The Old Oaken Bucket. How dear to this I eart are the scenes of my childhood, When fond recollection presents them to view; The orehard, the meadow, the deep tangled wild-wood, And every loved spot which my infancy knew. The wide spreading stream, the mill that stood near it, The bridge and the rook where the cateract fell; The cot of my father, the dairy house by it And e'en the rude bucket that hung in the well.

The moss cover'd bucket I hail as a treasure,
For often at noon when return'd from the field,
I found it the source of an exquisite pleasure,
The purest and sweetest that nature can yield.
How ardent I seized it with hands that were glowing,
And quick to the white pebbled bottom it fell;
Then soon with the emblem of health overflowing,
And dripping with coolness it rose in the well.

How soon from the green mossy rim to reseive it,

As poised on the curb it reclined to my lips;

Not a full flowing gobiet could tempt me to leave it,

Tho fill'd with the nectar that Jupiter sips.

And now far remov'd from the lov'd situation, The tear of regret will intrusively swell; As fancy reverts to my father's plantation, And sighs for the bucket that hung in the well.

The Old Oaken Bucket.

How dear to this leart are the scenes of my childhood. When fond recollection presents them to view; The orchard, the meadow, the deep tangled wild-wood, And every loved spot which my infancy knew. The wide spreading stream, the mill that stood near it, The bridge and the rook where the cateract fell; The cot of my father, the dairy house by it And e'en the rude bucket that hung in the well.

The old caken bucket, the iron bound bucket,

The moss cover'd bucket I hail as a treasure, For often at noon when return'd from the field, I found it the source of an exquisite pleasure, The purest and sweetest that nature can yield.
How ardent I seized it with hands that were glowing,
And quick to the white pebbled bottom, it fell;
Then soon with the emblem of health overflowing,
And dripping with coolness it rose in the well.

How soon from the green mossy rim to receive it.

As poised on the curb it reclin'ed to my lips;

Not a full flowing gobiet could tempt me to leave it,

Tho' fill'd with the nectar that Jupiter sips.

And now far removid from the lov'd situation, The tear of regret will intrusively swell; As fancy reverts to my father's plantation, And sighs for the bucket that hung in the well.

MR. SOFILY TO PILL THE FULFIT.

Mesers. Heyward and Dunlop, church wardens of Christ Chruch, with Mr. M. Wilson, Q. C., went to London yesterday to confer with the Bishop of Huron as to the question of filling the pulpit vacated by Rev. N. H. Martin. Previous to this a conference with the Ven. Archdeacon Sandys, rector, was had, and proposals laid before him as to the probable wishes of the congregation. At London the deputation was cordially received by His Lordehip, who concurred in the opinion that for the present no definite appointment be made, but that the curacy be temporary ligited as the bishop so pleased. His Lordehip with the construction of the great cloud which shrouded the parish, but spoke hopefully and encourage, ingly of the future under all-wise Providential dispensation. In accordance with the arrangements effected with the bishop, Rev. Mr. Softly will take temporary charge of the parish but appears to the permanent filling of the curacy is that no clergyman who may be sent to supply will be an applicant for the vacancy. A meeting of the congregation will he held on Friday, 20th, at 7.30 pf. m., to appoint a committee to confer with the bishop as to a permanent minister.

Sandringham to be sold.

The Prince and Princess of Wales have determined to sell Sandringham at the first opportunity. The fact is that Sandringham is not healthy. This has long been the opinion of the people of the district, and it is the conclusion to which the Prince of Wales and several members of the household have come. The situation of the house is comparatively low and the surrounding country is flat. The purchase of this property for the Prince of Wales at the time of his marriage was one of the most injudicious acts which Lord Palmerston ever committed. It is no secret that the estate was bought not so much in the interests of the Prince as to help Lord Palmerston's natural son to get rid of a burdensome property. A smillion dollars was the price paid for the place, and the Prince has, during the last 30 years spent at least a couple of million more on it. If he therefore parts with it, it will necessarily be at a considerable sacrifice.

piano and to turn over the books lying upon it; then there was such complete silence that Gigi felt sure he must be reading and veutured to peer out from his hiding-place. He saw that the visitor was leaning in an easy attitude over the piano, his head proped up by his hand, and his eyes bent upon the score of some opera. Gigi could only see his side face, but that fascinated hims, and somehow he did not feel any longer afraid. He was impatient to attract the stranger's notice, but, though he moved the curtain, it was of no use; the new-comer seemed quite absorbed in the music he was reading. At last, in despair, Gigi resolved to speak.

"San Carlo!" he said, timidly thrusting his head a little further forward.

"The stranger looked up in surprise, and when he saw this quaint little face peeping out from the curtain, he came forward a few steps, looking very much puzzled.

"The stranger looked up in surprise, and when he saw the quaint little face peeping out from the ourtain, he came forward with thin, and he won't let me have a nurse even. It is absurd to expect me to see to him when already I am almost worked to death."

"I don't know," said digi, "but think you are the new barttone.

"He was happy enough at Salem, and, indeed, is always begging to go back again. The people there had brought him up, for, of course, I couldn't drag a baby all over the States with me."

"It was a farmhouse," put in Gigi, "and I always went out with the pigs every day. I wish there was pigs here."

Carlo smiled, but thought Gigi deserved better companionship.

"Merlino knew that we should be in America again in another year," continued Anita, "but he had some foolish feeling against leaving the child so far off, and so I suppose we shall have to take him about with us for the present. Men don't realize what trouble a child gives. Merlino likes to play with him now and then for ten minutes, but he would never be bothered with the same of the present of the past."

"The was inerfectly possible! I don't think she has spoken to him since we were at San Francisco, a year ago, yet of course they had to act together. The Borelli is extremely fastidious; she will highly approve of the change of baritones. But the gone and against you."

Again Carlo was allent; he looked down the long shady walk, with its sombre ilextrees; the prospect of his new life had never before seemed so distasteful to him, and it was with a sense of relief that he caught sight of Enrico Ritter coming toward them with his usual long, imperturbable stride. Sandringham to be Sold.

The Prince and Princess of Wales have determined to sell Sandringham at the first opportunity. The fact is that Sandringham is not healthy. This has long been the opinion of the people of the district, and it is the conclusion to which the Prince of Wales and several members of the house-hold have come. The situation of the house is comparatively low and the surrounding country is flat. The purchase of this property for the Prince of Wales at the time of his marriage was one of the most injudicious acts which Lord Palmerston ever committed. It is no secret that the estate was bought not so much in the interests of the Prince as to help Lord Palmerston's natural son to get rid of a burdensome property. A million dollars was the price paid for the place, and the Prince has, during the last 30 years spent at least a couple of million more on it. If he therefore parts with it, it will necessarily be at a considerable sacrifice.

Mer Rival.

A New York despatch says: There dwells in this city a very wicked young man and his name is Alfred Kayne. He lives in apartments with other wicked young men, and belongs to the senior class of Columbia College. He has a smooth face, unlike the usual type of villain, and the constant study of metaphysics at the college has filled him with clear ideas on such subjects as love, hate, revenge, how to inspire them; how to make them valued. The curriculum of Columbia College, however, contains no course by which a young man may learn how not to singe his wings in the flame of a siren's beauty.

This wicked youth saw Lillian Russell and succumbed. He had learned that by gifts This wicked youth saw Lillian Russell and suocumbed. He had learned that by gifts is the fire of passion frequently kindled. He sent Lillian flowers. She, it is said, accepted them carelessly. The wicked youth was snubbed, and returning to the college he looked up his old Greek authorities and studied the theory of revenge. His idea was to humiliate Lillian by elevating a lovely rival. He was cruel. He knew the sex too well.

On the one hundredth performance of "La Cigale" the smooth-faced Juan got together $1,000, gave it to John Scallen (who may as well be advertised with the others) and told him to convert it into flowers and send the flowers to Attalie Claire right under the Russell's nose.

flowers to Attalie Claire right under the Russell's nose.

It was a pathetic moment. There was poor little inoffensive Attalie groaning beneath a floral deluge, while the blondestargot two brutal little nosegays. The wicked youth was not satisfied. Again he went to Mr. Scallon, gave him another $1,000, and asked him to make a cornucopia to send to Miss Claire in Boston. The tragic denouement is known. Lillian declined to allow the flowers to go upon the stage; she was guashing of teeth, and possibly tearing of hair, and the exquisite truelty of wicked Mr. Kayne was a complete success.

Manager French, however, wouldn't mind a few more Columbia stadents behaving in the same way, and Floriat Scallen is not perceptibly grieved. As for Columbia College, it repeives a most beneficent advertisement, for the effect of its curriculum is distinctly seen.

A Los Angeles, Cal. despatch says: One of the greatest mysteries of this city has been that of the tongueless han, which has just been solved. Last November a priestly-looking man hired a room at the lodginghouse at the corner of Fifth and Broackws, One morning he was found in his room-blood issuing from his mouth, and a blocky rasor in his hand. On examination it was found that he had out on his tongue with the razor. Bloody tracks to the door, out in the hall and the bath-room indicated that he had other wound healed he disappeared. He had thrown his tongue down a drain pipe. After his wound healed he disappeared. He was thought to have been a Catholic priest. It now turns out that his name is deorge Wilson. He goes garbed as a priest, but he is a professional gambler. His family is wealthy and live in New York. His father has just died and left an estate of $150,000, 650,000 of which was left to him. The seate cannot be settled up until George has been the black sheep of the family. This statement suggests that the man's act of outting out his tongue was prompted by remorse.

The contemplated underground parage will be similar to the present one, without the deep excavations at either of the approaches. It is plainly evident that the boring can be more rapidly accomplished and with less expenditure of money than has marked their previous undertaking. The new tunnel will be used for the westward traffic, while the old will be utilized for eastward business. It is anticipated that the new passage, will be completed inside of, twelve months. The new tunnel will be located 150 feet north of the present one.

one of the most horrise induces have on annals of crime in this Province has been committed. The victim, a stranger and unknown man, was set upon in a village tavern at the dead of night by a lot of lawless and drunken ruffians and murdered in coldblood. That to hide their crims the murderers oremated the remains. The whole story seems improbable, were it not that it is vouched for by good authority. About eight miles out from this place is the village of Loretto. Loretto, like most country villages, is situated at cross-roads and is composed largely of a tavern and a store. The tavern aloins a store, and does a thriving trade for so small a place. The surrounding country is given up to farming, but a number of undesirable characters infect the section. Law is an unknown quantity to many of the latter, and might is right with them. Rows and murders have been committed in the locality on several occasions.

THE WAR COMING.

The Shippers' Federation to Fight the Organized Labor Unions.

A London cable says: A committee of the Shipping Federation, which aims to break up the seamen's and other allied unions, is on the point of completing a gigantic long projected scheme for the absorption of all the industries connected with the shipping. The committee's overtures have met with marked success. They have found that numerous employers of labor in different branches of the shipping industry are anxious to be rid of the present isksome conditions, owing to which they find themselves greatly under the men's thumbs. It is tacitly understood that when the details of the desired co-operation are finally settled the Shipping Federation will throw off the mask and declare a war which will decide the question of supremacy between the unions and the employers.

aman's form appeared as the anterdoor of the express car. Revolver BULLETS WHISTLED PAST THEIR RARS and a voice was heard commanding them to signal the engineer to go shead or take the consequences. The trainmen were unarmed. The conductor told one of his men to jump off, run back to Jordan and telegraph along the line to Kochester that they had a train robber on board. This was done, and the conductor signalled the engineer to go shead full speed, thinking that the robber would not dare to jump and would be captured at the next stop. The train went to Port Byron. Here the brakes were set again, and the conductor and the trainmen went to the express car. The car showed signs of a desperate struggle. Money packages and jewelry were lying scattered about. Evything in the car seemed stained with b. jod, and Messenger McInerney was lying RLEEDING PRON SEVERAL WOUNDS, and almost unconscious. The robber was to the large stove. This was one of the old-fashioned box stoves, with a top which could be lifted off for the purpose of admitting large blocks of wood. Swinging back this top a horrible sight was before him, for there, baking on the coals, latthe charred remains of the peddler. Mr. Lyon was naturally appalled at the sight, but well knowing the danger which might follow if he made any outcry, wisely kept his counsel until he got safely away.

The story leaked out, and is now current throughout the surrounding district. Nothing else is talked about, and the authorites are taking steps to investigate the matter.

This is only one of several murders which have occurred in this neighborhood. It is not many years ago since a bailiff was foully murdered in this village. He was struction the head with an axe, and though a man was tried for the orime the jury acquitted him. The news is creating a great sensation in and around Tottenham, and considerable indignation is expressed at the inactivity of the control of the orime the jury acquitted him. STARTED THE ENGINE UP. Conductor Lass and one of the switchmanprocured a shotgun, freed the engine of the started in pursuit of the fugitive. It will be remembered that the Centrai Hudson is a four-tracked road, and the two engines, though both going west, were not on the same track. The express engine soon overtook the robber, who suddenly reversed his engine and let his pursuers pass him, pouring a perfect hall of pistol bullets into the cab as his pursuers went by. Then the pursuers stopped and the 'pursued wond'

the shotgun taking part this time. No one was hurt in either battle. About two miles beyond the robber found his engine's steam was giving out, so he jumped off at a cross road and started across the country, going south. He managed to terrorize a farmer into letting him have a horse, and rode on about-two miles further south. Here he procured a horse and offiter, persuading the owner, a German farmer, to entrusthim with them by firing on him.

The party on the express engine had returned to Lyons, where the sheriff of Wayne county had organized a posse, which, under command of Deputy Sheriff Collins, had started in pursuit. Meantime the farmers along the robber's line of retreat had also turned out fully armed in pursuit. The runaway was sighted about five miles south of Newark. The roads are very had and he had made poor speed.

HE ABANDONED HIS RIG
and ran across to Benton's swamp, but this swamp proved too full of water to be penetrated, and the fugitive took up his position behind a stone wall and faced his pursuers. After some parley he surrendered to Deputy Sheriff Collins. He was taken to Lyons and lodged in jail. He gave the name of Wm. Cross, said he was from New Mexico, and had been boarding in Syracuse for some time. He admitted that he was the man who had attempted the train robbery, to Chief of Detectives Hayden, of this city, who robbed Express Messenger Moore rear Utica last fall.

THE STORY OF THE ROBERY.

The story of the attempt at robbery, as far as can be gathered, is this: The express messenger, be it understood, will not be allowed the train when it pulled out of Syracuse, and climbed on top of the express car. He was provided with a hooked rope. Fastening the hook in the alight cornice of the roof on one side of the car he let himself down on the other, and around the car he looked in the glass of the side door and saw the express manager in in front of one of the safes, which was open, making up his bills. He smashed the glass with his revolver, covered the messenger, and shouted to him to hold uphis hands. Instead of doing this, McInerney reached for the signal cord with one hand and for his revolver with the other. A bullet smashed the hand on the cord, but not before it had given the signal that aroused the conductor. Then McInerney first on the robber and put a bullet through his cost. Then the robber shot the messenger, and a desperate struggle took place, which did not end until the train was stopped for the first time near Weedsport. It is evident some. last fall.

ON THE CORNISH COAST. A Spanish Steamer, Wrecked and All Hands

A Spanish Steamer, Wrecked and All Mane's Browned.

A London cable says: What is likely to prove the gravest maritime disaster which has occurred since the teapestones weather of the past week set in is reported from the Cornish coast. A large vessel, whose name is unknown, but which is supposed to be a Spanish steamer, has been wrecked off Penzance, and it is feared all hands who were aboard of her are lost. Already brief despatches tolling of the tragic and horrifying somes which attended the disaster have been received. It is learned that a boat containing six men, which had set out from the vessel for the shore, was capsized almost immediately in the blinding gale. The boat was next aren keef upward, but none of her crew could be seen, except two men. The first of these was dinging to the boat in desperation. He was seen to be twice washed off. The second was swimming in an effort to reach safety. The efforts made by the coast guard to help the two men proved too late, and both were drowned. Two boats from the wreck and a quantity of wreckage have come ashore.

All outdoor work in the shipyards at Hartlepool has been stopped, rendering idle 7,000 men.
The snowstorm continues in Westmore-land and traffic on the various railway lines is seriously impeded.
Further despatches from Ireland are to the effect that the snow is still falling heavily in that country, and that in Cork and adjoining places the roads are covered to a depth of four feet, and in consequence traffic has been almost entirely suspended. The despatches say that the goods in Listowell district, Kerry County, are also badly blocked by huge drifts.

shet Two Women and Suicided.

A New York despatch says: Mrs. Annie Stevens, aged 25 years, was shot in the shoulder and in the neck at her home, No. 107 Allen street, this evening by her husband, Henry Stevens. The wounds are very serious. Stevens also shot and seriously injured Nellie Smith, aged 23 years, who was in his wife's company at the time. Two shots were fired at Miss Smith, one taking of effect in the mouth and the other in the left arm. The would-be murder, thinking he had slain the two women, then turned the pixtol on himself, and with fatal effect, the bullet lodging in his brain.

A British Station Attacked.

A Singapore cable says: Fort Sadon, in Upper Burmah, which is garrisoned by a force of British troops, is surrounded by 500 Vacchuns. The latter have made repeated attacks on the stronghold, but so far have been repulsed. Nineteen men of the British force have been either killed or wounded. The garrison is closely besieged blocked the road leading to the fort. Ten Sepoys have been massacred while on their way thither.

Eleped With the Freacher.

A Mount Pleasant, Mich, despatch says: Allen G. Reynolds, Free Methodist minister, formerly of the Township of Nottawa, this county, and Anna Nichols, wife of one of his flock, are in jail here. About one year ago, the couple deserted their families, and taking four of the women's children and two of the minister's, left for parts unknown, and not until recently could any trace of them be obtained. They were found living in Wood County, Wis. The sheriff went after them and brought them here.

"We steamed around the blasing hulk in the hope of seeing a boat containing the crew. Then we steamed to leeward for 12 miles, but no sign of boat or raft could be discovered. We laid around as long as possible, but no boat could live in such a sea as was running at that time.

"When we reached Gravesend the scratch crew was immediately discharged, Capt. Irwin went to the London agents of the owners of the Locdiums, which was then reported to be missing. The burning vessel was of American build, and the description of our captain seemed to leave no doubt that it was the Locdiums which we had seen. He learned that the captain had his wife on board. They took the usual failure on the part of the Province, it might be of his hon. friend, to be that they were unable to meet the obligations which the Province had been obliged to make from year to year. They had also the usual borrowing of money to meet the obligations, and they had the usual old paper surplus presented to them to-day.

Mr. Harcourt—The bonds mature in 1893.

A year ago they would be sold at $210,000, but as the date of their majurity approaches they consequently depreciate in value. We say that if sold now they would bring $205,000.

Mr. Clancy then contended that these bonds were in reality only worth their par value. Continuing, he said that sums owing by the Dominion should not be capitalized to show a surplus any more than the Crown lands and the timber limits and other resurces should be capitalized. If the imaginary amount held by the Dominion were subtracted from the surplus the actual surplus would be found to be $729,150, with the sum of $19,000 the surplus of the year, which was the smallest annual surplus in the history of the Province.

A Los Angeles, Cal., despatch says: One of the greatest mystories of this city has been that of the tongueless han, which has just been solved. Last November a priestly-looking man hired a room at the ledging-house at the corner of Fifth and Broadway. One morning he was found in his room, blood issuing from his mouth, and a blocky razor in his hand. On examination it was found that he had cut out his tongue with the razor. Bloody tracks to the door, out in the hall and the bath-room indicated that he had been there. After his wound healed he disappeared. He was thought to have been a Catholic priest. It now turns out that his name is George Wilson. He goes garbed as a priest, but he is a professional gambler. His family is wealthy and live in Now York. His father has just died and left an estate of $150,000, $50,000 of which was left to him. The state cannot be settled up until George has been found, and detectives from New York are now in the city looking for him. They state that George has been the black sheep of the family. This statement suggests that the man's act of outting out his tongue was prompted by remorge.

C., a lamp used in the entertainment was accidentally upset and broken. The oil ignited at once, and in an instant the place caught fire. A panic ensued among the large number of children present, and a mad runh was made for the door. The greatest excitement prevailed, and the screams and shouts of the terrified children, as they desperately fought to escape from the place, were heartrending. A number were knocked down and trampled upon, but with the aid of the few adults who were present at the performance, and a number of persons who had been attracted to the spot by the shouting of the children, all were got out of the building. Twenty little ones were more or less injured, and fears are entertained that two of them will die from the terrible bruising and crushing that they received.

A London cable-says: At an inquest held yesterday on the body of Dr. Howard Arnold, a nephow of the late Matthew Arnold, the jury returned a verdict of suicide while under temporary derangement. The following letter from the deceased man to his wife was read:

"My darling, how I love you. In my despair after these three months of insomnia and terrible depression, I feel that death is preferable to insanity. Ask Robert to look after Allyne; he will, I know. It is better for you that I go now than to remain a drain upon you. How happy life has been with you; what an angel you have been to me, yet this curse has killed me. My last thought was of you, my darling. Forgive me, sweetheart; forgive me, it is for the best. Dear love, dear love, Howard."

To Buplicate the Tunnel.

A Port Huron despatch says: The St. Clair Tunnel Company has purchased considerable land immediately adjacent to the site of the present international tunnel, and, it is said, will begin operations for the construction of another tunnel inside of sixty days. The contemplated underground passage will be similar to the present one, without the deep excavations at either of the approaches. It is plainly evident that the boring can be more rapidly accomplished and with less expenditure of money than has marked their previous undertaking. The new tunnel will be used for the westward traffic, while the old will be utilized for castward business. It is anticipated that the new passage, will be completed inside of twelve months. The new tunnel will be located 150 feet north of the present one.

A leaded bomb wis discovered on Thursday night outside the Spanish consulate in Messims, Sicily. The fuse attached to it was burning, but was quickly extinguished, with remarkable presence of, mind and course, by the finders. The police were alarmed and immediately began a search for the dynamiters, but no arrests have yet been made. The men are supposed to be members of an Anarchist society acting in sympathy with the Anarchists in Spain.

If the de-are true, and they have that appeara one of the most horrible murders in annals of crime in this Province has h annals of crime in this Province has been committed. The victim, a stranger and unknown man, was set upon in a village tavern at the dead of night by a lot of lawless and drunken ruffians and murdered in cold blood. Then to hide their orime the murderers cremated the remains. The whole story seems improbable, were it not that it is youched for by good authority. About eight miles out from this place is the village of Loretto. Loretto, like most country villages, is situated at cross-roads and is composed largely of a tavern and a store. The tavern is run by Mrs. Gamble. The tavern air nu by Mrs. Gamble. The tavern adjoins a store, and does a thriving trade for so small a place. The aurrounding country is given up to farming, but a number of undesirable characters infest the section. Law is an unknown quantity to many of the latter, and might is right with them. Rows and brutal assaults are not uncommon, and murders have been committed in the locality on several occasions.

THE HORSE KILLED HIM.

A Galt Man Fatally Ricked in the Breast by a Morse.

A Galt despatch says: William Huntzberger, aged about 27 years, employed on the farm of Mr. J. C. Dietrich, on the Blair road near Galt, was found about half-past 6 c'clock this evening lying on the floor of the stable in an apparently dying condition. James John, another of Mr. Dietrich's employees, was the first to discover the unfortunate man, and at once went for assistance. Doctors Vardon and Sylvester were soon on the spot, but death had come prior to their arrival. Upon examination it was found that Huntzberger's ribs were crushed in over the heart by a kick from a horse. Huntzberger had been working the horses during the day, and was alone engaged in fixing them in the stable for the night when the accident took place. The deceased was a married man of very steady habits. A widow and two children survive him.

THE WAR COMING.

The Shippers' Federation to Fight the Organized Labor Unions.

A London cable says: A committee of the Shipping Federation, which aims to break up the seamen's and other allied unions, is on the point of completing a gigantic long-projected scheme for the absorption of all the industries connected with the shipping. The committee's overtures have met with marked success. They have found that numerous employers of labor in different branches of the shipping industry are anxious to be rid of the present isksome conditions, owing to which they find themselves greatly under the men's thumbs. It is tacitly understood that when the details of the desired co-operation are finally settled the Shipping Federation will throw off the mask and declare a war which will decide the question of supremacy between the unions and the employers.

Decrease in Crime. The report on the common jails, prisons, and reformatories, presented to the Ontario Legislature, announces that during the past year there was a decrease in crime, the number of committals being 1,387 less than last year. Of this number there was a decrease of 1,153 adult males and 176 females. The number of boys under 12 years was 40 less; girls under the same age, 18 less. Total committals 10,423, as against 11,810 in 1890. The most notable decrease is in Toronto, the number of committals during the year being 3,371, as against 3,984 in 1890, or 615 less.

AN EXCITING RAILWAY CHASE

BLEEDING FROM MEYERAL WOUNDS, and almost unconscious. The robber was nowhere to be seen, and was supposed to have jumped and made good his escape. Molnerney wanted to be brought on to Rochester. A telegram for an ambulance was sent to Rochester, and the train went on to Lyons, the next stop. The nows had spread all along the line by this time, and the station at Lyons was alive. Among others in the crowd was a well-dressed young man wearing gold cye-glasses and carrying a satchel slung by a strap over his shoulder. Now, it so happened that the trainmen had noticed this same young man at the station at Syracuse before the train pulled out, and they had not seen him since, and the question of what he was doing at Lyons and how he got there at once suggested itself. An attempt was made to seize him, but he pulled out two revolvers, held the crowd back and backed across the cong in the west. He pulled the pin holding the tender

STARTED THE ENGINE UP. Conductor Lassa and one of the switchmen procured a shotgun, freed the engine of the express, and with the fireman and engineer started in pursuit of the fugitive. It will be remembered that the Central Hudson is started in pursuit of the fugitive. It will be remembered that the Central Hudson is a four-tracked road, and the two engines, though both going west, were not on the same track. The express engine soon overtook the robber, who suddenly reversed his engine and let his pursuers pass him, pouring a perfect bail of pistol bullets into the cab as his pursuers went by. Then the pursuers stopped and the pursued went ahead.

About two miles beyond the robber found his engine's steam was giving out, so he jumped off at a cross road and started across the country, going south. He managed to terrorize a farmer into letting him have a horse, and rode on about two miles further south. Here he procured a horse and cutter, persuading the owner, a German farmer, to entrusthim with them by firing on him.

The party on the express engine had returned to Lyons, where the sheriff of Wayne county had organized a posse, which, under command of Deputy Sheriff Collins, had started in pursuit. The story of the attempt at robbery, as far as can be gathered, is this: The express measenger, be it understood, will not talk. Cross boarded the train when it pulled out of Syracuse, and climbed on top of the express car. He was provided with a hooked rope. Fastening the hook in the slight cornice of the roof on one side of the car he let himself down on the other, and risting his toes on the ledge that runs around the car he looked in the glass of the side door and saw the express mansger in in front of one of the safes, which was open, making up his bills. He smashed the glass with his revolver, covered the measurger, and shouted to him to holduphis hands. Instead of doing this, McInerney reached for the signal cord with one hand and for his revolver with the other. A bullet smashed the hand on the cord, but not before it had given the signal that aroused the conductor. Then McInerney fired on the robber and put a bullet through his coat. Then the robber shot the messenger twice, once in the right leg and once in the left temple. He climbed into the car, and a desperate struggle took place, which did not end until the train was stopped for the first time near Weedsport. It is evident power of the robber he rolled out some of the least valuable packages and covered valuable ones with them. The robber was impatient to get currency, and threatened to shock if it was not ancrendered. He said to the messenger, "You can't fool me. I've been in this business before." While the robber was waiting to get the money to the train reached Lyons and the game was up. Mra. McInery said of her son, "He was always gritty. I knew if he was always gritty. I knew if he was always gritty. I knew if he was a laways gritty. Mr. Prentise said this morning: "He admitted the whole thing, and told where he had been since the Utica robbery. He said he had been in Cannda, down South and in the West. He said he wrote that letter from Canada and put a United States postage stamp on it, but was told that it would not go with that stamp, and then you a Canadian stamp. He did not go in the direction indicated in the letter. He says that he has always gone under his own name, and was indignant at the statement that he took any other name. He told me he knew when they were after him in any place and avoided arrest by changing his voice and putting on gold spectacles.

Cornish coast. A large vessel, whose name is unknown, but which is supposed to be a Spanish steamer, has been wrecked off Penzance, and it is feared all hands who were aboard of her are lost. Already brief despatches tolling of the tragic and horrifying soenes which attended the disaster have been received. It is learned that a boat containing six men, which had set out from the vessel for the shore, was capsized almost immediately in the blinding gale. The boat was next seen keel upward, but none of her crew could be, seen, except two men. The first of these was clinging to the boat in desperation. He was seen to be twice washed off. The second was swimming in an effort to reach safety. The efforts made by the coast guard to help the two men proved too late, and both were drowned.
Two boats from the wreek and a quantity of wreekage have come ashore.

Mr. Mowat said that he only became aware half an hour before that they would notebe able to bring down the estimates as early as anticipated. The hon. Treasurer stated that they would be in possession of the House before the opening to morrow. Two courses were therefore open to them. The financial statement could be made tomorrow before the statement was in the hands of the members, or the statement could be made on Friday.

Mr. Meredith thought it would be more convenient to have the statement made on Friday. They would like to see the estimates before the discussion. He desired to take the present opportunity of asking

Friday. They would like to see the estimates before the discussion. He desired to take the present opportunity of asking whether a clerical error had been made on page 3 of the Public Accounts, saying that Dominion bonds had been sold amounting to $500,000.

Mr. Harcourt said it was not a clerical error. The Government had received $500,000 in bonds from the Dominion Government on account of Ontario moneys in the hands of the Dominion Government.

The Public Accounts.

The Public accounts show that the finances of the Provinces are in a healthy condition, as there is a surplus for the year of $19,818. The balance sheet during the year totals up to the handsome sum of $4,183,381.07, which figures represent the receipts from all sources. The expenditure of all descriptions amounts to $4,163,683.07. The following tables show the receipts and expenditure for the past year:

the cheerful and light-hearted way in which he had undertaken the task of presenting the dreary old bill of fare. They were to-day as usual confronted with the usual deficit, and no apology whatever was made for it. They took the usual failure on the part of the Province, it might be of his hon. friend, to be that they were unable to meet the obligations which the Province had been obliged to make from year to year. They had also the usual borrowing of money to meet the obligations, and they had the usual old paper surplus presented to them to-day. Mr. Harcourt—The bonds mature in 1893. A year ago they would be sold at $210,000, but as the date of their maturity approaches they consequently depreciate in value. We say that if sold now they would bring $205,000.

Mr. Clancy then contended that these bonds were in reality only worth their par value. Continuing, he said that sums owing by the Dominion should not be capitalized to show a surplus any more than the Crownlands and the timber limits and other resources should be capitalized. If the imaginary amount held by the Dominion were subtracted from the surplus the actual surplus would be found to be $729,150, with the sum of $19,000 the surplus of the year, which was the smallest annual surplus in the history of the Province.

Mr. Mowat moved that the debate be adjourned till Tuesday. Carried.

Stranble, an old feud being the direct cause. There are now under arrest as being implicated Mrs. Stranble, wife of the alleged murderer, Chas. Wegner, jun., and A. A. Smith. Stranble, who is a sloon keeper, was being tantalized by some boys rapping on his window, and, rushing out and encountering Sutherland, abused him, thinking he was doing the rapping. Sutherland slapped his face, and in return received the fatal shot.
