WHAT THE FIGHT IS ABOUT.

"If you mean that we are to recognize the existence of a labor union, I tell you right now that the operators will consider no such proposition."

That remark was made by President Baer yesterday, in reply to Senator Frimrose, who, at a conference with representative coal operators, urged the granting of concessions in order to end the strike, comments the Hamilton Herald.

This, then, is the issue—the question whether the men who dig coal have a right to organize for their own protection and mutual benefit. It will be noticed that Mr. Baer did not specifically object to the united mine workers for the reason given by the operators at the conference with President Roosevelt—because it is an "anarchistic" organization. He declared that the operators would not recognize the existence of a "labor union," meaning any labor union.

Mr. Baer represents one of the most completely organized combinations of capitalists that exists in all the world. That combination was brought into existence and is maintained solely for the personal profit of the capitalists who compose it by controlling the price of the product which they sell.

It seems amazing that any intelligent man could publicly commit himself to such a cynical and insanely arrogant position in a country where the principle of equal rights for all classes of citizens is supposed to prevail.

But there is method in Baer's madness. If he and his colleagues can withstand public opinion, starve the miners into submission, win the fight and crush the miners' union, they will have the workers at their mercy for years to come.

But there is method in Baer's madness. If he and his colleagues can withstand public opinion, starve the miners into submission, win the fight and crush the miners' union, they will have the workers at their mercy for years to come.

Eruptions

Dry, moist, scaly tetter, all forms of eczema or salt rheum, pimples and other cutaneous eruptions proceed from humors, either inherited, or acquired through defective digestion and assimilation.

To treat these eruptions with drying medicines is dangerous. The thing to do is to help the system discharge the humors, and strengthen it against their return.

Hood's Sarsaparilla permanently cured J. G. Hines, Franks, Ill., of eczema, from which he had suffered for some time; and Miss Alvina Walter, Box 212, Algona, Wis., of pimples on her face and back and chafed skin on her body, by which she had been greatly troubled. There are more testimonials in favor of this great medicine than can be published.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Promises to cure and keeps the promise. Don't put off treatment. Buy a bottle of Hood's today.

to those unable to pay the market price for it, or give it away to save the lives of those unable to pay cost for it.

The municipalities must guard against unbusinesslike investments. There are several wild-goose schemes being advanced in connection with cordwood, which Toronto should keep clear of. We do not believe, for instance, that the city should spend a dollar on wood now in the tree, unless it is impossible to get out wood. Green hardwood will not be used by city people if any other fuel is procurable, and the result will be that such wood will remain on the city's hands until it is dry, and by that time prices will have gone down.

But the main thing is to resist the tendency to make the city's fuel charity fuel. If the coal and wood are supplied at cost—and by that we mean the full cost—nothing more should be asked or attempted. With the prices high, people having no personal pride will seize the excuse to get fuel for nothing from the city, but they should not be allowed to do so. There should be no free fuel except for those in indigent circumstances, and those who apply should do so through the Relief Officer. There can be no gilded indigents getting fuel on the q. t. to keep their parlors warm.

In short, the city must make the best showing possible in its venture, and come out next spring with an even balance sheet.

STAND AND DELIVER. Carleton Place Canadian. Dr. Chamnonhouse has Mr. Rose under his muzzle and says to him, with flashing eye: Give me Renfrew, or you die.

BREAKING UP FAST. Montreal Gazette. The result of the recent provincial bye-elections has set certain of the Liberals to the task of blaming each other for what is a party check. They are doing it in public, too. The forces of disintegration are working fast.

OVERLOOKED BY PROVIDENCE. Syracuse Herald. If it is true, as Mr. Baer says, that he and his associates were given control of the coal mines by divine providence, it is too bad that enough brains weren't thrown in with the gift to enable his recipients to get along without making such a frightful botch of it.

BORN NORTH OF THE ARCTIC CIRCLE. Detroit Tribune. John R. McVicar, who celebrated his golden wedding anniversary in Boston a few weeks ago, was the first white child born north of the Arctic circle. He was born at Fort Revolution, Great Slave Lake, January, 1828, and was christened by Sir John Frame.

HIS TREASURE NOT ON EARTH. Stratford Herald. There is something pathetic in this item among the list of Oxford worthies probated in September: "Francis E. Nugent, Methodist minister, Plattsville, probate $600." His treasure must be laid up in heaven, for he amassed none on earth. Nor is his case exceptional, but frequent among many churches. Such evidence ought

GOOD FIGHTING STOCK. Halifax Echo. The battlefield of Paardeberg has been sold as part of a stock breeding farm. It was there, by the way, that the world was shown the kind of stock we breed in Canada.

CAUSE AND EFFECT. St. John, N. B., Telegraph. "He kissed his sister and then shot himself," says a contemporary in describing a Truro suicide. This of course is better than if he had done the shooting first, but the sister has cause to complain, for the headline makes it look like a case of cause and effect.

MORE SUPPORT FOR TARTE. Ottawa Citizen. Another supporter of Mr. Tarte has taken the field in the person of Robert Holmes, M. P., for West Huron, who says in his paper, the Clinton Era, apropos of Mr. Tarte's position: "The New Era has certainly never been a protectionist paper, as generally understood, but we confess that we do not like the treatment this country has received from our neighbors to the south. It has not been either friendly or fair, and if we can so arrange our tariff as to aid our own industries, without increasing the burdens of the consumer, we do not know but that it would be advantageous."

DRINK GRAZED Hopkinsville, Ky., October 12.—Lloyd Nelson Young, a white planter, crazed by drink, went on the rampage near Pembroke last night after being put off a train that he had flagged. He secured an axe and bruined Rebecca Macray, an aged negroess, whom he met on the road. Leaving the axe with the body, he sprang on Joseph Landy, colored, aged 70, and put his throat, fatally injuring him. After terrorizing the citizens for two hours he was overpowered by a posse and brought here for safe keeping early to-day to escape a mob of several hundred negroes that had been formed to lynch him.

NEWGATE IS NO MORE

GOOD-BYE TO MOST FAMOUS JAIL OF THE WORLD'S METROPOLIS.

The Theatre of Many Sorrows in Times Gone Bye—Where Many Noted Men Were Punished—Building That Figure in "Barnaby Rudge" to Be Replaced by Business Houses—Made Famous by Dickens.

The work of demolishing Newgate Jail, the historic old prison so long a feature of the city of London has been completed.

The decision to tear down Newgate Prison, which adjoins the Old Bailey, was taken a long time ago, but various causes have hindered the beginning of the work.

The prison will not be rebuilt, and the site will be leased for commercial buildings.

Generations to come will wonder where it used to stand when they read about Jack Sheppard's escape from it, when they are conducted by Fielding through the career of Jonathan Wild, when they go with Lord Tom Noddy in "Infoldsby" to witness the execution scenes at it, and when they read of the savage deeds which centred around it at the time of the Gordon riots, as related in "Barnaby Rudge," to say nothing of English history.

The famous "no popery" riots of 1780 form the most striking incident in the history of Newgate Jail, thanks to Dickens' perpetuation of the story in "Barnaby Rudge."

The greater part of the building just razed was 130 years old, but there was a Newgate Jail on the site as early as 1218.

There was not in London a more striking building than this old prison house. The high stone walls, rugged and blackened, and presenting but the merest slits for windows, suggest the many tragedies that have been enacted within them.

The history of the stronghold dates from the reign of King John, and as early as 1223 the masonry was taken down and rebuilt. The author of this work was the then Lord Mayor of London, the famous Sir Richard Whittington—"Dick" Whittington of the story books.

The name Newgate was taken from a gate that once spanned the street adjacent.

The old building was comparatively small, and it was destroyed by the great fire of 1666, but even before that date its cells had held many men whose names still live in their country's history.

Shakespeare was wont to visit Newgate for purposes of research and other poets know its lanes and squares. Many men of literary and religious fame were confined in its dungeons. One of its occupants was John Bradford of Manchester, a friend of Ridley. The reformer was sent to Newgate by Bonner, who also incarcerated John Rough.

In the time of Queen Elizabeth objects to her projected Catholic alliance suffered vengeance in Newgate, among the victims being John Stubbs. Throughout the Stuart dynasty Newgate and the Fleet were utilized as the home of uncompromising Puritans. Out of its walls came the nonwealth, and the ultimate downfall of the Stuarts.

Among the poets who were detained there were George Sackville, Earl of Dorset, quoted as "make and poet," and within a cell at Newgate Wither, the author of the "Vox Vulgari," was confined. Preaching in the public streets led in 1672 to the incarceration of Penn, the founder of Philadelphia, and Titus Oates and Dangerfield were occupants of cells some few years later. The latter died in Newgate.

The state of the prison in those early days was horrible. Vice of every kind flourished, and not till the founding in 1698 of the Christian Knowledge Society, was any attempt made to improve the condition of affairs.

Religious and political crimes continued for many years to be the chief causes of detention, and Newgate was also famous as a debtor's jail. Daniel Defoe suffered arrest, fine, pillory, and imprisonment in Newgate for a treatise entitled "The Shortest Way With the Dissenters," and another historical prisoner was Major Bernardi, who was suspected of complicity with Rockwood the plot against King William.

In 1774 the prison inspector made his first calls at the various London jails, and from the days when Howard found his way into Newgate dirt and disorder began to disappear. Later the jail came to exist chiefly for the criminal classes. One of the last persons of note confined in Newgate for an offense purely literary was Sir John, the Mr. Hoobhouse. He was sent to prison in 1820 because of his pamphlet called "The Trifling Mistake."

Casts of the heads of the principal criminals were kept in a small ante-room close to the prison entrance. In Newgate the Mannings suffered for the murder of Patrick O'Connor, and later the five Flowery Land pirates underwent capital punishment. Round the precincts also hover the shadows of Muller, Lefroy, Milson, Fowler and Mrs. Dyer, the slayer of infants.

The "condemned cells" were in the oldest part of the prison. There were 15 in all, five on each of the three floors. The cells doors opened into the galleries, lighted by portholes looking into Newgate street, and the cells themselves were vaulted chambers nine feet high, nine feet deep, and six feet broad. A small, double-paned window, placed high up, admitted what little light there was. The doors were four inches thick. Escape was impossible.

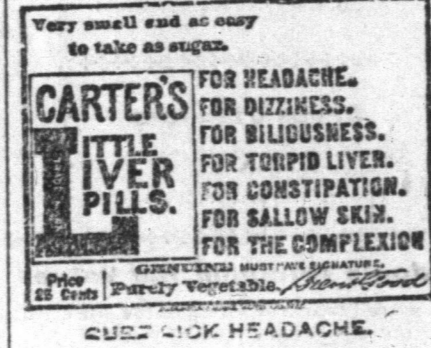

The prison chapel was plain, with galleries for both sexes. In the days of public execution the murderer was accommodated on the floor below these galleries with a chair placed conspicuously in sight of all, with a coffin at his feet.

CURE FOR HEADACHE.

CURING A BALKY HORSE.

Simple Methods May Be Employed Without Using the Whip.

An expert states that the vice of balking in horses is almost invariably caused by improper breaking and handling of the animal while young, says the Chicago Chronicle.

It is only high strung and ill tempered horses that balk, and these are handled with more success by humoring and patience than by severe measures, which generally make matters worse. It is almost impossible to follow rules in a case of this sort. What will succeed in one case is useless in another, so that a driver must exercise good judgment—"horse sense"—in handling a case.

A very good treatment is to watch the animal closely in places where it would be likely to balk, and with the first sign of stopping the driver should say "Whoa," then get off and loosen or pretend to change the harness in some way; also take up a foot and tap the shoe with a stone. Spend a few moments leisurely in this way, and in nine cases out of ten the animal will forget its inclination to balk and will go on at the first bidding. It is also well to give a lump of sugar or a handful of oats or an apple. This will always produce better results than severe measures.

A Model Fireman.

Mike O'Hagan had never been a success. He had been discharged from the service of a bus company for allowing his bus to be smashed by a tramcar and from the service of a tram company for bumping into a carriage.

Finally, however, he landed in the fire brigade, and all his friends expected that he was settled for life. He was not, however, for in less than a month he was again looking for a job.

"How did it happen, Tim?" said Mike's friend Pat to Mike's brother Tim.

"Well, Fritz, you got birked in school to-day? Yes, but it didn't hurt. But you certainly have been crying? Oh, I wanted to let the teacher have a little pleasure out of it."

Tea pills are now sold. They run 14 to the ounce, and each makes a large cup of tea.

TEST DRINKING WATER.

Two Methods by Which You May Determine its Quality.

The supply of drinking water for the family should be tested at least once a year. Water that at one time is pure and wholesome may become too impure for use, yet it may be without color, and have no odor or taste to show its dangerous qualities.

A simple test of drinking water is the Melsch sewage test. Fill a clean pint bottle three-quarters full of the water to be tested, and dissolve in it half a teaspoonful of granulated sugar. Cork it and set it in a warm place for two days. If during this time it becomes cloudy or milky it is unfit for domestic use. If it remains perfectly clear it is probably safe. Be careful that the bottle is absolutely as clean as you can make it and the sugar pure.

The second test is also a simple one. Obtain from a trustworthy druggist 5 cents' worth of saturated solution of permanganate of potassium. Add about five drops of this to a pint bottle of water. This will turn the water a beautiful rose purple. If there is any considerable amount of organic matter the color will give place in the course of a few hours to a more or less dirty reddish brown. If the color of the water in the bottle remains for twelve hours unchanged from the rose purple it assumed when the permanganate of potassium was first added, it may be considered free from organic contamination.

The Hawaiian as a Diver.

The working crews of the Hawaiian Islands were quartered in suitable camps near their field of labor. They were natives, good fellows, willing workers, admirably adapted to the duty required of them, which was largely in boats and in the water. I well remember one who excelled in diving. On a certain occasion, when the placing of a deep water mooring had just been accomplished, it became necessary to detach under water the end of a hawser, which had been made fast to the submerged part of a spar buoy about forty or fifty feet below the surface of the sea. The man was told to take his sheath knife down with him and cut the hawser as near its end as he could, so as to lose as little as possible of the valuable cable. Taking his knife in his teeth, he disappeared beneath the water and remained out of sight so long that he was almost given up for lost, when he suddenly reappeared, and on being asked if he had cut the hawser as he had been told to report that he had uncut it without cutting off any part of it whatever.—James D. Hague in Century.

Arm in Arm With a Tigress.

It is related of Edward Bradford that he once walked arm in arm, so to speak, with a tigress. He was out shooting and, always a fearless sportsman, had come to close quarters with his quarry. He fired, and either the ball failed to take effect or but slightly wounded the animal. She sprang at him and seized his left arm above the elbow. The service of a dog had been rendered, but Sir Edward kept cool, and, realizing that it would be death to drag his mangled arm away and allow her to spring fresh at him, he deliberately walked a few agonizing paces until his comrade was able to take aim and kill the brute. Thus his courage saved his life, though the amputation of his arm at the shoulder proved necessary.

Wild Brook Trout.

Hawthorne describes an ideal breakfast as consisting of hot cakes, brook trout, roast potatoes, fresh boiled eggs and coffee. The piece de resistance of this breakfast is the brook trout. In spite of all the efforts of fish culturists, the wild brook trout remains the finest morsel the epicure can seek. Cultivated trout taste too perceptibly of liver to be a food greatly desired. The wild trout that springs in his native mountain stream is far superior to any cultivated fish. Cook it in the simplest manner, dipping it in oil, salt and pepper and broiling it over hot coals. Serve it simply with butter and slices of lemon.

Benefits of Travelling.

Proper recreation prolongs life. This fact is now better appreciated by busy people than ever before. Of all the forms of recreation the best perhaps is travelling. The benefits to be derived from it cannot be exaggerated. A journey, whether brief or long, is sure to relieve the mind of business or domestic cares by directing it into pleasanter channels. Thousands can testify that travelling has improved their health, lengthened their lives, brightened their mental faculties more than anything else.

The Other One.

Two brothers in Paris were remarkably alike. A gentleman meeting one of them on the boulevard stops him, saying, "Pardon me, but is it to you or to your brother that I have the honor of speaking?"

"Sir," was the reply, "you are speaking to my brother."

His Hard Luck.

Jones—Brown is an unlucky dog. Smith—How's that? Jones—His object in marrying was to get out of a boarding house. Smith—Well? Jones—Now his wife is running one to support the family.

An Easy Task.

Flirt (mountain)—Have you learned to love another? Flirt (who had just broken off her engagement with him)—Oh, no, George; I didn't have to learn. The man is very, very wealthy, and the love came spontaneously.

Theatrical

"Rupert of Hentzau" at the Grand to-night. The situation in the last act of "Rupert of Hentzau," the dramatization by himself of Anthony Hope's latest success, is said to be something entirely new in romantic drama. The King and his double, Rudolf Rassendyll, Queen Flavia and the others familiar in the earlier story, pass through even more exciting experiences in the new play, resulting in the death of the King at the hands of the villainous Rupert of Hentzau, and Rupert's end by his own hand after a thrilling combat with Rudolf, who is rescued by the soldiery and populace and hailed mistakenly by them as King. That series of scenes in which Rudolf finds himself absolutely the King, and is urged by the scepter and the Queen to retain the scepter and live a lie, is dramatic and poetical, touched with the rarest charm of romance, lifted above mere stagecraft and contrivance, and true to the best tradition of the art. The climax is obvious. There is only one way out for Rassendyll. He must

Eight down the temptation to accept the pleasant fate, to remain and reign King with Flavia as Queen, yet he must not in honor desert Flavia, or leave unsupported the officers who have worked for and with him. So, feeling to live as the King, he must die as the monarch, and the tableau which closes the story and the play is as unique as the situation which leads up to it is fascinating. As the King's heroic substitute Mr. Harry Leighton is said to sustain the requirements of this difficult double role as admirably as in his earlier success in the first story.

Mr. Samuel J. Bishop at the Grand on Wednesday, accompanied by Master Danny Campbell, the famous choir boy soloist, and Mr. William Buckley, Canada's greatest pianist and organist, should draw a large audience.

John Fay Palmer on Thanksgiving Day, matinee and night. The Euclid Avenue Opera House was crowded last night to witness the initial production of John Fay Palmer's play, "The Last Days of Pompeii." Readers of this historical romance were highly delighted with the dramatic feast served up for them. All the classic characters of the story appeared in breaking personages. The unholty love and passion, mysticism and sensuality of the character of the Egyptian were brought forth in a highly artistic manner by Mr. Palmer. The love of Glaucus for Ione, the quaint and interesting character of Nydia, the blind girl, and her struggling love for Glaucus, Apocides, the young priest, weaving his way between religion and the new thought which had entered the world at this time, "Christianity"; the weird Witch of Vesuvius; and a score of other characters were stage pictures, delightfully drawn. The play follows the book closely. It is in fact an accurate presentation of Bulwer's famous story, the scenic features and the ethereal effects introduced, with the rich costumes, added much to the success of the production. Mr. Palmer is gifted by Nature with a tall figure, classic cast of features and a resonant voice. His characterization of "Pharaoh" will rank among the masterpieces of acting on the stage to-day.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

San Francisco Minstrels at the Grand Saturday night. The San Francisco Minstrels at Opera House Tuesday evening were favored with a large audience and gave an entertainment that was highly satisfactory to those in attendance. The best feature of the program was the club swinging by Mr. McVey which was ably seconded by the contortion acts of Mr. LaMore. The musical part of the program was very good and the jokes up-to-date, a rare thing in a minstrel entertainment.—Oldtown Chronicle.

Parole for Elton. Lansing, Mich., Oct. 11.—Lansing friends of Big Bert Elton, the former well-known first baseman for the Hamilton, Canadian League, baseball team, who is serving out a three years' sentence at Marquette prison for robbery at Port Huron, are interesting themselves in an effort to get a parole for him. Elton has a claim to clemency from the fact that it was more his associates' fault than his that he is now serving time. When Deputy Sheriff Behrendt was in Marquette, the deputy warden told him that Elton is a model prisoner, and that he would appreciate anything that could be done in his behalf. He believed Elton had been sufficiently punished.

CHATHAM TAKES FIRST.

Chatham, 2; Sandwich, 0! "With Laurie captaining the Chatham team they can't lose," said Vice-President Art. Stone, who asked his opinion prior to the first match of the Peninsular League schedule between Chatham and Sandwich.

The result proved Mr. Stone to be a good prophet, Saturday's game on Tecumseh Park ending with the foregoing score.

In the early part of the game the first accident of the season occurred, the result of which will be that Mort Sheldon, one of the best forwards on the local team, will be laid up for some weeks, probably for the whole season. Mort ran into Williams, the Sandwich heavy full back, breaking his collarbone and dislocating his shoulder.

The game was not an exciting one, although the teams were pretty well matched, both, however, showing lack of practice. The game was clean throughout and there was very little rough playing.

Mercer scored Chatham's first goal from a pretty drop by Sissons. Sandwich claimed a foul on one of Chatham's men and protested the goal, but it did them no good, as Jinks, not long after, put the ball between the flags with an elegant shot.

All the Chatham boys put up a good game, considering the very little practice they have had. Sissons was very conspicuous and put up a star game at half-back.

The Sandwich defence was good, but their forward line was somewhat weak, but there is not a doubt but that they will figure in the first division of the league.

The teams were lined up as follows:—

Sandwich.
Goal—Robinson.
Backs—Tiernan (captain) and Williams.
Halves—Hill, E. Beeman, J. Beeman.
Right Wing—Hinds and Dobbey.
Centre—Orton.

Chatham.
Goal—Sowerby.
Backs—Courtney and Wilson.
Halves—Sissons, Laurie (captain) and Piggett.
Right Wing—Anderson and Angus.
Centre—Fetterley.

CALLS IT ALL OFF.

There will be no game on Thursday next between the Aberdeens and the Pete McAuley baseball team, because Manager Jack Austin says he thought, having read in The Planet, that Manager McAuley had dropped out of baseball and had given up hope. He, therefore, disbanded his team. And that his (Austin's) pitcher refuses to play against any team until they get a reputation.

"He knows," continued Mr. Austin, "that a number of our best players are out of town and not available for a game at this time of the year. If I wanted a game why didn't he speak up a week ago when the challenge was in the paper. We will still be in the game next season and will give Mr. McAuley and his alleged baseball players all the games they desire."

"I am awfully sorry that he went to the trouble of holding a meeting. The weather is very unsteady and a game could not be arranged for any date ahead—and look at the expense. Pete would be put to it if it happened to rain just before the game. All his imported players would have to go away with his good money for nothing. I feel for Pete and would not like to have anything like this to happen."

"Well, old boy, good-bye for the present, but I will be with you in 1903."

"Rube" Waddell leads the list of American League pitchers with 23 won and 7 lost, giving him a per cent. of 76%. Bernhard comes second with 70%.
