REMORSE and REPENTANCE.

For Daisy's Sake

CHAPTER XXII.

"THE DIE WAS CAST."

She was like a solitary leaf blown hither and thither by the winds of destiny, with no volition of her own. Why struggle against overwhelming fate? She looked appealingly into the old doctor's stern, questioning eyes, and faltered despairingly:

"You can tell him that—that I will—stay."

Then, before he could put out an arresting hand, she swayed like a broken flower, and fell unconscious at his feet.

Meanwhile, Dallas Bain—an equal victim with Daisy in the diabolical plot that had sundered two devoted hearts—had gone away, indeed, fooled by the cunning of an unscrupulous woman, who, angered by his scorn, had sworn to wreck his hopes by parting him from his beautiful young love forever.

She had succeeded but too well, and could laugh now at the success of her treacherous schemes.

Letty Green had, indeed, visited him at the hotel that night, but it was as the tool of her wicked mistress, bought over to evil by a tempting bribe.

She had carried to Dallas the first news of the attempted murder of Royal Sherwood, and also a note purporting to be from Daisy, in which she stated that she felt it her duty to remain with her husband, as the physician represented that his only chance of life lay in her forgiveness.

Mrs. Fleming was an adept at counterfeiting penmanship, and it was a very fair sample of Daisy's in which she wrote:

All is over between us, Dallas, though I love you best, for duty binds me to my suffering husband. And this tie of duty I shall faithfully observe, for I pity him now; and as pity is akin to love, perhaps I may forget my infatuation for you, and learn to love him yet. This would be the best way out of my trouble, so I pray you not to urge me to see you again, but to pass out of my life as if you had never existed. It will help me to forget the sooner, and God knows I have need to forget.

Dallas Bain was almost stunned by

Could Not Sleep

Mr. Earnest Clark, Police Officer, 338 King St., Kingston, Ont., writes:

"For three years I suffered from nervousness and sleeplessness. I believe my condition was brought about by overwork. I had frequent headaches, neuralgic pains and twitching of nerves and muscles. I had indigestion, was short of breath and easily tired. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and seven boxes of this medicine cured me of all my symptoms. I am now feeling one hundred per cent. better than I was, and have to thank Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for the good health I am now enjoying."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 4 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edman, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

GERALD S. DOYLE, Distributing Agent.

the weight of his misfortunes, but all his cross-examination of smiling Letty did not trip the clever little maid, who had been well tutored by her mistress, and did not forget her part.

With a smile on her treacherous lips, Letty told glib stories of how the young bride had clung to her wounded husband, beseeching him to live for her sake, that she would never leave him again, et cetera, until the listener's heart sank like a stone in his breast.

"And he will live?" Dallas asked presently, in a husky voice that she scarcely knew as his own, it was so changed by grief.

"Oh, yes, sir—or, at least, the doctor hopes so, and thinks it likely; but she told Mrs. Sherwood flatly that if she left him he was sure to die. She said she shouldn't think of such a thing; so then Mr. Sherwood was delighted, and said he didn't mean to die, in spite of the cruel rival who had meant to kill him."

Then, for the first time, Dallas felt some curiosity over Sherwood, and asked:

"Who was it that shot him?"

The maid gave him a searching glance, and answered pertly:

"No names were called, but everybody is saying that the deed was done by some lover of the lady who was mad about her marriage."

"Meaning me?" he asked, with a scornful glance; and Letty giggled, without answering.

He regarded her sternly a moment; then said:

"Go back to—the lady that sent you here, and tell her it shall be as she wishes. I am leaving for New York on the first train, and I shall never cross her path again."

"Yes, sir—and I make no doubt she will be glad to hear it. Old sweethearts are just in the way when a girl is once married," Letty uttered mockingly, as she frowned out of the presence of the man she had deceived to carry on her nefarious work.

The next step was to go to the station and board the same train with Dallas, so as to lend color to the story of her elopement, as related in the letter that Cullen had shown to Daisy, it also having been written by the clever little schemer, Mrs. Fleming.

So the cruel deed was done, and two loving hearts forced asunder to tread divided paths in a wretched life made desolate in its dawning by the tragedy of hopeless love.

The jealous pain of Dallas mixed with his grief.

He could understand from Letty's garbled story what an influence had been brought to bear on the young girl's heart, and how she had almost been forced into submission.

His grief for her was as bitter as for himself, and he knew it was better to go away, as she had said, and never see her again, since they were sundered by so insurmountable an obstacle.

One thing racked his heart in her letter. It was the hope she expressed that she might forget him and learn to love her husband.

"That was cruel, but she did not mean it so, poor little Daisy, my lost love!" he sighed; and he resolved that he would try to forget her also, since to remember was but pain. "Let her forget me if she will. I, too, will forget—if I can."

The end of it was that presently he went away to New York with the heaviest heart in the world, leaving behind him the scene of his brief love dream, with its blended joy and sorrow, to take up in sadness the burden of a life whence hope had fled, and to try to down memory in Lethe's tide.

CHAPTER XXIII.
"MISERY LOVES COMPANY."

Though Letty Green conspicuously boarded the same train that he took, she was very careful not to occupy the same car, lest he should see her and have his suspicions aroused. Indeed, her concern with him ended here, for she had a fat roll of money with which to enjoy herself in the great city, and she now gave herself up to joyful anticipations of triumphs awaiting her in the near future.

As for Dallas, he threw himself moodily into a seat, and became a prey to such unpleasant reflections that it would have taken little less than an earthquake to attract his attention. The nearest thing to it, however—a collision with another train—suddenly brought him back, with a terrible shock, to things sublimary.

All at once there was a terrible rumble, then a shock that telescoped the train and made it a jumble of and bleeding humanity, on which the gray light of early dawn shone with dim gleams through a drizzle of summer rain.

Dallas felt himself hurled violently somewhere—to death, he hoped, in that brief moment before he landed with a dull thud on the soft grass in a field close by the railroad.

He lay still a few moments, feeling as if every bone in his body were broken, and just waiting languidly for death to still his fluttering breath.

The thought came to him of Daisy. Would she be sorry when she heard he was dead? That he had met his death obeying her wish, that he should go away forever?

Then he became conscious of groans, and cries, and anxious voices. People were going about among the dead and wounded, helping them out from the awful wreck.

Two of the trainmen bent over him, saying:

"Look at this fellow, hurled through the roof of the car out into the hay field. Is he dead, or just stunned?"

Dallas opened wide his large black eyes, and gave them a start.

"Not dead, you see, thanks to this shock of hay I fell on. I thought at first my bones were all broken, but give me your hands, and let's see if I can stand up. So! Why, I'm as sound as a dollar!" in amazement.

It was true. Death had passed him by, to take others not as willing to go as this unhappy lover.

Several persons had been killed outright, and as many more wounded, so Dallas joined the relief corps that was so busy, and in his anxiety over others forgot for a while his own grief.

Hearing painful groans from beneath a pile of timbers, he set to work removing them, when he was arrested by the groaning voice muttering:

"Don't try to help me—let me die in this trap! It's as good as I deserve!"

"We might all be dead, friend, if we got our just deserts," replied Dallas, and did not desist until he dragged out the imprisoned man from the obstructions that had pinned him down.

"Your arm's broken, my poor fellow," he said sympathetically to the dark, handsome young man, who opened his eyes, stared at him a moment in pallid wonder, then fainted dead away like a girl.

This did not surprise Dallas, who feared that the man might be internally injured.

But he borrowed a flask of whisky from the porter, and set to work to revive him with fine success.

The dark eyes opened again, and the man groaned woefully:

"So I'm dead, and yours is the first shade to greet me in the infernal regions, Dallas Bain?"

Laughing shortly, Dallas answered: "I don't know where we've met before, friend, but that's my name, and I hope you'll pardon my short memory in forgetting you. But really you've made a mistake. We are both on top of the ground yet, and you seem likely to survive your accident."

"So much the worse! I deserve death, and desired it!" groaned the wounded man, adding: "But you, Dallas Bain, aren't you dead?" resentfully.

"Didn't some one shoot you last night?"

"Oh, no—it was another fellow, an acquaintance of mine—Royal Sherwood, down at Gull Beach, and he isn't dead, but going to get well, they say. What do you know about it, anyway?" with sudden suspicion.

"Nothing; but I hoped—I mean—I thought—or heard—you were killed."

"No much matter if I had been. When a fellow's sweetheart has just married another man he doesn't cling to life for a while," Dallas murmured cynically.

"Your sweetheart—married—to another? Her name?" demanded the other, in such tragic earnest that Dallas could not help confiding in him, so he said sadly:

An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish.

Be it enacted by the Governor, the Legislative Council and House of Assembly, in Legislative Session convened, as follows:—

1. There shall be a Codfish Exportation Board (hereinafter called the Board) which shall consist of seven members, namely the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who shall be Chairman, four members appointed by the Governor-in-Council, who shall be licensed exporters of Codfish, and two members appointed by a majority of the exporters of Codfish holding licenses thereunder. Three members shall constitute a quorum of the Board at any meeting thereof for the transaction of business. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries shall have power to appoint a substitute to act in his place as Chairman at any time during his absence. A vacancy in the Board shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment was made, and in the temporary absence, through any unavoidable cause, of a member, the Governor-in-Council or the licensed exporters, as the case may be, may appoint a substitute to act in his place during such absence. Failure on the part of the said exporters to nominate or appoint any members of the Board shall not prejudice or invalidate any acts or proceedings of the Board.

2. It shall be the duty of the Board to advise the Governor-in-Council generally as to the exportation and marketing of salt codfish; and more particularly to recommend to the Governor-in-Council rules to regulate:—

- (1) The issue, holding, suspension and cancellation of licenses to export salt codfish.
  - (2) The conditions and terms of — abroad.
  - (3) The minimum prices for the sale of salt codfish in particular markets at particular times.
  - (4) The maximum quantity of salt codfish which may be sold for or exported to any particular market at any particular time.
  - (5) The Board may also from time to time recommend the modification, suspension, or repeal of any rule already approved and published in the Royal Gazette.
3. Any rule recommended by the Board, approved by the Governor-in-Council and published in the Royal Gazette shall have the same force of law as if included in this Act. Such rule may be modified, suspended or repealed by a new rule, recommended by the Board, approved by the Governor-in-Council and published in the Royal Gazette. Immediate notice by telegram of any new rule or the amendment of any existing rule shall be given by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to all licensed exporters of codfish. In recommending any rule respecting the fixing of prices the Board shall not have power to interfere with any contract lawfully made under Rules and Regulations existing at the time of the finalizing of such contract.

4. (1) No salt codfish shall hereafter be exported except under license. Such license shall be granted to any applicant who shall comply with the rules made under this Act. A fee of Fifty Dollars ($50.00) shall be payable by the applicant on the issue of every license, and in addition a fee of ten cents per quintal on every quintal of cured salt codfish, and five cents per quintal on all green codfish; provided that the initial fee of Fifty Dollars shall not be payable by any fisherman exporter who exports codfish in shipments of less than one hundred quintals each. The Board shall have an absolute discretion to determine whether or not any applicant is a fisherman exporter.

(2) Such license shall be in force until the thirty-first day of December of the year in which it is issued.

(3) Such license may be suspended or cancelled by the Governor-in-Council for non-compliance with, or breach of, the provisions of this Act, or the rules issued under the authority of this Act.

5. A meeting of all exporters of Codfish shall be convened by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries during the first week in September in each year to consider and discuss with the Codfish Exportation Board all matters relating to the exportation of codfish for the ensuing season. Such meeting shall be held at St. John's and two weeks' notice thereof shall be given.

6. It shall be the duty of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to carry out the provisions of this Act; to forward to the Governor-in-Council the advice and recommendations of the Board; and to report to the Governor-in-Council the non-compliance with and breaches of the provisions of this Act or the Rules issued under the authority of this Act.

7. The Governor-in-Council shall have power to appoint Trade Commissioners or Government Agents, to act in any country or place in the interest of this Colony and its trade, and shall have powers to prescribe their duties and fix their salaries, which shall be payable out of the revenue of the Colony. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries shall have power to authorize, and direct the carrying on of research work in connection with the fisheries of the Colony, the cost and expense of which shall be payable out of the revenue of the Colony. All fees paid under the provisions of section four of this Act shall be collected by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and paid by him into the public treasury.

8. Sections 3 and 4 of this Act shall have effect as though they were included in Chapter 22 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series), entitled "Of the Customs"; and the provisions of that Chapter, and of any Act amending or extending that Chapter shall apply accordingly; and if any person ships or attempts to ship, codfish in contravention of any rules made under this Act with respect to exportation, he shall be liable to a penalty equal to the value of such codfish including the duty thereon, ang17.21.24.28.31.sep4.7.11

75,000 Pounds of Bolshevik Gold

Held by British Labor Organ--- Lord Derby Resigns Ambassadorship---MacSweeney Entering Danger Stage---Poles Take Prisoners and Guns.

HAS BOLSHEVIK MONEY.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—Admission was made this morning by the Herald, the organ of the Labor Party that it has in its possession seventy-five thousand pounds of Bolshevik gold. The newspaper states the money is being held pending a decision of the shareholders as to whether it should be used. The opinion of readers as to the acceptance of the money is asked by the newspaper which publishes the admission on its first page under glaring headlines and says "to accept will be to complete a notable episode in International Socialism. The increasing cost of production and political shyness of advertisers make it necessary for us at once to double the price of this paper if this money is not accepted."

SOVIET LEADER RETURNS TO CONSULT GOVERNMENT.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—Leo Kameneff, President of the Moscow Soviet, will leave London for Moscow Saturday, it is said, with approval of Lloyd George, to consult his government on the future relations and questions between the two governments and with the understanding that he returns to London at the end of September. Leonide Krassin will remain in London.

DERBY'S RESIGNATION.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Reports that the resignation of the Earl of Derby as British Ambassador to France was caused by a disagreement with the British Government over the policy to be followed in Russia were denied by the retiring Ambassador last night. Asked whether he would resume political work he said he preferred the phrase used by Asquith "Wait and See."

POLES SCORE MAJOR SUCCESS.

WARSAW, Sept. 10.—The Polish armies on the north-eastern front delivered a series of successful attacks upon the Russians yesterday and took thirty-three hundred prisoners, four guns and two armoured trains.

MURPHY U.S. CITIZEN?

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The Irish Progressive League announced yesterday that Secretary of State Coghly had cabled the United States Consul at Cork for a full report on Patrick Joseph Murphy, hunger strike prisoner in jail there, who is said by the League to be a citizen of the United States.

MACSWEENEY ENTERING DANGER STAGE.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—Mayor MacSweeney is entering the danger stage of his fast. One of the physicians in Guy's Hospital, a recognized authority on metabolism falls and several Alpine villages are isolated. Four persons are reported to have been killed and many injured. Slighter shocks also were reported in the Swiss Alps around Zermatt and Fontreina, but there were no casualties.

Jack Fisher Fishes Out His Cousin.

What came near being a tragedy occurred at Hard Scramble, Humber River, a few days ago. Mr. Fisher, of Corner Brook, his daughter and some grandchildren were camped there. While Mr. Fisher was at another part of the river fishing, Grace Fisher, daughter of Joseph Fisher, over 16 years of age, waded beyond her depth and got swept out with the current. Mrs. Campbell, her aunt made endeavours to reach the girl but without success. Jack Fisher, son of Dr. Fisher, a lad of thirteen summers, who happened to be a little distance away at the time, hearing the screams rushed to the scene, and throwing off his coat plunged into the river to the rescue of his cousin who was then sinking for the second time. He had to dive beneath the surface of the water and seized her by the hair of the head.—Western Star.

OTHER TABLETS NOT ASPIRIN AT ALL

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Genuine Aspirin

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, you are not getting Aspirin—Remember this! Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" are now made in America by an American Company. No German interest whatever, all rights being purchased from the United States Government.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. The "Bayer Cross" is your sure way of knowing that you are getting genuine Aspirin, proved safe by millions for Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for pain generally.

Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 761), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacid-ester of Salicylicacid.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger size "Bayer" packages can be had at drug stores.

Strange Marine Creature at Pt. Saunders

Fisherman has Tussel for Life.
Ted Perry, of Parsons Pond, recently had an experience that he is not likely soon to forget, and can yet show indisputable evidence of the same upon his legs. He was out fishing in a dory between Kippie Island and the mainland when he was attacked by a strange looking monster of the sea. It first appeared on one side of the dory and reared some six or eight feet out of the water. It had a sharp nose and eyes like saucers. It went down and while Perry was looking for it to appear again on the same side, it came up on the opposite side and reached in over the dory and caught him by the leg and dragged him almost out of the boat, when his trouser leg gave way, the dory in the meantime being nearly half full of water. Perry lay down in the bottom of the dory, the huge creature appeared again and was reaching in over the side of Perry's dory when a motor boat some little distance away, witnessing the conflict drew near to the assistance of the unfortunate fisherman. The exhaust of the engine of the motor boat is thought to have frightened it for it moved off. Perry had a good view of it when he was laying in the bottom of the dory. It had a large mouth and 4 rows of teeth. It is quite likely that it is the same species of marine creature that attacked that Lark Hr. boat a few years ago and drove its teeth through the side of the dory and pulled it under water.—Western Star.

WOMEN'S AIMS.

CHRISTIANIA, Sept. 10.—Speaking at the formal opening of the International Congress of Women, Lady Aberdeen said that the council would support the League of Nations and would demand equal political, financial and judicial rights with men and the same moral codes for men as for women.

STILL CONSCIOUS.

FURTHER EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS.

Injured in Saw Mill.

S.S. Susu, Capt. Roberts, arrived at 120 this morning from Carmanville direct, bringing along Charles Tulk, who was seriously injured while working in his saw mill Thursday morning. Tulk while running a log through a saw was hit in the abdomen by one of the "dog" fasteners which in some manner broke loose. The Susu which was loading fish at Fogo was ordered direct to Carmanville with a doctor, and in the meantime the doctor at Musgrave was called and was in attendance when the Susu arrived. Tulk besides receiving severe injuries to his stomach had his right fracture. On the arrival of the Susu this morning the ambulance, was on hand and conveyed the injured man to hospital for treatment.

Vivacious, fluent, dapper, M. Edouard Belin, the inventor of the remarkable process for the transmission of photographs by telephone, the efficiency of which was demonstrated by the pictures (telephoned from Antwerp) printed in the Continental Daily Mail on recently and reproduced in the Daily Mail yesterday, has the appearance more of an energetic man of business than of a scientist. "I was originally a law student," M. Belin told me this evening, "and the idea of transmitting pictures by telephone came to me in 1896, when I was attending the first exhibition in the provincial town where I lived of the earliest cinematograph film. "Shortly after that I gave up the law and devoted my time to scientific research. In 1904 I took out the first patent in France for the transmission of pictures by telegraph. "Familiar as I am with wireless telegraphy and telephony, I am constantly amazed at their limitless possibilities, and at the revolutionary changes that will be made by their development."

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE AMALGAMATED ORDER OF GLOOM DISPENSERS.

RUTH CAMERON

Is there among your correspondents a yon e whose handwriting makes you, before you open the envelope, mentally brace yourself against the outpouring of troubles and complaints and disconcert you know it will contain?

It seem to me that this type of person—the person who regards a letter as a vessel into which to pour all his worries and depression and discouragements ready to burst forth from the defenseless head of the recipient, certainly deserves honorable mention in The Amalgamated Order of Gloom Dispensers.

The Infinite Possibilities of the Postman.

The other night at the end of a very hard day I saw the postman coming up the steps and my heart felt the lift of eternal hope, as most hearts do at the coming of the postman with his bag of infinite possibilities across his shoulders.

But when I saw the handwriting on the letter he gave me, hope eternal was slain again. I put the letter in my pocket for a few minutes before I had the courage to open it. And when I opened it, it was even as I had expected. The letter consisted chiefly of a lengthy account of the funeral services of a friend of my correspondent, interspersed with details of a minor illness suffered by the writer, an unpleasant accident which befell a relative and some complaints about the weather and the difficulties of getting a maid.

She Has Had Few Real Troubles in Her Life.

Of course the funeral service was an unexpected piece of news. She does not regularly write of funeral services but the rest of the letter ran true to form. Strangely enough this woman is one who enjoys considerable material prosperity and has little hardship or sorrow in her present life. She has several healthy children, though she is approaching middle age her father and mother are living. And yet her letters are almost invariably filled with this note of gloom and complaint.

Why do people do it? Chiefly I suppose because they do not realize that they are doing it.

No Wonder Her Husband Wants To Get Out Again.

Of course writing about one's real or fancied burdens is an outlet to pent up emotion. The dispenser of epistolary gloom is like the woman who waits for her husband to come home so that she may tell him all of the petty annoyances of the day—how the baby spilt the ink and the butcher brought a poor piece of meat and the iceman went by with the card right in the window, etc., etc. She lifts a load off her spirit in telling these things and she does not realize that she may thrust down another spirit in doing it.

You remember doubtless the story of Lincoln's reaction when a member of his cabinet showed him a letter full of righteous indignation which he had written to another public official. "That's right," said Lincoln. "Get it off your chest" (or words to that effect). But when the writer started to put the letter in an envelope, Lincoln said "Oh, don't do that. Don't mail it. Put it in the waste basket. You've got all that out of your system. Write another letter to-morrow when you feel calmer" (or words to that effect).

I think that would be excellent advice for all the members of the letter writing chapter of the Amalgamated Order of Gloom Dispensers.

THE "GRUB" PEST.

To prevent damage to plants and shrubs a simple remedy is a weak solution of Sulphate of Ammonia. Use 1/4 oz. of Sulphate to one gallon of water. On no account use a stronger solution or you may "burn" the plants.

We have a limited quantity of Sulphate of Ammonia at our Showroom, Oke Building. Full instructions given with each package.

The Labor problem is no problem at all to Carl Paulson, who has just arrived at New York from Copenhagen with his wife and 15 children to operate a farm in Minnesota. He explained that if he couldn't get the work done with this force, he'd send home for reserves—two married daughters and three married sons, and nine grandchildren.

Samuel Inestone, a London merchant and ship-owner, desiring to change orders which were being taken to Paris by an aviator for the shipment of coal to Marseilles, appealed to the British Air Ministry, and in a few minutes was calling from his desk telephone to get the aviator in flight. After calling twice he heard the aviator saying: "Chattaway speaking; who's calling?" He could hear the propeller and the aviator's voice sounded as if he were in the room. He said he was flying over Folkestone, with ten passengers aboard his airplane. The orders were given and obeyed.

DETERMINATION.

WALTY MASON

Jonah said he'd bet some kale he could travel in a whale. All the village sports were shocked and they joshed him and they mocked. "No one ever yet," they cried, "journeyed in a whale's side. It would be all kinds of fun, but, alas, it can't be done. For the fish's throat's so small it can't bolt big things at all; even if you got inside you'd be smothered soon," they cried; "you could not the trip endure, for the ventilation's poor." "That's the way all tinhorn's spiel," answered Jonah, off the reel; "just because no other male ever traveled in a whale, you insist it can't be did, but I'll bet my Sabbath lid that I'll pull the stunt ere long, just to show you're all in wrong. No one ever makes a hit if he's willing to admit that a stunt's beyond his skill; he should say, 'I can't! I will!' Obstacles are doubtless there, trouble, grief and woe to spare, he must face a score of foes, but he laughs at things like those. Men who tatter, doubt and quail, never travel in a whale. When I say I'd do a thing you may bet your wedding ring that I'll win or break a slat; you may bet your roll on that."

Notes and Comments.

Arthur Jackson, 46, stepped into a Chicago shoe store and asked the price of a pair of shoes in the window. "They are $14.50 without the war tax," replied the clerk. Jackson dropped dead.

Six boys, from 10 to 13 years old, were found guilty of robbing fruit trees at West Orange, N.J. The judge called their parents in: "Send these boys to bed every night at 6.30 o'clock for 30 days," he said, "and give each of them a big dose of castor oil."

"Rules!"

(With apologies to Kipling's famous "Boots.")

They're make-make-make-making crazy fishery rules, Rules-Rules-Rules-Rules nobody can understand, Rules-that-would-drive-half a dozen lawyers mad, And there's no escape from the Rules.

Seven-five-eleven-six-is the price of fish to-day, Four-eleven-seventeen-God knows what the day before, Rules-Rules-Rules-Rules-tying up our industries, And there's no escape from the Rules.

Don't-Don't-Don't-Don't-try to make them out yourself, (Rules-Rules-Rules-Rules-nobody knows the meaning of) Men-Men-Men-Men-go mad from reading them, And there's no escape from the Rules.

Send-the-Country-to-the Devil and be done with it, Reg-u-la-tions-noon will be the death of us, Rules-that-seem-as-if-they were made by lunatics, And there's no escape from the Rules.

Count-count-count-count-all the money lost through them, No-way-getting-all-the markets that we used to have, Rules-Rules-Rules-Rules-killing all our foreign trade, And there's no escape from the Rules.

We-can-stick-out-lack-of coal and everything, And-the-price-of-sugar needn't worry us, But-we-can't-stand-Coaker's crazy fishery rules, And there's no escape from the Rules.

But-there's-one-bright-spot in all this lunacy, That-is-that-it-cannot last eternally, When-we-have-an-other change of Government, Then we'll escape from the Rules.

This Week's Wisdom.

It takes a woman longer to make up her face than her mind.

The grass widow knows enough to make hay while the sun shines. Swallowing your indignation will not satisfy your thirst for revenge. Very little outside sympathy is wasted on a widow and widower who marry.

If a lawyer's success depended entirely upon his gift of gab there would be more woman lawyers.

Everything depends on the point of view. You couldn't convince a moose that a black cat was lucky.

If the average married woman had her time over again she would decline an introduction to her husband.

If the good die young it might be just as well to beware of the oldest inhabitant and his reminiscences.

People should marry their opposites. That is probably why a poor young man is always anxious to marry an heiress.

What Thoughtful Men Are Thinking.

Thoughtful men are appalled over the deplorable financial and industrial condition to which this unfortunate country has been reduced by the bungling of Messrs. Coaker and Squires. The frothy, irate vapourings of the Acting Premier and the saturnine editor of his paper, may go down with a few people who allow others to do their thinking for them; but they serve not as an answer to the intelligent thinkers of the Dominion, who are to-day thoroughly alarmed over the situation, and who are asking one another the question, "Where is it all going to end?" Grim poverty is already hovering over the districts of Burgeo & La-Poile, St. George's, Fortune and Placentia Bays, and the young men are fleeing from the country as if from a plague. It is to be feared that this state of affairs will soon be common to the whole country, and we reiterate, without fear of successful contradiction, that this has been brought about, mainly, by the mad policy of interfering with free buying and selling, as embodied in the Fish Regulations. This fish control would be bad enough if done by a political leader who was not in the fish trade himself, but having been conceived and carried out by Mr. Coaker, who is a large fish exporter himself, the ethical aspect of the question is so disgraceful and indecent that we would be ashamed, for the sake of our own self-respect as a people, to let strangers outside the Colony know that such a thing is possible in a land of supposedly free, intelligent people.

Thoughtful men are watching the decline in the imports, and asking how is it possible, under existing and prospective conditions, to raise the revenue of some $11,000,000, so buoyantly predicted by the Finance Minister in the House of Assembly last spring. There was a surplus of about $3,000,000 left there by the late Government, put aside for the proverbial rainy day, but as far as we can learn it has been nearly all absorbed in (1) doubling up salaries which the recipients did not ask for and did not want; (2) throwing it away on old steamers and putting on useless coastal boats; (3) in bungling to the extent of some 300,000 in buying sugar off importers to get them out of a mess; (4) appointing some sixteen inspectors with big salaries, and a new Department of Education which was not at all necessary; (5) establishing nearly every week new commissions on every conceivable subject, and dozens of other expensive fads and fancies which will astonish the public by their totality of expenditure when the House next meets. There never was and probably never will be a Government that "threw away" that is the most appropriate word—money more recklessly and got rid of more in so short a time. If a vengeful demon that had a particular spite against this Dominion had said, "go in and wreck the country as quickly as you can," and they were willing and pleased to obey, they could not have succeeded better in ten short months.

This is cold, hard fact, and not written for the sake of politics. We can live without politics, but we cannot live and have a consciousness of having done our duty towards the public who have always stood by us, if we refrain now from speaking out the truth. Something will have to be done and done quickly, if we want to live in this country and keep it in a solvent and independent state, and what is of more importance, keep our people from the destitution and hard times that certainly are impending the coming winter. The people of Burnt Island, in Burgeo & LaPoile, have given a warning of a condition that may become general all over the island before long. The Acting Premier turns around and tells them they don't know what they are talking about, and that they are the victims of political wire-pullers. This reply needs no comment beyond saying that it gives the public of Newfoundland a better and more correct idea of what kind of an individual is now running this unfortunate country, and what we may expect before his egotistical power-mad policy is played out to the end. Business of all kinds is at a standstill in the city and outports, and a want of confidence all round is fast bringing the country to the abyss of ruin. Is it a Tory plot to drive us into insolvency and confederation? An affirmative answer would fit in with all the circumstances.

Twisting the Argument.

The Advocate resolves and twists every argument and presentation of facts about the fish situation that appear in the papers that do not agree with his policy, into one cry, viz., "you are trying to drive fish down to $6 a quintal for the fishermen, while it is struggling to get them $10 and $11." This is so transparently hypocritical and unsound and so far from the facts that it will deceive no one but an idiot. Nothing would give us greater pleasure than to see the fishermen get as good a price for their fish as they received last fall. It is Mr. Coaker's policy that is making it hard for the fishermen, and this will be made so plain before the catch is all sold, that the most hide-bound Coaker follower will see it. We alluded to 75- and 70- as the fixed prices for the Oporto market, in Wednesday's issue, not to make an argument that these prices were too high, as the saturnine editor pretends to believe, but to expose a piece of either blundering or rascality in as much as we say that all the Oporto fish should sell at 75- as long as there is a minimum price made, and that there should be no two qualities and no 70- price mentioned at all. The like was never known before in the Oporto market. They never asked nor expected two qualities and would be quite satisfied, we believe, to pay 75- for all the fish. The question naturally arises why is this gratuitous sacrifice of $5 made in the case of Oporto fish? It is one of the glaring blunders of the regulations, and the answer to the question will, we have no doubt, be revealed later on.

Antagonizing Customers

The very important fact that Mr. Coaker seemed to ignore in his fish regulations, was that one cannot antagonize his customers with impunity. Necessity might compel them to submit to an arbitrary fixed legal price when they can get the commodity from nobody else, and you may put the gun to their heads and say, "you must buy at my price whether you like it or not." But when, as in the case of dry codfish, Norway, Iceland, France and other countries have got it to offer, our customers will say, "you cannot compel me to buy your fish, as we can get it from others who are free to bargain with us and will serve our turn just as well as you can." This is the feeling in all our former markets to-day, especially in Portugal and Brazil, and the fact that three large steamer loads of Norwegian fish have already arrived at Oporto, should be sufficient to make Mr. Coaker doubt the wisdom of his minimum price-fixing.

A Narrow Escape.

Shortly after nine o'clock last night Mr. John Kavanaugh, watchman with the Gorton Pew Co. heard the cry of children on the Southside Hill, and taking a lantern in company with two other men he made a search. Just above the premises on the edge of a precipice a woman and her two children were found. They had lost their way whilst returning from berry picking. They had a narrow escape as had they gone a few feet more they would have gone over the cliff and been killed. After being brought to safety the woman collapsed.

Getting Alarmed.

The changes and modifications that the Advisory Board and the Exporters are compelling the Minister of Fisheries to make in the Regulations, indicate that the man is at last awaking to a sense of the possible ruin that is hanging like a dark cloud over the country. The exporters had shown this newly-awakened determination earlier in the season, they would not be in the state that they are to-day. The bill is going to be relaxed, and No. 2 is going to be divided into No. 2 and superior No. 2. We are glad that this concession is going to be made. It is something gained for the fishermen, and shows that the exporters who forced this improvement have a conscience, and that they are at last doing something to ameliorate the terrible injustice that is possible under No. 2, as far as the fishermen are concerned. The local brokers that send fish for our markets, are also to get their licenses to export, and these men are the ones who always, by their competition, helped to keep up the local price of fish. We congratulate the gentlemen who secured these concessions, and their success should encourage them to go further and bring about free shipments to all the markets as well as Spain. Now that Mr. Coaker seems to be getting frightened over the mischief that has been done and the condition to which the country has been reduced would it not be possible to get the Regulations re-export, dropped altogether for this year?

DIAMOND DUST

Nothing But the Truth—Without Fear or Favour.

THE ANCIENT EXCUSE.
Grand Falls declare they were the victims of rotten umpiring. When the mighty Julius Caesar, when he walked on the beach, he was quoted in the Daily Diamond as saying: "I was as good as dead as I was when I was shot at. I would never get that booting if the umpire hadn't framed to have my crust."

Who that shifty boy named Abel got the operating table after dropping from his brother's nifty club? He declared with some decision that was sure a bum decision: "Why, the umpire had no right to call me out."

When Napoleon, with a shiver, turned around and cranked his flivver, he turned his bus away from Waterloo.

What the little old Ford sputtered to his way, Napoleon muttered, "It was due to rotten umpiring that I knew."

By the bowl of all the ages, and a blot on history's pages, and there isn't any outrage you can name from the poor old world's beginning if you search through every inning, where men like Ches don't shoulder all the blame.

PEERLESS JOHN B.
As I dreaming 'mid the clamour of the hectic ballroom race, when I hear that John B.'s pets have won the baseball game? Can it be that Grand Falls' cohorts failed to pull their last year's legs? And that now we read the standings and find the All Stars on top?

When the gloom was wont to settle on the dear old Southside Hills, now the City air is joyful with the rosters' roar and thrills, in that cheering just a nightmare? And is Grand Falls really glum? 'Tis true, it's not a dream. For John—the Wonder Man—has come.

John B. Orr has worked the wonder, with his blarney and his smile. He has brought a champion pennant where defeat last year was style. He has brought a bunch of rookies through the slough of grim defeat.

To the dizzy heights of ballroom where the joyous victors meet. John has brought them through the murky depths of ballroom's big league trail. There a host that came before him fought and struggled to fail. He has brought the delayed pennant to be furled in St. John's town.

"Bassan" at Public Wharf.
Sir Michael Cashin and Hon. Tasker Cook returned from St. Mary's last night. Hon. Tasker Cook reports that the disabled steamer "Bassan" struck a heavy gale on Wednesday and being loaded with hard coal, her butts started and she began to leak. Capt. Oliver immediately sent out S.O.S. signals, which were picked up by the Portia, the latter ship proceeding to the rescue, conveyed the "Bassan" to Riverhead. St. Mary's ship is still at that place, being alongside the public wharf. The Furber Withy tug is standing by her and will probably assist in towing her to this port. The "Bassan" has a crew of 40 men.

Garden Party for Child Welfare Fund.
There will be a Garden Party held this afternoon at "Pringle's" the beautiful residence of Mr. Stewart. The affair is in aid of child welfare. The place is but a short distance from the suburbs, just inside Rennie's bridge. It is hoped that those who are child welfare at heart will find convenient to attend.

SCHOLARSHIP RESULTS. In the list of preliminary Open Scholarships, the name of Stanley Richards, of the Methodist College, was accidentally omitted as a winner of a $20 Scholarship.

Shipping Notes.
Schr. F. S. Burgoyne arrived at Carbonear to-day, 6 days from Nova Scotia, lumber laden to Saunders and Howell.
Schr. Sordello arrived at Botwood yesterday with a general cargo to the A. N. D. Co.
S.S. Corruina is sailing this afternoon for Montreal.
S.S. Digby sailed at 7.30 this morning for Liverpool.
Schr. Little Princess left Lisbon to-day for this port, salt laden.

Personal.
Magistrate Courage, of Fortune, is at present in the city, having come by last Gloucester train. He will remain here during the Synod sessions to which he is a delegate.
EXCURSION TRAIN.—The regular Sunday excursion trains to Tor's Cove and Kelligrews go out to-morrow. The 2.30 train will go as far as Holyrood where the postponed garden party is being held.

And the Series flag waves o'er it just to add to his renown.
Hail the Wonder Man of Ballroom, on each raving roaring Star,
Trundle out your horns, ye poets, plunk a lay to John B. Orr,
Sing of Peerless Orr the Mighty, John, who in his pennant charge,
Scribbled "Inter-Town Champs" through the village where "Defeat" was written large.

ST. JOHN'S WIN REID CUP.
Another record attendance of fans saw St. John's wrest the Reid trophy from Grand Falls in the sixth game of the series by the surprising score of 15 to 3. The invaders hadn't a hope right from the start—for the St. John's batted Foran unmercifully in the second inning, while they found the greatest difficulty in connecting with Claude Hall's offerings. The home team was right full of pep and they let nothing get by them. It was only last night that they seemed to have hit their stride, and every man of them packed an unholy wallop. The fans were very little enthused however, as the long lead of the All Stars in the early stages of the game put the game on ice. Phelan and Hall were the chief run getters—having 3 each to their credit, in addition to which the former had 4 safe hits out of 5 times at bat. McHenry and Robertson poked out three baggers, while Fortier had 2 baggers and Walter Callahan 1. It was a slugging fest right through, 16 being registered off Foran and 8 off Hall, and 9 of the St. John's runs were earned. Sebat had 11 strikeouts to Claude's 7 but the Grand Falls' outfield fell down on long flies. Art Cohen was obliged to retire through an injury to his hand and Foley replaced him. Dean batted for Searles in the ninth but could not connect. The Grand Falls' lads played good ball right through, and there is no doubt about it had they brought sufficient batteries and had not suffered the loss of Joe Murphy, the finish would have been right at the wire. The boys who played for the home team were full of pep and energy and each man worked with a will to secure the return of the trophy to the capital to each and every one, and to John B. Orr their manager, we extend the heartiest of congratulations. We understand that it is the intention of the League to dine the team at a very early date in appreciation of their prowess.

English Beauties Best.
"Americans Cannot Possibly Rival Them."
The international dispute between England and America concerning the beauty of their respective women finds Miss Mary Nash, the American actress, casting her vote for England, against her own country. "I can discuss this question impartially," said Miss Nash to the "Daily Express," "because I have seen the women of both countries, and have no claim to enter the contest myself. Nature has been supremely kind to the Englishwomen. American women cannot possibly rival the natural beauty of the English faces, with their wonderful complexions, glorious eyes, and regular features. Beauty in England is not isolated it is general. Walk through the streets or shops or hotels and you encounter crowds of really beautiful girls and women. They simply abound in all parts of London, and in all grades of society, from the humblest shop girl to the aristocrat. American women try to compensate by artificial means for what nature has failed to provide. They remedy defects of complexion by elaborate massaging, cream, and ointments. They have a thousand and one devices for supplying what nature has forgotten. The attainment of beauty is a rigorous right. American women excel in more beautiful feet and daintier ankles than their English sisters. The down-cast eyes can reveal in the beauties of American women, but for faces there is no question as to the overwhelming beauty of the English type."

How the Czar Was Murdered.

DRAMATIC NEW STORY — THE TRAIL OF JEWELS.

The first connected and authoritative account of the murder of the ex-Czar of Russia and his family begins in the Times to-day and will be continued daily. The following are extracts from to-day's chapter:

The true story of the martyrdom of Nicholas II., the ex-Czar of Russia, and of his wife and family is based upon evidence obtained by a properly-constituted legal investigation. The signed depositions of eye-witnesses are in the writer's possession.

At Ekaterinburg, on the night of July 16, 1918, the Imperial family and their faithful attendants—eleven persons in all—were led into a small room in the house where they had been imprisoned and shot to death with revolvers.

There had been no trial of any kind. Before their death the captives were subjected to ill-treatment, amounting to horrible torture, mental if not physical. After death the bodies were taken to the woods and completely destroyed. These acts had been premeditated and the murders elaborately prepared.

It is established beyond doubt that the ex-Czar fell a victim to his loyalty. He had refused offers from the enemies of Russia's Allies proposing that he should endorse the Treaty of Brest-Litovsk. Attempts to inveigle him into an unholy alliance undoubtedly preceded the murder. All the Romanoffs who died violent deaths were, like the Czar, inconvenient to German as well as to Internationalist plans.

At Ekaterinburg in April, 1919, I met the investigating magistrate who had been specially appointed by the Supreme Ruler (Koltchak) to conduct the inquiry into the Czar case. Nicholas Alexeievich Sokolov. I was for many months in constant touch with the course of the inquiry, and personally took part in the search for the remains of the victims.

When the fall of Omsk appeared to be imminent, Sokolov departed eastward, taking with him all the documents, material clues, etc., which by right could be in no other hands save his. At Harbin Sokolov's life being in danger, he hid the rossier in my car, which had the protection of the British flag, and, with his approval I took charge of the dossier, it being understood that, given certain contingencies, I should be free at my own discretion to make it public in whole or in part. The contingency has now arisen.

In the Death Room.
Sokolov took me over the house at Ekaterinburg where the murders took place, explaining step by step the enactment of the tragedy. We stood in the little basement room, noted the trace of the bullets, the direction of the bayonet thrusts, and the splashes of blood on the walls.

The room had been a shambles, and all the washing and scouring that, according to the evidence, had followed the murders could not remove tell-tale signs.

We knew from the depositions of witnesses and the mute, gruesome language of the death-chamber where each of the victims sat or stood when the assassins fired their revolvers. The bullet-holes in the walls and in the floor had been carefully cut out; human blood had been found in the wood and on the bullets.

Soon afterwards I was in the woods, 10 miles north of the city, where the peasants had found jewellery and other relics of the murdered family. I saw the tracks, still clear, of heavy lorries crashing through the trees to a group of disused iron-ore shafts. All went in one direction, ceasing near a pit round which a vast collection of clues had been discovered; precious stones, pearls, beautiful settings of gold and platinum, some hacked, broken, bearing traces of fire; metal buckles, hooks, buttons, corset-frames, pieces of charred leather and cloth, a human finger intact, a set of false teeth.

I found topaz beads, such as the young princesses wore, and other gems, by scratching the surface of the hardened clay surrounding the iron pit.

Several grand dukes and the Grand Duchess Elizabeth were murdered after the Ekaterinburg shooting, and all theories of the miraculous survival of the Romanoff children should be abandoned.—Daily Mail.

The Exporters' Conference.

MR. HEPBURN—Regarding Italy. I think it has always been a mistake to confine sales to Mr. Hawes, and as far as our firm is concerned, we believe the proper course for the Advisory Board to adopt is that suggested by Mr. Sellars, viz. that we should be at liberty to sell through whom we like. If the prices named by the Board are recognized by us, then we should be free to sell how we please, provided we stick to that price. Respecting claims; I admit it is the most important of all. A competent man appointed to settle claims would meet the whole difficulty.

past. I know we made mistakes with our fish. But Italy is not the market for large fish after this end of the year, and therefore I would give advice to everybody shipping fish, to keep in mind, whenever they have any large fish, by all means keep it clear of Italy. I have not thought this matter of regulations over. Several matters connected therewith are very puzzling, but I presume when all the speeches made by the various speakers are published, we may be able to find out just how we stand. I would like to have a free hand to sell my fish where I please. Like everybody else I am only too glad to give good value in what I sell, but I must have a free hand to place it where I wish. There is another very important matter; and as I said before, I do not wish to impute any wrong going to any man. But suppose, as last year, that the price of fish was fixed say at 80 and we try to sell at that rate and cannot succeed. Then I hear by cable from the Board at St. John's that the price has been reduced 5. It so happens with us that our wire between St. John's and Beaverton is out of order; but assuming that was not, it is possible that we may not have the information conveyed to us quickly enough to avail of that 75 being realized even then, because it may so happen that I immediately cable to those gentlemen across the water, and they tell me "Thanks very much for your price now, but our orders are filled and we do not want your fish." It would be very awkward to hear afterwards that some person in authority had sold their fish at that price that I was trying to get 75 for and could not succeed. That is one of the objections I would like to have removed. You say you only want to give the matter a fair trial. I would be only too happy to have you do so, but I must protest against that part of it whereby you would force me to sell through a government agent.

Halifax under $12, we will have to export our fish abroad, and it will still compete with our regular shipments. I do not think it is fair to set such a high price on Halifax fish. All fish sent to Halifax from the West Coast is so much sold and kept out of our other markets. Regarding the West Coast, I may say that I refrained hitherto from saying anything because I have just returned from Canada. I have heard Mr. Patton speaking and he has ably set forth the view of shippers on that section of the coast. However, I will read the following message from the Burin Board of Trade: "This Board protests against regulations as they stand. Any thing in the best interests of country will have our support, but law of supply and demand must rule. As you know our sentiments express them on behalf of Board." The first meeting in Burin over this matter resulted from the answer to the message of enquiry to the Board sent by Messrs. W. & G. Hollett. They asked for some particulars as to regulations and intended to start loading a vessel. In reply to that message of enquiry a letter came over the signature of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, which I saw, stating that $9 had been fixed as the price for No. 2 Labrador at $11 for No. 1. We discussed these, and also the information we had received just at the same time from Portugal saying that it would be impossible to get regulation prices there, and that it might be possible to get 60 for small and 65 for large. In the face of these prices we could not pay $8 and $11 to the fishermen. After a meeting or two we discussed the matter fully and wrote the Board. I presume they have that letter. In that letter the exporters of Burin plainly set forth that they are all very selfish and that the part of the Advisory Board for the better standardization of fish. They also agreed with the cull and inspection; but they did not agree with the fixing of prices. I am very sorry that it might be possible for the fishermen to be based on the price ruling in the foreign market, and we had good reason for feeling that, because last year many shippers sent fish to Europe and could not realize the price set forth in the regulations. In no wise was any condemnatory word spoken against the standardization or inspection. I hope when the Commission takes the matter up they may reconsider their decision respecting the Halifax market, because I am convinced our fish for Halifax does not go into competition with the Brazil market.

Cement!

IN STOCK AND TO ARRIVE.

Colin Campbell, Limited.

Mr. J. Campbell—I think we should settle the price as quickly as possible for Italy. We have enquiries from one or two parties and will have to go away before the end of the month if not before that. If it will help you to arrive at a price, I might say that the difference in the freight rate on bulk cargoes would be about 5 per cent. It is very important we should fix the price this afternoon if possible. I presume it is the intention of the Export Commission to have unrestricted sales, as far as selling fish through any channel we please is concerned. If you have 75 in Portugal, then 80 plus the difference in full cost allowing for cartage, etc., would be 105.50. I presume we ought to be entitled to receive a profit of $1 a qt. On the present rate of exchange the cost of that fish in Italy would not be less than 94 1/2 and I do not think we can get that figure. The rate of exchange to-day is 3.87. Based on my figure of $3.85. We will have to negotiate. We cannot get a price but we can fix a price as the basis of negotiation, and my idea is that we cannot ask more than 90. It might be well here to fix the price at 90 for No. 1 Italian and 85 for No. 2. The bulk cargoes and casks, as casks can be landed just as cheaply when sent by steamer. It is hard to judge what we should pay for Labrador to here. Your present calculation, based on the selling price of fish is, that in order to yield $9 here, we will have to get 80 according to present rate of exchange. That might be shaved a little, possibly.

Mr. Job—I think we should fix a minimum price, and then leave the matter to the buyer. My figures are based on a quarter of a cent discount and two per cent commission, and the 15th September rate of insurance. Mr. LeFevre—Regarding Halifax fish; I do not quite agree with you that it competes with ours. I just returned from there where I visited several stores. The fish they got from Newfoundland is placed in driers and redried. Their fish is sent to the southern markets and they claim we do not dry the fish enough. When they are through curing it, it is like a piece of board. By placing $12 a qt. on Halifax fish, you simply say "No." They intend to buy the Lunenburg catch at $9.25. If our fish went from here to Halifax and from there to Brazil to compete with ours, it would have a very damaging effect, but seeing that Halifax fish is sent to other places, then if we are not allowed to sell to ner I do so on behalf of the shippers I mentioned before. The Chairman—I should like very much if the 40,000 fishermen interested could listen to the discussions going on at these meetings. They would make up their minds that everyone present felt satisfied with the fishermen had done their part. I am all satisfied to have the fishermen prove the quality through standardization, but you all seem to balk when it comes to your own turn to keep prices up. We seem to look at the matter from our own viewpoint, and few consider the general interests of the country, and what will benefit the people as a whole. In my position I in no case place my own personal interests or private interests before those of the public, and in all my connection with the Fisheries Department you will find that I have been a sufferer rather than a gainer. I look at the matter from a general point of view on behalf of the Colony, and only because I look on it in that way are you here today. Every thinking man must certainly agree with that point. We have been catching fish for so many years and shipping it in the same way year after year, that it will mean a great wrench to make men change their methods almost overnight. The foreign buyers would resent being forced to pay a fixed price. But if, after a year or two, we keep sending them a good standardized article, they will see they can trust us, and know they will be getting the quality they pay for. Just now you cannot expect them to pay the prices asked because they are not sure of the quality. This is the whole trouble.

Mr. LeFevre—That is the point with us in Burin. Mr. Monroe said that standardization should be tried for a year or two before prices are fixed. Every thinking man must certainly agree with that point. We have been catching fish for so many years and shipping it in the same way year after year, that it will mean a great wrench to make men change their methods almost overnight. The foreign buyers would resent being forced to pay a fixed price. But if, after a year or two, we keep sending them a good standardized article, they will see they can trust us, and know they will be getting the quality they pay for. Just now you cannot expect them to pay the prices asked because they are not sure of the quality. This is the whole trouble.

The Chairman—Regarding Greece. Has anyone any remarks to make? Board recommended to fix prices at 90, 85, and 80 for No. 1, No. 2 and Labrador, respectively. Mr. Campbell—What about No. 2 Labrador? The Chairman—That is fixed at $1.50 less than No. 1. Mr. Monroe—I would move an amendment to Mr. Sellars' resolution. I think we make a great mistake in putting too high a price on soft-cured Labrador fish. Those who listened to Capt. Kean's address to the Board of Trade must have been struck with his observation that it took only 60 fish to make a qt. of Labrador, whereas it took 100 to make a qt. of dry fish. He pointed out that if the price of Labrador was $9, the price of Shore should be $13. We have generally had a difference of only about $2 a qt., and, during the war, Labrador was selling at about the same price as Shore. The result has been that more people are making soft-cured Labrador all the time. Wesleyville men who used to make the best quality of shore cured Labrador for 10-0-0 and did not do so today. Every one on the French Shore is making Labrador stop. If your figures are correct, Mr. Chairman, and there will be a shortage of 600,000 qts. this year, I would estimate that three quarters, if not all, of that shortage will be in Shore and not Labrador. A mistake will be made if you put a price on soft-cured Labrador at anything like the same price as second quality shore. I argued that before when we were fixing prices for steamers. I can quite realize the force of the argument—"If you can get a good price, why not take it?" But the result of so doing will have a very bad effect on the fishermen. It will result in a much greater supply of Labrador in proportion to the catch than ever before, and it will increase year by year until it is general all over the country. If there had not been 100,000 qts. of Labrador fish last year the result might have been disastrous. I would therefore move this amendment: That prices be fixed at 90 for No. 1, 85 for No. 2 and 80 for Labrador. Mr. Bowring—I said I would second Mr. Sellars' motion if he made the prices 90, 85 and 80; and if he is agreeable I will do so; but if he is not second I will make the prices 90, 85 and 85. Mr. Sellars—No. I think we can get 85 in Italy. The Chairman—They are prepared to pay 70 in Liverpool. To send it from here to Italy would make the price 85. Mr. Job—I take it this is the minimum price, and we can sell for more afterwards. Mr. Ryan—We must consider that we are selling fish to poor countries and it would be a mistake to start off with too high prices first. The Chairman—If we can get 85 it would be foolish not to do so. Mr. Campbell—I beg to second Mr. Sellars' motion. The Chairman then put the amendment as proposed by Mr. Monroe to the meeting and it was carried. The motion stands "That instead of 90, 85 and 80 per qt. for No. 1, No. 2 and Labrador fish respectively, the prices read 90, 85 and 80 in the same order, and that anyone can get as much more as he is able for his fish." ### Death of Mr. Walter Winans.

Collapse on Trotting Track. Horse Lover, Crack Shot, and Sculptor.

(By one who knew him.)
Mr. Walter Winans—crack shot, artist, sculptor, author, and above all lover of horses—has died literally in harness.

He was driving his trotter Henrietta Gay on the track at Parloes Park, Barking, on August 12th, when he suddenly called out "Catch my horse." Before this could be done he fell from the sulky and was picked up lifeless. It is singular that this kindly and gifted man, the chief of whose life enthusiasms was his passion for horses, should have died behind a horse. Probably if he could have chosen his end he would have elected that it should be in that manner, in one of those whirlwind races against time in which his goggled and white-coated figure was extraordinarily popular in Parloes Park, Olympia, Richmond, and many another arena at home and abroad.

Passion for Records.
He loved the applause of the crowd, and he never failed to give them a first-class show. A thorough sportsman, he went "all out" in everything, thereby entertaining the spectators as much as himself. It sometimes seemed that even his horses knew his passion for records and strove to please the man who cared for them so scrupulously. It certainly was so with Barney F., the grand trotter which won prizes for him in its 23rd year. Barney F. died in May 1910, and last May Mr. Winans, never tired of talking about his old pet, told me again, with a tremulous voice, how "Barney never did a wrong thing or refused to do his best."

All types of horses were loved by Mr. Winans. He knew a horse as few men do, and had an extraordinary gift of gaining an animal's confidence. A great shot, he once spent a day with me at Surrenden Park exhibiting his capabilities with rifle, revolver, and pistol; but the day began and ended at the stables.

A "DUEL."
Mr. Winans and his Adversary "Killed" With Wax Bullets.

On that occasion he and I measured our paces and fought a duel. Each wore a helmet with thick plate-glass goggles and a long and extraordinarily stout overall of black canvas. Our bullets were of wax. We fired, and the mark of the bullet was over the heart in each case. He remarked that if it had been a real duel we should both have dropped dead, but added that in such circumstances probably neither of us would have aimed straight.

He threw a ball over the lawn and sent it on and on at each discharge of a rifle. He stuck a red-tipped match in a frame, walked away, turned, fired a revolver shot and ignited it. His prowess at Bisley, Wimbledon and other shooting meetings is known world wide. His special sideboard for trophies groaned with its weight of silver and gold.

He was a prolific correspondent of the newspapers his subjects being almost wholly horses, driving, and shooting. If there were a thoughtful or benevolent word needed for horses he never failed to express it, and many of his letters were published in The Daily Mail.

Work as a Sculptor.
As a sculptor of animals, mainly horses, he possessed much talent, and because he knew horses so well he was a severe critic of London's equestrian statues.

He exhibited sculpture of horses at the Royal Academy, and last year his 14ft. high equestrian statue of King Albert towered in the courtyard of Burlington House, being much too big for exhibition within the building. Mr. Winans also painted, and here again his subjects were principally dogs, horses, and horsemen.

He lived the first 17 years of his life in Russia he was born in Petrograd, where his father, an American subject, was busy railway building).

Mr. Winans, who had a suite of rooms at the Carlton Hotel, Pall Mall, S.W., was "quite a figure" among the audience of "Chu Chin Chow" at His Majesty's Theatre next door. On several occasions when in town he sat in the stalls six nights a week, and admitted to a friend some months ago that he had then seen the show 76 times.

Tanlac Saved the Day for Him, States Wallace

Was Unable To Hit A Lick Of Work When He Began Taking It.

"I had quit my trade and wasn't able to do any work at all when I started taking Tanlac, but now I've picked up fifteen pounds and am in as good health as anybody," said Bernard Wallace, who resides five miles out from Regina, Sask. Mr. Wallace, a boiler-maker by trade, was employed for many years by the Canadian Pacific Railway at St. John, N.B., where he resided at 104 Union Avenue.

"Five years ago," he continued, "I underwent an operation, and after that I wasn't able to get back my strength. My stomach was left all upset and my appetite went back on me. It was over four months before I was able to go back to my old job, but I couldn't hold out at it then, and had to be put on special, light work. Even that got the best of me and I gradually went down hill. When quitting time came every day I was simply exhausted. I lost considerably in weight as I was eating just barely enough to keep me going. Sometimes just the sight or smell of anything to eat made me sick and I had cramps in my stomach that nearly doubled me up. Gas formed awful bad and at night I was often afraid to lie down for fear my breath would be shut off and I would smother to death."

"My nerves finally broke down and I got to having regular splitting headaches. Sleep was nearly out of the question, for it seemed to me that I rolled and tossed all night long every night of the week. Finally I had to give up even the light work I was doing. Things looked so bad I had reached the conclusion that I might as well give up the fight."

"But Tanlac saved the day for me and in six weeks' time had put me back in such fine shape that I don't believe I ever felt better before. Why, I had no idea anything could build anybody up so fast. I can sit down to the table and eat three of the biggest kind of meals every day and digest them as good as if I had never been bothered with stomach trouble in my life. My nerves are as steady as a clock and those headaches have all gone. I sleep like a top all night long and when morning comes I am feeling great. I have picked up fifteen pounds, as I said, and as soon as the harvest season is over I am going back to my old trade as boiler-maker. In my opinion Tanlac is in a class by itself and is a medicine that everybody would do well to learn something about."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Breton; J. W. Smith, Baine Harbor; W. A. Burdock, Belleoram; John Morey, Fermeuse; Mrs. Jos. Quinn, Renewes.—adv't.

THE TRAGEDY OF ART.

One painted death's grim head on canvas white; With somber brush he reproduced the tomb; He dipped his skill into the paints of doom. Passing the strength of youth and its delight He chose dark subjects, black with fear and fright. Another saw but sorrow's silenced room. Once lovely cheeks stripped bare of every bloom.

And with the pen of grief sat down to write. Both masters these, both men of wondrous skill. And yet in life they found but hurt and woe, The sepulchre to which the flesh must go. Making life's greatest misery greater still. When joy had reigned had they but chosen so.

Heroic Mother.

SAVED HER HUSBAND AND SON.

A woman's gallant defence of her husband and her son who were being attacked by an Indian is told in the London Gazette, which announces the award of the Albert Medal to Mrs. Emmitt, wife of Mr. Frederick Emmitt, stationmaster at Peshawar, India.

The Indian attacked their eldest son, aged 17, with an axe, breaking his arm. The boy closed with his assailant, who was trying to stab him with a dagger, when Mrs. Emmitt came into the room. She rushed to her son's assistance and kept hold of the man, although she received a stab in the side.

Mr. Emmitt, who was in bed with fever, came to her rescue, and the Indian, wrenching himself free, stabbed Mr. Emmitt in the thigh. Mrs. Emmitt again seized the man by the wrist and succeeded, in spite of several more wounds to her hand and arm, in getting hold of the handle of the dagger.

The Indian was finally overpowered with the help of some servants. Mrs. Emmitt ignored her own wounds until her husband and son were attended to and sent to hospital.

The assailant, who proved to be a murderous fanatic, was tried, sentenced, and hanged.

LONDON GOSSIP.

PRINCE HENRY AS SOLDIER.

LONDON, Aug. 9, 1920.
Prince Henry is just now undergoing his first serious military training, being attached to the 10th Hussars at Aldershot. It is not intended, however, that he shall become a cavalry officer, and he is to continue in his original regiment, the King's Royal Rifle Corps. Since he is an excellent horseman, and a polo player of no mean skill, it is only appropriate that the mounted arm should claim him for a time. It was decided some time ago that Prince Henry should become the "soldier" of the King's sons, since the Prince of Wales will be too busily engaged to be able to devote much time to soldiering, and the Duke of York is an officer in the Royal Air Force.

"A GENTLEMAN" IN FRANCE.

The English word "gentleman" is now French. It has received the blessing of the Academy. Flammarion's Dictionary years ago had the word and declared that being a gentleman was the status "claimed by every well-brought-up man in England," whilst "gentry" is defined as "La petit noblesse Anglaise." The Academy says that "gentleman" is an England word sometimes employed in French in the metaphorical and moral sense of the word gentleman. "Gentleman," according to an English tutor in Russia, was a difficult word to make intelligible to Russians in any other sense than that of a class socially superior to the Russian Moujik.

THAMES PASSENGER STEAMERS.

The saddest place in London during holiday time is the river. The new generation can scarcely be brought to believe that a service of passenger steamers once took their fathers and mothers up and down the Thames, and everybody has forgotten that it was the main artery of Metropolitan communications only one hundred years ago. For a long time there was terrific competition between the Thames watermen and the hackney coach drivers, the increasing numbers of the latter eventually driving the former from the field. But nobody has ever been able to understand the complete disuse into which the river has fallen of late years, both for business and pleasure, although the rapid development of motor traffic has recently become a powerful factor in the problem. A river service could be made to pay at much lower rates than the railways are now charging, and large numbers of business men living at Battersea, Putney, and Hammer-smith (all suburbs of London lying along the banks of the river) could now be counted upon to give it liberal support.

THE SCOUT MOVEMENT.

Boy Scouts of nearly every nationality were to be seen all over London last week being taken in groups to see the sights of the Metropolis. Their gathering at Olympia gave a great stimulus to the movement, and it was intended to develop it further not only in these islands but all over the world. General Sir Baden-Powell regards it as an integral part of the League of Nations movement, but he explained that, as far as this country is concerned, the Boy Scout organisation is not adequately endowed financially. A quarter of a million sterling ($1,250,000) is required for the purpose, and $500,000 is already in hand. Sir Samuel Waring has promised $5,000 if another six contributions of a similar amount can be subscribed. Meantime the boys, who came from all parts of the world to the Jamboree at Olympia, gave displays daily of the national recreations. It is noteworthy that the British representatives were younger lads than the majority of those from overseas; while the English, Scottish, and Irish boys were mostly sixteen years of age, or under, the long-distance delegates were in the majority older by a couple of years.

NO DRURY LANE PANTOMIME.

For the first time for many years there is to be no pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane (London's premier playhouse) next Christmas. The management has decided that if the present success of Robert Hichens' "The Garden of Allah" continues it will be more profitable to keep it on until next spring. It is possible that an entertainment suitable for children may be presented at matinees only, but the regular pantomime will be suspended until the following year. The very heavy expenses attached to a Drury Lane pantomime in these days carry off most of the profits. An additional reason for carrying on "The Garden of Allah" is that this play appeals to and attracts an entirely new audience, the vast theatre being filled less with regular playgoers than with readers of books and magazines who like to see their heroes and heroines on the stage. The Drury Lane management always felt that it was a mistake to have taken off "The Whip" in favour of a pantomime before the war. Though "The Whip" was filling the house and bringing in large profits, it was taken off in favour of the traditional pantomime, which, in spite of its success, made only a small profit. Double staffs are at present working in all the Drury Lane box offices to cope with the rush for "The Garden of Allah," and the average performance brings in $4,000—a record sum.

HOLIDAY BOOKS.

We shall pay yet more for our books next winter. Prices are distinctly going up, and booksellers say they do not see where they are likely to stop. One of the disappointments of this holiday season is the discovery that a half-crown (50 cents) label has replaced the two shilling (50 cents) one which had seemed already as if it ought to be beyond the dreams of avarice. Three of the most popular libraries of reprints of the classics have adopted the new price, and probably other libraries will come into line. Curiously enough, while Dickens and Scott and Plato have gone up, many of the most popular living writers remain for the present at two shillings. I am told that among the cheap books the ones selling best for holiday reading are those by Gertrude Page, Olive Wadswley, and Zane Grey, and the whole appalling Tarzan series. Of more expensive books Joseph Conrad's new "Rescue" is the best seller, but this proof of the discretion of the public is counterbalanced by the fact that Ethel M. Dell is as popular as ever. The lending libraries are very busy—one of the pre-Bank holiday sights was the number of queues waiting at the library counters—but in spite of the advanced prices the sale of books has not diminished.

THE EX-EMRESS EUGENIE'S PROPERTY.

The publication of the ex-Emress Eugenie's will is expected with much interest, although it is not thought likely that there will be important public bequests. The ex-Emress gave liberally to charity in her lifetime, and she had very few possessions which were historical in a national sense. The famous black pearls which she wore during the Empire were sold to Lord Hchester soon after she reached England as a fugitive, and they are now, I think, in the possession of the Dowager Lady Hchester. Her jewels are expected to go to her nieces, the Spanish property to her Spanish relatives, and Prince Napoleon is understood to be her heir to the main property. It is believed that Lord Revelstoke is one of the trustees, her affairs having been chiefly managed by the Barings since she came to England. Her estate at Farnborough, in Kent, is expected to go to Prince Napoleon, who will probably let the place. Although very wealthy, the ex-Emress might have been one of the wealthiest in Europe if she had carried out the intention she expressed thirty years ago of buying the whole district at Cap Martin, where she had her villa.

RESTORING THE ABBEY.

Though only $560,770 of the $2,750,000 required for the restoration of Westminster Abbey has so far been forthcoming, the Dean of Westminster has put in hand the work of repair. For the present only the most vitally necessary work is being undertaken, but when more money rolls in the scope of the operations will be extended in different directions according to the particular urgency of each part. At the moment a network of scaffolding is being built up between the two magnificent towers, and as soon as this task—itselt a difficult and complicated one—is completed, the workmen will commence the much more perilous operation of removing the decayed stonework corroded during the centuries by the acid of the air. The unusual danger attaching to this task is imparted by the mass of pinnacles and flying buttresses with which the beautiful old building is enriched.

The Mystery of Playing Cards.

THEIR ORIGIN REMAINS UNKNOWN.

The man who asks, "What are trumps?" often has little suspicion of the romance that lies hidden in the cards he holds in his hand. What was the origin of these oblongs of cardboard, with their pictured kings and queens, their red array of hearts, and their sinister-looking spades? Frankly, nobody knows.

Some declare they were cradled in the East and transported to Europe from India or China; others, that the Arabs, Saracens, or Moors first introduced them by way of Spain; while a few credit the nomad gipsies with first revealing their magic to the Continent.

The wisest men declare that such stories are mythical. They say that the first pack of cards made its bow to Europe about the year 1350; but how or whence they came they do not know.

Italy seems to have been the scene of their debut. We know that in 1377 the Swiss were playing games of cards; and that Charles VI. of France was staking his gold on them in 1392.

But the cards which lured fourteenth-century gamblers to the table differed materially from the pack we know so well to-day. The Venetian pack, for example, consisted of seventy-eight cards—twenty-two of them marked with emblems of various kinds; and fifty-six with numerals, divided into four suits of fourteen cards each. Each of these suits contained four court cards—kings, queens, knights, and knaves, and ten cards numbered from one to ten.

Reducing the Pack.

Gradually this unwieldy pack underwent salutary changes. The twenty-two "emblematic" cards (with pictures illustrating various conditions of life and human vicissitudes) were dropped; and of the remaining fifty-six cards, four disappeared, thus reducing the pack to its present number—fifty-two.

The suits of numeral cards have always been four; but the signs or names differed among various nations. Thus the packs Venice first saw bore for marks cups and clubs (batons), money and swords—the cups representing Faith; clubs, Courage; money, Charity; and swords, Justice.

The Germans, however, thought they could improve on these symbols, and substituted hearts, bells, leaves, and acorns; while the French adopted spades, hearts, clubs, and diamonds.

The heart, it is said, corresponds to the original Italian cup; and thus is the oldest of the four suits. The club closely resembles the old-time German acorn. The spade is the offspring of the old German leaf (of the wild plum); while the diamond appears to have been a French invention.

The index-pips at the corners were introduced by Dr. Normandy as recently as 1860; and the double-headed court-cards are also a comparatively modern innovation.

For more than three centuries playing-cards have paid their toll to the Exchequer—ever since 1615 each gross of packs paid a modest 5s. in duty. A century later, a duty of 6d. was imposed on each pack. In later years the toll grew, by sixpenny increases, to as much as half a crown a pack in 1801; and from that "bad eminence" it has since been reduced by stages.

And what a fascinating story one could tell of the gambling to which these cards gave rise—how, for example, King "Hal" lost a small fortune at "Pope Julius's game" to Anne Boleyn; how Lady Castlemaine, one of Charles II's favourites, won £25,000 in a single night and lost £15,000 the next night; and how Marie Antoinette squandered £300,000 in a single year's gambling.—Tit-Bits.

Siren Language.

The casual visitor at one of the big ports may often wonder what siren calls mean, as the ships pass in and out.

There is a code which enables all that is necessary to be said to all whom it may concern. The tug-boats are the biggest chatter-boxes. One tug fast ahead and another astern, most of the time concealed from each other's sight by the ship they are taking to her berth, they will rattle away as readily as you please, the one telling the other what to do, and perhaps each in turn pleading with the pilot on the liner's bridge to stop his engines, go ahead or astern, and do half-a-dozen things.

Should certain contingencies arise, a single blast by the tug astern will throw the forward boat out of action two blasts will advise her to "go ahead fast."

The sirens of the big shipping liners mostly have individual notes, and they have calls of their own when nearing port.

The Cunarder announces her approach by three long blasts, the White Star and Allan liner by three, Dominion four, while Leylands vessels run to six sounded in three two's, with a marked interval between each pair. Boats of the African line have a threefold call, one long and two short, Johnsons are quite garrulous with eight, Alexandra tugs five, and Raas tugs two long and two short, while the Cock boats adhere to their old formula of Cock-a-doodle-do.

He Was Paid Well.

A well-known author was talking to an old countryman about his books. "Do you know," he said, "I often get paid at the rate of sixpence a word for my writings?" "Oh, that's nothing so wonderful," said the old man, somewhat contemptuously: "I'm not much of a writer myself, but when I do write I get paid five shillings a word."

"You do?" said the author laughingly. "Yes," was the reply. "When I go to the post-office on Friday, all I have to do is to write 'Henry Smith' on my pension form, and I get ten shillings."

Men Who Were Women.

SOME CURIOUS DECEPTIONS.

The two brothers were so much alike in appearance that they were able alternately to convince a wife that they were married to her; that was the defence put forward recently in a bigamy charge, says Pearson's Weekly.

It sounds extraordinary that such a thing should be possible, but it has certainly occurred more than once in the past.

There is the amazing instance of Arnold du Tilb, a Frenchman, who for three years passed himself off as a bogus husband, the woman's real husband having left the country.

Du Tilb, who resembled him in age and appearance, made himself familiar with his habits and peculiarities, and when one day he presented himself as the long-absent spouse, he was received with tremendous joy. The neighbors even welcomed him with a special song and dance!

But an old uncle persisted that du Tilb was a fraud. For a long time the wife protested with tears in her eyes that he was her lawful husband. At last, however, she consented to a prosecution.

Twenty-One Years a "Man." Large numbers of witnesses supported the old uncle, but the impostor was not without friends, for the court was astonished to hear four sisters of the real husband solemnly declare by all the stars that du Tilb was "their dear brother."

That sounded fairly convincing, but, unfortunately for him, someone succeeded in discovering the real husband.

Many people will hardly credit the possibility of such deception. Yet it is no more remarkable than the well authenticated cases in which women have successfully posed as husbands.

An individual who was under the name of James Allen was married for twenty-one years before a fatal accident happened, and the wife learnt for the first time that "he" was a woman. The marriage took place at Camberwell Church, and was the result of the bride's attachment to a "smart, well-groomed young man" who was employed by the same master as herself.

Afterwards, "he" took great pains to live up to the part. When the two were separated for a time "he" wrote her long, passionate, love-letters, ending by describing "himself" as her "most loving and affectionate husband until death."

An Amazing Man-Woman. Neither did "a" forget to be duly jealous, upbraiding the wife soundly if "he" caught her casting glances at a man, and even at times chastising her.

Even more remarkable is the case of a Sheffield woman who posed as a husband for twenty-five years. At the end of that time she began to get in arrears with the housekeeping allowance, and her "wife" in complaining to a Manchester solicitor named Thomas said she had just begun to suspect that her "spouse" was a woman. The latter then admitted the soft impeachment.

This remarkable person had disguised herself as a boy at an early age, and rather liking the role, she decided to continue it. She was apprenticed to a Mr. Peacock, a builder, of Bawtry, Yorkshire, and her deportment and manners soon made her popular among the "fappers" of that period.

In due course she made a choice, and the marriage took place at Sheffield Parish Church when the bride was only seventeen.

Masculine qualities were strongly developed in this impersonator. For a time she acted as a special constable, and so far from displaying nervousness, she always took particular care to be present when riots or other disturbances were expected.

Plenty of Young Wives in France.

Polygamy Seriously Suggested.

London, Aug. 18.—Since the armistice, says the Paris correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph," public attention has been drawn with increasing insistence to the necessity of increasing the population of France, which has suffered so gravely as a direct result of the war, quite apart from the voluntary limitation of families which has for many years been a growing evil. During the past year polygamy has been seriously suggested at the Paris Faculty of Medicine, who point out that at present there is a surplus of 2,000,000 young women who cannot expect to marry, makes an interesting suggestion.

He calculates that out of every three French women of marriageable age one is condemned to a solitary existence, and that this means a loss of 6,000,000 children—four times the number of the war losses. Dr. Carnot contends that the existing preponderance of women might be met by inducing Americans, particularly Californians and Canadians, to settle in France.

He bases his proposal on the prestige of France in those countries, where in many districts there is a great lack of women, and on the desire of young Americans and Canadians to secure French wives as well as to assist in the re-birth of the nation, in whose victory they took part.

Queen's College Forward Movement.

Bishop's Court, St. John's, Sept. 11, 1920. To the Church People of St. John's. Our Theological College owes its origin to Bishop Spencer and was started in the year 1841. It was subsequently endowed and established on a sound footing by Bishop Field. During the eighty years of its existence it has supplied some 140 men for the sacred Ministry, and forty-six out of the eighty clergy working in our Diocese at this moment were trained within its walls.

Every one of my four predecessors has had to depend on this College for two years supply of his clergy, and each one has borne testimony to its value in such a Diocese as ours. Bishop Spencer in his day wrote: "The advantage of the institution as at once supplying the outputs of St. John's with lay readers, and establishing a seminary for future missionaries is obvious; and I am deeply grateful to the S. P. G. for enabling me to confer so great a benefit on the Colony." Bishop Field in the year 1866 when he was appealing for $30,000 for the Endowment Fund of the College, half of which he raised in this country, used these words: "The support of our Theological College is the most certain or most likely means of obtaining a supply of men for the work of the Ministry of this Diocese, and it ought to be generally known that it is vain to look to other Colonies or to England for clergy; as not only in the Colonies, but in England it is found impossible at present to meet the pressing and increasing demand for them. The College presents an inducement and affords an opportunity to young men in the Colony to devote and prepare themselves for the service of the Church, who might otherwise want the mind or the means of seeking and obtaining the necessary education and training elsewhere." Bishop Kelly, at one time Principal of the College, took a large share in the extension of the building by the addition of the library, chapel, common room, and two bedrooms. Bishop Jones, during the forty years of his Episcopate, was most insistent on the importance of this piece of Church machinery, and in almost the last charge he issued to the Diocese he used these words: "At a time when the efficiency of the training of candidates for Holy Orders is rightly claiming such an unprecedented share of attention in the Anglican Communion it is urgently felt that the Church in Newfoundland must link herself on to this vitally important movement, and endeavour to keep pace with it. The first thing to be done is to increase the efficiency of the Diocesan Theological College."

But the time has come in the history of our Diocese when a great forward movement is necessary in connection with this institution. We have arrived at a point when a demand is being made for greater efficiency in the training of our clergy. Nothing short of both a Theological College and a University training will suffice for those who are going to be leaders of their fellow-men in this new age.

Our funds will not permit us, even if it were thought desirable, to send our men to an English College to receive their training. Even were we able to double them they would not be sufficient for this; but if our Endowments could be increased to such a figure as would give the College an additional income of $2,000 to $4,000 per year we could keep at least twelve men at Queen's under the special supervision of two Honours graduates of Oxford or Cambridge University, who would see that at the end of their course here the greater number of them would pass on to an English University to complete their training. We are still ready to welcome all the recruits we can get from other Institutions, but the demands of the Church in other Colonial and Missionary Dioceses are so urgent that we cannot hope in the future to receive the same consideration that we have enjoyed in the past. Happily we have the material in our own Diocese to be trained, and we could fill our College to-morrow if the funds were available.

We have four or five vacancies in our mission at this moment, and we have several sub-divisions of parishes long overdue. These vacancies, as they fall vacant cannot be filled unless we make a determined effort to open and keep open our own Theological College.

The building, have just received a thorough renovation and are now in a first-class condition. This has all been paid for so that the institution is out of debt. Our main problem then to-day is to find funds for current expenses. Very careful consideration has been given to the whole question of the College maintenance and efficiency, and it is estimated that the Diocese must raise a capital sum of not less than $70,000 to put the institution on a sound financial basis. The appeal for this sum has met with a generous response from various parts of the Diocese; but so far we are a good way off from the objective which it is desired to reach, viz. $1 per head of our Church population. Hence we earnestly plead for your sympathy and support in the effort which we are making to give to this Diocese a due supply of able and efficiently-trained priests.

SAVE THE BABIES!

During these hot days when infants are suffering and dying from Summer Diarrhoea, it might be interesting to quote from a report read by Dr. Alan Brown, Child Specialist of Toronto, who says:—

"In severe cases of Diarrhoea which do not respond to the elimination of carbohydrate in the usual milk mixtures, PROTEIN MILK is indicated, as in practically all cases of intoxication and infectious diarrhoea, and many cases of dyspepsia in breast-fed infants."

The process of making LIQUID PROTEIN MILK is a long and difficult one. After four years of careful experimentation a PROTEIN MILK has been manufactured in powder form,—conforming exactly to the analysis of the Liquid preparation.

Upon presentation of a prescription from your doctor it can be obtained at any of the three Child Welfare Milk Stations where it is sold at cost of importation.

War Cost Lives of 35,320,000.

Washington, Aug. 27.—(Associated Press.)—Due to war influences, ten European nations engaged in the world war show a potential loss in population of 35,320,000 persons since 1914, according to a statistical research conducted by the Society for World War. The world population in 1914, according to a statistical research conducted by the Society for Studying the Social Consequences of the War of Copenhagen, made public to-day.

At the end of 1913, the society reports, these nations had a population of 400,850,000 and under normal conditions this population should have increased by the middle of 1919, to 424,210,000. However, it had fallen by that time to 389,030,000.

Causes of the abnormal falling off in population were attributed in the society's reports as follows: Killed in war, 9,819,000; deaths due to augmentation of mortality, economic blockades war epidemics, 5,301,000; fall in birth rate due to mobilization of 56 million men between 20 and 45 years of age, 20,200,000.

The Story of "Safety First."

American phraseology is generally luminous and picturesque, but always forceful. To the prosaic British mind it is sometimes bewildering by reason of its remote allusiveness. At times it is quite misleading, as in the phrase "Safety first." "Safety first" is the rallying cry of the accident-prevention movement which has swept like a tornado over the American continent, and spread to countries as remote as Japan and China. "Safety first" is the watchword, not of timorous selfishness, as its name might imply, but of a great humanitarian movement. How the phrase came to be adopted is an interesting little story.

A few years ago there was fierce rivalry and competition between American railway companies. Many inducements were offered by competing lines to draw passenger traffic from their rivals. The chief of these was speed. The American railroad man is a "live wire" and has a full knowledge of the temperamental weaknesses of his countrymen. He offered them quicker and quicker journeys, so that the business man who had saved seven minutes in journeying to his suburban home was enabled to waste three-quarters of an hour at the village store in boasting about the achievement. The rivalry between competing companies grew more and more intense. Larger engines and more powerful brakes were installed, until gains were reckoned in seconds, and speed became an obsession. The end came with dramatic suddenness.

Speed and Death.
A series of terrible railway accidents, followed by inquiries, at which these accidents were found to be due almost entirely to the mania for speed, shocked the public mind. A railway conference was held, attended by representatives of all the rival companies, to confer on the situation. At this conference it was decided that henceforth the first consideration that would be taken into account in relation to the travelling public would not be speed, or comfort, or fares, but safety. Hence the phrase "Safety first."

Safety Inspectors.
Since those far-off days "Safety first" has become the watchword of the accident-prevention movement. In America—if we are to believe the Home Office inspectors who have recently visited that country—it has obtained the sanction of a religion. More than four thousand factories and railroads have installed safety inspectors, who are aided by committees chosen from among the representatives of employers and workers. "Safety first" is organized to deal with that large class of accidents which factory legislation or machinery guarding are powerless to affect—those due to carelessness, negligence or ignorance. As these form ninety per cent. of the whole number, there is a large field for such an enterprise.

In England a great deal has been done by the British Industrial Safety First Association. The results achieved by education and watchfulness have been astonishing. In three great factories in the United Kingdom accidents have been reduced in the last year by more than sixty per cent.—John O'London.

Fantastic Stories of Rum Running.

New York (Canadian Press)—A special despatch to the World from Washington says:
"With whiskey-loaded torpedoes shooting under water across Lake Michigan, and with swift launches and other craft smuggling forbidden beverages into the United States, prohibition agents of the Chicago district have their hands full enforcing the Volstead Act."

"Major A. V. Dalrymple, inspector in charge of enforcement in Illinois and Wisconsin, is authority for the torpedoes. He was here to-day to see Prohibition Commissioner Kramer concerning the possibility of strengthening the forces and to discuss other matters with headquarters."

"I intercepted one of these liquor laden projectiles myself," said he. "The torpedo leaves the Canadian border at a moderate rate of speed under about three feet of water. When nearly spent it is picked up by one of the small boats which infest the lake. My men caught a crew of these offenders right in the act."
"The Great Lakes are filled with all kinds of launches engaged in smuggling liquor from Canada, but we are keeping a sharp lookout and are fast getting the situation in hand. We have seized over $2,500,000 of liquor in my district in the last several months, and in the last two weeks over 22,000 cases of wet goods have been taken."

The Importation of Flour.

The Newfoundland Food Control Board announce that as the agreement made with the Canadian Wheat Board expired on August 31st, at which date also the Canadian Wheat Board went out of existence, PERMITS TO IMPORT FLOUR FROM ANY COUNTRY ARE NO LONGER NECESSARY.

The public may be interested in knowing that during the period of this agreement (January to August, 1920,) between the Food Control Board and the Canadian Wheat Board, Newfoundland shared with Canada and the West Indies the fortunate position in which she was getting all her flour fully $1.50 (one dollar and a half) per barrel cheaper than the United States or any other part of the World, making quite a large save to our people.

The agreement referred to above gave Newfoundland the privilege of importing White Flour (while Canada was using flour not so white), gave Newfoundland assurance of full supplies, and rescinded the tax of two dollars which had been placed on Flour exported from Canada.

 Forty-One Years in the Public Service--The Evening Telegram

Local Market.

(From the Trade Review.)
Codfish.—We understand since the close of the conference between the Fish Exporters and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the Export Board has been almost continuously in session, that they have practically completed the compilation of the Regulations respecting shipments to all markets and the Regulations will be published within the next few hours.

Common Cod Oil.—Reports from New York and Boston this week state that very little interest is being taken in fish oil. There has been such a slump in vegetable and animal oil that dealers all think that fish oils are out of price in proportion and hence there is no buying worth while. The Norwegians have been forcing sales of Herring oil in New York, which indicates a poor demand in Europe. We hear of sales from $200 to $250 per ton in the local market this week, but until there is more business doing, there is no likelihood of these top prices being continued.

Codliver Oil.—We regret to record that Codliver Oil has this week taken a decidedly weak turn. There is very little selling and the fact that there is none worth while coming in from the Outports, indicates a holding for better price. We see reduced prices for livers for the balance of the season as $1.20 per gallon is the best price obtainable here to-day. It may be even less before long.

Lobsters.—The U. S. demand for Lobsters remains poor and there are few shipments going out. The price has fallen to $20.00 and there is no rush to buy even at this figure. It is possible that the price may improve later in the season, and those who are holding off may do better. The voyage is practically over and the catch is said to be nearly double that of last year.

Pork.—The market is unsettled and decidedly weak according to recent reports from various American sources. An attempt is being made by the Packers to maintain present prices; but the disappointing foreign demand makes this a difficult problem for them. In this regard, the Pork industry in the United States is in a somewhat similar position to our codfish business. The gain in domestic consumption of Hog products has not offset the decrease in the exports and even with smaller packing the export movement has failed to remove the surplus. It looks from this, as though there will be a still further decline. In the local market Ham Butt remains $54.00, others $42.00 to $54.00.

Beef.—The Beef market is stronger since our last issue, and Cable advices received yesterday show advances of $1.00 a barrel all round. Scarcity of high grade cattle is noticeable, and a brisk demand lately for beef products seems to account for the recent strength. There are fair stocks held in local hands, which were bought before the advance. The $1 increase in Chicago alluded to will not therefore affect local prices, and Fall buyers will accordingly reap the benefit of Importers' beef speculations when they come to buy. The St. John's quotations range from $23.00 for Plate to $26 for Special Family; Boneless is $25 to $31.

Sugar.—Strenuous efforts are being made by those responsible for the prevailing high prices of sugar to persuade themselves and others that their action was justifiable. In spite of all these protestations, Brokers are ready to sell best American Granulated sugar at 14½c, less 2% cash per 100 pounds. It is of no interest to the public here to be told of higher offers. What they are looking for is the lowest price. The predictions for higher sugar later are also of no interest to the public. If there was no Food Control Board at all and the trade was left to the importers, they would survey the existing outlook, and some of them would speculate at to-day's low price and protect the public by their enterprise and secure enough sugar for the fall needs. This they would do as in the past at their own risk, without asking the Government for any assistance. Our local price to-day is 32 cents retail and 27% cents wholesale; whereas if there had been no blundering the public would be getting sugar around 20 cents per pound.

Molasses.—The molasses imports were increased this week by the arrival of the schooner "Dazzle" with 241 puncheons and 75 barrels. The total at St. John's is now about 7,130 puncheons, as compared with 5,900 this date last year. It looks now as if the shortage will not be so great as was anticipated. The local price of Fancy is $1.70 to $1.80 per gallon and Choice $1.50 to $1.70.

Oats.—Just now oats are very scarce, but there are some consignments (old) coming from Montreal by next steamer. Judging from the reports of the big crops in Canada, oats are certain to be lower in late October when the first new come in. The quotation for old to-day is $6.50 to $7.20, according to quality. The steamer that is leaving Montreal September 17th will bring sufficient old to keep the market going till the new oats are ready.

Poison in Golf Ball.

Analyst's View of Girl's Strange Death.

Considerable interest was aroused a fortnight ago by the strange death of a Blackburn girl, named Ivy Taylor, (says an exchange.) It will be recalled that she was playing in the back yard of her home with a golf ball which she was peeling with her teeth. Suddenly she ran into the house and said she had swallowed some liquid from the ball. She succumbed a few days later, and a post-mortem examination revealed the fact that death was due to the clotting of the blood caused by ulceration of the air passages. The doctor said he did not know what was contained in the golf ball, but it was contained the child had inhaled some irritant. At the request of the girl's father, the coroner adjourned the inquest in order that the contents of the ball could be analysed.

The inquiry was later resumed, and Dr. Bryce, house surgeon of the Royal Infirmary, produced the analyst's certificate, which stated that the core of the golf ball was liquid which was contained in a rubber pouch with a small tubular opening which was tied with a piece of rubber tape. This pouch was enclosed by a thick rubber jacket. Most of the liquid had leaked out, but what was remaining on the side had a strong alkaline reaction. The basic principle present was silicate of soda, and it was probable that the pouch had been filled with a sodium silicate jelly mixture.

Answering the coroner the doctor said this would be sufficient to cause death as described, and a verdict of "Accidental death" was returned.

Bishop Spencer College and Spencer Lodge!

The Directors of the Church of England College desire to announce that they have been able to make very satisfactory arrangements for the management of Bishop Spencer College and Spencer Lodge during the coming year.

It is with the greatest regret that the Board has received the resignation of Miss E. G. Stirling, who, after conducting Bp. Spencer College for many years with the greatest success and bringing it to the highest point of efficiency in its history, has, acting under medical advice, decided to retire.

The Board has, however, been fortunate in obtaining the services as Headmistress of Miss A. M. Richards, who is expected to arrive from England by an early steamer. Miss Richards was educated at St. Leonard's College, St. Hilda's College, Oxford, and at the University of London, where she obtained the degree of B.A. She has also received training at the Cambridge Training College, and holds the Cambridge Teachers' Diploma. She has had extensive teaching experience in England and has taught for a short time in Constantinople, besides serving in the Q. M. A. C. in France during part of the war period. The Directors expect, from personal and other recommendations, that she will be found a most capable Headmistress for Bishop Spencer College.

Spencer Lodge, the College Boarding House for girls, will be in charge of Miss Sargent, who has just arrived from England. Miss Sargent has had extensive experience of administrative work in schools in England at Bournemouth, Ascot, Malvern, and elsewhere, and during the war was employed in organizing work for the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. The Board feel that under her management Spencer Lodge will be so conducted as to give the utmost satisfaction to parents of boarders.
