CHAPTER V. THE LOVER AND THE SPY.

"Will you take my arm, and—come a little this way?" he said. "People may come by the gate—"

"Then they moved off, and Mr. Hastley Derrick could hear no more. He waited till they had passed quite out of hearing, then stole out from behind his ambush; the scar so fully developed that he looked Mephistopheles in human form again.

Before he could do anything more than smile, there came the thud, thud of a man's footsteps on the grass, and the next instant Lord Charles' cheery voice rang out:

"Hello, there! Is that you, Derrick? Yes! by Jove! Why, man, where on earth have you been sunning? My dear fellow, you don't mean to say you have lost your way?"

"My dear fellow" came into the moonlight to meet his friend with a smile behind his hand, but a curse on his lips as he muttered:

"Noisy idiot; lost me the plot of the piece and spoiled the whole drama!" And with a quick glance behind him, he saw two shadows disappear in the distance.

"How do you do, my dear Derrick! and who have you got with you? Why, where on earth have they gone—I heard voices."

Hastley Derrick hesitated a moment—oh, that hesitation!—if he had but told the truth, how much misery would have been spared Elsie Estcourt and my Lord Heatherdene!—and Hed.

"Voices! the owls, then, my dear fellow! I have been lounging here for the last ten minutes, smoking a cigar and enjoying the night, and I've heard no voices, nor seen a soul."

"Then I must have been dreaming! But come along, I'm delighted to see you—give me your arm. The ladies will be delighted to see you and welcome your first visit to the Court. Pretty country, isn't it? What are you looking for?"

"Nothing. Isn't that an owl there?" was the instant reply, and with a quick movement, he swung Lord Charles round to the right, and at that moment the two figures of Olive Estcourt and Stephen Rawdon passed through a patch of moonlight on the left, where Lord Charles must have seen them if he had not been swung round to see imaginary owls.

CHAPTER VI. SIX MONTHS LATER.

IT was near Christmas, just six months since the little village of Hawthorne had been stirred into unwonted excitement by the flight of Olive Estcourt—that quiet girl of Mrs. Dennett's. London is at its best and worst. Best for its richness, when the clubs are comfortable with their great fires and warm, cozy rooms, the shops and theatres in full swing, and the game of life generally spinning round merrily; at its worst for the poor, with trade bad, the weather hard, and food and fuel dear.

CHAPTER VII. THE MIDDLE OF THAT SECOND half season, when fashion, tired of playing at rusticity, comes back to bask in the fog and murk of its May-fair when the best—that is, the least crowded—balls and concerts are given, and there is some chance of driving in the mail or riding in the row without being run over or ridden down. There were, in fact, a great many people in town, the clubs were full, the leader of the season had given a brilliant ball, and all but hunting men were up and about the shady side of Pall Mall.

On the steps of one of the best clubs on this evening (in December stood Lord Charles Heatherdene and Hastley Derrick; the first as cheery and handsome as ever, the latter equally unaltered; dark, slim, and inscrutable. Charlie Heatherdene came through the swinging doors, laughing banteringly, and turned on the steps to look at his companion with lazy curiosity.

"What!" he said. "You won't come? What am I to tell Lady Florence? She'll never forgive you for going away without saying 'good-by,' Derrick."

"Yes, I think she would," said Hastley Derrick, taking out a cigar. "Don't lay too many sins to my charge, Heatherdene. I called on their ladyships this morning and left a card with the corner turned down."

"Just as if you were going out of town, instead of to India for three years! and to-morrow, too! By Jove, I can scarcely realize it! Don't go, my dear fellow."

"Lead us not into temptation," replied Hastley Derrick. "No; I must go, Heatherdene. My uncle having left me an estate, it is only decent that I should go and look after it. It is hard lines, but—well, there are make-weights."

"Yes, you'll be able to study some new characters," laughed Charlie; "you must be tired of all ours. By the time you get back, we will have some new folks for you to analyze—ah, I know your weakness, my dear fellow!"

Hastley Derrick smiled behind his back. "I shall expect one great change when I come back," he said, looking at his companion keenly: "Lady Florence will have changed her title, eh, Heatherdene? And a certain viscount will have settled down. By Jove! it will be worth while coming back for."

"Don't run back until you have the news of the change well authenticated," said Charles, with a smile. "But, come, I am going on to Park Lane. Come and say your good-by, like a civilized human being."

But Hastley Derrick stood firm. "I have seen Lady Florence for the last time for three years," he said, "and it is time I said good-by to you, Heatherdene."

"Not already? Come to my chambers."

"I can't," said Hastley Derrick, putting up his hand to his mouth. "Why not? You have nothing to do!" remonstrated Lord Heatherdene. "You told me this morning that your man had packed everything, and that you were ready, even to the extent of a girdle of bank notes, and a pocketful of sovereigns."

"That's true," said Hastley Derrick, touching his waist thoughtfully. "I feel as if I were going to start for the Australian bush with all this coin about me!" and he laughed. "Well, good-by, Heatherdene! I shall read you in the Morning Post. Send me a piece of cake when the event comes off, and expect me back in three years—that is, if the yellow fever doesn't make an end of me. Good-by!"

More farewells were exchanged, and the two men, so utterly different, and yet such good friends, parted. Charles Heatherdene went back into the club for his umbrella, and Hastley Derrick looked up and down for

Warned This Captain That the Kidneys Were Responsible for His Pains and Aches—Freed of Pain and Suffering by a Well-Known Medicine.

Hereford, Que., February 12th—Captain Peabody is well known all through this section, and his cure by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills has aroused great interest in this great medicine.

The Captain had been suffering for long time, and could never get any treatment to afford lasting relief until he began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Captain A. Peabody, Hereford, Que., writes:—"For years I suffered from indigestion, rheumatism and neuralgia. Lightning-like pains would shoot all through my body, and I also had severe pains over my left kidney and through the hips. I doctored for years and tried all kinds of remedies, but the only result was money spent without relief. At last I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac of his Kidney-Liver Pills and decided to try them. One box made such a change that I sent for five more. Before I had finished them the pains in my kidneys and hips had disappeared, and I was clear of those sharp, shooting pains through the body. I still take these Pills occasionally to keep my bowels regular, and would not be without them, as I have them to thank for my cure."

"I can also speak highly of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Powder and Linseed or Turpentine. The former cured me of catarrh in the head, which caused frequent headaches. I am completely cured of this now, and breathe freely as when a boy. The Linseed and Turpentine proved of great benefit for a bad cough which bothered me continually for three winters. Last winter I took one bottle of the Linseed and Turpentine, and have not been bothered with a cough since."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmunds, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Don't be talked into accepting anything said to be just as good. Imitations and substitutes only disappoint.

a hansom. While he was doing so, a man who had been loitering in the shadow, came into the light, thinking himself unnoticed, but Hastley Derrick's ever-searching eye caught the movement sideways, and he turned in time to see the lotter's face.

Not only to see, but to recognize. Instantly his arm, which had been raised to hire the cab, dropped to his side, and he turned and followed the man.

Two or three strides and he was alongside of him; then, in the most natural manner of pleasant surprise, he laid his hand on the man's shoulder, and said:

"Ah, Rawdon, how do you do?" The man turned with an unmistakable start, and held out his hand. "Mr. Derrick!" he said, with a slight flush on his dark face, "how do you do?"

"Capital, thanks! and yourself?" said Derrick. "Why, I haven't seen you for a twelve month!" he added, completely ignoring the moonlight night in Hawthorne churchyard. "Where have you been hiding—Rome—Naples—which is it you gentlemen of the brush delight to honor now?"

He put the question carelessly enough, and no one would have guessed how anxiously he longed for the answer.

Stephen Rawdon hesitated a moment, then he answered glibly enough: "No, I have not been out of England. I live in London."

"Ah!" said Hastley Derrick, walking on by his side, "settled down, I suppose?"

"Yes," heheated the other, "yes; I am married."

"Lucky dog!" exclaimed Derrick. "You must give me the honor of an introduction to Mrs. Rawdon."

"I shall be most happy," said Stephen Rawdon. There was a moment's pause, while the dark eyes, looking downward, seemed speculating or calculating—then they looked up with a strange light in them. "When will you come?"

Hastley Derrick laughed, with his hand up to his mouth. "Now or never!" as the man says in the play. "I start to-morrow for India for three years."

Stephen Rawdon raised his dark eyebrows with well-feigned surprise. "I am sorry for that," he said. "I was going to ask you to come and see us to-night—just a little surprise and a glass of wine; but I am afraid you will have too many engagements."

Hastley Derrick thought a moment. There passed swiftly through his mind that scene he had witnessed in the country churchyard; the sudden disappearance of the pale-faced, beautiful girl, and the utter failure of the search for her. He alone during the excitement could have given a clue. He had attempted, on his own account, to follow up that clue, but had failed with the rest, and here, just when he could not follow it, it had turned up again, strong and palpable.

For months he had been looking for this man, and had failed to find him.

and here he was, arm in arm with him.

It was a strong temptation, and Hastley Derrick could not resist. A moment's rapid reflection, and he answered:

"As it happens," he said, with a smile, "I have got the evening on my hands. I have said my adieu and made all my preparations. Do you know, I will accept your invitation; that is, if you can give me an hour's grace?"

Stephen Rawdon looked at him with a curious smile that was not altogether pleasant. "You want to go home first?" he said.

"Well, yes," replied Hastley Derrick; "the fact is, I have a great deal of money about me—preparation for the voyage, you know, and—"

Stephen Rawdon threw back his head and laughed—almost strangely. "My dear fellow, I shall not rob you. St. John's Wood is a forest only in name, and there is no handiitl. I'll see you safe in a cab when you leave us."

"That reassures me," laughed Derrick, as if half ashamed of his cautiousness. "I am all anxiety to make Mrs. Rawdon's acquaintance. Perhaps I know her already, though? Let me see; when we used to meet each other, you were studying at the museum. There were one or two pretty girls at the easels then."

"I don't think you know my wife," said Stephen Rawdon, with his eyes downcast. "She comes from Scotland."

"Scotland!" "But she is English," added the other hastily.

"Ah, when staying in Scotland, I see," said Hastley Derrick, with the most easy-going ingenueness; "and how have you been going on?"

"Oh, very well, very well, indeed," was the reply, made in that tone which belies the words, and makes them sound like, "Very bad, indeed."

Hastley Derrick glanced sideways at his companion, and noticed that, although not exactly seedy, there was that indefinite something about his appearance which indicated ill luck and the reverse of prosperity.

There had always been something about the man—a secretiveness and air of mystery—which had interested Derrick. That interest had been increased tenfold by the Hawthorne romance, and to-night it culminated. Derrick felt that, happen what might in the way of inconvenience, that though this was his last night in England for three years, he must go home with the man, and see if the girl who had so strangely fled from her home with this man, whom she did not love, was happy.

They walked on for some little time until they came to the street in which Derrick's chambers were situated.

There were letters to write, last arrangements to be made, the inevitable few matters to be cleared up, and here was he, going to St. John's Wood with a man he scarcely knew, for the mere object of seeing a girl who had interested him; not so much by her beauty, uncommon as it was, but by the strange way in which she had stepped out to meet her fate in the shape of a lover whom she had scarcely known, and for whom she professed no love.

Household Notes.

A pinch of salt in the starch will keep the irons from sticking. Very small cakes should always be baked in a very quick oven.

When using left-overs pay particular attention to the flavor. Stewed tomatoes can be improved by the addition of sweet peppers. A delicious jam can be made of pineapple flavored with cinnamon.

9A strong solution of washing soda will remove paint from chairs. Juice left over from any canned fruit may be used with baked apples. Lamb stew should be cooked all day to make it as tender as it should be.

EARLY MEASURES

THE RUSSIAN PEACE.

LONDON, Feb. 11. The version of the Russian announcement at Brest-Litovsk on the subject sent by the Central News correspondent at Amsterdam, represents Leon Trotsky, Bolshevik Foreign Minister, as declaring that Russia is now obliged to sign a separate peace, and that the state of war between Russia and the Central Powers would be declared terminated.

FURTHER DISCUSSION. AMSTERDAM, Feb. 11. Leon Trotsky, Bolshevik Foreign Minister, alluding to the further discussion that will arise from the Central Powers and Russia for the establishment of reciprocal diplomatic, commercial and economic relations, indicated the method of direct intercourse between the governments concerned, as well as the employment of commissions of the quadruple alliance which are already at Petrograd.

LABOR SOLID. NEW YORK, Feb. 11. The workers of Great Britain and America, through their spokesmen at a great loyalty meeting at the Century Theatre last night, pledged their united and unwavering effort to the defeat of Germany. The workers of America spoke through Secretary of Labor, W. B. Wilson, and officials of the American Federation of Labor.

The workers of Great Britain spoke through Charles Duncan, M.P., head of the British Labor Mission, which arrived in this country yesterday. The workers were pilloried by the speakers and when Hugh Frayne, representative of labor on the War Industries Board, asked that firing squads be allied to deal with the Kaiser brand-seeker after peace he was cheered to the echo. Mr. Duncan drew great applause when he told how speeches of President Wilson had kept up the people of England in a dramatic way.

Referring to the pacifists, Mr. Duncan said, it will be time enough to talk about peace when those who started the war ask for peace.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. President Wilson appearing unexpectedly before Congress again to-day replied to the recent peace speeches of Count Von Hertling, German Chancellor and Count Czernin, Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, reminding the statesmen of the Central Powers that peace can be discussed only on the basis of permanency and essential justice, and told by warning the people of the Central Empires that the participation of the U. S. in the war was for the emancipation of humanity. The President warned the German military autocracy that there was to be no compromise. The peace would be on the basis of justice, and the Central Powers would be held responsible for the war. The President warned the German military autocracy that there

NEW BOOKLET
"CANADA'S WAR LOANS
Including VICTORY BONDS"
Interesting things about them

This booklet includes tables showing the Total Funded Debt of Canada, the Domestic War Loans of Canada, Income Tax Tables, a Comparison of the Price of British Consols, French Rentas and United States bonds prior to, during and after war periods, Record of subscriptions to the Victory and Domestic War Loans by provinces—Record of subscriptions to the Victory Loan—How to buy and sell, etc.

820,035 people out of total population of 7,891,000 bought Victory Bonds. This is a measure of the Canadian people's practical interest in their own loans.

Every Victory Bond holder should call or write for a copy. If you are interested, we shall be glad to supply a copy on request.

EARLY MESSAGES

THE RUSSIAN PEACE.
LONDON, Feb. 11. The version of the Russian announcement at Brest-Litovsk on the subject sent by the Central News correspondent at Amsterdam, represents Leon Trotsky, Bolshevik Foreign Minister, as declaring that Russia is not obliged to sign a separate peace, and that the state of war between Russia and the Central Powers would be declared terminated.

FURTHER DISCUSSION.
AMSTERDAM, Feb. 11. Leon Trotsky, Bolshevik Foreign Minister, alluding to the further discussion that will arise from the situation created between the Central Powers and Russia for the establishment of reciprocal diplomatic, consular and economic relations, indicated a method of direct intercourse between the governments concerned, as well as the employment of commissions of the quadruple alliance which are already at Petrograd.

LABOR SOLD.
NEW YORK, Feb. 11. The workers of Great Britain and America, through their spokesmen at a great loyalty meeting at the Century Theatre last night, pledged their united and unswerving effort to the defeat of Germany. The workers of America spoke through Secretary of Labor, W. B. Wilson, and officials of the American Federation of Labor. The workers of Great Britain spoke through Charles Duncan, M.P., head of the British Labor Mission which arrived in this country yesterday. Addresses were pilloried by the speaker and when Hugh Frayne, representative of labor on the War Industries board, asked that firing squads be allied to deal with the Kaiser brand-seeker after peace he was cheered to the echo. Mr. Duncan drew great applause when he told how speeches of President Wilson had kept up the people of England in a dramatic way, referring to the pacifists. Mr. Duncan said, it will be time enough to talk about peace when those who started the war ask for peace.

WILSON REPLIES TO SPEECHES.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. President Wilson appearing unexpectedly before Congress again to-day replied to the recent peace speeches of Count Von Hertling, German Chancellor and Count Czernin, Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, reminding the statesmen of the Central Powers that peace can be discussed only on the basis of permanency and essential justice, and told by warning the people of the Central Empire that the participation of the U. S. in the war was for the emancipation of humanity. The President warned the German military autocracy that there of Arms and Munitions. We were able to turn out over three hundred cannon during the month of November to replace those lost to the enemy in October. An idea of what has been done and accomplished may be gathered from the fact that previous to Italy's entrance into the war we had about 125 incompletely equipped factories, employing 125,000 workers. To-day we have 3,550 factories going, and will soon have 4,000, employing over 700,000 workmen, of whom 160,000 are women and 45,000 are boys. Of these 3,550 factories, 1,750 are classified as auxiliary and 1,800 as minor shops. This is a creation of which Italy may well be proud.

SCRUTINIZING FOREIGN MATTER.
AN ATLANTIC PORT, Feb. 11. Government officials here to-day began the task of scrutinizing eight motor truck loads of written and printed matter found among the effects of passengers aboard the liner Nieuw Amsterdam, which arrived here several days ago. The collection included photographic records, which it is believed may contain information of value to the enemy. All except four or five of 40 cabin passengers were detained after the first German spy suspect had been admitted, and others were held on minor technical matters. The same may be said of 35 steerage passengers still held at the immigration station.

DISABLED STEAMER IN TOW.
AN ATLANTIC PORT, Feb. 11. A government vessel reported by radio to-day that she was proceeding to port with a steamer picked up far out at sea, after being disabled by propeller trouble.

FRANCE AND ENGLAND AGREE.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. That France and England are in agreement concerning the establishment of a national home for the Jewish people in Palestine, was affirmed to-day by Foreign Minister Pichon. M. Pichon gave the assurance to M. Sokolow, representative of the Zionist organizations.

THE EMPEROR ON PEACE.
AMSTERDAM, Feb. 11. At the conclusion of peace with Ukraine, the Emperor replied as follows: "We have gone through hard times. Everyone has had a burden to bear, anxiety, mourning, grief, tribulation, and the least he who stands before you. In him were combined care and grief for the entire people in its sorrows. We often entered false paths. The Lord pointed out to us by a hard school the path by which we should go. The world, however, at the same time hasn't been on the right path. We Germans who still have ideals should work to bring about better times. We should fight for right and morality. Our Lord God wishes us to have peace, but a peace wherein the world will strive to do what's right and good. We ought to bring peace to the world. We shall seek in every way to do it. Such an end was achieved yesterday in the friendly manner with an enemy. Beat on by our armies it perceives no reason for fighting longer and extends the hand to us and receives our hand. We clasp the hand, but he who will not accept peace but on the contrary declines, pouring out the blood of his own and of our people must be forced to have peace. We desire to live in friendship with our neighbouring people, but the victory of German arms must be first recognized. Our troops under the great Hindenburg will continue with it when peace will come."

Cleanses Your Hair Makes It Beautiful, Thick, Glossy, Wavy

Try this! All dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Surely try a "Dandierine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Dandierine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Dandierine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Dandierine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will spend a few cents for a small bottle of Knowlton's Dandierine at any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

THE MEXICAN WAY.
MEXICO CITY, Feb. 11. General Juan Bandera was shot and killed to-day in a down-town cafe by Col Miguel Ferrelia. General Bandera took a prominent part in the revolution led by Madero and Carranza. Col. Ferrelia was formerly chief of staff for General Benjamin Ghilla, Constitutional leader, and is now a member of the House of Deputies. Under the constitutional law he is immune from arrest, which is a privilege of Congressmen. Congress is the only body which can consider his case, and will not convene until September.

News From Flight Lieut. King.

Last week friends in the city had letters from Lieut. King, saying he was again in England. During his career as "birdman" in France he has had many exciting and thrilling experiences also narrow escapes from Hun airmen. Once during one of his flights over the front lines, and after an exciting chase he succeeded in putting him out of fighting order, and he (the Hun) cried "Kamaraad." He was so busy with No. 1 that he did not take notice of another that was coming straight down on him, until it was almost too late, and then it would certainly have been all up with him if another British airman had not come quickly to his assistance.

Another time while he was out on observation he had one of his wings punctured by a Hun airman's fire, and he had to take the drop the best way he could. To make matters worse his engine gave out, and he came down to within 100 feet of the ground and flew over an orchard. He got his engine going again and began to come down about 90 an hour straight for the trees, but could not turn into the side slip (which is the proper thing to do), because he did not have height enough, for if he had done so he would not have been there to-day. He did what all aviators are told not to do, made another side slip (to the left) and got out of that one 10 feet from the ground and landed like a bird.

Those who were watching never expected to see him come down alive, and his Flight Commander told him that he had ordered out the Red Cross to take in his remains, but he had some breeze on them.

These are only a couple of incidents; he says he has been almost brought down a dozen times, and he is getting used to it now and does not mind it. If you look at the serious side of it you will be brought down every time; you must do what you are going to do without thinking of the danger. He is now in London enjoying an extended leave of absence. Capt. Charlie Strong a few days before he wrote, also Miss Rendell, who was over there from France, where she is in the French nursing corps driving a motor car. They had lunch with him at his hotel and a good talk about home and friends. There is hope of his being sent to Egypt and he hopes it is true. Wherever he goes we wish him good luck and a safe return home again.—Com.

B. I. S.
11TH ANNUAL MEETING.
The 11th annual meeting of the B. I. S. took place last night, Hon. J. D. Ryan presiding. The reports of the various committees were read and adopted, after which last year's executive were again nominated for office for the ensuing year, viz:

President—J. D. Ryan.
Vice-President—J. L. Slattery.
1st Asst. V.P.—J. C. Pippy.
2nd Asst. V.P.—P. F. Moore.
Treasurer—J. Campbell.
Secretary—T. P. Halley.
Chairman of Schools—J. P. Crotty.
Chairman of Recs. and Correspondence—A. Comerford.
Chairman of Charities—E. L. Carter.
Secretary of Schools—A. Doyle.

Before closing the meeting, the following resolution of condolence, proposed by Mr. J. P. Crotty, was passed:

WHEREAS, since our last meeting Lieut. John J. Edens, of the Royal Mtd. Regiment, made the Supreme Sacrifice in France;

AND WHEREAS, Lieut. Edens was a worthy member of this institution, and was highly esteemed because of his many qualities, courteous manner and his splendid record on by our armies it perceives no reason for fighting longer and extends the hand to us and receives our hand. We clasp the hand, but he who will not accept peace but on the contrary declines, pouring out the blood of his own and of our people must be forced to have peace. We desire to live in friendship with our neighbouring people, but the victory of German arms must be first recognized. Our troops under the great Hindenburg will continue with it when peace will come."

Annual Meeting
Of C. E. Orphanage Supporters—Touching Reference to the Late Bishop Jones.

The annual meeting of the friends and supporters of the Church of England Orphanage, held yesterday afternoon, was very largely attended. His Excellency the Governor presided, and among those present were Miss Armorel Harris, Rev. Canon White, Bishop-elect, Lord Harwood, Mr. Gosling, Hon. R. Watson, Geo. Carter, Esq., many of the city clergy and members of the Board of Management. The orphans visited the meeting room and were addressed in a kindly manner by His Excellency. After the singing of a hymn the reports were presented. Mrs. Gosling in her report gave a description of the new Orphanage, Exon, formerly the home of the Job family. There are now fifty-four orphans at the institution, the smallest number for some time. The statement of W. B. Grieve, Esq., showed a small credit balance. Mr. Grieve has held the position of Treasurer in a most capable manner for a number of years and it was with genuine regret that his resignation was accepted. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded him for his valuable services to the institution. The election of officers then followed and the last year's Board was re-elected. They are:

Patron—His Excellency the Governor.
President—Rev. Canon White, Bishop-elect.
Vice-Presidents—Rectors of the Cathedral, St. Mary's and St. Thomas's Parishes.
Secretary—Mrs. Gosling.
Hon. Chaplain—Rev. Dr. Jones.
Hon. Physician—Dr. T. Anderson.

The Board of Management was also re-elected. A touching reference was made to the late Bishop Jones in the Secretary's report. The late Bishop had been President of the Board for about forty years; reference was made to the late Governor, Sir W. E. Davidson and family, who had given such splendid assistance in promoting the interests of the Orphanage. The generosity of the Job family was dwelt upon in the report. During the meeting a cheque was received from Mrs. Ryan for the sum of $500 from the estate of Hon. James Ryan. Mrs. White and Miss Long who are now in charge of the children have done splendidly, and are untiring in their efforts towards the welfare of the orphans.

The Champion Humourist.

The Advocate, which has suddenly developed such a close interest in Supreme Court proceedings as to be a little uncertain whether it is a newspaper or a daily edition of the Law Reports, was out again last night with a full account (with marginal notes) of the latest steps in the latest amusement—the libel suits. Being grateful for anything provocative, we will merely note in passing the fact that its remarks are still more fragrant contempt of court than its offence last week, and dwell instead on the unconscious humour that marks them and easily counterbalances this objectionable feature. Mr. Coaker recites, with ill concealed pride, his own intention, in the case in which he figures as defendant, of hastening the proceedings with all speed; and at the same time complains generously of the unsporting conduct of his enemies in following the exactly opposite course. The truth is, Mr. Coaker is so anxious to get into court, to show himself off to the jury and to have his name and memory perpetuated in imperishable records, that he brooks with impatience the slightest obstacle placed in the way of his doing so in no less than five cases at the same time.

This, however, is not the most amusing part of it. We shall best show that which is by quoting the Advocate. "The Star, Telegram and News might take a leaf out of our book and hasten the trial of the Coaker libels, which have been before the Court for three weeks but which have been met by every possible objection against trial by the counsel opposing. Let the Star, Telegram and News file their defence." They will be happy to do so, dear Advocate, as soon as they have a case to defend. The most complete answer to the Advocate's observations is provided by the Advocate itself and on the same page, where it publishes in full the judgment of Mr. Justice Kent (which is similar in effect to that of the other judges) ordering the most important part of Mr. Coaker's claim to be struck out in its entirety! Let some of the uninitiated may not understand the exact meaning of the order, we will explain it briefly. It means that the judge will not, at this stage, take the extreme step of dismissing the whole action, but dismisses the most important part of it. There may be a libel in the words complained of, but if there is, the plaintiff himself has not yet discovered it! If Mr. Coaker is so anxious for a trial, he has only himself to thank for his delay in getting it. The simple truth of the cases which he compares in such singular fashion is this. The alleged libel of Mr. Squires is so gross and palpable that the only thing the Advocate can do is to enter a defence at once a matter which it may not boast so openly about when the case is over. The alleged libels of Mr. Coaker are so thin and nebulous that his very able counsel cannot, or have not been able to, derive anything substantial enough from them to build even a prima facie case upon it. In the light of these obvious facts the Advocate's remarks provide a good measure of the amount of intelligence devoted to its editorial page. But we do not complain. Who would ask for so dull a thing as intelligence in place of so rare a quality as humour, however much unconscious it may be?

Jellicoe's Optimism.

The first cheerful note on the submarine menace for some time was struck by Admiral Jellicoe in his recent speech at London, as announced in Saturday's cables, and this is all the more remarkable when we remember that Navy men are not by any means loquacious. Reliance can be placed on the gallant Admiral's statement as he speaks with authority, and who is better qualified to do so? No matter how severely it galls us to be kept in the dark regarding movements of the Navy, by fleets, squadrons, or units, we must accept with unflinching confidence the knowledge that the right arm of the Empire is reaching out over the seven seas while keeping watch with sleepless eye the doings of the enemy. The silent Navy. How many times have we, in this Dominion, when news of disaster by sea reached us asked where is the Navy? How many times when naval raids by German light cruisers have been made on the English coast have we wondered what the fleet is doing, and why it was not on the spot when wanted. But the ships are there, and it is idle to expect that they should be possessed of that omniscience which can tell exactly the spot which the cowardly Hun, too scared to come out openly from within his mined harbors and fight, will secretly raid. The miracle is that our sailors have performed so much, but they don't talk. Ask any

R. N. R. man who has returned from active service and he will tell you that the Navy is doing its work, and no more. Ask him what his particular ship did and he will pass you off with a bare word. So soon does the silence of the Navy gather him into its close embrace. Admiral Jellicoe tells us that by August of this year the submarine peril will be killed, but the means to be adopted toward this end is not given. Neither do we expect it. Sufficient for us to know that at last the home authorities have evolved some scheme whereby they anticipate putting an end to the greatest and most deadly peril of the war. Who of us would fail to sing a Te Deum of triumph once this can be accomplished. It is very obvious from Sir John's concluding remarks that the politicians are not prime favorites. He apparently looks upon them as false prophets, and even the Prime Minister himself comes under the fire of his guns. Words, for the multitude, are patently not the thing with the former chief of naval staff, and in asking the politicians to wait until August before they begin cheering, he has doubtless something up his sleeve. So, too, we in Newfoundland must wait patiently, neither downcast nor afraid, until the dawn of that day when the last resource of the enemy on and under the sea has been utterly destroyed. Britannia still rules the waves.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Read the bulletin of the Agricultural Board in yesterday's issue, and then make out and send in your order for all the seeds you can utilize—without delay.

Don't let Newfoundland become the weakest link in the Chain of Empire by neglecting to raise all the produce possible. Till the soil.

One of the blessings of peace would be the exit of Committees and Controllers—Lord Mayor of Newcastle.

When the Commander in Chief tells the C. O. of the Royal Flying Corps that he wants Berlin bombed, he will get Berlin bombed.—Boyd Cable.

Why not re-examine us all to see if we are fit to be re-examined?

Abdul the damned is dead. If Enver Pasha and a few other Germanized Turks were to accompany him their part of the world would be considerably purified.

"I understand that you are very much interested in scientific experiments," said the young man. "Your understanding seems to be all to the good," answered the dear girl who wore mistletoe in her hair. "For years I have been trying to prove to my own satisfaction that germs cannot be transmitted by kissing."

Thoughts Upon the Times.

(By PATRIOT.)

The Pastoral Letter of His Grace Archbishop Roche is a timely and well written document and will be read with interest and encouragement by thousands who are not of his flock. His references to the causes of the great world war are to the point. Forgetfulness of God and of His mercies to mankind is one of the greatest sins of the age. To read His Grace's description of what is called the "New Democracy," one of the results of the war, is to acquire useful and practical information which will help us in the future. When the future historian comes to write the history of the present great world conflict, he will find many things of surpassing interest, but he will find none more interesting or significant than the great wave of democracy which is now sweeping over the world. We see it, somewhat faintly perhaps, in our own little isolated Dominion. We see it in the great industrial revolution now going on all over the world, in the increase in the creature comforts of the masses. The people of all nations are beginning to realize that democracy may well mean something more than the right of citizens to vote at stated intervals for representatives who may or may not carry out the will of those who elect them. The new democracy will place in the hands of the people all legislative and executive authority, so far as that may be possible. One thing above all others which this new condition of things will demand is the increased responsibility of the citizen. This will mean increased educational facilities, for not only will it become necessary for every one, male and female, to be able to read and write, but it will be the duty of every citizen to possess himself of such general knowledge connected with his occupation and general welfare, so as to be able to take a more or less intelligent part in the social and political movements of his time. Democracy cannot exist if the people be ignorant or corrupt. There will also be many problems which the new democracy will have to face and try to solve. The people of this country today are passing through a great ordeal. They may not know it or feel Terra Novas Beat the Feildians.

IN FAST BUT CLEAN GAME—SCORE 8 TO 2. The second game in the first round of the Hockey League was played at the Prince's Rink last night. The contesting teams were the Terra Novas vs. Feildians. The game from start to finish was fast and clean and at no time was uninteresting as the score would indicate. Combination was met in evidence than in the previous game but weakness in front of the goal was noticeable especially with the Feildians.

The accounts we hear of the effects upon corns and callouses of Frezzone's are so sensational, and if it were not for the absolute reliability of those who tell us of these results, would appear exaggerated. There seems no doubt of the wonderful solvent power of Frezzone upon dead skin and hard lumps as well as corns, and that it dissolves them without causing pain or inconvenience to the patient. All who have obstinate corns or callouses may well try this new and highly recommended remedy. Price 40c. a bot.

War Veteran's Night.

The Men's Guild of St. Andrew's Church are having a social meeting to-night which is taking the form of a Veteran's Night. Lieut. V. Warren and Pte. Crocker, R.M.I.M.L. will give short addresses, which will no doubt be of an intensely interesting nature. A large collection of War Souvenirs will be on exhibiting and there will be a short musical programme and refreshments. Altogether a most interesting and enjoyable time is anticipated. All men of St. Andrew and their friends are cordially invited.

Police Court.

An employee who sued his employer for a week's wages which he claimed was due him, discovered that he should have given a week's notice before quitting. Claim disallowed. A ratepayer sued before the Magistrate this morning for non-payment of occupiers rates. Mr. Fox appeared for the ratepayer, while Mr. Halley acted for the Council. Judgment was given in favour of Council. A cooper sued a laborer for the sum of five dollars which was supposed to be the value of a horse collar, harness and bit. Further hearing of this will be continued on Friday morning.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR THE PREVENTION OF FACTORY INFECTIO.

- 1. The fish should be handled from the vessel to the scales without being thrown upon the deck or dock where they may become infected from the boards or be stepped upon by the workmen. All of the docks are infected with the red organisms, and fish coming in contact with them become inoculated.
2. The floors, scales, dressing tables, wash tanks, wheelbarrows, and everything with which the fish comes in contact in making them ready for the butts should be frequently washed with water under considerable pressure. A relatively small stream of water under strong pressure is far more effective in cleaning than a larger stream of water at low pressure.
3. The fish should be washed by sprays of water or by a machine. The sprays should have sufficient force to do the work well. The present method of pitching the fish into a tank or dory and then out again is not sufficient for cleaning, and, furthermore, it tends to dis-seminate an organisms which may be present.
4. The water used upon the fish or upon anything with which the fish come in contact should be of undoubted purity. The use of harbor water for any purpose cannot be justified, as it is filled with the germs which come from emptying butts and washing fish and docks. It is also apt to be polluted with sewage from the city, as was found to be the case in the investigation here reported.
5. The butts should be thoroughly cleaned.

The use of harbor water for any purpose cannot be justified, as it is filled with the germs which come from emptying butts and washing fish and docks. It is also apt to be polluted with sewage from the city, as was found to be the case in the investigation here reported.
5. The butts should be thoroughly cleaned inside and out and steamed for twenty minutes or sprayed with a solution of sulphurous acid.

6. Before fish are taken out of the butts, water should be turned in to cause the brine to overflow and wash away any reddening which may have occurred on the top.

7. The fish should be passed through a spray of water to remove the adherent salt, as this adds weight and does not increase the time of keeping.

8. Racks used in waterhorsing should be steamed or sprayed, and the work done in the light and in one place in the factory rather than at any point in the shed where the butt may happen to be.

9. The drying should be carried as far as possible and still permit proper skinning. A second drying or Nova Scotia style of cure should be encouraged.

10. The kenching in the storeroom should permit a circulation of air and not cause dead air spaces. The kench racks should be steamed or sprayed after each period of use.

11. The walls, posts and floors should be sprayed often, once a week during the cool season and twice a week during the summer.

12. Treading the fish in drums should be prohibited. Workmen coming in from the street in their dirty shoes obviously should not be allowed to tread the fish in the packing operation. A mechanical appliance would accomplish the same purpose in a cleanly manner.

13. The boxes used in carrying the fish from the storeroom to the skinning loft and from the tables to the cutters and packers should be washed each day.

14. The skimming or cutting tables should not have shelves or boxes beneath to catch bits of skin or fish. They should be well washed each evening. The simple brushing with a hand broom is not sufficient. The floor should be cleaned often.

15. All refuse should be removed from the room promptly. Bits of fish in barrels and boxes act only as incubators to perpetuate the infection.

16. The finished product should be held in a reasonably cool place in summer, and when shipped it should be handled under proper temperature conditions as are other meat products.

17. All new construction or remodeling should make ample provision for light. Many of the present structures are too dark.

18. All rubbish, as barrels, hoops, staves, waste, etc., should be removed from the flake yards and docks.

19. Concentrated sulphurous acid should be used as a disinfectant when steam is not available. One part of the acid to 50 parts of water is effective where much reddening has occurred, and 1 part to 200 parts of water will be effective in preventing growth if used often.

Iceland Fish.—One of my large interior buyers has just received here a cargo of large and medium Iceland fish, and has asked me as a favor to give it warehouse room. I have thus had an excellent opportunity of seeing this fish, and I have been dumfounded, for every fish in the whole of the cargo is perfectly split, perfectly cured, spotlessly clean, and even the bones which shows at the turn of the split looks like a piece of ivory. There is simply no comparison between such fish as this and the Newfoundland cure. I have been discharging a cargo of the latter at the same time, and it is really pitiful to look at our fish alongside the other. I am not very hopeful of ever being

EXTRACTS FROM LETTER OF A RECEIVER OF FISH IN FOREIGN MARKETS.

Dec. 7th., 1917: "I have had another very bad shock. As a result of a careful investigation of all Labrador stocks, one or two red fish have been found in a cargo which I have in store. This has been a great surprise, as everyone here regarded this cargo as perfectly cured, but I made several discoveries yesterday on examining the piles.

I do not know whether there is a copy available in St. John's of Bulletin No. 133 issued by the Bureau of Chemistry of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture in 1911, but if there is, I should think it would be convenient for the Board of Trade to have extracts of same printed for general use. I have made a careful study of it as far as my limited scientific knowledge permits me to do, and as a result I find evidence that that part of the fish in question which is sound to-day may be expected to rot in a very short time. One simple matter that I might mention is that the muscular tissue crumbles if rubbed, although the fish is apparently firm and sound. As you know, when we have damp weather here, the whole of the fish in store "gives," and you may perhaps remember that piles of perfectly dry hard Shore on these occasions have presented almost the appearance of Labrador at the edges. This is of course very natural, as the salt fish is hygroscopic. We have such weather here at present, the atmosphere being charged with moisture, yet the faces of the piles of fish, contrary to our usual experience are bone dry. This seems to be very extraordinary and significant. The fish from one particular cargo has been in store six weeks hardly, and another lot less time. They are, as far as one can judge from appearances, the best cargoes that have reached here, and it is now reasonable to presume that all the Labrador coming forward this season will be without any keeping qualities, and should be put into consumption immediately. This is of course quite impossible.

Dec. 10th., 1917: "Fish turning red is a very old defect, and I believe that in Newfoundland it is generally called 'pink-eye,' while the French have suffered from it for many years with their Newfoundland fish. There is no doubt whatever that there is a perfect epidemic of the complaint this season."

20th December, 1917: "I strongly suggest that the Board of Trade, or indeed the Government, should take the most drastic measures in connection with this disease, or otherwise, probably next season's fish will be effected also. All carrying vessels, scales, barrows, stores where red fish has been through subjected to a most thorough disinfection. It does not matter that the fish was not rotting before it left that side, for the disease seems to be due to a coccus and a bacillus, and one of these causes the reddening, so that the disease can be there in an incipient form without showing signs of red. For the sake of shippers' pockets and my peace of mind, I hope that strong measures will be taken to stop the trouble."

N.B.—A cargo of Labrador fish, which otherwise appeared to be well salted and sound, arrived at its destination showing red fish.

N.B.—Red has also been found in Dry Fish which has arrived on the other side.

CAPT. ARTHUR HOLMES.

There died suddenly at Port McNicholl, Ont., on Saturday, Captain Arthur Holmes, of Nfld. Tidings of this sad event reached his brother, Rev. A. A. Holmes, now stationed at Ft. Grace, Arthur Holmes was born at Fogo, and began his business life at that place in the firm of Edwin Duder, and worked there for several years, where he was favorably known and highly esteemed by those with whom he lived and associated. In the declining days of the old firm he left for Canada, and from there he went to U.S.A., and having made good like many of his countrymen he became captain and part owner of some large ships on the Great Lakes, and it was in this capacity that he became a highly respected official of the firm of Messrs. Pickers, Masher & Co., Cleveland, Ohio. At the time of his death he was at Port McNicholl, looking after the firm's business, and only a few days ago his brother received a most interesting letter from him, which showed he was full of life and vigor, at that time. He was in the prime of manhood, being only 56 years old, had been in command of ships for about 17 years, and had a promising future before him. Capt. Holmes was a man of genial and buoyant disposition, a credit to the country to which he belonged, and a valuable and respected official of the firm in which he was employed.—Cor.

Lemons Beautify!
Make Quarter Pint
of Lotion, Cheap

Here is told how to prepare an inexpensive lemon lotion which can be used to bring back to any skin the sweet freshness, softness, whiteness and beauty.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands, and see for yourself.

J. R. BENNETT,
Acting Minister of Militia,
February 12th, 1918.

The herring fishery ended with the month of January. The last three vessels of the Gorton Pew Company got away on Friday. Three vessels of T. M. Nicholson, Bucksport, Me., got caught in the ice at Woods Island where they may have to remain till spring unless a big change in the ice conditions sets in, as on Monday the drift ice was reported in on the coast. The vessels delayed are, Elizabeth N., T. M. Nicholson and Judique. The former has practically a load of cod-fish and herring. The two other vessels have very little or no cargo. The Gorton Pew vessels which sailed on Friday were the Romance, Fishery and Smuggler. The latter vessel put in at Lark Hr. and we hear she sailed from here on Sunday. The Fishery has on board about 600 bris. frozen herring, the other vessels' cargoes were made up of salt bulk, frozen and pickled herring shipped by the Bay of Islands Fisheries Co.

Herring Fishery at Bay of Islands.

Thorne's schr. Earl Grey, Capt. John McLeod, is yet at Middle Arm where she will likely remain all the winter. She has on board 250 bris. salt bulk herring. She will finish loading should herring be obtainable during the winter.

All our fishermen have now returned home, the last coming in from Middle Arm on Saturday.

Herring are very scarce at Middle Arm just now; but it is expected that in 7 weeks, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. It will require 9 yards of 44-inch material for the entire dress for a 36-inch size. The skirt measures about 2 1/2 yards at the foot.

FATAL AERIAL COLLISION.
LONDON, To-day. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—A fatal aerial collision was reported at the Inquest in Hertfordshire concerning the death of Lieut. Elias Quick Ellis, aged 26, of the Indian Railway Troops, attached to the Royal Flying Corps. Deceased was a cadet named Steadman were in different machines on Friday night. They were seen fifty yards apart each other going in the direction of the sun, but swerved and collided, the machines becoming involved. Both machines fell and the pilot of the latter, Lieut. Ellis, was killed. The other pilot, Steadman, was alive although injured. Steadman was an American.

HELPING WIN THE WAR.
LONDON, To-day. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—From September 2nd last, until February 1st, 1918, the Bank of England received applications for approximately $500 million sterling, and the Post Office for 14,700,000 pounds sterling, and the National War Bonds and Stamps for 150 million of the 15 shillings and 6 pence War Savings Certificates were sold.

MEMBERS EXPRESS APPROVAL.
WASHINGTON, To-day. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Approval of President Wilson's address was expressed by many members of both Houses who thought it opportune and the essence of permanent peace. Senator Reed, Democrat, thought it a shrewd move to disavow Germany and Austria, and regards the speech as an interpretation of the President's utterances. Senator Johnson, Republican, of California, I couldn't have subscribed to all of the President's utterances of January 8th, but I am delighted with some of the statement of the President's war aims address, without any criticism any other messages. I am sure it to-day expresses more than America's thoughts and American hopes in this war and brings us much nearer peace. Addressed to the Chancellors of Germany and Austria and others, said Republican leader.

TRANSPORT AGRAND.
WASHINGTON, To-day. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—A Government freight transport steamer, went aground on the coast near here to-day. Navy and wrecking transports were sent to her assistance. Transport was returning from a trip abroad. Those in touch with the vessel said they didn't believe she was in immediate danger.

ENDORSEMENT WOMAN SUFFRAGE.
WASHINGTON, To-day. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The amendment of the Federal endorsement for woman suffrage was voted by the Executive Committee of the National Democratic Committee here to-day after a referendum to committee men representing 48 states. In the executive committee 28 had voted for the amendment, and 20 had voted against it and six had not been recorded.

UKRAINIAN WESTERN BOUNDARY.
The delimitation of the western boundary of the Ukrainian republic as set forth at the Treaty, shows that a strip of territory approximately 125 miles long and varying in width from some 40 miles in the south to about 45 miles in the north portion, with narrowing down at one point approximately 30 miles, have been taken from the southwest section of Russian Poland. Comparison of names and places at various points on the line as called for in Amsterdam, with maps of territory, shows this part of the boundary to be narrowing on the Galician frontiers as far as Tarlegrad with about 60 miles of inside territory of Russian Poland and running thence north through Belgorod, Selezobyan, Krasnowatsk, Puchezow, (19 miles east of Lublin) Radzy, Miodzyrzec, Sarnaki, and Mielnik (about 40 miles northwest of Brest Litavsk) crossing the Bug River at the Polish boundary line about 25 miles northwest of Brest-Litovsk and through Wysoke Litovsk, Kamiench-Litovsk and Prushany (about 40 miles northeast of Brest-

The Note Writers.

By RUTH CAMERON

RUTH CAMERON

A woman who has the rare gift of seeing her own faults and inadequacies said to me the other day: "You saw that good looking young officer who was here last week? Well, his mother used to live here years ago, she was one of my class at high school. And when I saw her boy ready to go to war I can tell you it made my heart full of old memories and I had a good mind to go home and write her a letter. I was telling Miss Cook about it,—she was another one of the girls in our class,—and she said, 'That's just what I did.' That's the way she always is. She does the kind things other people think about doing. I thought what a nice thing it would be to write that letter. She went home and wrote it. Why can't I be like that?"

Why can't she? And why can't the rest of us? So Few Of Us Go Home And Write It.

We all think kind thoughts, dream of things "we mean to do all complete in a moment or two." But such a small proportion "go home and write it."

It isn't so much the time it takes to do these things as it is the effort to get ourselves started. As I understand it (I never was good at physics) the force it takes to start any vehicle is always greater than that required to keep it going. But what a lot of happiness those "go home and write it" people do scatter around!

Some Recognition Of Neighbourhood Service.

It may be some extra expression of gratitude for a gift already formally acknowledged. It may be a word of appreciation to some writer or artist or singer or speaker. It may be just some gracious recognition of neighbourhood service. I shall never forget how pleased I was after working very hard as the chairman of a luncheon committee at college, when after the thing was over and the tumult and excitement had died down into that miserable state of reaction and listlessness which always follows such effort, I received a charming little note of praise from a professor's wife. It made me feel that my efforts had been worth while, after all, since someone had noticed.

A Word Of Approval For Some Public Man.

Or it may be, as in this case, a long letter to some lost friend. Or it may be a word to some public man who has made some stand of which we approve.

It is said that the late Richard Harding Davis used to either write or telegraph to any new writer who had written a story he thought worth praise. I knew one of these young writers and I know what a treasure his note was to him.

The Nova Scotia "Lumber King" says: "I consider MINARD'S LINIMENT the best LINIMENT in use. I got my foot badly jammed lately. I bathed it well with MINARD'S LINIMENT and it was as well as ever next day."

Household Notes.
Children need whole milk. Scopes with raisins in them are delicious. Cornbread is good served with apple sauce. Expensive fats are no better food than cheap ones. Save all peach and cherry pits to throw on the fire. The chief ingredients of Italian pastry are almonds. Celery and red pepper vinegar is easily made at home. Banana filling makes good filling for the sponge cake. Grocery boxes make very inexpensive kindling wood. The worst form of waste is that which leads to sickness. Crumbs of corncake may be used for making crumb bread. A little pineapple will flavor a large dish of milder fruit. The utmost saving possible comes by growing one's own food.

AMBITION.
Ambition is a slow, relentless maddeningly attacks people in the head and feet and never lets go until the votes are counted. This disease is responsible for more blighted hopes than the counterfeit corn eradicator, which starts out full of promise and winds up with a heavily increased acreage. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred ambition is caused by the office-hunting microbe, which has wrecked so many happy homes and flourishing law practices. This microbe began to do business in this country immediately after George Washington refused a third term in the Presidential office. Washington was the only office-holder of whom we have any record who was immune to the insidious plea of this microbe. When it approached him he spurned it with much indignation and his left foot, preferring to retire to his farm at Mt. Vernon and thus escape the clamor of the post-office petition. Mr. Washington set a noble example for posterity, but posterity's method is to hang on until shaken loose by the icy finger of death or jarred away from the trough by an embittered electorate.

Ambition usually starts out in a small, weak way, like running for justice of the peace or member of the school board, but if not checked in its first stages will usurp the seat of reason. This accounts for the large number of men in Congress who would be of more use to their country in some humble pursuit, like delivering groceries or running a feed stable, but who have yielded to ambition and are now trying to catch up with their campaign expenses. The political graveyard is dotted with the mounds of candidates who entered a primary election with nothing to sustain them except ambition, but who were unable to realize on it at the bank.

Women have just as much ambition as men, but it is better directed. It is the height of a woman's ambition to cook a better turkey or wear a newer gown than anybody in her club, and when she does this she is satisfied. Women always know whether she is destined to be a home body or a social luminary, and you never see her running for some office

LONGING FOR SPRING.

WALY MASCO

The winter is a mean old thing, with ice and snow and blizzard; I'm longing for the breath of spring, with heart and mind and gizzard. The wind that shrieks across the moor grows colder still and stronger; it seems to me I can't endure this winter graft much longer. Oh, winter is a beastly bore! Will spring ever come, I wonder, when I can shut the furnace door, and let it go to thunder? Ah, Gentle Annie, speed your step, and chase out winter burly! Dispel some energy and pep, and get here bright and early. My ears are freezing as they flap—each winter I expect it; and there are frostbites on my map, where sideboards don't protect it. The house is cold, and if I burn some anthracite to heat it, some grim conservator calls the turn, and tells me I should heat it. At night I dream of birds and buds, of streams that glance and quiver, and waking put on frozen duds, and stand around and shiver. I dream of meadows green and kind, with lambs and kindred friskers, and wake at break of day to find a snowdrift in my whiskers. I dream of valleys sweet with hay, of prospects fair and pleasing, and wake upon a winter day, to find my tribby freezing. Oh, I am sick of snow and ice, of blasts that long have tossed me; produce the spring and dern the price—it's worth what it would cost me!

Everyday Etiquette.

"Is it considered correct to place the napkins in the glasses when setting the table for dinner, and on which side of the plate should the water glass be placed?" inquired Mrs. Newlywed.

Take "Cascarets" If Headachy, Bilious And Constipated

Best for liver and bowels, had breath, bad colds, sour stomach. Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach. Poisonous mucus clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache. Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels. A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

Found Dead.

Mrs. Charles Gamberg, widow of the late Charles Gamberg, painter, was found dead at the home of the Misses Harvey, Military Road, last evening at eight o'clock. Mrs. Gamberg was a frequent visitor to the home of Misses Harvey and at times remained as long as a week or ten days. On Saturday last Mrs. Gamberg left her niece's home and not having returned up to supper hour yesterday, Miss Flannigan called to enquire for her. She was informed that her aunt had become ill on Sunday afternoon and had since died. Dr. Roberts was called and held a post mortem, pronounced the woman dead for some time, and that death was due to heart failure. Mrs. Gamberg was 70 years old. Last night the remains were conveyed to Miss Flannigan's from where interment takes place.

Poultry Association.

At last night's meeting of the Nfld. Poultry Association the President, H. W. LeMessurier, Esq., C.M.G., presided. The matter of importation of a quantity of hatching eggs in order to keep up the high poultry standard maintained by the Association was fully discussed. It was decided to take action in the matter and a committee consisting of Messrs. J. F. Calver, Stan White and W. H. Butler were appointed with full powers to undertake the work. It is the intention of the Association to sell the eggs at cost and charges, so that any person wishing to improve his breeding stock can do so by communicating with Secretary Calver. An effort will be made this year to breed a larger number of chicken than ever.

At the Casino.

"Rolling Stones" will be repeated to-night. At the holiday matinee, Wednesday afternoon, "Rich Man—Poor Man" with Miss Dorothy Chesmond in her famous dances. Wednesday and Thursday nights the funniest of all the comedies: "Nearly Married" will be presented with Miss Lillian Worth in the latest popular songs as an added attraction.

Highlanders "At Home"

The annual "At Home" of the Nfld. Highlanders which was held last night in the British Hall, was a unique success and one of the most enjoyable affairs held in many years. Over two hundred persons were present and included representatives from H. M. S. Briton, the Regiment, C. I. B. C. C. and Frontiersmen. A splendid programme was gone through which consisted of the following:—Songs by Mrs. F. J. King, Misses Jean Strang and Mary Ryan, a reading by Petty Officer Brett, and a selection by the C. I. B. Band. Immediately after the concert dancing was taken up and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves up to midnight, when supper was served. Dancing was resumed after supper and kept up till the "wee sma' hours" of the morning. The supper which was so kindly served by Mrs. Paterson and the young lady friends of the Brigade was thoroughly enjoyed. The decorations of the ballroom were very prettily arranged and much admired. The music by the C. I. B. Band was of the usual high order.

FATAL AERIAL COLLISION.

LONDON, To-day. (The Reuters' Ottawa Agency)—A report of an accidental death was received at the inquest in Hertfordshire concerning the death of Lieut. Douglas Quirk Ellis, aged 25, of the Royal Flying Corps, attached to the 1st Squadron, Royal Flying Corps, at a Cadet training camp on Friday. The machine was seen flying over the camp. They were seen fifty yards from the ground, but swerved and fell. Both machines fell and the bodies of the pilots were seen falling from the debris. C a d e t Ellis was alive although injured. The home of Lieut. Ellis is in Toronto. The name is an American.

HELPING WIN THE WAR.

LONDON, To-day. (Reuters' Ottawa Agency)—From the Bank of England report, the Bank of England received applications for approximately $3 million sterling, and the Post Office for £7,000,000 pounds sterling, and the National War Bonds and Stamps Office for £15 million of the 15 shilling and 10 shilling War Savings Certificates and 4 pence War Savings Certificates were sold.

MEMBERS EXPRESS APPROVAL.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Approval of President Wilson's address was expressed by many members of both Houses who thought it represented the essence of permanent peace. Senator Reed, Democrat, thought it a shrewd move to disregard the speech of January 9th. Said the speaker of the House, Mr. Clegg, I could not have subscribed to all of the President's utterances of January 9th, but I am delighted with all of the President's utterances of January 10th and its moderation of some of the statements of the President's war aims address. I am sure it to-day expresses more fully America's thoughts and American hopes in this war and brings much nearer peace. Address mainly while spoken to House wasn't addressed to it. It was addressed to the Chancellors of Germany and Austria and others, said Republican leader.

TRANSPORT AGREEMENT.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, To-day. A Government freight transport, formerly an American coastwise steamer, went aground on the coast here to-day. The steamer was wrecked and the crew were rescued. The transport was returning from a trip to the coast. Those in touch with the vessel said they did not believe she was in immediate danger.

ENDORSEMENT WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The endorsement of the Federal amendment for woman suffrage was voted by the Executive committee of the National Democratic Committee here today after a referendum to the committee men representing 48 states. In the executive committee 28 had voted for the amendment, 14 had voted against it and six had not been present.

UKRAINIAN WESTERN BOUNDARY.

The delimitation of the western boundary of the Ukrainian republic as set forth in the Treaty, shows that a strip of territory approximately 135 miles long and varying in width from 40 miles in the south to about 10 miles in the north portion, with a narrow down at one point approximately 30 miles, have been taken from the southeast section of Russian Poland. Comparison of names and places at various points on the line as cabled from Amsterdam, with maps of territory, shows this part of the boundary to be narrowing on the Galician frontiers as far as Tarlegrad with about 60 miles of inside territory of Russian Poland and running thence north through Belgoray, Schemstevan, Krasnowastak, Puchnow (15 miles east of Lublin) Radom, Miodyrecz, Sarnaki, and Mielnik (about 40 miles northwest of Brest Litovsk) crossing the Bug River at the Polish boundary line about 25 miles northwest of Brest-Litovsk and through Wysoke Litovsk, Kamienich-Litovsk and Prushany (about 40 miles northeast of Brest-

SUNK BY COLLISION.

LONDON, To-day. The British torpedo boat destroyer Boxer was sunk on the night of Feb. 8th in the English Channel as a result of collision, the Admiralty announced to-day. One boy is missing. The destroyer Boxer displaced 280 tons, was 200 feet long and 19 feet beam; built in 1894. Her complement consisted of 50 officers and men. She carried one 3 inch gun and five six pounders. She was equipped with 18 inch torpedo tubes. She was capable of travelling at a speed of 27 knots.

IMPORTANCE OF TANKS.

PARIS, To-day. (Correspondent of Associated Press)—Tanks are expected to play a more prominent part in French operations during the coming spring and summer, following the creation of a special department in the French War Office to deal with this problem. In a report made recently to the President of the French Republic, Premier Clemenceau said that artillery is becoming of great importance on the battlefield. The period of a trial is at an end, experience having shown what can be expected of a large amount of this kind of artillery when thoroughly the hope and well handled. The time has come to treat it as one of the regular arms of the service and place it under the control of the War Ministry instead of the Munitions Ministry. Henceforth quantities and the type required will be decided by the War Minister after consultation with the Minister of Munitions who will see to their manufacture.

NEUTRAL SHIPS SAIL.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, To-day. Two Spanish passenger ships which had been detained here for eight days sailed to-day after receiving permission from Washington. Some cargo was discharged before permission to depart was granted. The U.S. custom inspectors accompanied one ship on her voyage to West Indies and South American ports at the request of the ship's agents to observe the discharge and receipt of the cargo with the hope of expediting the vessel's trip to Spain on her return to this port in five weeks.

ROOSEVELT'S CONDITION.

NEW YORK, To-day. Colonel Roosevelt was not so well to-day, according to a bulletin issued by his Private Secretary to-night after his physician had spent half an hour with him at hospital. It was expected however that he would pass a more restful night.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

LONDON, To-day. The official statement issued by the War Office this evening says some prisoners were taken in raid of Australians last night south of Messines and three German machine guns and one trench mortar also captured. Heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy. In addition to losses caused by our preliminary bombardment, it is estimated that 100 Germans were killed by our raiding party. An enemy counter attack was successfully repulsed. We had some 20 casualties. Hostile artillery showed intermittent activity to-day southwest and west of Cambrai. In this area a number of German working parties were engaged with effect by our batteries.

REFUSES TO QUIT.

BUENOS AIRES, To-day. The railway strike apparently is falling, through refusal of Italians and Britons to quit work. These men have declined to leave their jobs and a Commission who sent joint distribution committee of the American fund for Jewish war sufferers which returned here yesterday that more than 200,000 Jews in Poland and Lithuania are starving. Commission reported that there is no work and the conditions in which people are living have caused epidemics of typhus in many sections. In Warsaw the papers carry regularly advertisements which are reported deaths of Jews from starvation.

NOT TAKEN SERIOUSLY.

PARIS, To-day. The peace treaty between the Central Powers and the Ukraine is not taken seriously in French official or semi-official circles, first because one knows whether it will ever become effective, and second because whether effective or not, people in Ukraine have not been able, under present circumstances, to have their say.

LONDON COMMENT.

LONDON, To-day. President Wilson's address is given the same prominence that all his utterances receive in the morning newspapers, but the text reached the papers too late for more than perfunctory comment on a few outstanding sentences. The President's attitude toward the speech of Count von Hertling receives the main attention, and in this the President is regarded as having gone into the heart of the matter.

SUCCESSFUL RAIDS.

LONDON, To-day. A hostile raiding party attacked one of our posts last night north of Epey but was driven off by our fire, the War Office reports. Yesterday evening Manchester troops successfully raided German trenches west of LaBasse. Many casualties were inflicted on the enemy at slight cost to ourselves, and even prisoners and a machine gun were captured.

ELECTION FORECASTED.

LONDON, To-day. Members of both Houses of Parliament are expected to-day for the opening of the eighth session of the longest Parliament in modern times, and a session which is equally certain to be the last, and which will be followed by a general election upon largely extended franchise with women voting for the first time in the country's history.

SOMETHING DOING SOON.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, To-day.

The tension along the British-German front is tightening as the extraordinarily bright mild weather has continued to dry out the sodden fields. The two great armies have become more alert. The British are holding the Western theatre was held in the grip of snow and were impassable has disappeared. The British are watching for a general offensive. German troops and guns keep pouring into the Western front and there are indications that a few Austrian units are in Flanders. Certain areas back of the German ground have been cleared for action and daily bodies of troops have been practicing attacks under the tutelage of experts. Prisoners say that leave for the soldiers was stopped on January 2nd. So far as actual fighting is concerned it is still confined to identification raids and actions and occasional bursts of artillery. Along many miles of the front which a correspondent visited in the past two days there is an ominous quiet. One may sit for hours on a vantage point and see the German lines that the enemy can be seen working about, yet there are few signs of strife. The enemy is playing possum, or is ignoring the military movements behind the British lines, and the British themselves are sitting tight. But the silence is uneasy and it is also portentous. Naturally the Allied preparations cannot be discussed, but it may be said that everywhere there is a spirit of optimism. Every soldier in the long line knows what is coming and smiles with assurance, for he knows what his support is. The Allies still have a preponderance of men and guns along this front and they also have the inclination to use this advantage. The Germans still come from their opponents have not wasted the winter months.

SOLELY FROM GERMAN SOURCES.

LONDON, To-day. All news concerning the relations of the Central Powers and the Russian factions still comes solely from Germany; Petrograd remaining completely silent. It is not yet known here whether the Ukraine Rada actually exercises the power transferred to the pact of the Ukrainian delegates at Brest Litovsk, or whether it is true, as is claimed by the Bolsheviks, that it has ceased to exist. This question as viewed here, however, has lost much of its consequence in the light of the German statement that the Bolsheviks themselves finally have thrown up the sponge to the Central Powers. From a purely military aspect this fact is not regarded as altering the situation materially, as the Russian army had long ceased to count in Western calculations. But as a political and economic event it is considered of great significance. The general tendency of the moment is to regard it as having created a situation exceedingly advantageous to Germany. While the recognized international disorganization of Russia must substantially hinder the complete realization of the benefits, no doubt is felt that later she will know how to exploit Russia's resources of food, and toward the commodities at the earliest practicable moment. The political advantages she can reap from the new situation are regarded quite equally important.

Shipwrecked Crew Arrives.

CAPTAIN NORRIS STICKS TO HIS SHEP.

Mate Michael Norris, Cooks Willis Wiseman, Boatwain P. Wells, Seaman Elias Norris, all of Three Arms, N.D.B. and Seaman William Casey, of Conche, members of the crew of the ill-fated schooner Lucania, which became a total wreck at Freshwater Light, Ferryland, on Sunday last, reached the city by to-day's express. Capt. A. Norris remained at the scene and is looking after the salvaging of the cargo. The Telegram interviewed the crew on arrival and learned from them a few facts in relation to the loss of the Lucania. The ship left this port at 4.30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, and up till midnight that day made good progress. Early next morning a stiff breeze sprang up from the S. E. the sky darkened, showing every indication of a severe storm. About 8 a.m. the seas and wind increased with such force that the order had to be given to shorten sail. With all light canvas stowed and the heavy sails shortened down the Lucania stood up well against the boisterous sea which threatened at times to pound her to pieces. Being heavily laden and practically on a lee shore, Capt. Norris decided that when opportunity offered he would run his ship to land. About 11.30 the ship was standing several miles off Ferryland Head, which was then practically hidden from view by a blinding snow storm, which sprang up suddenly. At 3 p.m. the Lucania, which was dashed upon the rocks. The ship's boat was immediately thrown overboard, in which Mate Norris and four others of the crew managed to make the land. Capt. Norris at the risk of losing his life stuck to his ship, but was taken off later by a crew from a shore. The cargo, which is but slightly damaged, is being salvaged.

Your Boys and Girls.

The baby cart is a great convenience for the mother as it can be taken on street cars and permits of the mother getting out many times when otherwise it would be impossible to leave the little one. Such carts should be used only for the purpose for which they are intended; to convey baby short distances and not for pleasure riding. Nor should the baby be left to sit fastened in for any length of time.

The best vehicle for ordinary use about the house, is one at least two feet high. It should have room for baby, in any position with the necessary wrappings and a cover that can be readily adjusted for necessary protection. It should have strong, well-balanced springs and stand squarely on four wheels. A safety strap that fastens about the baby's waist, gives greater protection than the ordinary carriage strap.

If your child has weak ankles it is a good plan to give her foot a bath twice daily in tepid water, using a pure white soap and drying the feet quickly with a soft towel. Follow with a plunge in cold water and let the feet remain in it for at least five minutes. Dry with a coarse towel, rubbing until the blood tingles, then finish with an application of alcohol, rubbing up and down until all the liquid has evaporated. You will see an improvement in two weeks.

On Wednesday—"ENGLAND EXPECTS"—A 3 reel Patriotic War Feature.

IT IS ONLY LATELY THAT WE HAVE BEEN HITTING

The Men's and Boys' Ready-Made Business.

Therefore as this Department of ours may be somewhat of a stranger to the buying public, we have to give it a little puff. Whilst we do not consider that we are yet in this Department, as the present is now a difficult time to start anything, nevertheless we flatter ourselves that with the public with several lines, even if we do say it ourselves. Another thing which we know is sure to make a "hit" is a lot of Men's Striped Worsted Trousers, at $5.00 per pair.

"IT"

This may seem a bit of a price now, but you will not think so in about ten years' time when you will still be getting good wear out of them, and will be able to say "I bought those trousers the time of the War," and if the War is not then over, you will be glad you bought a good pair of Trousers.

The material in them is a pre-war English Striped Worsted Trousering, which goods is now impossible to get. It is warm and of wonderful wearing qualities, and we can highly recommend these Trousers.
