A Serious Crisis Impending in the East-Russia's Jealousy.

London, May 1.-The Times prints the following from Kobe under date of April 26: There are unmistakable evidences of a serious crisis in the relations between Japan and Russia. The vernacular press is forbidden to refer thereto. Four Tokio newspapers have been suspended for reporting that a secret council of Ministers had been held. According to information from a trustworthy source in Hiroshima the Ministry have adopted a resolute attitude toward Russian dictation. The Ministry deny Russia's right to interfere and even meditate open defiance, believing that Russia's forces in the East are not powerful enough to enforce that country's demands. Foreign warships are assembling at Japanease ports. French vessels have been ordered to prepare for an emergency. A dispatch from Tokio to the Central News says that the defenses of Port Arthur have been improved and extended, and are now stronger than ever before. The dispatch also says that Japan has received assurances that England and Italy will not allow the warships of Russia, Germany or France to pass through the Suez Canal if such vessels should be avowedly dispatched for the purpose of coercing Japan. The Japanese Government, the dispatch says, is also assured of the benevolent neutrality of the United States.

"YOU'VE DONE IT NOW."

Testimony of Officers in Charge of the Steamer Crathie, Which Sank the Elbe.

London, April 30.-The official inquiry into the sinking of the North German Lloyd steamship Elbe by the Pritish steamer Crathie was resumed at Lowestoft this morning. No North German Lloyd witnesses were present. Mr. Sharpe, the steward of the Cra-thie, testified that he saw the lights of a four-master across the bow of the Crathie, and immediately afterwards there was a tremendous crash. The captain came on deck and shouted to the mate, "You've done it now." Seaman Oran, who was steering the Crathie at the time of the collision. said there was a weather screen on the starboard side of the Crathie which prevented him from seeing in any direction except right ahead of him. He first saw the masthead light of the Elbe off; he shouted an alarm, and immediately afterward heard the order "Hard a-port." He attempted to obey the order, but before it could be carried out the ships came together. Seaman White, who was acting as lookout, was called to the stand, and after the usual caution by the chair-man in regard to the use against him of any incriminating testimony, de-posed that he left the wheel and took the lookout. He saw a steamer's mast-head and sidelights two miles away on the starboard bow, but as the red light disappeared he did not report the fact to the officer of the watch. He did not see the mate from 5 o'clock until after the collision and did not hear any shouting.

Mate Craig, of the Crathie, was called to the stand and also cautioned as to his testimony. He said he went to the bridge of the Crathie at 4 o'clock and remained there until after the collision. He noticed three lights of a steamer two points on the starboard bow. As the red light disappeared, he did not alter the course of the Crathie Five minutes later he saw a steamer's red light on the starboard bow, and immediately gave the order "Hard aport," but it was then too late to avoid the collision. Craig accounted for the disappearance of the Elbe's red light on the supposition that the latter ship must have altered her course in order to get out of the way of a trawler. He denied the steward's statement that he was in the galley with the lookout man. White, and adhered to this assertion. that he did not leave the upper bridge from the time he went there at 4 o'clock until after the collision.

London, May 1.—The Elbe investigation was resumed at Lowestoft this morning. The coroner said it was clear that the damage sustained by the Crathie in the collision prevented her from proceeding on her voyage. The jury returned a verdict that in hteir opinion the collision was due to gross negligence in the part of the mate and look-out men of the Crathie. The captain of the Crathie was entirely

THE JURY DISAGREED

In the Wilde Case—The Judge Favorable to the Prisoner.

London, April 30.-The evidence for the defense in the Wilde case was finished this afternoon, when Sir Edward Clark addressed the jury in behalf of Wilde. The only direct evidence against Wilde, he declared, was the testimony of three blackmailers. Who, he asked, would believe them? He spoke in this strain at considerable length, and finished his address with a peroration reeloquence.

ed that the witnesses against Wilde had no object in swearing falsely. The judge will charge the jury tomorrow. The statement is at least premature, if not altogeher groundless, that Mrs. Oscar Wilde has begun proceedings for London, May 1.-A necklace formed a divorce from her husband. At all of 362 pearls, which the late Duchess of events she certainly would take no steps in that direction pending a ver> a good deal of speculation as to what course the judge would pursue in his charge to the jury, and the concensus of opinion seemed to be that the result of the trial depended more upon the board, Mr. Girdlestone's resolution was charge of the court than uopn the views taken by the jury. Wilde looked careworn and anxious, but Taylor maintained the air of unconcern which has characterized him throughout the trial. The judge said the evidence had not sustained the charge of conspiracy, and he therefore directed the jury to acquit the prisoners of these charges. The judge then proceeded to analyze the evidence solely referring to Wilde, and begged the jury to dismiss from their minds all press comments and other outside expressions of opinion. young men who had been called to the witness stand were not only accomplices, but Parker, Wood and Atkins were properly described as blackmailers. Furthermore, Atkins had told deliberate falsehoods within the hearing of the jury. The jury could not overlook the fact that they were persons of character, which they themselves had asserted. The judge then proceeded to trace the history of the Queensberry trial. In regard to Wilde's literature, he did not think that in a criminal case this ought to base an unfavorable inference upon Wilde's authorship of "Dorian Green." As regarded the "Story of the Priest and Acolyte" in the Chamelon Magazine, he thought it would be absurd to impute blame to Wilde. The sonnets of Lord Alfred Douglas which Wilde had approved were much more material, as were also Wilde's letters, which Mr. Carson in the Queensberry trial had described as horribly indecent. These letters were couched in the language of passionate life, but Wilde had not said anything in them to be ashamed of. The jury, he said, must use their own judgment in regard to the letters.

The judge, in concluding his charge, said the case was one of great importance to the community. If the jury believed that the charges against the prisoners were true, they should say so fearlessly.

San Francisco, May 1.-Lord Sholto Douglass, one of the sons of the Marquis of Queensberry, awaits the coming of his sweetheart from the town of Bakersfield, in the San Joaquin Valley, where the sprig of nobility has been ostensibly looking to the cultivation of a tract of land that belongs to his mother, but in reality wooing the fair Loretta Addis, whose name was Mooney before the glare of footlights fell upon her rosy cheeks. Loretta, or "Lollie," as Lord Sholto prefers to call her, is engaged in warbling at a concert hall. Her winning ways are her stockin-trade. The sudden leap from obscurity into notoriety, owing to Lord Sholto's announcement of his intention to marry her, has evidently imbued a San Francisco concert hall proprietor with the idea that she would be a drawing card. So Loretta is billed to appear here next Monday night, and Lord Sholto, in a modest room in a lodging house, awaits her coming. He looks effeminate, and he is seedy in appearance. His finances are evidently at an ebb.

Sir Henry Tyler Replies in Its Defense.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson Will Accept the Presidency.

A Large and Exciting Meeting-Opposition Carry the Day.

STATEMENT OF THE OPPOSITION. London, April 30.-At the conclusion of Sir Henry Tyler's statement before the meeting of Grand Trunk share-holders, Mr. Girdlestone, chairman of the shareholders' committee, offered the following resolution: "That the directors be requested to hold their resignation at the disposal of the com-mittee until the committee shall have made arrangements for a reorganization of the board; that such committee shall consist of the present committee and eight of the largest shareholders not already members of the committee, and that the further business of the meeting be adjourned."

Mr. Girdlestone stated that the task of the committee had been simplified by the announcement of the president, Sir Henry Tyler, of the resignation of the oard of directors. The agitation of hose in favor of reorganization had no other object than that of improving the condition of the company. Their in-dictment against the policy of the board of directors was contained in their circular, to which they had nothing to add and nothing to take away. It was based upon the report made by Mr. Barker. A cablegram, he said, had been received from Mr. Barker confirming the statements which had been made in the circular. He denied the assertions that the committee had acted unfairly and had misled the share-holders. The five principal charges made against the board of directors, he contended, had been fully maintained. He also said that the disastrous state of the company's affairs was due to low rates. Such a state of things had not come suddenly, but was the growth of years. Despite the decreasing rates from year to year, Sir Henry Tyler markable for its display of passion and and his associates on the board had been constantly amalgamating and Mr. Gill, for the prosecution, contend- taking vast subsidiary systems. "Were we to lie still," he asked, "under this bad generalship and see the stock of be like children and be told nothing while the accounts were being con-cealed and muddled? What is wanted is new blood in the board. (Loud cheers.) What else is wanted," he continued, "is a president of high finanthe poor of East London, was sold at auction today and brought $57,500.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT. The Montreal Star's special cable report of the annual meeting of the Trunk Railway Company in London today says: The meeting was a packed one, and great excitement prevailed. When Sir Henry Tyler announced the resignation of himself and the board of directors he was received with cheers and groans from the dif-ferent sections of the meeting. The board held a meeting this morning previous to the annual one. It was reported to them that the committee of the dissatisfied shareholders had secured a majority of the proxies against the board. The board, however, held the opinion that this had been accomplished by means of an unfair and misleading circular. The board also charges that the committee of the share-holders have published an abstract which differs in many respects from the Barker report, and does not fairly convey its substance. CONTRA STATEMENT. In a separate circular which had previously been issued the directors asked for the support of the proprietors, and referring to the opposition, they stated: This agitation is carried on by a self-constituted committee with authority from the general body of proprietors, and appears to be mainly fomented by those having comparatively small interests in the company.

The general effect of their allegations is that the present unfortunate condition of the company is due to mismanagement, whereas it will be obvious to all impartial proprietors, not only that it is due to circumstances entirely be-yond the control of the board or of the management in Canada, but also that every possible exertion has been made by the strictest economy to counteract the effects of the extreme depression in business and low rate of conveyance. No evidence has been adduced that those who have put themselves forward, and who hope by becoming directors to assume control of this vast system, involving so much complication, are capable of surmounting the serious difficulties by which it has, from depression of trade and other adverse circumstances, been temporarily surrounded, or even that they possess any technical knowledge whatever of railway affairs. The integrity and credit of the company are, in the unanimous opinion of the board, seriously threatened by this agitation, which is a sufficient reason to the directors for appealing to all those who have a real interest in the company to assist them in carrying the undertaking through the present crisis, which they have so far surmounted, and from which, with the continued support of the proprietors, they cannot doubt the company will satisfactorily emerge. Sir Henry Tyler's speech was a long one, and was principally a justification of the acquisition of the Chicago and Grand Trunk road. He gave the charge of concealment laid against the board a warm denial. Sir Henry Tyler moved

THE NEW MANAGEMENT. Mr. Gilderston, chairman of the dis-satisfied shareholders, announced amid loud cheers that Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, late controller of the national debt and Government director of the Suez Canal, reorganizer of the Egyp-tian finances, and of the Central Pacific Railway of the United States, had promised to give his most careful consideration to the offer of the presidency of the company which the committee had made him.

The committee desired Messrs. Hubbard, Allen and Brock to remain on the board under Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson. It was moved that the directors be requested to hold their resigna-tions at the disposal of the committee until the latter reorganized the board, and that eight of the largest share-holders be added to the committee; and that the meeting be adjourned until May 7.

When Sir Henry Tyler put Mr. Gilder stone's amendment a forest of hands showed the meeting's approval of the amendment. Only half a dozen hands were shown in opposition. The meeting then adjourned until May 7 amid loud RETIRING DIRECTORS. The following is the board of directors which resigned: Sir Henry Tyler, president; George Allen, John Allan Clutton-Brock, Lord Claud Hamilton, William Unwin Heygate, Alexander Hubbard. William Brame Jeffries, John Mainham, Sir Henry M. Mather-Jackson, Bart., Hon. Sir Frank Smith.

COMMENT. London, April 30. The Times tomorrow will congratulate Sir Henry Tyler and his colleagues in the management of the Grand Trunk Railroad on resigning. It will say that they managed the line to the best of their ability, and that the proprietors were partly to blame for tolerating them so long, notwithstanding the constant attempts of the minority to open their eyes to the existing danger. The committee, the Times learns, have asked a score of the largest proprietors to meet on May 3 and form a sort of grand committee to deliberate as to the best course to

JAMES DUNN BECAME INSANE.

Now There Is a Law Suit Over His Property and Cash, Amounting to About $18,000 - His Brother Claims That Two Sisters Improperly Obtained a Portion of It.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

Mr. Justice Street resumed court at 2 o'clock. Cunningham vs. Coughlin in which the will of the lat James Osborne Cunningham, of Wardsville, involving an estate of $30,000, was in dispute. Christina Cunningham, widow of the deceased, came in for the lion's share of the property. Mrs. Coughlin and Mrs. Kains, daughters by the first wife, came in for $500 each; Christina and Theresa, two daughters by the second wife, got $1,000 each; and a son, Ignatius, $500. Mrs. Cunningham wanted the will admitted to probate, but the defendants, Sarah Ann Coughlin, Mary E. Kains, Peter Cunningham and others, claimed the will was not executed in accordance with the provisions of the act, and that its execution was obtained by undue influence on the part of the plaintiff. It was also held that at the time of the execution of the will Cunningham was mentally incapable of making his last testament, and that it was not the last will of the deceased. Judgment for the plaintiff, James Edward Cunnigham, one of the defendants, was ordered to pay all the costs incurred after the order was made making him a party. Alex. Stuart for plaintiff; Robinson for contesting defendant; Duncan Stuart for the official guardian of the three infant defendants.

Adair vs. Hammond was an action to obtain a share or certain valuable property in the township of Sandwich, which was conveyed by the plaintiff's deceased wife to him by deeds which were alleged to have been mutilated and destroyed by the defendant. Hammond afterwards got a conveyance from his mother, and the plaintiff asked to have it set aside on the ground that it was obtained by fraud. Joseph 3. Adair, of Glencoe, was the plaintiff; Chas. M. Hammond, a practicing solicitor, of Detroit, was the defendant. Judgment reserved. Magee and Stuart for plaintiff; Meredith & Cameron for defendants.

WEDNESDAY MORNING. At this morning's session of the Chancery Court the case of Dunn vs. Dunn was partly heard. John P. Dunn, of the township of Dorchester, was the plaintiff, and his two sisters, Jennie Dunn and Nettie Reavie, were fe de fendants. The suit arose over the estate of James A. Dunn, a lunatic. Jas. A. Dunn was a bachelor farmer, and up to the time of his becoming insane resided in the township of South Dorchester, in Elgin county, where he owned 200 acres of valuable land. After Dunn's reason was unbalanced his brother, John, obtained the appointment of himself as a committee to look after James' estate. On commencing his duties he made such inquiries as would enable him to make a report to the master in chancery on the condition of the estate. He further alleges that his brother, besides the 200 acres, valued at $12,000, had moneys and securities to the extent of $6,000. Prior to his removal to the asylum James Dunn lived with his sisters in Aylmer, and the plaintiff claims that during that time they induced James to hand over to them all his moneys and property. The defendants deny the charge of their brother, and claim that James Dunn gave them the money when he was of sound mind and without any influence. Wright & Hegler for plaintiffs; Mc-Dougall and Robinson for defense. George K. Morton, Matthew H. Tayor and Alma Agnes Duffield, executors of the will of the late Colin Munro, of St. Thomas, brought action against Mrs. Symons, wife of Mr. Charles A. Symons, of this city, to recover certain lands of which Mrs. Symons is in possession. Judge Street gave judgment for specific performance with reference to the master in St. Thomas as to title, purchase money and the usual matters

A PARTING GIFT.

Mr. Atwell Fleming Presented With a Silver Water Pitcher by Court Vic-toria, No. 10, I. O. F.—He Resigns the Office of Treasurer of that Court.

Last evening Court Victoria, No. 10,

I. O. F., held a special meeting in their hall, Albion Block. The object of the gathering turned out to be for the purpose of receiving a visit from Mr. Atwell Fleming, the court treasurer, and high treasurer of Ontario, who had been in Toronto for a month past. A large number of members from other city courts attended. When the general business of the court was reached Mr. Fleming rose, and in a brief speech related his efforts in behalf of Forestry since his connection with the order. His object, he stated, in visiting them, was to resign the office of treasurer of the court. He had but recently located in Toronto, resigning his position as superintendent of the "Advertiser" job department to accept a position in Toronto. His services for fourteen years as treasurer he had given simply as a matter of duty, and he would always cherish in his memory the many pleasant events that transpired during his term of office. When he first took office the court was heavily in debt. This had been overcome, and the court was now in a prosperous condition. In relinquishing this post he also resigned as treasurer of the hall board. In closing he wished all city members and those of Court Victoria success, stating that as long as he thought it to be justice to himself he would remain a member of Court Victoria, No. 10. Bro. Fleming's resignation was accepted and Mr. W. A. Hunter elected to fill the vacancy. While other members were expressing regrets at losing Mr. Fleming's services. Messrs. W. A. Hunter and Thomas Cousins stepped forward and read the following address, which was accompanied with a silver water pitcher of excelent workmanship: Atwell Fleming, Esq., High Treasurer of the High Court of Ontario, I. O. F. Dear Sir and Brother,-Having heard with regret of your intended departure from among us, the members of Court Victoria, No. 10, I. O. F., of which you have been a valued and esteemed member for many years, take this opportunity of showing their appreciation of the services you have rendered the court in the different offices you have held. In your capacity as treasurer, an office which you have filed for the past nine or ten years, you have well and faithfully looked after the financial interests of the court; and as secretarytreasurer of the I. O. F. Hall Board you have been untiring in your endeavor to make the I. O. F. Hall one of the finest in the city. We would earnestly request you, therefore, to accept this water pitcher as a slight token of esteem, and when separated from us may it remind you of the many pleasant hours spent among the members of Court Victoria, and may we all work more earnestly for the good of that noble order, which has for its foundation the relieving of the sick and dis-tressed, and of helping the fatherless and the widows in their affliction. By an unblemished course of life, honorable dealings and conscientious uprightness, you have reflected credit upon your own character as a man, and increased largely the dignity and stability of an order with whose progress and prosperity we are all identified. With best wishes for your success in your new home, and wishing Mrs. Fleming and yourself many years of health and prosperity, we remain, yours in liberty, benevolence and concord. Signed on behalf of the court, THOS. COU-SINS, W.A. HUNTER, ATWELL ROD-DAM JAS CRAIG. Mr. Fleming acknowledged his surprise, and thanked the brethren on behalf of himself and Mrs. Fleming for their handsome token of esteem. Several visiting members spoke regretfully of Court Victoria's loss, after which the meeting broke up.

Mr. Fleming leaves for Toronto with his family today. CANADIAN HORSES.

Lasting Results.

There has been a marked change lately in the expression of public opin-ion in regard to the Gold Cure. This is owing to the universal success of the treatment administered at Lakehurst Institute, Oakville. Some well-known men have taken advantage of it, and though objecting to their names being used in public print do not hesitate to warmly indorse Lakehurst, and are pleased to give information and advice to anyone wishing it. It is now generally accepted that treatment at Lakehurst means lasting freedom from liquor and drug habits. It is the representative Gold Cure institute of Canada, has created a standard of its own by its successful works, and is in no way connected with any other and not responsible for their failures. Lakehurst offers facilities for the enjoyment of guests in the way of reading rooms. well-stocked library, boating, bowling, billiards, large grounds, beautiful lawns and every provision for making one's stay there entertaining and enjoyable. An exchange declares that sponges are not as a rule carefully enough clean ed, and that they are when dirty very liable to propagate microbes. After use a sponge should always be rinsed in clean hot water in which a liberal pinch of borax has been dissolved, well squeezed and then dried in the sunshine or hanging it up where the air can freely circulate about it. Sponges should never be left in a bag when wet. Sliminess may be removed by soaking for 24 hours in a couple of pints of hot water in which an ounce of carbonate of soda—ordinary washing soda—has been dissolved. Sponges in constant use, especially small face sponges, swarm with bacteria, and on that account should be thrown away or used for some household cleaning purpose

No doubt when one is reforming from bad habits, he should reform altogether. So, at least, thought an old lady who was opposed to the use of tobacco, when she saw an ex-drunkard, who vaunted his repentance, smoking a pipe. "I am a brand plucked from the burning," said the reformed man. "Anybody might know that," said the old lady, "for you're smokin' yet!"

Charles Smith on Some Phases of It -Natural and Acquired.

was the subject that Rev. Chas. lectured on in the King Street odist Church. "I do not mean ess by laziness," said Mr. Smith. ny men are idle against their will. cannot obtain work, much as they ild like to." Idleness is often also used by infirmity, but this is not iness. There are two kinds of lazis-natural and acquired. Naturally zy men are born so, and are often illed "easy-going" men. They hiber-ite, but unlike the animals they hiberate the whole time. "This kind of hen are often very fat." remarked Mr. mith with a broad smile, "present per-ons always excepted." Acquired laziess is caused by coming into fortunes or obtaining money not earned. A good many young ladies of the present day are inclined to be wishing for a life on the sofa or some other lazy employment. Some little boys were being asked what they most desired, when one of the smallest said: "Well, I would like to sit on the roof all day and have a job like Joseph." His father naturally asked him what he meant, and he replied: "Well, the Bible says, 'Pharaoh set Joseph over his house. In closing Mr. Smith warned his audience to shun the lazy man's epitaph: "Here lies a man who did no good, And if he'd lived he never would.

STOMACH NEURALGIA.

Interesting Facts About This Peculiar

A Pembroke Lady Who Suffered for Eight Years, Gives the Particulars of the day: Her Illness, and Tells How She Obtained Relief.

(From Pembroke Standard.) The grateful thanks of thousands in all parts of the Dominion who have been made well is the best evidence of the sterling merit of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. We suppose there is not a city, town, or village in Canada in which the good record of this health-giving medicine is not known, and Pembroke is no exception to the rule. Among those who speak of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in terms of the highest praise is Mrs. Fournier, wife of Mr. Peter Fournier, both of whom are held in high esteem by those who know them. To a reporter who recently visited their home Mrs. Fournier gave a plain, untarnished statement of her illness and cure. "It is now about eight years," she said, "since I began to grow ill with a pain in my back, stomach and side, and the amount of suffering which it caused me can scarcely be realized. As the days and months passed by I began to grow weaker, and I was seldom free from intense pains. At last I grew so weak that I was obliged to take to my bed, and even then suffered from the pains which were making my life so miserable. My appetite failed me, and I feared that I was doomed to be an invalid. During those days I was under the care of a skillful physician, but his medicine did me no good. He said that my trouble was neuralgia or rheumatism of the stomach. It was during those dark days, as I lay an almost helpless invalid, that a friend strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Although I had little faith in their efficacy at the time, I consented to try them. After using a few boxes I began to feel myself growing stronger and the pains leaving me. I continued using them until I had used a dozen boxes, and now you can see for yourself whether I look like a sick person or not. The pains in my stomach, side and back have ceased to trouble me and I have not been as well in eight years as I feel now. My appetite, which was so poor at one time, is now fully restored, and I am confident that not only have Pink Pills cured me but that they have saved me from misery and pain I would otherwise have still have been enduring." Mr. Fournier, who was present at the interview, fully indorsed all his wife had said. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make pure rich blood, thus reaching the root of disease and driving it out of the system, curing when other medicines fail. Most of the ills afflicting mankind are due to an impoverished condition of the blood, or weak and shattered nerves, and for all these Pink Pills are a specific which speedily restore the sufferer to health. These pills are never sold in any form except in the company's boxes, the wrapper around which bears the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" All others are counterfeits and should always be Our Price 50c PAIR refused. ARS. LARGE RECALLED.

The Widow of the Murdered Japanese Missionary, Well Known Here-Rumors Refuted.

The following from the Yokohama Daily Mail concerning Mrs. Large, who a year or two ago addressed big audiences in this city, will be of local in-

"We hear, writes the Jiji Shimpo, the London Spectator of Tokio journalism, that the widow of the late Mr Large, who suffered a cruel death at the hands of Japanese burglars some years ago at the Toyo Elwa Gakko, is about to leave for home, in obedience with the wish of the Canadian Methodist Church. The cause of the widow's recall is said to be her unpopularity in Japan, and the consequent apprehension that her presence here might impede the work of the Canadian Methodist Church Mission. The Jiji does not know whether this is the real reason for Mrs. Large's return, but if it is it cannot but regret that such a gross misconception should be circulated in connection with the lady Mrs. Large is not, and never has been, unpopular in Japan. She has devoted herself during her ten years' residence here, to the cause of evangelization with great zeal, and has succeeded in winning esteem in the circle of believ-justice. "The Jiji is at a loss to understand why such an unfounded rumor should St. Thomas Has the Usual Amount of be circulated about Mr. Large. Even supposing that she had been formerly unpopular, the calamity that overtook her must have been sufficient to efface any unfriendly feeling entertained towards her, and must have evoked heartfelt sympathy. How much stronger must this feeling be when she has never been disliked? The Jiji specially regrets that in Japan, where the police system is of such a high order the case and people who are acquainted with the of the late Mr. Large should be involved in such mystery as to totally baffle the ingenuity of even the most experienced detectives. The recall of Mrs. Large on account of her unpopularity with the Japanese must be due to the total ig-norance of the Canadian Methodist Church as to the real feelings entertained towards her by the people of this country. The Jiji does not hesitate to say that under the circumstances the propagation of the church in Japan

His body was brought home, and on Thursday last the funeral, which was largely attended, took place to Brown's Cemetery.

A Married Woman's Marvelous Rescue From The Shadows of the Valley of Death.

The following startling disclosures of a New England woman would bafile belief were not the positive proofs at hand. Lost for nearly a year to her family and friends, tortured by most agonizing trials into a mere living shadow, the restored wife and mother now makes public the particulars of her rescue.

Her trouble dates back to a year ago last June, when worry and overwork brought on a condition of mental depression, from which, do what she would, she was unable to free herself. Her family noticed that she seemed to lose all energy. Next her strength gave way. Then she began to waste in flesh, until the wrinkled skin of her face hung from her cheekbones. Her elbows were sharp. She could not bear to rest them on the table. It seemed as if nothing but her skeleton was left. Seeking health abroad, by the advice of her physician, she failed so fast that her husband did not recognize her when he met her on the deck of the returning steamer. Her children were frightened strange woman. Eminent specialists who were now consulted sent her to a Rhode Island sanitarium. According to her own words, such were her sufferings and so hopeless her condition that whenever she lay down to troubled sleep she hoped that she might never wake. The most tempting food seemed like bitter medicine. Her brain only a machine for measuring pain. Her only thought that she was being murdered by inches. No help from seashore or mountains. No relief from doctors, medicines or hospitals. A grain of hope from Swedish massage. She seemed to gain, but found that it was due to heavier clothing. Another re-lapse. Her disease an unfathomable mystery. Every doctor had a new name for it.

It was in this stage that she heard how the life of Jennie V. S. Wilcox, M.D., of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., had been saved by the treatment discovered by the founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo,

GAINED OVER FORTY POUNDS. With the readiness with which a dying mortal catches at a straw, this poor woman, given up by her family and acquaintances as lost to the world, took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for one week and stopped growing worse. She continued its use a second week and actually gained two pounds. The third week her weight increased nearly three pounds. The fourth five pounds, and such were her continued strides to health, that when she had ta-ken five bottles of this wonderful nerve nourishing and vitalizing medicine she had gained over forty pounds. In a little more than three months her disease, which no one at home or abroad could heretofore understand or master. was cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It transformed her from ceptional one as far as Dr. Pierce's great remedies are concerned. Their public and private records show that in every state of the union, as well as in foreign lands, thousands of people have been brought back from the shadow of death to strength and vigor. Dragged down by coughs, hemorrhages and wasting diseases, they have found a flesh-builder, blood-maker and nervenourisher in the "Golden Medical Discovery.'

The case of a well-known Michigan lady furnishes an instance:

GAINED OVER 45 POUNDS. Mrs. Fred. Kempson, of Cambria, Hillsdale county, Michigan, writes to Dr. Pierce: "When I began to take your medicine I could not do any work to speak of. I was in such misery that many times when I lay down for the night I have prayed never to see the light of another sun. It was almost death to me to stand on my feet when I began to use your medicines. I weighed 103 pounds. I have taken in all ten bottles of your Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, six of your "Golden Medical Discovery," and today I am well, and weigh 148 1-2 pounds and am doing the work for my family of nine.

GAINED 35 POUNDS. Mrs. Sarah E. Snead, of Clio, N. C., writes: "Will you please accept a few lines from me thanking you for your skill in preparing your medicines and placing them within reach of the suffering. I have a daughter, Miss M. H. Snead, who has been very low, was almost given up by two physicians who treated her with their best skill, and did not receive much benefit. She was first attacked with pneumonia and pleurisy in very bad form and was taken with a very bad cough, which kept growing worse and worse, until finally it seemed as though she had consumption very bad. The physicians prescribed cod liver oil, but to no benefit. Mrs. Miller, a neighbor of ours, re-commended Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to me with very strong faith, as she had been in the same condition and was cured by its use. I procured two bottles and she grew better. She hasn't felt any return of lung disease in over twelve months. She was nothing but a skeleton when she took the first dose, but today she weighs 135 pounds. I thought it my duty to write to you in regard to her case, as so many other medicines had failed, and it acted like a charm." NOT EXCEPTIONAL.

The foregoing cases are not exceptional ones; on the contrary, the great Doctor book advertised below to be given away absolutely free of cost for a limited time, contains the reproduced photographs, names and addresses of a large number of people residing in all parts of the United States whose restoration to health by the "Golden Medical Discovery" is quite as remarkable.

GREAT DOCTOR BOOK FREE. When Dr. Pierce published the first edition of his great work, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, he announced that after 680,000 copies had been sold at the regular price, $1 50 per copy, he would distribute the next half million free. As this number of copies has now been sold, he will, in accordance with his original offer, distribute, absolutely free (the receiver merely to pay for packing, custom duty and postage, as stipulated in the fol-lowing coupon, $500,000 copies of this most complete, interesting and valuable common sense medical work ever published. In a single year this book will save more than a hundred times its cost in any family. It is a veritable medical library, complete in one volume. It must be distinctly understood that not more than one copy will be sent to any one family free.

MR. McGREEVY'S WELCOME BACK TO THE FOLD.

Last night Hon. Thomas McGreevy. who the other day was counted in as Conservative M. P. for Quebec, was duly admitted back to the House of Commons and warmly welcomed by his party friends.

It is only a comparatively short time since Mr. McGreevy was expelled from the same Chamber because of his shady transactions in connection with Government grants. At that time it was proved that Mr. McGreevy and his friends, the Connollys, with the connivance of the men in power at Ottawa, dreds of thousands of dollars of public money. When they were found out, those in authority resolved to make the boodling contractors a sacrifice, not only for their own misdeeds, but for those of the Government at Ottawa as

No action was taken till an aroused public opinion compelled it. Then it was that Messrs. McGreevy and Connolly were prosecuted for conspiracy to rob the public, and sent to jail for twelve months. On the plea that both the accused suffered from ill-health, the Dominion Government ordered their release within three months after their incarceration. This leniency is not to be wondered at when it is remembered that the worse criminals of the lot were the men who had charge of the public purse, and who have, from to time, entered into agreements with them for large over-payments of public money in exchange for heavy subscriptions to election funds. The evidence presented to Parliament on this point some time ago is unassailable. Here are a few of the notes laid before the House as having passed be-Mr. McGreevy and Sir A. P. Caron immediately prior to the wholesale boodling in connection with the Quebec harbor works and the Esqui-

Please give to bearer, under cover of P. Laundry, Esq., $1,000 for legal expenses in the election of Montmagny ADOLPHE P. CARON.

It was proved in court that at least $18,500 were spent to elect Sir Adolphe Caron in Quebec county. This was shown from the official list of disburseagent swore, under the statute, that didate were only $58, and that the expenses as agent were $846 46! If the expenditures were honest, why were they thus hidden? It has been proved, too, that the total amount disbursed by Sir Adolphe Caron and his friends in Quebec in that election were $112,000. Where would the friend and bosom companion of Mr. McGreevy have been but for the money of the contractor, who in turn was permitted to recoup himself at the expense of the tax-

Sir Adolphe Caron said in the House of Commons on July 3, 1894:

"I take the full responsibility for my action and for assisting my friends, because it was necessary to assist them under the peculiar conditions existing in the district of Quebec which I took I am prepared to stand or fall by what I have done, and, considering that I have helped friends to the extent that I have considered legitimate, I say that under the same circumstances what I did on that occasion I would do tomorrow in order to help my friends.

It is apparent from this declaration that, bad though McGreevy's friends were, there were worse culprits who, Instead of occupying the high position they are now in, and applauding the return of one of their associates to a position which he disgraced by their connivance alone, should now be in jail explating their crimes against the

It is a serious thing, this carnival of extravagance combined with corruption which has brought the country to

Specially Telegraphed by Our Own Representative.

Ottawa, April 30 .- Just as the Com- | the changes. He asked why, if it were mons began business today Mr. Taylor, chief whip on the Conservative side, and Mr. Frechette, a Quebec Conserv. tive M. P., appeared before Mr. Speaker with the now famous Thomas Mc-Greevy, counted in for Quebec West, between them. Mr. McGreevy is a dapper little man of middle age, with clean shaven face and hard-set countenance. When he was asked to take his seat, from which he was expelled for boodling a year or two ago, it at first seemed as if he were to be received in solemn silence, but Mr. Ives, a member of the Government, gave the cue for applause, and an unusually faint demonstration was made in his favor. The first man to grasp Mr. McGreevy's hand was Sir Adolphe Caron, who was one of his companions in the infamous proceedings which landed him in jail, while they kept Sir Adolphe in place and power.

A more agreeable topic is the Liberal caucus which was held this forenoon. Every member of the party was present, and the veteran Mr. Scriver, the member for Huntingdon, presided. Addresses weere delivered by Hon. Mr. Laurier, Hon. David Mills, Hon. Mr. Davies, Sir Richard Cartwright, and other M. P.s, and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. The general programme for the session was outlined, and it was resolved to use every constitutional means to compel the Government to conduct Parliamentary business in a manner conducive to the public inter-est. The system of evasion and of withholding information for years after being voted by the House was con-

The proposed confederation of Newfoundland occupied the attention of the House for some time. Mr. Davies introduced the subject because of the statement made semi-officially in the press that it is the intention of the Government of Newfoundland not to take a popular vote on the question but to hurry the island into union with Canada whether the people desire it or not. Mr. Davies said two reasons were given for this. One was that there was no money to hold a general election, and the other was, the people were too ignorant to pronounce upon the subject. Both these excuses Mr. Davies regarded as ridiculous, and he warned Parliament against consenting to the ular desire, and it has cost the Dominion millions of dollars to make good that blunder.

Mr. Foster declined to promise that he Government of Canada would insist on a popular vote of the people or to make any explanations prior to the terms agreed on being laid on the table.

Mr. Laurier said Canada did not need popular vote on the subject, as all were agreed that Newfoundland should come in, but Prince Edward Island un-doubtedly did. The House and country will certainly regret the attitude taken by the Ministers.

Hon. Mr. Mills with warmth condemned the Ministers for refusing to answer a simple question which the House and country have a right to see explained. The Government, said Mr. Mills, has passed into the hands of men who are not able to conduct it, and this sup-pression of legitimate information is good evidence of that fact.

Mr. Weldon defended the secret attitude of the Government. All would be known in good time. "Perhaps the door will be locked after the horse is stolen," said Dr. Lander-

Sir Richard Cartwright warned the Government against a forced union. Ireland's many troubles were caused by the forced union, engineered by Lord Castelreigh, who bought up a majority of the legislators, while the large majority of the people, Protestant and Catholic, were opposed to un-

Mr. Flint and Mr. Edgar added their objections to any attempt to override the clearly expressed wish of the people of Newfoundland.

Next came Mr. Foster's explanation of some of the recent shakes-up in the Cabinet. Mr. Laurier, with powerful invective, denounced the false and mendacious statement sent out by the Government at the death of Sir John Thompson to the effect that Sir Frank Smith had first been called on to form a Cabinet, and that he had declined the task, and asked Lord Aberdeen to send for Mackenzie Bowell. Mr. Laurier said it was incredible that Lord Aberdeen would do any such thing as he had been credited with by those men, not in the House, but by their statement sent to Conservative papers. Sir Frank Smith was a successful man in his own line. but no one would say that he was a statesman, or a likely man to be called on to form a Cabinet. Mr. Laurier protested against using his Excellency to promote the political ends of the Conservative party. It was inpertinent vulgarity, to which the Governor-General should not be subjected. The intention of the report concected and given to the press, Mr. Laurier explained, was to lead the public to believe that Sir Frank Smith, a Roman Catholic, had wittingly given way to and indorsed a strong Orangeman for the position of Premier. The alleged confessions of Sir Frank, as supplied to the Ottawa correspondents of the Conservative papers proved this.

Dr. Landerkin suggested that the Government leader should explain his "It would take some time to get it through your head," retorted Mr. Cochrane, of Northumberiand. "There is no skim milk in it, any way," replied the Grey doctor, amid much laughter, the House remembering the dairy scandal in which Mr. Coci rane figured.

Mr. Edgar made a vigorous speech on the Cabinet changes, remarking espe-cially on the manenr in which Sir John Carling had been pitched out of the Cabinet, and driven from the Agricultural Department to make way for a Quebes lawyer.

Dr. Landerkin humorously discussed

One Hundred and Fifty-Nine Draw Their Final Pay.

Forty-Two Go to Toronto - Twelve to Brantford-One to Windsor-Five Down Town - Names of the Transferred.

It was a strange coincidence that Sir Henry Tyler, president of the Grand Trunk, should resign his situation on the same day as 159 Grand Trunk operatives who were discharged in the East End last night. The discharging and paying off of the men was the final execution of the recent order from headquarters to reduce expenses by closing the works here. Today the erstwhile employes are scattered in every direction of the compass. The 159 before mentioned are probably at home or seeking employment. Forty-two went to Toronto, twelve to Brantford, five to the light repair shop down town, and one to Windsor. The two watchmen are left, and half a dozen store room employes bear them company. It was a queer scene that was enacted inside and outside of the car shops offices from 5 to 6 last evening. It was not yet 5 o'clock. Outside were beginning crowd of children, the majority of the press carts. These were congregating to carry away the tool chests that would not be needed on the morrow. Inside the office railing sat Mr. Richard Evans, cashier at the freight house. At his feet was a small open satenel. On the table in front of him was heaped up in denominational piles $2,500 in Canadian currency. He was busy looking over the pay roll. Just inside the yard was a gray-headed, geniallooking man, a second edition of ex-Ald. Shaw in appearance, a sphirx when questioned about Grand Trunk business, and very communicative when the weather is under discussion. This was Mr. W. Alderson, general car inspector, of Toronto, who assumed charge when Superintendent Kerr left for Brantford on Monday. He was busy just then talking to Mr. Thos. Treleaven, foreman of the down town annex of the shop. Outside in the yard the sun shone brightly on the ruins of the shops destroyed by fire in 1884. They stood boldly forth, their once blackened forms bleached white by rain and shine and storm. Down the yard to the west stood several freight and passenger cars, burnished and final output of th shops. From the eastern section of the building squads of men began to arrive and range themselves in front of the cashier and his $2,500. Timekeeper Freeland called out each man's name, and as he stepped forward he

"Why," said he, as he returned to get his tool box, " there are more rigs out there than there are on election day." And one after another the men were paid off. Here was pointed out a veteran, who had been in the service 34 years—12 in Hamilton, 22 in London. He stood for a moment surveying the interior of the shops, then shouldered his box and walked out of the big gate with a firm tread. There are many who like him came with the shops from Hamilton. One old man entered the office with a tailor's goose and a smaller iron under one arm. Under the other was a small box with a glass front and an alarm clock inside. On the top was the wooden figure of a man. As the box was set down the man fell over. 'Stand up, Sir John A. Macdonald," said the queer old man, and Sir John dutifully stood where he was propped. By this time it was nearly and the time-keeper opens the wickets to receive the checks. Those who had left before this gave their checks in from the inside. Chief Clerk McWood was still busy writing out passes for some of the men who will try their luck away, and Mr. Alderson looked quietly on. long a time, and to celebrate Presbyterianism in general, a reunion of the denomination was held in St. James' Church, Richmond street, last evening. Rev. D. Robertson, of East London, was the only member who was unable to be present, owing to sickness. It was a very happy affair. Mr. Stuart had a wedding in the first part of the evening, and Mr. Talling had to leave before the close to allow another happy couple to meet the train, Mr. Clark said that he could have had one if he had not been in attendance there. As it was, he thought one of the other ministers had the wedding that he should have had. Musical selections interspersed the various addresses. Prof. Moxon was accompanist, and opened with an instrumental solo. Vocal solos were rendered by Misses O'Keefe, Mutch, Carson and Mr. Skinner, and Miss Mutch and Mr. Skinner sang a duet in excellent voice and harmony. The artists were all local.

Rev. Mr. Clark was the first to address the audience. He said that the average address for an occasion like this would be to tell a few funny stories and to praise up the church and the people. WEEKLY REVIEW.

eer has not been a great deal of business e on this market this week. The principal ares have been the strength in wheat and its, and weaker market for hay, oats, ter, ergs. The attendance of sellers has a small owing to pressure of work on the l. Receipts of oats and hay were much vier than a week ago. Wheat receipts e about the same although the demand was niger and values higher. Tub butter is ted very low; the reason is no good tub ter offered. The following list gives values as leading lines:

Temple, from Kennett, Hopkins

Chicago, April 30.—The fever having subsided somewhat holders have been more disposed to take profits, and the market has been weak accordingly. Closing cables came in very weak. The advance has checked business all around and a reaction was necessary. The way receipts have increased is against the theory that farmers' stocks are near exhaustion. Thoman estimates a winter wheat crop of 344,000,000 but on the present outlook. Bradstreet, reserve an increase of 1198,000 but in the street, reserve an increase of 1198,000 but in the street. street's reports an increase of 1,128,000 bu in Europe and afloat the rast week. Exports from all parts of the world last week exceeded requirements by over 2,500,000 bu. General rains have fallen in the west and are predicted for the Central States. Altogether the outlook is rather bearish, and in the absence of manip-ulation there ought to be a further decline.

Corn and oats were weak on the improved crop prospects and increased offerings. There is pressure of long stuff for sale on hard spots.

Provisions—Packers are disposed to supply the demand when it is at all urgent, but the trade is narrow and will not take much. The market acts "tired," American Markets.

At 6:45 o'clock this morning there assembled at the kennels, Glenmore, one of the best meets the club has had, if the presence of many spectators who usually enjoy the sight to be witnessed on these interesting occasions is excepted, and the master, Mr. Beck, is to be congratulated on his new departure, as by having it a quiet run, without many spectators, several new riders joined who would not have done so if they were to be looked at and criticised. The new huntsman, Hislop, had the hounds looking well, and had them very fairly under control, and he was ably seconded by the whip, Mont-gomery, considering the short time he has been with the pack. A very noticeable improvement has been made, as there were no dogs straggling all over the fields, with the leading hounds out of sight. After a cup of good, hot coffee and a buttered roll supplied by the steward, a start was made at 7 a.m.
The start was laid back of the Hellmuth Ladies' College down the river bottom, and east to Adelaide street. Then by the third and fourth concessions east to the side road, then west, and ended at Adelaide street, over about 75 jumps. It was a short run, but it was thoroughly enjoyed by all who took part in it. The

"When he married, it certainly did seem to me as if my game were very nearly played out. His wife softened him to the children and was instilling her own suspicions of me into his mind. I thought that my time at Torresmuir was likely to be short, and that I had better make hay while the sun shone. I think I was a little imprudent once or twice. I see now that I had no need to distrust myself. Things are working round just as I would have them; they could not have been better if poor Marie had been alive to put money into my pocket as she used to do. In a short time I shall have matters entirely my own way. I don't despair of seeing Alan separated from his wife and parted from his children, dependent for sympathy and companionship on his faithful friend and brother-in-law, Ralph Kingscot, for whom he has made a large provision in his will, and in whose hands are the reins of government with respect to his estates in Scotland and England, That would be a fine position for me. And it is far from improbable-now.

"For now Moncrieff is fool enough to suspect his wife of deceit, and if he believes that she can deceive him, he will never care for her again. Molly is on the brink of elopement, which he will never forgive. And if he thinks that Bertie has had a hand in it, he will never forgive him either. Is there any way of deepening his displeasure? any way of affixing a stain to his name that he will think can never be wiped out? I must

He considered very seriously, with his eyes fixed on the forms of the hills before him, now vague and shadowy in the faint starlight. He considered, evidently to some purpose, for presently he said to himself, "I have it," and laughed aloud. There was something weird and uncanny in the sound of that low laugh in the midst of the silence that reigned around. Even he felt the influence of the hour and of the scene; for no sooner had he uttered that strange laugh, than he started and looked round, as if afraid lest any one should have heard. But nobody was near. "It is growing chilly, and I have had enough of this," he said at last, as he came to the end of his cigarette. "I have got an idea, and I think that I shall be able to work it out. It is odd to know that the happiness of that whole family depends upon me. I hold the luck of the house in my own hands-in more senses than one, Ay, Alan Moncrieff, little as you may think it, your future is a matter for me to decide, because you are too blind, too stupid, too proud, too honorable, as the world would say, to decide it for yourself. If you cast away your own good fortune, then it is for the first comer to pick it up.

And having uttered these enigmatic and ominous words, he turned away from the half-ruined clachan, and bent his steps once more to Torresmuir.

CHAPTER XXII.

Stella's walk homeward with her husband was an exceedingly unpleasant one to her and probably it was not any more agreeable to Mr. Monerieff. As Hannington had noticed, Alan gave his wife his arm in turning away; and he was right in supposing that this action proceeded less from a wish to support his wife's steps than to show that she belonged to him, and to him only. There was an impulse of protection in it, certainly, but also an expression of wounded pride. And Stella was less conscious of his righteous indignation at Hannington's familiar tone and his sudden fury of desire to defend her from all harm, than of the anger which she thought she discerned in every line of his rigidly set features, and in the coldness of his averted eyes. She did not venture to speak for some time; he walked fast, and did not seem to notice that she could hardly keep up with him. It was only when they left the rough ground about the village and in the lane, and were out upon the smooth high road, that Mr. Moncrieff paused for a moment, and glanced at her with some compunction.

"I have walked too fast, I fear," he said,

"A little—I shall be all right directly. We are on a level road now," said Stella. She would not for the world have told him that her loss of breath came from fright as much as from undue haste, and that her heart was beating so violently that she wondered whether he could not hear its throb. She withdrew her hand gently from his arm, and stood in the road without

"Are you better now? Shall we go on?" he asked, after a moment's silence, in a grave but gentle tone.

. Oh, Alan, don't be "Thank you. angry with me!"-The words seemed wrung from her, half against her will. "I do not know that I have anything to be angry about, Stella," said her husband. "I don't think you have, Alan." "Except," continued Moncrieff, in most freezing tones, "except that you appear to have relations with Mr. John Hannington a man whom I particularly dislike-concerning which you keep me in entire ignorance,'

"No. indeed, Alan; at least-oh, it is very difficult to answer you when you put it in that way!" said Stella, the hot tears breaking forth.

"I do not wish you to answer t nless it is quite agreeable to yourself," said Alan, in the articles entering into the compoa tone that more than ever showed him sition of Parmelee's Pills.

to be displeased. "I prefer to ask no questions

"I will tell you everything-some time," said his young wife, tremulously, "but not just now. Alan, please do not ask it-some other time-

She was hardly prepared for the exclama-tion that followed. "There is something to tell, then! Some secret? God help us! thought I had done with secrets now, but it seem that women are Il alike." "It was on the tip of Stella's tongue to say, "This is not my secret"—when she refrained. After all, it was partly her secret. Her youthful semi-engagement to John Hannington flashed into her mind, and made her hang her head. But for that, Hannington would have no hold over her, and she could have spoken out and been a help to Molly, a comfort to poor Alan. Oh, why had she not told him everything on that sunny day at St. Andrews, when he asked her to be his wife? She had never thought of it as a secret before; it had scarcely occurred to her that it would be wiser and better to tell him everything before her marriage; and now she saw that she had made a great, perhaps an irreparable, mistake. And just now, at any rate, she must hold her peace; she could neither clear herself, nor blame herself openly; she must be silent for at least another week. What a penance that week would be to her! Seven whole days! But seven days would end at last, and then she would tell her husband all. The thought gave her courage and serenity; she spoke with a calmness that took him a little by surprise. "Have patience with me, Alan," she said softly. "I think-I hope-I am not concealing anything from you for my own good simply. I want to do right, and to tell you everything; but give me a little time-I have a good reason for not telling you to-

"I believe that you mean well, Stella. The words fell coldly upon her ear. "I think that you want, as you say, to do right. But it is possible that your judgment may be at fault." There was a touch of irony in his tone. "You are young: you have not seen a great deal of the world; it might perhaps be wiser if you would allow your husband to judge for you.

A rush of tears blinded Stella's eyes. The tone more than the words hurt and grieved her. A hundred pleas, excuses, cries for sympathy and trust sprang to her lips; but again she refrained herself. She could not say to her husband that she had promised not to tell to him wh t she knew. She had given the promise without thinking of all that it would involve; and she writhed in its bonds like one taken by guile in a cruel

Alan waited for her to speak-waited more anxiously than she knew; but when no word issued from her lips, he folded himself all the more closely in his cloak of reserve and pride. For a few minutes the two walked on in silence-broken only by Alan when he swung open for his wife the heavy gate that led into the grounds of Torres-

"You will follow your own judgment, of course," he said, in a tone of great gravity and coldness. "I do not attempt to force your confidence. One thing, however, I can hardly pass by without remark. You may at some past time, in an unguarded moment, have given Mr. Hannington the right to call you by your first name; but you must now make him understand that in future you are 'Mrs. Moncrieff,' and not 'Stella,' to any but your friends.'

If he expected any answer to that speech, e was dissappointed. In the darkness, Stella felt her face tingle with the hottest blush of shame that she had ever known. For something in his voice had recalled to her that little incident on the steamer at the Dundee wharf of which he had been a spectator; and the kiss that John Hannington had pressed upon her hand before he said good bye seemed to burn her fingers still as she remembered the steady gaze of Alan Monerieff's cool and critical eyes. It had almost slipped from her memory until now. How was it that she had forgotten, and that he had never questioned her? It was not his way to question; Stella knew that too

She stood still for a moment or two, feeling as if she were deprived of the power of movement as well as of speech.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for chilfren. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroving their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
