on board on Saturday, is safe to-night. Her hull and cargo were damaged.

Etna Eruptive. Rome, Aug. 13 .- The amount of the damage caused by the recent earthquake in the Province of Catania, Sicily, is estimated at $750,000. Mount Etna shows signs of a violent eruption.

Retirement of Sir James Whitehead. LONDON, Aug. 13. -Sir James Whitehead, Bart., an Advanced Liberal and Home Ruler and ex-Lord Mayor of London, has withdrawn from Parliament on account of ill-health. He sat for Leicester.

ROME, Aug. 13 .- The Italian Government has given exequateurs to eight of the 32 bishops from whom this recognition had been withheld. The rest of the exequateurs will be granted probably next fall. Severe Loss for China, London, Aug. 13 .- It is very unfortunate that the new rifle factory and steel and iron works, established by the vicercy, Chang Chi Tung, of Hu Kuang, at Han Yang, should be destroyed by an incendiar fire. The loss will amount to $1,000,000. Regal Raiment.

LONDON, Aug. 13. - It is only outside of Russia that it is possible to publish certain details of the splendid fetes attending the marriage of the Czar's daughter. It is contraband to print in Russian newspapers the fact that at the wedding ceremony the Empress of Russia was dressed in blue moire antique, thickly embroidered with silver. Her Majesty's jewels were sapphires and diamonds. The dress of the bride was entirely of silver cloth with a train of crimson velvet bordered with ermine. On her head was a large diamond tiara, behind which was a bridal wreath, and then on top of the head was a small diamond crown worn by all imperial brides at their weddings. Some time ago all the newspapers in Russia received an order forbidding in future any reference to the dresses worn by the Empress on state and public occasions. This was done in consequence of the Russian newspapers having incorrectly described her Majesty as wearing a dress which, at the time, was altogether out of fashion.

The Tenants Bill.

LONDON, Aug. 13 .- Lord Spencer, First Lord of the Admiralty, moved the second reading of the Evicted Tenants Bill in the House of Lords this afternoon.

Lord Spencer reviewed and defended the bill. Too often, he said, had their lordships rejected a measure which the majority of the Irish nation considered of vital importance, and passed others hateful to them. Now there was an opportunity to make a concession which might not recur. He recalled the fact thathe rejection of the Compensation for Dist turbances Bill by the House of Lords had been followed by a terrible outbreak of crime in Ireland. He would not prophesy that a similar outbreak would follow the rejection of the bill under discussion; but the rejection of this measure would exasperate the people of Ireland, who are now enjoying the greatest quietude they had had in twenty years, and were looking to Parliament for a remedy for their grievances. A serious responsibility would rest upon the House of Lords if it rejected

The Duke of Argyll (Liberal-Unionist) strongly opposed the bill. He said that he rejoiced that twice within a year the House of Lords had had a great duty to perform. It had already redeemed Ireland from a great crisis and England from a great disaster, and it again would be ready to perform its duty. The debate was continued by the Marquis of Lansdowne, the Marquis of Londonderry, Baron Tweedmouth and others.

Heaps of Gold! London, Aug. 13,-The stories of wonderful gold discoveries in Western Australia re confirmed by an official dispatch. The details of the principal find near Coolgardie had already reached London. A party of six were returning from an unsuccessful prospecting tour on May 8. When in camp one night they separated to test and examine the neighborhood. A man named Mills came to one of the many large "blowa" which are characteristic of the country. He was astonished, on rubbing his hand across a protruding piece of stone, to see gold standing out prominently. He knocked a large piece off a boulder, and at his feet lay a magnificent speci-men literally studded with coarse gold, while before him, dazzling his eyes, was a magnificent reef of almost pure gold, a fortune in itself. Mills, taking several pieces from the reef, placed them in his bosom, and, carefully covering the reef with earth, found his mates. On the next preceding March she had been in the emmorning 25 acres were pegged off, and the morning 25 acres were pegged off, and the adjoining blocks at each end were also taken up. One man went to town and bought a dolly, the largest he could procure. In one day they dollied 1,000 of gold at the Washington treasury. The rate of exchange has fallen and no further support of gold is looked for in the immetal been in the employment of Mr. Lancefield, public librarian, of Hamilton.

at the Union Bank. The manager weighed the gold, and it turned the scales at 4,280

A few days after the discovery became public. One lump has been taken from the Martin, the Maidstone Pig Torturer, reef containing more gold than ore. It weighed 240 pounds and is worth $20,000. Of course there is immense excitement in the region, and many other discoveries are reported, but there is unlikely to be anything left for late comers.

Sacked His Wives. London, Aug. 13 .- Odd stories are coming from Constantinople in connection with the recent earthquake. One has been told of Gjussuf Block, physician of the Sultan. The earthquake damaged the part of the palace in which he lives, and suddenly two favorite wives of the Sultan were precipitated through the ceiling into the doctor's room. All three fled from the building before it collapsed, and found the Sultan himself in the courtyard. The stern practice of Islam hours. left the Sultan no choice but to tie up into the Bosphorus, they having been gazed upon by a profane Giaour. Fortunately the Sultan cherished affection for both of them, and having consulted the Grand Mufiti, he saw his way to have them punished symbolically. They were put ceiving a scalp wound six inches long. into sacks, which were properly sewed up and duly taken to a sequestered spot on the banks of the Bosphorus, and in the presence of a number of praying Islams, gently dipped into the soft blue waters, after which the women were deemed to be purified. They were then removed to a new home and restored to their conjugal rights. Rumblings From the Seat of War. LONDON, Aug. 13 .- A correspondent in Shanghai says there were only a few ironclads among the vessels that attacked Port Arthur and Wei-Hai-Wei. The most of the fleet were merchantmen, which had been converted hastily into cruisers, and were carrying troops for work ashore, What has become of the Japanese fleet since the morning the 11th nobody in Shanghai has heard. There is considerable apprehension along the Chinese coast of the Yellow Sea, and small steam vessels are scouting the coast, but no view of the hostile squadron was obtained either yesterday or today. The Chinese were alarmed greatly by the attack on Wei-Hai-Wei. More submarine mines have been laid before Taku and Wei-Hai-Wei. A strong Chinese fleet has left the coast. The impression in Shanghai is that this fleet will seek to interrupt the transports which are carrying Japanese troops to

It is rumored in St. Petersburg that England intends to propose that the powers co-operate in demanding that China and anan withdraw their forces in Cores forthwith and intrust the government of that peninsula to an international conference. The opinion is general that Russia would never consent to such a proposition.

The Vienna correspondent of the Daily News says: England, France and Russia have agreed not to tolerate on attack on Pekin. Their respective squadrons have been instructed to interfere if the Japanese attack Taku.

Woman's Curiosity.

Brigium, Aug. 14 .- An amusing story is told here of young Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands. She and the Queen Regent were on a special train between Munich and Wurzburg last Monday. Suddenly the signal for the emergency brake was pulled, and the train halted abruptly. The guards and chief engineer hurried in alarm from carriage to carriage, asking members of the suite what the trouble was. Nobody could say. The chief engineer then approached the royal saloon. The young Queen leaned out of the window, and with the blush of guilt all over her face, exclaimed:

"Don't you come here; I didn't do it." The young woman had pulled the signal merely to see what would happen.

IN LABOR'S FIELD.

Pullman Strikers Said to be Going Back -Cotton Operatives' Wages Cut 10 Per Cent.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13 .- The gates of the Pullman Company's big plant at Pullman were besieged this morning by a host of the striking employes, who came seeking work, and who signified their willingness to go back to their old positions.

At 9 o'clock the general foreman found that he had 1,788 men on hand and ready for work. Others who are competent and willing are to be given work just as soon as those parts of the works now closed can be opened up.

All old employes returning will get their places back until the full quota of men needed is at work. As that full number of men is but 2,000, the officials of the company feel certain that it will not be long before the works will be running in full

Among those who returned were 200 Swedes, skilled workmen, to whom the company was glad to give places. NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 13.-A notice was posted in several of the mills in this city reducing wages 10 per cent, to take effect on Monday, Aug. 20, 1894. The mill managers claim they were confronted with tion of Dr. Wilson, who found it lying two alternatives—to shut down till the neglected in the churchyard and he purbusiness outlook is brighter, or to reduce the cost of production to such a figure that goods will move. The cooks, stewards and attendants on the Transatlantic line steamers have gone on strike at Havre on account of the poor food supplied to them while the vessels are in dock and other grievances. On Saturday 100 men on board the steamer La Touraine quit work. The company states that the strike will not cause any delay.

POOR IVES!

His Mind Has Apparently Become Unbalanced,

As a Result of His Trouble-He Acts Very Strangely in the Police Court -Talks About Armies, Farms and Milkmaids - Big Batch of Vags.

The Carling street headquarters of Police Magistrate Parke was well filled this morning with those who were there on business and those who had no business there. The number of "neverworks" and drunks showed that the police must have had a regular rake-in. Some of their faces looked as though they were strangers to water for many a day, but through the darkness red blossoms shone brightly. The police magistrate quickly disposed of them, and then called the case against Wm. H. Ives, charged with attempted blackmail upon Gus. May, a local inserance agent. Mrs. Ives was early on hand. She carried her little baby in her arms, and while the docket was being dis-posed of, talked to her lawyer, Mr. Frank Love. Her husband was still downstairs, but before he was brought into the dock Mrs. Ives went into Chief Williams' room. The prisoner was talking loudly and waving his arm when he made his appearance. He showed every sign of mental derangement and his actions were pitiful to witness. Ives took off his hat and about half a the cage with him and ran around like a child in playful glee. His mind wandered from one subject to another—armies, farms and milkmaids being frequently mentioned.

The magistrate watched Ives very closely

Since his first day in jail Ives has shown signs of mental weakness, which daily has become more aggravated. It is said he did not recognize his wife when she visited him at the jail one day, but mistook her for a milkmaid. In the meantime he will be examined, and if adjudged insane will be removed to the asylum. May, the plaintiff, was present, and stated that he had never before to his knowledge seen the prisoner. CARRIED A SAND BAG. On the desk in front of Chief Williams was an oval-shaped sand bag about a foot in length. It played an important part in convicting Mike Quinn, James Wellman and John Welch. The trio had been arrested on the C. P. R. track the other morning by P. Cs. Black and Weir. Quinn was in possession of the weapon, but claimed that a partner who had run away

The P. M.-How do you make a living? Quinn-Working at McClary's. Chief Williams-No, he doesn't; he has been out of the city for some time. Quinn's father, who is a respectable resident of the city, pleaded for the boy. Mike had been sick for a good while. Chief Williams-You sit down till you are called upon. You tell a very different story to your son. Wellman was a very tough-looking fellow, but his hands were very tender, and Chief Williams showed them to the magistrate to prove that the owner was not very fond of work. Welch was asked what he was doing on the track. "I have just got back from a trip to the old country. I took some cattle over, said he. "Where is all your money?" asked the "I only got £2 10s for the trip, and I had good time over there."

SLEPT IN A BOX CAR. John Clark, Wm. Smalley and Ed. Powers confessed to having been found in a C. P. R. box car, soundly snoring. Clark had been before the magistrate before, and pleaded hard to be let off.

"Can't do it," said the magistrate, and down the trio went for a month. James Doyle, George Daly and James Kelly had also been trespassing on C. P. R. property. Doyle claimed his home was on William street north. He had been away since last spring. He was allowed to go, the chief stating that Doyle's parents were respectable people. The two pais, Daly and Kelly, chirped a few notes to the effect that they were cigarmakers and very anxious to work. The yarn did not go, and they will recuperate for fifteen days with the governor of the jail.

OTHER CASES. James Robinson and A. Cake, two little chaps, were up for playing ball on the street. Mr. Moore, a resident of Simcoe, between Maitland and William, was the complainant, and he stated that the offense was very common. He had told Robinson several times to quit, but the only reply he received was to "Go to h-." There was a large barn in the back, and it was a regular hangout for boys who drank and did everything that was bad. Cake was allowed to go. Robinson was given a lecture and allowed off on suspended sentence, and with a warning that if he appeared in court again he would go down. Robert Baldwin was summoned for breach of the bylaw. He did not appear, but his father, Maurice, did, and told the magistrate that Bob was away hauling gravel. The boy will appear in the morn-

Annual Meeting of the Independent Order's High Court.

The Reports Show a Satisfactory State of Affairs.

Those of the High Chief Ranger, Secretary and Treasurer-Membership Rapidly Growing.

PETERBORO, Aug. 14 .- The High Court of the Independent Order of Foresters opened its annual session here today with a splendid attendance of delegates. Following is a summary of the annual reports presented:

THE H. C. R.'S REPORT. Rev. Alex. McGillivray, the high chief ranger, presented a lengthy report, which gave a full account of the order's work during the year just closed. It showed everything in the various departments of work in a flourishing condition. The total membership was placed at 65,000 and the surplus at over $1,000,000. In Outario the spending his vacation with relatives in membership was upwards of $25,000. For the twelve months ending June 30, 6,394 applications had been received, of whom 5,855 passed the medical board, which exceeded any preceding year in the society's history by 1,029. There were at present 70 times as many members as at the end of 1881, the increase year by year being: Year. Courts. Members Year.

The P. H. C. R. had been engaged during almost the entire year in extending the order in Indiana. The H. V. C. R. had proved himself an able colleague, and the high treasurer, though a busy man, had responded to every call made upon him, and in addition to the duties of his office did acceptable and valuable outside work. The high secretary, high physician and high counselor were equally lauded.

Mr. McGillivray gave an exhaustive account of the work performed by the deputies, high inspectors and organizers. Sixty-three new courts had been instituted, there was nothing to cause anxiety. Over $5,400 had been paid for mileage and of East London, have returned from a per diem to High Court officers, necessitatweek's stay in St. Thomas and Port ing the negotiation of a loan of $3,500 stanley. Court had also been paid $3,000 for supplies. The revenue for the year, exclusive of the loan was $14,910 24, an advance of $2,240 over the preceding twelve months. The amount available in the treasury was $1,627 56, while about $6,500 would be necessary to defray the expenses of this High Court. The number of deaths Mr. George M. Anderson, of Anderson & Nelles, druggists, accompanied by his wife and child, are spending a week or so with outsiders. As a body they were the peers of any organization in the land, the average age being slightly over 34. He considered biennial sessions of the High Court would be sufficient. It was also Mr. McGillivray's opinion that 750the present membership of the High Court -was altogether too large for deliberative purposes. HIGH SECRETARY'S REPORT. James B. Halkett, the high secretary for ten years past, acknowledged the uniform courtesy and kindness shown him by the supreme chief ranger, the G. O. M. of the order and his colleagues. The muster roll on July 1, 1893, showed 21,145. Since then there were 5,381 initiations, which, deducting 1,349 initiations and 111 deaths, made the membership on June 30, 1894, 25,066. There had been paid by courts for dues $10,264 43, supplies $3,814 02, with $1,020 28 in dues still unpaid. The assets amounted to $4,723 34. The liabilities exceed the assets by $3,637 07, being $8,-360 41. The amount due the Supreme Court is $3,132 87; due C. C. Whale, $152 75; borrowed from Supreme Court and others to defray traveling expenses of representatives to High Court, $3,500; balance, Supreme Court, July 1, 1893, $1,500. The places at which courts were instituted during the year were:

Aultsville, Ancaster, Coatsworth, Lakeside, Hallville, Lanes, Aberfeldy, Hamilton, Cobosonk, Scotland, Middleville, White Lake, South Mountain, Nile, Morrisburg, Kendall, South Buxton, Orchardville, Avonbank, Brooksdale, Morewood, Kilsyth, Alma, Verschoyle, Oro Station, Berwick (2), Rugby, Bloomfield, Wales, Conn, Ont., Desboro, Dunchurch, Massey Station, Vernon, Brownsville, Cook's Mills, Escott, Douglas, Woodlawn, Plevna, Poland, Lavant Station,

Ottawa, Bath. THE TREASURER'S FIGURES. Atwell Fleming, of London, High Court treasurer, presented the financial position. The receipts for the twelve months were $18,530 77, of which $3,500 was borrowed. The disbursements included the 'usual officers' expenses and salaries, making a total of $18,123, and leaving a balance of $406 95. THE INSPECTORS. Messrs. C. C. Whale and R. R. Elliot. reviewed their work and cited several cases in which courts were badly in need of instruction. They had every reason to believe that the work of the year was satisfactory, and that nothing but success was in store for the I. O. F. SCORCHER AT PORT ARTHUR.

Conmee's Big Lumber Mill and the Electric Light Plant Burned. PORT ARTHUR, Aug. 13.—Conmee's extensive lumber mills were destroyed by fire today. Loss, $30,000. The electric light plant of the town was also burned.

THE HARRISON CASE.

More Serious Than Was at First Sus-pected—At Times He Was Pros-trated by His Sufferings— Now He Is Cured.

PETERBOROUGH, Aug. 13 .- The case of Richard Harrison, mentioned in these columns last week, was a more serious one than appeared at first sight. He was afflicted for some years with backache, the direct result of kidney disease. In damp weather especially his sufferings were intense, and frequently prevented his doing any work. To an active, energetic man, such an affl ction was most grievous, and he tried many alleged remedies without relief. J. D. Tully, the well-known druggist here, recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills, which Mr. Harrison used and is now thoroughly cured. He only regrets that he did not use Dodd's Kidney Pills before, for he knows that if he had he would have been well long ago.

QUICK TRIP TO THE ADIRONDACKS.

A New Yorker Leaves Home in the Morning and Catches the Fish for His Dinner.

ADIRONDACK LEAGUE CLUB, LITTLE MOOSE LAKE, N. Y .- A new record of special interest to sportsmen has just been made at this place.

The editor of a prominent New York daily left that city at 8:30 in the morning on the New York Central Empire State Express, made a close connection at 1:15 m. with the Adirondack division at Utica, arrived at Fulton Chain at 3:15 p.m., and made the journey by stage to Old Forge, thence by boat and buckboard to this place, and at 5 p.m. was fishing on Little Moose Lake.

At 6 p.m. he returned with a string of lake trout, which he enjoyed for his evening dinner. This is the first time, as revealed by the records of this club, that a sportsman has left New York after breakfast in the morning and reached the heart of the Adirondacks in time to catch a string of fish for his 6 o'clock dinner on the same

The Adirondack League Club has now purchased the Bisbee tract of 11,000 all of which makes the entire possessions of the club aggregate nearly 150.000 acres. - Mail and Express. May 30. 1894.

LAW REFORM.

A Barrister Makes Some Suggestions Worth Analyzing.

The Lack of Finality a Grave Defect of the Present System-A Simple Form of Precedure and Appeal Outlined.

A discussion on the subject of "Law Reform" has been started, and is to some extent agitating bench and bar. The following views of a well-known local barrister will be of interest to the public as well as to the profession:

"I think the law reform agitation must result in good, although in my humble opinion the root of the admitted evils has not been attacked. I don't agree with a great deal that I have heard and read in the press on the subject. Too much importance is attached to the complaints about the costs of legal proceedings, especially the fees of the lawyers, and against appeals as causing delay. Under any system there will necessarily be expense for

"Arbitrations, which seem to be looked upon as desirable, are in my experience far more expensive than lawsuits in the courts. They are certainly more honest, in that neither party expects his rights, but only aims at a compromise, and he therefore acts accordingly in presenting his case if he is wise. What is wanted is certainly in actions of every kind, without regard to the procedure as well as in the law. Were the amount involved or the nature of the it not for appeals in bringing about a certain degree of certainty, the administration of justice would be far worse than it is. If certain matters were not appealable, every judge would naturally take his own views and interpret the law accordingly, so that a man might be in the right before one judge, or in one county, and wrong before another judge in the next county. The tendency of modern legislation in England and English-speaking countries has been to attempt the administration of ideal justice in each particular case by investing the judges with powers supposed to be able to effect that desirable object. The result is, I think, the administration of far more legal injustice than ever was the case under the system of common law courts and a court of chancery.

"For a free people who would not tolerate for a day a despotic sovereign or government under which they would not necessarily suffer personal wrong it appears somewhat odd that we should patiently endure a practically irresponsible and largely paternal administration of justice which affects directly or indirectly every one of us. It is contrary to the genius of the Angio-Saxon race, which is still true to the spirit of Magna Charta. I am not, therefore, surprised at the grumbling of the Patrons and others at the present time about the law and its administration. The evils have been growing. The fact that litigation in the courts in England, the United States and Ontario. has decreased, and that arbitration and boards of trade settle many disputes, are of its clients, when the interests are those proofs that with greater wealth and a much larger population the people have bench. less confidence in the courts toan their fathers had. What the public should ave is certainly in the law and in its the laws be made as just as possible by the legislature. The administration of absolute justice would require superhuman judges, and I venture to think the material is not available in this country. The wonder is that the bench has so far so well grappled with the system as not to bring the courts into public contempt. At present in hearly every litigated action at some one or more stages its fate turns upon this personal view or opinions of a judge. The salvation of the existing system is the different views of the judges which bring about the much abused appeals and result to a limited extent in making the law certain by judicial legislation. I don't believe in judicial legislation at all. At present we submit to it at the expense of individual litigants. There must necessarily be judicial interpretation, and that to my mind should be borne at the public expense, as much so as the passing of the law by the Legislature. All laws should be made by the Legislature, who should not leave in the statutes discretionary powers vested in the judges, either as to law or procedure. Acts of Parliament are proverbially defective, and the mythical coach and four has trotted through them from time immemorial. I, however, fail to see why there should necessarily be so many gaps. It would almost seem that less care were taken to draft them than is spent on a private agreement involving only a few hundred dollars. to finality, delay and excessive expense would speedily disappear, the courts and judges would command respect and lawyers would be respected as being the honorable instruments by which rights were enforced and wrongs remedied, and the legal profession would become in fact what has been sometimes called an ancient and honorable one. As it is now the ordinary layman has no confidence in the courts and no respect for lawyers, whom his personal experience or that of his friends has taught him to regard pendence and strength of the legal profession as representing this duty is a necessary adjunct to the pure and righteous administration of justice, which has been said to be the 'very foundation of a nation's happi-

"The legal profession is neither independent nor strong, and it would seem that the courts and most successful lawyers belong to the rich and powerful corporations. I read recently in the Globe that a vicepresident of an American railroad had stated that, notwithstanding State laws to the contrary, every judge in his State, as | well as representatives in the Legislature, hadasked for and received passes. Of course no one has started, or perhaps could truthfully make, a similar statement in Ontario, and yet decisions have sometimes been made in this Province as to railway and other corporations for which legally and logically no reason could be assigned, and conse-

Ontario judges are, notwithstanding the method of appointment, all able and com-petent to administer law, but they would be more than able and competent and devoid of human nature were they not consciously or unconsciously influenced in the exercise of the many discretionary and absolute forms vested in them.

"I don't see how you can safely dispense with appeals under any system, but I see no reason for so many stages as at present. One of the best suggestions of which I have heard is attributed to one of the senior judges of the High Court. By it the present Court of Appeal would be abolished in favor of courts of appeal consisting of any five judges of the High Court, a judge appealed from not being eligible, which courts should be continuously in session to hear all appeals from trial judges, single court and chambers. Two or more of such courts could sit concurrently and might go on circuit to the larger centers. This appeal should be the only one allowed, and its findings in all ordinary cases should be within a month of the trial or decision. and in lieu of the present appeals to the divisional courts and thence to the Court of Appeal. Practice cases might be appealed from the local judges to a judge of the High Court, and thence to the proposed courts of appeal, in order to secure uni formity and certainty. This one appeal, in my opinion, should be of right and without security, the necessity of which makes the appeal only for the rich, and has in the past produced many miscarriages of justice to poor suitors. I see no reason why al claim, could not be commenced and brought to trial in the County Court which should be merged in the High Court, there being no appeals were allowed, or, in so far as no real necessity for its existence. Different scales of costs might be fixed for certain actions dependent upon the amount involved. There should be no such farce as arises in actions for unliquidated damages, unless under substantially similar facts, One man receives $200 and full costs; a second recovers $199, and has deducted from it the defendant's costs, $75, more or less; and a third man recovering $59 has to pay the defendants the excess of costs over the verdict. In this connection I think every case going to appeal should be openly reported, and in every case should show the grounds for the decision, if a new one, for if following other cases giving them as the authority. No other case than those in appeal should be openly reported. This is perhaps a mitter for the new society, but it is in the ublic interest, as by a legal fiction everyone is presumed to know the law, and if a citizen loes not accually know it himself he has a right to know that the legal profession should know it in case and when he requires the services of one of them. It would form a powerful safeguard against ill considered and partial decisions. As the judges are practically irresponsible, the reporting of every case with reasons therefore would form a moral responsibility and within its sphere, should, in the interest of the public, be independent at the "Newspapers frequently criticise unfavorably counsel in the performance of their duties, at trials, perhaps somewhat procedure and administration by the properly. I am inclined to think that if courts. Law should be meted out to all, there was more law or less so-called rich and poor-not so-called justice. Let justice in our courts, counsel would keep within their legal rights. When as a student I was reading law, I got my impression that all men were equal before the law. Over twenty years' practice has thoroughly convinced me that the text books I read were not up to date. The late Warren Rock, Q.C., held strongly to the opinion that every man could demand his right in a court of law, and he and I quite agreed in opposing the introduction of the present system of procedure known as 'The Judi-cature Act.' One minor feature of it was that attorneys at law were abolished and were to be known as solicitors. This was, as Mr. Rock claimed, the essence of the whole system and an intimation that justice was not to be demanded as a right, but to be solicited as a favor. I am inclined to think his forecast has been too be a great aid to the speedy and consistent administration of the law, both to the judges, the bar, and the public. The bar,

"As to costs, I am not prepared to say they are not excessive, but as a rule lawyers' fees are only fair remuneration for services. Whether all the services were necessary is another matter. Undoubtedly leading counsel-that there are so few of them is the result of our system-and successful solicitors can and do fix their own terms, to which their clients have to submit in order to employ them and insure success. If law could be had on demand and did not depend upon skillful soliciting, there might be more competition in the work done by the legal profession, and consequently, as "If the law were reasonably certain and in other occupations, the cost of such sercertainly administered the objections as vice would be lower. Under any system, however, services would have to be paid tor. I imagine that if arbitration were resorted to legal or quasi-legal services would be necessary and have to be remunerated. Arbitration is at best a compromise and there is always present the temptation to influence the referees by means other than their fees, to be found by one or other of the parties. And this reminds me that many heavy items in nearly every bill of costs are the fees paid to officials. I don't know upon principle why the expense of civil courts should not with distrust and suspicion. The inde- be borne at the public expense as well as that of criminal courts, so far as the fees to officials and to the Government are concerned. The legal professions are made tax collectors to provide the salaries of the officials.

"Any reforms should be well considered in their details and so worked out as to leave as little as possible for judicial legislation and interpretation at the expense of litigants. I have before said that such expense should be borne by the Government. I say much of this expensive litigation of recent years has been caused by crude legislation. If it were possible not to have any more amendments for say twenty years I have no doubt but that any system of procedure and practice would be worked down to a reasonable degree of certainty, and for that reason I am not enthusiastic about recent or proposed changes, feeling as soon as they begin to be understood some further amendments or quently other reasons were promised, but which, under our system, could not be uncertainty and perpetuate the delay of brought to public notice. I believe our want of finality and expense of litigation.

NO ELECTRIC RAILWAY THIS YEAR.

There is good authority for stating that the London Street Railway Company will not accept the amended offer for electrifying their lines as prepared by the City Council. As the busy season in street railroading will be over before it would be possible for the company to change its existing system for the trolley, to say nothing of the extensions, it is probable that the present council will throw the whole question over till next year. It is time that a conclusion were hastened. Two years have elapsed since the aldermen first took the matter into serious consideration.

-Judging by the recent decision of the Hamilton City Council and the present outcry in the local papers, the county town of Wentworth has been so over-supplied with beer that it has neglected its water supply. It is claimed that it will take Hamilton $200,000 to provide a fairly ample supply of water from Lake Ontario.

THE MEMBER FOR BOTHWELL. Hon. David Mills, M. P. for Bothwell, left today for a visit to his constituents in Bothwell. There is no more faithful servant of the people than the ex-Minister of the Interior, and few men work as hard as he is in the habit of working. Not only does he perform his ordinary legal duties, give most interesting lectures during the term of the Provincial University, but he finds opportunity to write many able articles for the magazines, for which his pen is in constant demand. All this in addition to his labors in Parliament, acknowledged on both sides of the House to be most exacting. Hon. Mr. Laurier, the Liberal leader, regards Mr. Mills as the best informed man on all Parliamentary and constitutional questions that sits in Parliament. While so occupied, however, Mr. Mills does not neglect his constituents. He pursues the good old British plan of periodically giving those whom he represents an account of his stewardship, and a statement of reasons for the faith that is in him. In this he sets rather than to tax what they need and have an excellent example to every member of not. Parliament. Too many men seem to exhaust all their energies and courtesy towards those who send them to Parliament prior to election day, as in the interval between contests they are never heard from on the platform. That is not the stamp of a man the member for Bothwell is. He is interested in the welfare of the electors all the year round, and without ostentation he shows it. We are glad to say that it profits him. Though two attempts have been made to gerrymander him out of a majority, Mr. Mills has continued to hold the esteem and support of the majority of the people, who have rightly resented the mean endeavors to remove from Parliament an able and unselfish public servant. For over 25 years has this agreeable relationship extended, and there is no reason why it should not continue for many years to come. A constituency does not soon tire of a member like the Hon. Mr. Mills.

HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARIES. Ontario is advancing. Every other day we are having celebrations of the 100th anniversary of churches, Masonic lodges, and other evidences of civilized existence. This fact emphasizes the need, referred to in these columns a day or two since, of making an earnest endeavor in every center of population to preserve the early landmarks and records of pioneer days.

There is no more interesting study than the rise and progress of a great country such as Canada is likely to become. We can have no stronger incentives to patriotic endeavor and to pride of country than the faithful chronicle and requent recital of the struggles of our forefathers, in early days. In the formation of societies, do Canadians overlook this fact? Are we to have organizations for perpetuating the memories, the traditions, the noted events of old world lands, and no organized effort for preserving the remantic history of this truly wonderful Northland?

The McKinley law has been in force for several years: the Wilson Bill is the measure passed by the House of Representatives, and the Senate Bill is the Wilson Bill amended to suit the views of the Senators. The Senate Bill has now been reluctantly accepted by the House of Representatives, and will become law unless it is vetoed by President Cleveland. Though the measure as agreed to is repulsive to the President, it is probable that he will be contented to put his name to it as the best that can be got under the circumstances. Tariff reformers can never be fully satisfied till the last vestige of class legislation is removed, but it is probably too much to expect that the entrenched beneficiaries of special legislative privileges can be entirely combatted in one battle, long drawn out though the struggle has been. President Cleveland will probably take this view of the case, and by promptly signing the Senate Bill, under protest, hasten the settlement of values and the return of business confidence. Confidence has been absent, not because there is a well-defined scheme to relieve the people of undue tariff burdens, but because of the uncertainty of the action of the Senate, a body which resembles the Canadian chamber of privilege in far too many particulars to be satisfactory to the people.

While the measure now passed by Congress is less satisfactory to the general public than would have been the more radical measure which it replaced, there can be no question that the bill is a vast improvement on the McKinley law. It gives free wool, free lumber, free hemp, flax and jute, and reduces largely many kinds of goods into which all these materials enter. The average duty on woolen goods under the McKinley law is 981 per cent. This has been reduced more than half. There is a considerable reduction in all schedules, and there is large addition to the list upon which no tax is collected whatsoever The right of the President to impose taxes without Congress is taken away and given back to Congress, from whom it was wrested by the McKinley law. Then, as Mr. Wilson in his speech pointed out, though the United States is not to have free iron and coal, as the House of Representatives-the popular chamber votedthe Democratic majority have provided in the law now passed that the duty on those shall be reduced by nearly 50 per cent be- the United States is no such thing, but only low the McKinley law. Take the sugar tax, which has been dictated practically by the great sugar syndicate nurtured by the McKinley law and its vicious predecessor. The new law will give much less benefit to the fire r than that afforded by the McKinley bill, and will prove much less burdensome to the consumer. It must not be forgotten, either, that the system of adding to the public revenue, known as the income tax, is retained in the bill now awaiting the President's signature to make it law. By this, it is provided that there shall be a graduated tax on all incomes above $4,000 a year. Thus, as tersely put by Representative McMullin, it is proposed to tax what people have in excess of their needs,

The difficulties experienced in making reductions in taxation, and in removing anomalies by means of which privileged ones have fattened at public expense, demonstrates once again how hard it is to effect needed reforms when interested persons get their hands into the public purse. directly or indirectly. Now the people are aroused, however, there will be no turning back. The work will go on. Tariff reduction, not tariff increase, will in future be the winning cry on both sides of the border. The trend of feeling in the chamber most readily responsive to public opinion was exemplified in a remarkable degree yesterday. No sooner was the Senate Bill passed than the House of Representatives indorsed, by large majorities, bills providing for the entire abolition of taxes on coal, iron, sugar and barbed wire.

-A most important discovery has just been made by Prof. Cyrus Thomas, the distinguished head of the United States Bureau of Ethnology. Contrary to previous views, Prof. Thomas sets forth as a fact that Mexican civilization originated with the Malays of the South Pacific seas and established a connection between the languages of the Malays and the Mayas, now in Yucatan. The latter language, according to his views, is a direct offshoot of the Malay, that spoken by the people of Malacca, Java and Sumatra. It is claimed at the bureau that this discovery throws new light on the aboriginal races and will result in gan centire remodeling of the views heretofore advanced as to the history and native civilization of Central America. If this question is satisfactorily settled, the next problem presenting itself will be. Does the North American Indian belong to the same breed, or does he hold the same relation to the southern tribes that the original Scots had to the continental races who squatted in North Britain.

THE few peach growers on the eastern shore of Maryland who have peaches to sell this year are reaping the profits of a scarce sesson. Two growers in Kent county have po average of $1 each.

BIG PRICES FOR PICTURES. To read of the price paid for pictures in England one is forced to the conclusion that art is appreciated and that money is plentiful among the art-loving. The record price for a painting sold in an auction-room is now 11,000 guineas, or $55,000. This amount was realized at Christie's for Sir Joshua Reynold's portrait of Lady Beity Delme, sister of the Earl of Carlisle, with her children, a picture which is well known through engravings. It was put up at 5,-000 guineas, and was secured by Mr. Chas. Wertheimer, a dealer, for 11,000 guineas. The famous "Duchess of Devonshire," by Gainsborough, which so mysteriously disappeared, was knocked down for 10,100 guineas, and the Raphael in the Dudley collection two years ago went for about 2,000 guineas. The day may come when a picture by Paul Peel, the lamented Canadian artist, will sell at a price approaching these remarkable figures. Competent judges say that Paul Peel's work was not appreciated as it ought to have been, though at the time of his death it was fast rising in favor. Of no class more than of painters can it be said that they too often have to die before their merits are appreciated.

-The stage is made responsible for a great deal these days. Is there any person who has attained not ofiety that cannot find a manager ready to take him or her up? Even Madelaine Pollard, Mr. Breckenridge's associate in long years of wrongdoing, is about to find opportunity to exhibit herself as an actress. The public are to blame, however. If they did not patronize exhibitions of notorious characters the theater managers would never think of taking them up.

HER DAINTY PALM FORMED A CUP.

A tall young man, in white flannels, with a pretty blonde young woman in filmy muslin and a picturesque large hat, sauntered across Union Square yesterday when old Sol was at his hottest. They were up-todate young people, with not a trace of provincialism about them, yet one could tell that they were not New York residents, but probably killing time, waiting for a train or a boat. When they came to the fountain the young woman stopped and watched the water trickling from the lion's mouth as though the cool sight alone did her lots of good. Then she picked up the tin cup to be used by the common herd, and, scanning it ruefully, shook her head at her companion and laid it quickly down again. The next thing was to slip off a small suede glove, and placing the pretty hand it fitted under the stream, she filled its palm full of water and drank from it three times full. And the next thing was to see the young man bend over the same palm, while he held her wrist to balance the novel cup, and five times full it took to satisfy him, and right willingly did the pretty young woman fill it and place it to his lips. That quaintest picture ever on view in front of that old iron fountain. It was the poetry of drinking in public places. Both actors were perfectly unconcerned, and after the young man had dried the young woman's hand in his pocket handkerchief they sauntered forward to a Broadway car and boarded it in a downtown direction. - [ New York Herald.

EVERYBODY knows that much, perhaps most, of the so-called Mocha coffee sold in a few persons know how some of the counterfeit Mocha is made. The berries grow ing on the highest limbs of the coffee trees in Brazil are often shriveled in the semblance of the true Moche, and these are carefully set aside, shipped to some port famous for Mocha coffee, and sent thence to the western world as the true thing. One trick of the coffee shippers is to put a stovepipe into the middle of the bag, fill all around it with good coffee, fill the pipe itself with an inferior coffee, draw out the pipe and tie up the bag. When the coffee comes to be sampled a tube is sunk for some inches through the side of the bag, and from the sample the whole is judged and appraised. The tube, however, se dom reaches the coffee that was put into the stovepipe, and so the whole bag is rated much above the quality of the core.

The monthly meeting of the Meters last night drew a large attendance. The coming meet of Aug. 29 was foremost among the items of business, and from the hearty cooperation with which everybody is working a big time may be safely predicted. Not a day passes without some fresh entries arriving, and among the most notable so far received are those of Colin C. Harbottle and W. M. Carman, of Toronto. The merits of both these riders are known. Harbottle holds the quarter-mile championship of Canada, and Carman is counted as one of the best riders of the day. Arrangements for the meet are rapidly being completed. Officers for the day have been chosen and grand stand officials appointed. Mr. R. A. Robertson, chairman of the C. W. A. racing board, will act as referee. The plan of seats will be opened on Aug. 27, with tickets on sale at Gillean's jewelry store. The third and final road race for the club medals will probably be run on Friday night. The "scorchers" are hoping for a good rain. The medals are on exhibition in a Dundas street window.

Separate Measures Passed Placing Coal, Sugar, Iron Ore and Barbed Wire on the Free List-British Comment.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13 .- At 6:30 'clock tonight the Senate Dariff Bill, unchanged, unamended, unbouched, was passed by the House, and the measure now awaits only the signature of the President or his failure to sign it within ten days to be enacted into a law. It was passed according to the programme arranged yesterday and ratified at a caucus of Democrats this morning. The caucus met at 10 o'cleck and adjourned at noon, with the understanding that the Senate bill and separate measures placing coal, sugar, iron ore and barbed wire on the free lists, should be put through the House before adjournment today.

A few minutes after 2 the committee on rules reported the special order and the House entered upon one of the greatest days in its history. The special rule was agreed to after a short debate. Then the Senate bill was debated for two hours and after counter accusations by the Republicans and Democrats and severe arraignments of the majority by several of its own members the bill was passed by a vote of 181 to 105. A number of Democrats voted against the bill, while the Populists supported the majority. There was much applause when the troublesome measure was finally out of the way.

Then the separate bills placing coal, iron ore, barbed wire and sugar on the free list were taken up in the order named and passed after a debate of half an hour on each, and what was probably the biggest day in the House, from the standpoint of work accomplished, came to an end. The free coal bill passed-yeas 160, nays

At 8:15 p.m. the House passed the bill placing iron ore on the free list. At 9:15 p.m. the House passed the free parbed wire bill-yeas 187, nays 84.

The free sugar bill was passed-yeas 276. nays 11-and the House at 9:15 p.m. adjourned till Wednesday next. BRITISH COMMENT. LONDON, Aug. 14 .- The Daily News, in commenting on the action on the tariff bill says: In yielding to the Senate's obstruction the House only stoops to conquer. The decision was sudden, but a wise one. The prolonged suspense is removed and a measure of certainty is secured. Free wool will be the test by which Americans will judge free trade. In the meantime business will doubtless revive.

The Morning Post says: Surrender to the Senate was better than prolonging a hopeless struggle.

The "Booth's" Bad Luck.

PORT ROBINSON, Ont., Aug. 13 .- The Salvation cruiser Booth, which was burned here today, arrived for repairs late on Saturday night from Point Hover on Lake Erie, where she had run a reef, sustaining some damage. She was at once put on the dry dock. The cause of the fire is attributed to the boiling over of paint, which at once HARRY LENOX Vallens & Co., Manufacturers, London Second heat—Harley Davidson 1, F. Provisions of the Treaty Just Ratified by the United States Senate. WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13.-The Chinese treaty, which was ratified by the Senate today by a vote of 47 to 20, provides that for a period of ten years the coming-except under conditions specified — of Chinese laborers to the United States shall be absolutely prohibited. Every such laborer is required before leaving the United States to deposit with the collector a full description in writing of his family, property, etc. The right to return must be exercised within one year from the date of leaving. but the right to return may be extended.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—There were about 459 head of butchers cattle, 200 calves and 650 sheep and lambs offered at the East End abattoir yesterday. The butchers were present in considerable numbers, but seemed inclined to curtail their purchases owing to the muggy weather, and the market was unusually duli, with prices still tending downward. A few of the best beeves were sold at about 32c per lb, but there were not many sales made at above 3tc per lb, at which rate Mr. Bickerdike bought 19 pretty good steers averaging a little over 1,100 lbs each. Common dry cows and half-fitted young stock sold at from 2tc to 3c, and the leaner beasts at about 2c per lb. It is probable that a considerable number will have to be held over for another market. Calves sell at about former figures. Mr. Bourassa bought nine good calves at from $2 to $5 each. Mutton critters are dull of sale at about for-mer rates, good shipting sheep being up to 31c per lb; the others sell at from 3c to 3ic per lb. Good lots of lambs sell at about $3 each with a few choice ones at about $3 50 each. Common lambs sell at about $250 each, and the culls at from $150 to $2 each. Fat hogs are not plentiful and prices are higher, or from 51c to 51c

The Dairy Market.

THE CHEESE SITUATION.

Cheese keeps a pretty steady market, but supplies are beginning somewhat to outpace demand, and holders are not unwilling to drop a point here and there to trade. Nevertheless the transactions passing are on a healthy basis, c. i. f. and spot rates being near akin. People do not eat a lot of cheese—or, for that matter, anything else—in such hot weather as we have now, and as this temporary cause may very soon cease to operate, the market may begin to boom again very soon. Quotations now are 47s finest, 45s to 46s fine, white and colored being equally valued. United States are a point or two below, half meats being almost unsaleable. Some New Zealand is offering at a point or two above Canadian and is getting in some places. Western country cheese markets were all excited today, prices ruling at a to 3-16c advance on the week. At Brockville 415 white and 871 colored were offered with sales at 9%c white and 197-16c colored, which about clears out nearly all the July make in that section. The Kingston market was strong and excited, with sales of 819 boxes at 93c white, 94c colored. The above prices are higher in proportion to those ruling in this market. The plums are falling into the farmers laps in abundance. Good for the country and general business—at least it should be. — [Montreal Trade Bulletin, Aug. 10.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 13.—According to the authoritative statement of a salesman at Ogdensburg today, Montreal cheese buyers are making a united effort to produce a corner in the cheese market for their own special benefit. The news has created intense interest in this big dairy country.

Sensational Case Unearthed in Elgin County.

The Body of the Late George Sealey. of Vienna, Exhumed-Arsenic in the Stomach.

VIENNA, Ont., Aug. 14. - George Sealey, a retired wealthy farmer, parted some years ago from his wife, giving her $200 per year to sign off all claims against him. For the last two years Mr. Sealey has had as a housekeeper a Mrs. Robbins. About a year ago Mr. Sealey took sick. gradually growing worse until about a month ago, when he died. The bulk of his property he left to Mrs. Robbins. After his death a good deal of talk arose about the circumstances surrounding it, and some peculiar letters being found, Detective Clayton decided to investigate. He soon found evidence which he considered justified him in laying information before Dr. McLay, the county coroner, who at once issued a warrant to have the body of deceased taken up and a postmortem examination held. The examination was held about two weeks ago by Drs. Sinclair and Hoover, and resulted in traces of poison being discovered. Subsequently the stomach, liver and kid-

"Oh, yes, I guess I'll be there," Trena re-blied, negligently. "Has father come in?" "Come in? Yes, he's come in. Sometimes it looks as if that wasn't anythin' but another name for goin' out," sighed the housekeeper, as she turned a crisp fish in the pan. "Lobster-pots this time."

"He's coming now," said the girl, as she watched a small boat being pulled through the tinted waters of the bay. Then she sauntered slowly down to the dock to meet him. Her mother stepped to the door and looked after her; there had been a curious, subdued excitement in Trena's manner that had affected her. She wondered what idea the child had in her head. She watched the short, scant blue skirt as it wavered against the gravness of the dock, and noted, half-unconsciously, the erect, light figure, and the pretty, well-set head that gave her ineffective costume a certain picturesquemess. She did not perceive these details which would have struck a more tutored aye with their significance, but she felt her daughter's beauty, and retained this fresh impression of it, even after she had re turned to the unbeautiful stove and the numerous pots and kettles subject to its sturdy influence. As Trena went toward Whaler's lot, after supper, the clouds had faded and grown heavier in the west, and the sky was a curious blending of dark grays, with here and there a vivid red breaking through and vivifying the oppression of the low-lying masses into a sullen hint of rebellion. Trena's spirit was filled with inarticulate discontent. She did not know why the romance of her life had suddenly grown crude and yet colorless. She did not say to herseif that it had. She only felt the wide and immmeasurable distance between the tryst of Whaler's lot and that of the afternoon on a lonely beach, when the murmurs of love-making drifted in half-meanings and delicate suggestion through the thunder of the surf. She knew so well what Ben would say, and how he would say it. She was sure there would be none of that withheld strength, that reticence of expression that had lent the other interview something clusive, but distinct and delicious. It would not be like that to-night, but perhaps, in time, she might teach him. Why not? The idea pleased her. Trena's temperament was one peculiarly susceptible to shades of feeling. Unused to selfanalysis, utterly at a loss as she would have been for the terms to express the dis-tinctions that she perceived, ignorant of the whole world of artificial and conscious sentiment, she nevertheless was keenly sensitive to the changes, fluctuations, and significances of emotional experience. Had she been a woman of the world she would have been dangerously wise in the nuances of sentimental relations, and would, perhaps, have used her wisdom not altogether to edification. But she was not a woman of the world, and she had no gauge to judge of the comparative value of her impulses. To her fascinated gaze Judith, in her daintness, her beauty, and her air of expensions was the incorporation of all milds. perience, was the incarnation of all wild dreams of what she herself would become: while Krane, whose strength, courtesy, and command of every occasion, seemed to her ignorance exclusively his own, was the nobleman who made all other men commoners. With the frank curiosity of a child she had listened to their idle talk, with as little thought of any dishonor in the transaction as if they had been in reality beings of another world. She was like a novice who has watched with rapture the graceful play of the fencing foils, and in eager emulation snatches one of them, too Ignorant to see if the button be in place. She swung open the big wooden gate that barred the way into Whaler's lot. The late twilight had fallen, but it was long at this season, and the three or four stunted apple-trees that stood together at the further end, stretched out their arms in rugged protectiveness, while through their branches the evening star flickered with an unsteadiness that was that of the slight breeze that was blowing, and not its own. Through all, and under all, and yet unmistakably over all the sounds, the sights, and the beauties of the summer evening, was the long, slow roll of the unseen surf, A man's figure advanced from the other side of the field. "Well," he said, "I was beginning to cast about for an excuse for being here by my-self, in case anybody should happen along," Beeing how you didn't seem to be coming."

He smiled as he spoke, and taking her hand in his, swung it gently back and forth as they went toward the gnarled apple-trees. She did not answer for a moment, and let her hand rest in his. Then, with sudden coquetry, she looked up at him.
"Supposing I hadn't come?" she suggested.

"Well, then," he answered, still smiling, "I guess I'd a' had to go up and fetch

"Supposing I wouldn't have come then," she persisted. "Supposing—I shouldn't ever have come?" Ben looked puzzled and then laughed good-humoredly. "Well, you're not thinking of getting drowned or—or going to boarding-school, are you?" he inquired, briefly reviewing the two sorts of casualities which, within his memory, had carried off any of the female population of the place. Trena pouted and tossed her head. His calm serenity irritated her.

"I shouldn't think you'd talk that way about my being drowned," she said. "If I should go—go away some day and never come back, perhaps you'd talk differently.

Ben's face grew less untroubled.
"It depends on why you went," he said, slowly; if 'twas anywhere you didn't want to go 1'd go after you: but if it was because you wanted to go, then I guess 1'd make up my mind to let you."

Trena glanced at him, a little startled.

This new tone did not altogether displease her, though it was unlike what she had heard that afternoon.

"I might go," she said, airily, "because liked somebody else better." His momentary sternness vanished. This was nonsense-she liked nobody better.

"I don't believe you will," he answered.
They were standing now under the first apple-tree. He put his arm around her and kissed her cheek. The suddenness of the caress made her forget her new assumptions. Ben was not prodigal of caresses. She laughed and blushed a little; her eyes met his and then glanced away to the trees and the evening sky.

"I don't know as I will," she said. Ben stood looking at her in silence; her red-brown hair had almost escaped from the knot which a tawdry, gilded hairpin, bought in imitation of Judith's ornaments, was supposed to hold in place. In the faint light it had lost its tawdriness; and gleamed bright gold in the darker masses of her hair. Her eyes were softened by the half shyness that had come over her. A little restless under his gaze, she raised her hand to the low-bending bough of the tree, and swung it gently back and forth over her head. Ben could say nothing; he turned and looked toward the bicycle, value $125.

invisible ocean, feeling dimly that its deep undertone was expression. Its salt breath was in their faces as the darkness closed in more swiftly and the evening star grew brighter. The branch of the old apple-tree swung suddenly back into its place with a sharp switch. It seemed that it might miss the soft, clinging grasp of her warm, brown hands—that had so little softness in their lives, these app e-trees—they were exposed to so many icy blasts and so much steady, persistent wind, that much of their existence was a struggle; and were it not for occasional visions of sentiment like the present, they would have forgotten that there was such a thing as tenderness in the

"Now I've come, why don't you talk to me ?" asked Trena, laughing.
For a time the spirit of discontent was banished, but Trena's impressible nature had come too decidealy under the spell of a different civilization for her not to return to the attempt to repeat some of its features. Ben's talking about the fishing was monotonous, his confidence in her interest inapposite. "What makes you tell me all that?" she asked, with a flash of impatience.

"Why do I tell you?" he repeated, and went on somewhat clumsily-he was utterly unused to analyzing his emotions.

exactly know. I thought you might—no, I guess it's only because I love you."

Had she been really the sophisticated woman she was trying to fancy herself, the simplicity of this statement would have touched her, did she but know it; but it was simplicity which had palled upon her. "Oh, ves, I suppose you do," she answered, flippantly.

Then, with an ill-directed grasp at the evasive sentiment of the afternoon, "But what's the use, Ben, anyway?" she added.

Ben was wounded. He did not often tell her that he loved her. He was one of those slow, undemonstrative, not altogether unreasonable people, who, having made such a statement, expect it to remain in force until contradicted or otherwise falsified, and it hurt him that when he tried to make her understand she should treat his explanation as so trivial. "You never asked me what the use of it was before," he said, "and I'm sorry you have to ask now."

They had wandered away from the appletree and were leaning against the old rail fence that bordered Whaler's lot. A couple of belated, and perhaps dissipated, swallows, swooped down almost between them, and, with what seemed a single flutter of swift wings, were gone. How stupid Ben was to answer her in that sort of way! Why couldn't he have shrugged his shoulders and quoted a line of poetry?"

Casey, Belleville, writes: "In the spring of 1884 I began to be troubled with dyspepsia, which gradually became more and more distressing. I used various domestic remedies and applied to my family physician, but received no benefit. By this time my trouble assumed the form of dropsy. I was unable to use any food whatever except boiled milk and bread; my limbs were swollen to twice their natural size; all hopes of my recovery were given up, and I quite expected death within a few weeks. Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY having been recommended to me, I tried a bottle with but little hope of relief; and now, after using eight bottles, my Dyspepsia and Dropsy are cured. Although now 79 years of age I can enjoy my meals as well as ever, and my general health is good. I am well-known in this section of Canada, having lived here 57 years; and you have liberty to use my name in recommendation of your VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, which has done such wonders in my case." A novel is a romance up to the time the hero and heroine marry; after that it be-

A HORSE IN THE PARLOR!

The Unwilling Eider Shoots a Couple of Her Tormentors.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 13 .- A furious woman, who had been held upon a horse's back against her will at a social gathering on Friday night, shot two men, one of whom may die. The victims are Constable John Hart and an unknown man, and Mrs.

John Barry did the shooting.

The elite of Archibald turned out that evening to attend a party given by Mrs. Barry. The guests were lively and on the lookout for amusement.

As a climax to the evening's enjoyment a number of men went out, procured a horse and returned leading the animal into the parlor. There was a scattering of girls and women, accompanied by shricks of terror. But several strong arms seized Mrs. John Barry, the hostess, and she was vaulted upon the steed's broad back. A shout of laughter greeted her elevation to that post of honor. As she was not arrayed in a riding habit, the fair rider was mortified by the exposure that resulted.

The horse was led about the room, while the audience laughed loudly and applauded their hostess' discomfiture. Mrs. Barry's entreaties to be released fell on deaf ears for a long time. Then she grew so furious that she was permitted to dismount. Rushing to another room she seized a revolver and returned to the scene of the festivities. Leveling her weapon at her now frightened tormentors she fired. The first bullet struck Constable Harris in the neck and he dropped. Then she opened a volley upon her guests, and a man whose name is yet unknown to the public got a bullet in the leg. The guests fled from the house. Constable Hart's wound, Dr. Wm. Doren says, may end fatally. A warrant was sworn out for Mrs. Barry's

All summer complaints, such as cholera infantum, diarrhea and dysentery, are preventable when pure and life-giving Lactated Food is used for the baby. It is now an established fact that infants who are weak, puny and sickly are soon made strong, fat and healthy on Lactated Foed.
Mrs. W. Gibbs, 257 Richmond street, Montreal, testifies as follows about the good results of Lactated Food:

"I think it my duty, as a mother, to tell you what Lactated Food has done for my baby. I tried first three other foods, and they were no good, and baby got so bad that I sent for a doctor, who said as much that baby would not live.

"A lady friend told me to use Lactated Food. I sent for a sample; baby seemed to like it, and kept it on its stomach, something it could not do with other foods. I have used it ever since, and baby is fat and strong. I am sure Lactated Food has saved

Several families from Aldborough picnicked at Clearville during the day, and returning home foolishly in-dulged in horse racing. A democrat driven by George Dubs, containing his wife, child, Christopher James, Mrs. Dubs' father, and others, was completely demolished by the tongue dropping. The occupants were thrown out at the side of the road and the child's head was crushed, so that it died two hours afterwards. Mrs. Dubs and Mr. James were both picked up unconscious,

After the Grocery Stock. Mrs. Jane McBean, Dundas street, made an assignment for the benefit of creditors about a week ago. Henry McBean operated a grocery store under his name adjoining the Mechanics' Institute, but Mrs. McBean, who is said to be the real owner of the stock and who leased the store, placed it in the hands of Mr. D. Mrs. Harriet Trebilcock is the owner of the place and claims unpaid rent to the extent of $490. An inventory of the stock showed but he and his neighbors must understand that after the rent was paid there would be little left for the creditors, so the assignee | a disgrace, and I am determined to clear it withdrew. Henry McBean's personal taxes, amounting to $27 93, have not been paid, and Bailiff Burns was given instructions by Mr. Daniel Lester to seize for the amount. Burns went to execute the writ. but High Constable Schram claims the bought off, and other things have taken stock cannot be seized for taxes and threatens to land the bailiff outside if he tries to get inside the premises. Mr. Lester is bound to get the taxes, and says if Mc-Bean was assessed for the stock when be really did not own it he should be punished. find myself in Buchanan's place." To Lawyer Wigle, who appeared for Delisle, she said that the prisoner did not offer her money, but simply suggested that it would be better for her to take the amount named than to go through the ordeal. Constable Masters, who made the complaint, said the other witnesses could simply corroborate what Miss Patterson had said. They were met at the wharf by large crowds, who cheered lustily. Thence they were conducted by the mayor and aldermen, Senator Primrose and John Mc-Dougall, M.P., to the front entrance of the custom house, where a large platform had been erected. Here an address of welcome was read by the town clerk. The band played and children sang the National Anthem. The Earl replied in a few words, thanking them for the reception, after which the visitors were refreshed with lunch in the custom house.
