TRUE LOVE'S PASSION.

CHAPTER V.
A Trespasser.

"Yes, my lady," said Harman, and she fetched it, together with her gloves. She seemed to have taken complete charge of Nora's wardrobe, and almost, as it seemed to Nora, of herself included, and she half expected to hear her say, "Don't get your feet wet, my lady, and don't forget to keep the sun off your face."

It was almost with a sigh of relief that she found herself out in the garden, and she made her way across the lawn toward the park, looking about her as she went, and stopping to look back at the house, which appeared larger than ever in the bright morning light.

Presently she came to a large archway, and, looking through it, saw a paved courtyard with a number of doors opening onto it. These were the stables, and Nora was wondering whether she might pay a visit to them without committing some impropriety or breach of etiquette, when a huge deerhound came bounding out of the stables toward her with a deep bay.

A groom called him back, and the dog stopped short, but eyed Nora inquiringly and critically.

Nora was passionately fond of dogs, and, indeed, of all animals, and perfectly fearless. She called to the dog, and he came up to her slowly at first; then, wagging his tail, he rubbed his nose against her hand.

The groom came forward, and touched his cap.

"Shall I send him in, my lady?" he asked, in the tone of subdued respect which Nora noticed distinguished all the servants at the court.

"Oh, no," she said. "He is a very fine dog. What is his name?"

"Casper, my lady," replied the groom.

"He seems very quiet and good-tempered," said Nora, and she took the dog's head in her small hands, and looked into his large brown eyes.

"Yes, my lady, he's quiet enough, and good-tempered, too, with most people."

"I think he is very friendly indeed," she said. "I wonder"—wistfully—"whether he would come with me."

"After the big dog's evident desire to make friends had won her heart. "Yes, my lady, I think so; and he's very obedient and tractable—least-ways, where he takes a fancy."

"I hope he has taken a fancy to me," said Nora, and she moved a few steps and called the dog by his name. To her delight he sprang after her with a deep bay of satisfaction, and Nora, looking over her shoulder, and forgetting for the moment that she was not a mere visitor to Santicleigh Court, said to the groom:

"I suppose I may take him?"

The man touched his cap with a slight look of surprise.

"Yes, my lady, if your ladyship pleases."

"At any rate," thought Nora, "I shall not be quite alone. Casper, shall we be great friends, you and I?" And she patted his head. "Let us see whether you are really a good and obedient dog. Come along."

Evidently perfectly prepared to strike up a profound friendship, Casper trotted along close beside her, and Nora, fearing lest he should suddenly take it into his head to break away and tear over some of the elaborate flower beds, struck off into the park.

It was deliciously cool and shady under the great oaks, and with all a young girl's delight in the beauty of a summer morning, she wandered on, speaking to and patting the big dog, who still kept close beside her, as if he had undertaken to guard and protect her.

After a time the park grew more dense and more wild, and the ground broken into little hills and dales, and Nora climbed one of these, and, seating herself at the foot of a tree, took off her hat, and called the dog to lie down at her feet.

He coiled himself up obediently, and laid his head in her lap, when suddenly he sprang up and uttered a low growl.

At the same moment Nora heard the dull thud of a horse's hoofs upon the soft turf in the little glade below her.

She looked down, telling the dog to be quiet, and saw, not a horseman as she expected, but a young man seated before an easel. He was almost immediately below her, and she could see him without being seen herself. He was evidently unconscious of her nearness, for he was painting with rapt absorption. It was also evident that it was not at him Casper had barked, for he glanced at him with perfect equanimity, and then kept his eyes fixed watchfully in the direction from whence the sound of the horse had proceeded.

Nora had just time to observe that the artist was young and handsome, and was wondering who he was, when Guildford Berton, mounted on a powerful black horse, came riding into the glade, and Casper rose erect, with a low, deep growl.

"No, sir!" replied Guildford Berton. "His lordship's son, perhaps?" suggested Cyril. "Or nephew?"

"Neither, sir." And Guildford Berton's face darkened.

Chained to the spot by her interest, Nora looked down at them, with a sudden dawning of fear, for with all his self-possession there was something about the young artist that indicated a high spirit little used to brook the kind of treatment Guildford Berton was dealing out to him.

"No relation?" said Cyril, arranging his paint-box. "An intimate friend?"

"I am a friend of the earl's, sir, if you insist upon an answer," retorted Guildford Berton.

"Oh, I don't insist," said Cyril Burne; "but I was curious to know who it was, if you were not the earl himself, that he had authorized to treat the 'stranger within his gates' with discourtesy. Lord Arrowdale is not fortunate in his choice of friends."

The thrust was delivered so calmly, with such perfect ease, that for the moment Guildford Berton seemed too overwhelmed to resent it; then, either he must have touched his horse with his spur, or the animal had grown impatient, for he sprang forward, and was almost upon Cyril's back.

Cyril turned aside with the swiftness of a practical athlete, and, seizing the bridle, looked up at Guildford Berton's dark face.

"Take care, sir," he said.

"Take your hand from my bridle!" exclaimed Guildford Berton in a low voice, and he bent forward with his whip raised.

Without doubt it would have fallen the voice again.

"Are you aware, sir, that you are trespassing?" demanded Guildford Berton, and with so overbearing and unpleasant a manner that, as Nora saw, the young painter looked up with surprise. She saw his handsome face flush, as if with resentment, at the other man's tone; but his voice was perfectly calm and self-possessed as he replied:

"No, I was not aware of it. I understood that this was the public wood."

"Nothing of the kind, sir," said Guildford Berton, haughtily. "The public wood ends down at the gate there," and he pointed with his whip. "This is private property."

"Then I have to apologize, which I do at once and sincerely," said Cyril Burne. "It is a mistake that only a stranger could make, and I am a stranger. All the same," and he laughed, "I am sorry you did not come up to warn me half-an-hour later, for I should have finished my sketch."

He spoke with perfect good humor, and a graceful ease which charmed Nora, but it seemed in some way to incense Guildford Berton.

"Having informed you that you are trespassing, I shall be obliged if you will retire, sir," he said.

Cyril Burne looked at him with mingled surprise at his discourtesy, and amusement at his peremptoriness. "Certainly," he said; then, as he slowly wiped his brush, quietly he said, "To whom does this property upon which I am trespassing belong, may I ask?"

Guildford Berton looked down at him very much as Nora had seen him look down at the carpet on the preceding evening.

"To the Earl of Arrowdale," he replied, curtly.

Cyril Burne glanced at him. "Am I addressing the Earl of Arrowdale?" he asked, in the same quiet, easy tone.

"No, sir!" replied Guildford Berton. "His lordship's son, perhaps?" suggested Cyril. "Or nephew?"

"Neither, sir." And Guildford Berton's face darkened.

Chained to the spot by her interest, Nora looked down at them, with a sudden dawning of fear, for with all his self-possession there was something about the young artist that indicated a high spirit little used to brook the kind of treatment Guildford Berton was dealing out to him.

"No relation?" said Cyril, arranging his paint-box. "An intimate friend?"

The thrust was delivered so calmly, with such perfect ease, that for the moment Guildford Berton seemed too overwhelmed to resent it; then, either he must have touched his horse with his spur, or the animal had grown impatient, for he sprang forward, and was almost upon Cyril's back.

"Take care, sir," he said.

"Take your hand from my bridle!" exclaimed Guildford Berton in a low voice, and he bent forward with his whip raised.

Without doubt it would have fallen on Cyril Burne's head or shoulders, but at that moment Casper, with a loud growl, broke loose from Nora's hand, and sprang at one bound toward the two men.

The horse rose on his haunches so suddenly that Guildford Berton was thrown, and Nora, with a cry of alarm, ran down the hill.

Guildford Berton sprang to his feet, clutching his whip, then stopped suddenly, and both men stood as if turned to stone, and stared at her.

CHAPTER VI.
The Artist's Model.

It was an awkward moment. Nora had descended upon them like an apparition, and there was no time to conceal the fury on the face of the one man, or the anger and indignation on that of the other.

It was especially an awkward moment for Nora; for, when you come to think of it, what can a lady do under such circumstances? She can scarcely strike an attitude and exclaim, after the manner of old-fashioned heroines of romance, "Hold, forbear!"

What Nora did was to look from one to the other, and then, as the blood slowly returned to her beautiful face, to murmur:

"For shame!"

Cyril Burne's face crimsoned, and, being the manlier of the two men, he hung his head for a moment as he stood without his hat, which he had just presence of mind to remove at her appearance; but Guildford Berton's face seemed to grow paler and sallow, and his nostrils contracted as he breathed hard and quickly, and tried to quiet the dog, which still continued to threaten him.

Nora stooped down and caught Casper by the collar, and her movement broke the spell which seemed to have fallen upon Cyril and Berton.

"I'm afraid my horse startled you, Lady Nora," the latter said, without raising his eyes to her face after the first glance. "But—but this—dog," he paused slightly before the word, and it was evident that he only succeeded in smothering "cursed"—"always frightened me. It is a savage, ill-tempered brute that ought to have been shot long ago, and—and I don't think you ought to have placed him upon your premises as afore. Are you prepared for such an emergency? That's our question, and which refers to insurance."

Wounded Seven Times on July 1st

Pte. S. Clarke, a wounded veteran of Gallipoli and the Somme, who returned on three months' furlough on Thursday, went out to his home at Whitbourne by to-day's express, accompanied by his mother. Pte. Clarke, whose duty it was to perform the dangerous work of cutting barbed wire entanglements in front of the enemy's trenches, has had several narrow escapes from death. At Gallipoli he was stricken with dysentery and for several weeks was confined to hospital. After recovering he rejoined his regiment at Ayr and was later on sent to France. In the big drive of July 1st he was wounded seven times, one bullet cutting his right cheek and removing the bottom of his ear; the other six entered his legs and body.

Second Thoughts and Second Uses.

How much that's wasted might be used if God's good gifts were not abused! You may, 'twere so to utilize The little things we oft despise If we would but correct abuses With second thoughts and second uses.

After his meal in his poor Hall,
A man—he claimed no rank at all—
Was seated. In his hand
Was all he would, as prince, command—
His pipe, his solace in his sorrow
And comfort with his work to-morrow,
A box he drew from out his vesture;
Withdrew a match and with slight pressure
He struck a light and was about
To light his pipe—the match went out—
At first it hissed like serpent fired
With anger, flickered and expired.
He held it, although it had died,
To him its service had denied:
To try again was surely vain
But he addressed it in this strain,
"I must confess in this I'm beaten
But of the meat I just have eaten
Remains within my mouth a toothful
And in this way you may be useful"
And thereupon he pared it into a wedglike point.
Thus to its second purpose the match
he did appoint.

MORAL:
If you fall in use of anything no matter what it be
Do not despair but, like the man, just think again and see
If you can find another use which this time will not fail
You say that "Try again" is right, a maxim you should nail.

Welcome to the Rev. Dr. White.

A PACIFIC COAST MISSIONARY.
A distinguished missionary arrived by to-day's express in company with Rev. Dr. Fenwick from Toronto, Rev. James H. White, D.D., son of Rev. Edward White, the pioneer missionary to British Columbia over fifty years ago. Dr. White has spent his life also in the field where his honored father laboured, and has been Superintendent of Methodist Missions on the Pacific Coast since 1904. He was a prominent speaker at the General Conference held in Canada in 1914, and it will be a pleasure to hear him at Copthorne Street tomorrow morning, at Wesley Church to-morrow night. He has hoped to visit Newfoundland for some time past, and having come thirty-five hundred miles to see us, we sincerely trust he will enjoy his visit.

Recruiting Figures.

We are indebted to Dr. Lloyd for the subjoined data showing the number of Volunteers that have been accepted in both services up to Oct. 18th. Allowance must be made for such in the Naval Reserve since Sept. 16th, but it cannot appreciably alter the total. These figures are valuable, for they represent the girth and substance of the Island's contribution to the fighting forces of the Empire. They contain a number of interesting lessons which must be taken to heart.

The comparison directly made between the districts is a useful one and is certainly eloquent. Its range is together too great, for it runs from 24% of the males of military age in the case of St. John's to less than 4% in the case of Bay de Verde! We need not single out any particular district for praise or reproof in the matter, but we do earnestly commend the attention to the consideration of each of them. Considered as a whole, it gives a total of 4,305 for the Island, in order fairly to appreciate what has been the actual response to the call, we must add to this the large number of rejected candidates and also the number of men who have enlisted elsewhere though domiciled here. But even when the allowance is made, the result is hardly satisfying.

A comparison with Great Britain and the other Colonies would seem to show that it should be practicable to raise by voluntary means at least 7% of the total population of a country. That percentage was far exceeded in Great Britain itself and has been surpassed, we believe, in all the other dominions. If we reduce it to five per cent. in our own case, or take 10,000 as the total to be aimed at, we see that we have not yet reached half that figure. It is estimated that there are 25,000 men of military age in Newfoundland, of which 40% on this basis would be required. Allowing, then, for rejections, let each district aim at supply 50% or one half, of its available men of military age. If this effort can be made and sustained, the result is certain to be satisfactory. But it must be made. Let us not delude ourselves on this point. They are to-day voting throughout Australia on the subject of compulsory service, and a victory for conscription is forecasted. It is a great mistake to imagine that there is no possibility of the same question being put to us. There and elsewhere they feel the weight of an argument which was not apparent at the beginning. It is not merely to the Empire and to themselves that the duty of supreme effort is owed, but to those that have gone as well. So it is with us. Many have gone but many remain. They are wanted. Let them respond and let them respond NOW.

Volunteers Accepted.

Portia Back.

Sailor Meets Accident—No Herring Struck In.

The s.s. Portia, Capt. J. Keon, arrived back from western ports at six o'clock this morning, bringing a full freight and these saloon passengers: Messrs. O. Hickey, E. R. Spencer, J. Daley, Mesdames J. Cocoral, P. St. Croix, H. Fagan; Misses B. Miller, B. Russell, E. Garland, D. Strickland, E. Bell, St. Croix (2) and 20 second class. On Wednesday morning, the 18th inst., William Hynes, a sailor on the Portia, fell accidentally into No. 2 hold, a distance of thirty feet. He landed on a cask of fish and was severely injured. The ship was getting ready to leave Belleoram at the time. The injured man was attended by Dr. Fitzgerald at St. Jacques and since was sent on to the General Hospital where he is now doing well. Passengers who came on the ship report that herring have made their appearance at Bonne Bay and Bay of Islands, but the fish have not struck in yet enough to keep busy those engaged in the industry at either place.

Bay de Verde Notes.

The season's fishery is practically over and the greater part of the fish has been sold at remunerative prices. About two thousand quintals yet remain to be sold, and this will be disposed of during the next few weeks.

The schr. Alma Nelson is now here loading fish for Halifax. This fish was purchased by Mr. John Lockyer.

The schr. Sea Bell sailed for St. John's with a cargo of dry fish yesterday. She was loaded by Mr. J. O'Neill.

Messrs. O'Leary and Doyle, representing the Red Cross Tea Co. and Rexal remedies, recently paid us a visit and sojourned at North's Hotel.

Mr. Devine, representing the Nfld. Wholesale Co., is at present on a visit here in the interests of his firm.

The Speed Fiend.

They dread my coming east and west and north and south they dread me, and if my person they possessed, no doubt they would heed me. Along the country roads I go, still striving to go faster, and every other mile or so I spring some small disaster. To beat all records, west and east, it is for that I hanker! And here and there I kill a priest, and here and there a banker. I'm worse than lightning's lurid battle; I am the scourge titanic; I'm brittle, murder—sudden death; my other name is panic. With Azrael I deftly work, to fill the churchyard acres; and here and there a baker, I am to threat to all who drive their motor wagons sanely; by care they try to keep alive, and free from wounds, but vainly. I whizz around a corner sharp, and grind such people under; and while my victim draws a harp, I scorch along like thunder. To all who in this valley jog, I bring the last trump closer; and here I spoil a pedagogue, and there I beg a grocer.

McMurdo's Store News

SATURDAY, Oct. 28, 1916.

We have lately received a full stock of McMurdo's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, two sizes. This Emulsion is prepared from our recipe by one of the largest English firms and is a really creditable specimen of English manufacture, the oil being perfectly emulsified and the taste being quite pleasant and the mixture easily digested. This Emulsion will bear comparison in quality with any Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil in the market, and its moderate price is one of its strongest points. The small size 25 cts. is intended as a trial size, but the full size 60c. is decidedly more economical being more than three times the size of the smaller size, and nearly twice the size of the ordinary emulsion now being sold from 60c. to 75c. a bottle.

The War Week by Week.

By OBSERVER.

For the present the great drama of the war seems to have narrowed itself down into an act concerned wholly with Roumania and its fate, and events elsewhere appear to be subordinated to it altogether. Successes by the Allies, which at another time would be hailed as considerable and more than satisfactory, are anxiously weighed by the effect they may have in succoring Roumania. There are some features, however, about the situation there which show it to be not so desperate after all nor even quite so important as it might appear.

There is much to be said in favour of the view we have read that the double offensive of Falkenhayn and Mackensen against Roumania failed when it was first checked. Like the first onslaught of the Germans against Paris, it is argued, it needed to carry all before it without stopping in order to achieve its object, and as all hope vanished then at the Marne, so the temporary check administered to both armies here has spelled their failure and the resumption of the drive comes too late. This may be so, but in Dobruja at least things are going badly enough to be distinctly disquieting. We hear now that the Russo-Roumanian army has retreated from Tchernavoda all the way to Hirsova. This is a long way north, but they still have the broad Danube as a defensive barrier which it will need an enormous effort to overcome. There is no confirmation, at the time of writing, of the report that the Roumanians have destroyed the bridge over the river at Tchernavoda, but the extent of their retirement would make it almost certain. Behind the river, between which and the Black Sea the whole province of Dobruja is enclosed, they should succeed in holding off the invader.

At the other, Transylvanian, side our allies seem to be offering a stout resistance to Falkenhayn, and it will grow stronger as reinforcements continue to come in from Russia. Berlin claims advances at Predeal, the Vulcan Pass and elsewhere, but they are set off by successes for the Roumanian arms at other points, so that it is difficult to size up the situation. For the present it is enough to point out one feature of it which is distinctly in our favour. We may expect to see the enemy pursue his campaign with the utmost vigour, for failure now would be almost disastrous to him. Whatever the policy that dictated the first irruption of the Roumanians into Transylvania, it could hardly have affected the military situation appreciably had it succeeded, for it would have resulted in the practical benefit to the Austrians of shortening their line considerably. We can see this plainly if we consult the map and draw a line straight from, say, Kinshoupa through Marfa to Orsova, which would probably be the line chosen by the enemy for a stand. As it is, they are committed to the course

The W. C. T. U.

The regular fortnightly meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held at the Seamen's Institute, Thursday afternoon. The devotional exercises were led by Mrs. Vey after which the President, Mrs. Benedict, conducted the special business, which was the receiving of reports for the past year and election of officers for the ensuing year. The report of the Secretary, Mrs. Watson, showed the past year to have been most successful in the social work accomplished and in the attainment of one of the aims of the Union for moral and social betterment, i.e., Prohibition for Newfoundland. The membership of the Union has increased and the interest manifested showed a keen desire to spread the principles of the Union everywhere.

The financial report given by the Treasurer, Mrs. Milley, show a good balance on hand after all expenses incident to the Prohibition campaign had been met.

After the adoption of reports the election and appointment of officers was then proceeded with resulting as follows:—

Mrs. Vey—President, elected.
Mrs. Penman—1st V. P., elected.
Mrs. Fraser—2nd V. P., re-elected.
Mrs. J. Moore—3rd V. P., elected.
Mrs. G. Grimes—Cor. Sec., elected.
Mrs. A. Watson—Rec. Sec., elected.
Mrs. G. Soper, Treasurer, elected.

The following Committees were appointed:—
Poor House Committee.—Mrs. J. Moore, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Whiteway and Mrs. Miller.
Hospital Committee.—Mrs. T. Martin, Mrs. Russell, Mrs. J. Clouston and Mrs. W. Milley.
Prison Committee.—Mrs. Pippy, Mrs. Penman, Mrs. G. Soper, Mrs. G. Grimes and Mrs. H. Young.

The large attendance of members present and the interest taken in the extension of the work of the Union was an evidence that the W. C. T. U. is as much alive as ever, and sees the need for exercising that eternal vigilance necessary against the liquor traffic. All deeply regretted the resignation of Mrs. Benedict from the Presidency who for several years back has filled the office with credit to the Union and herself. Her executive ability did much in the making of the success of the Union during these years and particularly during the past year when it assisted so largely in winning the fight for Prohibition.

Mrs. Pippy, who for the last twenty years filled the office of Evangelistic Suppl., was also obliged to resign owing to the want of a much needed and well deserved rest; a more faithful, loyal, active and devoted worker is not easy to find. Mrs. Vey, the newly elected President, after thanking the members for the honour conferred on her appealed for the hearty co-operation of the members to make for still greater progress in the attainment of the aims and objects of the Union. The meeting then closed with Benediction given by Mrs. Pippy.

White Elephant Sale Surpasses All Expectations.

The White Elephant Sale which opened at 10.30 a.m. Thursday morning, finished up yesterday. Everything coming under the hammer reached a good price, and the promoters of the affair are exultant over the fact that their highest estimate has been exceeded. Judging from the manner in which some of the ladies manipulated the hammer in competition with our popular auctioneer, Mr. P. C. O'Driscoll, it would be no surprise to us to hear of some new applications being made for auctioneering licenses.

When the closing hour approached everything had fallen under the hammer except the White Elephant, which was spirited away to its sacred haunts until such time as another sale in aid of the wounded soldiers is brought off. During the sale the members of the Khaki Guild served refreshments, which was greatly appreciated by those present.

Imaginary Quarrels.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Do you ever have quarrels in your mind? A woman said to me once that she found she was wasting much energy carrying on imaginary arguments and quarrels.

This is the sort of thing she meant. She would have a certain favor she rather dreaded to ask of someone. She would be thinking about this matter and she would anticipate a refusal. Then she would become indignant at the very thought, and plan what she would say in such case. Next, she would supply the other party's answer, and her own to that, and so on.

All That Bitterness For Nothing. "Sometimes," she said, "I would find I had been quarrelling away in my imagination for ten minutes or so, and I would be really quite worked up and bitter about it all. And then, when I came to ask the favor, there would be no difficulty about it all. And I would have had all that indignation and bitterness for nothing."

"It is a ridiculous habit," she continued, "I'm simply determined to cast it out of my mind. It's had enough to get angry over the things that happen, but over the things that never come, why, it's perfect nonsense."

Is She Unique Or Not? Now, perhaps, the woman's mental processes are unique.

If they are, I am wasting words. She should be described in a pathological report, not in a column which is dedicated to everyday human nature.

But somehow I don't feel she is unique.

There is something disturbingly familiar about that habit of forecasting opposition, and then fighting with these ghosts of your own creation.

Anger Dries Up The Fountain Of Youth. Everyone knows it is unhealthy for mind and body and soul to get angry. Anger poisons the system, interferes with digestion, makes wrinkles and dries up the fountain of youth in one's heart.

Of course, this imaginary anger isn't as poignant and painful as the real.

But it's quite bad enough and it is utterly futile. One can usually think up enough sharp retorts on the spot without planning them in advance.

Your Boys and Girls. Baby's shirts whether cotton and wool or silk and wool, should be washed in water that is not too warm and rinsed in water of the same temperature as the first water. Use a good white laundry soap. Never wring out the shirts, but shake them and hang them so that the necks will not stretch, or put them on stretchers.

Raise up the arms sideways now and then while drying, so they will not get too tight in the armpole. If the mother washes the shirts herself and follows these directions, she will find that a wooden stretcher is scarcely necessary either for the stockings or shirts.

Germany's Strong Friend of Peace.

Much Importance Attached to Statement of Herr Thyssen That U-Boat Pledge Will be Kept.

(By Ernest P. Horowitz.)
 New York, Oct. 20.—On Oct. 13 a report made the round of the New York press to the effect that Herr Thyssen, a Teutonic magnate averse to a ruthless submarine warfare, had vouched that Germany would keep her pledge, and that he anticipated a hearty co-operation and healthy competition between German and American industries after the war. The assurance is weighty and the declaration significant considering the source from which it comes. Thyssen is the Kaiser's trusted adviser and an honored friend of Judge Gary of the United States Steel Corporation.

August Thyssen belongs to the Lower Rhineland, Germany's Pittsburgh, where he was born in the early '40s. His life story is in some respects akin to the equally uncommon careers of Carnegie and Rockefeller, and reads like a romance of business. The Standard Oil Company is the outgrowth of an original investment of some $70,000. Thyssen started about the same time, in the late '60s, on the much humbler capital of $6,000, with which he built a rolling mill employing sixty workmen. After less than fifty years of labor, he controls the destinies of 50,000 workers and their families. Germany's steel trust, coal syndicate, and pig iron combine, are some of Thyssen's creations. He thoroughly believes in industrial concentration in order to level prices and prevent trade crises. Cheapening the cost of production is his other ruling passion; he calls it the keynote of industry. Until the war, Thyssen mined his own ore, shipped it from far-off foreign ports in his own vessels, hauled it up the Rhine in his own barges, unloaded it on his wharves, and converted the manifold by-products of coal and iron in his works into commodities sold by himself. The annual output of his coal fields amounted to 3,000,000 tons; that of his rock salt fields to nearly double that volume.

Germany came to the trade-front far more through Thyssen's than Krupp's and Ballin's efforts. "The fact that Germany to-day produces twice as much steel and iron as Great Britain," commented the London Daily Mail in the spring of 1914, "is largely due to the principles of industrial concentration and economy of production which Thyssen has inculcated." He regards political combines as the necessary outcome of industrial union, and agreements regulating the prices of the principal staple articles as more vital and valuable than Foreign Office conventions, which in so many instances have proved to be mere scraps of paper. Lord Avebury shared with "King" Thyssen the hobby of "internationalization of commerce," and concurred in his conviction that mercantile antagonism and aggressiveness are the primary fount of all wars, and that, in the case of England and Germany, naval rivalry was bound to follow in the wake of industrial friction.

Thyssen has the true democratic instinct. He abhors all State-sanctioned secrecy, and would like professional diplomats to make room for practical engineers and manufacturers. "If the managing director of some big British shipping concern could be appointed as Ambassador in Berlin," he once said, "or the head of a large Rhenish-Westphalian factory be installed at the Court of St. James's, Anglo-German relations would be permanently on an amiable footing."

Thyssen is a man of few words, but a ready listener. He speaks French and English without a flaw. He is a devout Roman Catholic, and not ashamed to own up to his being "religious." He loves nature, and shuns the smart social set. He resides in a glorious old castle high up on the wooded slopes of the winding Ruhr, whence he directs the busy affairs of his extensive "kingdom." His coat-of-arms bears the self-chosen motto, "rast ich so rost ich," which signifies, "If I rest I rust." His personal fortune is estimated at $50,000,000, but money means nothing to King Thyssen save capacity to increase his "plant" and power.

"We want peace," he said the other day. "We do not desire to develop our industries by war. It is true that a few of our ammunition manufacturers wish for a long war, but they do not speak for Germany. In peace our relations with America are always most friendly, and we want them to continue friendly after the war."

Pacifists Who Had to Fight.

New York Sun: Washington, eloquently expressing his detestation of war, advised his country, in the interests of peace, to avoid entangling foreign alliances. Lincoln's loving heart was well nigh broken from the horrors of a fratricidal conflict that he had striven for years before his election to the Presidency to avert. Upon Grant's tomb on Riverside Drive are carved the words that sprang from his war-weary soul: "Let us have peace." Sherman, the conquering hero who rent the Confederacy in twain, in passionate revolt at the patriotic duty he had been compelled by circumstances to perform, exclaimed: "War is hell!" Washington, Lincoln, Grant, and Sherman, peace lovers though they were, were obliged, through patriotic motives, to curb their pacific inclinations and wage war, righteous war. The first named waged war to give our nation birth, the last three to the end that our nation might endure.

Fads and Fashions.

Purple and burgundy are among the loveliest of winter shades. Odd draperies of lace, net or velvet are used instead of sleeves.

Ribbons is playing a more and more important part in lingerie.

Buckles of malachite, topaz or lapis lazuli are much sought after.

Sashes of fur are used both on evening gowns and separate coats.

What little remaining is seen on hats is distinguished by its quality.

The warm wool stockinet dresses are decided rivals to those of serge. The autumn styles for hairdressing are much softer than those just past. The upper portions of dresses continue to be of some transparent fabric. Crepe de chine and Georgette crepe are both as popular as ever for waist. Serge and satin are apt to be chosen for the making of fitted dresses.

CANADIAN TRIBUTES TO OXO CUBES

The following letters have been received from Canadians who have proved the great value of OXO during the War.

OXO Cubes are handy for emergencies. They need no cooking or special preparation. An OXO Cube in a cup of hot water and a few biscuits makes a light meal which sustains for hours, while for enriching and improving stews and other dishes, OXO Cubes are simply wonderful.

In the home OXO Cubes are remarkable economisers, and in many little ways they save dollars a year.

From one of the 1st Infantry Brigade.

"We have completed a trip in the trenches which has been one of the coldest this winter; in fact, one night we had zero weather. Just before going into the trenches I received a parcel which contained some OXO Cubes, and I can assure you I was very thankful. It was a real treat to get off sentry duty and make a cup of OXO, as it warms one up and helps to keep one fit. It only takes a few minutes to make a hot cup of good OXO."

From one of the 24th Canadians:

"I was out with a barbed wire party last night, and when I got back a parcel was waiting. Every item was a winner. The OXO was great; just try it about 2.30 some cold nasty morning after being out nearly six hours."

UNDERSTANDING REACHED.

ATHENS, Oct. 27. An understanding reached by King Constantine and the representatives of the Entente Powers is generally believed to be the immediate result of a conference of the military and political leaders of France and Great Britain at Boulogne on Friday last. The terms of the understanding include on the part of Greece, first, a sincere compliance with the demands of Admiral Fournet; second, an effective maintenance of order in Athens and Piræus; third, a guarantee of Constitutional liberties the Greeks through the operation of the legal functions of their Government; fourth, no opposition to recruiting for the Venizelist movement, which now is characterized as anti-Bulgarian instead of National defence. The Forward, the Royalist organ, to-day strikes the kernel of the situation by asserting that the Bologne conference has opened the way to a large understanding between the Powers and Greece.

IN ROUMANIA.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 27. Although offering stubborn resistance to the German-Bulgar-Turkish forces attacking in Dobruja, the Russians and Roumanians, according to to-day's official Russian statement, are retiring to the north of a line between Hirsova and Casapkeul. This line is approximately between forty and sixty miles north of the Tchernavoda-Constanza railroad. The statement adds that the forces of the Central Powers and their Allies are continuing their attack along the entire front in the Dobruja region. Roumanian troops operating on the western sector of Moldavia have captured the Transylvanian village of Balan and the Triatarotki heights. Fierce fighting is continuing on both banks of the Osek River.

RATHER CONFLICTING.

SOPIA, Oct. 27. The Russo-Roumanian army in Dobruja is in precipitate retreat north and west from the Tchernavoda-Constanza railway toward Hirsova, Braila and Tuit Cha on the Danube, says an official statement of the war office issued to-day. The capture of 15 officers and 771 men and 15 machine guns is announced.

Bucharest, Oct. 27.—The Russo-Roumanian troops are engaged in successful fighting along the Roumanian-Transylvanian frontier, according to to-day's official. Austro-German attacks on Tuitges and Bieaz regions in the Trotus valley were repulsed, while in Usul valley the Roumanian advance continues with heavy losses to the Teutonic forces.

MORE STEAMERS SUNK.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. The sinking of the British steamer Hantsfall by a submarine and the burning of the Norwegian steamer Severa is added to the list of maritime disasters in the war zone by to-day's Lloyds report forwarded to the State Department from London.

Lloyds Shipping Agency announces that the steamer Roanmore has been sunk. The Roanmore was 10,320 tons gross register, built in Glasgow in 1900, for the Johnson line, for Gulf and South Atlantic cotton carrying, having a capacity for 24,000 bales of cotton. She was last reported having cleared from Baltimore for Liverpool on Oct. 13. The sinking of the steamer Skog is also announced by Lloyds.

WILL BE REGARDED AS PRISONERS.

LONDON, Oct. 27. According to a wireless from Zurich to-day, a German official note announces that in conformity with article 100 of the German naval code, the German naval authorities have decided to regard as prisoners all captains of merchant ships captured from Britain, France, Russia and Italy, alleging that these captains receive instructions from their respective Governments to carry on espionage.

HEAVY RAIN.

LONDON, Oct. 27 (Official). Heavy rain continued during the day. Hostile artillery and trench mortars were active between LaBassée and Hulluch and the neighborhood of Beaumont and Hemel. We bombarded the enemy's trenches south of Armentières. Yesterday enemy aeroplanes showed unusual activity. Aerial engagements took place between a large number of machines of both sides. It is reported five machines fell, two of them ours. On another occasion one of our pilots encountering a formation of ten hostile machines, attacked them singly, and dispersed them far behind their own lines.

AEROPLANES ARRIVE AT ROUMANIA.

LONDON, Oct. 27. One hundred and twenty-eight French aeroplanes have arrived at Roumania for reconnaissance work, says a despatch from Bucharest to the Wireless Press. Four English aeroplanes arrived at the Roumanian capital yesterday from Imbros Island, Grecian Archipelago, flying from the island of Imbros across the center of Bulgaria to Bucharest in a straight line. The English machines travelled a distance of 300 miles.

A SWEDISH PROTEST.

BERLIN, Oct. 27. The Swedish Government has instructed its Minister at Petrograd to protest immediately against the Russian intention to place mines in Swedish territorial waters, says the Overseas News Agency. The Minister was instructed to announce that the Swedish Government in due time will bring forward all claims for damages caused by such mines. This step resulted from an order recently issued by the Russian Government for placing mines in particular sections of the Gulf of Bothnia.

THE CHANNEL TUNNEL.

LONDON, Oct. 27. The sympathetic spirit in which Premier Asquith received a Channel tunnel deputation yesterday is the subject of leading editorials in to-day's newspapers. The Chronicle says: "For a quarter of a century

Believes She Was Saved From Stroke of Paralysis

All One Side Was Cold and Powerless When She Began Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

A dead nerve cell can never be replaced. In this way it is different to other cells of the human body. But feeble, wasted nerve cells can be restored, and herein lies hope.

In this fact is also a warning to take note of such symptoms as sleeplessness and loss of energy and ambition, and restore the vitality to the nervous system before some form of helplessness results. Nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and paralysis are the natural results of neglecting to keep the nerves in healthful condition. The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when you suspect there is something wrong, will soon restore vitality to the nervous system, and thereby prevent serious developments.

none but military considerations have prevented the construction of a tunnel, but the war has turned these the other way and it is our firm conviction that the new tunnel some day will be made and that when it has been working a short time every one will be at a loss to understand how we got on without it. In the meantime a start can be made but after the war will be better."

PETITION REJECTED.

BERLIN, Oct. 27. A committee of the Reichstag has rejected the petition of the Social Democratic minority that the proceedings against Dr. Karl Liebknecht be suspended during the session of the Reichstag.

NOTHING TO WORRY OVER.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 27. "There is not now and need not ever be trouble between Japan and the States worth going to war over," Judge Albert H. Cary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, declared to-day at the semi-annual meeting. Judge Cary, who has just returned from a tour of the Orient, said: "Whenever either Government decided to provide additional warships, some one or other country has been prompt in charging that this meant preparations for war between the two nations. I told Japanese that the American people did not want, and would stubbornly oppose war with Japan except in self-defence. The controlling men of Japan, judging from statements made to me, are also anxious for a continued peace with the States. They realize that the geographical location of the two countries should make them practically allies, though acting independently."

STREET CAR STRIKE IN PARIS.

PARIS, Oct. 27. A strike of street car employees which began in the suburbs of Paris yesterday, is reported to be spreading in the Central District. Up to the present the strike has not resulted in the stoppage of the service, but there is considerable diminution in the number of cars running. The strike is said to be due to the high prices of food and insufficient wages paid employees, especially women who receive five francs daily.

SHIPMENT OF YELLOW PITCH PINE.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 27. The British Admiralty will furnish a number of vessels for the shipment of thirty million feet of southern yellow pitch pine for Europe, a large amount of which will go to the British Government.

FRENCH STEAMER ON FIRE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. The French line steamer Chicago, which left Bordeaux Oct. 27 for New York, with 180 passengers on board, is racing for Fayal, Azores, with fire in her holds, according to advices received here to-day by the Maritime Exchange, through Lloyds. The Chicago is expected to reach Fayal some time to-day, the advices said. She is 10,602 tons, built in 1908.

Later.—The French line steamer Chicago has arrived at Fayal, Azores Island, according to Lloyds. The utmost is being done to put the fire out.

THE FLASHLIGHTS.—There is strong criticism over the flashing of lights in people's faces and the attention of the police was called to the matter last evening.

—Handy Andy.

"SPECIAL" "TRACTION TREAD"

No matter what other tire makers may do for the betterment of their product, a close examination generally reveals the fact that we have been offering similar, or greater, virtues in our product for a long time previous. This is simply because we are the pioneers of the industry in Canada. If anybody should know tire-making from A to Z we should. We have been manufacturing tires in Canada for nearly a quarter of a century. No other tire company has been making tires in Canada for half that length of time.

"Traction" and "Special" are in the forefront to-day, because Dunlop has always led the way in tire betterments.

GERARD APPEALS FOR GERMAN POOR.

NEW YORK, To-day. In endorsing the thanksgiving appeal for funds to relieve distress among the war sufferers of Germany issued in this city to-day by James W. Gerard, U. S. Ambassador to Germany, a statement sent out by the Associated Press declares the great need of relief work among the poor of the Teutonic Empire. Gerard points out that Americans seem more ready to other nations than to Germany and concludes, "If I am able to go back to Germany bringing a substantial sum of money raised by this committee, I don't know anything better to aid the relations between this country and Germany. When the Germans see the funds that have been raised by a committee so distinctly American as this is, it cannot but make the most excellent impression upon people there."

THE ONLY WAY.

OTTAWA, To-day. Pearson's Magazine published in New York has been excluded from Canadian mails and prohibited from circulation in Canada. This action was taken under the "War Measures Act" for publication of articles containing an Order-in-Council passed in June, 1915. The editor of the paper is Frank Harris, a renegade Englishman who is a son-in-law of Kipling, one of the foremost apostles of German "Kultur." Persons having a copy of the publication in their possession are liable to a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment not to exceed five years. The paper has no connection with the English Magazine of the same name.

NEW PREMIER OF AUSTRIA.

LONDON, To-day. The Vienna evening newspapers announce that Dr. Von Koerber, former Austrian Prime Minister, has been appointed Premier to succeed Karl Sturgkh, says a Reuter despatch from Amsterdam. He has undertaken the formation of a new cabinet.

WAR SUMMARY.

LONDON, To-day. The Roumanians, caught in the grip of the two invading forces of the Central Powers, are still struggling desperately to ward off the incessant attacks of Field-Marshal Von Mackensen and General Von Falkenhayn. Advancing northward in Dobruja Von Mackensen's troops have reached a line running from Hirsova on the Danube to Casapeuk on the Black Sea coast, from forty to sixty miles from where they crossed the Constantza-Tchernavoda railway line. The capture of Hirsova would give to the Teutonic Allies advantage in having little marshy ground to traverse should they attempt to make a crossing of the river here into old Roumania, as the low-lying ground virtually disappears for some distance around Hirsova. General Von Falkenhayn continues to progress in the direction of Campulung south of Praelal on the Transylvanian front. Bucharest admits the retreat of the Roumanian forces in the Juhl Valley which is situated in the Vulcan Pass region. The Russo-Roumanian forces in the north have repulsed the Austro-German attacks while in the Uzul Valley the Roumanians continue to advance in the region of Okna and have occupied the height and village. Inclement weather is hampering the operations on the Somme and on the western front. Only bombardments have taken place in these regions. Another attempt by the Germans at an attack west of the village of Domaniem in the Verdun region was checked by the French curtain of fire. The Germans are still heavily bombarding all the newly won positions of the French in this region. On the eastern front in Russia there has been little fighting except in the region of the River northwest of Pinsk, near Goldschichta. The Germans attacked and forced the Russians to retire to the eastern bank of the Sharna. In an engagement in the English Channel between British and German torpedo boat destroyers, two German destroyers were sunk, according to London, while the British lost an empty transport. In addition to British torpedo destroyer missing, another was run aground after it had been disabled by a torpedo.

PITY IT WAS ONLY THE ENGINEER

PARIS, To-day. A bomb dropped by an aviator of the Entente Allies has killed the Engineer driving the train of Emperor William of Germany, according to information received at Zurich, Switzerland.

CAMPULUNG TAKEN BY GERMANS.

LONDON, To-day. The German troops on the Transylvanian front have reached Campulung, 20 miles within the Roumanian border says a Petrograd despatch. Campulung lies about 33 miles southwest of the Praelal Pass, which recently was forced by the German troops under command of Von Falkenhayn. The city lies 80 miles northwest of Bucharest the Roumanian capital.

HIRSOVA ALSO TAKEN.

SOFIA, To-day. The Teutonic Allies in Dobruja under command of Von Mackensen have occupied Hirsova on the Danube River, about forty miles north of the Tchernavoda-Constantza line, says a Bulgarian war office statement to-day. There is no great activity on other Bulgarian fronts.

MORE SUBMARINE BOINGS.

LONDON, To-day. The Norwegian steamer Bygde has been sunk off Christiania and her crew landed. The British trawler Fuchsig has been sunk and her crew imprisoned in Germany. The Norwegian steamer Leyland is also sunk.

BRITAIN'S HUGE DREADNOUGHTS.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., To-day. The Journal, in a despatch from London to-day says the British Admiralty officials are delighted with the marvelous work that has been done in the British dockyards in building the new Dreadnoughts. Wonderful results which have not up to this been made public have been accomplished in this direction. Twelve new battleships of the super-Dreadnought type are now practically ready for sea. Four of these are the four largest and most powerful weapons of defence that have ever been placed in the water. They are 850 feet long with a speed of over thirty knots and are armed with twelve 15-inch guns. No such armament as this has ever before been contemplated in the history of naval architecture, and it is considered that ships of this type are capable of winning any sea fight in which they may be engaged.

WILLIAM'S MOVEMENTS.

PARIS, To-day. Emperor William recently was reported to be at Bapaume on the Somme front, personally overseeing the preliminaries for a counter offensive, for which the German troops there were said to have received strong reinforcements. On Monday last the Emperor was in Berlin on a brief visit, and conferred with the Imperial Chancellor and visited the Palace at Potsdam. His movements since then have not been reported.

Run-Down

When your system is undermined by worry or overwork - when your vitality is lowered - when you feel "any-how" - when your nerves are "on edge" - when the least exertion tires you - you are in a Run-down condition. Your system is like a plant that is drooping for want of water. And just as water revives a drooping plant - so Wincarnis gives new life and new vitality to a "run-down" constitution. Because Wincarnis possesses a four-fold power. It is a Tonic, a Restorative, a Bloodmaker and a Nerve Food - all in one. Therefore creates new strength, new blood, new nerve force and new vitality. The benefit begins from the first wine-glassful. You can feel it doing you good. Over 10,000 Doctors recommend Wincarnis, especially to those who are Weak, Anemic, Nervy, or Run-down. Begin to get well FREE.

Send the Coupon for a free trial bottle - not a mere taste but enough to do you good. Receipt supplies can be obtained from all Stores, Chemists, and Wholesale Druggists. WINCARNIS IS MADE IN ENGLAND.

THE THOUGHTS

THE NEW P. M. G.

During this year the "Fourth Estate" has had more honours and preferences thrust upon it than for many years past. Beginning with Hon. Mr. McGrath, who received a double honour in being placed in one of the highest positions in the Colony as President of the Legislative Council, as well as receiving his title as Doctor of the next office was the Telegram whose calm was disturbed by the election of Dr. Lloyd to the leadership of the Opposition in the House and of the Liberal-Union Party. And now the Daily News, from which it is difficult to dissociate Mr. Robinson's name, has to take its turn, and its editor leaves the freedom of speech and action of journalism for the dull and routine of the Postal Service. If "writing makes an exact man," Mr. Robinson's years in the editorial chair have not unfitted him for the position of Postmaster General. As I have said before, the Postal Service should be run as a machine, well-oiled, regular and exact, with the engineer in charge one of original turn, and quick to see opportunities and grasp them for the advantage of the Service. Though perhaps with conservative tendencies, I hope Mr. Robinson will look towards the day when we shall have a one cent postage rate for the Island, and cent-a-word telegrams. I am glad to think that they will frown down upon any restrictions being put on the dissemination of newspapers and other literature through the mails, but will rather encourage anything of the nature which will encourage reading and the acquisition of knowledge.

FOOD PRICES.

I notice that my note of warning of food prices was taken up with more prominence by some newspapers. Few men who think dispute the principle that excessive profits, especially in war time, are cruel and unpatriotic. Patriotism includes a regard and consideration for fellow-countrymen. Excessive and unnecessary profits therefore brand those demanding them as unpatriotic and distasteful. A hard saying, but a true one. The latest increase, that 50 per cent increase on freights by the Red Cross Line, is somewhat high. The increase of freight rates by the Stephano Florizal since the war, has risen from one hundred per cent to the hundred per cent. One of the reasons given for this was the extra expense, including war risk insurance. But it has been said lately that

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

THE NEW P. M. G.

During this year the "Fourth Estate" has had more honours and preferments thrust upon it than for many years past. Beginning with Hon. Mr. McGrath, who received a double honour in being placed in one of the highest positions in the Colony as President of the Legislative Council, as well as receiving his title as Doctor; the next office was the Telegram whose calm was disturbed by the election of Dr. Lloyd to the leadership of the Opposition in the House, and of the Liberal-Union Party. FOOD PRICES.

I notice that my note of warning re food prices was taken up with more or less prominence by some newspapers. Few men who think dispute the principle of excessive profits, especially in war time, are cruel and un-patriotic. Patriotism includes a regard and a consideration for fellow-countrymen. Excessive and unnecessary profits therefore brand those demanding them as un-patriotic and disloyal. It is a hard saying, but a true one. The latest increase, that 50 per cent increase on freights by the Red Cross Line, is somewhat high. The increase of freight rates by the Stephano and Florizel since the war, has ranged from one hundred per cent to three hundred per cent. One of the reasons given for this was the extra expense, including war risk insurance. But it has been said lately that the Stephano was not covered against war risk. If this be so, was not this enormously increased freight obtained under questionable circumstances? Is it right to get as much as one for one's goods? Is it right for our local steamers to ask for four dollars freight on coal when their expenses are very little more than when the rate was $1.75 per ton? Can it be true, as an observant gentleman said to me last week, that our business men are considerate and quite reasonable in their homes, but where business is concerned, they allow nothing of a sympathetic feeling for another fellowman to interfere with the making of a good bargain, and getting as much money as the market will allow? In England the Government are asking for more power to deal with inflated prices, and our Government has ample opportunity to deal with the matter, as the flour prices, for instance, just now, show that unreasonable advantage is being taken of the rising prices at the mills.

THE DARK.

The Rule of the Road is a paradox quite. If you keep to the Left, you will always be Right! We are still without a few simple rules like the above for the guidance of those who have to be abroad at night. There is a grave need also of special police between the hours of 6 p.m. to midnight, to guide strangers as well as city folks if they are in doubt of localities, but principally to guard the safety of woman on the streets. There are some who have to be out at night and some who have only the night to get out for a breath of air. If the city is darkened, it owes it to its citizens that its streets should be safe to any pedestrian. A green lantern on some of the streets would be a useful guide, especially at the corners. It is a really splendid idea for all who smoke to do so if they are out at night, as the glowing end of a cigar acts as quite a beacon, and prevents many a collision.

INSURANCE.

A resident of Freshwater Road very properly feels aggrieved over the non-protection which his property has in case of fire. Fires on Water Street are written up, special attention being drawn to the fact that the pressure of water was such and such, and proved a big assistance in quenching the flames. There have been several fires within a short period on Freshwater Road and in each case there has been a shortage of water and consequently serious losses of property. What is the cause? The great work of the late Commission was the improved water service, which was to lower insurance rates and the Commission were curiously busy to get this reduction in rates. I have not heard that the reduced rates have arrived yet. Our present rates average say $1.25 per $100.00. It is interesting to note that in Sweden the average rate is 40 cents; in Australia, 30 cents; in England, 23 cents; in Germany, 22 cents; in France, 21 cents; in Spain, 19 cents; and in Italy, 19 cents. There is quite a difference between these rates and what we pay. Why is it? Are our fire losses so very high, that we are charged five times as much as these countries mentioned? It seems a fit subject for inquiry. The Insurance Companies doing business here have a Union—just as the Firemen have. They get together and fix rates that we must pay—as other Unions do. I do suspect that this Insurance Union does demand more than a living wage, say, I am almost sure of it, and in this I fall out with them. A living wage, a living profit, but no more, should apply to the Insurance Union.

25 cents Destroys Your Dandruff and Stops Falling Hair

Save your hair! Make it thick, wavy and beautiful—try this!

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Dandruff to-night—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Dandruff from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance, an incomparable gloss and softness; but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

His Grace at Trepassey

Trepassey, Oct. 24, 1916.

His Grace the Archbishop, accompanied by the Rev. Fr. Rawlins, P.P., Salmonier, arrived here by train on Friday last.

The object of His Grace's visit was to bless and open the new building recently erected in connection with the Convent. The building, designed and built by Contractor Doran, contains two spacious class rooms and an Oratory for use of the Sisters.

Sunday morning His Grace dedicated the Oratory and celebrated the first Mass therein and later assisted at Missa Cantata sung by Father Rawlins in the Parish Church.

At 3 p.m. the altar boys, school girls, Children of Mary, nuns and clergy preceded His Grace in processional order from the Convent to the new school when the beautiful liturgy of the "Blessing of Schools" was impressively carried out.

Returning to the Parish Church His Grace received a number of young ladies into the Sodality of the Children of Mary and addressed the people. In his opening remarks the Archbishop told the people of great pleasure it afforded him to come amongst them and that he was particularly pleased to find that his wishes, expressed to them last year, had been promptly acted on and successfully brought to fruition. He was pleased to find the Parish so well equipped for the important work of education and urged the parents to keep their children to school, if necessary to make some sacrifice to do so.

The Sisters were highly complimented on the great worth they were quietly accomplishing in the Parish. Particularly suited they are not only instilling secular but also religious knowledge into the minds of their young pupils and enriching their young hearts with those virtues that are the glory of Catholic womanhood. At the conclusion of the address which was attentively followed by a large congregation, His Grace assisted by Fr. Rawlins and the Pastor, Fr. O'Flaherty, gave the Benediction of the Most Holy Sacrament.

The people of Trepassey deeply appreciate the interest His Grace has always taken in them, and trust that they may be favoured with another visit in the near future.

In Milady's Boudoir.

MILADY'S NEGLIGEE.

So close is the association of lady negligees and boudoir fittings that I feel it would be an opportune time to mention the necessity of owning one for the "rainy day" or possibly the one day of illness or indisposition.

Every woman should have a dainty, comfortable negligee of some sort laid away in case of illness. The gown that is in constant use, is rarely presentable when sickness comes, and there is nothing more depressing to a sick person than the knowledge that she looks untidy.

A woman may claim that she is so seldom ill that it scarcely seems any more necessary to keep sick garments around than to follow the example of her grandmothers and have grave clothes packed away in camphor; but when sickness does come it is usually a sudden thing and it may then be neither convenient nor possible from a pecuniary standpoint to purchase new garments in such an emergency.

It is all very well to use old quilts and gowns while the patient is really ill, as there is danger of spilling medicine on bedroom linen; but when there is a change for the better there is nothing like a fresh little sacque or a becoming wrapper to have a moral effect on the patient and hasten recovery.

If the occasion does not arise when the negligee is needed for illness it is yet always ready for packing to take on a trip away from home. One should never travel without a negligee of some kind for use in case of illness or when the night is chilly and extra covering is needed.

Lizell's MASSATTIA

A NEW AND TOTALLY DIFFERENT

TALCUM POWDER

Not only softer, smoother, more satisfying than any other, but distinguished by the "True Oriental Odor," a fragrance intangible in its subtlety and charm.

For The Well-dressed Man.

We are now showing all the Newest styles in Men's English and American Suits for Fall and Winter wear.

These Suits are as snappy, so smart and well-cut that you feel confident you're well-turned-out when wearing one of them, and it's worth while to remember that the "feel" of your new suit has just as much to do with how it looks as how it fits.

In all sizes and numerous designs and textures.
