GERMANS LOSING TWO TO ONE IN MEN

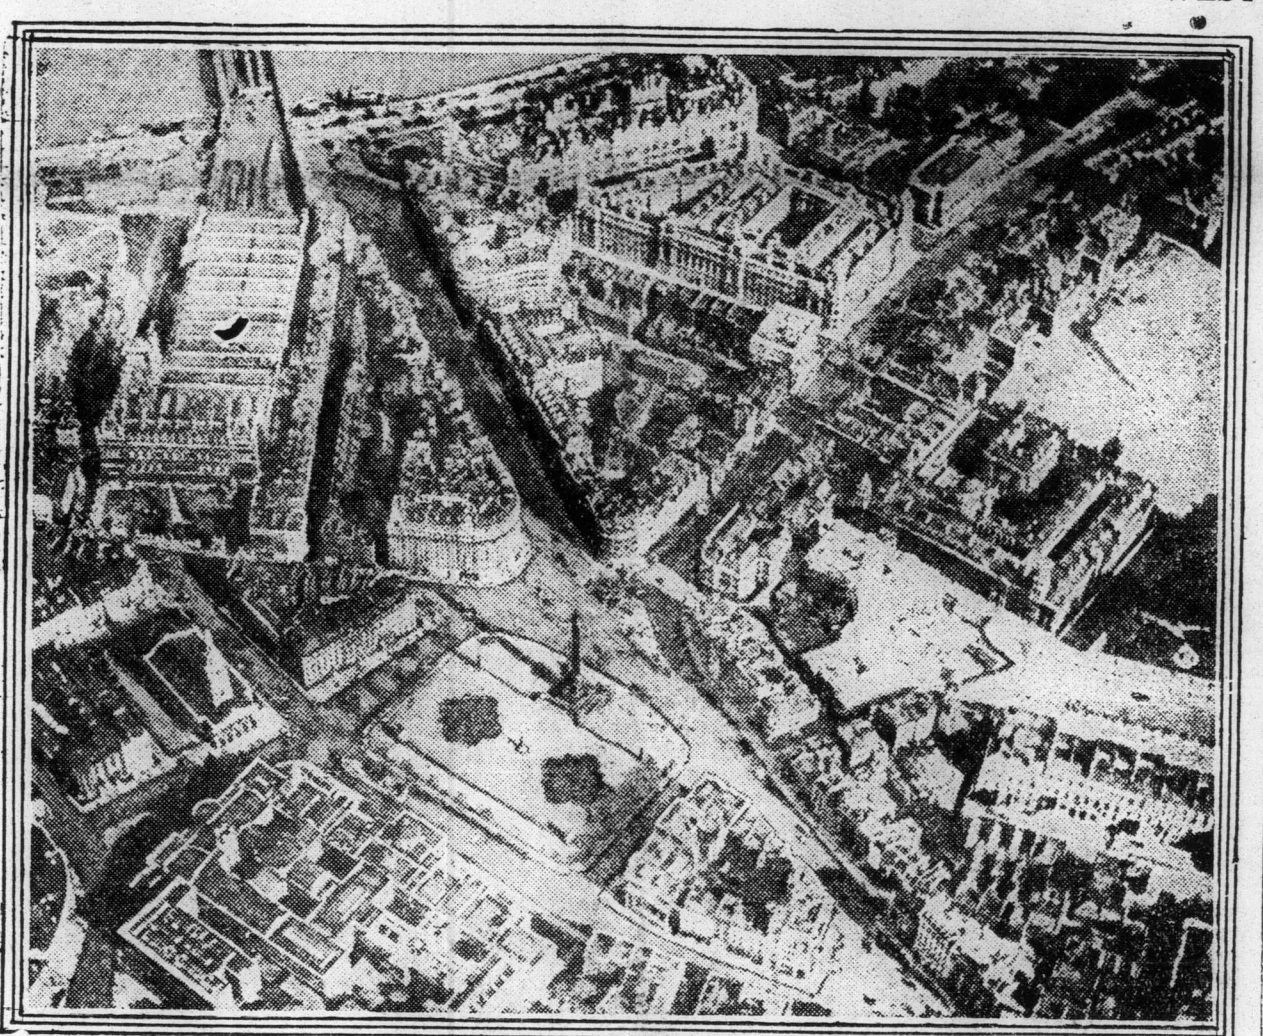

Dvinsk Will be of Little Advantage to Huns - Stubborn Fighting.

London, Sept. 20.—Undiminished confidence in high military circles that the Russians will make a successful retreat from Vilna, is reported by the Petrograd correspondent of the Times. The Germans, he says, are making most desperate efforts to bag some of the retreating Russian armies before the withdrawal is completed, but the heaviest transport trains and impedimenta are already beyond the danger zone and there is hope that the Russian forces will extricate themselves.

LARGEST UNDERWRITING SYNDICATE
IN WORLD FORMING TO HANDLE LOAN

POSITIVE WORD IS AWAITED AS TO THE GREEK SHIP ATHINAE

New York, N. Y., September 20.—The Anchor Line Steamship Tuscania was believed to be on her way to New York to-day bringing the passengers and crew of the Greek steamer Athinae, which was on fire and abandoned at sea, according to wireless messages received from Captain McLean of the Tuscania. The Athinae left New York last Thursday for Piraeus, Greece, carrying a few passengers, a large general cargo and many bags of mail. The position of the burning vessel was given in Captain McLean's message as latitude 40.54 north and longitude 58.47 west, about 200 miles nearly south of Sable Island and more than 500 miles east of New York.

Question of Including Munitions is Under Discussion To-day.

New York, Sept. 20.—The largest underwriting syndicate the western world has even known, was in process of formation to-day to handle the proposed "billion dollar" credit loan to Great Britain and France, which has now shrunk, it was reported to a sum yet to be determined, between $500,000,000 and $800,000,000. This mammoth syndicate, according to tentative arrangements said to have been agreed upon, will be nation wide in its character and will comprise national and state banks and trust companies from the Atlantic to the Pacific. A number of so-called Pro-German financiers, it was reported, will join the syndicate if it is finally agreed that the proceeds of the big loan shall be available only for commodity exports and not for munitions of war.

CHAPLAIN OF FIFTY-EIGHT APPEALS FOR PRAISE MANUALS

Last night at evensong, St. Jude's Church was well filled and the talk by the rector on camp life, held the congregation enraptured for over half an hour. Looking well, sun-tanned and speaking with that simple clear enunciation which have made his addresses masterpieces of pure English, the Chaplain of the 58th was as usual, splendid.

Church Union Discussed by Presbyterian Pastors Throughout the City Yesterday

The local Presbyterian clergymen on Saturday dealt largely with church union. Arguments theological and material for and against were presented and the trend of sentiment which marked the utterances was for union. All the churches will have an opportunity to vote upon this matter, when the ballot should prove of unusual interest.

Rome, Sept. 20.—Active operations are likely soon to be under way along the frontiers of the Balkan states, the Tribuna declares it learns from competent sources. It says that an Austro-German movement has been planned for the latter part of October, the plan involving the expected diversion of 500,000 men from the Russian campaign to the Balkans, with the simultaneous securing of Bulgaria's adherence in the move to open a route from Budapest to Constantinople.

SCHOOL FAIR AT VICTORIA—FIRST HELD IN BRANTFORD WAS REMARKABLE SUCCESS

Clever Little Pupils Showed Talents of Every Description—Articles and Dishes Were a Delight and Reflect Credit to the Staff.

Victoria school on Saturday afternoon was the scene of a pleasing gathering of happy scholars, proud parents, and other admiring visitors. The occasion was that of a "School Fair," the first event of the kind ever taking place in this city.

In the Spring, Miss Mary Colter, the efficient and enterprising principal, wrote to Prof. McCready of the Guelph Agricultural College, asking for packages of flower and vegetable seeds, and he sent good at a nominal figure. These were distributed among the scholars, and were sedulously cultivated. Not only was a great amount of interest stirred up, but in addition the results have proved more than gratifying. A committee of ladies visited the gardens and awarded prizes, and it was decided to also place the products on exhibition, together with manual work by the boys, and sewing, knitting, fancy work, etc., by the girls. In this regard, yarn was given by the Patriotic League for the knitting of soldiers' socks during the holidays. A number of outsiders gave prizes.

The display took place in the kindergarten room, with an ice cream booth, and these together with the hall were very prettily decorated with flags and bunting. The tables of flowers, vegetables and cooking made a splendid appearance, and the other articles also looked well. It seemed impossible in many instances to realize that the products were those of youngsters of not more than eleven years of age, and that the limit was 14. There was a very large attendance, and the articles found ready purchasers, the proceeds to go to the A. League, another innovation in connection with this school, and of which Mrs. Marquis is the president. Miss Colter, the other teachers and the scholars, certainly deserve to be heartily congratulated.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS

IN THE MATTER of the Estate of Janet Lavery, late of the City of Brantford, in the County of Brant, Widow, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, pursuant to R.S.O. 1914, Chapter 121, Section 56, that all persons having claims against the Estate of said Janet Lavery, who died on or about the 30th day of March, A.D. 1915, are required to send by post, prepaid, or to deliver to the undersigned solicitor for the administrator, on or about the first day of October, their names, addresses and descriptions and a full statement of the particulars of their claim and the nature of the security, if any, held by them, duly certified, and that after the said day the administrator will proceed to distribute the assets of the deceased among the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims he shall then have notice of.

DATED at Brantford this 31st day of August, A.D. 1915.

W. A. HOLLINKAKE, Solr. for Administrator, Brantford.

Women's Institute

The Echo Place Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Devereaux, Sept. 19th, 1915.

This being the first meeting since June, as they have been discontinued during July and August, the ladies were present in goodly numbers and with fresh energy for the next year's work.

The President, Mrs. Burke, in the chair, opened the meeting by announcing the singing of the customary opening song "The Maple Leaf Forever." At Mrs. Burke's invitation Mrs. Tullock graciously acted as pianist for the day.

Mrs. Barnes then gave the minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. F. Marlett's selection "Sweet Clover" and her rendition of the same was very much enjoyed by the ladies present.

Mrs. Craddock gave a paper on the life of Francis Willard, telling about her parentage, early life, pursuits and high ideals. From her paper we learn that Francis Willard was a very precocious child, teaching school at an early age. Miss Willard was good as well as brilliant, taking a keen interest in young women and temperance. Her life to the last was lived for others.

Mrs. Craddock's paper showed much time had been spent in its preparation.

Mrs. R. Chipman then delighted those present by her recital of an old daisy woman's idea of Woman Suffrage. The selection being full of keen humor from start to finish and the subject a popular one with ladies, Mrs. Chipman was heartily applauded.

Mrs. Gardner's address "How to be happy though busy" was well worth hearing. From this address each lady present, from the eldest to the youngest, could glean truths helpful to them in their home life. Mrs. Gardner thinks the busy woman is the happy woman, because she has not time to think of small cares and worry about her own precious self. She also thinks that all young women should serve an apprenticeship at the bake-board, dish pan and general house work, ere thinking of marrying. Mrs. Gardner pointed out that a great deal of unhappiness in the home was caused by the wife's inefficiency to meet the daily duties and perform them properly. Another cause of discord was one pocket-book and that held by the man. Also a foolish desire to keep up a grand appearance and thus live beyond their means, caused lots of trouble. Mrs. Gardner's advice to women was to do less scrubbing, read more current literature and thus keep pace intellectually with your husband. A man out in the world meets new people hears new subjects discussed, and thus keeps up with the times. In times of discontent we were advised to go out and do a kindness for some one else and no matter what came to make the best of the situation.

The Institute will try to secure the use of an unoccupied room in the Echo Place School. Should this be granted, it will prove a great benefit to the Institute as there is a fine library in the school, and having a room at their disposal will make it possible to hold concerts and social evenings for the benefit of the young of the community, through the long winter months.

A hearty vote of thanks was given Mrs. Devereaux for her kind hospitality.

Mrs. Tullock, again acting as pianist, the ladies stood while singing the National Anthem. At the close, our President announced that Mrs. Sowden had kindly offered her home for the meeting on the 21st October.

May Bell marks who has been playing to crowded houses in Hamilton, comes here with her company at the Grand Opera House for the week from Monday, the 27th to Saturday, October 2nd. High-class repertoire and vaudeville will be presented and popular prices prevail.

The Situation.

The fall of Vilna, as in the case of so many other places, was anticipated. It is an important manufacturing city in the west of Russia.

The French official reports show the continuance of heavy artillery work and the successful repulsion of fierce German attacks.

Lloyd George, who has the commendable habit of saying what he means in vigorous terms, has come in for some criticism because of his outspokenness with regard to the tense nature of the situation from the British standpoint.

The Balkan crisis has had a long lease that way without anything definite, but it is now announced that the Allies have told Bulgaria in plain terms that she must explain her intentions.

Borden's Message.

The Ottawa Free Press (Liberal) contains the following editorial: "To judge from the realistic verbal pictures he has given the people of Ottawa of what he saw during his visit to England and France, Sir Robert Borden did not spend many idle moments during his absence.

Particularly noteworthy and pleasing is the Premier's optimism. He has not returned to Canada depressed with thoughts of "what might have been done" had Britain foreseen the strength of the enemy and a hundred other things that it was impossible to arouse.

American Opinion.

The opinions of sixty representative Americans on the war have been collected and published in book form. Among those quoted in the symposium are such well-known men as Joseph Choate, Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft, Richard Harding Davis, William Dean Howells, John Burroughs, and Henry James, who expressed his sympathy for the British cause by becoming a British subject.

It is pointed out in a review of the book by one of the New York papers that one of the outstanding facts is the overwhelming moral reprobation felt by the Americans against the German Government for planning and precipitating the war for purposes of international plunder.

A significant note is struck by John Burroughs, when he urges that the United States should be very forbearing with the course of Great Britain on the high seas. England, he points out, has everything at stake, and she is fighting for American liberty as well as her own.

Another characteristic of American sentiment as indicated by the book is the disgust produced on the American mind by the pro-German propaganda. This is summed up somewhat vigorously by Professor Barrett Wendell in the words: "Essentially forbidding brutes can't make friends by wagging their tails."

Notes and Comments

A great falling off is reported in British bankruptcies. A like announcement would prove very pleasing with regard to Herr Krupp.

It appears that the majority of the Premier of Prince Edward Island was not a small one, as first reported, but so large that his opponent lost his deposit.

The Anglican Bishops very properly endorsed the verse in the national anthem which some milk-and-water brethren in the lower house wanted eliminated.

Sir John French recently, addressing a Canadian brigade, said: "Your record will go down as one of the most splendid of British history," and French did not say things like that unless he means them.

The Italian official report announces that on a recent occasion the Austrians, "shamefully simulating surrender," trapped a small column of their men. The dodge was eminently characteristic of the shameless Huns and their Allies.

Hon. Mr. Hanna has so far improved as to be able to leave the hospital for his home. He wanted to return immediately to work, but his doctor has vetoed this for at least another month. No man throws himself more unsparringly into public duties than the Provincial Secretary, and residents of the Province, without regard to politics, will sincerely hope that the needed rest will result in his complete restoration to normal health.

cerning the fire was contained in one wireless despatch at the Cape Race station last night. Canadian government officials received the message that the Tuscania had taken off the passengers and crew from the burning vessel.

Efforts were made throughout the night to communicate with the Tuscania by way of the Cape Race station to obtain further information about disaster but without success up to an early hour to-day. According to her schedule, the Tuscania would have been due in New York to-day, but owing to delay apparently caused by the fire on board the Athina she was expected to arrive before tomorrow.

The Athina was of 4,405 tons and owned by the National Steamship Co. She plied between American and Grecian ports.

DUMBA SAILS TUESDAY by Special Wire to the Courier. NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—It was learned that Dr. Constantin T. Dumba, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador, whose recall was asked by President Wilson, has reserved passage on the steamer Rotterdam, which sails from this port on Tuesday, September 28.

Mrs. Harold Cole sued her mother, Mrs. Annie Bugel, at Yonkers, for putting snuff in her bed to drive away her son-in-law.

Turks Lost

LOST FULLY 5,000. It is computed, declares the correspondent, that the Turks lost five thousand men before they surrendered to the Indian brigade and the Connaught Rangers took part in the fighting with the Australians and New Zealanders.

The correspondent expresses the opinion that the Turks will not attack the Anzac positions again after the terrible losses they sustained in previous attacks. They did succeed, he adds, in sweeping two British battalions off the ridge that previously had been held by the New Zealanders but when they got across the crest into the ravine below they came under the fire of British machine guns.

They came down in the thousands, said the correspondent of the New Zealand brigade; "they went back in hundreds," the correspondent's story continues. Machine gunners, he says, claim that five thousand were killed.

POSITION IMPREGNABLE. Danger to this part of the line, the correspondent thinks, could only come through physical overstrain of the troops, as they have made the position virtually impregnable, and even supplies for the men are now taken down through sape which is dug out of the hills are covered with dugouts. The Turkish batteries make it exciting for landing parties, but once ashore there is the certainty of cover for the men, and since the August victories they have much more elbow room.

The French war office has issued this statement: "In the Dardanelles from September 12 to September 17 there was no movement of importance. The Turks attacked several positions of our front by means of mines, which had been employed by them up to this time. On the morning of the 17th an enemy mine gallery was destroyed, after it had been advanced for several days, by our counter-mining operation was perfectly successful without costing us a single loss."

A Constantinople telegram states that at a review of troops held in honor of Duke Johann Albrecht, Chief of the Turkish forces at the Dardanelles, Enver Pasha said the presence of the Duke was the forerunner to the arrival of a great German army.

In the past week about 250 passengers from Austria and Germany have been passing through Roumania daily on their way to Turkey. It is an open secret that these are the gaudiest officers and men destined for the Gallipoli campaign. As a result, passenger traffic is now limited to non-combatants whose identity is fully established.

Church Union

"We need the church union to give the young men we expect to enter the ministry an adequate and worthy task. We cannot expect our bright young men to enter the ministry if we have nothing better for them when they graduate than life in some small place where three or four churches are struggling for their share of a population which altogether would not make a decent-sized congregation."

"We need church union in order that the unchristian rivalry of sects, which too often results in small as well as large communities may be removed and a better spirit of Christian co-operation and harmony prevail. The denominations had been compared to regiments in the same army. But what general was ever known to leave his country open and unprotected in one place while he sent three or four regiments to another place where only one was required?"

"The basis of union was then dealt with. With regard to the doctrinal basis the articles on God, the Divine purpose, the Lord Jesus Christ and on justification were read and it was pointed out that in these as well as in the whole basis we have preserved the best of our Presbyterian doctrine, while objectionable statements in our confession have been left behind. Dr. Gardner said: 'I receive the basis of doctrine with enthusiasm as the most hopeful sign of our time, and have been God in profound gratitude.' Dr. McMullen told our Presbytery 'I really have little fault to find with the doctrinal basis.'"

"In connection with policy it was pointed out that instead of a managing board and session in each congregation there would be now a committee of stewards, a session and an official board. The advantages of this change were pointed out. It was also shown that each church in the management of its local affairs shall be entitled to continue the organization and practices enjoyed by it at the time of the union, subject in general affairs to the legislation of the United church."

"The most difficult part of the basis for many to accept was that which governs the settling of ministers. The following advantages of the new basis were voted: (a) The pastoral relation shall be without limit. As long as minister and people are satisfied they need not separate; (b) Every charge shall have a pastor and without interruption, and every efficient minister a pastoral charge; (c) At the end of any year the minister or people, if dissatisfied, may make application to a settlement committee for a charge; (d) The congregation shall have the right to call."

In closing, Mr. McClintock said: "What is the aim of the church in Canada? It is the establishing of the Kingdom of God. To this end the Presbyterian church is no one of the churches exists by Divine right. God has used them all, and we believe the hour has come when old systems must perish as we move forward to more efficiently establish the kingdom by a better means

SEVERE RHEUMATIC PAINS DISAPPEAR

Rheumatism depends on an acid which flows in the blood, affecting the muscles and joints, producing inflammation, stiffness and pain. This acid gets into the blood through some defect in the digestive processes, and remains there because the liver, kidneys and skin are too torpid to carry it off.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the old-time blood tonic, is very successful in the treatment of rheumatism. It acts directly, with purifying effect, on the blood, and through the blood on the liver, kidneys and skin, which it stimulates, and at the same time it improves the digestion.

—The United Church of Canada. No one loved the free Church of Scotland more than Dr. Chalmers, yet on one memorable occasion when the great end of the free church's existence, it is understood, will be invited to a general announcement to be made to a general audience, 'Who cares for the free church?' And to-night, although my ancestors for generations have been Presbyterians, although I love the Presbyterian church as much as any man opposed to union, yet reverently I say, 'Who cares for Presbyterianism, which after all, is only a means to an end, if by other means we can the more speedily reach our goal and place the crown of Canada upon His throne-scared brow.'"

Optimism

Lake Boginskoe, between Koupiichki and Koziany was thrown back. A detachment of the enemy attempted to occupy Molodetchno station, but was repulsed. In a fight near the village of Sely on the Novo Vilisk-Molodetchno railway, the enemy was dislodged from the village. In many places on the middle Vilijia river in the region of Vilina Germans crossed to the left bank.

Numerous enemy attacks on the front west of Trencen, on the Biyan-keni-Lida railway were repulsed with severe enemy losses. On the right bank of the Lameda there were some engagements of a local character. Fighting occurred in many places in the vicinity of possession of the river crossings.

"Near Poretchie, north of Slonim, our artillery destroyed the enemy's pontoon bridge, the greater part of the Dardanelles, and the crossing were taken prisoners. Enemy troops who crossed south of Slonim and near the Richtitcha farm have been attacked. "We profited by the necessity of the enemy to launch attacks by small detachments. "The enemy maintains the territory he occupied on the right bank of the river, but sustained appreciable losses in the places in which a great number of Germans were bayoneted. "The village of Logichine in the same region has been occupied by the enemy."

A fortified position of the enemy near Novosselzy, northeast of Oiti, was attacked on the front and the enemy dislodged. Our troops in pursuit extinguished a fire on a bridge which too often the enemy had turned the enemy in their retreat and forced them to flee into the forest. We occupied the village of Kolkli. "On the west front between the River Shula and the line from Dumlino to Kromonoz our troops attacked the enemy in many places and recaptured parties of prisoners; for we strove to take advantage of disorders which have become frequent in the enemy's ranks. "On the Sereth front engagements, local in character continued in the immediate vicinity of the river. Near the village of Dakovitch on the Stru river, the region of Pinski one of our detachments was seen holding back a German battalion with machine gun fire. It annihilated about two companies of the enemy. "In the region of Kolkli our cavalry charged the enemy's entrenchments and captured several machine guns and about a hundred prisoners, receiving only insignificant losses in the village of Kolkli. A squadron of our men chased an Austrian squadron into the marshes, took fifty prisoners, captured a number of field kit-chen and saved from the marshes some 50 horses. The rest of the horses perished. "According to the testimony of Austrian prisoners there were cases during the recent operations wherein detachments of the enemy remained in one spot for several days unable to extricate their artillery from the marshes. "On the Stokhold are reported cases of Austrians disguising themselves as peasants in order to cross the river for the purpose of installing machine guns."

with which the war has been carried on, will come second to the loan to be floated here when the time comes to pay the principal.

The whole big issue of bonds will be payable in American dollars, principal and interest. For generations past Great Britain's bonds have been payable in sterling. The bonds will run five or ten years, it is not known yet.

DEFERRED TO YANKS. In agreeing to have the issue handled by an underwriting syndicate, the Anglo-French financial commission, whose business here is to establish the loan, apparently has deferred to the view of American financiers, the original intention of the commission has been reported to provide for general subscription to the bonds with-out the underwriter as a middle-man.

As soon as the definite terms of the proposed loan shall have been agreed upon in their entirety, banks and trust companies throughout the country, it is understood, will be invited by a general announcement to become parties to the syndicate of underwriters. It is regarded as certain that the membership of the syndicate will consist of hundreds of such institutions.

SMALL PROFIT. These bonds will be given a small profit on the transaction, somewhere in the neighborhood of one half of one per cent. Upon this point, there has been marked divergence of views, the commission's previous reported attitude having been that bankers and investors should pay the same price for the bonds. A great many American bankers, it is said, demurred to this on the ground that they would be put to considerable expense in handling the bonds, and that reasonable return for their trouble was no more than equitable.

MUNITIONS QUESTION. The next big question to be settled, it was said, whether munitions of war should be paid for out of the proceeds of the loan. The commission is said to believe that the loan should cover munitions; a great many American bankers think it should not. The merits often-discussed matter of whether it is right or wrong to ship munitions abroad do not, it is said, enter into this question. What does enter vitally into the consideration of the matter, it is reported, is the attitude of certain banks which would oppose the loan should it cover munitions shipments, but whose opposition would be converted to support in case the big fund provides payment only for commodities other than munitions. Upon this and other minor details the commission and American financiers continued their conferences to-day.

lack of munitions, thanks to the enormous reserves carried by the Russian army. London, Sept. 20.—The Times to-day publishes the following despatch from a correspondent with the Russian forces sent on Saturday from Dvinsk: "I spent three days on the front where a terrific battle is raging almost unceasingly. When attacks die away at one place they begin instantly at another. The nearest front is only 12 miles from Dvinsk, whose deserted streets resound with the detonations of heavy gun fire. "The Russians are holding the Dvinsk front in an excellent line of trenches, three deep, and despite constant fierce attacks supported by concentrations of heavy artillery, they have held the enemy off thus far. "Many times the first line has been taken by the enemy, they re-taken by our counter-attacks. The Germans

PRIVATE FRANK M'QUINN WRITES LETTER HOME

Been Through a Bayonet Charge and Some Close Fighting.

Mr. and Mrs. James McQuinn have received the following very interesting letter from their son Pte. Frank McQuinn now at the front:

Dear Mother, I received your welcome letter and was glad to hear from you. I received the little piece of poetry and letter from Father, and am glad he is feeling well again.

Well, mother, the winter will soon be here and I hope the war will be over before long. It is bad enough now over here, but it will be worse when winter sets in.

Last week I was carrying a bucket of water in the open and a coal box lit five feet in front of me and killed three men, but never a scratch did I get.

Your affectionate son, Frank.

Fire in Rear of Dominion Store

At 12:25 a.m. on Sunday the Central Fire Department received a call from box 18, and when the trucks arrived at the place it was found that the rear of the Dominion Furniture Company factory was on fire.

The rear door was broken in, and the smoke was so dense and poured out of the building in such volumes that the task of the firemen was by no means a light one.

The firemen are to be congratulated on their efficient work, for a serious fire might easily have resulted but for their promptness.

TAKE ENTIRE SERIES FROM CHAMPIONS

Scampering Leafs End Season by Winning 17 in 19.

Toronto, Sept. 20.—The International League ended its session Saturday with the pennant going to Buffalo, after one of the closest finishes in years. The championship was not definitely decided until Saturday, when Buffalo won by taking one game of a double header, while the Providence team, last year's champions, lost two games to Toronto. The two teams at the finish were separated but little over a game.

Providence assumed the lead early in the season, and held it until the middle of last week, when Buffalo forged ahead. The Buffalo team was managed this year by Pat Donovan, former scout for the Boston Americans. Just before the season opened, the Baltimore team was moved to Richmond, Va., and during the summer the owners of the Newark franchise transferred it to Harrisburg, Pa. Buffalo's jubilant management and fans have good reason to know that Toronto is on the baseball map. The Leafs virtually took the pennant away from Buffalo by beating the Bisons three games in four here on Labor Day and the day following. The Buffalonians gave up after that setback. On Friday and Saturday, while the Bisons were beating the Jersey City team three games in four, the Clymers were taking four straight from the Providence champions, thereby presenting Donovan's team with the bunting again. The Leafs were only teasing.

A 6 to 5 victory over the Grays in the first game Saturday was followed by a 4 to 3 win in the second battle. Had the Bisons lost two and the Leafs dropped the pair to the Grays the latter would have retained their championship by one point.

The best crowd of the season saw the Saturday games. Eight thousand fans were on hand. The double victory made a record for the Clymers of winning seventeen of the last nineteen games played.

Right at this moment the Leafs are the best ball team in the International League, but they delayed their start too long to make them pennant contenders. Most of the players left for their homes on Saturday night, others reported to the teams to which they belonged, having been here on option, while still others remain in the city for a few days. Saturday's scores: First game, by innings: Providence 100013000—5 Toronto 000210300—6 Second game: Providence 3000000—4 Toronto 2001001—3

LLOYD GEORGE MAKES APPEAL FOR PATIENCE

Conscription is a Vital Issue Which Must be Fully Regarded.

London, Sept. 20.—David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, in a letter to one of his constituents, issued by the Official Press Bureau last evening, makes an appeal to the public to give the Government a fair chance to decide the question of compulsory service, and reiterates his view that the situation is a serious one, which demands that the country, if victory is to fall to the allies, must exert its whole strength. Mr. Lloyd George says: "You say, and say rightly, that the Government ought to give the nation a lead on the question whether the moral obligation of every able-bodied man to defend his country should be converted during this war into a legal obligation. The Government, I can assure you, are fully alive to the necessity for giving a definite lead. They are engaged in examining the subject with a view to coming to the right decision. Undue delay might be disastrous, but undue precipitation might be equally disastrous. Let us avoid both. The issue is one of fact, not of principle. If the figures demonstrate that we can win through, and with the voluntary system, it would be folly to provoke a controversy in the middle of a world war by attempts to substitute a totally different method. On the other hand, if these figures demonstrate to every unprejudiced person that the voluntary system has exhausted its utility and nothing but legal pressure can give us the armies necessary to defend the honor of Great Britain and save Europe from the triumph of military despotism, I have not heard of the man who would resist compulsion. NOT AMONG THE WORKERS. "Under these circumstances the men who say they would offer resistance to this expedient, even if proven to be necessary to save their country and the freedom of the world, have not yet appeared in the ranks, and if they do I predict that their protestors will not be found among the working classes. "It is all a question of ascertainable facts. Why, then, all this premature and premature agitation? Facts have not yet been published. When they have been sifted and made known the advocates of one view or the other will surely find that the whole cylinder of fervent fanaticism have been wasted in attacking positions which they will then discover they ought to defend. Let the Government have a fair chance to decide. "The opinions were formed as to the essential facts of the position, by the sincere persuasion that nothing but the exertion of our whole strength will enable us to obtain victory, upon which so much depends. I am bound to do my best to secure that effort without the least regard to the effect my appeals may have upon my own political fortunes. "The issue is the gravest any country has ever been called upon to decide. Let it be settled in a spirit worthy of its gravity. "I withdraw nothing I have said as to the seriousness of the position. Naturally I take a hopeful view of the prospects of the cause I am concerned in, but I know too well that to ignore dangers which you can see with the naked eye, if you look around, is the most fatal error of disaster in all our affairs. I for months have called attention to the dangers of the present war. Even this alone will prove whether I have been unduly alarmed. So far, I regret to say, they have justified my apprehensions. THE FACTS BAD ENOUGH. "I should indeed be a traitor if I did not hope fervently that the course of the war would prove that I have over-estimated the worst evils, but I have not written without warrant in this regard to the enemy as well as to us—facts which I should have thought would have already sobered the most fatuous optimist. "I have, therefore, felt driven by the prospects of my native land to sound a note of alarm. I have done so in the confident belief that if it succeeds in rousing us in time to put forth our best efforts, we shall win. If, for any reason, I fail, it will be a sorry comfort to be able later on to taunt our mistakes those who now abuse me for daring to call attention to the coming storm before it overwhelms the land and because I strive to induce my fellow countrymen to prepare in time for its onslaught."

Sportsmen to Aid Raising Funds for the Boy Knights

The Sportsmen of Brantford are behind a big move to raise money for the aid of the Boy Knights. All the plans have not yet been completed, but arrangements have been made to hold a monster sport day on Saturday October 2nd, when all the public schools in the city will compete in games, running, jumping and every branch of athletic endeavor. Next Saturday a football game is to be arranged between two school teams as a sort of opener, and on October 9th, the Saturday following the big field day, football and baseball games will be held as well as running off the finals of the different athletic events. The sportsmen about the city are enthusiastic about the whole affair, and the youngsters in the various schools are also keen to do their part. Prizes will be offered, as several citizens have signified their willingness to donate trophies for the various competitions.

DORFLINGER IS NOW UNDER DEATH PENALTY AS ESPIONAGE AGENT

Geneva, Switzerland, via Paris, Sept. 20.—The professional bicyclist, Dorflinger, a resident of Basel, has been condemned to death as a spy by a German court martial. The Swiss Government has intervened in his behalf with a request for clemency. An account of Dorflinger's espionage activities is given by the Journal de Geneve. It appears that after the war broke out he travelled in Alsace and Baden as a representative of a business house. He received anonymous letters asking him to meet a stranger at Montreux, Switzerland. It is said this man engaged him to supply military information. Through his acquaintance with a German, now an aviator, who had conducted a factory at Freiburg, at which military aeroplanes were manufactured, Dorflinger was able to take a trip in a war plane. All he learned he is alleged to have communicated to a foreign agent being heavily paid for this information he gave. C. A. Dorflinger, the bicyclist is widely known in America as a professional cyclist, and he has taken part in one of the six day races in Madison Square Garden.

Poor Outlook for Baltimore Federals

Baltimore, Sept. 20.—There is more and more reason to believe that the Federal League franchise of the Baltimore club is to be taken elsewhere before the opening of the 1916 season. Manager Knabe will announce further releases in the course of three days. The stockholders of the club have been called upon for a big sum to meet current expenses and to wipe out the indebtedness of the organization before the close. One of them has refused to pay his share and is being sued by the creditors.

Over Eighty Thousand See Sox-Tiger Series

Boston, Sept. 20.—Before the biggest crowd that ever saw an American League game in Boston, the Red Sox whipped the Tigers yesterday in twelve innings of fine hard baseball. The winning tally came when with one out and three on, Manager Carrigan inserted himself as a pinch-hitter. He shot one at Bush which "Donkey" threw to second for a force out, Cady in sliding into the bag upset Young, and Carrigan reached first in safety, while Lewis counted. The paid attendance at the game was 37,532 and there were easily

CANADA AT WAR

There Is No Ground For Any Criticism of Finance Minister's Action.

W

HEN Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, floated his $45,000,000 loan recently in New York a section of the Canadian press criticized it very strongly, claiming that the interest rate was too high, the issuing price too low, and the whole loan in other respects a mistake. Against these critics Hon. Mr. White ably defended himself. Trustworthy Opinions. The editor of The Kingston Standard and about this time took the trouble to write to some of the leading financiers and financial institutions in the United States requesting an opinion on Mr. White's loan, and the replies received in every case were extremely flattering to Mr. White, all admitting that the loan was a very successful one. Mr. Geo. F. Baker, Vice-President of the First National Bank, New York, writes: "Dear Sir,—In reply to your letter of the 14th we would call your attention to the fact that we were one of the issuing houses for the $45,000,000 Dominion of Canada loan recently placed in the United States. This fact alone would seem to answer your questions as to whether in our judgment there could be any proper criticism. "Very truly yours, "GEO. F. BAKER, "Vice-Pres. First National Bank."

CANADA'S CREDIT GOOD.

Mr. A. Barton Hepburn, ex-Controller of the United States, and for years President and now Chairman of the Chase National Bank, with its high deposits of millions, wrote as follows: "Dear Sir,—The credit of the Canadian Government is deservedly so good and it has been able to borrow money so cheaply in the past that I am surprised that the recent loan negotiated should be criticized by the rate of interest. Such criticisms are unwise and unjust, and indicate an improper knowledge of the financial situation both at home and abroad. To begin with the credit of the Dominion Government is being utilized to a much greater extent now-days than has been the case heretofore. In connection with your railroad development, the Dominion has become the guarantor of a very large amount of railway bonds, and its guaranteed obligations are selling at a much higher rate of interest than was paid upon the loan recently negotiated here. England could not duplicate that loan in New York to-day; were she to borrow, she would have to pay a higher rate of interest. Neither could any other European Government. Our investing public are not used to the obligations of foreign Governments, and they would be hard to place with the investing public. We are accustomed to the obligations of the Dominion and its various Provinces, and such are easily placed with our people who are seeking income-producing investments. As a matter of fact, Canada placed her loan at the best obtainable rate, and no other Government in the world could have done better, nor as well. "Very truly yours, "A. BARTON HEPBURN, "Chairman."

One Practical Result of Sir Robert's Visit to Britain. While in England Sir Robert Borden and Sir Sam Hughes discussed with the Imperial Government the manufacture of heavy artillery in Canada. Since their return they have consulted with leading Canadian manufacturers, financiers, and transportation men the possibility of establishing such an industry. At the conference in Ottawa one hundred of the leaders in Canadian industrial and financial work were present. The British War Office is prepared to order between 2,000 and 3,000 heavy guns of different calibres in the Dominion, delivery to be made within two years. The question is whether Canadian manufacturers could handle the order as they have handled the orders placed here for shells. The War Office requirements were laid before the meeting by General Mahan, the expert who came over with Mr. E. A. Thomas. His proposal was that the different parts of the guns be manufactured in the Dominion, and the assembling done at some central point. The whole question was finally referred to the following committee for a report to the Government: Sir John Gibson, Chairman; Members of the Shell Committee, Messrs. Frederic Nicholls (Toronto), W. D. Webb (Grand Trunk Railway), Hector McInnes (Halfax), F. L. Wanklyn (C. P. R.), Sir Lyman Jones, Sir William Mackenzie, Senator Edwards, Mr. R. W. The most convincing testimony that the terms were the very best that could be got is furnished by the course of prices. HESTER, AND A LEGACY

"My dear Isabel, there is nothing to frighten you," he said reassur- ingly. "Oh, but there is! You haven't heard, then? You can't know!" she persisted, looking up into his face with her blue eyes full of horror.

"They say that it is murder!" She shrank back as she uttered the word and covered her face with her hands.

"Who says so?" he demanded almost fiercely.

"The servants—some one—I don't know who, but I heard it!" she murmured between her sobs. "Oh, Dudley, how dreadful. It can't be true, can it?"

He left her abruptly and strode over to the three men who were standing by the table.

"What was the cause of my mother's death?" he asked, narrowly observing their faces with his penetrating dark eyes.

The lawyer turned aside as though relieved that this was none of his business, and Doctor Turner left it to the London physician to speak their joint opinion.

"We were waiting for you, before making the necessary arrangements. I am afraid there must be an inquest and probably a post-mortem examination. There is no apparent cause for Lady Lynnmouth's death that we can ascertain."

Lord Lynnmouth's face was so ashy in his pallor that it looked almost ghastly. "I had no idea—I did not know!" he ejaculated brokenly. "It is horrible—horrible."

He turned away and walked to the other end of the room; the doctors meanwhile remained silent in respect for the agitation of the bereaved son.

When he returned his manner was more composed. "Surely you have arrived at a hasty conclusion? My mother suffered with heart; she often had attacks. Surely that may account—"

"Her ladyship's heart was weak, but I believe there was no real disease," replied Dr. Turner. "How- ever, of course, that could be ascer- tained."

"Of course," he replied hurriedly. "Yes, I suppose it must be, but it is most painful—most painful!"

Dr. Morgan begged a few minutes' private conversation with Lord Lynnmouth before his return to town, and they withdrew into an ante-room to- gether; the lawyer also left the din- ing room.

Half an hour afterwards the physi- cian left for the nig't mail, and Lord Lynnmouth returned to the dining room. Mrs. Vavasour was still cry- ing hysterically, and Doctor Turner, who had said "Good-bye" some time ago, but did not like to leave her in her present condition, was administering wine.

"I really must go, my lord," he said as Lord Lynnmouth entered. "If you will see to Mrs. Vavasour. She had better go to bed. Where is her maid? Where is Miss Phillips, I won- der?"

At that instant Hester appeared at the open window, where she stood for a moment looking into the room.

All three turned and looked at her. She was very pale and her dark hair was somewhat loosened by the soft wind. Behind her lay the moonlit sky and drifting clouds. Lord Lynnmouth rose and stood in silence as she en- tered. They merely bowed to each other stiffly.

"Ah, there you are, Miss Phillips! We were just enquiring for you," said Doctor Turner. "Would you be kind enough to take Mrs. Vavasour under your charge? I'm afraid she is very much upset."

Hester went over to her immedi- ately, and took her hand. "Come with me," she said, and she led the sobbing Mrs. Vavasour un- resistingly from the room.

"I like that girl," said the Doctor when they were all gone. "I have seen a great deal of her in one way and another since she first came here, and I have learned to admire her. She is so conscientious and trustworthy. There is a good deal of character be- neath that quiet exterior, and—"

"It does not interest me to discuss Miss Phillips' character," said Lord Lynnmouth with sudden haughtiness. "There are many subjects of more importance at the present time, I should have thought!"

"Dr. Turner was slightly dismayed at the effect of his apparently harm- less remark, which he had forced himself to utter because he was im- pressed by the unbecoming sen- sations regarding her in the morning, but he hastened to drop the subject of the companion as it appeared to be such a distasteful one, and they sat down together at the table."

When he left, Lord Lynnmouth sat at the table buried in thought, with his head on his hands. And there Hester found him when she came down to get a glass of wine for Mrs. Vavasour.

He rose of course when she entered the room, but neither spoke to the other. She went over to the table and poured out the wine with an un- steady hand. As she did so she raised her eyes to his and found that he was regarding her intently. There was something so wild, so haggard, so ut- terly miserable in his handsome face that her heart was filled with a sud- den flood of womanly pity.

"You have had nothing to eat," she said, looking at the remains of the meal which had been on the table all the evening. "Let me ring and get you something."

"No," he said in a low voice, "I cannot eat to-night."

She turned to leave the room, but he came forward. "It is you who ought to have the wine," he said; "you are as white as a sheet." He poured out another glass of port. "Drink this!" he said firmly.

If her hand had been unsteady, his shook so that he spilled the wine on the table and was forced to put down the decanter. He flung it rather than put it down, and thrusting his hands deep into his trouser pockets, strode over to the window and out on to the terrace, where he disappeared in the darkness.

Hester took up the glass for the third time and left the room, but it was half an hour or so before Mrs. Vavasour received it, and then, had that lady been a close observer, she might have noticed that the girl who was trying to soothe and cheer her bore signs in her face of a deeper agi- tation and distress than any from which she herself was suffering.

In spite of persuasion, Hester in- sisted upon sleeping in her own room as usual, though it opened into the dead woman's chamber. Whether she slept there as calmly as she would have done in another room it is im- possible to say. It is only certain that for me the hours after mid- night she stood in the window of her room, fully dressed, with her hands clasped before her, and her eyes on the dark figure that, cigarette in mouth, was restlessly pacing the ter- race below.

And when at last she went to bed it was not to sleep, but to lie awake through all the long hours of the night and rise in the morning wan, weary and overstrung—a bad beginning for a day that was certain to be a trying one.

CHAPTER XXVIII.
The next day broke cold and wet. A sleet came driving over the hills into the valley and enveloped the Chase in mist.

In the morning room a wood fire was lighted at Hester Philip's sug- gestion, not so much to give warmth as to cheer the chilled hearts of those over whom the depression of Lady Lynnmouth's death was hanging.

Lord Lynnmouth came in to snatch a hurried breakfast at which Hester presided. Mr. Broadbent dropped in to lunch, and Mrs. Vavasour took up her abode there for the day, huddling over the fire and drawing largely on Hester's stock of patience with her tearful complaints.

In the afternoon Mr. Broadbent took possession of the darkened lib- rary, and by the light of the two tall silver candlesticks sat looking through the bundles of papers and legal docu- ments before him, interrupted now and then by Lord Lynnmouth, who wandered restlessly in and out, some- times aimlessly turning over the letters on his father's cabinet, and at others simply staring in moody silence from the window, the blind of which he pulled aside.

As he stood there staring out on the wet terrace, and as Mr. Broad- bent's stock of papers over and over again arranged in legal order the papers before him, the door softly opened and Hester appeared on the thresh- old. She hesitated on seeing Lord Lynnmouth in the window and seem- ed about to turn away, but on second thoughts entered with an air of de- cision and went up to the lawyer, who rose at her approach.

"Come with me for a mo- ment?" she asked.

"Certainly," he replied bowing for- mally.

"Alone, I mean," she said, with a slight glance in the direction of the window.

Mr. Broadbent coughed and hesi- tated what to do. He was morally and physically unable to turn a nobleman into the street of his own room of a paid dependent, and yet he scarcely liked to refuse the request of this girl, who was most evidently a lady, in spite of her anomalous position at the Chase. But Lord Lynnmouth saved him the trouble of deciding this deli- cate matter. He had apparently heard the request, and now turned from the window saying stiffly—

"I should be sorry to intrude in any way on Miss Phillips' private inter- views"—and he strode for the door.

But Hester stopped him. "I would rather speak to Mr. Broad- bent another time," she said hurriedly. "I merely wish to know when he will be at liberty."

"At any rate, I will be no restraint on the arrangement you may choose to make," he answered, and he left the room without waiting for her to speak again.

She did not attempt to detain him; she merely followed him with her eyes till he had disappeared and then turned back to the lawyer.

"I wanted to know," she began, as soon as they were alone, "if the time is fixed for the formal reading of Lady Lynnmouth's will?"

"On the day of the funeral, an hour or two after the ceremony," replied the lawyer.

"And the funeral is to be on Fri- day?"

"That, I believe, is the day decided upon."

She came a step nearer and, lean- ing one hand on the desk and look- ing down, said in a low voice—

"Lady Lynnmouth made a new will a few days before her death. I sup- pose you know what it contains?"

"Why should you suppose that her ladyship made a new will just before her death?" inquired Mr. Broadbent, with legal caution.

Hester raised her eyes to his. "Because she told me so."

"Humph!" ejaculated the lawyer. Then, after a moment's silence—"And, supposing my dear young lady, she did as you say, what then?"

"I believe that I play a very im- portant part in it," she continued, "and I want to know if I can give up my claim altogether and let the former will stand."

With a nervous movement she took up a paper-knife and threw it down again without knowing what she was doing.

"Can I?" she went on, looking up again, as he did not speak. "Please say I can!"

entreaty, but immediately reassumed his legal gravity.

"It is not customary," he said, "to discuss a will before it has been offici- ally read, a proceeding that is to take place on Friday, as you know. On that occasion I shall be pleased to give all information you may require. At present I must ask you to wait."

"But that is just what I wished to avoid. I wanted, if possible, to have the former will read instead of the one that was made on Monday night."

"That is impossible. The late Lady Lynnmouth's will, as it stands, must be proclaimed in a public manner. After that other steps may be taken by the heir or heirs, but till the will has been read nothing can be done."

Hester's self-control gave way, and she seemed on the point of breaking into hysterical sobbing.

"I cannot and will not be brought into that wicked will!" she exclaimed. "Mr. Broadbent, you must burn it. What is it?—hurriedly turning over the papers on the table. "I will burn it myself if I can find it. Is it here? Is it—?"

The lawyer suddenly laid his hand on hers and made it rest. Her agi- tation touched him, and, although his manner was still somewhat formal, there was a kindness in it that had not been there before.

"Do not be said. "We do not burn wills, my dear young lady! That is a crime for which there is a heavy penalty. It is a pity that her ladyship has been forced on such an unwilling heiress, but that you are her heiress and must remain so is a fact you cannot escape from."

Hester let her hand remain in his. He was an elderly man, and the touch of a fellow-creature was comforting to her in this hour of extreme wretch- edness—for wretched she undoubtedly was at what some people would have considered the stroke of good fortune that had fallen at her feet. She sank down on a chair at the side of the desk, and the tears began to flow down her cheeks.

"I am most unhappy!" she said brokenly. "Do have in mind here as Lady Lynnmouth's companion and then—"

"I am mistress of the whole place, just because she was angry with me. It is a horrible thing to happen to any one."

Again the lawyer smiled. An un- willing heiress was a new experience in his professional career, and Hester's dislike to her suddenly-acquired worldly possessions rather amused him. He spoke and precise as he was. But he saw that she was perfectly genuine in her distress, and he liked her the better for it.

"What will every one think of me? What will he think of me?" she con- tinued. "There is nothing in the whole world I should have disliked so much so chosen to avoid, as this be- ing thrust against my will into the position and possessions that are rightfully Lord Lynnmouth's!"

"Well, well," said Mr. Broadbent kindly, "don't make yourself ill by crying. There is nothing to be gained by that. As I dare say there will be some way out of it, if we try hard enough to find one—or you may get used to the idea and find it more sup- portable than you imagined."

He smiled again, and patted her hand in a fatherly manner.

"That I will never do!" she ex- claimed indignantly. "I would rather die than touch one penny of the money that is rightfully mine."

"Shew!" said Mr. Broadbent rising, and showing by his manner that he considered there was no good in fur- ther discussing the matter, "we must wait until after the reading of the will. Then neither you nor I are sup- posed—legally speaking—to know anything about the matter."

Hester rose too, and wiping her eyes, hastily left the room. Mr. Broad- bent went over to the fire and warm- ed his hands as a matter of habit.

WORLD PRESS ON THE WAR

WILL WIN THE LAST BATTLE, Birmingham Post. But even though Russia's armies were crushed, even though Russia were forced to make peace we still should have no doubt of the result of this war.

DON'T BE DOWNCAST Lloyd's Weekly—There is no reason to be downcast over the Russian reverses. The issue of this war will not be decided in the East, but in the West and it is about the matter of coast line in the present inaction of the Allied Armies there is anything but part of a well-considered plan of campaign.

TAXES ON AMUSEMENTS Birmingham Post: The Chancellor of the Exchequer is scarcely likely to have missed the interesting hint to himself contained in the announcement from Montreal that a tax of one cent is now charged on every ticket for a theatre, moving picture show, amusement or concert hall, circus, playground, race course, or skating rink.

Mr. Adams said the most northern part of the new land, as far as Stefansson saw it, appears to be farther north than any other land in the north Parry archipelago, to the north of the American continent.

Mr. Adams said that the most southern part of the land which the explorer visited is considerably to the east of the most easterly extension of the Prince Patrick Island. The lands nearest to it, Mr. Adams said, are the Polynia Islands, a little group north of Prince Patrick Island about 75 or 80 miles from the new land.

Mr. Adams pointed out that another notable achievement was Stefansson's completion of the charting of the northeast coast of Prince Patrick Island. There was a stretch of some fifty miles of this coast line which had not been covered in previous surveys, but the gap has now been filled.

The expedition was undertaken by Stefansson to test the theories which had been set forth by Dr. Nansen and others, that the unexplored portion of the Arctic Ocean is a deep basin virtually devoid of land. Other explorers had asserted that land of considerable area lay undiscovered there.
