ALLIES EXPECTED TO REJECT ENEMY'S PEACE PROPOSALS

AMERICAN FORCES CAPTURE THE TOWN OF ST. ETIENNE

FAINT HOPES HELD OUT AT WASHINGTON THAT AN ARMISTICE WILL BE GRANTED

U. S. Govt. Officials Are of the Opinion That Germany's Peace Proposals Will Not Be Entertained---"Unconditional Surrender" Expected To Be the Answer.

EXPECT NO ARMISTICE.

London, Oct. 7.—No armistice will be granted the central powers before the complete evacuation by them of Allied territory, with a cessation of the destruction and burning of Allied cities. This is the personal opinion of Foreign diplomatists of the highest rank here, who have been questioned concerning the peace speech of the German imperial chancellor, Prince Maximilian of Baden.

Washington, Oct. 7.—A prompt and decisive reply to Germany's latest peace proposal is indicated by developments in Washington today.

"Unconditional surrender" is the answer of the American press to the appeal for peace made by Austria and Germany. Official copies of the peace proposals of the central powers have not as yet been acted upon by President Wilson, but it is reported that the attitude of official Washington does not encourage the hope entertained by the enemy, that the Allies can be induced to enter into negotiations at a time when Germany's armies are in retreat and when Marshal Foch's masterly strategy is beginning to bear fruit. So far as press comments reflect the situation in France and England, there is no disposition in those countries to consider the effort of the enemy other than a new manoeuvre, which promises but little more than might have been expected from the former peace proffers made by the central powers.

Quite irrespective of the nature of the reply, it seemed to be agreed that the German note called for a prompt reply, so that the American people might not be misled into relaxing their efforts for the fourth Liberty Loan, so that the American troops in the field may know at once the position of their Government, and so that an offer of peace may receive such diplomatic attention as it deserves.

The Austrian communication is substantially similar to that from Germany, and both ask President Wilson to arrange an armistice and for peace negotiations on conditions previously laid down by the president. It is said neither of the official texts differs materially from the version published in press dispatches.

Official announcements of the attitude of the U. S. Government still were being withheld, but there was no abatement of the indication that if Germany seeks a "negotiation" leading to roundtable conferences and diplomatic quibblings, the offer will fall flat.

DISCUSSION ON PEACE NOTE IS OPENED IN THE U. S. SENATE

Washington, Oct. 7.—Discussion of Germany's peace offer began in the Senate soon after today's session convened. Senator Poindexter of Washington (Republican) declared the proposal for an armistice as "most insidious danger."

When Senator Poindexter declared an armistice would mean the end of all military action and, if accompanied only by enemy evacuation of Belgium and France, would be a victory for Germany, Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, chairman of the foreign relations committee, earnestly pointed out that the German offer also provides for acceptance of the fourteen terms laid down by the president in his address on January 8.

Acceptance of Germany's offer only upon evacuation of Belgium and France, Senator Hitchcock said, would be preposterous, but he declared restoration of Alsace-Lorraine to France, as well as reparation for Belgium and France, are among the president's terms which Germany proposes to accept.

DELIVERED TO PRESIDENT.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Germany's peace note was delivered to President Wilson personally today by Frederick Oederlin, an attache of the Swiss legation. This gave rise to suggestions that it came from Emperor William himself.

CHANCELLOR DISPATCHES NOTE.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Prince Maximilian of Baden, the German imperial chancellor, announced yesterday that he had sent a note, through the Swiss Government, to President Wilson, in which Mr. Wilson was requested to take up the bringing about of peace and to communicate upon the subject with the other belligerents.

Chancellor Maximilian told the Reichstag that his note had been directed to the President of the United States because, in his message to Congress on August 1, 1918, and in his later proclamations, particularly in his New York speech on September 27, President Wilson had proposed a program of fourteen conditions for a general peace which Germany and her allies could accept as a basis for negotiations.

FRITZ BEATEN TO A FRAZZLE

London, Oct. 7. — American troops are among the wounded who are arriving in large numbers at a southern English port every day. They are flushed with victory and jubilantly declare "the Allies have Fritz beaten to a frazzle." Wounded German prisoners, on the other hand, are most despondent. They admit the end is not far off and say it is impossible for Germany to hold to hold out much longer.

VATICAN REJECTS ENEMY REQUEST TO INTERVENE

Austria-Hungary Is Refused in Demand for Peace Move.

Paris, Oct. 7.—Austria-Hungary recently again insisted that the Vatican undertake steps towards peace, it is reported in Rome, according to a Havas dipatch.

The Vatican, it is added, rejected the demand.

GREEK AND ALLIED TROOPS TO STRIKE IN EAST MACEDONIA

Attack Will Be Made Beyond the Nestos River.

Athens, Sunday, Oct. 6.—Greek and allied troops, says the newspaper Embros, will yet strike into Eastern Macedonia toward the Rhodope Mountains and beyond the Nestos River.

INFANT KILLED, PARENTS INJURED WHEN MOTOR COLLIDES WITH CAR

Montreal, Oct. 7.—One infant was killed and another sustained a broken leg, while the children's parents suffered minor injuries when an automobile and a street car collided last evening at the corner of Sherbrooke street and Park avenue. The automobile was going west on Sherbrooke street when a street car going south struck it. Many persons were walking on the sidewalk at the time, and a number of narrow escapes occurred.

GERMANY AND THE NEXT WAR

GERMANY WANTS PEACE TO SAVE HER OWN SKIN

London, Oct. 7.—Germany, in her latest peace offer, seems anxious to save her own skin, even at the expense of her allies, said George Nicoll Barnes, member of the war cabinet, in a speech at Derby last night. The latest offer showed no change of heart and no change in the German system. The peace proposal only indicated that the Germans realized the change in the military situation and the shifting of the balance of power.

"If anything could come of the overtures," he said, "we should be foolish to deny ourselves that chance. But it would smooth and facilitate the path to peace if the Germans showed some evidence of work following their propositions of faith. By clearing out of France and Belgium they could save their own souls."

"MEANS NOT PEACE BUT TRICKERY," SAYS LONDON PRESS OF PEACE NOTE

Mail Views Germany's Propo sals With Skepticism and Distrust—Demands Unconditional Surrender of the Central Powers.

London, Oct. 7.—Distrust of Germany's intentions and skepticism as to the result of the peace overtures of the central powers are reflected in comments made on the peace proposals by the newspapers here.

The Mail will have nothing to do with Germany's offer, which it says "means not peace, but trickery. In Prince Maximilian's speech there is not a word of repentance for crimes Germany has committed. He offers proposals which are less than the conditions that will be imposed by the Allies as preliminaries to any discussion at all. We did not allow Bulgaria to tell us what to do. We told her what she had to do. We intend to act precisely in the same way with Germany and Austria. If the German people wish to know what guarantees President Wilson and the Allies require, they may be embodied in two words, 'Unconditional surrender.' The Germans must leave the territories they have occupied, restore the property they have stolen, pay for all the damage they have done, and surrender for trial by the Allies the great criminals of the war."

The paper says there are about 500 of these, beginning with the emperor. It also declares that Germany will in no circumstances be given back her colonies.

"This method of approaching peace is the method of a people trying to strike a bargain, and the peace that is coming is not going to be a bargain peace," says the Telegraph.

Germany Has Changed.

The paper sees a marked change in Germany's attitude as to certain matters in dispute, but declares the proposals as a whole to be impossible. "Even the most strongly pacifist element in this country has indorsed the demand for the evacuation of France and Belgium," it says, "as a condition precedent to negotiation, and Maximilian knows that in asking for negotiations and an armistice while German armies are in France and Belgium, he is asking for an impossibility. Negotiations under such circumstances would be an admission of Germany's superiority, and concede the loss of the war by the nations who are aiming to break German militarism. For this reason we cannot believe the peace offer to be seriously meant."

The paper repudiates the idea of trying to reach an understanding as to indemnity for Belgium. It says:

"It is a requirement of simple justice that Germany meet the account which will be presented here for the devastation and plundering of Belgium. There are no fundamental changes in the German administration. Only a few men have been shifted, and the kaiser and those who rule him, are still the real rulers of Germany."

Chancellor's Promise.

Admitting that the latest German peace move is the most important of any thus far made, and confident that the Allies will give the closest attention to it, the Chronicle says they will find it insufficient.

"No statesman who believes in the Wilsonian policy of trying to end war once and for all can be content with anything less than the final and unequivocal elimination of the Potsdam war makers," it continues. "There must

COMMANDER OF BULGARIAN ARMY SURRENDERS TO ALLIED TROOPS

Large Quantity of War Material Taken in Macedonia.

Paris, Oct. 7.—The general in command of the 11th Bulgarian Division has surrendered his force to the Allied troops in Macedonia. The division was comprised of two brigades, and with it a large quantity of war material fell into the hands of the Allies.

GEN. CURRIE NOT TO RELINQUISH HIS COMMAND

Rumor Circulated Is Claimed To Be Without Foundation.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Oct. 7.—Inquiries instituted here have elicited the information that there is no basis for the rumor that Gen. Sir Arthur Currie will shortly relinquish command of the Canadian troops and take command of an imperial army, and that Gen. Sir David Watson will succeed to the Canadian command. Gen. Currie, it is stated authoritatively, will continue to lead the Canadians to further victories.

REBUILDING OF HUGE SHELL PLANT STARTS AS FIRES SMOULDER

Damage at Morgan, N. J., Is Estimated at $25,000,000.

Perth Amboy, N. J., Oct. 7.—While search of the ruins of the mammoth shell-loading plant of Gillespie & Co. at Morgan continued today, in the hope of finding more of the bodies of the 34 workmen who are believed to have perished in the T. N. T. explosions last Friday and Saturday, the work of rebuilding was started.

Of the 21 bodies taken from the ruins only five have been identified.

The revised list of injured, it is said, would number about 150.

Government officials, who have been studying the effects of the disaster, which caused damage estimated at $25,000,000, have adopted measures in the rebuilding plans to prevent the possibility of another explosion in one building from spreading such wide destruction. Fires were still smouldering today in various parts of the ruins covering most of the 2,300-acre site, but officials declared the danger of further explosions was remote.

CHIEF OF GERMAN POLICE FORCE AT WARSAW IS SHOT

Zurich, Oct. 7.—The chief of the German police force in Warsaw, Poland, has been shot by an unidentified person, who fled.

Field Marshal Haig Sweeps Enemy Back in Area Between Lens and Cambrai---Germans Have Set Fire to the Town of Laon---Americans Take St. Etienne.

Paris, Oct. 7.—Laon, the stronghold to which the enemy has been clinging as the key point of his line on the southwest, apparently has been set afire by the Germans. The town was reported ablaze yesterday, and fires were still burning there today.

Rheims has been finally and definitely cleared from the menace of German cannon. The Germans are in retreat on the whole front from the Suippe to the Arnes, as well as in the region south of Cambrai.

In the first-named sector the Allies have reached the Arnes River, on which the enemy hoped to make a stand. In the second region the British fourth army has crushed counter-attacks which the enemy delivered in an effort to prevent its progress toward Bohain and cover their retreat to the south.

These two movements of retreat form a part of a plan which was to have brought the German armies to new lines of resistance much nearer the frontier.

HAIG ADVANCES ON FRONT BETWEEN CAMBRAI AND LENS

London, Oct. 7.—Further progress was made by the British last night on the front between Lens and Cambrai. Field Marshal Haig announced today that posts have been established on crossings of the Scheldt Canal, north of Abencheul-au-Bac and northeast and east of Oppy.

The British also have pushed in slightly further towards Lille on the west and southwest, capturing a German post east of Berclau and progressing somewhat north of Weze Macquart.

AMERICANS CAPTURE ST. ETIENNE.

With the American Army in the Champagne, Sunday, Oct. 6, 8 p.m.—The American troops operating in the Champagne with the French again advanced their lines today, capturing St. Etienne. The American progress served also as a leverage on the right of the Champagne offensive, resulting in advances further west, the result being the withdrawal of the German lines along a 25-mile stretch.

RHEIMS IS DELIVERED FROM THE MENACE OF GERMAN GUNS

Paris, Oct. 7.—French troops have crossed the Suippe River eastward of Orainville and have reached the outskirts of Bazancourt and Boul-sur-Suippe after severe fighting, it is officially announced. At Clement-a-Arnes heavy losses have been inflicted upon the Germans, who retired in disorder. Today's fighting completed the deliverance of Rheims.

The battle north of St. Quentin continued all day, and Remacourt, Tilloy Farm and several fortified woods were captured, the announcement says. The enemy resisted furiously, but was unable to check the French, who captured several hundred prisoners.

BERTHELOT'S ARMY CROSSES THE AISNE CANAL NORTH OF RHEIMS

With the French Army on the Champagne Front, Oct. 6.—(By the Associated Press).—Gen. Berthelot's army has crossed the Aisne Canal north of Rheims and pushed northward. It has advance to Aguilcourt, on the Suippe, about a mile from its junction with the Aisne.

The Germans may endeavor to make a stand along the Retourne, which flows into the Aisne at Neufchatel, although they may be unable to do so, and may be hurried back to the fields where they were checked in their march toward the Marne in August.

HUNS IN DISORDERED FLIGHT BEFORE ARMIES OF GOURAUD

With the French Army On Champagne Front, Oct. 6.—11 p.m.—(By the Associated Press.)—Over a wide extent of territory outlined by burning villages, the Germans are retreating rapidly before General Gouraud's troops. They are crowded by General Berthelot's forces from the west and in danger of being cut off by the Franco-Americans who have crossed the Arnes River.

AMERICANS GAIN GROUND.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Slight advances yesterday by the American forces between the Meuse and the Bois-des-Agons in heavy infantry fighting was reported today by Gen. Pershing.

GERMAN RESISTANCE SLACKENING.

Paris, Oct. 6.—The French fourth and fifth armes are progressing rapidly. The resistance of the Germans is slackening and the river Suippe has been reached along the line of Bethenville, Pont Faverger.

CHANCES ARE SLIGHT THAT REQUEST WILL BE RESPECTED

Germany's New Peace Proposal Not Officially Received by Washington.

FRENCH PAPERS OBJECT

Insist That Occupied Portions Be Evacuated First.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Germany's newest peace offer, proposing an armistice while President Wilson considers and conveys to the Allies a proposal on the basis of the terms laid down by the president himself, had not reached Washington in official form tonight and there was, therefore, no authorized report of how it was regarded by the United States.

If such a note is received through the Swiss legation, a reply will be sent through the same channels, but it is felt here that no showing has been made by the German Government which would warrant entering upon any discussion.

In unofficial circles it is reiterated that there is slight probability of any serious attention being paid to propositions which come from the Germans while they still occupy portions of France and Belgium. One comment was that Germany is seeking to make a diplomatic virtue out of a military necessity.

LONDON SEES DISCREPANCIES.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The report that the imperial German chancellor, Prince Maximilian, to the Reichstag, together with the peace proposals have been forwarded by him to President Wilson, has caused a stir in official circles, but in the absence of an official report of the speech and non-receipt of the proposals, comment is withheld. Authoritatively it was stated tonight that likely no comment would be made until the discrepancies between the version of the speech as published here, and the reports of the peace proposals have been cleared up.

In the minds of the officials of the foreign office, the speech and the proposals do not coincide, although allowances were made for possible errors in the transmission of the speech.

Mr. Balfour, the foreign secretary, was indisposed, and most of the higher Government officials are out of London for the week-end. Efforts made to reach them by telephone failed, owing to the congested, interrupted wires. The foreign office endeavored to get in touch with Premier Lloyd George and other members of the Government, but without avail.

FRANCE'S EYES ON AMERICA.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—All eyes in France today are turned towards America—to Washington and Wilson. "What will President Wilson's reply be?" the people are asking, and wondering, now that they know that the central empires, particularly Germany, are seeking the cessation of hostilities and peace through the president of the United States.

The feeling is general that the central empires, bent upon the greatest gamble of all times, have attempted to bring about by one stroke, the termination of their losing game by trying to seek the good offices of President Wilson as intermediary.

The Paris newspapers are unanimous in their demand for complete victory. The present peace move is sneered at. A demand is made for the entire submission of Germany, and that the Germans be disarmed.

Paris Sings Hosannas.

Paris went to church today as never before since the opening of the war. In the dark days when the Germans occupied Chateau Thierry; when their bridghead, south of the Marne, was like a leveled pistol at France's heart, menacing France's very life, Paris remained indoors. But today Paris sauntered out early, and the churches of all denominations were filled to overflowing.

Saint Gervais Church, which was damaged by the shell from the long-range German gun on Good Friday, has been sufficiently repaired to permit its doors to be opened today, and worshippers flocked thither to the shrine where once woman and children praying for France's liberation were sacrificed. But if it was prayers for the dead that were sung at St. Gervais on Good Friday, it was Te Deums and Hosannahs of victory that floated to the avenues today.

"We Have Got Them."

As Paris emerged from the churches it overflowed upon the cheerful boulevards or sought temporary abode in cafes bathed in sunshine and everywhere one heard no longer the familiar and hopeful cry of "We shall get them," but the satisfied and contented exclamation: "We have got them."

"The White Flag Trick" is the caption of the editorial in the Temps on the peace proposals of the central powers. What Germany has done, says the newspaper, is "to invite the United States, who are belligerents as much as Germany, to play the role of mediator, as if they were outside our alliance."

In return, continues the Temps, Germany is willing to admit as the basis of negotiations President Wilson's program for a general peace.

Phrases Are Vague.

"Admit as a basis is vague," says the Temps. "The question is what does Germany accept and what does she reject. Germany only invokes President Wilson's peace to make us let fall our arms. Then when the fighting has ceased when the German troops have regained their breath, when the Impreal Government has become popular and strong, the German diplomats will undermine and overturn one by one the pretended basis of negotiations. It is easily understood that the kaiser's staff approves of Prince Maximilian's policy, but Maximilian, with Ludendorff and Scheidemann, are mistaken in attributing so much naive to President Wilson."

Offers Blood-Stained Paw.

"The cornered beast draws in its claws and offers us its blood-stained paw," says the Journal Des Debats, in beginning its editorial. This newspaper declares that the suspension of hostilities will be acceptable only on conditions offering the same advantages as the continuous victorious advance of the Allied troops—the evacuation of territories occupied in Belgium, Luxemburg, France, Russia, Italy, Rumania, Bulgaria, Serbia and Montenegro.

"We shall keep our program of restitution, reparation and guarantees," says this paper. "There will be no armistice before we possess guarantees for the execution of these conditions."

Refers to Collapse of Macedonia; Says Hour Is Grave.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Via Basle, Switzerland.—Emperor William in a proclamation to the German army and navy, dated October 6, says:

"For months past the enemy, with enormous exertions and almost without pause in the fighting, has stormed against our lines. In weeks of the struggle, often without repose, you have had to persevere and resist a numerically far superior enemy. Therein lies the greatness of the task which has been sent for you, and which you are fulfilling. Troops of all the German states are doing their part, and are heroically defending their Fatherland on foreign soil. Hard is the task.

His "Unwavering" Navy.

"My navy is holding its own against the united enemy naval forces, and is unwaveringly supporting the army in its difficult struggle.

"The eyes of those at home rest with pride and admiration on the deeds of the army and the navy. I express to you the thanks of myself and the Fatherland.

"The collapse of the Macedonian front has occurred in the midst of the hardest struggle.

"With our allies I have resolved once more to offer peace to the enemy, but I will only extend my hand for an honorable peace. We owe that to the heroes who have laid down their lives for the Fatherland, and we make that our duty to our children.

Must Hold Ground.

"Whether arms will be lowered still is a question. Until then we must not slacken. We must, as hitherto, exert all our strength unwearily to hold our ground against the onslaught of our enemies.

"The hour is grave but, trusting in you and the strength and in God's gracious help, we feel ourselves to be strong enough to defend our beloved Fatherland.

(Signed) "WILHELM."

GERMAN TROOPS WITHDRAWN FROM BALKAN FIELDS

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Via London.—German troops which have been fighting in the ranks of the Bulgarian army have been withdrawn and are now marching back toward their headquarters, says the official report issued today by the German general army headquarters.

The text says:

"Our troops which hitherto had been fighting in the ranks of the Bulgarian army have been withdrawn and are marching back toward their headquarters. They have completely met the high demands made upon them and have accomplished excellent work."

LONDON, Oct. 5.—(Saturday).—Baron von Hussarek, the Austrian premier, handed his resignation in the name of the entire cabinet to the emperor on Friday. It will be officially announced, the dispatch says, after a successor to von Hussarek has been found. The new premier, it is added, possibly will be Professor Lamache with whom negotiations are under way to bring about a great pacifist manifestation.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY URGING WILSON TO EFFECT ARMISTICE

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 6.—Austria-Hungary, through the Austro-Hungarian minister at Stockholm, has invited President Wilson to use his offices to secure an armistice and general peace.

The text of the proposal follows:

"The Austro-Hungarian monarchy, which has made only defensive warfare and has borne witness several times to its desire to put an end to the bloodshed and conclude an honorable peace, proposes by presentation to President Wilson to conclude immediately with him and his allies a general armistice on land, on sea and in the air, to start without delay negotiations for peace. These negotiations will be based on the fourteen points in President Wilson's message of January 8 and the four points of his speech of February 12 (February 11), 1918, and those equally of September 27, 1918."

"GASLESS SUNDAYS" TO CONTINUE FOR WHILE

NEW GERMAN POLICY INCLINED TO GRANT DEMOCRACY A SHOW

Lithuania and Poland To Have Popular Government; Alsace-Lorraine Atonomous — League of Nations, Disarmament—Subordinate Brest and Bucharest Treaties.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 5.—The Berlin Tageblatt gives the text of the program of the majority parties in the Reichstag, which will form the basis of the new German policy.

The first clase provides for adherence to the Government's reply to the papal note of August 1, 1917.

The second clause declares readiness to join in a league of nations based on equality and free economic developments.

Third clause missing.

The fourth clause says that peace treaties hitherto concluded must form no hindrance to the conclusion of a general peace. In the Baltic provinces, Lithuania and Poland popular assemblies are to be created at the earliest possible moment.

Clause five provides for the establishment of the independent state of Alsace-Lorraine, with full autonomy corresponding to the demand of Alsace-Lorraine for a popular assembly.

Clause six demands the carrying out without delay of electoral reforms in Prussia and reform in those states which are still without it.

Clause seven aims at the co-ordination of the imperial government and the Government representatives from parliament to carry out a uniform imperial policy.

Strict observance of all constitutional responsibility is demanded, as well as the abolition of all military institutions that might serve to exercise political influence.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY AND TURKEY, TOO.

Paris, Oct. 6.—Germany, Austria-Hungary and Turkey have resolved simultaneously to ask President Wilson to make representations in their interest for a general armistice and negotiations for a general peace, according to a Berne dispatch to the Havas Agency.

The Austro-Hungarian minister at Stockholm has been charged to request the Swedish Government to transmit to President Wilson a proposal to conclude immediately with him and his allies a general armistice and to start without delay negotiations for peace. This announcement is made in a Berne dispatch to the Havas Agency

TEXT OF NOTE TO PRESIDENT WILSON.

Amsterdam, Oct. 6.—(By the Associated Press).—The text of the note forwarded by the imperial German chancellor, Prince Maximilian, to President Wilson, through the Swiss Government, follows:

"The German Government requests the President of the United States to take in hand the restoration of peace, to acquaint all the billigerent states of this request, and invite them to send plenipotentiaries for the purpose of opening negotiations.

"It accepts the program set forth by the President of the United States in his message to Congress on January 8, and in his later pronouncements, especially his speech of September 27, as a basis for peace negotiations.

"With a view to avoiding further bloodshed, the German Government requests the immediate conclusion of an armistice on land and water and in the air."

It is announced that Turkey will take a similar step.

Willingness to join a league of nations on a basis of equal rights was declared by Chancellor Maximilian in his address. He also proposed complete rehabilitation of Belgium and immediate establishment of popular representative bodies in the Baltic provinces of Lithuania and Poland.

German Chancellor Declares For "Popular Rule" In Berlin and Proposes General Peace

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 6.—The text of the address of Prince Maximilian of Baden, the new imperial chancellor of Germany, outlining his politics to the Reichstag yesterday follows:

"In accordance with the imperial decree of September 30, the German empire has undergone a basic alteration of its political leadership.

"As successor to Count George F. von Hertling, whose services in behalf of the fatherland deserve the highest acknowledgment, I have been summoned by the emperor to lead the new Government.

"In accordance with the governmental method now introduced, I submit to the Reichstag, publicly, and without delay, the principles upon which I propose to conduct the grave responsibilities of the office.

"These principles were firmly established by the agreement of the federated governments and the leaders of the majority parties in this honorable house before I decided to assume the duties of chancellor. They contain, therefore, not only my own confession of political faith, but that of an overwhelming portion of the German people's representatives; that is, of the German nation which has constituted the Reichstag on the basis of a general, equal and secret franchise and according to their will.

People Behind Him.

"Only the fact that I know the conviction of the majority of the people are back of me has given me strength to take upon myself conduct of the empire's affairs in this hard and earnest time in which we are living.

"One man's shoulders would be too weak to carry alone the tremendous responsibility which falls on the Government at the present time. Only the people should take an active part, in the broadest sense of the word, in deciding their destinies. In other words, if responsibility also extends to the majority of their freely elected political leaders can the leading statesman confidently assume his part of the responsibility in the service of the folk and fatherland.

"My resolve to do this has been especially heightened for me by the fact that prominent leaders of the laboring class have found a way in the new guarantee that the new Government will be supported by the firm confidence of the broad masses of the people, without whose true support the whole undertaking would be condemned to failure in advance. Hence, what I say today, I say is not only in my own name and those of my official helpers, but in the name of the German people.

Wants League of Nations.

"The program of the majority parties upon which I take my stand contains, first, an acceptance of the answer of the former imperial government to Pope Benedict's note of August 1, 1916, and unconditional acceptance of the Reichstag resolution of July 19, the same year. It further declares willingness to join a general league of nations based on the foundation of equal rights for both strong and weak.

"It considers the solution of the Belgian question to lie in the complete rehabilitation (wiederstellung) of Belgium, particularly of its independence and territorial integrity. An effort shall also be made to reach an understanding on the question of indemnity.

"The program will not permit the peace treaties hitherto concluded to be a hindrance to the conclusion of a general peace.

"Its particular aim is that popular representative bodies shall be formed immediately on a broad basis in the Baltic provinces, in Lithuania and Poland. We will promote the realization of necessary preliminary conditions therefor without delay by the introduction of civilian rule. All these lands shall regulate their extensions and their relations with neighboring peoples without external interference.

Just Peace of Justice.

"In the matter of international politics, I have taken a clear stand through the manner in which the formation of the Government was brought about. Upon my motion, leaders of the majority parties were summoned for direct advice. It was my conviction, gentlemen, that unity of imperial leadership should be assured not only through mere schismatic party allegiance by the different members of the Government. I considered almost still more important the unity of ideas. I proceeded from this viewpoint and have, in making my selections, laid greatest weight on the fact that the members of the new Imperial Government stand on a basis of a just peace of justice, regardless of the war situation, and that they have openly declared this to be their standpoint at the time when we stood at the height of our military successes.

"I am convinced that the manner in which imperial leadership is now constituted, with co-operation of the Reichstag, is not something ephemeral, and that when peace comes a Government cannot again be formed which does not find support in the Reichstag and does not draw its inspiration therefrom.

Parties Are United.

"The war has conducted us beyond the old multifarious and disrupted party life, which made it so difficult to put into execution a uniform and decisive political wish. The formation of a majority means the formation of a political will and an indisputable result of the war has been that in Germany, for the first time, great parties have joined together in a firm, harmonious program, and have thus come into position to determine for themselves the fate of the people.

"This thought will never die. This development will never be retraced (applause), and I trust that as long as Germany's fate is ringed about by dangers, those sections of the people outside the majority parties, and whose representatives do not belong to the Government will put aside all that separates us and will give the fatherland what is the fatherland's.

"This development necessitates an alteration of our constitution's provisions along the lines of the imperial decree of September 30, which shall make it possible that those members of the Reichstag who entered the Government will retain their places in the Reichstag. A bill to this end has been submitted to the federal states, and will immediately be made the object of their consideration and decision.

Quotes the Kaiser.

"Gentlemen, let us remember the words spoken by the emperor on August 4, 1914, which I permitted myself to paraphrase last December at Karlsruhe: 'There are, in fact, parties, but they are all German parties.' (Applause.)

"The political developments in Prussia, the principal German federal state, must proceed in the spirit of these words of the emperor, and the message of the king of Prussia promising the democratic franchise must be fulfilled quickly and completely. (Applause.) I do not doubt, also, that those federal states, which still lag behind in the development of their constitutional condition will resolutely follow Prussia's example. (Applause).

"For the present, as the example of all belligerent states demonstrates, the extraordinary powers which a condition of siege compels cannot be dispensed with, but close relations between the military and civilian authorities must be established, which will make it possible that in all not purely military questions, and hence especially as to censorship and right of assemblage, the attitude of the civilian executive authorities shall make itself heard, and that final decision shall be placed under the chancellor's responsibility. (Applause.)

New Epoch in Germany.

"To this end the order of the emperor will be sent to the military commanders. With September 30 the day of the decree, began a new epoch in Germany's internal regime. The imperial policy, whose basic principles are therein laid down, is of deciding importance on the question of peace or war.

"The striking force which the Government has in its strivings for peace depends on whether it has behind it the united, firm, and unshakable will of the people. Only when our enemies feel that the German people stand united back of their chosen leaders—then only can words become deeds. (Applause.)

"At the peace negotiations the German Government will use its efforts to the end that the treaties shall contain provisions insuring the protection of labor, and the insurance of laborers, which provision shall oblige the treaty-making states to institute in their respective lands within a prescribed time a minimum of similar, or at least equally efficient stipulations for the security of life and health, and for the care of laborers in the case of illness, accident or invalidism.

"Of direct importance are the conclusions which the Government in the brief span of its existence has been able to draw from the situation in which it finds itself, and to apply practically to the solution. More than four years of bloodiest struggle against a world of numerically superior enemies are behind, nevertheless we are of strongest heart and full of confidence in our strength, resolved to bear still heavier sacrifices for our honor and freedom, and for the happiness of our posterity, if it cannot be otherwise.

"We remember with deep and warm gratitude our brave troops, who, under splendid leadership, have accomplished almost superhuman deeds throughout the whole war, and whose past deeds are a sure guarantee that the fate of us all will in future be in good and dependable hands in their safekeeping.

Front Is Unbroken.

"For months a continuous, terrific and murderous battle has been raging in the west. Thanks to the incomparable heroism of our army, which will live as an immortal, glorious page in the history of the German people for all times, the front is unbroken.

"This proud consciousness permits us to look to the future with confidence. But, just because we are inspired by this feeling and the conviction that it is our duty to make certain that the bloody struggle be not protracted for a single day beyond the moment when a close of the war seems possible to us, which does not affect our honor, I have, therefore, not waited until today to take a step to further the idea of peace.

"Supported by the consent of all our allies, acting in concert with us, I sent on the night of October 4-5, through the mediation of Switzerland, a note to the president of the United States, in which I requested him to take up the bringing about of peace and to communicate to this end with all the belligerent states.

"The note will reach Washington today or tomorrow. It is directed to the president of the United States because he in his message of January 8, 1918, and his later proclamations, particularly in his New York address of September 27, proposed a program for a general peace which we can accept as a basis for negotiations.

"I have taken this step not only for the salvation of Germany and its allies, but of all humanity which has been suffering for years through the war.

"I have taken also, because I believe the thoughts regarding the future well-being of the nation which were proclaimed by Mr. Wilson, are in accord with the general ideas chorused by the new German Government and with it the overwhelming majority of our population.

"So far as I am personally concerned in earlier speeches to other assemblages, my hearers will testify that the conception which I hold of a future peace has undergone no change since I was intrusted with the leadership of the empire's affairs.

(Section missing.)

Awaits, Conscience Clear.

"I see hence no distinction whatever between the national and international mandates of duty in respect of peace. For me the deciding factor is solely that all participants shall with equal honesty acknowledge these mandates as binding, and respect them, as is the case with me and with the other members of our governments. And so, with an inner peace, which my clear conscience as a man and as a servant of the people gives me, and which rests at the same time upon firm faith in this great and true people, this people capable of every devotion, and upon their glorious armed power, I await the outcome of the first action which I have taken as the leading statesman of the empire.

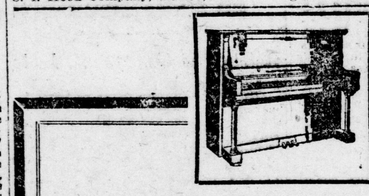

"Whatever this outcome may be, I know I will find Germany firmly resolved and united either for an upright peace which rejects every selfish violation of the rights of others or for a closing of a struggle for life and death to which our people would be forced without our own fault if the answer to our note to the powers opposed to us should be dictated by a will to destroy us.

"I do not despair over the thought that this second alternative may come. I know the greatness of the mighty powers yet possessed by our people, and I know that the incontrovertible conviction that they were only fighting for our life as a nation would double these powers. (Applause.)

"I hope, however, for the sake of all mankind, that the president of the United States will receive our offer as we mean it. Then the door would be opened to a seepdy, honorable peace of justice and reconciliation for us as well as for our opponents."

PATRIOTIC PLAYERS OF CITY WILL GIVE SKETCH HERE SOON

SOLDIERS ARE GRATEFUL

New Play in Majestic Will Add to the Patriotic Funds.

In the past four years, S. J. Meredith and company have earned a reputation for the high merit of their dramatic and light opera presentations which have delighted the London public from time to time, and won for the talented young people invitations to appear in other cities. No attraction is surer to draw bumper audiences to the Majestic Theatre than the announcement that S. J. Meredith and company will appear in a sketch. The sketch is sure to be well staged, clever and amusing, with interesting dialogue, good singing and dancing. The company has been given the opportunity to appear there through the courtesy of T. W. Logan, manager of the Majestic Theatre. Both Mr. Logan and the company have thus afforded most pleasing entertainment.

Real Patriotic Work.

But a much more important mission than this has been accomplished. S. J. Meredith and comapny achieved organization for patriotic services, to raise money to send comforts to the fighting lads overseas, and to aid patriotic objects at home. For example, the dental room at the Byron Sanatorium for Tuberculous Soldiers has been furnished and equipped by proceeds of entertainments turned over by S. J. Meredith and company. Thanks to the company, scores of soldier boys overseas have known the soothing of "smokes." Recently, F. R. Jones, acting secretary for the Overseas Club, London, England, has thus acknowledged the receipt of $581.65, representing the proceeds of one week's performance of "The Cabaret Artists," in the Majestic Theatre.

Gratitude Expressed.

"We should be grateful if you would convey our thanks to the members of the theatrical company who took part in these performances.

We can only say how heartily we appreciate your kindness in thinking of such a splendid way to raise funds for our tobacco fund.

"We are sure you will realize what an important part the parcels of 'smokes' have played in providing our gallant fighters with all the comfort it is possible to send them, and the thousands of letters of thanks which we have received make us even more anxious to continue sending parcels until our armies are demobilized. It is with gratitude, therefore, that we think of all those who are giving us such loyal support."

Officer's Thanks.

Even more convincingly the story of appreciation is told by letters and cards which have come in direct acknowledgment to the company, the O. C. commanding a battery in France, a young captain wrote on September 18:

"On behalf of the men of our battery, I desire to convey to you my sincere thanks for the spelndid donation of cigarettes which arrived some time ago. It was a splendid donation and came at a time when the boys were greatly in need of the soothing effects which they derive from smoking. You really have no idea what we have been through since the Canadian began the grand offensive on August 8, and what wonderful feats of arms have been theirs. There are no troops in France to compare with them. It has been almost an impossibility to get comforts for the boys, so your donation was more than appreciated."

Soldiers Appreciative.

Here are extracts from active service postcards:

"Many thanks for cigarettes which we received. They fit the right spot, and we all are firing up in our mouths and giving old Fritz hell. We sure appreciate your kindness."

"Thanks very much for cigarettes which you so kindly sent. They have come doubly welcome, as during the last few days, cigarettes have been pretty hard to get."

"I take great pleasure in thanking you for the cigarettes we just received from you. It was the greatest relief this unit has received for some time, and if you could have seen the smile and look of content in the boys' faces, you would understand better what great work you are doing."

"I can assure you the smokes you sent are greatly appreciated (in this isolated place) as a nerve cooler under shell fire."

The sum of $4,000 has been raised by S. J. Meredith and company for patriotic purposes, the proceeds of six entertainments.

Offer To Handle London's Whole Quota.

The life underwriters of London held a special meeting on Saturday night and appointed a committe composed of President T. B. Parkinson, W. Robinson and E. V. Coleman, to wait on the chairman of the local Victory Loan campaign and offer the services of the Life Underwriters' Association to take full charge of selling London't quota of Victory bonds. This they would do at the regular rate of commission allowed. The matter will be referred to the sales committee.

CITY BREVITIES

—A five-piece military orchestra from the Garrison Regiment will play at the regular khaki dance Tuesday evening.

33RD MEN GET TOGETHER.—The members of the 33rd Comrades' Club are holding a meeting on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. dining hall, and are making preparations for a big attendance. All 33rd men are being invited to attend.

SERGT. HAND WOUNDED.—Sergt. William Hand has been wounded by gunshot. Word of this was received by his mother, Mrs. Hand, 610 Princess avenue, this morning. He is a son of James Hand, C. P. R. engineer, and left for overseas with a W. O. R. detachment.

SHOT IN SHOULDER.—Mrs. Louise Wells, 38 Argyle street received official word Saturday that her husband, Pte. James Edward Wells, of the infantry, was admitted to the Ontario Military Hospital at Orpington September 30, with a gunshot wound in the right shoulder. Pte. Wells enlisted about seven months ago in the W.O.R., but his wife received word of him being in France only the week before last.

CLASSES OPENING.—The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium classes will open tonight under the direction of the new physical director, David Allan, formerly of St. Thomas. The classes are nearing the completion of their organization, and good work is expected from the boys and young men this year. The work will cover exercises which tend to develop both the physical and mental ability of the members.

PTE. PORTER WOUNDED.—Robert Porter, 424 York street, received word today to the effect that his son, Pte. Howard Oliver Porter, had been reported wounded in the side during the recent fighting in France. Pte. Porter was a former resident of this city and was employed here prior to enlistment. He left this city with the Army Medical Corps and transferred to the infantry upon his arrival in England. He has been in France fourteen months today.

OFFERS BARRELS AT COST.—In connection with the sending of apples overseas, it is stated that there is a shortage of cases in which to ship the fruit. It is further asserted that large quantities of fruit are rotting on the ground. W. E. Mitchell of Mitchell's Cooperage has offered to deliver to any patriotic society, at cost, 1,000 barrels, to be used for shipping apples overseas. This offer, he says, holds good to any person or society willing to see that the barrels are used for this purpose. "No speculators need apply."

BUTTONS FOR FARMERETTES.—It isn't only the boys who have done their bit of fighting overseas who are entitled to service buttons. The girls who have taken up their burden of responsibility and valiantly made war on the Germans as soldiers of the soil are also to have their reward in the way of a badge. Farm service buttons have arrived at the local Government Employment Bureau and may be obtained on request by the farmerettes who have toiled in the heat of the past summer in the Western Ontario district, toiled in gathering fruit, hoeing, weeding, and general farm work.

JEWELRY RECOVERED.—In connection with the theft of jewelry from a local store, it is said that between $700 and $800 worth has been recovered by the local detectives and police force. Numerous people availed themselves of the wonderful opportunity of obtaining some first-class rings cheaply. Some of the goods were brought by the proprietor of another jewelry store. Practically all of the stolen articles have been recovered. It is stated, however, that any person who bought anything from the lad and has not turned it over to the proper authorities and does not soon do so will be prosecuted.

DID EXPLOSION OR FIRE OCCUR FIRST?

Question Interesting to Owners of Damaged Property.

Did the explosion at the Mitchell gas plant in East London on Saturday morning cause the fire which followed or did the fire cause the explosion?

This fact, it is said, will be an interesting one in the future events in connection with the matter. It is reported that a meeting of the residents who suffered damage from the explosion may be held in the near future to consider what action they will take. It may be that the question of what began the trouble will have an important bearing on whether or not an effort will be made to collect damages from some of the insurance policies.

The insurance men still hold that the policies in force do not cover damage of this kind. They are acting on the ground that the damage was caused by the explosion and the fire had nothing to do with it.

Building Inspector Piper stated today that the permit to erect the building where the plant was located was taken out in 1912, and a permit was issued F. G. Mitchell for a garage. He did not know that the gas plant was being conducted there.

He added that he never received complaints about it.

Mr. Mitchell says that when he took out the permit he secured it for a gas service station and a garage, and he purchased his power from the city. Mr. Mitchell says there are other such plants about the city. He used to know of several. There is one located at the foot of Carling street now, he believes. He says the city was aware of the location of his plant.

ROTARIANS REFUSE TO FINE SELVES FOR MISSING MEETINGS

Inclination Shown To Hear More Members Speak.

Members of the Rotary Club today refused to adopt a resolution to fine all members 25 cents for each meeting they failed to attend. Considerable discussion took place for and against the resolution, and while the entertainment committee's work was praised, it was suggested that the club should call on more of its own members to provide programs.

Major Cyril G. Emery, nephew of James Gray, was present as a guest after two years and a half in the medical service of the Canadians in Saloniki. Major Emery paid warm tributes to the nurses and to the Canadian system, stating that the British Tommies always hoped that they might be sent to Canadian hospitals.

Col. Howard, who is in charge of the engineering of the Canadian military hospitals, spoke briefly, and the club extended a warm farewell to Rev. D. C. MacGregor, who is leaving the pastorate of St. Andrew's for a visit to the front. His membership in the club will be held open while he is absent.

D. H. McDermid asked the club to take an active interest in the affairs of the Children's Aid Society, and a large deputation will visit the shelter.

Intimation was given that a large number of Rotarians are to lose their membership if their attendance does not improve, there being a waiting list of 37 citizens anxious to take their places.

TWO PERSONS HURT WHEN L. AND P. S. R. CARS COLLIDE NEAR PT. STANLEY TODAY

Mrs. Payne and Motorman Hurt—Damage Done Rolling Stock.

Mrs. Payne of Port Stanley is reported to be badly injured, and the motorman on the 11:21 L. and P. S. passenger car out of Port Stanley somewhat hurt, as a result of a head-on collision which occurred about 11:30 today in the neighborhood of Stop 23, which is just on the outskirts of the village.

The car piloted by the motorman, who is reported to be badly hurt, and whose name could not be obtained at the time of going to press, was leaving Port Stanley, when it collided with one of the large freight engines which was going toward the village. Mrs. Payne is reported to be badly injured, but the extent of her injuries is not yet known. The motorman is also injured to an unknown extent. The car contained several passengers, among whom were some Londoners. All received a bad shaking-up, and some cuts and bruises. The car, engine and roadbed are badly damaged.

TECHNICAL AND ART SCHOOL OPENS; CLASSES ALL PROVE POPULAR

The London Technical and Art School opens today to the public with "Education for Efficiency" as its motto. Over 400 pupils have already registered, and others may continue to do so this week. Despite the fact that a large part of London's manhood is overseas or serving the country in some capacity, men and youths from 16 to 66 have registered, and outnumber the girls and women, but H. B. Beal, principal of the school, stated that he expected all the women's classes would be filled right up before the end of the week. The classes for women and girls are: Dressmaking, millinery, ladies' tailoring, embroidery, cooking and home economics, wood carving, art, showcard writing, first aid, home nursing, automobile mechanics, science of electricity and English and arithmetic.

The following classes are for men and boys: Machine shop practice (elementary), machine shop practice, toolmaking, welding, automobile mechanics, plumbing and steamfitting, cabinetmaking, carpentry and joinery, electric wiring, science of electricity, machine draughting (elementary), machine draughting, blueprint reading, architectural draughting, sheet metal draughting, building construction, art, industrial design, showcard writing, industrial chemistry, mathematics, English and arithmetic.

MEANS NOT PEACE

be restitution, reparation and guarantees and the criminals who launched the war must be so unmistakably beaten that never afterward doubt may be raised as to who won it and who lost it.

"The chancellor's promise that an effort will be made to reach an understanding regarding an indemnity to Belgium is not enough for our purpose. It is indispensable that in Belgium's case no equivocation should remain. Germany must say outright, 'I did wrong and I undertake, as far as possible, to pay for it.' Prince Maximilian's standpoint still seems essentially different from what is vital to us. Germany has undergone neither change of outlook nor change of heart, which alone can permit world peace to be permanent."

Military Necessity.

"Perhaps the most welcome feature of Germany's hastily arranged move is that it can only be a measure of her military necessity," says the Times. After reviewing the chancellor's speech, the Times declares it to be "ambiguous and disingenuous stuff," and asks: "Will Germany ever realize there is only one way for her; i.e., by deeds and not words? It is far too late to talk of a basis for peace negotiations. The determination of the allied peoples is that the defeat of those who made war shall be complete and absolute. That task they have undertaken, and it shall be performed to the very end, and there will be no peace until Germany has surrendered without condition to terms which will leave her, not merely without a will but without power to break it."

GERMANS TRYING TO EVADE DISASTER.

Paris, Oct. 7.—The quest for an armistice and the opening of peace parleys by the central powers is looked upon by the French press generally as an attempt to evade certain disaster. It is declared that Germany hopes to conclude a peace which will permit her to exploit the peace treaties of Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest, and also save the Hohenzollern dynasty.

An armistice under the present conditions, the paper thinks, is impossible. The conditions expressed by the new German chancellor do not at all correspond with the conditions for peace laid down by President Wilson.

SPANISH INFLUENZA ABATING HERE, SAY LOCAL PHYSICIANS

But 94 New Cases Were Reported Saturday.

ASSISTANCE FOR NEEDY

Board of Health Will Provide Food and Fuel If Required.

WHAT LOCAL DOCTORS ADVISE

Keep your hands clean.

Always wash your hands before touching food.

Use an antiseptic mouth wash and gargle two or three times a day.

Listerine and peroxide solutions are excellent mouth washes and gargles.

Keep away from crowds.

Keep your windows open and your house, office or shop well aired.

Keep your digestive organs in good working order.

And the greatest of these is, KEEP YOUR HANDS CLEAN. YOU GET INFECTION THROUGH YOUR MOUTH.

Some of the doctors in town state as their opinion today that the Spanish influenza epidemic is abating a bit. In spite of their hopeful outlook, they are pretty red-eyed and bleary-eyed owing to the many calls they have been obliged to make upon influenza patients. One doctor was rejoicing in the fact that he had his motor car back in service today. It was laid up for repairs on Friday and Saturday, and his feet were pretty nearly worn to the bone racing around all hours of the day and night.

It is pointed out that a month is about the average duration of an influenza outbreak, and that London is well into the third week today.

Ninety-four new cases of influenza were reported to the board of health on Saturday afternoon.

Forgotten on Sunday.

"Keep away from crowded places" is an admonition which was more honored in the breach than in the observance on Sunday. Carried on a high tide of excitement, young and old forgot all about "floo" germs as they congregated together to celebrate the announcement of Germany's willingness to discuss peace terms on the basis laid down by President Wilson. Nevertheless, there has not been a particularly big rush today to report new cases of influenza; in fact, there were only 40 cases reported to the board of health before 10:30 o'clock.

A member of the board of health takes the view that people are all the better for their joyous outburst on Sunday, and that it quickened their pulses and raised their vitality in such a way as to enable their systems to successfully throw off enemy germs.

Of the cases reported today, two have developed pneumonia.

Must Get Necessaries.

The board of health has been obliged to assume heavy responsibility in connection with the Spanish influenza visitation. Not only are nurses to be provided for cases of urgent need, but also the necessaries which are required for recovery.

"Does coal come in the necessity list?" was asked today of the chairman of the board, E. H. Russell.

"Assuredly," he said, "if it is necessary to keep the house comfortable to save lives. In cases where there is no fuel in the house, it is part of our responsibility to see that it is procured. If the dealers haven't got the coal, we will have to get it somewhere else. Lieut.-Col. McCallum is very emphatic on that point, that houses must be kept comfortable to prevent the development of pneumonia."

School Nurses Help.

Following the meeting of the board of health on Saturday afternoon, when the chairman and M. O. H. were empowered to obtain help for nursing in cases where needy families are ill and there is no one to care for them, Mr. Russell and Dr. Downham conferred with Miss Barons and Miss Hanson, tuberculosis nurses. Both were so busy with their own patients, many of whom had developed influenza, that they could not render any outside service.

Inspector C. B. Edwards was next waited upon in regard to the obtaining of the co-operation of the school nurses. He stated he would lay the matter before No. 1 committee of the school board today. Later in the afternoon on Saturday he announced to Mr. Russell that the school nurses would be glad to co-operate in any way in their power, granted the necessary authority from the school board's committee.

Miss Friend, public health nurse, was kept busily engaged all Saturday afternoon and Sunday making calls and ministering to patients.

Only one more case is reported at present of a family in bad circumstances, requiring the services of a nurse sent by the board of health. Saturday afternoon the vital statistician of the Institute of Public Health sent out notices to all the doctors in town to the effect that the board of health would supply help in the way of temporary nursing for any family urgently requiring it.

Mild in England.

A medical officer who has returned from overseas within the past few days states that the epidemic of Spanish influenza had almost abated there at the time he left. He had opportunity of observing only in so far as it affected the military. So far as he could gather from reports, it had been a much milder type in the old country than that which is raging in Massachusetts. The epidemic in England lasted between a month, and six weeks, and the mortality figures were very low. "So far as figures for Old London are concerned," he said, "it must be taken into consideration that London, England, has a population of ten millions. Though quite a number may have died, the percentage would be very low.

DR. MACFIE SERIOUSLY ILL WITH PNEUMONIA; HAS JUST BURIED WIFE

Seized Suddenly on Return From Graveside on Thursday.

Dr. A. W. Macfie, chiropractor, 267 Piccadilly street, and head of the drugless physicians of Ontario, is seriously ill with pneumonia at Appin.

On Tuesday last Mrs. Macfie died. She was among London's first victims of the ravishes of Spanish influenza and pneumonia, her death following a sudden attack of the malady. Mrs. Macfie was born at Appin, and on Thursday her body was taken there for interment. Immediately Dr. Macfie returned from attending the last sad rites at the grave, he was taken ill. By Thursday night it was quite apparent that he was suffering from the malady which had claimed the life of his young wife. On Friday and Saturday he grew gradually worse. Yesterday there were many reports about the city that he, too, had succumbed. However, at the Macfie home today it was learned that the doctor is improving. Last night his temperature was slightly lower, and he was resting more easily. Hopes for his ultimate recovery and that he may be spared to care for his five motherless little children are said to be bright.

CHURCHES EXPECTED TO SAVE 500 TONS OF ANTHRACITE COAL

Fuel Controller McCallum Is Gathering Statistics.

The reports of the churches on the amount of coal consumed in them and Sunday schools are starting to reach Fuel Controller McCallum.

These reports show that about two-thirds as much coal is used to heat Sunday schools as is used for churches. For instance, if a church burns 40 tons of hard coal, it is usually found that the school requires nearly 30 tons.

Mr. McCallum has not decided on a plan for conservation by the churches as yet, but when he has time to dissect the information received it will undoubtedly mean that he will ask that the church or the Sunday school be closed, and the one building used for both purposes. There are several churches that burn hard coal which might be able to burn soft. This will also be looked into, and it is possible these will be asked to burn the soft coal. The saving in any case should be at least 500 tons of hard coal, says Mr. McCallum.

Of the some 450 residents who sent in their names to Mr. McCallum informing him that they had no coal, 91 were new-comers who never had a coal dealer before. To deal with these, Mr. McCallum has decided to ask the dealer nearest to them to take care of their order and deliver them one ton of coal.

Mr. McCallum is calling a meeting of the dealers to discuss the matter with them.

TWENTY-THREE NEW BUILDINGS WILL BE ERECTED FOR ARMY

Permit for $250,000 Issued by Building Inspector.

The militia department has taken out a building permit to erect 23 more frame buildings on Carling Heights. This will make over 30 buildings in all that will be erected this fall on the heights.

The 23 buildings for which the most recent permit has been issued will be one and two story structures with block foundations. The size of the buildings and the purpose for which they are intended are as follows:

Four lavatories, 33x66 feet, one story.

Two guardrooms, 30x22 feet, one story.

Eight barracks rooms, 232x41 feet, two stories.

Two soldiers' messrooms, 261x46 feet, one story.

Two recreation rooms, 98x40 feet, one story.

Two officers' recreation rooms, 40x40 feet, one story.

Two sergeants' messrooms, 40x40 feet, one story.

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT

Street Railway and Fire Department Matters To Be Discussed.

The city council meets tonight. The grist already prepared for the mill is not large, but it is expected that there will be two or three interesting items. The street railway schedule will be one of them, and the report of the city solicitor on the council's action in regard to the fire department probe is another. There will likely be considerable discussion on both matters if they come up, as it is expected they will.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

DEATH OF J. W. GARLICK.

The death of John Woodhouse Garlick occurred on Saturday morning at his late residence, lot 1, con. 3, London Township. Mr. Garlick had been ill only two days. He was 54 years of age, and his sudden death comes as a shock to the many friends, made during the short time he had lived in that district. The funeral took place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock to Webster's Cemetery, where interment was made at 3 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Brae conducted the services.

DEATH OF MRS. WALSH.

Mrs. Clara Walsh, wife of Thomas H. Walsh, died at her residence, 645 Lorne avenue, on Saturday evening, in her 35th year. The funeral will take place on Tuesday at 2 o'clock to Woodland Cemetery, where interment will be made at 2:30. Rev. W. G. Ashby of the Church of the Redeemer will conduct the services.

DEATH OF MRS. ANDERSON.

The death of Mrs. Christina A. Anderson, aged 88 years, widow of Robert Anderson, occurred at her late residence, 567 Dufferin avenue, Sunday.

She was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and came to Canada with her parents at an early age. She resided in Nicol Township, near Fergus, for many years. She was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and a member of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society. She was well known in this city, having resided here for a number of years.

Mrs. Anderson is survived by three sons and five daughters: Robert A., William H. and Archie, all of this city; Mrs. S. V. MacLeod of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. J. H. Downing of Minneapolis, Minn.; Mrs. A. E. Sommerville of this city and Misses Jessie and Isabelle at home.

The funeral will be held from the family residence, 567 Dufferin avenue Tuesday afternoon. The services will be conducted at 2:30 by Rev. D. C. MacGregor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Interment will be made at Woodland Cemetery.

FUNERAL OF JAMES SWIFT.

The funeral of James Swift, who died in this city on October 4, took place Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock to Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The services, which were largely attended by friends and relatives, were conducted by Adjutant McDonald of the Salvation Army, and six members of the same organization acted as pall-bearers.

FUNERAL OF MISS SAUNDERS.

Miss Kathleen Saunders of Scotch Plains, N. J., who died at the home of her uncle, Frank H. Westbury, 714 Colborne street, on Friday morning, was buried this morning in Mount Pleasant Cemetery from the above address. The funeral took place at 9:45 o'clock to the Colborne Street Methodist Church, where services were conducted by Rev. F. L. Barber, at 10 o'clock. The services were largely attended and during the course of them the church soloist sang "Face to Face" very sweetly. Miss Saunders' father and two brothers attended the funeral.

DEATH OF E. W. WELCH.

The death of Ernest William Welch occurred Sunday at Victoria Hospital, after a short illness. Mr. Welch was well known in this city, and had resided here for many years prior to his death. He was a machinist by trade, and 36 years of age. Besides his widow, Mrs. Martha Welch, he is survived by two young sons and one daughter. The funeral will take place Tuesday afternoon from the family residence, 637 Hamilton road, to Woodland Cemetery, where interment will be made at 2:30 o'clock.

DEATH OF WILLIAM KITTO.

William Kitto, an inmate of the Aged People's Home, died this morning in his 80th year. Mr. Kitto was born in England and had no relatives in this country. The funeral will take place on Tuesday from the undertaking parlors of George E. Logan at 11 o'clock to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

CALLS ON WOMEN TO TAKE SHARE IN NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Miss Boulton Guest of Women Teachers' Guild.

Miss Constance Boulton of Toronto, guest of honor of the annual luncheon of the London Woman Teachers' Guild in the Alexandra School on Saturday afternoon made a rousing appeal to the members of the teaching profession and presidents of local women's organizations and others who attended as visitors, to rise to the responsibilities of citizenship bestowed by the right to use the ballot and to do their part to make Canada a nation worthy of the sacrifices of the men who have died for its freedom.

In addition to the address by Miss Boulton, greetings to the Woman Teachers' Guild were extended by presidents of sister organizations and representatives of the press. Miss Adkins of St. Thomas, secretary of the Provincial Federation of Women Teachers, of which Miss Johnston of this city is president, briefly and in an interesting manner told of the aims of the federation to raise the standard of the teaching profession, and the financial status of women teachers. Miss McIntyre represented the women teachers of Windsor, who are considering organization. Mrs. Munroe (nee Edith McBride) delighted with a solo, and was obliged to respond to an encore. Miss Graham proved not only a gracious hostess, but a capable and witty toast mistress as well.

Artistic Decorations.

Upon their arrival at the Alexandra School at 1 o'clock, the guests were welcomed by Miss Graham, president of the Woman Teachers' Guild; Miss Yeates, Miss Carswell (secretary), Mrs. Cook (treasurer), and Miss Davey.

Luncheon was served in the kindergarten room, where covers were laid for 130. Many complimentary things were said concerning the artistic triumph achieved in the decoration of the room and tables by Miss Howie and her committee. At the far end of the room, as a background for the table of honor, was draped an immense Union Jack. Garlands of scarlet barberries festooned the walls, and snowball berries filled tall vases on the mantel and piano.

Asters, barberries and salvia brightened the tables, the dainty place cards, hand-painted in an autumn-tinted maple leaf design proving in themselves most decorative, as well as charming souvenirs to carry away.

Ten young girls in white frocks, Grade 7 and Grade 8 girls of the school, deftly served the dainty luncheon. These were Kathleen Yeates, Audrey Smith and Reta Lowry of Grade 8, and Laura Zwicker, Stephanie Silverman, Kathleen Topham, Jean Kline, Lillie Hodgins, Myrtle Pocock and Gwendolyn Lane of Grade 7.

Women's Responsibility.

Announcing her subject as "Woman's National Responsibility," Miss Boulton referred to the manner in which this responsibility has been enlarged through the granting of full citizenship and the right to vote.

"We suffragists have held," said Miss Boulton, "that the ballot is the most sacred thing a man or woman can wield. I am not going to say that men have failed in their public responsibilities, or that they are no good. I have never said that or thought it. But I do say that the great majority of men have come to regard the vote as a very light thing. With a population of 500,000, the vote registered in a municipal election in the past has been 18,000. In the last provincial election only 50 per cent of the men voted; proof positive that numbers of men do not believe in the sacred responsibility of the ballot.

"In a democracy such as ours, men and women have the right to choose, hence the greater importance of good citizenship in a democracy than in an autocracy. Hence, also, the greater importance of education along the lines of good citizenship in a democracy than in an autocracy.

"Yet in this democracy of ours, people of high ideals have been sitting apart, letting people of no ideals, who do not know the meaning of the word integrity, stuff the ballot boxes and put people of low ideals into power by means of bribery and corruption.

Home Life First.

"The greatest thing in the world is home and home life, but a woman can do her full duty to her home and at the same time look out beyond its walls and view the world with intelligence, understanding and high spiritual desire. Now that we are full-fledged citizens, we have a definite part in the weal or woe of our municipality, country and empire."

Hon. Dr. Cody was cited as an example of a man of high ideals and great scholastic attainments, who had not feared the besmirching influence of politics in order to serve generations to come. "If politics are dirty," said the speaker amid applause, "they need people of right ideals to clean them up."

One of three women members of the Toronto school board, Miss Boulton suggested to the other guests of the day, representatives of various women's organizations, the desirability of having women school trustees, thereby evoking enthusiastic applause.

Mrs. H. A. Boomer, president of the Local Council of Women, sent through Mrs. Yarker a characteristic message, to the effect that the guild can be assured of the support of the council and its affiliated societies in any of its undertakings "to the last ditch."

WORLD HAS GAINED BY WAR EXPERIENCE, SAYS REV. L. W. ARMITAGE

Spiritual Advances Mentioned in Address to Men's Brotherhood.

"The war has brought distinct spiritual gains to the world despite all its horror, its loss, and its waste." This was the declaration of Rev. L. W. Armitage, rector of St. James' Anglican Church, in addressing the men of the Askin Street Methodist Church Brotherhood on Sunday morning. Mr. Armitage pointed out that wars were not entirely destructive. During the Napoleonic wars, when the fate of Europe hung in the balance, many great religious organizations had their inception. "What is mankind getting out of the war; men are praying in a way that they have never prayed before. The greatest leaders in the world are calling upon the nations to get down upon their knees. Not until all the nations are on their knees will the war be finally won," he said.

Another thing gained in this war was the feeling of responsibility for others. This has been shown at home in the care of soldiers' dependents. Fighting for right and honor, men were finding that life did not consist in an abundance of things or in the magnitude of things. Britain has found that there are other things to be considered besides a big empire, said Mr. Armitage. The address made a deep impression on the audience of men gathered to hear him.

MEDICAL BOARD HAD BUSY TIME SATURDAY

The medical board at the local mobilization centre had a very busy day on Saturday, as many men appeared before it for examination. Three volunteers forwarded from the recruiting mission at Detroit, namely, J. G. Coakes and A. Fleck, were placed in A-2 category and attached to the Canadian Engineers, while T. V. Nimmo was attached to the artillery depot after being placed in the same category. E. R. Thurlow, a Canadian, was placed as a Y. M. C. A. representative, with Category C-1, while H. I. F. Wiley was placed in the Army Medical Corps with A-2 Category. Y. R. Underwood was forwarded to Toronto to undergo further examination prior to entrance into the Royal Air Force.

One surrandered absentee and one defaulter were placed in Category A-2. One apprehended man and one apprehended absentee were placed in Categories C-1 and C-3, while one absentee was placed in Class E. All men were attached to the W. O. R.

THOUSANDS VISIT SCENE OF EXPLOSION; BUSINESS IN WINDOW GLASS BRISK

James C. Park Rejoices Over Family's Absence From Home.

The scene of Saturday's gas explosion in the east end was the mecca for thousands of citizens Saturday night and all day yesterday, at least until the war news had become known.

Saturday night crowds flocked to the east side. Street cars were packed to the doors. Yesterday morning and early afternoon were the same.

Already many signs of destruction have disappeared. The glass dealers did a rushing business all Saturday afternoon and a good portion of the missing windows were replaced, although there are hundreds of empty frames remaining.

The Bank of Toronto windows, like the large front windows of many homes, present beautifully rough boards instead of the transparent glass. The bank was unable to get the windows replaced on Saturday.

Windows Expensive.

Many people find that the cost comes pretty high. "I thought that I had got off quite lucky, although my home is two blocks from the explosion," stated one man, and added "yet when I came to replace the broken windows it just cost me $35. Another man who paid a similar amount is Principal Gibbs of Chesley Avenue School. He lives on King street, near Ontario. His next-door neighbor has only one pane of glass, an 80-cent one, broken. Another woman, on Ontario street, still further removed from the gas plant than the last woman, had nine windows broken.

It is almost impossible to tell just how many homes suffered, but an east ender said that he had tried to make a count of windows and when he got past the 500 mark he quit. He had missed a good bunch.

Might Have Been Worse.

While a few individuals are dissatisfied with the ruling of the insurance companies that no insurance will be paid for the damage, the general opinion is relief along the lines which Pollyanna, the Little Glad Girl, would take, it might have been worse.

One of the heaviest losers was James C. Park, whose home was practically wrecked. Mr. and Mrs. Park left home on an auto trip a few hours before the explosion. Neighbors who have talked with Mr. Park since his return say that he is quite joyful over the fact that he and his family were absent when the explosion occurred. The loss sustained by the damage to his home is many times compensated for by the fact that the members of his family are all safe. It is almost certain that had they been home the story would have been different.

CHIEF SAVES BABIES LEFT BY MOTHERS IN ARMORIES ENTRANCE

Infants in Buggies "Parked" in Midst of Big Crowd.

"The Lord is not particular where he sends babies sometimes," remarked the City Editor this morning, when informed that the following story was headed for the city desk.

It seemed appropriate and fitting to the situation. It agreed with the opinion of London's big, gruff, but ever kindly police chief.

The scene of the story was the entrance to the armories. The hour was 8:30 o'clock Sunday evening. The armories was packed to the doors, and about half as many again as those inside were trying to crush their way in. It was a solid mass. The noise was deafening.

Amid it all two babies slept. Their places of repose were their buggies. The parking place of the buggies was the cause of the City Editor's remark. It was the cause of even stronger remarks from Chief Williams.

Parked Their Babies.

Evidently two mothers wanted to participate in the civic celebration of the wilting of the kaiser. They wheeled their baby buggies down town, and, being on the job fairly early, managed to get the buggies into the armories entrance. They wheeled them close to the wall of this twenty-foot passage and there left the sleeping babes and went on their way in.

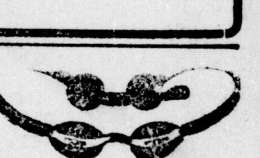

One can imagine what would have happened to the babies when the rush from the armories started after the festivities inside were over. It is impossible to estimate the number of persons inside, but the density of the crowd in the passageway at 8:30 was such that it was impossible to move, and when the crowd started out it was many times worse.

Chief to the Rescue.

However, the two babes were saved from the fate to which their "fool mothers," as several termed them, had abandoned them. Chief Williams got his eye on the two buggies. He realized what the mothers had failed to appreciate, and he placed the two babies under arrest. He secured assistance, and, lifting the two buggies up, carried them into the guard room of the armories. Just when the mothers found them or what the soldiers said when they finally located them is unknown. It would hardly be good judgment, though it might be a gracious act for these mothers to pay a visit to Chief Williams and thank him for his kindly solicitude for their abandoned babes.

BEGAN MUSICAL CAREER WHILE ASLEEP; NORTH END GIRL PHENOMENON

There is a young lady residing in the north end of the city who can play the piano and has never taken a music lesson in her life. She is not one of the ordinary players one would expect to meet, either. She can play high-class music like a trained musician, and the quality of her technique and expression is regarded as wonderful. There is an incident connected with her younger days well worth narration. When she was a child of 5 years she walked in her sleep, and it is said she went downstairs, walked over to the piano, and began to play. In later years music came as naturally to her as talking might. Her uncle, brother of her father, is also an accomplished musician, playing by ear, the same as this young lady.

No Street Lights on Sunday Evening Lamps All Missing

Utilities Manager Said It Was Impossible to Place the Needful.

During the joyous moments last night there were many who did not hesitate to remark that it would have been well to have all the street lights doing duty with the streets in such a crowded condition.

The Advertiser called General Manager E. V. Buchanan of the utilities commission, and asked his opinion of the matter. His reply was that it would be necessary to place lamps in all the lights not in use, and it would be impossible to send men with a wagon through the streets with such crowds. However, he said he did not think there would be much objection from a power standpoint, to the merchants lighting their windows. He did not think the police would prosecute them if they did this. There was no way to get such information to the merchants, and the streets remained partly lighted.

IN POLICE COURT

"I never hit her; she chased me around the corner with a long hatpin in her hand," said Fred Fuller, a resident of the colored district, when he appeared in police court this morning charged with assaulting Mrs. Edith Campbell. One could hardly imagine Mrs. Campbell, who is so small that her head only could be seen above the witness-box, with a hatpin routing Fuller, who stands head and shoulders above the complainant. Mrs. Campbell said that Fuller called her vile names and hit her in the face when she was on her way up town with a lady friend last Monday. She had told him that he was drunk.

"I was not drink," said Fuller. "Why, all these officers around the court know that I have not tasted liquor since the saloons were closed."

"I know that you were drunk, and I can tell where you got the whiskey also," interrupted Mrs. Campbell.

"Everybody knows that this woman is a bad woman and causes all the trouble among the colored residents of the city and the court knows this," said Fuller.

"The court knows nothing of the kind," quickly responded Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon, "and I think that she is telling the truth about the case. Her face was all swollen when she came to lay the information, and I find you guilty of assault." The penalty imposed was two dollars and costs. Fuller asked if a check would be accepted, and was told that he would have to settle with Clerk John Moule.

Two to One.

One drunk, who denied the charge, thought it was an imposition on the part of the officer to arrest him when he was perfectly sober as he thought. "He was so drunk that he occupied all the sidewalk," testified the officer.

This was corroborated by another officer, who saw the defendant when he was brought into the station.

"Well, there are two against one, and you know how that goes, but I was not drunk," persisted the prisoner. The court thought he was and imposed the usual penalty of ten dollars and costs or ten days.

Complainant Leaves.

Richard Blackwell, who last week was charged with assault by Minnie Sprague, and who on account of the plaintiff's absence from court then, was called again this morning, and told Magistrate Graydon she had gone to the West. "Did you have anything to do with her leaving the city?" asked the court. "I did not, but she came down to see me before she went," replied the defendant. The case was adjourned for investigation, and if the plaintiff has left the city it will be dropped.

Will Await Draft.

Arthur Shipley, who deserted from the 70th Battalion on April 21, 1916, a short time after he enlisted, and who evidenced a strong desire to get over in time to give the kaiser what is coming to him, was sentenced to jail for six months or until a suitable draft leaves.

George Slater, who last week pleaded guilty to theft of jewelry, was again remanded this morning for sentence.

MILITARY NOTES

When reporting casualties in the U. S. A. forces occurring in Canada, the regimental number, name, rank, and initials must be clearly stated, say today's orders.

JOINS C. E. F.

Lieut. J. L. Dickson, late 168th Battalion, having ceased to be "on command" in the Royal Air Force, has been taken on the strength of the C. E. F., M. D. No. 1.

ADMITS DESERTION.

Pte. W. Coles of the Engineers, pleaded guilty Saturday morning when charged before district court-martial with desertion. He now awaits the promulgation of his sentence, which must be confirmed by the G. O. C. of M. D. No. 1. The promulgation will take place in a few days.

BUILDING PROGRESSES.

The building of the winter huts on the heights is still progressing at a fast rate, and will be completed shortly.

LONDON BREAKS OUT IN REJOICING AT SIGNS OF GERMANY'S DEADLY WEAKNESS

GIVE TO OUR STATESMEN WISDOM IN THIS HOUR, IS PRAYER OF CITY MINISTERS

Nearly All Allude to Dispatches Telling of Enemy's Latest Plans, But Temper Their Rejoicing With Thought of Caution.

Comparatively few of the ministers of the city received the news of the German, Austrian and Turkish efforts to get out of the war in time to make announcement or comment during the morning services, but few of them failed to allude to it in their evening discourses, most feelingly. The thought uppermost in the minds of most of the speakers was the necessity of thanksgiving to God for permitting the Allies to achieve the successes which have shown the Teutons the impossibility of scoring a victory by force of arms. There was a certain reservation shown in touching on the importance of the news insofar as it affected the early end of war, nearly all being inclined to wait and see how the Allied government received the advances made by Berlin, Vienna and Constantinople. That the news was good no one doubted, but many realized that it lay with the Allied leaders to determine how good.

Concerning the war news there was a general note sounded in the Baptist churches on Sunday evening suggesting caution on the part of the Allied leaders. Several of the speakers expressed the idea, however, that it is an indication that the day for which all the Allies have been praying since the beginning of the war is rapidly drawing near.

Following are some of the opinions expressed in the different Baptist churches last evening:

At Talbot Street.

Rev. H. H. Bingham at Talbot Street: "It is good news for which we as a nation ought to be devoutly thankful to God. There are so many things to be considered and so many deductions to be drawn in such a proposal, it may be little more than another peace ruse to divert the energies of the Allies at this critical moment. We shall still do well to beware of the deceptions of Germany. It is, however, evident that Germany sees defeat ahead of her, and is anxious to prevent a crushing blow. She knows very well that as soon as the war reaches her territory revolution will likely follow.

"Germany has been like a mad bully, leaving destruction in her path. Now that the Allies are in a position to retaliate, Germany cries: 'Let us have peace.' Our natural desire would be to still push on into Germany. It may be, however, that since she has voted herself out of the list of civilized nations by her atrocious deeds of barbarism, her sufferings will be long and severe.

"After all we have said, it is a question whether our leaders ought to sit down in a peace conference with such arch-murderers as the war lords of Germany. The kaiser and his associates are not fit to sit down with Allied representatives to discuss peace. Let representatives to discuss peace. Let Germany show her sincerity by shutting these men out of the peace conference.

"The terms of the armistice must not be merely those of President Wilson or the leader of any other one country. They must be the terms of all the Allied nations. There is no doubt, however, that there is harmony between President Wilson's peace terms and those of Britain and France.

"Let us not be too optimistic in seizing this olive branch from Germany, but let us pray that great wisdom and divine guidance may be granted our leaders and representatives at this time."

At Wortley Road.

Rev. W. M. Walker at Wortley Road: "It is a matter of profound gratitude to God that the call for an armistice has come from those who have been sending millions of men to fight for what most of the civilized world has long seen to be wrong. We thank God for this. It could not be otherwise, since the right must prevail.

"We must earnestly pray that no righteous principle for which the British Empire and her allies have entered this war may be sacrificed for the sake of a premature peace; but that justice and humanity may be so secured as to render the renewal of a war like this as nearly as may be impossible."

At Egerton Street.

Rev. A. C. Bingham, Egerton Street: "In the midnight darkness of our sorrow and bereavement there comes a flash of light from the east and a message of peace which set the anthem of rejoicing ringing in our hearts. Let our first expression of it be thanksgiving to God, and second, honor to those noble fellows, living and dead, through whom God has achieved this."

At Maitland Street.

Rev. J. N. Norton, Maitland Street: "There has been no time since 1914 that the people and the leaders of the Allies needed an abundance of wisdom that is given to those who ask of Him, more than at the present.

"If the report is correct that the Hun has asked for an armistice, there can be no doubt that he is showing great cunning. If he is able to bring hostilities to an end now with Belgium, Russia and Rumania, still in his power, and never the foot of an English, French or American soldier on the 'holy fatherland' as conqueror, the Hun will teach his children that Germany was victorious in this struggle.

"Nothing will teach the children of the Hun that Germany has been defeated but the victorious march of the Allied armies through the 'fatherland' to and into Berlin; and a taste of some of the gall of the cup of bitterness that Armenia, Belgium, France, Serbia and Russia have been forced to drink at the hand of Hun Hindy. Let us pray not for peace but wisdom."

At Adelaide Street.

Speaking in the Adelaide Street Church on the "Anchorage of Hope," Rev. P. K. Dayfoot of Toronto referred to the experience through which the people of Canada, with those of all the other allies, have passed since early spring. "While at times the outlook seemed very dark, we were strengthened by the hope of victory in the end. We are thankful for the developments of the last few days. Our hope now is that the Allies will insist on a lasting peace, and that justice and righteousness may be established on the earth."

PRESBYTERIANS ALL COMMENT.

Not one minister in all the Presbyterian churches failed to make remarks on the news received on Sunday of Germany's willingness to discuss peace on the Allies' terms. Speaking in St. Andrew's Church last evening Rev. D. C. MacGregor referred to the news, saying:

At St. Andrew's.

"All hearts are thrilled with joy tonight at the announcement that Germany is prepared to discuss peace on the basis of President Wilson's terms. This may be sincere on the part of Germany, but it should be treated with caution. Germany is on her last legs, and this may be a ruse to gain time to reorganize her forces. Germany must discard the heathen philosophy that 'might makes right,' and also withdraw from all occupied territory. Germany should be brought to the feet of the Allies. Her arms must be laid down forever. Not until Germany does this will the world be safe from the arch-enemy of democracy.

"We must pray for our statesmen in this hour, knowing the problems which they are facing, and upon which depends almost the whole world."

At King Street.

"Rejoice! News that stirs every heart in the world that it reaches has been received today. It has stirred the hearts more than any victory that has been won. Germany is at least being brought to her knees." So said Rev. John Little, the evangelist, in the King Street Presbyterian Church.

At First Presbyterian.

Speaking in the First Presbyterian Church on the war situation, Rev. W. J. Knox said: "We must not lose our heads. Peace has not visited the earth. Germany, beaten in the field, is endeavoring to transfer the conflict to the peace table. She is moving in this direction because she wishes to enter the peace conference while she still holds portions of France and Belgium, to barter with for national advantage. Germany should not be considered," said Mr. Knox, "because as yet she has shown no repentance whatever for the horrible atrocities committed, nor has she the slightest desire to do so. In this hour of world difficulty, we must call upon the only Understander, who will show in what way the Allies should deal with Germany."

"God has given us the victory, not by might, power or the sword, but because after this long, weary struggle He has seen fit to bestow on the Allies the victory," said Rev. D. H. Rogers, assistant pastor of the First Methodist Church, speaking in the Hamilton Road Presbyterian Church, when referring to the war news received in the city Sunday. "The first thing in this glad hour is to thank Almighty God. It looks as though peace is not very far distant, and universal prayers asking for an early peace should be offered. This is one of the most important days in the history of the war. Germany is feeling the pinch," concluded Mr. Rogers.

METHODISTS WELCOME NEWS.

In the Methodist churches of this city Sunday evening references were made to the report that Germany, Austria and Turkey have asked for an immediate armistice. The ministers of the churches brought before their congregations the news that startled the citizens of London and every other city in Canada.

"The report that Germany, Turkey and Austria have asked for an armistice seems almost too good to be true. To this end our nation and her allies have put forth every effort, sacrificing blood and treasure, and to this end we have been praying. Why should it not be true? We ought to be thankful that the cause of the Allies is in the hands of such strong men as Lloyd George and President Wilson, who will deal with the new situation as successfully as they have handled the affairs up to the present, and we shall need such men to deal with the enemy in a manner that will lead to a permanent settlement of the world's affairs.

"Yesterday we fought for freedom. Today we stand firm, and tomorrow we shall reconstruct. When our first outburst of joy has ascended to God, who gives us the victory, let us turn our energies to those who have borne the battle and to their orphans and widows, and to all who shall attain a just and lasting peace," said Rev. Dr. Louis F. Barber of Colborne Street Methodist Church in his evening sermon.

Centennial Methodist.

"Owning, But Not Possessing," was the subject of Rev. H. T. Ferguson of Centennial Methodist Church Sunday evening. The minister brought the present situation before his congregation. "We must possess by our own efforts," said the minister. He also outlined to his congregation the many things Christian people could possess, but which they will not be bothered putting forth the necessary efforts to secure.

In Hyatt Avenue.

In the service in Hyatt Avenue Methodist Church last evening Rev. George McKinley made reference to the peace proposals as follows:

"We have learned with unbounded gratitude to God of the enemy's surrender. The news seems almost too good to be true. Yet, if true, it is a wise course on the part of the enemy. She knows she is defeated, and can gain nothing by continuing the struggle. Germany prefers to unite with her allies in this course rather than have them seek a separate peace and leave her to fight alone.

"Many feel that they would like to see the war pushed farther, that our armies might enter German territory and give them a taste of what they have caused others to suffer. We feel that these murderers ought not to go unpunished, but perhaps the terms demanded by the Allies will mean punishment enough. We have said that we are not seeking revenge, but justice. Let us therefore be thankful that without further bloodshed our terms have been accepted. It will mean a great relief to many an anxious heart.

"How are we to express our satisfaction? There will be demonstrations and public celebrations. Let it all be permeated with a deep sense of gratitude to God, and let us prove ourselves worthy of the great victory which, through him, our armies have attained."

This was followed by the singing of the doxology.

At Askin Street.

It was a service of praise and thanksgiving at Askin Street Methodist Church Sunday evening. Rev. Cosby Morris, pastor of the church, emphasized the need of united prayer of the Allies for the directors and heads of the Allies at this time of settlement.

The speaker used a quotation from Fisch who was encouraging his nation towards a great end. "All ages, all the wise and good who have ever breathed on this earth, all their thoughts and aspirations after the highest, mingle in these voices and surround you. Even Providence and the divine plan of the world plead with you to save its honor and being.

"To the Allies these words might be addressed today. The day of our victory," said Rev. Mr. Morris.

Several members of the church said prayers of thanksgiving and the service was largely attended.

Wellington Street Methodist.

Rev. W. J. Ashton, pastor of Wellington Street Methodist Church, after reading the mayor's message to the ministers of the city, devoted some time addressing his congregation on the message of peace. "This is the first step towards a permanent and righteous peace. Germany has acknowledged she is whipped, but don't think this is the end. The demand of the Allies is not that Germany be compromised, or ask for an armistice, but make a complete surrender. The demand must be of such a character as to make the recurrence of such a war an absolute impossibility. German militarism must be disposed of forever," said Rev. Mr. Ashton. The service was one of prayer and thanksgiving.

Memorial Methodist.

B. H. Robinson of the Memorial Methodist Church, in speaking to the congregation, proclaimed: "If this means peace then it means definitely the most wonderful vindication of Christianity." He also explained how Germany for more than half a century has been relegating to the background of her thinking the teachings of Jesus, and for four years she has consistently carried on a war worthy only of unchristian ideals. Britain and her Allies as champions of the humanitarian principles of Jesus, demonstrated anew the real power of the strong Son of God. He ended by saying that next Sunday should witness the greatest Thanksgiving service in the history of the Christian church.

Ridout Street Methodist.

J. F. Maine spoke last night at the Ridout Street Methodist Church, and impressed the congregation by his speech on the coming peace. He stated to them: "In the fall of Bulgaria the foundation of the super-structure of a German world empire began to crumble. We felt," he continued, "that Turkey might be the next to fall, Austria-Hungary following. This being the case, the news of today came as a great surprise. In view of the peace drive being part of German military plans we must view it with suspicion, and approach it with much caution. Germany must show immediate signs of her willingness for peace, before drawing her armies from France and Belgium." He declared: "Prussian militarism must be vanquished for good and all, and only when Germany has repented can peace be had with her. The Prussian caste must be dealt out to her. In provoking the war Germany has incurred the largest world's debt ever known, and it is exactly as the French premier has put it some days ago, 'Germany must pay her debt to the last farthing. Even should peace be declared and a league of nations formed, Germany should be, as it were, on suspended sentence. The reasons for this being because she has no regard for a pledge, and a treaty to her is nothing but a scrap of paper.' In concluding his speech he said: "Our boys over there will fight until our wrongs are righted, either by sword or by agreements. The most important thing to remember," he said, "is that we must not be deceived by Germany's promises. This may and will enable her to continue her military operations."

AT CATHOLIC CHURCHES.

In the different Cathoiic churches announcement was made of the public meeting called by the mayor in the armories. To this announcement the different parish priests added a request that the faithful continue their prayers, that, whatever the steps resulting from this apparent break of the enemy morale, further glory may be added to the successes of the Allies. The congregation was also urged to continue their prayers for a just and honorable peace. Such prayers have been offered up daily in the churches for the last couple of years.

Vicar-General O'Connor was to have spoken in St. Peter's Cathedral, but is suffering from a bad attack of la grippe. Rev. Father McKeon, the rector, made the announcement, as did Father Richards at St. Marys, Father Hanlon at St. Michael's, and Father Dignan at St. Martin's.

Spoken to over the phone these priests one and all expressed their delight over the news that the Teutons have at last crumbled. They are somewhat reticent, however, until they hear the Allies' pronouncement on the Teutonic proposals. One and all declared that they believed the request for an armistice would be rejected.

ANGLICANS URGE REPRESSION.

Rev. G. Q. Warner of the Cronyn Memorial Church, speaking last night to his people of the peace proposal of Germany, warned them not to go too wild until every last German was out of Belgium and France.

"We have got to hold ourselves in check," he declared. "We have no guarantee that such a peace would be lasting. This is a time to stand and not give way. Any over-celebration at this time is premature, and is but an evidence of weakness, and will aid the enemy. There are certain kinds of celebrations which are pagan and not Christian. I don't believe in this sort of hoodlum celebration around the streets. A real victory is a serious cause for thanksgiving and joy. Many who have lost sons in the war will not realize their loss until victory comes and peace is really declared, for although these sons have a big share in the victory it seems as if they had not. Do the shouting, joyful masses realize that being over-joyful hurts these people, who have lost? Of course the news which has come is a reason for great joy, but I wouldn't like to see the city go into any ranting celebration tomorrow."

Mr. Warner introduced hymns and prayers of thanksgiving into last night's service.

All Cautious.

In both St. Matthews' Church and St. James' Church prayers and hymns of thanksgiving were introduced into the order of service.

Rev. G. V. Latimer in his sermon referred slightly to the German peace proposal, warning the people lest they be too anxious to celebrate.

"Now is the time to be careful," declared this divine. Special prayers for the king and rulers of the Allies were made.

Rev. Cliver Thorne of Belmont, speaking at St. James' Anglican Church, spoke of the peace proposal, at the same time impressing on the people that they should not be overjubilant until a real victory and lasting peace had been obtained.

A partial thanksgiving service was conducted by Rev. Canon Sage in St. George's Church. The canon touched upon the eight points in the Wilson peace terms, dealing with the reconstruction Europe and Western Asia. "I believe that this peace proposal on the part of the enemy is God's method of bringing about the close of the war," declared Canon Sage.

Archdeacon Richardson of St. Luke's Church preached on the tribulation of the world and how Christ overcame it. "As He gained the victory by the cross so His soldiers are gaining the victory today through tribulation," declared the archdeacon. Special prayers of thanksgiving and hymns were introduced into the service of all the other Anglican churches.

At Church of Redeemer.

At the Church of the Redeemer, Rev. H. B. Ashby conducted a service of thanksgiving in view of the peace proposal from Germany. When he announced the news, the congregation arose and the "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." He proceeded to tell how the hand of God could be seen throughout this war, especially in its earlier stages, when the Allies were more dependent on God than perhaps they knew. He urged them at this time not to forget an over-ruling Providence who alone could bring about an abiding peace.

The No. 4 Nursing Division of the St. John Ambulance Brigade paraded to the Church of the Redeemer last evening, and Mr. Ashby took for his text, Luke x: 33—from the story of the good Samaritan. He outlined the history of the order of St. John of Jerusalem from its founding in the eleventh century, down to the present day, emphasizing the service side of this order.

LONDON AUDIENCE PACKS ARMORIES FOR BIG CELEBRATION

CITIZENS WELCOME NEWS OF TEUTON PEACE MOVE, MAJORITY BELIEVING IT MEANS WAR'S EARLY END

Announcement Made in Churches Brings Tears of Relief From Those Who Have Faced Trials With Unflinching Courage.

SOME FEAR ATTEMPT BY GERMANY TO DIVIDE AND WEAKEN ALLIES

Crowds Downtown Break Out in Celebration and Form Parades, Which Meet With Heartiest Reception on Way Through the Streets.

"And there shall be no more war." Early in the year 1916, a distinguished British divine, who had seen service as a Y. M. C. A. worker with the army camps in England and in France, announced this text when he preached in one of the largest of the city churches. "And there shall be no more war," he said, then paused. Heart beats could almost be heard in the intense silence of the minute that followed, a silence and a pause that made still more grippingly impressive his reiteration of his text, "And there shall be no more war."

Since that day in the midst of heartbreak and bloodshed, when an alluring word picture was painted of what a world might be without war, the sad old world has known almost three years of agony, of war and of sacrifice. Yesterday, for the first time since the never-to-be-forgotten first Sunday in August, 1914, the world and the corner of it known as London, Ontario, had their first, definite vision of world peace on acceptable terms, of the home-coming of the boys and "no more war."

It was a striking coincidence that the announcement of the declaration of war by Great Britain on Germany and the official announcement of the willingness to accept by Germany and her allies of the peace terms laid down by President Wilson in January should both come on a Sunday. The pall that had lain over the city since that August Sunday was lifted yesterday by the good news which came over the wires, all unheralded, like the sudden breaking of sunshine through the clouds. Four years ago the first Sunday in August the crying of war extras in the streets and the statements made from pulpits at the evening services brought consternation. The sun was blotted out and the world was shrouded in darkness.

Read From Pulpits.

After four years and two months of setting of shoulder to the wheel of sorrow, anxiety and patient waiting, it was almost impossible to grasp at first the significance of the dispatch, "Germany, Austria and Turkey willing to accept peace terms as outlined by President Wilson."

It was read at 11:30 o'clock from the pulpit where early in the year 1916 a preacher from overseas announced as more war."

It was Communion Sunday in one of the most conservative churches of the city, but, with his face aglow, the minister rose after the singing of a hymn and said, "A message has come which I think you will want to hear at once." Slowly, distinctly he read it. A second's hush, then a hand-clapping such as had never been heard in all the history of that church on a Sunday or any other day. "Praise the Lord," came a voice, and the minister said, "Yes, I think we should all sing, "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow," Instantly the hundreds of men, women and children were on their feet, and the organist struck the chord. In voices that broke with emotion, the congregation praised the King of Kings for the blessed vision of peace.

Tears at Last.

Faces worked with emotion, faces of men as well as of women, faces that have been sternly set to endurance for four years and two months. Tears streamed from the eyes of fathers of fighting men, and they were unashamed. The relief had come after months of tension. It was afterwards that the smiles and the rejoicings came, tempered by the knowledge of the pain for many that mingles with joy for prospective peace, pain because of loved ones who have given their lives as a sacrifice and will not be with the glad remnant of Canada's army that comes hame.

The manner in which the news of Germany's acceptance of peace terms was received in the conservative city churches was characteristic of the way it was taken by citizens as a whole. First, there was incredulousness. It was too good to be true, even with bulletins staring in the face and clergymen vouching for its authenticity from pulpits. Next, there was unbelievable relief, the rolling of a great load from the heart. After that came the song, the laughter, the exchange of congratulations, waving of flags and the joybells.

Outbreak of Joy.

A few days ago the Bishop of Huron said: "There won't be any need to work up a demonstration when the right time arrives; it will come spontaneously." It did. If it was a bit slow in showing itself, it was not due to coldness, but to the star of hope, so long deferred it almost dazed when it appeared. Again there was doubt in the thinking minds about the sincerity of such a discredited enemy.

The woman who has held her head so high, kept such a cheery face and such a ring in her voice that people almost wondered if she had minded her boy being in the thick of the fight, rang up on the telephone.

"Is the news true?" she asked in anxious voice. She had to be assured that it was official. "Oh, it's too good to be true, too good to be true. My boy will be coming home." Distinctly over the phone came the sound of sobs of relief and joy, the sobs of a soldier's mother, too game to give way until the end of the big fight was in sight.

Not since the first Sunday in August, 1914, were the streets of London so thronged with people, the street cars so crowded with passengers.

Vital Interest Shown.

Street cars stopped in front of the bulletin boards in the earlier part of the afternoon, conductors, motormen and passengers alike jumping off to see what the bulletins written in victorious red were all about. As the day advanced, the crowds increased, peering, gesticulating, talking, exchanging opinions and greetings. Ever and anon, someone started a cheer. An automobile dashed down Dundas street, a man standing on the running board waving a flag and shouting. Not a voice was raised in protest about wasting gasoline on Sunday. No policeman intervened. The throngs took up the cheer.

Flags that had been in hiding for four years and two months of war were routed out from cupboards and attics.

It was a striking fact that the first place in town to raise the flags and set them floating on the October breeze was the headquarters of the Great War Veterans' Association.

Pandemonium Breaks Loose.

By 5 o'clock pandemonium had broken loose down town. Drums and tin pans were beating, bugles and horns blowing and voices upraised in cheers. Processions were lined up to parade a block or so, disperse, then line up again. The most effective and also unique musical instrument of all was a garbage can in the hands of a couple of war veterans. A section of stove pipe and a big stick to beat it furnished the musical contribution of a motor load of soldiers and civilians.

Neither extreme youth nor advanced age proved a barrier for eligibility to enter a procession. Probably the most youthful citizens of the Empire to parade was an infant in arms, who crowed with delight. James Kilgour, octogenarian, and a leading member of St. Andrew's Society, marched gallantly down the street, waving his Union Jack, his head held erect, the light of triumph in his eyes. It was a mighty glad thing to have lived to see such a day.

Bulldogs Differ.

Even the dogs entered with zest into the goings on. In front of one of the newspaper offices two British bulldogs got into an altercation over the peace terms. They held tenaciously to their opinions, one taking the view that Germany was licked to a frazzle, at her last ditch, and that it was nothing more nor less than inevitable surrender and down and out. Peace? Of course it meant peace. The other Mr. Bulldog haled from the north end of the British Isles. He had his doubts. What about a big German peace offensive? Each had his ground and he held to it. Growls became more and more offensive until the principals decided to fight it out in true British fashion, by means of fisticuffs. Other British subjects of the human species who were present took a hand in breaking up the civil war.

Telephones Kept Hot.

The local telephone exchange did a peak load of business all the afternoon and evening, and until far into the night. A considerable amount of it was switched the way of The Advertiser office, where reporters were kept busy answering telephone calls.

"Is that war news on the level?" came a masculine voice.

"Oh-oh," came a gurgle of delight.

Bishop Williams and Dr. Tucker Sound Note of Warning, Distrusting Germany's Avowals and Fearing Hidden Hand of Treachery.

Although the populace of London went wild yesterday over the amazing news from Germany, shouting "Victory! Victory!" up and down the crowded streets, from some of the clergy of the Anglican Church came a more sober note. These men, self-educated on the war situation, and at the same time in close communion with their God, refused to be drawn into the maelstrom of an intoxicated people, and gave forth a warning to the people, urging them not to become too elated over a move which might prove to be no less than a German peace offensive, aimed to dazzle the eyes of the world, soon again to be plunged in blood.

"This is possibly a German peace offensive, and one of the most dangerous moves that Germany has made yet," declared Bishop Williams, when interviewed by The Advertiser last evening. "More than likely by this move Germany wants to detach the United States from the Allied forces in the way that she detached Russia. Unless Germany is prepared to lay down her arms and accept the full Allied terms, not merely the terms of President Wilson, there is no hope for peace."

BELIEVES IT DANGEROUS.

"I don't attach much importance to this peace move on the part of Germany," said Rev. Precentor Tucker of St. Paul's Anglican Church, "Only a few weeks ago Germany sent just such a peace proposal to the Allies, only at that time she spoke through the mouth of Austria, and it was turned down in a jiffy. Today she speaks direct from Germany, but it is the same peace proposal, and will no doubt be refused as previously. How could the Allies accept an armistice with Germany when the German Government is absolutely without conscience, and the hands of Germany are still dripping with the blood of innocent women? The only answer possible is 'We cannot talk to a band of robbers like you.'

"Before giving away to any great celebration, let us see what the answer of Britain and France and America will be, for it is my belief that this peace move is only camouflage. Germany would have an armistice, and meanwhile train her men in the background for another bloody effort.

TRUSTS HER NOT.

"How can the Allied powers agree to any such terms? Germany has broken every treaty she ever made, and surely the Entente will not listen when she comes whining for peace, in full possession of vast portions of France and of Belgium! 'Tis true she declares herself willing to give back France, but in return she wants her colonies back, and a free hand in Russia. Until the German Government is reorganized and the kaiser out of the way, no peace terms with Germany can be made. We are losing our senses if we consider such peace terms at the present time.

"London had better wait until she has heard the reply from Great Britain, France and, especially, from President Wilson, before she does her celebrating. The mayor sent me word that he is contemplating some jubilation on Monday, and I told him to go slow. It seems to me that Thanksgiving Day is the fitting occasion on which to celebrate the successful cessation of hostilities, and until next Sunday there will be no special service in St. Paul's Cathedral. It is too soon to celebrate now, but by that time we shall probably have received solid news. I was asked to ring the bells of St. Paul's, but refused. The bells of St. Paul's shall not ring until certain news has come. This may be only camouflage."

Beat First Drums in War and First Drums in Peace Here

The first war drums were beaten in London on Sunday, August 2, 1914, by Sergt. Fred Young and his son, Stanley, the day announcement was made of Britain's ultimatum to Germany and regulars from Wolseley Barracks were called to Halifax.

The first peace drums were beaten in London yesterday by Sergt. Fred Young and his son Stanley.

In the meantime, Sergt. Young has seen two years of active service in France and been twice a casualty.

PEOPLE PACK STREETS

Marching Crowds, Led by Bands, Made Downtown Ring for Hours.

En mass the citizens of London celebrated the first note of the most joyous music that has been heard since that fateful Sunday in August, now four long, dreary years ago. The street-paraders who rent the air with cheers, the church-goers, who in gratitude and humility gave thanks for the glad tidings, the home-lovers and the clubgoers saw the enthusiasm of London reach its highest pitch in the armories last night. "Sursum Corda" was the note in the air. Every look, every gesture, every word, every song was an expression of righteous pride. The meeting from start to finish was an outburst, the spontaneity of which has probably never been equalled within the walls of this city, and will only be eclipsed when the final definite announcement comes over the wire that Germany begs for peace. Spontaneous combustion would destroy anyone who tried to smother his feelings during that meeting last night.

Sing National Hymns.

The huge building was thronged with the masses and the classes, only half of whom could find seating. Standing room meant a fierce crush for everyone. The Canadian Garrison Band, under the direction of Bandmaster Roselle Pococke, swung off from its prearranged program and catered to the wild enthusiasm of the audience with the varied Allied national anthems and popular patriotic songs. All rose and joined in the singing of the "Marseillaise," "The Star-Spangled Banner," "O Canada," and after each chorus, deafening cheers burst forth for the gallant nations of the Allied force. The national air of Belgium received the tribute of even greater and lustier applause.

"Take Me Back to Dear Old Blighty" and "Over There" carried with them thousands of voices led by Major E. B. Nelles and Lieut. Billy Bartlett and other returned London boys.

The Mayor's Speech.

Mayor C. R. Somerville spoke briefly of the hopeful news that had aroused so much excitement and enthusiasm. In celebrating the anticipation of victory, he said, we are only following the lead of other Canadian cities and the American centres. We are not celebrating the end of the war, but coming events cast their shadows, and this is but a foreshadowing of what we may expect to hear in the near future. Germany and the central powers would never have humiliated themselves to the extent of agreeing to the terms of the Allies unless they knew they had been licked to a finish. (Cheers). But we will not trust the word of Germany, we will not accept any promise from her. The Allies will see to it that terms of peace satisfy the boys at the front. Our Canadian boys when they left home intended to go to Berlin, and they mean to get there yet. Germany will not be let off merely because she throws up her hands and cries 'Kamerad.' She must suffer in her own land what she has made France and Belgium suffer.

A Dangerous Period.

Rev. D. C. MacGregor struck a warning note in his speech, in vigorous welding address. He spoke of the period through which the Allied nations must now pass as the most hopeful and at the same time the most dangerous time in our history since the war began. "If we are to accept the offer of Germany to make peace on our terms, she must give guarantees of good faith. She must get, bag and baggage out of Belgium, Serbia, Poland, France and make ample restitution for the damage she has done. She must forego the devilish philosophy that might is right. The Allies are not only fighting to drive Germany out of Belgium and France, they are fighting to destroy militarism. If they fail in that, they lose the war. We will demand our guarantee of good faith, not from William Hohenzollern, but from the German people, through representatives elected by the people. There is a probability that this armistice may be only a subterfuge to recoup and reorganize their forces." Mr. MacGregor related the story of the long siege of Troy, and the final accomplishment of the city's capture through the Greek strategy of the wooden horse. They won by a trick what they could not gain by force of arms, and so I fear the Germans when making peace proposals."

Pursue Them Home.

A fine note of idealism was sounded in the speech of T. H. Purdom, K.C., who paid tribute to the unequaled fighting qualities of the men at the front. "I believe," he said, "that Foch laid down the right course when he said, 'Pursue them home.' It is the only proper way to end a war, when fighting with the meanest and in every way the worst enemy the world has ever known. But I do believe that a victorious peace is in sight. But it must be on the plan stated in the New York Herald not long ago: First victory, then justice, then peace.' We have today in Great Britain men equal to her illustrious sons of the past. Lloyd George is the great man today, and at no time has England departed one iota from her policy as laid down in her premier's famous speech. The boys at the front are fighting as Britons always fight, and they are fighting for the right. They have proved themselves to be the equals, if not the superiors of any soldiers in the world, and the war is not far from victory now, but it is time to hold one's breath. And let us cherish the hope that the brave, manly boys who have gone from their homes, and have held Belgium and France as when they left. For there is no reason why we should descend to the depths of German iniquity. We want the world to be safe for democracy. Good things shall come out of this war. A lasting friendship will be formed between the British Isles and the United States. And the day is not far distant when there shall be cause for universal rejoicing in the fullest sense when war shall cease and militarism shall perish forever."

Quartet Applauded.

The magnificent rendering of "Rule Britannia" by the Elgar Ladies' Quartet was given great applause, and the dramatic unfurling of the Union Jack was an unusually fine climax.

The Advertiser photographer secured pictures of the huge assembly just before the final numbers played by the band, Sousa's "Stars and Stripes," "The Maple Leaf" and "God Save the King," broke up the indoor gathering, only to reform in a monster parade that, led by the spirited martial music, evidenced for many hours that the gladness and rejoicing of London citizens knew no bounds. If this be the outburst over anticipation of peace, what celebration will attend the actual declaration of peace, the formal announcement that

BRINGING HOME THE SAUSAGE

LIVE CITIZENS "WHOOP HER UP" AND FORM PARADE TO SHOW TO WORLD HOW LONDON CAN REJOICE

Band Is Lacking, But Sergt. Fred Young, With Bass Drum, and Youngsters With Garbage Cans, Sheets of Tin, and Similar "Musical Instruments," Supply the Want.

Determined that London should have its celebration upon the receipt of what is termed the most favorable war news since 1914, W. J. Moore, of the local branch of the Kellogg Toasted Corn Flakes Company, obtained a large Union Jack, chartered an automobile and proceeded to wake up the citizens. Starting at the Tecumseh House by parading the corridors cheering for the Allies and making certain that no one should sleep that afternoon, Mr. Moore then retired to the main floor of the hotel and at the top of his voice told all present to wake up and celebrate. "New York and every city in the United States has gone wild and why not London," said he. "Come on, fellows, and celebrate, wake up and show some life and put old London on the map."

Boost, Boost, Boost.

The man termed by all who spoke of him as the "live citizen of London," went to the front of The Advertiser, where the largest crowd had congregated and proceeded to muster the people together and put spirit into them. "Don't be a knocker, but boost," said he. "Detroit, our city across the border never closed an eye last night, and here we're not doing anything; come on, fellows, and wake up!" The crowd finally responded to the spirit set up by this man, and a real old time parade was started, headed by the car owned by J. M. Harris, of Harris & Co., York street, decorated with flags and bunting, followed by a parade of citizens everyone having in his possion either flags or some noise producing articles. The music being furnished by Sergt. Fred Young, a returned man, with a large bass drum.

Cheers For All.

Automobiles led, with women, children and men, both young and old walking, all joining together, cheering lustily until their throats cracked, they paraded up Richmond street to Dundas to the office of The Advertiser, where they stopped and, after giving three cheers for the boys in the trenches, the king and President Wilson, three cheers were given for The "Tiser," which was termed by all present as the only paper "that woke up!" The procession then went east on Dundas to the armories where the usual three cheers were again repeated. From the armories it went to the home of the Great War Veterans' Association on Queen's avenue and here, after repeating the cheers, including one for the veterans, the crowd sang "The Maple Leaf Forever," and then went to Richmond and Dundas streets where they disbanded to the strains of "The Maple Leaf," and "God Save the King."

Crowds Went Wild.

The crowd all along the course of the parade went wild, and everything was forgotten but the glad news that was received. Cheers resounded with never a waver, and every man in khaki, whether returned or otherwise, was given three cheers while he stood to attention saluting the large flags carried by the crowd.

A merchant of Richmond street was generous and when the crowd gathered at the Tecumseh House, he appeared with his arms full of "squawkers" and flags and distributed them throughout the crowd, which quickly made use of them by immediately setting up a regular din.

Mrs. John Cook and Mrs. E. Jacobs, both wives of returned heroes, headed the procession, carrying large flags and cheering lustily. Music was produced for the occasion by Sergt. Fred Young. Such enthusiasm has seldom been witnessed in London and everyone forgot his troubles and entered into the doings with a vim. Although they were some time getting a start they responded all the more heartily to the call on this account.

Gas Was Found.

Gasless Sunday was forgotten and everyone who had any gas at all in his car turned out and fell in line with the parade, horns blowing and cut-outs open they roared up and down the streets. Some of the cars were owned by W. White, Pte. H. Jackson, and ex-Ald. Max Lerner.

The Disloyal Ones.

As in all celebrations there was something to spoil the day. This was quite evident when the crowd formed up on Richmond street to wait for the evening's celebration. "God Save the King" was sung with a vim and every returned soldier in the crowd sprang to attention as well as many of the civilians. It was noticed by all the returned soldiers as well as the part of the crowd near them that some men standing near did not doff their hats at the singing. One of the soldiers went up to one of these men and asked him why he did not remove his hat and was promptly told to "Go to h—." Such men as these were termed by the soldiers to be responsible for the "dead and buried spirit" that this city exhibited at the receipt of the news and the men stated that if it had not been for a few of the real live citizens such as these who started the parade the town would be completely off the map.

CITIZENS WELCOME

more than one sweet-voiced feminine inquirer.

One man who rang up the source of all information, i.e., the newspaper office, evidently is hard to satisfy in the way of interesting news.

Hearing what the row was all about he remarked in disappointed tones, "Oh, is that all?"

Some people demanded of The Advertiser staff why there were no railway whistles blowing, no church bells ringing and no fire hall syren making a racket. They preferred their demonstration with plenty of noise, thank you.

Is It Peace Offensive?

One inquirer expressed regret. He had heard rumors of big news. He had hoped for another big victory.

"Well," said a woman, "I just hope the Allies won't make peace now. I want to see them march right into Germany and do to Germany what has been done to Belgium. I'd never trust the Germans yet, and I am a mother who has a boy fighting over there."

Several who heard the warning of Dr. Bohn, a Chautauqua lecturer, last summer, concerning the menace of a "German peace offensive, more dangerous than any phase of the war, even the German advance of the spring and early summer," feared that the dangerous peace offensive had come. It was this doubt in the minds of numbers of the citizens which in a measure tempered the exuberance of celebrations.

All over London fathers, mothers, wives, sisters, brothers, sons, daughters, sweethearts, comrades in sorrow for those who have laid down their lives for the cause of liberty and justice, could only rejoice in a peace that would not break faith with the beloved who have died. When peace is declared it must be an assurance that "There shall be no more war."

PATRIOTIC WOMEN WORKERS ARE DELIGHTED, BUT WILL CARRY ON

"And is it really true?" asked Mrs. E. B. Smith, vice-regent of the Municipal Chapter of the I. O. D. E., and regent of the Lord Roberts Chapter, on hearing the glad news of a possible peace. "It is too wonderful for words!" she said, after the details had been told to her. "To think after these long four years of working, fighting, and worrying, it is at last coming to a victorious end! It is impossible to express my joy," was her concluding statement made to The Advertiser.

Mrs. A. E. Cooper, treasurer of the Red Cross, expressed herself as being perfectly delighted, but said, regardless of this latest information, the Red Cross work would still continue with more than its former vim. Every effort will still be put forth to attain this glorious end, even should the foe sue for peace.

Almost Too Soon.

Mrs. Donald McLean, president of the Women's Canadian Club, expressed the feeling of joy natural to all women who have been doing their bit here. But while expressing her joy she holds the idea that it is rather too soon for the war to come to a close. Not that we and other countries have not suffered enough, but it seems out of the question for Germany to get off so easily after the sorrow and suffering she has caused, more especially after the way in which the German army has invaded France and Belgium, leaving behind them nothing but sorrow and suffering. For this inhuman act they should be made pay for it in a way similar. Germany should be invaded and treated in the same way as she has treated others. To those who have lost their all on the battlefields of France, it is rather hard to think that after such being the case, the only consolation will be the thought of peace being declared, before Germany had tasted some of her own bitter medicine. She said she knew it was hard to ask the boys "over there" to "carry on," but it is too soon to rejoice on a victory over Germany. The Huns have committed all manner of crimes, and what will their punishment be?

WANTS ARMISTICE TO GAIN TIME

Let's not go off at half-cock. The Allies are not yet in Berlin. Germany is willing to promise—anything—to escape present pressure on her retreat, and to get time to back out of Belgium gracefully, and to form new lines on the Rhine or in front of it.

Wait till Germany is asked for more than promises, for guarantees of her acceptance of Wilson's terms, for the surrender of her arms to allow Foch to march our armies to Berlin, and to take possession of German munitions of war.

Less than that is now offered, because the kaiser knows it will be refused; and thus he will be afforded the opportunity of posing before the German people and neutral nations as a peace-loving monarch, who has accepted the terms of the Allies who yet compel him to go on fighting.

Right O, William! You'll have to fight until you want peace and want it badly enough to surrender every possible means of breaking the peace. Then, perhaps, we'll believe you.

Foch is willing to accept your surrender! Less sincerity than that is not acceptable and can have no favorable meaning for the Allies. Mere words cut no sausage. Act the part of a peaceful nation, and there'll be no need for a new chancellor to talk to us about it.

JOHN COTTAM.

Wants To See Allies in Berlin

"Some of us have sacrificed too much in this war to be satisfied with anything but a peace which will insure peace for all the generations yet to come. I want to see the Allies march into Berlin. We can't break faith with the boys who have died."

It was a father who spoke the foregoing words yesterday, the father a splendid young son whose life has been given that liberty, justice and righteousness may be enthroned in the world.

WILSON'S 14 TERMS

1.—Open covenants of peace without international understandings.

2.—Absolute freedom of the seas in peace or war, except as they may be closed by international action.

3.—Removal of all economic barriers and establishment of equality of trade conditions amongst nations consenting to peace and associating themselves for its maintenance.

4.—Guarantees for the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with domestic safety.

5.—Impartial adjustment of all colonial claims based on the principles that the peoples concerned have equal weight with the interest of the government.

6.—Evacuation of all Russian territory, and opportunity for Russia's political development.

7.—Evacuation of Belgium without any attempt to limit her sovereignty.

8.—All French territory to be freed and restored and reparation for the taking of Alsace-Lorraine.

11.—Evacuation of Serbia, Rumania and Montenegro, with access to the sea for Serbia, and international guarantees of economic and political independence and territorial integrity of the Balkan States.

12.—Secure sovereignty for Turkey's portion of the Ottoman empire, but with other nationalities under Turkish rule assured security of life and opportunity for autonomous development, and with the Dardanelles permanently opened to all nations.

13.—Establishment of an independent Polish state, including territories of indisputable Polish population, with free access to the sea, and economic and political independence and territorial integrity guaranteed by international covenant.

14.—General association of nations under covenant for mutual guarantees of political and territorial integrity of large and small states alike.

GREAT THRONG

once and for always, "Germany is down and out"?

Hot Time In Old Town.

There was a hot time in the old town last night. Since the days of pre-war old boys' reunion, there has been nothing to begin to approach it. Municipal, Provincial and Dominion election nights have never had anything on it. It was an echo of the rejoicings over the fall of Ladysmith, and the celebrations the night the veterans came home from the South African war.

It was a big, "spontaneous combustion" demonstration, the bubbling-up and overflowing of happiness in the hearts of people at the fact that Germany and the other enemy countries have been placed in such a position that the hope of retaining identity rests in suing for peace.

The downtown streets were comparatively free from 6 to 7 o'clock, then the crowds began to reassemble. It was Hallowe'en. Christmas, a lifetime of birthday parties and school field day rolled into one for the youngsters who scurried and shouted, beat their drums (improvised), and blew their whistles and let off steam in a general hub-bub.

Great Parade Starts.

Half an hour later, and the streets were once more lined with people. Every automobile in London seemed to be mustered for the occasion, gaily decorated with bunting and flags, and crammed with passengers. Starting at the Tecumseh House, the parade turned east at Dundas street and for hours wound up and down in double file, policemen finding their time fully occupied keeping back the crowds, marshaling the cars in line, and making way for street cars. The emptying of churches between 8:30 and 9 o'clock meant large augmentation of the streams of humanity that surged in the channel of Dundas street.

Dread even of Spanish "flue" and its contagiousness vanished before the compelling power of a more gripping idea than grippe germs, the idea that such a thing as peace may once more reign in the world. The people who, twenty-four hours before, fled in panic from crowded theatres, stores, street cars, even drawing the line at church, lest they contract the epidemic, last night rubbed elbows joyfully with their fellow humans, crowded and jostled against them, all unheeding of the fact that "Spanish influenza cultures can be got from good stiff coughing at a distance of fourteen feet."

Soldiers Head Cheers.

Cheers, hurrahs! The parade of motor cars, floats, horse-drawn buggies and tin cans drawn by small boys is temporarily held up. An automobile load of men in khaki is stayed directly opposite the "peace terms" bulletins. Rising to their feet, the soldier laddies wave their caps and give vent to cheers. The crowds take it up until the air rings for blocks with huzzas.

Bands swing down the street, giving tunefullness to the joyous din. The centre of celebration is shifted to the armories, but still the streets are packed with throngs.

At twenty minutes to ten o'clock, the Marconi Club band stopped in front of The Advertiser and played "God Save the King." Numbers of the men in the crowd forgot to take off their hats, but they cheered just the same. The Great War Veterans' Band was out with as many instruments as could be mustered, and it was the veterans and veterans' band that helped to keep the tide of enthusiasm at high water mark.

Mayor at Head.

Following the big demonstration meeting in the armories, a parade was formed, headed by his worship Mayor C. R. Somerville, the Canadian Garrison band and the Great War Veterans' band, thousands of people falling into the ranks of the procession which proceeded down Dundas street to Richmond, north to Dufferin avenue, and thence to the park.

A veteran on crutches crossed the street in a break in the parade, and the crowd cheered. A man pushed a decorated baby carriage in front of him, and the crowds cheered. An elderly, bonnetted woman waved a flag from her seat in a motor car, and the crowds cheered. On the sidewalk stood a little group watching the goings on with beaming faces. In the centre was an Indian woman who held in one hand the Union Jack and in the other hand the Stars and Stripes. Clinging to one arm was a young daughter, holding the British flag. A smaller daughter on the other side waved the Stars and Stripes. The explanation was that the two little girls had been born in the United States, whither the mother went from Canada after her marriage. It was coming back to her home country when she arrived in London some years ago with her family. The husband died, the war broke out, and the young son enlisted to fight for king and country.

"I think perhaps I get my boy home now, soon," said the mother.

Some Exaggeration.

Numbers of people were evidently under the impression that peace had been actually declared. Others who read the bulletins carefully grasped their meaning, putting the most optimistic construction upon them. Still others celebrated just the same, though they emphatically declared that no peace will be accepted except the peace which effectually crushes the militarist machine in Germany.

"It may not be the end just yet, but we are enough farther ahead to hearten ourselves up by cheering," was the tenor of their statements.

And so London's happiest day since the outbreak of war was brought to a close, eleven o'clock and a drizzle, causing people to seek their homes and lodging places.

SELECT MEDICINE CAREFULLY

Purgatives are dangerous. They gripe, cause burning pains and make the constipated condition worse. Physicians say the most ideal laxative is Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut; they are exceedingly mild, composed only of health-giving vegetable extracts. Dr. Hamilton's Pills restore activity to the bowels, strengthen the stomach, and purify the blood. For constipation, sick headache, biliousness and disordered digestion no medicine on earth makes such remarkable cures as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Try a 25c box yourself.

MENTIONED FOR WAR SERVICE.

LUCAN, Oct. 6.—In the corps orders issued by Col. J. A. Armstrong, C. H. G., director of dental service, Pembroke House, Oxford street, London, England, August 26, the name of C. A. S. M. W. McDerment, C. A. D. C., is mentioned as having been brought to the notice of the secretary of state for war for valuable services rendered in connection with the war, and when applicable an entry will be made in the records of service of officers and other ranks. W. McDerment is the eldest son of Rev. Robert and Mrs. McDerment, of the manse, Lucan, and enlisted in Winnipeg in August, 1914, going overseas with the first contingent.

LIVED IN LONDON.

HYDE PARK, Oct. 6.—Word was recently received by Mrs. Flora MacIntyre in Calgary to the effect that her son, Pte. Lee G. MacIntyre, has been admitted to No. 53 General Hospital, Boulogne, suffering from a gunshot wound in the left arm. Pte. Mac-

Wilson's Curt Reply to Burian Brings Results

On September 14 the Austro-Hungarian Government invited all the belligerent governments to enter into non-binding discussions at some neutral meeting place, with a view to bringing about peace. Two days later President Wilson rejected the proposal, declaring that the American Government had made its position and purpose so plain, having repeatedly stated the terms upon which peace would be considered, that it would entertain no proposal for such a conference.

Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, in announcing that he was not surprised at the reception of his peace note, declared that it had already produced remarkable phenomena, and would do so still more in the near future. Rumors have been prevalent in Vienna political circles that the foreign minister would soon send a second note to the belligerents, which would contain more precise statements.

Active Tires that are Economical

The Goodyear Cord Tire is made up of thousands of light, strong cords, laid layer on layer without cross-weave. Each cord and each layer is upholstered with a springy cushion of pure rubber.

This construction makes a tire almost invulnerably strong; yet spry, active, and fast as a tempered spring.

Blow-outs and like troubles are minimized. Easier riding is assured. Fuel consumption is reduced, acceleration is quickened, speed is increased, and mileage is lengthened.

These positive qualities of the Goodyear Cord Tire have made it the largest selling tire in its class. It has won a place for itself on five-ton trucks travelling cross-country at high speeds. It is standard equipment on over a dozen famous cars. It was used by all the prize-winners in all the important American races in over a year.

Most important to you--users of Goodyear Cord Tires frequently report to us mileages as high as 20,000.

Although Goodyear Cord Tires are higher-priced, their long mileage, saving of gasoline, and saving of car depreciation, make them cost less in the end.

In addition, you enjoy easier riding, freedom from trouble, and distinctive appearance.

Goodyear No-Hook Cord Tires can now be secured at fair "Made in Canada" prices.

The Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tube is specially suited for service with the Goodyear Cord Tire. It is best for any tire. It is extra thick and extra good. It is enclosed in a handy, handsome bag. Tube, bag and box are all stamped "Heavy Tourist" for your protection.

GERMANY MUST ASSIGN.

GERMANY, the brutal, noisy and blustering bully of the world, has sunk to her knees and pleads for peace before the Allied nations. She has swaggered for peace, threatened for peace, intrigued for peace, but now appears before her own family, her own people, in the attitude of the defeated, saying this if she says nothing more, "Abandon all hope of victory, look only for leniency from the nations with which we have been fighting." Trained to watch for every subterfuge that could be conceived even in the mind of a Prussian, the Allied nations take the offer and submit it to every test. THEY WILL NOT BE HOAXED. The slightest suspicion that Germany is endeavoring to start a peace offensive in order to save a vestige of her military power and her aspirations to victory will call the very voices of the dead from the grave to denounce the government or governments that would consider the offer. Millions of people in every Allied nation will demand that Germany be made to face her fate, and that fate is complete surrender and submission to the dictates of the Allies.

Germany admits herself a military bankrupt. Then she must assign and the Allies must be the assignees as they were in the case of Bulgaria. Warnings will be given to the people to beware the German peace offensive, for if the devil could be called in to assist them with their machinations he would not long be out of employment. There must be no faith shown in Germany, until Germany casts down her arms, and throws herself upon the mercy of the civilized world. The tricks of detestable Prussianism are all too fresh in the minds of the Allied peoples. The smoke of the burned cities of France still reeks in the clothes of the brave men who have recaptured the black ruins that once were homes. First of all, and this is certain to be an Allied demand, Germany must evacuate Belgium and France, and every other country into which she gained entrance by means of her treacherous bid for world domination.

The people have celebrated the occasion of Germany's appeal for peace. In many quarters this has been criticised as premature. But if the peace proposals mean nothing at all, there have been sufficient reasons for public indulgence in a period of buoyancy, and best of all, perhaps, is the knowledge that the German people are now made to understand on the admission of their kaiser and their chancellor that they are a defeated people. No greater victory than this has been achieved, and should attempts be made again to pump up the war enthusiasm for the fatherland, it will be found that with depleted reserves and disturbances increasing at home each day, with Bulgaria gone, and other allies certain to fall, there is no hope ahead for the Hun. The fight of the filthy Prussian has been fought. He may continue to "stall" and fence for an opening after the manner of the defeated prize fighter who waits for the gong to ring. But he may not carry a lead weight in his glove in this round of the battle. Methods of meeting his tricks have been devised and he knows it. His following is dejected. One of his "seconds" has deserted him, and the others have their feet out of the ring, ready to leave him when the last blow has felled him. He has fought "foul." He has been guilty of breaking every rule of the Marquis of Queensbury, and he is literally ruled out of the ring for life.

His murders and attempts at murder have long ago made him fit for extermination. He has slain with blows in the back and he has used poison. He has left no vile method untried. He is fit for extermination. The Allies will judge him not as another nation, but as a criminal. He has thrown his weapons to injure all connected with his opponents, and the nightmares of his deeds will haunt the world forever.

What the Allied nations will do if this brute goes down and throws up the sponge is debatable. The Wilson terms brought down last January may have suited the occasion months ago more than they suit the present situation. They brought no response from the Hun when he was in the mood of the conqueror. His blood-lust would have carried him to the point of exterminating every man, woman and child who stood in his path. There was no mercy for anyone then. Today's mood is the deathbed repentance of a murderer who has been unreprentant and proud of it while the chance of victory by ruthless and intensive slaughter remained.

Into whose hands is the fate of the Allied nations now consigned? In a broad general way, there are three men who will probably decide the disposal of Prince Maximilian's proposals. They are Premier David Lloyd George of the British Empire, Premier Georges Clemenceau of France and President Woodrow Wilson of the United States. These three minds—and who shall deny that they are master minds?—will form a crucible into which the metal proffered by the Germans will be placed. How well this crucible knows the quality of German metal that has been offered before! How quickly has it revealed the spurious stuff with which Germany has offered to pay in full her debt to humanity! How quickly has it boiled up the slag and dross and brass! Lloyd George, a pacifist become militant, and a fighter to the finish, Georges Clemenceau, the Tiger, who knows well that there is a worse beast in the jungle, but not a stronger, Wilson, the convert to Allied principles and the leader in his own country and the world, of "force without stint and limit," and for a quick decision. Anyone who doubts their tremendous capacity or who believes that they are likely to be duped is not doing his intelligence justice. Well Germany must know, if their new chancellor has a shred of intelligence, that the day for false peace moves has passed. Terms will suit the needs of the present hour, not those of yesterday.

What of Prince Maximilian of Baden, the new German chancellor? He is reputed to have incurred the hatred of the pan-German party through the suspicion that he nurtured pro-British sentiments early in the war, but this belief must be taken cautiously. While his speech in the Reichstag is filled with phrases that seem remarkable coming from the mouth of any German, he still harps on unity and the determination of the fatherland to fight. He promises that Belgium shall be restored completely and particularly that it shall maintain its independence and territorial integrity. He declares that peace treaties hitherto made shall not stand in the way of a general peace, having in mind the Brest-Litovsk treaty. He makes use of high-sounding phrases which call for an "upright peace" which "rejects only the selfish violation of the rights of others." The new chancellor paints a picture of a new-made Germany. He does not use the word republic, but his address suggests that republicanism is to rule in Germany. Those classes of representatives which represent the people of Germany are to be merged so that the will of the whole people (and note how the emphasis is placed on "the laboring classes") shall effect a new state of affairs. The chancellor finds it necessary not only to attempt peace with the Allied nations, but to make peace, if possible, with the people of his own country.

Within a few hours the trend of official Allied sentiment toward the proposals will be known to the Allied peoples. In the meantime the conviction sinks in deeply that the Germans have been defeated, and that at the worst it is only a matter of days that can be measured until final and complete victory has been achieved and the most vital peace secured on the principles and according to the price the Allies have set. The long night of war draws to a close, with the evil spirits of the night overcome and the full glow of dawn breaking over the horizon of a new world made secure for civilization, and made safe from the menace of mad militarism.

The commercial and financial aspects of the proposal for peace will occupy the minds of many people, and apart from the general situation the public will watch the effect of the news upon the stock exchanges, and especially the New York and London exchanges. These will serve as a barometer as to what the future may be for business of all kinds. Once the world is made safe for democracy beyond any question of doubt and the menace of German militarism is forever removed and a permanent league of nations established, we will be living in a world of new strength, confidence and credit. This will be such a far-reaching factor it is humanly impossible to measure its ultimate effect on civilization in general and the security and optimism it holds for all peoples.

Modern civilization is above all based on confidence and belief in the strength and security of posterity. Investments and particularly government investments (which are simply the promises or obligations of civilization itself) are the best concrete expression of that confidence in the future. Never before in the history of the world has civilization been so secure of its future as it will be when this world conflict is settled on the terms of the Allies.

The whole world and especially the European nations have always faced the menace of disruption and destruction. This menace will now be removed, and we will without doubt whatever find that the future will be governed more directly than ever before by the people themselves, and thus governmental obligations will come rapidly into a more favored and secure position as investments than has ever been the case in the past.

The credit of the new civilized world as it will be constituted will carry the load of the expense of this "great trial" with greater ease than the world that will pass carried its relatively nominal debts of a decade ago. We may be absolutely certain that the governmental obligations of Great Britain, United States, France, Canada and even Russia, will continue to be far into the future the prime investments of the whole of mankind.

If the result of the proposal is to bring about peace on the terms of the Allies the great markets will express more accurately than any other human medium the sentiment of countless thousands of thinking men, and prices will rise rapidly until they express in dollars the optimism and confidence of the people in the glorious future of the whole world. It brings into immediate consideration the whole question of the non-taxation of the Victory Loan, for instance, and may be said to add strength to the arguments set forth by I. W. Killam of Montreal, who has strongly urged that the issues should be taxable.

As regards the future we believe that Canada will enter upon the greatest era of progress ever enjoyed by any people, and our growth will be, we believe, more rapid than the growth of the United States in the nineteenth century after the civil war. The basic factors are all present. We believe that peace on the Allies' terms means such world-wide confidence in the future of civilization that money or credit will be the cheapest thing in the world. On the other hand, the food situation will be such that all foods will be the dearest of commodities. We will undoubtedly have in addition to the enormous demands from our present consumers in Europe the disorganized people of Russia, who have not been producing enough to feed themselves, and have consumed all supplies on hand. It is reported that live stock in large areas is practically non-existent and supplies of grain for seed almost totally exhausted. This means starvation for great numbers before a year is past, and this additional burden will fall on this continent for food. Agriculture is the chief wealth-producing activity in this country, and we will have high prices probably for the next ten years; also we are a country of untold natural resources of all kinds, in the hands of a highly intelligent and aggressive people. These factors will draw to us the most enterprising and intelligent people from all over the world. The result will be enormously increased numbers attacking the natural resources of this country and creating wealth. The big part taken by Canada in this war will prove to be the greatest investment the Canadian people ever made for security, liberty and national progress. Therefore there should be no niggardliness or muddling in our Canadian Parliament's dealings with the heroes of Canada, who went over as freemen and who have made such enormous sacrifices for the security and prosperity of the world and our wonderful undeveloped promised land.

OUR REHEARSAL!

On Sunday, August second, in the year nineteen fourteen,
The Prussian eagle flapped his wings, and loud for war did scream.
Then we flashed the word to England, underneath the ocean's waves,
"Defy old Bill, we'll help you, Britons never shall be slaves."
So we sent our sons to Ypres, and they fought on Flanders' field
And at the Somme and Vimy Ridge they made the foemen yield.
We took our losses bravely, and we smothered down our grief,
While our boys fulfilled the promises made by the Maple Leaf.

On Sunday, sixth October, in the year nineteen eighteen,
The Prussian eagle changed his tune and loud for peace did scream.
And Kaiser Bill said, "Kamerad, what will you take and cease?
We have had an awful trouncing and we're longing now for peace."
So we took our drums and bugles, and we marched around the town,
And we waved on high the flag we swore should never be pulled down,
When we'll raise the shout of "Victory" and all sing, "God Save the King."

Luke McLuke Says.

This is a hard world. When a man fails in business and is trying to fight off the blue devils of despair, all he hears is: "I'll bet he soaked away a good wad for himself and is letting his creditors run for Sweeney."

The reason a married man likes to get out at night is because when his wife's phonograph isn't going her chinograph is.

You know how other people bore you and get you sore when they call on you when you are busy, but you never think of this when you call on some other man when he is busy.

A clever girl is kept busy studying men. A pretty girl keeps men busy studying her.

Those who cause others to suffer must suffer themselves. Thus, when you tell a man one of your old jokes, he will come right back at you and make you listen to one of his.

The reason why a man can be so good-natured when some other woman is out with him is because he can be so grouchy when his wife is out with him.

There may not be a Dog Heaven. But a real dog's idea of a Dog Hell is to be a poodle and have to wear a pink ribbon and have to answer to the name of "Cutie."

After a girl gets married she discovers that it takes a heap more to make her happy than she thought it would.

And the reason why a mother thinks that her son is as innocent as the day he was born is because nobody else does.

We don't know why a girl is afraid of a mouse. But we do know that she isn't afraid of it because it is wearing a mustache.

The only thing in common between Patriotism and Politics is that they both begin with a P.

Any time you can get a woman so she is undecided, she is more than half convinced.

The Advertiser's Daily Short Story

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

GIRL OR GAME.
By R. Ray Baker.

It had got to the point where Steve Mason had to know where he stood—on the deck of a sinking, submarined ship, or on a flying field preparing to soar among the clouds in a winged machine.

If Hazel Norrin said "yes," then it would be aviation; if she replied negatively, that meant the plunge. All this about soaring and plunging, you must understand, had to do with Steve's mental state. The war had not yet stretched its steel-scaled arm to America, and Steve was considering neither aero journeys nor ocean voyages, literally speaking. He was still in Clifton College, a senior, and his favorite form of combat was baseball.

After being with Hazel once on the occasion of a theatre party early in his senior year, his admiration for her increased to a friendship which became so warm as the time for graduation approached that it finally ceased to be friendship, as far as his feelings were concerned.

Steve reached the "point" mentioned in the first paragraph at the same time his hand found the point of a picket in the fence inclosing the garden of her home. He had met Hazel late that afternoon by an accident, ostensibly. She was not supposed to know that he had lingered a full half-hour near the millinery store where she worked, waiting for her to appear, so he could walk nonchalantly toward her and be surprised to meet her.

Steve had no real reason for believing that she cared for him. He was aware that some six or eight students were reported to have proposed to her and been rejected during the last three years, but he was willing to take a chance on being the seventh or the ninth, or even the thirteenth.

Steve knew that his red head and freckles didn't jibe with her creamy complexion and black hair, but he was not to blame for the contrast.

He picked a splinter from the fence, realized he was more nervous than he had been at any time since his initiation into Tau Beta Chi, foundered desperately for words, then got a grip on himself and let it out with:

"Hazel, I'm not going to beat about the bush. I'm not capable of pouring out sentimental gush and crawling on my knees, but I want to marry you, and I hope this is not 'so sudden' that you can't decide my fate here and now."

She laughed lightly and placed her hand over his as it rested on the fence, and replied.

"I'm glad you're not capable of 'sentimental gush,' because I'm rather tired of it myself. I like the way you go about this, without moons for babbling brooks and I'll admit I care a lot for you, but I can't answer now. First I must have proof that you are the kind of fellow I would marry and that you really care as much as you say. But I am not saying 'no'—just remember that."

The next day he received a letter from her. It read:

"Dear Steve—Remembering what you told me yesterday I am giving you a chance to prove your affection. Tomorrow Clifton meets Alton for the state college baseball championship. My cousin, Will Forbes, will pitch for Alton, and in a letter I just received he told me that it means everything for him to win the game, as he expects to try for a professional league.

"Here's your chance to prove that you love me. If the opportunity offers to miss a ball or strike out at a critical point of the game and you can help Alton to win you surely can prove beyond doubt that you care as you say you do."

The letter stunned poor Steve, with his heart eating itself out for Hazel and the rest of him all wrapped up in the national game. Steve would rather play baseball than anything else in the world except have Hazel for a wife. Then, too, his love for his alma mate was strong, and his regard for honor and fair play was stronger.

"How can she ask such a thing?" he groaned aloud as he sank back in the only rocking chair his apartment of the rooming house afforded. He longed for his pipe, but he was in training.

"I can't do it," he repeated over and over. "It wouldn't be honorable or square; and I simply can't bring myself to it. But Hazel, I can't give her up. She means too much to me even if she does ask impossible—almost impossible—things."

The day of the game turned out bright and clear in spite of Steve's wish that a deluge might visit the diamond. He saw her in the grandstand as he jogged out to centrefield for practice, and tipped his cap in answer to her jaunty wave of the hand.

The contest started with prospects of a close struggle. Each side scored a run in the second inning, and Alton pushed another across in the fourth. Clifton evening it up in the fifth. Thus the score stood a tie at the opening of the eighth.

The first Alton man to bat was retired on a pop fly to third.

But his successor hit a clean Texas Leaguer which landed him on second. He achieved third on a sacrifice grounder, knocked between second and first by the next man to the plate.

Two men were out and another on third. The Alton catcher advanced to the batter's box, and after two strikes and two balls hit one back of third which the Clifton leftfielder came up on, but not fast enough to take it from the air. He picked it up on the bound and by a quick throw to the plate forced the Alton base-runner to stay on third; but while this play was being enacted the Alton catcher reached second.

The Alton pitcher was next to bat. Here was a chance for him to win his own game, and the set of his jaw showed he was determined to do it. Steve, out in center, watched him anxiously as he swung and missed the first ball.

"Hope he doesn't send it out this way," Steve muttered, his mind still troubled by Hazel's request. His wish, however, bore no fruit, for the Alton pitcher knocked the ball high in the air toward centre.

Steve, gauging correctly, saw that he would not have to move more than a few paces from his tracks to catch the ball. He braced himself and watched the sphere descend. It seemed as if it would never get to him. He held out his hands, cupped for the catch. Some of his team-mates, displaying a supreme confidence in him, already had left their positions and were on the way to the bence.

"He's got it!" roared an enthusiast on the bleachers. "That boy never misses 'em!"

The ball struck Steve's glove, and at the same instant he seemed to see Hazel's face rise before him. The sphere bounded from his hands, and, while he chased it frantically, two Alton base-runners scored. Steve recovered the ball and threw it to second in time to stop the Alton pitcher, but the tie was broken, with the score 4 to 2 in favor of the enemy. The next batter struck out, and it was Clifton's turn at the bat.

The last half of the ninth opened with the tallies unchanged. The Clifton captain went among his players pleading with them to "do something for the old school." And they responded. The first man up knocked a sizzling grounder past second base and got to the initial base. The one who followed duplicated the feat, back of first, and succeeded in acquiring possession of that sack, while his predecessor landed safely on second.

The next man hit one nearly to the left field fence, and the Alton man holding down that position scurried back and nailed it; but each of the base-runners moved up a notch after the catch. Clifton's prospects were good, but her stock declined somewhat when the following batter fouled out.

Steve came to bat. With two men on bases, two out, and two scores needed to tie, a more critical period of the game would have been imagined with difficulty. His face was pale, he clutched his bat nervously, his lips trembled. He did not even glance at the grandstand, but simply waited for the pitcher—Hazel's cousin and the man whose skyscraper he had missed—to throw the sphere.

* * * *

As Steve was about to enter an automobile after the game he heard his name called and saw Hazel coming toward him. She drew him to one side and he motioned for the car to leave him.

She opened her mouth to speak, but he got ahead of her with:

"Miss Norrin, I wish you to understand that I got your letter all right, but I also want you to know that I did not miss that ball on purpose in the eighth. I love you, just as I said, but I could not betray my team-mates and my school in such a dishonorable manner."

Her eyes glistened unnaturally, and one big tear started down each cheek. There was a remarkable softness in her voice when she said:

"I knew you didn't try to throw the game, Steve. I wouldn't have had you do it for the world. I said you would have to prove that you were the kind of fellow I would marry, and I hope you didn't think I could have a traitor for a husband. If you had thrown the game I would never have spoken to you again. I was almost afraid, I must confess, that you had yielded when you missed that fly, but when you—you knocked that home run in the ninth and redeemed yourself, and won the game for Clifton, I just cried—for joy—as I am crying now."

JIMMY COON STORIES

By Dr. Warren G. Partridge.

Copyright, 1917, by George Matthew Adams.

SNAPPER FINDS SOMETHING MORE TO EAT.

Snapper, the Snapping Turtle, didn't feel half as cross, when he had put those nut meats and that nice beetle wing in his pocket to take home. Teddy Possum whispered to Jimmy Coon, "Snapper is all right, but he is a perfect child, and he always likes to take something home to eat, and he likes to have his pockets full."

"Well, I am nearly starved to death myself," replied Jimmy Coon. "Snapper, can't you think of a place, where I could get a little bite to eat?"

"Well, I do think of something, now that you mention it, but I don't know whether it is just the right thing to do—and my family are so very old and respectable that they always do just the right thing!"

"Oh, go on, Snapper, and risk it, and hang all the old families; you can't do a thing if you always bring that up!" said the practical Jimmy Coon.

Now, Snapper had on his thinking cap, and he was thinking hard. And suddenly he said that he had a fine plan.

Jimmy Coon was jumping about, he was so excited, and he jumped back and forth over Teddy Possum's long tail, just as if it was a skipping rope. Presently soon he tripped on it and fell headlong, and Teddy was cross, and he tucked his tail up under his arm, and snapped, "Quit your fooling and let's hear if Snapper's plan is any good!"

"Well, why should you be in it, if it is a good plan? You have had your party, and everything to eat there was, and you aren't hungry."

"It's my birthday party, and so I am going to have all there is to eat," sniffed Teddy Possum.

"Well, you shall. And now, Snapper, out, with the plan."

"You all know my old Aunt, Patience Turtle?" began Snapper. "She lives on that old log near the dam. I know just where her pantry is (she is always cross to me, and I am sick of it and I know what is in her pantry."

"Well, I know, too, and I had an awful time there, once, and nearly lost my precious life," said Jimmy Coon.

"I know what's in her pantry—eggs, 35 of them, for I counted them—but what will she do to you if she catches you?" asked Teddy Possum.

"She hasn't caught me yet, and she won't," said the brave snapping turtle.

Tomorrow—The Hunting Party.

Daily Bible Question Club

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS ON THE UNIFORM LESSON FOR SUNDAY, OCT. 13, 1918.

ONE GOLDEN TEXT SUGGESTION.

(By Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

Abraham Helping Lot.—Gen. xiii: 5-11; xiv: 14-16.

QUESTIONS FOR TODAY.

1. Verse 5, 6.—What per cent of business partnerships, roughly speaking, turns out to be satisfactory?

In Monday reason, if any, is there to believe that intimate business relationships with relatives are generally less satisfactory than with others?

2. Verse 7.—What probably caused the strife between the herdmen of Lot and Abram?

THE ONLY IDEAL FRIEND.

Our scripture lesson tells the story of Abram rescuing Lot, for Lot and his family had been carried away captive by a hostile army which invaded the city of Sodom. This story therefore, suggests the text for the day. The text speaks of the advantages of friendship. There are none who do not need a friend, and while most of us have friends that are faithful to us up to the measure of their ability, there is after all only one ideal we accept Jesus as our friend, experience proves that we shall never be disappointed. Earthly friends may, and do fail, and leave us, but Jesus is a friend who is always with us and always has the inclination and the ability to help us.

DAILY FISH BULLETIN

(Issued by Canada Food Board.)

The fish season is on. Not that you ever need to stop using fish in a Dominion possessing the most extensive and abundant fisheries in the world. On the Atlantic side the coast line extends from Grand Manan, in the Bay of Fundy, to Labrador, on the Straits of Belle Isle—an approximate shore measurement of some 5,500 miles, including coves and indents. The Pacific coast measures over 7,000 miles when its irregularities are taken into account. The Great Lakes, rivers and lesser bodies of fresh water aggregate a total area of 220,000 square miles. As well as her territorial waters Canada controls the great fishing banks adjacent to her coasts.

But to return to the original text—the fish season is on and the careful and patriotic housewife should be making plans to have more fish days this winter than she ever had before. "Fish Friday" is not enough for the true conservationist.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the St. Catharines Roman Catholic Church on Monday, when Rev. Dean Morris united in marriage Theresa Geraldine, youngest daughter of the late Capt. and Mrs. Deasy, to Joseph Patrick, youngest son of the late Patrick and Mrs. Clear of this city. To the strains of the Wedding March the bride entered the church on the arm of her brother. She was gowned in white georgette crepe, trimmed with pearls, and wearing wreath and veil, and carried an ivory prayer book. Miss Vera Carroll was bridesmaid, and wore a shell pink dress of crepe de chine, and a black velvet picture hat, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. F. A. Airs of London assisted the groom. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's mother, where a dainty breakfast was served, the bride's table being decorated with pink and white asters. The gift of the groom to the bride was a set of sable furs, to the bridesmaid a cameo ring, and to the groomsman a pearl stickpin. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents, a check from her brother, and a cabinet Victrola from the groom's brother and sister, and a walnut buffet from the Canadian Products Company.

A very pretty wedding took place at the Methodist parsonage, Bryanston, on Saturday, September 28, when Miss Freda Wood and Mr. Nelson Dann, both of Bryanston, were united in marriage by the Rev. C. W. D. Cosens.

After the ceremony the young couple motored to London, where they took the train for Toronto and eastern points.

Mr. and Mrs. Dann will be at home to their friends after the 15th of November.

WINTER CAPES AND COATS

Sealskin, Grey Squirrel and Other Marked Features of the New Season's Motives in Outdoor Clothes.

BY MME. FRANCIS.

[The Famous Creation of Fashions, New York City.]

The short coat promises to be very popular, and gives the note of smartness to the straight lines seen in the winter gowns. One cannot sufficiently emphasize the fact that the smart Parisian will not wear her skirts very short.

Like the heroine of the famous Rudder Grange, "who never felt at home except when she was out," the average woman really spends so much of her life out of doors that street clothes become a very vital question at the commencement of each season. As winter approaches one's thoughts naturally turn to the outside wrap as the most important detail of the wardrobe, whether in the form of the smart little coatee that promises to be so popular or the little cape with its fur-lined hood.

Gowns in rich materials, made in straight lines and with longer skirts are featured, for the general public is beginning at last to realize that the really distinguished woman has never worn the exaggeratedly short skirt and so its doom is finally sealed. Lovely fabrics, such as velvets, satins and glacé cloths will carry out these graceful lines, depending upon the wrap to give the chic finish.

For instance, the soft grey squirrel coat opening down the front and fastened with squirrel buttons, with a smart note in the narrow black moire ribbon attached on either side and fastened in a bow with streamers in the back, is designed to be worn with either a black velvet or black satin gown. This combination, lifting, as the French say, the black costume and making a distinctly original note.

Another model is a severely plain chiffon velvet gown in a pearl grey shade, simply finished with a deep lace collar, also dyed in a pearl grey tone. With this demure looking frock is worn a very picturesque short cape of the grey velvet, lined with grey satin and veiled in a deeper shade of grey chiffon outlined on the inside with a narrow taupe and silver ribbon, for you see I cannot resist the finish that is so dear to the Frenchwoman's heart, that is on the inside of the garment, very often not seen by any but one's maid.

That reminds me of a conversation overheard between a very clever young girl and a well-known woman. Owing to a limited income, the former depended upon a certain knack with the needle to fashion her own frocks and they certainly had cachet, but when her friend tried to persuade her to accept an invitation to a house party, she exclaimed, "Oh, but, my dear, I should be a nervous wreck by the end of the visit, trying to hide my tinings from the maids."

But to return to the velvet cape. It has its severity of outline relieved by gracefully draping it up to the left side and lining the hood with moleskin; which fur with its lights and shades, completes a design that is really very effective.

Sealskin is always a favorite fur because of its becomingness to nearly all types, but I must add a word of warning on the subject of grey, which is only becoming to the woman with the clear skin. This model I consider one of my very effective designs, as it is cut in one, including the shawl collar and piece turned up at the bottom of the coat. The only fastening is the large dark brown tortoise shell button at the waistline.

A Persian shawl, with its rich, but at the same time, dull tones, forms the lining, edged with three narrow silk cords in purple, green and bright blue, a veritable Joseph's coat on the inside and an effective contrast to the rich dark fur. A wine velvet gown will be worn with this coat.

There is another fur that is most regal looking if the wearer is young and pretty, but is even more treacherous than the grey squirrel unless approached with much caution. But as I number among my readers some very charming types, I am tempted to suggest one of my designs that is quaint and at the same time very charming and may be fashioned in an ermine-trimmed costume in either plum or black velvet.

This gown, like all the other models, is simple, straight and narrow, with a short capelike coat reaching just to the waistline and outlied with ermine. This fur, that brings to one's mind either kings or bables, is shown to advantage on the velvet and is appropriately used to form the quaint little muff such as one's grandmother used, the finishing touch being given by the ermine cap trimmed in white cherries. Such a costume is most appropriate for afternoon wear or even informal evening wear, as it is very effective by candle or any artificial light.

These are only a few suggestions, as the possibilities of the short coat are unlimited.

Why Is Sugar Supply So Tight?

Here Are Some Pointers Which Give You An Idea How It Is That Your Restaurant Sugar Supply Has Dwindled and Your Grocer Is Stingy With the Precious Crystals.

Why the Urgent Necessity To Conserve Sugar?

To meet the Allied shortage.

To release ships formerly used in the sugar trade to carry soldiers and supplies to Europe.

To make up for the loss of beet sugar lands and factories captured or destroyed by the Germans in Northern France and Italy.

Shortage of crop. There is a 300,000-ton shortage in Cuba and a considerable falling off of cane production in the south.

Shipping which would have insured greater supplies has been sunk. Twenty-six thousand tons of sugar were lost recently in submarine raids off the Atlantic coast. Fifty thousand tons of sugar-carrying shipping were transferred to meet the requirements of Belgian relief.

Will There Be Enough To Go Around?

"Yes," says Mr. Henry B. Thomson chairman of the Canada Food Board, "provided due care is exercised in the meantime."

Twelve million cups of tea, coffee and cocoa are used daily in Canada. If even an average of half a teaspoonful of sugar is left undissolved at the bottom of each cup, the waste would be 420,000 pounds of sugar daily.

It is estimated that about one-third of all the sugar consumed in the home is used in tea and coffee. By doing without any in tea and coffee, or by keeping strictly to one level teaspoonful, a tremendous saving can be effected.

Then—And Now?

Normal consumption of sugar on the North American continent is 90 pounds per annum per capita, or about one and three-quarter pounds per week.

In Britain the rate is now 26 pounds per year per capita; in France 13 1-5 pounds, and in Italy less than 7 1-3 pounds.

The Canada Food Board is asking the individual to keep to 1 1-2 pounds a month. This is 18 pounds a year, for personal consumption.

Where Did the Allies Formerly Get Their Sugar?

France, Italy and the low countries raised a good deal of their own. England received more than one-half from the Teutonic empires, while she imported largely from Java and to a small extent from the British West Indies. Production in Italy and France is only about one-third what it was before the war.

What About the Candy Manufacturer?

Before he was regulated by the Canada Food Board he used approximately 11 per cent of the total quantity of sugar imported into the country. His supply has been cut in half, so that he is only using about 5 1-2 per cent now.

What Other Sugar Regulations Are Being Enforced by the Food Board?

The sugar bowl has been banished from the restaurant table.

Sugar icing for cakes is now taboo.

Candy must not be made in the home.

Householders can only have fifteen days' supply of sugar on hand.

Manufacturers and dealers handling sugar are only allowed to have 45 days' supply for their ordinary trade requirements.

Manufacturers of cakes and biscuits have been limited to the proportion of 40 pounds of sugar to 100 pounds of flour.

The ice cream manufacturers have been reduced from 12 pounds of sugar for an 8-gallon can to 6 pounds of sugar.

Manufacturers of soft drinks and kindred confections have been limited to a maximum of 75 per cent of the average monthly amount of sugar used during the year 1917.

Canners are only allowed an average of 25 pounds of sugar to 100 pounds of prepared fruit. Based on last year's pack, this order alone will effect a saving of 784,855 pounds of sugar per annum.

Bakers have been forbidden to use granulated sugar in bread-making.

Public eating-houses must have sugar certificates, which means keeping check on them so that no more than 2 pounds of sugar can be used for 90 meals.

What Is the Saving Effected as a Result of These Regulations?

It is estimated that the saving as a result of the public eating-house regulations is in excess of 40 per cent.

The voluntary measures taken by Canadian householders, together with the food board's regulations, are resulting in a sugar saving of over 100,000 tons annually.

Are Householders to Consider Themselves on a Definite Sugar Ration?

Yes. They're in honor bound to confine themselves to 1½ pounds a month and to accept their reduced restaurant sugar ration without complaint.

Are They Supposed to Use Substitutes for Sugar?

Yes. White corn syrup is on the market in tins and is an excellent and satisfactory substitute in cooking. Then there is glucose, maple sugar, honey, maple syrup, fruit juices, etc.

Does the 1½-Pound Ration for Householders Include Sugar for Canning?

No. A limited amount of sugar is allowed for preserving fruits at home.

Why Does the Canada Food Board Encourage Canning Despite the Scarcity of Sugar?

Because perishable fruits would be lost if not canned. If fruit is sterilized and air excluded, sugar will not be needed as a preservative, and enough sugar can be added when the fruit is eaten to make it palatable.

How Much Sugar Should Be Used In Making Jams and Jellies?

Can Sugar Substitutes Be Used In Canning?

Yes. Corn syrup and other table syrups not made from granulated sugar, can be used along with sugar.

How Else May Fruits Be Saved Without the Use of Sugar?

Some fruits may be dried; other may be stored in a cool cellar. Fruit pulp may be evaporated to a paste, thus concentrating the natural fruit sugar.

What Are the General Sugar Saving Rules?

Use all sugar sparingly and whenever possible use substitutes. Be sparing in the use of confections and sweet cakes. Swear off sugar in tea and other beverages. Supplement sugar with honey, maple syrup and corn syrup. Sugar is a fuel-food. Get fuel from potatoes and other starchy foods rather than from sugar.

A Mincemeat Recipe.

Dear Miss Grey,—Could you please tell me something that is good for stomach troubles, as I am bothered so much?

Here is a mincemeat recipe: One peck green tomatoes, half peck apples, three pounds brown sugar, two pounds raisins, two pounds currants, one tablespoon cinnamon, one tablespoon cloves, one tablespoon salt, one teaspoon ginger; put through a grinder; cook three hours, adding a little vinegar when nearly done. Slice the tomatoes and sprinkle with salt; let stand over night. It is very good; have used this many a time. ENGLISH.

Ans.—Anyone who has a quantity of green tomatoes on hand will be glad of the above method of using them. I should not like to venture to advise a stomach trouble remedy, but perhaps some reader may be able to give a formula she has found helpful.

A BUMPER HARVEST FROM GARDEN AT THE AGED PEOPLE'S HOME

Vegeables and Fruit to Value of $931.10 Raised.

The garden at the Aged People's Home has been so profitable this year that special mention should be made of it, and the gardener, who alone did the work on 2½ acres of land. This garden has supplied both the Aged People's Home and Home for Incurables with summer vegetables, and will furnish the former home with fruit and vegetables for the entire winter. As an increased food production measure, the Women's Christian Association undertook to maintain such a garden, the great success of which surely justifies the undertaking. The late Miss Margaret Moore was convener of this garden, which later was put under the care of Mrs. L. H. Ingram.

The following statement made out by Mrs. Ingram will be interesting to all gardeners. On this plot of 2½ acres were grown summer supplies to a value of $448.85, and winter supplies to a value of $463; $19.25 worth of supplies were given to the Home for Incurables, making in all supplies raised to the extent of $931.10.

Summer Supplies.—15 dozen bunches radishes at 5c, $9; 12 dozen bunches early lettuce, $7.60; 30 dozen bunches late lettuce, $9; 30 dozen bunches Dutch sets, $18; 100 dozen bunches green seed onions, $30 spinach greens, $5; beet greens, $7; Swiss chard, $5; 16 baskets early carrots, $12; 10 bushels early beets, $20; 50 quarts shelled peas, $20; 35 boxes strawberries, $10.50; 20 bushels early potatoes at $2.25 bushel, $45; 25 bushels later potatoes, $2 bushel, $50; 20 bushels early apples at $1.75 bushel, $35; 40 baskets plums, $40; 12 baskets cherries, $12; 60 dozen early corn at 30c dozen, $21; 140 dozen late corn at 20c dozen, $28; 3 baskets green beans, $1; 10 baskets early tomatoes, $12.50; 25 baskets late tomatoes, $16.25; 20 bunches early salsify, $1; 30 heads early cabbage, $3; 10 bushels green tomatoes, $10; 30 boxes currants at 20c box, $6, and rhubarb, $15.

Winter Supplies.—1½ bushels beans, $18; 150 bushels potatoes, $300; 10 bushels beets, $20; 10 bushels turnips, $5; 12 bushels onions, $25; 15 bushels carrots, $30; 7 barrels apples, $42; winter cabbage, $5; celery, $5; salsify, $10, and a half bushel seed onions, $3.

CYNTHIA GREY'S MAIL-BOX

No Apology Needed.

La Donna: No apology necessary, dear lady. In fact, I did not know about it at first as the office folks fixed it up. I've had experience of the kind you mention, so quite understand how thing get mixed at times; you really should not have bothered with the stamps, as there were no hard feelings whatever.

That Would-Be Farmerette.

Dear Miss Grey,—I thank you very much for getting me on a farm. I think I shall enjoy it very much. I shall write and let you know how I am getting on after I get there if I may.

I am going to trouble you again. Mother would like to have a recipe of corn relish if you had it, please.

Thanking you very much, I remain, yours respectfully,

A SOLDIER'S DAUGHTER.

Ans.—I shall be very pleased to hear how you enjoy your sojourn on a real farm, so do not forget to write. Your mother should like this recipe:

Corn Relish.—Seven medium sized ears of corn; cook and shave off the cob; chop fine; one cabbage, eight medium onions, one large or two small bunches celery, two green peppers, one-half cup salt, two cups yellow sugar, one-quarter pound mustard. Mix dry ingredients in a pint and a half of cold vinegar, stir well into the finely-chopped vegetables, cook for ten minutes, then add a little flour wet in cold vinegar, cook five or ten minutes longer, and can.

A Mildewed Cloth.

Dear Miss Grey,—Will you please pass the inclosed letter on to "Thoughtful Mother"? and will you also please answer me this question on the subject? 'Tiser? What will take mildew out of a tablecloth (not linen), also a good wartime cake receipt? I'll try and pass on some hints next time I come if I may call again.

Please excuse writing, as my wee girlie is busy asking questions. I am respectfully yours,

MOTHER OF THREE BABIES.

Ans.—The letter has been forwarded to "Thoughtful Mother." For the mildew, dip the garment in buttermilk a few days old, place in the sun to whiten, then wash in clean water. Or mix together a little softened yellow soap, some salt and starch (half as much salt as starch), spread over the stains, lay in the sun, and after a few hours wash in clear water.

An economical recipe calls for one and a-half cups apple sauce (sweetened) good half-cup brown sugar, teaspoon cinnamon, half teaspoon cloves (or these may be omitted and vanilla used instead), scant half-cup shortening, two level teaspoons soda dissolved in the sauce, and flour to make a nice batter. Bake in a flat tin, and when cool spread with jelly and drop cocoanut or broken nut meats over the top.

You will be very welcome to come again at any time.

After Two Years.

Dear Miss Grey,—It is just about two years since I visited your page, but under another name, I wonder if any of the readers have the music of the inclosed. It is a favorite of mine and is set to music, but I have been unable to procure it. ROSE MARIE.

O, Heart of Mine!

O, Heart of Mine, we shouldn't worry so,
What we've missed of calm, we couldn't have, you know.
What we've missed of stormy pain
And of sorrow's driving rain,
We can better meet again, if it blow.

We have erred in that dark hour we have known,
When the tears fell with the shower, all alone,
Were not shine and shower blent
As our gracious Maker meant?
Let us mingle our content wish His own.

For we know not every morrow can be sad,
So forgetting all the sorrows we have had,
Let us fold away our fears,

Ans.—"Better late than not at all" surely applies in your case. The thought in the verses you inclose is very fine, and I hope someone may tell you where the music can be purchased.

As to your note to me, how mysterious you are! You're not hinting that O. L. is a benedict, are you?

A Pullover Sweater.

Dear Miss Grey,—Could you please tell me how to knit a pullover sweater, and could you get me the directions? I am 14 and am in second year at high school. Is my writing good or bad?

Thanking you in advance, I remain, BLACK EYES.

Ans.—Your writing and composition are very naughty indeed for a second-year H. S. girl. Do try to improve in both this term. I have the directions for a "pullover" without sleeves. Perhaps some kind reader may be able to supply rules for the other, but in the meantime, I'll print what I have:

Sleeveless Slip-Over Sweater—Materials—8 balls knitting wool. Use one pair needles No. 5. Cast on 126 st. K 6 st and purl 6 st across entire sweater. Continue knitting where purled in previous row, in so doing forming ribs. Do this for 89 rows, then k pl for 27 ribs. Bind off 27 st on each side of sweater. Decrease 1 st on each side for 5 ribs. K 19 ribs on this length. Take off 23 st on extra needle. Bind off 26 st for neck and k on remaining length. Ten rows on this length. Increase 1 st each rib on neck side for 24 ribs. K other side from * up to this point. Then k the 2 sides together. K 27 ribs. Then purl back and k as on back for 89 rows and bind off. Sew up seams with wool.—Canadian Home Journal.

R. S. W.'s Emulsion.

Dear Miss Grey,—I see where "Mary Ann" wants the receipe for "Chesty Troubles." She asks if it is for asthma or bronchitis. Now I don't know, as I only got it from a friend in the old country, but I guess it will help any of these troubles. Please print it for the benefit of other readers. Here it is: Emulsion—Get from the druggist 5 cents worth of glycerine, 5 cents essence of almonds, 1 gill of lime water, and the smallest quantity you can get of phosphates of lime and soda. Now get a small bottle of cod liver oil, empty it into a basin, then add the glycerine, mix all together, then add the contents of a can of condensed milk. Beat all together for ten minutes, then gradually stir in the whites of two well beaten eggs. Beat all again, and when nice and creamy pour into bottles and keep in a cool place. I think myself it would be worth a trial anyway. Please send my thanks to "Comic" re the hint of fruit.

RETURNED SOLDIER'S WIFE.

Ans.—There were several requests for the formula, so I am glad to be able to publish it for the benefit of all.

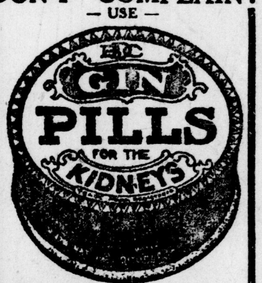

*Ginger Pears Recipe.

Dear Miss Grey,—Just a word from me, a reader of the Mail-Box, and I enjoy the different letters and recipes very much. Here is a recipe for doing pears; I thought it might be nice for someone. Ginger Pears.—Four pounds of pears, cut fine; 3 pounds sugar; 3 lemons, cut fine; 10c of candied ginger; boiled till thick. Add no water. This is all for this time, from a "reader of the Mail-Box."

ABBIE.

Ans.—Such a nice recipe, "Abbie." I am glad you decided not to be a reader only, but a writer, too.

GORDON'S ELMWOODS CAPTURE TOURNEY ON THISTLE GREENS

Last Contest of Season at the North End Rink on Thanksgiving.

The patriotic fund is $110 to the good as a result of the Thistle tournament held on the greens of the north end club Saturday afternoon. Twenty-four rinks took part and each paid $5 for the privilege. C. C. Gordon's Elmwoods took away first prize, A. E. Cash's Stratford combination being the nearest competitors. W. H. Shannon's Rowing Club quartet got third place, and J. S. McDougall's rink fourth awards. Despite the early rain the greens were in fine shape.

The last tourney of the season, and one which will end up local bowling, will be held on the Thistle lawn on Thanksgiving Day. All London and Lambeth rinks are invited to enter, and it is hoped that one of the largest turnouts of the season will be recorded. Entrance fee will be 50 cents.

"AGGIES" WIN FIRST CONTEST OF SEASON FROM GALT BOYS

Guelph Senior Aggregation Victors by 28 to 12.

GUELPH, Oct. 6.—The Guelph Collegiate Institute football team, three times champions of the Inter-Scholastic League, started off the season in fine shape this afternoon, and in their first regular scheduled game of the season by defeating the Galt Collegiate team at the O. A. C. campus by 28 to 12. This score just about indicates the playing qualities of the two teams, although the visitors presented a much heavier lineup than last year, and were enabled to break through much more often and with better results.

They held the Guelph fourteen well during the first half, but lack of condition told in the second period, and the local team rolled up a large score. The half-time score was 12 eo 11 in favor of Guelph, each team scoring two trys, Galt converting one of theirs.

The Guelph team presented a strong and aggressive line, and the feature of its work was the speed with which it pulled off its plays, putting the ball into play many times before its opponents had a chance to line up. For the home team the honors went to Buckland, Creelman, Smith and Carroll, while the other members of the team also did well. For Galt, Gardner at outside wing was the star, and was repeatedly used as a battering ram with good result.

Johnson at centre half also starred and put up a useful game. There were many delays in the second half, due to players being injured, but no one was seriously hurt. Captain Gandier of the O. A. C., refereed the game in a satisfactory manner. The teams lined up as follows:

Referee.—S. H. Gandier.

Umpire.—Mr. Baker.

Before the senior game the junior teams of the same schools played their annual game, the result being a victory for the Galt Juniors by a score of 5 to 1. The teams were evenly matched and the game was a hard one. The teams were:

WAR'S END MEANS RETURN OF SPORT THROUGH CANADA

Athleticism Will Be Placed on More Sound Basis With the Return of Men From Overseas — Canadian League More Than Likely.

With the cessation of hostilities in Europe, pre-war days of sport will be the vogue for 1919. A re-establishment of the major baseball league, the re-organization of the old Canadian league circuit, basketball, tennis, golf and every other variety of sport will again be the fashion for the coming year. Gradually various forms of athletic throughout the continent have been greatly curtailed during the past four years, the war outlook being directly responsible for the curtailment in the United States and the dearth of sportsmen, the reason for the pronounced abatement in the Dominion. These conditions will be no more. The kaiser's mad dreams of universal conquest have been forever squelched. The world will resume its peaceful aspect, and among the minor results will be the participation on an immensely increased scale of returned soldiers in those athletic diversions which they so cherished and which assisted them so materially in their work overseas.

Canadian League.

Even should the so-called cry of peace of the German Government develop into another "peace offensive," for which it is so noted, the most pessimistic would admit that the war will come to en end, if not this winter, in the early spring of next year. And with the dawn of peace comes a revival of all lines of sport. Present indications point to the re-establishment of the Canadian League. In the anticipation of war for 1919, Toronto baseball magnates declared that an attempt would be made to gather together all the married professional ball players with previous experience in the International and major leagues, and with them form a minor league, such as existed in Ontario three years before the war, and one year after its beginning. With no war for 1919 a Canadian League is assured.

In fact, real sport will come back. The half-baked variety of athletics which has characterized sporting endeavor for the last two years will be no more. Four hundred thousand sportsmen, now overseas, will attend to this. Those of the sporting element who return will become engaged again in their favorite pastimes, and those whose tendencies were not toward athletics before enlistment have all been convinced of its value. Hence a largely increased sporting public for Canada and the United States at the war's end.

Horse Racing, Too.

Horse racing, which has been on the wane across the border, will become even more popular than in ante-bellum days. The war has furnished sufficient excitement for the average citizen for four years. With the conflict terminated the demand for excitement will not end. And the agency that will be used to satisfy the public craving will be, among other sports, horse racing.

It is said that the success of Allied arms may be traced to the sporting enthusiasm of the Allied soldiers. The achievements of sportsmen in France, Macedonia, Palestine and all the war fronts are too well known for any comment. When these men return they will bring back sport—and bring it back strong.

TORONTO MAITLANDS WIN THE CANADIAN LACROSSE HONORS

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 6.—Although they trimmed the Maitlands of Toronto in a lacrosse game here Saturday afternoon for the C. L. A. championship the St. Kitts' team went down to defeat on the round, losing the Canadian lacrosse honors by a single point. Under a disadvantage of three points, which the Maitlands piled up in the game at Toronto last Saturday, the St. Kitts strove desperately to win, falling short by a single notch, the final score being St. Kitts 8, Maitlands 6.

St. Kitts started things in the first quarter, scoring three points, thereby completely offsetting the Maitlands' advantage. However the Toronto team came to life in the fourth period, after scoring twice to the St. Kitts' team's eight. The final quarter was the deciding one, and the Toronto aggregation penetrated the defences of St. Kitts four times, just enough to win. The line-up:

St. Kitts — Gayder, goal; Sullivan, point; May, cover; McCarthy, first defence; Farney; second defence; Doran, third defence; Miller, centre; McKenzie, third home; Pople, second home; Kalls, first home; Walsh, outside; Hope, inside.

Maitlands — Torpey, goal; Yeaman, point; Green, cover; Poivers, first defence; McKenzie, second defence; Bullen, third defence; W. Braden, centre; D. Braden, third home; Longfellow, second home; Rowland, first home; Barnett, outside; Reeves, inside.

Officials—C. Querrie, referee; R. Hewittson, judge of play.

GOLF AT SARNIA ON THANKSGIVING DAY

Big Tournament To Be Held at Tunnel City.

SARNIA, Oct. 5. — The Sarnia Golf Club has set apart Thanksgiving Day as a day on which to hold a big competitive match. All proceeds will be donated to the Red Cross.

Matches for the men as well as the ladies are contemplated. Individual competitions of driving for the men, as well as the ladies, and putting competitions will be held. Afternoon tea will be served, and in the evening an informal dance given.

LAST-DAY RACES AT MT. CLEMENS ARE GOOD ONES

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., Oct. 5.—Contrary to the usual rule, the racing, which featured the get-away day card, was hard fought, perhaps because feed will be high, and incident to the program there were plenty of surprises.

Only two came out for the unfinished 2:12 pace, and the judges put Ashley up behind Lucy T., fearing the record of 2:09¾ might operate against activity on the driver's part. Lucy T. took the track and never was headed.

The free-for-all pace saw South Bend Girl show up Nettie H. in good style. Always in front, South Bend Girl never was hard pressed, stepping to the half in the second heat in 1:03¼. Nettie never was contending. Roxanna Moore, favorite in the 2:12 trot, won the opening heat, when Margaret Mead broke in the stretch. After that Margaret made no mistakes, winning the final heat by a neck.

The 2:17 pace was an elimination contest. Hal H., that was bought for $150 Friday, toyed with them for two heats. He broke in the third, which Olive R. won by half a length, and Maywood won the fourth, in which Olive jumped. Maywood led in the fifth until the distance, where Olive R. nailed her. The judges declared it finished, first money to Olive R.

MALLEABLES TAKE FIRST OF SEMI-FINALS FROM KITCHENER

Brantfordites Have All the Breaks and Trim Opponents by 6 to 5 in O. B. A. A. Semi-Finals at the Telephone City.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 5. — Kitchener and the Brantford Malleables had a battle royal here on Saturday in the O. B. A. A. semi-finals. The Brantford Club won out in the tenth on clean hitting by the score of 6 to 5.

The Brantford management before the contest started, claimed the game by forfeit as Kitchener presented only eight of their regular players, filling in with Hiller from one of the other teams in Kitchener. Manager Roedding announced that Spanish influenza was responsible for four of his players being laid up. It was agreed, however, to proceed with the game, as there was quite a crowd, despite an occasional drizzle.

A good line was secured on the merits of the two teams, and there were local fans present who credited the visitors with being the better ball team. Shirk, the big hurler of the Kitchener team had a lot of stuff, but proved no rainy weather pitcher. He issued nine passes, the last one in the tenth turning out fatal, and also hit two batters. It was apparent to Brantford fans that Johnson, the Malleable pitcher, who has been doing a lot of work of late did not extend himself to the limit, Johnson did not strike out an opposing batsman, but he used his under-hand delivery with a change of pace with great effort. The two pitchers should certainly provide a battle royal in the next game at Kitchener on Saturday.

Throw Away Chances.

The visitors threw away chances by loose base running. In the second and third innings Shack Dunbrook and Seaber over-ran ordinary base hits and were easy outs on the paths, the ball being handled by several Brantford players in the process. What looked like real rallies were broken up by the Kitcheners themselves, Brantford scoring four in the fourth. Hits by Curry, McMahon, Stuart, a dead ball and a pass, with a line drive to left by Symons, put the Malleables ahead.

In the fifth Shirk's single scored Toletski, while in the sixth Toletski's triple, after Johnson had walked two, tied the score. Cochrane ended the round by flying to short. Kitchener got men on bases in the succeeding rounds, but the needed tally was not forthcoming. In the tenth Stuart, the Brantford shortstop, and Mahn of Kitchener pulled a remarkable double bone. Mahn was on second when Stuart handled a grounder from Dunbrook. Stuart touched third, but there was no force play. Mahn, who reached third, turned to go back to second and was tagged out, retiring the side. In the seventh Toletski's catch of a line drive, doubling Curry off second was a feature play. The score:

How About Your Danger Zone?

YOU'VE got it—every human being is born with it—your large intestine, or colon. It is a large tube—a reservoir or sewer—intended to collect waste matter and remove it from the body.

Plug it up with waste, neglect it, and you're sick on your feet. The waste matter stagnates, undergoes decay, fermentation and germ action. Dangerous poisons are produced, that can easily be absorbed and carried all over the body.

Allow constipation to become established, and you are liable to become definitely and miserably sick — and not on your feet either. You have broken Nature's laws.

Better be kind to her. Keep the danger zone clean, with a regular bowel movement, and Nature will thank you, and pay you back in gold coin—health, good nature, and a feeling of eagerness for your daily task.

Nujol has the approval of established medical practice, because it does not upset the system as do pills, castor oil and purgative mineral waters, salts, etc. It softens the contents of the colon, making them easy for the intestinal muscles to move at regular hours. Don't fight Nature. Help her. Nujol is health insurance for tens of thousands of American families today. Sold at drug stores everywhere.

Warning:

How "Putting the Glands to Rights" May Cure Hatred

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG,
A. B., M. A., M. D., (John Hopkins University.)

A thoroughly frightened person cannot expectorate. The "bad" man or "tough" tries to show his bravado and absence of fear to "all comers" by spitting sharply and forcibly. If you have read the researches of modern physiologists presented in my various articles, you know that the emotion of fear is associated with the overflow of the thyroid, adrenal, intestinal glds, and a cessation of action of the salivary glands.

Thechronic triplet offsprings of fear, dbt, despair and cowardice, have been fnd by physiologists to abide in those nose glandular tissues are diseased, sak, fatigued or otherwise below p. One of the happy results of trainicamps, setting-up exercises and physic deeds of daring, is in the elimindon of the emotions of fear, timidi despair, doubt, hesitation and bowarce.

Theyroid, adrenal and other glands are imis way disciplined to supply the humapersonality with only the exact amoun of its substance necessary to combsand counteract the influence of weakns or ill-health.

"A Settled Anger."

Wh you are angry your adrenal glandpour forth more than the normal quany of adrenalin. Whether the sensns or perceptions aroused by the outsi impression moves the glands to workrst and thus initiates the physical tion called anger, or whether angestarts an instant sooner was in doubntil experiments proved that the emotns of anger, fear and others couldo reproduced by artificial inoculatio of these gland substances.

Look to the Glands.

Jus as "passion seeks aid from its oppote passion," so physiologically, natu attempts to combat the overflow of tse glands which generate fear, angs excitement or other emotions. Lovels sometimes disguised in hate, fear and admiration become intermind with envy and hypocrisy. The braodocia of the cowardly braggart is of t same sort. The adrenal glands are en summoned and stimulated artificily to overcome the over-production f the thyroid, thymus and other glan.

If ie various lymph glands, the thyroid,ituitary, thymus, adrenalin,pineal and arathyroid glands are healthy the emoons will be stable and not nuisans to you and your friends. On the othe hand, if you are inclined to exaggrate, to be hyper-sensitive, to over the sympathy and martyr act for yurself, to be psychaesthenic, neurasthnic, neurotic, nervous, irritable, jealc, easily angerfed, see to it that you o not overwork your glands and allowthem to become tired or diseased or in some fashion over-stimulated.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 8.

The attitude of the heavenly host can scarcely be interpreted as kindly in their operations for this day, two of the strong malefics being adversely placed, and Venus and Mercury likewise being of little assistance. Under the circumstances it would be wise to check the tendency to move, change or travel and to subscribe to the thwarting and delaying influence of Saturn by working along the lines of least resistance, doing what is actually obligatory, but postponing until a more propitious occasion all that possibly can be thus handled; in other words, working with the law instead of against it. Thus does "the wise man rule his stars." Sign papers, documents, even letters, with care, and also cherish the health, guarding against colds.

Those whose birthday it is should attempt to make little change, keeping quiet and protecting interests of whatever nature. A child born on this day should be finely educated, with the virtues of patience, prudence, steadiness and thrift strongly instilled.

It is not work, or even real anxiety, that makes the way hard and the daily burdens so heavy. It is life's ceaseless little frets—the things we might learn to eliminate if we would.

Literature is one of the instruments, one of the most powerful instruments, for forming character, for giving us men and women armed with reason, braced by knowledge, clothed with steadfastness and courage, and inspired by that public spirit and virtue of which it has been well said that they are the brightest ornaments of the mind of man.

WOOL-LESS SUITS FOR WINTER

Velvet and Satin Fur-Trimmed Now the Thing

Like the French queen who suggested that the populace eat cake if they had no bread, we who wish to conserve needed cloth are going to use velvet and satin instead of wool this fall.

For the new suits which are appearing for fall wear are no longer of wool, as in former years. Neither is the woolen coat in evidence. Velvet is to be the predominant fabric for fall and winter wear, and satin takes next place.

Accustomed as we are to regarding satin as a lightweight fabric, it seems curious to think of wearing it in cold winter weather. But the fashion designers have anticipated this objection, and so we see these satin suits so heavily trimmed with fur that they assume an appropriately wintry appearance.

Squirrel will be used more extensively this year as a trimming than ever before, but sealskin promises to retain its popularity.

Both the suits shown in this illustration are of satin trimmed with seal. The first is wine color, and has huge bands of sealskin around the jacket, on cuffs and as a front panel.

The second is a brown satin, and is novel in that the entire lower part of the coat is of fur. There is a square collar of fur that can be worn flat, as shown, or rolled up around the throat.

Deep-sea fishermen report that they recently saw a floating island in the gulf stream off Palm Beach, Fla. The island was about 25 feet in diameter, and the fishermen say it was composed of marl and muck, held together by tangled roots and rotted seaweed; that there were several trees and mangrove sprouts growing luxuriantly on the island. The fishermen landed on the island and found thousands of small fish on it, which sea birds were greedily eating.

Solving the Problem of Correct Conservation With Fish.

Sometimes I hear fault-finders complain that when they try to conserve in accordance with the requests of the food administration it means that they must substitute with things that are more expensive. But there is one thing which we can all use to conserve meat which is not beyond the reach of the poorest of us, and that is fish. Even canned fish is not as expensive as meat if you consider the fact that there is absolutely not one ounce of waste in a can of fish. And for those of us who live near enough to a coast to get fresh fish it is decidedly cheaper than even the cheapest meat.

Moreover, many housewives do not appreciate the vast number of ways in which fish can be cooked. "I like to cook meat because you can use it in so many different ways," said one young housekeeper. But it is a fact that fish can be used in just as many ways as meat. The trouble is that we may get into the habit of buying one kind of fish—like herring, let us say, and then frying it always and invariably. But there are so many new varieties of fish being offered that there is no reason why every housekeeper should not at least experiment.

Fish is most delicious when baked—and it is the simplest way of handling it. Clean the fish, wipe dry, place on a rack in a dripping pan. Dredge with a mixture of flour, salt, pepper and cover with bits of butter substitute. Bake for eight or ten minutes to the pound in a moderate oven until tender. Serve with slices of lemon.

This is easy to cook, slowly develops the tender juices of the fish, and is a most delicious and nutritious dish.

Another simple way of baking fish is to cut the fish into sections large enough for individual servings, dredge with flour, salt and pepper, and then baste with a mixture of melted butter substitute, lemon juice, hot water and a dash of Worcestershire.

A Simple Fish Recipe.

1 onion.
2 cupfuls of tomatoes (canned or fresh pulp.)
Saut, pepper, bay leaf.

Lightly fry the chopped pepper and onion, add seasonings and tomatoes, and when well cooked press through sieve. Cut the fish in steaks for serving, place in a greased baking dish, season with salt and pepper and baste with part of the above sauce. When fish is cooked, put on a hot platter and pour the remaining sauce over all.

Canned Fish Souffle.

2 eggs.
Salt, paprika.

Flake the fish and add seasoning. Mix the hot milk and crumbs and heat together, then add fish and beaten yolks of eggs. Cook a few moments, fold in the stiffly beaten whites, pour into a greased baking dish and bake until firm.

How to Select Colors as Frameworks of Beauty

BY LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

LUCREZIA BORI

I wonder how much women consider the colors they surround themselves with as an aid or a detractor of beauty? I speak not with clothes only in mind. For here women can get excellent counsel if they will. The responsible maker or seller of clothes usually tries tactfully to guide a woman in the selection of the right colors when she purchases a single article of apparel, like a suit or a frock or a hat.

But where so many women detract instead of adding to their personal attractiveness is in the colors with which they completely surround themselves. To begin at the clothes question. One sees very often a woman with a most becoming color of hat—which is made to suffer, however, because the frock is a violently clashing shade!

Color Cheapest Beauty Aid.

It is possible to use colors cleverly in our attire, and also in our rooms so that they are not merely beautiful in themselves but help to glorify our persons. Color is the cheapest of all beauty aids. It costs no more to get a becoming color than it does to select one which does not harmonize so well. A green gown costs no more than a blue one—but how great may be the difference in the appearance of the wearer! Far in excess of the extra effort it required to make the more judicious selection.

I remember vividly an interesting illustration of the use of color. I visited the New York apartment of a once famous singer who had since retired. She was considerably past middle age when I called on her, and there remained nothing of the beauty of face which I had heard she once possessed. But what a magnificent picture she presented when I confronted her in her small sitting-room!

Select Your Colors Well.

She was of medium height, grey-haired, and her pleasant blue eyes were without sparkle. But as she arose out of a deep-cushioned chair of soft grey she seemed a beautiful part of a beautiful picture. Her little room was a study in soft grey and delft blue—a pleasing and harmonious background for the slender grey figure. That picture of a simple room, so harmonious in its coloring, has remained permanently in my mind, when visions of other rooms of greater magnificence have long since departed.

I know a woman of gypsy type—dark-haired, black-eyed, yet by no means beautiful. But if you greet her in her own living room, where the color scheme of all things blends into a wondrous mass of black and yellow, you receive an impression of a magnificently beautiful woman. Her face is not really beautiful, but she has the art of accentuating her few points of beauty by the fine use of color. She has lovely eyes and raven hair, and by the adroit use of colors in her surroundings as well as on her person, she emphasizes these features until one is impressed by her general sense of beauty—not merely the loveliness of one or two features.

Select well the colors that you live among, just as carefully as the colors of your garments. For your surroundings are the frame which can help make you either a beautiful or an unattractive picture, just as you elect.

WHY WILLY LOCUST CHANGED HIS MIND.

"Green, green, green every place you look!" he cried to his mamma. "My wings, suit, leggings and hat are all dusty green. Why can't I have a pretty red coat, a blue hat and a pair of yellow wings like the butterflies?"

"I don't see why!" exclaimed Willy Locust crossly. "I hate the very color," and he crawled out to the end of the limb, spread his wings, and dropped to the ground.

Willy Locust ran on and on. He didn't care what became of him. He hated green and didn't care who knew it.

"Hello, there!" cried a merry voice, and Lady Slipper waved her pretty blossom slippers at Willy Locust. "You're so near the color of the grasses I hardly saw you!"

"Oh, dear!" exclaimed Willy Locust crossly, "will I ever be able to hear folks say: 'Dear me, what a lovely bright red suit you have, and what beautiful golden wings'?"

"Why, what's the matter with green?" Lady Slipper asked merrily. "My dress is green and I'm very proud of it!"

"Sure it is, but you have pink slippers to wear with it, and my shoes are green," retorted Willy Locust. "If I had shoes of a different color it wouldn't be so bad!"

"Well, if lending you a pair of mine will help any you're welcome to them," laughed Lady Slipper, shaking her many pretty pink slippers in the breeze.

"Guess if I can't have golden wings and a red suit, pink slippers might help some," replied Willy Locust, and taking a pair of Lady's Slipper's pretty slippers he quickly ran home and put them on.

"How beautiful!" mused Willy Locust as he admired himself in a shiny leaf. "Oh, how I do love bright clothes," and he crawled out on the tip end of a branch and sat down on a big green leaf to show off his slippers to his many friends.

He hadn't been there very long when there was a swish of wings, and, looking up, Willy discovered a wild-eyed bird watching him greedily.

That would have been the end of Willy Locust if his mamma hadn't seen the whole affair, and crowling out on the underside of the leaf, quickly snatched the bright pink slippers from his feet, and the bird seeing the spot of color gone flew away.

"If it hadn't been for those pink slippers that bird would never have seen you," said Mamma Locust. "Now I guess you can see why we locusts always wear green!"

Willy Locust never said a word, but quickly took the pretty pink slippers back to Lady Slipper and thanked her. From that day to this, none of the meadow folks ever heard Willy Locust complain again about the color of his suit, for he had learned green was the safest color to wear during the summer months.

The Origin of Famous Sayings

Alfred de Musset. 1810—1857.

As all the perfumes of the vanished day
Rise from the earth still moistened with the dew
So from my chastened soul beneath the ray
—Remembrance, translated by George Murray.

The enormous demand for men for covering airplane wings is rapidly absorbing the visible supplies of the world, and it may be years before this material can be bought at a reasonable price.

Only what we have wrought into our characters during life can we take away with us.—Humboldt.

"I know exactly what is the matter with you, Jack. You have lost confidence.

"YOU were getting along fine until you had that nervous breakdown, but since then you have been worried and anxious.

"Now you have got discouraged and down-hearted, and it is no wonder you cannot make sales.

"The salesman must have lots of energy and vigor as well as confidence in himself and what he has to sell.

"But you cannot have confidence in anything so long as your nerves are weak and you spend the nights worrying instead of getting good, refreshing sleep.

"Take my advice, boy, and go straight to the drug store and get half a dozen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Then make up your mind that while you are using this you will get out into the fresh air all you can and forget to worry.

"Now, you may feel pessimistic after all the treatments you have been taking, but I know what I am talking about.

"My nerves were in a worse condition than yours ever were. I could scarcely get a wink of sleep, and did not care whether I got anything to eat or not.

"Besides, I got so irritable and down-hearted that nothing seemed to go right.

"The experience that I had enables me to sympathize with you now, and also to say that I am certain that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you.

"It is entirely different to most medicines used for the nerves, because instead of merely stimulating the tired nerves to over-exertion, it nourishes them back to health and vigor.

"Now, Jack, you must give the Nerve Food a trial, and I know you will consider me your best friend for telling you about it."

Here is an interesting letter from another business man who had a similar experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food:

Mr. W. J. Wilson, Grocer, Perth, Ont., writes: "In fitting up this building for a grocery business I worked very hard, and after putting in my stock I continued plugging away, good and hard, too. I commenced to feel myself going down—my weight went from 180 pounds down to 154 pounds. My appetite began to fail, and, of course, upon retiring I could not get a good night's rest. Sometimes after going to sleep my nerves would twitch, and I would waken up with a start, and then lie awake for hours. I remembered having used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food before, so I started in again, and took a good treatment, using about half a dozen boxes. I soon felt my appetite returning, I could sleep well, and commenced gaining in weight, until I felt like a new man. From the benefits I have received from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I cannot speak too highly of it."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Look for the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, on the box you buy.

houses as he will," she replied promptly. "He won't make a move that isn't accounted for. For instance, he is being followed tonight, and after he returns I shall have a full account of every move he has made, every person he has seen."

She was a true prophet, but the fulfilment of her prediction brought sorrow and heavy anxiety to all of us.

It was almost midnight when Kato returned, and later still when the man detailed by Lillian to follow him came to make his report. Lillian and I had waited up for him, I against her urgent wishes, but I couldn't sleep while such an issue waited.

And the report was that the man to whom Kato went straight as an arrow, with whom he was closeted for hours, was Harry Underwood, and that Grace Draper and an unknown woman—the description of whom fitted Mrs. Allis—were present at the interview!

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

"Malay half-caste?" my father repeated, looking at Allen Drake in astonishment. "Whom do you mean? Kato, my Japanese boy?"

"Well! If you call about one-sixteenth Jap blood a Japanese I mean your boy," Mr. Drake retorted. "I'm sure he hasn't more than that in his mongrel veins, but what he has is settled in his brain and his facial characteristics, so he passes for the original very well."

"I'm sure you must be mistaken, Drake," my father turned with a touch of stiffness in his manner. "I've known of the boy for a long time, known him to be trustworthy, and he claims to be a full-blooded Japanese."

"Nevertheless," Mr. Drake persisted, "he is the same lad that I had to half kill one time in the Philippines to keep him from performing that little service for me when I was asleep. Have you ever noticed a long, slanting scar on his neck and chin? I gave him that in twisting the kreese he had in his hand up out of the way of my own precious tummy, for which he was aiming. He's a bad egg if ever there was one, treacherous as the devil, and for sale, body and soul, to the highest bidder in the neighborhood."

His words were convincing, authoritative. I saw belief, remorse, alarm creep into my father's face, from which the little remnant of color it possessed receded, leaving him pallid, shaken. Lillian's prescient distrust of his servant had only irritated him, but this calm, convincing knowledge overwhelmed him.

"But this is terrible, Drake," he said. "If this be true, he knows for too much of what we're doing, although, of course, I've never made a confidant of him. But he has been my messenger, and he has had countless opportunities to betray."

"Where Did You See Him?"

"And if he hasn't done it, it's because nobody has yet overbid you," Mr. Drake replied cynically.

"But where did you see him?" my father asked. "He requested permission to go away for a little while this evening, and I—knowing that you were coming—was glad to grant it, so he didn't open the door for you."

Mr. Drake looked at Lillian, and she took up the explanation. I glanced at her heightened color understandingly. It always embarrasses her to relate an instance of her own superior judgment.

"You will recall that we thought it best to have Mr. Drake come to our house first, then through the shrubbery to yours," she said deprecatingly, ignoring the fact that it was she who had suggested the arrangement. "And as Kato, evidently preparing to profit by the letting down of the bars between the two families, was talking to William—whom, incidentally, I have instructed to let Kato hang around all he wishes—I managed to have Dr. Drake see him himself unobserved. I had heard the story of the Malady servant and the averted kreese, and thought it worth the chance."

Shadow Brings Bad News.

My father rose, and with the courtly foreign touch with which he invests his treatment of women, he crossed to Lillian's side and raised her hand to his lips with a ceremonious bow.

"Dear lady," he said, "I am eternally indebted to you, not only for your forethought, but for your forbearance. If I had but listened to you the other day! Why, he may have overheard the list of figures which my little girl was repeating."

"Not he," Lillian smiled, and then in the fewest possible words she told of her coup in turning the key upon Kato when he had slipped into the broom closet upon her opening of the door. It was a story Mr. Drake knew, for we had discussed Kato thoroughly before we came into my father's house, but my father's face showed the relief he felt.

"That's one danger avoided any way," he commented, "but his very presence is a menace. What is to be done?"

"Let him have the run of the two

MEN EXEMPTED AS FARMERS

Having in view the importance of leaving a sufficient number of men on those farms, which are actually contributing to the National Food Supply, notice is hereby given as follows:

1. ALL MEMBERS OF CLASS I POSSESSING EXEMPTION AS FARMERS which is expiring and WHO WISH TO REMAIN EXEMPT should communicate with the Registrars under the M.S.A., of their respective districts, REQUESTING AN EXTENSION IN TIME OF SUCH EXEMPTION. Questionnaires will thereupon be issued to these men by the Registrar and they will receive further exemption upon furnishing satisfactory proof that they are contributing sufficiently to the National Food Supply.

2. In order to facilitate productive employment during the Winter months, MEN EXEMPTED AS FARMERS SHOULD APPLY TO THE REGISTRARS FOR PERMITS TO ENGAGE FOR THE WINTER IN SOME OCCUPATION OF NATIONAL INTEREST, SUCH AS LUMBERING, MUNITION WORK, ETC. Such permits will serve to enable exempted farmers to pursue other useful occupations for the months during which farming operations cannot be carried on.

FIRE PREVENTION PROCLAMATION

Issued By Mayor C. R. Somerville, London

WHEREAS next to the care of those who are offering their lives on the front line of battle, the conservation of all our energies and substance is our most important problem;

AND WHEREAS the saving of human life, thrift, and the prevention of loss of property through destruction by fire, is an aid which everyone should give willingly to the community at large;

AND WHEREAS the reckless and impoverishing fire waste that confronts the people of our Province is appalling;

THEREFORE, believing that the loss can be minimized only by awakening in the public mind a universal watchfulness against carelessness, accumulation of rubbish and unsanitary conditions, and

Because of this great need, and in order to arouse a sense of watchfulness, carefulness and cleanliness, and to create a greater personal responsibility in reducing the number of preventable fires;

We have thought fit by, and with the advice of the Council of the Corporation of the City of London, to name, and do hereby name WEDNESDAY, the 9TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1918, as FIRE PREVENTION DAY.

AND we do hereby urge that on this day, throughout our City, attention be called in schools and public places, to the conditions that exist and to the need of immediate action and co-operation on the part of everyone; and special exercises, addresses and other means be employed to impress on the public mind lessons of Fire Prevention.

To insure the success of this great Clean-up Campaign, it will be necessary to have the hearty and harmonious co-operation of all who have for their objects civic, social and industrial betterment.

The Proclamation should be read in all schools and at public gatherings.

C. R. SOMERVILLE,

PTE. ROY BENNETT HAS BEEN WOUNDED IN KNEE

William Bennett, 1385 Dundas street, was notified this morning that his son, Pte. Roy Bennett, has been wounded. He is now in No. 1 Eastern General Hospital at Cambridge, suffering from a gunshot wound in the knee. He was admitted to the hospital on October 1.

Pte. Bennett enlisted with a Middlesex battalion, and has been overseas two years. This is the first time his name has appeared in the casualty list. He was formerly employed at Page's hardware store in the east end.

At the time he was wounded Pte. Bennett was serving in the trenches with his brother William. He was wounded at Vimy Ridge in April, 1917, but has been back in the trenches for some time. He was formerly employed at Dyson's tinsmith shop.

WALL STREET.

New York, Oct. 7—Wall Street, 10:30 a.m.—The line between peace and war shares was again sharply defined at the irregular opening of today's stock market, as a result of developments in the foreign situation over the week-end. Popular war issues reacted 1 to 3 points in the first half hour, Baldwin Locomotive, Crucible Steel and Republic Iron displaying greatest weakness at lowest levels for the present movement. Corresponding gains were registered by leading rails, notably Canadian Pacific and Union Pacific, also the better known Petroleums, while shippings, motors and utilities rose from large fractions to 2 points.

1:30 p.m.—Some of the stronger specialties, particularly oils, were carried down at midday by the increased weakness of war shares, which were more freely offered. Later United States Steel's recovery of half of its 2-point loss effected partial rallies elsewhere.

SHARP BREAK IN CORN DUE TO THE NEW PEACE NOTE

Nervousness Prevailed On the Chicago Market Today.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Germany's request for peace negotiations brought about a sharp break in prices of corn today, but no sign of demoralized trading. Business broadened out considerably, though, and brisk fluctuations showed that the feeling was nervous and that sentiment as to the future course of prices was by no means one-sided. The fact that no extraordinary pressure to sell developed was attributed largely to recent drastic peace liquidation and also to the general opinion that a quick cessation of hostilities was not yet in sight. Opening prices, which ranged from 1⅝ to 3⅞ lower, were followed by rallies to above the top initial figures in the nearer deliveries, and then by fresh setbacks all around.

Oats, like corn, were only moderately affected by the action of the German Government. For the time being, however, no other influence received any notice. After opening 1c to 2¼c lower, the market made a slight recovery.

Provisions reflected the weakness of cereals. Peace talk usually counted bullish as to provisions, seemed to be in this instance virtually ignored.

RUSSIAN PEACE COMPACT WITH TURKEY IS NULL

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 5.—A Russian note to Turkey published by Vorwaerts, according to a Berlin dispatch, concludes:

"The Russian Government is obliged to state that in consequence of the action of the Turkish Government the treaty of Brest-Litovsk, which was to have established peaceful relations between Russia and Turkey, is null and void."

It is understood that this applies only to the clauses in the treaty concerning the relations between Russia and Turkey.

KING BORIS' FIRST ACTION DEMOBILIZES THE BULGARIAN ARMY

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 5.—The first decree signed by King Boris was one demobilizing the Bulgarian army, according to a dispatch from Sofia.

Former King Ferdinand left Bulgaria Friday night. 'Before signing his declaration of abdication he received the various party leaders, who all expressed approval of his decision.

The Bulgarian Government Friday offered its resignation to the new king, who expressed his confidence in the cabinet and asked the ministers to retain their portfolios, according to a dispatch from Sofia.

Marguerite Clark, "the darling of the screen," appearing at the Majestic today and Tuesday, in her latest success, "Out Of a Clear Sky."

This is a tremendously interesting picture story which deals with a tiny Belgian Countess who, to escape a distasteful marriage with a dissolute German Prince, flees to this country and finds refuge in the mountains of Tennessee. Here also, she finds happiness in the love of a stalwart American, but their honeymoon does not rise until they have had adventures as dramatic as they are interesting.

The picture, aside from the beauty of the story which is based upon the successful book by Maria Thompson Daviess, has been splendidly directed and photographed, so that we have no hesitancy in recommending it to our clientele. Miss Clark is exceptionally well supported, her leading man being Thomas Meighan, one of the best known of screen players.

MIDDLESEX ASKED FOR $3,000,000 TO HELP VICTORY LOAN

Organizer Assured This Will Be Forthcoming.

Middlesex County will be asked to raise $3,000,000 in the coming Victory Loan campaign. At a meeting of the representatives of the various county municipalities held in the county council chamber on Saturday afternoon, W. C. Brent, divisional organizer for this district, announced that this sum would be asked from this county. All present expressed their confidence in the loyalty of the county and Mr. Brent was assured that this sum would be easily raised by the canvassers in Middlesex County.

Called by L. H. Dampier of Strathroy, chairman for the county organization for the purpose of preliminary steps in the campaign, the assembly with Warden D. A. Graham in the chair passed a resolution instructing the reeves of the townships to see that the necessary committees and canvassers are appointed and the names given in to the central organization by October 15.

Questioned as to why the new bonds had been exempted from taxation, Mr. Brent explained that the money was absolutely necessary, and the bonds were made as attractive as possible in the financial returns. He further explained that the majority of the last Victory Loan subscribers were not of the wealthy class, and thus the statement that the moneyed men of the country were taking advantage of the Victory Loan to invest their money where it would not be taxable was untrue.

County Organizer G. E. Cork emphasized the need of thorough organization for the success of the campaign.

EVERY CITIZEN ASKED TO CIVIC DINNER AT TECUMSEH ON TUESDAY

Members of the committee in charge of the civic dinner of the London Board of Trade, to be given Tuesday evening at the Tecumseh, say the number of requests for places has nearly reached the limit. Both of the speakers, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, solicitor-general of the Dominion, and Allen D. Albert of Chicago, have assured the committee they will be here.

Invitations to the dinner are extended to every citizen of London. If the announcement of the event did not reach any who would like to attend the committee says reservations may be made at 363 Richmond street, the headquarters of the expansion and reorganization campaign of the London Board of Trade.

Cities That Were Ready.

News that the Albany, N. Y., Chamber of Commerce has just brought to that city a farm tractor manufacturing plant, which is going to add 15,000 skilled mechanics and their families to the city's population, reached the campaign director yesterday in a letter from Roy S. Smith, the secretary at Albany. It recalled to the campaign manager the reasons which governed the location of other great plants, and which he pointed out as being just as applicable to London as to the other cities involved.

Some years ago the General Electric Company was looking for a place to begin the building of its present world-wide business. It was favorably disposed toward a small city near New York. But upon inquiry, it found that the city was not yet ready for it; it was not organized, nor were there other indications that it was a live town. So the company looked further, and finding that Schenectady was ready, it settled there.

Ohio Town Still Mourning.

One of the chief industries of Toledo is an automobile plant that employs thousands of men. The officers of that company really wanted to build in Indianapolis, but the city was not ready for them, and they went to Toledo.

There is a little city in Ohio that is still mourning over the fact that Thomas A. Edison first thought of locating his laboratories and manufacturing plants there, and did not because the city was not ready for him.

ST. MARYS, Oct. 6.—The remains of the late Willoughby Allen, who died at Derry, New Hampshire, United States, were brought here and the funeral held from the residence of his father, Charles Allen, Ontario street, west ward, today. A widow and two children survive.

James Allen, Chesterfield, who died on Thursday after a few days' illness of pneumonia in his fifty-fifth year, had been a residentof the town for a number of years, and formerly carried on the business of tinsmith and plumbing, and later changed to motorcycles and bicycles. There survive a widow and six children. Funeral on Monday afternoon to St. Marys Cemetery.

K. OF C. CAMPAIGN GREATLY EXCEEDED BEST EXPECTATIONS

Nearly $12,000 Raised in City For Huts.

In their recent campaign in this city to raise funds for army huts in France the Knights of Columbus not only went over the top, but exceeded their objective of $7,000 by nearly $5,000. The total receipts for the campaign which has been finally wound up, amounted to $11,700. This is quite beyond anything that was deemed possible by the executive committee, in view of the many calls recently and continually made on all the people for war sacrifices.

At the meeting of the executive held on completing the returns the following resolution, expressing appreciation of the attitude of the public and the work done, was adopted:

"The executive committee of the army hut fund very sincerely thank the citizens of London generally, who contributed so generously to the fund and wish to express publicly their fullest appreciation of the broad-minded spirit that prompted the donations, for such a worthy cause.

"The committee wish to express their indebtedness to Rev. Father Corcoran and Messrs. Frank Smith, E. V. Hessian, F. E. Parnell, J. J. Callaghan and C. J. Kellar, who acted as chairmen of the different sections of the city, and each of whom deserves much credit for the success in his district.

"The committee also thank most heartily the ladies who assisted by such energetic and toilsome work to make the tag day one of the greatest successes of its kind and particularly the Senator Coffey Chapter, I. O. D. E., and all the chapters of the I. O. D. E., who assisted the chairman, M. P. McDonagh, in many ways, many of them giving substantial donations.

"Finally, the committee express their deep gratitude to the city newspapers for their able and hearty support."

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Lieut.-Col. Wm. G. Coles, chairman of the executive committee, who is given a great deal of credit for procuring such an efficient organization and for his continued diligence in the general conduct of the campaign which he carried through to such a successful conclusion.

In reply, Lieut.-Col. Wm. G. Coles thanked the executive committee, the ladies, I. O. D. E., the chairmen of the different districts and the committeemen for their splendid and hearty cooperation in bringing the campaign to such a magnificent conclusion.

CALIFORNIA WOMAN GAINS 35 POUNDS

Husband Says He Never In His Life Saw Such a Change in Anyone.

"Positively I never saw anybody improve like my wife has since she started on Tanlac. Why, she actually gained 35 pounds in only six weeks, and if that isn't a wonder I don't know what is," said Harry Clifford, who is in the automobile business and lives at 735A Crocker street, Los Angeles, the other day.

"For over a year," he continued, "my wife was nothing but a nervous wreck. She had no appetite, and could eat nothing but the lightest kind of diet. Even that would disagree with her, and swell her up with gas that pressed so hard around her heart that she could scarcely get her breath. She suffered constantly from spells of nervousness, so that she could hardly sleep, and she would get up in the morning feeling so tired and depressed that she wouldn't be fit for a thing all day long. She used to weigh 125 pounds, but she fell off in a short while till she was but a shadow of her former self, and got down to 90 pounds. She was losing out day by day and became too weak to look after her household duties. In fact, her condition was so serious that I felt uneasy lest she should go all to pieces.

"Well, about six weeks ago I got a bottle of Tanlac for her, and now, after taking only four bottles of the medicine, she looks like a different woman. Besides regaining all her lost weight she can eat anything she wants without suffering the least bit of distress afterwards. Her nerves are in fine shape and she sleeps all night like a child. She never complains of that gas trouble or of shortness of breath; the headaches are all gone, and she says she is simply feeling fine in every way. I can well believe it, too, for she is bright and cheerful all the time, and I haven't seen her looking so well in many months."

Tanlac is sold in London by Standard Drug, Limited, and by an established agency in every town.

MANY SUGGESTIONS FOR NAME OF NEW MILITARY HOSPITAL

Citizens Offer Good Ideas to the Council.

The Advertiser has received several suggestions for the name of the new military hospital to take the place of London View Military Hospital, which has been rejected as commonplace by the authorities.

Mrs. Callaghan of 11 Wyatt street, whose husband is a returned soldier, suggests that the building should be known as the Becher Military Hospital, in commemoration of the Becher brothers, Campbell and Dr. A. V., who died while in the service of their country.

Several Offered.

Mrs. L. Copeland of 19 Edward street writes as follows: "In reading The Evening Advertiser I noticed that there is an opportunity to name the new military hospital. Here are a few suggestions: Royal George Military Hospital, Welcome Home Military Hospital, Maple Leaf Military Hospital, Forest City Military Hospital, Our Heroes Military Hospital.

Appealing Idea.

Another appealing idea is contained in the following letter received today: To the Editor of The Advertiser,—It was with much pleasure I read the objections registered against the title of "London View" being given the new military hospital about to be erected in our city. Why not follow Mr. and Mrs. Gray's very excellent idea in providing a similar memorial to our fallen heroes as they have done to the memory of their gallant son, a beautiful home for the benefit and care of infants and homeless little ones, in which many will live and bless their benefactors' memory for all time? Surely some such title as the "Soldiers' Memorial Hospital," erected to the memory of our fallen heroes, who "gave their lives that we might live," in the liberty and freedom of the Empire, 1914-1918, would be a far more fitting one, as well as being of lasting memory and benefit to those comrades left behind until "the day dawns and the shadows flee away."

Yours truly, CITIZEN.

In Burst of Enthusiasm, Londoners Burn Auto Fuel.

It was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon before the news of the Teutons' cave-in became general. After that the autos gaily bedecked with the colors of the Allies started to appear simultaneously with flags and decorations on many homes of the city.

Towards evening the autos started to appear rather thickly, and by 8 o'clock there were hundreds more than have been seen on a Sunday for many moons. They were one and all, however, gaily decorated, and in most cases carried a boisterous crowd of rooters and cheerers who aided not a little in "booming her up."

No one objected to using the cars for this purpose. The Advertiser received many calls from patriotic persons, asking if they might use their cars for the worthy purpose of celebrating." Everybody's doing it," was the invariable answer.

LEGAL QUERIES

AN ANXIOUS GRANDFATHER.—Ten years ago my son and his wife separated on account of adultery of the wife, the father taking the children. After a while for the sake of the children he received her back again in his home, but she left him again, and has lived with other men as man and wife. In the meantime the children have grown up, and are ashamed of their mother's conduct. Their only son is fighting somewhere in France. His grandmother receives fifteen dollars ($15) of his pay every month which she puts in the bank in his name and her own jointly, with the understanding that he will have it all if he comes home safe; if not it goes to his two sisters. Can his mother claim separation money from him under the circumstances?

Ans.—Write to the Minister of Militia and Defence, Ottawa, Ont.

A SUBSCRIBER.—1st. Is a tenant entitled to a month's notice to leave if rent is past due?

2nd. Can a soldier's wife, a tenant, refuse to give up house with rent unpaid?

Ans.—No.

3rd. With due notice can a tenant refuse to leave when winter sets in?

Ans.—No.

BOARD OF TRADE NECESSARY IN CITY TO MAKE PROGRESS

Time Has Proved Such Organizations of Value.

Ambition to build a board of trade which shall give London first rank among cities of its class, in civic-commercial organization, has inspired members of the committee who are behind the expansion and reorganization campaign, which is to open Monday, October 14. Anticipating that the question will be asked why London should have a board of trade, it was yesterday put to J. C. R. Foster, the director of the drive, by an Advertiser representative.

"In the first place," Mr. Foster said, "I have not been asked that question. Everybody I have talked with agrees that London has need of such an organization. But quite likely the question will be asked, for it is impossible there are not some in this community who cannot see any reasons for a board of trade.

Compelling Reasons.

"There are a number of compelling reasons why London should have a board of trade. Some hundreds of the leading business and professional men have already expressed the first of these reasons by organizing a civic-commercial body and maintaining it to do a community work.

"In Canada there are probably 200 to 300 boards of trade. In other words, the business and professional men of 200 to 300 Canadian cities have banded themselves together in a more or less intelligent effort to ascertain what things will bring advantage to the community, and, having fixed upon the things worth while, to seek and strive for them unitedly.

Organization Needed.

"Until the plan of organization and operation of a board of trade had been placed upon a scientific basis, just as all successful business has been placed, the average life of a commercial organization was about ten years. It may be argued from this fact that such bodies are not necessary. But let us look at the matter from another angle.

"It is also truth that 90 per cent of the commercial organizations which have died have been revived, some of them not once, but half a dozen times. Does not this prove that men need such organizations so much that repeated discouragements and failures will not prevent them from getting together again and again.

Standardized Plan.

"In the last five years a plan of organization and operation for a board of trade has been worked out, standardized, proved in the hardest of all tests, that of experience, and it is now possible to say to a community that there is no need of resurrecting and revitalizing a board at the end of ten years. Boards of trade that have been placed on the scientific basis now available to them, as will be the case here in London, are uniformly growing bigger and stronger year by year.

"In every live city there is need of a central organization of the citizens, through which they may express their ambitions for the good of the whole community; an organization which will bring them together, so that their thought may be concentrated on particular objects, and equipped to translate that thought into action.

Fate In Our Hands.

"London in 1925 will look and be what the average businessman of today wishes. London will not make the progress that one or two broad-visioned men may conceive. A city is like a fleet of warships. The progress of the entire fleet is restricted to the speed of the slowest monitor. So it is necessary for the men who want progress—who want to see the prosperity and community conveniences of 1925 brought into use as early as possible, instead of as late as possible—to organize to the end that the 'slowest monitor' shall be speeded up and the whole community carried forward.

Board of Citizenship.

"Community organizations have come to be indispensable to the fundamental prosperity of the cities of Canada. A board of trade is a board of citizenship. Its primary function is to make the people think. When the public begins to think, the most important step toward permanent material prosperity has been taken. Out of this thought come all of the dozen or more things that make for progress. Not the least of these is the adoption of a long-term program of achievement which looks to the future while attending to the things of immediate concern.

"It is peculiarly necessary that London and other Canadian cities should be closely organized just at this time. Lord Shaughnessy has put that thought into these words: 'Peace, though not yet in sight, is a boon entailing responsibilities for which it is imperative that we make preparation.'

"There can be no question that London can render greater and better service to the Dominion and the Empire when all of its citizens can speak, act and serve together through one big, well-manned, well-financed board of trade."

RANDOLPH HERSEY DEAD.

Montreal, Oct. 7.—The death occurred yesterday in this city of Mr. Randolph Hersey, late president of the Pillow and Hersey Manufacturing Company, Limited. He retired from active business in 1903, and was 89 years of age. The funeral will be private.

GUILTY OF MURDER.

Regina, Oct. 6.—Found guilty of the murder of Mrs. Edward Beatty at her home, near Theodore, Barney Belcourt has been sentenced to be hanged at Regina January 8 next.

FUELLESS CITIZENS ARE STILL NUMEROUS

The explosion of Saturday and the exciting war news of yesterday did not drive the thoughts of coal from the minds of London's citizens. This is evidenced by the fact that over forty coal coupons reached The Advertiser this morning. Of the senders of these only seven had any coal whatever, and but two had an amount worth considering. One had two tons and another one and a half tons. The others numbered their amount in pounds.

Coal continues to come in fairly well, but the consensus of opinion is that the statistics gathered by The Advertiser show that an equitable distribution of coal is necessary if those without fuel are to escape the first cold of winter.

$20, $22, $25 Overcoats That Are Indisputable Leaders

The verdict of those who have shopped around, and hundreds of men who have done that thoroughly, have come here to finally purchase, is that our showing at these figures is easily the best in London. To those who are in a position to know the situation as regards woolen fabrics, the prices for the qualities we are showing are really ridiculously low. We haven't compromised with quality, for we are still offering real woolen cloths at less than some shops are charging for practically all-cotton qualities.

THE STYLES The "Trencher" is a belted coat, double-breasted, mostly with a two-way collar that can be buttoned up snugly around the neck. We have it with plain back, with inverted pleat back and with new yoke effect; both regular and raglan shoulders. Practically all these coats are designed to look well with or without belt.

The "Ulster" is a solid comfort proposition for the man who drives, motors or walks; double-breasted, two-way collar and cut larger than the Trench Coat by from three to four inches.

The "Standard" is a smartly designed conservative coat, with neat, full hanging back, either fly front or button through style. It's cut medium length and is a coat that appeals to hundreds of men.

THE FABRICS In this showing will be found splendid British and Canadian cuttings, splendid weights and qualities — tweeds, witneys, cheviots and friezes—browns in many shades, tans, greys, greens, etc., in plain colors and scores of handsome new designs in overplaids, checks, etc.
