Nine of the twelve men empaneled to try Mrs. Minnie Turner in the criminal assizes would have acquitted her of the charge of having performed an illegal operation upon Rose Winters last August. Three men stood out

This was at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon after just 4 hours and 35 minutes' deliberation upon the evidence.

On the first ballot, taken immediately after leaving the court room at 10.25 o'clock in the morning the jurors stood six to six. Those for acquittal gradually won over three upon the ground of doubt, but when finally asked by Chancellor Boyd if it would be possible for them to arrive at a verdict should they be given more time, their foreman replied, "No, my lord, it is hopeless."

Momentarily expecting an explosion with its horrible consequences the men started panic-stricken, for the entry at Charlerol, seven miles away. In their frenzy they stumbled and fell, but only to jump up again and continue their mad rush for safety.

When Baron Rosen, the Russian ambassador to the United States was instructed to ask for a permit for Diatchkoff to join Admiral Evans, he declined on the ground that he knew this request would be unfavorably received at Washington. Thereupon the Russian admiralty, after further correspondence withthe foreign office, instructed Diatchkoff to apply personally to Secretary of the United States Navy Metcalf. This the officer did, but in vain. He was thereupon ordered to follow the fieet as closely as he could, making use of private steamers.

Tom Phillips, the big salaried left wing of the Ottawa hockey team, will be attached to the 43rd D.C.O.R. for the winter classes. Must sound funny to refer to him as Lieut. Phillips to those who are wont to regard the ex-Ke for star as having few interests outside of the ice arera. But Tom is a soldier and as much a big gun in the militia as he is on the firing line of a hockey sever.

Tom Phillips, for two years has held a commission with the 36th Lake Superior Regiment, with headquarters at Port Arthur, Ont. He has been two years at camp as subaltern of No. 6 company recruited from Kenora, of which Tom Hooper, his old team mate, who is now with the Wanderers, is also lieutenant. Both officers were in camp at Port Arthur last summer.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY TO FURNITURE BUYERS

THE CELEBRATED KENDAL SOMER-SAULT DAVENPORT BED TO BE SOLD AT CUT PRICES

The Kendal Davenport Bed has been the most talked of and sought after in the entire furniture world. Ever since it came on the market the press of the United States and Canada have commented most freely on its usefulness and beauty, and it is now acknowledged to be the most convenient and useful piece of furniture in the folding bed line that was ever manufactured. In view of this the announcement that we will sell these Davenports for the next few days at cut prices should bring crowds to this store. Never before have these Davenports been sold at the figures we have placed on them for this sale, and it is only because we have obtained a large quantity of them at a special price that we are able to do it. Whether you intend to buy or not we want you to come and see the many novel features of this bed, and no matter what purchases you may make you will find our EASY CREDIT PLAN at your service as it always was and always will be. The cuts below show the different ways in which this Davenport may be used.

Last year our imports from France amounted to $7,698,000, and the balance of trade, according to Mr. Ames, is likely to go still greater against us under this treaty. Now a great deal of the export trade from France is in articles of high value. They are bought in compara-tively small quantities, they are shipshipped by express. Rub to a smooth paste six tablespoonfuls of grated, unsweetened chocolate, with enough cold milk to moisten well. Have ready a saucepan containing two cupfuls of boiling water and the same quantity of warmed milk. Stir into this the chocolate paste and boil, stirring often, for twenty minutes, in a double kettle. Sweeten in the cups to the drinker's taste.

Lay upon the surface of each cupful a heaping teaspoonful of whipped cream. Milled Chocolate.

This is the French epicure's favorite breakfast beverage. Rub the chocolate to a paste with cold water and put it over the fire in the water alone.

Bread-Making Will "Mrs. D.," of Niagara Falls, accept my recipe for bread-making?

At noon, dissolve one-half a fresh yeast cake in half a cup of lukewarm water. To one cupful of finely mashed potatoes add two cupfuls of tepid water, and str in the yeast.

Beat thoroughly and set in a warm place to rise. At night set a sponge with this mixture in a two-quart bucket. Keep out of draughts, and reasonably warm.

Next morning, scald two cups of sweet milk and put it into the bread pan, with two cups of cold water and half a teaspoonful of baking soda. Now, the sponge goes in, with enough flour for a good dough. Set to rise again until light.

Keep it out of draughts, but not too warm.

Keep it out of draughts, but not too warm.

This is the base for any kind of bread. I use neither butter nor sugar, and but little sait. The dough must be kneaded thoroughly and until it leaves the board or tray bare without sticking. Then, you may roll it out and add cleaned and dried currants and raisins; knead again and set for another rising.

When light make into rolls or small loaves, and let them get very light, lighter than ordinary bread.

It is my way to use two kinds of flourhard, and then a soft wheat flour. I make the sponge of the soft, and knead stiff with the hard.

You may sweeten the dough to taste before putting any flour in the sponge. You may also add the fruit then if it is easier. Here is the recipe for Washington pie for which somebody asked awhile ago:

Washington Pie. One cup of sugar: one of flour and one teaspoonful of baking powder—sifted together in a big bowl. Make a hole in the middle, and break into it four eggs without separating whites and volks.

Beat all thoroughly until smooth, and add six tablespoonfuls of boiling water, one at a time. Roll into a thick sheet and bake. Split open and fill with this mixture: Beat two eggs light: heat a pint of milk and half a cup of sugar, together with a table-spoonful of corn starch wet up in a little cold milk.

I have no recipe for gluten bread which I can confidently recommend. I have made it when it was prescribed for an invalid, but it was not palatable or good to look at.

Will somebody let us know if the gluten bread sold by bakers deserves the name, or if it is a composite production?

How may it be made at home of a quality that will rank it with breads that are both pleasant to the taste and nutritious?

In AN issue of the exchange, now some weeks old, we noticed an inquiry from "Mrs. J. S." respecting woven silk portieres. Am I intruding in saying a word that may help her?

They have proved so satisfactory that I think "Mrs. J. S." will find that the weaver's directions, if obeyed faithfully, will result in her having a pair of beautiful curtains.

Our strips were cut about three-quarters of an inch wide, the width depending upon the weight of the silk. Then we were careful to make two balls of one kind at the same time, so that the stripes would match when the curtains were hung together.

If I can be of any assistance to "Mrs. J. S." I shall be glad to communicate with her soon, as the work required to prepare the silks takes some time, and it would be a pity were the curtains unsatisfactory. K. W. (Pensacola, Fla.).

We will, for the sake of argument, suppose that John's grown-up tastes have not changed in twenty years.
May I, as his wife's well-wisher and one who, like himself, was "raised" at the South, lend a hand on the corn bread question?

This was the way my old coffee-colored mammy made cornmeal pone:

A quart of water-ground cornmeal was wet up with cold water, salted to taste (some cooks put in no salt), shortened with a little melted lard or dripping, and formed with the hands into thin, oblong cakes. These were laid upon a well-greased pan—or griddle or "hoe"—and baked rapidly.

The practiced cook moulded the dough into oval mounds, shaping them dexterously and lightly by tossing the dough over and over. ing the dough over and over.

The pone is served hot, and broken, never cut.

I like it still!

It is never lacking from the dinner table when I am the guest in Old Virginia. But I have yet to see the white cook who could make the genuine "pone" as it should be made and baked.

I have half a dozen recipes for make I have half a dozen recipes for mak-I have half a dozen recipes for making as many kinds of bread out of southern cornmeal. But I hold my hand that other and, mayhap, more skilful cooks may contribute to John's comfort. Mincemeat Recipe

It is superscribed "Use Soon!" in blue pencil. The one and only reason it has not appeared is the want of room. I would fain keep up with the procession of letters if I could. Pray accept the apology, exculpate me and find herewith the old recipe:

Boil a good piece of lean beef the day before the mincemeat is to be made.

Next day chop it fine, cleaning it of all bits of skin and gristle, and mix with twice its weight of fine, juicy, tart apples, also chopped.

Have ready four pounds of the mixture of meat and apples in the proportions I have named; three pounds of currants, thoroughly cleaned, washed and dried; a scant pound of suet, cleared of strings and minced to powder; one pound of sultana raisins; three-quarters of a pound of citron, shredded fine; two tablespoonfuls each of clnnamon and of mace (ground); one tablespoonful each of cloves and of nutmeg: a tablespoonful of fine salt; two and a half pounds of best brown sugar; a quart of brown sherry and one pint of the best brandy.

Mincemeat, compounded according to this venerable recipe, is warranted to this venerable recipe, is warranted to parts, covered with oiled silk and set in a cool place.

It is troublesome and not cheap, but no better pies were ever eaten. Make it at least two weeks before it is to be used and let it ripen.

ed. The court adjourned to-day over the Russian New Year, before reaching the most vital point in the testimony, namely, Gen. Stoessel's motive in opening the negotiations of capitulation. Stoessel is expected to address the court personally on his own behalf concerning this point.

Col. Kvlostoff, a member of General Smirnoff's staff, who participated in the negotiations, testified to-day that the Japanese conditions had been accepted without discussion, as there was no time to consider individually the various points made. He said he gained the impression that the parleyings were merely a cover to a pre-arranged surrender, and that when, to his amazement, he saw the white flag sent in, he asked the bearer what was the purpose of his mission. He was told "to convey greetings of the New Year to Gen. Nogi."

The testimony of other officers was more favorable to Gen. Stoessel. Col. Colitzynsky, commander of the fort called the Eagle's Nest, maintained that the fall of this fort spelled the end of Port Arthur, as this position was the highest point of all the fortifications and commanded every other defence.

LANCASTER CASE Cadets Borrow and Lend in Free and Easy Style.

KINGSTON, Jan. 18.—(Special).—In egard to the Lancaster case, it may not e generally known that the cadets borow and lend in free and easy style from row and lend in free and easy style from each other daily. One would never dream of waiting till a fellow cadet came in to ask him to lend him this or that article; they simply take it and expect the same liberty on their side.

That Lancaster's action, of taking another cadet's cigaret case with a few cigarets, should be regarded as stealing is about as ridiculous as it is unwarrantable. Cadets do that every day, and a good deal more, but there is the feeling of good fellowship existing between them and they never think anything about it. The hounding of young Lancaster by the commandant is openly criticized and condemned.

With the excellent services provided by the Federal-Houlder-Shire Lines the export trade to New Zealand and Australia has developed very satisfactorily, and will develop still further when the steamers are able to make when the steamers are able to make Manchester their last loading port.
But the homeward cargoes to Manchester have been dlisappointingly meagre, and but for the wool imported for Yorkshire firms would have been scarcely worth bringing direct.
The fact seems to be that the development of any considerable trade in colonial produce in Manchester incolonial produce in Manchester in-volves the breaking of new ground volves the breaking of new ground and the making of new arrangements by the great wholesale houses, and enterprise of this kind is always very difficult to stimulate. Nevertheless the field is so well worth cultivating that sooner or later importers in a position to undertake its exploitation on an adequate scale will turn their attention to it seriously and build up a very profitable trade.

The Wall-street market has been highly irregular the last few days. It was intimated a week ago in these columns that from this forward it would be exceedingly difficult to exact profits out of the market. The history of the fluctuations on the exchange for the week easily confirms this forecast. Operations for a rise in the market were conducted for upwards of two months before the publice became convinced that such was really in effect. In-and-out traders endeavored to fight the advance and succumbed to the superior ability of the Morgans and other cliques who are always in control of the market. It was not until recently that the outsider reversed his position and endeavored to exact profits by purchases, but no sooner had this become effective than prices immediately began to waver and a new condition had to be faced. When it is thoroly understood that a complete record of daily transactions is constantly in the hands of the New York insiders, it will be readily understood why the change in the procedure of the market has gone into effect.

At the same tion is concerned, gradual progress is being made towards a normal position. One by one the weak elements are being sifted out, and the position strengthened thereby. The unfortunate conclusion to the career of the sovereign Bank was not announced until the end of the week, but the Toronto stock market and the Montreal market also evidenced that something unusual was pending earlier in the week, when an unexplained liquidation developed in some of the speculative stocks. Altho excellent arrangements have been completed for the winding up of the Sovereign Bank, it cannot be concluded that the event will pass without causing further commotion in financial circles. The effect, however, has been moderated to a very large extent by the liquidation which has already gone on in the markets, and in the more substantial shares there is no apparent reason to expect that they will suffer.

Smelters had its volume day on Thursday, declining on securities syndicate necessities. Fifty-eight rails, tractions and industrials advanced, 23 were unchanged and 22 declined. Bonds were more active with much brighter surroundings. Favorable aspects appeared in the Harriman question case and the coal land segregation matter. President Finley of the Southern Railway and J. P. Morgan expressed bullish regarding general business. Next week we should begin to hear of resumed business and better conditions in iron and steel. The next general bull point may be complete retiring of clearing house certificates. The Bank of England may reduce its rate. There has been nothing the matter with the country except lack of credit and confluence. All indications are that this has been corrected and everything will improve.

Sellers-Gough Are Strong.

Sellers-Gough hockey team played their first same of the season in the City League at Old Orchard Rink Friday night. The furriers have got a fast bunch together and will be heard from before the season closes. They have the weak spots of last year's team filled in with Ryan, Layden and McGill, and the work of the whole team against the Crescent's Friday night, which they defeated 7—1, will answer for itself. The whole team played clean fast hockey. Layden at gover-point made some clever rushes that feculted in a score every time. Ryan if goal took all that came his way with ease. The teams lined up as follows:

Crescents: P. Driscoll, Munter, F. Driscoll, Cummings, T. Driscoll, McPherson, Lambert.

Sellers-Gough: Ryan, Currie, Layden.

Can hockey be doped out? If so, the TORONTO JUNCTION, Jan. 18.—Topresent indications are that the race for honors in the western division of the senter O.H.A. will be between Stratford and the Toronto Athletic Club. Berlin defeated Gait in the latter place by 5 goals to 8 and Stratford trimmed Berlin on their own ice by 10 to 4. If dope runs true, the Indians should have no difficulty in disposing of Galt in both sames, which, with the two games they are almost sure to win from Berlin, would place them in a good position towards the winning of the district honors. The Toronto athletic Club defeated Galt in Toronto athletic Club defeated Galt in Toronto on soft ice by 11 goals to 7, with Bill Twaits off. If they can repeat the trick in Galt and trim Berlin both games, it will be necessary for Stratford to defeat them twice in order to capture the district champlonship. Dope does not always figure out correctly, and there may be a number of changes before a month has passed, but at the present time is can easily be seen that the T. A. C. will be the only serious proposition which the Indians will have to meet.—Stratford Beacon.

The league will be wise if they take the precautionary measures themselves to prevent outside enthusiasts or reckless members from bringing discredit to the traffic.

The question of good roads is being mooted by every county council, and the use of these roads by motorists seems to be a bone of contention to the rate-payers. This brings up the question of taxation on automobiles, which makes the discussion of Lord Breadalbane on the Scottish situation of peculiar interest. In writing to The Scotsman recently he suggested that a toll should be enforced on all motors entering the county, the motors being divided into two classes—those of one ton and until the tolls at the entrance to a county, the tolls at the entrance to a county, the tolls at the entrance to a county possibly, in the event of an adjoining county taking up the scheme, one toll-bar would be sufficient for the two counties, which would, of course, lessen the cost of the would not press upon doctors and others using motors in their own counties and where they pay rates.

"I am aware that a suggestion was made that the main roads of the country should be, so to speak, treated as made that the main roads of the country should be kept up by the county; but I am afraid that no chancellor of the exchequer would look favorably upon such a scheme, and, moreover, such a one would certainly meet with considerable opposition from the thousands of ratepayers all over Britain who are not motorists. It therefore appears to me that this scheme is scarcely would look favorably upon such a scheme, one toll-bar would be sufficient for the two counties, which would, of course, lessen the cost of the would, of course, lessen the cost of the scheme, one toll-bar would be sufficient for the two counties, which would, of course, lessen the cost of the scheme, one toll-bar would be sufficient for the two counties.

That the old reliable Ford is going to get into Ontario's business in dead earnest is apparent from the preparations being made at their new salesrooms on Adelaide-street west.

Mr. Frederick I. Fox, familiarly known as Fritz, has been doing things there. He has a vision of future usefulness to the Ford people, and these warerooms are to be fitted up with all conveniences for the owners of cars, Indeed this opinion seems to be the general to propose to the county in Scotland as they do in the way the registered, in the way the registered in the sale of the county in Scotland as they do in England.

Commemorating Birthday of the Bard Robert Burns

An Appreciation of the Great Scottish Poet Whose Genius Appeals as Strongly To-day as Ever to All Classes the World over.-By Flora McD. Denison.

"Ring out, oh, bells, your peaceful bars,
As each birth-morn returns;
And write athwart the eternal stars The natal day of Burns."

On Jan. 25, 1759, in a little clay cottage a couple of miles from the Town of Ayr, Scotland's Greatest, was born. After 149 years his birthday is celebrated more universally than that of any other human being, and why? Because, wherever he is read he is loved. Because every writer of note has been inspired to write his ablest and best when singing his praises Because he believed in and loved men, women and children, and not because they lived in palaces and had titles. He believed in the dignity of labor, and made the cotter a king and the peasant a prince with his genius. Burns knew values and was brave enough to recognize worth under rags and despise hypocrisy and

Man / Good Inventions

The New 1 ear should congratulate itself on getting thru without being bilious over the usual big meal of resolutions, motions and proposals served up by the newly-elected city fathers.

Now that these aspiring civic legislators have freed themselves from ourdens of good intentions and promises, it will be worth while to the burdens of good int watch and see which of them do not retire to peaceful and happy slumber before January has stumbled out.

Bachelors, Beware!

Fate never strikes any one such a hard blow that recovery is impossible. Therefore even the girls have some chances left. They have at last come into a rich heritage of opportunities.

This is leap year, and the young lady who has been dreading to approach the autumn of life without "a worse half" is privileged to so marshal her feminine charms as to capture that fellow who has always escaped her.

catch unsuspecting men in any kind of a snare which the ingenuity of Bachelors had better go out accompanied by a body guard.

Between the Shivers

Those who want to sit down one of these chilly winter nights and wonder why they have empty pockets and seedy clothes should read, as an aid to reflection, of the man away east at Danvers, Mass. He retired last week from the humble position of teamster for a wire company. He is now ninety years of age and has accumulated $50,000.

This amount was saved from his wages of $12 a week. He had been in the employ of the company for the last forty years, and in that time had not been absent from work for a single day. It might give some men, who are lovers of idleness, mental paralysis to figure out how any person could save $50,000, on less than $5000 a year, but it has been done. The worker who did it can now retire and live the sunset of his life in ease and luxury. While he is enjoying himself the prodigal sons, the intemperate, the indolent, the dishonest, the spendthrifts can sit down, shudder in the chilly night and wonder over it all.

A Suggestion for Girls

"Lady and gentleman, living central, want general servant. Wages $15 month; no washing."

This is the wording of an advertisement which appeared in the daily papers of Toronto last week. It is only one of many of the same kind offering as good conditions, as good wages.

Fifteen dollars a month in a fine home with board and many favors. which may come as a reward for diligent service, is at least equal to $25 a month straight wages, perhaps $30.

Girls in this city who are toiling eight and nine hours a day in stuffy. crowded shops and factories, should study this matter. They may earn from $3 to $6 a week or from $12 to $24 a month, but out of these wages board, room rent, laundry bills and sundry expenses must be paid. Which girl is better off, the one who gets $15 a month, a home and a good living or the one who gets even $25 a month and has to spend $20 of it to exist under conditions which are often detrimental to character and Moral reformers should deal with this phase of modern life.

One Hundred Years Hence

A writer in Harper's Weekly proposes a "correspondence school for editors" as an agreeable and refreshing means by which the routine of returning the manuscripts of unfortunate authors might be varied. The usual methods employed in returning rejected manuscripts are notoriously humdrum, he holds, and might well be given a little originality and new-

It is evident from the article that the writer never occupied an editor's chair long enough to get thoroly initiated into the multitudinous duties of a man who directs and edits a large newspaper or magazine of to-day. If he has filled such a position we are justified in holding our own opinions as to how long he remained there if he gave his attention to writing essays and limericks to accompany manuscripts he returned. Editors who even return everything they do not use without writing a six-worded "regret letter" should be patted on the back. The waste-will only go out as much sympathy as goes out to anyone band what could she expect? She bought a title, and that who is in distress, regardless of whether that distress is the direct consequence of the sufferer's only folly and vanity.

Looking over the list of marriages between heiresses of the United States and titled foreigners, it is at once apparen that few, indeed, have been successful, according to the public's view. Fewer still have been happy. Most of them have been scandalous failures, because the matches were made thru the petty workings of social ambition on one side and greed for wealth on the other.

Miss Thaw must have known what everyone else knew that the Earl of Yarmouth came to this side of the Atlantic for the purpose of finding a rich woman whom he could marry. He did not conceal his purpose, nor the business nature of his mission. The negotiations about the marriage settlement were conducted on a purely mercenary basis by lawyers of the two families. The attribute of love, which is supposed to be at least honorably mentioned, was entirely left out in the cold.

Like many another woman, the countess has learned, to her sorrow, that affection is necessary to happy and respectable marriage. When matrimony is reduced to business the participants can look for nothing more, nothing less than what comes in business deals.

Women should learn from this blighted romance the wisdom of avoiding vain strivings after social bubbles

It is worthy of note in this respect that a new unit, to be known as the South African Organization Union, has come into existence. Its aims are to bring the Dutch and English together to work for the advancement of South Africa, by the develop ment of trade with Great Britain and the colonies, and to establish the political future on a strong basis thru the federation of the different states.

Such an organization should be a powerful factor i assisting with the work of the agents-general. It should be the friendly co-operator, and not the rival, of existing South African societies.

An enormous field is open in these directions. The agricultural possibilities of South Africa are greatly under- Isles.

If the commercial prosperity of South Africa is not as | rated. No country, perhaps, grows better maize, the fruit is equal in flavor and quality to anything of the kind grown for export.

> There can be no real fusion of Dutch and English no real prospect of a united South Africa under the British flag, until both races are animated by the same ambitions, and are impelled to work together for the furtherance of common interests. A better knowledge of each other will do much to bring the two peoples together, and it is to be hoped that the new organization will succeed in

In addition to materially benefiting Africa the accomplishment of such a task would serve to make a colony better known amongst its sister colonies and to the British

What Does it Matter?

The main thing is to cure it.

Yet nine persons out of ten, when they perceive that you have a cold, become immediately inquisitive as to how you got it. They guess, and wonder, and speculate, and ask questions until the quizzing becomes more annoying

What is the root of this almost universal curiosity about the origin of a cold? Probably in the instinct for making conversation. The persons who ask the question usually do not really care to know how you caught cold, but they friendship.—San Francisco Bulletin.

There is nothing to be said about a cold Everybody knows how to cure a cold. To say that one is sorry a friend has a cold is flat and obvious. The only way of showing any friendly interest in the matter, therefore, is to make the sufferer rack his brains to remember whether he sat in a draught, or went out immediately after taking a hot bath, or changed at the wrong time from heavy to light clothing. It is hard on the sufferer, but that is part of the price that one must pay for the inestimable pearl of

The Moan of the Wind

There was mockery in its sound and ice in its breath. It answered the sighs of suffering hearts and the aches of hunger with a sudden gust as if tortured by the continuous mourning and wailing of the starving home. "The wind doesn't care for us!" said the oldest on hearing that there would be no bread till the morrow.

"I think it does, dearie," smiled the heroic mother. "I fancied the

"Pity's cold, then."

"Quite true, my lad, when it has nothing in its hands. But when father comes home the tune of the wind may change."

"God has not forgotten us, bairn. We will hope on."

"If God has not, then man has. Listen to the wind again, mother, The mother touched tenderly and fearfully the last bit of coal in the grate. The window-panes shook and rattled, and there was a sigh from the little ones in the shack. The brave soul rose and smiled at the desolate place once named a cupboard. To-night it was empty, or, rather, it was filled with Want. Hunger and an empty cupboard are the parents of despair.

The poet saw such a picture as this when he wrote:

"Sad mothers mourning o'er their trust, Children by want and misery nursed, Tasting life's bitter cup at first."

And it is a picture that Salvation Army officers meet by hundreds in the life of the underworld.

"Shut it out, darling! The walls are not thick enough to deaden the sound. We must have stronger casements, a double set of curtains. and a wider, thicker screen. . . It howls so; it gets on one's nerves. We must have wood as well as coal to make that fire burn. I can't bear to hear the wind. It seems to mock one."

"A mere fancy, my dear. It is but an atmospherical disturbance that will pass away when the dry air regains its proper place."

"All the same, it is very disagreeable, and we must provide against these disturbances. It will cost but a few pounds." "Yes, only a few pounds."

"Which will make all the difference between comfort and discom fort. One's home ought tot be wind and water tight."

"Yes, but it is an exceptionally fierce night—bad for the mariner at sea. Our daily paper will be miserable reading to-morrow. Did you hear that loud blast? It must indeed be a wretched night for people in want."

But this was the bare tribute paid that bleak night, in that great house, tot the cry of the poor. Only the wind was remembered—the fireless and foodless were forgotten.

Not all homes are like these, but who will say that the picture is

"We must do something, captain; I can't sleep. The cry of the wind is the call of God to me!"

The speakers were officers in the Salvation Army Settlement on the borders of Hungerland.

"What if Mrs. Faith's husband fails to get that job?" "If he doesn't get it there will be no wages and therefore no food. Shall I go and see?"

"No; we will go together."

And the human souls broke away from their well-earned repose, and tot the tune of the calling wind, ran as angels of Life and Hope. And, next day, the eldest said, "Mother, you were right! God has not forgotten us and the wind seems to sing a happier tune to-day."

True, it was not much that the twin-souls of pity had to offer. But they came to the house of want with hands full of blessing, and it was sufficient to change the name and look to the cupboard and turn the sighs of the shack into song.

> "Nothing fails of its end. Out of sight sinks the stone In the deep sea of time, but the circles sweep on. Till the low-rippled murmurs along the shores run. And the dark and dead waters leap glad in the sun."

While the contented, prosperous portion of the world runs merrily on, heeding not the cry of the poor and the wicked in low places, the humble workers in the great army go out to give cheer and clothing. The cold winds moan, but they cannot prevail against this brotherhood of man Few seriously think of what a work this vast organization is doing in the undercurrent of life.

Echoing Thru the Years

There is scarcely a person of fair education in the English-speaking world who does not often recall "The Cotter's Saturday Night," when a week of toil and worry is ended. Nor is there a student of sociology but reflects many times on the crystallized philosophy of "For a that and a' that." If he be a lover of the lyric he will repeat "Flow Gently, Sweet Aften" or "Ye Banks and Braes:" if a communicant with nature the lines of "To a Mountain Daisy," "A Winter Night," or "The Posie, will give spirit to his musings; if an enthusiast of narratives in verse he will revel in "Tam o'Shanter," and if a disciple of trite sayings he will turn to the epigrams and find such caustic ryhmes as this written to magnify the insolence of a judiciary lord: "How daur ve ca' me howlet-faced.

Ye ugly glowering spectre? My face was but the keekin'-glass. And there ye saw your picture."

It is the touch of humanity in every line of his poetry that makes us celebrate this month, with as much zest as ever before, the birthday of Robert Burns. No man has ever touched the strings of sentiment and produced more responsive melody, melody which re-echoes thru all hearts in all climes. The true affection in which the Scottish bard is held today is the greatest monument the world could rear to his memory.

It is an annual tribute to his genius which everyone desires to pay when January 25 returns. This year the celebration will be no less fervent than before, and it is with pleasure we publish on another page an appreciation of the gifted plowman by an entertaining writer, Mrs. Flora McD. Denison.

Admirers of the poet thruout Canada should re-read some of his songs and epistles on the day which recalls his nativity.

"In Germany music seems to be the country." Studio 22 tim Grove. Park dale. The concert of the Oratorio Society, which is to be held in Massey Hall on Thursday, Jan 30, will be an event of great interest to the musical public. The production "Joan of Arc" is one of Alfred R. Gaul's masterpieces, and is composed in his most happy style, the melodies and harmonies being more than ordinarily pleasing. This will be the first rendering of the work in Canada, and, in its production, the chorus will be assisted by a specially trained orchestra and also the pipe organ. The soloists are artists of exceptional ability: Mrs. Mabel Manley Pickard, Wm. Lavin of Detroit, tenor, and Claude Cunningham, who is in the front rank of New York's baritone soloists.

Better Publicity for Musicians BY J. D. LOGAN, PH. D. (Harvard)

(Head of the Copy & Art Dept., Woods-Norris, Ltd.)

Walk west along the south side of College-street from Universityavenue, Toronto, and one will note, on house after house, brass plate. which read successively: Dr. --, Dr. --, Dr. --, Dr. -and so on. From the plates themselves, no one can tell which doctor is a general practitioner, which a surgeon, which an obsteterist, or which a specialist in diseases of the eye and ear; much less can one tell which is a recent graduate and which a practitioner with a long established practice. In a hurry-up call, say at 2 a.m., it would be fatal to mistake an eye-and-ear doctor for an obsteterist, which, so far as the advertising plates could advise one in the rush, would be almost inevitable.

If the case with the "cards" of vocalists and instrumentalists, teachers or performers, as they appear in the press, is not quite as glaring and absurd, it is practically as futile, so far as real publicity and definitive advertising are concerned. If, for instance, I want to become a concert pianist, I should find a teacher with the gift and reputation of perfecting advanced pupils in touch and technic. Or, suppose I wish to become adept in vocal vibrato—you can hear it in all its ravishing loveliness (?) from almost any soprano soloist in our city church choirs—to whom shall I apply for instruction? Or, suppose I wish to study harmony, counterpoint and composition at home by mail, who offer such courses and which of these is the best teacher? Alas, I shall hunt in vain thru the "cards" of music teachers to discover what is A's specialty and whether A is better than B in the same field. A and B announce that they teach piano, but I am left to guess whether A is strong in poetic interpretation of Chopin Nocturnes, or B expert in the technics of Liszt Rhapsodies. The only way to arrive at the specific facts is to do as one would do amongst the College-street doctors-knock and enquire. But this is only to admit that the advertising cards of musicians merely state that A or B exists, moves and has his being in the world of music—somehow and somewhere; as advertising cards they simply do not advertise.

Let me now cite a pertinent instance from my own experience. Two years ago a teacher of harmony and composition in New York, who was using a single inch space, containing 40 words, in The Etude and The Musician, asked me to write a "card" for him, to the same measure, which should increase the number of his pupils. To-day this gentleman uses a space of three inches and employs 175 words for statement. Now, this teacher was sensible, frank and generous enough to say to me at the time of writing for my aid that since no field showed so plainly the necessity for trained specialists as music teaching, he realized the equal necessity of his having a trained specialist to write his publicity. There is only one just conclusion to be drawn from the fact that he is using to-day three times the amount of advertising space he once used-namely, good publicity pays. For obvious causes, which need not be mentioned, occasionally one will see a musician or teacher of voice or piano who in dress and appearance looks like a busted bale of hay. But in general there is no other profession in which one may so soon or so readily become independent as in the profession of music and music teaching. And if this be so, how much more may this happy condition be enhanced by professional publicity which is done competently and in good taste.

How this may be done I have already told the readers of The Sunday World in a previous essay (republished, with additions, in booklet form by the author). But I close with a sample "card," which, while conforming to professional etiquette and good taste in expression and style, definitively advertises in a way to distinguish and attract:

with a rapid fire of bright lines, Mr. Ade has apparently taken a different tack. The evolving of a strong, interesting story was his first endeavor, the developing of the characters and the polishing of the lines coming as a secondary consideration.

The interest centres in an old wool merchant, who, despite his many years in New York, is a city "Rube." He is in a rut deeper than the plow left in the field. He has two sons, and if he has never taken a vacation it was because he feared that he might lose something that his boys might need later in life. He has tried to give the lads the things that he was deprived of in his youth, and has made them partners in his business. But the boys have no thoughts for work. One of them goes in for athletics and the other is carried away by the society bee. In a way father and the boys driff apart. This pains the old man to that extent that he complains to his friends. They tell him the fault is with himself, that he ought to enter into the amusement of his sons, go out more, see a little life and get within hailing distance of the procession. The intimation constantly voiced that he is a back number nettles him. The boys are to give a very select dinner party at the house, and Bessie

At the Princess.

One of the distinct noveities of the season, and what is said to be one of its biggest hits, "Father and the Boys," will be presented by Charles Frohman, with William H. Crane in its leading role at the Princess Theatre on Monday night.

The play is by George Ade and is a comedy. It is credited with having scored in decisive fashion, to be its author's best play and to present Mr. Crane in the best part that he has had in years. Crane in a good play, with a part that gives him any kind of opportunity at all to be amusing, certainly should be entertaining. It would seem as tho the author of "Fables in Slang" should be well qualified to supply the play and the part.

There are a number of things to be gleaned from the reviews of "Father and the Boys." One of them is that it is an ambitious effort on the part of its author. Instead of selecting a number of amusing types of character, and then threading them together with a rapid fire of bright lines, Mr. Ade has apparently taken a different tack. The evolving of a strong, interesting story was his first endeavor.

"Old Heidelberg" at the Alexandra.

Ida Conquest will continue her successful engagement at the Royal Alexandra by presenting "Old Heidelberg," a translation from the German, made famous by the late Richard Mansfield. A splendid production of this grand old play is promised by the management. No expense is being spared and every detail is being looked after to make it a presentation deserving of large patronage. Of Miss Conquest little need be said, any further than that she has captured her audiences during the past week with her brilliant and sympathetic acting.

"Old Heidelberg" is a pretty story," and might be called "a modern fairy on this is melancholy.

The years of special prosperity for the company began with the ascension of King William, and at that time if a town meeting chanced to be appointed for a drill day it could not be legally held. Three of the justices of the supreme court were artillery men, and Chief Justice Sewall mentions that the court adjourned on account of the artillery.

When the first militia law was framed for the United States, General Lincoln went to Mount Vernon to advocate it to Washington. At a little meeting he presented his point and instanced the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston as the kind of Association which every city should have. WHY?

First—Because acquiring the habit of saving is the first step on the road to success. The majority of the men who have been most successful cheerfully acknowledge that their success was primarily due to the fact that they began early to save. Then, with some ready money saved, they were in a position to avail themselves of opportunities when they offered. John D. Rockefeller recently said: "The very best advice that I can give to any boy or young man is to save."

Second—Because his savings should be deposited where, while earning a fair rate of interest, they will be absolutely safe. A New York editor relates the story of how as a lad he had deposited his nickels and aimes in a Savings Bank, and when he had succeeded in slowly building the account up to $44, the bank failed. "What's the use?" he said, and from that time till he was forty he never saved a dollar, though steadily earning more salary each year. Money deposited with this Corporation is always available when you want it. It is secured by more than EIGHT AND ONE-HALF MILLION DOLLARS of the Shareholders' capital. The Corporation has a record of more than half a century, and during all that time, notwithstanding several financial panics, no depositor has ever been asked to wait one hour for his or her currency.

INFANT PRIMA DONNA.

One of the smallest members, physically, in Savage's English Grand Opera Company this season, singing exclusively Puccini's latest and greatest grand opera, "Madam Butterfly" is Miss Corinne Malvern, who plays the part of "Trouble," Madam Butterfly's child. Miss Malvern may be small physically, but she is great in importance, for without the child the heart interest in the tragic story of Japan would not be sustained.

While only five years old, little Corrine has taken on the finished manners of a well-schooled prima donna and her remarks off stage have caused no end of fun in the English Grand Opera Company. During the New York engagement it developed that Corrine had been making a study of Mr. Savage's plan in alternating his principals. She noticed that on the nights that Miss Strakosch sang the other Butterfly prima donnas were not on the stage. So also she noother Butterfly prima donnas were not on the stage. So also she no-ticed that when Miss Vivienne or Miss Wolff or Mile. de Fillipe or Miss Behnee sang, the other alternates

One night Corrine waxed confidential with Miss Vivienne and taking her into a dark corner of the stage said, with great seriousness: "I don't think they are treating me right with this completed one of the linest zorogical gardens existing in Europe, if not in the world. So writes J. B. Van Brussel in The Technical World Magazine for February. The zoological park occupies thirty-six acres of ground and arrangements have been made so as to throw another twenty-six acres into the park if desirable. But it is the bold and even daring manner in which it is being laid out that calls for special attention tion. Here you can gaze at lions, tigers and other wild beasts appearing to the naked eye to be entirely in the open, no iron bars or netting interfering with your view.

A description of the lion's quarters will give an idea of how this is being accomplished. At the back of the lion house, which is artistically covered all over with imitation rockwork, there is a space of sixty feet wide by fortyfive feet deep. On three sides there are rocks which rise to such a height are rocks which rise to such a height that no animal could possibly jump over them, while they are too steep to be climbed. The other side is absolutely open, but the animals are securely confined, to their inclosure by means of a broad ditch, fifteen feet deep and half full of water. Immediately in front of this ditch is a narrow strip of garden full of tropical ferns, plants and other shrubs, and ferns, plants and other shrubs, and then comes the public footpath. From then comes the public footpath. From the latter the public gaze at both lions and them but tigers, nothing separating the ditch. From the animal's side of the ditch to the footpath there is a distance of thirty feet. No animal could leap this, for the inclosure is so designed that it is impossible for the animals to take a running jump in that direction.

"If it were given me to choose between being compelled to live in Molokai for the rest of my life, or in the East End of London, the East Side of New York, or the Stock Yards of Chicago, I would select Molokai without debate.

Thus writes Jack London in The Woman's Home Companion of his visit to the Hawaiian leper colony of Molokai.

"In Molokai the people are happy. I shall never forget the celebration of At six o'clock in the morning the 'hor ribles' were out, dressed fantastically astride horses, mule s and donkeys (their own property), and cutting capers all over the settlement. Two brass bands were out as well. Then there were the pa-u riders, thirty or forty of them, Hawaiian women all, superb horsewomen, dressed gorgeousin the old, native riding costume and dashing about in two's and three's and groups. In the afternoon Mrs. London and I stood in the judges' stand and awarded the prizes for horsemanship and costume to the pa-u rid-ders. All about were the hundreds of lepers, with wreaths of flowers on heads and necks and shoulders, looking on and making merry. And always, over the brows of hills and across the grassy level stretches, appearing and disappearing, were the groups of men and women, gaily dressed, on galloping horses, horses and riders flower bedecked and flower garing like the wind. And as I stood in the judges' stand and looked at all this, there came to my recollection the lazar house of Havana, where I had once beheld some two hundred lepers, prisoners, inside four restricted walls until they died. No, there are a few thousand places I wot of in this world over which I would select Molokai as a place of permanent residence."

The ruin of a state or the destruction of a world industry on account of their of a world industry on account of their very magnitude seems remote. So writes George C. Calhoun in The Technical World Magazine for February. The average person can hardly conceive of either as possible in this age of scientific and commercial advance. But today, in the United States of Americal both are not colly respible but even imboth are not only possible but even imminent. Unless the forests of Florida can be preserved from the destruction which threatens them a few years will which threatens them a lew years what see the state an arid waste, and the great naval stores industry a thing of the past.

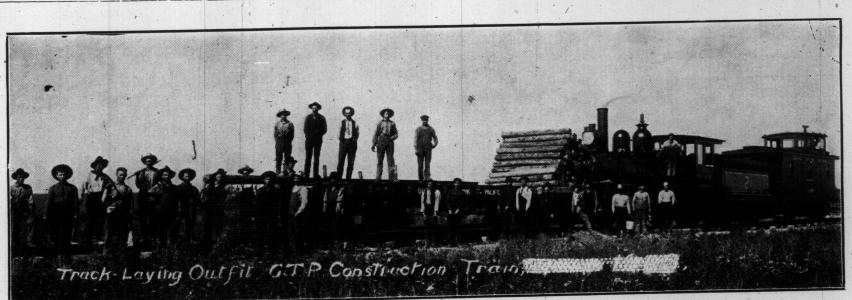

Comparatively a short time ago the great bulk of Florida's natural rescurces was absolutely untouched, and among these, one of the most import-ant was her virgin forests of pine, ant was her virgin forests of pine, which covered the entire peninsula and constituted the repository of uncounted millions. Side by side two great industries developed in Florida—lumber and naval stores. To-day they rank with the greatest branches of trade, but to-day hardly an acre of timber land in Florida remains untouched by the ax. Florida remains untouched by the ax.

It is not, however, the lumberman who menaces the forests with destruction. While his ravages take away much of the picturesqueness and grandeur of the woods they are not fatal, for only the largest trees are taken. The smaller ones are left until they have attained a size which makes them valuable for lumber, the land is only cut over at intervals of several years, and in the meanwhile the process of propa-gation continues and the forests are

The most important subject of the International Control of the Great Lakes Fisheries is dealt with in an address given by A. Kelly Evans eries Society. Stories of deer hunting in Quebec and Ontario, duck hunting in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, exploring trips in the northern country, with fishermen's yarns and mountain climbing reminiscences are but samples of the budget of good things awaiting the readers of this excellent magazine. Every lover of outdoor life must find something to appeal to his particular and favorite recreation, and to the whole of them must come home the spirit of the well written and effective story "Nature's Elixir—and it is not work!" This is the spirit pervading the whole—the spirit of free dom and strenuous exertion which brings with it health and happiness, tho in the conventions of modern civilization it is not classed as "work." With such a promising beginning the New Year holds the strongest possi-bilities for the further success of this favorite Canadian magazine, whose special work it has been to make the advantages of the Dominion in the region of sport known to our people and thru them to the whole world.

Program.

Hhe Woman's Home Companion has begun a series of articles devoted to the best music of living composers. In the January article Madame Lillian Nordica writes, in regard to the making of a program: "In making a program, the first thing of importance to be considered, after a careful selection of the numbers, is the securing of contrast and variety in the order of their arrangement. The grave, the gay, the serious, the joyous, should always be placed in contrast, for con-tinuity of mood in expression mars or destroys the effect of even the best

"For instance, one or two quieter songs should be followed by brighter and more joyous ones, incidentally exercising care that several numbers in the same time-two-four or three-four, as the case may be-do not follow each other, for that leads only to monotony the very thing we desire to avoid. It is well to begin a recital with some thing along simple lines, and of a character general in its appeal. The program as a whole should gradually crease in brilliancy as it progresses, introducing the more effective numbers toward the close. To follow any other course would produce an anti-climax.'

The respect for old land marks in Canada is sadly neglected, I am sorry to think. It is all to-day with a mass of Canadians, no yesterday, and no respect for things of the past years.

A man who has seen many of the prominent people of the world and by those men who are the real fathers

The few remaining log houses and barns are the only historical homes of this province, still no thought or care is taken of them, being left to decay after being used as stable, pig that the structure would withstand the storms. The crevices were stopped inside with moss and on the outside with clay or earth. The roof was also of logs, for he had no means of getting boards, altho the timber was there to make millions of feet. Fancy, that all this toil was necessary before one of those perfected. Ittlebefore one of those neglected, little-cared-for log houses was erected!
These men certainly lived by the sweat of their brow. Still there is no sweat of their brow. Still there is no thought of preserving the few of their homes that are left.

The only thing left of those past days as a memorial is the rare, neglected, patched, dilapiated and despised log house, the home of the hardy pioneer, round which happy children romped and played. They were no doubt the only joy in the little home of toil to brighten the hardships of those hardy men and women who worked from sunrise to women who worked from sunrise to sunset clearing the forest bit by bit in order to grow enough food for themselves and family. Often, very often, just when they had accom-plished that labor and the future looked bright, their days on earth were gone, and they were buried in some corner, now forgotten, leaving the future generation to reap the benefits of their hard labor. Now the towns and villages of Ontario occupy the sites of those early humble log homes and clearings made with so much toil due.

The few remaining log houses are this province's early history. There are not many left, altho there used to be no other house thru the riding of East York, and for miles round. Prof. Edmund Burke of the college of the City of New York received a letter from a press-clipping agency. The letter informed the professor that his patronage was desired, and that as a sample of the work he would find enclosed a clipping from a speech by President Roosevelt, in which he had quoted the professor's words.

Professor Burke read the clipping nearly thru before he realized that the president was quoting from Edmund

Toronto,

As the owner of an automobile you should be interested in knowing that many good tires are destroyed during the winter for the want

It is a mistake to leave the tires on the wheels under a full pressure of air. The weight of the car should not rest on the tires.

The wheels should be raised and supported from the floor at the axles.

The tires should be deflated and taken off and the rims painted with white

There is no necessity why the tires should be left on the car all winter. They will suffer much less deterioration if deflated and removed and hung up in a dry cool room away from the direct rays of the sun.

A damp floor is not good for tires. Rubber lives best in a cool dry place. Sunlight is equally bad. It takes the life out of rubber. Oil also eats into rubber and quickly disintegrates it. These conditions
