Orangemen at Church.
The members of L.O.L. No. 48, with the O.V.B.'s and the members of the L.O.B.A. attended service in Zion Church on Sunday evening last, a large gathering, and were addressed by Rev.
Mr. Mond, who took for his text:
"and Peter lodged with one Simon a Tanner." The theme was toleration, holding up the gospel of truth, with an endeavor to win by example as well as by precept.

Appeal for the Prisoners of War.
The members of the Carleton Place
Women's Institute make an especial appeal during July for funds to help our Canadian Boys who are prisoners of war in Germany. At present the Institute is supporting four of these young men, and have received direct word from George New and Walter Rogers that they are receiving the relief sent and are most grateful. Arrangements have been made with Mr. G. W.
Allan whereby a committee of ladies will meet at his store every Saturday afternoon and evening during July to receive contributions for this very worthy object. We trust the ladies will be remembered in this as in former laudable enterprises. This new request does not at all interfere with the present arrangement for the four men being cared for, but is an additional move undertaken to do more for these noble fellows who are risking their lives for the country's weal.

A Good Circus.
La Tena's circus appeared in Carleton Place on Friday last, and drew large audiences at both performances, and all seemed well pleased with the show.
The absence of vulgarity in any form was a feature of the performance and speaks well for the management. The only fault one could find was that the rings were too small for the number of performers. The trained animals were exceptionally good, the ponies and elephants especially. The programme as announced was even more than carried out.

A Successful Lawn Social.
As usual the annual lawn social under the auspices of St. Mary's church, held last Thursday evening, was a success,
the proceeds amounting to nearly $400.
There were all the attractions to magnetize the dimes, even the "Kaiser," who got such a pounding that you might easily in imagination still hear his groans. This feature was kindly loaned by the Canadian Women's Club of Ottawa. There were moving pictures and music, flowers and fruit, ice cream, etc. The various committees are to be congratulated upon the success they attained.

Miss Cecille Warren, of Ferguson Falls, who was successful in the recent exams. at Faculty of Education, Queen's Kingston, left on the 1st to take a sum-auction sale for the 20th.

Mr. G. W. Allan and family have gone is home at present.

Rev. Mr. Scott has been under the weather for some days, suffering from a severe bilious attack.

Mr. R. J. Robertson left to-day for Carlsbad, and purposes spending a week at the sulphur springs.

spend a few weeks holidays with friends at Ottawa and Kenmore.

Farlane is convalescing nicely, and is

and original play, "The Nightingale," Wednesday and Thursday.

O.V.B.'s will take part in the county celebration at Almonte to-morrow.

Miss W. Reta McGinness left this morning for the lower St. Lawrence, to spend some weeks with friends there.

Mrs. Keyes, and her daughter, Mrs.
Moore, of Smiths Falls, have come to spend a few weeks at Juanita Lodge, Lake Park.

Miss Bessie McLean, nurse-in-training at Toronto, arrived home last week for a few weeks holidays. Mr. Donald Mc-Lean, of Beachburg, is also a visitor at Duart Farm at present.

Miss Jean Bell arrived home from the front last week, and is taking a well-earned rest, having gone to England with the first Canadian nurses shortly after the war broke out. Miss Bell can relate many interesting incidents in connection with the war.

John Graham, a well known farmer of the Roland, Man., district, died suddenly there on Wednesday last. Deceased was an uncle of Hon. George P. Graham and was educated for the Methodist ministry. He held pastorates on the Bay of Quinte before retiring from the ministry in 1879.

On Friday the death occurred suddenly at Amsterdam, N.Y., of Mr. William Tomlinson, a former resident of Brockville. He dropped dead while at work in a carpet factory at that place. The deceased was born at Prescott. He spent his younger days in that town, but came to Brockville several years ago.

Mr. Ernest Reynolds who has two brothers at the front, tells us how his brother William was in two engagements in Belgium with the British navy, when they were driven back by the Germans at Antwerp and Dixmude, and escaped both times, and was afterwards sent to the Dardanelles, and was on two different ships when they were sunk, and still escaped with his life, and is at present on active service again with the navy.
His surely is a charmed life. Sergt.
Major W. R. Reynolds has been 23 years in the service.

Smiths Falls Girl Accidentally Scalped

Miss Gladys Baxter, a Smith's Falls girl, was the victim of a terrible accident on Sunday.
She had been in bathing in the Rideau river at Portland and started the engine of her boat while her wet hair was hanging over her shoulders. The loose hair caught in the fly-wheel and before the engine could be stopped part of her scalp was torn off.
She was taken to the Smith's Falls hospital at once but her recovery is doubtful.

Death of Miss Janet McNab.

After an illness of many months, borne with patience and calm resignation, Miss Janet McNab passed quietly away last evening at 8 o'clock. The deceased was born in Beckwith, being a daughter of the late Peter McNab, one of the early Scotch settlers, and was in her 70th year. Twenty-six years ago Miss McNab came to Carleton Place with her brother, the late Donald McNab, and has lived here mostly since. She was a woman of kindly disposition, very unassuming in manner, and her life has been devoted to good works. She is survived by one brother and one sister, Mr. J. K. McNab and Mrs. Samuel Moffatt, both of Renfrew. She was a member of Zion church, and took a keen interest in all church work. The funeral is fixed for Wednesday afternoon to St.
Fillan's cemetery. The bereaved relatives have the deep sympathy of many friends in their hour of grief.

Marriage in Huntley.

On Wednesday, June 28th, at 5 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John A.
Crawford, of Huntley, a pretty wedding was solemnized, when their daughter,
Ethel May, became the bride of Mr.
Nelson Simpson, of Goulbourne. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr.
Fraser, of Appleton, the bridal party standing under an arch of evergreens festooned with wild roses and daisies.
The bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father, to strains of Mendel-sohn's wedding march, played by Mrs.
Fraser and looked charming in a girlish wedding dress of white embroidered voile trimmed with lace, and wearing a bridal veil caught up with orange blossoms. Miss Lizzie Crawford, sister of the bride, daintily gowned in voile, was bridesmaid, while Mr. Gilmour Simpson, nephew of the groom, ably performed the duties of best man.
After receiving the congratulations of a few near relatives gathered for the occasion the bridal party repaired to dining-room where a dainty repast was served by a few girl friends of the bride.
They spent the evening pleasantly and next morning drove to the groom's home for dinner. They received many pretty and useful presents. All join in wishing the young couple a happy and prosperous journey through life.—Com.

UN SOUND FOODS.

Points For Young Housekeepers About Shellfish.

HOW TO DETECT BAD MEATS.

If the Caterer For a Family Knows the Difference Between Fresh and Stale Foodstuffs Ptomaine Poisoning and Other Serious Ills May Be Avoided.

Smoked meats and fish are bad when they are flabby to the touch and have a rancid, sour smell.

Glazed meat products are bad when they have a rancid, sour smell and when the color differs from the fresh product.

Good fresh pork is solid, has pure white fat and pink flesh. Do not buy pork that is soft and yellow.

Remember that lamb or mutton should be firm, close grained and light red in color, with fat that is white and hard.

Beef should be of a rosy red color, with cream colored, firm, elastic fat and scarcely moist when touched with the finger. Do not buy wet, flabby beef that is pale and purple.

All shellfish should smell fresh, and the shells should close firmly when put into water or touched with the finger. Shellfish should be alive when cooked.

Fresh veal is pale red (unless milk fed, when it is light), with firm, white fat between the muscles and surrounding tissues and scarcely moist to the touch. Bad veal is soft, mushy, sticky and has a very red tinge, while the fat has a grayish lead color.

Fresh fish should have red gills, moist, bright scales and clear eyes, and should be firm and rigid when handled. Stale fish is flabby, has dull scales, the eyes are sunken and covered with a film, the gills are pale or of greenish color, and the fish has a bad odor. All lumpy fish should be rejected as the growth may be cancer.

To detect decomposing meats in cans before opening inspect the ends of the can and if they bulge, discard the can. This bulging is due to accumulated gases of decomposition that push the ends outward by force of pressure. Leaking and rusty cans should also be discarded. Canned meats should be free from mold. The odor of such meats should be the same as when freshly prepared. If the meat is putrid exposure to heat will make it possible to detect the foul odor.

FOR COOL DAYS.

The 'Grazz For Stripes Has Girdled Even This School Child. These cozy new sweaters come in two shades of old rose, brown and tan; two shades of blue and black with gay ZEBRA UP TO DATE. contrasts. The one pictured has patch pockets, a belt flap and roll collar and comes in a light weight.

Penuchi.

Two cupfuls of brown sugar, one cupful of white, three-quarters cupful of milk, butter size of walnut and vanilla to flavor. Cook sugar and milk over moderate blaze until it forms a soft ball in water. Remove from stove, add butter and vanilla. Beat until creamy and place in buttered pan. Be sure and don't cook too long. Remove from stove as soon as it forms a soft ball in water. It burns very easily, so stir quite often, but not continuously.

Carrot Pie.

One cupful of sour cream, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of grated carrot, the yolks of two eggs, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg to taste. Bake in one crust and cover with meringue, using the whites of two eggs and four table-spoonfuls of powdered sugar.

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Pleasant Evening Reveries dedicated to tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

IN UNITY THERE IS STRENGTH.

Go back in history of cities and communities as far as you like, and you will find that harmony was the keynote of success. Nothing has ever been achieved by adverse criticism and sectional disputes. You may not like the cut of my coat and I may not like your hat, but there is no reason why we can't work together without picking and nagging each other.

Some of the sweetest dispositioned children have been irredeemably spoiled by continual fault-finding. Probably there are some people with considerable tact who can tell us of our glaring faults without getting our ill-will, but such are few and far between.

More can be done for this community by upbuilding it than trying to tear down the existing structures, even if you don't like the color of the paint, or as old sailors say, the "cut of his jib."

We all want this town to succeed. We want more permanent residents and more live boosters. Those who are here are doing all they can, but we always welcome new blood and new ideas.

We may not be able to get all we want, but one thing is certain, that if we don't go after things, they will never come after us. Working in harmony, we can accomplish great things. We do not need to attend the same church or vote the same ticket to be at unity in doing things for our home town.

YOUR BOY.

Under the above heading, Leslies one of the greatest magazines, says, This is a good time to think of your boy. If you do not look after him in the right way, someone will do it in the wrong way. Begin now.

Teach your boys to follow in the footsteps of his father, to respect the law, to obey his parents, to regard the rights of all men, to honor virtue, to respect womanhood and to depend upon no one but himself for his advancement.

Teach him that the golden rule of life will be found in the ten commandments. They are short. They have survived the ages. They stand to-day unchanged and unchallenged.

They comprise the first great written law given by God to man. Before these few commandments all man-made laws fade into insignificance. Teach them to your boy. There is danger ahead if you do not.

The universal drift of mankind is toward decadence. Heredity pays its premium and also exacts its discount. The son of a good father and an affectionate mother, brought up in an atmosphere of parental regard, never will disgrace the family.

PRODUCTION AND MARKETS.

How is the war affecting the live stock industry of Canada? Can this country develop a profitable export trade in live stock products? If so, how would such a trade affect Canada and advantage will it yield to the Canadian farmer? What opportunities present themselves in the way of foreign business as a result of our participation in the war? Will more or better poultry, hogs, sheep, cattle, horses insure any profit or benefit to the man who owns and raises them? Will systematic or organized action in breeding, feeding and selling be of any service in making Canada henceforth a powerful factor in the world's product business? If anyone is interested, either in the town or on the farm, in the problems which each or all of these questions raise, he should see and read a copy of Pamphlet No. 15, "Production and Markets," written by the Live Stock Commissioner and the Assistant Live Stock Commissioner and recently issued by the Live Stock Branch of the Department of Agriculture. The pamphlet has the unique feature of dealing not only with the question of production, but as well, with the equally important problem of markets. We think that every farmer in Canada should at once carefully read a copy of this publication. It is issued at a moment when a careful study of the existing market situation should prove of great value to owners of breeding stock of all classes. Applications for copies should be made to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

SUMMER HEAT HARD ON BABY

No season of the year is so dangerous to the life of little ones as is the summer. The excessive heat throws the little stomach out of order so quickly that unless prompt aid is at hand the baby may be beyond all human help before the mother realizes he is ill. Summer is the season when diarrhoea, cholera infantum, dysentery and colic are most prevalent. Any one of these troubles may prove deadly if not promptly treated. During the summer the mother's best friend is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and keep baby healthy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Entente allies have raised the blockade against Greece.

Few smallpox cases are reported in Ontario and the measles epidemic is lessening.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

According to Andy Mack, who is by way of being an Irishman himself, a funeral was just emerging from a flat in the upper West Side of New York when a truck driver, passing by, halted his team and called down in a husky whisper to one of the pallbearers, whom he knew: "Say, Larry, whose funeral is that?" "Dugan's," answered Larry; "little Hugh Dugan's."

"And is Dugan dead?" demanded the surprised truckman.

"Say!" demanded Larry hoarsely. "What do you think this is—a rehearsal?"

The boys of to-day are to be the men of to-morrow. The destinies of the American people are to be in the hands of their sons. If the boys are taught respect for the law, both human and divine, obedience to authority, manly independence and the fear of God, this great nation will be a noble monument to man's capacity for self government and self control at a time when all the world is seething in a cauldron of unrest, unreason and disbelief.

Teach your boy to rule, but first to rule himself. The home that possesses a cheerful wife and mother is not only a veritable haven of rest, but the safe harbor whose beacon light will guide her bread winners safely past all rocks and shoals with un-failing certainty. The woman whose cheerful spirit can take that brave attitude toward life that enables her to bear courageously the inevitable burdens of her life's environment; that strengthens her determination not to fret or worry those who, for her sake, are fighting the hard battles in the world, has reached that altitude that proclaims her price above rubies; and her influence and example are not felt only within the limits of the four walls she has made the unassailable bulwark of state and society, a happy home, but reach to those she knows not of.

Philosopher and poet are alike in the verdict that the safety and perpetuity of any nation lies in the homes of its people.

It is painful to read the particulars of the numerous divorce suits that fill the columns of the daily papers. Many of these sad events are from good homes and the interested parties stand high in social life, and not a few in church life. This separation between husband and wife is one of the sad scenes in human existence. Many times either would prefer death to this unhappy parting. For years they have lived together and their lives have been blended into one. They have learned by bitter experience, as the years have gone by that they are not suited to one another and finally, in a moment of discord or passion, the silken cord has broken and they separate forever. Let us hope that in the world to come, when they can all see things plainer than they do in this life they may be united again, but there is a probability that unhappy marriages, resulting from unsuited positions, will not result in union or happiness in this world or the one to come. "What God hath joined together let no man put asunder."

The July issue of Rod and Gun is replete with material of interest to the sportsman, whether he be fisherman, hunter, dog fancier, gun crank or what not. Bonnycastle Dale contributes the leading article, "The Pursuit of the Maskinonge"; F. V. Williams gives a chapter in the adventurous life of a Seal Pup; Geo. H. Sarver relates an experience in which British Columbia sportsmen are attacked by grizzlies; Edward T. Martin describes a fight put up by a wild goose when attacked by a retriever. Other stories and articles, in addition to the regular departments. The July issue is a good one to tuck into the outer's kit when setting forth on his vacation.

Wasted Talent.

The train robber suddenly appeared as many of the passengers were preparing to retire for the night.

"Come, shell out!" he demanded, as he stood towering above an eastern clergyman, who had just finished a devout prayer.

The minister looked at him sadly for a moment and then said:

"If I had such energetic fellows as you to pass the plate now and then I might have something to give you."

The Modern Way.

Mary, a small but up-to-date maiden, had been to tea for the first time with the new neighbors next door. And, from all accounts, the little girl there had not been at all generous in permitting Mary to share her playthings.

"Well," said Mary's mother when she heard all about it, "if anybody had treated me like that when I was a little girl I would have come straight home."

The girl of to-day shrugged her small shoulders as she answered:

"Umph! Things have changed since your day, mother. I slapped her face and stayed."

The Real Thing.

According to Andy Mack, who is by way of being an Irishman himself, a funeral was just emerging from a flat in the upper West Side of New York when a truck driver, passing by, halted his team and called down in a husky whisper to one of the pallbearers, whom he knew:

"Say, Larry, whose funeral is that?" "Dugan's," answered Larry; "little Hugh Dugan's."

"And is Dugan dead?" demanded the surprised truckman.

"Say!" demanded Larry hoarsely. "What do you think this is—a rehearsal?"

MUSIC IN MEXICO.

Every Little Hamlet Has a Band Stand of Its Own.

A HELP IN THE GAME OF LOVE.

To the Strains of Melody the Youths and Maidens "Play Bear," a Peculiar National Diversion That is the Correct Road to Matrimony.

Music plays a very prominent part in the social life of Mexico, not alone in the capital and other larger cities, but all over that picturesque land. A Mexican who can play no musical instrument is nothing less than a curiosity. There is no hamlet so insignificant that it has no band. Eight or ten men get together and decide to form a band. Having reached that decision, they go to the jefe politico, or mayor.

"All right," he will tell them. "You are to play Wednesday evenings from 6 to 9 and Sunday mornings from 9 to 12," and a record is made. And during these hours, rain or shine, hot or cold, through famine, war and pestilence, as long as those men are alive and in the town, the band is in the band stand playing for such as choose to linger in the plaza, or public square.

About the evening concerts much of the social and domestic life of Mexico centers. It is at the concerts that many a youth and maiden first meet and begin to "play bear," a game indigenous and peculiar to Mexico, without which no self respecting Mexican couple adventures on matrimony.

The general plan of every plaza is much the same. In the center is the band stand. Immediately surrounding the band stand is an open paved space. Then there are flower-bordered walks with plenty of benches.

Round the edge of the plaza, outside the trees and flowers, is another broad paved walk. Upon this outer walk are grouped the poorer Mexicans, the peons. On the benches sit the fathers, the mothers, the older folk, of the better classes. Round the walk that surrounds the band stand saunter tirelessly the youths and maidens of the same class.

The women circle to the left on the outside, the men in the opposite direction, on the inside. Thus every one sees every one else innumerable times during the evening. And in this melodious circling a youth sets eyes on a maiden who strikes his fancy—the game of "playing bear" has begun. He looks steadily at his charmer every time they pass, and she, if she is pleased, glances at him in return. After they have passed each other ten or a dozen times he is at the edge of the procession in which he walks, and she has moved to the edge of the column of young women.

Then the young man, with a friend, withdraws to some cantina, or cafe, and writes an ardent note. On the next round his friend in passing slips it into the hand of her companion. Then they continue their strolling until the concert is at an end.

On the next concert evening the performance is repeated, only this time the young lady is the one who presents the note, which she has written in her home. If she rejects her suitor's advances he persists or desists, according as he is faint hearted or not.

If he meets with success he begins the next phase of the game. Each evening he will be seen opposite his lady's house, passing back and forth like a sentry walking his post. Even during business hours he will rise and deny from his stool, seize his hat, rush frantically to his accustomed beat and for several minutes walk up and down, gazing reproachfully at the barred windows across the way.

As time goes on, after six weeks or two months, say, have passed, the girl is at last to be seen seated in the window. Then ensues another period of from two weeks to a month. The young man's walks gradually shorten, and one evening he is to be seen underneath the window, gazing mournfully upward for hours, much to the discomfort of passersby. But no one grumbles. All the world loves a lover—especially in Mexico.

After this stage father and son call formally on the father of the young lady and make a proposal of marriage.

When all the arrangements have been made the young man for the first time calls at the home of his affianced wife and meets her face to face, but never except in the company of a third person—mother, father or aunt—Youth's Companion.

When Solid Iron Floats.

Experiments have shown that if a ball of solid iron be lowered into a mass of liquid iron by means of a metal fork the ball at first sinks to the bottom with the fork, but that in a few seconds it will leave the prongs and rise to the surface, where it continues to float until it melts. The rising is explained by the expansion of the ball, due to heating, whereby it becomes, bulk for bulk, less dense than the molten metal.

Friendly Criticism.

Pennibs—Two of my latest poems appeared in the last issue of McDuff's Magazine. Inkerton—Yes; I noticed them. Pennibs—Would you mind giving me your opinion of them? Inkerton—Well, to be candid, I thought the one was awfully simple and the other simply awful.

Method makes men win. Thus is success reduced to the science of correct calculation.

Sandwich Fillings.

One of the most common questions asked by the housewife is, "Can you tell me a good sandwich filler?" Here are a few that have proved to be very satisfactory:

Meat thinly sliced or finely chopped and seasoned, or mixed with salad dressing.

Celery chopped fine and mixed with salad dressing.

Olives chopped fine and mixed with salad dressing (3c. to 1c. olives).

Celery, pimientos and nuts, chopped fine and mixed with salad dressing.

Cream cheese and nuts, or olives, or cream.

American cheese grated, seasoned with tomato.

Lettuce with mayonnaise.

Peanuts, pounded smooth, seasoned and moistened with cream.

Figs cooked to smooth paste, sugar, lemon juice and nuts added.

Dates and preserved ginger.

Dates and peanuts chopped fine, moistened with cream.

Raisins cooked to smooth paste, lemon juice and nuts added.

The bread should be 25 hours old and cut in thin, even slices. If fancy forms are desired, shape before spreading with butter. Cream the butter and spread evenly.

Following Instructions

Old Doctor Berry was long the sage and patriarch of the quaint old Indian town of Brockville, near Cincinnati. One of his most constant patients was Samuel Baker, who was always complaining, but who had really not much the matter with him. One day the old doctor lost his patience, and declined to give Samuel any medicine.

"You don't need it," said he.

"But how shall I get well, then?"

"Do you see that chicken out there scratching up the ground to get gravel to eat?"

"Yes," said Samuel, looking out of the office window.

"Well," said the doctor, "you just do as that chicken does, and you'll soon be all right."

A week later old Samuel appeared at the office again, looking far from well, and the doctor was really alarmed.

"I done as you told me, doctor," said the patient, "but you forgot to tell me how much gravel I was to eat. I wanted to get well fast, and I've eaten a good lot every day, but I've been in bed nearly all the time."

The Man Behind the Plow.

They sing about the glories of the man behind the gun.

And the books are full of stories of the wonders he hath done.

There's something sort o' thrillin' in the flag that's wavin' high,

And it makes you want to holler when the boys go marchin' by;

But when the shoutin' over and the fightin's done, somehow

We find we're still dependin' on the man behind the plow.

Six Years—Six Minutes

Six years ago, says the New York Independent, the British determined to build a battle-cruiser that should be bigger and swifter and stronger than any afloat. Hundreds of skilled workmen labored for years in her construction. Ten and a half million dollars were spent on her. She was protected with armor plate of the hardest steel nine inches thick. She was propelled by the most efficient of steam engines, the turbine. She was armed with ten 13.5-inch guns, which could discharge a 1,400 pound projectile every thirty seconds; also with sixteen 4-inch guns, twelve 6-inch guns and two torpedo tubes. A thousand men were put aboard of her and she went into action on the last day of May. The German warships opened fire and within six minutes the Queen Mary was torn asunder by a terrific explosion and sunk.

CONDITION OF FIELD CROPS.

Ottawa, July 3.—A special press bulletin issued by the Census and Statistics Office gives the following report on the condition of field crops in Canada at the end of June, as summarized from telegrams received from the Dominion Experimental Farms and Stations...

Maritime Provinces.—In Prince Edward Island the weather conditions have been most favorable for all crops. Spring work was completed fully two weeks ahead of last year; beneficial rains fell occasionally.

Quebec.—Abundant rains have favored the growth of grass and prospects are excellent for a good hay crop.

Ontario.—About one-third less grain was sown than in previous years. In condition it is uneven spotted and badly affected by rain.

Manitoba.—Abundant rains have fallen during latter part of June. The crop is very well rooted and there is a strong healthy growth.

British Columbia.—The month has been cool with over 2 1/2 inches precipitation, well distributed. One week was quite warm.

The by-election in North Perth yesterday was rather a set-back for the Hearst Government, the Liberal-Hay being elected by a majority of 273 over a Conservative who was elected by a majority of 723 over a Liberal and Independent, and 1117 over the Liberal.

240TH BATTALION NOTES.

The organization work of the 240th is just about completed and an active recruiting campaign will at once be put into operation. Up to the present no effort has been made to secure recruits, as it was the desire and intention of Lt.-Col. Watt, the officer commanding, to be in a position to fully provide for all men just as soon as they enlist. This has been accomplished and the strength of the battalion is now fifty-five composed of men who have voluntarily appeared at headquarters at Renfrew. It is already known to the officer commanding and his staff that many others are only awaiting the opening of recruiting offices in the various towns to become members of the 240th, and the enlistment of the full number of men is viewed in the most encouraging manner and without the slightest doubt of early fulfillment.

Mr. Douglas Shearer, of Smiths Falls, until recently engaged in banking at Perth, has enlisted with the 240th. He is a young man of good reputation and ability and his example is expected to be followed by many young men of his circle. Lieut. Col. Lennox Irving, of Pembroke, who for some time has held the important position of Provost Marshal of Patewawa camp, has accepted the office of second in command of the battalion. Col. Irving needs no further introduction. His military experience covers a long period of faithful and competent service and he is well qualified for the high position he has accepted. He is one of Pembroke's leading citizens and a gentleman of undoubted ability and integrity. His entry into the 240th means that he will bring many capable men with him who will maintain the dignity of the battalion and inspire the confidence of the general public.

Another gentleman of prominence and experience has joined Col. Watt, in the person of Mr. Herb. McIntyre, of Lanark village. Mr. McIntyre is popularly known throughout both counties as a man of sterling qualities, and his association with the 240th cannot fail to have a most important and successful bearing on rapid recruiting.

Mr. George G. Graham, of Smiths Falls, has been in uniform for some time and is doing excellent work for the 240th, although he has scarcely got under way. He is an esteemed citizen of his native town, and has recently returned from a year's residence abroad, in the interests of the Frost and Wood company with whom he has been connected during the past seventeen years, performing his duties in a most satisfactory manner for the firm and with much credit to himself.

From every town in the Ottawa Valley prominent business men are gladly accepting Col. Watt's invitation to accept commissions in the 240th battalion in order that the 240th may be officered by home men of character and high standing who will have the respect and confidence of the enlisted men and of the relatives and friends of the enlisted men. By this means the 240th promises to be one big happy family, all known to each other, the officers enjoying the esteem of the men and the men sharing likewise in the respect of the officers, so that the best effects of all will be cheerfully exerted and the best of results attained in efficiency. Col. Watt is holding positions open for local men, who realize that it is their plain duty to represent their respective towns in this promising unit of the great Canadian Expeditionary Force which has already so splendidly acquitted themselves in action.

The exhibition of machine gun firing given by Quartermaster Sergt. Allen, of the 240th battalion, at Franktown, last Thursday, was perhaps the first of its kind ever given in Canada. The gun used was one that was presented to the 130th battalion by the good people of Beckwith township, who witnessed for the first time a weapon firing 180 shots per minute. Sergt. Allen is an expert machine gun operator and will have charge of this service with the 240th. It is a most fascinating work, so far as that term may be used, and the machine gun section of the battalion, under Sergt. Allen, will be second to none yet organized, as the residents of Franktown and vicinity will endorse after seeing the work of the clever sergeant.

Farm Laborers Wanted.

The Western Provinces of Canada have experienced an acute shortage of Farm Laborers for Spring Seeding and Summer work this year. Even when times were normal there was a shortage, which was always necessary to bring from twenty-five to thirty thousand laborers from Eastern Provinces for the Harvest season. As voluntary enlistments have been very heavy and inasmuch as a successful crop is predicted by the experts, grave fear is being felt along the Lines of the Canadian Northern Railway, on account of the difficulty experienced in obtaining labor, which means steady work and good wages for all who visit in the harvest season. For further particulars apply to E. A. J. Davis, local Agent, or write to R. L. Fairbairn, General Passenger Agent, 68 King St. E., Toronto, Ont.

TWO MORE TOWNS WON

Foch's Troops Are Only Short Distance From Peronne.

Towns of Hardecourt and Mamielon Are Captured After an Assault Lasting Thirty-five Minutes—British Making Progress Near Oviliers—Germans Admit That the Situation is Critical for Them.

PARIS, July 10.—Hammering relentlessly at the German lines in Picardy, which the fury of two days' assaults had crumpled in like paper, the French troops under Gen. Foch swept forward Sunday almost to within rifle fire of Peronne. By nightfall, when both sides rested on their arms for the first time in hours, the French lines had been extended on a front of two and a half miles to a depth of a mile on the average. The village of Biaches, on the outskirts of Peronne to the south-west, was carried by storm, and the whole sector lying between Flaucourt, Barleux, and Biaches was wrested from the Germans. Sunday night the French were consolidating their lines at this point and bringing up the heavy artillery with which it is intended to pave the way for the capture of the city and the railway running to Comblès.

British and French forces co-operated in a vigorous stroke Saturday against the German lines just where the flanks of the Allies meet, near the village of Hardecourt, a little south-east of Montauban. Such was the vigor and strength of the assault that in 35 minutes after the battle began Gen. Foch's men had driven the Germans out of Hardecourt and had taken the nearby village of Mamielon.

The British troops also made great gains. Following a fierce bombardment, the infantry stormed a line of trenches and gained a footing in the Bois de Trones, which lies to the east of Montauban. According to an unofficial report, the advance here amounted to fully half a mile on a considerable front.

The British troops likewise made progress at Contalmaison and are extending their hold on Oviliers. Again Sunday the British made progress in the neighborhood of Oviliers and gained ground in Hardecourt village, the capture of which is admitted in Sunday's official statement from Berlin. At other points they delivered fierce attacks, which broke down before heavy fire from the enemy's guns.

By the capture Saturday of Hardecourt and Hill 139, and by the envelopment Sunday of Biaches and the sector immediately south-west of Peronne, the French now hold the German second line along their whole front in the Somme offensive. The possession of Hill 139 brings the troops of Gen. Foch to within three kilometres (two miles) of Comblès, and at Biaches they are less than two kilometres from Peronne. Peronne on the south, Comblès in the centre, and Bapaume in the north are the three main German supporting positions in the sector under attack, and all have been turned in the last twenty months into veritable fortresses. With Peronne now under their guns, however, the French have only to take Mont St. Quentin, the city's only remaining defensive position of strength, to sweep the entire sector behind their lines.

Germany Admits Position Critical.

LONDON, July 10.—The Frankfurter Zeitung, in an editorial review of the situation, according to an Amsterdam despatch, says: "We all know now that our position is critical, and we depend more than ever on the superiority of our leadership. What is important now is the proper utilization of our forces, which calls for weighty consideration. The immense responsibility devolving upon our staff in the west is terrible, but our fortress is firm."

Russian Hospital Ship Sunk.

PETROGRAD, July 10.—The following communication was issued by the Admiralty Sunday night: "An enemy submarine without warning sank the hospital ship Vperode, which carried all the distinguishing signs. Seven men lost their lives; the others were saved." The hospital ship Vperode was the successor to the hospital ship Portugal, also sent to the bottom by a submarine, according to the semi-official news agency. The Portugal was sunk on March 30 while she was transporting a large number of wounded. One hundred and fifteen lives were lost, and the Russian Government sent a note of protest to all neutral Governments.

New German U-Boat Freighter

BALTIMORE, July 10.—The world's first submarine merchantman, the German underwater liner Deutschland, anchored below Baltimore Sunday night, after voyaging safely across the Atlantic, passing the Allied blockading squadrons and eluding enemy cruisers watching for her off the American coast. She carries mail and a cargo of 750 tons of costly chemicals and dyes, and a message from Emperor William to President Wilson, and is to carry back home a cargo of nickel and crude rubber, sorely needed by the German army.

Canadian Casualties.

OTTAWA, July 10.—Seven Canadians were killed and 42 wounded at the front Saturday, according to a dispatch received by the Militia Department. This is the heaviest list ever considered in connection with the news that the Germans have been heavily bombarding the Canadian lines. The name of but one officer appears in the list.

PRISONERS TOTAL 16,000.

Week of Allied Offensive Has Shown Splendid Results.

PARIS, July 10.—The French official report says: "The operations on the Somme front from July 1 to 7 resulted in the capture by us of more than 9,500 prisoners. Among the important war materials that we took we counted up Sunday 75 cannon and several hundred machine guns. A Reuter correspondent sends this despatch, dated Saturday, at the press camp of the British army: "It being a week ago to-day since the British offensive developed, the occasion is opportune to review the progress made. We have pushed in the German salient between Albert and the Somme to an extreme depth at the point of our greatest advance of about three miles. We hold the villages of Montauban, Pricourt, and Mametz, and are well across the fringe of Contalmaison. At various intervening points of tactical importance our line is firmly established. "We have taken upward of 6,000 prisoners, 21 guns, 51 machine guns, a large number of automatic rifles, trench mortars, mines, searchlights, and other military booty. "The enemy is known to have suffered terrible losses. For example, the third division of the Prussian Guard, brought up as reinforcements, has been so depleted that the remnants of the corps have been withdrawn as no longer war-worthy for the time. Prisoners say that the morale of these guards is badly shaken, this applying equally to the officers. "The heavy rains of the last two days have much impeded the operations. Nevertheless, our troops have been fighting incessantly, and in many spots have made substantial gains. The spirit of the men is wonderful. They fully realize they are now playing the part of the top dog. "As proof of their dash it may be mentioned that in their advances there are practically no stragglers, so eager are all to get to their goal. This, under the heavy conditions of trench warfare, with no man's land often like a quagmire, is truly wonderful. There is every reason to be satisfied alike with the progress and prospects."

Marrriage at Toronto.

A quiet wedding took place at 509 Palmerston boulevard on July 1st, when the Rev. Dr. Hincks married Florence Muriel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Reynolds Johnston, to T. Clarence Routley, Lieutenant, R.A.M.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Routley, Close avenue. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore her travelling suit of blue taffeta and white fox-furs with pink Georgette crepe hat. Mrs. Fred. Routley played the wedding march. Following the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Routley left immediately for Muskoka, where they will spend their honeymoon.—Toronto Globe.

Beckwith Patriotic Association.

A meeting of the above association was held in the Orange Hall at Franktown, on Monday evening. In the absence of Rev. Mr. Osborne, Mr. Denis McCarthy was appointed chairman, and Rev. Mr. Lowry acted as secretary. The various accounts for expenses connected with the procuring of the Machine Gun and the picnic on July 6, were presented and ordered to be paid. Mr. Peter Drummond submitted a financial report, showing a balance of about forty dollars in the treasury, after all expenses had been covered. It was agreed that the association should remain in existence until the close of the war, that the treasurer meanwhile retain the funds now in his possession, to preserve all papers and documents and minutes of proceedings, and that the association shall be called to meet at any time by the president and secretary. It was also agreed to keep an honor roll of all those soldiers who have enlisted from the Township of Beckwith, of which there are now about thirty. Rev. Mr. Lowry was congratulated on having volunteered for the chaplaincy of the 240th Battalion and the meeting concluded with the singing of "God Save the King."

Catarrahal Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Premier Tisz tries

To Alay Hungarian

Panic Over Slav Success

COUNT TISZA, the Hungarian Premier, speaking in the Lower House a few days ago, assured the members that the Russian offensive had been arrested and that there is no danger of the enemy over-running Transylvania. The Premier frankly admitted the loss of important places in Bukovina, but praised the manner in which the Austrian retreat had been conducted, and asserted that the tide of battle was now shifting in favor of the Teutons. Tisza's speech is only a part of the general official campaign to allay the panic of the Hungarian people. Viewed in the light of the fact that the Russians are still advancing the Premier's statements are interesting.

"At the last sitting," said the Premier, "I said that measures had been adopted to meet the Russian offensive which would soon make themselves perceptible, and that the unfavorable events which had taken place were only a passing episode. My hope has been realized to its fullest on the Volhynian battlefields. The reinforcements which our German ally swiftly sent to the endangered points proved effective.

"To-day our offensive is progressing and we have reconquered an important portion of the ground occupied by the Russians. In Bukovina this change has not been effected so quickly. Owing to the superior strength of the enemy our army has been obliged to continue its retreat. This unfortunately has caused some important positions in Bukovina to fall into the hands of the enemy, but the retreat has been carried out in complete order.

"Our army is now in new and stronger positions. It is wholly intact, is resisting the enemy and is fully able to fight. Therefore during the last three or four days the Russian offensive has halted and we have repulsed enemy attacks with heavy losses.

"To-day in Volhynia our counter-offensive is progressing, and in Bukovina and Southern Galicia the enemy's advance has been arrested. On the latter front the strength of the forces engaged is shifting in our favor."

Replying to a question regarding the safety of Transylvania, Premier Tisza declared that the Austrian army was ready to give battle in a strong position and would have the advantage of numbers. Questioned about the Austrian losses the Premier said that he could assert with justice that in all probability the losses of the enemy greatly exceed those of the Austrians.

Kitchener's Will.

The will of Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, the British Secretary of War, who lost his life in the sinking of the cruiser Hampshire off the Orkneys June 5, has been admitted to probate. It shows that he left an estate valued at £171,420 sterling (approximately $850,000).

The largest bequests were the sum of £20,000 to his nephew, Henry Hamilton Kitchener, and the Broom Park estate and all lands in Kent county to his nephew, Commander Henry Franklin Chevallier Kitchener, of the Royal Navy, a son of the new Earl.

The will makes a number of smaller bequests to relatives and friends, including £200 each to several officers who served on Lord Kitchener's personal staff. Among these was General Sir William R. Birdwood.

To Colonel Oswald A. G. Fitzgerald, Lord Kitchener's personal military secretary, who was drowned with the Field Marshal, was willed all Kitchener's lands in British East Africa, amounting to about 5,000 acres, with plantations, etc.

Swords of honor, plate, and other gifts from public bodies are devoted as bequests in settled estates. The will was dated November 2, 1914.

Letter Sells for $6,000.

Earl Kitchener's autograph letter, calling for 300,000 recruits for the new army, was sold in London the other day at auction for the benefit of the Red Cross to Thomas Fenwick Harrison for $6,000. Mr. Harrison will present the letter to the nation.

SECRETS OF THE CENSORSHIP.

Tons of Mail Matter Pass Through His Office.

That the task of the censorship department in Britain is no sinecure will at once be obvious when it is mentioned that in the private branch more than a ton of mail matter is censored every week, exclusive of parcels, while four tons of commercial correspondence with certain foreign countries is dealt with in the trade branch in a similar time. In addition, from 30,000 to 50,000 telegrams pass through the hands of the censors in the United Kingdom every twenty-four hours.

The censorship was established with the three-fold object of preventing information of a military character from reaching the enemy, of acquiring similar information for own purposes, and of checking the dissemination of news likely to be of use to the enemy or prejudicial to the Allies.

All mails which have to be censored are necessarily subject to some delay, but harmless letters, whether private or commercial, are not stopped, even when coming from an enemy country or addressed to an enemy person. It should be remembered, however, that no letter addressed to an enemy country can be transmitted unless its envelope is left open and is enclosed in a cover addressed to a neutral country. Furthermore, letters in which any kind of code or secret writing is used are liable to be stopped, even if the message appears to be harmless, or totally unconnected with the war.

Altogether about 800 persons—mainly civilians who have been most carefully chosen—are employed in examining and censoring mail matter, in addition to about 180 censors of cables in the United Kingdom and 400 in the Colonies. The chief cable censor is the senior officer of the General Staff of the War Office, and in addition to 120 cables and wireless stations in various parts of the Empire, he controls in the United Kingdom messages sent over the Government cables to and from the Central Telegraph Office, as well as messages sent over the cables of private companies.

IRISH U BOAT BASE.

Major Discovers Secret Submarine Base While Fishing.

How he discovered a German submarine base on the coast of Kerry, the facts of which were reported to the authorities, is described by Major Darnley-Stuart-Stephens in The English Review. He was on a fishing expedition having chartered for the purpose a Kerry "hooker." He continues: "I enjoyed, on the whole, fair hauls, except just in one patch, where sport was exasperatingly poor. Here in Dingle Bay I was, on September 22, running in on a light five-knot breeze—the true mackerel wind—when my boatman confided to me the curious information that 'he lie was driving away the fish, God bless them.' I may explain I had the hardy navigator 'efficiently' drunk—talkatively so—on this particular day's fishing, for I had 'ma doots' about things being all right in the 'Bay of Dingle Oh.' 'Sure,' he mandered on, 'she comes in to sleep here.' I knew what was coming. 'Yes, sir,' my ship's company continued. 'She has a nice sandbank down there between these two pints,' waving his hand in the direction of Inch and Rosbeg Points. 'Ah!' I thought, 'oil of a heavy density that would stick for some time to a limited sea area, a lubricant for the machinery of the periodical sleeper.' I determined to launch my attack from the land side—a course unpursued at Gallipoli—and so put about and beat up to Tralee River, where I landed, and the next day took the train for Kilgobhan, the nearest little town to where evidently the German secret submarine base was situated. At this hub of the Sinn Fein I became convinced that the whole countryside was in the 'know.'"

The Hippopotamus.

In spite of its clumsy build the hippopotamus can trot fast. That is why he is called "river horse." The hippo's feet are kept far apart by the wide body and make paths with a ridge down the middle, recognizable at once. Hippos swim very well, but go at their greatest speed when they can gallop along the bottom in shallow water. They can stay under water a long time, and when they come to the surface they send little jets of spray from their nostrils. The cow is devoted to the calf. The young one stands on her back as the mother swims.

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

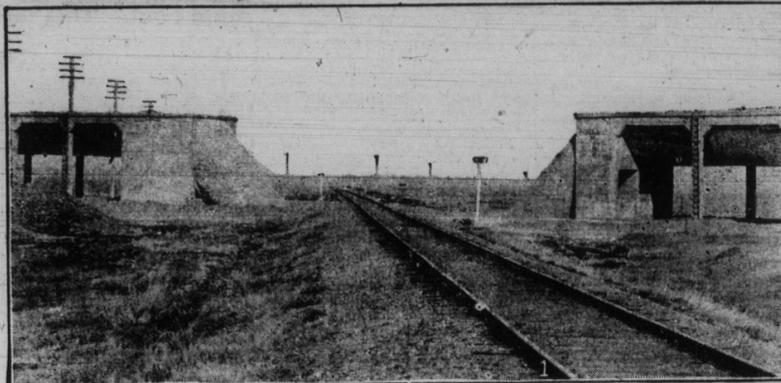

Such is the statement of Mr. A. O. Norton, of Boston, the largest Jack Manufacturer in the world. His voluntary testimonial regarding ZUTOO follows:

286 Congress St., Boston, Mass. "I have been a sufferer from Headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all the so-called 'cures' on the market. Some months since my attention was called to Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a 'sick' or 'nervous' headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effects. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

THE FLUME AT BROOKS.

- (1) Where C.P.R. Crosses the Brooks Aqueduct.
- (2) The Aqueduct.
- (3) The Interior of the Aqueduct.

THE Bassano Dam is the most important engineering work in the Eastern Section of the Canadian Pacific Irrigation Block, but it is not the only important feature by any means. Next to it in importance comes the Brooks Aqueduct. The main irrigation canal, which is fed from the lake created by the Bassano Dam, runs in an easterly direction for about five miles and then divides into two branches, one going north and the other east. The east branch, after having filled several smaller branches, discharges the bulk of its water into the Lake Newell reservoir which has been artificially formed in a depression in the hills, is nine miles long by four wide, has a storage capacity of over 50,000,000 gallons, and is designed to be filled during the non-irrigating season. Just east of the Lake Newell reservoir is a deep valley about 2 miles wide and it is for the purpose of crossing it that the Brooks Aqueduct was constructed consisting of a reinforced concrete flume 10,480 feet long with a curved cross section some 23 feet wide at the top and nearly 9 feet deep from full-flow water level at the top to the centre of the curve at bottom. It has a discharge capacity of 400 cubic feet per second, the eastern end being 4.55 feet lower than the western so as to create a grade for the water flow, and it carries water for the irrigation of 125,000 acres situated in the Bantry Hills. The flume, the walls of which are five inches thick, is suspended between horizontal girders, the whole supported by a reinforced concrete trestle made up of two lines of columns with a maximum height of 60 feet, but lower in places according to the contour of the valley. About three miles east of the town of Brooks, Alberta, the line of the aqueduct is crossed by the Canadian Pacific Ry. and, the track being at such an elevation that it was impossible to carry the flume overhead, it was necessary to build a siphon under the track. At the west side of the track the curved form of the flume is continued round until a completely circular pipe is made, which dips at an angle of about 45 degrees and enters the ground, passing under the rails at a slight depth for a distance of about 55 feet when the aqueduct is crossed by the Can-

FORSAKEN ENKHUIZEN.

At One Time One of Holland's Richest and Greatest Cities.

Of all the so-called "dead cities" of the Zuyder Zee, Enkhuzen has most completely lost her former prosperity. One who wanders about her silent and empty streets can possibly realize that this shrunken and depopulated city was once one of the wealthiest and most important in Holland.

Enkhuzen dates from the ninth century or even earlier. In the zenith of its greatness, the seventeenth century, it possessed 40,000 inhabitants and a fishing fleet of 400 boats engaged in the herring trade. Enkhuzen sailors were well known for their courage and seafaring ability.

But less than a hundred years later the harbor of Enkhuzen was silting up, and her commerce had already declined. Since then whole streets have been pulled down, as the population diminished, for only a few thousand inhabitants remain. But the ancient gate, the Dromedaris, that guards its now empty harbor still stands, a monument of the past greatness of Enkhuzen.

The noble Wester kerk is built of the deep red, narrow bricks often used in Netherlands architecture. In its choir are some sixteenth century wood carvings. Its unlovely wooden belfry is detached, but connected with the church by a minute but attractive old house. The small, old, red tiled houses, each with a different facade, form an irregular line that is singularly charming. The streets of the little town are very quiet and empty. Their stillness is almost unbroken except by some beautiful chimneys.—Argonaut.

Bullfighting.

In tradition the bullfight dates from the time before Hercules is said to have visited Spain and driven off the wonderful cattle of Geryon. In actual recorded history it antedates Caesar's campaign in Hispania, but the fight that is witnessed by the present day visitor in Madrid, Seville or Valencia is far more exciting and cruel than the contests between the noble Spaniard and the noble bull four centuries ago. A first class spectacle now involves the torturing and killing of seven or eight bulls and at least thirty horses.

A Hearty Eater.

In a book on gastronomy appears this anecdote of the gastronomic progress of a Swiss guard in the employment of the Marechal de Villars: "One day the guard was sent for by the marechal, who had heard of his enormous appetite. 'How many sirloins of beef can you eat?' he tentatively asked. 'Ah, monseigneur, for me I don't require many—five or six at the most.' 'And how many legs of mutton?' 'Legs of mutton? Not many—seven or eight.' 'And fat pullets?' 'Oh, as to pullets, only a few—a dozen.' 'And of pigeons?' 'As to pigeons, monseigneur, not many—forty, perhaps fifty.' 'And larks?' 'Larks, monseigneur? Always.'"

Dispositions.

The dispositions of men are different. A house is managed well by men and women of different dispositions, just as much as a carpenter cannot build a house with big and tall timbers only. Even a man of obstinacy or argumentative is not unnecessary in a family. But there must be a supervision over them all. If there is no one who binds them all the different dispositions bring confusion to the house.—Kyuo.

A Drama of Mexico

By F. A. MITCHEL

Ever since the revolution in Mexico that deposed Porfirio Diaz that country has been in a state of ferment and has kept the people of the United States in a fever of anxiety. During the rule of President Huerta I, being of an inquiring disposition, concluded to go down there and see for myself what kind of people the Mexicans are.

Passing over the border line of Texas, I entered rural Mexico and moved on southward, intending to visit the capital. There were then the Huerta, the Carranza and the Villa factions, all struggling for the upper hand. The frightful condition of the country did not prevent the people from enjoying such amusements as they could get. I stopped one evening for the night in a little cluster of houses—it could not be dignified by the name of town—and, hearing that a dance was to be given in the dining room of the tavern where I put up, I was curious to see how people could make merry while their country was in a state of anarchy.

When the dancing began I took a chair on the veranda where I could look through an open window upon the dancers. The effect was heightened by the picturesque costumes of both the men and the women. The merry-makers came from the country round about, being made up of all sorts of persons, from the hacendado, or farmer, to the soldier, who made his living by fighting for some one of the factions struggling for the supremacy. Not only was the soldier present, but his wife and his daughters, for an army in Mexico is accompanied by the families of the soldiers.

I was much interested in watching these people. Among the better grade I noticed a young couple who, it was evident, were lovers. The man was a handsome fellow dressed in the costume of a hacendado, composed of tight trousers with a row of buttons on each leg, where a soldier's stripes usually placed; a fancy waistcoat and a short jacket, also having a profusion of buttons. The girl wore the Mexican skirt of many colors, the Mexican bodice and the jacket decorated with gold braid.

I could not help contrasting the happiness beaming in the faces of these two young people with the cloud that hung over their country. They danced every dance together. While I was watching them a man came up behind me, and I felt that he was looking over my shoulder. I moved aside not to obstruct his view and at the same time turned my head to have a look at him.

I judged that he was connected with one of the various armies or bands which were sucking the lifeblood of Mexico. A more villainous face I never saw on a man. His eyes were following the couple that interested me, and as he watched his frown deepened. He stood only a few minutes looking at them, then went away.

At the end of each dance a number of the dancers came out on to the veranda to be refreshed by the cooler air outside. During one of these intervals a sharp report suddenly sounded at the other end of the veranda. I saw those who were inside start for the exit nearest to the point from which the sound came, and those on the veranda turned and hurried in that direction. I, too, arose and went to see what had happened.

A crowd had gathered about something or some one, but I could not see beyond the onlookers. When finally I succeeded in doing so I saw lying on the floor the young man I had been observing within, while the girl with whom he had danced was kneeling beside him moaning piteously. He had been shot and was dying.

Within half an hour the dance had been resumed, and, judging by the gaiety, one would not have suspected that the life of one of the company had been just snuffed out. I turned away from the scene, went as far from it as I could and waited for the house to become quiet that I might go to bed.

I did not get away from the place the next day. I had come to Mexico from curiosity, and I did not like to move on without learning more of the tragedy a part of which I had witnessed. I inquired who had done the shooting and was informed that a man who belonged to a Villa force in the neighborhood was the culprit. The young farmer who was killed was an advocate of Huerta. This is all the information I could elicit, but I inferred much more. I believed that the murderer coveted the girl who had given her heart to the farmer.

I lounged at the tavern during the day, uncertain as to just when I would move on southward. During the afternoon, while strolling among the houses that composed the place, I met the man who had looked in at the window at the dancers. I knew him to be the murderer and was surprised to see him still near the scene of his cowardly act. But I was destined to still further surprise. I saw him approach a house and walk up and down under a window.

They have a custom in Mexico called "playing the bear." When a man wishes to court a girl he takes position under her window and walks back and forth till either he gets a sign from her or gives up his attempt to win her. If he receives encouragement he proceeds step by step till he forms her acquaintance and makes formal application for her hand.

I had read of this custom, but had never seen an instance of it. I surmised that the man might be wooing according to the Mexican custom. I could see him from the tavern veranda, and, going there, I took a seat in order to observe what would follow. While doing so the landlord came out on to the veranda, and, pointing to the walking man, I asked him what he was doing.

"He is the man who shot the hacendado last night. The girl who was robbed of her sweetheart lives there. The man is probably trying to see her and ask her forgiveness."

An hour had passed from the time I had first seen the man walking under the window when a figure of a woman appeared within the house. The walker stopped, and I saw that he was speaking. The woman came to the window, and the sunlight falling upon her, I recognized the young girl who had been robbed of her lover. I wondered if the murderer could obtain forgiveness so soon after the tragedy.

The two talked together for some time; then the man held his hand up to the window. "After some delay the girl took it, but I fancied I could see her shudder. A few more words between them and the man went away. He passed the veranda near where I sat, and I saw an unmistakable look of triumph on his face.

Interested in the drama which was being enacted before me, I determined to remain where I was till the last act had been played. I wondered if the girl, actuated by religious motives, had felt constrained to forgive the slayer of her lover. Had it not been for the triumphant look on the man's face as he passed me I would not have dreamed of anything more than this. But I had discovered that the Mexicans are a strange people, and one cannot in any event tell what a woman is going to do.

Was it possible that this man, like King Richard III, would win her whose lover he had slain? I had seen no sign of a burial of the first love and did not think it possible that the girl could take another until the body had been laid away. What, then, was my surprise when just before dark I saw the murderer approach the house where the bereaved girl lived and stand under her window! Presently she came out of the door, joined him, and they walked away together.

I confess that, though by this time I was prepared for almost anything in Mexico, I could not believe what my eyes revealed to me. I wished that I might follow the couple and see what occurred between them, though I shrank from witnessing a girl throwing herself into the arms of a man who had only the night before shot down in cold blood the man she loved.

I lit a cigar and sat smoking on the veranda. The twilight faded; the stars came out. All about me was so peaceful that I could not realize I was in a country torn with anarchy and a great part of it in the hands of robber bands; that within twenty-four hours I had witnessed an instance of the desperate condition of the country. But my mind was ever on the couple I had seen go out into the darkness. I thought of the lover of the evening before, a smile on his handsome lips returned by one on those of the girl he loved, now lying cold in death in one of the houses within the range of my vision, while the girl he loved had gone with his murderer.

It was quite dark, 9 o'clock perhaps, when, tired of sitting, I arose to stretch my legs. I walked down a roadway on which the two persons I had been watching had disappeared. Suddenly a figure, a woman's figure, fitted by me. She was moving rapidly, and I got a glimpse only of something white. And yet I was impressed with the idea that it was the girl who had lost her lover. If so, where was the man with whom she had set out?

Believing that nothing more of the drama which was unfolding would be revealed to me that night, I returned to the tavern and went to bed.

In the morning everything about me was still peaceful. The inhabitants of the place went about their daily vocations as usual. If there was war in the neighborhood it was too far distant to be heard. Still I refrained from leaving the place without more information as to what interested me. I determined to remain where I was until the climax.

In the afternoon occurred a simple funeral of the murdered man. The chief mourner was the girl who had been bereaved. The murderer was not in evidence at any time during the day. The poor girl was supported by her mother and attended by a few friends. I went into the tavern and asked the landlord what had become of the soldier.

"He was found this morning, not far from here, stabbed to the heart," was the reply.

"Who killed him?" I asked.

The landlord shrugged his shoulders and said that this was not known.

The climax to my drama had been played. Whether any one knew who had killed the soldier I do not know to this day. One thing I know. I saw him go out into the darkness with the girl whose life he had blighted, and I saw her come back without him.

The curtain had fallen; the audience—myself—had seen the play. There was nothing more for me but to move on. The death of a man shot down in the interval between two dances had not ruffled the tranquillity of the hamlet, nor had the finding of the body of his murderer twenty-four hours later any noticeable effect. What were these two lives in a land where bloodshed is the order of the day?

My curiosity as to Mexico had been satisfied. Instead of going on down to the capital I turned about and journeyed back toward home.

The German Officer

"I F I can make the Prussian officer clear, I can make modern Germany clear," says a writer in The New York Tribune, who is a German by birth, has served in the German army as an officer, and who appears to have emancipated himself from the spell of his earlier environment. He says that the Prussian officer is Germany, the Germany whom the Allies are trying to defeat in this war. He writes of the German officer with understanding and with sympathy. At birth the Prussian officer is like any other baby. What he becomes is not his own fault; it is the fault of a system. Brought up under this system, he finds in the majority of cases, that it works to his advantage, and he becomes a supporter of it; just as the child of a Socialist, if he happened to be adopted by a member of the capitalist class, might well say that all happens for the best in the best of possible worlds. The Prussian officer, though he is partly a dupe, has a pretty good time of it. He does not protest. The system may be bad, but it suits him.

As a rule the German officer begins to learn his trade at the age of 10. By the time he is 18 he has become a sub-lieutenant, with certain principles deeply engraven. He has learned to obey the orders of his superiors without question. He has learned that the private soldier is a mere pawn; that the civilian is of still less account. These lessons are not modified by anything he may learn in the future; they are emphasized. They are the basic facts of his existence, and whatever his subsequent actions may be, so long as they are governed by these principles, they will be reckoned for by his superior officer and by the Kaiser himself. In a sense the German officer can do no wrong, so long as he remembers what is due to the uniform he wears.

Some extraordinary things are due to it. It is the Kaiser's coat, and the theory is that an officer must bear himself as though he were the Kaiser. The uniform is like the flag; if it is insulted the insult must perish; and, of course, an insult to the wearer of the uniform is interpreted as an insult to the uniform and to the flag. We had some hint of the sacredness of the uniform in the Zamboni affair a few years ago. The Tribune correspondent gives another. A subaltern stationed near Berlin was roughly handled by a drunken civilian, who came up spitting his abuse and tore off one of his spaulets. Then he died. The officer pursued him, and after a considerable chase caught up with the man and ran him through with his sabre. The rough died. It might have seemed a somewhat drastic punishment, but if the officer had not killed the man he would have been asked for his resignation from the army. An insult to the officer is an insult to the Kaiser, and he falls to avenge it as it were worthy to wear the uniform. This is the German theory.

Not all German officers live up to the code. The Tribune correspondent says that he has seen officers on the streets of Berlin at night shrink into doorways or lanes at the approach of an intoxicated soldier. They did not want to see him; they did not want him to see them. They feared that the drunken private might permit his natural feelings of manhood to get the better of him, in the course of which process he would be likely to say something derogatory to the officer, or even to make an attack upon him. In that case the plain and unescapable duty of the officer would be to shoot the drunken man. If he failed and his failure became known he would be discharged from the army.

The Prussian officer is the child of the State. He has his privileges, such as shooting or stabbing civilians and private. But he has his commensurate obligations. He has to dress in a certain way. He is forbidden to make any display of his wealth if he happens to be wealthy. If he has an automobile he is supposed to offer it in turn to every officer of the regiment. They are supposed to refuse. His horse must not be worth more than a certain amount. He cannot marry without the permission of his colonel, and this permission is given only when it is known that the bride has a considerable income. Certain debts he must pay immediately, the expenses connected with the service. He is permitted to run other bills as long as he pleases, and, presumably, to run through civilian creditors who present bills. He is taught that he has but one business on earth, and that is to do the will of the Kaiser, who is his superior officer. If this is done all is done. All is forgiven if this principle is adhered to.

Appeal for Women.

The Minister of Munitions appeals for women volunteers to be trained for munition-making. With the London County Council and other educational authorities the Ministry has established nearly 70 free training centres throughout the kingdom. In six weeks, at the rate of four hours a day, learners are prepared for the lighter varieties of munition work. During this time they acquire the "machine sense," and the elementary knowledge of tools and metals demanded for the manufacture of shell fuses, bombs, cartridge cases, and other materials of war.

Suitable employment is then found for them in munition factories at wages that average at the beginning at least £1 ($5) a week, and after the first few weeks considerably more.

Lesson III.—Third Quarter, For July 16, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

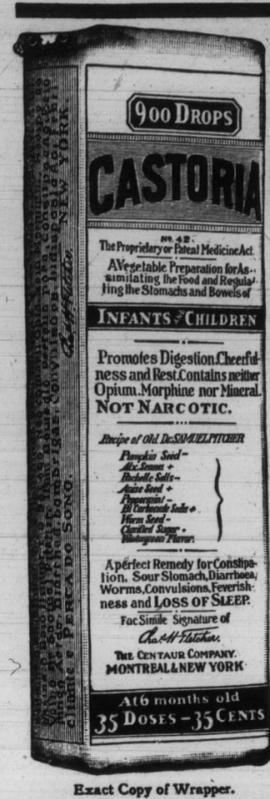

Text of the Lesson, Acts xvii, 22-34. Memory Verses, 22, 23—Golden Text, Acts xvii, 28—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

While Paul waited at Athens for the coming of Silas and Timothy he was so stirred by the idolatry which he saw that not only in the synagogue did he talk to the Jews, but daily in the market place he preached Jesus and the resurrection to all who would listen to him. And as they delighted in any new thing, this was certainly the newest they ever heard, and they desired to hear more. So they brought him to a public place where he could tell them more fully of this, to them, new doctrine (verses 16-21). The thought of the dead coming to life again was too much for them, and while there were some who believed others mocked, even as they do to this day (verses 32-34). The newest thing to this very day is the old, old story of salvation by the sacrifice of the Lamb of God, as told so vigorously by Rev. William Sunday and others, but as strenuously opposed as in the long ago by the enemies of Christ. Seemingly intelligent men still scoff at the resurrection of the body and the thought of a body of flesh and bones without blood. Ministers everywhere do not believe that the kingdom cannot come till Christ comes again, but speak of it as now here, to be advanced or extended, and the truths of last week's lesson in reference to His coming for and with His saints are simply ridiculed. But there are some who believe God.

The people of Athens were very superstitious, or, as in the R. V., margin, religious, and seemed to worship all the gods they had ever heard of, and lest they might have omitted one they had an altar with the inscription, "To the unknown god," and this gave Paul his topic. It is one of the saddest truths of the ages and even of our own time that the true God is largely unknown. "Israel doth not know," "They know not the thoughts of the Lord," "Hast thou not known me, Philip?" "O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee" (Isa. 1, 3; Mic. iv, 2; John xiv, 9; xvii, 25). God can be known only in Jesus Christ, and therefore all who will not receive Jesus Christ as God do not know the true God. Speaking to gentiles, Paul began at the beginning and told them of Him who created all things and who therefore needed nothing from the creatures whom He had made, as only in Him do all live and move and have their being, and He giveth to all life and breath and all things (verses 22-28). It must have been humiliating to these proud and wise Greeks to be told that they were of the same blood as other nations and that God their Creator had placed them on the earth just where they were (verse 26).

It is another great truth, and but little considered, that when the Most High, the possessor of heaven and earth, divided to the nations their inheritance He did it with reference to the children of Israel, although they were not then in existence (Gen. x, 25; Deut. xxxii, 8); so that, as one has said, both historically and geographically, Israel is the great center. That, however, was not a truth for the people of Athens just then, for Paul desired to lead them to the true God and to repentance. He told them of Him whom God raised from the dead, the Creator who had come to the world which He had made, but was unknown in it and rejected by it and crucified, but now alive forevermore and appointed to be the judge of all mankind; and not only was the judge appointed, but also the day, which we learn elsewhere would cover a thousand years, for one day is with the Lord as a thousand years and a thousand years as one day (II Pet. iii, 8). This whole age through which we are passing since Christ was crucified is spoken of as an hour, and a day, and an acceptable year (John v, 25; II Cor. vi, 2; Luke iv, 19). The next thousand years is also called an hour, beginning and ending with a resurrection (John v, 28).

There shall be a resurrection both of the just and unjust, but a thousand years shall intervene between the two (Acts xxiv, 15; Rev. xx, 5, 6). All who have ever lived shall come into judgment before the same Judge, but not all at the same time. All who truly receive the Lord Jesus can say, "I am crucified with Christ" (Gal. ii, 20), and have passed from death to life and shall not come into judgment for sin (John v, 24). But all such must appear before the judgment seat of Christ, where only saved people shall appear, to have their works approved or disapproved, to be rewarded or suffer loss and to be appointed to their places in His kingdom (Rom. xiv, 10; II Cor. v, 10). Then we shall come with Him to judge the living nations, according to Matt. xxv, 31, with Joel iii, 1, 2; Zech. xiv, and set up His kingdom. The rest of the dead who did not rise in the first resurrection shall be judged at the great white throne after the thousand years (Rev. xx, 11-15). In the face of such plain statements I cannot understand how any who read their Bibles with ordinary carefulness can think or speak of all people that have ever lived standing before the great white throne. We only need to allow the thoughts of God to displace our thoughts.

FAMOUS PLACE NAMES.

Why Should They Not Be Called Alike All Over the World?

It is perhaps too much to expect that a universal meridian or universal time will ever be established, still less that we shall have universal money or a universal secondary language. All these things might be brought about if we could only get rid of our prejudices.

It is not, however, too much to hope that the present confusion of place names should be got rid of. Why the English and the French should persistently describe as Cologne and Mayence, cities which their own inhabitants never call anything but Koln and Mainz, it is difficult to understand, and there is certainly no excuse for our pronouncing the name of the Bavarian capital as "Munick," as if in scorn of the dwellers therein, who call it, as nearly as English letters will reproduce the sound, "Minchen." Why should an Italian gratuitously misname London "Londra?" We really ought to know how our own capital should be called.

As to Polish place names, also Przemysl and the like, only an international commission could decide.—London Globe.

A Treasure, Holding in Her Hands the Destiny of Posterity.

When a woman enters the marriage relation her sphere of influence is as extended, and her horizon is no longer bounded by the people and circumstances of the moment.

She is building for posterity. In the joy and thoughtfulness which characterize her mind in the new relation there is a prophecy of unborn generations. Her life is to color other lives; her aspirations are to fix to a great extent the position and future of husband and family.

If she is cultured, pure and refined these qualities will characterize the home which she creates. The higher the degree of her culture, her purity, her refinement, the more will these qualities characterize the home of which she is the center.

The personality that a woman takes with her in her marriage is her real dowry. If her dowry can be reckoned in numerals only, no matter how many they be, wrecked indeed will be her husband, impoverished his children.

But if she possesses industry, gentleness, self abnegation, purity and intelligence, combined with capability, she is in herself a treasure of treasures.

THE BECKWITH MACHINE GUN PRESENTED.

Gift from Beckwith Township Formally Made to 130th Battalion.

An immense throng from Beckwith and Montague and Drummond assembled in McCarthy's Grove, Franktown, last Thursday for the patriotic picnic and presentation of the Savage-Lewis Machine Gun to the 130th Battalion. Capt. J. Bates and Lieutenant Kemp travelled all the way from Valcartier Camp to receive it. Ever since the idea of expressing, in this special way, their devotion to king and empire, was first mooted at the memorable open air service, at the Old Kirk church, on the seventh line of Beckwith, last September, by Rev. J. W. S. Lowry, in his commemoration sermon on the text, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation," the people have manifested an intense interest in the project and have contributed most liberally and loyally to it. Arrangements were at length perfected with the Department of Militia at Ottawa, for the purchase and equipment of one Lewis Machine Gun, for which the sum of $1,000 was provided; $850 being contributed by the residents of the township voluntarily, and the remaining $150 by the municipal council of Beckwith. The Beckwith Machine Gun, as it is now called, arrived at Franktown, on Saturday, July 1st, and arrangements were very quickly perfected for its presentation at the picnic on Thursday afternoon last. The Carleton Place Cadets, under command of Mr. R. J. Robertson, were present and were cordially welcomed.

The gathering was an enthusiastic one, and the proceedings were of great interest to all present. The programme commenced when Rev. J. W. S. Lowry, the organizing secretary of the patriotic movement in Beckwith, called upon Col. M. J. Balderson, of Perth, senior military officer of the district, to preside. Col. Balderson, on taking the chair, was received with applause, and expressed his pleasure at being present on such an epoch-making occasion. He complimented the people of Beckwith on their splendid devotion to the cause of the Empire, whose flag had braved a thousand years the battle and the breeze.

Dr. Hanna, M.P., of Perth, was the first speaker, and expressed his great pleasure at being present on so important an occasion. He was proud of being a member of a government, like that of Sir R. L. Borden, which had handled the cause of the war so satisfactorily for the whole Dominion. The part that Canada was playing in the present struggle, was a noble part, much had been done, and more still remained to be done. All should do their bit in whatever way they could, and show their determination and devotion for the cause of humanity and civilization.

Hon. R. F. Preston was next and was cordially received. He was delighted to be present with the loyal citizens of the old and historic township of Beckwith for the ceremony of presenting their gift of a machine gun to the 130th Battalion, soon to go overseas. He hoped the gun would assist in keeping the Germans on the run as they now were, and he had great pleasure in wishing the soldiers of the Battalion good luck and success in the conflict. The gun would make Beckwith famous for all time.

Mr. D. R. Ferguson sang a patriotic solo, which was warmly received.

The gun was formally presented by a committee consisting of Rev. J. O. Osborne, J. W. S. Lowry and Messrs. Jas. Kidd and J. S. L. McNeely, each of whom made appropriate remarks. Rev. Mr. Lowry placed a small Union Jack upon the gun and committed it to the care and custody of the officers and men of the 130th Battalion, especially those of C. company, most of whom were from their own community and district.

Capt. Bates and Lieut. Kemp, acknowledged the gift of the gun on behalf of the Battalion, and expressed their gratitude for it. This was followed by very impressive devotional exercises by Rev. Major D. C. McIntosh, Chaplain of the 130th Battalion, who delivered a stirring and eloquent address, followed by an earnest and solemn prayer of dedication of the machine gun and of petition for the success of the Allies. This was followed by the Lord's Prayer in concert and the singing of the hymn, "Oward Christian Soldiers."

Major E. J. Watt and Capt. Ferguson, of the 240th Battalion were then introduced by the chairman, and delivered addresses, which were very well received. Miss Maggie McEwen followed with a solo, "The Best Old Flag on Earth."

Mr. Robert Patterson, of Carleton Place, was the last speaker, and rejoiced at the pleasure and privilege of being associated with the great event of the day. He considered it most praiseworthy that the citizens of Beckwith

Carleton Place will also allow $2500, of their share to co-operate with Beckwith, to be spent on the Franktown road leading through to Smiths Falls.

On motion of Messrs. Hughes and Nichols, a grant of $100. was made to the General Protestant Hospital, payable when the taxes are collected in the fall.

On motion of Messrs. Nichols and Hughes, that a committee composed of the Mayor, Messrs. Pattie, McNeely and Bates attend the Hydro Electric meeting in Smiths Falls on Aug. 11th along with delegates from the Board of Trade. There was no action taken re Major Watt's request until he comes here in a had set such a good example in presenting the gun, and he hoped that it would be of great service for King and Empire.

The proceedings concluded with the singing of "God Save the King."

After supper had been partaken of there was an exhibition of the gun and its operation by Sergeant Allen, of the machine gun section of the 240th Battalion, which caused great excitement and enthusiasm, as the report was heard far and near, and the shells scattered some distance made a distance devastation upon the target of tress in the vicinity. Beckwith township has now a closer and deeper interest in the great World struggle.
