GREAT TURKISH ARMY ROUTED BY BULGARIANS IN THREE-DAYS' COMBAT

Sultan's Army Pressing to the Relief of Adrianople Hurdled Back Along Its Entire Front and the Fortress Is Hemmed in By the Enemy.

BULGAR CAVALRY REPORTED PURSUING THE FLYING TURKS

This morning's dispatches from the Balkan war announce a great victory for the Bulgarians, the entire Turkish front being driven back. Adrianople is now hemmed in. The fighting lasted three days and was of the heaviest. Lule Burgas, the scene of the Turkish defeat, is a small town close to the railway line between Adrianople and Constantinople, and is about 100 miles from the Turkish capital and 50 miles from Adrianople. The Servians appear to be well into Macedonia, and two towns, Pristina and Diakova, about 100 miles from Monastir, the chief city of Macedonia, are reported in their hands. A Greek army is reported at Grevena, headed northeast, apparently for Monastir. Grevena is a short distance from the Greek frontier.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 31.—The Bulgarian army has completely routed the main Turkish army under Nazim Pasha. The Turks fled in disorder, leaving many killed and wounded on the field.

The battle, which is regarded as the most important engagement since the beginning of the war, lasted three entire days. It extended along the line from Lule Burgas eastward to Serai. The Turkish front was over 31 miles long.

The Ottoman troops retreated to Tchornu, about 21 miles to the south of the positions from which they were driven by the Bulgarians.

THREE DAYS' FIGHTING.

London, Oct. 31.—The Bulgarian army has completely defeated a Turkish force estimated at 200,000 men, at Lule Burgas, after three days' terrific fighting, according to a news agency dispatch from Sofia. The Bulgarian cavalry is pursuing the retreating Turks.

The Turkish army after its defeat at Lule Burgas, retreated toward Tchatalja. Adrianople is completely hemmed in by the Bulgarian troops.

London, Oct. 31.—The wings of the Turkish and Bulgarian armies, which roughly occupy lines stretching from Tulo Burgas to Viza, have been engaged for the past three days in a series of determined fights. The Bulgarians claim to have defeated the Turks at the Tulo Burgas, and while the Turks assert that the Bulgarians have been driven back around Viza. Of the fighting in the centre no authoritative reports have yet been received.

BULGARIANS STAKE ALL.

The Bulgarians are staking everything on the result of this great battle. They have brought up all their available regulars to the front, leaving the investment of the fortress of Adrianople, which is now completely hemmed in, to their reserves, some of which have taken the field in civilian clothing. The Turkish commanders, too, appear to have brought to Europe all the troops it was possible to withdraw from Asia-Minor, as it is now announced that regular traffic on the Anatolian railways has been partially resumed.

Some of the Turkish troops from Asia-Minor are being landed at the Bulgarian port of Burgas on the Black Sea, doubtless with the hope of drawing in that direction part of the Bulgarian troops engaged further south.

HEADED FOR THE SEA.

The report that Bulgarian cavalry had gone to the port of Rodovo, on the Sea of Marmora, is considered in military circles to be quite natural, as there is a good road leading from Tulo Burgas to the coast. Along this a line of railroad has been under construction for some time for the purpose of giving direct communication between Asia-Minor and Adrianople without touching Constantinople. Turkey has been using the port of Rodosto to replenish the supplies of the army at the front.

SERVIAN SUCCESS.

On the other side of the peninsula the Servian troops are extending the area of territory conquered by them in Macedonia. It is reported today that they have crossed the mountains and taken the town of Pristina, where they captured a considerable quantity of Turkish war material. They are said also to have taken Diakova, still further to the west.

GREEKS SPREADING OUT.

The Greeks, too, appear to be spreading out their lines. They have occupied Grevena, on the western road leading to Monastir. They have expressed grave fears in regard to the Christian populations of Constantinople, Salonika, and other Turkish ports, where the news of Turkish defeats is being circulated in spite of the censorship and official denials.

Great Britain has already ordered a warship to proceed to Salonika for the protection of British lives and property there, and the action of the other powers in the matter is under consideration.

Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign minister, stated today in the House of Commons that when the military situation in the Balkan peninsula permitted, the powers would take steps to insure a durable peace between the belligerents.

GUELPH MURDER WITNESS FOUND BY ITALIAN DETECTIVE

Michelle Fazzara Working on C. P. R. Construction Gang in East London.

ALLEGED TO HAVE HEARD SERIOUS THREATS MADE

Agrees to Give Testimony in Hearing of Man Accused of Slaying Uncle.

An Italian detective from the Pinkerton agency, whose services were procured by the attorney-general's department to co-operate with the provincial detectives and Guelph officers in clearing up the murder of Michelle Fazzara, in that city Saturday night, today located Giuseppe Pototelli, a nephew of the murdered man, who was employed with a C. P. R. construction gang on East London improvements.

The witness is also named Michelle Fazzara, and returned to Guelph this afternoon of his own volition to testify there as to having heard certain threats made against his uncle at Guelph by Giuseppe Pototelli, who is under arrest, charged with having fired the fatal shot.

A third Michelle Fazzara, uncle of the man who was killed, who was in bed in the house at which the shooting occurred Saturday night, has made a detailed statement to the police there as to what has occurred, and fearing that he would suffer for it, has since demanded police protection, with which he has been furnished.

The feeling that the Black Hand may have been implicated in the crime is not shared by the police officers who have been called into the case.

He is quickly located. The Pinkerton man came to London Wednesday and sought the assistance of the local detective department. Detective Egleton being detailed to the work, Fazzara was located this morning with a C. P. R. construction gang at Quebec street, and told his story readily.

"MUTT AND JEFF" DISPORT

AT WESTERN MASQUERADE

Other Comic Supplement Characters Were on the Floor and Even Professors Join in the Merriment.

"Mutt and Jeff," "Happy Hooligan," the ludicrous and half-witted individual, the African baboon, and other such characters, known only to those who are the constant absorbers of the yellow journals, were taken by students at a Western University masquerade Wednesday night.

It was a night off for the students and faculty. The fresh recruits from the high school graduating class, became hilarious and threw off restraint, the grave and stern teachers forgot the dignity of professorhood, and seemingly revelled in the sport. The coming B. A.'s, D. D.'s and M. A.'s joined in the merriment, and showed the juniors a few turns. Mrs. Vanderbilt's half-a-million-dollar ball was a secondary matter to this "shine," as the students termed it.

"Mutt and Jeff" were there in all their grotesqueness. "Jeff" took first prize. The obnoxious "Mutt" was a close second, but the little fellow arrived with the red ticket. Miss Taylor, an Indian maiden, secured the first prize among the ladies. Mr. H. Stevenson, who represented "Jeff," carried off the gentleman's prize.

One hundred costumed people took the floor, and their make-up and costumes were typical of every phase of life, and some have no existence.

A few of the masqueraders were as follows: Patrick, Mr. J. Mitchell; Baboon, Mr. A. S. Cree; Turkish Bride, Miss Carrothers; Artemesia, Mrs. Kane; Mutt, Mr. Kane; Bride, Mrs. Broderick; Bridesmaid, Miss Hodgins; Arab, F. Lewis; Jeff, Mr. H. Stevenson; Indian Maiden, Miss Taylor.

After the masquerading and promising part of the evening had been completed, the students and friends adjourned to the dining-room, where a repast awaited them, and to which they all did justice, sufficient to warrant them on this occasion. Afterwards Prof. Patterson and Stevenson gave monologues.

The waltz and dance following the addresses were the finishing touches for the masquerade, and not the least enjoyable.

D. CUPID IN LEAP YEAR WINGS 562 HUSBANDS

Ten Months Show Heavy Casualties Among the Ranks of Bachelors.

INCREASE OF TEN OVER LAST YEAR

London Ladies Have Not Missed Opportunity to "Pop the Question."

Leap year is an undoubted success, if statistics prove anything. He is a brave man who will tackle statistics in the open, particularly if they are vital statistics, and it may be assumed that the figures furnished at the city hall do not prevaricate.

For the first ten months of this year, no less than 562 couples have been joined in the holy bonds of matrimony.

Increase of 10 This Year. The whole of 1911 produced but 566 marriages, so 1912 leap year has practically equalled it with less than 10 to go. Comparing the first ten months of 1911, this year improves the figures $9 coupled.

That is a record of which the employees of the city hall feel justly proud, and they are congratulating themselves that the year 1912 has vindicated the inalienable right of a woman to get a man when she wants him.

Here is the Responsibility. Apparently more wanted him in leap year than in any other year, and consequently made her request known, with excellent results.

Of course, the explanations are varied. Some say that the city's suffrage movement, which is sweeping the country, and not the old tradition, is due for some of the credit, in conversation with a number of men, they claim that such is not the case, as the average man would dodge one of the brick-tossing brigade as quickly as an Indian tiger would sidestep ordinary water.

Easier to Keep a Home. Others claim that the women thoughtfully insinuated that it was due the young men to hurry up with the proposal, and more than the usual number took the hint. Materialists claim that the increasing prosperity of the country made it possible for more young men to support a wife and family.

Whatever the explanation, the fact remains that the clergymen of the city are not worrying about the coal shortage.

89 CHILDREN BORN

Approximately Three New Babies For Every Day in October.

The stork did not break any records for the month, the sum total of its efforts during October being 89 arrivals. For the same month of 1911, 91 births were recorded, but a difference of two is hardly worth mentioning, so they say at the city hall.

Leap year is going to show a good increase in weddings, 58 being registered during October. This number is three more than for the same month in 1911.

The month of October was apparently not a healthy month for babies, no less than 15 out of a total of 48 deaths being of infants less than one year old. This is considered rather high at the city hall, and efforts to locate the causes were made.

No epidemic could be discovered, although cholera infantum was responsible for five deaths. This is one-third, and shows how prevalent this disease is. The weather was comparatively fine, but it could not be considered healthy. Scarlet fever and diphtheria were not noticeably absent.

Not a Startling Number. Dr. Hill, director of the Institute of Public Health, was asked by The Advertiser as to the seriousness of fifteen infants dying in one month. He said that the number might not be considered startling, as the percentage was not great, in view of the fact that there are so many more children than adults.

"It is nevertheless a good time to drive home the fact that 80 per cent. of infant deaths are directly due to the lack of natural feeding," said the director. "There is not the slightest doubt of this. The children fed from the breast die in the proportion of one to five, of those that are fed artificially. The public should know this. It should be hammered home constantly. The lives of many babies would be saved in a year. Of course, there are scores of babies that are carefully fed from a bottle that will thrive. In my opinion, children should have nothing but the purest milk until they are at least 9 months old."

Pioneers Passing Away. October was a hard month on old people, fifteen over the allotted three score and ten passing away. The oldest was 90 years of age, but there were many over 80 years.

Pneumonia was the prevalent cause of death here. Seven cases were reported as due altogether to this disease, while in others it was a contributing cause.

Typhoid fever caused one demise, as did tuberculosis. There were seven violent deaths, two being of suicide.

DIRECTOR HILL, of the Institute, who advises natural feeding as the greatest safeguard for London's infants.

SAVE BABIES BY NATURAL FEEDING, ADVISES DR. HILL

Many Aged Persons Passed Away, Pneumonia Being General Cause.

ANGLO-GERMAN FRIENDSHIP WILL ERADICATE WAR

Commercial Men of the Two Countries Confer at London to Promote Better Feeling—Many Speakers Condemn Speech of Lord Roberts.

[Canadian Press.] New York, Oct. 31.—A London cable says: The "Anglo-German understanding" conference, composed of hundreds of representatives of commerce between Germany and England, met at the Guildhall yesterday.

Sir William Mather said the two countries are united and would prevent war from evermore troubling the world. Herman Hecht, of Berlin, said England and Germany should stand together to meet the danger which may come from America, where great industries are being rapidly developed.

Many speakers criticised Lord Roberts for his Manchester speech, in which he said war between Germany and England is inevitable, the consensus of opinion being that when England realizes that Germany is not seeking territorial aggrandizement there will be no more talk of war.

RAILWAY EMPLOYEES MUST KEEP OF PILOTS

Only Those Engaged in Switching Work Permitted to Use Them.

[Canadian Press.] Ottawa, Oct. 31.—The railway commission has issued an order prohibiting the practice of railway employees riding on the pilots of engines, except when engaged in switching operations. The order arises from the number of serious accidents sustained in this way, and railways must see to it that the practice is discontinued, under penalty of being disciplined.

CHANCE FOR SOMEONE TO PLEASE "KIDDIES"

Eight Hundred Dollars Would Build Toboggan Slide—City Hasn't Got It.

It is possible that the parks commissioners will have to abandon the idea of a toboggan slide at Springbank owing to the lack of funds.

Parks Superintendent Dilger has estimated that the total cost will be $800, and this sum is not available at the present time, owing to the extraordinary expenditures at Springbank, where a new road is being built.

It may be built after the new year, as the expenditure then would be charged up to the appropriation of 1913.

"It can be built for $800, and in my opinion would be a great thing for the city," said Mr. Dilger. "I would recommend it, but if the commissioners do not care to spend the money, that's their business."

"I do not think the board will build the slide," said Mr. Emery B. Farnham, one of the commissioners. "In the first place, we have not the money available. In the second place, the lack of street car accommodation would handicap us greatly. It will not be built this season in any event."

The city will be represented at the hearing by City Solicitor Meredith, while the petitioners from the various suburbs will also have representatives. It is expected that strong opposition will be made to the annexation of those places. The council of the Township of London is opposed to this step, as it will mean that nearly one-third the assessment of the whole township will be added to London. Mr. W. R. Meredith has represented the township at all the hearings, and he will present the case before the board.

The opinion prevails in the city that the annexation will go through without any difficulty, similar requests having been granted last year in Hamilton and other cities.

LONDON BUILDING FOR 1912 TO PASS MILLION MARK

Increase of $175,000 Over Preceding Year Shown For First Ten Months—October Near $100,000 Level.

Building continues to increase in the city, and the permits continue to grow. The amount reached for the first ten months of the year is practically the million dollar mark, with every prospect that it will reach $1,250,000 before the end of the year, the record.

The month of October showed a gratifying increase over the same month in 1911. There were 136 permits issued, a total of $99,925. In that month last year there were 130 permits, for a value of $92,924. Among the permits taken out during October was one for the new bank building being erected by the Bank of British North America at the corner of Talbot and the market at a cost of $25,000; addition to the McClary plant, costing $7,000, and to the London rolling mills, costing $3,000.

The year shows an increase of practically $175,000 over the same ten months of 1911. So far permits valued at $99,925 have been issued, as compared with $82,925 last year.

"Building is booming," said Building Inspector Piper. "We are almost at the million dollar mark now, and we will add a great deal to it before the end of the year." The permit for the indecorator, costing $45,000, has not been issued, and many other buildings in contemplation.

LONDON, THURSDAY, OCT. 31.

LORD ROBERTS AND THE GERMAN SCARE.

The British Foreign Secretary and the president of the British Board of Agriculture have rebuked Lord Roberts for his Germanophobic speech, which Canadian papers have been exploiting for party purposes. Lord Roberts is the most distinguished living British soldier, beloved by his fellow-countrymen, and justly so, but that he has shone on the field of war is no proof that he is an authority in the field of diplomacy and foreign relations.

Sir Edward Grey, when asked in the House whether the German Government had protested against Lord Roberts' speech, went to the heart of the matter when he said that he should "greatly deprecate any suggestion that either Government should make representations about unwise or provocative speeches either in Germany or here by persons who are not in a position to control the policy of the respective Governments."

Lord Roberts is qualified to pronounce on the condition of the British army, and even of the German army, but he knows no more about the designs of the German Government than the ordinary civilian, and not nearly so much about the possibilities of war as the civilians—the members of the British Government—who happen to hold the strings of foreign policy. The recent assurances of Mr. Asquith and Sir Edward Grey that the relations between Great Britain and Germany are excellent, outweigh all the pan-mongering in high and low quarters, on both sides of the Atlantic.

The professional soldier or sailor is habitually given to the expression of alarmist views. As a rule, he looks at the international horizon through army or navy spectacles, and it is naturally disposed to aggrandize the service with which he is connected. This helps to explain why the great war ministers are usually civilians: their point of view is detached from professional bias or preoccupation. This is illustrated by a naive confession made a fortnight ago by Viscount Haldane, minister of war in the present British Government until his recent promotion to the lord chancellorship. In a speech to the students of Bristol, he said:

"Seven years ago, when a new Ministry was being formed, the late Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman sent for me, and suggested one or two offices. I replied to him, 'There is another office I should like. I do not know much about it, but it is full of the most fascinating problems.' Sir Henry asked, 'What is that?' I answered, 'The war office—is it full?' Sir Henry exclaimed, 'Full! No one will touch it with a pole.' (Laughter.) 'Well, I went to the war office, and really had a very easy task. I found a number of young gentlemen, with their minds full of our shortcomings because they had come fresh from the South African war, with its evidence of unpreparedness. The army was not organized in peace, as it would require to be in war, so we all sat down. I was a layman, who scarcely knew the distinction between a battalion and a brigade. (Laughter.) We sat down to think together."

Lord Haldane was admittedly one of the ablest war ministers in many years. The greatest of all war ministers was also a civilian—the Earl of Chatham. The present First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr. Churchill, who has reorganized and invigorated his department in an amazingly short time, had seen little more of battleships than Sir Joseph Porter, C. C. B. The point is that Lord Roberts' distinction as a soldier adds nothing to the weight of his opinion against the opinions of laymen who are in the secrets of the foreign office. The question of armaments is bound up with the question of foreign policy, a condition often overlooked by the professional militarist, who in all circumstances cries for the piling up of expenditure on navies and armies.

THE LITTLE CANADIANS.

In the current number of the University Magazine, Prof. Pelham Edgar discusses the causes of Canada's still wanting a first-rate literature. "Brave brains and busy pens we have amongst us, but we scatter our intellectual energies," he says. His main explanation of things is that this "fussy little people of eight millions, of Anglo-Saxon or Norman stock, with, presumably, the average brain power of those not unintelligent races, has not yet attained to national consciousness, is only a nation in the making," though, he adds, "that we will emerge from our years of tutelage and trial with rational ambitions and definite ideals, is the belief of every true Canadian."

Well, then, there are a good many false Canadians. The cry of the jingo abroad in the land, calling upon us to renounce a national ambition. We are told that to do anything or be anything for ourselves is "un-British." It is wrong to make a navy of our own, to make treaties on our own account, to make anything of our own except money, which, indeed, might be made out of John Bull himself. We must not go the wicked way of Australia, building ships and adopting a distinctive Canadian flag—"un-British"! Thousands are glad to echo the un-Canadian roar and send it up all over Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia. As though it were ever British to depend and fawn.

When the jingo roars, "Be British," in the sense of "Down with Canada," he means really something quite other than British in all the heroic notions of the word or in its present-day suggestions of progressive democracy. The typical Briton of 1912 is not the snob or the landed magnate battling for crumbling privilege, but the modern-minded Asquith, Birrell or Lloyd George, the deep-thoughted Haldane, the opportunist F. E. Smith, the intellectual swordsman such as Wells, Chesterton or Sir Oliver Lodge. Our would-be British jingo is no lover of British advance. He would be man-Friday to some absurd representative of mouldered antiquity. Cap and bells would suit, but wit would be called for in that case.

The truth is that in the recent, sudden, amazing natural growth of Canada, when Max Aitkens, touched by some magic wand, have started out of obscurity in a night into the companionship of dukes, these mushroom millionaires, with purses full, but brains often empty enough of higher ideas, fix their dazzled, hungry eyes upon the glitter of a social show which has almost ceased to interest modern England. A book like "Tono-Bungay" reveals what intelligent Englishmen think of the last pretensions of the old social regime. But our quick-rich group lives still in the nursery, so far as their view of British institutions is concerned. At the same time they exercise an influence in this country out of all proportion to their age and weight. The tone of reactionist Canada is caught in part from them. And one thing they are eager to forget is that they are Canadian, Canadian suggests the thought of the small beginnings from which their greatness grew.

Prof. Edgar calls for a national Canadianism if we are to have a literature worth the world's attention, or other worthy things. He has to reckon with the crowd that wants to slough off Canada and be a bogus imitation of antique British. As he says, however, "every true Canadian" believes that we shall yet emerge from the stale ideas of the nouveaux riches and their vassals, "from our years of tutelage and trial."

VICE-PRESIDENT SHERMAN'S DEATH.

The death of Vice-President Sherman of the United States is the more dramatic because it has taken place on the eve of an election in which he was a candidate for a second term of office. Mr. Sherman was the first Republican Vice-President to receive a renomination, and the only one to die in such circumstances.

When Vice-Presidents die in office they have no successors. The president pro tem. of the Senate continues to preside over that body, but he would not be eligible to succeed to the Presidency in case of a vacancy. If the Democrats were to win the Presidential election, Mr. Sherman's death would produce no complications; the new Vice-President, Governor Marshall, would assume the presidency of the Senate in March next. But if the Republicans won, the choice of a Vice-President to succeed Mr. Sherman would fall upon the members of the electoral colleges, known as the "electors," who nominally choose both President and Vice-President. In that case the "electors" would probably be guided by the advice of the Republican national committee in naming Mr. Sherman's successor.

The death of Mr. Sherman might result in an unparalleled situation, if the "electors" failed to give a clear majority to either Wilson, Taft, or Roosevelt. In that event the election of a President would be thrown into the House of Representatives. The members of that chamber would have to vote not individually, but by states—one vote to each state—and it might chance that there would not be a majority of all the states for any single candidate, as required by the constitution. In such a deadlock, Wilson, Taft and Roosevelt would be ruled out of the contest, as though they were dead, and the President would be chosen by the Senate from among the Vice-Presidential candidates, the one receiving the highest number of votes to be elected. The constitution never contemplated the death of a Vice-Presidential candidate on the eve of an election, but in the case we have supposed, a Republican candidate for the Vice-Presidency would probably be named by the "electors" before the election was shifted to Congress.

The death of James Schoolcraft Sherman is a reminder that there is such an office as vice-president of the United States.

If Mr. Monk is leaving the cabinet because he is a man of honor, and will keep his pledge, what can be said of Messrs. Nantel and Pelletier?

The duty of 52 cents a barrel on cement—about 75 per cent—has been restored, the lower rate having failed to cement Saskatchewan to the Rogers machine.

Sixty women of Sydney, N. S. W., have gone to jail rather than pay fines for wearing long hats. Legislators should know that it is a dangerous thing to interfere with a woman's liberty in the matter of her personal adornment. They can discriminate against the sex in other things with impunity, but not in that.

"Liberals divided on naval policy," says a headline. This is news to most of us, but, of course, the opponents of Laurier are as enthusiastically united on their own naval policy as they were in the last election.

The Dominion Government's request for a lower rate for Canadian grain on United States railways has been granted. Canadian wheat will now cross the line in great quantities, to the imminent peril of the wheat-growers' loyalty.

The Toronto Mail and Empire says that "no other politician of modern times had carried on the war against property so boldly and so effectively as Mr. Lloyd George." Change "property" to "poverty" and the description would fit. The Mail's Toryism is played out in this country, excepting in Toronto.

An election of a Conservative by acclamation in Carleton has no significance, but why is it that the most backward counties in Ontario, like Carleton, Hastings, Frontenac and Leeds, have been always Conservative hives? Is their backwardness a cause or an effect of their Conservatism? Probably both.

In a summary of Mr. Rowell's Toronto speech reproduced in yesterday's edition, he was reported as saying that "as total prohibition was not possible under the Canadian constitution, and the importation and manufacture of liquor would continue in any event, Mr. Rowell thought it would be better to allow it to be sold in shops where the sale could be controlled." What Mr. Rowell did say was that many persons thought that as the importation could not be prohibited, it should be sold in shops, where it could be controlled; but that many favored the total prohibition of the sale of liquor in both bars and shops. If Mr. Rowell formed a Government he would wipe out all the barroom licenses at one stroke, and would leave it to the electors of each municipality to say whether they should abolish the shop licenses too. And they could bring about the abolition by a simple majority. Now a three-fifths majority is necessary.

SCENE IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

[London Daily News and Leader.]
Settled issues like home rule and even the Balkan war itself—are today dominated by the amazing tempest of passion which swept over the House last night. Members in all parties agree that the scene—which has no parallel since Mr. Ure's famous defence of his veracity—marks a new era in domestic politics. It means nothing less than the opening of a land war in England. The anger of the Opposition was not carefully prepared beforehand, as on the occasion when the prime minister was howled down. It broke forth—a veritable flood of vituperation, front bench and back benches all united in an uncontrolled wave of bitter hatred, and still bitter dread of the rural campaign.

LORD WOLVERHAMPTON'S BRILLIANT DAUGHTER WRITES HIS LIFE

[By Special Arrangement With the Winnipeg Telegram.]

The world is such a big place nowadays and the current of events rushes along with such impetuosity and such a mighty sweep that even the important statesmen of one decade become scarcely more than names, even if they are not quite forgotten, in a short space of time. This statement is true of such a prominent politician as Henry Hartley Fowler, who was elevated to the House of Lords in 1908 as Viscount Wolverhampton. The late viscount narrowly escaped becoming leader of the Liberal party in 1898. It was felt, however, that he was too cautious a man to capture the popular imagination, that he lacked an enthusiasm for extremes, so he was passed over. Henry Fowler was in reality a gentleman of the old school, a mid-Victorian who believed in quiet, moderate statesmanship, and who had a great respect for dignity. It was probably because of this prudence and moderation that he was greatly liked by Queen Victoria, who often consulted him regarding her private affairs; and there can be little doubt that this same quiet temperament has caused the memory of him to fade rapidly from the mind of the present generation.

If anything can perpetuate his name, however, it will be his biography written by his clever daughter, Edith Henrietta, whose sister, Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler, has achieved fame as a novelist. A man who had two such clever daughters certainly should have found his home life congenial. Perhaps the fact that both of them became so witty was due to his own solitude that they should tell him every day that they had learned something new, and that they should amuse him at the table by the sparkle of their conversation. The picture of family life in the Fowler home is one of the most interesting features of this book. Concerning the home life in Wolverhampton his daughter writes:

"Father always let us have his own way, and gave us everything he wanted. When anything had disagreed with him we were expected to take invalid diet; and when he was tired after a hard week in the House of Commons we were begged to indulge in a quiet and restful week-end."

"You are one of the most inaccurate women the Almighty ever made," was one of his outbursts to his daughter, the novelist. "Well," she wittily answered, "I am glad to be a masterpiece in any department of creation."

"We were trained to talk to him," says the other daughter, the biographer, "and early learned that the only two things of importance in this life were salvation and education; likewise that the verb 'to be' is of infinite moment; the verb 'to do' of great weight; and the verb 'to have' of no significance at all. . . . When as quite little children we went down to dessert before going to bed, we always were expected to tell him something we had learned that day which we never knew before. I can remember my childish satisfaction at the mirth it excited, when I produced the remarkable piece of information that in India children could be widows at four! As we grew older, when he returned tired from London for a week-end at home, he would sit down to dinner with the request, 'Amuse me!' which we were always expected to do; and I can remember, when driving up with him to Wolverhampton, if we were silent for a few minutes, he would say reproachfully, 'You are not very brilliant this morning.'"

The father of these brilliant daughters met with a fair measure of success as a parliamentarian. He became secretary for India in the Rosebery administration and later on chancellor of the exchequer. He was not a favorite with Gladstone. His daughter biographer says that this lack of sympathy had its roots in the condemning fact to Mr. Gladstone that Fowler was not a churchman, and that he was a leading member of a non-conforming church. One of the most interesting things that history has to record of this old-fashioned English gentleman is that he was the first Methodist to take his seat in the House of Lords.

Many things obstruct her biography from the fact that the brother of the Viscount Wolverhampton was a well-known Methodist minister in Ontario. The Rev. Dr. Fowler lived for some years in London, Ontario, where his widow and daughter still reside.

GOOD ADVICE.
(Philadelphia Telegraph.)
Not long ago Lord Kinnaird, who is always actively interested in religious work, paid a surprise visit to a mission school in the east end of London and told a class of boys the story of Samson. In concluding his narrative his lordship added:
"He was strong, became weak, and then regained his strength, enabling him to destroy his enemies. Now, boys, if I had an enemy what would you advise me to do?"
A little boy, after meditating on the secret of that great man's strength shot up his hand and exclaimed, "Get a bottle of 'air restorer'!"

POWERS WILL STOP ALLIES' ARMIES AT CAPITAL'S GATES

Christian Forces Will Never Be Permitted to Enter Constantinople.

EUROPEAN GOVTS. REACH AGREEMENT

Conclusion of Big Battle at Present in Progress May Bring on Intervention.

[Canadian Press.]

London, Oct. 31.—Whatever the result of the great battle now being fought between the Turkish and Bulgarian armies in the eastern part of the Balkan peninsula, its conclusion will probably give occasion for the intervention of the European powers.

In dispatches from Vienna it is asserted that the foreign ministers of the European governments have reached a tentative agreement in this matter, and in any event the entry of Bulgarian troops into Constantinople will not be tolerated by the powers. Even Russia is disinclined to permit such an occurrence.

It is also understood in diplomatic quarters in the Austrian capital that the Balkan nations have already made known in an unofficial manner that they are prepared to accept intervention by the powers at any moment now.

Syrians Reach Front.

Special dispatches from Constantinople say that the eastern wing of the Turkish army, which is now bearing the brunt of the battle with the Bulgarians, has been reinforced by four Syrian army corps. The centre of the Turkish army is composed of picked troops chiefly regulars, as the reserves have been responsible in the opinion of the Turkish war office, for Children just love to take them.

Shall Boy Who "Hates" Study Be Forced to Attend School?

Letter to The Advertiser From Parent Indicates That Youth Is Wasting Time and Making Family Work Harder.

What to do with a boy, 13 years of age, who is idling away his time at school, and who is desirous of going to work, is a problem that is causing at least one family in London much anxiety. The parents have a family to provide for and the money this lad could earn would be of great assistance to them. The reader wrote The Advertiser the following note:

To the Editor of The Advertiser:
If a boy is idling and wasting his time at school, but who does well at work, of which he can get plenty if allowed to do so, will he be permitted to seek employment, and then be more than 13 years of age? His parents would gladly let him work, as they need the money. School is not always best, as it is ruining this boy, making him despondent, and antagonistic and deceptive to his parents. When he is working he is all that could be desired, contented and happy, bringing his wages home to his mother, who needs them badly. Please answer, and oblige.

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

Mr. Strong's Opinion.

The letter was shown to Mr. W. T. Strong, chairman of No. 1 committee of the board of education, and other members and their advice asked. "The boy is compelled by law to go to school until he is fourteen years of age," explained Mr. Strong. "We cannot make any change in the law. That is final. If this lad is, as I take, under 14 years of age, there is no alternative but send him to school. This youngster's case is typical of many, and I think the industrial school will solve the problem. The ordinary abstract studies weary this boy, and I have no doubt that he becomes despondent and idle. If he were sent to the industrial school he would be taught practical things, and some latent talent might be developed. I was talking to a man the other day, who told me that his boy was making wonderful progress since going to the industrial school.

Takes to Woodworking.

"He had taken a notion for woodworking, and instead of idling his time away, he had taken a deep interest in his work, and was growing in every way. The same might easily happen in this case. I would advise the parents of the boy in question to be patient, send him to the industrial school, and I may not be afraid to venture that he would become a useful mechanic."

OTHER MEMBERS OF THE BOARD WHEN SPOKE TO TOOK THE SAME ATTITUDE TO THE PROBLEM PRESENTED.

ORDERED TO SYRIA.

Paris, Oct. 31.—In view of the danger threatening foreigners in Turkey, the second division of the flying squadron of the French fleet has been ordered to sail from Toulon this evening at full speed to the Syrian coast. It consists of the armored cruisers, Leon Gambetta, Victor Hugo and Jules Ferry. The French armored cruiser Brulay, which is now at Samos, has been ordered to Saloniki.

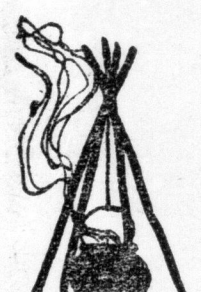

HAUNTED HOUSE

HALLOWEEN PARTY

[Use the silhouettes shown here for your decorations, either tracing direct or copying them roughly on a much larger scale.]

A "HAUNTED HOUSE" HALLOWEEN PARTY! How about it? All sorts of parties may be planned for the last night in October—All Hallow's Eve. But as Halloween seems naturally to be the night of pranks and simple fun, the Advertiser suggests that it would be heaps of pleasure and little expense to have a "haunted house" party this year. It is nearly always possible to find an empty house in the neighborhood. The chances are you will be able to get it for nothing or for a mere song from the owner when he knows it is for a harmless Halloween event. If, by any chance, the house can't be secured, a big shed will do equally well if it is "spookified" in the proper manner.

The trimmings for the "haunted house" and the decorations for table, the menus, the invitations and the games can all be made and planned at home. The only purchases needed are black silhouette paper, some crepe paper rolls in orange color and white, some paste and some candles. Scissors, a little time and ingenuity should do the rest.

The "spooky" atmosphere will be doubly enhanced if some full-length sheets are hung as draperies in the room which you have chosen for your games. The pastimes for this party should be the old-fashioned ones; bobbing for apples, hide and seek, fortune-telling and a GHOST STORY HOUR. The stories should be told in the spookiest-looking room in the house where there are many draperies which will easily move gently in the slight wind from cracks in the windows or doors. The room may be hung with candle lights high up, enclosed in scooped-out pumpkins, and decorated with queerly-marked nose, mouth and eyes. If there is an open fireplace so much the better. The embers should glow and flicker, but should not be allowed to burn up.

HERE'S A SAMPLE INVITATION.

Come to the Haunted House.

Witches and choice spirits of darkness will hold high carnival at the "Haunted House" Thursday, Oct. 31, at 8 o'clock. Don't go past 1214 Blank street. Watch for the witch. Look straight ahead and walk fast or the "goblins" will get you if you don't watch out.

Yours for a spooky time.

Hang these to the walls where the light of the fire will cast strange shadows. Silhouettes of cats, bats, owls, etc., in smaller size will add to the appearance of the room and take away from the bareness of the walls. It will be best to confine the merry makings to one or two rooms, as an attempt to prepare a whole house for the event would be a big, tiresome undertaking. There should be nothing of a nature which will really frighten the guests at this party of any party given on Halloween. Remember the occasion is one intended for real fun and merriment. And it should be kept in mind that the "spooks" of Halloween walk but once a year and then FOR FUN.

HALLOWEEN HINTS.

An unique use of the cats and goblins would be to paste them on drinking glasses, the latter to be filled with milk. The "black and white" effect of these when placed on the table will prove novel and pleasing.

An original costume for Halloween is always timely. Paste any of your "cut outs" in scattered effect, or in decorative borders, on a sheet and pillow case. A witch's hat made of black paper might be worn, too.

Costumes for the "haunted house" party might be the old, old sheet and pillow case, a very simple witch's costume made from large-sized cotton goods or crepe paper, a witch's hat made from black paper and a broom stick. Or, if you like, there may be a postscript to the invitation saying: "Wear your oldest clothes; the ghosts are modest."

PUMPKIN-FACE MENUS.

The MENU cards should be simple and in the spirit of the occasion. Why not cut pumpkin shapes out of pumpkin-colored paper, putting the mouth, eyes and nose in in black or merely cutting them out. The clear spaces on the face may be used to write in the menu. Print the word M E N U across the top of the pumpkin shape in black ink. These cards may also be made by writing the name of a guest on the back of each one of them.

Problems of the Fair Sex Solved by Cynthia Grey

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn as they are received.]

A Party Dress. Dear Miss Grey: Will you kindly answer a few questions for me as soon as possible?

1. What would be an inexpensive party dress for a girl of 18?
 2. I am stout and about 5 feet, 9 inches tall; very dark. Will you kindly suggest a simple way to make the party dress?
 3. Could you at present tell me where Mischa Elman, the Russian violinist, is?
 4. Is my writing neat, and what do you think of it?

1. Cotton crepe, cotton voile, or marquisette.
 2. A surprise waist and tunic skirt, trimmed with ribbons of Milanese lace and a crush girdle of silk should be a becoming style.
 3. I cannot give you the information, but if you write to the Sunday Telegraph, New York City, they will doubtless be able to obtain it for you.
 4. Your writing is neat, and, while it possesses a certain stiffness, it is a very creditable hand.

Dear Miss Grey: I have been reading The Advertiser for the last six years. I would like you to tell me what would whiten the elbows.

2. Why is it that every one I meet on the streets look at me? I am considered to be good looking.
 3. I am fifteen years old, and weigh 135 pounds; 5 feet, 1 inch tall. Do you think I'm too heavy?
 4. Hoping to see this in print soon, and oblige, E. E. S.

2. How can I tell? Are you sure you don't talk in a loud voice, stifle, or dress in an extreme style. Of course, any of these things are apt to attract attention.
3. I should fancy you are rather stout for your height.

PLACE CARDS FOR HALLOWEEN.

Unique place cards for a Halloween party may be fashioned out of green or orange-colored paper in the shape of a four leaf clover. Across the top of each a quotation suited to the occasion may be written. For instance:

"Fame is revenue payable only to our ghosts."

"Hang these who talk of fear."

"He knew by the streamers that shot so bright That spirits were riding the northern light."

"Many ghosts and forms of fright Have started from their grave tonight; They have driven sleep from mine eyes away."

"Unhand me, gentlemen! By heavens, I'll make a ghost of him that lets me."

Night's swift dragons cut the clouds full fast, And yonder shines Aurora's harbinger; At whose approach, ghosts, wandering here and there, Troop home to church yards."

Other forms of invitation which may be used for a Halloween party:

"The Misses ——— request the pleasure of your company at their Halloween party, Oct. 31, 1912, at 7 o'clock. Please come prepared to tell a story appropriate to the occasion."

(Signed) Edgewater, Oct. 24, 1912.

If you are going to have a sheet and pillow case party write this sort of an invitation.

"Miss Betty and Jane, on All Hallow's Night,

HALLOWEEN FORTUNES FOR YOUR "HAUNTED HOUSE" PARTY.

The fortune-telling feature of the "haunted house" party must not be forgotten. Arrange for one of the girls, who is helping you to plan your party, to dress up in the guise of a witch. This need not be extravagant, but it should be as grotesque as she can make it. Beg an iron pot from the kitchen for the "witch's cauldron." Set up three gnarled sticks and hang the cauldron from them. A simulated fire can be effected by the use of twigs and a candle which burns in a pumpkin.

Instead of writing the fortunes with ink write them with milk. Then let each slip of paper dry, and fold it. Keep one outside the cauldron for the fortunes for the girls and the other for those of the boys. Separate the cauldron into two parts with a piece of

Meat Dishes For Luncheon

With the prevailing high prices of meat, the housewife who is trying to provide on a slender income satisfactory menus for her family is certain to welcome any suggestion that will tend to the solution of her difficult problem. Here is a collection of recipes for excellent dishes which may be prepared at reasonable cost:

Pressed Beef. Boil a soup bone gently until the meat drops from the bone. While the meat is hot remove from the bone and cut fine, rejecting the gristle and nearly all the fat. Season to taste with salt and pepper and add a teaspoonful of melted butter, and moisten with a half-cupful of meat liquor. Pack in a granite basin or pan, and put a dish on top with a flatiron on the dish. Press down the meat. Let it stand until cold. Then slice it down. The rest of the liquor may be used for soup the following day.

Meat Popovers. Mix very fine half pint of cold, cooked meat, if from the leg use the marrow from the bone. Beat two eggs and add to each a cup of milk, a pinch of salt and dash of cayenne. Stir this gradually into a cup of sifted flour, gradually into a cup of sifted flour, gradually into a cup of sifted flour, gradually into a cup of sifted flour.

Brown Fricassee of Veal. Take two pounds of lean well-grown veal from the cheap part of the leg. Remove fat and bone, and cut the meat in a stew kettle, cover with cold water and let them simmer. Season each piece of meat with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Heat a tablespoonful each of butter and beef drip-

Take out, and if the fat is all used add two tablespoonfuls more of butter or drippings, slice in a small onion and fry brown with two tablespoonfuls of flour stirred in. Then add the broth from the bones, and stir until smooth, adding more water or milk to make enough sauce to cover the meat. Strain over the meat, cover closely and stew for two hours.

A DAY IN THE SPORTING WORLD

SIDE LIGHTS ON MANY SPORTSMEDS HELD A WORKOUT
AT PARK LAST EVENING

Several Members of Team Were Absent and Collegiate Players Had Easy Time Beating Regulars—Another Practice Will Be Held at the Park This Afternoon.

About sixteen members of the Western University football team held a strenuous work-out with the L. C. I. senior football team at Tecumseh Park last night, and although the Meds were defeated in a short game, the points scored by the Collegiate boys were made with the students six or seven men short. These practices do both teams more good than work-outs of any other description, as they contain all the plays and formations of a regular game. While the L. C. I. team is considerably lighter than the older team, they put up a good game, and are being initiated into the style of play prevalent in the Collegiate game, and several of the players will be able to make a strong bid for positions on the London team next fall. As it is, Ross Belton, the captain and quarterback of the Collegiate team, is being carried as a spare by the Meds.

Another practice will be held at the park this evening, and a final signal drill will be conducted at the armories on Friday evening from 6:30 to 7:30. All the players have recovered from any injuries received in the holiday game at Sarnia and are in the best condition for the deciding game with Petrolea on Saturday. There will likely be but one change in the line-up for Saturday's game, Tiny Sage being placed at inside wing, but it has not yet been decided who will be kept on the side line. Before the team is finally selected there will be much keen competition among the wing line for the positions. Four of the line men are nearly the same as far as their football ability is concerned, and Capt. Borland and Manager Stevens will have a hard proposition selecting the players.

Rooters' Club. The players are not the only ones who realize the importance of the game on Saturday, and the medical students who are members of the Rooters' Club are holding special rehearsals each afternoon this week and will have a number of new yells and songs to introduce to the spectators at the game.

Big Crowd Expected. The management expect that the attendance on Saturday will be one of the largest that ever attended a football game in this city, and as a result have made special arrangements for handling the crowd. Those supporters of the team who have seen every game, and the last two particularly, are positive that the Petrolea team will receive a severe defeat at the hands of the local pigskin artists, and are doing all possible to boost the game in this city. The team this season is the best that has ever been turned out by the Western University, and one of the best ever organized in London, and deserves the hearty support of every lover of clean amateur sport in the city. It is expected that a large number of fans from St. Thomas will attend the game, as football is a popular pastime in that city, particularly among the students of the schools.

WRITER TO ADVERTISER SAYS MEDS
ARE TAKING PETROLEA TOO EASY

The Team Is Not Practicing Hard Enough, Says "Criticus," Who Implies That Players Are Suffering From Swelled Head.

London, Oct. 31, 1912.
To the Sporting Editor of The Advertiser:

Dear Sir,—Let me compliment you on the excellence and incisiveness of your report on the London and Sarnia game last Monday. I agree with all that you say about the quality of the teams and the play. It was aggressive and spectacular.

Your praise of the practices during the week are too generous, however. The fact is unless the boys get out and do some hard work between now and Saturday, I see nothing but an inglorious defeat staring them in the face. Last night, there were only six regular members of the team out to practice. The others were members of the second team and aspirants for places on the first team. As a consequence, the

L. C. I. players scored against them at will. Now Petrolea is not a team that can be beaten as easily as Sarnia. They are a very different proposition, and cannot be beaten by any team who think they can play under-form. Petrolea can only be beaten by hard, fast, and accurate play.

London, to my mind, can and should beat Petrolea next Saturday. They have the team to do it, and they are capable of doing it. But they cannot do it by taking it as easy as they have been doing. The London team, at this stage of the game, should not make so many off-sides and forward and loose passes as they made in the Sarnia game, and only hard practicing will remedy this. Thanking you for your space, Mr. Editor, I remain,

New York, Oct. 30.—With a view to deciding on a successor to Jack Johnson's title to the heavyweight championship of the world, W. C. J. Kelly, representing Hugh McIntosh, the Australian promoter, today signed a contract with Dan McKitterick, manager of Joe Jeanette, to fight Jeanette $25,000, with the privilege of 25 per cent of the gate receipts, with five round-trip tickets for himself, manager and sparring partners, and they will sail from San Francisco the latter part of November. In addition to these stipulations, McIntosh will donate a gold belt emblematic of the world's championship.

M'GILL TREATS QUEEN'S AS VERY EASY PICKING

Not Much Interest Being Taken in the Games With Kingston College.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, Oct. 30.—"The whole bunch is getting back into good, snappy work," said Coach Shaughnessy, of McGill, after last night's practice. "Two full teams were out, and the men put up a very smart hour's work."

"Shag" kept 'em hanging all the time. The big boys are going to take no chances in the penitentiary burl, although he figures on winning with anything like a fair share of the luck breaks.

McGill is not taking much interest in the Queen's encounter, and it is improbable that many rooters will accompany the team to Kingston on Friday. Everyone here is preparing for the play-off with Toronto Varsity to settle the championship of the Inter-collegiate Union, taking it for granted that the Presbyterians will prove easy picking.

Last Chance to Win a Game This Season.

Montreal, Oct. 30.—Montreal will make a strenuous attempt to break their losing streak in their game here next Saturday with the Hamilton Tigers. The M. A. A. are not very enthusiastic, however, as both Bailey and O'Connor are out of the game, the former with a broken collarbone and the latter with a badly injured face. As a number of the intermediates have shown up well, it is likely that they will be drafted into the senior fourteen.

World's Series Hoodoo For First Sackers

If history—that is, baseball history—repeats itself as it has fallen into the habit of doing, Fred Merkle, of the Giants, will be missing from the New York lineup within a year or so, while Jake Stahl may convert himself into a bench manager before many seasons have passed, says Henry P. Edwards, in the Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

Old Man History shows that world's series first-sackers seldom last long. In fact, there seems to be a hoodoo following the men who play the initial cushion for big league pennant winners.

Jiggs Donohue was one of the heroes of the Club-White Sox series of 1906. Two years later not a big league club cared for his services. Claude Rossman starred for Detroit in the series of 1907. Jennings traded him two years later. Abelstein held down first base for the Pirates in 1909. He was let out the following spring, while Tom Jones, who played first for Detroit in the post-season series that fall, was held by Jennings but one year more.

The fall of 1910 saw the Athletics and Cubs battling for the world's championship. Harry Davis and Frank Chance were the rival first-sackers. Davis is now out of baseball, while Chance has been turned down by Murphy.

THE GREAT BASEBALL SCANDAL

Grantland Rice Says National League Needs Swift Kick in Pit of the Stomach.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE SCANDALS—Owner C. W. Murphy, of the Cubs, charged that Manager Bresnahan, of St. Louis, had downed the McGraw might with the pennant. Horace Fogel, president of the Phillies, charged conspiracy involving President Tom Lynch and Umpire Pinneran, to give Giants pennant. Murphy disputed the Chicago team by removing Frank Chance, manager, while Chance was recovering from a surgical operation. President J. T. Brush refused to turn over to National League 25 per cent of world's series receipts as has been demanded by the owner of Cardinals, discharged Manager Bresnahan, following all season trouble.

BY GRANTLAND RICE,

The Noted Baseball Writer.

What's the matter with the National Baseball League from the viewpoint of its club owners?

Someone asked William Allen White, of Emporia, Kan., that same question. In regard to his native state, and White's reply was summed up in this one line: "Kansas should raise more corn and less hell"—and there you are.

Unless National League club owners, or the National League as a body, stops raising so much hell, it will soon be a thing of the past.

If the National League is to stand for club owners of the type of Charles Murphy, of Chicago, and Horace Fogel, of Philadelphia, it might as well disband before the fans throw it into the ditch. Behind the great National League, the father of organized baseball, the all that was good, and brave and honest while the game was passing through childhood's pains—this National League becoming a rake and a scandal in its old age, skidding down hill as fast as it can go. Behind Fogel and Murphy running around in short, dizzy circles, shrieking wild and uncalled-for charges and making grave insinuations. This, year after year, has almost wrecked the organization in two of the league's best cities.

In St. Louis another upheaval, with Mrs. Helen Hathaway Robinson Britton leading the league, has added another failing centre to the list. John T. Brush is involved in an argument over the payment of money in the world's series imposed by his league, and when the full situation is summed up, almost the entire circuit is one disgusting mess.

For years now the politics in the National League has been of the lowest and most intriguing type, where only selfishness has controlled every move. It has been a case of scrambling for the dollar and for nothing else, with any and all ideas of sportsmanship blurred by the coldest of mercenary motives. And most of the owners haven't the sense to see that in a scramble of this sort they are merely paving the way to financial disaster, as well as the utter wreck of all sportsmanship.

The older circuit has but one chance to make good. This chance lies in the rallying of the few club-owning sportsmen against such types as are presented by Murphy, Fogel, et al., driving these out of the game and giving the league president power, through a long term, to rule the league as Ban Johnson controls the American.

It will take nothing short of a scrappy, bull-necked fighter to handle this National League crowd as it should be handled. Such a president should be given the power and opportunity to make good. As things now stand, the National League from the club owners' angle, doesn't need any advice. It needs a good advice. If this doesn't come, the only answer is a boycott by the fans who, striking at the gate receipts, will hit the only vulnerable spot which men like Murphy and Fogel possess.

WOLGAST TAKES BIG CHANCES
IN MEETING JOE MANDOT

Southern Lightweight Looked Upon as Champion's Most Serious Rival.

San Francisco, Oct. 30.—Ad Wolgast is due in New Orleans today, and will have about five days in which to prepare for his ten-round bout with Joe Mandot there on Nov. 4. As the affair with Mandot is one of several contests arranged by Wolgast to occupy his time until the Thanksgiving Day date, it might be said that he is not taking the fight seriously.

Ad holds no very exalted opinion of the New Orleans Frenchman's fighting qualifications. But whether Wolgast takes Mandot seriously or not, the sporting public will look for a hot fight.

Ad Wolgast, the champion of the world, will have to have it out with Mandot later. For that matter, who can tell but that Wolgast will be victorious at New Orleans and again at Cofroth's arena on Thanksgiving Day?

DEATH OF A YALE PLAYER
MAY START AGITATION AGAIN

Theodore W. York Injured in a Football Game But Developed Pneumonia and Died.

[Canadian Press.]

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 31.—The death from pneumonia last night of Theodore W. York, right guard of the Yale football team, following his injury in the Yale-West Point game, is likely to bring up prominently again in many American colleges, the question of abolishing football as a college sport. The Yale coaches have suspended practice until after York's funeral, and the scheduled game with Colgate next Saturday has been cancelled.

York played a smashing game against West Point and was picked by the Yale coaches at the time as a likely All-America selection. Upon his return to New Haven he was sent to the infirmary because of injuries believed at the time to be slight. It was announced that he was suffering from torn ligaments at the end of his collar bone and a bad abscess of the arm. He had not been in the infirmary long when pneumonia developed. York was 20 years old, and came from Philadelphia.

ARE TURNING PROS.

New Edinburgh Team Will Be Unable to Fill Allan Cup Dates Owing to Loss of Men.

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—The New Edinburgh hockey club will not press its challenge for the Allan cup this fall. They challenged last spring, and the trustees put them over until December, but in the meantime Benedict and Kendall have signed contracts to play professional hockey, and Eddie Gerard, Harry Broadbent and Horace Merrill will do likewise. The inter-provincial champions, in fact, will be short of all but two or three of their regular team. Kendall is going to the Pacific coast, and Gerard, Broadbent, Merrill and Benedict will be with Ottawa.

TIGERS AND ROYALS
AFTER M'GINNITY

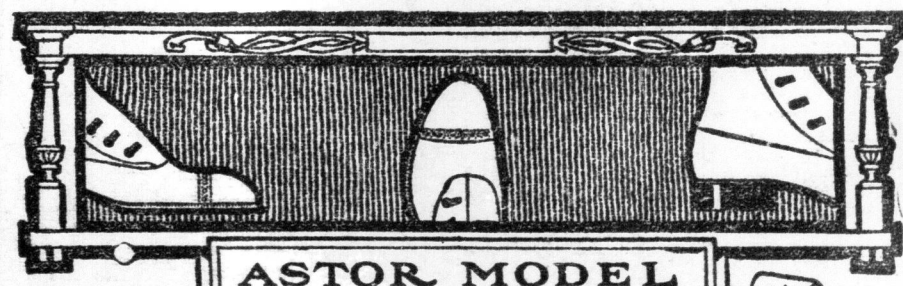

Navin Wants Him to Train Young Pitchers, and Montreal Wants Him as Manager.

Newark, Oct. 30.—Ex-Manager Joe McGinnity, late of the Newark club, is considering several offers from big league managers. One offer which the "Iron Man" has given much consideration comes from Frank J. Navin, president of the Detroit club, and owner of the Providence club. Navin probably wants Joe to pitch once in a while for Detroit, and look after the young pitchers now on the staff. President Lichenstein, of the Montreal club, also made an offer, but the terms do not suit McGinnity. The Montreal president and McGinnity are close friends, and Joe says that if he stays in the international league the Montreal club will have first call on his services.

Bill Sweeney Is Man the Fans Want to Handle Club.

Boston, Oct. 30.—President James E. Gaffney, of the Boston National League club, has announced that Geo. Stallings, last year's manager of the Buffalo International League club, has signed a three-year contract to manage the local club. His selections is not popular with the fans, who wanted Bill Sweeney.

STRONG FOOTBALL TEAMS UNDER NEW RULES BECOME GREAT SCORING MACHINES—MOST COACHES THIS YEAR ARE DEVELOPING ATTACK RATHER THAN DEFENCE.

FOUR BIG MEN IN EASTERN FOOTBALL: LEFT TO RIGHT—CAPT. MERCER, OF PENNSYLVANIA; CAPT. WENDELL, OF HARVARD; CAPT. SPALDING, OF YALE, AND CAPT. PENDELTON, OF PRINCETON.

The result of the first two weeks of American intercollegiate football under the new rules indicates that the game has returned to the days when great scoring machines, like the point-a-minute combination developed by Yost at Michigan, will prevail.

Already, in the early days of the game, those teams whose coaches have grasped the possibilities of the rules, have scored 40, 50, 60 and even more points. It is also true that these teams have been scored upon, indicating that a majority of the coaches have spent their time in developing attack rather than defence.

The work of the big teams in the east and middle west will be watched closely all season, for it is with them that the greatest development under the new rules will be expected.

Up to date the playing has been ragged and lacking in that precision which will come later with practice. The earlier games indicate that in the east Pennsylvania has apparently made the least progress, while Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Princeton are apparently very much at home in the game.

O. H. A. WILL MEET SATURDAY, NOV. 16

It Is Probable That Officers Will Be Given Second Term.

WETTLAUER PRESIDENT

Kenny Casselman, of This City, Will Be Re-Elected as Vice-President of Association.

Toronto, Oct. 31.—The annual convention of the Ontario Hockey Association will be held at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Nov. 16, at the Temple Building, Toronto. There will be a morning session only. At this meeting each club in the association will be entitled to representation by one delegate, exclusive of the members of the executive of the association, and this delegate must be a member of the club he represents. No delegate will be allowed to represent more than one club. Credentials will be sent to the clubs of the association, with a list of amendments to be considered. All notices of motion to amend the constitution of the association, the rules of competition, or the rules of the game must be in the hands of the secretary, W. A. Hewitt, Daily Star, Toronto, in writing, by Saturday, Nov. 2.

Officers to be elected include the president, first and second vice-presidents, secretary, treasurer, and an executive committee of four members, nominations for which must be filed with the secretary by Saturday, Nov. 9. It is customary to give the president a second term, and H. E. Wettlaufer, of Berlin, who was elected last year, will likely be re-elected by acclamation. Chas. Farquharson, of Stratford, and Kenneth Casselman, of London, are the vice-presidents, and they will also likely be returned to office without opposition. The present elected members of the executive are: A. E. Copeland, of Midland; R. M. Glover, of Peterborough; James T. Sutherland, of Kingston; and J. R. Beaton, now of Toronto, formerly of Ingersoll.

A meeting of the executive committee of the association will be held on Friday night, Nov. 15, at which business for the year will be wound up and the applications of new clubs for admission will be considered. The annual membership fee for each team is $6 and the entrance fee $5 additional for new clubs. Only clubs whose fees are paid are entitled to representation at the annual meeting.

CHANCE GETS OFFER FROM WHITE SOX

Comiskey Willing to Pay $20,000 for Former Cub Manager, It Is Reported.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—The local White Sox management is open to Frank Chance if the former Cub leader can get his release from President Murphy. It is reported that an offer of $20,000 salary was made for him as a playing manager. Comiskey thinks Chance has several years left as a good first baseman and admits there is not a better first baseman or leader of a team than Chance in good health.

Masked Golfer Is Mystifying Folks on Eastern Links

New York, Oct. 30.—Golfers at the Van Cortlandt Park links have remarked this week the presence there of a mysterious golfer who wears a black mask while playing the course. Those who have watched his play declare that the length of his drives is remarkable, enabling him to cover the rather hard course at a score close to par with apparent ease. It was declared today that the mysterious visitor is an English expert who has just come to this country on a wager of $25,000 to break the records of the six best courses in the United States. Afterward, on a wager of $5,000, to beat the American champion in a match game.

The identity of the masked golfer is kept in obscurity, but it is said that his name is familiar in England and this country. The "black mask" yesterday took 71 strokes to play the 18 holes at Van Cortlandt. This is one stroke better than the record. He made one drive of nearly 300 yards, better than the world's record.

MORON GOT DECISION OVER CHARLIE HORN

Ten Rounds of Fast Fighting Staged at Oakland.

[Canadian Press.]

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 31.—Frank Moran, Pittsburgh heavyweight, was awarded the decision over Charlie Horn, of San Francisco, at the end of ten rounds of fast fighting here last night. Moran outlasted Horn from the start.

Base Ball Varns

William J. Finley, 45 years old, known as Dick Finley, catcher for the New York Giants in 1909 when they won the world's championship, died Oct. 30 at his home in Astbury Park, N. J., of heart disease. Pitcher Dick Rudolph, of the Toronto team, before leaving Toronto for his home in New York at the close of the season, was married to Miss Alice Craig, of Toronto, who would make their home this winter in New York.

Clark Griffith's Nationals divided $3,000 among themselves, the receipts from an exhibition game. Two thousand dollars were obtained in Albany and Syracuse, and the remainder in Hoboken and Hartford, Conn.

Asheville, of the Appalachian League, has signed Tommy Stouch as his manager for next year. Stouch, who is a veteran ball player, was until after the 1912 season opened manager of the Greenville team of the Carolina Association.

Hohltzel, of the Reds, won a suit of clothes for batting in the most runs for his team, and Art Fromme was signed out by another Redland merchant for allowing the smallest percentage of earned runs of any of O'Day's pitchers.

Under Birmingham the Naps have played 28 games, winning 21 and losing 7 for a percentage of .750. The world's series might have been staged in Cleveland had Harry Davis been convinced earlier that it was time for him to quit.

Frank Heilmann, a St. Louis barber, rooted so hard for the Cardinals in the game of the series, he was so excited that he died of heart disease. It might be supposed that a Cardinal supporter who had survived the season would be immune from anything.

Everlasting statistics show that Christy Mathewson has worked in 18 games against the other three first division teams, with only an even break on the campaign. His record against Chicago is 2-2, against Pittsburgh one win and three defeats, against Cincinnati, 4-2.

The players of Connie Mack's team made about as much money out of their series with the Phillies. At a game played at Sheepshead, Pa., nearly 10,000 fans turned out to see the Athletics beat a picked team.

Big Ed Walek, again hops into view as a perennial wonder. Ed always does something, but delayed this year until the Chicago city champion. He held the Cubs to one hit, a single by Tinker, and that busy individual was the only Cub to attack second base.

Connie Mack's resources extended to Rube Oldring as well as Chief Bender, and both were taken back into the fold by the Athletics manager. It was specifically understood between players and manager that joy riding and all efforts to diminish the wine crop should cease.

Joe Niekert, the automobile racer, cancelled his engagements at the Illinois State fair because he could not get the money's series. He is a cousin of Pitcher Bender, of the Red Sox, and rooted hard for Boston, even though it cost him a cool thousand or so to see them in action.

Joe Birmingham has signed his contract as manager of the Cleveland Naps for 1913. For once President Somers seems to have made a choice with luck breaking his way. Now if he will let Birmingham have a free hand in swinging the ax and smashing a few idols the Clevelanders may make to count.

The announcement at the Three-I League meeting in Chicago that the season was "the most prosperous in the history of the league," is very amusing in the light of President Tanager's report that but three cities of the eight reached the attendance limit by which franchises are guaranteed.

TINKER TELLS EVERS THAT HE WON'T PLAY

Cub Shortstop Will Not Play For Cubs Under Management of Evers. EVERS MAY BLOCK TRADE Will Not Let Joe Go to Reds If Cubs Will Not Benefit by Deal—Tinker Best in the League.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—John Evers, new manager of the Cubs, is in absolute charge of things for one day. President Murphy, his boss, left yesterday afternoon for New York, and Johnny himself will set out for his home in Troy this evening. Before his departure he will ponder over Garry Herrmann's ultimatum regarding a trade for Joe Tinker. If, after due consideration, he comes to the conclusion that he will benefit by such a deal as Garry proposes, Tinker will be free to take the management of the Reds. If he figures that Herrmann's terms are unfair from a Cub standpoint, Tinker will be retained or sent to some other city than Cincy.

Joe has announced that he is through as a Cub. He says he has a chance to get a housing job with the Reds, and believes it the duty of President Murphy to let him go because of his long years of service to the Cubs. Tinker is the best shortstop in the National League, and adds that he won't part with him unless he can get Mike Doohan, of the Phillies, in some sort of a three-cornered swap.

Herrmann's Offer.

President Herrmann asserts that he will give any two of his infielders, or any two of his outfielders, or one infielder and one outfielder, or one infielder and one pitcher, or one infielder and one The Silent Barrier

(BY LOUIS TRACY.)

At first she was at a loss to fathom the cause of Stamp's delight, and still less to understand why he should want to thank her with such exuberance. She imagined he was overjoyed at having gone back to his beloved profession, and it was only by dint of questioning that she discovered the truth. Then it dawned on her that the man had been goaded to desperation by the curt message from St. Morris—that he was sorely tempted to abandon the struggle and follow into the darkness the daughter taken from him so many years ago—and the remembrance of her suspicion when they were about to part at the cemetery gate lent a serious note to her words of congratulation.

"You see, Stamp," she said, "you were very wrong to lose faith this morning. At the very moment of your deepest despair heaven was providing a good friend for you."

"Yes, indeed, fraulein. That is why I waited here. I felt that I must thank you. It was all through you. The good God sent you."

"I think you are far more beholden to the gentleman who employed you than to me," she broke in.

"Yes, he is splendid, the young voyageur; but it was wholly on your account, lady. He was angry at first, because I placed you in peril in the matter of the wheel."

Helen was amazed. "He spoke of me?" she cried.

"Ah, yes. He did not say much, but his eyes looked through me. He has the eyes of a true man, that young American."

She was more bewildered than ever. "What is his name?" she asked.

"Here it is. The director wrote it for me, so that I may learn how to pronounce it."

Stamp produced a scrap of paper, and Helen read. "Mr. Charles K. Spencer."

"Are you quite certain he mentioned me?" she repeated.

"Can I be mistaken, fraulein. I know, because I studied the labels on your boxes. Miss Helen Weston wrote 'Helen' did he not name me about the accident?"

"Well, wonders will never cease," she vowed; and indeed, they were only beginning in her life, which shows how blind to excellent material wonders can be.

At luncheon she summoned the head waiter. "Is there a Mr. Charles K. Spencer staying in the hotel?" she asked.

"Yes, madam."

"Will you please tell me if he is in the room?"

The head waiter turned. Spencer was studying the menu. "Yes, madam. There he is, sitting alone, at the second table from the window."

It was quite to be expected that the subject of their joint gaze should look at them instantly. He increased a hundredfold when a charming young woman tries to go on a young man who happens to be thinking of her at the moment.

Then Spencer realized that Stamp had told Helen what had taken place in the hotel bureau, and he was so taken by a part of the bargain.

Helen, knowing that he knew, blushed furiously. She tried to hide her confusion by murmuring something to the head waiter. But in her heart she was saying, "I have never seen him before last night. And why am I such an idiot as to tremble at the sight of a man who happened to catch me looking at him?"

CHAPTER VI.

The Battlefield.

Both man and woman were far too well bred to indulge in an "all over the place" other led rather to an ostentatious avoidance of any such flirtatious overture.

Though Stamp's curious statement had puzzled Helen, she soon hit on the theory that the American must have heard of the accident to her carriage. Yes, that supplied a sharp lookout for her on the road.

He arrived at the hotel almost simultaneously with herself, and she had not forgotten his somewhat inquiring glance as they stood together on the steps. With the civility of his race in all things concerning womanhood, he was eager to render assistance, and under the circumstances he probably wondered what sort of help it was natural enough, too, that in engaging Stamp he should refer to the collapse of the wheel. Really, when one comes to analyze an incident seemingly incommensurate with its importance, it is quite commonplace constituents.

She found it awkward that he should be sitting between her and a window commanding the best view of the lake. If Spencer had been at any other hotel she could have feasted her eyes on the whole expanse of the Ober-Engadin Valley. Therefore she had had none for looking at her. Spencer appeared to be aware of this disability. For lack of better occupation he scrutinized the writing on the menu with a prolonged intently worthy of a gourmand or an expert graphologist.

Helen rose first, and that gave him an opportunity to note her graceful carriage. "Though born in the States, he was of British stock, and he did not share the professed opinion of the American woman is angular, has large feet, and does not know how to walk. Helen, at any rate, was a rare exception to these elements of caricature. Though there were several so-called "smart" women in the hotel, none of them who clung desperately to the fringe of society on both sides of the Atlantic, his proteges were easily first among the few who had succeeded in good looks.

Helen was not only tall and lithe, but her movements were marked by a quiet elegance. It was her custom, in nearly all weathers, to walk from Bayswater to Professor Von Eulenberg's studio. Which, needless to say, was situated near the British Museum. She usually returned by the same route, and the only reason for the London snow made the streets intolerable. Thus there was hardly a day that she did not cover eight miles at a rapid pace, a method of training that eclipsed all the artifices of beauty doctors and schools of deportment. Her sweet, pretty face, her abundance of shining brown hair, her slim, well-proportioned figure, and the almost athletic swing of her well-arched shoulders, would entitle her to notice in a gathering of beauties far more noted than those who graced Maloja by their presence that year. In addition to these physical attractions she carried with her the rarer and indefinable aura of the born aristocrat. As it happened, she merited that description both by the proprietors of the hotel, and by the necessary hallmarks—otherwise the pages of Burke would surely be embellished with portraits.

Indeed, for as far as appearance went, it was hard for her to appear as a social inferior of any person then residing in the Kurhaus, and it is probable that the glimmering knowledge of this fact flattered Mrs. de Courcy Vavasour's wrath to boiling point. When, a few minutes later, her new son coolly walked up to the "undesirable" and entered into conversation with her.

Helen was seated in a shady corner. A flood of sunlight filled the glass-covered verandah with a grateful warmth. She had picked up an astonishingly well-written and scholarly guide book issued by the proprietors of the hotel, and was deep in its opening treatise on the history and racial characteristics of the Engadiner, when she was surprised at hearing herself addressed by name.

"Dr. Miss—er—Wynton, I believe?" said a drawing voice.

Looking up, she found George de Courcy Vavasour bending over her in an attitude that betokened the utmost admiration for both parties to the act. "Under ordinary conditions—that is to say, if Vavasour's existence depended on exertions—Helen's eyes would have dwelt on a gawky youth endowed with a certain pertness that might in time have brought him from behind the counter of a drapery store to the wider arena of the floor. As it was, a reasonably large income gave him an unbounded assurance, and his credit with a good tailor was unquestionable. He represented a British product that flourished in alien soil. There exists a foreign legion of George de Courcy Vavasours, hatched heroes of the nation whose parade grounds change with the seasons from Paris to the Riviera, and from the Riviera to some meek in the Alps. Providence and a grandfather have conspired in their behalf to make work unnecessary; but Providence, more far-seeing than grandfather, has decreed that they shall be effete and light-brained, so the type does not endure.

OPPOSITION BARRED FROM HUN HOUSE

Military Cordon Prevents Them Taking Their Seats.

[Canadian Press.] Budapest, Hungary, Oct. 30. — The members of the Opposition in the Hungarian Parliament, when they tried to enter the House today, were met by a strong military cordon, which completely surrounded the Parliament buildings and prevented their approach.

The Opposition deputies, led by Count Albert Apponyi, Count Michael Karolyi and Francis Jossath, made an attempt to get through, but were forced to retreat. Before doing so they made a violent protest.

The dissolution in the Hungarian Parliament has been continuous since May 22, when the new speaker of the Lower House was elected.

On June 7, Count Liska narrowly escaped assassination in the House, when Deputy Julius Kovacs fired at him three times.

The Opposition members were then ejected and the proceedings have been carried on since solely by members of the Government party.

[Continued.] "I am not going to be the only goat. When you take me you will take the whole bunch. I'll be satisfied if I get off with a few years, but I will not go off on the stand. It would be worth my life for me to testify against the others."

Foster testified Hocken so spoke while the grand jury was in session investigating the alleged illegal transportation of dynamite on passenger trains and just before Hocken, who is international secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, turned over the keys to the union offices, so that the officers might procure J. J. McNamara's letter files.

Foster, formerly on the police force in Louisville, Ky., said that as a special investigator for the National Erectors' Association, he came to Indianapolis to help search for evidence.

"I met Hocken several times when the grand jury was in session," said Foster. "He promised to procure out of the ironworkers' office any letters that had incriminating evidence in them. He repeated he was not only one in the name, but he did not produce to me the goat for all of them. After he turned the office key over to me, I procured the letters at night. I told him I appreciated what he had done and he would not be anything by it. So far as he was concerned, I said, we had enough on him already and that no doubt he would like to have company. At one time in the office he pointed out a bundle of letters and said, 'Here are some from the California end.' They were signed by Olaf A. Tveitmo, of San Francisco.

SINGER MURDER MYSTERY

No Trace Yet of the Couple Connected With the Case.

[Canadian Press.] Chicago, Oct. 30. — Although police in every part of the city kept a sharp lookout for Charles Conaway and his wife, wanted in connection with the Singer murder, no trace had been found early today.

Neither did any clue develop from hundreds of circulars sent to towns and cities throughout the country bearing a description of the pair, as well as a picture of the woman.

It is the theory of police that Miss Singer met her death between 9:30 and 10 o'clock. A druggist near where she lived said that the woman was in his store and wrote several postcards. He fixed the time she left as 9:30 o'clock.

Wm. R. Worthen, the fiancé of Miss Singer, who came here from Baltimore with her, will be questioned further by the police today.

NEW U. S. FIGHTER

Super-Dreadnought New York Greatest of American Battleships.

[Canadian Press.] New York, Oct. 30. — The super-Dreadnought, New York, greatest of the United States' battleships, was launched today at the Brooklyn Navy Yard in the presence of 40,000 persons, including President Taft and Secretary of the Navy Meyer.

The New York is Government-built and has been under construction since Sept. 11, 1911. She slid from the ways about 40 per cent completed. It is estimated that another year and a half will be required before she is ready for her trials.

With all stores and ammunition on board the New York will have a total displacement of 28,367 tons, which is about 1,000 tons more than the next largest, American battleship, the Oregon. She is 400 feet long and her breadth 55 feet. It is estimated that the ship will make 21 knots on her speed trials.

The estimated cost of the New York at completion is $10,000,000. Her armament will consist of ten 14-inch guns, the largest ever placed on a battleship in the world. The minor armament will be made up of twenty-one 5-inch rapid fire guns, four 3-inch anti-aircraft guns, and four 21-inch submerged torpedo tubes. In addition there will be four 3-inch field rifles. Sixty-three officers and 1,069 men will man her.

DEPORT WHITE SLAVERS.

Quebec, Oct. 30. — Beaulieu, one of the three Frenchmen arrested in connection with the white slave traffic, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment this morning for having been a frequent of disorderly houses, evidence on the original charge not being sufficient to convict.

The other two, Brignoli and Bordier, will be sentenced tomorrow for the same offence.

The three prisoners will be deported to France in a few days. The police have failed to capture the chief of the band, a man named Petitjean.

SHOT BY BROTHER'S RIFLE.

Halifax, Oct. 30. — George Alfred Thompson, aged 12, is in a critical condition at the Sisters of Providence Hospital as the result of being shot in the head by a 32-calibre rifle in the hands of his elder brother, William.

The tragedy occurred near the Argyle mine on Parr Creek, and the brothers, George and Jack, were out hunting. George turned to speak to his brother, when the rifle discharged and the bullet struck him at the base of the nose, going through the head and coming out near the spinal column. The bullet did not strike any vital spot, and his recovery is possible unless complications set in.

No Trouble to Have Beautiful Hair

(From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.)

A well-known New York society woman, renowned for the exquisite loveliness of her hair, is reported to have said: "I attribute the abundance and glossiness of my hair to the fact that my hairdresser never uses water on my head. She uses only a dry shampoo, which she evenly over my hair, and then brushing it thoroughly—brushing it until all the powder is removed."

"She says wetting takes the life and color out of the hair and leaves it dull and brittle. In reply to my inquiry she told me she made the shampoo herself—simply mixing 4 ounces of ether with 4 ounces of powdered cerise root. She explains that the cerise root cleanses, while the ether keeps the hair light and fluffy and retains its natural color."

HOCKEN REFUSED TO BE "GOAT" FOR ALL

Detective Gives More Startling Testimony at Dynamite Case.

Indianapolis, Oct. 30. — Robert J. Foster, a detective, testified at the trial of the 45 men accused of dynamite plotting today that Herbert S. Hocken, one of the defendants, made the following statement to him:

"I am not going to be the only goat. When you take me you will take the whole bunch. I'll be satisfied if I get off with a few years, but I will not go off on the stand. It would be worth my life for me to testify against the others."

MISS CRAIGS FREED

[Canadian Press.] Oxford, Eng., Oct. 30. — The suffragette hunger strike in the British jails brought about the release of Helen Crags of the militant section of the women's rights party, who was sentenced to nine months hard labor on October 19 for attempting to set fire to the residence of Lewis Vernon Hartcourt. The health of Miss Crags broke down under the strain of her fast.

"SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR INDIGESTION, BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION

Better Than Castor Oil, Calomel or Cathartics to Cleanse Your Stomach, Liver and 30 Feet of Bowels—Harmless Laxative For Men, Women and Children.

Primitive folks did not need laxatives. They lived outdoors, ate plenty of fruit and all of their food was coarse. We modern people are different. We exercise too little, eat little fruit and our food is too fine—too rich.

We simply can't have our ten yards of bowels clogged with liver chokes, with sour bile and stomach full of foul, effete matter and feel well. It means that the food and waste retained in the stomach and thirty feet of bowels ferments—decays. The decayed food poisons, gases and acids, and those poisons are sucked into the blood through the very ducts intended to suck in the nutriment. Then we get sick, headache, become dull, bilious, tongue coated, nervous, meals don't digest, and we feel miserable all the time offered to deceive you.

So we must make our choice. We must live like primitive folks, else we must take artificial means to move the excess bile and waste matter on and out of the system.

The safest, most harmless and effective stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator for men, women and children—is delicious Syrup of Figs, which doesn't irritate, gripe or weaken. Its effect is the effect of fruits. It is composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics. Don't think you are drugging yourself. Syrup of Figs can be constantly used without harm. Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and see on the label that it is prepared by The California Fig Syrup Company. This is the only genuine—the old reliable. Refuse, with contempt, the so-called Fig Syrup imitations sometimes offered to deceive you.

TURKISH FORCES REPORTED ROUTED FOLLOWING FIERCE AND LONG FIGHT

Bulgarian Army Victorious in the Biggest Engagement of War.

Garrison of Adrianople Makes Desperate Sortie But Is Repulsed.

Sofia, Thursday, Oct. 31, 1:30 a.m.—After two days' fighting the Bulgarian army has gained a complete victory over the principal Turkish forces. The Turks have retreated in disorder. The town of Lule Burgas has been taken. It is officially reported that the Turkish troops at Adrianople have made several sorties, chiefly to the west and northwest, but have invariably been repulsed.

Adrianople is now completely surrounded by the Bulgarians, whose attacks are meeting with great success, according to the Mr. The position of the Turks is critical.

There are persistent rumors that the Bulgarian cavalry has reached Rodosto, where the Turks have been landing troops brought from Asia Minor.

Public attention has been centred in the operations around Adrianople and the movements of the Bulgarians against Lule Burgas. This town is an important point in the Turkish second line of defence, which stretches from there westward to Dimotica. Its capture would indicate that this second line has been broken. The Turks would then probably retreat to Tchorlu, where they might possibly make a stand.

SALLY FROM ADRIANOPOLE

Ottomans Claim 4,000 Bulgarians Were Cut to Pieces.

London, Oct. 30.—The Turks say that their troops have made a sally from bottled-up Adrianople. They broke out from the suburbs to the southwest of the city, say they, and headed towards Maritza.

The Ottomans say that 4,000 Bulgarians were cut to pieces by the charge of the Sultan's men, and were driven back to Komalkeu, six miles to the south.

The correspondents with the Bulgarians, on the other hand, send excited word that Adrianople still suffers from the shells of the little state, thrown from the lofty summits of a dairy farm overlooking the city. Fresh troops are arriving daily, according to these dispatches, to the reinforcement of the Bulgarians, and instead of being thrown back they are drawing closer the grim lines around the besieged city.

Between Veliko captured by the Serbians, and Salonica, the Turks have massed some 35,000 men besides the whipped remnants of the army that ran before the Serbs at Koumanova.

In all the Serbians claim the capture of 22 towns in Macedonia. There is not a Turk force worth the mention in the whole of Serbia, Bazar, according to dispatches from Belgrade, and the Montenegrins and Serbians forces there can strike hands.

No news has come from the Turkish war minister, Nazim Pasha, reported yesterday to be facing in desperation the Bulgarians who were circling round his flank in the country between Lule Burgas and Eski Baba. He said yesterday that an important battle was in progress all along his front. Today he tells of the sortie of the Turk garrison at Adrianople to the north of him.

The dash of Bulgarian cavalry to Rodosto on the shore of the Marmara Sea, reported yesterday, is verified. The horsemen of the little state were hitting at one important source of supplies to the Turkish armies.

Captured the Aviator. Above Adrianople today there hung two lines high up in the sky. It was a Russian aeroplane operating for the Bulgarians, in an attempt to discover just what are the conditions in the besieged city. Instantly, Turkish artillery was aimed upwards. Of a sudden there was a fluttering movement of the plane, and it flipped to the earth, throwing out the aviator, Popoff.

The Montenegrins report that they have completely encircled Scutari. The central column, under Crown Prince Danilo, has at last come in touch with General Martinovitch's columns, and King Nicholas is reported as saying that the capture of the Turkish town would have come about several days ago had he not wished to have spared the lives of his fighters.

The consequences of the rout of the Turks at Koumanova resulted today in the execution of Aziz Pasha, an Egyptian, who commanded the Turks here. It is said that some three hundred Turkish officers and men have been shot down because of the shame that came to Turkish arms at that disastrous fight with the Serbs. Two Turkish generals quarrelled about the outcome of the battle, David Pasha, a former Turkish cabinet official, was shot dead in the course of the bickering.

Persistent reports that the Turks in their retreats are responsible for the most horrible massacres continue to come in at the capitals of the Balkan States, and particularly from Northern Macedonia comes the cry that the Turk is abroad with his knife killing helpless Christian women and children.

FEROCIOUS TURKS

Seven Christian Villages Burned By Bashis-Bazouks.

Athens, Oct. 30.—The Greeks have occupied Kallitri and Verris without resistance. The Greek army is now within fifty miles of Salonica. New and more terrible Turkish atrocities in twenty Christian villages in the Janina region are officially reported. The villages were destroyed, the inhabitants massacred, women and children being burned alive. It is also officially reported that three-fourths of the Turkish wounded at the beginning of the fighting were

Powers Are Agreed

London, Thursday, Oct. 31.—The ministerial organ, the Daily News and Leader, gives prominence to an article on international negotiations, in which it says: "The most satisfactory thing in connection with the Balkan war is that all the powers remain on friendly terms. The quarrels and differences of the last few years seem to have disappeared like magic before their new portents. Great Britain and Germany are freely exchanging views, and, what is even more remarkable, the consultations of France and Germany are close and constant. The fear that the superficial class interests of Austria and Russia will lead to open differences has also been removed."

The writer of the article intimates that the question which is absorbing the powers is whether the territory which the allies conquered should be restored to Turkey. The powers would never agree to the taking of territory from Turkey, but when the conquest is fait accompli the question has another aspect. "It is satisfactory to know that no power has yet proposed the restoration of Turkey to territory which the allies have conquered," says the writer. "Should such a proposal be made, Great Britain would do her utmost to prevent the concert of nations from acquiescing."

LONG DISMAL HISTORY IS CLOSE TO AN END

Winston Churchill Publicly Announces That Great Powers Are United in Effort to Help Bring Permanent Peace to Near East.

London, Oct. 30.—Mr. Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, in a speech at Sheffield tonight said there were many signs which encouraged the hope that the long, dismal chapter of human history unfolded in the Balkans will be closed forever when the present war is ended, by the united action of the powers.

If Europe had really been animated by the passions of hatred and ambition which were occasionally ascribed by its pessimists, said Mr. Churchill, recent events might easily have brought about the predicted Armageddon, but so far as could be seen, all the governments without exception were honestly striving to adjust their differences with a view to serve their unity and bring their combined influence to bear to terminate the long, fierce and disastrous quarrel and secure a settlement which would be just to the belligerents and beneficial to the populations concerned. So long as this loyal, honest spirit continues, declared Mr. Churchill, no problem will arise in the Balkan struggle which cannot be settled to the common advantage and to the lasting good of the Balkan peoples.

Glorious War. When faced with the explosive strife now proceeding, who would

KILLED BY FALLING INTO DITCH AT ASYLUM

Mrs. Margaret Fleming, of Sandwich, Found Dead in Excavation.

Mrs. Margaret Fleming, formerly of Sandwich, Ont., a lady of 77 years, fell into a ditch excavated for water mains at the London Hospital for the Insane yesterday afternoon, and was almost instantly killed. No person was present at the time, but when found life was extinct.

Mrs. Fleming was considered to be a practically normal person, and kept with a number of other inmates in a similar condition in detached cottages about the grounds. New six-inch water mains, to afford a greater degree of fire protection at the institution, are now being laid about the grounds, and it was into one of the five-foot excavations for this purpose that Mrs. Fleming stumbled.

Coroner Dr. MacLaren conducted an investigation, but concluded that the cause of death was purely accidental. An inquest was, therefore, deemed unnecessary.

FOUND MAINE'S TURRET

Ten-Inch Guns Were Hurled Forty Feet by Havana Explosion.

[Canadian Press.] Havana, Oct. 31.—Divers engaged in the work of the shattered remains of the forward section of the battleship Maine for the purpose of restoring the harbor of the normal condition of the forward turret intact, containing a pair of 10-inch guns and mounds, weighing upwards of 200 tons. The turret lies in 32 feet of water, and no attempt will be made to move it. The discovery was most surprising to the engineers, who thought the "hot work" was practically finished. It will necessitate two months' more work. A sudden charge of dynamite the turret will be sunk further in the harbor bed.

Christians. Now only about one-fourth of the wounded are Christians, which is taken to mean that the Christians were placed in the forefront of the battle.

Five hundred Greeks enrolled in the Turkish army, who managed to desert, have joined their comrades.

FEAR FOR SALONICA

Constantinople Has Serious Misgivings That It May Fall.

Constantinople, Oct. 30.—The ex-Sultan, Abdul Hamid, is now on board the German guardship Loreley, bound for Constantinople. He is expected to arrive here tonight, and will be lodged in the palace at Serai. There are serious misgivings here regarding the possibility of the capture of Salonica, and the headquarters of the southeastern army have been transferred to Monastir, which is 55 miles to the northwest of Salonica. The troops which were compelled to abandon Uskub are retreating on Salonica, but are becoming demoralized from lack of food, and are not likely to have much fighting value.

be bold enough, asked Mr. Churchill, to say that force was never a remedy? Who would be false enough to say that martial virtues do not play a vital part in the health and honor of every people? Who would be vain enough to suppose that the long antagonisms of history and time could in all circumstances be adjusted and made into compacts by the smooth, supernal conventions of politicians and ambassadors?

"We in England sometimes have been assured by persons who profess to know that the danger of war has become an illusion, and that this danger would not exist at all, but for the machinations of statesmen and diplomats, for the intrigue of financiers, and for the groundless suspicions of generals and admirals, fomented by the sensationalism of the press."

Britain's Attitude. "Well, here is a war which has arisen from none of these causes, in spite of all that rulers and diplomats could do."

Referring to Great Britain's attitude, Mr. Churchill said: "We can survey our past without a pang, survey our future without a grudge, but we must be prepared for all eventualities. It is good to be patient; it is good to be circumspect; it is good to be peace-loving, and that is not enough. We must be strong; we must be self-reliant; we must be united."

VICE-PRESIDENT TAKEN BY DEATH

James S. Sherman, Running Mate of Taft, Dead at His Home in Utica.

HAD A LONG ILLNESS

Was a Sufferer From Bright's Disease and Death Has Been Expected For a Week.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 30.—James Schoolcraft Sherman, vice-president of the United States, died at his home in this city at 9:42 o'clock tonight.

For several years Mr. Sherman had been afflicted with Bright's disease, and his diet had been restricted according to the orders of a physician. Last spring the disease became more serious, and learning that his heart had become involved, the Vice-President abruptly left his duties in Washington, came to his home here, and placed his affairs in order. He was 57 years old on the 24th of this month. For a week a fatal termination of the disease had been expected by Mr. Sherman's physicians, and his family and countless friends had waited with dread for the hour of dissolution.

The twenty-seventh Vice-President of the United States and the only one renominated was christened James Schoolcraft Sherman. But, in nearly a quarter of a century of public life, "Jim" Sherman was to his intimates, and probably half the nation referred to him as "Sunny Jim."

To the House of Representatives of the Fifty-third Congress he was elected in the winter of 1887, just past his 27th birthday.

Vice-President Sherman was born in Utica on Oct. 24, 1855. He was married in 1881 to Carrie Babcock at East Orange, N. Y. They have three sons, Sherill, Richard U. and Thomas M., all living and in business in Utica. The Vice-President was an Elk, a trustee of Hamilton College, a member of the Dutch Reformed Church, a member of many clubs, and a businessman of wide interests.

Sherman played an important part in Republican politics in this state and in the nation. He was always "regular" and always active. As stated before, his political career began almost as soon as he was graduated from college, and he held office practically continuously for the last 23 years.

CHARGED WITH MURDER IN GUELPH MYSTERY

Young Italian From Sudbury Held in Connection With Shooting Affair.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Guelph, Oct. 30.—Giuseppe Pototelli, alias Rocco, a young Italian, who gives Sudbury as his home, and who has been detained by the police in connection with the shooting of Michele Fazzara on Saturday night last, was today formally charged with murder before the magistrate in the police court, and remanded to jail for a week, the crown not being ready to proceed with the case. J. J. Drew, in behalf of Pototelli, pleaded not guilty to the charge.

This action was taken after deliberation on the part of the crown, as the Italian's counsel was pressing to know why these men were being detained in the cells without a charge being preferred against them. The accused in his evidence last night at the coroner's inquest stated he was in bed when the shooting took place. He was removed to Berlin jail this afternoon.

The chief witness for the crown is Michele Fazzara, uncle of the murdered man. It is understood that he was a witness to the whole affair, and has given the facts to the crown authorities.

A visitor to police headquarters this morning was Mrs. Veroni, wife of Joe Veroni, who is still in the hospital, suffering from his wounds. Mrs. Veroni stated that her husband received a telegram from Toronto last week to go to that city in connection with the sale of $25,000 worth of stock in a certain gold mine. She went to Toronto and returned on Friday, but reported that he did not sell the stock, having been advised to hold it a while longer in order to secure a better price. Mrs. Veroni did not know whether Fazzara was interested in these stocks or not.

THE RIGHT WAY.

[BY A PHYSICIAN.] Wash the face once a day thoroughly. Use cold water, if possible, and dash it into the face with the palms of the hands. Thoroughly cleanse the face with hot and cold water whenever the bath is taken. Do not use soap on the face.

The right way to clean the teeth is to brush them twice daily, once in the morning and once at night. Besides brushing from one end of the row to the other, an up and down movement should also be used. Care should be taken to brush inside the teeth, too, where most particles of food congregate and so set up decay.

Never read by twilight or firelight; when it is really too dark to see through a thick and spotty veil, or in a train if you wish to preserve good eyesight. The right way to read is when in a good light which comes over the shoulder from the side or back, and in a sitting posture.

The right way to keep the hair in good condition is to take care of it. Sun and air the scalp as much as is possible. Brush the hair every night at least 40 strokes. Keep the whole body in good condition if you would have your hair an ornament and not a drawback. Remember that fresh air and exercise are as essential to the life of the tiny blood vessels in the scalp and the roots of the hair as to any other part of the system.

COMMITTEE REFUSES TO OVERRULE CHIEF

Dismissal of Two Firemen Had No Extenuating Circumstances.

NFLUENCES AT WORK

Efforts Made to Have Two Members of Brigade Reinstated. Not Successful.

Aldermanic influence in the hiring or engaging firemen is at an end, as was most clearly demonstrated at the meeting of No. 3 committee held on Wednesday evening.

Some time ago Fire Chief Aitken dismissed Fireman Joseph Ferguson and Fireman W. Barry for intoxication. They were away for ten days, but their actions on the night when the fire brigade were called out on four false alarms caused the chief to decide on their dismissal. In the meantime efforts have been made to have Ferguson and Barry restored. The matter was brought up in the meeting of the committee when Chief Aitken informed the aldermen what he had done.

"Are there any extenuating circumstances?" asked Mayor Graham. "None whatever," answered the chief. "I suspended them for ten days, intending to give them a chance, but when the alarms came in on that Saturday night I decided to let them go altogether. I did not like their actions in connection with this."

After some further explanation, Mayor Graham moved that the action of Fire Chief Aitken be confirmed. Ald. Murphy again introduced the bylaw to compel all city dealers to weigh their coal on city scales before delivery, but action was deferred until a report was received as to the method of dealing with the question in Hamilton, Toronto, and other cities. Ald. Murphy thought it would be an excellent thing, as it would afford protection to the citizens as well as the honest dealers.

Ald. Ashplant and Ald. Rose thought the committee did not have sufficient information. Such a bylaw would greatly to the advantage of the downtown dealer, but would work a hardship on the dealer in the outlying districts. They suggested that further information be obtained before any action be taken, and the committee accepted the suggestion.

Light on Every Pole. The water commissioners notified the committee that they would put a light on every pole on Dundas street, owing to the fact that the petitions for an ornamental system of street lighting had not been acted upon.

"They seem to have plenty to give away," commented Ald. Rose. "What about the other streets?" However, none of the aldermen could answer that question. The Helena Costume Company informed the committee that they could not heat the central fire station, according to the specifications submitted, but would carry out the agreement made with the city to furnish heat for the building for $418. Ald. Wright and Fire Chief Aitken will investigate.

The tender for the furnace for No. 3 fire station was awarded to W. Stevely & Son for $135. The furnace was ordered some time ago by Ald. Wright, the chairman, and the committee confirmed his action.

That East End Market Again.

The East End Progressive Association again petitioned for an east end market. Mr. Wakeling, the secretary, will be invited to come to the committee and explain the matter. Some of the money arrears in rent and City Solicitor Meredith was instructed to take steps to collect it. Those present at the meeting were Ald. Wright, chairman; Ald. Rose, Ald. Ashplant, Ald. Murphy, Mayor Graham, Market Clerk Maker, Fire Chief Aitken, Building Inspector Piper, and Secretary S. Baker.

UNION MEN OF CITY HONOR MR. MARKS

The Editor of Industrial Banner Given Watch on Occasion of His Departure.

LONG IN LABOR RANKS

Has Served Tradesmen of the City Faithfully and Won Confidence of Citizens.

Mr. Joseph T. Marks, editor of the Industrial Banner, which he founded here, and which has now been removed to Toronto, returned to London Wednesday evening to attend a special meeting of the Trades and Labor Council at which he was honored by the officers and members.

A gold watch, chain and locket, with the words, "Presented to Joseph T. Marks, by the London Trades and Labor Council, for Twenty-Seven Years' Service, Oct. 30, 1912," engraved on the case, was presented as a testimonial, the feeling of the council being expressed in an illuminated address read by Mr. James Hussey, chief of the Goodwill made the presentation, while Mr. Harry B. Archer made an address, to which Mr. Marks replied. Mr. Marks has held the confidence of labor men and the public generally. His integrity has been demonstrated again and again, and he has been an honest and fearless fighter for labor's interest.

Not Leaving Through Choice. The recipient of the gift declared that his going to Toronto from London was not a matter of choice, but of necessity. However, he added, he will be in a position to better serve the Trades and Labor Council under the new arrangement. The rapid progress of the council was alluded to by Mr. Marks, who asserted that he has a distinct remembrance of the time when but five delegates used to gather to discuss labor matters.

Mr. James Simpson, of the staff of the Industrial Banner at Toronto, and chief organizer of the employees of the Toronto Street Railway, accompanied Mr. Marks to London to attend the reception, and addressed the council.

Labor's Influence in London. While London might sustain a loss, Toronto, he said, benefited by Mr. Marks' removal to that city. Labor interests were a strong force in London's affairs at present, and pointed to the recent sidewalk investigation here as proof of the powerful influence of the Trades and Labor Council.

J. H. Bastia, president, and Messrs. Pierce and Ashplant also addressed the delegates, expressing their regret at the departure of Mr. Marks.

BALLOON BLUE RIBBON

France Carries Off Gordon Bennett International Trophy.

[Canadian Press.] Berlin, Oct. 31.—France wins the Gordon Bennett international balloon trophy, regardless of the performances of the two balloons, the Dusseldorf and the Ile de France, which have not yet reported. The first of these has been disqualified, and even should the Ile de France surpass the record flight of the Picardie, the prize will still be carried off by the French.

It is thought probable that the American aeronauts will secure second place in the contest with the Uncle Sam, but the exact distances made by the balloons will be ascertainable only when their log books have been submitted to the Geographical Institute at Stuttgart.

MR. GILLEAN SOUGHT TO KEEP CURIOS HERE

Made an Effort to Have City Council Purchase Collection Some Years Ago.

Expressions of regret were frequently heard by reporters for the Advertiser today in regard to the loss to the city of London of the Tunc collection of specimens, purchased by a Calgary citizen for the museum of that city.

The city has had every opportunity to secure the collection. Some years ago Mr. Thomas Gillean brought the matter to the attention of both the city council and the public library board. Dr. Solon Woolverton has been active on several occasions to secure the collection for the city. One of these gentlemen are convinced of the value of a museum to the city, and have done everything in their power to bring the matter to public attention.

In other places citizens individually or collectively would not have hesitated a moment about securing this collection," said a citizen. "That's the trouble with London."

THE CHIEF SCOUT BECOMES A BENEDICT

General Baden-Powell Quietly Wedded to Miss Scames.

[Canadian Press.] New York, Oct. 31.—A London cable says: General Sir R. S. Baden-Powell was quietly married to Miss Olive St. Clair Scames at St. Peter's Church, Parkstone, Dorsetshire, yesterday afternoon. There were only about one dozen persons in the church. The marriage had been so taken place early in December. The ceremony was performed by the vicar, the Rev. Hon. Radderley.

Sir Baden-Powell and Lady Baden-Powell left immediately after the ceremony by automobile on their honeymoon.

A PESSIMISTIC COURT.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Berlin, Oct. 31.—A gloomy view of the international situation was expressed by Count Hans Praschma in the Prussian Diet today when speaking on the Government policy of expatriating Polish landowners which has just been put into effect. He declared the foreboding a strong possibility of war and urged that the Government at a moment when it might soon call on all Germans to come to the defence of the fatherland, had taken a step which would embitter the frontier population, and anger those elements in Austria, which were the strongest supporters of the triple alliance.

Count Praschma concluded by declaring war on behalf of the clerical party against the Prussian ministry, whose successors he hoped would soon sweep out the present policies and leaders.

LOCAL OPTION PETITIONS.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Wingham, Oct. 31.—A very largely signed petition, asking that a vote be taken at the coming elections on local option, has been handed to the council by the local temperance workers, and will be considered at the meeting on Monday evening.

FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER.

Shreveport, La., Oct. 31.—Albert T. Watson was found guilty last night of murder in connection with the killing of C. C. Bailey, a wealthy lumberman, whom Watson confessed he clubbed to death, that Mrs. Bailey might be free to marry him. Mrs. Bailey also was charged with murder and her trial begins today.

WENT TO JAIL AS A PROTEST

Sydney, N. S. W., Oct. 30.—For wearing hats that protruded too far, 60 women of them prominent in society, were tried, convicted and fined today in a Sydney court. They went to jail rather than pay their fines, declaring they would not submit to "iniquitous and unnecessary legislation."

The city authorities face a situation similar to that growing out of the suffragette demonstrations in England, as the women assert that if further arrests and imprisonment are ordered because of the hatpin ordinance they will declare a "hunger strike" in jail.

$19,189 STRUCK OFF ASSESSMENT ROLLS

Court of Revision Also Adds $7,470 to Number of Properties.

At a recent meeting of the court of revision, the sum of $19,189 was struck off the assessment of Ward 1. The appeals were numerous, and the court had a long session.

Among the reductions were the following: On real estate—W. W. Gammon, $150; George Gray, $100; John M. Parsons, $200; J. M. Pirie, $200; G. M. Reid, $3,700. On business assessments—Mason & Risch, $1,200; Mann, Laurie & Co., $1,875; Monarch Typewriter Company, $1,000; J. H. Taylor, $350; G. M. Reid, $2,000; J. H. Taylor, $500; A. Woodfine, $100; J. N. Wood, $300; Wright, Sons & Co., $625; Warren Featherstone Company, $300. The reduction of $19,189 is the cost of transmission simply. It would appear, because the cost of transmission is proportionately greater. It costs no more to send a letter, through the post, three thousand miles in length, than it does to send it three miles; it costs a householder in the most distant portion of the city no more for his light than it does a man within a hundred yards of the generating station. Then why should there be discrimination in rates of payment for a service paid for equally by every portion of the Province?

Rates Should Be Equal. As to the reduction in rate proportionate to quantity used, there seems to be a reasonable doubt as to whether that, even, is altogether fair. If that is to be admitted the initial rate should be the same everywhere for the distant, as well as the near, municipality. That would equalize the conditions under which would not give such large advantage to places like Hamilton and Toronto over smaller places in the way of offering power inducements to locate industries.

The reasoning, or suggestion, may be pronounced, and may be impracticable; but it seems that it contains elements of reasonableness worthy of consideration. If it is to greater extent than to explain why such a way of dealing with the provincial and municipal power problem cannot be applied, if such an explanation can be fairly made.

The boy took a gun from the wall and while handling it pointed it at his playmate. Unconsciously he pulled the trigger, the shot striking the little girl fairly on the head, blowing out her brains.

WHAT TO DO FOR COMMON CROUP.

[BY A PHYSICIAN.]

CROUP is the small child's ailment. Though the symptoms are often alarming and always distressing, death from an attack of croup, pure and simple, has probably never or rarely ever occurred.

Croup is an acute laryngitis of childhood usually occurring between the ages of 2 and 4 years. The trouble frequently arises as a part or a forerunner of a cold. It is often heralded by some hoarseness during the day, which increases toward night. The child may then be slightly feverish. He goes to bed and to sleep. Toward midnight he awakens with a hard, harsh, barking cough and difficulty in breathing.

When the air is drawn into the lungs there is a sort of whistling or whining noise produced from obstruction in the throat, due to a spasm of the muscles and to dried mucous coating the lining membrane, or to a swelling in the larynx.

The whole household is probably aroused. The child and the parents are frightened. The child struggles and adds to his own difficulties.

He has the CROUP.

A Simple Treatment. Place the child in a warm bath. Hold a sponge soaked in hot water over the Adam's apple of the throat, changing it as frequently as it cools.

Rub hot camphorated oil over the neck and chest. If there is the slightest tendency to constipation give a simple cathartic.

One of the most successful means of loosening the cough is the use of Ipecac. Repeated doses of Ipecac (one-fourth to one-half teaspoonful) should be given every hour till the child vomits and the cough is looser, and every two hours afterwards.

HYDRO RATES SHOULD BE SAME FOR ALL

Peterboro Examiner Says Power Should Be Transmitted Same as Postage.

Peterboro Examiner: Why should all municipalities within the hydro-electric zone have equal advantage from cheaper power? It is pointed out that Toronto and Hamilton get cheaper power than places nearer the source of supply, and on sound commercial principles, too—because they use a larger quantity of power.

They get wholesale rates. But there is discrimination that cannot be accounted for in that way. The little town of Dundas, of 4,197 population, gets power for heating and lighting for 418 under the revised rates; London, with a population of 46,177, has to pay $27. No one will say that Dundas uses as much electricity for power and lighting as London, yet London has to pay $9 more for power; but with more than ten times the population, London pays a ten times larger bill. The cost of transmission simply. It would appear, because the cost of transmission is proportionately greater. It costs no more to send a letter, through the post, three thousand miles in length, than it does to send it three miles; it costs a householder in the most distant portion of the city no more for his light than it does a man within a hundred yards of the generating station. Then why should there be discrimination in rates of payment for a service paid for equally by every portion of the Province?

Rates Should Be Equal. As to the reduction in rate proportionate to quantity used, there seems to be a reasonable doubt as to whether that, even, is altogether fair. If that is to be admitted the initial rate should be the same everywhere for the distant, as well as the near, municipality. That would equalize the conditions under which would not give such large advantage to places like Hamilton and Toronto over smaller places in the way of offering power inducements to locate industries.

SPECULATOR HARVEST

Rick Pickings By Sale of Tickets For the Roosevelt Meeting.

[Canadian Press.] New York, Oct. 31.—Ticket speculators reaped a rich harvest from the sale of tickets to Col. Roosevelt's Madison Square Garden meeting last night, and it appeared today that no action against them is possible under the ticket speculator ordinance, which has proved effective in the case of the theatres and ball parks. The night court magistrate, before whom a number of the speculators were arraigned, decided that a previous meeting is not a "performance or amusement" within the meaning of the city ordinance.

Seats for the Roosevelt meeting were on sale throughout the afternoon and early evening at uptown hotels and cafes. The tickets generally ranged from $5 to $8 apiece, while standing-room tickets were quoted at $2 each.

At Progressive headquarters, it was stated that 18,000 tickets were issued for the meeting. One-half of them were disposed of through the district leaders, while the remainder were sold by the management for what they would bring. There was no fixed price. Some were fetched from $100 down, and seats were sold from $1 up. Altogether about $3,500 was received from the sale of tickets, with several districts still to be heard from.

PENT
BY BERTON BRALEY.

Gypsy, ere you go
Forth upon your way,
Light as winds that blow,
Blithe as fields of May;
I, who cannot stray
Glad as you—and free—
Have this boon to pray:
Sing a song for me!

Sing of roads that gleam,
Sing of seas that foam,
Sing the trails I dream
Though I may not roam;
Sing the sky's blue dome
And its mystery.
While I bide at home,
Sing a song for me.

Gypsy, sing me sweet
Of the ways you hie,
How, with faring feet
And with questing eye,
You go forth to try
What the world may be;
Ere you say "Good-bye,"
Sing a song for me!

Though I turn the wheel
Patiently and slow,
Ever do I feel
All the wander-glow.
Ah, I know, I know
Lure of sky and sea—
Gypsy, ere you go,
Sing a song for me!

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

POTATOES LOWER—
WILL BE REASONABLEReport of Rot Among "Spuds"
Greatly Exaggerated, It Is Said.

The attendance at the market today was small, and the sales were not as brisk as usual. Vegetables composed the major portion of the offerings, although the fruit section was nearly as large.

Hay was slightly easier than in the early part of the week, this being due to no doubt to the larger quantities being offered daily. Grain was a minus quantity today.

The larger offerings in the fruit market were apples and pears. Apples are so plentiful this year that they are a drag on the market. Some very choice oranges of pears sold at $1.50 per bushel. A fair shipment of grapes was received.

Dressed hogs were quoted at prices from $11.75 to 12 per cwt., with the majority of sales at the higher price. One seller received $12.25 for a load of very choice quality.

Butter and eggs were very scarce today.

Turnips, cabbages and potatoes were very plentiful today, but there were few changes in the prices. Potatoes were quoted at $5 and 90 cents per bushel and from $1.20 to $1.45 per bag. The opinion among the buyers is that the price will drop considerably within the next month, as many of the farmers throughout the country report that the crop will be larger than usual, and that no potatoes except those grown on low ground have been attacked by the rot. At present a number of large shipments have been received in the city, and to this is due the drop in the price now. Celery and lettuce were rather scarce this morning, but remained unchanged in price.

W.C.T.U. CONDEMNS
MILITANT METHODGreat Excitement at Convention
When Miss Wylie's Coming
Was Announced.

REFUSED A HEARING

Noted English Suffragist Was Not Permitted to Address Renewed Gathering.

Renfrew, Oct. 31.—At the Ontario W. C. T. U. convention today the members of the resolution committee brought in the following resolution: "Whereas, we deem the treatment recently meted out to a social and moral reform worker in the city of Toronto, because of his action in regard to a presentation on the stage of a local theatre a judicial persecution, and also deplore the frequent use of violence and the degradation of the moral tone of the community and the youth of our land, we therefore, recommend:

"That this convention express regret that any citizen should be subjected to such indignities, and further demand that section 206 of the criminal code be amended that the penalty upon either indictment or summary conviction be a fine of $500 and imprisonment, together with the loss of license for a second offence."

About noon the convention was thrown into a state of excitement when somebody brought a note to the chairman from Mrs. C. Cox, president of the Equal Suffrage Association of Ontario, suggesting that Miss Barbara Wylie, the English suffragist, be sent for to address the conference.

About half the delegates arose protesting any such action. When the noise subsided, Mrs. M. P. Thornley took the platform and said the W. C. T. U. did not approve the methods Miss Wylie represented. The convention then drew up the following resolution:

"Resolved, that we are always in hearty sympathy with woman's franchise, and that we have declined to invite Miss Wylie to address our convention, first, because we do not approve the methods of the organization she represents, and second, because we are too pressed for time, at this last period of the session, to add anything to our arranged program."

5,000 C. P. R. WORKMEN
MAY GO OUT MONDAYPresident Mosher of Brotherhood
Presents Ultimatum to the Company.

[Canadian Press.]

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—Unless their demands are met or a board of conciliation is granted in the meantime, the 5,000 members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees of the Ottawa division will go on strike on Monday next. This announcement has been made by President Mosher, of the Brotherhood. A delegation of members of the Ottawa division, who were on their way to the strike, were met by a group of men, who were waiting for them at the corner of Dundas and Clarence streets a week ago, and according to Lampotis' story arose over the salary to be paid a young Greek whom Karles had hired to do the work on a shoe-shine parlor.

In the scuffle, an iron poker, used to stir the fire of the peanut roaster, was made a weapon, and each asserted that he was struck by the other with it. Karles had it last, for he turned it over to the police as evidence, when he swore out the information against Lampotis.

An effort was first put forth to take the testimony of the witnesses through interpreters, but when half a dozen Greeks, including the interpreters, commenced a talking contest, the magistrate was forced to adjourn the case until the men to proceed in unretained English. Their efforts were rewarded with a considerable degree of success, but at the finish the court concluded to send both away with a warning not to "litter again."

Wm. Todd, who was charged with having used abusive language toward Martha Todd, did not appear. The case was therefore allowed to stand until tomorrow.

Three first-time drunks were discharged.

TURKEY'S DAYS NUMBERED
SAYS RETURNED TRAVELLER

Rev. Dr. Schor, who has spent a lifetime in the Turkish Empire, is at present in the city visiting Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith, 308 Princess avenue. Mr. Schor is here in the interests of the Palestine Exhibition.

When interviewed by The Advertiser, Dr. Schor stated that he believed that Turkey's days are numbered. He fears, however, that if Turkey is beaten there will be a general massacre of all Christians in the country. He has just received a letter from a friend in Damascus, who states that the outlook is very black there. The Turks are becoming insatiable in their actions towards the Christians and Christian workers in that city, and in other ways are making themselves obnoxious. The powers, however, realize the seriousness of the situation, and will do all in their power to prevent an outbreak.

SEVEN FUTILE RUNS
FOR FIRE BRIGADEDuring October Apparatus Was Used on Average of Once
Every Two Days.

The fire department responded to 15 alarms during the month of October. Of these, 6 were for fires, 7 were false alarms, and the other was a chimney blaze. Eight of the calls were from the fire department responded to 15 boxes, and the remainder by telephone.

The large number of false alarms was caused by the escape of a couple of intoxicants, who a week or so ago amused themselves by pulling boxes all over the city.

The brigade had a run at 1:30 o'clock today to the McCormick Manufacturing Company, where the sprinkler system broke, causing the alarm to ring. There was no damage.

SUPERIOR WHIPPED
BY HEAVY GALESNavigation Has Been Practically at a Standstill for Forty-
Eight Hours.

[Canadian Press.]

Fort William, Ont., Oct. 31.—Heavy northwest winds, which have been blowing over Lake Superior for the last 48 hours, have practically tied up navigation. Many vessels can be seen seeking shelter behind Woodhouse Island in Thunder Bay. The Canadian Pacific Railway steamer Athabasca, the only craft that has come in since the storm reached its height, arrived late last night after a 24-hour trip from the Soo. The Athabasca, although heavily loaded, was given a severe tossing by the huge waves, which washed over her top decks. Vessels that left here yesterday, with grain cargoes and those that cleared did not get beyond Welcome Islands. There are several boats overdue.

ALL NOT PEACEABLE
AMONG THE GREEKS

Lampotis and Karles, Each Accusing, Each Dismissed.

Police Magistrate Judd in the police court this morning dismissed J. Lampotis and Thomas Karles, Greeks, each of whom had preferred a charge of assault and wounding against the other. The two were brought up at the corner of Dundas and Clarence streets a week ago, and according to Lampotis' story arose over the salary to be paid a young Greek whom Karles had hired to do the work on a shoe-shine parlor.

In the scuffle, an iron poker, used to stir the fire of the peanut roaster, was made a weapon, and each asserted that he was struck by the other with it. Karles had it last, for he turned it over to the police as evidence, when he swore out the information against Lampotis.

An effort was first put forth to take the testimony of the witnesses through interpreters, but when half a dozen Greeks, including the interpreters, commenced a talking contest, the magistrate was forced to adjourn the case until the men to proceed in unretained English. Their efforts were rewarded with a considerable degree of success, but at the finish the court concluded to send both away with a warning not to "litter again."

Wm. Todd, who was charged with having used abusive language toward Martha Todd, did not appear. The case was therefore allowed to stand until tomorrow.

Three first-time drunks were discharged.

Messrs. Lou and Charles Ferguson, firemen in the No. 5 fire hall, state that many people are confusing them as being connected with Joseph Ferguson, the fireman who was recently dismissed from the department.

They deny this rumor and state that they were hired under the late Chief Clark. They have absolutely no connection with the dismissed fireman.

75 FINE CHICKENS
STOLEN FROM COOPThieves Secure Entire Stock of Chelsea Green
Man.

Chicken thieves made a raid on the chicken coop of Mr. Richard Frank, of Chelsea Green, on Wednesday evening, and made a clean sweep of the stock, not one chicken remaining this morning.

The owner has positively no clue to the culprit or culprits, as neither he nor any of his neighbors heard the slightest sound during the night.

Mr. Frank had formerly 75 birds; now he has none. This is not the first time this season that the chicken yards in "Chelsea Green" have been raided this year; but who the performer of the deed is no one knows yet.

MOVING THE CROP

All Western Wheat Will Be Housed Before Advent of Winter.

[Canadian Press.]

Winnipeg, Oct. 31.—With an almost total absence of congestion and blockage the great grain crop of the prairie provinces is being moved eastward at the rate of approximately 1,300 cars daily. The Canadian Pacific Railway are handling 800 cars of grain daily, besides coal, lumber, and miscellaneous goods and one day one thousand cars of grain were shipped to the elevators over the Canadian Pacific. The other roads are also taking care of the crop without apparent trouble. In the immense Canadian Pacific Railway terminals there are no signs of congestion and trains are moving regularly. The prospects are practically the entire grain crop will be securely housed in the elevators before the advent of winter. This great improvement over the conditions of last year is explained by the fact that transportation lines have been improved and extended and the equipment much increased.

This Home-made Cough Syrup Will Surprise You
Stops Even Whooping Cough Quickly. A Family Supply at Small Cost.

Here is a home-made remedy that takes hold of a cough instantly, and will usually cure the most stubborn case in 24 hours. This recipe makes 16 ounces—enough for a whole family. You couldn't buy as much or as good ready-made cough syrup for $2.50.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. This keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste—children like it. Braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

You probably know the medical value of pine in treating asthma, bronchitis and other throat troubles, sore lungs, etc. There is nothing better. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gualcol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The prompt results from this inexpensive remedy have made friends for it in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada, and explains why the plan has been initiated often, but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR
AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH

Ladies of Chancel Guild Realize
$200—Those Who Conducted Booths.

Favorable weather conditions and a well-organized body of workers were contributing factors to the most successful bazaar ever held in St. James' Church, South London, on Wednesday. The bazaar was held under the auspices of the Chancel Guild and $200 was added to the treasury as a result.

The walls of the church were prettily decorated with the emblems of Halloween, while harvest fruits and grain were placed around the various booth compartments. Within the booths numerous daintily costumed young ladies disposed of their wares to the highest bidder. The fancy work department was presided over by Misses Emery and Fox; the candy counter, by Misses Marie Bayard and Mrs. Chas. Green and Atkins; and Mesdames Arthur White and Percy. Misses Yarker and Ward and Kate and flowers, and Miss Humberford the fancy work.

In the tea room were Misses Pope, Mitchell, Greenwood, Davis, Clarke, Wilson, Raymond and Sabine, while in the Aladdin's cave were the fortune tellers, Misses Woolverton and Fox.

The four contest provided much amusement for the guests, and resulted in Mrs. Rex Dunsmuir carrying off the prize, a 100-pound bag of Hunt's Diamond flour. The pumpkin grab-bag compartment and the bean-throwing contest were also very successful.

The bazaar which attracted much attention, was a grand success.

OIL COMPANY FAVORS
GOING TO THE LAKE
Main Reason Why Big Offices Were Moved Was Prospective Good Supply.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Sarnia, Oct. 31.—The Imperial Oil Company has declared itself in favor of the waterworks being removed to Point Edward and several of the town's prominent physicians have expressed themselves publicly in favor of the lake water.

Mr. Mueller, of the Mueller Brass Company, is also in favor of the water supply being taken from the lake, and at the solicitation of a number of the town physicians, the local weekly papers will be turned into a daily from Friday until Nov. 5, when the proposition will be voted upon by the people.

According to a statement made by Mr. Stillman, of the Imperial Oil Company, one of the greatest obstacles to the moving of the Buffalo and New York offices of the company to Sarnia last spring was the reputation of the town's drinking water, and it was only upon his representations that the police after that the directors consented to the arrangement.

Mr. Stillman goes on to say that the concern discontinued the use of the town water, and began using well water for their employees.

The police are still searching for the son Fred, and the chiefs of police, Pinkerton and Burns detectives in Chicago, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland and Buffalo have been furnished with a description of the lad, and have been instructed to apprehend him if possible.

NO CASE AGAINST LAD
FOR THEFT OF WIRE

The Juvenile Was Discharged When He Appeared in the Court at Ingersoll.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ingersoll, Oct. 31.—The charge of theft against a local lad of 14 years was dismissed by Magistrate Patterson in juvenile court yesterday afternoon. The lad was accused of stealing a quantity of copper wire from the hydro-electric commission.

The wire, which was produced in court, was sold by the youngster to a local junk dealer for seven and a half cents per pound. Through his counsel, Mr. J. C. Hegler, the boy pleaded not guilty.

While he admitted selling the wire, he contended through his solicitor that he had gathered the wire at the rear of premises formerly occupied by the electric commission as a storehouse, and that the wire was regarded as waste, having apparently been abandoned.

Employees of the commission, who were called as witnesses, were unable to positively identify the wire as having been the property of the commission. Under the circumstances, Mr. Hegler argued that no case had been made out against the boy, a view that was shared by the magistrate.

A police court case will follow the disorderly conduct of a couple of passengers on a trolley car from Woodstock Monday evening. When the car neared Centreville, the two passengers, it is alleged, became involved in an altercation which eventually led to fist-cuffs. As a result of their conduct one of the windows was broken, and more or less excitement prevailed for a while. The company has had considerable annoyance from passengers in the past, and have decided to make an example of those guilty of rowdiness. Informations have been sworn out, and the case will likely come up in the police court in the course of a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dundas, of Buffalo, spent yesterday, the guest of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dundas, who celebrated the fifth anniversary of their marriage.
