SWEPT BY A TEMPEST

Scores Of Lives Lost.

MILLIONS IN PROPERTY DESTROYED.

Seaside Visitors Have Exciting Experiences—Houses Carried Away and Many Vessels Wrecked.

NEW YORK, September 10.—Coney Island today is a scene of wreck and desolation, and nearly one-half of the island, east of the Iron pier, is submerged, and the high tide and heavy surf are playing havoc with the remaining portion. The greatest tide that has ever been experienced struck the island at six o'clock this morning and increased in volume and fury long past eight o'clock.

The little strip of land between Brighton and Manhattan has been eaten away and the ocean and Canarsie Bay is connected by fully five feet of water, extending to Sheepshead Bay. The Manhattan and Oriental hotels stand by themselves on a little island that is fast being eaten up. The old Marine railway structure was carried away early to-day.

The angry waves were breaking in deafening roar under the elevated railroad station and fairs are entertained for its safety. The little engine house beneath the station is covered nearly to the roof with water. The race course was two feet deep with muddy water, and the jockeys and spectators were panic stricken.

The entire Canarsie is inundated and the pavement torn up. The main road by the Oceanous is submerged, and nearly every street within 5,000 feet of the beach formerly is flooded. No such time has ever been experienced in the history of the island.

GREAT RACE HORSES IN PERIL.

At five o'clock this morning a trainer at the Brighton Beach race track noticed the water pouring into the track from the south-west end. He mounted a horse and gave the alarm just in time. The southern portion of the track was already in a narrow channel.

The rest of the island was in just as bad shape as the Brighton track, but after the alarm sounded every person in danger managed to escape, and so far as known no lives were lost.

KILLED AND DROWNED.

Two men were drowned during the storm by the capsizing of a boat on the North river. A man was swept off a roof in Brooklyn by the wind and killed.

J. T. Kelly, aged 25, son of Eugene Kelly, the New York banker, was blown from the platform of a train on the D. L. & W. railway, near Newark, N. J., and killed.

At South Beach, Staten Island, the high water has wrecked a number of buildings. The houses at Wave Crest Point are completely surrounded by water. The Ocean Crest hotel, fully 4,000 feet from the sea, is now on the edge of a miniature ocean.

She is ill of water. The crew were safely landed. The worst storm in five years prevails here. The schooner Charles P. Stokely, from Philadelphia for Norfolk, has dragged ashore in the harbor, and is apparently full of water.

LAUREL, Del., September 11.—MIDNIGHT. Advice from Delaware Breakwater say that the storm raging for the past three days is the most furious known in the history of the place. At least two score vessels are beached. Both wooden piers were washed away.

The beach from Rehoboth to Lewes is strewn with wrecks. It is thought that at least fifty lives were lost. Men were seen clinging to the rigging of sinking vessels frantically yelling for help.

The bodies were washed ashore this morning and were buried in the sand. The loss to vessel property at the Breakwater will reach, it is thought, $5,000,000.

The storm continues with unabated fury. LEWES, Del., September 11.—The wind blew a gale all day yesterday and last night, and still blowing. The tide is the highest since 1867. Telegraphic communication with the Breakwater is destroyed.

The schooner J. & L. Bryan sank up the bay last night. The mate and one colored seaman are the only survivors. The schooner Kate E. Morse and Walter F. Parker have sunk at Fourteen Foot bank.

Among other damage reported at Rockaway was the loss of a two-masted schooner which was wrecked in Goose channel. No one had seen any sailors from it, and the belief was that the crew of the vessel must have been lost.

The village of Carteret is submerged and the people had to seek shelter in the upper portions of their dwellings. All the numerous factories and all works on the shores of Staten Island Sound are completely surrounded by a vast lake of water.

PHILADELPHIA, September 11.—From Bay Head to Barnegat City, N. J., the damage by wind and waves has been unprecedented in the history of the coast.

Holly beach, Anglesses, Sea Isle City, Ocean City and Avalon are unapproachable by rail. Along the Anglesses and Avalon branches of the West Jersey railroad the rail is badly washed away and probably no rail communication can be had for three or four days.

At Manhattan the bridge has been damaged and fears are felt for the safety of the draw tender, who is a prisoner in his frail house on the bridge. He cannot reach shore and no boat can reach him, as the sea is running too high.

SANDY HOOK MADE AN ISLAND.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., September 11.—Last night was a night of terror here. The surf thundered away on the east side and on the west, the water in the Shrewsbury river rapidly overflowed into the streets, flooding the houses and stores.

Several bodies have been seen floating in the surf, but no one could recover them. All the cottages north of here have vacated their houses, and are at the hotels here and at Red Bank and Long Branch.

NEW YORK, September 11.—The situation along the New Jersey coast, from Sandy Hook as far south as Seabright, is very serious. Between Galilee and Seabright, the Jersey Central railroad track, badly washed out yesterday, was repaired this morning, but was again wrecked at 10 o'clock and all trains stopped.

PHILADELPHIA, September 12.—The 10,000 permanent residents and 10,000 hotel guests at Atlantic City are panic-stricken at the steady encroachment of the sea. Not a train can reach the storm beleaguered city for fully a week.

OUR YOUNG MEN.

Age Counsel from an English Prelate—Where Truth is Found—The Firm Rock of Catholic Faith.

At the tenth annual conference of the Young Men's Catholic societies of Great Britain, which was held at Hull, England, on August 4 and 5, Right Rev. Dr. Lacey, Bishop of Hull, gave some good advice to the delegates in his address of welcome.

The Bishop then, taking as his text the words of the day's Gospel, "The children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light," proceeded to comment on the parable of the unjust steward.

ONE OF THE GREAT SOCIAL DIFFICULTIES of the day was what to do with the masses of our poor; and in consequence of the neglect of this Gospel principle, and those who have riches in abundance closing up their hearts and hands, the result is an uprising of society, called Socialism—men combining together to help, but not in the Gospel spirit, upon people sharing with them the goods they possess in abundance.

But we had other gifts of a higher order than those he alluded to, which were more material goods; we had a soul. He supposed all men were agreed that there was no gift to the world so high and noble as the gift of mind.

HAD WE NO RESPONSIBILITY? Our reason, our mind, was created for truth, to know the truth, and our will was created to embrace, to love the truth.

THE REASON OR INTELLIGENCE God gave us, was God's gift, and the day would come when Christ would demand from us an account of how we have used this reason of ours.

TURNING TO THEM, CATHOLICS, he said they knew by Divine certainty that they possessed the truth in being members of the Catholic Church; but did they follow it, embrace it, practice it? A shadow of doubt never crossed their minds because they had been instructed and understood their Faith; but did they practice it, or did they become proud or indifferent, and did they imagine that the name of Catholic would suffice for them?

PURGATORY.

What Does Christian Art Tell About It?

Purgatory is, now, essentially the same as at the time of our Lord's descent into the regions of patient hope, of holy expectation. There is pain, bliss—and both inexpressible—in that world whose sojourners, each and all, have looked upon the face of Christ in the flames of their happy judgment; for that face has beamed forth peace, joy, the sure hope of a blissful immortality.

It is in this we see expressed in a picture of our own day by Steiner, and engraved for the Dusseldorf series of religious prints. On each hand we see caves, from which issue flames, while from the flames press forward eager figures, young, old, religious and secular.

But in a low light, like that of a wallower, above the oval of flame and the waiting souls, floats an angel bearing in his arms a released soul. On that face, the hands clasped so meekly on that peaceful breast, there is only gratitude; gratitude so deep, as to be like an ocean rippling softly under the full moon.

THE SISTERS OF MERCY IN AMERICA.

Ireland's Teachers and Missionaries at the Ends of the Earth.

The third volume of "Leaves from the Annals of the Sisters of Mercy," from the ever delightful pen of Mother Mary Austin Carroll, Sisterhood in Newfoundland and the United States. To American readers at least, this is the most fascinating book of a series which has enjoyed an extraordinary popularity. It will be read with pleasure not only in the Convent of Mercy at other convents throughout the country; but in the thousands of homes which have given beloved daughters to this truly apostolic institute.

They worked in the new land in the spirit in which she herself would have labored. Very pleasant are the character sketches of the pioneer Bishops and Priests of Newfoundland, realistic representations of the Militant Church as they are needed to be. The figure of the great Bishop Mullock stands out in strong relief. The simple and kindly life of the Catholic people is also brightly sketched.

Of the American foundations the first, Pittsburgh, with its marvellous present day development, is, perhaps, the most striking. Mother Francis Xavier Ward, one of Mother McAuley's first companions was the pioneer Sister of Mercy in the United States. She founded the Sisterhood in the Diocese of Pittsburgh, Pa., in Chicago, in various other sections, and finally in Manchester, N. H., where she ended her long and fruitful career a few years ago.

Although the murder discovered this morning in the Whitechapel street is generally accepted as the work of Jack the Ripper, a close examination of all the facts leads to the conclusion that this murder is not one of the Ripper series. The police and medical men familiar with the details of the recent London horrors of this class say that this particular murder must be classified with those known as the embankment murders, of which there have now been four in all, including the one in which the headless body of the victim was discovered in Chelsea and in which the head has never been found.

Falsifiers at Work.

It would seem to be the special object of some people, at the present moment, to set about all kinds of disturbing rumors, for the purpose of breeding religious animosities in our community.

Cardinal Manning's Great Achievement.

The great London strike has come to an end. For weeks past the business of the greatest city in the world was paralyzed, owing to a conflict between capital and labor.

The Dominion Finances.

The statement of revenue and expenditure for the fiscal year of 1889, based on returns received up to August 31, stands thus:—Revenue, $38,175,929; expenditure, $36,712,504; surplus, $1,463,425.

of Cardinal Manning has not all the ghastly glare of war to bring it into bold relief, but it has the incalculable mass of having re-established peace between two elements that for three weeks have been growing at each other, in anticipation of a life or death conflict.

The Pope and Giordano Bruno.

The insult and indignity showered upon our Holy Father the Pope by a mob of howling atheists and freemasons, who, under the very shadow of the Vatican, erected a monument to Giordano Bruno, the vilest of apostates, has aroused the righteous indignation of the Catholic people the world over.

This week we publish a pastoral by Cardinal Gibbons on this most infamous piece of idolatry in which he recommends the prayers of the faithful in connection with the Pope's protest. In the several churches of this city, too, on Sunday last a pastoral letter of a similar character from Archbishop Fabre was read in which His Grace recommended that public prayers be offered in all the churches of the archdiocese on Sunday next, the feast of the Seven Dolours of the Blessed Virgin to the intention of the Holy Father.

An Archbishop's Appeal.

The Important Day Approaching Without Sign of Excitement.

Sarcasm.

The Lindsay Canadian Post has been poking fun at its local contemporary during the past week. The efforts of one party to down the Mowat Government and of the other to make mince-meat of the Dominion Cabinet make interesting reading for the impartial observer when the grounds in either case are carefully sifted.

THE IRISH UNIVERSITY.

Balfour Trevelyan When he finds Coercion fails.

In the last number of United Ireland, just to hand, we find the following able criticism of Balfour's scheme to endow an Irish Catholic University. It shows up clearly the motives of the Irish Chief Secretary to make such a move and cannot but prove interesting at the present time:

Of one thing we may be certain: Mr. Balfour means no service to Irish Nationality or Irish Nationalism by his original confession of the justice of the Irish Catholics' claim to a Catholic University. His policy for Ireland was Coercion, for ever and ever, and nothing but the whole white stick and nothing but the stick, was his recipe.

PARNELL ON POLITICAL PRISONERS.

The Irish Leader's Unanswerable Indictment of Balfourian Brutality—An Inhuman System.

Just before prorogation, Mr. Parnell in the House of Commons said: "It is a curious thing, but not the less true, that only in this country have there been exceptional rules, regulations, and privileges embodied in statute form for the benefit of political prisoners."
