

New Zealand Decides to Adopt Laurier's Policy of Naval Defence

New Zealand Against Borden Navy Policy; To Build Own Navy

Government Decides to Discontinue Its Subsidy Policy—Will Copy Australia's Scheme of Local Navy—Canada Left in the Lurch.

[Canadian Press.]

Wellington, N. Z., Oct. 28.—The Government of the Dominion of New Zealand decided today to adopt the policy of building a navy of its own, on the same lines as that of the Commonwealth of Australasia, and to discontinue its subsidy to the imperial British navy.

Premier William Ferguson Massey, in announcing the reversal of the present system, explained that the decision of the Government to assume the greater responsibility was due to the inability of the British admiralty to carry out its agreement of 1909 and station two cruisers of the Bristol type of 4,800 tons displacement, in New Zealand waters, the Dominion bearing the cost of their upkeep.

Note.—The Australian naval policy is identical with that proposed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier for Canada. Both Australia and New Zealand have discarded the contribution policy favored by the Borden Government.

FIREMEN'S POCKETS RIFLED WHILE THEY FIGHT BLAZE

Trio of Thieves Enter Central Hall After Departure of Apparatus and Go Through Pockets of Four Firemen, Carrying Off Cash.

Fire Chief John Aiken is of the opinion this morning that the meanest crooks that ever worked are plying their trade in London, and four firemen of the central hall agree with him.

And the chief and his men have reason for such sentiment. Monday night, when the men were called out at 11:55 to the fire at the Ontario Spring Bed and Mattress Company, they left their street clothes hanging beside their beds.

Captain Case, fireman Thomas Tozer, John Hamilton and Albert Dean, in the hurry of responding to the alarm left some money in their pockets and when they returned to the hall this morning at 5 o'clock, after five hours' strenuous work, they found their pockets had been rifled and all their money taken. Fireman Dean lost $5.40, while the others lost small amounts, in all about $9.

When a fire breaks out in any part of the city one company is generally left at the central hall in case of another blaze, but last night's conflagration was such a serious one that all the men and apparatus were called to work on it, leaving the hall without any protection.

They left and walked north on Richmond street to a business place opposite Carling street, where some men were working. Going in there they lay down to have a sleep, but were again interrupted and told to move on by the policeman on duty on Richmond street.

At first they refused to leave, but on being threatened with arrest they left, walking north on Richmond street. It is now thought they were the men who took the money from the firemen's clothes.

Chief Aiken notified the detective department this morning, and Detective Egleton is working on the case. "It is one of the meanest tricks that I ever heard of," said Chief Aiken. "The firemen have to get out on a second's notice, and it is pretty hard to think they could not leave their clothes in the fire hall without leaving them open to thieves. The men haven't got much of a chance to protect themselves in a case like that, and I would certainly like to see the detectives land the thieves."

KILWORTH BEAUTY SPOTS PURCHASED BY LONDONERS

Quite a Colony of Outdoor Lovers Have Secured Farms—Mr. Wm. Heaman and Dr. Henderson Have Bought Places.

Kilworth-on-the-Thames is becoming a favorite summer home district for Londoners. Recently several places have passed into the hands of citizens, who believe in indulging their love for the beautiful and their back-to-the-land proclivities, and have the means to indulge.

Mr. William Heaman has just purchased the Oliver farm on the river, and will use it for a summer home. Dr. Norman Henderson has purchased the farm known as the Buzzard estate, and will make it his home during the summer months.

Col. Hobbs' beautiful place, Col. T. S. Hobbs was the first Londoner to secure a place down the river. He brought the car to a standstill. He was absolutely uninjured, but the accident cast a gloom over the suit of clothes he was wearing, hardly a square inch of which escaped a thin plaster of mud.

The boy's name was Tommy Templeton, employed as a messenger for Henry & Colerick. He has but recently come to these shores from the Emerald Isle. "Where's your hat?" asked a bystander, who went to his assistance. "Faith, and it's under the tram," was the ready reply.

Tommy's only concern after the accident was about the message he was carrying, which, owing to having been propelled along the pavement face downward during the slide, was completely obliterated.

NO BLOODSHED OVER HOME RULE, SAYS SENATOR J. H. ROSS

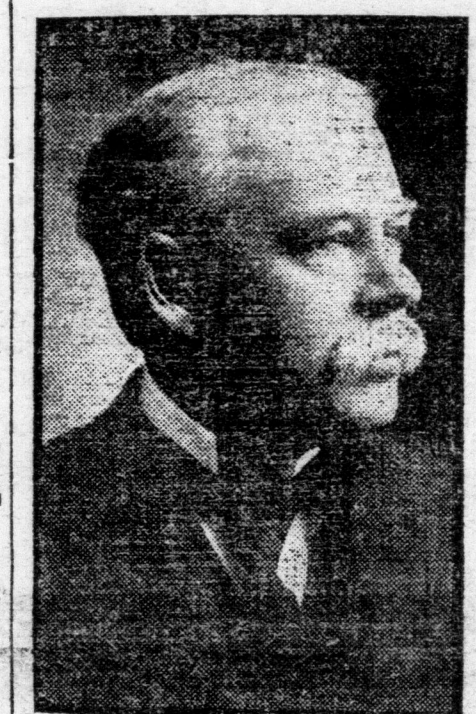

More Heard of Strife On This Side of Atlantic Than in Old Land.

A POLITICAL AGITATION

Found an Exceptional Wave of Prosperity Throughout the British Isles.

Home rule without bloodshed will be consummated in Ireland, according to Senator J. H. Ross, of Moose Jaw, Sask., who arrived in London last night after a five months' visit in Great Britain. Six weeks of that time were spent in Ireland, and according to Senator Ross's statements to The Advertiser, there is more heard of the home rule question on this side of the water than in Ireland itself. As to trade conditions, he found an exceptional "wave of prosperity" in both England and Ireland.

"Home rule is bound to come," said

SENATOR JAMES H. ROSS.

Senator Ross, "They have been fighting for it for 30 years, and there is a wound that will have to be healed. I don't think that the Irish themselves believe that any bloodshed will result. Of course, decided stands have been taken on both sides and someone will have to back down, but it strikes me that concessions in the way of education or something of that nature will be granted to the Unionists."

Purely Political Agitation.

RUNAWAY CAUSES FATAL HURTS TO JAMES O'KEEFE

Young Farmer Has Brother and Two Sisters Residing in London.

CRUSHED UNDER WAGON

Accident Happened Just as He Was Turning Into Gate at His Home

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Granton, Oct. 28.—James O'Keefe, aged 40 years, a farmer residing in Biddulph, died today as a result of injuries he received last evening while bringing home a load of tile from Crediton.

He had just reached the gate of his farm and was turning in when his team took fright at a bridge, and swerved sharply.

Crushed by Wheels.

Before Mr. O'Keefe could save himself he was hurled head-first to the road and the wheel went over his head. In addition he was buried under tons of tile when the wagon overturned. As quickly as possible he was taken out, but never recovered consciousness, and died before noon from terrible injuries about the head.

Mr. O'Keefe was unmarried, and resided on the farm with his brother, Robert, and his sister, Rose. Michael O'Keefe, of London, is a brother, and Mrs. Michael Quigley, and Mrs. William Flannery, both of London, are sisters.

Funeral Thursday.

The funeral will be held Thursday at St. Patrick's Cemetery in Biddulph, and will be conducted by Father Quigley, of Elm-street.

Trying to Save 240 Entombed Men

SUPT. SAYS G. T. R. WILL SOON BEGIN PT. BURWELL LINE

Mr. Whittenberger Declares the Company's Attitude to Electrification Is Unaltered.

WILL P. M. OPERATE IT?

Extra Year's Handling of Business Has Not Yet Been Arranged.

H. E. Whittenberger, general superintendent of the middle division of the Grand Trunk, arrived in the city Monday night from Stratford, and spent a few hours here with Superintendent W. R. Davidson.

Maintains Its Position.

Interviewed by The Advertiser as to what action the Grand Trunk would take now that the people had decided to electrify the London and Port Stanley Line, he said he did not know. "The company, through Mr. Long, made known its position some time ago," said he. "I am sure there has been no change since then. The line to Port Burwell will be built as soon as possible as far as I know."

In answer to a question as to whether the company would allow the city to haul its coal into London, he smilingly replied that he guessed the city could handle all the coal with its electric locomotives the Grand Trunk would give it.

"Has the Pere Marquette or any other line made any offer to run the line after the expiration of the lease until the city has it electrified?" he asked. "If they have not the city will be against it."

Expected No Offer.

When informed that no offer had been made to the city he smiled and said he thought that was the way it would be.

"Do you think the Grand Trunk will enter suit to restrain the city from electrifying the line?" asked the reporter.

"I cannot say. That matter would be handled at Montreal, and just what move will be made I cannot say at present. I see the Free Press has already selected the commission for the road. That is pretty quick work."

Hill was married two weeks, and he and his young bride were to have started housekeeping the day he disappeared. She is heart-broken, and can offer no excuse for Hill's actions. His employers say his accounts were absolutely straight.

City Must Apply To Railway Commission Before Electrifying

Steam Roads Will All Be Given the Opportunity of Stating Their Claims When Hearing Is Held—Grand Trunk's Position as Part Owner.

Before the city of London can electrify the London and Port Stanley Railway, it must make application to the Dominion Railway Commission.

The application should have been made before the vote of the ratepayers was taken, for the reason that there are likely to be complications revealed by the experts of the leading railway companies, and the city may not have taken into consideration.

Trolleys and Steam. Just what the ruling of the commission will be on the question of allowing steam trains to run beneath trolley wires is a matter that has not been given any attention.

When the matter of applying for permission to electrify the city line comes up, every steam line that has an interest or a prospective interest in the road will be notified to have its representatives present. Their claims will be treated with as much fairness by the commission as though the railways were the city and the city the railways.

COLLEGIATE NUCLEUS TO START IN SPRING

Building Committee Will Recommend Construction to the Education Board.

If the recommendation of the building committee of the board of education is passed by the board at its session on Tuesday, work will be started on constructing a nucleus for a new collegiate as soon as frost is out of the ground in the spring. The work will cost approximately $65,000. The decision to construct the nucleus rather than submit the question of expending $215,000 on an entirely new Collegiate, to the people, was arrived at at the meeting of the building committee yesterday afternoon.

Principal George F. Rogers was present, and pointed out the fact that London would have to provide for the future as well as the immediate present in its Collegiate needs. This was concurred in by the other members of the committee, and it was decided that the addition necessary for the Collegiate would take the form of a nucleus of a new school, rather than be incorporated as part of the present structure.

According to the plans, this nucleus addition will face Waterloo street. It will be large enough to provide for a new heating plant for the present building as well as the nucleus and will contain offices, cloak rooms, etc., as well as several classrooms.

TROOPS CALLED TO QUELL RIOTS AT COAL MINES

Strikers Blew Up Bridge With Dynamite To Block Soldiers Coming

INSURRECTION PREVAILS

Two Killed and Five Wounded When Shots Were Exchanged.

[Canadian Press.]

Denver, Col., Oct. 28.—By noon today eight infantry companies of state troops, now on their way in accordance with the orders of the governor issued this morning, proclaiming a state of insurrection, will reach the scene of the coal miners' strike in Huerfango and Las Animas Counties, and before sundown it is expected they will be joined by eleven other infantry companies, five troops of cavalry and two battalions of field artillery. Three other infantry companies will arrive later.

Blew Up Bridge.

The scene of the disturbances is in the two counties of which Walsenburg and Trinidad are the county seats. The mines are reached by branches from the Colorado and Southern Railroad, and from the Denver and Rio Grande, which parallels it a few miles eastward. The station at Barnes, where the bridge was dynamited last night, is the junction point of one of these branches, and the destruction of this bridge would interrupt travel on that branch line.

Immediately after signing the order directing Adjutant-General Chase to proceed to the mining district with the entire militia force of the state, Governor Ammons made a statement giving his reasons for issuing the order.

No Other Course.

"I have no other recourse," the governor said. "Yesterday the situation got away from everybody. I am compelled to act. For 48 hours I had been trying to arrange a settlement, but the agreement to keep the peace during the negotiations was violated, and the evening of Monday showed that the leaders had not enough authority to prevent outbreaks. Anyone who wants to work will be given protection to go and come in peace, but I will not allow the importation of strikebreakers. I mean to be fair to both sides, while enforcing peace and protecting life and property."

Insurrection Rife.

The governor's orders to the adjutant-general proclaim a state of insurrection, direct the disarmament of both strikers and mine guards, order the closing of the mines in the district, and the enforcement of the order against the importation of strikebreakers, and prohibit the intrusion on company property of all except company workers.

Yielded Several Points.

The ordering out of the militia came after a day of conferences. The strike leaders had yielded several points, and the prospects for a settlement seemed good, when the outbreak of violence in the district put a stop to further negotiations.

The first conferences had hardly begun before word reached the governor that a hundred deputies had fired upon the tent colony of the strikers at Ludlow, and that the strikers replied with shots, had caused the retreat of a trainload of goods proceeding to the Tabasco mine, said to be besieged by the strikers. The report that the deputies had fired first was later denied.

A Vicious Attack.

Late in the afternoon a party of guards proceeding across the hills to the relief of the Tabasco mine was attacked by strikers near Berwind, and in the ensuing exchange of shots it was reported two strikers were killed and five wounded. A report that the strikers had captured several mine guards could not be confirmed, but it was admitted the strikers had taken possession of a Colorado and Southern switch engine.

The latest outbreak, reported after the governor had decided to order out the troops, was the dynamiting of the railroad bridge at Barnes.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, Oct. 28.—Rev. Dr. Herbert Symonds, who returned last night from a short visit to New York, acknowledges that he has received a call to the presidency of the Western University, London, Ont., but asserts that he will probably not make a definite decision for some time to come.

Dr. Symonds became prominent some months ago when he was censured by the Anglican House of Bishops for preaching in a Presbyterian Church.

Smith had nothing to say, and exhibited no particular expression of feeling on being sentenced.

Before passing sentence, Judge Macbeth heard the evidence of Mrs. MacArthur and McCallum to the effect that Smith, although a degenerate, yet was capable of knowing right from wrong.

The musical score is the work of Leo Edwards, with lyrics by D. B. Cobb. A massive scenic production showing Jacksonville, Florida, where the heroes have, as usual, been "attacked" at the race tracks, is carried. They take an ocean sail to Panama, and through the famous play ends on the Midway of the Panama Exposition at San Francisco. The new

ULSTER TO CONTROL HER OWN EDUCATION
Government is Willing to Grant Home Rule Within Home Rule.

London, Oct. 28.—Sir Edward Grey, secretary of state for foreign affairs, in a speech at Warwick last night, explained that what the Government was willing to concede to satisfy Ulster was a sort of home rule within home rule, giving Ulster control of her own education, police and matters of that kind.

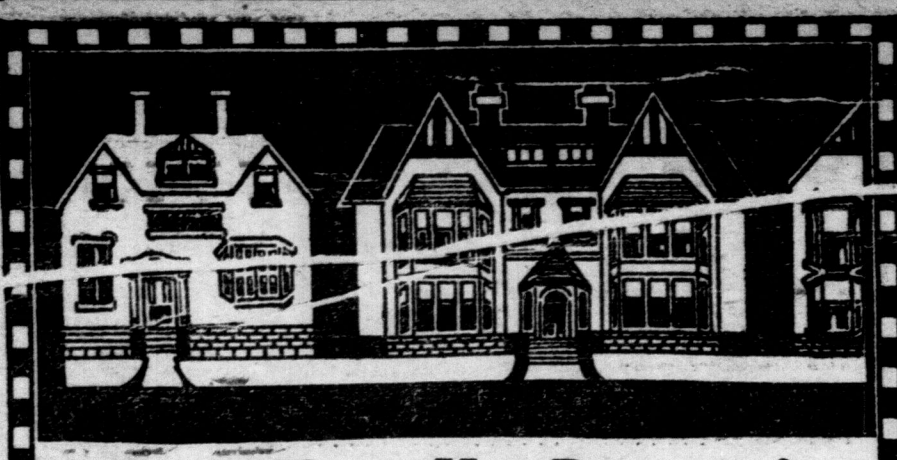

It would thus seem clear that in his recent announcement of policy with regard to home rule in Ulster Premier Asquith had no intention of offering even the temporary exclusion of Ulster from the operation of the home rule bill.

YARD ENGINE CRASHED INTO DELIVERY AUTO
Driver Received Painful Injuries and Fractured.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Quebec, Oct. 27.—The delivery automobile of C. W. Kelly's music store was run into by the C. P. R. yard engine at Pusslin station today. W. J. Kilgour received serious injuries to his head, and H. Vincent, who was driving the car, some ugly bruises on his legs. They were returning from below Pusslin Station, where they had been doing some business. The force of the contact threw Mr. Kilgour from the car and he alighted on his head, sustaining a fracture of the skull, besides being badly shaken up. Mr. Vincent, though not thrown from the auto, was severely shaken and bruised.

Large Sifter Top Tin 10c. At all Grocers

"Well, you never can tell," she said to herself, as she straightened up on the landing before Captain Hanks's window. "Let's see—what in my house ever wears a face like that?"

She stopped all motion here, and since there was no need for concealment her face showed the shock she felt. Her eyes widened, her jaw dropped.

"Um-hum!" she buzzed, with the tone of one who gathers the strands of suspicion into a sheaf of fact. "Um-hum!"

And just then the voice of Inspector McGee boomed from within. "Pretty near through?" he asked.

"Much as I want," replied Rosalie, voice and face falling at once into indifference, "is there a place to wash in this house? Water ain't turned off yet. All right. No, never mind—I'm still young enough to crawl through a window by myself. When I get home, if I don't scrub myself off, I'll do for one day."

When, ten minutes later, she returned from the lavatory, marvelously freshened in appearance, the inspector awaited her in the lower hall.

"I may be wanting to come again," she said, "but I don't let anyone but my maid or my assistant meddle with my wardrobe. Remember, please, to fold them on the same creases upon replacing them. While you are about it, you might give some of my passees suits to any deserving person who comes to your attention. For instance, there is my third best evening suit—you will recognize it at once because it is cut in last year's style. Why not give it to the man?"

And suddenly something happened; something which Martin McGee, blushing over it later in silence and secrecy, could not himself account for. With the motion of a dancing bear, so awkward was it and yet so quick, he had caught her by the arms and kissed her heavily on the face.

Rosalie did not seem to struggle; yet somehow, without a word, she was rearranging herself in one little time, she was free of him. The surge in Martin McGee's cheeks faded as rapidly as it had risen. He stood blank, his color thickening.

"Martin McGee," said Rosalie Le Grange, "you just cut that out!"

When Rosalie returned to her house late that afternoon, a murmuring voice greeted her from the front parlor. Ordinarily the house did not wake up until six o'clock, when Miss Jones and Miss Jones brought a pair of high-pitched voices into its quiet. Rosalie parted the portieres and looked in.

"Twilight had come. Constance sat at one end of the room, reading. Rosalie's quick glance noted that, although she was a book-worm, her eyes had been lifted from its pages, had settled on a spot in mid-air half way across the room. Betsy-Barbara and Tommy North were sitting together in the low, much-draped, much-cushioned seat of the cozy corner. Before them on a little table furnished with a pad of paper, two pencils sharpened to needle-point fineness, and the cat's paw of a picture story.

Over the table glimmered two blobs of light—the yellow-gold that was Betsy-Barbara's and the red-brown that was Tommy North's. And these shimmering patches were close together—very close.

Involuntarily Rosalie listened. "I want it to be very simple, but elegant, too," Betsy-Barbara was saying. "Mission would be my choice. Two desks—a big, solid, important-looking one for you and a small, modest, utilitarian-looking one for me—four chairs, a card catalogue, a few pictures, simply framed but dignified, and perhaps a rug."

"Sounds like a fairy tale to me," said Tommy North. "I'll tell you what we'll do—tomorrow morning we'll draw two hundred and fifty of my five hundred and circulate around among the furniture places and do the thing up brown."

"Two hundred and fifty?" cried Betsy-Barbara. "If that isn't like a man! Seventy-five at the outside! We're going around to auction rooms and pick up second-hand stuff. We'll get better things, and they'll look just as good as new when I've rubbed them up with oil."

"Well, of course, you're boss," said Tommy North; "but don't you think—"

"But here—"

"Hadden't you better light up, children?" Rosalie asked.

"Oh, thank you, Mrs. Le Grange," said Betsy-Barbara. "Now, as for the big desk; should you want—"

As Rosalie continued her weary way upstairs, she heard the click of the electric light and the distant babble of voices going on and on.

"Lord, lord, how great it is to begin life sweet and pure like that!"

CHAPTER IX. MOVING THE PAINS.

At breakfast next morning Rosalie opened her eyes—opened them a master of human chessmen, with a trifling move of two of the pawns.

"Please be so good as to cover that box of Bran-O Biscuits on the top shelf of my closet before you begin dressing," requested Professor Noli.

"I guess it's all right," remarked Tommy North importantly, but generally only let anyone but my maid or my assistant meddle with my wardrobe. Remember, please, to fold them on the same creases upon replacing them. While you are about it, you might give some of my passees suits to any deserving person who comes to your attention. For instance, there is my third best evening suit—you will recognize it at once because it is cut in last year's style. Why not give it to the man?"

LEAVE PLUMES BEHIND WHEN YOU CROSS LINE

Canadian Ladies Cannot Wear Aigrettes and Osprey Feathers in United States.

London ladies who may intend visiting Detroit are warned that a new United States regulation prohibits the wearing of aigrettes, osprey plumes or "birds of paradise" feathers.

A number of Windsor women who crossed to the Michigan city Saturday and Sunday ran against this new rule.

Several of the ladies whose hats did not correspond to the requirements of the law were told they could either leave their plumes at the customs office, go without hats, or else return to Windsor for more simple headwear.

A majority agreed to remove the offending plumes, while others, indignant at what they declared to be an infringement on personal privileges, left the customs office with their heads in the air—and returned to Windsor.

The new law is designed to check the growing craze for aigrettes which ornithologists declare is a most inhumane manner of robbing the mother heron of its plume, which is at its best as the birds are nesting. The law is the result of the work of Audubon societies in all parts of the United States.

The values of plumes collected at Detroit 8 day and Saturday is estimated at close to $1,000.

Government Refused To Recognize Company's Debt to National Agency.

[Canadian Press.] Toronto, Oct. 27.—The investigation into the affairs of the Union Life was resumed before the Senate today.

Answers of the witness, Harry Simons, ex-president and a director in both the Union Life and the National Agency, showed that the Government had frequently refused to recognize the debt of the National Agency to the Union Life, and allowed it to appear in the annual statement of the latter company as an asset, thus in one year, 1907, what was described as political surplus, $101,504.38 was reduced to $29,422.15 by the department.

The total loss of the Union Life that year amounted to $62,322.25, cost of operations being assigned as the cause.

In 1907 the Union Life advanced the National Agency $30,000, although its own statements were showing a deficit.

PHILATELISTS ARE HOLDING CONVENTION

One Stamp Collection Shown is Valued at a Million Dollars.

[Canadian Press.] New York, Oct. 27.—That the collection of postage stamps ever continues to have its devotees was evidenced by a great gathering of collectors here today for the first international philatelic exhibition ever held in this country.

It is said that there are about half a million stamp collectors in the world of whom more than 100,000 are in Canada and the United States.

The three hundred collectors who boasted so good a showing that they brought their exhibits to this international meeting estimated that the total value of the stamps shown was over $2,000,000. Some of the rarities were appraised at from $5,000 to $9,000 each.

The largest individual collection shown was that of George H. Worthington, the Cleveland O. capitalist, whose collection was estimated to be worth $1,000,000.

DECLARES HUERTA HAD NO PART IN MURDERS

Rev. John Howland Defends Provisional President in Regard To Madero Affair.

[Canadian Press.] Kansas City, Oct. 27.—Defence of Provisional President Huerta's administration in Mexico and denial that the Mexican executive had a share in the murder of Former President Madero and Vice-President Suarez, was made by Rev. John Howland, of Guadalajara, a missionary, in an address before the annual meeting of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions, held in connection with the National Council of the Congregational Churches here today.

He also paid a strong tribute to the rule of Porfirio Diaz as worthy of the great epigram: "He made a nation; and destroyed a people."

Dr. Howland has lived for thirty-one years in Mexico as head of Colegio Internacional at Guadalajara.

"The widespread idea that General Huerta seized the presidency," he said, "or that he came in through the door of assassination is entirely incorrect. His acceptance of the provisional presidency precluded his being a candidate in the present election, and his government was established and both officially and popularly accepted days before the death of President Madero. Huerta had nothing to gain by the death of Madero."

"President Madero left the treasury bankrupt, and revenues were immensely reduced by the closing of most of the ports of entry, the interruption of traffic and general disturbance. The hostile attitude of American authorities against General Huerta caused the bankers who had arranged a large loan to delay the promised payments, and this has greatly impeded the pacification of the country. Mexico should be left alone. It is well able to take care of itself."

Young Montreal Servant Girl Made Heiress of Dead Uncle.

Montreal, Oct. 27.—To come to Canada with $20 and receive a place in a private family for $3 a week, and then to receive a letter from her home in Dorohoi, Roumania, informing her that she inherited by the death of her uncle, whom she considered poor, the sum of $10,000, was too much for Marie Voragasky, and she refused to believe the letter. In a jest she showed the good news to a friend, who advised her to see her lawyer, Mr. L. Popiliger.

The girl related her story to the advocate in a tone of jest, but he communicated with the attorney in Roumania, and received word that the statement is authentic. The heiress faintly in the advocate's office when she was told of her good fortune, and medical aid had to be summoned to revive her.

HUBBARD'S COMRADE STILL IN THE WILDS

Dillon Wallace Has Not Turned Up and His Friends Are Beginning to Worry.

New York, Oct. 27.—Friends of Dillon Wallace, explorer, who left New York early in July for three months' exploration of the interior of Labrador and to place a bronze tablet on the rock where Leonidas Hubbard died, are anxious because they have received no word from him recently. He expected to come out of the wilds by Oct. 1, when winter in Labrador sets in, and unless word is had from him within the next few weeks, preparations will be made to send a relief expedition for him in the spring. Nothing has been heard from Mr. Wallace since early in September, when it was understood that he was about to begin his return journey. He was then supposed to be in the upper part of Labrador. Numerous hard storms have been reported by the natives, and it is believed that if he does not return to Indian Harbor within the next week or so he will be forced to spend the winter with some of the Eskimo tribes.

Wallace was Leonidas Hubbard's companion on a trip into the wilds of Labrador, which ended in Hubbard's death. Mrs. Hubbard was a New York hospital nurse, whose home was near Stratford. Following her husband's death, she led an expedition to the scene of his tragic end and endeavored to locate and mark the exact spot where he was buried.

Even Most Chronic Sufferers Find Relief From Few Doses of Croxone.

Croxone soon relieves such conditions because it reaches the very roots of the disease. It soaks right into the stopped up, inactive kidneys, through the walls and linings, cleans out the little filtering cells and glands; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid substances that lodge in the joints and muscles to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism; heals the inflamed membranes of the bladder, and cleans out and strengthens the stopped up, lifeless kidneys so they can filter and sift all the poisons from the blood, and drive it out of the system.

So sure, so positive, so quick and lasting, are the results obtained from the use of Croxone, that three doses a day for a few days are often all that is required to end the worst backache, regulate the most annoying bladder disorders, and overcome the numerous other similar conditions.

LONDON, TUESDAY, OCT. 28.

AS TO CANADIAN SHIP-BUILDING.

Our local contemporary, quoting the Toronto Globe's assertion that "no sane man ever would propose in the present stage of shipbuilding to roll armor plate and build 15-inch guns in the Dominion," reproduces the following from The Advertiser of March 24 last:

"There are steel plants in this country capable of producing the armor plate and making the guns within a short time. At Quincy, Mass., is a shipbuilding plant cost in $2,700,000, which completed two battleships within three years after the ground was broken in 1900."

The Free Press would have been more candid if it had reprinted other passages from the same article, advising against the immediate building of Dreadnoughts in this country. "No one," we said, "proposes that Canadian shipyards shall begin with Dreadnoughts." Again in the issue of March 11 we said:

"A Canadian navy should begin at the beginning—not with the construction of Dreadnoughts, but with the building of the fast cruisers, destroyers and torpedo boats which are the base of the naval pyramid, the Dreadnought being the apex."

When Canada was ready for building Dreadnoughts, it would be possible to produce guns and armor plate in this country, but we were careful to add:

"The guns, engines and armor plate could be purchased in Great Britain for the Canadian-made Dreadnoughts, if desirable."

At the same time The Advertiser advocated the compromise proposed by Mr. Hugh Guthrie, namely, the immediate construction of two Canadian Dreadnoughts in British shipyards on condition that the Canadian Government pledged itself to carry out the Canadian-navy resolution unanimously adopted by parliament in 1909. Our local contemporary then affected some of the Canadian spirit exhibited by its party leaders. It said:

"Patriotism will gather more closely about battleships built in Canada than battleships built in England. They may cost more to build in this country where facilities are not complete, but it probably will be money well spent."

Our contemporary has since tried to explain this away by saying that it was deceived by the Laurier Government as to the shipbuilding resources of this country! This evasion is merely laughable. But who deceived it into advocating a Canadian-navy policy? Its own leaders?

MR. ASQUITH ON IRELAND.

Mr. Asquith's latest utterance on the Irish question is not perfectly clear over the cable. He speaks with marked firmness in regard to any possible outbreak in Ulster. Force will be met with force. But the suggestion of concession made towards the close of the speech is not so plain.

The Premier follows Mr. Churchill in holding out the olive branch, though he does not go so far as to allow explicitly the exclusion of the four Orange counties of Ulster in return for his opponents' assent to the Dublin Parliament and the home rule principle. Certainly he makes a plea for settlement by consent, and by some compromise respecting Ulster.

If the Unionists want to "save Ulster," as they would call it, or prevent the civil war which they threaten, they are invited by the Premier to make suggestions, which they have refused to do all along, and to allow home rule with some special provision for the four counties. Of course, in order that such special provision may now be made, the Unionists and the House of Lords majority must agree to pass the Government's measure as amended, for any amendment would otherwise necessitate the passing of the bill in three more sessions of the Commons in order to override the Lords' veto.

One thing, then, is pretty plain, that Mr. Asquith puts it up to the Unionists to make overtures. If they make none, and refuse any guarantee for the House of Lords' action, then the present measure goes through as it is, and will be enforced with all the Government's strength. It is indeed hardly likely that the Unionists will respond either to Mr. Asquith or to Mr. Churchill. The House of Lords felt bad enough about swallowing the Parliament bill to limit their veto power. It can hardly be expected to lie down again and pass a home rule bill amended or not. But at any rate, any disorder that may arise in Ulster will now be referable to the stubbornness of the Unionist party.

THE CALL OF THE WIRELESS.

The effective use of wireless telegraphy in the recent wreck of the Volturno is only another convincing proof of the value of Marconi's discovery. Without its aid there is little doubt that the entire crew would have been lost. They might all have been saved if the stormy sea had not prevented the rescuing vessels from taking the people off the doomed ship. They responded to the call promptly, and arrived in ample time; but could not get near the burning vessel to complete the work of rescue.

There is no longer any justification for a single vessel voyaging out of sight of land without the wireless apparatus. Nor is there any justification for further delay in girdling the earth with the system so that a call of distress can be heard and answered from any quarter and under any circumstances.

That this fact is being recognized is evidenced by the conference now in progress among the great powers with a view to united action in circling the entire globe with a system of high towers, keeping all the oceans and continents in touch with each other by wireless telegraphy. Great Britain is expected to erect one on the Suez Canal, and another at Calcutta, Japan will provide one at Yokohama. Another will be at Messina, in Italy. The one on the Eiffel tower in Paris will be a link in the chain. The United States now has stations at Washington, San Francisco and Colon, Panama. Another will be erected at some inland point, possibly Chicago or St. Louis, while Honolulu and Manila will be also supplied. In this way, the entire earth will be covered, and the voice of the wireless heard everywhere.

It is not to be expected that marine disasters will cease entirely, even with the full operation of a world-wide Marconi system. But it will be possible to summon help at the earliest moment of danger. In the few cases where the help summoned has not time to reach the scene of disaster the sudden disappearance of vessels that vanish from sight and leave not a trace behind will no longer be a mystery.

Not only on sea, but on land as well, the wireless may be useful in preventing the destruction of life and property. It is not an unusual thing for a whole section to be shut off from communication with the rest of the world. We had an example of that last year in the floods in Ohio and Indiana, where nothing could be heard from the devastated sections for several days. Marconi may or may not die a rich man. But he will have his reward, for few others have given to humanity so great a boon as this.

It is no secret that the Liberals hope to peel large slices off the Conservative majority in Peel.

Protesting that he was not a candidate, President Huerta secured most of the votes. Bob Rogers must envy this achievement.

The Dublin labor agitator has been convicted on charges of sedition. The political agitators who preach sedition go soot free.

Mr. Armstrong, M. P., East Lambton, is in South Bruce, trying to catch the German vote by denouncing the British preference. He insults German-Canadians by assuming that their patriotism is as cheap as his own.

The Canadian Council of Agriculture asks for free trade with Britain in five years. The proposal is too sweeping, but it will be useful in showing up the professional loyalists. Watch them protest that business and sentiment are two different things. Two years ago they were on the other tack.

Sir Edward Grey is more plain-spoken than the Premier or Mr. Churchill. He says the Government will give Ulster control of her own education, police and similar affairs, but that the province must be under a Dublin Parliament. It is not likely the Ulster Unionists will permit the English Unionists to assent to this compromise. The minimum of their demands is the exclusion of Ulster or the four Unionist counties of Ulster from Irish jurisdiction. This the Nationalists will not consent to. There seems to be no peaceful alternative to the present home rule bill.

Sir Richard McBride gave a sorry exhibition of bad manners by a partisan speech to the Ottawa Canadian Club. His denunciation of those who defeated the contribution policy would have come with ill grace from anyone on such an occasion, but this is particularly true of Sir Richard. He attacked the Laurier Government in 1911 because its naval proposals did not provide for a fleet unit on the Pacific coast. The Liberal program has been expanded to meet this demand. In now embracing the policy of contribution he has performed a feat which shows more agility than honesty.

"AND SO THEY WERE MARRIED."
 [Greensboro, N.C., Star.]
 ... there came the sweet young bride on the arm of her promised husband. She wore a handsome blue chiffon cloth tailor coat suit of early autumn cut, toned by the "new brown" pounce tailored waist, and with shoes and gloves of the same color. To this was added the touch of smartness of the hat she wore—the "age" advance "droop" style of black silk, with white satin facing and the new tip, as the bride passed from the hall into the library, her always beautiful face had now that tender radiance which the solemn expectancy of the nuptial hour had created, and as ever the gentle character within was indexed in the countenance. The advancing steps and the marriage altar were as gentle as her ways, while the contour of the whole face, with its delicately refined features and its striking dark-eyed blonde type, and her slim, graceful figure, made a picture which impressed itself indelibly on the memory of those who saw her with eyes of love, and as he who, in his great noble nature, was to be her strong staff and beautiful rod, slipped his mother's wedding ring on her finger, and the vows were said and the two altars became one, and later on, while in his hand that had so long waited as her soul's affianced, for his culmination of the cherished hope when Deborah Lewis Sherrod would become the bride of William Robert Morrow.

 "Oh!" exclaimed the widow, aghast, "how can you say such a thing, with my second scarcely cold in his grave!"

MARLOWE DEAD.

[From "Tales of the Mermaid Tavern," by Alfred Noyes.]
 Come, come, and see Kit Marlowe lying dead!
 Draw back the sheet, as, tenderly lay bare
 The splendor of that Apollonian head;

The glorie of his flame-colored hair;
 The lean athletic body, deftly planned
 To carry that swift soul of fire and air;

The long lean flanks, the broad breast and the grand
 Heroic shoulders! Look what lost dreams lie
 Cold in the fingers of that delicate hand;

And shut within those lyric lips, what cry
 Of unborn beauty, sunk in utter night,
 Lost worlds of song, sealed in an unknown sky.

Never to be brought forth, clothed on with light,
 Was this, then, this, the secret of his song?
 Who ever loved that loved not at first sight?

 There is a tragedy in every woman's hat. It seems almost as cruel to pay girls who make the dainty flowers in France a pittance as to kill the birds of brilliant plumage in Brazil. Summed up, the average is not far from $40 a year on which to support existence.

HEART BURNINGS OVER THE COMING CITY ELECTIONS

The Electrophobe Program Not Altogether Favorable to Third Term.

NUMEROUS ASPIRANTS

Mayor Would Like the Selection, But Others Were Picked and Groomed For Race.

There is a tempest in the local political teapot! Some heart burnings have already occurred over the ensuing municipal elections, and a great many more are scheduled before the mayoralty question has been decided. Most of the "burnings" have been caused by the famous electrification campaign. In fact it could be said that all of them have their origin in the throes of the wonderful hurrah session—that ended when electrification had been patted up, bolstered up, doctored up, sugared up and promised up and had been successful in passing the ratifiers.

A year ago Mayor Graham's chances for re-election, or re-selection, by certain all-powerful factions in London depended entirely on his stand on electrification. Up until almost election time he was riding the fence.

Ald. William Spittal is another mentioned as being on the inside track of the mayoralty. The fact that the Free Press has been touting him as a London and Port Stanley commissioner would seem to indicate that he is high in the electrification circles, and it also confirms the statement that appointments would have to be secured that would in a measure make up for the loss of the mayoralty chance if the "prior claim" contingent were to leave the field to Mayor Graham. It is regarded as significant that Ald. J. P. Moore, Ald. William Spittal, and Water Commissioner Pocock—all classes as "prior claimants" for the mayoralty plan held out by the electrificationists, should be affected either directly or indirectly by the "commission," which, according to the Free Press, has already been selected that will run the London and Port Stanley road. The fact that it is "my council" that passes the ordinance appointing the commissioners is another outstanding feature of the tempest.

If anyone were unkind enough to draw conclusions that would be adverse to Mayor Graham, the fact that Ald. Moore and the Free Press could be placated at one move—the appointment of M. D. Fraser, president of the London Free Press, and law partner of the alderman, and that Ald. William Spittal and Chairman Pocock be eliminated from the running by similar moves, would seem to stand out rather strongly—and strangely.

However, political conjectures are like weather forecasts, and there is no telling the same status as it was before—so far as the machine is concerned. The mayor is the last card in the miffed held by the refusal of the candidates "with prior claims" that will see the electrification machine's influence thrown behind the banner of the little curtain-raiser.

Other Candidates.
 Chairman Philip Pocock, of the water commission, would have the endorsement of the Beck faction if he consented to allow his name to go on the mayoralty ballot. He would also have the support of a considerable "hydro" following, and possibly a goodly section of the electrification machine. However, it is improbable that he will enter the race, though at one stage of the game it was declared that he would. He is one of the men with "prior claims" to whom Mayor Graham would have had to bow, if the political gossip from the inside is to be credited at all.

"SPEED FIENDS" BUSY IN EAST END OF THE CITY

Complaints Made That Dundas Street Is Used as a Speedway.

Residents of East London, and particularly those residing on Dundas street, are strenuously complaining of the speed at which motorists travel up and down that thoroughfare. The long blocks and the level asphalt pavement apparently are irresistible to the "speed fiend," and many motorists, reaching this important speedway, disregard all traffic rules and "let 'er out."

Speaking of the danger to pedestrians, this morning, a prominent East Londoner said: "The way many owners of cars in this city drive through our streets is shameful. They apparently have no regard for human life, and speed through our paved thoroughfares in a reckless manner that will some day be disastrous. The same difficulty is encountered on the American side of the border. There, particularly in New York state, they have many asphalt roads leading from one city to another. Over these splendid roads the autos race at tremendous speed, making travelling a positive menace to a man with a horse. We do not want that kind of thing to get a foothold in our city."

Back Was Lame for Two Years

STOMACH TROUBLES AND WEAKNESS OF KIDNEYS CURED BY DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

There is an enormous amount of suffering from liver and kidney derangements and stomach troubles that could easily be avoided by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If you could only realize the scores of everyday ills that arise from a sluggish condition of the kidneys, liver and bowels you would not be long in giving this medicine a trial.

Mrs. Edward Stewart, New Richmond, West, Que., writes: "I want to tell you how thankful I am for using your Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for stomach troubles and backache caused by weak kidneys. I was unable to wash any clothes for over two years on account of my back being lame. I read the Almanac and began using these pills. Two boxes made a complete cure. I can do my own washing and other work now, and want to say to lady friends that they do not know how much I appreciate your Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

25 cents a box, all dealers, or Ed. Manson Bates & Co. Ltd., Toronto.

There were dozens of other tricks and illusions too numerous to elaborate here. Thurston is not a magician with a "box of tricks." He has boxes of them, and they are as bewildering as they are numerous. He injects considerable comedy into his work, and those who go to laugh have plenty of opportunity. His performance is one of the best of its kind ever seen here, and he should have crowded houses at every performance.

There were very few dull moments in his two-hour-and-a-half performance last evening, and the presenters of his bewildering array of tricks, illusions, problems and comic skits went off in rapid-fire order. Beginning with card passes, he runs the whole gamut of conjuring, leaving his audience astounded and amazed with the final trick of transferring one of his lady assistants from an Egyptian mummy casing on the stage into a small cage and shooting her down from the top gallery of the theatre.

He has many assistants, and last night he had many genuine volunteers from the audience. It is a peculiarly amusing and skeptical members of the audience into assisting him with his tricks was one of the laughable bits of the evening. He had several little girls and boys from the audience on the stage, and each of them was presented with a box of candy. One little girl was given a rabbit which was transformed into a box of candy, to the intense amazement of the child. The rabbit was afterward located under her father's coat, and the little maid went back to her seat with both candy and bunny.

Transferring ducks from one bag to another at the report of a pistol; lifting certain cards out of the deck without any visible means of suspension; suspending a lady in mid-air without any support; finding handkerchiefs in unsuspecting gentlemen's coat collars, and many other tricks, some of them old, but most of them original, were a few of the things Thurston did.

His lady and lion trick was a clever one. He placed a lady in a seemingly empty cabinet and closed the curtains. A moment later the curtains were drawn, revealing a big healthy lion in the cabinet. The lady is found in a cage in a cabinet at the other side of the stage. The phantom piano trick, in which a lady and piano apparently disappear while inclosed in a cabinet in mid-air also earned him unstinted applause.

"We'll Ask Miss Grey,"
Is Everyone's Thought
When in Perplexity.

A NEW IDEA FROM CALLOT

Here is a charming little imported frock, appropriate for street or dressy wear, that suggests the graceful lines of Callot Soeurs, and which is fashioned from one of the soft drapable materials in the new made of orange brown. The vest and the bodice collar, inevitable in the fashionable frock of the day, are of Impressionist silk in orange and green, softened about the neck with flesh-colored tulle. Completing the ultra style effect of the cutaway, and the drawn-up draperies are the cloth top, button boots, and the velvet tan hat.

Little Boy's Music Tamed Wild Birds

Birds are often attracted by music! This picture shows a wild linnet that flew through an open window into a room where Eustace Foster, a young violinist, practices every day. The bird came up quite close to the boy and sat perfectly still while he played. Foster was interested right away and took pains not to frighten the linnet any more than he could help. At first, when the music stopped it showed signs of fright and flew around the room seeking a way out. The boy sat perfectly quiet and waited for it to get over its nervousness. Gradually it quieted down and hopped around contentedly. But it seemed to drag one of its legs. As soon as he could Foster caught the linnet and found that it had been injured. He took care of it and nursed it back to health. Now it is a constant companion at lessons and practice hours.

Problems of the Fair Sex Solved by Cynthia Grey

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn. No letters can be answered privately.]

Marrying a Canadian.

Dear Miss Grey: Will you kindly explain through your columns the following questions: Being a citizen of the United States, and with intentions of marrying a Canadian girl, will it be necessary or compulsory for me to live in Canada fifteen days before the law would allow me to get married? Could I procure a marriage license in Canada, being an American citizen? Your obedient servant, JIM.

A.—The residence of either party in Ontario for fifteen days (in this case the girl) will enable you to obtain a license and be married forthwith. Your citizenship is not in question.

Note From Fluffy.

Dear Miss Grey: Would you kindly tell me what Florence, Edith and Frank mean. Thanking you beforehand, A. FLUFFY AND BLOSSOM.

A.—Florence, blooming or flourishing; Edith, happiness; Frank, free.

To Clean Ruffie.

Dear Miss Grey: Would you please tell me how to clean a white chiffon ruffie. Also, what is the meaning of Elizabeth? A.—I do not think that you could clean the ruffie satisfactorily, as chiffon is such a frail material. You might try this way if you wish: Put the ruffie into a glass sealer with enough gasoline to cover. Let stand overnight; then remove and dry without wringing, and press with small iron.

2. Elizabeth, worshippor or consecrated.

She's Just Ten.

Dear Miss Grey: Will you please answer a few questions for me, hoping it will not bother you too much. I am a girl of ten years of age, and intend to have a Halloween party. What would you advise me to have for the table, also suggest some interesting games.

2. Would it be nice for me to ask the girls to dress in masquerade? 3. What do you think of my writing? And oblige, ANXIOUS.

A.—1. Quite a list of Halloween games have appeared on this page during the past fortnight, so I need not go into particulars here.

2. Yes, if you like, ask them to come in costumes, but the time is short now for preparation, and I am sure they will enjoy themselves playing games, even if not dressed to represent characters.

3. It is extremely good for a little girl of your age.

Consult a Doctor.

Dear Cynthia: Will you please give me directions for taking tincture of aconite. I have a headache.

A.—From five to fifteen drops is a dose, but as the tincture is a poison, it should on no account be taken except under the orders of a physician.

Help For Silverbelle.

Dear Miss Grey: I am very interested in reading your columns, and would like you to answer the following questions: 1. I am a girl of fifteen. How long should I wear my dresses?

2. I have fair hair, blue eyes, and have a fair complexion. What are my colors? 3. Am I too young to go with a fellow, and how late should I be out at nights?

4. I am in love with a young man five years my senior. He wants me to marry him this fall. Do you think I am too young? 5. Will you give me the meaning of the following names: John, William, Lola, Henry, Isabella, Rose, Cora, Helen, Clayton, James, Russell, Herman, Garret.

Last but not least, what do you think of my writing. Yours forever, SILVERBELLE.

A.—1. To within one inch of your shoe tops. 2. You should be able to wear pale blue, pink, green and mauve, very nicely.

3. In my estimation, yes. Not after 9.30, unless accompanied by your parents, or some elderly person.

4. Decidedly too young. 5. John, gift of God; William, protector; Henry, head of the house; Isabella, a worshipper; Rose, a rose; Cora, a mail; Helen, light; James, a supplanter; Herman, a warrior. The remainder of the names have no ordinary derivations, and I cannot tell you the meaning.

6. If you left more space between lines it would be easier read. Do not make the parts of such letters as "f," "y," so long above and below the line of writing.

EXPERT POINTS IN THE BUYING AND COOKING OF MEAT

"All tough meats are not only made possible to the palate by slow cooking," says an expert in cooking, "but this is the most economical mode of cooking, because there is no loss from drippings. Those juices and fats that are drawn from the meats go into the gravy and are taken into the human system with it. Broiling over coals is an expensive mode of cooking because some of the juices and the fats are lost in the fire. It is said by an excellent authority that between 2 and 20 per cent of the food and fuel material in the meat is lost in broiling. There is also some loss in roasting, but, as much of the fat and juice drips into the dripping pan beneath the roast, gravy can be prepared from them, which, of course, is not the case in broiling. Except for soup stock, meat should be cooked so as to preserve its juices. Then the temperature should be lowered to the simmering point, at which point the meat should remain till it is done. It is a good plan to let the first searing be done in rapid hot fat, so that a crackling crust will form over the meat and lend a delicious flavor to it as well as giving it a protective coating that will keep in the juices. In roasting and broiling the meat is cooked in oil. The meat is put into an extremely hot oven or close to the flames and seared all over, after which the oven temperature is lowered, or, the meat, if it is broiled, is lifted from close proximity to the flames. "Special care should always be taken in the seasoning of meat dishes. The meat of young animals is more tender, and should be broiled less than that from animals more mature. Beef and mutton are always in season. Lamb is at its best in the summer and fall, veal in the spring and early summer, while pork is more suitable for the colder months, though bacon and ham are all-the-year-round foods. The best beef is the flesh of the steer about four years old, and should be bright red in color, firm and marbled in appearance from the bleaching of fat and lean, which shows even feeding, and that the animal has not been over-fat. The best pork is a fair proportion of creamy white fat next the surface.

Tea-Table Talk

About Mrs. Boomer. The October issue of Woman's Century contains an interesting article entitled "A Remarkable Woman," being a resume of the life of Mrs. Harriet A. Boomer, whom every London woman is proud to claim as a resident of this city. Mrs. Boomer is spoken of by the writer as being "indefatigable in her labors for missionary and philanthropic work."

She formed the first Canadian Branch of the Mothers' Union, in Memorial Church, and is still its president. She has been president of the London Local Council of Women for many years, and takes an active part in affairs of the National Council. The Convalescent Home of London owes its existence and success to Mrs. Boomer, and she was one of the leaders in establishing a fund for the education of the children of missionaries. And these are but a few of the many activities and interests of this talented woman. As the writer of the article says, "Canada may well be proud to enroll her among its illustrious women. An Englishwoman by birth, yet so much of her life has been identified with Canada from very early years, it seems most natural to claim her as a Canadian."

New Mode of Torture. If you have a deadly enemy, or to use a term less harsh, if you have someone with whom you would like to "get even" for some real or fancied offence, no better form of retaliation could be devised than to ask that person to dine with you, and then set him at carving. This is assuming, of course, that your enemy does not understand the fine art of carving, but has always been accustomed to having the servant, or "maitre d'hotel," place upon his plate the slice of roast, breast of chicken, or wing of duck. If then, your enemy is totally unfamiliar with carving, you are subjecting him to a period of acute torture, more or less prolonged according to the number of people around the festive board, and the extent of their appetites.

It is out of a full heart that I speak. Not that I believe my hostess bore me any grudge, not indeed that she desired to make her guest feel uncomfortable. But in any case, when we sat down to dine, a plump, nicely-browned chicken reposed upon a platter in front of the writer's plate, "Will you kindly carve?" asked the lady of the house. I must have looked my astonishment and absolute helplessness. "B-but I don't know how," I stammered. "I have never carved a chicken in my life. At home someone else always does it." My hostess hid a smile behind the fern-pot. "Well, my child, you'll never learn younger, and besides when I serve the vegetables, and the coffee and the dessert, it is only fair that you should serve the chicken."

Knowing my hostess, I felt at once there was no escape, and, accordingly, with as good a grace as I could, I set my teeth and picked up the carving implements. One drumstick of the chicken was pointed toward me rather invitingly, and, seizing upon it (metaphorically, of course), as a drawing man clutches at the proverbial straw, I commenced the attack. Jab! Jab! The knife struck one or two bones and veered off sideways several times, but I persevered and presently succeeded in severing a very ragged-looking leg of chicken.

The Slippery Chicken. "I like a piece of the breast," commented my hostess, who must have been watching my struggles with huge amusement. I tackled the breast. Talk about the slipperiness of the leg, or of the greased pig used in picnic contests! I declare they are hot to be compared with the way that chicken eluded the knife, and bounced here and there around the platter. Mentally, I thanked my lucky stars that I was able to keep it off the spotless tablecloth, and at last, after what seemed millions and millions of years, two small pieces were detached and placed upon the plate of my wicked hostess.

"A bit of dressing, please," was the next request. My poor befuddled brain, however, I could still find no dressing; there must be some hidden in the interior of the fowl. Jab! Again the big knife in my clumsy hand pursued its uncertain way, and discovered the dressing. And as I at length passed the plate to my hostess I am afraid that the uppermost thought in my mind was the fervent desire that the first bite would choke her! The remainder of the dinner passed off without event, except that when my hostess demanded a second helping of the breast, the ordeal had all to be gone through again. The only consolation I had about the entire matter was the length of time I kept her waiting for her dinner.

Future Safe-Guards. I see that there was only two courses open to me. One is to devote a portion of my valuable time to learning the proper carving of fowl; the other is to be immensely wary how I accept dinner invitations. I shall in future demand an assurance in advance that the chicken does not figure on the bill-of-fare, or if so, that some other person than I do the carving!

ENTERTAINMENTS

So many requests come for Halloween suggestions that today again we give some suitable ideas. One of the games recently suggested for Halloween parties is called the owl game.

Half of the players sit in one room while the other half go into the adjoining room to act. The door between the rooms should have a sheet stretched across it, extending up a little higher than the tallest player. Each player in the acting room is then given a paper with his number written on it so he may know just when to act. The watching players are provided with pencils and papers with as many numbers written on them as there are players in the acting room. The fun in the game is when each acting player in his turn wears a mask or a large piece of paper around his head with holes cut in it for his eyes and mouth. Then he stands so that his head is just above the top of the sheet. He "hoots" three times like an owl. The guessing players may go up to look at his eyes in their efforts to try to find out just who is hooting. Then each one who is guessing writes the name of the person whom he thinks is acting. After all the first acting players have hooted they change places with the players in the guessing room. The guessing players then act just as the others have done. During this game one player should keep a record of all of the other players in the order in which they hooted so as to know who wins the prize for making the best guesses of the hooting owls.

TIT-BITS

We overheard the young thing sitting next us at "Hamlet" say that she didn't see what folks saw to applaud at. "There wasn't no dancin' or singin' in 'Tis a lot of gloom!"

If you met a girl friend these days with her hat on one ear, and her hair blowing around like the dust in a vacuum cleaner, don't criticise her as being untidy. Without doubt she washed her hair last night and (this is absolutely original with us) just can't do anything with it.

The story is told of Thoreau in the days of his obscurity that upon one of his books (a thousand copies of which had been published) failing to sell, he instructed the publisher to return the volumes to him. Seven hundred and six copies were accordingly expressed to the author, who, after placing them about his room, said with grim humor, "I have now a library of nearly nine hundred volumes, over seven hundred of which I wrote myself."

Katherine Leslie advises her girl readers to "put their shoes on trees when not being worn." But really, Miss Leslie, don't you think that they might get fearfully wet in the sun rains we have been having?

And speaking of shoes, reminds us that we have six old pairs at home now that we would cheerfully exchange with anyone for two pairs of new ones. Now, don't all speak at once.

The melancholy days are come, The saddest of the year, Bee's going up by leaps and bounds, And coal is mighty dear.

SURVIVORS OF RUSH FIND CLAIMS STAKED

Men Starve and Drown Over the Dread Line of Northern Gold.

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—Men, gaunt for want of food and hollow-eyed from lack of sleep, staggering over mountain passes and wading perilous mountain streams in quest of gold, men striving to death beside the trails, others drowned in rivers or swallowed up in crevasses, the survivors in many cases arriving at their destination only to find all available claims staked. Such was the story brought back to Ottawa by Dr. D. D. Cairnes, of the geological survey, of the rush to the new Alaskan gold fields at Chisana.

Greatest Rush Ever.
Described by Dr. Cairnes as the greatest gold rush since the historic one to the Klondike, although there is no guarantee that the camp will prove anything like the find the Klondike did. Its scenes parallel those which attended the former discovery. Numbers of lives have already been sacrificed, the want of provisions accounting for the greater number of these, and even now the greater part of inhabitants of the camp are living on plantains, which they knock over with sticks or stones, and which are fortunately plentiful.

Canadians in Rush.
The Chisana field, popularly known as Shishana, is situated on the Chisana River, 150 miles southwest of Dawson, and only 20 miles from the Canadian border. Consequently there are more Canadians there now than there are Americans.

As has already been told, it was first discovered by an Indian known simply as Joe, who told two white men, William James and his partner, Nelson, about it. James and Nelson are now spending the proceeds of their first year's work in the United States.

When the news of the discovery became known, a rush over five main routes commenced. One of these took a number of the gold-seekers over the Skoll Pass, a dangerous mountain trail, in whose crevasses several perished.

Others came by way of the Tanana and White Rivers, by Coffee Creek and Lake Klunne, going by pack horses, pack dogs and dogs furnishing a means of transit.

Food Was Scarce. Those who came in, and it is scarcer still now. The cost of living was never higher than in Chisana, where salt, flour and even oats for horses cost $2 per pound. Nothing eatable can be purchased for less than $1 a pound, and for once the necessities of life are valued much more highly than the luxuries. Even at these figures there is practically no food for sale, and many of the gold-seekers, after starving to the limit of endurance, have finally given up and gone out.

As to the value of the strike, Dr. Cairnes stated that there was plenty of gold dust in evidence, though operations have not been sufficiently protracted to prove the camp a permanent field.

TERRIFIC GALE ON LAKE SUPERIOR

Thirty-Five Vessels Are Being Held in Duluth Harbor.

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 28.—Warnings of a northeasterly storm were posted at all points along Lake Superior today by the United States weather bureau and mariners' traffic was at a standstill while boats waited for what was predicted to be the hardest blow of the season.

Thirty-five vessels were held in the Duluth-Superior harbor. A small fleet sailed yesterday, and some anxiety is felt for their safety, as none of them carry wireless.

Wireless messages from ships that cleared Duluth yesterday stated that heavy weather met the vessels as they were delaying passage. The storm is expected to break with the most violence at the head of Lake Superior.

MIDNIGHT FIRE ON YORK STREET HARD TO FIGHT

The Ontario Mattress Company's Plant Damaged to Extent of $25,000.

FIREMEN HANDICAPPED

The Alarm Signal Fails To Work and Flames Get Good Start On the Brigade.

The old plant of the Ontario Spring Bed and Mattress Company, York street, located to the north of the new building, was entirely destroyed and the roof of the new factory for a length of sixty feet was burned, in a serious fire which broke out shortly before 12 o'clock Monday night. Defective wire, it is thought, may have been the cause of the fire, which gave the firemen a strenuous contest for several hours. There was some delay in sending in an alarm. P. C. Holden a few minutes before had been around the building and found nothing wrong. On being informed by a citizen that the rear of the plant was on fire he rang in an alarm at the corner of King and Talbot streets. Something was wrong with the alarm, so he telephoned from the Hotel Harrison. The few minutes delay resulting gave the fire a good start, and the brigade responding promptly on receiving the alarm, would see the blaze issuing from the upper story windows as they crossed Richmond street. The second, third and fourth floors of the old building were on fire, and the flames were issuing from seven or eight windows.

Spread Rapidly.
A large stock of excelsior and feathers was carried in the old building and the flames spread rapidly. The smoke from the burning feathers was dense, obnoxious and suffocating, and the factory situated as it was between narrow alleys knee-deep with mud, made it laborious and difficult work for the firemen to drag their lines down them from the street.

They had constantly to be careful in lifting their feet to prevent their boots being pulled out in the gummy mud of the lanes.

It required their best efforts and hardest work to prevent the fire spreading to adjacent factories and other buildings. In the same block are the John Campbell Carriage Company's factory, the Rice Cigar Box Company's plant, the old White Engine Works, and two hotels, the Markin House and the Suddler House. The roof of the Markin House stable caught fire several times.

It is estimated that the loss will be in advance $25,000. The insurance on the property amounts to between $50,000 and $60,000.

Fire Chief Aitken declared that the fire was one of the most difficult the department has had to fight some time, the dense smoke, the narrow space in which to work, and the mud all combining to handicap the efforts of the men.

Although the fire was under control by 2 o'clock a detail of men were kept on the scene until 5 o'clock this morning.

OPEN THE MEETING IN THE AFTERNOON

London Masons Adopting System in Vogue in the United States.

Following an example set by several lodges in Detroit, Cleveland and other American cities, St. George's Royal Arch Chapter of this city have opened several of its meetings at 5 o'clock in the afternoon instead of 8 for the past year. The innovation has proven so successful that other lodges in the city are falling in line. All the business of the lodge is now transacted in the afternoon, after which supper is served at 6:30. In the evening the degrees are conferred. Since the new time-table was arranged, the attendance of members has doubled, according to one of the officers of the chapter, who is quite enthusiastic over the change. He claims that this year has been the most successful in the history of St. George's Chapter, which has a charter dating back to 1854.

On Friday night the chapter is to visit Occident Chapter in Toronto to confer the Royal Arch degree.

A DAY IN THE SPORTING WORLD

SIDE LIGHTS ON MANY SPORTSHAS "RUBE" DENEAU BEEN SIGNED UP BY BRANTFORD?

Rumor Has It That Former London Manager Is Already Signing Up Players For the Brantford Management—President Stevely Says Deneau Still Belongs To London and Is Not Free To Sign With Anybody.

[BY JINX.] Although it has not yet been definitely announced, it is reported on good authority that Rube Deneau, former manager of the London baseball club, has been signed up to manage the Brantford team for 1914, and he has already landed two or three players for the Red Sox. The announcement will likely be made at Brantford today. Rube has lost all hope of again becoming manager of the London team, apparently, and has been conducting negotiations with Owner Tom Nelson, of the Brantford club. The result of these negotiations is that Rube is now going ahead signing up players on Brantford contracts for next season.

Deneau Still Belongs to London. When informed this morning that Deneau had practically been landed by the local club, at least that he did not see how this could be the case, as Deneau was still a member of the London club, and that any negotiations for him must be made through the local directors. Rube is on the London reserve list, and until the London club sees fit to release him or trade him or sell him, he must play ball in a London uniform and on the London team.

President Stevely Surprised. "Deneau has no right to make negotiations with anybody for next season," continued President Stevely. "He has not yet been released, and until he is, he is in no position to make terms or sign up with anybody. I am surprised that the Brantford club should sign him up because I believe Tom Nelson understands the situation here thoroughly. Mr. O'Neill met Mr. Nelson in New York at the time of the world series, and I believe he explained the matter to him. Mr. Nelson said at that time that he would have nothing to do with Deneau."

Matty and Reddy May Go Also. If Rube Deneau lands the Brantford job, it is likely that Matty Matteson and Cy Reddy will also become members of that team. Matty is a free agent at the present time, but Cy is on the London reserve list. However, as he and Rube are great friends, he may try and secure his release in order to sign up with the Red Sox. Reddy was merely a utility man with the London club last season, and although he played good ball, it is not likely the London club will make much of an effort to keep him next season. In fact, Reddy himself doubted very much if he would be back with London in 1914 before he departed last month. He is thinking of retiring from the game, and has been planning a trip to Australia. With Reddy and Matteson gone, the London club will have to secure a brand new catching department next season, and at least two men will have to be signed up.

CANADIAN LEAGUE WILL MEET FRIDAY

Some Proposed Changes in Circuit Will Likely Be Discussed by Club Owners.

OTHER MATTERS PENDING

Several Important Things in Connection With League's Affairs Will Also Be Taken Up.

The Canadian League will meet in Toronto on Friday next, Oct. 31. President Stevely received definite announcement of the date in a communication from President Fitzgerald this morning. The meeting will be an important one, as it is believed that some changes in the circuit will be discussed. President Fitzgerald has been working on the question for some time, and he will likely have something definite to report.

THEY HAD "SOME BATTLE."

A certain well-known gold pro, tells an interesting story of how Ray and Vardon felt about the championship just after Outmet had tied their count, with the play-off due next day.

"I was walking in with them," says the pro, "when Ray turned to Vardon and remarked: 'Well, Artie, you and I should have quite a battle for this ball's first money tomorrow.' 'Quite so, Ted,' replied Vardon: 'It should be an even fight between us if we are both right.' 'It wasn't,' added the pro, 'until next day that either figured Outmet in the match at all. And even then up through the twelfth or thirteenth hole they had no idea that he would be within three strokes at the finish.'"

HARD HITTING HENNESSY
HAMMERING TAMMANY

District Attorney To Decide if His Serious Charges Will Be Investigated.

[Canadian Press.] New York, Oct. 28.—Whether John Hennessy's charges against Tammany warrant an investigation was a question to be determined by the district attorney's office today.

According to arrangements, Hennessy was due to confer with one of District Attorney Whitman's assistants, in response to a subpoena, and if anything of a tangible nature developed it was suggested that John Doe proceedings would result.

William Sulzer, commenting today on Charles F. Murphy's statement of last night that he (Murphy) had received a $25,000 campaign contribution from the late Anthony R. Brady, but had returned it, said: "The assertion that Murphy returned the $25,000 is to laugh, and makes the statement ludicrous. Murphy never returns money. He thinks it is bad luck. Ask the chief's friends. They will corroborate this. I have proof of all I say."

Mr. Sulzer also said that Jay W. Forrest, of Albany, had a letter which was sent to a captain in Albany by a man who was at a conference at Delmonico's on May 20, telling him what took place at the conference. "This letter," Mr. Sulzer added, might be made public today.

CANADIAN LEAGUERS
PLAY RUGBY FOOTBALL

George Ort Has a Team in St. Thomas That Is a Pretty Formidable Aggregation.

St. Thomas has a Rugby club which is largely composed of Canadian League ball players, most of whom played with St. Thomas team. Manager George Ort is captain of the team, and among his players are Harry Howick, "Midge" Craven, "Bill" Riley and Inker. They have already played a couple of games, and will meet the St. Thomas Collegiate today. All are residing in St. Thomas. Ort is switching on the M. C. R.; Craven is in charge of the Grand Central billiard parlors; Howick works in the P. M. shops; Riley manages the Stanley bowling alleys, and Inker is a brakeman on the M. C. R. Fred Gadsby, the St. Thomas boy, is also a member of the team. The team has already won a couple of games, and is a pretty formidable aggregation.

Readville is applying for grand circuit dates again. If successful it is to be hoped that West does not beat up to any hot-air driving club as he did last year, when he kept Montreal out of the big line.

Joe Kelley, Western League Rabbit, to Match
Speed With Strong Arms of National League Next Year.

"Swift Joe" Kelley, the Western League "Rabbit," who will play with Pittsburgh next season.

"Swift Joe" Kelley is the rabbit of the Western League. He will be seen in the National next season, with Pittsburgh, and judging Kelley by his work this year, he will stick, like nettles in a setter pin's ear. "Swift Joe" has been called "rabbit" because of his speed when scampering about the outfield or along the bases. He leads Tip O'Neill's league in stolen bases, having pilfered 62 in 143 games, which places him in about the same class with Clyde Milan, of the Washington speedster.

Kelley is there or thereabouts, all the time. He was a captain of the St. Joe team this year. The White Sox had him in 1912, and sent him to Jack Holland for seasoning. Evidently Jack supplied the rest.

Holland is the man who had Clyde Milan, before that sprinter went to Washington. At that time Holland was at Wichita, Kan., with Frank Isbell. Kelley gets on base often enough to make his speed valuable. He has hit .313 this year, and is one of the best waltzers in the Western League.

MIKE YOKEL REGAINED
HIS WRESTLING TITLE

Yokel won the first fall in 3 hours 36 minutes, and the second in a minute and a half.

Johnson was on hand and pitched the first three innings for Chicago, holding New York to six hits, but Mathewson did not appear. New York won by 13 to 12. Score: By innings—R. H. E. Chicago... 3 1 0 0 2 3 0 0 3—12 19 4 New York... 0 2 1 4 2 3 0 0 x—13 17 2 Batteries—Johnson, Benz, Faber and Schaik; Hearne, Fromme and Meyers.

SAM LANGFORD WON
THIS BOUT IN 5 ROUNDS

Showed Jack Lester That He Had No Chance Among Big Heavyweights.

Taft, Cal., Oct. 27.—Sam Langford, of Yarmouth, N.S., the negro heavyweight, demonstrated today that Jack Lester, of Cleochum, Wash., was not right to enlist in the army of white hopes. The two met in a boxing bout scheduled for twenty rounds. Lester was knocked down for count of seven in the second round, and in the fourth he was knocked down three times, being saved from a knockout by the bell. When the going rang for the fifth he was still so groggy that he did not answer the bell, and the referee gave the fight to Langford.

[Canadian Press.] Chicago, Oct. 28.—The bond of William Demetral, the giant wrestler, arrested on Saturday on a charge of conspiracy, was fixed at $8,000 yesterday in the criminal court. Demetral was charged by William A. Schmidt, a photographer, with defrauding him out of $4,000 by means of a fake wrestling match in Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 1.

HAMILTON TIGERS 2
WANTED A GAME HERE

Secretary Bobby Kerr Telephoned This Morning in an Effort to Arrange for a Game.

Bobby Kerr, who is secretary of the Hamilton Tigers football organization, telephoned to London this morning in an effort to arrange a Rugby game with the London team for next Saturday. The Hamilton Tigers II have an off day today, and they would like to play a game here. As the local Rugby club is scheduled to play Sarnia in the Tunnel Town the game could not be arranged. The Tigers will arrange a game with Petrolia, however.

MINUTES OF THE WINTER LEAGUE

Jake Daubert will replace Dahlen as manager of the Brooklyn club. Jake Stahl will succeed Dahlen as manager of New Westminster. Lester Patrick is looking for a successor to Goldie Prodger for the Victoria team. The const clubs will probably be constituted as follows: Vancouver—Parr or Clark, Griffith, Lachance, Taylor, Harris, Neighbour. Victoria—Lindsay, Lester Patrick, Dundardale, Poulin, Rowe, Small, Genge, Ulrich. Westminster—Leppmann, Johnson, McDonald, Mallen, Throupe, Teperne, Oatman, Tobin.

AMBER FLUID NOTES

And so Milwaukee beat Denver in the Inter-city series. That just shows you what beer drinking will do for you. Fellow named Beer blocked a kick by which Dartmouth beat Princeton. This is the first time that one Beer has downed eleven men. On what he showed when he won at Lexington, the trotter Ross 9, 2044, is one that the free-for-all bunch will have to look out for next year. Lady Anne took a yearling record of 2:29 1/2, which gives the rare distinction to her dam of producing three standard yearlings. Lord Allen and Aldred also are out of Fanny Summers.

PACIFIC COAST
LEAGUE ORGANIZES

Frank Patrick, of the Vancouver Team, Is Elected President For Coming Season.

SCHEDULE DRAWN UP
Lester Patrick Is Looking for Somebody to Fill Prodgers Place on Victoria Team.

[Canadian Press.] Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 28.—Frank Patrick, of Vancouver, was elected president of the Pacific Coast Hockey Association at the annual meeting last night at the Vancouver Hotel. Delegates were present from Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster. After ratifying the agreement which Patrick made with the National Hockey Association during the past summer, the association elected the following officers: Honorary president, Dr. C. E. Doherty; president, Frank Patrick; secretary, treasurer, A. J. Small. Board of directors—Messrs. E. R. Savage, Neils, Nelson, Lester Patrick. The opening date of the season is scheduled for Friday, Dec. 5. In Vancouver between the Westminster septette and Vancouver. The final match will be played February 27. Immediately upon the conclusion of the season the champions will travel east to meet the winners of the N. H. A. in a series of matches for the world's championship.

The Schedule. The schedule follows: Dec. 5—Westminster at Vancouver. Dec. 9—Victoria at Westminster. Dec. 12—Westminster at Victoria. Dec. 16—Victoria at Vancouver. Dec. 19—Vancouver at Westminster. Dec. 26—Vancouver at Victoria. Dec. 31—Westminster at Vancouver. Jan. 2—Westminster at Victoria. Jan. 6—Victoria at Vancouver. Jan. 9—Vancouver at Westminster. Jan. 12—Westminster at Victoria. Jan. 16—Vancouver at Victoria. Jan. 23—Victoria at Westminster. Jan. 27—Victoria at Victoria. Feb. 2—Vancouver at Westminster. Feb. 6—Westminster at Victoria. Feb. 12—Victoria at Westminster. Feb. 17—Victoria at Vancouver. Feb. 21—Westminster at Victoria. Feb. 24—Westminster at Vancouver.

Must Replace Goldie. The majority of players have been signed up to date by the mainland clubs, and it is not expected there will be many changes in the line-ups. A new manager will be appointed to succeed Jimmy Gardner at New Westminster. Lester Patrick is looking for a successor to Goldie Prodger for the Victoria team. The const clubs will probably be constituted as follows: Vancouver—Parr or Clark, Griffith, Lachance, Taylor, Harris, Neighbour. Victoria—Lindsay, Lester Patrick, Dundardale, Poulin, Rowe, Small, Genge, Ulrich. Westminster—Leppmann, Johnson, McDonald, Mallen, Throupe, Teperne, Oatman, Tobin.

McGraw TO MAKE CHANGES. While it is being predicted that John McGraw will make a number of changes in his team before next season, it would not be at all surprising to find the Giants line-up at the beginning of next season just the same as it was in the past campaign. While it is true that the Giants have not come up to expectations in any of the world's series, the fact remains that the team has won three straight pennants, and it is but natural for a manager of such a team to go slow in making changes. McGraw's team has proven its ability to win the flag in its own league, and while it would add to its reputation if it could win a world's series, the most important accomplishment is to win its own pennant, and the present team has shown its ability to do that.

HORSE

Lon McDonald will winter in Indianapolis.

The Great leads the year's slew of new performers. J. Malcolm Forbes is to be sent to Murphy in the spring. The foreigners are said to have paid about $8,000 for Don Chonault. A. H. Moore has resigned as secretary of the Detroit Driving Club. Walter R. Cox gave seven trotters records of 2:10 or better this year. The year saw the 2:10 list take 61 additions. In 1912 the number was 52. Todd Mac, 2:07 3/4, has a 2-year-old pacer that worked in 2:10 1/4 at Lexington. Plawh leads the money-winning trotters with $24,498, against $24,100 won by Tanager. Don Patch and Stratford, that started in Michigan, won 19 races for Fred Jamison this season. Mr. Billings will give the New Yorkers a treat when he rides Uhlan to saddle in Central Park. Stokes has bought Lady Green Goodie back, rather he traded a couple of Peter the Great yearlings for her. Tenara, a green that won two heats in the M. & N., and then was beaten by Reusens, is to be trained again next year. Bonnie Princess has a look-in for the M. & N. This California mare trotted in 2:07 1/4 during the Lexington meeting. There is a green named Admiral Dewey II, that has made the trip in 2:06 and will be on the grand circuit next year. Fair Virginia, by Zombro, that worked in 2:08 1/4 for Chandler, has been turned over to Walter R. Cox for the 1914 campaign. Lassie McGregor, 2:14 1/4, the unbeaten half-mile track trotter, worked in 2:05 3/4 at Lexington, and her full sister, R. F. V., made a trip in 2:08 3/4. Edward Thompson, of Long Island, is one of the luckiest of the Murphy men. He owned Native Bell, then R. T. C. and now owns Frank Bogash, Jun. The Horse Review says that Lassie Spier was one of the best 2-year-olds at Lexington, and that with more racing experience she will be a real star. The 3-year-old pacer, Colonel Cochran, Jun., is said to have cost Murphy $4,000. The colt is said to have been up to 3 miles in 2:06 this fall. By Colonel Cochran he is out of Wild Rose, by Red Medium.

World Tour Will Be Failure From Financial View

It is questionable whether the world tour which the White Sox and Giants are making will prove a success. It was figured that the two teams would make enough in the games they are to play on their way west to defray the expenses of the entire trip, but judged on the attendance to date this is out of the question, and the chances are that enough of the trip being abandoned. Conksky is sure to go through with his plans regardless of what it might cost him. Though the trip is said to have been up to 3 miles in 2:06 this fall. By Colonel Cochran he is out of Wild Rose, by Red Medium.

INSPECTOR LUTMAN MAKES MILK TESTS

Sanitary Inspector James Lutman has been making milk tests with the newly-acquired tester from Toronto that enables the inspector to prove to the dealers on the spot whether or not their milk is dirty. The milk passes through a little cotton batting wad in the end of the machine, which can easily be carried in the hand, and all dirt and other impurities remains in the cotton, being plainly discernible with either the naked eye or by use of a magnifying glass. These cotton pads are then placed in little tin receptacles that bear the name of the milk dealer and the date of inspection. A record will be made of all these tests and next year's grading will be governed to a certain extent by these dirt records. Police court prosecutions will follow in all cases where the milk is found to contain more than the normal amount of dirt and other impurities.

SOLICITOR ALARMS SOUTH LONDON LADY
She Seeks Assistance of Store Owner and Man Departs.
Residents of Elmwood avenue, South London, were visited this morning by a man trying to sell something, who, it is said, answers the description of the man who entered and robbed the home of Mr. J. M. Forbes, of Cathcart street, Friday afternoon. The man paid a visit to a house fronting on Elmwood avenue, and after asking the woman if she wanted to buy his wares, alarmed her by his persistence. She read the account of the burglary of the Forbes home in the papers Saturday night, and when the man refused to leave she ran to a near-by store and asked the proprietor to come over and chase the man away. The proprietor returned to her home with her, but when he got there the man was seen some distance away.

ANNUAL REVIEW OF SEVENTH CORPS BY GEN. COTTON

Inspection of Regiment Makes a Spectacular Scene at the Armories.

AN IMPRESSIVE SIGHT
Reviewing Officer Finds the Men Excellently Drilled in All the Branches.

The annual inspection of the Seventh Regiment was held Monday night in the armories by Major-General W. H. Cotton. In the inspection party were also Colonel W. E. Hodgins, commanding the division; Lieut.-Col. E. H. T. Howard, staff officer to General Cotton; Captain Eaton, A. D. of S. and T., first division, and Major E. R. Tooley, divisional paymaster.

A large number of citizens and friends of the soldier boys packed the big gallery and the difficult manoeuvres were given rounds of applause.

The scene was an impressive one from the gallery. The scarlet tunics, the black busbies, and the glittering bayonets, made an appealing contrast. The hour for inspection found the battalion drawn up in three sides of a square facing the main entrance. The bands were stationed directly behind the centre of the column.

An impressive sight. An expectant hush fell over the drill hall as the inspector-general and party entered. For a moment only this lasted, then the command "For general inspection, present arms!" rang out sharp and clear. As one man the regiment went through the swift movements of the present arms with the union of clockwork, while the band blared out the high notes of the review. It was a sight well worth remembering, and the audience voiced their hearty appreciation in a manner not to be mistaken.

To the grand anthem, "O Canada," General Cotton slowly walked down the motionless line, scrutinizing carefully each man as he passed. Through the trying ordeal the ranks stood motionless, and both officers and men were evoked on the conduct of the men.

Good Detail Work. Equally well executed was the "march past," which followed. With the stirring martial strains in their ears, the crack regiment swung by the reviewing officer in company column, their lines straight as a die. Then the spectacular part of the review completed, the battalion was drilled in regimental and company work. In all cases the work was entirely satisfactory and showed careful preparation on the part of both officers and men.

WHEAT AND FLOUR NOT ADMITTED FREE

Important Ruling on the New Tariff Law Given at Washington.

[Canadian Press.]
Washington, Oct. 28.—Wheat and wheat flour will not be admitted free to the United States from those countries which decline to admit free of duty similar products from the United States. This ruling has been made by Assistant Secretary Hamlin, of the treasury department, who construed the new tariff law as presenting this decision.

Customs collectors have been advised of the interpretation, and each collector was advised that the countries now admitting American wheat and wheat flour without duty were Great Britain, Finland and the Netherlands.
