THE NEW Church Hymnal for sale at the Greetings Office in several Qualities and Styles.

NEWS ITEM — MR. J. W. FLAVELLE, OF TORONTO, AND A PARTY OF MIDDLEMEN FRIENDS HAD A RATHER UN-PLEASANT EXPERIENCE WHILE TRYING TO GET TO ANTI-RECIPROCALITY IN THEIR BIG "PACKER" CAR. TWO MEN WHO WITNESSED THE HOLD-UP DID NOT OFFER TO HELP BUT ADVISED THE PARTY TO HEAD THE OTHER WAY.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is anxious, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, it enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

Delhi: City of the Durbars.

By Mary F. A. Tench.

The thoughts of numbers of King George's loyal subjects are now turned in the direction of the great Eastern City where his coronation Durbar will be held and many who have no personal knowledge of it may be glad to learn something in regard to its appearance and its history. The city which now bears the name of Delhi was by the older writers more appropriately called Jehanabad, seeing that it owed its foundation to Shah Jehan (king of the world) grandson of the great Akbar, and "the most magnificent of the imperial builders of India." Few of Akbar's descendants were heirs to his many virtues, the greater number of them attaining the throne by means of violence or craft, and amongst the former may be counted Shah Jehan, who, in order to gain imperial power, murdered his oldest brother and drove his young nephew into exile. But, his ambition once realized, he became, on the whole, a just and humane monarch, though the splendid buildings which he caused to be raised tell of the vast amount of labor.

Agra had been during the last three reigns the seat of government, whilst Delhi lay in ruins, but Shah Jehan, struck by its splendid position, marking it out as the most suitable site for an imperial capital, built there a city worthy of his state and power. The palace, not alone a royal residence, but a strongly fortified citadel, was pronounced by Mr. Ferguson, "the Ruskin of India," to have been the most splendid of the world. Gone now, alas! are the great marble corridors which once connected the beautiful buildings; in the courtyard where Princess and Peers were wont to take their pleasure in a hideous British barracks; the jewels have been ruthlessly torn from the walls, the peacocks flanking the famous "peacock throne" whose tails are all gilded with gems worth six million pounds, sterling, were carried away more than a century ago by Nadir Shah, but enough remains to prove the words of the great archaeological writer to be true. The principal entrance to this fairy palace is through a mighty gateway soaring to a height of 140 feet, with a vaulted hall 225 yards in length presenting the appearance of the nave of a huge Gothic cathedral, and from the summit of which a fine view of the palace, mosque and city may be obtained.

Having passed the barrack and the bazaar, or market, adjoining it, which it is well to do with lowered and unobtrusive eyes, so unlovely is the sight, so apt of keeping with Shah Jehan's stately dwelling place, we come to the Diwan-i-Am, or public hall of audience, all of marble and red sandstone inlaid with pietra-dura, for the palace is not of purely Indian artist then in the service of the Great Mogul having had charge of its decorations. Far on is the Diwan-i-Khas, or private hall of audience, where Shah Jehan sat on his peacock throne dispensing justice to his people, and surrounded by his officers of state. Close by are the Akhbar baths, three spacious chambers with walls and flooring of white marble delicately inlaid, and then comes the gem of the palace in the Moti Masjid, or Pearl Mosque, its walls, ceiling, floor and graceful Saracenic arches all of pure white marble; hence its name. It also possesses a bronze door of rare workmanship and beauty. Chambers, too, there are whose delicately fretted windows shut out the burning heat of the sun which filters through them, cooled and softly mellowed.

Crossing the Malhan or park, we reach the Jamma Masjid, or Great Malian or considered by many to be the most beautiful in the world, though to some minds that of the writer amongst them, it is somewhat spoiled by a mixture of black and white marble, which gives it rather a pie-bald appearance; but in situation it is superb, placed as it is on a high rock and reached by means of lofty flights of steps.

The city which adjoins the mosque and palace is worthy of them possessing, with possibly the exception of the comparatively new capital of the State of Jalpur, the finest thoroughfare in India. This is the Chandaichauk or Silver Street, which is 74 feet in breadth and a mile in length, whilst down the centre a double row of graceful neem and sacred pipal trees border a path where foot passengers may walk or rest, free from the danger of the traffic of the crowded streets.

Flavor

in tea must be distinctive, pleasing and unvarying to merit continuous use. The flavor of Red Rose Tea is all its own, and it never fails to win and hold approval because it never fails in quality. Try it.

RED ROSE TEA
"is good tea"

How welcome such a path would be in the hurry and bustle of the cities of England, Canada and the United States! The shops in this street are filled with costly brocades, silver work of delicate design, to try, armor and jewels, where the unwary are often led to pay considerably more than they are worth for these beautiful wares.

It is as well, perhaps, to let the dead past bury its dead, but none could leave Delhi without visiting some of the spots sacred from the tragedy, glorious from the valor of the dark days of 1857. Take the Kashmir Gate. Are there any who do not know this story. How, shut against the British troops, it was blown open by a heroic band of men, few of whom were left alive to see their comrades march through, led by the dauntless Nicholson, who, as the inscription on his tombstone tells, "fell mortally wounded in the moment of victory," and whose last thoughts were for England and her honor. He is still worshipped, as a god by many of the natives of India, the "god of war," by those who felt his avenging steel.

Though New Delhi is fairly modern dating only from the 17th century, yet a city of the same name arose in very early days, built by a Hindu king, who called it Dillipour or City of Dilli. It was destroyed hundreds of years ago, though its ruins are still to be seen, and from its ashes sprang, one after another, six other cities, perhaps Taglukabad, with its mighty fortress. Its impressive tomb, is the most imposing, and Lal Kot the most beautiful. For after long miles of dusty road, running midst the cities of the dead, we come to a green and shady spot where rises the perfectly proportioned Kutub Minar, or pillar of Kutub, surrounded by buildings, with all the grandeur of Moslem structure and all the delicacy of Hindu workmanship. The Mosque of Altamish was built from the spoils of a Hindu temple, in the centre of which is a very remarkable pillar, remarkable not for its beauty, indeed, but for its history and workmanship. "It is a striking fact," said Mr. W. S. Caine, "that Hindus so long ago could forge a bar of iron larger and heavier than any that has been forged even in Europe until a very recent date." The weight of this column is six tons, and it was first raised in place in the fourth or fifth century. A. D., recording how Kaja Dhawa "obtained with his own arm an individual sovereignty on earth for a long period," an old and unfulfilled prophecy "of a Hindu ruler should last as long as the pillar stood."

When Lal Kot, the Delhi of those days, was conquered by the Mohammedans in the 12th century, the leader showed his contempt for his fallen foes by allowing their principal pillar to stand in the centre of the great mosque, which he caused to be built from the spoils of Hindu shrines. Close by is the gateway of Altamish, and its beautiful carvings are shown in the illustration.

In the 16th century another race of Mohammedan conquerors, descendants of the fierce Tamerlane and his followers overran this part of India, leaving the capital of the Afghans rulers one with that which they themselves had destroyed three hundred years earlier, and with those other ruined cities the tale of whose fall is now almost legendary lore. And so it comes about that what is known as "Old Delhi" lies beside the more modern city a ruin splendid in its decay: lofty gateway, noble column and stately tomb-telling of the pomp, pride the power of now nearly forgotten dynasties.

Thin Hair! A Liberal Offer.

When the hair thins out on the top of the head and the bald spot is getting ready to appear in public, don't get discouraged or irritable. Just go to your druggist and ask for Parisian Sage Hair Tonic. He will charge you for a large bottle, but if it does not cause hair to grow where the hair is thinning out nothing on this earth will.

And we want to say to everybody, man, woman and child, that you can have your money back if Parisian Sage isn't the best hair grower, hair saver, hair beautifier and dandruff cure on the market to-day.

It stops itching scalp and falling hair and makes hair grow thick and abundantly. All druggists everywhere sell Parisian Sage or postpaid from The Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont. See that the girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. Sold and guaranteed by J. Sutton Clark.

Will Solve Problem of Finding Ties

The Allega extension of the Bangor and Aroostook Railroad, beside opening up enormous undeveloped water powers and a country covered by millions of feet of spruce and pine timber which is now impossible to get to market, will also help to solve the problem of obtaining cheap railroad ties which now confronts nearly every road in the country. It has grown to be a serious question in the last few years and one which one road—the Pennsylvania—is attempting to solve by growing timber for ties on land of its own.

Time was, not so very long ago, when nothing save cedar ties of the highest quality were considered by railroad men. Gradually, as the available supply was cut off, the quality of the wood became lower. Today it is not a question of cost to serve the purpose. As a result of this situation hard wood is now being used extensively as a substitute. And, moreover it is giving an excellent satisfaction.

The cedar was highly regarded because of its durability, the manner in which it took spikes and its flexibility. A heavy train would cause the fibre in the wood to give slightly and the result was all that could be desired. For a long time it was thought that no other wood could be used.

With the gradual cutting off of the cedar and its consequent higher price, experiments commenced to be made with various hard woods. They were conducted with great care and with the utmost deliberation for the matter was regarded as highly important to the future of railroads. Birch, maple and beech ties were manufactured and given a trial. The experiment of soaking the wood in creosote was tried and it was found that this increased the desirability of the ties materially.

At the end of the tests it was decided that beech was the most desirable of the hard woods. When properly saturated with creosote mixture it made a very acceptable substitute for cedar. Locust is favored by the Pennsylvania road and a

Less Travel in Pullmans.

It is given out that the Pullman company officials estimate travel in their cars as ten per cent below last year, and lower still than expectation. It is likely that people hereabouts who have travelled in parlor cars have noticed that it was easier to secure seats than they had expected. There is not the rush that there once was. Does all this mean that the travelling public is not moving this season as much as formerly? We guess not. The public is moving all right, but the element that cannot travel except in parlor cars goes this year by automobile. President Mellon once, discussing railroad matters, was heard by a Courant man to say that the automobile would hurt railroad business more than the trolleys would, and it is manifestly the fact. The trolleys, indeed, in the opinion of the Courant, are helps, not injuries, to steam roads.

The reports from the fashionable resorts in the White Mountains are that at those hotels more than half the people come and go in automobiles. All these omit railroad travel, but, it may be admitted that they do not do this for the saving there is in it. You'd have to hunt for that. They do it from preference: for driving across country, having no horse to tire or get sick, going five times as far as a horse could go and going the next day just as far, being independent of time tables, and all that bests trains out of sight. At the same time it does affect railroad receipts.—R.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Breakwater and Breastwork, Richibucto, South Beach, N. B.," will be received at this office until 4 p.m. on Wednesday, September 27, 1911, for the construction of a breakwater at Richibucto, on the South Beach, Kent County, N. B.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of E. T. P. Sheehan, Esq., District Engineer, St. John N. B., Geoffrey St. Paul, Esq., District Engineer, Chatham, N. B., and on application to the Postmaster at Richibucto, N. B.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a certified bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary,
Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, September 2, 1911.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.

large quantity of it has been planted and is growing on the company's plantation. While beech is somewhat more rigid than cedar and does not take spikes so well, it is, nevertheless, the wood which will probably be used the most extensively for this purpose in the future.

The supply of beech in the country which will be opened by Bangor and Aroostook's Allegash extension is very great. It is especially abundant in the territory on the north side of the watershed dividing the Penobscot and St. John rivers. The railroad tie industry has been an extensive one in Eastern Maine in the past, and after the opening of the new line through the wilderness, it now appears that it will become larger than ever.—R.

Asaya-Neurall is the new remedy for Nervous Exhaustion, Indigestion, Heartburn, Dyspepsia and Constipation result more often from nervous exhaustion than from food. Dieting or pills will not avail. The only remedy is nerve repair. "ASAYA-NEURALL" is and makes possible this cure. It feeds the nerves, induces sleep, quickens the appetite and digestion, and these disorders disappear. $1.50 per bottle. Obtain from the local agent.

The position of Lawrence, Mass., ought to be a warning to other cities. Lawrence is a manufacturing centre, and is a prosperous city. Its civic affairs, however, are in a tangle. It has borrowed all the money allowed by law, and last week when it sought to raise $175,000 from a Boston banking house it was refused. Extravagance and incompetency are the alleged cause of the trouble, behind which, necessarily, is the indifference of the public as to the class of men elected to administer civic affairs.—R.

Occasionally defective staves and headings are made into dowels. Basket makers save the cores from which veneer has been cut and saw them into thin slices for baskets and crate covers.

Brush manufacturers have made some headway in using waste from furniture factories, but the pieces are of so many sizes and of such irregular shape that success has been only partial.

A small porch chair shop has been able to draw a considerable part of its raw material from the waste of boat factories.

Some of the makers on interior finish work their odds and ends of soft woods into small boxes and the hardwood scraps are made into parquet flooring. Planing mills work scraps and broken pieces, unsalable in that form, into boxes for apples, medicines and other articles and into brackets, balusters, rose blocks and small quarter round moulding.

Portugal Afraid of ##### Royalist Attack

Lisbon, via the Frontier, Sept. 11 With a desire to know the exact strength of the positions and intentions sent Luz D'Almeida, chief of the Carbonarios, a secret political society, to the frontier to make a thorough investigation. A report from this official has been received. He says that the royalists now concentrated in the neighborhood of Orense are preparing slowly to advance. They number from 4,000 to 5,000 comprising infantry, cavalry and artillery. They have about 40 pieces of artillery for the most part quick firers. They also have two aeroplanes which are constantly flying over the camps of the soldiers of the republic and especially at Chaves, and troops and the inhabitants are in constant fear that they may drop bombs. The delay in the attack is due to the monarchists lack of funds, says the chief but they are expecting the arrival from Brazil and England within a few days of money to the amount of $2,500,000. Almeida is of the opinion that unless something extraordinary happens the monarchist invasion will take place within a week. The monarchists count on part of the republican troops going over to them as soon as hostilities are opened, but according to the best reports this seems to be a mistake for apparently the whole 22,000 republican troops lining the frontier are loyal to the new regime and intent to kill without quarter in order to avoid a civil war between the north and the south.

There is no doubt that a great part of population of the north will rise in support of the royalists, who, however, are badly armed, and the belief here at least is that they would soon be defeated.

The whole country is awaiting results with anxious expectations. A serious conspiracy has been discovered in the Lisbon state prison. In the last few sentences have noticed that visitors to the 800 royalists incarcerated in this prison invariably carried packages. Yesterday a search was made and it was discovered that the royalist prisoners were armed with revolvers. It was ascertained also that the prisoners intended to murder the guards, as soon as the monarchists in the north entered Portugal and start a revolution in the capital. The guards have been considerably strengthened.

Her Fine Descriptive Powers.

"If there is anything I am proud of," said Emma Weyler, the actress, it is descriptive powers of my sex. Once, when I was playing in Pittsburgh, my best chum went out to inspect some locomotive works, and here is how she described it when she got home: 'You pour,' she said, 'a lot of sand into a lot of boxes, and you throw oil stove lids and things into a furnace, and then you empty the molten stream into a hole in the sand and everybody yells and sweats. Then you pour it out, let it cool and pound it. Then you screw it together, and paint it, and put steam in and it goes splendidly, and they take it to a drafting room and make blue print of it. But one thing I forgot—they have to make a boiler. One man gets inside and one gets outside, and they pound fruitfully, and then they tie it to the other thing, and you ought to see it go!'"

"Only two ribs," he muttered in tones of deep anguish as he wiped his bleared face on his sleeve.

Helping him up a kind man dragged him into a drug store. One thoughtful person suggested a glass of brandy; another, more generous, said there were

The "Oregon" a Prototype of the Dreadnought?

Much has been said and written, during this present era of big warships of the so-called dreadnought type, about the astounding but nevertheless continual increase in the size and power of armor ships; but it takes such a concrete presentation as is shown in our artist's comparison on another page of this issue of the old "Oregon" of the United States Navy and the new "Lion" of the British Navy to bring home to our minds the amazing development which has occurred during the past twenty years.

Turn back to the newspaper files of the early nineties, in which the naval specialist of the daily press was struggling to express his sense of the almightiness of the "Oregon" and you will realize that there was a common belief that the limit of fighting power had been pretty well reached. And there was much ground for the prevailing enthusiasm; for in 1890 the date of the signing of the contract for the "Oregon" there was no ship afloat that compared with her in the weight of metal which could be discharged in a single broadside.

So great has been the advance in the intervening years that the "Lion" with her speed of eight 13.5-inch guns and her battery of eight 13.5-inch guns, could meet the "Oregon" and her sisters, the "Indiana" and "Massachusetts" and sink them without running the risk even of serious disablement. With her superior speed, she could maintain a position so far distant that the 13 inch shells of the older ships would reach her with a diminished striking energy that would be quite insufficient for penetration of her Simpson armor; whereas at the same range the obsolete armor of the "Oregon" and her consorts would be penetrable by the new 13.5 inch gun.

Comparing the old and the new in detail we find that the length has gone up from 348 feet to 700 feet, the beam from 69.3 to 86.5 feet, and the displacement from 10,288 to 25,250 tons. The "Oregon" was propelled by reciprocating engines of 11,037 horse-power at a speed of 16.79 knots; whereas the turbines of the "Lion" will probably develop from 75,000 to 77,000 horse-power, driving the great ship at a speed of between 29 and 30 knots. The "Oregon" stowed 1,450 tons of coal in her bunkers; the "Lion" will accommodate 3,500 tons of coal and 1,000 tons of oil fuel. Although the armor on the sides of the "Lion" will be only about half as thick as that on the "Oregon," its resisting power, because of the harder and deeper face, will be greater.

This comparison is made without any thought of disparaging the qualities of the older ship. Indeed, it is worthy of note that the "Oregon" foreshadowed the original dreadnought and all the great ships which have followed her general plan. The European battleship of the early nineties carried four big guns as the main armament, and then dropped into the feeble five and six inch guns as a secondary armament. The 8 inch, armor-piercing guns of the "Oregon" were a distinct innovation; and it is certainly but just to the naval designers of the United States navy of that day to credit them with having suggested the advisability of an all big gun armament as the best suited to the line of battle. The editor, indeed can remember more than one personal discussion of the subject with officers of our navy who protested against the elimination of the 8 inch gun from the "Maine" class of battleships, and urged that the substitution should have been rather of 10 inch guns than of 6 inch for the eight inch which were carried on the "Oregon." ### The Velocity of Divorce.

The commissioners on uniform state laws have been sitting in Boston to devise a marriage act for all the states. Three representatives, Norris, of Nebraska; Sheppard of Texas, and Howard of Georgia, have been working upon a proposal to invite the governors and attorney generals of the states to a conference with the President upon this subject. The thirty seven governors who will meet in Springfield, N. J., next month may discuss the problem. Meanwhile a report of the director of the census upon the "threefold velocity" of divorce made two years ago upon the basis of an investigation covering a score of years, is borne out by more recent data.

The census bureau estimated that, despite the obstructive efforts of the church and of lawmakers, the ratio of divorces to marriages had increased from 1 to 34 in 2870, to 1 to 15 in 1907. In a letter to The Times of January 24, 1909, Prof. W. F. Wilcox estimated the ratio then obtaining as one divorce suit to every marriage to every four marriage licenses granted in that city; the State of Washington granted during 1910 in its most populous county one divorce to every six marriages and Secretary of State Haywood of Iowa, published figures for the state revealing one matrimonial action in court to every seven marriages.

Can anything be done legally to abate the threefold and constantly accelerating velocity of divorce in the United States? We know that more than four-fifths of the actions for divorce are not contested by the defendant, that they are brought mutual consent and this proportion is constant, irrespective of restrictions upon the number of causes allowed for divorce in a particular state. In nearly four out of five cases the divorce was obtained in the state where the marriage was performed and the fifty case corresponds with the case of every fifth person who removes for any of a multitude of reasons from his native state. The "divorce colonies" in the west had little influence in swelling the 820,000 divorces granted during the score of years.

Authorities like Prof. E. Howard, Dr. Samuel Dike, Rabbi Kraskopf, Prof. E. Ross and Walter Smith are agreed that marriages are not quickly dissolved as granted after an average term in wedlock of ten years; that people do not obtain divorces in order to remarry, or marry in order to be divorced. They are pretty nearly agreed, also, that divorce is but a symptom of social maladies that have their deadly effects long before the procedure of the courts is invoked. Nearly half the decrees are for desertion, and one fifth of them, directly or indirectly, are for interperence, usually of the husband. For such cases Prof. Howard believes that the remedy does not lie so much in the further restriction of divorce as in "a rational system of social and education" that will restrict marriage to those who are fit for marriage.

The fashioning of new divorce laws seems therefore, to be of relatively small importance. Conflicting state laws have a narrow margin indeed, of evil influence. Notwithstanding their spectacular qualities and scandalous nature, there are few evasive collusive divorces, few "easy" decrees granted by the courts. The matrimonial problem is primarily not one of law, but of morals and conduct of character falling within the field of religion rather than that of law. But it has acquired year by year and astonishing significance, and it presses for solution.

Newest Notion in Laws.

(New York World)

From Friday on, in this state, it will be felony to carry a concealed weapon and misdemeanor to own a firearm. A license costing $10 will enable you to be armed. But that may be more than the old revolver in your trunk is worth. To be safe you throw it away, although it is reasonably safe to let it stay in the trunk since the police cannot search your house without a warrant and the offense of possession is a misdemeanor only. But it will go hard with the thug or brawler caught with a "gun" in his pocket.

From Friday on, prize-fighting will be resumed after eleven years of paper outlawry. The bouts cannot last more than ten rounds and must be fought with eight-ounce gloves in buildings safeguarded against fire and under the direction of licensed clubs, which will forfeit $10,000 if these conditions are violated or if there is a sham fight.

From Friday on, it will be illegal to print or paste an advertisement on the property of another without his consent or to post advertising on the highways. It will be legal for any one to remove highway advertising and the Good Roads Committee of the Automobile Club has appointed Fridays "clean up day" when all drivers are urged to destroy these offences wherever found.

From Friday on, the slaughter of wild game in America will be materially checked by the virtual closing of its greatest market. It will be against the law in this state to sell all game save deer, black ducks, mallards and pheasants bred in captivity, and certain stock imported from Europe.

These four laws just about offset each other. It will be profitless to kill game for the market, and with one's pistol taken away it will be hard to kill anything else. But one can legally satisfy his destructive propensities by smashing highway advertisements or by watching daily licensed pugilists smash each other.

ADVERTISE

IN THE

"GREETINGS"

Election Card

To the Electors of the County of Charlotte Gentlemen:-

I have been selected by a very large and representative convention of the Liberal Conservative Party of Charlotte County, to contest this Constituency, at the approaching election of a member to represent the County of Charlotte, in the House of Commons of Canada. I therefore solicit your support at the polls on the 21st of September next.

For nine years I have been honored with your confidence, as one of your representatives in the House of Assembly of this Province, and during that time have spared no efforts to advance your best interests and the interests of this Province as a whole. Should I be honored with enough of your votes to elect me, on September 21st next, in the higher arena, of the Dominion Parliament, it shall be my constant endeavor to advance the commercial and material interests of this County; to promote such measures as will secure to the people of this province a just recognition of their industrial interests and rights; and to support every principle that will strengthen the tie that binds this Dominion to the Mother Land.

I believe the splendid ports of Charlotte County have always been shamefully neglected in connection with all questions of transportation, which have engaged the attention of the Government of Canada. If honored with your confidence, on election day, that all important subjects shall receive my unlimited attention.

I believe that the adoption of the so-called Reciprocity pact, which is an important issue in the campaign, would materially and disastrously affect the great natural resources of Canada, including those of the farm the forest and the fisheries, that its tendency is to lessen interprovincial trade and trade with the mother land, which have contributed so largely to the prosperity of Canada during recent years, to open the country to the great trusts and combines, against whose exacting the people of the United States have been protesting so strongly of late, and to weaken the imperial tie.

For these and numerous other important reasons, which I hope to have the opportunity of discussing with the Electors of Charlotte during this campaign, I am entirely opposed to the adoption of the Reciprocity Agreement, and if elected as your representative, will use every influence that I can command to defeat that measure.

This issue is a very important one in the history of our Country. I ask you to weigh it well before you deposit your ballots. If honored with your confidence, I promise in the future, as in the past, I will give you the best of what is in me to prove myself worthy of the trust.

I am, Yours Sincerely and Faithfully
THOMAS A. HARTT.

Queen Elizabeth's Book of Prayer.

Among the unsold treasures of the Robert Hoe Library is a first edition of "A Book of Christian Prayers," or, as it is more commonly known, "Queen Elizabeth's Prayer Book." The compilation of this work has been attributed to John Foxe, author of the "Martyrs," but, as a matter of fact, the prayer book was compiled and printed by John Day, Dave, or Daie, as the name is variously spelled. This first edition appeared in 1569, and is entitled "A Book of Christian Prayers and Meditations in English, French, Italian, Spanish, Greeke and Latine."

The text of this magnificent quarto volume is in block letter, and is surrounded with a woodcut border, by a German artist, representing the Dance of Death, and Scriptural subjects in imitation of the French "Horae" or "Book of Hours." Queen Elizabeth's own copy is in the Lambeth Palace Library. Mr. Hoe's copy has facsimiles of the first and last leaves made from the Lambeth Palace library copy.

Day was a native of Dunwich. His printer's device was a sleeper, awakened by one who points to the rising sun, with the punning motto, "Arise, for it is day." His first shop was "in Sepulchres parish at the sign of the Resurrection" a little above Holburne Conduit, but, about 1549, he moved to Aldersgate, and built ed much upon the wall of the city, towards the parish gate of St. Anne." He was one of the earliest music printers of England. Among his notable publications was the first edition of Foxe's "Martyrs" Four editions of this work, each with additions were issued by Day, Foxe for some time lodged in his house.

In 1572 he procured "a lease of a little shop to be set up in St. Paul's Churchyard. Whereupon he got framed a neat handsome shop. It was little and low, flat-rooted and leaded like a terrace, railed and posted, fit for men to stand upon in any triumph or show." He had a prosperous and active career of nearly 40 years, during which period he produced about 230 works. Twice he was married and by each wife he had thirteen children. He died at Walden in Essex in 1534, aged 62.

The first edition of the Queen Elizabeth Prayer Book is very rare. Until recent years the Lambeth Palace copy was thought to be the only one extant.

Economy of Strength.

Once when Clara Barton, aged 86, was asked how she managed to keep so well and so vigorous under the stress and strain of her Red Cross work, she said:

"How do I stand all this wear and tear! Economy. That's it, economy I save my strength. When I am not working I rest or play. I do not putter. That is what ages many women - puttering. Half the women I know do not sleep enough. I have cultivated the accomplishment of napping. I shut my eyes and go to sleep whenever there is a lull in my work. It isn't work that wears women out. It is fretting and puttering."

The writer knows a couple of almost exactly the same age 60 years, but the husband looks fifteen years younger than his wife. I think that I discovered the reason for this one day not long ago when the husband said:

"Mother is forever puttering. She never sits down and just rests. I work like sixty when I work, and when I rest, I rest. I never putter and cherish the delusion that I am not doing anything because I am just puttering." The moral is obvious: don't putter!

Newest Skirt Still To Reveal Ankles.

Bringing with him the latest word in feminine fashion from the Rue de Paris in Trovville, Chas. C. Kurzman, the Fifth Avenue milliner, arrived Tuesday. Mr. Kurzman said the little Rue de Paris which is only two blocks long, was filled with smart Americans when he left and that the fashions now in vogue there will be seen soon in this city.

"If I were asked to name the chief characteristic of the new modes," Mr. Kurzman said Tuesday, "I would say curves." The knell of the hobble skirt has sounded. Now everything is curves. The newest skirt is open in front at the bottom to an extent that reveals the ankles. The fact means that with the new skirt much attention must be given to footwear.

"With the new skirt there is possible the attainment of more freedom of movement. It is also more graceful than the tighter skirt, which it has superseded.

"So far as materials are concerned the plaids and reversible materials are most in demand for morning wear, shopping and motoring. For afternoon wear velvets and satins, the trimmings of which are gold, silver or shalowlaces, are now worn.

"Evening dresses are made of broadcloth issues, brilliants or tube beads. Trains with long points are much worn.

"The tendency seems to be toward lines that are simpler than those that have been in vogue.

"Curves are conspicuous in all the newest modes and the day tightly fitting hobble seems to have passed.

"The trimming in the large velvet hats which are now in the mode, are fur, brilliants, tube beads, birds of paradise and ostrich feathers. A great deal of fur will be worn. The brilliants and tube beads will be much used in connection with the feathers.

"In dressing the hair, bands, crowns and caps are almost essential, and more attention now seems to be paid to the dressing of the hair than has been the case."

Bearing Down Pains.

What woman at sometime or other does not experience these dreadful bearing down pains. Mrs. E. Griffith of Hepworth, Ont. says: "A heavy bearing down pain had settled across my back and sides. I was often unable to stoop or straighten myself up and many times each night I would have to leave my bed with the irregular and frequent secretions of the kidneys and just as done out in the morning as an retiring. I was languid and would have to let my house work stand. Nothing I had tried would benefit me. I learned of Booth's Kidney Pills and concluded I would try them, which I did, and soon found the long sought relief. My back strengthened and I began to feel better and stronger. I now enjoy my sleep without being disturbed and feel grateful to Booth's Kidney Pills what they did for me.

Booth's Kidney Pills are a boon to women. She would not be back-aches if she took more of these wonderful pills. They are nature's greatest specific for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder. ## Lost Emerald Mine Found.

The continued increase in the values of emeralds during the last ten years—until at present they outrank diamonds—lends considerable interest, says the Mining and Engineering World, to the recent discovery of one of the old Indian emerald mines in the South American Andes which was lost for over a century.

The real emeralds, as distinguished from the comparable in beauty to the South American gems, are entirely produced from one mining district called Muzo in the republic of Columbia, South America.

The gem was mined by the Indians for centuries previous to the discovery and conquest of the plateau of Bogota in the Andes and the Indians operated in these mines widely separated geographically, named Muzo, Casquez and Somondoco. About 1555, under Capt. Pedro de Valenzuela, the Spanish conquistadores took over the mines, enslaved the native Indians and compelled them to work the mines. So eager were the Spaniards to get rich quickly that atrocious cruelties were practised on the Indian workers and this was carried so far that finally the priests complained to the Crown (King of Spain) that the innumerable deaths employed in the mines adversely affected the ecclesiastical revenues.

This resulted in the importation of African negroes, but eventually the mines were partly closed. During the war of independence in 1816 and later the whole region was so desolated that two of the mines, Cosquez and Somondoco, were entirely lost and Muzo has produced all the gems since that time.

It has been prolific, but the output has been steadily declining during the last ten years and according to the very best information the ultimate practical abandonment must come in the near future unless new veins are discovered, which is deemed improbable by the English engineers formerly in charge of the workings.

For several years a Columbian named Francisco Restrepo, guided only by a few hints contained in ancient Spanish parchment maps in the Government archives in Popayan, wandered far and wide looking for the lost emerald mine of Somondoco. Senor Restrepo knew nothing of geology nor emeralds, yet in 1896 he came upon traces of ancient workings and later discovered very extensive workings which proved to be the real treasure trove, the lost emerald mine of Somondoco, which gives every promise of duplicating the wonderful record of Muzo, which probably was $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 annually for a century and for unknown centuries in pre-Spanish times.

"I shouldn't wonder," he mused in the same pleasant conversational tone. "If Mr. Bunce has retired in this line that he would have been considerably more comfortable had he remained here. The night air doesn't appear overbearing."

"You mean, Marse Gene, dat de house am surrounded wif men," quavered Croup, seeking to peer over the other's shoulder.

"No, he doesn't, but I do," cried Kirby, laughing hysterically. "So this is how you win a woman, Antoine? You will answer to my brother for an attack on a guest of this house," she finished, her anger once more mastering all other emotions.

"Mademoiselle, it is by your brother's orders that I act—and now," replied M. Veaudry.

Even while Adele laughed scornfully a confused babel of cries was heard from the garden, supplemented by hoarse oaths and the sound of running feet. Another moment and Tom Randall had burst into the room. Covered with dust and sweat, white, haggard, half insane with excitement, a prey to the most consuming passion, he was the epitome of violence, talked revenge and audacious hatred as, throwing off Adele's restraining arm, he launched himself straight at Kirby.

Aaron Randall, grave and collected, next entered and methodically placed upon an adjacent chair the green portmanteau belonging to the late lamented Colonel Moreau.

Kirby quietly awaited young Randall's onslaught and, as the maddened boy threw himself upon him, plucked his arms and, despite all opposition, forced him backward into a chair.

"Let me go! Get out of the way, you people!" screamed Tom, like an infuriated child, as Adele and Aaron laid restraining hands upon him.

"We've run you to earth, Mr. Wolf," he added, glaring at Kirby, while he strove to release himself, almost sobbing with impotent fury.

"What, am I?" echoed Kirby, stepping back. "Then I'll show you some fangs."

"Tom! Tom!" implored Adele. "What is the matter? Why do you act this way? You don't know what you're doing."

"Don't!" he snarled, writhing from her grasp and again confronting Kirby. "It's you who are the fool. There's the man we want for the murder of Colonel Moreau!"

She stood back aghast, staring from her brother to Kirby and back again in helpless, doubting astonishment.

"If you will permit me," said Kirby, facing the company and raising his voice. "I will receive Judge Pleydell's friends on the porch yonder. No, Bunce," he added sharply as the other approached. "I don't want you. It's a long hand, partner."

"You should do it," implored Adele, catching his arm. "Oh, don't you see it would be as if I had betrayed you? Antoine," she broke off sharply, a note of agonized relief in her voice as the young couple appeared in the doorway and gently shouldered his way past the Judge. "Antoine, you've told me a hundred times you'd die to do me a service. Now I give you the chance. I want those men driven off my property."

M. Veaudry's face whitened and set as he became the cynosure of all eyes, Kirby's excepted.

"It is a service that I do you, mademoiselle," he said at length, with quiet dignity. "Those are my men out there. I told them to surround the house, and this gentleman knows what for," bowing gravely to Kirby.

"No, he doesn't, but I do," cried Adele, laughing hysterically. "So this is how you win a woman, Antoine? You will answer to my brother for an attack on a guest of this house," she finished, her anger once more mastering all other emotions.

"Tom! Tom!" implored Adele. "What is the matter? Why do you act this way? You don't know what you're doing."

now much water than I had. You want to accuse me of taking it; accuse me of taking that poor dead man's pistol? You'll find that accusation is going to fasten the rope just a little tighter around your neck. Moreau left his pistol in the portmanteau this morning while at my aunt's house, and if I speak the truth it's there yet."

He pointed dramatically to the green leather article his cousin had guarded and Aaron making no move to open it, but remaining preoccupied and silent. Judge Pleydell stepped briskly forward and performed the service, holding significantly aloft the triggering which had almost ended Kirby's life.

"Ha! That looks as if I took it, doesn't it?" cried Tom, turning in savage triumph upon his fauted enemy. "The only pistol I carried in my life was my father's. There it is, protruding from his pocket the silver mounted single shot weapon. You ought to know that pistol." He flashed indignantly. "If you don't, these people here know it."

"You seem to have made your case," admitted Kirby, with cool brevity and indifference. "I believe I'd prefer to go out."

He glanced at Adele, but she had turned away with bowed head, looking utterly crushed. After a moment's hesitation he turned to go, when M. Veaudry sprang forward and barred his way.

"Keep out of this, Antoine!" warned Randall. "You've done your share."

"Yes, I have done my share, but I have not forgotten my honor," replied the young couple, pale with but ill-repressed excitement. "I would kill him, but not by lies. It was a fair meeting. Colonel Moreau was armed this morning. He carried that very pistol you show us here," pointing to the weapon that Judge Pleydell still held.

"The proof is there," he finished simply. "Your cousin, he told me."

"You fool!" cried young Randall, completely outraged at this unexpected action, which he considered base treachery. "What do you want, Aaron?" he added violently, turning to his cousin. "Tell him that's a lie."

But Tom Randall's second witness proved as disappointing, and his nasty, despicable and well executed method of vengeance fell to pieces before his enraged eyes. He, who had not thought twice of fastening a murder upon his enemy, had never for a moment doubted that the necessity arising, this important witness, this blood relation who shared his hatred, would readily swear away the life of their mutual enemy. He had acted without principle. He had reckoned without his cousin's inherent love for common decency and justice. Aaron Randall stood

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Tax Reform League Convention.

One of the most important events of an eventful week in Toronto was the Convention of the Tax Reform and direct Legislation League of Ontario or as it will in future be known, The Tax Reform League of Eastern Canada, since the convention decided to include Quebec and the Maritime Provinces in the work of the League, which has already given active assistance to movements for Tax Reform in these provinces.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

A new constitution was adopted better suited to the enlarged field of the League's work, the following officers were elected:—

President: John MacKay, business manager of the Toronto Globe. Vice Presidents: W. M. Southam editor of the Ottawa Citizen, J. E. Atkinson, managing editor of the Toronto Star, Julian Saie, of the Julian Sale Leather Goods Co. Toronto, H. B. Cowan, Managing Editor of Farm and Dairy Pictorial. Secretary: A. B. Farmer B. A. Toronto. Treasurer: D. P.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

Jacques Toronto, SCIENTIFIC ASSESSMENTS

A feature of the convention was the demonstration by Mr. E. W. Doty, of the Manufacturers' Appraisal Co. of Cleveland of the Somer's Unit System of land valuation as used by the Manufacturers' Appraisal Co. in appraising the land of Cleveland, Columbus, Springfield, Denver, and other American Cities.

The Somer's System, Mr. Doty explained, has nothing to do with systems of taxation. It is merely the simplest way of applying common sense to the valuation of land. Asked if he believed in taxing land values, Mr. Doty replied with characteristic frankness, "Certainly, nobody can be in this work long without becoming a Single Taxer."

FARMERS' INTERESTED.

In the evening, a public meeting was held with Vice President Mr. H. B. Cowan of Peterboro in the chair. Mr. Cowan's interest in Tax Reform, he explained, dated from the insertion of a little item on the folly of taxing improvements which he inserted in Farm & Dairy. This item brought such a flood of letters from all over the country complaining of the tax on improvements that Mr. Cowan was led to make a study of the question and was convinced that to tax land values only was the solution of the difficulty. The farmers, he stated readily took up with the idea.

The following resolutions were presented to the meeting and enthusiastically approved:—

RE ONTARIO GOVERNMENT.

Moved by Clayton Hurbut Preston, Ont. seconded by A. B. Farmer Toronto.

Resolved that the Tax Reform League congratulate the Ontario Legislature on the progressive legislation enacted by the present administration by which the exemption of income tax has been increased, the farm lands exemption in cities has been abolished and cities allowed to appropriate land affected by public improvements in order to secure the increased value caused by public expenditures.

And that the Tax Reform League express their appreciation of the good work done for the cause of Tax Reform by Mr. A. E. Fripp, M. L. A. (Conservative) in his able presentation of the need for tax reform in presenting his bill allowing Municipalities to reduce taxes on improvements and increase taxes on land values; by Mr. A. G. Mackay leader of the Opposition and Mr. Allan Studholm for their support of Mr. Fripp's Bill on the floor of the House.

And that the League respectfully urge the Government to consider the widespread demand for Tax Reform as expressed in the petitions of more than 370 Municipal Councils, 200 Trade and Labor Organizations and 200 Ontario newspapers many business concerns, and enact legislation allowing Municipalities to reduce taxes on buildings, improvements and business assessments and increase taxes on land values, and thus prevent this important question from becoming a party issue in Ontario Politics.

RE CHURCHES

Moved by Allan Studholm M. L. A. seconded by Dr. H. H. Earner B. A. L. L. D.

Resolved that the Tax Reform League congratulate the churches on the increased interest they are taking in social problems, and commend to them a special study of the relation between taxation and the problems of the slums overcrowding, and the depopulation of the rural districts.

Moved by Alan Thompson seconded by Allan Studholm.

Resolved that the Tax Reform League express to Joseph Fels their gratitude for his generous financial assistance to the work of the League, and their appreciation of his great services to the cause of humanity by promoting Tax Reform throughout the world.

The Torpedo Fish

A recent addition to the division of fishes in the new National Museum in Washington has proved one of the most interesting specimens in the entire collection. It is the electric ray, known in the language of the scientists as the Narcine barbatilis, harmless enough as to name, but capable of repelling its enemies in a manner peculiarly its own, which gives it its common title of the "torpedo" fish.

The electric ray is of the skate variety with a broad, flat, nearly oval head and body, and a tail something like that possessed by the majority of well-known fishes. Its mouth is on the under side, and it can only feel the way to it when feeding. But the real curiosity about this fish is the fact that it carries its own storage battery with it on all wanderings, and that it has the power of recharging the thousands of little cells when they become exhausted, using its power over and over again. There are really two batteries. They are located where one would naturally expect to find the breathing apparatus of the fish, to the right and the left of the beady black eyes and back. They are kidney shaped, occupying perhaps one-third of the upper part of the body.

When at peace with itself and the rest of the world the torpedo fish swims around at leisure or rests in shallow water burrowing in the sand at ease, but if attacked the battery is discharged and the enemy is glad to call it a drawn battle if it can swim away. It gets its prey by using its batteries to supply the necessary current to kill, but it must first complete a connection with the object of its attack. Men have speared these torpedoes in shallow waters and have caught them in net, but on handling them have been very glad to let them go, and avoid further shock. Fishermen have been repeatedly knocked down by a contact with them. The species is common along the South Atlantic and Gulf coast.—Ex.

Dizziness.

Mrs. J. B. Renaud of Aldrich St. Sturgeon Falls, Ont. says: "I have suffered for months with a very weak stomach I had dizzy spells and at times could not retain any food at all. I tried many number of remedies and prescriptions but none seemed to relieve me until I tried Mi-o-na tablets. I used one box only and they have completely cured me of my troubles. I am pleased to recommend Mi-o-na as I know it to be a remedy of merit."

Mi-o-na is sold everywhere by druggists 50c. a box and is guaranteed to cure dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, nausea, heartburn, sour stomach, belching of gas, dizziness, heavy stomach and car sickness, vomiting of pregnancy and the after effects of over-eating or drinking—or money back. Postpaid from The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Sold and guaranteed by J. Sutton Clark.

A "Cowless" Dairy.

The ingenuity of some people in making a living off the unsuspecting public is almost beyond comprehension. Away out in the State of Washington, on the Pacific coast, a man was charged the other day with operating a "cowless" dairy. He bought cheap brands of condensed milk and by the use of water and sugar of milk prepared a mixture that sold readily for fresh milk. He had fifty customers in some of the poorer districts of Seattle, to whom he delivered this milk every morning, and not one of them complained of the quality or that there was no cream on the milk. He might have kept on delivering this spurious milk had not the city inspector collected a sample of the mixture and had it analyzed. Then the imposture was discovered and the fellow prevented from doing business. And so it goes. Every once in a while some genius invents some fraud of this kind and works it off on the public without their knowing that they are being deceived in any way. And the dairy business more than any other seems to furnish opportunities for this kind of thing.—Canadian Farmer.

Sassafras Oil For Mosquito Bites.

It is generally known how valuable a preventive against the bites of mosquitoes, fleas, gnats, midges and so forth oil of sassafras is. If in a susceptible person the oil is applied at once to the place that has been bitten it almost invariably prevents the poisoning altogether.

If applied to the inflamed spot a day or two after the bite it at once stops irritation. To those who live in the country and whose life is made a burden by undue susceptibility to insect bites and to those who have not yet returned from holiday making in regions infested by biting insects oil of sassafras should be a great boon, and it is harmless as an external application. --Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette.

Parcel Post-Why Not?

The farmers of Canada are gradually learning by experience how advantageous is rural free delivery. The system is being put into operation as rapidly as the routes can be arranged, and the boxes etc., prepared and placed into position. But rural free delivery would be infinitely more valuable to the community if we had a parcel post system in Canada equal in efficiency to that existing in Great Britain. There is in Canada too wide a margin between the producer and the consumer. This must be narrowed. It is in the interests of both producer and consumer that it should be narrowed. The express companies and the middlemen are now standing between the producers and the consumers. Some middlemen are quite legitimate, while some are not, but it would be difficult for anyone to justify the existence of the tolls which the express companies demand and collect. The system of modern merchandising has been built up at too great a cost. The expenses of maintaining the system and the excessive profits are paid by the producers and the consumers. The tax of transit is altogether too great. It is unfair. It hampers trade and adds enormously to the cost of food products and of manufactured articles. The demand for a lesser tax in transit is imperative, and must be met. If the next Liberal Government is urged to deal with this matter by instituting parcel post the relief will be great. There will still be plenty of work for the express companies to do at rates determined by the Canadian Railway Commission.

You Breathe It.

By the simple act of breathing, we inhale life and death. You breathe air crowded with disease germs. These lodge in the membrane and at once commence their deadly work. In a night you develop a cold and before long you are in the grip of Canada's deadliest enemy--Catarrh. You also breathe Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) and by so doing breathe in life--Hyomei is medicated and vaporized air. In its journey through the breathing organs it arrests and kills catarrh and cold germs soothes the inflamed membrane and commences the work of healing. Ask druggist J. Sutton Clark what he knows about Hyomei. You will find that he not only sells it but guarantees it. A complete outfit will cost you $1.00 from your druggist or post-paid from the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. You will find it invaluable for coughs, colds, catarrh, and all kindred diseases. Money refunded if it fails.

A Market Opportunity.

For many years the United States has been placing the greatest emphasis on industrial development. The whole nation has devoted its energies to the working up of raw materials, and the urban and factory population has increased out of all proportion to the number of people on the land. For generations the United States farmer has, in his careless way, produced ample food supplies, but the time has come when the land has lost its virgin fertility, the deterioration of farm produce has been marked, and increasing quantities of food products must be imported from the outside.

This year, owing to the drouth and other causes, the great crops of the country are short. The corn crop alone will be, according to estimate, 500,000,000 bushels short of last year. This shortage is so great that it is difficult to comprehend its magnitude. There are thousands of people in the United States who use cornmeal as a regular article of food just as Canadians use oatmeal and bread. But most of the corn is used to feed hogs and cattle, to make pork and beef. Horses also are fed largely in the corn areas on the same grain. The shortage of this one crop will make a vast difference in the production of all kinds of live stock.

The drouth has had another important result. Pastures have been short and difficult to get, so thousands of stockraisers have been forced to sell their cattle, hogs, sheep and horses for what they could get for them, or let them starve and die of thirst. This is the chief reason why from May till the end of July live stock was sacrificed in great quantities on the markets of the United States.

Farmers had to sell because they could not feed their animals profitably. Now there is a shortage of the meat animals. Prices for good quality market cattle and hogs are beginning to advance, and will most certainly continue to advance for some time to come.

The shortage of the oat crop is estimated at about 300,000,000 bushels from that of last year. Wheat is 30,000,000 bushels below 1910, and hay about 12,000,000 tons. The actual results of the harvest may not prove so disastrous as these sensational figures indicate, but there is still a very trying condition to face.

It is scarcely any wonder that the people of the Republic are anxious to get all the food products they can from Canada. There is a wonderful market opportunity before the Canadian farmer who has the products that are needed to feed the city and factory population of the United States.

Fascinating New Zealand.

The real New Zealand of to-day is not so well known as it should be, writes Arthur J. Rees, in the Empire Magazine. It is the most beautiful country on earth, for in the narrow compass of its 104,750 sq. miles--about six-sevenths the area of the United Kingdom--the scene of six of the most picturesque countries of the world is produced; the mountains and fjords of Norway; the Alps of Switzerland; the thermal springs and volcanoes of Japan; the lochs and lakes of Scotland; the abrupt chasms, dizzy depths and wonderful waterfalls of California; and the sensuous charm of coloring and sunny stillness of Italy. But New Zealand has to pay the penalty of beauty in the heroics of guide books whose writers have failed to see that their lavish use of superlatives has unwittingly conveyed the impression abroad that New Zealand is chiefly a tourist resort where the visitors are shown hot springs by stately tatarooed Maoris in feather mat. New Zealand, with comparatively few birds and no animals of its own has so readily adopted the imported "game" animals and birds and fishes in its hospitable woods and waters as to circulate more guide-book impressions that New Zealand is remarkable as a game-hunting wonderland. The real wonder of New Zealand to-day is its people. New Zealand is growing up more like her mother than any of the other daughters of the Empire, but although there is some similarity in temperament between the Britisher of the South and the Britisher born at the colder homestead of the race the New Zealander is facing the problems of civilization in his island home in his own way.

Meaning of the Dispute over Morocco

(New York World.)

With the return to Berlin of M. Jules Cambon, the French Ambassador, with precise instructions from the French Cabinet, the 'conversations' on the Morocco question will be renewed with Herr Kiderlin-Waechter, the Foreign Secretary. The extent of Germany's demands for compensation, if they have ever been exactly defined, is still a diplomatic mystery. But France now offers to Germany certain portions of the French Congo in exchange for the absolute recognition by Germany of France's rights in Morocco.

Under the Algeiras convention of 1906 France was granted distinct powers and assumed distinct duties in Morocco. France and Spain were to control the policing of the country from the eight main ports. When the Sultan this year was threatened with a rebellion and was reported to be under siege with his forces in his capital, a column of French troops was despatched to Fez. While this movement was under the German Government remained passive and seemed to approve France's action. Two years ago in a separate agreement France and Germany between themselves established their political and economic positions in Morocco.

The sending of the German warship Panther to Agadir came like a clap of thunder in a clear sky. It was taken in every European capital to be a threat against France, and the latter attitude of Berlin leaves no other interpretation of it. In itself Agadir is a closed port on the southwest coast of Morocco, hardly more than an open roadstead, an almost deserted settlement without trade of foreign population. On the heels of its occupation of Agadir, Germany demanded compensations from France and created a situation in which diplomats read only signs of war.

So far as Germany's entire trade with Morocco can be estimated from official reports, it is of trifling value. From 1906 to 1908 the total exports and imports of Morocco annually amounted to about $24,000,000, of which Germany's share was about 12 per cent., or less than $3,000,000. Hides, skins, cattle and other animals, almonds and raisins are the chief exports, and cheap manufactures the chief imports. But back of Germany's move, it is believed in well-informed quarters, are influential private interests like the Krupp and Mannesmann, which seek exclusive mining and trading concessions. Rich iron deposits and disused mines and the abundant supply of antimony to the south of the Atlas are an alluring bait to concession-hunters who have behind them the greatest military power in Europe.

With all respect for Germany and its civilization, the policy adopted at Berlin seems to be a plain case of black-mail. Berlin says in effect: "We have no land in North Africa. We have come too late, and if you do not give us a slice of Morocco we want some of the Congo."

Hasty jingoes like some of our esteemed contemporaries jump at the conclusion that war is imminent. There will be no war, for the sentiment of Europe is against it. Nor does France stand alone and defenseless, for England's interests are almost equally involved. Imagine a dozen or two English Dreadnoughts between Dover and Calais preventing any German ship from getting in or out of port. With such a naval force as a barrier of destruction, what would become of the great commerce of Germany that has been built up at such infinite pains and expense?

The Kaiser is not a madman. He may bluster and make difficulties over a compromise and secure an addition of some sort to German territory in tropical Africa where German colonists refuse to settle, but he will not risk the peace and power of his empire upon a war in which even victory on land would be disastrous to his own reputation and the welfare of the German people.

Three Arrests in big Lottery Raid

By the arrest of three men and the seizure of thousands of lottery tickets on Thursday in an office in Rose street the police believe they have checked the big game and lottery enterprise since the time of "Al" Adams. So extensive were the alleged operations of the band that $50,000 is said to be a conservative estimate of the monthly receipts. Besides hundreds of agents in New York city, the lottery is said to have representatives in every large city in the United States.

The police have known for almost a year of a lottery in this city, modelled on one of Italy. Tickets had been obtained, identical with those of the Italian lottery except the royal coat of arms, used on the latter, did not appear. On these tickets were printed "Lotto Pubbico Italiano". The lottery here is said to have had no connection with the one in Italy of the same name, other than the use of the same system of numbers, so that the drawings in Italy indicated the winners in this country. Each ticket sold here, stated the date and place of a drawing in an Italian city. The Italian squad of the Detective Bureau arrested several alleged agents of the lottery last spring but had been unable to find the head-quarters of the band.

The clew which led to the arrests came from the purchase of three new printing presses. Policemen on entering the office report finding in addition to the tickets, plates and forms for printing them and proofs of the first issue of an Italian newspaper. Giochino Pistelli, Endoro Pistelli and Ottone Cianni were arrested on a charge of having lottery tickets in their possession.—Ex.

Telephone System of the C. P. Railway.

The new telephone system of train dispatching went into effect on the Atlantic division of the Canadian Pacific Railway from St. John to Megantic at midnight Sunday or 12.01 this morning.

The whole system was ready for use a few weeks ago and the date of its official adoption had been announced, when, at the last moment, it was decided to make Brownville Junction the chief dispatching point of St. John. This course was decided upon as it was thought that the system could be operated from a central point. Accordingly extensive alterations had to be made and these have just been completed.

The change involves the removal of a couple of dispatchers from St. John. Mr. T. A. Stevenson and Mr. R. H. Bruce will probably go to Brownville Junction or Woodstock and Mr. W. F. Noble, who was a dispatcher, has been made chief operator at St. John.

Another important change in the staff is the promotion of Mr. Walter Brown, train master and chief train dispatcher to the office of assistant superintendent, with jurisdiction over the lines from St. John to Vanceboro and Fredericton and over the N. B. Southern line to St. Stephen.

The operators along the line are using the telephone key for all train messages.

Election Card

St. Stephen, N. B., Aug. 22 1911.
The Electors of The County of Charlotte.

Gentlemen:— I have been chosen, by a very large and representative convention of the Liberal Party of Charlotte County, as the Candidate to solicit your support in the approaching election, in behalf of the policy of that Party and the Reciprocity Agreement now before the people for their decision.

During the three years I have had the honor of being your Federal representative, I have labored diligently for the interest of Charlotte County in legislation, public works and betterments, that would be helpful to the business, safety and comforts of our people.

Should I again be honored by you on Sept. 21st next by being elected your representative to the Federal Parliament, I shall use every effort to advance your interests as well as those of the Province and the Dominion at large. In thorough accord with the Government, who will rule the next Parliament, I feel I can assist greatly the many interests of the people of Charlotte County if elected their representative.

I believe very strongly in the great good that will come to our County and the whole of Canada by the adoption of the Reciprocity Agreement, which is the great and sole issue before the people in this election.

Both parties have tried to get fair reciprocal trade relations with the United States for many years, and it is now our chance, if we so elect, to profit by this agreement. Any tariff put upon the products of the soil and sea, give not the slightest gain or assistance to the farmer or fisherman. It lessens the great value of his labor, in the home market, and bars him largely from getting into a foreign market. Not tariffs, but larger markets are what the farmers, lumbermen and fishermen need for their best prosperity. Under the proposed Reciprocity Agreement one of the very best and largest markets will be opened to us. Our farms and homes will increase largely in value and our present prosperity greatly enhanced. The heritage of fair and just trade taken from the farmers, the lumbermen and the fishermen by hostile tariffs will be returned to them by the adoption of this Reciprocity Agreement.

I desire, dear sirs, above all things, to be your chosen member to assist in Parliament, in obtaining this great boon for you.

I am, Yours sincerely,
WILLIAM F. TODD.

Most of the veterans seem somewhat suspicious of the innovation but those who have seen it work in other places are satisfied that they will soon get used to it and like it better than the old way. The telegraph lines will still be kept in operation for commercial messages and for use in case of accidents to the telephone system.—Ex.

Cover and let stand overnight in the morning, drain, put in a preserving kettle and add two pounds of white mustard-seed and three bags of whole spices (cloves, cinnamon and allspice), allowing one table-spoonful of each spice in a bag. ### Good Hints

An immaculate mistress is essential to good health. It is well to have a separate cover that buttons on, so that it can be frequently washed.

A cloudy day is the best for washing windows, because the warm sunshine dries the water too quickly, and the window is likely to be streaked.

NOTICE

Owing to the failure of the Lords Cove Team to keep their engagement on Labor Day or to even notify us as to their intention, so that we could arrange with some other team for the day, and to the fact that we have had several games postponed on account of rain, which we could not arrange later, we have been under more expense than our gate receipts will cover so we respectfully ask all whose names are attached to the Guarantee Fund would hand their amounts to the Treasurer.

"The passion for flying has certainly caught on in my district," said Assemblyman Sullivan. "A nine-year-old boy up there decided one day, after watching a goose fly across the yard, that if such a thing could fly by merely flapping its wings there was no reason why he, Willie Spratt, shouldn't fly by flapping his arms a few times and then boldly plunged off into space. He landed on the side of his head, and to the boy who was watching him said: "The trouble was I forgot to flap."... New York Herald.

The Changes of Time.

The Liberal party has now been in power for fifteen years. During the early history of the Liberal Government the Conservative organizations all over Canada were wont to picture the late Mr. Tarte as the "Master of the Administration" and to describe him as a boodler and grafter of the worst type.

Previous to the election of 1909, Mr. Tarte had taken the ground that Canadian soldiers should not be sent to South Africa, and the Star and other hysterical organs had denounced him in the strongest and most violent language as a traitor, or to the British Crown. His objections were over-rated and the Canadian soldiers went to South Africa and won honor for themselves and for the empire.

Mr. Tarte never forgave Sir Wilfrid for overruling him in this question of public policy and shortly afterwards he was asked for his resignation and left the Administration. The Conservative party then received him with open arms and invited him to their fullest confidence.

Bourassa, too, was denounced as a traitor and as a renegade, but the Conservatives have him at the present time. Then it was Mr. Sifton, who became the nightmare to the Conservative party. They wanted to know how he made his fortune. Was it through graft and boodler? He went to Ottawa a poor man and in a few years, the Conservative papers charged, had amassed millions. Judging by the language that the Conservative organs used, Mr. Sifton was a disgrace to any political party, but today we find this same Sifton guiding and directing the Conservative forces in Canada. In fact the outcasts of the Liberal party seem to be good enough to become the leaders of the Conservative forces.

According to the estimates which the Conservative papers had put on Messrs Tarte, Bourassa and Sifton in former years, they could not possibly become any worse than they were then. Yet with all the sins and iniquities charged against them, they seem to be good enough for the Conservative party at the present time.

Italy's "Moving Schools"

Rome, Sept. 5.—An interesting experiment is being carried on in the arid district about Rome, along the sea coast and among the Abruzzi Mountains, which has been possible only through private charity.

Illiteracy has always been a characteristic of the Italian peasant, especially in the south; so much so that while the percentage in the north is almost negligible that of the south is so great as to raise that of the whole kingdom to about 50 per cent. Education is obligatory, but it is difficult to enforce when the peasant cannot even dress his large family decently, and the children perhaps have to tramp miles for the privilege of attending school, while in the mountains or in deserted districts there are often no schools available.

It is just this want which is met by the present plan. What are called "moving schools" have been established in districts where there are no regular schools and they are in one spot today and far away to-morrow. They comprise night schools for the workers, summer schools for the peasants coming down from the mountains to the plains, and children's classes in the open air or set up under any available shelter.

Says He Was Kicked Out of Liberal Party.

Montreal Herald: "I'm not taking any part in politics now," says Mr. David Russell to the Herald last night, "but I feel it my duty to put a stop to J. N. Greenshields running around the country misleading the public. He says he left the Liberal party on account of his not being able to swallow the reciprocity agreement. Great heavens, what next!"

Mr. Russell. "The facts are that we were both kicked out of the Liberal party in 1904. We went to Ottawa after our defeat in that election to sell La Presse and get back in the ranks. The argument we put forward to the Premier was that the purchase of the French journal was merely a matter of business and that we had no hard feelings against Sir Wilfrid or his Government. Sir Wilfrid refused to swallow our story, claiming it was an insult to his intelligence. J. N. and I returned to Montreal thoroughly satisfied that our political career was at an end, and I was surprised to hear that he had come to life again."

Mr. Russell also told The Herald that Mr. Donald McMaster, K. C., had come from England especially to represent him in his case against the Pinkerton Detective Agency, and would remain until after the trial. Mr. Wm. J. Burns, the famous detective, is coming to Montreal direct from San Francisco on Saturday, when an important conference will be held with regard to the alleged asylum plot. -E.

Wm. Garnett a native and life long resident of this parish died on Tuesday morning at his residence about a mile up the river, on the Manor Road. He had reached the advanced age of 83 years. He leaves a wife, three daughters and one son to mourn their loss.

LOCALS

The Strm. Connors Bros. did not arrive until noon Tuesday and discharged her freight into the warehouse, leaving again on the same tide.

Schr. Grace-Alice of Calais, Me., 19 tons, was here this week with a load of grey granite from Red Beach, part of which was for Tayte, Meating & Co. The balance was taken to St. Stephen for the Montreal market.

Eldre Gillmor who has been so ill for the past two weeks is still very low with slight hopes of recovery. Last week his leg was amputated just below the knee, but so far has not resulted as favorable as was hoped.

Fishing at Lepreau is said to have been of record breaking proportions lately. It is reported that while all have done well, the Ellis brother, it is said have cleared $3000, apiece during the past few weeks.

To-day (Thursday) the train is again at her winter tricks, two cars derailed near Duck Cove, expected here about 10 o'clock, but the wreck proved so late that the train was cancelled and mail will not arrive till Friday.

In fact the whole summer, the hours of arrival have been very little better than in the winter, it being from half an hour to an hour and a half late almost every day.

To-day (Thursday) nomination proceedings are going on at the Shiretown, the C. P. R. ran an excursion under a $150 guarantee one half from each party. It left Lepreau in the morning for the junction where the St. Stephen train will meet it there both to St. Andrews. It is expected on its return it will leave St. Andrews about 6 p.m. The excitement did not seem to be very intense as only about 50 to 100 people including the two bands were on board, leaving St. George.

The Annual Convention of Charlotte County Sunday School Association will be held at St. George on Sept. 25th and 26th. Each school is entitled to send two delegates besides its Superintendent and Pastor. It is hoped that all the schools in the County will be represented. It is very important that delegates be elected at once and their names sent to the chairman of the entertainment committee, Miss Edna O'Brien, St. George, on or before Sept. 23rd. All persons going to the convention over a railroad must ask and procure a standard certificate and purchase a single ticket at one first class fare. The certificate when signed by the President of the Association will procure a ticket for the return passage free if fifty attend or for one quarter fare if ten or more attend. Will all the Superintendents please attend to this that we may have a good attendance.

(Signed) W. H. Farnham, President.

Obituary

The home of Mr. Enos C. Justason was again saddened on Thursday Sept. 7 by the death of his daughter Lois at the early age of 14 years and 11 months.

Much sympathy is felt for the family so lately bereaved of a wife and mother and now of a loving daughter and sister.

By her mild and loving disposition she became endeared to the hearts of all who knew her.

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon and was largely attended, testifying to the esteem in which the deceased was held. Services were conducted by Rev. J. Spencer.

Card of Thanks.

Enos Justason and family wish to express their heartfelt thanks to all the kind neighbors and friends who have aided them during the sickness and death of their daughter and sister, Lois E. Justason, also to those who sent flowers for the funeral.

St. Andrew's 50th Year.

Edinburgh, Sept. 12.—Delegates from the universities and learned societies of all the civilized world, noblemen and many others of note, assembled to-day in Scotland's ancient ecclesiastical capital at the opening of the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the University of St. Andrews. Among the Americans present were Prof. Josiah Kovee, of Harvard University; Prof. Bernard P. Moses, of the University of California, and Dr. Leonard Stejneger, representing the Smithsonian Institution.

St. Andrews was founded in 1411 by Bishop Warlaw and is the oldest university of Scotland. Prior to its founding the only opportunity for the education of the Scottish youth lay in pilgrimages to other countries.

The. Ksgiving Day Probably Oct. 30

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—Thanksgiving day will probably be fixed this year for Monday, Oct. 30. The proclamation will not be issued until the government meet after election day to consider the matter. However, the day chosen is always a Monday near the close of October. Last year Thanksgiving was observed on Oct. 31.

The American fishing steamer Arbutus recently seized at Sydney, N. S., has been released. The owners have given a leave bond not to again infringe Canada fishing regulations.

Final information is now being obtained by the census commissioners, who are being sent to all houses which were reported vacant in June. This will make up the counts of Canadians complete.

The Minstrel Boy Died at a Green Old Age

An aged wandering singer, rhymster and story teller, who was said to be a descendant of one famed in the days of minstrelsy, died recently in the hospital in County Meath, Ireland. He was the last of the old school of so called poets who lived by story telling and verse making at farmhouse firesides. His name was Thomas Smith, and, according to report, one of his ancestors wore cap and bells and served as a jester to a prince. In his boyhood Smith, it is said, wore a faded doublet of alternating stripes of yellow and blue, which had been handed down to him as a relic of his great-grandfather's fame as a countryside fiddler.

His stories for the most part had to do with the fairies, and always presented the good fairy in the part of straightening tangles and easing the path to happy marriage. His visits throughout the country were made with scheduled regularity and an evening with the poet was the occasion for a gathering of young folk. Like most poets he was not thrifty and died poor.

Bang! Bang!

He thought that the Germans were up on him. But he awoke to find that it was only the boots rapping at the door.

"What, what is it?" he grumbled.

"A telegram, sir," replied the boots, in breathless tones. "Will you open the door, sir?"

"Certainly not!" exclaimed Jones crossly. He was by no means anxious to leave his sheltering sheets. "Slip it under the door, my boy."

"I can't do that, sir," replied the boots anxiously. "It's on a tray."—Youth's Companion.

Bad Name for a New York Company

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The Secretary of State has refused to incorporate "H. J." A New York City law firm recently forwarded a certificate of incorporation with that name for a proposed concern to conduct cafes and restaurants. The secretary returned the papers with a letter in which he said:

"While the statute with reference thereto does not specifically prohibit the use of such a name, in my opinion, it would be against public policy to permit it."

One of the oldest and best completed for international yacht races is that for the Fisher Cup, on the great lakes every year. This year it was between the much feared Seneca, of Rochester, and the Patricia, of Toronto. The above picture shows the start in the second race. While Seneca won this race, the Canadian Patricia took the race next, giving the Canadian two out of three and leaving the much sought after Fisher Cup under the Canadian ensign for a year.

Stories of Sir W. S. Gilbert

There are scores of good stories told about Gilbert, but most of them are too well known to bear repeating here, writes C. H. Workman in The London Bookman.

Probably you know the one of how he was standing once on the steps of the Garrick Club and a short-sighted member coming out mistook him for the attendant, and said, "Call me a cab." Gilbert looked at him steadily for a minute and then responded, "You're a four-wheeler, sir!" "Oh! What do you mean?" asked the member embarrassed and indignant. "Well," said Gilbert, "you asked me to call you a cab, and I couldn't call you a hansom!"

But here are two that concern myself, and are, I believe, less known. I was lunching at Grim's Dyke, and told over the lunch-table the story of the old German trombone player, who, closing his music, squashed a fly across the cleft, and when he came to that particular passage the next evening ran down the scale, remarking, "I don't know what it was, but I blayed it." Gilbert struck in quietly from the end of the table, "Are you sure that it was a fly workman?—it might have been a bee flat!"

As Jack Point, in "The Yeomen of the Guard," there is one scene in which, standing between Elsie Maynard and Phoebe, I used to kiss the cheek of first one and then the other, quickly and repeatedly and Sir William thought there was too much kissing for a Savoy audience. "You would not kiss the kissing then?" I said. "I would not," he returned, drolly, "but I must ask you to."

An Improvised Pillow

Sleeping on a mat under the moon in a cannibal country is a pale adventure compared with a lodge in an old-time Irish Inn at the height of the tourist season. A certain Master of the Galway Hunt says a contributor to Cornhill, arrived at a small inn where all the beds were already taken.

A kitchen table was requisitioned, a heterogeneous collection of bedclothes was arranged upon it,—into the exact nature of which it was perhaps not well to inquire too closely, as it seemed to be composed of contributions from the wardrobes of the hotel help,—and the sportsman turned in.

The pillow was an odd-shaped substance emitting a faint and strangely familiar odor; but the Master of the Galway Blazers was too weary to concern himself over such trifles, and he slept as soundly on his makeshift couch as if it had been a canopied bed of state.

He was awakened in the morning by a gentle fumbling at the wrappings beside his head.

"I'm sorry to be disturbin' ye, sir," said an apologetic voice, "but sure th' house was out y' pillows intirely, an' we put th' side o' becom undler y'r hono'r's head. I was just conthrin' to get a few raslers off for th' quality's breakfast without disturbin' ye, whin y'r hono'r woke up."

Teacher—Now, Tommy, suppose a man gave you $100 to keep for him and then died, what would you do? Would you pray for him?

Tommy—No, sir; but I pray for another one like him. —The United Presbyterian.
