MR. STRATTON'S SPEECH.

STRONG LANGUAGE RESPECT-ING MR. GAMEY.

The Previncial Secretary Thanks His Friends for Their Support in the Gamey Charges-Other Speakers.

onto, June 19. — The secin the Legislature was characterized by number of clever speeches, but each of such duration as to make the end teem to be some days off. The interest in the proceedings was maintained on the floor and in the galleries, but the speeches did not contain as much ireshness as those on the first day. Mr. Stratton concluded his address in ful and more effective even than on the opening day. His conclusion was couched in terms of thanks and appreciation to his friends, who had stood by him during the recent trying weeks, and during this portion of his remarks the Provincial Secretary was so deeply affected as to make his voice almost iail. Mr. Lucas followed, speaking for three hours, in the course of which he gast an aspersion upon Mr. McEvoy, the Liberal lawyer, as last having seen the Crossin books intact, a statement for which he was taken to task by Mr. M. G. Cameron, who followed. Dr. Beattie Nesbitt had only commence when the House adjourned.

The other speakers billed for the Opposition to-day are Mr. St. John and Mr. Gamey, if there is time. It is not thought the Government side will be represented in to-day's debate. In well-miformed circles it is believed the debate will last the greater part, if not all, of next week.

Mr. Stratton resumed his speech immediately on the opening of the House in the morning. He referred at ppening day. His conclusion was all, of next week.

Mr. Stratton resumed his speech immediately on the opening of the House in the morning. He referred at sonce to the discussion of the previous day respecting the production of Mr. Gamey's bank books. Since then he had examined the books that had been filed as exhibits with the court, and he rould not place his hands upon the books that he had said had not been produced. He would be glad if Mr. Gamey would show to the House and the country whether those exhibits were submitted to the court. "My bank books, my private accounts, my thecks, my notes, my every transaction from the first of August to the first of March were submitted to the severest examination and the keenest icrutiny of the counsel for the prosecution. They were engaged three days going into this evidence. I desire to call the attention of the House and the country to the statement made by Gamey when in the witness box with regard to these matters."

"The findings of the Royal Commissioners I accept without any feeling of triumph or personal boast," said Mr. Stratton, in concluding, "and in the same spirit as I hope they will be accepted by my friends in this House and in the country. I was content to have the charges preferred against me investigated and tried by any tribunal chosen by the Legislature. No one free from prejudice doubted that one free from prejudice doubted that the conclusion would be that which the evidence warranted. The learned Judges who sat as Commissioners have found that I am innocnt of the serious charges made against me by a member of this House. These charges gravely affected my position as a Minister of the Crown, my standing as a member of the Legislature, and my character as a citizen of Ontario. I met them at the proper time and place. I desired the fullest inquiry and sought the closest investigation. The consequences were of greater importance to me than to any other member of the Government. It is true that the political life of the Government was endangered, but my whole business and personal career depended on the result. Yet throughout the long and trying investigation which was made I neither feared nor faltered. Conscious that my relations with the member who made the accusations would bear the most careful scrutiny, and feeling secure in the ulsired the fullest inquiry and sought the altered. Conscious that my relations with the member who made the accusations would bear the most careful scrutiny, and feeling secure in the ultimate triumph of truth, I bore with patience the abuse of the Tory press, and never flinched under the lash of the Tory hireling. Long before the accusations had the sanctity of an oath, however worthless, to support them, I was condemned and pronounced guilty by my opponents. The average fair play which is given to the worst and meanest criminal was denied me. Rvery fact was tortured, every circumstance was colored, every act was purposely misconstrued, in order to destroy my character as a public man and as a private citizen, and all this was done with a greedy delight far beyond the lines of decency and honest self-trespect or, the part of my enemies. (Applause.)

"At length, in the halls of justice, I met my accuser. I stood my ground, whilst he fled. (Loud applause.) I had everything to lose. He had everything to gain. I at least played no part of the coward shrinking from justice, I waited in silence, whifst, some of those who had once called themselves friends doubted my innocence. When called on for my answer, I was ready. There was no mutilation of books—(hear, hear)—no fabrication of documents, no fleeing from the terrors of the law on my part. The records of my private life were laid bare to my enemies. Not a page was found missing, not a leaf bore evidence of the hand of the despoiler. The sanctity of my family relations was not spared. Business dealings with my fellow-men were openly laid on the dissecting table and every item of my personal transactions was willingly offered as a sacrifice to the knite of my accuser. I asked for no favors, sought no man's intervention, save the assistance of counsel, claimed no protection from first to last in this long trial.

Mr. Lucas had only begun to reply when he was interrupted by applause on the Government benches at the sight of Premier Ross walking down to Mr. Stratton and shaking hands with him.

Bravo," said Mr. Whitney.

"Why don't you go down and shake hands with your man " asked Mr. Graham, amid laughter and applause.

Mr. Lucas opened by referring to the air of injured innocence which had characterized the speech of the Procincial Secretary. He asked why Mr. Strattom had not on the day the charges were made stood up and pointed out what portions of the statement were "malignant fiction," and what part "harmless facts." Instead he had at in the House for weeks without saying anything. The truth would stand telling at any place at any time. No wonder the people believed him guilty, and no wonder many people still believed him guilty. Why didn't he deny the statements?

Mr. Ross said Mr. Stratton had denied the accusations to his leader, which was the proper course. (Applause.)

Mr. Lucas continued:—The Government had all the same motive in securing the support of Gamey. If criminal proceedings had been taken and the case referred to this House as a jury, the Provincial Secretary would not have been to-day occupying his seat in the jury box. The case had been looked upon as a crime; the most eminent criminal lawyers had been retained, and Mr. Johnston said they were charged with a crime.

Mr. Lucas asked them to assume for argument that the Provincial Secretary was ready to buy Gamey. How would he be able to insist upon Gamey "delivering the goods"? He took the best steps he could to that end by obtaining Mr. Gamey's letter. He did everything in fact that was consistent with a theory of his being guilty.

The commissioners said that the Crossin hooks would be propably show end by obtaining Mr. Gamey's letter. He did everything in fact that was consistent with a theory of his being guilty.

The commissioners said that the Crossin books would probably show where the money came from. The defence had had an opportunity to see those books. Mr. McEvoy had gone through them. If he wished to be unkind he could say (and the evidence would bear him out) that Mr. McEvoy was the last man to see those books intact on Friday night. Mr. Lucas discussed Mr. Stratton's reference to Hammond's evidence, and said fancy a Mowat, a Mackenzie or a Blake asking a man to commit forgery and being turned down by a reporter. The fact that the Premier had not replied to Mr. Gamey's letter announcing that he would support the Government, Mr. Lucas said, was very cold, and not in keeping with his policy of conciliation, but rather showed his knowledge of the negotiations.

Mr. M. G. Cameron (West Huron) followed Mr. Lucas said the latter had been fair. He wished he could say so this time. (Applause.) As to Mr. Stratton's prompt denial of the charge, how could he have said more than he did, that the charges were fiction. A loud proclamation of innocence was not always borne out, for in 1873 Sir John Macdonald had proclaimed "These hands are clean"; but they were not. The aspersions cast on Mr. McEvoy were exceedingly cowardly, and if Mr. Lucas would repeat the statement out of the House he would be promptly brought to account. Mr. McEvoy's visit to the piano factory on that occasion was in company with two Conservative lawyers, Mr. McPherson and Mr. Macdonald, and if the leaves had not been torn out we might know where the money came from. The evidence of Mr. Crossin left no doubt as to who made away with the leaves had not been torn out we might know where the money came from. The evidence of Mr. Crossin left no doubt as to who made away with the leaves. Mr. Cameron then quoted from Mr. Aylesworth's evidence to show that he contradicted Mr. Gamey on several points. The prosecution had failed to show that Sulli

Massey Hall and Library at Guelph Opened.

Guelph, June 19 .- The Massey Hall and Library, the gift of the executors of the estate of the late H. A. Massey to the Ontario Agricultural College, to the Ontario Agricultural College, was formally opened by Mr. Chester B. Massey. The corner-stone of the building, which occupies a commanding position in the grounds of the college, was laid August 14, 1901, by the late Mr. Walter Massey, who conceived the idea of founding the institution for the benefit of the farming interests, believing with the executors of the estate that such a gift would have been specially in accordance with the wishes of the late Mr. H. A. Massey. Mr. Walter Massey, unfortunately, has not lived to see how satisfactorily his project has been carried out.

A LIBERAL VIEW.

The following editorial is taken from the Chesley Enterprise of last week one of the thoroughly dyed-in-the wool Liberal papers of Bruce County and one of the organs of Dr. Stewart in his contest with Hugh Clark, M. P. P. Says the Enterprise:

"The deal by which Cap. Sullivar bought a timber limit for $250 and sold it for $9,000, and shared the pro fits with a clerk in the Crown Lands Department, also the defalcations of McDougall, a clerk who had charge of the Succession Duties, do not reflect credit on any Government. The Ross Government is being weakened by the crooks and heelers in its employment."

A MEDIEVAL MURIDER.

The tragedy at Belgrade was the most atrocious of modern times. It outclasses the French Revolution, because the provocation was comparatively little. To find a parallel one has to go back to the days of the Borgias, when Emperors and Kings Mich. seldom died in their beds naturally.

Wicked as the Royal pair of Servia were, they were at least human, and deserved something better than to be put to death like dogs. The ferocity of their enemies makes one's blood run cold, and their svident determination to exterminate the allies termination to exterminate the allies of the House of Obrenovitch was dred Broadbent are writing on the kindergarten assistants examination in the I.O.O.F. GOVERNMENT BY ORDER-IN-COUNCIL.

Agreements between the provincial government and certain pulp companies have just been ratified by the legislature. These companies undertake to erect pulp mills in northern Ontario and they get from the government exclusive privileges in large areas of valuable timber lands. These, timber limits are granted by orderin-council.

We think that Mr. Whitney is right in protesting against the alienation of large sections of the public domain by a scratch of the pen. Who knows the value of the concessions thus granted by wholesale? Certainly not the people's representatives. Hardly any information about them was offered to the legislature, and what little was given was not authoritative. The areas to be given away to the concessionaires should have been thoroughly inspected by crown lands officials, estimates made of the value of the timber which they contain, and a full report submitted to the legislature before any agreement was entered into. The legislature should have the privilege of authorizing, not merely ratifying, such agreements.

The present plan is very unsatisfactory. Agreements are quietly made between the government and companies seeking concessions, and the legislature is asked to trust to the government that everything in the agreements is all right, and to sanction them blindly. The division taken on Wednesday is the usual result. All the government supporters do as they are bid and vote for ratification; all the opposition members, because they don't trust the government, vote in the negative.

Mr. Whitney asserts that these pulp concessionaires are getting value enormously out of proportion to the prices they are paying. Maybe he is overstating the facts. But in the lack of definite official information he has as much right to make his assertion as the government has to claim that the province is getting good value in return for the concessions granted .-Hamilton Herald, Independent Liber-

JUNE WEDDING

A very pretty event came off at Ridgetown Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the marriage of Miss Nettie Leitch, of that place, to James Winters, of Botany. The bride looked charming, as did also little Miss Steen, who acted as maid of honor. About 75 guests, immediate friends and relatives of both contracting parties, were present, and after the ceremony had been performed by Rev. D. M. Robertson, of Harwich, all sat down to a sumptuous wedding banquet.

The happy young couple were the recipients of many handsome and coatly gifts. They will take up their residence on the farm of the grrom at Botany.

To prepare same, heat in an iron vessel either fish oil, castor oil or even tallow to about 250 degrees Fahrenheit, then add, cut into small pieces, vulcanized or raw India rubber; about one-fifth of the weight of the oil, gradually stirring the same with a wooden spatula until the rubber is completely dissolved in the oil; lastly, add, to give it color, a small ly, add, to give it color, a small amount of printer's ink. Pour into a suitable vessel and let cool. One or two applications of this are suffitient to thoroughly waterproof a pair of boots or shoes for a season.

BUILT UP THE SYSTEM AND ADDED TEN POUNDS IN WEIGHT.

Mr. Ed. J. Harris, Newbridge, Ont., was in poor health, but has now been restored to full health and vigor. Here is what he writes us: "Last spring I was in a very critical condition, my system was all ran down. I felt drowsy and miserable, and thought I would surely die if I did not get something to build me up. After reading one of your almanacs I decided to try Burdeck Blood Bitters, and before I had taken two bottles I had gained ten pounds in weight, and am new in perfect health, and I can certainly recommend Burdeck Blood Bitters to build up the system."

HEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Then the prisoner lay down and fell asleep again, though by that time the rain was falling furiously. As for Hamilten and me, we agreed that a so called nation that didn't provide its soldiers with rubber blankets would seen be on its last legs and that the said legs would be rheumatic.

The camp was soon in commotion.

The camp was soon in commotion, most of it verbal and shockingly profane. The men in the newer companles had not yet learned how to keep dry in a shower. The rubber blanket is so parrow that the rubber blanket is so narrow that for it to be under a man and over him, too, the owner must lie as straight as a ramrod. There were individual outbreaks throughout the entire night as men woke to find their knees soaked. To make matters worse for the guard, the rain put out the fires, so there was no light. Hamilton and I took turns in pacing to and fro in front of the prisoners, counting the barely visible figures each time we passed them. The guards were as unhappy as a lot of picnickers caught in a thunderstorm, and sleepy besides. The horses huddled together as best they could, the road became ankle deep in mud, and the entire situation was as gloomy, uncomfortable and detestable as our worst enemies could have wished. The only living beings who did not seem in the least disturbed were the prisoners.

As for myself, I think I lost my enses several times during that dreadful night. Only 48 hours before, the ful night. Only 48 nours before, the job of loading the revolvers had robbed me of an entire night of rest. Now I was doomed to another. I had to tramp the muddy road to keep myself awake, but my head dropped asleep once in awhile on its own account, and with wide open eyes I beheld many strange visions in the darkness and imagined many things ridiculous and impossible. It seemed that the night never would and any my gratitude was er would end, and my gratitude was er would end, and my graden we unspeakable when at early dawn we were ordered to feed, mount and resume our march. I tried to feel happy sume our march. I tried to feet nappy when the prisoners were placed in charge of a new guard and my sense of responsibility ended, but soon I found that sleepiness on horseback was more dreadful than on foot. No sooner would I drop into a doze than I would rouse with a start from an awful sen-sation of falling from my horse. Every-body was cross, particularly the smok-ers, for all the fires were out, and few men carried matches. Then it was that our captain leaped suddenly and securely into the affections of his men. Passing the word for smokers to fill their pipes, he tore a long, narrow strip from his handker-chief, moistened it the least bit, lit, one end with a match, lighted his own pipe and then gave the smoldering rag to the first sergeant, from whom it passed down the entire troop. After the pipes were fairly started there was no more grumbling, except from nonsmokers.

How I wished myself a smoker!
Often when in earlier days I had asked and then gave the smoldering rag to schoolmates why they took to smoking I was told, among other excuses, that a few whiffs of smoke would stop the craving of hunger when a fellow craving of hunger when a fellow chanced to be playing truant for a day or off hunting or fishing and having too good luck to get home at mealtime. Well, had I learned smoking, the third day of our scout would have been a good time to test its remedial virtues, for my hunger was so intense that it irove everything else from my mind, and the memory of the bacon and hoe and the memory of the bacon and hos-cake of the night before almost made me scream with rage. It seemed to me the government was mean, des-picable and standing in its own light poor fellow, he was eating his last bit of food apparently, for his haversack was inside out and lying by the fire to dry. He recognized me, and as the guard allowed me to speak to him he said:

"It seems too bad to waste the little fat that's left in the skillet, don't it? Wonder of that aln't an ear of corn in fat that's left in the same, of corn in that field that we could roast?"

"It's all too hard," said I, shaking my head sadly as I remembered my search of the day before.

"The harder the better," said be. I never was more willing to be con-vinced. In a single minute I was back from the field with several ears. The Johnny selected the hardest, shelled it in his pan, shook it a little while before he put it over the fire, then parched it until it was a deep brown and poured it upon the top of his hat to cool. Not a bit of the bacon fat remained in the pan, but each grain of corn was as glossy as if varnished.

"Thar!" said he, after a moment or two, as he poured a full half of the corn into a big husk and passed it to me. "Just h'ist yerself outside that an' see ef you wasn't wrong thinkin' the corn too hard."

Bless that rebel! I do believe that Biess that rebel! I do believe that parched corn saved my life. I resolved never to go on a scout again without a little frying pan in one of my saddle-bags and a lot of shelled corn in the other. But what was half an ear of corn to a raging hunger like mine? It was too late to parch more, for the call to mount had sounded. As I hurried down the road to rejoin my company I met a veteran of the older troop on which I had been billeted when first I reached the regimental camp, and he hailed me kindly with: Well, young feller, how does scouting agree with you?"

"Well enough," I replied, "if I wasn't almost starving."

"It always strikes greenhorns that way," he replied. "Now, I ain't a bit sharp set. Say, mebbe a piece of pork would help you out. Here." He handed me what looked like a dirty wad of wet newspaper, in which I found about half a pound of pork. It was solld fat, dingy looking, and on one side, where the paper had lain closely against it, several advertisements had transferred themselves in reverse, with the general head "Help Wanted" at the top of them. The words were eminently appropriate, so I didn't scrape them off, but ate pork, advertisements and all.

About the middle of the afternoon a general buzz of satisfaction ran along the column. We were passing one of our picket stations, which meant that we were within an hour or two of our camp. When finally the march was ended, my horse was so glad to get into his stall and be relieved of bridle, saddle and blanket that he gleefully kicked the empty air for several min-utes. Several minutes later his owner, lying on the bare floor of his tent, his head pillowed on the rain soaked blanket, was slumbering as sweetly as if his couch were of down, and the ugly ejaculations of the weary men who struggled in one by one were so many loving lullabies.

To Be Continued.

"The square peg in the round hole" figuratively expresses the use of means unsuited to the desired end. A great many people who have been cured of dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery say: "We tried many medicines with only temporary benefit. It was not until we began the use of 'Golden Medical Discovery' that we found a complete and lasting cure."

"It is with pleasure that I tell you what Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellet' have done for me," writes Mrs. Z. M. Faher, of Peede, Kaufman Co., Texas. "Two cears ago I was taken with stomach and bowed trouble. Everything I ate would put me distress. I lived two weeks on milk and even that gave me pain. I felt as though I wonden easid I had dynepsia, two saidendarth of the stomach and boweds. T stopped taking their medicine and I'ried one year. I stopped taking their medicine and I'ried one so verek and nervous my heart would faster. I could not do any kind of work. He Realizes the Necessity For Cor-rect Dress In Business.

It has become the unwritten but none the less stringent law that young men shall dress well and neath during business hours. In many of the largest banks and financial institutions none of the clerks is permitted to go coatless, and in the mercantile establishments where salesmen are em-ployed "loud" attire is actually disployed "loud" attire is actually dis-couraged. The old time salesman glo-ried in his flamboyant cravats and shirts, his diamonds and his peculiar clothes. His capital in trade consisted of a flashy appearance, vulgar stories, a constitution that would stand intoxi-cating ligans and an unjunited amount cating liquor and an unlimited amount of cheek. He did not have to know anything about the goods he sold, except in a general way. He slapped men on the back, took them out to dinner, got drunk with them and then booked their orders. The modern salesman is a well educated, neatly dressed gentleman who knows all about the gentieman who knows an agoods he sells. He is never called upon to drink, he never needs to dine out, he trades on honor and brains, and his customers are men who only admire men who know as much as or more than they do about their business. Dress plays the most important part in the game of commerce, no less with the salesman than it does with the man-ufacturer, the mill man, the banker or the financial man. They all dress to impress their fellow men favorably. -C. M. Connolly in Success.

Got the Oysters.

A captain of a Massachusetts regi-ment, stationed in Washington at the time of the civil war, was noted for his love of good things to eat and one day dispatched one of his soldiers, a man named Bailey, to Alexandria to get some fresh oysters, giving him instruc-tions not to return without them. The man started, and no more was seen of him for nine days. The Washington Times prints the story of his return:

After a lapse of nine days Bailey came into camp leading a train of four horse wagons, loaded with oysters.
Approaching and respectfully saluting approaching and respectfully saluting the amazed captain, Bailey said:

"Here are your oysters, captain. Couldn't find any in Alexandria, so I chartered a schooner and made a voyage to Fortress Monroe and Norfolk for them. for them. There are about 200 bushels. Where do you want 'em?"

Bailey did really make the trip, hired his men and sold oysters enough in Georgetown before "reporting" to pay all expenses and leave him a profit of about $100. The 200 bushels were di-vided among the members of the regiment, and Bailey returned to his duty.

Nothing Distinctive. "What does the expert mean when he says 'there is no character' in Clark's handwriting?" inquired the seeker after knowledge.
"He means," replied the man who knew, "that every character is legibly formed."—Philadelphia Press.

The ancient rigyptians made their primitive paper from this plant by taking the smooth, fibrous layer between the rough outer bark and the inner flesh of the reed. This they dried and glued together in long rolls, which served as a means to convey their thoughts in hieroglyphics. This proc-ess has been so improved upon during the succeeding ages that today the most perfect paper can be made from the meanest substances.

The British Postoffice has a reputation for its proverbial dignity, but The London Chronicle tells of an election incident that was almost too much for it: The imperturbable Postoffice was nearly upset at Chertsey on Friday—but not quite. A minute or so after the poll was declared a breathless boy rushed into the office with a huge bunch of telegraphic forms addressed to all parts of the country. The clerk looked at the first, turned them through. "Why, they're blank," he gasped. "That's how I got them," said the boy. By that time the clerk had resumed his official balance. They were addressed, and that was enough. By this time the recipients have probably guessed that someone had prepared everything for despatch but the result, and in the excitement of the moment forgot to add the thing that mattered.

lit is a well proved truth that eage birds live about six times as long as a wild bird, and the bird invariably becomes so fond of its owner and its surroundings that when the cage is thrown open it will not fly away. It suffers so little from solitude that if a prospective mate is introduced it hits her on the head at first for her impudence in daring to intrude into a private apartment.

Bird Superstitions.

According to a superstition which holds sway in some parts of Ireland, the sedge warblers possess the souls of unbaptized babes and sing their sorrow at the midnight hour, while the linnet, yellow hammer and finch sing their plaintive and tender songs to remind us they are souls of departed friends not yet relieved from purgatorial pains. The bittern is their herald at night.—Irish Times.

Toronto Live Stock.

Trade generally was fairly good at the Toronto Cattle Market this morning, the run of cattle was somewhat heavier and for good stock the demand was rather prisker. There was a better feeling generally in all lines, but prices are showing little or no change. The total run offering amounted to 76 cars, including 945 cattle, 1,223 sheep and lambs, 1,692 hogs and 35 calves.

Export Cattle—The run of good cattle was light, too large a percentage of the offerings being unfinished grass cattle. There was a good demand for the best cattle on the market, and their prices kept, well up to those of the pravious day's market. Some space had to be filled, and this accounted for the better demand for cattle. The best cattle on the market sold at $5.15, the extra choice tots running from that figure down to $5 per cwt. The general run of choice cattle sold at $4.70 to $4.90, and medium were about steady at $4.30 to $4.60. Butchers' Cattle—The market was very steady, with an inclinition to firmness for the best grades. As in export cattle, there were too many inferior lots offering, and only the best grades. expo. t eattle sold as short-keeps at about 4.50 to 48.75 for the best and $3.75 to 44.50 for light.

Milch Cows—About 20 cows were on sale and prices ranged from $30 to $48 each.

Calves—The run was light and trade was fairly good, everything being sold. Prices are unchanged at $2 to $10 each and 4½c to 5½c per lb.

Sheep and Lambs—Trade was fairly good and everything was sold. Export ewes are quoted at $3.75 to $3.90, bucks at $2.75 to $3. culls at $2.50 to $3.50, and lambs at $2.56 to $4.50 each.

Hogs—The run was heavy and the market was slightly weaker in consequence. Quotations are, however, unchanged at $3.574 for selects and $5.62½ for lights and fats.

DETROIT 16, CHATHAM 3. The Chatham Lacrosse Club went to Detroit yesterday. The Detroit Free Press says:—

Detroit beat Chatham at lacrosse yesierday at the D. A. C., 16 to 3, but the victory was a costly one in view of the fact that it may spoil the future of the club, trouble coming just at a time when the game was getting a firm foothold in this city. Noah Brusso played in the game, and as he is rated as professional by the Canadian association, teams participating is rated as professional by the Canadian association, teams participating against him in a game come under the same classification. Under this ruling, the Canadian teams that have played here since the organization of the local club, have professionalized themselves and stand a chance of being ruled off in the Dominion.

The Canadian visitors, however, were innocent of any wrong doing. Chatham vesterday served notice that Chatham yesterday served notice that the game could not take place with Brusso playing, and the Canadians went into the game under the impression that he would not participate. As the Detroit boy is one of the best of the local players and the hub of the wheel of the combination work, naturally the team would have been crippled without him. He is also manager of the club.

Brusso evaded the vigilance of the Chathamites by appearing on the field Chatham yesterday served notice that Brusso evaded the vigilance of the Chathamites by appearing on the field wearing a loud moustache, and even his friends on the side lines did not recognize him. In the excitement of the game, Brusso forgot about the moustache and was only reminded of the fact when a Canadian player picked it up, and handed it back to the Detroiter in Gaston-Alphonse style. Then somebody yelled "Brusso" and the game was up. Chatham protested, but the game was continued, so as not tr disappoint the spectators.

Detroit Played Fast Game.

Detroit Played Fast Game.

The combination work of the locals was the best they have shown thus far, and the rapidity of their plays and perfect defense must have unnerwed the visitors long before the game was over. The weight of the Detroit players went a great ways, as compared to the light team that opposed them. The playing was rough at some stages, but no injuries were inflicted and the visitors deserve more than passing mention for the gritthey displayed, with skill, speed and weight against them... However, the Detroit Played Fast Game. they displayed, with skill, speed and weight against them... However, the game demonstrated that he Detroit team is gradually rounding into fine form, this being evidenced time, and again in the contest on a slippery field on which fast work seemed out of the question. Chatham was simply outclassed and needs much strengthening to be on equal footing with Detroit.

The homes starred for Detroit, Bowman being the bright light. Time and again he shot the ball into the net from angles that called for a perfect effort to hit the mark. McDonald, Sewell and Brusso played a fine game, as did likewise the other members of the team. Ross showed grand form for Chatham, and Brackin turned many a shot out at Chatham's goal. The Canadians said after the game that Detroit had a great lacrosse twelve, and one that could cope with the best in the country.

In the second half Detroit played 14 men against Chatham's 12, and the wet weather and muddy grounds contributed to the success of the big Michiganders as against the lighter team of the Maple City.

10.30. The meeting the night before had adjourned at 12.45.

The matter in hand was that of the lighting fixtures for the new library. Three tenders had been received—from Chatham Electric Co., Jas. Watt & Sons, and Chatham Gas Co. The Chatham Electric Co.'s tender was dispensed with because the wiring came higher than the others. Neither one of the tenders were just what was wanted by the Board, so part was taken for each, and Watt & Sons and the Gas Co. were asked to retender. The new tenders were opened last evening and that of the Chatham Gas Co. was accepted at $326.

The Board will make an endeavor to have Andrew Carnegie, by whose munificence the library was built, here for the opening of the library the first week in August.

OF THE MAD MULLAH

BRIEF BUT INTERESTING SKETCH OF HIS CAREER.

Pilgrim and Pretender-Character and Temperament of the Dangerous Fanatic Was Entirely Changed as the Result of a Trip to Mecca-How He Gain-

Writing from Obbie, a special correspondent gives the following brief, but interesting sketch of the Mullah's career:

It is possible to doubt if the devout disciple of Mahomed Salih, sitting at the feet of the seer of Mecca In years now gone beyond remembrance, was then planning the triumphant displacement of the infidel within the confines of Somaliland. In those days, rather circumstances ge to show that he was the earnest seeker after a better life, and a true believer in the Scriptures as pro-pounded by his elders. However, his journey to Mecca brought about a rurious change in the character and temperament of the man. The teaching of Mahomet Salih appealed to his nature, and the Mullah returned to his own country with the intention of reviving the religious spirit of his people.

By hame Mahomed Abdullah, and belonging to the Sabr Suleiman sec-tion of the Ogaden tribe in the southwest of the Somali country, he had married into the Ali Kherri, one of the Dolbahanta tribes in the southeast of the British protector-ate. By this means he had extended his influence from Abyssinia in the west to the borders of Italian Sc-west to the borders of Italian So-mailiand in the east, when, after his return from Mecca, in 1895, he re-tired to Kob Fardo, his place of res-lidence, and a village inhabited by Mailiahs in the lolbehanta country, 270 miles from Berbera. Up to this point, Mahomed Ab-dullah had shown no very decided animus against the British suzerain-lay over Somaliland, and it appear-ed as he were content with the hom-age paid to his learning and devo-tional sincerity by the Ogaden and Dolbahanta tribes. His fame contin-ued to increase, and he won no lit-tals respect for his authority by the eribes electing to regard him as a the respect for his authority by the tribes electing to regard him as a court of appeal in their tribal disputes. Similarly, and with some measure of success, he streve to put down rading. He also continued his pilgrimages to Mecca, every visit adding to his reputation and increasing his influence.

From these beginnings, he initiated in 1899 a religious movement in which he was at once joined by the tribes that hitherto had supported him, while a number of others identified thomselves with him at the time and deserted him at a later per-alod, as their interests dictated. His policy now underwent a change, and it was quite evident that Mahomed abdullah was exerting his influence Abdullah was exerting his influence to excite the tribes to rebellion against British authority. He resorted to force in his efforts to gain supporters where he had previously employed persuasion, and he levied tolls and fines as punishments upon these who withstood his overtures. Barly in 1899 he raided the terri-Barly in 1899 he raided the territory of the Habr Yunis, and, occupying Burao, the Mullah proclaimed his intention of ruling the interior as his own sphere and leaving the coast to the foreigners. After an immediate return to Bohotle, he re-appeared in August, 1899, at Burao, continuing his march with 5,000 men, of whom 1,500 were horsemen and 200 had rifles, to Upper Shelk.

In the meantime he moved as far west as Odwein, harried the country around Shelk and at the end of September withdrew to Bohotle, mov-ing thence to Lassader. His appearance at Upper Sheik cre-ated a scare at Berbara, only some fifteen miles distant, and with no very adequate means of defense, but the arrival at this port of H.M.S. Pomone and R.I.M.S. Minto, restord confidence, The Mullah, however, advanced no nearer to the coast than Upper Sheik, claiming, when he saw the searchlights of the two ships from the peaks of the Golis range, that they were the eyes of God lookthat they were the eyes of God looking upon his crusade with favor. In other ways he began to boast possession of supernatural powers asserting that he could hear with his own ears in the Dolbahanta what was said about him in Berbara, and repeated the old story-familiar in the Soudan as among the Boxers—of being able to turn bullets into water. He was now animated by the Rer. He was now animated by the frenzy of the fanatic, and in subsequent raids his attacks were accommanied with fierce slaughter which made his name the terror of the tribes. He took the lives of those who refused to assist him, and ex-who refused to assist him, and exsected instant and absolute submission in all who followed him.

Early in 1900 the Mullah raided the Ogaden, obtaining the submission of the Rer Abdilleh, the Rer Harum and the Rer Ali. In consequence of this, the Abyssinians sent two forces of mounted infantry to punish these tribes, but failing to find the Mullah the Abyssinian colnums, after raiding the tribal territory, retired to Harrar and Jig Jigga. A few weeks later, in March, the force in garrison at Jig Jigwas attacked by some six theusand core in garrison at Jig Jigga was attacked by some six theusand of the Mullah's followers, under the guidance of the principal officers, and incited by the Mullah himself. Anspired by an assurance that the Abyssinian bullets had been rendered powerless, the Mullah's forces attacked with the greatest gallantry, charging repeatedly up to the edge of the defences, and in several places seizing the rifles of the defenders before they were themselves shot down. In the end they were completely defeated, being repulsed with a loss of 2,650 killed. The Abyssinians were, however, toe shaken to pursue, and the Mullah was left for a time in undisturbed possession of Ogaden, maintaining his headquarters at Milmil with an escort of 500 defeated by the Abyssinians, the Mullah suffered little loss of prestige, and the number of his forces was not materially reduced. Arms continued to reach him, and in May, a short time after the fight at Jig Jigga, he felt himself strong enough to bring off a sudden raid upon British tribes in the Haud. By this swoop he captured 2,000 camels, and caused the British tribes to abandou the Haud British tribes to abandon the Haud in confusion. A company of the 2nd Battalion King's African Rifles that had arrived in the protectorate in the previous February was sent to Burao and to Odwein, but a few weeks later, in September, the Mul-lah repeated his foray in a different oirection. Upon this occasion he raided the Abyssinian Habr Awal at Herebe, capturing immense numbers of camels and live stock. The malarious condition of the Ogaden coun try, into when the Mullah had again retired, prevented the projected pur-suit by the Abyssinian force taking place, and the Somali and Abyssinian sections of the Habr Awal tool matters into their own hands. Their efforts were without material result and the Mullah was left in enjoyand the Mullah was left in enjoyment of his spoils. By this time the influence of Mahomed Abdullah dominated the southern portion of his own protectorate, as well as wide stretches inland in the Italian and Abyssinian spheres. It had now become an object of extreme importance to dislodge and to subdue him. In January, 1901, expeditions were arranged in conjunction with the Abyssinian force, and later in the same year the first British expedition was dispatched.—Manchester Guardian.

Duchess of Argyll Is a Woman of Muc.

The fuse which has been made over the picture of a friend exhibited by the Duchess of Argyll reminds one that the late Sir Edgar Boehm, who was a good judge, had a very high opinion of the Duchess' talent as an artist, and especially as a sculptor. She was his pupil and used often to visit his studio. She has a very practical studio at Kensington Palpractical studie at Kensington Palace, where she has executed most of her works, including the picture referred to above, the sitting statue of the late Queen which faces the Round Pond, the statue of the late Queen, which she did for Manchester Cathedral, and the bust of the late Queen which stands in the gallery of the Institute of Water Colors in Piccadilly.

The Duchess of Argyll has been fav-ored by time, and at the present day she hardly looks ever thirty. Her figure has preserved its grace and slimness. Her features are good; she has the long, straight nose and large eyes of the Royal family. Her hair is soft and abundant. She is a thorough mistress of the art of dress and ough mistress of the art of gress and is the best dressed of the Royal sisters. She has a certain amount of dramatic power and looked magnificent in the tableux vivants which Princess Beatrice used to arrange at Princess Beatrice used to arrange at Balmoral and Osborne in the last reign. Her musical talents have excited the admiration of so competent a critic as Herr Johannes Wolff, the violinist. Like all her family, she is keenly interested in charity.—London Tatler.

Sketch of Lady Jounne. Lady Jeune is well known for her ability to say a clever thing, and she has one most estimable trait, in that her cleverness is never bitter. She could not be unkind, even in an epigram. One of her delights is in mys-tifying people, especially those of an inquiring turn of mind, and, of course, says M.A.P., she has every opportunity of doing so at her athomes, where the best of cosmopolitan society has always been wont to gather. The following instance in point occurred some little while ago, but has never before seen the light of day in type. It happened at a morning reception (which was, of course, held in the afternoon) and the other actor it the interlude was a charming but talkative young lady. She was desirous of learning all about everything and everybody, and Lady Jeune had for a long time been doing her best to satisfy her inquisitiveness. Finally the fair one's athomes where the best of cosmopoliitiveness Finally the fair one's at tention was caught by a rather ec-centric-looking man, with a strong and clever face. He looked almost an ascetic, thin and sallow, but there and clever lace. He looked aimost an ascetie, thin and sallow, but there was no mistaking the fact that he was a "somebody." The girl was interested at once. "Tell me who that gentleman is," she whispered to Lady Jeune. "Which gentleman, dear?" "The one with the long hair—the clever-looking man over there." "Hush!" said Lady Jeune, with a beautiful air of mystery. "Don't talk about him. He is one of the most designing creatures that ever lived." And then she left the younger lady to her own resources, having said quite sufficient to arouse the demon of curiosity in all his strength and vigor. The fair questioner mused over the reply she had received, wondering that such a striking appearance could belong to a designing personality. She wanted further information, and sought for it. She formation, and sought for it. She asked another lady friend the name of the gentleman in question. "Oh, don't you know?" was the reply. "That is Walter Crane!"—the paint-

Lincoln the Kind-Hearted.

A gentleman who knew Abraham Lincoln well, tells some stories, which The New York Tribune re-peats, of his well known kindness to children. He was one of the great men who have bigness enough to see things from the boy's point of view. If a man called on him with a child, Lincoln never forgot to shake hands with his younger visitor and say, something especially for his benefit. There is a story which has not been widely told of a young boy who been widely told of a young boy who served with distinction on board the gunboat Ottawa in a naval engagement, and on another occasion as captain's messenger. Swedish Marriage Customs.

The Scandinavian bridegroom presents to his betrothed a prayer-book and many other gifts, which usually include a goose. She in turn gives him, especially in Sweden, a shirt and this he invariably wears on his wedding day. Afterwards he puts it away, and under no circumstances will he wear it again while alive. But he wears it in his grave and there are Swedes who earnestly be-lieve not only in the resurrection of the body, but in the veritable resurrection of the betrothal shirts such husbands as have never broken any of their marriage vows. neer Expressions Only Used at the Great Varsity-A New World of Letters for the Unlearned

For the Unlearned.

Before going to Cambridge a freshman had to-know one or two clementary phrases only used at the varsity. For instance, he is not going "down" to Cambridge, but "up," wherever he may be traveling from. He is never "in" Cambridge, but always "up," If he is leaving college for a day or two, he will tell his friends that he is going "down." He is not asked where, says Pearson's Weekly. One does not speak of a late member of the "varsity as having "left." He has "gone down." The first person you encounter on entering your rooms is not your landlady. She is your "bedder," which is an abbreviation of "bedmaker." In some colleges there are male bedmakers. These are known as "gyps." The custom of abbreviating words and adding the affix "er" is universal at Cambridge. One does not go to one's "lecker." Football (Rugby or association) is, "lecture," but to one's 'lecker."
Football (Rugby or association) is,
of course, as elsewhere, "footer" (rugger or socker). The early meal is always "brekker." But there is always 'brekker.' But there is also a purely 'varsity meal known as 'brunch.' This takes place on Sunday. It is a combination of breakfast and lunch, and does duty for both. It is taken after chapel, at bout 11.30 o'clock, and men usually dispense with any other meal until tea time.

ly dispense with any other meal until tea time.

It is well to know that you do not "live" at Cambridge, you "keep." You will be asked "where are you keeping?" when friends inquire your address. If inside your college, you tell them that you 'keep in coll." You don't inquire if anyone is "dining in hall," but if they will "keep a hall." You "keep a Chapel," and if you attend that of King's College, you say you are going to "keeping" has passed all bounds among very slangy 'varsity men. They do not smoke a pipe, but "keep" one. If they are going to a theatre, concert or meeting, it is a case of "keeping." You even "keep" all at home, or a meeting with your tutor. If you are taking the tripos, or final examination for honors' degree, you are going to "take a trip." If you hear yourself referred to as "stinks man" you might think people were speaking in uncomplimentary terms of you. It would be well to make sure first, however, for what is intended is only that you are taking the natural sciences tripose, which is known as "stinks." The laboratories are, of course, the "labs," those devoted to physiology pose, which is known as "stinks."
The laboratories are, of course, the

A man who allows himself to be

If he locks himself into his rooms to Men do this when they go out for any length of time or wish to remain private. Your door, by the way, is known as your "oak." Some expressions much used outside the 'varsity are never heard outside the 'varsity are never heard among its members. For instance, nobody ever talks of an "undergrad." He is simply a "man"—though his years may not entitle him to the description. If his rank has to be referred to at all, one says "undergraduate" in full. There is no such thing as a "prof," though frequent use of the word, "professor" suggests the abbreviation. You never talk of a college man or a collegian. Anyone "up" at the university is known as a "varsity man." The names of the colleges are abbreviated, as most people know. St. The names of the colleges are abbreviated, as most people know. St. Peter's College is "Pothouse," St. Catherine's is "Cat's," Magdalen is "Maudlen." St. John's is always "John's." and the boat club of that college is "Lady Margaret," while Caius College is pronounced "Keys." A man who poses as a sporting granded by warring exaggerated grandee by wearing exaggerated sporting clothes, or indulging in displays of wealth, physical prowess or other showy forms of conduct, is referred to as a "blood." To be detected by proctors breaking regulations by omitting to wear cap and tions by omitting to wear cap and gown at proper times, or by going to prohibited places, such as public to prohibited places, such as public-house bars, is known as being "progged." The men who assist the proctors in running refractory under-graduates to earth are "bulldogs." If your offense is serious you are confined to college after 8 o'clock ev-ery night. This punishment is known as being "grated."

As to Two Evils.

Theodore Hallam, one of the most celebrated of legal practitioners, once defended a burglar, and the case gave him a story that he never tired of telling. The prosecuting attorney was fighting vigorously and had the defendant's wife on the stand.

"You are the wife of the prisoners" he asked her.

"You are the wife of the prisoner?" he asked her.
"Yes," she replied.
"Did you know his mode of life when you married him?"
"I did, sir."
"Will you tell us, then," went on the prosecutor, surprised by this admission, "how yo came to contract an alliance with one of his kind?"

"Well," she answered ingenously, "I was getting on, the other girls had all been married, and I at last had no choice but between him and a lawver who was courting me.

There are some who profess to believe that the "Celtic fringe" of England's Government is soon to become an all enveloping mantle. Ireland, with the promotion of Sir Geo. White, has three field marshals. The adjutant-general is an Irishman, the quartermaster-general a Scotchman, the Permanent Under Secretary for War an Irishman and the Commander-in-Chief of India is Irishborn. There are four Scotchmen and three Irishmen in the Cabinet, both Archbishops are Scotchmen and the Commander-in-Chief of the Channel Fleet is an Irishman.

THE GOSPEL SONGSTER.

The Sad Fate of Ira D. Sankey, Who Has Been Seized With Blindness—His Wonderful Career.

nost remarable Cospel singer of a century. Who has not heard of Ira D. Sankey? The name, indeed, is familiar wherever the English language is spoken, It is linked inseparably with another name; one of singular power, Moody and Sankey. Is it possible to speak of the one without thinking of the other? These without thinking of the other? These two men will long be remembered as the leaders of a great religious revival. Together they struggled from obscurity into fame. Together they proclaimed hope and faith to millions; fifty millions heard them. A few years ago death ended the eloquent ministry of one. Old age has silenced the songs of the other, and taken the light from his eyes. In his home at Brooklyn, Ira D. Sankey is home at Brooklyn, Ira D. Sankey is now blind, stone blind, without hope of ever again seeing the world to which he has sung so sweetly and so wonderfully.

Without Sankey what would Moody have been? This is a conunfrum that has no answer, but it is suggested by a contemplation of the lives of the two evangelists. Moody's greatness undoubtedly was unveiled to the world by Sankey. It was the songster who first commanded the attention of the masses; who touched the finer and more responsive chords of their being. People paused and of their being. People paused and then the message of Moody was sent home with irresistible force. Sankey opened hearts; Moody took possession. What the rain and the sun are to nature Moody and Sankey were to the great work they undertook together. And the co-operation was complete. Where the one stopped the other began. Of the two, Moody was the leader because it was he who the leader because it was he who the leader because it was ne who one towards the other and called Sankey to the partnership. But here the leadership ended. In absolute sincerity—the truest of all tests of conservers—Mondy was not one whit greatness—Moody was not one white leader of Sankey. They were equals. That first meeting of Moody and Sankey. Was it chance or otherwise? Some tell us there is no such thing as chance. Certainly, Moody knew the kind of help he wanted as he stood that morning in the flat, spiritless prayer meeting in Indianapolis 33 years ago. Years before he had felt the preacher's call. While yet a salesman in a Boston shoe store, where the other salesmen called him the Spider, because he was always so alert, Moody had decided upon his alert, Moody had decided upon his life work. But his progress as a preacher was slow and tedious. At 33 he was recognized as an effective leader of Sunday school conventions; nothing more. There he might have remained had he not met the young singer, then 30 years of age. Sankey's message in seng was a revelation to Moody. It lifted the little praying assemblage out of the commonplace into the higher and purer atmosphere of spirituality. The service ended, Moody was at the side of his destined partner. "You are the his destined partner. "You are the man I have been looking for for eight years," he said. "You must come and work with me." But San-key hesitated. He was choir leader in the Methodist Church. He was president of the Y.M.C.A. Moreover, he was a business man, and his wife was his partner. All those things had to be considered. Like a wise man Sankey consulted his wife, and she, like a woman of true insight; knew that the rall was one he should werent. Then the world soon should accept. Then the world soon heard of Moody and Sankey. It is only after this conjunction is effected that Moody appears on the platform as a great revivalist. Some say he possesses remarkable personal magnetism. Others give another and higher explanation. But Sankey is singing. His songs are new, or they are old songs in a new dress. Some are old songs in a new dress. Some very proper people take exception to the character of the music. It is certainly conventional, and in that respect it resembles the rugged and simple Moody. But the singer is greater than the song. His singing is an appeal. His voice is musical eloquence. His message is sung into the heart before it can be resisted by the heart before it can be resisted by argument of indifference. Then Moo-dy and Sankey are on everybody's lips. Chicago flocks to hear them.

argument of indifference. Then Moody and Sankey are on everybody's lips. Chicago flocks to hear them. weeps, rejoices, and sings with them. London, at first seeptical of their powers, becomes a prey to the infection. The shoe salesman and the country shopkeeper preach and sing their way around the world, carrying to millions an old message with new power. Their triumphs are beyond calculation. Their battlefields are everywhere. The names of Moody and Sankey mobilize immense Christian armies. What might such men have done had they not been enlisted in spreading the Gospel of peace and good-will?

Those hymns of Saakey soon got a money value. After hearing the great singer the people wanted to sing also. For years the hymns had been a drug on the market. Sankey alone had faith in the little book he had compiled. He took it to publisher after publisher, offering it for nothing if they would only print and circulate it. The publishers saw no market for hymns. When Moody heard them sung he knew that they possessed a merit. What that merit is it would be difficult to say precisely. The musical defects and the literary imperfections of Sankey's songs are, indeed, glaring. But they possessed something that more than compensated. They were the voice of a soul. Sung by Sankey, they moved the multitude. In 1873 Moody placed the collection of songs in the hands of a London printer, having previously taken the precaution to secure a copyright. Funds were low then with the evangelists, so that the printing took from them their last dollar. But the investment proved a good one. The book sold in vast numbers. Editions were soon exhausted. The royalty yielded a substantial income. Beyond the absolute needs of their work the avangelists declined to accept any profit. In London and in New York committees of well-known business

"Prizes" with common soaps are dearly paid for at the exyears. Alterwards the fund was transferred to the trustees of the Northfield Seminaries, founded by Mr. Moody for Bible study. Thus the songs of Sankey brought needed fin-ancial as well as popular support to pense of clothes and hands.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Some men are willing to look for work if they only don't find it.

The prodigal son had to come to himself before he came to his father;

When the Russian, Persian, Siberian or other merchant who trades at Nizhni Novgorod pays his last year's obligations, he expects a present. A wine merchant, after settling his bill, looks over the wholesaler's stock, and selecting a bottle of high-priced champagne, jokingly walks off with it. If the transaction has been in saddlery, the customer appropriates a fancy bridle. The Asiatic buyers have a habit of dropping in about meal-time, when, of course, they are politely invited to partake of the tempting spread of caviar, cheese, sardines, and so forth, that is set out in the little rear room. "The blood is the life." Science has never gone beyond that simple state-ment of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the in-creasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through out in the little rear room.

The regulations in regard to fire are rough on the smoker. A person-caught smoking in the streets is arrested and ingloriously marched off to the police station, where he is fined fifty rubles. At the hotels a couple of lynx-eyed lackeys are stationed at the entrance to warn the out-going guests of this regulation. disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgment are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought, may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. No one can be well balanced in mind and body whose blood is impure. No one can have a wholetioned at the entrance to warn the outgoing guests of this regulation, and to bar the way of the uninitiated, who would otherwise step jauntily into the street and into the arms of the nearest policeman:

The wisdom of these precautions against fire comes to be understood as the traveler walks about the city and realizes the enormous value of the merchandise that it contains. Every hole and corner is literally crammed with goods. Merchants from distant parts of Asia bring their manners and tustoms with them to Nighni Novgorod. Young Tartars are seen by the score strelling about the impure. No one can have a wholesome and pure life unless the blood is pure. Foul blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the blood is pure, body and brain are alike healthy and life becomes a daily happiness.

Solomon's temple was about seven years in building, but it stood for centuries. No one can estimate accurately the life of a modern steel structure, which comes into being in remarkably quick time. In a recent instance in New York an apartment hotel was completed, leased and sold in less than fourteen months after the purchase of the site. The actual work of construction was done in less than ten months, although this was a twelve and a half story building, which coveted a lot 71 by 100 feet, and contained more than 200 rooms. These marvels do not come by chance. Every bolt and rivet is planned and provided for before the foundation is laid, and a perfect system controls the gangs of workmen, who carry on the most diverse operations without getting in one another's way.—Youth's Companion. pell Cast Upon Climbers of the Mexico Mountains Iztaccihuati and Popocat-epetl-Full of Death Traps.

There is a fascination about Pop ocatepetl and Iztacchuatl, twin white-clad mountains overlooking the picturesque capital of Mexico, which seems to cast a spell upon all visitors to this Land of the Sun. Popocatepetl is kindly to the climber, and is frequently ascended, but er, and is frequently ascended, but the sides of Iztaccihuatl are steep and covered with ice. Huge crevas-ses, partially covered with snow, seam the face of the mountain. They are lurking death traps to the unwary, says Mr. G. E. Towle, in Modern Mexico.

But six parties are known to have succeeded in scaling the perilous heights of Iztaccihuatl. The last of these was headed by Joseph Dedi, a hardy, experienced Swiss mountain climber, and enthusiastic member of the Swiss Alpine Club. He declares that the scaling of Iztaccihuatl was the most difficult feat of mountain climbing which he has ever undertak-

"My party numbered six," says
Mr. Dedi, and each of us had a declared that they knew the way, but at the foot of the first glacier, they confessed that they had never been there before, and were as ignor-ant of the way as were we. Their scanty clothes and sandal-clad feet incapacitated them for the Work of choping out steps from the solid ice with hatchets, and putting them to the rear we proceeded on our own resources.

"We went slowly, cutting steps for every foot of the way in the ice, on which there was a light layer of snow. Many times we came upon yawning crevasses, some of them so deep that chunks of ice thrown into their depths seemed to find no bottom.

'I have scaled many mountains, "I have scaled many mountains, but I have never before made a trip fraught with so much total and discomfort. The pulsations of our hearts averaged one hundred and forty-five a minute. Our heads seemed to be bursting and our eyes to be falling from their sockets. We moved slowly and with the greatest care, that no sudden motion might place a greater tax upon our already sorety tried hearts. The sun burned down upon us like flames shooting from a blast furnace. Its rays reflected from the ice at our feet leapfrom a blast furnace. Its rays reflected from the ice at our feet leaped into our faces like fires from the

He is in the sky, among the clouds. The earth seems to have fallen miles away with him, leaving him suspended. There is no living thing about him, not even a bird awing. He looks down at his feet, and he seems to have come to the end of the earth. GERMANY'S ACTION.

CHAMBERLAIN TERMS IT LIT-TLE LESS THAN A THREAT.

Would Have Neglected His Duty Had He Failed to Bring the Matter Before the British Electorate.

London, June 19 .- In the course of questions regarding the new fiscal proposals in the House of Commons, the Liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, obtained leave to move the adjournment of the House in order to discuss a point arising from the reply which the Premier had made to Sir Henry in the House on June 11. The latter, on that occasion, called attention to the despatch of Vice-Admiral Rawson, Governor of New South Wales, to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, supporting the Secretary's preferential trade proposals. The Premier of New South Wales, Sir Henry pointed out, has since telegraphed that the matter which he referred to in his despatch was contained in the speeches of Mr. Balfour and Mr. Chamberlain, and the Liberal leader invited the Premier to telegraph to the Government of New South Wales "a correction of its misapprehension." Mr. Balfour replied that he had nothing to withdraw or to modify in the speech referred to. the reply which the Premier had made

The whole evening session was occupied with the discussion on the motion. The motion was finally rejected by 252 votes to 132. While the Opposition was scarcely more successful than heretofore in drawing the Government into a discussion of the general scheme of preierential trade within the emplre, Premier Balfour and Colonial Secretary Chamberlain both emphatically declared that the Government of New South Wales was under no misapprehension regarding the attitude of the home Government, and, in fact, the Cabinet as a whole thoroughly agreed with the sentiments of Vice-Admiral Rawson.

Sir Charles Dilke having reterred during the debate to the Psemier's statement as a momentous one, committee of the colors.

during the debate to the Fremier's statement as a momentous one, committing the Government to a policy of retaliation, which was a direct step towards avowed protection, Mr. Balfour retorted that he had not said a word about retaliation, but he would not shrink from retaliation if he were satisfied that there was no other method.

satisfied that there was no other method.

Mr. Chamberlain then rose and referred to Germany's action toward Canada as a proof that there was a hostile discrimination against the colonies. He did not blame Germany so long as the British policy was to lie down under that treatment. The Colonial Secretary expressed his confidence that Germany would not sompel Great Britain to submit. If it did, he would say with Mr. Balfour that it was the Government's duty to find a remedy. Except as being an attack upon Germany, Mr. Chamberlain's speech was a repetition in more convinced and forcible terms of his previous speeches.

vinced and forcible terms of his previous speeches.

He made a great point in showing the mere talk of a change in Great Britain's fiscal policy had already produced a change of tone in the German newspapers, which no longer talked of retaliation, the object of which, he said, "Was less to punish Canada than to read a lesson to any British colony daring to discriminate in favor of the ng to discriminate in favor of the ing to discriminate in favor of the mother country."

Mr. Chamberlain added that the feeling on the subject in the colonies was such that he would have neglected his office had he failed to bring up the matter before the British electorate. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's motion was then rejected,

FEMALE BLUE BEARD.

Four of Her Husbands Died of Poisoning.

Berlin, June 19 .- The trial of a so-"female bluebeard," Frau Przygodda, began at Allenstein, East Prussia, near the Russian frontier. Her fifth husband, Przygodda, a hotel keeper, caught her putting ar-senic in his coffee, and remembered that her other husbands, all prosper-ous peasants, died suddenly. The au-thorities exhumed their remains and found arsenic in each of them.

ebate on the Canadian Northern Guarantee-Treadgold Commis-

Sich.

Ottawa, June 19.—Yesterday aftersoon Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced hat he hoped to be able to give the names of the members of the Treadgold and the transportation commissioners to-day. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in consideration of Hos. Mr. Blair's resolution granting aid to the Canadian Northern Railway. The Opposition criticized the Government for having insisted upon the provision that the railway should not amalgamate with the C. P. R., while nothing was said about amalgamation with the G. T. P. Hon. Mr. Blair and Sir Wilfrid Laurier contended that the G. T. P. has not yet an entity, and that the same reason for prohibiting its amalgamation with the Canadian Northern did not exist. It was, however, essential to the maintenance of competition in the Northwest that the provision should be placed in the resolution. Mr. Cochrane and Mr. Borden suggested that Parliament was being asked to assist the Grand Trunk Pacific, under the guise of the Canadian Northern. In the evening a number of items in the supplementary estimates for the current year were voted.

THE GAMBLING EVIL.

Strongly Denounced in the Synod of Huron.

London, One., June 19.—"It is high time for the Church to take a definite stand on this subject," said Bishop Baldwin to the Synod of Huron when the report of the Committee on Garabling was presented. "This ghastly crime has even entered into society; ladies darken their parlors, light the gas and indulge in pregressive cuche, which is gambling, pure and simple. The amount of it in London is appsalling. It may be called progressive or some other suphemistic word, but there is the crime. Society laughs and simpers and makes its rooms dark, and the people are being educated in vice."

The committee recommends the Synod to petition Parliament to pass such legislation as would effectually do away with what are termed bucket shops, which app a chief source of gambling at the present day and foster the gambling spirit ameng young men, and requested the Bishop to issue a pastoral on the subject.

The report was adopted, with only two dissenting votes, Mr. Ransford and anothers.

AMERICAN FAVORED.

Complaint Made Against South Africa Line.

Toronto, June 19. — That the newly-subsidized Canadian steamnewly-subsidized Canadian steamship line to South Africa has neglected to take Canadian goods in order that American merchandise might be carried is a complaint that has been laid before the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. The matter came up at the meeting of the Executive Council of the association held yesterday afternoon in a report from the Commercial Intelligence Committee. The statement was made that while Canadian goods were left lying on the wharf American shippers were able to send their stuff forward. Another complaint was that the Canadian steamers did not always sail on scheduled ers did not always sail on scheduled time, and that on this account goods suffered delay. These complaints will be forwarded to the Government.

LOST IN THE FLOOD.

Samuel McBride and His Family Were Canadians.

Windsor, June 19.—Mrs. Thomas Legalle believes that it was her brother, Samuel McBride, and his wife and seven children who were mentioned as being victims of the Heppner, Oregon, flood. A despatch from Dalles, Oregon, states that every member of the family perished in their home. They removed from Strathroy, Ont., to Heppner some years ago. Miss McBride, Secretary of the Turned Goods Company, this city, is a sister of Samuel McBride.

SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES.

A Total of $5,090,968 For the Current Fiscal Year.

Piscal Year.

Ottawa, June 19.—Before the adjournment of the House yesterday Mr. Fielding brought down the supplementary estimates for the current year. The total amount is $5,000,008. There are few items of special interest. Petersen, Tate & Co. are to be paid their deposit in connection with former tenders for the fast Atlantic service, with interest at 3 per cent, making in all $50,040. Ten thousand dollars is set apart to cover the expenses of the British Columbia Industrial Commission. For the steamship service between Canada and South African ports $100,500 is asked. The sum of $10,500 is appropriated for the branch postoffice in the west end of Toronto (Station C). In connection with the Coronation contingent, there is a further vote of $13,000. A vote of $250,000 is asked as an additional grant to the Northwest Territories ior schools, clerical assistance, etc.
