NEAR MURDER AND SUICIDE

Albert Folwertschney Threw Wife Down Stairs and Shot Her When She Called Policeman—Killed Himself.

WOMAN IN HOSPITAL AND MAY RECOVER

Portland, Me., Oct. 3.—Because his wife, Clara, had sent for a policeman when he had come home drunk and it is alleged, thrown her out of the house, Albert Folwertschney sent a charge of shot into her side from a 10 gauge gun, and going to a field near by, blew his head off with the same gun. She was taken to the hospital and may recover.

Folwertschney returned home early this evening he found his wife had fastened the door against him. He burst it open, it is stated, and following her upstairs whither she had run, threw her bodily down to the floor below. Then he picked her up again and threw her out of doors. The woman crossed the street and asked a child to go for an officer. Then she entered her house again. Folwertschney reproached her for sending for an officer and picking up a double barreled gun, discharged it at her. Then he ran from the house and was found later with his head blown almost completely to pieces. Each was about twenty years old and they had been married about eight years. It was the woman's second marriage.

CONFER OVER PULP RATES

Newspaper Authorities Meet Members of Tariff Board with Reference to New Schedule—Record Output.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—John Norris, representing the American Newspaper Publishers Association, conferred today with Chairman H. C. Emery and Alvin H. Sanders, of the tariff board, about the investigation for the probable revision of the pulpwood and print paper schedule. The tariff board has made more progress on the pulp and paper schedule, than on any other. Chairman Emery has given it some personal attention and an expert has been in the field several weeks. Furthermore, the tariff board has a great deal of information at hand which was gathered by the Mann committee for congress.

The commissioners of corporations today made public the August report from the American Paper and Pulp Association. It shows a substantial increase in production during the month and an increase of stocks of newspaper on hand. The month's production, 102,929 tons, represents the output of all the mills but one in the United States. The production for the first seven months of 1910 now averages 88,000 tons, the largest ever reported to the commission. The August production was 94 per cent. of the so-called normal. Stocks on hand increased from 23,220 tons to 42,420, the largest total since September, 1909. A representative of the association, however, says the increase of stocks in August is largely made up by a few companies, and that it represents chiefly paper for specific customers.

BOSTON LETS TENDER FOR NEW FISH DOCK

Commonwealth Piers to be Built at Cost of $760,000 for Purpose of Relieving Congestion.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 3.—Another important step in the plans to transfer Boston's great fish trade from its outgrown quarters on T wharf, to South Boston, was taken today when the state board of harbor and land commissioners awarded the contract for the building of piers at the commonwealth's dock, the future home of the local fish business. The contract was given to the Boston firm of Holbrook, Cabot and Rollins, the lowest bidder, the figure being $760,000. Eleven bids were received which ran up to as high as $1,445,200.

In 1909 he was re-elected and sat until 1904 when he was defeated at the polls by C. H. Brannen. He was re-elected in 1905 and continued to represent his ward until the present time. $100,000 REWARD FOR DYNAMITERS

DAVE RUSSELL RENEWS SUIT FOR $1,250,000

Writ Issued for That Amount Against J. E. Greenshields Demanding Accounting of Western Land Deal.

Special to The Standard. Ottawa, Oct. 3.—David Russell, a financial agent of Montreal has filed a writ against James E. Greenshields, a lawyer also of Montreal for $1,250,000 damages in the high court here. It is an old dispute arising out of the Q'Appelle Lake and Saskatchewan Railway and Steamboat Company. This company was given land subsidies all along the route, the government holding back one-third of the total grant of 6,400 acres per mile of railway. This one-third was a security that the company would carry out its agreement, and amounted to 482,269 acres.

The company sold the one-third still due it from the government to Messrs. Wm. Pugsley, Edmund Osler, Herbert W. Hammond and Charles S. MacInnes, prior to May, 1906, and they in turn sold it to Russell and Greenshields. Mr. Russell claims that Mr. Greenshields gave to the Canadian Northern Railway Company certain great advantages regarding first choice of land set apart by the government for the two companies to take their reserves from, and receiving no corresponding advantage from the C. N. R. It is claimed that Mr. Greenshields did this for private consideration and that any such consideration given Mr. Greenshields should be shared equally by both partners. Mr. Russell is the referee calling for an accounting of the deal and for $1,250,000 damages.

SCHR. ASHORE AT RICHIBUCTO

The Neal Dow Struck in Sunday's Gale and Two Owners Were Rescued by Life Boat Crew.

Moncton, Oct. 3.—The schooner Neal Dow, 50 tons register, bound for Richibucto in ballast from P. E. I. was driven ashore at Richibucto on Sunday about 1 p. m., and is likely a total loss. A terrific northeast gale was blowing at the time, and fear were entertained for the safety of the crew, but they were finally taken off by the life boat service. The vessel was owned by William J. Fraser and George Martin, of Roxton, who also sailed the vessel, they being the only ones on board when she struck. Constable John W. Colpitts was today committed for trial on the charge of assault on Mrs. Attis. He was admitted to bail. A number of persons interested in fisheries had a private conference with District Inspector Chapman, but nothing is given out as to the nature of their business.

BOLD ROBBERY ON ALASKAN STEAMER

Many Thousand Dollars Taken from Mail Room of City of Seattle—Money Found on Mess Boy.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 3.—Gold bullion and Canadian and United States bank notes aggregating many thousand dollars, were stolen from the mail room of the steamer City of Seattle from Skagway, Alaska, last night. T. Buckley, sailor messboy on the vessel on whom eight gold bricks and a large number of bank notes were found, was arrested as soon as the City of Seattle arrived today. The robbery was discovered by Mail Officer Deaton as the steamer was nearing Seattle. First Officer Thomas Johnson discovered the gold bullion on the mess-boy and after a search he found a large number of bank notes wrapped around the boy's legs. An examination of the mail room disclosed that almost every registered parcel on board had been rifled.

Great Inducement Offered for Apprehension of Wreckers of Los Angeles Times Building.

Police Profess to Have Productive Clue—Predicts Arrests in San Francisco.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 3.—Under the stimulus of proffered rewards aggregating nearly $100,000, hundreds of policemen, detectives and private citizens in all the Pacific coast cities are searching for clues which may lead to the arrest of the conspirators who blew up the Los Angeles Times building Saturday last, and caused the death of more than a score of persons, and attempted the destruction of the homes of Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, owner of the Times, and of F. J. Zeehandelaar, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. Police and civil officers believe that at least three men were concerned in the outrages and the city has placed a price of $10,000 on the head of each. The county today voted an additional reward of $500 for every man captured and convicted and members of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association offered a reward of $50,000 of which $25,000 has been subscribed. Upon the assumption that at least three men were responsible for the explosion the combined offers thus far approximate almost $100,000, a figure almost unprecedented in the annals of criminal pursuits.

A Promising Clue. Chief of Police Galloway said today that he expected to have one or all of the conspirators in custody soon. He expected news from San Francisco, whence come the most promising clue thus far developed.

William J. Burns, a detective, is at work tonight in the city with Los Angeles detectives, who were sent there on receipt of information that dynamite said to be the same as that found in the bomb found at Zeehandelaar's home, was purchased near San Francisco by men giving the names of Leonard, Bryson and Morris. Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, editor of the Times is protected by a body-guard as are his office, the branch office that houses the editorial and business departments of the Times and auxiliary plant where the paper is printed.

Many clues are under investigation tonight and arrests are being made almost hourly. These arrests however are regarded as merely perfunctory. Gen. Otis and Harry Chandler, assistant general manager of the Times are making arrangements for holding one funeral service for all the victims of the disaster. "If the families of the men don't object, we will have them buried in one grave in my lot," said Gen. Otis, "and we will raise a monument to their memory, which will bear the names of all." Coroner Hartwell empaneled a jury today to begin the inquest. After taking the nine members over the ruins of the Times building, he announced that nothing further would be done until the investigating committee appointed by the mayor and the chief of police is ready to report.

MRS. ANNIS WILL OPPOSE APPLICATION

Widow of Victim of Bayside Shooting Will Fight Petition for Pardon of Capt. Haines, the Murderer.

New York, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Mrs. Helene Annis, widow of Wm. E. Annis, who was killed by Capt. Peter C. Haines, Jr., now serving a sentence in Sing Sing, will oppose the application for a pardon made to Gov. Hughes in Haines' behalf by his father, Gen. Peter C. Haines. Mrs. Annis called at the office of District Attorney Dewitt in Long Island City today, to protest against the petition and inquire what steps she could take to defeat it. She was told that Gov. Hughes had the records in the case, and that the district attorney's office would take no action beyond furnishing the data. It was suggested that she write to the governor asking for a hearing before he reaches a decision.

BISHOP'S CHARGE FEATURE OF SYNOD YESTERDAY

His Lordship Made Stirring Reference to Position of Church Regarding Remarriage of Divorced Persons—Discussion on Withdrawal of Point duChene Church from Shediac Deanery.

There was a fairly large attendance of clerical and lay delegates at the annual meeting of the Anglican synod of the diocese of Fredericton, which opened in Trinity Sunday school room yesterday afternoon. The formal opening of the synod will take place this morning at 7:30 when the delegates will attend a corporate celebration of the holy communion in Trinity church, his lordship the Bishop of Fredericton, being the celebrant.

The feature of yesterday afternoon's meeting was the charge of his lordship in which he dealt with a number of matters which affect the denomination in particular. Chief among these was the attitude of the church toward the remarriage of one of its members to a divorcee, while the other is still living. The bishop pointed out in no uncertain terms that no priest of the Church of England is allowed to recognize such remarriage.

When the session opened the bishop presided and Archbishop Newnam was appointed secretary.

The Bishop's Charge.

After calling the roll of the delegates his lordship delivered his charge in an abstract of which is as follows: His lordship in his charge to the synod dealt first with the deaths in the church during the year, referring in this connection to the passing of Rev. T. H. Cuthbert, of Newcastle; G. Sydney Smith, of this city and Miss Lucy V. Pickett, of the same city, churchwoman, Miss Pickett founded in the diocese, the office of a missionary nurse and during her life carried it. The continuance of the office might prove a difficult problem, if he left it in the hands of the synod.

He exhorted the synod to greater efforts in the line of missionary work which he described as the glory of the church. The diocese had lost several of its missionaries during the year by removal, retirement and death. There were also several conditions but on the whole the balance was against the diocese.

He then referred to his visit to England in search of a more satisfactory and to his having secured several who would come to the province in the near future. At the present time the missionary situation was promising.

The Campbellton Fire.

In reference to the loss which the church had sustained in the Campbellton fire, his lordship spoke as follows: The church has met with a disastrous loss in the destruction of the growing town of Campbellton. The facts are so well known that I need not do more than merely mention them. Campbellton was one of the few places in the province of really rapid development, and the church there has been slow to recognize their opportunity. By a vigorous effort within the past few years, the old church building had become enlarged and practically perfect, so that the parish was in possession of a really beautiful little place of worship. The rectory, too, had been thoroughly restored. All this work entailed the expenditure of a large sum of money, and there was still a debt upon the parish of more than a thousand dollars, when the fire came to sweep everything away from as you are aware, it was not the church alone which suffered. The town itself was utterly destroyed, leaving behind it some two thousand people to begin life again.

Under these distressing circumstances, I feel that the church at large must come to the assistance, and that as soon as possible, the first step was to guarantee the stipend of the rector for the time being, and, accordingly, after consulting with certain members of the Board of Missions, I instructed the treasurer to send the Rev. R. J. Coleman a cheque in full each month until further notice. The arrangements, of course, subject to confirmation by the board, but I am confident that it will meet with their approval.

Share With Dalhousie.

Our resources are, however, limited, and I have thought it necessary, therefore, to ask the corporation of the Parish of Dalhousie, which is without a rector, to share with Campbellton for the time being the stipend of Mr. Coleman. This, I have reason to believe, they are willing to do—a generous action on their part which I know you will all heartily approve. I may add that I deemed it well that for the first few months, at least, Mr. Coleman would devote himself altogether to the work at Campbellton. In addition to this, I have issued to the diocese an appeal for financial aid in the rebuilding of the church and rectory, and I trust that the response will be very hearty. I hope to be able to secure some assistance from outside sources, but I feel that we must first be able to show that the diocese has done its part. I have, however, to acknowledge with gratitude an offering from the Cathedral, Quebec, of $35.29, and one of $52.10 from the Parish of Fort Mill Prince Edward Island.

An old friend of the diocese, the Rev. Dr. Sillis, rector of Trinity church, Geneva, N. Y., has also sent $25.00 as an offering from his Sunday school. It is impossible to say what the result will be of the appeal to the diocese. So far about $600.00 has come in, an amount very far below what I might expect. A number of parishes have, as yet, made no returns, but some of dien of a human law. In the face of these facts, could the church bound to make her position plain? Holding the faith once for all delivered to the saints, is she not imperatively bound to her members' obedience to moral law?

Why Canon is Needed.

But, if, indeed, defence were needed it might be enough, I think, to look in three directions. Let me very briefly remind you of the message that comes to us from each. There is (1) the argument from Holy Scripture for an indissoluble marriage. Do not forget in so saying that there are scholars in the Church who think that they see an exception clause in the language of our Lord in respect to this important subject and in the strength of that exception clause, plead the right of remarriage for the innocent party in a divorce for adultery. One gladly recognizes the force of the argument which that plea is made. Yet it remains indisputably true that the only passage—nay, the solitary text—that seems to sanction the remarriage of a divorced person even under these circumstances is subject to so many difficulties in the way of extraordinary variations, as to make it almost worthless for purposes of argument. I refer, of course, to St. Matthew 19, 9. Quite distinctly our Lord declares that for one specific case a man may put away his wife, and so be free to marry another, provided that she has been guilty of adultery. This is the only exception of this one very doubtful passage, nothing is said about his marrying another wife; whilst, on the other hand, the language of the text, the adultery of such a second marriage is distinctly stated. From the standpoint of Holy Scripture, there is no room for doubt that the canon is very strong.

There is (2) the argument from the Prayer Book, and I need hardly remind you how completely that argument is in accord with the canon. Nothing could be more emphatically plain than the terms in which a man and a woman, intending to take each other as husband and wife, are required to state that intention.

Plainly Stated.

Amongst other things, they are required to solemnly declare that (a) they will "live together after God's ordinance in the holy state of matrimony;" (b) that, forsaking all other, the husband will keep only to the wife, and the wife only to the husband, as long as they both shall live; that the union shall be from that day forward, for better, for worse, for richer for poorer, in sickness and in health, as long as they both shall live; that the union shall be from that day forward, for better, for worse, for richer for poorer, in sickness and in health, as long as they both shall live; that the union shall be from that day forward, for better, for worse, for richer for poorer, in sickness and in health, as long as they both shall live.

The Divorce Problem.

His Lordship then dealt with what was the most interesting and important matter in his charge—the question of marriage and divorce. On this point he said:— I find myself reluctantly compelled to turn once more to the question of marriage and divorce. I say "reluctantly compelled" because I had hoped that, for some time, there would be no necessity for me to refer to the subject again in this particular and public manner. The experience of the past year, however, has led me to a contrary conclusion, and I now feel it necessary to put before you in the plainest possible manner certain fundamental facts in connection with the question of marriage and divorce. I find myself reluctantly compelled to turn once more to the question of marriage and divorce. I say "reluctantly compelled" because I had hoped that, for some time, there would be no necessity for me to refer to the subject again in this particular and public manner. The experience of the past year, however, has led me to a contrary conclusion, and I now feel it necessary to put before you in the plainest possible manner certain fundamental facts in connection with the question of marriage and divorce.

Lowers Moral Standard.

Every lowering of moral standard makes itself felt—slowly, if you like, but inevitably felt—not in this land, or in that land alone, but in all the world. Innumerable factors combine to make this necessarily true. The intercommunication that is so characteristic of modern life; the improved and cheapened facilities of travel; the process by which literature of one nation becomes the literature of every other; the ever-growing power of the press; the appeal of the popular play to the world's drama; the fact that all these things tend more and more to make moral standards not national but international.

Hence I say that the social circumstances under which this canon was enacted are its defence. Need I remind you of what those circumstances are? I do not desire to speak one exaggerated word. I do not want to paint a picture whose lines are not true to the world's life, and fall to find signs of a serious moral declension where the question of marriage is concerned. More and more to this respect social life is becoming chaotic in its character. More and more the old landmarks of right and wrong are being removed. More and more the holy barriers of truth are breaking down. More and more marriage is becoming in the eyes of many a mere contract terminable at the will of either party and upon almost any pretext. More and more for the Scriptural idea of matrimony as an "honorable estate instituted of God," there is being substituted the sense of an earthly union existing only by the fluctuating sanction of human law.

Permanent Relationship.

In the light of all that has been said, as Christians, as churchmen, and as men of common sense, we ought not to hesitate to accept that view of marriage which declares it to be a permanent relationship between one man and one woman, indissoluble by all else save death.

Stood By Resolution.

It will, perhaps, be remembered that at last year's synod, I was asked to state my position regarding the admission to the holy communion of those who have been divorced, and contracted a second marriage. The church canon, and I replied that I could go no further than the Lambeth resolution of 1883. That resolution, in the face of the fact that there has always been a difference of opinion in the church on the question whether the second marriage is to be solemnized in the innocent party in a divorce for adultery, the conference recommends that the clergy should not be instructed to refuse the sacraments or other privileges of the church to those who under civil sanction, are thus married.

Only Innocent Party.

But there is another limitation,—very definite and clear. The resolution has reference only to the innocent party in such a suit. No indiscriminate extension of the Church's privileges is even contemplated. Such an extension, in my opinion, would be contrary to the spirit of the resolution. Before the privileges of the Church may be granted, therefore, to one, who, having been divorced, has contracted a second marriage, there must be certainty that he or she is the innocent party of the two,—a certainty not easy to arrive at in view of the many causes of divorce, and other obscuring circumstances. Yet,—and here comes the difficulty,—an effort must be made to reach that certainty, or there must be danger of degradation in the Church. Whose, then, shall be the responsibility of judging?

The parish priest, some will reply, and there is much to be said in support of that contention. But a moment's thought will suggest many reasons to the contrary. The pressure of public opinion is sometimes very strong, and not easy to resist. Local influences have their weight. There is sometimes danger of a divided parish, and the priest is not to be considered. Perhaps the best way of dealing with most of these difficulties is to follow the example of the Scotch Church, and refer all such cases to the bishop for his judgment. I hope to see the day when that course will be prescribed by canon, but in the absence of some specific legislation, it is likely to be difficult. I would counsel the clergy to refer to the bishop all cases of whose circumstances they are not sure. I do not think that the bishop's decision is likely to be infallible but I believe that such a reference to authority will strengthen the hands of all of us who are in the Church, and will, by making it quite clear that there is in the Church such a thing as moral discipline.

I am sure that the canon on divorce provides magnificent machinery for moral discipline, so far as the crucial question of re-marriage is concerned, but leaves unsolved the problem of domestic discipline. The failure of the canon consists in this—that it leaves undefined the relationship to the church of those who disregard the law. I have already illustrated the fact that failure by referring to the condemnation of this canon, should claim his right to serve as a vestryman in the church? For obvious reasons I put the question to you to this abstract, but I feel bound to press for its consideration. Here is a perfectly clear law of the church. The fact that the law is addressed to the priest makes no difference at all. The church refuses to recognize the right of its members to contract such a union. It is contrary to law. The priest cannot, and he must not, do what shall be done, or what shall not be done beyond her borders, but undoubtedly, she has the power to legislate for herself, and she has exercised that power, she has passed this canon on divorce. But here, let us say, is a man who marries, is divorced and marries again, whilst the wife is still living. He has broken the church's law. Is it true that the second marriage may have taken place previous to the enactment by the general synod of the canon on divorce, and that the man has been a member of the church ever since that time, and that there never was a time when the re-marriage of a divorced person was not contrary to the teaching of the church? The canon may have been enacted upon in perfectly good faith, so far as the man's own convictions were concerned. The ceremony may have been solemnized in the presence of a respectable minister of another religious body, whose laws are not so stringent as our own, or under civil sanction, a duly qualified justice of the peace. It may have taken place in Canada or in the United States, or for the matter of that, in Timbuctoo. These questions do not alter nor affect the fact that the second marriage is contrary to the church's canon law. Nor does the personal character of the man concerned call for the least consideration. There may have been no breath of scandal in the case, no question of collusion, no charge of immorality. It is quite essential that the law should be enforced in such cases as to entitle the man to a great deal of sympathy.

a permanent relationship between one man and one woman, indissoluble by all else save death.

So far as the re-marriage of a divorced person is concerned, the canon is very clear. By the corporate action of the general synod, we have cut the Gordian knot of uncertainty and inconsistency by absolutely prohibiting any priest performing such a ceremony as that of which I have been speaking. So far as that prohibition goes, then, it leaves nothing to be considered. But, after all, it only goes a certain distance, and leaves altogether undefined the relationship to the church of those who disregard her law. It was, therefore, necessary to provide a magnificent machinery of moral law, but it leaves unsolved the problem of domestic discipline. It was, therefore, necessary to provide a magnificent machinery of moral law, but it leaves unsolved the problem of domestic discipline. It was, therefore, necessary to provide a magnificent machinery of moral law, but it leaves unsolved the problem of domestic discipline.

I have had to deal indirectly with situations in certain parishes, that are of the greatest difficulty; and, generally speaking, I have expressed the outcome of the fact that the relationship to the church of those who are living in disregard of this particular canon has been left altogether undefined.

Stood By Resolution.

It will, perhaps, be remembered that at last year's synod, I was asked to state my position regarding the admission to the holy communion of those who have been divorced, and contracted a second marriage. The church canon, and I replied that I could go no further than the Lambeth resolution of 1883. I still stand by that resolution, in shrinking from pronouncing excommunication those, who, being entirely innocent themselves, have in perfect good faith entered into unions contracted in good faith, and recognized by the ministers of other Christian bodies. But I recognize more clearly than I did a year ago these things in the Church, and I express my grievous want of discipline,—and (2) the necessary limitations of the Lambeth resolution. In the light of those two facts, I do not wish to express my own conviction that there ought to be exercised much more careful limitation in the matter of admitting to the sacraments or other privileges of the church to those who are married contrary to the Church's canon. Let me try to show you what I mean by the necessary limitation of the word or another, do it only intended to apply to one distinct class of people,—the "innocent party in a divorce for adultery." There is a distinction, and different limitations, in the case of a man or a woman divorced for adultery. That is the first limitation, and, in view of the many causes of divorce, it is not easy to arrive at in view of the many causes of divorce, and other obscuring circumstances. Yet,—and here comes the difficulty,—an effort must be made to reach that certainty, or there must be danger of degradation in the Church. Whose, then, shall be the responsibility of judging?

The parish priest, some will reply, and there is much to be said in support of that contention. But a moment's thought will suggest many reasons to the contrary. The pressure of public opinion is sometimes very strong, and not easy to resist. Local influences have their weight. There is sometimes danger of a divided parish, and the priest is not to be considered. Perhaps the best way of dealing with most of these difficulties is to follow the example of the Scotch Church, and refer all such cases to the bishop for his judgment. I hope to see the day when that course will be prescribed by canon, but in the absence of some specific legislation, it is likely to be difficult. I would counsel the clergy to refer to the bishop all cases of whose circumstances they are not sure. I do not think that the bishop's decision is likely to be infallible but I believe that such a reference to authority will strengthen the hands of all of us who are in the Church, and will, by making it quite clear that there is in the Church such a thing as moral discipline.

I am sure that the canon on divorce provides magnificent machinery for moral discipline, so far as the crucial question of re-marriage is concerned, but leaves unsolved the problem of domestic discipline. The failure of the canon consists in this—that it leaves undefined the relationship to the church of those who disregard the law. I have already illustrated the fact that failure by referring to the condemnation of this canon, should claim his right to serve as a vestryman in the church? For obvious reasons I put the question to you to this abstract, but I feel bound to press for its consideration. Here is a perfectly clear law of the church. The fact that the law is addressed to the priest makes no difference at all. The church refuses to recognize the right of its members to contract such a union. It is contrary to law. The priest cannot, and he must not, do what shall be done, or what shall not be done beyond her borders, but undoubtedly, she has the power to legislate for herself, and she has exercised that power, she has passed this canon on divorce. But here, let us say, is a man who marries, is divorced and marries again, whilst the wife is still living. He has broken the church's law. Is it true that the second marriage may have taken place previous to the enactment by the general synod of the canon on divorce, and that the man has been a member of the church ever since that time, and that there never was a time when the re-marriage of a divorced person was not contrary to the teaching of the church? The canon may have been enacted upon in perfectly good faith, so far as the man's own convictions were concerned. The ceremony may have been solemnized in the presence of a respectable minister of another religious body, whose laws are not so stringent as our own, or under civil sanction, a duly qualified justice of the peace. It may have taken place in Canada or in the United States, or for the matter of that, in Timbuctoo. These questions do not alter nor affect the fact that the second marriage is contrary to the church's canon law. Nor does the personal character of the man concerned call for the least consideration. There may have been no breath of scandal in the case, no question of collusion, no charge of immorality. It is quite essential that the law should be enforced in such cases as to entitle the man to a great deal of sympathy.

So far as the re-marriage of a divorced person is concerned, the canon is very clear. By the corporate action of the general synod, we have cut the Gordian knot of uncertainty and inconsistency by absolutely prohibiting any priest performing such a ceremony as that of which I have been speaking. So far as that prohibition goes, then, it leaves nothing to be considered. But, after all, it only goes a certain distance, and leaves altogether undefined the relationship to the church of those who disregard her law. It was, therefore, necessary to provide a magnificent machinery of moral law, but it leaves unsolved the problem of domestic discipline. It was, therefore, necessary to provide a magnificent machinery of moral law, but it leaves unsolved the problem of domestic discipline. It was, therefore, necessary to provide a magnificent machinery of moral law, but it leaves unsolved the problem of domestic discipline.

I have had to deal indirectly with situations in certain parishes, that are of the greatest difficulty; and, generally speaking, I have expressed the outcome of the fact that the relationship to the church of those who are living in disregard of this particular canon has been left altogether undefined.

Stood By Resolution.

It will, perhaps, be remembered that at last year's synod, I was asked to state my position regarding the admission to the holy communion of those who have been divorced, and contracted a second marriage. The church canon, and I replied that I could go no further than the Lambeth resolution of 1883. That resolution, in the face of the fact that there has always been a difference of opinion in the church on the question whether the second marriage is to be solemnized in the innocent party in a divorce for adultery, the conference recommends that the clergy should not be instructed to refuse the sacraments or other privileges of the church to those who under civil sanction, are thus married.

I still stand by that resolution, in shrinking from pronouncing excommunication those, who, being entirely innocent themselves, have in perfect good faith entered into unions contracted in good faith, and recognized by the ministers of other Christian bodies. But I recognize more clearly than I did a year ago these things in the Church, and I express my grievous want of discipline,—and (2) the necessary limitations of the Lambeth resolution. In the light of those two facts, I do not wish to express my own conviction that there ought to be exercised much more careful limitation in the matter of admitting to the sacraments or other privileges of the church to those who are married contrary to the Church's canon. Let me try to show you what I mean by the necessary limitation of the word or another, do it only intended to apply to one distinct class of people,—the "innocent party in a divorce for adultery." There is a distinction, and different limitations, in the case of a man or a woman divorced for adultery. venience of the delegates were then taken as read, he discussed later. A lengthy statement of the synod assessments for contingent fund was then read by the fund secretary, J. H. A. L. Fairweather. It showed that the rural churches were considerably in arrears on their assessments and consequently that there was a large proportion of the churches without lay representation in the synod. The assessment for the year was $617 and of this $363 had been paid. With the arrears of previous years the total arrearage was $1746.

The bishop expressed some surprise that the arrearage was so large and said it would be interesting to know if the lay delegates of some of the churches remained away from the synod because they could not come or whether they preferred to absent themselves and save the amount of the assessment.

The rector of Canby said his church had been in arrears because there had been no regular services in the church. He offered to compromise the old indebtedness for $3 and pay the assessments in future.

Some of the clerical delegates expressed the opinion that it was a great discouragement to a clergyman in taking charge of a church which had been without regular services, to have to pay the assessments and consequently barred from any representation at the synod by the laymen.

Ven. Archdeacon Newnam thought a report had been presented at a previous meeting of the synod when this matter had been discussed and that the report had suggested some of the points which I am now discussing. He thought it was in the hands of Archdeacon Raymond and that it should be laid before the synod for consideration.

W. B. Wallace said if the ministers were put on the same footing as the laymen and barred from synod attendance until their churches had paid the assessment, it might have a good effect.

M. G. Teed said that one difficulty was that arrears had piled up in some of the churches for years and it was impossible to pay them. If they were wiped off and a fresh start made it would have a good effect and also increase the lay representation in the synod.

The bishop was inclined to agree with Mr. Teed and appointed Ven. Archdeacon Raymond and J. P. Burchill of Chatham as a committee to consider the matter and report on a scheme before the synod.

Reports of synod committees which had been previously received were then taken up.

Mission Board Report. The report of the Board of Missions was then taken up. Of diocesan missions reports were received from Derby and Blackville, Douglas and Bright, Gladstone and Blissville, Point duChene, Salloway and Havelock, Stanley, St. Martins, St. Mary's and Springfield. They were adopted with out discussion with the exception of Point duChene.

The report from this mission was as follows:— "This mission, which for a number of years has been attached to the parish of Shediac, has become vacant by the resignation of the rector of Shediac of that part of his work. The people are anxious for the services of the church to be continued but are not in a position to give any large amount towards the support of a resident clergyman.

The bishop thought that there should be an expression from the synod on this case. There had been some friction between the rector of Shediac and the people of Point duChene and they had refused to accept his ministrations. As the rector of Shediac had no desire to force himself on them, he had resigned. Unless the mission board was prepared to give $500 for the work there could be no regular service in Point duChene. A peculiar feature of the case is that the rector of Shediac receives $500 per annum as revenue from the glebe lands all of which are located in the Point duChene section of the parish, the people of which are not now receiving regular service. While there might be no legal obligation on the Parish of Shediac, there was, he thought, a very strong moral obligation to see that the people of Point duChene received services regularly.

Rev. Mr. Sisson, of Moncton, said when the people of Point duChene took $200 and separated from the Parish of Shediac, as they did some years ago, they gave their rights in the glebe revenues for this sum. J. Roy Campbell moved the adoption of the report with the exception of the portion referring to Point duChene, which should be left over until tomorrow when Rev. Mr. Burt, rector of Shediac, will be in attendance, as will also Canon Smithers, who has made an investigation of the case.

T. B. Robinson moved that it be referred to the standing committee of the synod to report back.

Bishop Asks For Action. The bishop said he was glad that the matter had been brought to the attention of the synod publicly, as he considered it a disgrace to the church that such conditions should exist. If the synod took no action in the case the board of missions would deal with it in another form. As a result of the withdrawal of the church from the work in Point duChene the other churches are very active, and are doing much whereas they formerly only existed through the help of the Anglican church in that field.

Mr. Robinson then changed his motion to read that the case should be referred to a committee and this passed.

The synod service was held last evening in Trinity church and was attended by a fairly large congregation. The service which was fully choral, was very effective. Vestal choir readers and clergymen walked in the procession. The service was taken by Rev. E. B. Hooper, rector of St. Paul's, and the lessons were read by Ven. Archdeacon Newnam and Ven. Archdeacon Forsyth. The bishop preached from Ezekiel's vision of the dry bones and said the theme to express his hope for a quickening of the church life and activity.

This evening the service will be held at the residence of the bishop, who will preside. The address will be delivered by Archdeacon Pentreath and Miss Loretta Shaw, returned missionary from Japan.

During this stage of the friendly competition, the candidates will find their friends more interested than ever, and they will more readily respond with a subscription to swell the votes, if the ladies will only go and see them. Many of those who have been watching the progress of the struggle actually become offended or feel slighted if none of the contestants call upon them for aid; therefore it behooves every lady to add to her popularity by calling upon those people whom she least suspects will take a subscription, whether it be the renewal of an old taker or the beginning of an entirely new one.

ad numbers of places that the story of the vote-getters is heard it is evident that the enthusiasm of the people is intense; and unrelenting energy on the part of the contestants will carry them rapidly forward. The interest is alike in all localities. Men who are always busy have time to engage in furthering the progress of their favorites. Many of the candidates have campaign managers, the securing of whom has been repeatedly suggested in this column, and as a result the plan of action has been carefully laid out, with most gratifying results. These managers look not different from other people, but being enthused with the spirit of the contest, they are enabled to awaken the lethargic person, or one of a passive nature, to the fact that the affair is one that the entire populace should take a civic pride in. When the young ladies go on the trip, the joyful feeling that comes from winning, and the pleasant expectancy of further success, will cause permanent smiles to permeate their faces. This will cause numerous inquiries to be made by fellow travellers as to whom they might be; so, it would be well for our friends to see that representative ladies are named as the winners.

Let not those who at present are in second or third places become at all discouraged, for the day of decision is still four days off.

Review of the Army and Navy.

Friday may be devoted to a review of the London units of the Territorial Army in Hyde Park, or on the Horse Guards parade, while the week's ceremonies will be brought to an end on Saturday by a Royal review of the combined ships of the Home and Atlantic Fleets off Southport. Very little will take part in this and it will take the Royal yacht some considerable time to pass through the lines of the war vessels. At night the fleet will be illuminated from end to end; while there will be a display of fireworks upon a mammoth scale on Southsea Common.

Room will have to be found in the week's lengthy programme for the reception of addresses at Buckingham Palace from those numerous bodies that have the right to present themselves to the Throne on such occasions, and the King and Queen will be kept constantly engaged in receiving calls from the distinguished visitors who will be assembled in London, and in returning their visits to Scotland, Ireland and Wales will follow quickly on the heels of the Coronation as possible, and it is anticipated that before 1911 is at an end their Majesties will have visited every one of the four quarters of the United Kingdom.

Array of Crown Princes.

It is not usual at a Coronation for foreign crowned heads to attend, and thus it will probably be found that the only reigning monarch to be present at the crowning of King George, in addition to the King of Norway, who will attend because of his close connection with the English Royal Family, will be the King of Spain. Most of the other monarchs of Europe will be represented by their heirs. Thus there will be a very notable array of crown princes present, including those of Germany, Greece, Sweden, Portugal and Italy. Russia will be represented by the Grand Duke Michael, Portugal by the Duke Otonio of the Netherlands by the Prince Consort and France by its foreign minister. It is not yet known who will represent the King of the Belgians, and there is just a possibility that King Albert will decide to attend in person. A special mission is expected to arrive from the United States and Mr. Roosevelt is fairly certain to be at the head.

ALL MY PIMPLES GONE--"ALF" VANDERBILT TO MARRY MRS. MCKIM

Girl Tells How a Blochy Skin Was Cleaned by a Simple Wash.

"I was ashamed of my face," writes Miss Minnie Pickard, of Altamahaw. "It was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D. D. D. Prescription I can say that now there is no sign of that Eczema, and that was three years ago."

D. D. D. has become so famous as a cure and instant relief in eczema and all other serious skin diseases that its value is sometimes overlooked in clearing up rash, pimples, black-heads, and all other minor forms of skin impurities.

The fact is, that while D. D. D. is so penetrating that it strikes to the very root of eczema or any other serious trouble, the soothing all-vegetarian, Thymol and other ingredients are so carefully compounded there is no wash for the skin made that can compare with this great household remedy for every kind of skin trouble.

D. D. D. is pleasant to use, perfectly harmless to the most delicate skin, and absolutely reliable. Write the D. D. D. Laboratories, Dept. S. S., 49 Colborne St., Toronto, for a free trial bottle and prove its wonderful effectiveness.

PLANS FOR CORONATION

Many Crown Princes Will Attend Brilliant Spectacle - Roosevelt Expected to Head American Representation.

London, Sept. 30.—So far as arrangements for the Coronation have been discussed at present there will be a torchlight tattoo of the troops at Aldershot on the night of Saturday, June 27th next, when the King and Queen will be in residence at the new Royal Pavilion, says Modern Society. This will be followed by the great review of the troops of the garrison, which is fixed for the following Monday. Their Majesties will return to London immediately upon the conclusion of this, and will then give the first of the several State dinners-parties that are to be held at Buckingham Palace.

At this will be present such of the distinguished guests as have guests invited for the Coronation, as well as representatives of the different services and other officials at home. The gala performance at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, will take place on the eve of the Coronation. Following the service in Westminster Abbey will come the Royal progress through London, when the route followed will be substantially the same as that taken by King Edward and Queen Alexandra after their crowning. The evening of the following day will see a State Ball at Buckingham Palace.

RELATIONS BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND GERMANY.

Much valuable information which will help to remove the impression that the people of Great Britain and Germany are strongly antagonistic to one another is given by Mr. J. Allen Baker, a Canadian and a distinguished member of the British House of Commons, who has recently been visiting Canada for a few weeks. The churches of the two countries, Mr. Baker tells us, by uniting together are doing a great work in promoting a feeling of good-will and friendship between the two nations. The German war scare, of which so much has been heard from time to time within the last few years, Mr. Baker evidently regards as having no solid foundation. The only menace to peace between the two countries, he thinks, lies in the irresponsible utterances of the yellow press, and with the men who are interested in building war ships. The two nations have no other desire than for peace.

"The people of Canada," said Mr. Baker, "do not appear to understand the facts in regard to the relations between these two great countries. This is not to be wondered at when it is remembered that the press despatches sent to this country are largely controlled by those who seem to be interested in fomenting trouble rather than in promoting peace. As a matter of fact there is no real antagonism between the German and British peoples. On the contrary, there is a sentiment of sincere friendship, and this has been and is being fostered by the creation of associations in the two countries intended to promote peace, and by the interchange of fraternal visits. These associations are known as The Associated Councils of Churches in the British and German Empires for Fostering Friendly Relations Between the Two Peoples."

"At the head of the British Association which has taken this duty in hand is the Archbishop of Canterbury, while among the vice-presidents are the Duke of Argyll, formerly Governor-General of Canada, the Archbishop of York, the Primate of all Ireland, over a score of Anglican bishops, all the Catholic archbishops, and many of the Catholic bishops of the United Kingdom, besides many others distinguished in church and state, while on the Council of the Association are no less than 6,000 ministers of Christian churches in Great Britain. It is intended to hold a great meeting in the autumn for the purpose of still further forwarding the movement, at which the Archbishop of Canterbury will preside and when addresses will be delivered not only by many men prominent in British public life but by representative Germans as well. The object of the organization already formed, and which is to be extended at the meeting in the autumn, is, as the title indicates, the promotion of brotherly and friendly relations between Germany and Great Britain not only as an end in itself but as a means to the maintenance of world-wide peace."

"Our organization was formed two years ago and about the same time the sister organization was created in Germany the German body, like the British, being composed in the main of heads of various Christian churches but including leaders in public life as well. These allied organizations are constantly in touch with each other and, since their creation, delegates from the German body have visited England three or four times while there have been two or three return visits by British delegates. The spirit and chief object of the two bodies was shown at one of the joint meetings when a resolution was passed appealing to all classes in both nations to promote by their earnest endeavors, a mutual spirit of good-will and friendship, and pointing out that the two nations are closely allied by the common stock from which both nations have sprung, by the kinship of our sovereigns, by our history, by our long friendship, our mutual indebtedness in art, literature, and science, and above all by our common Christianity. The opinion was further expressed that frank co-operation between us will do much to promote the coming of the Kingdom of Peace on earth and good-will among men."

"A further evidence of the fact that the people of Germany, like the people of Great Britain, earnestly desire peace was afforded recently on the occasion of a great international gathering in Berlin. This was a World's Conference of Free Christianity. One evening during this conference was given up to Religion and International Peace and Amity. Another delegate and myself were sent to attend this conference on behalf of the British Association. Two or three speakers were also present from France, and a number from the United States, one of whom was Dr. Starr Jordan of the Leland Stanford University of California, and the burden of all the speeches was peace and concord among the nations. "The English and German people have come to see," concluded Mr. Baker, "that the only source of danger in their relationship lies in the presence in each country of jingoism, men interested in the building of warships, and other similar classes, and the masses of the two countries have determined to take effective means to prevent these sinister influences from estranging people who should be and are united in terms of friendship."

"So universal among the churches is this movement to which Mr. Baker refers, that it may be of interest to give a more detailed list of those who are taking an active part in furthering the objects it has in view. His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury has accepted the position of president, whilst among the list of vice-presidents the Church of England is represented by the Archbishop of York, the Bishop of London, the Dean of Westminster, and the Bishop of Salford. Scotland is represented by the Moderator of the Established Church, the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Glasgow, and the Bishop of Brechin. Primate of the Episcopal Church of Scotland, The Primate of All-Ireland and the Archbishop of Dublin and several prelates of the Church of Ireland have signified their adherence. The Roman Catholic Church in Ireland contributes the names of the Archbishop of Cashel, the Archbishop of Tuam, and the Bishops of Ferns and Cloyne. The Nonconformist communities appear to be universally represented. Dr. Jowett, president of the National Free Church Council, is one of the vice-presidents. The names of Dr. Clifford, Dr. Horton, Dr. Scott Lidgett, the Rev. R. J. Campbell, Dr. Estlin Carpenter, the Rev. J. D. Jones, and many others, show that the leaders of the Free Churches have thrown themselves readily into the work of the new association. Amongst laymen are to be found His Grace the Duke of Argyll, the Earl of Meath, the Earl of Denbigh, Lord Altrcdale, Lord Hugh Cecil, Sir John Kennaway, Sir Lewis Diddin, Sir John Brunner, Sir William Bilsland, the Master of Polwarth, Prof. Rendel Harris, Mr. George Cadbury, Mr. Thomas Burt, and Mr. Thomas Rowntree.

It is certain that if, side by side with one another, the churches of Britain and Germany can labor in this field their influence will make itself felt not only among their own people but throughout the civilized world.

HUNTING WITH THE CAMERA.

There is no close season for hunting with the camera, and it may be carried on in the night time as well as by day. Some of the most successful pictures of the shy denizens of the woods have been the flashlights taken through the release of a shutter by the stealthy tread of the night-prowling animal. And the "telephone" lens has made it possible for the naturalist to bring the animal closer to the spectator in the picture than, in real life, the ferocious "nature of the beast" would permit. Thus we have moving pictures of the tiger couchant and the lion rampant whose indignant originals would have compelled Nimrod and his gun to climb the nearest tree.

It is now the open season for several sorts of game birds and no one can reasonably make objection to the hunter who fares afield of a frosty gray morning, not in the spirit of the "pot-hunter," but to obtain a moderate bag for his own consumption or for the open market. But laws grow more stringent and game wardens more vigilant to restrain the hand of the hunter who shoots merely in the wanton spirit of predaceousness, to see how much he can kill, and to get up a record of murderous marksmanship. On the other hand, the number of those who hunt with camera instead of gun is increasing, and the sport is not less fascinating because it does not destroy.

The camera-hunters have added invaluable chapters to our knowledge of the ways of strange wild creatures. The quick eye of the little black box has caught phases and phenomena too fugitive even for the trained vision of the naturalist. We know more of what our "neighbors of fur and feather" are like in life, as well as in death. And the knowledge has been acquired bloodlessly, leaving behind no "bare, ruined choirs where late the sweet birds sang," no torn wreckage of what was once a home and a family, even though the parent was only a dumb animal.

TWO APPOINTMENTS.

Referring to recent Ottawa despatches in which it was stated that Sir Frederick Borden will succeed Hon. Duncan Fraser as lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia, the Winnipeg-Telegram expresses the opinion that while the gubernatorial office will not be honored by the appointment, the country will truly benefit by the removal from its public life of a man who has done much to dishonor it.

There would be more public rejoicing over the retirement of Sir Frederick Borden from the government of Canada, says the Telegram, if there was reasonable expectation that a man of higher ideals would succeed him. There is unfortunately no such expectation. E. M. McDonald, M. P., for Picton, will, in the natural order of things, succeed to the vacant portfolio. While in point of ability McDonald is distinctly superior to the retiring minister, his standards of public life are not more admirable.

What ability the member for Picton possesses he has given freely to the meaneast work that partisan necessity can assign a member. In the committees of the House he has chiefly interested himself in straggling parliamentary investigation. In this work he has been particularly useful to his party and he is now about to reap the reward.

The contemplated cabinet shuffle presents a gloomy picture of the political ideals which prevail at Ottawa. When a man with Sir Frederick Borden's record can qualify for appointment as representative of the crown, and when a man can earn a newspaper man's salary by the infamous services which have characterized E. M. McDonald's career in the Dominion parliament, Canadians may safely conclude that our standards of public life are in dire need of a touch.

CURRENT COMMENT

(Toronto News.)

In Mary Roberts Rinehart's story, "The Window of the White Cat," this passage occurs: "Burton (a reporter) listened while he ate, and his cheerful comments were welcome enough after the depression of the last few days. I told him, after some hesitation, the whole thing, beginning with the Maitland pearls and ending with my drop down the dumb waiter. I knew I was absolutely safe in doing so; there is no person to whom I would rather tell a secret than he; he will lock it in the depths of his bosom and keep it until seventy times seven. Also, you may threaten the rack or offer a larger salary, the seal does not come off his lips until the word is given. If then he makes a screech of it, and gets in three columns of space and as many photographs it is his just reward." That is true even to the screech and the photographs.

(Catholic Register, Toronto.)

"Shoulders Together!" is the battle cry of Editor Macdonald of the Globe, in Mexico, as he advocates an American triple alliance—Mexico, the United States and Canada. It is another case of mixed metaphor, however. Who can imagine the three pairs of shoulders together without doing violence to the proprieties. And who very badly wants an alliance of any kind with the United States, and still much less with Mexico. We unite with the natural ally. That's the union we want and no other, Editor Macdonald, apart from his press gallery successes, has a disfigured fancy—he is indeed a bizzaro.

(Peterboro Review.)

There is a man in Peterboro from Maine. Maine is a prohibition state. This man neither drinks, smokes, chews, nor swears. He is a good living man. To the writer he stated that prohibition was a farce. He said that in Maine, in his home town, drunkenness was very common. This man has come to Peterboro to assume a responsible position. He is not talking through his hat. He is not talking for a purpose. The Ontario license law is good, as good as can be framed.

(Hamilton Herald.)

John Redmond told the United Irish League convention at Buffalo recently, that he asked for money not to assist him and his party to secure minor concessions for Ireland—that nothing would satisfy them short of national independence. He is a pretty good politician, is Mr. Redmond. In the United States he is willing to have the word "independence" interpreted one way, and quite another way in Britain and Canada.

THE COURTS.

King's Bench.
 Before Mr. Justice McKeown in chambers, King's Bench Division at 11 o'clock yesterday an application was made on behalf of the plaintiff in the case of The Southwest National Bank vs. Herbert Hughes et al for an order fixing the time for pleading and the place of trial. Order granted. This is an action on a promissory note given in payment for a stallion. M. G. Teed, K. C., and L. P. D. Tilley appeared for the plaintiff; H. H. Pickett and Messrs Fowler and Jonah for the defendant.

Probate.
 In the Probate Court yesterday morning before Judge Armstrong hearing on the return of the citation to pass the accounts in the estate of Count Robert V. deBury was held. The executors Messrs. T. P. Regan and E. T. C. Kowles appeared for Count Henry H. V. deBury, an eldest son of the deceased, and St. Francis Xavier College, a creditor. J. Roy Campbell appeared for Mrs. Shenkelberger, a daughter of the deceased. Mr. Knowles gave evidence relative to the passing of accounts and at 1 o'clock adjournment was made until 11th inst.

Tribute to Late Mr. Skinner.
 In opening the probate court yesterday morning Judge Armstrong paid a warm tribute to the late Hon. C. N. Skinner, who, he said, had held the position of judge of probate on two occasions. He referred to his notable career, his kindly disposition, his many good acts, and the valuable acquisition he was to the legal profession. Daniel Mullin, K. C., speaking as executor of the law society, stated that he had paid a personal tribute to the deceased at the memorial meeting of the law society, and as it was not fitting that he should cover the ground again, he only remarked that in all his life he never came in contact with such a kindly and generous hearted person as his old friend the late Recorder Skinner. E. T. C. Kowles who was also present, likewise made a feeling reference to the late recorder.

The funeral will be held today at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. David Lang will conduct the burial service at the house. Interment takes place in Cedar Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Guilford Slipp.
 The community of Central Blissville was saddened last week by the news that Lizzie A. Slipp, wife of Guilford Slipp, had passed away. Mrs. Slipp had been ill more than a month, but hopes were entertained of a favorable result. The deceased lady was a daughter of the late Thomas McLaughlin and besides a sorrowing husband and two little boys, aged 9 and 11 years, leaves also a mother and two brothers to mourn their loss. Mrs. Slipp was a woman much beloved by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance. She was in her 37th year at the time of her death.

COMMON COUNCIL ADOPT TRANSFER BY VOTE OF 10 TO 5

Much-Debated Question Finally Settled by City Fathers Yesterday--Salary for New Recorder Fixed at $3,000--Germain Street to be Paved and Widened--Other Business.

The city fathers yesterday settled the long debated question of the 40-acre lot to the C.P.R. They fixed the salary of the new recorder at $3,000 per year and declined to give James Carleton $4 a day while the main St. paying job was in progress.

They also appointed special committees with power to make a contract with the Hassam Company to pave Germain street, widen the sidewalks and convert it into a boulevard.

It was decided to sell B. Mooney & Son a number of lots for their brick-making business in Lanier, provided they would pay $5,000.

Besides the mayor there were present, Ald. Likely, Russell, Jones, Willet, White, Scott, Hays, Sprout, Holder, Elkin, Sprout and Christie, with the common clerk, the city engineer and city marshal Coughlan.

The Recorder's Salary. After the adoption of the minutes, the report of the Treasury Board was taken up. Section recommending that when a recorder is appointed he be paid an annual salary of $3,000, plus special fees and charges, except money actually paid out by him.

Ald. Hays moved the adoption of this section. Ald. Russell seconded this. Ald. Jones wanted to know whether the costs of any action awarded the city would become the property of the city or the recorder.

Ald. Baxter said he never knew of a case where the city had been able to recover costs. Litigation against the city was usually brought by unscrupulous persons.

Ald. Jones moved in amendment that it be provided that all taxed costs become the property of the city. Ald. Baxter seconded this.

Ald. Potts did not see the necessity of such an amendment. In reply to Ald. White, the mayor said the late recorder's stipend averaged about $3,000 per year.

Ald. White said $3,000 was rather large. If the recorder was permitted to continue his private practice, the subject was a delicate one. Ald. Baxter had served the city long and faithfully and deserved some consideration at the hands of the citizens.

At the same time he felt obliged to move in amendment that the salary be $2,500. Ald. Likely thought the common council should have the right of appointment. He moved that the matter be referred back to the Treasury Board till the government proclaimed the act.

The motions of Ald. White and Ald. Likely were not seconded. Ald. Jones' motion was then put and carried by a vote of 9 to 3.

Rodney Wharf Protection. The section dealing with M. G. Treed's opinion on the presentment of the grand jury caused some discussion. Ald. Elkin thought it was the duty of the city to take action to see that the responsible party provided protection on Rodney wharf.

Ald. Baxter said street and charge it to the appropriation for 1911. Ald. McGoldrick--It would cost $800. Ald. Baxter seconded the motion. The retaining wall would have to be built along the street and charge it to an action for damages.

Ald. Smith offered to pay the cost of the work if he got the money back next year. Ald. Potts and Likely opposed the policy of living beyond their means.

The question was put and the motion carried by the following vote: Yeas--Smith, Baxter, Scully, Christie, Holder, McGoldrick, Russell, White, Sprout.

Nays--Potts, Hays, Willet, Jones, McGoldrick, Christie, Scully, White, Russell. Ald. Baxter moved the Manchester Line be leased No. 5 warehouse for the winter season. This was adopted. The report of the safety board was then adopted. A sub-committee of this board reported in favor of selling B. Mooney and Company lots 6 to 11 and E and F at Lancaster, for $5,000, instead of $3,000 as offered.

Ald. Potts moved the adoption of the recommendation. He said the present revenue was only $140 per year. Ald. Russell seconded the motion. The mayor said they should not sell civic property without letting the public know it was for sale.

Ald. Scully said they couldn't sell the property, as Mooney had a renewal lease of a large portion of it. Ald. Likely said they should not sell 2 1/2 acres for $5,000. The property was increasing its value.

Decide to Sell. Ald. Potts' motion was then carried by the following vote: Yeas--Potts, Scully, Baxter, McGoldrick, Christie, White, Russell, Smith, Nays--Likely, Elkin, Jones, Willet.

The report of the water and sewerage board was then taken up. The section recommending that H. E. Wheaton be given a contract to lay a sewer in St. John street was referred back.

A section eight, recommending that a water main be laid on the Marsh Road to supply the tenants of R. G. Murray was thrown out. Ald. Potts thought the water and sewerage board should make a test of the pressure from the Little River before shutting off the water from Loch Lomond.

Ald. Likely said there would be just as much water available as before the Loch Lomond extension was built. He advised citizens to lay in a stock of Loch Lomond water; it would be shut off Tuesday morning.

Sent to New York. When the report of the ferry committee came up, Ald. Baxter moved that Ald. Potts and Superintendent Waring be authorized to proceed to New York and examine a ferry boat for sale there. This was adopted.

The report of the appeals committee was adopted as read, and the report of the bills and by-laws committee was taken up. Ald. Likely thought the Chinese laundries should be charged a license fee of $20 per year, but made no motion.

Ald. Potts delivered an oration on the section recommending that a bill be prepared to compel the removal from the streets of poles carrying wires.

The mayor--We can try to get the bill passed, but we won't get far. Transfer Notified. The report of the general committee on the West Side transfer was then taken up. Ald. Baxter said he understood the matter would be discussed but he wanted a formal vote.

The common clerk read a communication from M. G. Teed, K. C., stating that the city still owned the 1,200 foot strip, subject to certain rights and easements resting with the C. P. R.

Ald. Potts could not see why the city should give 40 acres for a strip of land they already owned. Ald. Baxter said the C. P. R. had privilege of running railway tracks over this property though the city owned it.

Ald. Likely moved the adoption of the report. After two years' discussion, he said it had boiled down just this. The motion to effect the transfer was then carried by the following vote: Yeas--Likely, Elkin, Jones, Willet, McGoldrick, Christie, Hays, Scully, White, Russell.

Nays--Baxter, Potts, Smith, Sprout, Holder. Ald. McGoldrick, Potts, Willet were appointed a committee to attend a meeting of the N. B. Municipalities at Woodstock, on Oct. 19. The mayor was given power to send such civic officials as he thought advisable.

A. B. Hunt was appointed a city constable. Ald. Potts moved that James Carleton be paid $1 a day from the time he resigned till the work on Main street was completed.

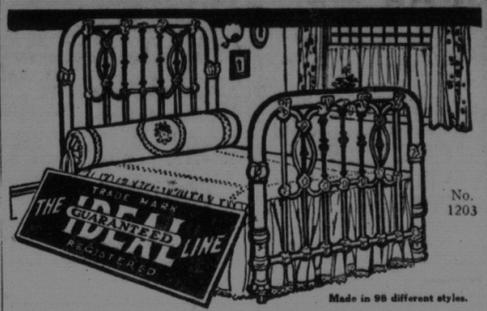

He said he was perfectly serious about the value of the shadow of M. Carleton's service. No second was forthcoming. The council then adjourned.

George Durley Missing. At a conference of the board members of the Associated Charities held on Saturday, Mrs. F. Stetson told of a man who has been missing for eight weeks. His wife then had him brought home. Early in the summer he disappeared and was gone for four days. He was then found working for a farmer near Torryburn. About eight weeks ago he again disappeared and since then no trace of him has been found. A small boy reports having seen him on the Bishop's grounds Torryburn, but a careful search proved useless. The family consists of his wife, who is a hard working woman, and eight children, the oldest a young man of 20 years. Munroe Got His From Hotel Man

Cobalt Innkeeper Made Miner Who Stood Up to Jeffries for Four Rounds Look Very Foolish.

The following comes from the New York Telegraph: Abe Hollow, for many years a betting commissioner for James Buchanan Brady, Edward McDonald, David Johnson and other gentlemen adventurers at the local race tracks, is now a prosperous merchant and mine owner of the Cobalt district.

Hollow likes the life in the mining country and the hearty and courteous people who make up the community. The Cobalt miners are mainly from the states about the great lakes and along the Canadian border.

"When a man makes a bluff up there he must make good," Mr. Hollow said yesterday, while discussing a champagne cocktail with a friend in Jim Gray's private office.

"I'll have to double you gentlemen up on our cot in a room with other people," Eagan said.

"That won't do at all," returned Munroe, insolently. "I want a private room for myself and my friend. You don't seem to know who I am."

"Now it happened that Eagan had had a long watch. He was weary mentally and physically and a bit testy, so he snapped back:

"I know exactly who you are and just what you call for, and if you don't like what I say, there is the door."

"Munroe was on the point of making some snarling reply when Eagan anticipated him bounded over the low counter with the agility of a panther, and shoving his weather-tanned face within an inch or so of the fighter's head:

"I'm glad, Mr. Munroe, this opportunity has come to me. You have been doing a lot of four-fushing here and I have your number. You come right outside with me and we will see who is the better man."

"Munroe went out with Eagan partly because he thought he could lick the innkeeper and partly because he knew he would have to leave Cobalt country if he didn't. A man doesn't refuse an invitation to scrap at Cobalt if he has done any bluffing, and Munroe had been playing the bully ever since he arrived from the States. The fight was short and quick.

"Eagan was all over the big slug-fighter before Munroe knew what was happening. He blacked Munroe's eyes, cut his lips and blooded his nose. Finding he had made a bad match, Munroe soon hollered 'Enough!' Then Eagan offered to give Munroe's friend a licking if he (the friend) thought he could so some. The friend declined with thanks and after that thrashing he and Munroe were mighty good boys. They slept on cots as Eagan suggested, and found out the next day who Eagan was.

Eagan is a broad shouldered, big-chested chap, with a small waist and wiry limbs, about 5 feet 11. By himself he passes as a big fellow, but alongside the burly Munroe he looks small. He is one of the hardest men physically I ever saw. It is only play for him to beat the stage thirty miles and I have your number. You come right outside with me and we will see who is the better man."

INSIDE STORY OF CHASE DEAL

Johnson Proves Dictatorship by Complete Control of New York Team—Farrell Looked to Him for Advice.

If any one has doubted that Ban Johnson is absolute dictator of the American league, the recent scandal in the New York team, which resulted in the humiliation of Manager Geo. Stallings, cannot but remove that doubt.

Briefly, Manager Stallings accused First Baseman Chase of throwing games. Stallings was called to New York by Owner Farrell, who after hearing his story went to Cleveland to interview the players. He declared that if Chase was guilty there was no longer room for him on the team.

Before leaving for Cleveland, Farrell wired Ban Johnson to meet him in the Ohio metropolis. Farrell arrived first. He met his players and asked them to tell him about the trouble.

Players Divided. The players were divided. One clique was for Stallings and the other for Chase. Both sides were afraid to show their cards, so Birdie Cree told Farrell he would get more information if he interviewed the players individually.

Prior to the meeting a majority of the players had said, confidentially of course, that they were for Stallings. I don't know what they told Farrell afterward, because Farrell naively confessed that he could not make a decision until Johnson arrived.

Think of it! The owner of a baseball club unable to say what his own opinion was, because the president of the league had not given him permission to speak.

When Johnson reached Cleveland he conferred for a couple of hours, with Farrell and Vice-President Somers, of the American league. Then, with Chase still far away, the portly president announced to waiting newspaper men that Chase had been greatly wronged and maligned.

Johnson would tip-stallings, not because he is not a splendid manager—as witness the team he brought from the rear and shoved into second place—but because he is "in bad" with the big moguls who have his back.

Stallings was entitled to a fair deal and an open investigation. He didn't get either, but Johnson has vented down first for the Anti-Athletic club and Kensington Athletics solely upon Miss Rowe.

The St. John Tennis Club mixed-doubles tournament will be played on Saturday at the local grounds. All entries must be sent in to Wm. Angus by Thursday evening.

Dill Pickles. Select medium sized cucumbers, wash gently with a brush and cover with clear cold water. The next day drain them, wipe dry and pack closely together in self-sealing glass or stone jars, using plenty of dress oil between the layers. To each half gallon jar add also two small red peppers, level teaspoonful of pepper, two bay leaves and two thin rounds of horseradish root. To six quarts of water add a pound of rock salt and a level teaspoonful of powdered alum. Heat the mixture boiling and add a quart of pure cider vinegar and pour at once over the pickles, covering them well and seal while hot. While fresh dill if obtainable should always be given the preference, yet dill seed in the proportion of a rounded tablespoonful to each gallon jar may be substituted.

Hitting like a fiend, running the bases in a daring manner and "covering an acre" in the outfield, makes Rube Oldring a player to be respected and even feared in the world's series games. Oldring has come fast this year, justifying the faith of Mack, who refused to accept the verdict of critics to the effect that Oldring was not classy enough for the American league. Right now Oldring is the most dependable hitter on Mack's payroll and he is expected to shine brightly in the game with Chicago.

Find Headless Body in York Co. Woods. From a time-book and other things found on the body it is believed the man's name is C. Monahan, but where he comes from or if that is his right name nobody seems absolutely certain. From the decomposed condition of the body it is believed that it had been hanging on the tree for some time, and as man's time-book showed that he had worked up to July, it is believed that he became tired of life about that time and committed suicide by hanging himself.

CRESCENT WON AT HALIFAX MEET

Game Little Trites Mare Defeated Favorite in Free-for-All--Baby Logan Won 2.30 in Straight Heats and Fastest Time--Queen Marie in 2.21

Halifax N. S. Oct. 3.—The best racing of the meet took place on the exhibition speedway this afternoon when Saturday's postponed races were pulled off.

The slowest class the 2.30 trot saw the fastest work the time in the first heat being 2.18 3-4, while the slowest heat was in the free-for-all, when Crescent travelled the third mile in 2.22 1-4.

Baby Logan, Crescent and Queen Marie were the winners. The former was the only horse to win in straight heats and she was the first horse to register her second win of the meet. As on the opening day, Walter H. Mabel G. failed to show the speed of her last appearance and she was never in it.

In the free-for-all the wise ones were badly pinched. The game little Orphan Girl was the favorite, but Mabel G. had shown her usual first heat speed, Crescent stepped in and took the straight. The Talent stuck to the Orphan until the end, however, and many were badly bitten.

QUAKER GIRL 1ST BASEMAN. Recent Speeches by John Redmond and William O'Brien—The Chances of Home Rule Discussed.

(From the London Spectator.) John Redmond, addressing a Nationalist meeting at Kilkenny on Sunday discussed the policy of his party towards Home Rule, the Conference, and the Budget. Never in their lifetime did the cause of Home Rule stand in so favorable a position as it did at this moment, and this great advance had been due to the policy and action of the Irish Party. Although distrustful of every English statesman, he thought it scarcely possible that Mr. Asquith could go back on his Albert Hall declaration. But if, when the veto of the Lords was abolished, the Liberal party then attempted to go back on their pledges to Ireland, the Irish Party would be strong and united enough to hurl them from office.

The Irish Party had looked on the conference with suspicion, but had no power to stop it. Only two results were possible. The first, which was by no means improbable, was an arrangement by which the extravagant powers of the Lords were amicably surrendered, and such an arrangement meant "without doubt or question the almost immediate concession of Home Rule to Ireland. The other was a complete breakdown of the conference. They would then simply revert to the position in which they stood before the general election in January, followed by a victory of the democratic forces and a much more radical reform of the House of Lords. As for the Budget, Ireland would have been disgraced before the whole world if they had jeopardized the chances of Home Rule for the sake of saving a penny a pound on Irish whiskey.

Meantime Mr. O'Brien had invaded County Mayo, Mr. Dillon's county, and addressed two meetings of the "All for Ireland" League on Saturday and Sunday. At Ballina he suggested the appointment of a jury of honor, six men from each side, to settle the responsibility for the dissensions of the last seven years. He was prepared to prove to the hilt that Mr. Dillon and the Freeman's Journal had been engaged in a secret conspiracy against Mr. Redmond and the great majority of his colleagues, and that he (Mr. Dillon) was the destroyer of the national policy of conciliation which had been endorsed in every form by the party and the country.

Mixed Mustard Pickles. This recipe requires four quarts of small cucumbers, four quarts of very small onions, the hearts of two large cauliflower cut in small pieces, two pounds of light brown sugar, one gallon of cider vinegar, one-fourth pound of ground mustard and one-half ounce of curry powder. Soak the cucumbers, onions and cauliflower in separate salt water overnight. In the morning drain and boil separately until tender in half water and half vinegar. Put two quarts of vinegar with the sugar in a granite kettle and heat boiling hot; then add a paste made of one quart of cold vinegar, mustard, flour and curry powder. Let this come to a boil, stirring all the time for it bubbles easily, and then add the vegetables without the liquid in which they were cooked. Do not boil the mixture, but just scald and then seal in jars.

Spiced Beets. To seven pounds of beets, peeled and sliced beets take four pounds of brown sugar, one pint of vinegar, 12 cloves, and a large stick of cinnamon. Boil the strips, then add the beets and cook for ten minutes. Put the beets into cans, pour the boiling syrup over them to fill the cans and seal immediately.

RESIDENTS OF GERMAIN ST. MAY HAVE A BOULEVARD

Special Committee Appointed by Common Council Yesterday Decide to Let Contract to Hassam Company for Widening and Paving Street if Residents Accept Plans.

Germain street will be boulevardized if a majority of the residents on both sides of the street desire it. In any case it will be paved this fall. The Common Council has finally decided upon the matter. At the meeting of the special committee last evening, authorized by the City Council to deal with the Germain street paving question, it was decided to make a contract with the Hassam Co. to have the work done at once on the basis recommended by the Board of Works, but with the understanding that the plans would be changed if a majority of the residents sent in a petition to have the street boulevardized, in accordance with the plan submitted to the Council yesterday afternoon by Walter Allison and Percy Thomson. After some preliminary discussion, Ald. Lively moved that the Hassam Co. be given a contract in accordance with the terms of their original offer. Ald. Jones seconded this. R. S. Low was then heard. He said the cost of boulevardizing the street would be no more than adhering to the original plan. The city would save on the narrowing of the paved portion of the street enough to pay for the widening of the sidewalk.

Ald. Potts moved in amendment that the street be paved in accordance with the boulevard plan. He thought the grass plots with the trees had made a decided impression on the Council. Ald. Hayes suggested that the company should go ahead on the basis of the recommendation of the Board of Works, leaving it to the residents to get up a petition if they wanted a boulevard, when the company could be instructed to change its plans. The city engineer said the city only had authority to levy on the residents for half the cost of pavement between curb and curb. After some further discussion, Ald. Lively agreed to accept an amendment to the Council resolution, giving the residents the privilege of having a boulevard, provided they sent in a petition by noon on Wednesday. The motion was then carried unanimously. The engineer asked for instruction as to the method of mixing concrete for the foundation. He said he was in favor of using the Hassam method. Those present were Ald. McGoldrick, Elkin, Jones, Potts, Hayes, and Lively with the Common Clerk and the City Engineer.
