Destiny.

Serve I fold my hands and wait,
Nor care for wind, or tide, or sea,
I have no more 'gilt time or fate,'
For, for my love shall come to me,
Asleep, awake, by slight or day,
The friends I seek are seeking me,
No wind can drive my bark astray,
The tide wave into the sea;
The stars come gently to the sky,
Nor time, nor space, nor deep, nor high,
Can keep my own away from me.

The World of Dreams.

Warden closed the door softly behind him, feeling like a drunk. He drew a deep breath of relief as he crossed the side porch and descended from sight by a heavy gray fog. Behind him, the windows of the living room were already indistinct; and the lake, almost at his feet, was blotted out almost as completely as though it had never been. It was the first week in September, and the weather was still mild. Not a breath stirred the leaves of the white birches along the shore as he made his way over the wet planks of the landing, fumbling in his pocket for pipe and pouch. At the end of the floats were canoes and row boats. Warden lifted one of them over the side, seized a paddle and embarked.

A dozen strokes placed him out of sight of the landing and all else. The silvery mist closed in upon him until even the bow of the canoe was indefinite. For several minutes he went silently forward, then as the novelty of physical exertion wore away, his strokes grew shorter and weaker, and presently the paddle trailed in the water, and the thoughts which he had unconsciously hoped to leave on shore returned. He lifted the dripping pad and laid it aside. Then he filled and lighted his pipe, and elbows on his knees, stared ahead into the pearly mist.

Warden's presence at a country house party meant jollity and high carnival, and with his arrival at Birch Cove a new regime had begun. He was indelicate as an adviser of methods of entertainment. He played the role of buffoon as few could play it, and always without lessening a whit the liking and respect in which he was held. And it sometimes his heart ached when the merriment was loudest, few, if any, ever guessed it.

He realized usually that the feeling of disgust which filled him this morning was not new; during the last six months he had experienced it frequently. He was thirty-one years of age, and he wondered blankly what life would be like ten years from now, since already the savor was gone.

"I intend you to be a gentleman, Stephen," his father had once said to him. "The Warden has been that always, and you will not need to dirty your hands with trade, nor soil your honor in a petty-fogging profession. There will be money enough. Spend it like a gentleman, save some if you can, but don't hoard it. When the time comes marry a good woman and make yourself a home. Have children and teach them, above all, that a Warden is a gentleman, and a gentleman is God's greatest work."

He obeyed his father in all things but one. He had never married. He had loved one woman supremely—and even in that had followed the example of his father—and had lost her in spite of all his money. That had been two years ago. Until that time he had never doubted the efficacy of wealth; it had always performed every miracle of his asking. But it had failed to secure Elsie Lovell.

His pipe went out with a soft, moist sizzling sound. Mechanically he filled it again and relighted it. When he went on with the train of thought he unconsciously spoke aloud.

"What's the use of it all?" he muttered. "I'm no use in the world; if I quit this moment not a living soul would care. Yes, they'd miss me, but for a day—fore, but things are dull since Steve Ward left! they'd say."

"Dear, where thou hidest, I too, will hide; Where thou abidest, love will abide; Firm as the mountain, deep as the sea; Deeper and deeper is my love for thee."

There were more than music in the woman's voice; there was pain and longing and old memories; and Warden's heart grew troubled. Memories crowded around him. Again came the sweet voice, soft and low from out the silence:

"Dear, where thou hidest, I too, will hide; Where thou abidest, love will abide; Firm as the mountain, deep as the sea; Deeper and deeper is my love for thee."

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

It would be a good epitaph for me, wouldn't it?"

There was a silence a moment. He thought about him in the still, gray light.

"Why not throw down the cards?" he said, softly. "Out here in the open and mist? Why not go over there and end it all decently and bravely—and like a gentleman? I'm afraid of it."

He was silent again, looking wonderingly into the smooch, clear water. There was never but one thing I wanted in my life," he said suddenly, in tones of self pity; "I wanted to be a gentleman."

"I might have it. Other fellows have so much—professions, honors, all kinds of good things, while I—"

He broke off and shook his shoulders.

"Don't whine like a kid," he muttered disgustedly. "Whose fault was it but your own? In Heaven's name why should a girl want to marry you with only your beastly money to show? She wanted a man, you fool. And yet—I loved her so much it might have made up—just a little. I think I could do things, too, with her to help me. But I suppose a man's a coward who has to have a woman behind him, yes, that's it, a coward."

He looked wondering down at the shapeless surface.

"Am I too much of a coward even for this?"

A minute passed. He raised his head again with a mirthless laugh of relief.

But she need never know, no one need never know for sure, an accident is so easy in a canoe—Yes an accident—"

He sighed as one who has made up his mind and thereby found peace. As he looked about him into the blank haze, reality faded. It seemed that he was no longer in the world, but was alone in some dim gray place of cloud and silence. The placid water realized that it was a delusion, but it pleased him and he welcomed it; it was a spirit, free and untroubled, a peaceful solitude—a dreamer in a world of dreams.

"They're all different; too, and I like the difference," she added with a whimsical smile. "Do you know, sometimes, I've had to conjure you up before me, Stephen, just to—to save my faith in your sex."

"Me!" he cried incredulously.

"Yes, you," she answered. "It's done me good to remember that across the ocean there was a man who—who was honest and brave and courageous."

"You thought of me!" murmured Warden in asked tones.

"Edith! he asked, did you really do that? I mean did you really remember me over there?"

"But yes," she asserted, "why shouldn't I have Stephen? Weren't we very good friends?"

"But to think of me, that way! he marvelled.

The blood rushed into her cheeks and she threw a hand impulsively towards him.

"Stephen!" she cried. "I know what you are thinking of. Please forget it!"

"I want to take it all back please. I didn't understand. I've seen men since then, Stephen. And I know how what I didn't know then; that no man who has courage and honor, who lives clean, who is kind and generous to others, that no man like that Stephen, is wasting his life."

"Thank you, Edith," he answered. "But what have I done with myself? I am thirty-one now, Edith, and never in my life have I earned a dollar, not one thing have I done that I can feel a little proud of—"

"Hush, please," she interrupted. "How about Horace Kent?"

"Kent," he asked?

"Yes, I met him at Dresden last winter, and he told me about you and what you had done for him."

"He shouldn't have," answered Warden. "But don't try to make a virtue of that, Edith. It was only what one poor devil would do for another. I had money, time, nothing to occupy me. He was down and out. Doubtless he thought I had done more for him than I really had. And he told me other lovely things about you Stephen," said the girl, with a soft light in her eyes.

"Don't Edith," he begged. "They were only the every day things that one man would do for another."

"Tell me," he said, after a short silence. "How did Kent happen to talk so much nonsense to you?"

"We became rather good friends last winter," she answered. "He asked me to marry him, Stephen."

"Ah!" He dropped his eyes for an instant upon the water. "Did he not see what he feared? And you—you are not married to him, Edith?"

"No."

"He is a good fellow."

"Yes," she answered carelessly, "is a good fellow."

Unnoticed by either the mist had begun to move. Overhead it had taken on a faint tinge of amber.

The world of dreams was fading swiftly. The girl raised her eyes as though taking a sudden resolution.

"Stephen," she said swiftly. "See Stephen, why were you glad to see me awhile ago?"

"Glad!" he cried; "glad!"

"Why?"

"Why?" he echoed. "You know why, dear. I don't want to bother you any more, Edith, only—only there's no harm in telling you, is there, that—I haven't changed—that I never shall—that always and always it will be you, dear! You—you don't mind my saying that?"

"No," she answered, with a little catch in her voice. "I don't mind, Stephen.—I'm glad."

"Glad!" he whispered. "What do you mean? Edith, for God's sake don't—"

"I mean this," she went on rapidly, her hands clasping and unclasping on the edge of the canoe. "I came back here, home, to beg some one's pardon—for things I said once—and did—tell him that I was a fool—and—didn't know! To ask him—ask him to forgive and forget, and—and—"

With a cry he bent toward her and lifted the wet, flushed face. The canoe rasped a protest against the pebbles.

"Edith!" he whispered brokenly. "Edith! My love!"

The breeze brushed away the last ragged wreaths of mist and the sun bathed them in noontide glory. A bird near at hand burst into rapturous song. Over their heads the leaves of the white birches whispered joyously. Gone was the world of dreams.

Had Made Up His Mind.

A clever lawyer tells how, during a trial, one of the jurors suddenly rose from his seat and fled from the courtroom. He was, however, arrested in his flight before he had left the building, and brought back.

"I should like to know what you mean by such an action as this," demanded the judge, in a lenient tone, however, as he knew the man, an elderly German, to be a simple, straightforward person.

"Well, your honor, I will explain," said the juror. "Ven Mr. Jones finished mit his talking my mind was clear all through, but ven Mr. Smith begins his talking I becomes all confused again already, and I says to myself, 'I better leave at once, and stay away until he is done,' because, your honor, to tell the truth, I didn't like der way der argument was going."

That's proof of our faith in this remedy, and it should indisputably demonstrate that we know what we are talking about when we say that Rexall's '93' Hair Tonic will grow hair on bald heads, except where baldness has been of such long duration that the roots of the hair are entirely dead, and the follicles closed and grown over, and the scalp is glazed.

Remember, we are basing our statements upon what has already been accomplished by the use of Rexall's '93' Hair Tonic, and we have the right to assume that what it has done for thousands of others it will do for you. Seven Years Pain

from Acute Neuralgia

Cured Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Neuralgia is not a disease—it is only a symptom. It is the surest sign that your blood is weak, watery and impure, and that your nerves are literally starving. Bad blood is the one cause—good, rich, red blood is the only cure. There you have the real reason why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure neuralgia. They are the only medicine that contains, in correct proportions, the very elements needed to make new, rich, red blood. This alone reaches the root of the trouble, soothes the jangled nerves, and drives away the nagging, stabbing pain, and brace up your health in other ways.

Mr. M. Brennan, an ex-sergeant of the 2nd and Cheshire Regiment, now a resident of Winnipeg, Man., says: "While serving with my regiment in India, on a hill station, I contracted a severe cold which brought on acute neuralgia, at times lasting for three weeks. I was constantly suffering almost every month in the year for over seven years, the pain being sometimes so severe that I wished I was dead. On my return to England I seemed to get no better, though I spent large sums of money for medical advice and medicine. Then I came to Canada, and about a year ago saw the advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a Winnipeg paper. Although I had begun to think my complaint was incurable I told my wife that I intended giving the Pills a fair trial. I was suffering from terrible pains when I began taking the Pills, but before the second box was finished the pain began to disappear, and under a further use of the Pills it disappeared entirely, and I have not had a twinge of it during the past year. Only those who have been afflicted with the terrible pains of neuralgia can tell what a blessing Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been to me, and you may be sure I shall constantly recommend them to other sufferers."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Syracuse, N. Y., Herald innocently says:—If Canada should turn down that reciprocity treaty now after Congress has boiled and perspired through an extra hot summer to pass it, we have an idea that there would be some pretty stirring speeches made in the next Congress favoring the forcible annexation of our northern neighbor.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., AUG. 18, 1911.

Editorial Notes.

While several have responded to our request with reference to payment of accounts due during the past few weeks a very large number to whom bills have been sent have not so far been heard from.

Special attention is directed to the Civil Engineering advertisement of the International Correspondence Schools on page two. Twenty years ago a coal miner in Pennsylvania, by enrolling for a Course in Engineering, became the first student of this great American educational institution.

The timely rain this week has done a great amount of good. The continued drought was becoming a serious menace as wells and brooks all over the country were dry.

On account of the unprecedented long spell of hot weather we have had this summer the school authorities of a number of the Nova Scotia towns are considering the extension of the summer holidays.

The more the question of reciprocity is studied and discussed the better it is understood and the more popular it becomes. This statement is borne out by the change of sentiment with reference to the movement which is apparent not only in this county but throughout the province and country as well.

The further the work of street improvement proceeds the better satisfied are citizens that the undertaking was a wise one. Visitors from the surrounding districts also express themselves as highly pleased with the improved condition of our street and are quite willing to put up with temporary inconvenience in view of what the finished work promises to be.

The Provincial exhibition will open its gates on August 30th and the big fair will continue until September the 7th. The amusement features will be on a grand scale. A notable feature will be the daily air-ship flights by a great expert in navigation of the upper regions.

The elections now pending will be less distinctly a party struggle than those of recent years. While the leaders are the same as three years ago, the chief issue is new. In 1908 Sir Wilfrid Laurier assured the people that reciprocity was no longer sought or desired by Canada, and that the government was promoting closer trade relations with the Empire.

The regular features of the exhibition will be on a first-class scale. Nothing will be neglected. The fisheries exhibit, for instance, will far surpass anything ever seen in the buildings devoted to that great industry. The rates of transportation will, as usual, be very low. Visitors who contemplate going to the exhibition at Halifax this year will make no mistake in carrying their intention into effect.

British Journalists.

The company of British newspaper men who are making a tour of Canada arrived in Wolfville on Tuesday afternoon on the train from Halifax and were met by Mayor Harvey and other citizens. The party consists of the following:

W. M. Alexander, of the Aberdeen Free Press.

Robert H. H. Baird, J. P., of the Belfast Evening Telegraph, which has the largest circulation in Ireland, an issue of twenty editions daily.

J. P. Cral, editor of the Scotsman. Wilfrid Rutherford, representing the Financial News.

Councillor C. W. Starmer, J. P., of the Sheffield Daily Independent and Northern Echo.

Wilfrid J. Hinton, B. A., representing the Western Mail.

Henry Cooper Patten, the representative of the Norfolk News Co. papers.

Thos. Moles, manager of the Irish Post and one of the ablest Irish journalists of the day.

John Roberts, representing the North Wales Times and Banner at Amersham Cymra.

Edgar Rowan, London Daily Chronicle.

The visitors were accompanied by Secretary Barnstead, of the immigration department, and Mr. R. U. Parker, general passenger agent of the D. A. K.

After dining at the Royal Hotel the pressmen were taken on an automobile drive through the orchards of the county. Owing to the lateness of the arrival of the train and some misunderstanding with regard to conveyance the party was late in getting away and the falling daylight necessarily curtailed to some extent the program.

The automobiles of Messrs. D. R. and G. W. Munro and Coun. J. E. Hales with a car from Kentville conveyed the party, which included besides the visitors, Mayor Harvey, Mr. I. B. Oakes and the editor of THE ACADIAN. A number of others were prevented from participating in the trip owing to failure to secure accommodation.

The route chosen was to Greenwick and across the dyke to Port Williams, thence through Starr's Point to the farm of Mr. A. C. Starr where the first stop was made. Here the fine orchards were inspected, the genial proprietor giving the visitors a cordial reception and all the information possible in the limited time at their disposal.

The party then proceeded up Church Street, calling at the farm of Mr. Evans, and visited the orchard of Mr. William Satton. This orchard displays a wonderful showing of fruit, the heavily laden trees presenting a spectacle that will live in the memory of the visitors.

The next and last stop was made at 'Hillcrest orchards.' By this time night had set in and very little could be seen but the party was driven through the grounds and were able to form some idea of the extent of the orchards. Arriving at the residence of the manager, Mr. R. S. Eaton, the visitors were received by Mr. and Mrs. Eaton, Capt. C. O. Allen, Mr. R. S. Messinger, president of the N. S. P. O. A. and others. A dainty packed box of fine plums was presented to each of the visitors.

The visitors expressed themselves as being much pleased with what they saw and the information which they were able to gather concerning Nova Scotia, and only regretted that the limited time at their disposal prevented a longer stay.

The Provincial exhibition will open its gates on August 30th and the big fair will continue until September the 7th. The amusement features will be on a grand scale. A notable feature will be the daily air-ship flights by a great expert in navigation of the upper regions.

There is nothing quite so sweet to the ears of a bride as sterling silver. Apart from the quality (which is always .925 fine here) and the chasteness of the patterns you can easily see that the prices are remarkably moderate.

The Fruit Exhibit. Mr. Barron.—The prize list of the N. S. Horticultural Exhibition is now fairly before the public, and I wish to call the attention of all exhibitors and fruit growers to the fact that they will have it in their power to make the Show of October, 1911, the largest, best and most instructive exhibit of fruits in season, especially of apples, ever shown in Nova Scotia, aye, or in the Dominion.

Collections of apples are well provided for, over $100.00 being offered; $37.00 of this is for counties other than Kings, Hants and Annapolis. This divided into five prizes will, we hope, bring out a strong competition for this class, and induce further competition in the single varieties suited to their location.

In the well known standard varieties ten named sorts, there are eight prizes for each, amounting to $13.00, which should and will bring out a large competition in each sort. Another list of twenty named varieties, most of which are considered profitable by growers, but are not so well known at present in local and foreign markets as they deserve, but many of them are coming rapidly to the front and when better known will take rank among the best. There is some $9.00 devoted to this class, divided into four prizes each.

We next have a long list of named varieties, some old and neglected but most new or only partially tried sorts. For these over $100.00 is offered in two prizes each, hoping that it may bring out a large number of them for educational purposes, so that the general grower and the public may get a better acquaintance with their looks and value.

To this end, exhibitors in this list should be prepared to answer all reasonable questions as to the hardiness and growth of tree season, quality, yield and prospective market value of fruit in comparison with the old standard sorts. In this way only can we get the relative value of these new sorts, until the long talk of Experimental Farm is fairly underway, which must of course be several years yet before practical results can be obtained.

Besides these regular prizes there are special prizes offered by private parties for barrelled stock amounting to $48.00, and for boxed apples $147.50 is offered, and $100.00 for plums, making $637.00 in special prizes for apples packed as for export. This sum added to the $430.75 of the regular list amounts to the handsome sum of $1073.75 for apples alone, which should bring a large show from almost every county in the province.

In years we have $72.00 regular and $90.00 special for boxes, and for plums we have offered $100.50 in prizes; while for peaches, quinces, grapes, etc., there is $46.75 offered, making only $231.25 for all the other fruits. This showing plainly their present commercial status with apples in this province of Nova Scotia.

We should do more with plums and pears, and not only grow enough to supply the home market with fresh fruit, but a surplus for export and canning. R. W. S.

The Crops.

2. OTTAWA, August 11.—The condition of field crops in Canada is presented in a bulletin of the Census and Statistics Office issued today for 31st July. It shows good averages for all provinces as well as for all crops. Fall wheat was hurt by the hard winter in Ontario, but fared better in Alberta. The estimate yield is 23 1/2 bushels for the former province and 27 8/9 bushels for the latter. The total estimate yield is 17,706,000 bushels. The condition of spring wheat at the end of July was good for the whole of Canada, being 85 to 95 in the Maritime Provinces, 80 to 85 in Ontario and Quebec, 90 to 95 in the Northwest Provinces and 85 in British Columbia. Oats and barley have an average condition of 88 for Canada, 85 to 95 in the Maritime Provinces, 80 to 90 in Ontario and Quebec, 88 to 100 in the Northwest Provinces, 85 to 89 in British Columbia. Rye, peas and beans range from 78 to 84 in Canada and buckwheat 81 to 85. Mixed grains have a condition of 86 which is 14 per cent. less than last year, and fax is 91, which is nearly 20 better. The average of corn to be harvested is 86 and of potatoes 65 1/4—being in each case a little higher than last year. Turnips and rutabagas range from 81 to 85 or about the same as a year ago. Hay, clover and alfalfa are 83 to 85, which is a little lower in each case than last year. Corn for fodder has an average condition of 87, sugar beets of 79 and pasture of 87. The eastern provinces are lower than the figures quoted for the whole of Canada, and the western provinces are higher. The highest positions are in England. A 'motley aggregation' is the name applied by a Nova Scotia newspaper to one-half of the best men of this Dominion, who conscientiously believe that reciprocity with the United States is not at present Canada's best interest.

A shark about eight feet long and weighing 400 pounds was killed by some of the men engaged in the work on the new railway bridge over the Gaspereau river at Horton Landing one day last week. The shark was seen by those at work on the bridge passing underneath. Frightened by the noise the big fish dashed to one side of the river and became stuck in the mud. Procuring a gun three shots were fired all of which took effect in the shark. The fish sank to the bottom, but when the tide went out, was secured and has been on exhibition at the D. A. R. station. We understand that a number of sharks have been seen of late around the shores of Kings county.

The Halifax Chronicle says: A business change of considerable interest has taken place in Halifax whereby the old established firm of N. H. Phinney & Co. Ltd. has taken over the stock and good will of the Halifax Piano and Organ Company. Messrs Phinney & Company have been in the music business for over forty years and have stores and agencies all over the Province. In December of last year they opened a branch store in Halifax under the management of H. W. Phinney, and having control of a number of the oldest and most reliable Piano and Organ agencies, this store has been well patronized. Mr. James LeMarchant, senior partner of the Halifax Piano and Organ Company, will now be associated with the Phinney firm and will have the management of the Halifax Branch at 31 Barrington Street, instead of 44 Granville Street as heretofore.

DON'T YOU BELIEVE IT!

Many men pretend that they are not interested in the good clothes question. They'll tell you that any kind of a decent fitting suit will do. Well, they are only pretending. Truth to tell most men are nearly as much interested in their clothes nowadays as women are. Some of them are just as hard to please as women and just as particular. We know this to be a fact and that's why we handle 20th Century Brand garments.

New Music Director.

SACKVILLE, N. B., August 14.—The position of director of Mount Allison Conservatory of Music, left vacant by the resignation of Prof. Harry Horsfall, has been filled by the appointment of Prof. J. Noel Brunton, late professor of piano at the Metropolitan Academy of Music, Forest Gate, London, England. Prof. Brunton studied piano and the theory of music at the Stern Conservatorium, Berlin, Germany, from which institution he took his diploma as performer and teacher. He was subsequently a pupil for fourteen months of the great Leopold Godowsky in the same city. He teaches according to the modern school of players; working on the Lescherzky method. He is spoken of as being an exceptionally good pianist and has had a great deal of successful experience both in teaching and in concert work. Before studying in Berlin Prof. Brunton held the position of Master of Music at the Berwick Grammar school, the head. While on the staff of the Metropolitan Academy he passed pupils through the higher examinations of the Royal Academy and Trinity College and 95 per cent. gained honors, a record exceedingly hard to beat.

Dr. Paul Lutzecko, of the Stein Conservatorium, says:—During the time he has been here Prof. Brunton has proved himself to be a most diligent and earnest student. His work was always exceptionally well prepared, consequently he has now succeeded in bringing his technique to a high standard of perfection as well as obtaining a thorough knowledge of classical and modern literature. At the annual examinations Prof. Brunton gained high distinction both in harmony and pianoforte.

Nerves Are Exhausted And nervous prostration or paralysis is creeping steadily upon you. You hear of people suddenly falling victims of nervous prostration or some form of paralysis. But when you get all the facts of the case you find that they have had months or years of warning. They haven't slept well. There has been frequent attacks of nervous headache. Digestion has failed. They have been irritable, easily worried and excited and have found memory and concentration failing. They don't know that these are the symptoms of exhausted nerves or that they realize their danger until they have restored their feeble, wasted nerves by use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great restorative treatment cures by forming new, rich blood and by rebuilding the wasted nerve cells. No medicine is more certain to prove of lasting benefit to the system. 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50; at all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Small Elmer—Papa, give me a nickel?
Why Elmer, you are most too old to be begging for a nickel.
Small Elmer—I guess you're right papa. Make it a dime.

Buy it now. Now is the time to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the summer is over. This remedy has no superior. For sale by all dealers.

Doctor—Well, and did you take his temperature?
Willie—Oh, yes, sir. I put the barometer on 's chest and it goes up to very dry, so I fetch 'im a quart of beer, an' 's gone to work.

Fell in a Faint.
Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes before using Dr. Chamberlain's Colic Remedy I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not see without fainting. Dr. Chamberlain's Colic Remedy put my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed.

Now the season of the green apple has arrived, and—
Fessie, 'shouted Tommy quickly. 'You should not interrupt me. Tommy, but how did you know about it?' 'I've had information, ma'am.'

I wish no pay for this poem, I remarked the long haired individual 'I secretly submit it as a compliment.' 'Then, my dear sir, permit me to return the compliment,' replied the editor, with true journalistic courtesy.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

It is a great deal better to live a holy life than to talk about it. We are told to let our light shine, and if it does, we won't need to tell anybody. The light will be its own witness. Lighthouses don't ring bells and fire cannon to call attention to their shining—they just shine!

MINARD'S LINIMENT CO., LIMITED. GENTLEMEN—I have used MINARD'S LINIMENT on my neck and in my family for years, and for the every day use and accidents of life I consider it has no equal.

I would not start on a voyage without it, if I cost a dollar a bottle. CAPT. F. R. BERNARDIN. Supt. 'Stork', St. Andre, Kamouraska.

The man in bed had never been sick before. The doctor wishing to ascertain his temperature pointed the thermometer at him and commanded: 'Open your mouth, Jim.' 'Wait a minute, Doc,' objected the patient, 'I don't believe I can swallow that.'

Tired-Out Kidneys. Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excess of eating and drinking. Care is effected not by whipping them out to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This treats the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

When the crowd assembled for their game of ball, Jimmie, the pitcher, was missing. Jimmie was sent to investigate.

'Is Jimmie at home?' asked Jimmie of the sister who answered the knock. 'Course,' answered the sister, 'they'll see his shirt on the line.'

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

The wife of a saloon-keeper said, in a tone of despair, to her negro washerwoman: 'If this town goes No License, I will not be able to pay you any more. I do not know how we can live ourselves.' The generous-hearted colored woman sympathetically answered: 'Don't you worry, honey. If your husband has to shut up his saloon my husband won't be able to get drunk, and we will have plenty, and you can come and do our washing.'

An old lady, really quite well was always complaining and enjoying poor health, as she expressed it. Her ailments were to her the most interesting topic in the world. One day a neighbor found her eating a hearty meal, and asked her how she was.

'Poor me,' I feel very well, but I always feel bad when I feel well, because I know I am going to feel worse afterward.'

No Secrets From Mother.

The moment a girl has a secret from her mother, or has a friend whom her mother does not know, she is in danger. A secret is not a good thing for a girl to have. The fewer secrets that lie in the hearts of girls, the better. She who has none of her own, is best and happiest. In girlhood hide nothing from your mother. Do nothing that if discovered by your father, would make you blush. Have no mysteries whatever. Tell those about you where you go and what you do. Those who have the right to know, we mean, of course. The girl who friskily says to her mother, 'I have been there. I met so and so. Such and such remarks were made, and this and that was done,' will be certain of receiving good advice and sympathy. If all was right, no fault will be found. If the mother knows out of great experience, that something was improper or unsuitable, she will advise against its repetition.

It is when mothers discover that their girls are hiding things from them, that they rebuke and reprimand. Innocent faults are always pardoned by a kind parent. You may not yet know girls, just what is right and what is wrong. You can not be blamed for making little mistakes; but you will not be likely to do anything very wrong if from the first, you have no secrets from mother.

Talking People Down.
To engage in the work of talking people down behind their backs is quite an ungenerous and far-reaching sort of sin as the great enemy has so far contrived. It is all very well to excuse the habit by saying that we are just dissecting our neighbors in a spirit too scientific to be unkind. The dissecting knife often slips in the unskilled hands and tongues are not apt to grow so warm that the source of their heat can hardly be doubted. The injuries results of the habits of a belittling tongue are threefold. The talker, the one talked about and the one talked to are each injured. A reputation is harmed when we use along any adverse criticism of a fellow mortal. Our own character is weakened through such speech and the mind of the listener is muddled and soiled. When some one is being pilloried for gossamerous, imagined or real, it is a corrective and kind act to say something good about him. This almost invariably will bring a gossip taste to a close. There is always room for a word of praise when the very worst are being dissected. Our life-to-day in society, in church in parliament is suffering from censorious criticism that is blind in one eye and shuts the other to any thing that is good. Over against vituperation let us put admiration. 'There is nothing more becoming than a genuine admiration and it shares this with love that it does not become contempt although misplaced.'

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

CANADIANS AND MEDICINE. It is a remark that when Dr. Osler was appointed he is a Professor of Oxford University in 1906 the report which was not true was circulated that he said that no man was any good after forty years of existence. This is a brilliant Canadian who was born in Ontario in 1849, has done more by his books and lectures to make the profession of medicine better understood and appreciated than any other man. His degrees are many and his practical experience as a student great.

CANADIANS AND INVENTION. Dr. A. Grahame Bell and the Telephone. Canada has every reason to be proud of her brilliant student in practical science—Professor A. Grahame Bell—the inventor of the telephone, which has done so much to revolutionize the social and business world. The doctor first saw the light in Edinburgh, Scotland, and came out to Canada in 1870, where he carried on his investigations that culminated not only in the great invention with which his name is associated with, but the phonograph, induction balance, and telephone probe, and with G. A. Bell's graphophone. He has made a thorough study of the education of the deaf. In recent years he has taken great interest in the laws of flight and aviation generally. This brilliant Canadian is the holder of many degrees and a number of many learned societies. His Canadian home is in Nova Scotia.

CANADIANS AND AVIATION. Vera Steffe and the Flying Machine. Canada though small in population keeps pace in the fields of effort and science and in the latest combination of both—aviation—she has produced one or two good men, probably the best known being the doubly in McCurdy, who has lately achieved a number of triumphs against the best aviators of the world. Mr. McCurdy was born in that province of nerve-producing Nova Scotia—in a little place called Bridgetown, in the year 1873.

Though still young he has already invented two successful machines—the 'Bitter Dart' and 'Balloons No. 1' (Canadians are looking forward to further triumphs from her worthy representative, in this new field.

MR. R. L. BORDEN. Canada and especially Nova Scotia lost one of its most distinguished lawyers, when Mr. R. L. Borden was made leader of the Conservative Party. The Camel and the Gnat. A Camel ambled up Parliament Hill at Ottawa, 'tother day, and stroled right through the entrance door. In the easiest sort of way. Then a gnat came along and tried the game. (Admiring the Camel's gait) But the entrance seemed to suddenly shrink. And he couldn't squeeze in at all. Of course, I mean that all this befell in an allegorical sense: To set it forth as a literal fact I make not the least pretence. But it happened, I think, when Mackenzie King brought in his important bill to prohibit white sulphur matches, which Are known some people to kill. He did, no doubt, a most useful thing when he framed that drastic law. It will probably save some human lives. From Greed's voracious maw. He stirred the hearts of the members all. With his speech on the poisonous matches. And his plea for the sacredness of life was certain their votes to catch. Down with matches that possibly kill A dozen Canadians a year, Or half a dozen, or only one— Even one is far too dear! But why hasn't parliament something to say Of the several thousands that go To their graves each year through the makers of grog. As every member must know? The poisonous match is a monstrous thing. A very Camel in size; But the Poisonous Grog is a Gnat too small To see with their naked eyes!

Bob Burdette on Beer. 'Bob Burdette' never says a dull thing, and his unique way of stating an old truth makes it shine with a new light. Even a subject as well worn as the temperance cause takes on a new sparkle when 'Bob'—excuse us, the Rev. Dr. Robert J. Burdette—tackles it. Here he pays his compliments to beer.

'My dear boy, men have fought, bled, and died, but not for beer. 'Arnold Winkelried did not throw himself upon the Austrian spears because he was ordered to close his ass at nine o'clock. 'William Tell did not hide his arrow under his vest to kill the tyrant because the edict had gone forth that the free born Switzer does not drink a keg of beer every Sunday. 'Freedom did not shriek as Kocasius ko fell over a whiskey barrel. 'Warren did not die that he might flow as the brooks murmur seven days a week. 'Even the battalions of Brandywine was not fought that whiskey might be ripe.

No clause in the Declaration of Independence declares that a Sunday-concert garden, with five brass bands and one hundred kegs of beer, is the indispensable sign of a free people, and the corner-stone of good government. 'Tee—mild, harmless, innocent tee, the much coveted at temperance beverage, the feeble drink of effeminate men and good old women—tee has a higher place, it fills a brighter, more glorious page, and is a grander figure in the history of the United States than beer. 'Men liked tee, my boy, but they hurled it into the sea in the name of liberty, and they died rather than drink it until they made it free. It seems to be worth fighting for, and the best men in the world fought for it. 'The history of the United States is incomplete with tee left out. As well might the historian omit Daniel Hall and Bunker Hill as tee. But there is no story or patriotism with tee for its hero.

'The battles of this world, my son, have been fought for grander things than tee or whiskey. The heroes who fall in the struggle for man fall short in the neck, and their martyrdom is clouded by the haunting phantoms of the jinnams. 'Whiskey makes men fight, it is true, but they usually fight other drunken men. The champion of beer does not stand in the temple of fauce, he stands in the police court. Honour never has the delirium tremens. Glorious men wear a red nose and Fame blows a horn, but never takes one.—Selected.

Seemed to Give Him a New Stomach. 'I suffered it to only after eating and no medicine or treatment I tried seemed to do any good,' writes H. M. Young, Editor of The Sun, Lake View, Ohio. 'The first few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets gave me surprising relief and the second bottle seemed to give me a new stomach and perfectly good health.' For sale by all dealers.

'This excessive beer-drinking must stop,' the Kaiser told some university students in Berlin. 'You should take up outdoor sports, as is done in England and America. Field sports and beer-drinking do not go together.'

A San Francisco doctor states that it is easy to teach animals to be fond of intoxicating liquor, and that under its influence they behave very much like human drunkards.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Sikeston, Mo.—'For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five months at a time every month and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramp and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and what had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like a new woman. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy myself. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and tell her about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is more widely and successfully used than any other remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pain, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration. If all other means have failed, why don't you try it?

CRIPPLE FROM RHEUMATISM

NOW IN PERFECT HEALTH THANKS TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 1st, 1910. 'I am well acquainted with a man, known to thousands in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster, who for nearly a year was practically a cripple from rheumatism. He was so troubled with the disease that he found it difficult to even turn over in bed. His heart appeared so weak that he could hardly walk up stairs. Last June he received a sample of "Fruit-a-tives". He used them and dates his recovery from that time. To-day, there is no man in Vancouver enjoying better health. He was building a house this fall and shingled a good part of the roof in a driving rain, without suffering any bad effects.' JOHN B. LACY. Mr. R. E. Mills, (assistant postmaster at Knowlton, Que.) also writes: 'I have believed that "Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest Rheumatism cure in the world.' Try it yourself. One box, 6 for $5.00, trial size, 35c. Attested in Book of Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.
