St. Andrews, Sept 9, 1871. Secretary.

Interesting Tale.

FEN-FIRE.

[CONCLUDED.]

You are aware that I am opposed to this marriage, said Barbara, not because I fear for Aggy's youth. Indeed, I like you. Now, I have a proposal to make. It is this. Go on your voyage round the world—you told Aggy that it would take about two years. I do not ask you to defer your marriage until that time is past; because, naturally, you foresee that she might be tempted; that—that her father and mine might listen to any other man, as he has listened to you, in relation to Aggy. But I do ask you this—to marry her, and leave her with me at the church door, and claim her only when you return home. You will go away certain that she is yours; you will know how devotedly I will watch over her; and at the same time, if you never return, you will not in your dying moments torment yourself with the thoughts of the wrong you might have done her life under the safe protection of marriage. You say you are devoted to my sister. Prove your devotion by acting in this way; and no living being in this wide, wide world will respect and esteem you so much as I shall. Captain Ballantine, you will do as I ask you—will you not?

Yes, he said, after a pause, and his face reddened; yes. You have torn my passion, which I thought love, into love itself, dear sister. I thought love, and only cried when he was going away—exactly as a woman cries when anybody that she knows is starting on a journey, and whom she will not see for some time.

Something of disappointment was to be read in the young captain's face as he parted was taking place. He looked naturally for consolation into Barbara's face. He found it.

She will dearly love you by-and-by, and before you come home from all round the world.

He quite trusted her, and went away hopefully, and with a manliness that most of us may envy.

He had arranged that his young wife, if wife she could be called, was to draw a hundred a year, from her agent, while he allowed the old father twenty pounds per annum pocket money. He had calculated that the two hundred pounds a year, his and the sister's, would keep them comfortably in a cottage until his return, and that the glass-painting could be given up.

Barbara would do nothing of the kind. She knew the father, was certain the young merchant's quarterly payments would be dissipated in a few days, and was convinced that the wolf could only be kept from the door by the proceeds of her weekly work.

As she foresaw—it was foreseeing—the quarterly money was spent in a few days after its receipt, and by their father; while Agnes, as the first year to end, discovered that she loved the man whom she called husband, loved as distinct from the liking she felt for him when she stood at the altar.

During the past year letters came now and again—always happy, always hopeful, always speaking of increased prosperity. Then they ceased, their absence but served to increase Aggy's love. At eighteen, Agnes Ballantine had become devoted in her love for the absent man.

Oh, how could—how could I tell that I should love him so dearly after I had lost him?

Lost him, Aggy?

Yes! He will never come back—no, never!

And I say he will! replied Barbara, in a steady voice; and in this belief she never wavered.

They had by this time moved to a pretty little house at Yenteville.

As for Jappiter, while the money came in regularly, he cared little for his son-in-law. Nay, by the end of the first year he positively had forgotten the aspect of the man.

But when half-way through the third year, the agent announced that the three hundred pounds placed in his hands, to be paid at the rate of one hundred and twenty pounds per annum, was exhausted, then indeed Captain Jappiter began to chafe his son-in-law, Captain Griffin Ballantine, in no unmeasured terms. He was an adventurer, he said; a common swindler, sir, who ought to be handed over to the police, sir; and he thanked heaven—that he did, sir—that his innocent daughter had escaped the villain.

At the end of the fourth year, even Agnes gave him up, she being then twenty years of age, and she omitted the indiscretion of putting on widow's weeds.

Hers was still a pretty, simpering, innocent face, of the baby character which half the fools among men can alone admire, and her appearance as a very young and fresh-colored widow naturally attracted more attention than that of which she had been the object. She had taken to wearing thick veils, while she never left the house unaccompanied by her sister.

As to Barbara, her gentle, earnest face, begged her no admirers. She was a woman to be adored with the adoration felt for a gentle mother, and the consequence was that she had never possessed a sweetheart.

She steadily believed in Ballantine's existence, and held to her belief, after they had given up the pretty house at Yenteville, after they had returned to the old Solio lodging—nay, after seven years had passed away since the first June morning when Griffin put his young wife in Barbara's arms, and when he gratefully called the elder sister.

No; she would not give up her brother to the grave. How, she could not say; but she declared that something told her he was still alive.

Agnes had forgotten her love for the husband by the time she gave up the weeds; and the old captain no longer remembered his Christian name. Barbara was thirty, Aggy twenty-three, the father past sixty; and only Barbara looked back upon the past as a living reality.

Sometimes of a morning she awoke with a strange, odd conviction that she had seen Griffin, and comforted him; that he knew her, and that he knelt to her. But she never said anything about these fancies, even although they were so constant, that each time she saw him he appeared to be older. But when the catastrophe fell upon her, rather than upon them, she knew that she dared no longer be silent.

One Dustin Sassine, who gave himself out as a gentleman of fortune, soon became enamored of Agnes, exactly as had poor Griffin, precisely after the manner of some score of others, so powerful was Aggy's pretty face; and this man, the counterpart of Ballantine as a man, in all except honor, was resolved upon making Agnes Ballantine his wife.

He promised fair enough; and, like Griffin, finding the miserable old father open to bribery, he bribed him into acquiescence.

Captain Jappiter tried to hide his own interests under a thin coating of a desire to see, at least, one of his daughters settled—he would say one—before he sank into a premature grave—the old sinner. But it was too evident he wished to turn Sassine to his own account.

It was upon the morning following the evening upon which Agnes had given her consent to become Sassine's wife, that Barbara very excitedly said to her sister, 'Agnes, I must speak with you. Do not marry Mr. Sassine. I assure you that Griffin is alive. I saw him last night, on a ship, and the men, the sailors, were singing 'Home-ward bound.' Wait, wait,—she stopped and swept her hand over her forehead—wait two months!'

Agnes was very white, and hesitated how to reply; but in the evening of that same day she was really enough to believe the doctor who treated Jappiter, and who urged that Barbara was at times given to fancies, the result of her privations and hard work.

You see, Agnes said the father, then, if you marry Dustin Sassine, you will enable us to do something for poor Barbara, who has done her best, however little, for us during all these years.

This decided Agnes, but she determined to wait the two months for which Barbara asked.

For the purpose of this tale it is unnecessary to go into the particulars of what occurred in these eight weeks. Suffice it to say that no Griffin Ballantine showed himself, and that the marriage was fixed for a Monday, a week after the expiration of these two months.

On the night preceding that set apart for the proposed marriage, Barbara Jappiter again experienced one of her strange, mysterious states. Agnes, she said, wait only one day. I saw him again last night, and he is no longer on a ship. He was on shore, and travelling on a foreign conveyance, and towards the north, because the carriage moved in the direction of Charles's Wain. He is almost home.

No, no, said Agnes, pityingly, firmly believing her sister's brain was disordered. I dare not again put him off.

The next moment Barbara fainted. When once more she had her senses, she had abandoned all hopes of delaying the marriage, but she insisted upon accompanying the bride and bridegroom.

Sassine complained strongly of this intrusion and he only gave way when Agnes pettishly said she would break off the engagement if he refused.

He gave her a look which closely said, 'Wait until we are married,' and he acquiesced.

The reader will now assume the marriage to have taken place, and that the bride, her sister, and the bridegroom are in a postchaise after leaving a certain station on the Great Western, and in order to reach some old manor-house, which had come into Sassine's hands through the death of his first wife.

Barbara had some fixed conviction, and Agnes noticed that she seemed to be praying. As to the bridegroom, he was in a very bad temper, for he had to be on the front seat, and was finding it uncomfortable.

Suddenly the horses took fright.

Oh, dear, we shall be killed! cried Aggy.

No, no! cried Barbara, in a tone of extreme conviction. No—saved!—though how I know not!

The speed of the horses now increased, and only stopped by a sudden lurch to the left.

We have got into a bog! exclaimed Sassine.

At that moment Barbara, looking from the window, saw a Fen-fire flame, shadowy, flickering near the window.

Ha! cried Barbara; that light flickers above a grave—the grave of a murdered man!

The bridegroom looked up and appeared to recognize the spot uttered a cry, forced his way from the carriage, and fled from the place.

The post-boy, who had been flung from his horse against a tree, found, when he recovered from the shock of the blow he had received, that the gentleman was gone—that the two ladies were unaccompanied.

These facts have to be recorded.

At the point where the ignis fatuus was seen by Barbara, they found the remains of a woman.

Some distance away, Spire Sassine was found dead. It was supposed that he had died of cold, while searching for help to pull the carriage out of the bog.

Next day, Agnes was in the arms of her husband. He had been wrecked, and had lived in bondage for seven long years.

We offer no explanation of these facts. Barbara herself could throw little light upon them. There are mysterious in life beyond the comprehension, if not beyond the operation, of humanity.

But we are able to affirm this—that no harm came of Barbara's strange power, and some good was its result. What more can be desired of anything than that good shall come of it.

A farmer who went to Texas to buy a farm was greatly prejudiced against the country he thought to settle in, from the fact that a doctor whom he called to attend him when he was seized with a fever, began trying on his clothes immediately after writing a prescription. The fact that while the doctor was trying on his coat, the chambermaid was examining his handkerchief, and the porter was struggling with his boots lent wings to his imagination and doubtless had an influence in regard to his speedy exit from the State.

TELEGRAPH NEWS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The first positive action against the Ring will be taken this morning in the Supreme Court. It is understood that application will be made for an injunction restraining the controllers and others, first, from collecting the taxes; second, from issuing any more bonds of the city and county; third, from transferring any more real estate. Other points will probably be also involved, and the suit may receive additional importance from side issues, which will doubtless be raised, but unquestionably the most important step yet taken against the Ring will be developed in the initial effort at the legal enquiry into the frauds which have been exposed. The Joint Committee for the examination of the county and city accounts has concluded to meet at 2 p. m. to-day, instead of Sept. 13th.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 6th.—The trot at Colapine this afternoon between Goldsmith Maid and Lucy, was one of the most remarkable in trotting annals. Goldsmith Maid making the fastest single heat on record; also the best three heats on record (2:10, 2:14, and 2:17). The last time was adopted to settle any doubts which might result from a competition.

[Until properly verified the truth of the above despatch should be regarded as questionable.]

CAVING IN OF A COAL MINE.

New York, Sept. 6.—The large mine belonging to the Wilkes-Barre Coal and Iron Co., and known as the Hohenlock mine, at Wilkes-Barre, opened on Saturday morning, creating great consternation in that place. The mine was abandoned on Saturday, as it had been considered unsafe for months. An area of 5 or 6 acres of ground sank 200 feet when the mine collapsed. The mine was nearly worked out, and the greatest loss will be to the miners who are thrown out of employment by the occurrence.

Cincinnati, Sept. 10.—The Junction Railroad shops at Can. bridge City, Indiana, were destroyed by an incendiary fire to-night. Loss $75,000; no insurance.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 10.—Another very severe storm occurred here to-night, destroying valuable business property amounting to nearly $200,000.

London, Sept. 11.—The funeral of Renforth took place to-day at New-castle. The attendance was extremely large, some accounts representing the number at one hundred thousand. The cause was so great that the Cemetery where the remains were deposited was much damaged.

Boston, Sept. 11.—The inquest upon the victims of the East River Railroad disaster, charges Conductor Nowland, of Beverly train, and Engineer Brown, of Express train, with being guilty of negligence, and holds President and directors also responsible.

Five persons were killed near St. Louis yesterday by being run into by the cars while riding in a pleasure wagon.

A fire was a $200,000 fire at Bloomington Ill., on Saturday night.

[Special to Globe.]

Saratoga, Sept. 11.—The Wards won the race in 24 minutes, 24 seconds; Tyne (Renforth) second, Biglin third, and Taylor Winslip fourth.

The Taylor-Winslip claimed a foul at the stake boat.

Enthusiasm over the triumph of the Wards was tremendous, and as they came up to the stand, cheer after cheer rent the air.

On the appeal of Taylor, who was very angry and excited, alleging the Biglin crew with fouling him twice, the judges ordered them to row over the course again, at 2 o'clock to decide the foul.

The enthusiasm over the triumph of the Wards in the States is unbounded.

A HORRIBLE INVENTION.—A Prince Edward Islander named Thos. Huestes has just invented a weapon which his enthusiastic friends believe will surpass the French mitrailleuse in its power of execution. It is said to be wholly original, and if perfected according to the inventor's plans will work a revolution in modern warfare. It is said to be wholly original, and if perfected according to the inventor's plans will work a revolution in modern warfare. It is said to be wholly original, and if perfected according to the inventor's plans will work a revolution in modern warfare.

ARREST OF A THIEF.—Saturday morning complaint was entered at the station, that a fellow by the name of Cunningham, who had been a waiter at the Pribble House, but had been discharged, had stolen three watches from two men in the house where he was stopping. Telegrams were immediately sent east and west, describing him and requesting his arrest. On the Grand Trunk train a man was arrested who answered his description, but it was afterward discovered that he was a nephew of one of the Canadian officials. In the evening a despatch came from Exeter, N. H., saying that a man was on board the train who answered the description of the thief. A despatch was sent back and the man arrested. In Cunningham's trunk which was found at his boarding place were several spoons and forks marked "L." a gold chain, an elaborate pipe after the Turkish style and several other articles which had probably been stolen. Marshal Clark went to Boston to-day to bring the man to this city.

ARREST BY TELEGRAPH.—On the 28th the Halifax City Marshal Cotter, received a telegram describing a passenger in the "Austrian" by name Henry Sharpe, and directing his arrest for robbery. Detective Hunt went on board on the arrival of the "Austrian," at 6 a. m., found the accused among the steerage passengers and arrested him. The prisoner was brought before the magistrate and pleaded not guilty to a charge of stealing ninety pounds from Mr. Thornton. He was remanded until the officer in pursuit should arrive.

SAINT ANDREWS, SEPT. 13, 1871.

THE QUEBEC AND NEW BRUNSWICK RAILWAY.—The second report of this Railway has been published in London, and is an interesting pamphlet, containing with reference to distances commercial advantages of the proposed line, a railway map, &c., and shows the line to be the shortest through British territory from the seaboard to Canada. It also includes the names of the New Brunswick directors, engineers and bankers. This is the line known as the River du Loup and Fredericton—the whole length of the line is 212 miles. We quite agree with our contemporary the St. John "Globe" which says:—

"The completion of the Railway from Woodstock to River du Loup should properly be regarded as the necessary link required to connect with the railway from Quebec, and 'not any other' by the St. John Valley."

"There is no doubt that a line connecting Woodstock with River du Loup will be the cheapest, most direct and best commercial line that can be built; and if commenced next year will give direct railway communication to all parts of Canada."

HON. DR. TUPPER.—The Nova Scotia press loses no opportunity of attacking this gentleman, and applying the vilest epithets to him, as he has recently indulged in towards the "Paris Crew" and New Brunswickers generally. Passion appears to have got the better of their reason. We in New Brunswick, are only acquainted with Dr. Tupper as an educated and talented man, whose political record is a credit to him and his native Province, of which he is a worthy and able representative in Parliament. The head and front of his offence appears to have been, his advocacy of Confederation, being returned from his County to Parliament, his being called to the Privy Council and appointed President of that body,—a position he was entitled to from his eminent abilities and standing as a politician. Upon his acceptance of office a new writ was issued and the Doctor returned by acclamation. It is but simple justice to state, that on all occasions Dr. Tupper has worked intelligently and faithfully for the interests of his native Province. His political opponents, however, leave no stone unturned to injure him, their last attempt being a despicable one. The Doctor purchased a small property near St. Andrews, and because he did so, they attempt to injure him by circulating among his constituents that he is losing his regard for the land of his birth. The Dr. however, has taken the wind out of his enemies' sails, having purchased a beautiful residence and grounds in his native township formerly owned by Mr. Ritchie, which is being repaired and improved, and which no doubt will be occupied by him and his family during part of the year. It has come to a pretty pass, that a Privy Councillor cannot purchase property, without being assailed by his dedicated political opponents.

Fatal Accident at St. George.
A correspondent sends us the following melancholy intelligence:—
A young man named William Rankin, in the employment of the Gilmore Bros., while engaged in one of their Saw Mills at the Upper Falls, was so seriously injured by an edging, which was thrown over by the circular saw, on Thursday morning last, that he died the next night about 12 o'clock. It struck him in the side, penetrated the abdomen, lacerating the bowels which protruded through the wound. Dr. Valentine and Rose attended him, but all their skill and attention could not save him.
Dr. Valentine held a post mortem examination which showed such severe internal injuries, that it was a great marvel that he survived so long.
This sad occurrence has cast a deep gloom over the District, where he was much respected for his many amiable qualities. He was grandson of Maxwell Rankin, formerly of St. Andrews, and grandson of Mr. William Bowden, of Upper Falls. He was 22 years old, and leaves a young wife and one child, besides a large number of relatives to mourn over this sad and sudden bereavement.
He was interred at the Upper Falls on Sunday, followed to the grave by a very large concourse of people, many of whom sympathized very feelingly with his sorrowing friends. It is only simple justice to add that the Gilmore Bros., especially Master Kinsman, did all that was possible on this trying occasion to alleviate the sufferings of the deceased.
The solemn occasion was improved by the Rev. Mr. Hickson, who delivered a very appropriate and touching discourse, which was listened to with marked attention by the whole audience.

A Y. M. C. Association has been organized in St. Stephen. The officers for the year are, Hon. Judge Stevens, President; Wm. Vaughan, Esq., Vice-President; M. McMonagle, Esq., Secretary; John F. Grant, Esq., Treasurer. Committee of Management—John McAlam, Jr., Wm. Waterbury, James G. Stevens, Jr., David Main, James Mitchell, G. F. Finler, S. T. Connick, and John Bolton.

AGRICULTURAL SHOWS.—It will be seen in our advertising columns, that the Charlotte County Agricultural Society will hold its Annual Cattle Show and Fair, at Bay Side, on the 18th October, next; the St. Patrick Central the week previous, on the 10th proximo. The list of articles on which premiums are to be awarded are given. It is somewhat surprising that no premium is awarded by the St. Patrick's Society on Dairy produce, the more so, as that district produces some of the best butter in the County.

EMIGRATION.—We understand that the Provincial Secretary 1st Frederickton on the 8th instant, for Ottawa, to attend the Emigration conference to be held on the 19th inst. He and Hon. Mr. Kelley represent New Brunswick. It is said that the delegation from this Province, for "Better Terms" are preparing their briefs. We trust they may accomplish the undertaking, and secure fair and equitable terms for the Province.

We fully endorse the views expressed by the "Globe" on the appointment of a successor to Dr. Bennet, who we learn has resigned the office of Chf. Superintendent of Schools. Our contemporary says:—

"One of the Government papers announced the other day that Rand who was dismissed by the Nova Scotia Government from the office of Superintendent of Schools, for insubordination, was to be appointed to the office of Superintendent in this Province. We hope the Government do not contemplate any such appointment. There is already too great a disposition to go outside of the Province for a certain kind of assistance. It seems that being a New Brunswicker is a foe to any man being eligible to be Professor in the New Brunswick University, and now if the same rule is to be applied by the Government under the Common School Law, people may well declare that there is no honor in New Brunswick for a New Brunswicker. We think we ought to be able to work out our own School law, and we believe there are plenty of men in New Brunswick equal to the work."

A belief we share in. Why, we may as well return to the old regime at once, and obtain our Governors, Judges, and Heads of Departments from abroad. If we are to ignore the qualifications and claims of NATIVES. Will our legislators quietly submit to these appointments?

Since the above was in type, we received a letter from a friend who has met Mr. Rand, and speaks highly of him. He says it is reported in Fredericton, that "The Government feel that in Mr. Rand they have secured first class ability, and perfect capacity, to discharge the duty of satisfactorily working out the School Bill."

His success in Nova Scotia is a perfect guarantee in that respect; but to the experience he had there, he has added a year's careful examination of the different school systems of England, Ireland, and parts of Europe, and an inspection personally of the best school institutions of these countries.

Since he for political reasons solely, was removed from the position of Supt. of Schools in Nova Scotia, he has been engaged in writing for the leading periodicals of the day in England and America, and is personally acquainted with the leading educationists of the world.

He has been in Fredericton and has very favorably impressed by his suavity and ability, all who came in contact with him, and inspired them with the feeling that he has executive ability to faithfully discharge the duties that will be cast upon him in his new position.

This no doubt is all correct, but supposing our correspondent aspired to office, or to become a legislator, would he not feel a degree of disappointment at the people or the government telling him in effect, that there was no New Brunswicker as well qualified to fill these offices as a man from another province or another country. Is the education received at our Schools and University so defective as not to qualify New Brunswickers for any situation in the Province.

Rev. F. O'Neill, the talented Catholic Missionary from New Jersey, is on a visit to his relatives here. Mr. O'Neill is a native of St. Andrews.

St. John very naturally rejoices at the triumph of the Wards at Saratoga. New Brunswick oarsmen have always been fairly and handsomely treated by the Americans in any match race in American waters, and no wonder that boodices were lighted when the success of the Wards became known. The Wards beat the two English, and Halifax crews, and the "Paris Crew" beat the Wards. The St. John boys are still the "Champions of the World."

Severe frosts occurred in the Northern States and in some parts of this Province the latter part of the past week.

Some of our marksmen left here yesterday for the Rifle competition at Sussex. It is probable they will carry off some of the prizes, perhaps the cups.

St. John is well supplied with Produce.—Butter sells for 20 to 22 cents per lb., eggs 15 to 16 per doz., cheese 10 to 12 cents, potatoes are low, and cordwood abundant at reasonable prices.

The "American Newspaper Reporter" has done good service in exposing bogus firms who advertise but do not pay their bills. We have for some time adopted the rule of publishing no Boston, New York, or other American firms except through the responsible and respectable agencies of Geo. P. Rowell & Co. or S. M. Pettengill & Co., to whom we refer Hunter, Mills & Co., with their "Cash Gifts" advertisement.

We are happy to state that the Hon. Mr. TILLEY is recovering the use of his leg; the accident has not prevented his attending to the duties of his office.

The Hon. Dr. Tupper has been at St. Stephen for a day or two; we understand that he will leave for Canada shortly.

BALLOON'S MAGAZINE for October is issued in good time—and is a sightly and instructive. It contains one hundred pages of reading, several illustrations, and some well written stories—children and housekeeper departments, facts and fancies &c. Price—$4 per annum. Published Thomas & Talbot.

There is no civilized country where work is so poorly paid as in Germany, or where the variations are in such disproportion to the expenses of the living. The average earning of a working man is 4 shillings a week, or 60 cents. Professions are poorly paid.

ANOTHER BOAT RACE.—The "Daily News" says: On Saturday morning a despatch was received in this city from Mr. C. B. Elliott, who is at Saratoga, attending the regatta, stating that the Hon. John Morrissey was willing to match the Taylor-Winslip Crew to row a four-oared race with the St. John Crew at Springfield, which offer was open until night, and asking what he should do. The backers of the St. John Crew hastily consulted and returned a reply, that the St. John Crew were willing to row against the Taylor-Winslip Crew, at Springfield, on the 4th of October, on the same terms and governed by the same articles as arranged for the Renforth Tyne Crew on the Kennebecasis with the exception that each crew should pay their own expenses. Such a prompt and satisfactory proposal one would have thought would meet with the concurrence of the Taylor-Winslip Crew and their backers, yet they still held back and Mr. Elliott had to telegraph to St. John that there was still a hitch. The Taylor Crew demanding that the race should be on the "play or pay" principle—no postponement on account of the weather. This called forth from the St. John backers the following telegram to Mr. C. B. Elliott at Saratoga.

"We will not accept any such terms, but authorize you to challenge the Taylor Crew, the Renforth Crew, or a COMBINATION OF BOTH CREWS, at Springfield on the 4th day of October. Articles same as in Kennebecasis Race. Smooth water; no expenses. Stakes from one to three thousand dollars. No humbugging. This must be decided at once. We mean business."

There seems no room to doubt but a race will now be arranged and the plucky proposal to row against either of the English Crews, or a crew formed of the best men in each, ought to shut the mouths of those writers and talkers who charge the St. John oarsmen with cowardice in retreating from the Halifax regatta.

Major Lang is a new giant on exhibition in New York. He is 18 years old and a little more than eight feet high.

The homes of seven widows were destroyed by the recent fire in Richmond. Several individuals were quite badly burned and bruised during the fire.
