The Sabbath Eve,

BY M. E. H. Gently the shades of evening fall, The Sabbath-day is well-nigh o'er, But once again the worshippers Will throng each temple as before ; Then night shall spread its wings of peace And songs of praise awhile shall cease.

The morrow's morn shall wake again, To busy toil and anxious care, The many who too soon forget, Amid such scenes, the house of prayer But unto some those peaceful hours Shall be like dew on thirsty flowers.

O day most blest !- too quickly sped-What hath your heavenly mission heer To lift aside the veil that hides From earth-dimmed eyes a brighter The wanderer to his home restore, And bid the erring "sin no more"?

Thy cheering light the worn heart blest, The hopeless learned to smile to-day; The mourner by the new-made grave Hath wiped the gathering tear away, While listening to a heaven-taught strain "Weep not, thy friend shall rise again."

And sweetly unto ears attuned To labour's harsh and clam'rous sound, Wake the soft chime of Sabbath bells, Breathing of hope and peace profound Of highest aspirations given, To lift the soul from earth to heaven.

The worldling bowed his weary bead As those soft strains came floating by, And visions of the happy past Loomed brightly forth in fancy's eye; The high resolves of earlier years, Ere checked by crime or crushed by cares

But to the Christian's heart most dear, Most welcome, was thy hallowed chime; What though it spoke of bye-gone hours, It breathed, too, of a brighter clime, Where friendship knows no parting day And God shall wipe all tears away.

If fair the temple made with hands, What must that heavenly temple be ? If God vouchsafes his presence here, What fulness of the Deity Must thrill the host who, day and night, Worship forever in His sight?

Oh. Father ! unto us and ours, The loved ones near, or sundered wide, Grant that this hallowed Sabbath calm May midst the week-day cares abide ;

IN BEHALF OF INDIA AND CHINA, ADDRESS ED TO THE MINISTERS AND FRIENDS OF THE WESLEYAN SOCIETIES CONNECTED WITH THE CONFERENCE OF FASTERN BRI-TISH AMERICA.

Beloved Friends and Brethren,-

At a period when events so momentous. and fraught, in all probability, with issues eminently auspicious to the rapid extension transpiring simultaneously in India and satisfying the cravings of loyal curiosity, the prompt and efficient consideration of all who love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. As it respects India, recent occurrences have completely frent the yeil which shrouded so long from the general eye those chambers of imagery now clearly shown to have been all along connected with the unhallowed policy of the East In tia Company, unhappily connived at by the Imperial Government. And what have we seen ? Pazan idolatry, with its obscene symbols and ceremonies, patronized, whilst Christianity has been proscribed, the false prophet recognized and his deluded votaries respected, whilst the Redeemer of the world has robe. So anxious, indeed, has the English been virtually dishonored, and even the desire manifested among the heathen to seek His salvation, cruelly discouraged and repressed. Can it be any matter of surprise that a course of proceeding so iniquitous,unrelentingly persisted in save when external pressure compelled a deviation, while three successive generations have passed into eternity,-should have drawn down upon us that withering rebuke of Divine of Her Royal Highness will not be lost in the "wash.' Many of our friends who reside nearer the Horton Chapel have from the commencement been sharers in the gifts of God during the meetings at the Point and at Lockhartville, and in some cases whole households have been brought under Divine in. fluences. We have recently secured the use of the Temperance Hall for prayer meetings on Sabbath afternoons, and those meetings, conducted by our leaders and brethren, have been and continue crowded, and gracious influences rest upon the meople. The revival having extended its blessed influences, we now hold meetings in our church in Lower Horton consecutively with those already mentioned. On the 21st ult., four more who had not previously received the ordinance were dedicated to God by baptism in the Horton Church, and many others in the different locations of our meetings have experionced the favor of God and have united with His Church.

I am not at present able accurately to state. but think that nearly one bundred precious souls have shared more or less in this wonderful work ligion and become Mussulmans. Well, long of God. Throughout all our meetings I have not discovered the least manifestation of improper excitement that could offend the most fastilious ear; there has been indeed a deep feeling inspired by a conscious sense of the Divine presence, but its manifestations have all been in accordance with the Word of God.

Many of those who have experienced the favor of God are the children of our beloved peoplemanity to imagine the possibility of any cir cumstance that would sanction the interrup the subjects of many prayers and the hope of the Church. Some of our aged members who have tion of the course of justice for a momen borne the burden and heat of the day, have been led to cry out in holy ecstacy, " Lord now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace according to thy word, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation." Provincial Parliament.

House of Assembly. From the Sun.

MONDAY, March 8.

The close of the debate on the Elective Legis-lative Council Bill was expected, and the galleries, soon after opening, became crowded by an attentive audience. As expected, the question was taken, but Hon Mr. Young and Hon Mr. Johnston, contrary to expectations, refrained from addressing the House at length, and allow-ed the vote to be taken without their additional appeals. Hon Mr. Howe took the floor between 3 and 4 o'clock, and spoke for more than two hours and a half. His speech was occupied for the most part, with answers to preceding speakers, including the principle of the bill, personal explanations, railroad affairs, insurance of Provincia property, and Responsible Government. His emarks were argumentative, complimentary, satirical, or humorous, as the particular theme varied, and were listened to with much apparent good humour by most of the gentlemen to whom

e stood opposed. A call of the House was taken. Mr. Locke's amendment on the amendmen moved by Mr. Young, was put, and negatived Mr. Locke's amendment provided for the abo-

Doctry The Blind /Piper/ BY FRANKLIN W. FISH.

The blind man stood in the crowded street With a tear in his sightless eye-In the throng, where the merry and careworn meet He piped as they passed him by. The maiden fair With ber auburn hair, Hummed over the air he played; "'Tis a world of woe. We come and go," Was all the reply she made.

The lover turned as he caught the tune-He had sung the same in the leafy June Neath the mellow light of the full orbed me Half-wishing and half-afraid, Willing to woo as she stood by his side, Willing to win her his beautiful bride, Loving her more than all treasure bes He passed him by and he prayed-Beggar'd, unloved, yet cursed by disease."

The blind man saw not the haughty sneer, As the carriage of Dives rolled With a heavy sound, and the new.born Peer Rode by in the pride of Gold. Their hearts were too busy to think of him, Albeit they wished for good ; A beggar whose hopes and eyes were dim, Was not of their brotherhood.

But another gave from his simple store, For the sight, not the sound, was sad : He gave but a mite, he could do more. 'Twas only a little he had. Then the angels in heaven looked down a smiled, And the Seraph at God's right hand, Said, " Blessed is he, who by men reviled, Still keepeth his Lord's command."

The evening shadows silent and still Fell over the busy town ; A quiet reigned upon meadow and hill, And the autumn leaves were brown ; The song of the birds had died away, For the gayer ones had flown, Like friends that cheer in a summer's day. But at winter leave us alone.

No wonder his heart mourned over its birth, No wonder his eyes were dim. For hope on earth, nor joy nor mirth, No longer could comfort him, An exile here from the sunny skies Where the olive and orange bloom, The light of life put out with his eyes, Immured in a living tomb. -New Haven Register.
