coast where he resided until his death. He is survived by five sons and two daughters.

KIMBERLEY'S BIG FUTURE

The Legislature at Victoria listened with interest on Thursday last to a discussion of mining problems, and the benefits to be derived from a change in the system of taxation on mines, in the course of a speech on the budget debate by Mr. N. A. Wallinger, member for Cranbrook. The member spoke optimistically of the future of the mineral development of this district and was accorded marked attention as he told of the manner in which the Sullivan mines and other properties in the vicinity were progressing.

"I want to tell this House," he said, "that Kimberley will be a city of from 20,000 to 50,000 persons in a few years' time; that there is every reason to anticipate a daily output of 5000 tons of ore for the next fifty years at east. At the present time it has a population of 4000 persons and a monthly payroll of $200,000. The day is not far distant when it will be the largest city in the interior of British Columbia."

Continuing, the speaker said that recent diamond drilling operations by the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company, Limited, in the vicinity of he Sullivan Mine disclosed an ore body 140 feet in thickness. This was encountered at a depth of 3000 feet.

Mr. Wallinger made an appeal for a change in mining taxes. At the present time, he said, the system of taxing the gross output was resulting disastrously to the industry. He considered that a fair and equitable system, and one that would meet with the approval of the mining men and encourage new development, would be a tax on profits.

He instanced how one company was producing ore worth $40 a ton. After paying the various charges of mining, transportation and smelting, the return to the operators was $1 a ton. The tax amounted to 60 cents a ton, leaving only a margin of 40 cents profit. On this the company could not continue to operate and the mine was closed. A tax on profits, even if it had been as high as 6 per cent, would have permitted the mine operators to make a better profit and continue in business.

He suggested that the Ontario system of taxing might be successfully adopted in British Columbia.

Mr. Wallinger took issue with the figures quoted by the minister of finance in respect to mining returns. It would appear, he said, that the miners of the province were in a prosperous condition owing to the fact that $60,000,000 had been given as the value of the output. The minister should have pointed out that this value was based on the New York prices and did not represent the figure which the operators obtained for their products. It would be just as fair, he said, to infer that the farmers obtained the full share of the retail selling prices of their products.

The effect of the present system of taxation was to vary the percentage that was paid on the returns. In that case he had instanced, the tax amounted to 60 per cent of the profit, while on the higher grades of ore it would be proportionately less. He advanced as a suggestion that the cost of underground work could well be used in rebate of taxes until the full amount was paid and a large rebate should be allowed for depletion of ore reserves. A paying mine meant employment and more taxes from the community to the public treasury, and to continue a system of taxation that would retard the proper development of the mineral resources of the province was a false economy.

BRITISH NAVAL STRENGTH

At the recent Guildhall banquet in London, Admiral of the Fleet Lord Beatty, First Sea Lord ,took occasion to defend the Admiralty against attacks which have been made in the form of criticism. He points out that the world-wide trade routes upon which Britain is dependent for food and for the raw materials of her industries are no shorter or less complicated in their geographical disposition than they were in 1914. Britain is no less, in fact more, dependent upon their security. Her means, however, of ensuring their safety are now far less than in 1914. In the year the Great War broke, Britain possessed 109 cruisers. Today she has but 59 afloat. Lord Beatty says that in 1914 Britain possessed a very great advantage from her geographical position in being able to command the exits of enemy vessels destined for attack on her trade, yet still the number of cruisers at her disposal was barely adequate. In the event of another war with any Power such a favorable strategic position would not again obtain and the demand for cruisers and the protection they provide will therefore be far greater than in the Great War. The Board of Admiralty he says can never endorse the position that the present number of Britain's cruisers is too large.

The First Sea Lord points out that the task of the Admiralty in carrying out its responsibilities is not made any easier by a campaign of ill-informed criticism. Here are his words: "Many of the statements made are so wide of the truth, and so oblivious to the necessities of the Empire, that it can only be concluded that the object of the criticism is political. The campaign is persistent and one-sided, in that the attacks are given prominence, while the replies to the attacks are given obscurity, and the critic returns to the attack on the same ground. I ask, Is this fair play? I ask, Is it patriotic to attempt to stir up in this great service dissatisfaction and want of confidence in administration for purely political or personal reasons?"

Lord Beatty says that the task of the Sea Lords during the last few years has at periods been carried through with personal feelings of bitter regret. It has been their duty to reduce the fleet from "a magnificent and incomparable force to the modest dimensions at which it now stands." It has had to deprive of their professional livelihood thousands of zealous, highly efficient and loyal officers and men. That duty has been a painful one, but it has been made easier by the unquestioning loyalty and resignation with which the blow has been accepted by individuals. He says all honor is due to those officers and men for the example they have set of subjugating their personal claims to public interest.

THE SPEED OF THE STARS

Runaway stars and new variable stars that periodically become bright and then faint are being discovered by Prof. Frank E. Ross, of the Yerkes Observatory, as a result of the study of photographic plates in the observatory's files.

Various fields of stars, largely in the milky way, were photographed by Prof. E. E. Barnard, who used the Bruce photographic telescope. This instrument is a camera with several lenses, the largest ten inches in diameter, and it is mounted so as to follow the stars in their apparent daily motion across the skies. Thus these photographs show the sky as it appeared about two decades ago. To discover what has happened in the interval Prof. Ross is comparing them with similar photographs which he is making of the same regions through the Bruce telescope.

To compare two pictures each showing thousands of tiny dots representing stars, all but half a dozen of which are precisely the same, and to locate the ones that have moved or otherwise in the interval, would seem like a hopelssly complicated task, but the use of an ingenious instrument known as the blink microscope makes it relatively easy. This consists of what might be called a double periscope. One photographic plate is placed at each end. By osculating a small lever, the observer can see first one and then the other in as rapid succession as he desires.

The stars are the same on each plate undergo no change in appearance but if one has moved, between the two exposures, it seems to dance to and fro as the leaver is moved. If a star has varied in light, the image dot seems to grow larger and smaller, while if a new star has burst out, its image will appear and disappear.

So far Professor Ross has examined twenty-five pairs of plates in this way and has found more than 150 rapidly moving, or "proper motion stars," and forty variables, that were not known before. Some of the proper motion stars are moving faster than two seconds of arc a year, which in about 900 years would take take them over a distance equal to the moon's apparent diameter in the sky.

This may not seem very rapid, but the most rapid star in the sky known to astronomers, which was also discovered by Prof. Barnard, is only moving about five times this speed. And of the countless legions of stars only about 200 have been known up to the present that move faster than one second of arc a year.

But these plates only measure across the sky, and if a star happens to be moving directly to or from the earth its motion will not be apparent. Such motion, called radial velocity, may be detected by analyzing the star's light in a a spectroscope, for the light waves are crowded together from an approaching star, and spread out if it is receding. A similar effect makes a fire engine bell, for example, seem shriller when coming toward one than when going away.

For three nights a week, when whether permits, the great 40-inch refracting telescope at Yerkes, the largest of its kind in the world, is used to make these spectrum photographs. This work was begun by Prof. Edwin B. Frost, director of the observatory, and is now being carried on by Prof. Barrett and Dr. Otto Struve. Dr. Struve is a young Russian astronomer, and belongs to the third gentration of a family of astronomers that includes some of the best known names in the history of the science.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ten head.

A REAL SERVICE ORGANIZATION

The Great War Veterans' Association is a real service organization. It has ably carried on a great service for Canada, and there is still much to be done. Many handicapped men, mutilated and disabled veterans of the last war, and dependents of Canadian men who fell on the field of battle would have starved—so far as the government authorities are concerned—but for the intelligent work performed by the Dominion command of the G.W.V.A.

It has been possible to perform this real service for the people of Canada because the men at the head of the G.W.V.A., including the Dominion secretary, C. Grant MacNeil, have made themselves thoroughly familiar with the administration of measures that have been placed on the statute books relating to pensions, allowances and other provisions for meeting Canada's obligations. The G.W.V.A. has acted as the soldiers' advocate. It is the only organization in the country that has so maintained a national office in Ottawa, with the necessary qualifications for carrying on this adjustment service.

There is still much work to be done. At the present time the active files of the G.W.VA. Dominion command in Ottawa contain 7,000 cases relating to former Canadian soldiers and dependents in process of adjustment. But the resignation of the whole staff of this capable organization has been placed in the hands of Sir Richard Turner, Dominion president of the G.W.V.A. They have taken this unselfish step in the interests of national unity. They are willing to efface themselves, if necessary, to help along the movement launched by Earl Haig last summer for the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League.

Surely the public must appreciate the spirit of service which has been consistently displayed by the workers at the head of the G.W.V.A. But the public must also be concerned to see that there is no break in the continuity of that national work, particularly of the adjustment service. Widows, orphans, dependents and disabled men, possibly 35,000 people whose cases are being dealt with by the G.W.V.A., would be left without an advocate. This service must be carried on until the Canadian Legion is ready to take it over.

In the meantime, the general officers associated with that new movement ought to see that adequate arrangements are made for taking over the work of the soldiers' advocate, which has been carried on with such singleness of purpose by the Dominion comand of the G.W.V.A.

MOOSEHEART A HEALTHY INSTITUTION

Mooseheart has nothing of the atmosphere of an institution. The only uniform that is used is for the cadet battalion and the bands. Otherwise each child may go to the general store and select his own clothes. No two children are dressed alike and the varied colors of the girls' dresses cause the groups of children to appear like animated flower beds as they move across the green lawns on the way to school.

Each child is supplied a quart of milk a day from the great dairy farm that occupies a place on the more than a thousand acres of land. The hospital is used as a preventive tool to which a child is sent at the first symptom of illness. These things combined with regular hours and good, substantial food, are health builders. Mooseheart babies—Mooseheart children—do not die. They live—strong and rugged. Outside the gates of Mooseheart the child death rate is seventeen in a thousand anunally. Within the gates a death in any year is a blot on the records. Mooseheart Governors are proud that the tiny cemetery is so very small. There's love in this world. The Moose make it a daily mission.

XMAS CHEER FOR HOSPITAL

In addition to $25 acknowledged from the B. C. Miners' Association last week, the following donations have been received :

I.O.D.E. Mt. Fernie Chapter $10.

Western Canada Wholesale, case of oranges

Thomas Magladery, 5 Christmas trees.

Mrs. Liphardt and daughter, basket of fruit.

Wm. Barraclough, large box of Candy.

Victoria.—The farmers of the Province who may be the victims of pheasants eating their crops, gained a victory in the Legislature on Friday, when an amendment was added to the Game Act which gives them the right to shoot pheasants which they find actually destroying crops. This may be done without securing a license or reporting the shooting to a game warden. The House, however, declined to allow quail and Hungarian partridge to be included in this concession. An amendment which would have given wardens the right to shoot any dog found in bird districts during the summer was struck out.

A bunch of checks arrived this week for Home Bank depositors. Magistrate Henderson has been working hard to get these checks through before Christmas and those who received them are very grateful for his efforts.

OLD COUNCIL STAND AGAIN

From all appearances there will be no municipal election in Fernie this year. We understand that the mayor and all the aldermen have signified their willingness to stand again for 1926, and as the present regime has rendered such splendid service it is hardly likely that there will be any opposition. We also understand that Wm. Gates and Wm. Barraclough, the retiring school trustees, will also again be candidates for re-election.

THE LATEST DISPATCHES

Kansas City—Released from leavenworth prison after serving two years for participating in a $5,000,000 bond theft in New York, Jules Nicky Arnstein declared he is going to devote the remainder of his life to renovating the Leavenworth institution "In the interest of the poor devils confined there."

Boston Mass.—Hard coal has become so scarce that one large firm is offering anthracite to cash and carry buyers at one cent a pound. Buyers must bring their own baskets.

Minneapolis, Dec. 23rd.—Four young bandits held up fourteen persons in the Guarantee State Bank here to-day herded them into a vault and escaped with $6,000 to $8,000 in cash.

Vancouver, Dec 23rd.—Eight additional charges have been laid against Dr. W. T. Noyes, Oakalla Prison Doctor and Surgeon, who is charged with illegally issuing prescriptions for narcotics to drug addicts.

Winnipeg, Dec. 23.—In the wheat market here to-day gains of from 5 to 6 cents over the previous close were registered. The market opened 3 1-2 cents higher gained another two or theree cents during the day and reacted slightly on profit taking.

Huntington, W. Va.—Two mountain girls, blind since birth, walked from a Huntington hospital to-day and marvelled at the wonders they gazed upon. Their sight had been restored, a Christmas gift from their mountain neighbors and a Huntington surgeon.

Lansing, Mich.—The State administrative board has established a permanent "Typhoid Colony" in Michigan, where James Soper, who is believed by medical authorities to have been atyphoid carrier for 25 years will be imprisoned.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—In buying stampede wheat to-day the market jumped as much as 9 1-2 cents a bushel.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—A considerable fall of snow to-night over Western and Central Ontario driven by a heavy westerly wind and prospects for more to-morrow with colder weather, somewhat dissipated fears of a "Green Christmas" over this section.

HOCKEY RULES AMENDED

Amendments to the playing rules in hockey this season bring about some drastic changes in the run of play and it would be well for the players about to engage in the City League schedule to know these thoroughly so that any misunderstanding on the ice may be avoided.

The following is an extract from the 1925-26 season rule book :

Goal-keepers pads—Maximum width 12 inches lying flat instead of 14.

Goal-keeper may clear by throwing puck back of the net.

New Defence Area—40 feet from the end of the rink instead of 20 feet from the goal line. In this area the old rule applies, viz., no off-side for the Defending Team. All rinks must be marked with defense lines at each end, 40 feet from the end of the rink.

No body-checking on the forward line. Body-checking only permissable by defense men in their positions back of the 40 foot line, and they must not charge an opponent.

ONE BIG UNION HAS INNINGS IN NOVA SCOTIA INQUIRY

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 22.— The One Big Union, a rival labor organization of the United Mine Workers of America, operating in Pictou county, had its innings today before the royal commission investigating the coal industry of Nova Scotia. The case for the O.B.U. was presented by William Murray, secretary of the union, and concurred in by Robert Foster, Walter Lloyd and Joseph Ryan.

William Murray charged that the U.M.W., which he characterized as a foreign organization, had come into Nova Scotia in 1919, and had undertaken to teach the miners how to conduct their affairs, including the burial of their dead. Under cross-examination of Sir Andrew Duncan, chairman of the commission, the witness detailed the alleged sins of the British Empire Steel corporation and the alleged sins of the U.M.W., who, in his opinion, contributed to the unrest throughout the Nova Scotia coal fields. He gave as his opinion that the wages at present paid the miners represented an increase of about 100 per cent over the wages paid in 1914, while at the same time the cost of living had increased by approximately 145 per cent. Under normal conditions, he testified, in answer to the chairman, the miner should be able to live better than in pre-war days. But, he contended, conditions were abnormal today owing to irregularity of employment.

NEW PICTURE WITH BIG CAST HERE SOON

Some of the screen's most popular players are in the cast of J. K. McDonald's First National Picture, "Frivolous Sal," which comes to the Orpheum Theatre on next Wednesday and Thursday.

Eugene O'Brien, who has been Norma Talmadge's leading man for the past year, was borrowed for the principal male role. Mae Busch was borrowed from the Metro-Goldwyn company. She had to work Saturday night and all one Sunday so she could join the McDonald company that evening when they started on their four weeks' location trip to Mount Rainier, in Washington, and the Idaho mines.

Ben Alexander is under contract to First National, so he was immediately available, but Mildred Harris had to decline several other offers for her part in Frivolus Sal. Mitchell Lewis rushed back to Hollywood from Arizona, where he was working in "The Mine With the Iron Door," and barely made the train with the McDonald company. Tom Santschi also had to hurry through another engagement to enact the role for which he had been cast in the McDonald picture.

The First National producer was insistent on having these particular players, not only because of their popularity with theatregoers, but because each one was ideally suited to the role in which he was to appear. The story is laid in a pioneer mining town of the West some twenty years ago. A girl and a little boy help a man overcome inherent weaknesses in his character and work out his destiny.

The direction was by Victor Schertzinger, one of the most successful directors in pictures.

Victoria.—Dogs, which found friends in the Legislature when it was proposed to give authority to shoot them if caught in bird districts in summer, did not fare so well when amendments to the Sheep Protection Act came to be considered. These require all owners of dogs to take out licenses for them and authorize the killing of the animals if caught off the owner's premises without a tag or not on a leash. No dog shall be at large between sunset and sunrise unless accompanied by the owner or within reasonable call. The provision as to damages for loss inflicted on sheep by dogs is extended so that where it is impossible to recover from the owner because he is unknown, application may be made to the Minister of Finance within six months and the claim paid at the end of the calender year out of a dog tax fund to be created from the license fees.

SUBSTITUTING FOR HARD COAL

The use of an electric fan with soft-coal fuel is suggested as a substitute for anthracite by Clark Allis, of Medina, New York, who remarks that the blower "blows away the blues," and adds: "I do not sell blowers." The cost of running the blower is said to be insignificant compared to the saving in coal bills. Writes Mr. Allis to The Democrat and Chronicle (Rochester, N. Y.):

"There seems to be no end to electrical appliances for homes, and when once in use, one wonders how we lived without them. One of the valuable electric helps is the fan to keep us cool in summer, but the fan or blower for the heating apparatus is now proving of more value, as it gives needed draft and consumes the coal much better than without the fan.

"We had all gotten into the idea hard coal, with its price going higher and higher every year, ad its ever-increasing volume of slate or near slate, was the only fuel we could burn. After we had shoveled this stuff into the furnace, we had nearly as large and heavy a crop of ashes as we had shoveled coal into our heatisg plant. This ash heap had cost good money to fill our coal-bins and cost good money and hard work to get it out of our cellars, and is an added burden and expense to the cost of garbage collecting, as cities as well as persons have to pay for collecting and hauling ashes.

"Semihard coal or smokeless soft coal is much lower in price, and contains more heat units and burns up much better and does not leave one-quarter as much ashes as does the anthracite coal. Some kinds of semihard coal keep fire better and longer than hard coal.

"After a little experience in firing, one learns to never cover up all the live fire, for this semihard coal does not give off any more smoke than hard coal if there is a chance for the open fire to consume the gases as they arise. The only reason why this soft coal has not proved to be acceptable for the heating of homes is because more draft is required than for hard coal. This is where the electric blower has proved so successful. The cost of electricity per day for a blower is but a few cents, almost nothing. but its use gives draft enough so the cheaper grades of hard coal, like the buckwheat and pea, or mine-run, or lumps of semihard coal can be used. One does not need to poke and shake the fire all the time where a blower is used. This saves much coal and makes a big saving in the bill for heating and reduces the volume of ashes.

"The use of the blower will lead to the use of lower-priced coal. After seeing how much can be saved by using these cheaper grades of coal, every one will wonder why they were so tied up to the expensive hard coal, and will be ready to say 'thank you' to the hard-coal strikers and operators who are causing so much discomfort just now.

"I used mine-run Pocohantas for two winters, and liked it. The semihard coal I am now using has no smoke, and we get about two bushels of ashes per week from our steam plant."

Pete Zeith, wanted by the Natal Provincial Police, was arrested here on Thursday from descriptions given, charged with beating his board bill. Chief Halcrow was the arresting officer.—Cranbrook Herald.

THE END OF SESSION

Victoria, Dec. 20.— Fighting to the last ditch over highly contentions legislation, the British Columbia Leg islature wound up its labors of the year late Saturday night, when his honor the Lieutenant-Governor, came in and assented to the seventy odd enactments of the session, and formally prorogued the assembly with the customary thanks.

Friday's warm battle over the Pacific Great Eastern Bill led to a modification of the measure on Saturday afternoon, when Premier Oliver put in an amendment claimed to make clear-cut a proposition against the Government or the directors of the Pacific Great Eastern, disposing of the 16,000,000 acres to be granted to the railway company. R. H. Pooley made an amendment to strike the word grant out of the bill altogether, and make the tract in question merely a reserve. This he claimed would beyond a doubt make it impossible for the land to be alienated without the consent of the legislature, but Premier Oliver said that the amendment would make the whole act of no use to him, and threaened to resign if it passed. The amendment was defeated in committee on unrecorded vote of about the same proportions as the division on the second reading. Charles Woodward, Liberal, again voted against the Government.

The most sensational episode of the debate was Joshua Hinchcliffe's declaration that information reaching him from sources outside the House, when compared with the correspondence members of the Government and certain Portland people who during the past year, tried to negotiate a purchase of the Pacific Great Eastern, led him to believe that there was collusion somewhere, and that the Government was planning to cut a big melon with some of its followers. He produced from the correspondence a letter in which one, S. F. Wilson, of Portland, forwarded a draft bill for the transferring of 15,000,000 acres of land to his nominee, tax free, and including all timber, mineral and oil rights.

"I find a striking resemblance between the proposal and this bill, declared Mr. Hinchcliffe.

The government scoffed at the suggestion. Premier Oliver said that the negotiations with Wilson had terminated some months ago, when the latter withdrew his offer. Attorney-general Manson described Mr. Hinchcliffe's remarks as a "stink bomb," while Hon. J. D. McLean urged the member to come out with a clear-cut statement of what his story was. I decline to be swayed by any idle gossip, he declared.

Premier Oliver protested that the correspondence in question had been shown to Mr. Pooley for his own information, on condition that it was not to be published, and accused Mr. Hinchcliffe of a dishonorable breach of faith in disclosing names.

One feature of Mr. Hinchcliffe's accusation was that in a confidential communication from Mr. Manson to the Premier, the former said he had had his brother-in-law report on Mr. Wilson's status, and the report was highly favorable.

"The member ought to be ashamed of himself," remarked Mr. Manson. Is that the basis for all this mysterious whispering ?"

Another warm passage of the last day pertained to the Minimum Wage act . A whole raft of amendments introduced by C. F. Davie, Conservative, were added to the bill, making it applicable to all industries, instead of merely the lumber industry, as Major Burde's bill, after his conference with Attorney-General Manson provided.

The Davie amendments carried by two to one, but in the last minute before proroguing, Hon. Wm. Sloan sought to have the bill sent back to committee to consider an amendment to make it apply to only the coal mining and lumbering industry. He was overwhelmingly defeated.

The supply bill was completed at the Saturday morning sitting. Mr. Pooley moved to reduce Attorney-General Manson's salary from $7,500 to $10, as a protest against his handling of the administration of justice in the Janet Smith case, and Hon. Wm. Sloan countered with a resolution to increase the attorney-general's pay to $8,500, because he has more work to do than any other minister. When the Pooley amendment was defeated, Mr. Sloan withdrew his after Mr. Manson had declined to accept the increase.

H. D. Twigg's resolution to make the liquor commissioner responsible to the Legislature instead of to the attorney-general was ruled out on a point of order, although Mr. Twigg maintained that his own exactly similar point of order against the Minimum wage act had been thrown out earlier in the day.

"It seems to make a difference whose resolution it is," he remarked.

Mr. Pooley's resolution for a royal commission on taxation and Mrs. Smith's resolution to force the government's hand on bond guarantees for a steel industry both died on the order paper.

Wayne, Dec. 21.—Rose Deer and Jewell mines are working with a good number of men. The Ideal is starting this afternoon and there are a few men at the Commercial. The Excelsior is expected to run to-morrow. Very little picketing. The police have made no arrest. No further trouble is expected. The operators believe their firm stand has killed the I. W. W. menace in this district.

OBSCENE LITERATURE

"Pictures from Paris," whose purpose is obvious in their titles; magazines which are openly or furtively obscene, and that sort of literature which is published secretly, and sold on the sly, are some of the grave dangers to which the youth of the country is constantly and carelessly exposed. The situation, we are told, is probably worse to-day than it has ever been because of new publications constantly appearing on the market and the easier distribution, and the traffic in obscenity is said to be practically without hinderance. In some cities attempts to sell improper literature to children on their way to school are reported. Jersey City recently took a decisive step in barring a dozen magazines from a news-stand, after arresting and indicting the proprietor. The proprietr was permitted to go free on his promise to discontinue the sale and distribution of the magazines found objectionable.

In Philadelphia it is reported that attempts are made to sell improper periodicals to school boys and girls, in some instances at the very doors of the schools, and the ire of the educators and clergy of that city has been thoroughly aroused. According to Dr. Broome, superintendent of Schools in Philadelphia, as he is quoted in The Bulletin of that city, these publicatons form "one of the most serious menaces to our youth to-day." He goes on :

"There is no traffic more insidious or harder to deal with on one hand or more damaging to the character of youth on the other hand than these publications. These periodicals are so candid and frank in vulgarity, both in text and illustrations, that there is no effort to conceal the purpose for which they are published.

"The schools, public, private, and parochial, are constantly exercising the utmost care to counteract these vicious influences. But they can not accomplish results without cooperation from every citizen who believes in clean-mindedness.

"Whether the conduct in this respect is worse than twenty-five years ago, I am not prepared to say. The same amount of foul-mindedness does more harm to-day, however, and reaches more young minds because of the greater facilities for publication."

Chicago is confronted by a similar situation, we read in the Chicago Tribune. Representatives of two hundrd women's clubs, parent-teachers' associations, and other civic organizations, met recently under the auspices of the Chicago Women's Aid and planned to take up with the Federal Government and with the express companies plans to prevent shipments of printed obscenity into Chicago. When the Rev. Philip Yarrow, director of the Illinois Vigilance Association, displayed some of the pictures on public sale and read extracts from some of the so-called witty magazines, the women at the meeting were amazed, we read. "They were both amazed and indignant when Mr. Yarrow told them that a vast quantity of such matter is being sold every week by many of the little book and pencil and candy stores in the neighborhoods of the public schools." This exposure brings from the Dubuque Daily American Tribune (Catholic) a warning to "all parents to be on the alert in regard to improper news-stand material which may bring harm to their children. If it were a dangerous contagious disease threatening in the neighborhood, how quickly would we demand the enforcement of quarantine regulations if there seemed to be neglect or lack of haste in the matter."

In a like serious vein Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, cautions us against many books and plays now before the public. "Many people not at all inclined to pessimism," he writes in The Cathedral Bulletin, "are worried about the bad books, salacious magazines and disgusting shows that are being presented to our people." They believe, he goes on, that this salacity is "the source of the crimes that seem so rampant, and of the waywardness we find in our maturing youth, both boys and girls. Nothing but strong, well-organized public opinion and constant good example can stem these evils and their consequences."

CANADIANS LOOK EASY

The late Mr. J. Rufus Wallingford, deviser of many ingenious easy-money schemes, had nothing on various gestry from across the line who for the last year or two have been engaged in promoting Ku Klux Klans in Canada. Stimulated doubtless by the financial success of the Ku Klux Klan of the British Empire, they have now brought forth, this time in British Columbia, the "Kanadian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan."

Evidently the Canadian field looks attractive to these American promoters, and we don't know why it shouldn't. With an initiation fee of $10 a head as the possibility of levying various special assessments before the individual Klansman gets fed up and quits, there is a good deal of easy money to be made. It has bees stated in the Legislature of British Columbia that of each $10 enrollment fee taken in, the Field Kleagle (whatever that may be) receives $4 and the King Kleagle $2, and that in this way some Kleagles make as much as $75,000 a year. The average for all the Kleagles is said to be but $5,000 a year, but even this sum makes a nice addition to the ordinary income.

We admire the enterprise of these American gentlemen, but regret to see so much good Canadian money go out of the country. If our Canadian boys hanker to dress up in nightshirts and hold secret meetings, by all means let them do so, so long as their nonsense harms nobody, but why pay foreigners $10 per head for permission?

The "Imperial Klazik" of the Kanadian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan according to a press despatch, is Major Luther I. Powell, of Portland, Oregon, and his assistants are Dr. K. K. Allen, Clarence Turner and Theodore Turner, also of Portland, G. W. McKibben, of Bellingham, Wash., and Charles B. Sempley, of Washington. In view of their citizenship the main purpose of the organization, as cited by them, that of "promoting British ideals and British patriotism," is rather striking. Powell, the head of the gang, was admitted to the country on a 30-day permit after being refused entry by the Immigration Department.

The new Klan has other aims, of course, one of which is "to affirm our faith in the Bible of the Pilgrim Fathers." Alongside this declaration in their manifesto is the picture of a bellicose gentleman, apparently attired in his sleeping garb, astride a prancing steed and waving aloft a fiery cross. The fact that the Bible of the Pilgrim Fathers was the King James version, in common use to-day, does not matter. It is clearly U.S. flapdoodle. Another aim is "to make Canada so intensely Canadian that no room will be left for un-Canadian ideals, whether religious or political." This is good, coming from citizens of the United States who possibly have never set foot in Canada until the present, as is their determination to "promote love and loyalty to the Empire as a whole."

Two of their avowed aims seem rather at variance. One of these is to promote "brotherhood, justice and fraternity among all mankind," and other "to strenuously oppose the efforts of certain groups who teach the dangerous doctrines of social equality of all races." The last is in accordance with the Ku Klux Klan's well known hatred and persecution of Jews, Roman Catholics and negroes. Presumably, for the last named, they would bring us the lynch law. If there were any doubt as to where the organizers came from, it would be settled by the terms of their manifesto, which gives every indication of its Yankee origin by its Yankee twaddle. The Ku Klux Klan affirms that it "believes the world can be made a better place for all mankind." Perhaps, but it won't be done by members of a secret society parading in nightshirts.—Saturday Night.

A prize of $1,000 weekly, offered by a Chicago publication for a deed of bravery, comes to Canada for the first time. J. B. Partridge, fireman on the Canadian Pacific Railway, on the run between Calgary, Alta., and Field, B.C., is to receive the reward for saving the lives of five men who were in danger from a huge rock and mud slide on the Field Hill, August 21 last.

Travelling in a five-passenger 1926 improved model Ford touring car from Halifax to Vancouver, J. L. S. Scrymgeous and E. Flickinger are performing a feat unique in the annals of motor travel in this country. From Franz, near Sault Ste. Marie, they travelled on the tracks of the Algoma Railroad to Fort William, having been granted the use of the lines by the Canadian Pacific Railway. The whole run of about 4,500 miles took nearly eight weeks, and a series of still and moving pictures were taken en route to commemorate the adventure.

GAME ADMINISTRATION

At the time the Provincial Government did away with the policy of carrying out game conservation, through the aid of game wardens especially appointed for the task, it was realized by sportsmen that a retrograde step had been taken. Now the Government proposes to go one step further and do away with the Game Conservation Board, hereafter leaving the whole administration of the game laws in the hands of the Provincial Police. It is hardly to be wondered at that the organized sportsmen in the Province are up in arms against the new policy. What the meaning of that policy is does not appear on the surface, but it may be assumed to be designed to strengthen the grip of the Provincial Police, a purpose which has consistently marked the policies of the present Attorney-General.

It was bad enough when the appointment of game wardens as such were, in effect, cancelled, for it meant that the purposes of game conservation were left sometimes in the hands of those who knew little or nothing about the work. Even now, however, there is some sort of check exercised by the existence of a Game Conservation Board. With the abolition of that body the check will be gone and the administration of the game laws will, in reality be centred, in the hands of one individual who will exercise all authority in the premises. The abolition of the Game Conservation Board and the centering of all power in the hands of the Provincial Police should not be permitted without a determined and persevering resistance. What is proposed has, seemingly, been put forward without any consultation with the sporting interests affected. Those interests are naturally alarmed. They foresee the implications of such a policy. The public at large, warned in so many particulars, will be with them in their demand that no such autocratic authority in the hands of legislation as will still further centre one individual should be passed by the Legislature.

"Lots of girls have their fun, as well as the boys," says a prominent woman. We haven't met anybody lately who was having any success in stopping them.

Here and There

British Columbia's whaling industry produces about 400 tons of whale bone meal and 900 tons of meat and blood for fertilizing purposes annually. This is exported mostly to the United States.

According to G. F. Tomsett, superintendent of the Saskatchewan Branch of the Employment Service of Canada, about 43,000 harvest hands were brought into Saskatchewan and distributed over the province to harvest and thresh the 1925 crop.

J. Stapleton, of Regina, ordered two springer spaniel puppies from a dog agent in Liverpool on October 9th. Thirty days later they were delivered to him after a voyage and journey totalling 4,500 miles, the shipment going at the rate of 150 miles a day. This constitutes a record for speed.

Constituting a record for Canada and probably for the world, 3,447,624 bushels of all grains were marketed on the lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Western Canada on November 19. The nearest approach to this figure was the 3,406,000 bushels marketed on October 18, 1915, in the year of one of the greatest crops the Dominion has ever harvested.

Reports received at Canadian Pacific Railway headquarters this week show that four more accidents occurred in cases where motorists drove their cars into trains already in the process of crossing levels. This brings the total of accidents of this kind up to thirty for the year. In all four cases the automobiles were damaged while the motorists escaped with minor injuries.

Eighty-seven black foxes, valued at about $100,000, shipped in 44 crates, arrived at Montreal last week from Buffalo. Twenty-five of the animals were prize-winners at the Black Fox Exhibition which concluded last week, and were on consignment to the Borestone Mountain Fox Ranch at Onawa, Maine.

NEXT EPIDEMIC OF INFLUENZA

Another epidemic of influenza can not be staved off by methods of quarantine and isolation, according to Dr. E. O. Jordan, head of the University of Chicago department of Bacteriology, who discust the efficacy of various preventive measures before the American Public Health Association in St. Louis recently. Practical difficulties in the way of efficient vaccination on a world-wide scale during an influenza outbreak seem so insuperable, we are told, that we can hardly make it the basis of a protective campaign. Face masks Dr. Gordon characterized as having limited applicability. Chlorin and similar gases he dismissed because they have not yet proved of decisive value. He continued, as quoted in Science Service's Daily Science News Bulletin (Washington):

"I believe, however, that something can be done to lower the attack rate in favorably situated small groups, to protect some individuals altogether and to lessen the virulence on the part of the accessory microbes. Difficult to apply, and uncertain of success as it may be, the minimizing of contacts seems at present to offer the best chance we have of controlling the ravages of influenza.

"It is now clear that the first estimates of the loss of life caused by the influenza epidemic of 1918 were data that have since come to hand, of British India of 1921, and other too low. The disclosures of the census make an estimate of 20,000,000 deaths in the whole population of the world probably not wide of the mark. This is comparatively the worst catastrophe of the sort that has visited the human race since the Black Death of the Middle Ages.

"Judging by the past, nothing is more certain than that we shall some day have another visitation of this destructive infection. It is not to be doubted that if it were to descend upon us to-morrow we would, as public-health workers and students of the disease, be little if at all better equipped to deal with it than we were seven years ago. It is conceivable, however, that if we occasionally remind ourselves of the gaps in our knowledge we shall be in a position to study more advantageously the manifestations of the disease. There are certainly also lines of direct investigation which can be prosecuted to-day with some hope of rendering ourselves better prepared."

If the influenza was not a new disease in most parts of the world it certainly was greeted like one and behaved like one, Professor Jordan continued. In many parts of the world the time of importation of the new disease, if it was a new disease, into a region where the so-called endemic influenza had previously prevailed, could be specified to a day. "Its introduction into certain army camps in the United States is known to the day and hour," Dr. Jordan stated.

BRITISH COMMUNISTS

Certain members of the Labor Party in Britain have been exercised because of the recent conviction of some Communists found guilty of sedition. ..They do not believe that Communists should be prosecuted on such a charge. ..They are inconsistent in their attitude because the laws of Communists themselves in Russia are even more strict than the British laws where sedition is concerned. ..In the Soviet realm there is a special section in the statute book dealing with State Crimes, which defines the term "counter-revolutionary" as applied to any act committed with the intention of overthrowing, undermining, or weakening the authority of the Workers' and Peasants' Government. The crime in Russia is punishable by the extreme penalty and confiscation of all property, or it may be reduced to imprisonment for not less than five years and confiscation of property. A State Crime, among other things, is defined as opposition to the normal operation of State institutions or undertakings.

As compared with what would have happened in Russia the sentence on the British Communists is an extraordinarily lenient one. The Criminal Code of the Russian Socialist Federative Soviet Republic is a document of unusual severity where state crimes are concerned. The British Socialists no doubt approve of the Soviet Criminal Code, but they do not approve of the Criminal Code of Britain when their friends come within the ageis of its operation. With them it depends on whose ox is gored. The worker in treason in Britain is treated lightly in comparison with the same worker in Russia, for in the latter country there is rule by violence in contradistinction to rule by reason and justice in British Landes.—Colonist.

DANGER OF BORROWING

Listen to a classic print shop fable; Once upon a time a nickel-nurser sent his kid to borrow the neighbor's paper,and the kid upset a hive of bees and was soon covered with lumps. His father ran to help him and caught his chin on a clothes line and sprained his back and fell and broke a $25 watch. The clothes pole fell over on the car and smashed the windshield, and mother, rushing out to see what occasioned all the excitement, upset a five gallon churn of cream into a basket of kittens, drowning them. The electric flat-iron burned thru the ironing board while she was out of the kitchen, setting fire to the house, and the firemen broke all the windows and chopped a hole in the roof. The baby ate a jar of pickles and got cholera morbus, and the doctor's bill was $15. The daughter ran away with the hired man during the excitement, the dog bit a neighbor's kid and the calves ate the tails off of four night-shirts on the clothes-line.

Jack Frost Brings King Sport to Quebec

Chateau Frontenac Dog Team with trainer. Chateau Frontenac & Toboggan Slide. (Upper right) Trotting Races—Quebec.

What is expected to be the most brilliant winter season in the history of Quebec was launched in that city recently with the formation of the Winter Sports Club which is under the patronage of His Honor the Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Quebec, Hon. Narcisse Perodeau, Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Premier of the Province; and Mayor Jos. Samson of Quebec.

The Club has undertaken to arrange the International College Ski Competition, the International Snow Shoe Convention, the World Championship Snowshoe races, and the famous Quebec Dog Derby. The Ski competition will include a five-mile cross-country race, a ski-jumping contest, and tests in efficiency including Christiana turns.

Sight-seeing tours and sporting events will follow in harmonious succession right through the season in addition to the major events. In the Quebec Open Amateur Ski meeting in February, clubs from Montreal, Ottawa, Berlin, N.H., and others will compete. Ivind Nelson, amateur ski champion, and Oliver Kaldahl will be the ski instructors. A lady instructress is to be appointed and visitors to Quebec will be carefully instructed and taken out in parties.

As usual, skating will form one of the attractions. Lars Grafstrom and Mrs. Allan Kerr will act as instructors. Towards the end of January, arrangements have been made for a skating masquerade on the brilliantly illuminated open rink outside the Chateau Frontenac, while another masquerade may be held in February. The rink will also be available for smaller masquerade skating affairs.

Moonlight ski-runs and sleighing parties, the brightly lighted toboggan slide, music from dancing rooms in the Chateau, all will add to the gaiety and charm of the carnival. The Dufferin Terrace Toboggan Slide runs well over a quarter of a mile. A long climb back, but what a soothing sensation to come flying down a long, smooth stretch of ice as if the toboggan would never stop. Five Swiss bob-sleighs have been acquired and competitions will be arranged some time in February.

Besides the regular hockey league games, negotiations are in progress to arrange an exhibition game between Sons of Ireland and a Princeton University team, while there is also every possibility of having a few ladies hockey teams. Trips will be made periodically to the Shrine at St. Anne de Beaupré, Chateau Richer, Montmorency Falls and other beautiful sites about the city. A number of excursions will be made to the Island of Orleans via the ice bridge with ski-ing on the return journey. This novelty is expected to make a decided hit with tourists.

Fast horses have been trained for ski-joring and will also compete on a track of beaten snow in trotting races.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"SUPPOSE NOBODY CARED"

There is a strong heart-appeal in the slogan adopted by a welfare organization, "Suppose Nobody Cared ?" accompanied by the picture of a wan, neglected little child. Imagination quickly does the rest. Suppose nobody cared, indeed ! The plight of uncared for children would be almost unthinkable, in contrast with the large-hearted generosities on every hand discovering and meeting children's needs.

A Christian pastor has seen the opportunity for a message with this slogan as his starter, connecting it with a striking passage of Scripture in the Gospel of Mark. The disciples of Christ were crossing the Sea of Galilee, in a small boat, with their Lord—

> And there arose a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the ship, so that it was now full.
> And He was in the hinder part of the ship, asleep on a pillow : and they awake Him, and say unto Him, Master, carest thou not that we perish ?

"Suppose nobody cared," that we human beings perish ? The storm on the inland lake was one of those terrifying tempests that sweep down over its waters, and that can readily destroy ships and lives. It is a graphic picture of human experience in this sin-swept world. Men are helpless before the storms of sin in the midst of which they must live ; powerless to deal with the sin of their own natures. And so, through the ages, men have cried out to God, when it has seemed as though He were indeed asleep, and as though the heavens were brass, "Carest though not that we perish ?"

The Lord Jesus Christ, when he condescended to become man, lived during the days of His flesh in an earthly body, subject to the physical laws and limitations of human beings; He was dependent upon food, and rest, and sleep and there were times when He permitted Himself to sleep, as during the storm on Galilee. But even though he slept that boat was not in danger. It has been well said that it was the only unsinkable ship ever made by man, in contrast with the so-called "unsinkable" Titanic and its tragic end. God was not going to let the ship on which His Son slept be wrecked by the "prince of the power of the air." But Christ's own tender solicitude for His terrified disciples at once appears, as "He arose, and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm."

There never has been an instant since the first sin of the first man and woman when God has not cared, or has left helpless humanity alone. God has always cared. The question, "Suppose nobody cared ?" for helpless and lost sinners, is too terrible to contemplate. Nor do we have to contemplate it. Before every man had sinned, God, forknowing man's sin, had cared, and had provided the remedy. The Son of God, one with God through all eternity, was "the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." And any one, who will, may receive by simple faith the all-sufficient sacrifice of "The Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" From that instant such a one, saved by faith in the shed blood of Christ, will know God's loving, all-sufficient care in a way better than his best imagination could ask or think.

Another slogan, adopted by the same welfare organizatnon, more recently in the challenging phrase, "Suppose Everybody Cared ?" It calls forth a mental picture in radient colors. There would not be a neglected child in the whole world—if everybody cared. Nor would there be any unmet needs of any sort. Problems personal and problems political would melt away alike, if everybody cared. The phrase summons each individual, surely, to see that his or her part of the great, unaccountable mass known as "everybody" does the individual caring that is possible.

Will the time ever come when everybody cares ? It may seem hopeless distant. So many are caring, not for others, but only for their own selfish or even sordid and sinful interests.

But the Utopia in which everybody cares in the right way for everybody else is not a hopeless imagination of man. So far from being hopeless, the Scriptures call it "that blessed hope" of the time when "the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of His Christ," when "He shall reign for ever and ever."

God will never be satisfied until everybody cares; and the Saviour who is "able to save to the uttermost" is able to bring this to pass. This is the way the Word of God describes some of the conditions that shall obtain on the earth then :

"The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad .. .. .. and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose. .. ..

"Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped.

"Then shall the lame man leap as a hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing ; for in the wilderness shall waters break forth, and streams in the desert. .. ..

"And the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads ; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."—Toronto Globe.

While it seems impossible to say anything new on the subject of Christmas celebration, the moracle of the season is that the custom of nearly 2,000 years makes practically all things new. The aged become young again through their rejoicing in the delights of the grand-children with the things that once made their own eyes open wide in wonder—memories of their own childhood also come back to them.

It is not simply a jest that papa likes to play—even though he may say it is just to test them—with the toys he buys for the youngsters. Thus while the holiday is particularly a festival for the children, emphasizing the story of the Babe in the Manger, it also has for the elders its pleasures and the wider significance of the world inspiring event in Bethlehem.

ON THE MAIL ORDER BASIS

In a certain Western town a man went into a store and asked the price of an article he wanted. It was $3.25 the dealer said.

inal price "Gee! said the man, "I can get that from the R. Seaton Co. for $2.98."

"That's about what it cost me," said the dealer, "but I'll sell it on the same terms as the mail order people."

"All right," said the customer, "You can send it along and charge it to my account."

"Not on your life," replied the dealer. "You can't have it charged at the mail order house. Fork over."

The customer handed out the cash.

"Now three cents for postage and five cents for a money order."

The customer kept to his agreement and paid the additional eight cents.

"Now 35 cents express charges please."

"Well, I'll be———— !" said the customer, laying down another 35 cents. "Now hand it over and I'll take it home myself before you think up anything else."

"Hand it over? Nothing doing. You'll have to wait a week, the time it would take you to get from Winnipeg. And he put the money in the till, and the parcel back on the shelf. "That makes $3.25, exactly my original price; and it takes you a week longer to get it."

THE PUBLIC DOMAIN

There is no logic and neither rhyme nor reason in the belief of Premier Oliver that the Government will be better able to handle the affairs of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway by endowing that company with an acreage of the public domain larger than Vancouver Island. Mr. Oliver makes a point of the fact that the land will not in reality change ownership, inasmuch as the railway is a provincial concern. That is quite true. It will not change ownership unless a sale is consummated, and in that case the buyers of the railway, provided they are willing to continue it to the eastern boundary of the Province, are to receive a bonus of over 25,000 square miles of land, which, at a very low estimate, is valued at $80,000,000. With a grant of this value available as an inducement to purchase what will be the price asked for the Pacific Great Eastern? Mr. Oliver has given the Legislature no information in this regard.

The endowment of land that it is proposed to give to the Pacific Great Eastern is to be exploited in the event of the Government being unable to negotiate a sale and it is to be exploited by the Government itself. The land could be exploited just as well without any transfer of the acreage into the name of the Pacific Great Eastern. The Government, if it has a steelement policy which will develop traffic for the railway, can implement that policy without any such conditions as are contained in Bill No. 78. It could have done so years ago if it believed that therby good results would ensue. That it has not done so would indicate that the Government has little if any faith in the policy it proposes. Bill No. 70 savors of a political death bed repentance by the Premier, who is aware that his Government has failed to solve the tangle of the P.G.E.

The truth of the matter is that the land endowment policy now devised is put forward for the specific reason that the Government may be given power to negotiate a sale of the railway, subject to approval by the Legislature. That sale, however, if consummated on the basis of what is proposed, would mean the alienation of over 25,000 square miles of the public domain. It would mean that land colonization schemes could be devised by which selected acreages might be disposed of at figures which would net the promoters not only their out-of-pocket expenses in buying the railway, but also a profit, and, in the long run, the railway might never be completed as a colonization road, unless, indeed, it were taken over by either the Canadian Pacific or the Canadian National. There is no indication whatever that either of these railways could be persuaded to purchase the system even with the inducement of a monster land grant, for both will naturally assume that if the Government has done nothing up to date with the land in question there must be too great an expenditure involved.

On the basis of Bill No. 70, if the Premier implements his promise to go ahead with the construction of the Pacific Great Eastern to the Peace River country, and to go ahead with the reconstruction of the present road, in the event of there being no sale, British Columbia will be faced with an expenditure of at least $75,000,000. It will be faced with this expenditure without any assurance of positive results. It will be faced with a continuance of provincial ownership of a railway which will have a prospective debt of some $125,000,000 (the $75,000,000 for new construction and the $50,000,000 constituting the present obligations). It will be faced, too, with heavy expenditures for the development of the lands in the endowment grant for colonization purposes. The implications of Bill No. 70 are far too serious for the Legislature to contemplate at the time. No step of such a sweeping character should be taken until the people are consulted. The Government which evolved this policy should be prepared to seek a mandate for its being put into effect.

Canadian roses grown at Brampton, Ontario, and sent to Sir George McLaren Brown, European general manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, stationed in London, scored a decided hit with Londoners. Large crowds gathered to see the Canadian blooms which were on display in the windows of the offices of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Trafalgar Square.

Christmas holiday passenger traffic to the British Isles was especially heavy this season on Canadian Pacific Railway lines. Over 1,200 passed over these lines in the last two weeks of November, while others arrived later in time to get the S.S. Melita and the S.S. Metagama which sailed from Saint John, N.B., on December 10 and 11. Westerners all seem to be in very good financial circumstances owing to the good crops the past season.

Victoria.—Some illuminating information with regard to the growth of the Japanese population in British Columbia is contained in answers given by the Minister of Education to questions put in the Legislature. The Minister stated that whereas there were 1422 young Japs attending public schools in 1923 and 1725 in 1924, there are no less than 2414 enrolled in 1925. The Chinese attendance, on the other hand, is going down slightly. It was 1346 in 1923 and 1423 in 1924, but this year it is 1313. Of Hindu children there are 26 as compared with 30 last year and 16 in 1923. The white school population, which would naturally be expected to be increasing at a greater ratio, is relatively standing still. It was 92,120 in 1923, 93,156 in 1924 and this year 94,228. In other words, the number of white children attending the public schools of British Columbia in 1925 has increased by two and one-third per cent over 1923, while the attendance of Japanese children has increased by seventy per cent.

AROUSING CURIOSITY

The female form recently became a bone of contention out in Sioux City, Iowa, —not that the particular form which caused the trouble was itself boney. Sioux City boosts a Society of Fine Arts and conducts classes of instruction. Recently a ten-day exhibition of sketches by members of its summer classes was held on the top-floor of a building owned by the County Board of Supervisors. After it had been in progress for six days the County Commissioner made the discovery that the show contained some fifty sketches of the nude female form, and ordered their removal. His legal right to do so was questioned and for two days the offending pictures remained on the walls. Finally the Commissioner took overt action and removed them himself, thus vindicating the morality of the State of Iowa, which holds that there is something inherently sinful in pictures of ladies in their birthday aspect.

The actual result of this campaign against nudity was to give the exhibition such an advertisement, that during the two days when the controversy was in progress the whole population went to see the show and nudity screamed in the newspaper headlines as the leading topic of the day. It turned out that the offending sketches were all studies of a single individual, Mrs. Wilbur Davis, who had served as her husband's model and had afterwards consented to pose for the entire summer class of the Sioux City Art School. Following modern custom Mrs. Davis gave interviews to the newspapers in which she vindicated her right to pose in the "altogether" if she wished to, and declared her opinion that there was no ethical difference between an artistic pose in the nude and one less revealing. To give interest to the interviews with Mrs. Davis, whose physical endowments, it is said, furnished justification, pictures of her both nude and clothed adorned the front pages of the newspapers. Thus those who had not troubled to go and see the Fine Arts show were treated to an exhibition of the unveiled feminine form.

One result of the moral campaign started by the County Commissioner was that school children hearing that something supposed to be improper was to be seen betrayed a sudden interest in art. They flocked to the building where the sketches were on view,, and the County Commissioner devised a counter measure, by ordering the elevator man to exclude children from his cage. The youngsters were not daunted. In droves they climbed eight flights of stairs to gaze on the fully revealed charms of Mrs. Wilbur Davis. Thus the population of Sioux City got a more widely diffused experience of nudity than it has ever previously enjoyed.

All this goes to show the persistency with which so-called moral reformers defeat the ends which they aim to serve. Had the County Commissioner ignored the show it would probably have been seen only by the limited Iowa coterie that is interested in art; but within forty-eight hours nearly every man, woman and child in Sioux City had had the whole subject of nudity thrust on them in the most prurient and offensive way. No one would have taken any harm from a series of drawings, necessary to any intelligent art study of the figure; but the county authorities managed to load with pornographic suggestion what was at the outset innocent.

From Winter's Bite To Summer's Glow

President's Palace and new Plaza at Havana.

Manila-Filipino tree hut near Guadalupe.

She slips out of New York harbor and the Statue of Liberty fades into the wintry mists behind her. It is the good ship Montroyal of the Canadian Pacific Line on her first trip of the season to the West Indies and it is midwinter with all the harshness of that time of year apparent. Icy gusts and cold snow falling into the water where ice is floating. In every way the prospect is uninviting and the passengers are below decks in the warmth of well-lighted, gay salons and cabins. A little over twenty-four hours of sailing elapses, and what a change! We are back in the good old summer time.

Small islands pass and reefs so close on either hand that a golf ball thrown from the deck might waken the dormitory of lazy gulls. In the distance there develops like a smoke pall, an immense range of mountains, and it is sunrise over a calm sea steeped in the glories of color almost beyond imagination, while the air is so warm that the lightest of summer clothing is de rigueur.

The landfall grows, as it were, and stands smiling at us. Gliding smoothly along, one feels minute, with the insignificance of a fly on a floor, gazing at a huge piece of a gilded brown color, so marked are the indentations shadowing the island's precipitous sides—all jags and points.

The little town on the island is hidden with an African shyness, among palm trees. Some fine buildings, church and government, offset the mile upon mile of negroes' wooden habitations that persist until the foothills of the island's watershed backbone; from below, so solemn in its eminence; from above, so impracticable in its crenellations, gullies and rifts. Through the craggy interior splash threading streams and frothy torrents over rocky shelves often garlanded with greenery and rare fronds.

To the north-west where the mountain turbulence subsides, the serried ranks of the sugar-cane are marshalled as far as the eye can see, and banana trees grow in the rich red loam. Ginger roots, the sprouting pineapple, and tobacco are cultivated; but the genial heat of the sun aiding and abetting native indolence, breeds theft and petty larceny. So sugar is this island's staple industry. Permission to view a sugar-mill can be obtained. Nor should the experience be missed. The bundles of sugar cane, loaded with sap, are run up an endless sliding band, to be crushed in a mangle, the stems coming out in dry shreds, the rich juices flowing away to the circulators, large drum containers and copper kettles that boil it. Then vanes, revolving internally, whisk the juice at high velocity thus crystallizing it to the consistency seen in bowls at the breakfast table. A by-product of the process, once thrown away, now as important as its parent industry, is the well-known West Indies rum.

Down grassy slopes by the northern shore where a sea of crystal blue cleanses a strip of shining sand, bathers swim for hours, unwilling to leave the pleasant warmth of the water for the slightly cooler outside air.

Leaving New York on January 28 for the West Indies the Canadian Pacific Liner Montroyal makes fifteen ports of call before returning thirty days later. The Montroyal makes a second trip to the West Indies, taking in different ports, leaving New York March 1 and returning March 30. Shore excursions are arranged for ports where interesting sights may be taken in.

NEGATIVE EVIDENCE IN THE MERCURY GOLD CASE.

When A saw a man and B didn't see him, the evidence of B is usually ot highly regarded. Dr. Adolphe Miethe and others say they have produced gold from pure mercury. Experts employed by the Scientific American have tried the process without success. This is negative testimony, but in the opinion of the Engineering and Mining Journal-Press, the conditions and details of the experiment are such that it must be considered as discrediting the news from Germany and Japan. We read: "Some time ago we duly chronicled the claim of Dr. Adolph Miethe, of Germany, that he had transmutted mercury into gold, and the rival claims reported to have been made by a Japanese scientist that he had done the same thing and done it first. While we, like all the world, recognized that individuality of an element is no longer secure, since various elements have been shown to change into others, and therefore that transmutation of cheaper metals into gold was a possibility, yet we pointed out editorially the unlikelihood that Dr. Miethe had accomplished what he claimed; and further suggested that Dr. Miethe had committed the amateurish error of not testing his raw material and determining whether gold were not present in the gold in the beginning. We observed that mercury almost invariably contains a small impurity of gold, the proportion of which coincides in a general way with the amount of gold held to have been formed by transmutation by the scientists in Berlin and Tokio.

"The Scientific American has had Dr. Miethe's tests repeated by competent scientists, and it has just given out the results, which are negative. It finds that the method does not change the mercury into gold. The Spanish Mercury used by Dr. Miethe, it states, contains a little gold; and this gold separated out during the experiment. The observers state that the mercury that they used was California mercury, and therefore free from gold, but our editorial shows that California mercury does, as a rule, contain gold, although the Scientific American workers did not find it in the material with which they worked. This report closes with a sardonic seriousness: 'Gold can be extracted from mercury, but mercury can not be transmuted into gold.'"

Still if a law satisfied everybody there wouldn't be any need of a law.

According to a report just issued from Canadian Pacific Railway headquarters, an average of one instance of gross carelessness on the part of automobilists every seventeen days is the record during the last three years and two months in connection with level crossings in New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario and the Algoma districts. These instances number 69 from September 1, 1922, to October 31 last, or a period of 1,157 days. They resulted in injuries to 53 persons, of whom two died.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timber land, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill, factory, or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ten [illegible]
