This kind gentleman then offered to show the Pilgrim a better way: "In yonder village (he said) there dwells a gentleman-a very judicious man, and Turning Lathes, Paint Mills, Pipe Boxes, a man of a very good name, that has skill to help men off with such burdens as these; and besides, he hath skill to cure those that are somewhat crased in their wits, with this burden, His house is not quite a mile from this place; there thou mayest be eased of thy burden, and if thou art not minded to go back to thy for-mer habitation, as indeed I would not wish thee; thou mayest send for thy wife and children to thee, to this village, where there are houses now standing empty, one of which thou mayest have at a reasonable rate; provision is there also cheap and good; and that which will make thy life more happy is, to be sure that there thou shall live by honest neighbors, in credit and good fashion." The poor Pilgrim, taking all this for gospel, proceeded to act on the advice, but was happily deterred, before he got far, by dangers threatning Farmers' Mutual Insurance Company, him, and by the opportune appearance at this critical juncture of Him who had given him the Book, whose directions he has followed till persuaded by the so-called Wiseman that there was a better and easier way. It may be well to examine the extent of the provision thus, as we hoped, secured to the church, By this "final" settlement, it was directed that five-twelfths of the land then allotted to the church should be sold, and the proceeds invested in British Canadian funds, in order that therefrom an income might arise, which could therefrom an income might arise, which could be applied to meet the religious wants of the church; and fresh he interest on the joint produce of past and fluture sales, was to flow the sole support which the church in Ganada should thenceforward derive from the state. He would be there, and if it was be a very short one—the Ministry having ments and princely revenue in Canada, could nity confers upon you many rights; but we entreat of you to remember that Christianity has its duties also, not the least of which is, that not only your best wishes, but also your utmost personal exertions, should be instant in season and out of exertions, should be instant in season and out of season, to secure to the church the scanty revenues she now possesses. You should remember that any submission to the aggressive policy of your fees, must not only encourage further spoliation, but also tend to enthrone Popery, and render her more powerful and tyrannical than ever; thus ensuring the destruction of the various Protestant and the processing the destruction of the various Protestant and the reaction of the various Protestant and the processing the destruction of the various Protestant and the processing the bodies, and the re-establishment of the mental and religious darkness of the middle ages. Since the (so called) final settlement of the Clergy Reserves in 1840, the efficiency of the church has increased, owing to the repose which followed, and the increase of funds which were followed, and the increase of funds which were acquired thereby, whilst its maintenance is become dearer still to our laity. Then there were but 18 clergymen within this Province,—now we have 149. Numerous churches have been since erected, new missions established, and the joyful words of the Gospel brought to the door of many a forest home. Our clergy in many instances felt, and we wish it were so with all, that they were sent, not only to the actual members of the church, but also to deserters from its fold—to the your posterity, now tell you that they will no longer maintain either within this Province. They declare that they will no longer permit you to retain the means provided for religious purposes— they tell you that the remnant of the church's temporalities is to be wrested from you;—and we tell you, that if this be permitted, as your present ministers die off, your churches may be closed, and the flocks scattered as a further concession to the French Canadian and Romish influence which verpowers you in the United Legislature.

His Excellency the Governor General in making this painful announcement, has accompanied it with some words of hope. In stating that this concession has been obtained by the continued and systematic agitation of our "violent and unscru-pulous opponents," greatly strengthened by the absence of all resistance to, if not our apparent relative to Protestant ascendency and English mismanagement in that country.

Mr M. Milnes, after the closest inves-

Mr Grantley Berkeley said he rose as an indignant Protestant to repudiate the language which had been used on a forrey, (Mr Drummond) and was proceeding to impute to that gentleman a belief 32s. 6d. a 33s. in ghosts and other superstitious sentiments, when he was interrupted by some laughter and cries of "question" the hon. member then briefly concluded his remarks by expressing his intention to vote for the second reading of the bill.

Lord Castlereagh characterized the government measure as impotent and ill-considered, and believed if passed, it would be found impossible to carry it into effect.

Mr A. B. Hope, whose voice was frequently drowned by loud cries of "divide, adjourn, &c.," described the policy which dictated the present bill as a wretched system of suspicion and restriction, disgraceful to the magnanimity of the country, and repugnant to the principles of toleration.

A motion by Mr Hobhouse again to adwas renewed by Mr M. O'Connell, and on either day, had Mr Brown a majority. Lord J. Russell thereupon gave way. Another division then took place upon the question whether the debate should recom mence at 12 o'clock, when the proposition was carried 306 to 43. Further opposi tion being offered, Lord J. Russell sented to the adjournment of the debate until the usual hour, 5 o'clock.

The adjourned debate upon a motion for the second reading of the Ecclesiastical Titles Assumption Bill was then resum ed by Mr Hobhouse, who spoke at some length in opposition to all legislation upon the subject. Mr Portal and Mr Lawless also opposed the bill for the same reasons -Mr J. O'Connell took credit to the Roman Catholics for their forbearance under great provocation; he opposed the measure, and contended that the objections which had been urged against it had no been answered .- Mr Muntz did not look at the question in a religious point of view but seeing that it was admitted almost uni versally that an aggression had been made he could not understand upon what principle it was contended that no measure should be taken for repelling it.—After speeches by Mr Scully, Mr Hume, Sir F. Thesiger, Mr Gladstone, Mr Disraeli. and Sir G. Grey, the House divided when there appeared for the original motion, 438; for the amendment, 95; majority, 343. The bill will go into committee, pro forma, on Monday next. The House adjourned at a quarter past three o'clock till Thursday.

The Morning Herald furnishes the following analysis of the division on this bill: Ayes .- Stanleyites 220, Peelites 27,

And now I wait for thee.

The hearth is swept—the fire is bright— The kettle sings for tea; The cloth is spread-the lamps are light, The hot cakes smoke in napkins white,

Come home, love, home, thy task is done; The clock ticks list'ningly; The blinds are shut—the curtains down— The warm chair to the fireside drawn, The boy is on my knee.

Come home, love, home-his deep, fond eye Looks round him wistfully; And when the whispering winds go by, As if thy welcome step were nigh, He crows exultingly.

In vain-he finds the welcome vain, And turus his glance on mine, So carnestly, that yet again His form unto my heart I strain, That glance is so like thine.

Thy task is done-we miss thee here: Where'er thy footsteps ro No hand will spread such kindly cheer, No beating heart, no listening ear, Like these will wait thee home.

Aha! along the crisp walks fast That well-known step doth come, The bolt is drawn-the gate is past-The babe is wild with joy at last-A thousand welcomes home!
