OVER THE BORDER.

The Dominion elections of the 5th inst., evoked much comment from the press of the United States, and your correspondent of 42 years ought to give you the facts for your army of readers, many of whom have read the letters of J. B. from New Brunswick and Britain. St. John is so closely identified with Boston and you with us that we are really closer than to our chief Canadian city, for we cannot forget the kindly sympathy and princely generosity of your citizens in a great calamity which nearly swept St. John out of existence, and left hundreds like the writer twenty millions of dollars poorer in one day.

In February our first Minister stated that on the 5th of March he would appeal to the people of Canada, a year before he intended, in consequence of an intimation through the British Government that your first Minister, Mr. Blaine, and his Government were now ready to discuss the unsettled questions between the two nations, a settlement of all these, on a basis of reciprocity in trade and commerce. Sir John A. Macdonald might have sent delegates to Washington at once and framed such a measure, for he had the power, and a large majority in Parliament to sustain him. But Sir John is not an autocrat, and so he appealed to the electors. He had given in 1878 a measure of protection called the national policy, and this his opponents said was unpopular, He had followed your example and protected our shipping, fisheries, sugar refineries, the working people in factories and every walk of life, and chiefly the farmers, who had paving markets opened at their the working people in factories and every walk of life, and chiefly the farmers, who had paving markets opened at their the ordered Mr. Hesselbacher to obtain the volucy of the writers, and would be held until they were furnished the notered Mr. Hesselbacher to obtain the ordered Mr. Hesselbacher to obtain the or

THE COLUMN TABLE AND THE COLUM walk of life, and chiefly the farmers, who had paying markets opened at their very doors for what was eaten by the workers in these mills and factories. Above all others the farmers were benefited by the national policy, for, comparing the prices of farm produce in the Dominion and the United States, with the prosperous condition of the farmers in this Dominion, the farmers in the older provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward

Do you want a free market for your fish? It will increase the price just 84 cents a quintal. Remember, besides, that Herbert Jones voted to tax you higher on flour, meal, pork, beef, etc., and in every case where Nova Scotia's interests were concerned, took part with the cetton lords

Even now the farmers are undeceived, Even now the farmers are undeceived, and vow if their deceivers "come again they will see lightning after the thunder." The question of unrestricted reciprocity was presented to the people as the policy of the opposition, Continued on second page.
