WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER XXVII.

A Lost Man.

"One moment," said Faradeane, with a kind of gasp. "Give me one moment. Is she in danger, do you say?"

"You must move on, sir; you cannot be permitted to talk," said the sergeant.

Faradeane sighed and inclined his head, and was passing on, when Mr. McAndrew, who had never taken his eyes from his face, said:

"If Mr. Faradeane desires it, I can give him all the news; but I can only see him at his desire now."

"Yes, yes!" said Faradeane, quickly and anxiously, looking back over his shoulder. "Come at once, please."

The crowd closed up after him, and the shouting and cheering and groaning announced the departure of the fly.

Bartley Bradstone stood in the corridor biting his lip, and looking after the prisoner in a dull, vacant fashion, and had quite forgotten Mr. McAndrew until that gentleman's voice sounded at his elbow.

"Carrying it with a high hand, isn't he, Mr. Bradstone?"

Bartley Bradstone started.

"Eh? Yes, yes! You think that—that there isn't any chance for him? You think he's guilty still?"

The detective looked at him with a sudden and utterly expressionless stare.

"I never give an opinion myself, sir," he said. "Never. It's unprofessional. But I think the jury, when he goes for trial, will think him guilty."

A strange expression, it almost seemed like relief, shot across Bartley Bradstone's face, but it was gone in an instant, and, with a shake of his head, he said:

"They'll be a parcel of fools, then. He's no more guilty than I am."

"Just so, sir," remarked Mr. McAndrew. "But it's strange he doesn't say so, isn't it? And Mrs. Bradstone is still in danger, sir?" he broke off, respectfully.

"Yes, yes," assented Bartley Bradstone, with a heavy sigh and an anxious, troubled look, and he moved down the corridor to the door where a closed carriage and pair stood waiting for him. "Oh, stop!" he said, with his hand on the door and looking back at the detective. "I—I forgot. Mr. Vanley asked me to say that if there was anything that could be done for the prisoner, he should like to do it. I suppose there will be lawyers and—a counsel. Just see to it, will you?"

Mr. McAndrew regarded him with the same stolid stare.

"I'm afraid I can't interfere, sir," he said, thoughtfully. "You see, I'm for the prosecution; at least, I'm for the truth!"

Bartley Bradstone shot a glance at him; but the man's face was so wooden that it robbed the words of any significance.

"But I'll put Mr. Faradeane in the way he should go—I can do that without going beyond my duty, though whether he'll pay any attention to my advice is quite another thing."

Bartley Bradstone got into the carriage, and, as the footman in the gorgeous Maples livery closed the door, Bradstone leaned forward.

"Anything discovered about the woman—what's her name?—Bella?" he asked.

Mr. McAndrew shrugged his shoulders.

"Nothing of any consequence, sir," he replied.

Bartley Bradstone sank back out of sight, and, being out of sight, wiped the perspiration from his forehead.

Mr. McAndrew looked after the carriage for a moment or two, passing his hand over his mouth in the manner peculiar to him; then turned and made his way to the jail.

The governor of her Majesty's prison at Wainford was a certain Colonel Summerford; a gentleman, and a man of sound common sense. He had been governor for nearly twenty years, but during all that long experience he had never had so strange and puzzling an inmate as Harold Faradeane. Colonel Summerford knew the ordinary jail-bird by heart, and understood every song that bird could sing; but this man, charged with the murder of a woman in Hawkwood woods, scattered all the good colonel's experiential theories and ideas, like chaff before the wind. In the first place, the colonel saw that his "new man" was a gentleman; and, secondly, that he was no fool, as some gentlemen—too many, alas!—often are. He felt greatly interested in him, and did his best to make him as comfortable as a prisoner committed for trial on a capital offence can be made. He gave him the largest and airiest cell, and, in fact, treated him as a man who, though accused, has not yet been found guilty.

Mr. McAndrew arrived at the prison about half an hour after Faradeane's return, and found the colonel walking up and down his office in deep thought.

"Good-morning, colonel," said the detective, putting his head in at the door and touching his hat with his forehead in farmer fashion.

"Ah! is that you, Mr. McAndrew? Come in," responded the governor. "You have just come from court, I suppose? You have got a more interesting case than country ones usually are, eh?"

"Yes," assented Mr. McAndrew; "it's rather interesting."

"Confound the man!" exclaimed the colonel. "I wish they hadn't brought him here, and he tugged at his mustache."

"Gives you a lot of trouble?"

"Not a bit. That's just it. Look here, McAndrew, I can't make him out."

"No, colonel?"

"No; and I'm an old hand at 'em too. I didn't think there could be a case that would puzzle me—I mean so far as the man goes. I'm used to reading them right off the reel; but this man Faradeane baffles me."

"Ah," commented the detective, thoughtfully; "doesn't behave like the usual run, then, colonel?"

"Not a bit," said the governor, testily. "Some of them are sullen, others are hysterical, and others again dogged and taciturn; while I've seen some half-mad. Now, this man just takes the whole thing as quietly as if there was nothing extraordinary in it. It's the evidence was not so black I should be ready to swear that he is innocent. It is black, isn't it?"

McAndrew nodded.

"About as black as it could be," he said in a matter-of-fact voice.

"And you can make nothing of it—of him?" asked the colonel. "It isn't my way to be over curious about my prisoners," he added, half-apologetically; "but I will own to feeling a deep interest in this Mr. Faradeane."

McAndrew nodded.

"A good many other people do that," he said. "I do, for one. I don't know yet whether he's guilty or not; but I should like to know, if he is guilty, why he did it. By the way, colonel, I want to see him."

The governor pulled up short and frowned.

"Come, you know, McAndrew," he said, "you are engaged against him. I can scarcely give you admittance to him—"

"You can trust me, colonel," said the detective, quietly. "If he told me straight out that he did it I shouldn't use the information against him. So far as that goes, he hasn't once denied it. But you can trust me, colonel. I shan't do your friend any harm by seeing him. Besides, it is at his request."

Strangely enough, the colonel, upright and honorable gentleman that he was, did not resent the prisoner being described as his friend, but rang the bell for a turnkey, and Mr. McAndrew was conducted to the prisoner's cell.

Some articles of furniture, a table, a chair, and writing materials had been provided by the kind-hearted colonel; and the bed, though plain, was not so uncomfortable as it might have been. Faradeane was sitting on it, with his head resting in his hands; but he rose as the key clicked in the lock and the turnkey opened the door—rose to receive his visitor with the courtesy he would have displayed if it had been his own parlor at The Dell.

Mr. McAndrew waited until the door had clanged upon the turnkey.

"I hope you are as comfortable as you can be under the circumstances, sir," he began.

"Yes, yes," said Faradeane, "thanks to Colonel Summerford; he has done everything, has been very kind. I am obliged to you for coming to me so soon," he went on, his voice sounding sad and anxious, yet strangely calm.

"I overheard your inquiry concerning Miss Vanley—I mean Mrs. Bradstone," he corrected himself with a slight catch in his voice, "and Mr. Bradstone's reply. Will you tell me what has happened? I have heard nothing since my arrest. Mrs. Bradstone fell at my feet—he paused a moment—

"but I hope that it was nothing more than a fainting fit caused by the shock. Is it true that she is dangerously ill?"

With all his effort to keep calm, his hand, which rested on the plain deal table, quivered, and Mr. McAndrew's keen eyes noted it.

"She is very ill and in danger," replied the detective, watching him, and yet apparently doing nothing of the kind.

Faradeane went to the barred window, and looked out upon the prison yard in silence for a moment.

"It is my fault," he said, huskily.

"When they told me that they would take me to the Grange on my arrest I thought they would do so quietly, that she should not know—it is all my fault. Miss Vanley is a close and very dear friend of mine," he added, as if to explain the emotion he suppressed with difficulty.

"I understand," said McAndrew, slowly. "It was the shock of seeing you in trouble and the story of the murder coming on the excitement of the wedding. You see, she wasn't to know that you were innocent," he added, easily and smoothly.

"No; she believed it, she believed it," said Faradeane, unwarily, with a deep sigh.

The detective's eyes twinkled, but only for a second.

"You see, things looked black against you. She wasn't to know—it would all come right at the trial."

Faradeane turned and looked at him gravely, and with quick self-possession.

"Why do you say that?" he asked, calmly.

Mr. McAndrew shrugged his shoulders.

"Oh, I suppose you'll explain everything then, sir?" he said. "What surprises me and everybody else is that you don't do it now. But I dare say you have your reasons."

"I have nothing to explain. I am almost tired of repeating it," said Faradeane, and he turned to the window with a weary gesture.

The detective watched him closely.

"Well, yes, you've said it often enough; but how much longer do you mean to stick to it?" and he leaned forward with sudden earnestness.

Faradeane remained silent.

"Look here, sir," continued Mr. McAndrew, quietly but impressively. "I've no business sitting here talking to you. I've got the case in hand, and it's my duty to prove you guilty, if you are guilty. But I'm not so sure that you are. It's right out of the ordinary track, this business, and I come to you, knowing you to be a gentleman, and I say, 'Here's a hard-working man trying to earn his living honestly; will you help him? That sounds strange to you, I dare say, sir, but it's my fancy to lay all my cards on the table, and I'll tell you'—he spread his palms out as if they really held cards—"I tell you, sir, that I've got enough evidence already to—"

GERMAN TRENCHES CAPTURED.
 LONDON, Sept. 20.—British troops, south of Arras, yesterday captured 200 yards of German trenches, says an official statement issued to-day by the British army headquarters.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED FOR OR-TAINING MORE MEN.
 LONDON, Sept. 20.—An announcement was made to-day of the appointment of a Committee for obtaining more men for the army by combing out young men from exempt occupations. This Committee, which has been named "The Man Power Distribution Board," has for Chairman, J. Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for India. Its members include Viscount Middleton, former Secretary for India, and some labor members of the Commons.

BRITAIN'S EXPLANATION.
 WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Britain to-day formally expressed to the United States regret for the action of a British destroyer in holding up and examining the Philippine steamer Cebu within territorial waters of the Philippines. Because of heavy fog, it is explained, the destroyer's commander did not know that the vessel was so near the shore.

GERMAN OFFICIAL.
 BERLIN, Sept. 20.—Stubborn and fluctuating battles are going on in the province of Dobruja between the Russo-Romanian forces and German-Bulgarian troops, said to-day's German official. The Russians and Roumanians hastily brought up reinforcements, the statement adds, and are defending their positions with great stubbornness. Roumanian forces which invaded Transylvania through the Stenauk Pass of the Transylvania Alps, have been defeated, and have been driven back over the Pass, the war office announced to-day.

BULGARIANS FORCE BACK ITALIANS.
 ROME, Sept. 20.—An attack by the strong Bulgarian force resulted in pushing back the Italian advance posts on the Macedonian front, northeast of Salonika, the war office announced in to-day's official bulletin.

GREEK NEUTRALITY.
 LONDON, Sept. 20.—A despatch from Athens says it is learned on good authority that this morning a conference of Premier Katoeropoulos and the Foreign Minister with King Constantine, resulted in a decision in principle for a departure from neutrality, with a view to dissipating the Entente's apparent distrust of the new cabinet.

BLOCKADE OF GREEK COAST.
 PARIS, Sept. 20.—In the Journal Official to-day the announcement is made that a blockade of the Greek coast from the mouth of the river Struma to the Greco-Bulgarian front, is in effect from September 16th. The blockade was declared on account of the occupation by Bulgars of the Greek seaport of Kavala.

GREEK NOTE TO GERMANY.
 LONDON, Sept. 20.—Reuters' Telegram Co. says that it learned officially that the Greek Government has submitted a very urgent note to Germany regarding the removal to Germany of Greek troops from Kavala, and demanding that they be returned.

DISASTROUS FLOODS IN CHINA.
 WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Nearly a million people have been made homeless in China by one of the greatest floods in fifty years. Reports between the Zam-Buk method of healing and that of ordinary ointments. That is why Zam-Buk cures when other ointments fail, and why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Mr. A. Jossy, of Spry Harbor, N.S., writes: "For three years I suffered with eczema on my hands. The burning and irritation were so intense that I could not sleep at night. I tried numerous remedies, but nothing gave me relief until I used Zam-Buk. This herbal balm, however, soon ended the burning and irritation, and before long my hands were completely cured. I shall never be without Zam-Buk again—it is certainly a wonderful ointment."

to the State Department to-day telling of the disaster and that an appeal for foreign aid would be made.

THE POPE'S HEALTH.
 ROME, Sept. 20.—A report having been circulated that Pope Benedict was indisposed, it was said at the Vatican to-day that the health of the Pope was normal, notwithstanding the strain imposed by his arduous labors during the war, which have added greatly to the burden of administration of the church under ordinary circumstances. Pope Benedict received seven persons in private audience to-day and several hundred in collective audiences.

DERBY'S OPINION OF GERMANY.
 LONDON, Sept. 20.—We are fighting the best organized nation in the world and it would be a reflection on our own troops not to admit so. The Germans have been showing extraordinary bravery. Two years ago they had a chance to win. They are still exceedingly good in engines of destruction, but we at least even in this respect now cannot help feeling equal. Our men individually are better, and soon we hope to have a distinct margin of superiority. We are able to continue to increase our arms and munitions to feed our troops and we will get more men if needed, but no concrete proposal has been made yet to increase the age limit. I found everyone at the front cheerful. You may rest assured that the offensive will be continued. If there seems to be a lull it will be interesting to make a study of the German casualty list. The Boches will not be allowed to go into winter quarters. In company with Joffre and Haig I watched the tanks, the sight of which provoked unrestrained laughter despite the power they displayed, crossing the trenches and butting their way through wire entanglements and even through groves of trees. (Lord Derby.)

ANOTHER WINTER WAR.
 LONDON, Sept. 20.—I wish I could pick one of my horses as a winner with the certainty of victory for the Entente Allies, said Lord Derby, British Under Secretary for War, on his return from a visit to France, where in company with General Haig and Joffre he saw trials of the tanks before they were sent into battle against the Germans. Lord Derby continued: "We now have an European army with better guns, better rifles and better ammunition than any other country in the world. But I do not agree with people who expect the war to end within six months, as it must surely continue over the winter."

RECOGNITION BY ALL MEANS.
 LONDON, Sept. 20.—An official of the Greek foreign office visited Entente diplomats at Athens to-day, says a Reuter despatch from the Greek capital. He is understood to have requested them as a matter of form to recognize the new cabinet, adding that the Cabinet would subsequently resign if such a course was considered inevitable.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.
 LONDON, Sept. 20.—An official to-night reads: Heavy rain again falling to-day. The general situation remains unchanged. There was considerable hostile artillery activity on the battle front south of the Ancre. On the rest of the front there is nothing to report. During the last 48 hours over 100 prisoners have been taken.

PORTUGUESE OFFICIAL.
 LISBON, Sept. 20.—Portuguese troops operating at Mosambique have crossed the Rovuma river, dividing German East Africa from Portuguese East Africa, says an official issued to-day. The enemy who is making feeble resistance abandoned armor plated trenches. Our gait files four miles over the frontier.

Seamen Scarce.
 Tempting Offers Made.

It is very difficult to get seamen at present, especially for sailing vessels, notwithstanding that they are paid $25 a month and found. In rare cases $40 is offered and there is no response. Conditions are similar all over Canada and seamen are not to be had at the principal seaport places even at fancy wages. We have 11 from master mariners of long standing, recognized to be competent authority, that in the very near future it will be almost impossible to get any experienced sailors to go to sea in St. John's, at least, and the same applies to the whole island. The result is that most of our experienced seamen have administration of the church under ordinary circumstances. Pope Benedict received seven persons in private audience to-day and several hundred in collective audiences.

Norwegians Will Prosecute With Local Sealing Fleet.

The Norwegian steamers Njord and Jacobsen, which landed cargoes of coal here at St. John's premises, left again last evening for North Sydney to return with similar cargoes. Both these steamers outfitted in Sydney and prosecuted the sealery in the Gulf of the past three years for their Norwegian owners. During the coming winter, we understand, they will cease running in the coast trade and will get ready for the sealing voyage, sailing out of St. John's, where their crews will be obtained. The Njord and Jacobsen will, in all probability, operate in the Gulf. They are, no doubt, welcome additions to our local depleted sealing fleet. The last few years at the icefields both these Norwegians did not get enough seals to pay expenses.

Graciana Here.

Takes Record English Mail to Old Country.

The Furness Liner Graciana arrived here yesterday from Halifax, after a run of fifty-six hours. She brought a small general cargo, mostly for the Fox was contended with on the passage. The ship sails to-night for Liverpool taking a large shipment of fish in cases as freight; also a large English mail and record parcel post for members of the Newfoundland Regiment.

Amusements.

AT THE CRESCENT.
 "Tom Martin—A Man" is the headliner at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. This great feature is produced in three reels by the Selig players, the tragic story of a brave man. "When Kings were the Law" is a spectacular old world drama; "Too Clever by Half" is a classy Vitagraph Drew comedy, with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew. Mr. Sam Rose sings "When the Major plays those minor melodies," a lively rag time number. Professor McCarthy plays a new and classy musical programme. The usual big week-end variety programme to-morrow.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY—IMPRESSIVE STORY.
 Crowded audiences attended the Nickel Theatre last evening and were delighted with the performance. The pictures were splendid and afforded pleasure and satisfaction to all. The feature film was entitled: "The District Attorney," a beautiful melodrama in five reels. It is the production of the Lubin Co. and is one of their finest plays. The artists appearing in it are brilliant and past masters in their profession. The programme will be repeated this evening and we feel certain there will be large audiences again.

DANGEROUS PRACTICE.—Despite the Proclamation issued early this year prohibiting persons from trespassing on certain lands around the shooting range, a new and classy one has overstepped the bounds, and in doing so have not only endangered their lives, but run the risk of being arrested, and might terminate by a few weeks confinement at the Lake side inn.

BURROS.
 The burros lastly infest the mountain regions of the west. You see them on the dizzy trails, with drooping ears and switching tails; and as they climb the rocky steep, they all seem walking in their sleep. The world has many mournful things, that walk on legs or fly on wings; the moping owl seems so depressed it gives you faints in your breast; the cross-eyed jacked sits and howls more dimly than all the owls. The circus clown has won renown as being utterly cast down. But if you'd see the soul of woe, pack up your thermos flasks and go, out to some rugged western place, and look a burro in the face. There you will find, beneath those ears, the sorrow of a million years. I wondered why he looked so sad, when, in a Colorado grad, I first beheld him packing round a dame who weighed two hundred pound. But soon I knew; where'd he wend, a gale of merriment ascends, and dreary jokes assail his ears and fill his patient eyes with tears. No beast can be a standing jest, and find in life much joy or zest.

RENOVATING CHURCH.—Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan, the newly appointed Pastor at Pouch Cove is getting the Church and Presbytery at Flat Rock renovated and improved. The work is being done by Mr. John Hand.

WAS STORM BOUND.—The schooner Nellie M. Capt. Herald, arrived in port yesterday afternoon, bringing a cargo of salt from Cadiz. The vessel was reported last Monday week off Cape Race and since then was detained by fog and heavy head seas spending most of the time in Trepassey Bay.

CITY FATHERS MEET.—The weekly session of the Municipal Board will be held to-night.

LIVELY NIGHT OF IT.—Shortly after last midnight two policemen of the night duty were called to Cabot Street where a man was acting violently. Through the diplomacy of the officers peace was proclaimed.

Will You Take Two At Our Risk?

So many customers who suffer from run down nervous condition with its consequent ills of insomnia, indigestion and general debility are being greatly helped by Zetco—the nerve tonic, that we wish to have every ailing person in this town try this really famous remedy. It is all that a tonic should be and more than any other tonic is. It combines the most precious of health-building substances. Glycer Phosphates are the actual element of the human body in most assimilative form. You know the value of Cod Liver Oil and the invigorating effects of tonic wine. In Zetco these are combined into an exceedingly pleasant tonic which in two weeks will work quiet wonders in your health. If at the end of two weeks' honest trial you cannot report real progress toward health we will refund the purchase price. Don't miss this chance you that you should start trying it to-day? Sold by T. McMurdo & Co. Sole Distributing Agents for Newfoundland. (11)

THE PENSION QUESTION.

It is natural that the conduct of the affairs of the Newfoundland Regiment in all its branches should have been from the first a subject of comment and discussion, whether in the form of criticism or of appreciation. There has always been something to be said on both sides when any question has been raised, and we think we are safe in saying that the dominant note has been one of appreciation—the work on the whole has been well done, and in many directions excellently well done. But upon the subject which has been discussed by our contemporaries of the provision of pensions, or the absence of it, for our returned and discharged soldiers there can be no two opinions. It represents, at the very least, a serious oversight and an inexplicable one; it is an omission which the feeling of the whole country will demand to see immediately repaired.

The Daily News deals with the question in a very practical manner. The need is obvious and admitted by all—what is to be done about it? It says, "We contend that no wounded or invalided soldier should be discharged unless adequate provision for his maintenance has been made." We contend the same. It is hard to see why the necessity of making such a provision was not foreseen from the beginning, and it should not have been a difficult matter. But wanting it, these men, who have been discharged as equal, he has clearly earned the preference, and we have heard of many cases in which he would seem not to have obtained it. We merely point this out as a possible consideration for the authorities here to entertain—there may be several such positions that these deserving men could all capably and with popular approval.

This, however, is only a side suggestion. The question of pensions is far more important; it is urgent and should, for the honor of the country and in justice to those whom it wishes to honour, be immediately attended to. We trust, and believe, that it will be.

THURSDAY, Sept. 21, '16.
Charcoal is certainly one of the best absorbents in cases of fermentative dyspepsia and flatulence, and perhaps the most convenient way of taking Charcoal is by means of Wyeth's Lozenges, containing pure Willow Charcoal in a pleasant and elegant form. These Lozenges are handy, and contain an appreciable amount of Charcoal. Two or three Lozenges will usually relieve even a severe case of flatulence or heart-burn. Sold in boxes, price 25c.

Norwegian Steamer Towed to Port.

With Tail Shaft Broken and Propeller Gone.

After drifting about helplessly in the vicinity of Cape Spear for over four hours, the Norwegian steaming steamer and coal carrier Njord, was towed into this port at 2 o'clock this morning by the tug D. P. Ingraham. The Njord left here at seven o'clock last night in ballast bound to North Sydney for a load of coal. The ship was just clear of the Narrows, but still in sight about three miles off when the tail shaft, which was cracked some time ago, gave way; the propeller also loosened and came off. The ship then continued to drift here at a disconcerting unmanageable began to drift. Flare-ups were sent from the ship for assistance. The attention of the light-keeper at Cape Spear was attracted and he telephoned for a tug. The Ingraham at once was got under way and headed to the disabled Norwegian. She was towed and brought her safely to port. We understand it will not be necessary to dry dock the ship to make repairs. She is now anchored in the stream and will be tipped to permit of repairs being made.

Sore, blistering feet from corn-pinned toes can be cured by Putnam's "Putnam" in 54 hours. "Putnam" soothes away that drawing pain, eases instantly, makes the feet feel cool at once. Get a 25c. bottle of "Putnam" to-day.

Well Known Resident Passes Away.

There passed peacefully away on Wednesday morning at his home, Muny's Pond Road, an old and respected fisherman-farmer in the person of Mr. Patrick Dunn, after a very short illness. In the early days Mr. Dunn prosecuted the cod and seal fishery, but of late years was engaged in tilling the soil, a business in which he was very successful. The deceased was a grand-parent of the late Private Joachim Murphy, who was one of the first of "Ours" to make the supreme sacrifice for King and Country at Gallipoli. Left to mourn are a widow, two sons, five daughters, two sisters and a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren. To the bereaved family the Telegram offers sympathy.

Shackleton's Crowd.

Sir Ernest Shackleton, who is nearly as well known as a lecturer as an explorer, has, in his former capacity, had many amusing experiences. He was once giving a lecture at a town in Scotland, and his expenses in connection with hiring of the hall were fairly heavy. He drove in a cab to the lecture place and told the cabman to wait for him. In the hall he found an audience of five people, two of whom were children. Wishing to add to the number of his listeners, Sir Ernest went outside and asked the cabby to come and hear the lecture. "Oh, no thanks, sir, I'm all right here," was the man's reply; so Sir Ernest went inside again and manfully gave his lecture from beginning to end. At the close the audience had increased to twenty-five people. Next day Sir Ernest was sorrowfully recounting his experience to his wife. "Twenty-five people at a shilling a head," he said, "makes £1 5s." "Oh!" exclaimed his wife, "you must deduct two shillings from that, dear. I sent the cook and one of the maids!"

From Cape Race.

STEWART'S Cak.

Some housewives demand Lightness in cakes.
Some demand Fine Flavor or Appearance.
Users of Stewart's Cake demand more—and they get it consistently, because its wholesome quality seldom varies.

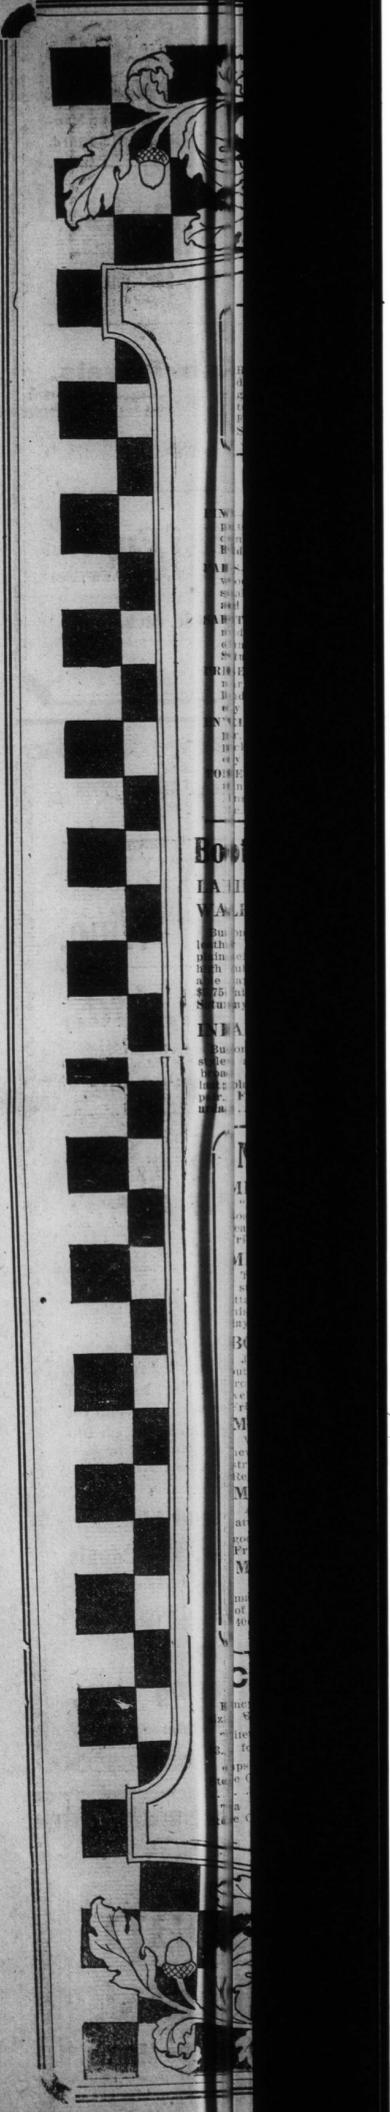

Long after ordinary cake is dry and tasteless you can readily identify Stewart's Cake by its rare freshness of flavor and a texture still soft and moist.

Here again is the economy of Stewart's Cake. It prevents waste by keeping fresh.

Buy your next cake at Stewart's and let your folks decide without prejudice.

The bright porous texture will win them—the well aerated crumb, the thin under crust.

Its amazing lightness brings no regrets.

Politics and Social Betterment.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON.

I have a friend who is much disturbed because her husband takes an interest in politics and has been giving considerable time and money to the effort to elect decent, honest men to municipal office.

She regards every evening thus spent as time stolen from her. She is jealous of every cent contributed to the cause.

Now if she were a selfish, self-centered woman, that would be comprehensible, but she is not. She is a kind-hearted woman who gives generously of both time and money to charity and Church work. It grieves her much because she cannot interest her husband in these directions.

She Doesn't Realize They Are Both Working For The Same Ends. She does not realize that they are both working for the same ends, each in his or her own way, and that in fighting against his devotion to politics she is indirectly fighting against social betterment.

"Politics is a dirty game," she says. "What good can a few honest men do? Her attitude is the attitude of many good women. It is the pass-by-on-the-other-side attitude. So long as the majority of honest men and women hold it, politics will remain dirty. Unfortunately, politics is not merely an interesting though crooked game. We Have To Share In Results. Politics, according to the dictionary, is the management of political parties, and as political parties govern the country, and as we have to live under that government we have to have a share in results whether we refuse to have a share in causes or not.

Much of our indifference comes from the fact that we do not realize how acutely bad government affects our every-day life. The man who does not own property thinks he can laugh at government graft because he does not have any tax bill.

He does not realize that he is helping to fill the pockets of the political thieves in many indirect ways.

"They Don't Pay Any Taxes." An old neighbour of ours who had a large property and no children used to rave when the town voted money for school buildings. "Half those people who vote for spending money so freely don't own their homes and don't pay a cent but their poll tax," he would say.

As if in paying their rent they didn't pay the taxes of the homes they lived in just as surely as he paid his. That's about as deeply as the average person thinks about government and politics.

St. Joseph's, Levis, July 14, 1903. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen,—I was badly kicked by my horse last May, and after using several preparations on my leg nothing would do. My leg was black as jet. I was laid up in bed for a fortnight and could not walk. After using three bottles of your MINARD'S LINIMENT I was perfectly cured, so that I could start on the road.

Gloomy Von Gwinner.

War To "The Last Penny."

The Berlin Lokalanzeiger reproduces from the Feldzeitung of the Third German Army an interesting letter from Herr von Gwinner, the head of the Deutsche Bank, to a nephew in the field. It shows that German soldiers are seriously asking whether they ought to subscribe to the new War Loan and so to prolong the war. It also shows how very tame is the best reply that one of the most prominent German financiers can now make to such an inquiry.

Addressing his "dear Karl," Herr von Gwinner says:—

As you write that the question has arisen among your comrades, and that it has been answered in a remarkable variety of ways, I will explain my view to you and shed some more light on the question. You write "Will the conclusion of peace be delayed by subscriptions to the War Loans?" If a Portuguese asked such a question—thinking of course of Portuguese War Loans—one might reply "Yes. For the Portuguese had no need, and have no need, to interfere in the world war, and if the whole people refused the Portuguese Government the means to carry on the war, the war would be at an end for Portugal. If even the Russians were to ask the same question, one might perhaps give an affirmative answer, for Russia could doubtless have peace, although she certainly has not desired it. The Russians could have peace, and if the Russian people to the last man refused means for carrying on the war, it would be difficult or impossible for the Russian Government to prolong the war, and as Russia's enemies are ready for peace, peace would be there. For the French and for the English it would, indeed, be much more difficult to give way, because of the consequences. Nevertheless, they could make peace if they desired.

But we, my dear nephew, cannot have peace, although we want it. Imagine to yourself our being compelled to stop the war because the German people was tired of it and the War Loans could no longer be placed. That would not bring this criminal war to an end. I do not know whether you have an occasional opportunity to hear something of the foreign newspapers. In them you could read every day what the intentions of our enemies are. . . . In English, Russian, and French newspapers, as well as in the letters that are captured, the soil of Germany is divided up—East Prussia to Russia, the left bank of the Rhine to France, and Schleswig-Holstein to Denmark. A London financial paper wrote recently that Germany must pay a war indemnity of £15,000,000,000. That would be the whole wealth of the nation.

So you see, dear Karl, what our prospect would be if we were not able to continue the war to a victorious end. It would mean complete ruin for poor and rich, destruction of German trade and German industry, the smashing up of the Empire, the disappearance of opportunities for labour, and emigration to a foreign yoke. Now you will understand why there is only one possible answer to your question—that we must fight, suffer, and pay—to the last man and the last penny.

Brussiloff the Brusque.

General Brussiloff, the Russian leader who has played so great a part on the Eastern Front, was one of the first to appreciate the value of technique in this great conflict.

"This is an engineers' war," was a comment of his.

Like many other successful military men, he is a stern disciplinarian and rather brusque in manner. But, despite this, his men adore him because they know that no demands he makes upon them are quite so severe as those which he imposes on himself. Such a hard worker is Brussiloff that he hasn't seen one member of his family since war broke out, except his wife, and he only saw her because she obtained permission, with several other officers' wives, to visit her husband.

Brussiloff has never asked for leave, or taken a single day off, from the Army during the whole period of his command!

And yet the Austrians and their arrogant associates in Germany wonder why the Russian Bear has such sharp claws!

Your Boys and Girls.

The young girl with her mind and body stirred by the widening, deepening demands of physical and emotional life, instinctively recoils from the assumption that she is still a child, with only a child's thoughts and a child's desires. With her mind full of vague formless dreams of life and love, of romance and poetry, she is keenly sensitive to even a suggestion of ridicule. Touch her love thoughts and day dreams never so lightly, and they curl away quivering.

And they are slow to spread themselves out for the inspection of those who have even unconsciously seemed unsympathetic. Let the girl who seems still a child to her mother, because of unsuspected reticences and reserves, which conceal the fact of her budding maidenhood from the eyes of the one who should be most discerning, will often reveal these undiscovered aspects of her nature, fully and freely to a comparative stranger.

Prisoner Was a Waiter

London Daily News.—Two Middlesex men dropped into a dug-out full with a few bombs in a late advance, but found all the occupants gone except one, a peaceful soul, who said, "How do you do? They blinked at him in the darkness, saw he had no arms, and then looked round. There were the remains of a meal on the table and an unopened bottle of wine. The temptation was too great—food first and then a drink. "Better break its bloomin' neck," said one, looking longingly at the bottle. But then the prisoner stopped forward. "No str, no; don't do that," he said, and produced a corkscrew. "You're a whole bloomin' equipment, you are," said the first Middlesex. "No, str, no," was the answer; "but I was a waiter in London before I became a soldier." He stopped and blinked in his turn. "As your Alfred Lester says," he added "once a waiter, always a waiter."

Britain's New Arm a Terrible Weapon

Mighty Argument For Termination of The War, Says Hall Caine—A Giant Juggermatt Results From New Armoured Car Expected to be Tremendous.

London, Sept. 18.—By Hall Caine—Will war itself, which hitherto has resisted the effort of twenty millions of men on all fronts to bring it to an end, which has withstood all the physical forces of incalculable quantities of munitions as well as the economic strain of unparalleled national debts and the mighty pressure of the normal sense of the world be terminated at last by its own terrors?

For weeks past I have been hearing whispers of a new arm which would shortly be launched on the battlefields which would drive everything before it. News of it was a secret not to be revealed until the day it came into action. Nobody was to know where or how it was made or yet what it was. The men who manufactured it were bound by oath not to say anything about it. To make assurance doubly sure they were interned within a vast area whose boundaries were guarded by armed men every hundred yards. Once within they were never allowed out. Notices posted at the entrances warned intending intruders they would be shot on sight. Then I heard that the new weapon had already reached the scene of operations in large numbers and great numbers were to follow. If the enemy was to hear anything about it at all they hear now, in a few days more it would be in action. The results might be expected would be stupendous. It was impossible not to be stirred by the news. I surrounded the new-arm and by the confident faith of those who know of its irresistible power. It was a gigantic car with a colossal juggermatt, a moving arsenal of unimaginable driving force. Nothing could stand before it. It would pass over trenches like flat ground, climb out of the bed of a river and walk over houses as over ant-hills. In the inferno of its interior the men who worked it, nearly nude, would be safe from almost any force known to military science, except that of the unconquerable monitor they controlled.

Such was the story whispered during the past weeks to those who could be trusted to keep the secret until the day came to reveal it. The secret has now been revealed and we perhaps look for still greater results. If what is said of the new armored car is true it may prove to be the mightiest argument for a speedy termination of war that has yet been heard. I am told the power of this new arm is such that if it rolled up Broadway and was directed at the Flatiron building it would bring it down and roll out at the other side almost as rapidly as I tell the tale. I am also told that if we had three thousand new juggermatts they would end the war in a month. It sounds like a dream. Some will surely say it sounds like madness, but few or none can be so sceptical of this tremendous story as not at least to hope for the sake of humanity and future world peace that please God it may be true.

Strategy of a Scot.

Ruse by Which the Laird o' Cockpen Came Into His Own.

"Brose and Butter"—that is, porridge and butter—is an old Scotch tune of which Prince Charles, afterwards Charles II., was very fond. The laird of Cockpen when Charles was at The Hague played the air for the prince the last thing at night and the first thing in the morning. On returning to Scotland after the restoration the laird found his estate had been forfeited for his attachment to the royal cause, and so to relate, Charles, forgetful of Cockpen's services, refused to interest himself in his faithful follower's petition to have it returned to him and even refused him an audience.

The laird, with the pertinacity of his race, resolved to achieve by stratagem what he could not by direct appeal. While in London Cockpen formed an intimate acquaintanceship with the organist of the Chapel Royal and prevailed on him to allow him to act as his substitute at a service at which the king was to be present. Obtaining his consent, he played the regular tunes for the service. When dismissal time came he played the king's old favorite melody, "Brose and Butter."

On hearing it Charles wended his way to the organ gallery, where he found his quondam courtier, whom he greeted with a touch of the old familiarity, remarking, "You almost made me dance." Quick to seize the opportunity, the laird responded, "I could dance, too, if I had my lands back again." Charles' better nature awoke under the power of the music and the old memories it recalled, with the result that the laird received his own again.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

A Royal Criminal.

Opinion is fast developing in the direction of proclaiming the Kaiser the Royal criminal, with whom the Allies will refuse to negotiate terms of peace, whose head they will demand as the primary condition of any settlement of the war. The analogy of the attitude of the Allies in March, 1815, towards Napoleon thus emerges as of more than historical interest. A declaration was then made that Napoleon had "deprived himself of the protection of the laws, and made it evident in the face of the universe that there can no longer be either peace or truce with him." And this sentence was added in that stern declaration: "The powers, therefore, declare that Bonaparte has placed himself out of the pale of civil and social relations, and that as the general enemy and disturber of the world he is abandoned to public justice."—London Chronicle.

CAPT. BURGESS REPORTS.—The Reid Newfoundland Co. received a message from Capt. Burgess of the S. S. Neptune which left this port for the Labrador, at 5 p.m. last Thursday, stating that the Neptune reached Battle Harbor yesterday, and for the previous three days experienced S. W. winds and dense fog.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.—Don't delay in ordering your new suit as the price of goods is continually on the jump in the home markets, and the longer you'll wait the more you'll pay. If you want a suit, GET IT NOW and get it at SPURRELL'S, where good goods, low prices combined with style and fit predominate. SPURRELL BROS., 365 Water St.—may 4, tu, th, s, tf

DEPRIVED OF COMFORTS.—Work is progressing favourably in laying the new water main to Windsor Lake and several thousand feet have been completed. We understand several of the men that struck for rubber wear while working to their knees in water are still denied the use of these comforts. Will the Council kindly explain the reason why?

We Get The Trade Because We Saw The Demand Coming

SPORTSMEN are critical buyers. When they go into a store for a Rifle or Shotgun, or for ammunition, they want to be sure of finding assortments responsive to their demands.

Right there you have the reason why more sportsmen every year are coming to us for their Rifles, Shotguns and Ammunition.

Ever since we began in business we have been selling Remington-UMC—

Making our display of Remington-UMC Rifles and Shotguns, our assortments of Remington-UMC Shot Shells and Metallics our bid for the trade of Sportsmen in this community.

We are glad to say that we are getting that steady trade of more sportsmen every year.

Come, see for yourself how well we are prepared to serve you.

THE GREEK MUDDLE.

ATHENS, To-day.
The diplomatic representatives of the Entente continue their policy of not recognizing the existence of the new Cabinet of Premier Kalloropoulos by abstaining from paying a formal visit to the new ministers. King Constantine this morning discussed the question of furthering declarations of the new Cabinet in the hope of breaking the glacial silence of the Entente and resuming negotiations for the entrance of Greece into the war.

SON OF LABOR LEADER KILLED.
LONDON, To-day.
Capt. David Henderson, son of the Right Hon. Arthur Henderson, late President of the Board of Education and Labor leader, has been killed in action.

SEELYE RETURNED.
LONDON, To-day.
Erigalier General Seelye, Coalition candidate, was elected to the Commons for the Mansfield division of Nottinghamshire, over Lieut. Turnbull with an independent vote; Seelye 7,597, Turnbull 4,568.

GREECE FIRM WITH GERMANY.
LONDON, To-day.
The Reuter's Telegram Co. says it learns that the Greek note to Germany is a very firm demand that the Greek troops be brought to the Swiss frontier in order that they may be conducted to a Mediterranean port, from which they will be taken to Greece. The Greek Government guarantees that they will not be forced to serve against any army of Germany (?) and at the same time disavows entirely the action of General Hadjajanos, who it is claimed disregarded orders to transport the troops to another Greek port.

LONDON REVIEW.
LONDON, To-day.
In another effort to retrieve part of their lost territory the Germans on Wednesday, despite bad weather, made violent counter attacks against the French over a three mile front in the region of Priez farm and Bouchavesnes north of the Somme in mass formation. The Teutons threw attack after attack along the line from 9 o'clock in the morning until dark at the end of the day, the French everywhere holding their positions, according to Paris. The battlefields at points is covered with German dead. During the fighting the Germans penetrated the northeastern part of the village of Bouchavesnes, but here the French met them with the bayonet and dislodged them. Four assaults at Priez Farm in which the Germans came on in waves, were repulsed by the French, whose observers assert that the Germans at last withdrew in disorder, leaving many dead behind them. On the British front inclement weather still holds the opposing sides to artillery duels. In the eastern theatre in Russia and Galicia, Berlin and Vienna report the repulse of heavy Russian attacks in the Lutsk sector of Volynia, southeast of Lemberg in Galicia. Local successes for the Russians in the Carpathians are conceded by the Teutonic Allies, who say that on the whole Russian attacks in this region were repulsed. In Transylvania, where the Roumanians are fighting against the Austro-Hungarians, the invaders have met with a serious reverse in the region of Hatzog, where they have been driven back by the Teutonic Allies over the Transylvania Alps, and the town of Petroseny and the repulse of the Roumanians, through which they entered Transylvania in this region was re-captured from them. In Dobruja, where the Russians and Roumanians have been heavily reinforced along the line south of the Constanta railway from the Black Sea to the Danube, the tide of battle is fluctuating. Sofia reports successes for the Bulgarians at certain points, while Bucharest claims a victory for the Roumanians near Eniga. The west end of Macedonia is still the scene of violent combats. The Bulgarians, according to Athens, have hastily evacuated Vlgista, at the extreme end of the line and fallen back upon Seviza for a stand in previously prepared entrenchments, which if captured will necessitate the evacuation of Mostair in Albania. Berlin reports that the Germans, who are co-operating with the Bulgarians, have repulsed Entente thrusts near Florina in Greece. Rome admits that the Italians on the southern slopes of Monto Beles have been driven back by the Bulgarians.

STRIKE SITUATION SERIOUS IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, To-day.
Rioting was renewed last night in connection with the car strike after the efforts of Mayor Mitchell and others had failed during the day to effect a settlement of the differences. Several hundred strikers and sympathizers who attacked four surface cars were engaged with police reserves in a running fight, during which several persons, including women, were hurt. Many arrests were made. Hope of avoiding the threatened strike of 700,000 union workers sympathetic with the carmen has diminished.

REFERENDUM ON CONSCRIPTION.

MELBOURNE, To-day.
A bill providing for a referendum on the question of conscription passed the House of Representatives on its third reading. The vote was 47 to 11.

CHIEF OF HEADQUARTERS STAFF.

PARIS, To-day.
Daport has been appointed Chief of Headquarters Staff of the army at the Ministry of War in place of General

Graziani, who has retired on account of ill health.

SPANISH SHIPOWNERS PROTEST.

MADRID, To-day.
A strong protest against the destruction of Spanish ships by submarines has been made to the Government by the Spanish Ship Owners Association. It declares that the torpedoing of these ships is contrary to all principles of International Law and the elementary rules of humanity.

FRENCH GAINS AT VERDUN.

PARIS, To-day.
The French have made a further gain in the Verdun sector where they have captured two trenches and one hundred prisoners south of Thiaumont Wood, according to an official statement issued by the War Office. They also gained 100 yards east of Fort Vaux and in the Chapire Wood. Bad weather still hails the operations on the Somme and the Germans attacks have not been renewed.

SUCCESSFUL SERBIANS.

PARIS, To-day.
The repulse of violent Bulgarian attacks on the Sack Kalmakdalen with heavy losses to the attackers is reported in an official statement. In the region of the Brod River the Bulgarians forced their way into the village of Boronica; after two attacks that failed they were driven out by the Serbians in bayonet fighting. Further progress for the Allies is reported on the left wing, where they have reached Hill 1550 three miles northwest of Plisodet.

GERMAN ASSAULTS FUTILE.

NEW YORK, To-day.
The London correspondent to the Tribune, cabling last night, says: As if to disapprove the statement that their counter assaults had lost their elan, the Germans made desperate efforts to-day to regain their hold on the Peronne-Bapaume Road. A series of terrific rushes were hurled against the French and British lines but they made no headway. The blows began last night on both sides of the River but they met with no success. Wave after wave broke under the intense fire of the French artillery. As each crest receded it left behind its wreckage of dead and wounded. The ground before the French trenches was covered with corpses. Reports from the front indicate that the destruction of the Kaiser's troops has been seldom equalled. The ability of the Allies to hold their end is extremely encouraging.

THEIR EXCELLENCIES RETURN.

—His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Lady Davidson and Misses Davidson, reached the city at 9 a.m. to-day by special train. His Excellency has been absent from the city for about one month, during which time he has visited Grand Falls, Curling, points in the Straits of Belle Isle, and along the Labrador Coast, St. Anthony, Botwood, Bishop's Falls and back to Grand Falls, whence he returned to the city.

St. Lawrence Bridge Company.

The stupendous undertaking of the St. Lawrence Bridge Company is the completion of the Quebec Bridge, which was to have taken place yesterday, resulted in disaster, the proportion of which is yet unknown. All details had been completed for the floating in of the central span of the bridge, and the undertaking had been completed to the point where the span had been placed successfully and the scows on which it had been floated had met with much success. It is understood that the span, which is 640 feet long and weighs 5,200 tons, was valued at $1,000,000 and was partly insured. The total length of the bridge is 3,233 feet, and the cost when completed was estimated at about $14,000,000.—Journal of Commerce.

ing. It must be remembered that the positions won by the Allies have been almost completely destroyed by gun fire which always precedes the attacks. The Allied troops are confronted with the task of defending positions almost unprotected by trench lines, and that task was accomplished to-day.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS ARRESTED.

LONDON, To-day.
The Wireless Press gave out to-day a despatch from Zurich to the effect that 160 Socialists were arrested in Berlin on the ground that they were concerned in an agitation against the Reichstag.

FEATS BY THE "LANDSHIPS."

LONDON, To-day.
Of the Landships, or tanks, one continues to hear amazing stories, says a Daily News despatch from the Somme front. One whose steering gear got out of order could not turn to the right or left, so it trundled straight ahead until quite out of touch with the infantry, then sat down on a German trench and for five hours withstood bomb attacks.

In another case a Landship found the infantry was not coming on behind, so it went back to find out what was the matter. They were held up by a trench they had overlooked where a strong bomb party of Germans were situated. The machine walked over to the trench, deposited itself on top of it and wiped the bomb party out.

Judging from present indications there is very little likelihood of the local market being flooded with rabbits for sale this autumn, as the one which captured the rabbits disposed of their stocks readily and at remunerative figures to people while en route to town.

AND ITS COMPETITORS.

WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE started in life in the year 1848 as an unfermented Sacramental Wine. In the year 1875 Dr. C. E. Welch, the son of the original manufacturer, commenced bottling WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE as a "nutritious, health giving and pleasant beverage." Hence all subsequent brands of Grape Juice are imitations of WELCH'S. The same Dr. Welch is to-day at the head of The Welch Grape Juice Company and while, in the ensuing years, new and up to date methods of pressing and bottling have been introduced, the same standard of purity has always been maintained and WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE has always been the highest grade of Grape Juice. It is possible to buy "The Welch Grape Juice Company" pay more for their Grapes, to be sure of getting the best, than any other Grape Juice manufacturing concern in the United States or Canada. WELCH'S is pure Grape Juice. There is no water, sugar or coloring matter added.

Now listen to the written opinion of a first class New York analyst on the quality of three rival brands of Grape Juice which have lately appeared on the Newfoundland market: "It is a private or 'house' brand put up by 'Grocery Jobbers of New York City. Just who is packing the goods for them we are unable to say.' The usual method followed by these jobbers who have a brand of their own is to ask for prices from the small grape juice manufacturers that specialize in private brands and have practically no business in their own brand."

We consider as one of the poorest brands on the market. Our laboratory tests would indicate that it is heavily watered and it is a matter of astonishment to us that they can find any sale for it at all. It is barely heard of except in and around New York. According to our tests, all of the foregoing brands are sugar-ed, that is, Granulated sugar has been added. While we do not say that this is always done to hide the use of inferior grapes, it is a practice that has been used to accomplish that purpose."

Right here, in our own home town, one of our best known and most popular doctors says: "I recommend WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE because I know it to be nothing but the pure juice of the finest Concord Grapes. I do not recommend other brands because I know nothing of them. WELCH'S contains all the sustaining qualities of good port wine without any of the alcoholic disadvantages. I drink it and my household drinks it." Can you need any better testimony than the above when you should stipulate WELCH'S when you order Grape Juice. sept14,16,21

THE BOAT CAME OFF.—A challenge in the mainly pending for some considerable time between two young firemen, who were chums, materialized last evening. A lively set-to ensued, which lasted about five minutes, as one fireman outclassed his opponent at every stage of the bout. The loser was minus his false teeth at the finish and to-day sought redress at the Court for them.

"Where's Mother?"

Bursting in from school or play. This is what the children say: Trooping, crowding, big or small. On the threshold, in the hall—Joining in the constant cry, Ever as the days go by, "Where's mother?"

From the weary bed of pain The same question comes again: From the boy with sparkling eyes, Bearing home his earliest prize; From the bronzed and bearded son, Perils past and honors won: "Where's mother?" Burdened with a lonely task, One day we may be asked to ask: For the comfort of her face, For the rest of her embrace; Let us love her while we may, Well for us that we can say, "Where's mother?"

Battleship Schools.

It is a striking testimony to the efficiency of the British Navy that school-work for the boys aboard has been carried on far more assiduously since he start of the war than ever it was before. It would be excusable, even natural, to jump at the conclusion that all such studies would be dropped in these strenuous days, that every minute would be devoted to the immediate purpose of preparing for the ever-present chance of battle. The opposite of this is the case; and the reason is, partly, that the navy is kept always in such a state of readiness and efficiency that it would not dream of allowing a thing like a war to disturb it from its aim routine; and partly that a wise forethought shows how necessary it is to prepare now the men and the officers for the navy that shall be in being when the present magnificent fleet shall be relegated to the scrap-heap.

Slander Case Dismissed

Few persons realize the risk which they may run when turning electric light switches in a bathroom. Several lives are lost annually by accidental electrocutions which take place in bath tubs. In some instances these deaths have been popularly attributed to faulty insulation. But it has been shown that a bath standing in a tub of water, by turning a switch with his wet hand may cause enough moisture to penetrate the electric socket and establish a circuit, thereby permitting the current to pass from the wires, through his body into the water and thence to the ground. Thus the body acts very much as a lightning rod. Electrocuting may occur if one hand is in a washbowl of water and the other being wet, is used to turn a switch. If only the key is touched and no moisture penetrates, of course no ill effects will follow. Fatalities are believed to have resulted also when a bather in a tub has accidentally struck his head against a projecting light socket.

The Battle of the Marne.

(St. John Telegraph.)

Mr. Frank H. Simonds, war editor of the New York Tribune, who was in France of late, says that many French military writers, intelling of the first military writers, in telling of the first credit for winning the Battle of the Marne without British help. In spite of exclamation by the censor, says Mr. Simonds, the works of these writers make it clear that they think the British were so deceived by Von Kluck before Paris that they lost an opportunity to make the victory more decisive than it was. This is an issue that may well await final victory. We do not know—we never shall know—what might have happened before the Marne or at the Marne, had not Britain sacrificed the flower of its army in holding back the German rush after Mons; or what might have happened in the first three months of the war but for British sea control. It is not necessary now to speak of the British stand that stopped the German 'sweep toward the French Channel ports. At the Marne, as was said of another famous battle, "there was glory enough for all." Sober French thought will do full justice to the British share in the war, to what the British did by land and by sea, to the influence of Britain's "silver bullets," and of Britain's workshops, to the meaning of Britain's action in contributing four or five millions of men to the Allied battle lines, though the expectation early in the war was that the British Empire's share in the land fighting would not exceed 250,000 infantry and their complement of cavalry and guns.

As to the Marne and the question of distributing credit among the generals with justice, none of the too hurried judgments is at all sure to stand the test of age or of complete information coldly examined. Prejudice is difficult to banish. The Germans, for example, are taught that Blucher won the battle of Waterloo!

The Marne, after two years, looks bigger than ever. That it lost the war for Germany is now the view of most military writers. That is, French leadership in that first stage of the war which closed with the Marne and the beginning of trench warfare at the Aisne, dislocated the whole German plan, which was, briefly, to crush France, turn upon Russia and deal her a staggering blow before she was effectively mobilized and munitioned, and then strike at the British. Success in the first part of the program might have kept Italy out of the war and stamped Greece and Roumania. But France dissipated the whole scheme at the Marne in a battle which students of the military art will analyze for generations to come. If, as seems the case, Joffre planned to turn upon the advancing enemy at that river and hold them at grips until a reserve army from Paris fell upon their right flank, it was Foch, as many military publicists now tell us, who really turned the tide of battle. The opposing lines extended from Verdun to Paris. Foch commanded the French centre. With his own left wing practically beaten and his right severely mauled, he contrived to borrow from the general on his left a fresh division of infantry. Instead of using this to stiffen his hard-pressed wings he employed it to lend weight to his centre and threw that straight at the enemy. He had guessed, or he learned, that the German lines in his front had been thinned to reinforce Von Kluck against the flanking thrust from Paris. Foch's blow hit the weak spot, and though the Prussian Guard was there, the French went through. Fearing the breaking of their whole line and the rolling up of the ends, the Germans began a general retirement. That is the story they are telling of Foch, and it is good enough to be true. The Napoleonic touch is there.

It may be hoped that British reviewers will not now be so eager or so passionate in replying to French criticism of Britain's share in the Marne battle as to forget for an instant the full measure and meaning of France's fighting contribution to the cause of the Allies. Controversy over the Marne is not useful now; but justice and honor alike demand that leading men throughout the Empire shall follow the example of some Englishmen in dwelling long and often upon the heroic and decisive quality of French leadership and French valor at the Marne, at Verdun, and on many another field whose name our children's children will hold in honor.

Everyday Etiquette.

"When a girl turns a man down upon his asking her to dance, is he at liberty to dance that number with another girl, or must he sit out with the first girl asked?" inquired George. "He is at liberty to look for another partner and is not obliged to sit with her through the dance," was the elder brother's reply.
