The Month of June.

The leafy month of June comes to us
once more, clad in all the glowing colors of the rainbow. The genial sunlight, has unlocked the closed up buds of the forest
trees; and the tender green of the lush young leaves is truly refreshing to the eye, so long accustomed to the glare of the winter's snow. The contrast between the appearance of the landscape now, and a little time ago is something remarkable.
A short while since, when the mantle of winter had disappeared, and everything was left brown and bare, now, nearly all vegetation has again assumed it's summer garb. The magical change is delightful, and invites our admiration of the wonderful works of nature. Tupper, in one of his writings, says:—

"It is pleasant to note all things, from the rush to the spreading cedar:

From the giant king of palms, down to the lichen, that staineth it's stem."

And a ramble through the woods in the gloriously bright sunshine, is a pleasure
that every lover of nature's handiwork, must enjoy. Just now the ground is carpeted with flowers in vast quantities and of various hues, the *Erythronium Ameri-
canum* with it's golden star-like flowers,
the Viola Pumila of lovely blue, sweetly fragrant, Dicentra cucullaria with delicate racemes of pale yellow and white bloom, the lovely little Anemone nemorosa with it's pretty star shaped flowers, lightened up with the deep crimson blooms of the Trillium erythrocarpum. These abound in the rich woodland soil, while the trees and shrubs present many various colors
before the actinic principle of light, has fully developed their different shades of mature green. The lover of nature may, also find much to interest him, in animated nature, the songs of the feathered tribe, the rapid movements of terrestrial animals, and the busy hum of insect life
all seem to proclaim, and to rejoice that summer is here.

Beaufort.

Beaufort is now presenting a more business-like aspect than it has done in the past. Farming operations are practically over, for the present; and people there are turning their attention to other matters. Mr. J. McIntosh, of Glassville, with that business enterprise, for which he is so remarkable, has begun to develop a new industry in the neighbourhood, viz:
the manufacture of hard-wood timber.
He has now a crew of about thirty men employed in cutting down, and peeling birch, which he intends driving towards the seaboard in next spring's freshet, wo hope this is but the commencement of a large, and lucrative business; and that good prices will make it a success.

The Mission of the Paper.

Our object in publishing this little paper is a twofold one; and both, are of a character to appeal to the public of this part of the province, for their countenance and support. First of all, we desire to bring our own locality into notoriety, conscious, that by being persistently left, by the outside world, in comparative obscurity, we may be eventually forgotten, and our existence as a community, if not ignored, at least, so far overlooked as to leave us almost unknown, to but very few outsiders who are not drawn towards us by their own commercial instincts and advantages. In the next place, we desire most earnestly, to build up this part of the country; and to let our light shine, before the rest of the world. So that it may attract others to this section of the country, to help to make it more thickly populated, and more prosperous. By this means alone, can we ever become but a sparsely peopled part of this great dominion. To this end it is necessary, that the manifest advantages of this part of the country should be trumpeted forth to the rest of the world. Several year's intimate knowledge, of the topography of this, and adjoining parishes, have convinced us of the desirability of endeavouring to divert a portion of the immigrants, who annually flock to our shores, to our own county and parish. There is abundance of good land to be obtained on such easy terms, that if it were made known to the already overburdened, farmers of the mother country, there are very many of them, who would gladly avail themselves of the advantages we have to offer. It is but just, to say, that our province, is scarcely known in England, to the vast number who desire to better their condition; and still follow the only vocation—the cultivation of land,—they are capable of pursuing with profit and pleasure to themselves. Why is this? Emigration offices in the Old Country have unlimited quantities of literature, for gratuitous distribution, but this is principally devoted to glowing accounts of the North West, and the Upper Provinces, while the province of New Brunswick, is almost ignored, or at least dismissed with a very brief notice, which does not attempt to set forth any of its advantages as a field for settlement. Cannot something be done, to remedy this state of things? It is beyond dispute, that our province has to offer, advantages to agriculturists and manufacturers, that must be deficient, in a level, treeless country. We would like to see our deserted farms, all taken up and permanently occupied, and to see some of the water-power, which the province abounds in, utilized. The products of our magnificent forests, could by such power, be manufactured into numerous articles, for which there is a steady and constant demand, in the manufacturing countries of Europe.

OUR MEMBERS.

Our county members Messrs. Connell and Dibblee, paid a visit to this part of their constituency, in the latter end of last month, and were made very welcome by their supporters, none of whom were too humble to receive a cordial greeting, and a hearty hand-grasp from each of the gentlemen. It is really refreshing to see two such urbane and genial members.

Too often, politicians are unmindful of the electors, who placed them in the proud position they occupy, as members of a legislature. And, it not infrequently happens that, the individuals who have shouldered them into such positions are thought no more of, until some contretemps occurs, that renders it necessary for them to seek out their friends, with a view to secure their support on another occasion. That, however, cannot be said of our representatives, for, they are fortunately, men of ourselves, and have a great stake in the county, and an interest in all that pertains to it's prosperity and well being. We were highly gratified, to receive a rather lengthy visit from the gentlemen, and were charmed with that suavity of manner which characterises them both, and which must endear them to all their political friends.

To people brought up in more thickly populated countries, with an hereditary, and old established aristocracy, who as a rule, supply the law makers of their country; and who frequently do not remember one of their supporters, the day after an election. To such, it is cheering to find our legislators amongst people of our own class, and men who do not get lifted out of their natural manners; and made "Too big for their clothes," by the honours conferred on them.

Our representatives on leaving here, proceeded through Esdraslon, Windsor, and surrounding district, inspecting the roads and bridges, en route. They were delighted with the prosperous farms on every hand, and with the appearance of the substantial farm buildings, and charming houses, that beautify the landscape.

Cloverdale, a rather remote settlement on the South branch of the Becaguimiv river, was next visited. This is a rather small colony, that seems to have been persistently neglected, by previous members, and we are pleased to see has now received merited recognition. The roads are in a very bad state, and bridges have been urgently required. These have now been looked after, money has been promised for the roads; and two bridges for the convenience of the settlers, will be immediately proceeded with. Building these bridges will have the direct effect, of bringing the settlers nine miles nearer to the county town.

In our last issue we printed a little jest about our county metropolis, which the Woodstock Press man seems to have taken in earnest, and did us the honour of reprinting, but was scarcely correct in his ideas as to it's origin. The Glassville News man, did not solicit news items,—none were sent him,—the article was not formulated in Woodstock, not by a long way. With the exception of these few discrepancies, the Press man is quite right.

FORESTERS.

A public meeting was held on the evening of May 31st., in the Caledonian Hall, for the purpose of instituting a Court of the Independent Order of Foresters. The meeting was attended by a body of well known, representative members of the order, and the aim, and object of the institution fully explained by the delegates sent from other courts, for that purpose. Le Baron Coleman, High Chief Ranger, of N. B. and P. E. I. was present, and organised a court, which was named after our little city "Glassville." Several leading men in the place joined the court and were initiated into the secrets and mysteries of the craft. The court officers were elected, who are as follows:—C. R.: James Miller, V. C. R.: James Love, Recording Sec. William Simpson, Financial Sec. F. B. Thomas, Treasurer P. B. Millie, Chaplain G. B. Reid, S. W.: D. H. Lamont, J. W.: Wm. Love, jun. S. B.: Joseph A. Nixon J. B.: A. A. Millberry. There is a good prospect of a large and influential court being made here; and as an old member of the A. O. F. we wish it every success.

HONOURS FOR ABERDEEN.

On the evening of June 9th., a meeting was held in the Caledonian Hall, for the purpose of presenting an address to E. S. Gilmor, Esq., of Esdraelon, who was elected at the Liberal Convention recently held in Woodstock, to represent this part of Carleton county, at the Great Liberal Convention to be held at Ottawa, on the 22nd, inst., and subsequent days.

It is quite a matter for congratulation that we have the honour of sending from Aberdeen, one of the delegates to such an important conference. This meeting is one, on whose deliberations, the prosperity of a nation, and the future state of the nation's purse, are primarily involved. The convention stands pledged to endeavour to find some feasible solution to the tariff difficulties. We have always endeavoured to show our readers, some of the anomalies of the Custom's Tariff, as well as the shortcomings of officers in that employ; and while admitting that to a certain extent a custom's revenue is a necessary evil, we want to see that tariff reduced to reasonable, and proper limits, and for revenue purposes alone. Not to be used as a lever to prevent importation, and cripple the progress of the people. Mr. James Love, having been voted to the chair, called upon Mr. F. B. Thomas, to read the address. We regret that we have not in this number, space at our disposal for inserting this lengthy document, but, may say that it was quite a panegyric on the well known talents of the gentleman to whom it was addressed. Mr. James Lawson, one of our earliest pioneers, and the first postmaster in the settlement, seconded the address, after which Mr. Gilmor, in a pithy, pointed, speech returned thanks, for the honour conferred on him, and said he would use his best endeavours, to prove worthy of the confidence reposed in him. Several prominent Aberdonians also made short speeches, all pointing to the same mark, viz.—A reduction in, and amelioration of the tariff charges.

History Improved.

This is the genuine essay of a boy in the County Grammar school; King Henry 8 was the greatest widower that ever lived. He was born at Anno Domino in the year 1006. He had 510 wives, besides children, The 1st was beheaded and afterwards executed. The 2nd was revoked She never smiled again. But she said the word 'Calais' would be found wrote on her heart after her death. The greatest man in this reign was Lord Sir Garret Wolsey. He was sir named the boy bachelor. He was born at the age of fifteen unmarried. . . . Henry 8 was succeeded on the throne by his great grandmother, the beautiful and accomplished Mary Queen of Scots, sometimes known as the Lady of the Lake, or the Lay of the Last Minstrel.

FAÇETIE.

Excuse!—Miss Blaine: How is it you are so late this afternoon, Bobby? Bobby: I been havin' a fight, Miss Blaine: You have oh? Bobby: Yes, Miss. A boy said you was homely, so I just gave it to him, Miss Blaine: Well, Bobby, dear, I shall have to pardon you this time, but try and control your temper in future.

Slips of the Tongue.—A local clergyman recently surprised a part of his congregation, by telling them that, in olden times cattloheppers and grasserpillars, deysated the land. And furthermore told them earnestly, that "the bruised reed shall not be quenched, neither shall the smoking flax be broken."

Mrs. Jones's, Enjoyment.—"How happy your wife looks, Mr. Jones, talking to that group of ladies around her?" "Yes, I know what she is talking about, my dear friend." "Some pleasant reminiscence, probably?" "Not at all. She is telling them what a miserable life she leads with me."

Sentiment.—Roland: Why are you so sad, Minnie, darling? Minnie: I was just thinking, dearest, that this was the last evening that we could spend together till tomorrow.

Plenty of Strings to his Bow.—The following is a literal translation of the business card of a Dutch Jew in Amsterdam—"Dealer in Cigars and sweets, sauer kraut, and vegetables, cheese, old iron, and nutmegs. Undertakes commissions for neighbours. Cuts the tongues of birds and the tails of cats and dogs. Experienced corn-cutter. His wife keeps a school for children and teaches sewing. Leeches applied. Letters read for illiterate people."

The SKODA DISCOVERY COMPANY. A firm of Proprietary Medicine makers of Wolfville, N. S. lately visited this part, and appointed Mr. F. B. Thomas, their sole agent for this locality. Their medicines are said to work wonders, and are sold on the no cure, no pay, principle.

GLASSVILLE.

A RETROSPECTIVE HISTORY OF IT'S RISE AND PROGRESS, BY MARCHMONT.

If not what the world calls positively 'wealthy,' many of our settlers—thanks to their industry and integrity—have succeeded in realizing a comfortable competency for old age. Their fine farm houses—many of them of tasteful architecture; their commodious barns, filled yearly even to overflowing with crops of all kinds; their well laid out and finely fenced fields, luxuriant in season with hay, grain and roots: their orchards of natural fruits and grafts: their well stocked kitchen gardens; their parterres of beautiful flowers, crediting the gentler sex with cultivating a taste for the beautiful, and making their homes fragrant with the perfume of the lily and the rose; the abounding plenty that seems to reign everywhere.—to say nothing of the flocks and herds, thoroughbreds and grades, that roam their pastures, and elegant carriages, but a few years ago so rare; all these speak of comfort, happiness and wealth. More than this, many of our farmers now stand before the Province, occupying 'prominent' places among agriculturists, as efficient cultivators of the soil, and successful raisers of stock. They yield to none in any other section of the country, in the quantity and weight of grain and roots to the acre, equal to any raised almost in the most fertile districts of New Brunswick, or in the most highly valued types of horses, cattle and sheep, all which will compare favourably with those bred and raised on the Stock Farm. Indeed this is the well known invariable testimony of all who visit our neighbourhood. Strangers from a distance—even from districts more highly favoured by nature, and long famous for the production of the finest cereals and the raising of superior stock have again and again expressed surprise at the agricultural value of our roots and grains, and the excellence of our stock—especially our sheep, on the breeding and management of which, so much attention has been paid of late. If the present Creamery, and Cheese Factory movements go successfully on, we may expect to soon become equally noted for the products of our dairies.

It is almost needless to say that this progress and prosperity have been in a great measure brought about through the instrumentality of the Aberdeen Agricultural Society, one of the most efficient associations of the kind to be found in the Province. Under a vigorous directorate, the Society has done much to forward the interests of husbandry in this parish, and has been singularly successful in carrying out the objects for which our settlers organized it. The gentlemen, under whose supervision it's operations have year by year been conducted, have always shown themselves disinterested, zealous and indefatigable in the discharge of their important duties, hence the Society has won for itself a name second to none. It's attention of late years has been especially directed to the improvement of stock, and the importation of superior seed; and has been singularly successful in carrying out it's praiseworthy objects. No expense has been spared in the purchase annually from first class dealers and breeders animals of high type and superior excellence, while no labour has been omitted and no suggestion overlooked in judiciously crossing, and carefully rearing. Perseverance and a liberal expenditure of means within income limits, have always been the characteristics of it's enterprising members, while that natural shrewdness and traditional caution, for which Scotchmen have always been proverbial, have saved them from mistakes, which might have been attended with serious pecuniary loss, and it has guarded them from over sanguine anticipations which if indulged in, might have ended in failure and disappointment.

In our next issue the history of Glassville, will be concluded. Meanwhile we shall be pleased to receive from outside friends reliable data, on which to found a sketch of any neighbouring settlement.

THE BAUTE!—Does he write to you regularly since you became engaged?" "No sometimes I only get one letter a day."

Argyle.

We never like to say or write disagreeable things. Of course we don't. Still a newspaper correspondent at times feels compelled to notice local derelictions from the moral law, especially when such greatly militate against long established reputation for "whatsoever things are just &c." It is well known that the reputation of New Brunswickers for the strict observance of the provisions of the moral law was for many years proverbial so much so that people never thought of locking their doors at night, or gathering up and hiding away any articles that might be lying around, when old Sol had retired for his usual nap, in order to save them from the clutches of human night hawks. It seems, it would require to be different now, in at least some localities, "'Tis true, and pity 'tis, 'tis true." Your correspondent learned just the other day from a very estimable lady, that one night about a fortnight ago, her outside premises had been feloniously entered by a nocturnal depredator and about forty or more pounds of prime smoked ham and bacon walked off with. No suspicion however attaches to any person, residing in the limits of Argyle. The renegade Jew or Jewess perhaps rather is supposed to have come from a higher latitude, and who evidently knew what was what, and where was where. By the way, over two years ago, a ewe was stolen from the flock of a much esteemed postmaster and exemplary man in a neighbouring settlement. Recently after the great religious revival of Downie & Gray in co, had passed over the district, the sheep-stealer, was it appeared, seized with a semi remorse of conscience. So one dark night, the ewe was quietly brought back, and restored to the flock of it's original owner. No doubt the remorse seems to have been only semi. There was no restoration of fleeces or lambs—a very different kind of remorse this from that of little Zacchaeus, which wrought such a change on him that he gave half of his goods to the poor, and restored four-fold to all whom he had despoiled "by false accusation." Will the ham and bacon thief be brought into such a state of grace as to follow a similar course?—a question to be asked. We very much doubt it; but then, you know, in the latter half of this wonderful nineteenth century, nothing is impossible, although people are very fond of ham and eggs up here.

The Man who Never Swears.

I've often wondered how he feels,
When trouble comes his way,
When everything goes wrong, & clouds
Obscure his sunny day;
For instance, when a gust of wind
Takes off the tile he wears,
I wonder what he thinks about,
The man that never swears.
Or when to make a business trip
He hastens through the rain,
And gains the station just in time
To miss the morning train!
How does he feel as in the west
The express disappears?
I wonder if he thinks bad words,
The man that never swears.
The world is full of trying scenes,
No matter where we go,
The truly good are tempted sore,
As you, perhaps, may know;
And when I find him vexed and mad,
My sympathy he shares,
For I imagine how he feels,
The man that never swears.
