Chaste may be the snow-drop's bloom Smiling o'er its wintry tomb ; Sweet may prove the summer flower, Clinging to its parent bower ; Fair the water-lily blow Where its native stream may flow: Elfin forms may haply dwell, Buried in the cowslip bell ; But, alas ! these fade away-

Fresh the giant oak wave on, When its rivals' verdure's gone Flourish may the mountain pine, Freely thrive the trailing vine ; Brake and thicket blossom round, Green be all from bound to bound : But their brightest leaves decay-Winter sweeps them all away !

But the "evergreen" still wayes, When the tempest rants and raves When its sleet the lime tree dims, Whistling through its naked limbs Not a leaf of it is cast, As a plaything for the blast ; Firm it bides the pelting hail, Drifting snow and fres zing gale : Still the same, 'tis ever see The fresh-the "bonnie evergreen !"

The other day a lady fell off the Brooklyn boa into the East River ; a poor Irishman sprang over and rescued her. When she was safe on deck again, her husband, who had been a calm specta of the accident, handed the brave fellow a shilling. Upon some of the bystanders expressing indignation, Pat said, as he pocketed the coin, "Arrah, don't blame the jintleman, he knows best ; "mayhap, if I hadn't saved her, he'd' have given me a dollar !?

I certainly had made no claim on any "Mrs. St. Clair" in the United Kingdom, either in my private or professional capacity; nor was I conscious of deserving any of the hard epithets bestowed on me by the fair Nel la ; and I most reluctantly came to the conclusion that I had been guilty of an involuntary felony in breaking open another "Quarles" letter ; but, on a sec came into my mind. There was evident distress, and, as it seemed to me, distress that a legal brain and firm will might remedy ; so, after a brief con sideration, I came to the determination to risk a

WASHINGTON'S LITTLE HATCHET .- The Chicago "Tribune" gives the following new ver-sion of the hatchet story : Washing on's parents were very particular as to little Georgie's playfellows, never allowing any Lut his little cousing or nephews to visit him. One of these little playfellows, and in some way connected, was one of the Custis boys. Among other cognomens bestowed upon this youth at his christening was that of Isaac. Well, Isaac and Georgie were playing together in the orchard on the day when I the hi c cherry tree was disfigured. The parental Washington came along and was much enraged to see his favorite tree cut and backed in a very bungling manner. So he said to Georgie, 'Come here, you rascal! Who cut this eherry tree of mine?" George gazed for a moment at the riding whip in the old gentleman's hand, and then replied : "Father, I cannot tell a lie-Ike cut' it with my little hatchet."
