LORD MORDEN'S DAUGHTER — OR — THE TRAGEDY OF THE CEDARS.

CHAPTER XXXI.

"That same evening Viscount Melville alighted from a cab at the door of the mean little house in the New Cut.

He asked the man who answered his peremptory knock if Gooding & Wright had apartments there.

"I have some work for them," he explained, "and believe that this is the address they gave."

"Yes, they live here," replied the man; "but I can't say that they are both in. The old man doesn't go out much, though. What name shall I say, please?"

"It is quite immaterial. Say, you can tell them that I come from Edmund; they will understand."

"Come inside, sir," the man said, respectfully. He was somewhat overawed by the faultless attire of the stranger and the flashing gem that adorned one of the fingers of his left hand.

He hurried upstairs, but was soon back again, and invited Melville to follow him.

"Only the old man in," he said, "and he nearly jumped out of his skin when I told him that a gentleman had come from Edmund."

"Thank you," replied the viscount. "That will do. Kindly see that we are not disturbed for half an hour."

So saying, he turned the knob of Locksley's door, entered the room, and held up a warning hand to the startled occupant.

"You!" hissed Locksley. "My dear friend—peace! peace! I be to you. Do not let others into our secrets. I have come here in obedience to your son's wishes—in obedience to Edmund's wishes, and if you are wise you will at least listen to me in silence."

"I do not believe you," panted Locksley. "I do not believe one word that you say. If you have hunted me down, do not keep me in suspense; I am ready to go to prison; I am ready to stand my trial for the heinous offenses of which I have been guilty."

A look of distress passed over Melville's flexible features.

"Locksley, old friend—it is not this. I have come to save you, to save you and poor Edmund the horrors of the disgrace that must be yours and his if you will not listen."

"I am listening," replied the wretched man, "but I doubt every word that you utter."

"Were I half so bad as you believe me to be, what would be easier than a cry for the police? Your son has confidence in me, and you, above all, should pardon the sin of craving for wealth, and it is this, and this alone, that has at times killed the man within me and raised the fiend. I have wrung money from you by threats which were empty. I now plead for you to come home before the scandal has time to spread. Why sacrifice yourself, and, above all, your only child, for one who has been dead for many years? It cannot benefit him, it cannot benefit any one, but will scatter untold misery about your own hearthstone. Make all the restitution you please in a monetary sense—return all you have taken, every penny; but, for Heaven's sake, drop the mad, the quixotic notion yourself as a murderer!"

"It is too late," groaned Locksley. "I have sent full particulars to my lawyers."

"No, it is not too late, old friend. I anticipated that you would do something of this kind, and went to the lawyers at once. I believed that you were mad when you disappeared in the night, and I declared that you were so to them. I begged of them to regard your raving as worthless, and your papers were sent to me unopened."

"I believe that you are right, Melville," Locksley said, at length, "and I know that you are not now plotting for money. You cannot be. By this stroke you lose all."

He was silent for a little while, then asked:

"Why did my son not come to me again? Will he ever forgive me, Melville? Think of it, Melville! I took the life of his wife's father!"

"And is it to be trumpeted to the world? Is she to know it? Never, Locksley, never!"

He spoke with a fervor that carried conviction of his sincerity to the heart of the vacillating old man.

"And the money you have hoarded, my old friend—the money is all here, and Edmund's! Do you not see how happily all may yet end? Ah! if you had but trusted me, even your son might never have known—might never have suffered one pang by knowing that which carries evil wherever it be spread."

He took Locksley's hand, and it was not withdrawn from his grasp; he smiled to think that the magnetic power he had exercised over this man was not yet dead.

"I promised Edmund that I would take you back to 'The Cedars' with me, if you were well enough to travel. The poor boy was sorely stricken by the confession you made to him, but places implicit trust and confidence in me now, as he did in the old days."

"I do not think I can go with you now, Melville, unless my boy is waiting for me," said Locksley. "My man is away—by man Peters."

"Peters! Ah, I understand that he had remained firm to his old allegiance. He must be well rewarded for this, Locksley. True friends are few and far between."

"Peters is as true as steel."

"And you have told him all."

"I have."

Melville bit his lip.

"I am sorry for that," he said. "I do not doubt the man's honesty, but his mind is hardly of the caliber to give valuable advice to his master. I do not think that Peters holds me in very high favor, but if you will speak to him, Locksley, and refute some of the dreadful things that have been laid to my charge, I may rise in the faithful fellow's estimation."

"I will not forget this, Melville. I believe that I must have been mad to act as I have done; but I thought you wanted me dead, and I was afraid of dying with so much on my soul."

He shed a few weak tears, and the viscount placed before him a pencil and sheet of note paper.

"Write a few words to Peters," he said. "Tell him that you have gone back home, and say that he is to follow you."

"I would prefer to wait for him," objected Locksley.

"Then I will make myself content for a while," smiled Melville. "Though it is rather hard on my cabman, and Edmund promised to wait until nine for you."

"Is he not staying at 'The Cedars'?"

"You forget, old friend, that your son is married; that he has a home of his own. A pretty place it is, too, at Richmond. Lady Clare and I visited him yesterday."

Melville seated himself at the window and pretended to be absorbed in a newspaper, while he watched his victim narrowly.

"If Edmund is waiting, I think a note to Peters will suffice," Locksley muttered at length. "I promised Peters that I would never leave this house under any pretext, without him."

Melville did not reply, and Locksley wrote a few words on the paper before him, saying:

"I am ready, Melville—I am ready. I have told Peters to follow me to 'The Cedars' the moment he returns."

"That is right!" assented the viscount.

Then he assisted the old man into his coat and they went downstairs together.

The cab was waiting at a dark corner, and the viscount smiled when he handed Locksley into it.

He sat down beside his companion and shouted to the driver the word: "Home!"

The horse plunged forward under the lash of the whip, then reared, for a firm grasp had seized the reins near to the bit, and a savage voice, the voice of Peters, demanded:

"What is the meaning of this? Where are you going to, master?"

"It is all right, Peters; I am going back home. Edmund has sent for me, and I have left a note asking you to follow at once."

NATURE'S LAW.

Well you can argue 'till the crack of doom
And point your fingers to the stubborn facts,
But unconcerned the roses come to bloom
And silently the law of nature acts.

'Tis long admitted two and two make four,
Thistles breed thistles whereso'er they grow,
Chance does not bring contentment to your door,
Fate is not fashioned by the dice you throw.

Folly and trouble travel hand in hand,
Wisdom is never easy to attain;
Who builds his castle on the shifting sand
Shall have but loss and wreckage for his gain.

For ages long despair has followed sin;
Grim nature sets her price and takes it, too;
However much the shameful seem to win
Only the strong shall see the battle through.

The wisest children come from parents wise,
On honest conduct happiness depends,
That blissful ignorance which blinds men's eyes
In sorrow and disaster always ends.

What Crime Costs

Statistics have been compiled by financial houses, assurance companies, and chambers of commerce which give the immense total of twenty million pounds as the annual toll exacted by all kinds of criminal procedure.

"Long-firm frands" and fraudulent bankruptcies, by which manufacturers and agents are swindled by men who open business never meaning to pay for the goods they secure, account for £10,000,000 of the total.

Forgeries, embezzlements, and fraudulent dealings in shares amount to another £2,500,000. Burglary, house-breaking, and pocket-picking account for more than £2,000,000. Half a million pounds' worth of property was stolen last year in London alone; and the proceeds of robberies in the next ten largest cities of the country reached £750,000.

Vast sums are lost by railway pilfering and the stealing of goods in transit, although this class of crime is steadily decreasing owing to the efficiency of the railway police and detective services.

World's Biggest Family

What is known as the Fellowship of the British Empire Exhibition has been brought into prominence again by the re-opening of the great exhibition at Wembley. The movement, which has the support of the Prince of Wales, has for its object the welding of Empire-lovers into one great family, each member of which is pledged to do his or her utmost for its welfare.

It is realized that the Empire is a vast trading concern, in which we are all shareholders. Anyone can become an associate of the Fellowship by a payment of only five shillings, which entitles the subscriber to a handsome certificate signed by the Prince, a special badge, and two tickets of admission to the Exhibition. Already many people have joined, and this year it is likely that their ranks will be greatly augmented.

Lighted by the Wind

A small windmill that turns a generator provides sufficient electricity to give adequate light in every room in Mr. G. Robinson's house at Sandwich, in Kent. A five-mile-an-hour wind is sufficient to revolve the two small vanes and charge the storage batteries. The vanes are so delicately balanced on the top of a ten-foot support that the merest breath of wind will turn them round.

As much more current is made than is necessary to light the eight lamps in the house, Mr. Robinson charges his wireless accumulator with the surplus.

The whole apparatus cost only 100 pounds to install, and nothing has been spent since it was put to twelve months ago. So long as there is wind, electricity can be made.

Sugar is Real Food and is necessary alike for young and old.

Hence good Candy in reasonable quantities is beneficial for your children.

It is the sugar in candy which gives it food value, not the sometimes injurious dye used for colouring, nor the sometimes harmful synthetic flavouring.

Therefore you should take care to give only pure sugar candy to your children. It's important.

Lantic Lump Sugar

which your grocer sells in 2 pound, sealed dust proof, germ proof packages, possesses ALL the good qualities of pure candy, because it is pure wholesome cane sugar.

Your children will like Lantic Lumps and it will satisfy their natural desire for sweets.

In addition to being all that good candy can be, LANTIC LUMP SUGAR is most inexpensive and comes direct from the Refinery to your home free from contamination with anything injurious to health.

Buy a package of Lantic Lumps to-day. You'll find it handy.

WILLYS-OVERLAND.

Pres. Willys Estimates Second Quarter Earnings at $11,000,000 Before Taxes Paid and After Depreciation.

TOLEDO, May 12.—Earnings of Willys-Overland for the second quarter, before taxes and after depreciation, will exceed $11,000,000, according to an estimate by Pres. Willys, discussing the company's record. This places Overland third only to Ford and General Motors in earnings. It means that net for first six months will exceed $14,000,000, running at a rate better than Overland's best year, 1923, when net for the full year was $13,034,022, or nearly $50 a share on the 220,495 preferred shares.

Pres. Willys estimated from reports in hand that April earnings were over $4,000,000 before taxes and depreciation, and declared that May will exceed April. Sales last year were 22,000 unfiled orders on the company's books on May 1 for delivery this month. On this basis, Mr. Willys figured that Overland production in the first six months would approximate 125,000 cars.

After allowing for estimated taxes and regular preferred dividend earnings of the first half are equal to approximately $4.75 a share on 2,264,634 common shares. There are, however, approximately $30 in back dividends on preferred.

Production at Toledo and Toronto plants is averaging better than 1200 cars a day.

THE SITUATION.

The Boston News Bureau says:—The slow sag of money rates is the most hopeful factor in the entire situation. Notwithstanding the steady climb of the general security price level, continued new financing and a movement of merchandise well above normal, money is accumulating to an extent that is gradually working rates more to the advantage of the borrower.

This condition is effectively assisting in stabilizing business as several authorities pointed out it was sure to do. Metals are uniformly stronger, iron and steel prices have definitely stiffened; all along the line there is less willingness to part with raw materials at the expense of prices.

Meantime the exceptional money ease is facilitating the expansion of public utilities, is making possible a record-breaking volume of construction (April figures) and fostering forward movement wherever circumstances are propitious. There never has been a time in the history of the country when cheap money did not find an outlet somewhere.

The savings power of sundry important industries thus far this year is quite impressive. The time of year, of course, is against much of a surge right now. If business holds its own through the summer months it would be very favorable.

P. Croty, (S.I.S.); C. E. A. Jeffery, (Fellidians); W. W. Sparkes, (Guards); J. Hiscock, (C. L. B.); W. Caul, (C. C. C.); J. Newhook, (C. E. L.); L. Calvert, (St. Andrew's). The minutes of the last annual meeting were read, and as the annual reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were not ready, a general discussion took place on various matters concerning the League. A letter was received from the owners of St. George's Field, offering the grounds for the League for twelve months, beginning in November last, at double the rental, but as this figure was considered too high, a delegation was appointed, consisting of President Higgins, Messrs. T. W. Sparkes and H. C. Hayward, to call on the owners to explain matters to them. The matter of repairs was ordered to be started at once and it is hoped to have the ground in readiness early in June. In view of the increased expense it was decided that for the coming year anyone applying for the use of the ground would be asked to contribute a share of the gate receipts. An application was received from the Terra Nova team asking admittance to the League. This, with many other matters, was allowed to stand over until next meeting. The Junior League asked that they be given another playing night on the field in addition to the night they had already been given. The President of the League was present at the meeting and explained the reasons for the request, as well as giving other information which was considered very satisfactory to the Senior body. The League wished to do everything possible to encourage the Junior League. It was emphasized that if the standard of games was to be maintained, it was necessary for the League to insist on the rigid observance of rules, particularly with regard to playing substitutes, and following the schedule. Vice-President Hunt, as well as Treasurer Brien, and Secretary Harris, intimated that they would be resigning their positions this year. President Higgins also expressed a desire to retire, but the meeting pressed him to reconsider the matter. The election of officers will take place at the next meeting. After several minor matters had been disposed of, the meeting adjourned at 11.30. The meeting was very enthusiastic, and it was the hope of all that football would be brought back to the same

CANADA HORSE RACING MEET.

TORONTO, Ont., May 15.—(C. P.)—Just a week from to-morrow the curtain is rung up for the flat racing season in Ontario and Quebec under rules of the Canadian Racing Association, the opening taking place at Woodbine Park here, where the important feature is the 66th renewal of the King's Plate. While this race is confined to three-year-olds and upward, foaled, raised and trained in Ontario, it starts out in the public mind by reason of its history and associations, as the blue ribbon of the Canadian turf. The King's Plate is the oldest fixture run continuously on the continent, and consists of 50 guineas, the gift of His Majesty, with $10,000 added by the Ontario Jockey Club. Founded essentially to encourage the breeding of the thoroughbred in Ontario, $500 of the stake goes to the breeder of the winner, and when the race was won last year by H. S. Wilson's Maternal Pride, an outsider in the betting, the breeders of this filly, Messrs. Bates, of Oakville, received that sum, although they only possessed one thoroughbred mare, dam of the winner. The Queen's Plate was founded in 1859 by Queen Victoria, and was run at a mile and a half until 1887, when the distance was reduced to a mile and a quarter, to be further reduced in 1924 to a mile and a furlong, the reason being that with the late opening season the longer distance is too hard on the three-year-old colts and fillies who have not had the benefit of spring training south of the line. This follows the English tradition which confines three-year-old racing, until May, to one mile. Woodbine Park is one of the most beautiful and best equipped racing plants on the continent, and attracts therefore a large number of American owners, while the purses are on a liberal scale, another $10,000 stake being the Toronto Cup on the closing day. But the spring and autumn meetings by no means comprise all its activities on behalf of the thoroughbred, for wintered there are the thoroughbred stallions placed at disposal of Ontario breeders by the four Jockey Clubs of the Province, namely the Ontario Jockey Club, the Hamilton and Windsor Jockey Clubs, and the Niagara Racing Association of Port Erie. These stallions were purchased three years ago and are maintained at the expense of the clubs for the improvement of the light horse for saddle and remount purposes, being distributed each season throughout the rural districts of the Province. Breeding is further encouraged by offers of special prizes for their stock at the fall fairs.

level that it was a few years ago. The next meeting will be held on Wednesday night at 9 o'clock, when all matters will be finalized.

Mr. Roche is a highly qualified dispenser, and we wish him every success in his new occupation.

Local Calumnies Disproved by British Press

In the disguise of an exponent of independent opinions, The Globe has of late been indulging in a tirade of abuse of practically everything undertaken by the Government during the last session, and in a general way has been trying to convince the public that a desperate situation exists in the country.

If this journal were less chameleon like in its rapid changes, its opinions might command greater respect, and were it not for the fact that it speaks with the same voice as that which gave counsel and encouragement to the Administration which indulged in a debauchery of extravagance from which the country is only now recovering, its views on economy might carry some weight.

The only effect of these heated denunciations is to arouse the curiosity of those who read them as to the underlying motive. In December last The Globe announced in a loud voice that it had come to champion the cause of the present Opposition. Apparently its offer was not such as appealed to that party and its ardour rapidly cooled. Then it made a pronouncement to the effect that The Globe was nobody's party organ or mouth-piece. Next it evinced a decided liking for the Monroe Party, but finding that the feeling was not reciprocated, it again changed its tactics, and now, it would seem, is giving full vent to its wrath because its plans miscarried.

We have paid little attention to these outbursts because of their obvious insincerity, but when The Globe does not hesitate to make statements which are harmful in the extreme to the welfare of the country, it is time to take notice of them. In its leading article on Saturday the following remark appeared: "The various public departments are in confusion, and the financial affairs of the country particularly are in a desperately involved condition."

It is unnecessary to do more to prove the falsity of this base assertion than to quote the following from the Stock Reports in the London Daily Mail of April 30th:—

Nfld. 5 p.c., (1943) 102, 103. Is it worth while making any further comment on the nature of the loyalty possessed by the writer of that calumny, who, for no other than political reasons, is willing to broadcast such an injurious statement about his own country?

In another article headed "Why We Suffer," the Globe suggests that Lord Rothermere made damaging statements in London recently about the pulp and paper industry in Newfoundland in order "to scare off investors from our local enterprises, and thus leave the field free for the capitalization of the Rothermere project in Quebec."

Such seditious concern for Newfoundland is sheer hypocrisy on the part of a paper, which, in the same column, makes a statement that much be harmful to our credit wherever it is read. Further, is it likely that Lord Rothermere, who has so much at stake in Newfoundland in the pulp and paper industry, would be so unwise as to damage his own business? That is but a purely commercial view of the matter, but may it not be assumed that Lord Rothermere's reputation for probity may not be rated at least as high as that of his assailant?

Perhaps the best answer to this uncalculated attack on a man whose firm has done so much to build up a flourishing industry in this country is the following news clipping, which is taken also from the Daily Mail of April 30th:

NFLD PAPER IN 5-MILE REELS—DAILY MAIL DISPLAY AT WEMBLEY.

Two big reels, each bearing five miles of Daily Mail paper, will be among the exhibits in the Newfoundland section of the British Empire Exhibition this year.

The stand of the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company, Newfoundland, where the paper on which The Daily Mail is printed is made, is a novelty in itself. The pillars will be rolls of paper of various sizes, and the framework of the stand will be composed of wood pulp. A model will show the history of a newspaper from the time it is a growing tree until it is ready for delivery to the reader.

If The Globe would only show the same spirit of loyalty as those whom it assails; if it would only discard the disguise and appear under its true colours, its criticisms would not be unwelcome and might even be helpful.

Causing Annoyance

During the past few days innumerable buildings, fences, etc., in all parts of the city have been disfigured by chalk marks, evidently the work of school children. The craze is spreading like wild fire and apparently nothing will stop the evil unless the supply of chalk or crayons gives out.

Complaints have been made to the police about this annoyance but to no avail. A note of warning by school teachers, however, might have some effect.

Plans of Highroads Commission

The following plans of the Highroads Commission have been approved by the Governor in Council.

(1) To recondition and maintain the road from Cornwall Avenue to Holywood station.

(2) To recondition the road from Holywood Station to Clarke's Beach.

(3) To recondition the public road to Placentia via Salmonier and Colinet. (This road will call for extensive repair, as nothing worth while has been done to parts of it for years. It will open one of the beauty spots of the peninsula, and a great salmon and trout fishing centre.)

(4) To survey a new road from Corner Brook, Bay of Islands, to Spruce Brook, via Frenchman's Cove.

(5) To survey a new road from Port aux Basques to Little River, or St. Andrew's.

(6) To recondition the road from Little River to O'Meara's, including the completion of the large bridge over the river, and survey a new road from O'Meara's to Crabbe's or Middle Barachois.

(7) To build a new road on the North Side of Bonavista Bay, beginning at Middle Brook, Gambo, and ending at Southwest Brook of Trinity, T.B. The survey for this road has been completed.

The Highroads Commission which also assumes control of the motor car registration have adopted the following regulations:

A driver's license, heretofore six dollars is to be reduced to three dollars. This applies to both the chauffeur and the private driver. The former will be required to wear a metal badge while in charge of a car. New drivers will be subject to an examination fee of two dollars.

The registration fee for cars will be determined by the weight of the car and the horse-power of the engine. Under the old regulation the taxes applied to specific horse-power, now there is to be a tax of 50 cents per each 100 lb. weight of the car, exclusive of passengers, oil and gasoline, and an additional tax of 50 cents for each horse-power of the engine.

For motor cycles there is a straight tax of eight dollars. It has been figured out that under this new arrangement the car tax will show a slight reduction on the old rate.

Special fees, according to their combined weight and carrying capacity, will be charged for commercial vehicles, that is, motor trucks, motor buses, etc. Provision is also made for license fees for dealers in motor vehicles, service stations, etc. Other regulations deal with renewal of licenses, change of ownership of a registered car, etc. Licenses expire on March 31st of each year, and provision is made by which cars registered after the first of November in any year will be subject to only half the regular rates.

Queen's Road Congregational Church

TO CELEBRATE 150TH ANNIVERSARY.

A century and a half ago Congregationalism was first established in this city, and the pastor and people of the Queen's Road Church are preparing to celebrate the third jubilee in a fitting manner. No definite programme has been formulated as yet, but it is expected that the occasion will be marked by a visit from some distinguished Minister of the Church, with a series of meetings of a commemorative character will fill up the greater part of a week.

Last night the Rev. D. L. Nichol, who begins this week his second year as pastor, delivered a very interesting address on the foundation of the work here. The Congregational Church in St. John's is one of the four oldest in Britain's Overseas possessions. The first to be established was that at Kingsport, Nova Scotia, in 1760 fifteen years later, in 1775, the Independent Church, as it was then called, came into being here.

The records of the Church, which have been meticulously preserved, tell the story of these early days. It centres largely around one name—John Jones.

An English soldier, Jones came to Newfoundland with the Royal Artillery. His first years were spent in wickedness and sin. When the change in his life came is not recorded, but in 1775 Jones had become a new man, and with a few friends used to meet regularly in his room for prayer.

Then by permission of the Magistrate they met in the Court House, only to be ordered out by the Governor, Rear Admiral Montague. It was at this time that they decided to establish the Independent Church, and Jones' room continued to be the meeting place, until the Governor issued an order that "no townspeople were to visit Jones' room." This drove the little flock, like the Covenanters, to the open air, and without the town, with a large stone as a pulpit, Jones continued to minister. Then, despite the persecution, he was determined to build a little church, and in 1776 the first Congregational Church building was completed. They had no sooner begun to worship there, when in a rage the Governor ordered the place to be destroyed, but Jones had taken the precaution to secure proper lens of the land, and was able to resist the Governor's orders. In August 1778, to the dismay of the little Church, Jones was ordered back to England with his Regiment, and they begged him to quit the army on his arrival there and return. His ministrations having proved so acceptable, on his discharge from his regiment, he was ordered a Minister of the Gospel and returned to St. John's, where for a further twenty-one years he zealously carried on the work of God. He died in 1800. The site of his first church is now unknown, but the work begun by him has continued uninterrupted ever since. In his story the Rev. Mr. Nichol told of the terrible conditions that prevailed in St. John's in those days, and of the trials and difficulties under which religious work was carried on. Later he will deal with the history of the intervening years, a history teeming with incidents of great interest and importance in the upbuilding of this city.

Preserve Your Documentary Evidence

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

This interesting old document which is now in the archives of the Museum undoubtedly confirms the possession of the Isle of Bois in Ferryland Harbor as the property of Mr. Robert Carter in 1754.

Further traditions are mentioned regarding the right of the Carter family to fly the Man of War Flag on this Island, full particulars of which should be preserved and authenticated as a most valuable concession by the British Admiralty. Historical facts like these should not be let for tradition alone, I shall be only too pleased to preserve them, together with this old document.

Verbatim Copy of Old Document Now in the Museum, Isle An Bois in Ferryland Harbor Granted to Robert Carter.

These are to Certify that the above Island (applied?) for by Robert Carter, Esq., known by the name of Little Boy in Ferryland Harbour never was occupied by any ship to our memories to either make Fish or any other use whatever to the truth of which we are ready to make oath when required.

Given under our hands at Ferryland Harbour the 2nd of September, 1754. (Sgd.) John Molloy, Robt. Bayly (Jr.), Rich. Pasmore (Jr.), John Bonzors, Wm. Land, Peter Weston, Josias Todd, J. Carter.

(By Capt. Edw. LeCras, Commander of His Majesty's Sloop "Otter," appointed Deputy or Surrogate to Hugh Bonfoy, Esq., Governor.)

Whereas it appears by the Petition on the other side, presented to me by Robert Carter, Esq., of Ferryland, and also by the Certificate signed by the several Merchants, Commanders of Fishing Ships and Principal Inhabitants of Ferryland and the Little Island, commonly known by the name of Little Boy Islands in the said Harbour of Ferryland never was occupied by any Fishing ships or otherwise, either to make fish on or for any other use whatever, and the said Robert Carter, Esq., having set forth in his Petition that he would improve and build on the said Little Boy Islands for curing and conveniences for curing and making of Fish, provided the said Island could be secured to him as his property, and the said petition having been this day read before me in open Court in Ferryland and the question asked if any person had any claim to the Island aforesaid, or that if any one present remembered the said Island had ever been occupied by any Fishing Ship or otherwise, or if it was the Property of any Person or Persons, and as it appeared to be no persons property and that it had not been occupied in the memory of the Oldest Inhabitant in the place.

I do hereby confirm the said Little Boy Island to Robert Carter, Esq., upon condition that he improve and build the proper conveniences for curing of fish agreeable to the promise in his Petition (in the Lawful Possession of the said Island) provided that no patent were granted to any other person or persons heretofore, and all persons whatever are hereby forbid to molest or disturb him, the said Robert Carter, Esq., in the quiet and peaceable possession of the said Little Boy Island. Given under my hand on board His Majesty's Sloop "Otter" in Caplin Bay the 2nd September, 1754 and in the 23rd year of His Majesty's Reign.

(Sgd.) EDW. LE CRAS.

(By Capt. Edw. LeCras, Commander of His Majesty's Sloop "Otter," appointed Deputy or Surrogate to Hugh Bonfoy, Esq., Governor.)

Whereas, three different Petitions were this day presented in Court before me and His Majesty's Justice of the Peace for the District of Ferryland, from Mr. Robert Carter and Mr. John Molloy, setting forth that they are the principal Creditors of Henry Bowles, deceased, and have desired the remaining effects of the said Henry Bowles, deceased, may be ordered for Public Sale and the proceeds of it may go towards discharging his debts; I do order, with the advice of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace that the said effects which did belong to Henry Bowles, deceased, at the time of his decease, be immediately sold by four proper persons appointed by His Majesty's Justice of the Peace, and the produce of it, paid in equal proportions according to the debt of each Creditor.

Given under our hands, at the Court House in Ferryland the 3rd day of September, 1754.

Rogation Sunday at St. Thomas's

Yesterday, Rogation Sunday, was remarkable at St. Thomas for two weighty utterances. At the principal service, Rev. H. Pike was celebrant, and the preacher the Rector, who speaking from the text "That they may be one," gave a strong appeal for Christian unity. With the state of society as it is at present, where class distinctions are so marked, in the present conditions of politics in Europe where so little is settled and nations are reported to be arming against nations, a reunited Christendom alone seems to offer hope of the solution of differences. Unity, even organic unity, is possible without uniformity. The preacher condensed the report of the Lambeth Conference of 1920 with its appeal for unity, into nine points, which showed that the Anglican Communion at least had the matter of Christian unity at heart. The preacher urged his hearers to be prepared to sacrifice non-essentials for the common object, and to cultivate the spirit of good will to "call who profess and call themselves Christians." The sermon set some of us thinking. Difficult indeed as the question is, difficult indeed from a practical point of view, it is impossible not to see in the Malines Conversations; in the approach of the Anglican Church towards unity with the eastern; in the attempts of the Latin Church to understand and to make itself understood by the Eastern Orthodox Churches; in the High Church Movement in Germany; in the Conference on Faith and Order to be held in Sweden this summer, in the drawing together of three great Communion on a common basis in the "United Church of Canada"; in the efforts of the Nonconformists to draw together in the Old Country; in the Conferences between these Communion and ours; in the interest and help given to the building of great Churches like Liverpool and New York Cathedrals, by Christians of all names; in addresses such as those given by Bishop Manning at Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, and that given at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine (as allowed by the Lambeth Conference), by Dr. G. Campbell Morgan; Dr. Manning speaking for unity between all Christians, Protestant and Catholic based not on expediency or compromise, but on principle and on loyalty to the teaching and ideals of Our Lord, which includes, of course, the necessity of oneness in Him of all who profess themselves His disciples; it is impossible not to see in these real efforts an approach towards Christian unity.

EVENSONG.

At Evensong Rev. Henry Uphill occupied the pulpit he had so often occupied in years gone by. Mr. Uphill began by saying how grateful he was to be back in St. John's and at the Church to which he first came as curate. He spoke with appreciation of the many greetings he had been given from old friends on the street and otherwise. Continuing, he said that the greatest need of the present is a knowledge of God, and of His Son Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ is first the Son of God. This is His highest title, and it is possible to get in touch with Him as such. But this title is one that belongs to Heaven rather than to earth. He is also Son of Mary, member of a human family. And the preacher showed how Jesus loved his mother, and provided for her, especially when on the Cross He gave her to St. John as his mother. And he put in a plea for increased love and devotion to Mary, Christ's Mother and ours. And Jesus is also Son of God. He was a real patriot, as we should be. Jesus loved the Jewish nation and its Church. Not that this Anglican Church holds all the truth, to the exclusion of other communions, but because she stands in the central position, with her right hand stretched out to our Roman brethren, and her left to the Nonconformist Christians, and may be the means of drawing both together into one. But Jesus Christ cannot be confined to one family or even to one nation or religious communion. He is preeminently Son of Man. When our hearts beat or minds think, in all the vicissitudes of life, in all conditions and circumstances, Christ by virtue of the Incarnation is Son of Man. Let us on this Rogation Sunday pray as we have never prayed before that God will reveal Himself to us through His Son Jesus Christ; Son of Mary; Son of David; Son of Man.

A large congregation was present.

5,000 Pounds for a Suit

The first piece of gold found in Australia was discovered by a native, a bushman. Seeing his master counting a lot of sovereigns, he said he had found a piece of yellow stuff which he had hidden and would bring to his master if he would give him a new suit of corduroys. The bargain was struck, after which the man went away and returned with a lump of Golconda weighing 166-lb. and valued at £5,077 5s. 6d.

Treat for High School Pupils

After a very successful term the night school, for boys and young men of the city conducted at the Star Hall, is now being closed. On Wednesday night, through the courtesy of the Star of the Sea Ladies' Auxiliary, the pupils will be given a treat, which promises to be an enjoyable affair. They will assemble at the rooms at six o'clock and the entertainment will begin an hour later, when supper will be served, following which there will be other attractions, so that an evening of general enjoyment is promised. It is hoped that all pupils will be present.

A concert and dance is being held at the Star Hall to-night, the proceeds of which will be devoted to paying the expenses in connection with running the school. The first part of the evening's programme will be a concert in which some of the city's leading talents will take part, and which promises to be a feast of music and song. This will be followed by a dance. The music will be supplied by the Mount Cabrel Band, who have prepared a special programme of the latest dance hits.

His Lordship Bishop March

VISITS HOLYROOD TO ADMINISTER THE SACRAMENT OF CONFIRMATION.

Saturday morning Bishop March visited Holyrood to administer the Sacrament of Confirmation to a number of candidates who for sometime past had undergone a course of special instruction at the hands of their pastor, Fr. Finn, and their teachers. On the arrival of the morning train from Carboner Fr. Finn was in waiting with a motor car to meet his distinguished guest, and to convey him to the Presbytery for a short rest and luncheon. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the confirmation classes of the five schools of the parish had assembled in the church for examination by his Lordship. The candidates were put through a searching test and passed as fittingly prepared to worthily receive the great Sacrament of Confirmation.

On Sunday morning at 8 o'clock Fr. Finn celebrated Mass at which the children to be confirmed received Holy Communion. The Bishop officiated at last Mass, and so large was the congregation that the spacious church was thronged to the doors by young and old from all sections of the parish who could possibly come to witness this imposing ceremony of the Catholic Church. Mass being finished, the Bishop, vested in his pontifical robes, and Crozier in hand, briefly addressed himself to the candidates, and lucidly and concisely explained to them the nature and effects of the Sacrament they had been prepared for and were about to receive. Assisted by the Pastor, Fr. Finn, he then confirmed one hundred and fifty children.

After Confirmation his Lordship preached an eloquent oration on the Sacrament of Confirmation, and aimed in a strikingly powerful degree to awaken in parents a sense of the terrible responsibility resting upon them before God in connection with the new soldiers of Christ whom he had enlisted to-day. He concluded his masterly discourse with a very happy reference to parochial affairs. He congratulated the good pastor, Fr. Finn and his people on the noble efforts they had made since his last visit in making so many parish improvements. He recognized that a handsome and up-to-date Presbytery had been erected. He had heard a fine bell ring out this morning, and noticed that a new set of Stations of the cross and costly statuary has been recently set up, all outstanding monuments of generous and willing co-operation between the pastor and the people who had made great sacrifices to help to build the fine substantial church, which for spaciousness and stability could compare favorably with any in his diocese. He encouraged the same united efforts between pastor and people to continue, and he felt that ere long the church would be finished and furnished interiorly when he hoped to return to dedicate the good work of both pastor and people to Almighty God.

The Bishop of Hr. Grace appears to be in the best of health, and well fitted to undertake the arduous duties of his episcopal visitation at present to all the parishes of Conception Bay, and later continue it to the northern bays. He was the guest of Fr. Finn until Monday morning when he made a short run into the city on business, and returned to Hr. Grace by the afternoon train.

Harbor Grace Notes

The Novelty Entertainers Company have been in town during the week, and have drawn quite a crowd at their performances on Wednesday and Thursday nights in the British Hall. This Company is in conjunction with the Arlie Marks Players, who have been playing for the last ten weeks or so, at the Casino Theatre, St. John's. This morning they gave an exhibition just opposite the Post Office. They visited Carbonar on Monday and Tuesday nights, and will now go on to other places.

Mrs. James Telfer (nee Miss Annie Rogers) arrived here recently from Montreal on a visit to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Rogers, Mrs. Kenneth Rogers and little girl, Elleen, also arrived by the same train from Montreal, on a visit to her mother, Mrs. I. Pumphrey. Their many friends are pleased to see them this way again.

Mr. Lewis, of the Imperial Cable Service, together with his wife, and sixteen month's old little daughter, arrived by the "Digby" and came here on Saturday week to join the Company's staff at its local office. We extend a welcome to the new arrivals, and trust that their stay amongst us will be a pleasant one.

Dr. W. S. Goodwin, and assistant, Mr. Wm. Stevenson, who have been for the last few weeks on a professional visit to Bonavista and vicinity, arrived back to town again on Saturday last.

Const. Graham Trickett of Belleoram, who had been to St. John's on duty, came here on Thursday last, and spent a few days in town. His old friends were pleased to see him. He returned to his station again by the S. S. "Fortia."

Mr. Nicholas Thomey, who has been working at Deer Lake, arrived in town last week, on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Thomey.

The body of the late Mrs. (Capt.) Stephen Hawkins, who passed away recently at St. John's, was brought on here by Monday afternoon's train for burial. The funeral was held from the station, after the arrival of the train, and service was conducted at Christ Church by Rev. Mr. Cracknell. The cortege then wended its way to the Church of England Cemetery, where all that was mortal of a truly good woman was laid to rest. To her sons, Mr. E. Hawkins, of the city, Mr. Frank R. Hawkins, of Brocton, Mass., and daughter, Mrs. John Weir, of the city, her many relatives and numerous friends we extend sympathy in their hour of sorrow.

The first prize of $1,000 for the total catch in the Dalon Ladies' Association sweepstake has been claimed by Mr. Thomas M. Bouman, of Little Bay, and a cheque has been forwarded to the lucky winner.

Messrs. E. Hawkins, J. Weir, J. J. Rendell and J. C. Oke, who arrived by Monday's train to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Hawkins, returned to St. John's by Monday evening's train.

Big Banner Week at the Casino Theatre

ARLIE MARKS PLAYERS IN "ARE YOU A MASON" TO-NIGHT.

This is a banner week at the Casino and the Arlie Marks Players, who are now nearing the end of the most successful dramatic engagement in twenty years are offering this week four of the biggest successes known to the play-loving public namely to-night only "Are You A Mason." Tuesday night "The Sidewalks of New York" Wednesday night "Mother's Irish Rose" and Thursday, Friday and Saturday that greatest of all meta-dramatic masterpieces "The Rosary".

To-night's play "Are You A Mason" is one brimful of real live comedy with plenty of sensations and profusely interesting. This comedy is not of the ordinary slap-stick nature but is one continuous laugh and the person who can't laugh after seeing "Are You A Mason" had better consult a Doctor.

The ever popular Scotch Lads and Lassies are back with us again and will appear to-night in a new and snappy review. Besides this many other vaudeville numbers will be featured. Don't fail to secure your seats early for "The Sidewalks of New York" in which a number of local boys and girls are appearing. It will be played one night only.

Settlement of Roumanian Commercial Debts

A settlement has been arranged of the commercial debts of Roumanian companies, firms, and persons due to British creditors, and a law was promulgated on March 10th of this year, giving to that agreement the force of law in Roumania. According to advices received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service, the scheme embodied in the agreement will cover all debts of Roumanian companies, firms and persons due to be paid in sterling or foreign currency to British creditors, resulting from debts incurred before November 11, 1918. British creditors waive all interest due since August, 1914 and in future, and accept in full settlement a composition of 35 p.c. minimum in sterling of the original debt which is due to be paid in fourteen half-yearly instalments. The agreement is obligatory on all Roumanian debtors.

In connection with the above settlement, it may be noted that the Roumanian Bonds held here were dealt with two years ago in an agreement between the British and Roumanian Governments and by which our claim £192,000 principal and $46,000 interest was incorporated with that of Canada. A special tax in Roumania is earmarked for the liquidation of the principal and interest. The latter is being received by local holders of the bonds since October, 1923, payment being at the rate of 4 p.c. per annum. Our bonds according to the arrangement mature in 40 years and are protected by a sinking fund of 2½ p.c. in the British Overseas Bank.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

WHY CALL IT TRAGIC?

In our newspaper the other morning was an account of the sudden death of a middle aged woman as she sat at the wheel learning to drive a new car.

As we commented on the day's news someone said: "Wasn't that dreadfully sad about Mrs. J? What a tragic way to die!"

Carelessly I agreed, as we often do, without thinking, but afterward my mind went back to my own agreement, and condemned it.

Isn't it the Happiest Way? We are apt to think of sudden death as tragic, but is it after all? Isn't it really much the easiest and happiest way to pass from one state to another?

I don't want to die (for the most part, that is—with me, as with everyone—there are moments when death and peace seem synonymous), but even so I am more afraid of dying than of death.

I know that some time I am going to pass into another state of being, and I think it will be very interesting to find myself in that new land, and how the answer to the riddle over which men have puzzled, wondered and guessed since the first man saw his companion depart to that "bourne from which no traveler returns." Have you not sometimes thought to yourself that the fool who died yesterday is wiser about the riddle of life than the wisest man who still lives?

The Real Tragedy.
But however reconciled I am to death (chiefly I suppose because I think of it as so far off that it doesn't worry me) I still hate the idea of dying, especially if that dying is to be long drawn out, if it is to mean weakness, pain, the loss of one power after another, the wearing thin of one's patience, and perhaps, most tragic of all, the patience of those who love one.

"What shall I do with me?" wrote Sarah Orne Jewett to one of her friends during her long drawn out last illness. To me that is one of the most pathetic plaints I have ever heard.

Why, then, waste pity on those who pass in the midst of happiness and health to the new country, swiftly and painlessly?

I remember that the same sort of thing was said of the sudden death of one of New York's Society women who was stricken while playing golf as she stood ready to play her ball on the ninth tee. I think it was a beautiful way to die.

But Their Grief Must Be Outweighed.
Of course there is the religious aspect of it, but I could never feel that any preparation for death except the preparation we make in our living from day to day, really counts. For the people who are left, of course, sudden death is tragic. It is them for whom I am sorry. But however deeply they feel the sense of incompleteness, surely that grief must be outweighed by their joy for those who have been allowed a swift and easy journey instead of a long and painful one.

Originals Arrive in Town To-day

OPEN AT NICKEL TO-NIGHT.
Canada's brilliant soldier entertainers, "The Originals," (Old Dumbells) arrived in town to-day to commence their week's engagement at the Nickel Theatre to-night, in their latest and greatest musical knockout called, "Stepping Out." Alterations have been made on the stage of the Nickel to accommodate this talented organization which will give one of the most unusual and unique performances ever seen in this city.

The cast of soldier stars include:—Gene Pearson, the "Male Gull Currier" and now the world's foremost impersonator of beautiful women, who has some stunning Parisian costumes; Bob Anderson, the imitable Lancashire comedian, who keeps his audiences in roars of laughter; Alan Murray, who originates all the dances of the show; Bertram Langley, the famous bass singer; Jerry Brayford, the much talked of tenor; Norman A. Blume, an old music hall favorite of the Old Country halls; Thomas Dunn, the much heralded new baritone; Jimmy MacDonald and Gus McKinnon, the two newcomers to the Company this season; Leonard Young, the art director and who plays the role of the "Duchess," in the hilarious skit "The Duchess Performs"; and Frederick Gordon, who directs the musical destinies of the revue.

The organization is under the management of H. P. Campbell, who is greatly responsible for the tremendous success and popularity that the Originals have enjoyed everywhere they have appeared.

Woman Always Pays, Supposedly

"What makes you look so fatigued?" was asked of an undersized Arkansas citizen the other day.

"Well, it's like this," he replied. "My wife is walking to reduce, and the only time she can do it without attracting the attention of the neighbors is in the evening. She then insists that I go along, even if I am tired. The past two weeks I have lost eight pounds and she has gained two ounces."—Arkansas City (Kan.) Traveler.

THE PEDDLER.

There is a peddling stranger seeks my shack and shows me, in three trices, the shining doodads in his pack, all sold at bankrupt prices. I'm sorely tempted, for a time, to yield me to his pleading, and spend a nickel or a dime for junk I'm sorely needing. He'll sell a Jimmy for a plunk, a blackjack for a shilling; who would not have such useful junk when prices are so thrilling? But reason turns temptation down: I say, with naught of malice, "I buy my goods of Brick & Brown, who run our great trade palace. Oh, peddler, mark our noble streets, with concrete curb and gutter; and see pon park with iron seats and costly trees." I mutter: "behold our rinks and swimming pools, to public use devoted; behold our churches and our schools, with priests and teachers noted. Our peddlers ever are at hand where criminals would rally; and you may hear our village band play 'Sally in Our Alley.' We have a town that holds its grip on all that's great and growing; how much, oh peddler, do you chip to keep these things a-going? You come and cut a swath to-day, and you are gone to-morrow, and those who buy your traps and pay will doubtless sup with sorrow. If there's a movement in the town that calls for coin in cases, we always know that Brick & Brown will dig with cheerful faces. They help to raise the teachers' pay; they help to pay the rector, and load their money on a dray when comes the tax collector. If you come here and settle down and pay your share of taxes, I may go back on Brick & Brown, and buy your battle-axes."

WALT MATON

for junk I'm sorely needing. He'll sell a Jimmy for a plunk, a blackjack for a shilling; who would not have such useful junk when prices are so thrilling? But reason turns temptation down: I say, with naught of malice, "I buy my goods of Brick & Brown, who run our great trade palace. Oh, peddler, mark our noble streets, with concrete curb and gutter; and see pon park with iron seats and costly trees." I mutter: "behold our rinks and swimming pools, to public use devoted; behold our churches and our schools, with priests and teachers noted. Our peddlers ever are at hand where criminals would rally; and you may hear our village band play 'Sally in Our Alley.' We have a town that holds its grip on all that's great and growing; how much, oh peddler, do you chip to keep these things a-going? You come and cut a swath to-day, and you are gone to-morrow, and those who buy your traps and pay will doubtless sup with sorrow. If there's a movement in the town that calls for coin in cases, we always know that Brick & Brown will dig with cheerful faces. They help to raise the teachers' pay; they help to pay the rector, and load their money on a dray when comes the tax collector. If you come here and settle down and pay your share of taxes, I may go back on Brick & Brown, and buy your battle-axes."

Our Friendship With U.S.

MR. BALDWIN RECALLS A POIGNANT WAR SCENE.

Mr. Baldwin, the Prime Minister, at the sixth annual dinner of the members of the British War Missions to the United States in London on April 29th, said the bond uniting Britain and the United States was a very special bond.

"We are, as it were, comrades in arms," he continued, "because our friendship began and gathered strength, and was cemented almost within sound of the guns of the great war."

The Fiery Furnace.

After describing the deep and profound silence of the crowds in Horse Guards parade when the first American troops marched through London during the war, he said:

I wondered how the fight looked to them. I thought of the homes from which they had come, the strangeness of the surroundings to them, their feeling of fresh enthusiasm, our feeling of warm but grim determination begotten of the three years of hell through which we had passed, and I could not help feeling how little in the triumph of that march they could realize what that fiery furnace was towards which they were going, and from which few of those early regiments could ever hope to return.

It seemed to me then as impossible to cheer as I always find it impossible to applaud when I have heard the most beautiful music that stirs the soul rather than the head.

We thought then much of our combined and united influence on the world. Possibly the freshness of that feeling, it may be in both countries, has to some extent evaporated in the strenuous years of peace of peace which have followed. But there is just as much need, if not more need, today, for the understanding, for the co-operation, and for that mutual help, as much need as ever there was in the time of the war.

Friendship at the best of times was fragile. It would not run along of itself. Friendships required care and consideration. He added:

"Whatever else may happen, whatever misfortune may befall your country or my own, the peace and friendship which now exist between the two countries will be, as it shall be my desire to make them, perpetual" those are the words of Abraham Lincoln. (Cheers.) Since those words were uttered we have passed through Armageddon together. May the friendship between the two nations, based on mutual knowledge and understanding, be perpetuated for the benefit of the whole of the world.—Daily Mail.

Little Jack Rabbit
by David Cory
"Dear me, I hope Mother is all right," thought Little Jack Rabbit, although he had already said it aloud in the last story, you remember, Little Reader, as he hopped quickly along the Shady Forest Trail.
"What's your hurry?" asked Squirrel Nutcracker, looking down from his neat bungalow in the treetop.
"Danny Fox gave Mother a dreadful fright while I was away," answered the little bunny. "I'm hurrying home," and away he went faster than ever.
"What's the matter?" asked Chippy Chipmunk, as the bunny sped by the little chipmunk's burrow under the roots of the Big Chestnut Tree.
"Don't stop me," shouted back the anxious little rabbit. "Mother has had a dreadful fright," and away he went, even faster than before. By and by, after a while and a hop and a mule, but never a smile, for the poor little rabbit grew more anxious at every jump, he reached the Sunny Meadow. Squeezing through the Old Rail Fence he sped down the Old Cow Path, clipperty clip, lipperty lip and in a few minutes he was hopping up the winding path through the 'bramble bushes."
"Mother, mother!" he shouted, hopping up on the back porch and into the kitchen. The next minute he was in Lady Love's arms. Yes, in mother's arms. The dearest place in all the world.
"Yes, we had a wonderful time with that old fox in the kitchen," sighed Cousin Cottontail, as she finished telling the bunny boy all that had happened while he had been away.
Then, like a sensible rabbit lady, she put on her bonnet and black silk mitts and kissed Lady Love and the bunny boy goodby. "I declare, I've forgotten what I came over for," she sighed, as she opened the door.
"A pinch of salt," answered Lady Love. "Dear me, no wonder we forgot it. That dreadful fox has put every idea out of my head. I couldn't say the alphabet I'm so nervous."
"There, there," said Mrs. Cottontail, tucking the small package of salt in her vanity bag. "forget what has happened," and away she hopped back to her comfortable bungalow under the Old Brush Heap on the hillside.
Just then Tiny Miss Cricket and the Three Little Grasshoppers began to sing and play. They had hidden their faces when the old fox had crept toward Lady Love. They couldn't bear to see that pretty little rabbit thrown into an empty sack. But now that all worry was over, they sang and filled till the neat little kitchen was filled with music.
Pretty soon the Canary Bird from her gilded cage over the red geraniums in the green box at the window sill, began to chirp and trill, happy that danger was past. And, would you believe it, the next minute the Cuckoo Bird from her little Clock Mouse on the wall, shouted right out loud:

"Danny Fox with his bushy tail. Must sweep his cell in the Rabbitville jail."
And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Countess Sent to Prison
FOR EIGHT YEARS FOR SHOOTING HER HUSBAND.
St. Briec, France, May 11—Countess De Kernion yesterday was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment for shooting her husband. The shooting occurred August 2, 1924, and the Count died ten days later.
The convicted woman was a former singer in cabarets in Northern Africa. She shot her husband when he refused to sign deeds of his property over to her, complaining that he was dissipating his patrimony with a young woman.

Headset and Loud Speaker Polarity
EDITED BY JOHN N. CLAYTON.
If you have a neutrodyne receiver or any receiver using a two-stage audio-frequency amplifier, the direct current from your B battery through the headset or loudspeaker is comparatively large. This is especially so if you are using a high plate voltage on your amplifier tubes. In fact the current drawn from the battery and flowing through the headset is likely to be so high that it will ultimately weaken the magnetism of the magnets in the headset, if the current is not flowing in the proper direction through the headset. If flowing in the wrong direction the magnetic field set up in the coils of the headset is in the opposite direction to the field of the magnets themselves. These two fields tend to buck each other, and if this is allowed to go on very long the magnetism of the headset will be considerably weakened.
For this reason a number of headset manufacturers supply their headsets with cords whose two terminal wires have "tracer" wires in them. Usually the red tracer is standard. The other wire may have a green, white yellow or brown tracer. The red tracer terminal should be connected to the B battery and the other terminal toward the plate of the last tube.

upper spring to the plate. This calls for the red tracer of the headset being connected to the sleeve of the plug. The sleeve is the part of the plug which makes contact with the frame of the jack, and it is insulated by a small bushing from the tip, or round terminal at the end of the plug. The tip should be connected to the other tracer wire.
It is well worth while to have these connections properly poled. In addition to lengthening the life of the magnets in the headset in a number of cases with the correct polarity the magnets are actually strengthened and signals will be louder.

At St. Patrick's Church

At 10.30 Mass at St. Patrick's Church yesterday, an impressive sermon was delivered by Rev. Fr. Adventist Church

A deep impression was made at the Adventist Church last evening. The speaker's subject was, "The change of the Sabbath. Was it by Divine Authority?" Based on Heb. 13:8, "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, to-day and forever." "This being true," said Elder Manuel, "the law which He gave must remain unchanged, and the Sabbath, in reality, can no more be changed than God Himself can change. It is just as true to-day as it ever was that 'the seventh day (of the weekly circle) is the Sabbath of the Lord Thy God.'"

"Many have been led to believe that Jesus came to change the law and to put us under a different rule. Not so. The words of Christ are very plain on this point. He says, 'Think not that I am come to destroy the law or the prophets. I am not come to destroy but to fulfil. . . till Heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law till all (things in the universe) be fulfilled.' (Matt. 5:17, 18). Again He says, 'It is easier for Heaven and earth to pass than for one tittle of the law to fall.' (Luke 16:17). It is hard to understand how the fourth Commandment could be made to read, 'The first day is the Christian Sabbath' without changing and destroying many 'jots' and 'tittles' of that command. Heaven and earth have not passed yet.

"Jesus came to earth not as a law-giver but as a teacher of the law. It was His delight to keep the law. It was written in His heart. He kept the Sabbath law and left us an example that 'we should keep it as He did.'"

"If we break the Sabbath or any other command of God we commit sin, 'for sin is the transgression of the law.' (1 John 3:4). Jesus lived a life of obedience and finally yielded up his life on the Cross to vindicate the character of the law He kept.

"But all should know that Sunday is not the day that Jesus kept when on earth. He kept the seventh day according to the commandment which is Saturday and not Sunday. Many Sunday observers admit that there is nothing in the New Testament to warrant the change that has been brought about. In a work entitled, 'The Ten Commandments,' P. 50, G. Campbell Morgan says: 'Much has been made of the attitude of Christ in speech and deed toward the Sabbath. Some have imagined that by words He uttered or by deeds He did He relaxed the binding nature of the old command. This view, however, is to absolutely misunderstand and misinterpret the doings and teachings of Jesus.'"

"Another well known in religious circles says, 'There is no word, no hint in the New Testament about abstaining from work on Sunday. . . into the rest of Sunday no divine law enters. The observance of Ash Wednesday or Lent stand on exactly the same footing as the observance of Sunday.' (Canon Ebyon P.P. 42, 63, 65.)"

"The speaker made an earnest appeal to those who had not done so, to give their lives to God, to accept Jesus as their Saviour and to walk in the way of God's Commandments. In response fifteen arose and pressed their way to the front to seek God. The meeting closed with an earnest prayer season, and the evening will long be remembered by those who attended the service.

Thos. Meighan at the Majestic To-Day

BIG PROGRAM OF FEATURES AND MUSIC.

When Thomas Meighan's latest George Ade Paramount picture story, "Woman-Proof," is flashed on the screen of the Majestic to-night, the spectators will see a genuine explosion of nearly seven thousand cases of dynamite which was used in the blasting of a thirteen-mile tunnel at Huntington Lake, Cal., where work on the biggest hydro-electric project in the world, involving the expenditure of $27,000,000, was in progress at the time the picture was filmed.

This tunnel passes through a mountain, making the waters of Huntington Lake available for electric power.

Mr. Meighan plays the role of a civil engineer who is supervising this huge industrial scheme. In the picture, the tunnel is supposed to cave in, entombing scores of workmen. The rescue of these men forms some of the most thrilling scenes in the picture. The picture was directed by Alfred E. Green. The following are the supporting players: Lila Lee, leading woman; Robert Agnew, Charles A. Selton, Vera Reynolds, Bill Gonder and Mike Donnell.

Adams & Cheney, the musical marvels, are determined to outdo all previous records and create a still greater impression of their talent, when to-night they submit the following programme:—

1. Liebestreu, Kresler.
2. "Poker Song."
3. Parade of the Wooden Soldiers.
4. Medley of Liza Opera Airs, V. Herbert.
5. Popular Medley.

"This is a programme that will please even the most critical. The suggestion has been offered and wisely so, that patrons should make it a special effort to attend as early as possible, as very often, those who come whilst the concert programme is in progress, distract somewhat the attention of the audiences. In submitting this programme, the public are assured of a treat.

Why, of Course

If you want GOOD Clothes go to a GOOD Tailor. There is where you get good material, good fit and Clothes that look as if they were made for YOU, and not for the other fellow.
The Ready-to-Wear! Yes, of course. They were made for the one who buys them, very seldom for the one who fits them.
But be careful and go to a good tailor. It's cheaper and better.
SPURRELL'S are good, reliable tailors, and you make no mistake in going there.

TO YOUNG MEN!

This is specially addressed to the young men who are following the trend of style especially as regards trousers. If you want the bell bottom trousers, with or without cuff, here is the place to get them; we are making and have made recently some splendid examples of this style. This also applies to the straight hanging English trousers hanging free from the hips to the cuff; with plenty of room at knees and bottom.
