The Mystery of Rutledge Hall

OR
"The Cloud With a Silver Lining"

CHAPTER XXXVII

It had needed very few minutes to convince Sidney of the falsehood of such an assertion, the fallacy of such a belief. The look on her husband's face as he realized her meaning had been sufficient to show her how mad she had been to credit the statement for a moment. How had she done so—she, his wife, who knew how noble and good he was, how incapable of baseness? Ah, how mad she had been, culpably mad and foolish!

No words of his had been needed; he had not attempted to deny the accusation, he made no assertion of innocence, he had uttered no reproach; but Sydney knew that he was as innocent as herself; the incredulous horror on his face, the exclamation which had broken from his lips as he saw what she meant, had been more than sufficient to clear him in her eyes.

Would he ever forgive her? Could an innocent man ever forgive such cruel, unfounded suspicions, such doubt of his honor and good faith? As Sydney crouched there, all the horror of it was before her; all the baseness of the crimes, she had attributed to her husband was before her eyes in blackest colors. She had believed that, guilty of murder, he had let another man suffer, that he had married her knowing himself to be a murderer, that he had deceived all those around him—she had thought this of her husband.

The fire danced up cheerily, the wind whistled round the house; but not a breath of its keen blast entered the carefully screened room where they sat silent and motionless, this husband and wife between whom such an iron wall had arisen, erecting a barrier which could never, Sidney thought in her agony, be overthrown.

She was cold and ill and faint from the long day's journey, undertaken when her health was so unequal to it; she had tasted no food all day, and her limbs were strengthless and numb. Was she dying? she wondered vaguely, feeling the lassitude of extreme debility creeping over her. Was she dying? Would Stephen forgive her before she died?

He did not look at her, and her dim eyes, before whose vision the bright fire was a dull, red, blurred mass, dared not glance at him, even if their falling sight could have distinguished clearly the grave, noble face, with its look of bitter pain. It seemed to her that she was drifting away somewhere into some strange, unknown world, whence she was recalled by her husband's voice speaking gravely, but so sadly, that she shivered as its tones fell upon her ear.

"Can you listen to me, Sidney?" he asked.
"Yes," she answered, faintly.
"You seem very ill. Is there anything that can be done for you?" he went on, in the same cold, grave tone. "I suppose the best thing would be to send you to bed; but I think we shall neither of us rest until we have had an explanation. Will you have some wine?"

"No—oh, no! I will drink this," she replied, raising herself by a strong effort, and raising the cup of tea to her lips with hands which were so unsteady and helpless that she spilled part of the contents.

Stephen glanced at her compassionately as she replaced the cup. Outraged as he was by her cruel suspicion, he could not but pity her—she looked so frail and frightened and helpless; her hair, imperfectly combed by her hands in the morning, had become loose, and was tumbling over her sea-ink coat in heavy disordered masses, which caught a gleam of gold from the dancing firelight as it played over them. Stephen's lip quivered under his heavy mustache as he saw the pitiful little attempt at calmness and self-possession that she made, but which was so utterly a failure.

"You are able to talk to me, Sidney?"

"Oh, yes!" she answered, hastily.
"Since when has this most horrible and unnatural suspicion existed in your mind?" he asked, abruptly.

"Since—the night of the ball at Lambwood," she replied, fearing to distress him yet more by her emotion, and struggling desperately for calmness.

He started a little, and glanced at her.

"Was it already in your mind when you came to me to excuse your attendance at the ball?"

"No—oh, no!"

"Later on then?" he said musingly.
"What aroused it, Sidney?"

She did not answer.

"I think, if I remember rightly, your reason for refusing to go to Lambwood was Miss Greville's illness," he continued, in the same musing way, as if he were trying to recall the events of that evening. "Was that your true reason?"

"No."

"I thought not. What was it then?"

She raised her dim eyes appealingly to his face, but there was no yielding in its sternness.

"What was it then?" he repeated.

"I wanted to stay," she faltered, "because—because—"

"Because what?" he asked sharply.

"There has been enough faltering with the truth, Heaven knows! Let there be frankness between us now."

"Because Frank Greville was coming here that night to see his sister."

"Frank Greville coming here—to my house!" Stephen exclaimed haughtily.

"Yes."

"It was his first visit, I presume?"

"No."

"He had been here before! When? For the love of Heaven, Sidney, tell me the truth now!"

"He came one night. You remember Lloyd said that—"

Stephen looked at her keenly.

"The man and woman whose meeting he saw in my grounds were you and Greville?" he said slowly.

"Yes."

"You met by appointment?"

"Yes. He came disguised. I saw him for a minute earlier in the day, and said I would meet him there."

"Well?" her husband said, as she paused.

"Stephen, he—he was starving!"

A hoarse exclamation broke from Stephen's mouth—an exclamation of pain and distress.

"You helped him?"

"Yes. Not that night—the next day—the day you were hurt. I drove to Lymouth to meet him."

"And did he tell you that he was innocent and—I am guilty?"

"No—oh, no! It was afterward."

"Afterward?"

"Yes—the night he came to see Christie?"

"He told you, then?"

"He did not tell me; I overheard it."

"And did he urge you to have an inquiry made into—"

"No, no," she cried eagerly; "he wished me not—he begged me not to do so; but it was too late."

"Too late?"

"Yes," she answered faintly.

"Against my wishes?"

"There was a woman's silence; then she said pitiously—"

"Stephen, I could not help it. He knew nothing of it—he would go away—he said—go abroad; but he was so wretched, and Christie was dying, and—ah, I thought my heart would break with misery!"

"Go on," he said hoarsely, turning his face from her.

"When he left me that night—the first night—I determined to try to prove his innocence. Ah, do not smile like that—he is innocent."

"Yes—since I am guilty," he said bitterly.

"No, no, no!" she cried out, wildly.

"Oh, Stephen, forgive me!"

"Tell me first what I have to forgive," he replied, coldly. "You determined to prove his innocence?"

"Yes; I wrote to Scotland Yard," she went on, struggling with the fast-moving tears, fearing they would only increase his displeasure.

"To Scotland Yard! Well?"

"A detective came here," she faltered.

"He had to be kept here," she asked, turning to her in surprise.

"Yes."

"When was that? How is it that I heard nothing of it?"

"You were ill," she said, feebly.

"I understand. My wife took advantage of my illness to continue her deception."

The pale face-sunk until it almost rested upon her knees; the sobs were coming quickly now, in spite of all her efforts; but there was no compassion in Stephen's voice when he next addressed her.

NERVES AND FAINTING SPELLS

Sent Woman to Bed. Great Change After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sarnia, Ontario.—"After my grille was born I was a wreck. My nerves were too terrible for words and I simply could not stand or walk without pain. I suffered with fainting spells until I was no longer any good for my household duties and had to take to my bed. The doctor said I should have an operation, but I was not in a fit condition at that time. My neighbor said, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' I am sure it will do you good and will save those doctor's bills. So I was advised by my husband to try it. I told him about it. I am very thankful to say that I was soon able to take a few boarders for a while as rooms were scarce at that time. My baby is 37 months old now and I have not yet had an operation, thanks to your medicine. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to a few people. I know and have told them the good it has done me. I know I feel and look a different woman these last few months and I certainly would not be without a bottle of your medicine in the house. You can use this letter as you see fit, as I should be only too glad for those suffering as I have to know what it has done for me."

Mrs. ROBERT G. MACKINNON, R. R. No. 2, Sarnia, Ontario.

A recent canvass of women users of the Vegetable Compound report 88 out of 100 realized beneficial results.

"Will Morning Never Come?"

IF I could only sleep I believe my nerves would soon be all right, but night after night I lie awake and think about everything under the sun.

"What chance is there of getting better so long as this goes on?"

"None. Nerve force is being exhausted nearly twenty-four hours of every day, and there is no rest, and sleep in which to replenish the waste."

"One thing sure I cannot stand it much longer, for I know that every week—yes, every day—finds me more restless and nervous, and less able to stand the strain of the day's work."

"I suppose the doctor could give me something to make me sleep, but I don't want that. I am weak enough now. I want something to build up strength rather than to tear down the tissues of the body."

"I believe I will try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I have often heard of it, but never thought I would need to use it. I was always so strong and healthy."

"This nervous trouble is a peculiar ailment. No one would believe what I suffer from sleeplessness and nervousness. I do not look like an invalid, but I certainly am one."

"One thing sure I shall not spend another sleepless night before I begin using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I expect it will take a little time to get my nerves right, but I shall get half a dozen boxes and give it a try out. Something seems to tell me that I shall not be disappointed."

You are protected against imitations by the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, which are on every box of the genuine Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 60c a box, all dealers or The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Canada.

Story of Tragedy on Liner Melita

RELATED IN ENGLISH COURT-ROOM

SOUTHAMPTON, November 5.—The hearing of the charge against Thomas Towers, former first officer of the Canadian Pacific liner Melita, of murdering the Melita's commander, Captain A. H. Clews, on October 21, and the charges of attempting to murder David K. Gilmour, and John Holliday, officers of the Melita, on the same date, was resumed at Southampton to-day.

Very little public interest in the case was shown, though possibly the absence of a crowd at the police court was due to a deterring rain.

Eight magistrates were on the bench at the hearing, including one woman. The court clerk intimated that the police court proceedings in connection with the charges against Towers probably would be concluded to-morrow.

Towers, who was in neat uniform, stepped bravely to the prisoner's dock and listened to the reading of the charges against him without showing the slightest emotion. He was allowed to be seated.

Went to Opera.

The Crown Prosecutor A. J. Rogers, stated that on the night of October 20, Towers and Captain Berry, the ship's doctor, went to an opera in Antwerp. But Towers seemed uneasy and left before the performance was finished. Berry did not see Towers again until after the tragedy. Towers boarded the Melita at 1.35 in the morning, the Crown Prosecutor said, and asked the quartermaster and others on the ship whether Captain Clews was aboard or not. He instructed the third officer McLellan, to go ashore and arrange for a supply of fresh water for the ship.

The Crown Prosecutor suggested that almost immediately after McLellan had gone ashore the prisoner shot down Captain Clews. Subsequently it seemed that Towers had gone to Holliday's room on the ship. Holliday might be sufficiently recovered from his wound to give evidence to-morrow, the crown lawyer said, but it was very doubtful whether Gilmour would be called at any stage of the court proceedings.

Continuing his statement to the court the Crown prosecutor said Towers went to Holliday's room at 2.30 in the morning. He got matches there and then went to Gilmour's room, which was on the same deck. He asked Gilmour about ship listing, Gilmour replied that if Towers had been aboard the vessel, where he ought to have been, he would know all about it.

Had Feeling.

Seemingly, Rogers continued, the feeling between the two men at that time was not of the best.

Holliday, a few moments after seeing Towers, heard a shot and hearing Towers shouting "Murder," Holliday went into Gilmour's room and saw Gilmour lying on his bunk bleeding from a wound at his mouth. Holliday asked Towers what he had done.

Towers said "Stand back or you will be hit."

Holliday grabbed Towers, the Prosecution stated. Towers had a pistol in his hand and two more shots were fired. Holliday was shot in the lungs. Second Engineer Kennedy went to the rescue.

He knocked Towers down and disarmed him. Towers then was put in charge of Master at Arms Elliott, who asked Towers what was the matter. Towers replied: "I shot Gilmour."

tion proceeded, Towers turned to Holliday and asked: "How's the old—on top?"

Elliott asked Towers what he meant and the prisoner replied: "I shot the captain."

This was the first that any of the crew had heard of the shooting of Captain Clews, the prosecution said. Members of the crew thereupon went to the Captain's cabin and saw Captain Clews lying on his bunk dead.

Towers later remarked to Elliott, according to the Crown Prosecutor: "There—have been made up against me for twelve months. I intended to shoot the Captain, Gilmour, Allen, McLellan, the purser and then myself, but my revolver failed me."

Miners Tell Royal Commission OF WAGES PAID AND WORK CONDITIONS.

GREAT DIFFERENCE IN PAY RECEIVED BY DATAL AND CONTRACT MEN.

Four more witnesses, making a total of twenty four heard since the coal commission began its sittings here on Wednesday last, were heard at the courthouse this morning regarding living and working conditions in the colliery districts of the southern Cape Breton field. The men, all working miners, are drawn from practically every colliery in the area, and it is felt that with such general testimony covering every mine and mining town in the district, the commission cannot but acquire a very good knowledge of the problems affecting the average miner. It is understood that next week the U. M. W. executive will call witnesses from the collieries of the northern area. The commission still adheres to its policy prohibiting press reports of the evidence other than its official statement. The following was issued to the Post this morning: "The witnesses examined this morning up to the noon recess were Patrick Gallacher, John Gillis, Bill Read and Charles Dunham.

"Mr. Gallacher, miner, of New Waterford, and working in No. 24 colliery, testified that there was too great a difference in the wages of datal and contract men. He has worked at the face, but owing to an accident left that occupation. He rented his house from a pumpman in the employ of the company, and formerly rented a house from a man who worked in the machine shop. "John Gillis, handpick miner, in No. 2 colliery, and living at New Aberdeen, described the work of men in his occupation, and conditions under which they worked. He stated that he was able to get only three shifts last week, and that his wages would be about $17.00. He had worked thirty-two years in the mine, and states that the causes of the strife and discord were the empty envelope and nothing to eat.

Living Costs Up. "The witness testified that it was easier to live in 1908 than now, and that until 1919 things were generally peaceful in the mine. Interrogated as to whether or not the miners' representatives might be partly to blame, the witness stated, that "it takes two to make a fight."

"Bill Read, coal cutter, of New Aberdeen, stated that the miner was educated as to what he should get, and that in recent years he realized he should be paid for the work that he did. He testified that wages depended upon the amount of coal produced by the miners, and the market for the coal. The witness stated that twenty-five years ago he had a horse in the mine, but now had to push boxes. He also testified that the pits get harder to work as they become older, and it was possible for a pit to get hard to work without anyone being at fault. The discontent was caused because the men had to work too hard for an existence, due to the present high cost of living, but witness stated he would not want to go back to the conditions of twenty-five years ago.

U. M. W. Aids Men. "Charles Dunham, cutter, shooter and loader, of Sterling, working at No. 3 colliery, who was employed fifteen years, stated that the wage reduction each year was the cause of the recurring friction and strife between the miners and the company. Mr. Dunham gave figures relative to the prices of commodities and testified to the increase in the cost of living. He stated that wages were better when he came back from the war than before.

"The organization which he said was the U. M. W. had been in full swing and seemed to have helped the miner. After the cut of 37 1/2 per cent in 1921, there was continual discontent. Asked as to whether the standard of living had been bettered of late, he stated he could not believe as to circumstances in his own home, which he stated had not been improved.

Seeing Through Steel

The new method of making metal of unprecedented thickness invented by Dr. Karl Mueller of Physical Technical Institute of Berlin, seems likely to prove of considerable industrial as well as scientific importance (says a writer in Science).

He has succeeded in producing sheets of steel so thin that they are transparent as the clearest of atoms will pass through them without impediment.

Alpha rays from radium, completely blocked by a sheet of paper, are perceptibly weakened in passing through such metal sheets. It is calculated from the specific gravity of the metal that these sheets are more than thirty layers of atoms thickness.

QUEEN MOTHER PASSED TO REST AT 5.25.

LONDON, Nov. 20. The Dowager Queen Alexandra, mother of King Edward Seventh and sister of the late King George V, died at Sandringham this afternoon, passing to rest amid those surroundings she loved so well. She had been in a critical condition since Saturday morning when she suffered a heart attack. She would have been 81 on Dec. 1. Additional telegraphic apparatus which was installed in the royal building to carry unimpeded birthday greetings is now used to broadcast news of the queen's death. Official statements said, "Her Majesty Alexandra passed away at 5.25 o'clock. The King, the Queen, and members of the Royal Family were present." The Prince of Wales and the Duke of York were en route to Sandringham and were due there at 5.29, but their train was ten minutes late. They were led to the royal waiting room at Wokingham Station and heard the news from the station master.

A British View of Government Control

During his recent visit to Toronto Mr. John St. Loe Strachey, editor and proprietor of the world-famous London weekly, "The Spectator," ventured some commentary on Government Control of the liquor traffic as practised in this country. Mr. Strachey stands among the first rank of British publicists and his views are not colored by any personal sympathy with the liquor traffic, or the liquor habit, and he is not a man wedded to tradition, as those acquainted with his writings are well aware. The trend of his thinking may be gleaned from the list of his books which includes works on Pauperism and on Socialism, and also an important contribution to religious literature "The Practical Wisdom of the Bible." Consequently he speaks as a convinced humanitarian.

At the time of his visit to Toronto, he had investigated the operation of Government Control in but one Canadian province, Quebec, and in conversation with one of the staff of this journal was anxious to learn something of its progress in other sections of this country. "In my humble opinion," he said, "Government Control as administered in Quebec, is not only a wise and economic policy for Canada, but offers a world-solution of the evils of the liquor traffic. I am serious in that. I may not see it in my lifetime, but I think that the day will come when every enlightened nation in the world will adopt this system."

Mr. Strachey seemed surprised that a province in many respects so progressive as Ontario had failed to adopt Government Control instead of so discredited and impossible a legislative device as prohibition, so called.

Mr. Strachey during his stay in the Province of Quebec, was also shrewd enough to discern that any abuses which there prevail are due to visitors, carried away by the opportunity to obtain liquor. "So far as I could see," he said, "the only drunkenness was among transient strangers who felt that they might not legally get another drink for two years and were greedily awaiting themselves of their opportunity."

The opinions of a trained authoritative observer like Mr. Strachey are worth a hundred times as much as those of American magazine writers, and paid officials of the Anti-Saloon League who come to Canada with previous instructions to condemn Government Control with or without evidence. They are the views of a man as keenly interested in the well-being of the human race as any vociferous advocate of prohibition. In suggesting that the other nations of the world will one day see the wisdom of dealing with the liquor traffic in a manner that does away with the bar and the illicit grogery while at the same time assures to the state the profits of a trade that cannot be suppressed, Mr. Strachey is relying on the belief that in the end common sense will govern the counsels of humanity in the large. No statute can eradicate the appetite for liquor in large numbers of the human race; or convince them that the gratification of this appetite in moderation is wrong. That being the case the only economic, and truly moral method of dealing with the problem is the candid system of Government monopoly.—Toronto Star.

Gold Sands of Graham Island

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., Nov. 17.—Ever since the early days of exploration along the West Coast of British Columbia the gold-bearing black sands of Graham Island, one of the Queen Charlotte group, have been regarded as an interesting phenomenon and a subject of speculation on the part of mineralogists.

Not until now, however, has any attempt been made to convert the gold-bearing sands into profitable use. During the last few years Charles T. Cabrera has been working on a process to extract the gold, and now claims to have interested sufficient Toronto capital to give his project a reasonable prospect of success. From September 28 to October 6, seventy-two tons of sand were dug from the beach on Graham Island, which is 500 miles north of Vancouver. These were sifted and the screenings, amounting to forty-eight tons, were treated with cyanide. Three and five-sixths ounces of gold were recovered, valued at $78, an average of $1.04 per ton of sand. Cabrera expects that within a few months a cyanide mill will be erected on the island, and that the beaches of Graham Island will become one of the Province's important sources of gold.

Attempts to make use of the black sands in British Columbia rivers, notably on the Fraser, are meeting with similar success. A cyanide mill is now operating at Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, just across the International border, designed to make use of these deposits taken from streams in the southeastern part of British Columbia. The origin of the Queen Charlotte gold sands is still a mystery and the object of much speculation and investigation. "Whether the Mother Lode is at the bottom of the sea or somewhere on the islands has not yet been ascertained."

The Great Art of Salesmanship

MR. A. M. SAMUEL ON FOREIGN TRADE. ADVERTISING AND SALESMANSHIP.

Mr. Arthur Michael Samuel, Conservative M.P. for Farnham, Minister in charge of the Department of Overseas Trade, and one of the few members of Parliament who has himself been a manufacturer while being at the same time a skilled economist, addressing the Working and District Chamber of Trade, urged the necessity of cultivating the art of personal salesmanship for the export trade.

Mr. Samuel said: Our problem is—why cannot we sell for export more of our products? We live by our export trade. To trade the quality must be right, and the salesmanship must be right. I have written on a card that I have over my office mantelpiece: Goods do not sell themselves. We have to seek out buyers nowdays in the markets all over the world. Our foreign competitors go and find customers and in that way obtain orders.

COSTLY SHELTERED TRADES. Foreign buyers do not care a pin about how high or how low the standard of living of our working people. The foreigner only buys if the goods suit him. The basis of our working peoples' wages is the price a foreigner will pay for their products. If the price does not tempt a foreigner he does not buy of us. We have sheltered trades and unsheltered trades. The trades sheltered against foreign competition are, for example, the railway and building industries; public utility enterprises such as electricity, water and gas, and the municipal services. The unsheltered trades are subjected to competition by foreigners. The costs of goods or services, provided by our sheltered trades for the use of our unsheltered, go on to the costs of goods produced by our unsheltered trades for sale in the overseas markets. If goods produced by us come out too dear to attract buyers in competitive markets they are not sold.

That is also why so many foreign-made goods are sold in Britain. And foreign-made goods sold here are often produced under lower standards of labour conditions than would be permitted here. The wages of the unsheltered trades are, therefore, pulled down, as unfortunately is the case in our iron, steel, engineering and shipbuilding trades, and ultimately our men are thrown out of work.

TRADES THAT MAY SUFFER. The unsheltered trades are compelled, on the one hand, to sell in the world-markets at unsheltered prices and are, at the same time, compelled to buy in our home markets indispensable goods and services at sheltered prices. The result will be that the sheltered trades may themselves eventually suffer, because the unsheltered trades will not need sheltered goods and services if over-seas buyers cannot be found.

Probably the sheltered prices in our home markets are about 10 per cent. too high as compared with unsheltered prices. The President of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, at Sheffield recently stated that our trade is weighed down by our sheltered prices imposing an extra cost upon the goods made for competitive markets. He estimated the burden to be £200,000,000 annually on our unsheltered productions.

That, he said, was one of the causes for our prices being too high to secure export orders. That is why, too, foreign goods invade our home markets. Our sheltered prices thus act, he explained, as a clog on the sale of our goods in competition with those of foreign manufacture.

From the reports which reach me from the Department's over-seas officers, I am driven to the conclusion that, while we sometimes lose orders in South America and Asia because our prices are too high, we sometimes lose orders because our selling skill is too low.

We must not expect the Brazilian buyer to give us all the orders we may require because he has read catalogues and newspaper advertisements. The same may be said in regard to similar cases all over the world.

Advertising and catalogues are indispensable spearheads of trade, but you must have the driving force to push that spearhead home. That driving force is the man, and particularly the man on the spot.

WANTED, GUMPTION. An employee of a firm, or a principal, or a partner's son, visiting, cultivating, and studying customers abroad by personal contact, is more likely to secure export business for a British house than the agent who merely collects orders or sells on commission.

My staff at home and abroad gladly placed itself at the disposal of British traders. But our over-seas officers cannot act as commercial travellers and sell the goods. Yet I sometimes gasp with astonishment when representatives of firms come to the Department and expect us to wet-nurse them and to do something for them abroad which they, if they had the adequate gumption, ought to do, and could do, successfully for themselves.

It is sometimes found that in the same district two factories work under the same conditions, and offer the same goods produced at the same cost, yet one factory will get orders up to its full output and the other will be short of work. Why? Because one firm knows how to sell its goods and the other doesn't.

ART OF SALESMANSHIP.

Salesmanship is a great art. It is an art of personality. It requires long training, knowledge of men and goods, judgment and tact, besides energy and initiative. Haven't people been talking and thinking too much about producing the goods and too little about the art of selling them.

In trades in which goods are small enough to be carried as samples our export houses will eventually be compelled by foreign competition to send their commercial travellers into the shops and warehouses of the distributors all over the world, just as we send our travellers among the shopkeepers and warehouses in the home trade in Britain.

We still have the advantage of a reputation for high quality. For that reason should not clever, personal salesmanship be henceforth cultivated and directed to convincing possible buyers that British goods are best?

Joseph Murphy and Five to Help Him

TO THE CITIZENS OF ST. JOHN'S: Ladies and Gentlemen,—

I am offering myself as a candidate for election as City Councillor, and I ask your votes to that end. I appreciate the necessity, in approaching an intelligent electorate, of stating clearly the policies for which I ask support. I cannot guarantee that they will be carried out if I am elected,—that will depend on the measure of support I obtain from the other Councillors. But I can and do promise that I shall spare no effort to have them carried out. The following are the points of policy for which I stand:

- The most important of all, because nearly all the others depend on it, is the obtaining of further borrowing powers for the City. This can only be done through the Legislature, but if the Legislature is to be moved to action, strenuous agitation on the part of the City will be required. St. John's should have the same unrestricted civic powers that other capital cities (such as Halifax) enjoy, and such as are commensurate with its importance. A vote for me will be a vote for full civic powers.
- I am in favour of discontinuing the salaries at present paid to the Mayor and Councillors. It should be a privilege for any citizen to give the small share of his time exacted by these offices to the welfare of the City. Moreover, although comparatively small, these salaries total $4,000.00—a sum which would pay the interest on a sum of $70,000.00. The City needs that money more than Councillors need the salary. If elected I shall accept no remuneration for my services, even though I do not succeed in having these salaries discontinued. My salary will in that event be divided between the City Orphanages.
- I recognize the imperative necessity of improvements both to roadways and sidewalks, particularly the latter, but with my present restricted powers the Council cannot hope to finance these undertakings. If successful in my first aim of obtaining full civic powers, I shall favor as extensive a programme of improvement as seems economically sound. Property owners could be assessed for a reasonable proportion of the cost, as is practiced in other Municipalities, and reasonable time allowed them for the liquidation of these charges.
- I am informed that large amounts of money are due to the City, both from the Treasury of the Colony and from private individuals. Should this prove to be the case, I shall favor prompt and drastic action to make complete collection of all such outstanding amounts, in justice to the many citizens who meet their civic obligations promptly. This action, if successful, should minimize the amount of necessary borrowing, and enable the early undertaking of several long needed improvements.
- I believe that citizens are entitled to know more about the City's finances from time to time than they can now readily ascertain. I therefore favor the rendering of accounts through the newspapers at not less than quarterly, preferably monthly periods.
- As soon as, by reason of its extended powers, the City finds itself in a position to finance such an undertaking, I believe that the water and sewerage system should be extended to all sections at present deprived of these conveniences. As I see it, this is the only hope of ridding the City of the nightly horrors of its present "sanitary" system.
- The foregoing paragraph also applies to sections on the outskirts of the City. Expansion is the only hope of solving our housing problem, and I think that an effort should be made to extend the street car service to these localities.
- A minor civic problem that needs immediate attention is the collection of garbage. Covered carts should be employed for this work, and the daily collection should positively be completed by 8.30 a.m.
- I am in favor of the appointment of a Public Utilities Board to supervise the conduct of the public franchises already granted and to control the grant of the few franchises that are left. Such a Board is a long felt want; had it been in existence when the present franchises were granted, both City and citizens would be better served than they are.
- I believe the City should be divided into Wards, each electing its own Councillor who will be responsible to his own constituency. Under this system it will be an easier task for Councillors to attend to the wants of their electors, and for electors to gauge the faithfulness and energy of their Councillors.
- If you do me the honor of electing me, I shall endeavour to show my appreciation by pressing the adoption of these policies by the Council with all my energies, and I shall at all times do my utmost in support of such other measures as, in my judgment, make for the betterment of City and citizens.

The Late Queen Alexandra

The news of the illness of Her Majesty Queen Alexandra received yesterday morning was quickly followed by the announcement that the Angel of Death had passed over Sandringham Palace, and removed a member of the Royal Family who for many years had been held in the warmest affection by the people of the land of her adoption.

The wonderful attachment of the people of England, and in particular the citizens of London, for the Dowager Queen was a personal sentiment which it has been the privilege of few who have held such an elevated position in any country to enjoy. It dated from the moment of her arrival in England over sixty-two years ago, and during that period, the admiration and devotion of the people, first for the Princess of Wales, next for the Consort of their beloved Sovereign, Edward the Peacemaker, and later for the Queen Mother, became hers in greater measure, as was shown by the spontaneous expressions of welcome whenever she appeared in public.

The winsome grace and the charming personality of the Danish Princess, who left the home of her parents, Christian IX of Denmark and Princess Louise of Hesse-Cassel, at the age of nineteen to become the bride of Edward Prince of Wales, at once won the public to her side, and following the marriage ceremony, which was solemnized in St. George's Chapel, Windsor, on March 10th, 1863, her simple mode of life, the many admirable qualities which she possessed, and the sympathetic interest she took in the welfare of the people endeared her to the public not only of Great Britain but throughout the Empire.

There were few philanthropic movements with which she was not personally associated. With the hospital organizations, and the arrangements made for the care and comfort of the wounded veterans of the South African War and the dependents of those who fell she was particularly identified. After the death of Queen Victoria, whose great age had made it necessary for the Princess to act for her in social functions during later years, she proved a worthy Consort to the late King Edward VII, and for the period of nine years during which she held that exalted position the influence she exercised left an enduring mark on the Nation and the Empire.

After the death of her husband, which occurred in 1910, the Queen Mother withdrew from court functions and from public life generally to as great an extent as possible, as increasing years made it difficult for her to continue many of her former activities. Her interest, however, never lessened in philanthropic movements, and during the last war she did not spare herself in working for the wounded and for others afflicted by it.

To-day the Empire unites in mourning the loss of Alexandra the Beloved, and sympathy in full measure will be felt for the royal Family in their bereavement.

Newfoundlands' Expression of Sympathy

Yesterday His Excellency the Governor received the following message from the Secretary of State:

To the Governor, St. John's, 20th Nov. Deeply regret to state Her Majesty Queen Alexandra died about five o'clock to-day.

SECRETARY OF STATE FOR DOMINION AFFAIRS.

The following expression of sympathy on behalf of the Colony was sent in reply:

(Telegram to Secretary of State, sent 20 November, 1925)

20 Nov. Prime Minister, Ministers, and People of Newfoundland have heard with extreme sorrow of the death of Her Majesty Queen Alexandra and desire me to convey to His Majesty the King and the Royal Family an expression of their deep and respectful sympathy.

ALLARDYCE.

Citizens Meeting Considered

It is understood that a movement is under way to hold a public meeting for the purpose of considering the question of candidates in the forthcoming civic elections and the policy which should be adopted by the Council. The Board of Trade, at a meeting yesterday, decided to place its rooms at the disposal of citizens, and it is expected arrangements for a gathering during the coming week will be finalized shortly.

A Welcome to Alexandra

MARCH 7, 1863. (Alfred, Lord Tennyson.)

Sea-kings' daughter from over the sea, Alexandra! Saxon and Norman and Dane are we. But all of us Dunes in our welcome of thee, Alexandra! Welcome her, thunders of fort and of rock! Welcome her, thunders cheer of the street! Welcome her, all things youthful and sweet. Scatter the blossom under her feet! Break, happy land, into earlier flowers! Make music, O bird, in the new-budded boughs! Blazon your mottoes of blessing and prayer! Welcome her, welcome her, all that is fair! Warble, O bugle, and trumpet, blare! Flare, fluter out upon turrets and towers! Flare, on the windy headland fare! Utter your jubilee, steeple and spire! Clash, yet bells, in the merry March air! Flare, O cities, in rivers of fire! Rush to the roof, sudden rocket, and higher! Melt into stars for the land's desire! Roll and rejoice, jubilant voice, Roll as a ground-swell dash'd on the strand. Roar as the sea when he welcomes the land. And welcome her, welcome the land's desire. The sea-kings' daughter as happy as air. Blister'd bride of a blissful heir. Bride of the heir of the kings of the throne. O joy to the people and joy to the church. Come to us, love us and make us your own. For Saxon or Dane or Norman we, Teuton or Celt, of whatever we be, We are each all Dunes in our welcome of thee, Alexandra!

There will be five groups of distinctive songs in five distinctive costumes, Eleanor Mews' Recital, Synod Hall, Tuesday next.—nov21.11

Personals

(Nfld. Weekly.)

We were glad to welcome at the office of the "weekly" during the past week: Mr. Albert Kennedy, formerly of Trepassay, who left Newfoundland three years ago. Since his arrival he has been engaged in the building wrecking business with the Duchemin Wrecking Co. of Roxbury, and is doing well. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kennedy, and lives in Somerville.

Mr. J. Baras, of the Furness-Withy Co. Staff, St. John's. Mr. Bates has been in New York on business and left by the Sunday evening train to connect with the Caribou at North Sydney.

Mr. Bernard Forsey, who has been residing in Melden, has left there for Seattle where he is going to make his home. Mrs. Forsey, accompanied by her two girls will leave here on Sunday to rejoin him.

Col. A. Montgomery, manager of the Furness-Withy Line at Halifax, was in Boston last week and left by Sunday's express for the Halifax capital.

Mr. A. E. Parkins and Mrs. Jas. Lawrence of St. John's, returned to Boston on Monday from visits to Toronto and New York. They plan to return to St. John's via S. S. Newfoundland on Dec. 5.

Monday Night's Dance

IN AID OF THE CHILD WELFARE ASSOCIATION. All arrangements have been finalized for the Grand Dance to be held by Mr. Ray Pushe in aid of the Child Welfare Association, Monday, November 23rd. The decorations for this dance will be the same as used by the Strollers, having been left there by them for this occasion. Although using Eastern decorations, this will not be a costume dance. The music will be supplied by a special orchestra. The catering will be looked after by a number of ladies who have kindly consented to look after this part of the affair. Judging by the number of tickets sold, it looks as if the dance is going to be a big success.

Come and have your tea at the congregational Ladies' Aid Sale, Nov. 25. You will be sure to enjoy yourself.—nov19.21

Progress at New Hotel

Mr. T. E. Rousseau, principal of T. E. Rousseau, Ltd., contractors for the new hotel arrived by the Rosalind and remains here for a considerable time giving his personal supervision to the work. Mr. Rousseau has expressed himself as highly pleased with the progress made under the supervision of Superintendent Cameron. As all the men with the exception of Mr. Compton and four electricians are Newfoundlanders, Mr. Rousseau's attitude is all the more gratifying. With forces so well organized and the rapid progress being made it is Mr. Rousseau's opinion that the structure will be covered in by the 4th or 5th of December. Work of laying the brick and benefit stone will begin on Monday. It is expected to have the concrete work of both wings completed by Saturday next. The main portion of the building which is to be two stories higher than the wings will then be completed. Including the basement there will be 10 stories in the hotel.

Will Form a Forests Prevention Association

In connection with the efforts of Mr. W. J. Walsh, Minister of Agriculture and Mines to provide for the conservation of the forest wealth of the country, a meeting in continuation of those held early in the year, took place at the Department of Agriculture and Mines yesterday afternoon. Mr. Walsh presided and present were Messrs. Harris, Gilmore, and Jones, of the A.N.D. Co., Grand Falls; Evans, of the N.D. P. & P. Co., Corner Brook; W. A. Reid and J. Atcher, of the N.D. Mines and Forests, Ltd.; General Manager Russell and Supr. Engineer Joyce, of the Government Railway; L. R. Cooper, Secretary of the Fire Patrol Association; George Turner, Deputy Minister of Agriculture and Mines; T. Howe, Chief Woods Ranger. It is the intention to enlarge the scope of the Fire Patrol Association and establish a body to be known as the Newfoundland Forests Preservation Association, which will formulate plans having in view the object suggested by the name of the organization. These plans will be submitted to the Government for approval. The meeting was continued today and matters in connection with supplying railway ties was discussed.

A Satisfactory Job

The steamer Otto Sverdrup, which arrived in this port about a week ago with engine-room trouble, and called yesterday for Montreal, had repairs effected by a staff of mechanics of the firm of W. G. Pippy. This job was a difficult one, removing a crank shaft of 2-1/4 tons, and replacing it with a new one. One hour after the job had been completed the ship was able to proceed to sea with everything working satisfactorily.

CHILD WELFARE

HEALTHY BABIES

"An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure." COLDS. This is the time of the year when so many people have colds and chills, and oft Baby catches one too. How can we prevent this? We want to keep ourselves well-so as to have good resistance. How can we do this? 1. By the kind of clothes worn. 2. By the kind of food eaten. 3. By fresh air. 4. By good sleep. Remember quality of clothes is more important than quantity. Baby must be kept warm, but you can do this better with a half pound of clothes than with a pound and a half. There are certain foods that give more heat and energy than others. Come to the Centre and let us talk about the best food for the Baby and Toddler. Take Baby out in the fresh air every day. Feed him with fresh milk and every evening, and teach him the good habit of sleep. He wants at least 14 hours of every 24 hours, and wants this right to when he is five years old. PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

Nov. 20th.—The saddest possible news this day, being the announcement of the death of Queen Alexandra, from a sudden heart attack. She was 81 years of age, yet on her 80th birthday did make a public appearance on what is known as Rose Day, when roses are sold in the London streets for a hospital in which Her late Majesty was interested. Being much beloved by the people, her death will be sad news for all the Empire. Much talks this day of the Eastern Dance, and all that were there do speak most highly of it as the most spectacular entertainment that the city did ever see, and the greatest credit to them that organized it. Thinking of the dance, and of the whiskers that were there in great profusion, I did find my book of Etiquette, that I have quoted, sometime, the following: "The hair and beard in one of their aspects, belong to the dress. In reference to the style of wearing them, consult the general principle of taste. A man to whom nature has given a handsome beard, deforms himself sadly, by shaving, at least that is our opinion; and on this point fashion and good taste agree."

Do see how there are yet 2 more candidates for the Council, and the number of voters are dwindling so that soon, methinks each candidate will be lucky if he find enough to nominate him.

There will be a scene from that popular and melodious opera "Cavalleria Rusticana" at the Eleanor Mews' Recital, Synod Hall, Tuesday next.—nov21.11

IN LOVING REMEMBRANCE of my dear mother, Elizabeth Hearn, who died Oct. 23rd, 1925. Sometimes when I think of mother, She seems to be so near; That I hear her dear voice saying "Do not grieve for I am here."

Do not divide me from mother, Nor sever the cords of love; She is resting sweetly with Jesus in that beautiful home above. Days of sorrow still come o'er us, Tears of sadness often flow; When I think of my dear mother, Whom I lost a while ago.—Inserted by her daughter, Fannie.

IN FOND AND LOVING MEMORY of my dear son, Pte. George B. Hearn, M.M., No. 2344 Royal Newfoundland Regiment, killed in action in the Battle of Cambrai, France, November 20th, 1917. We deeply mourn for you, dear son, No eyes may see us weep; But many a silent tear is shed.

While others lie asleep, Surrounded by friends you are longed for. In the midst of our joys we are blue, With a smile on our lips we're a heartache, Longing dear son, for you.

We think of you in silence, When your name we often call; But there is nothing left to answer, But your photo on the wall. Inserted by mother, sisters and brothers.

Dr. Archibald C. Tait

ANNOUNCES THAT in response to numerous requests to state a definite policy to justify his asking the tax-payers of the City for their vote and support in the forthcoming Municipal Election, he intends, if elected, to endeavour:—

1st.—To make an effort to supplant the present Council's policy of "Drifting Along" by a more progressive and active one.

2nd.—To urge for the introduction of a sane scheme for permanent City improvements to take the place of the wasteful patch-work efforts favoured by those at present in charge of the City.

3rd.—To insist upon a just and fair distribution of taxation and not merely allow the willing horse to pull all the load.

4th.—To initiate a scale of maximum rental values of tenement houses based on a fair percentage of assessed value of property.

5th.—To insist that the rules and by-laws governing the City be enforced without fear and favour, particularly in matters which concern the Public Health.

6th.—To try and obtain for every householder within the city limits, equal rights in the matter of civic advantages and conveniences—e.g. Water, Light, Sewerage, good roads and sidewalks.

7th.—To encourage any sane and reasonable Housing scheme which will cope with the present state of inadequate accommodation and total absence of domestic convenience and comfort with which our working-people have to put up with.

8th.—To assist any policy destined to reorganize and modernize the present antiquated and inadequate system of sanitation.

9th.—To urge that every trader and peddler from beyond the city borders be compelled to contribute his fair share towards the heavy cost of upkeep of city streets, water supply, etc., which he uses in common with the rest of us.

10th.—To ask that preference in all Municipal employment be given to those residing within the city limits.

11th.—To use all reasonable means to acquire for the city its right proportion of monies for road-grants, Harbor improvements, etc.

12th.—As the profit making Public Utilities are at present putting their dividends into private pockets instead of into the Municipal chest, to see that the non-paying Public Utilities are not neglected.

13th.—To request that the present haphazard method of election to the Council be replaced by a more satisfactory ward system.

TO THE CIVIC ELECTORS OF ST. JOHN'S.

LADIES & GENTLEMEN—As you were kind enough to give me your valued support on the many previous occasions I sought election at your hands, I have decided to again solicit your esteem and confidence for four years more as one of your civic representatives.
During the several terms I have had the great honor of being a member of the Municipal Council and I have consistently practised the policy of conforming to your desires in so far as the civic revenue permitted.
I shall be very pleased indeed to again do my utmost towards bringing about many more essential improvements that are still necessary, and therefore, feel that as you have so highly approved of my civic record in the past you will be pleased to again remember me on polling day.

A SPECIAL WORD TO THE LADY VOTERS.

Wedding Bells

CAREW-O'NEILL
The marriage was solemnized at the Roman Catholic Cathedral on Nov. 17th, by Rev. Monsignor, Kitchin of Miss Mary E. Carew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Carew of Witless Bay to Mr. Raphael O'Neill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas O'Neill, also of Witless Bay. The bride who was attired in navy blue costume with hat to match, carried a bouquet of sweet peas and maiden hair fern. The bride was attended by Miss B. O'Keefe of Cape Beale, also by Misses Mary and Anna Dinn of Witless Bay. The groom was supported by Mr. John W. Carew, brother of the bride. After the ceremony, the party motored to Mr. P. T. Butler's Restaurant, where a sumptuous wedding supper was served. After supper had been served, the gathering spent a very pleasant social evening. The bride and groom left for their future home, Bond Street, amidst the best wishes of their friends.

G.W.V.A. Circus Notes

All roads will undoubtedly lead to the Prince's Ring on Monday afternoon and night for the opening of Hippodrome Circus Show instituted by the War Vets to augment their funds.

There will be two vaudeville shows daily; one in the afternoon at four o'clock and the other at night beginning at 8.30.

No extra charge is made for this other than the admission fee of twenty-five cents for adults and ten cents for the kiddies.

What promises to be the feature of the show is the engagement of Alfonso—a wife walker of international fame. One instance will suffice which is copied verbatim from the Natal (South Africa) "Gazette":

"His astonishing feat of walking across the Umbent Falls at height of nearly 400 feet was thrilling in the extreme; later he crossed blindfolded trundling a wheelbarrow. As if this were not sensational enough he then crossed on stilts in the presence of the Governor and a crowd of 10,000 persons."

Miss Mae Thomas gives a swinging ladder performance.

A sensational act is that of The Kellers in a double trapeze act, which won the approximated votes of the hundreds of thousands of persons who viewed the big W. L. Mayne Circus in their tour across the continent this past summer.

The Great Farrell is a contortionist and has been featured by the Barnum & Bailey show. He is known as the man with the india-rubber bones.

Professor Wilson has a pair of trick Shetland ponies and a trained full pedigreed dog. With their two coloured attendants they are sure to prove immensely popular.

Direct from the Robinson Circus of Chicago come Faust & Faust with a comedy revolving ladder act which is a thriller.

Many citizens who visited New York three winters ago will remember the wonderful hand balancing feats performed by The Ringlings at the Hippodrome.

Mademoiselle Marie is billed as the "Smoking Girl on the Web." Here is a surprise act and must be both seen and heard to be appreciated.

Another very novel and most thrilling aerial performance is given by the Pattersons who, judging from the numerous and complimentary press notices in the States, must be indeed high liners in their work.

A five dollar bill will be presented to the one that can mount and ride "Blighly" the mule, in the enclosure.

It was felt that no Circus would be complete without the Merry-go-Round and one in charge of Mr. Lynch and two operatives was brought down specially.

This comprises the vaudeville entertainment, and the War Vets' promise you a dollar's worth of strictly high-class vaudeville for a quarter.

As will be seen from our advertising columns any ex-service man out of employment who is willing to operate a booth or concession should communicate immediately with H. W. Quinton, the Dominion Secretary of the G.W.V.A.

OF COURSE, YOU'RE WITH US!

DIED AT HALIFAX.—Word was received this morning, of the passing of Mrs. Kate Murphy, mother of ex-Mayor John Murphy, of Halifax.

UNION PACIFIC SHOULD EARN NEARLY $35 ON COMMON IN FULL YEAR.

Second Half Revenues Will Show Up Much Better Than First—Operating Economics All Improved.

(From Boston Commercial, Oct. 24)
The second half year in the West and Northwest has so far developed so much more traffic and higher earnings than the first half in comparison with last year that Union Pacific may be expected to finish 1925 with share earnings very close to the $14.28 earned on $22,291,000 outstanding common stock earned in 1924.

Six months ago, gross revenues ran 12 p.c. under the previous year for three consecutive months and Union Pacific common fell 16 points in three weeks to a low of 13 1/2, added by the distress of the St. Paul, Carl R. Gray, president, stated that conditions in the system's territory were, fundamentally strong and that depressed railroad earnings would be only temporary. Three months later, in June, an improvement set in and freight revenues were 1 p.c. over the previous year. July gross revenues were within $8,000 of the previous year and freight revenues showed a gain. Net operating income gained 16 p.c. in August; gross revenues gained 1 p.c. over the previous year and net operating income $3,454,000 gained 6.5 p.c. over last year and was the highest since $4,517,100 in August, 1921. Loaded cars handled in the four weeks ended Sept. 26 totaled 126,385, an increase of 6,409, or 5.3 p.c. over 1924.

Agricultural improvement in Union Pacific's territory, notably large spring wheat, corn and fruit crops and restored buying power, account for the upturn in revenues while a policy of strict operating economy accomplished by lower taxes and car hire made possible the showing of higher net operating income in the past four months.

Recovery of Union Pacific earnings became forcefully apparent with September earnings statement showing the highest gross revenue for any September since 1921 and highest net operating income for any September in the system's history. Ratio of expenses to gross revenues broke below 60%, at 59.42%, the lowest since before the war.

Freight revenue last month gained 4.2% over last year, and passenger receipts, which were 6.8% under 1924 in the first eight months, also exceeded those of September, 1924. Gross revenues were 3.2% above last year and operating expenses 4% lower. Maintenance expenses were 6% lower and transportation costs only 1.3% greater. Taxes of $1,900,000 were down $288,000, or 22.4%. Equipment rentals were slightly greater but not enough to reduce the large gain in earnings, which gave net operating income of $6,577,000, exceeding by $894,000 or 15% that in September, last year.

Large September net toned up the year's showing considerably. Net operating income was $1,446,000, or 7.7% behind 1924 at the end of eight months but at the end of September was only $550,000, or 2.2% behind.

Operating ratio was higher in the early months of the year, declining to 70.7% in June and 72.0% of gross in August, a ratio which may be expected to be decidedly improved upon in September and subsequent months.

This year will be the 11th consecutive year for Union Pacific earnings to exceed $12 a share on the common stock and the third consecutive year to exceed $14 a share. Average surplus after charges for the 12 years was $16.66 a common share.

Unless radical changes have been made in the company's investments since the close of last year, non-operating income of over $1 a common share will be realized this year, about the same amount as realized from railway operations and giving 70% of the dividend requirement.

Magistrate's Court

A mechanic was up before court this morning, at the instance of Mr. Peter Cameron, the Superintendent, constructing the work on the new hotel, and charged him with attempted assault on the 27th inst. by the evidence submitted the defendant went to the Superintendent, and because he was refused work, he abused the Supt., and would have dealt him a blow, only that the Superintendent stepped aside, and worked on the job incidentally, and presented any further trouble.

His Honor, in summing up, stated that the accused had no right to address such a man as Mr. Cameron, in the way that he had done, and such conduct could not be permitted for a moment. The Judge remarked that he intended to put a stop to that kind of lawlessness, as it was getting altogether too ripe in this city. He then bound the accused over to keep the peace in the sum of $100, towards the complainant, and pay costs, or in default 30 days imprisonment.

A drunk and disorderly was fined $2.00.

The Minister of Finance and Customs vs. Sir Richard A. Squires.

This is an action charging that the defendant, having failed to make a return on oath of his total income in the years 1923, 1924, 1925, 1926, and 1927, under Section 7 of the Income Tax Act of 1918. The hearing was set down for Monday next.

A member of the crew of S.S. Canadian Sapper, was charged at the instance of the Minister of Finance and Customs with smuggling cigarettes into the Colony on 20th Nov. contrary to Chapter 22 of the Consolidated Statutes Section 204. The Customs officer who made the seizure told the court in his evidence that he saw the defendant leave his ship at one o'clock in the morning, and went up on the wharf to help in loading. He went back to the ship and about five minutes later the watchman of the premises was noticed to come ashore with a parcel under his arm. Witness seized the package which contained 500 Players' cigarettes, and upon witness questioning the watchman the latter stated that he was holding it for a member of the crew until morning, as it was feared on board that the Customs would make a seizure.

The defendant stated he bought the cigarettes in Montreal at $4.00 for his own use, and intended to get them from the watchman on the following morning to take them to his home town in Halifax. He swore that he did not intend to defraud the revenue.

On conviction the Judge imposed a $500 fine or in default 30 days' imprisonment.

Houses Wrecked by Salt

In the salt-mining towns of Cheshire many buildings are leaning at a dangerous angle as a direct result of our demand for salt. In Northwick numbers of houses have been condemned as unsafe, yet the inhabitants still live in them, though often the doors can only be opened a foot or two because the frames lean so sharply. Our demand for table-salt affects the houses because the salt mined in Cheshire is dissolved from the salt rock immediately under their foundations.

Wells are sunk to a depth of 300 feet, cutting completely through the rock strata to reach the underground "flow" of brine confined there under enormous pressure. Up such borings, known as artesian wells, gushes the water, partly by its own pressure, but assisted by powerful pumps.

In Cheshire this water is a concentrated brine solution, and is led up into gigantic evaporating pans, where it is heated to boiling point, stirred all the while by men stripped to the waist. The heating serves a double purpose by evaporating the water and purifying the substance.

After evaporation the salt is placed in tall wooden boxes, where it drains and settles, emerging as large white blocks, 14, 21, and 28 pound in weight. The blocks, thoroughly drained, are stove-dried in hot-houses specially built for the purpose.

ON SCREEN.

How many ways do we have of duping ourselves about ourselves! One of the commonest seems to be saying that one ought not to do so often that one is convinced oneself one does it, or at least in some way done it, or not doing it.
She Thinks She Does It.
I know a girl who wants very much to gain weight. (Yes, they still exist in these days.) She is supposed to drink a glass of warm milk every night before she goes to bed. And she thinks she does. But this is what I have seen and heard happen at least a dozen times. "I know I ought to drink that warm milk but don't feel like it to-night. I guess I'll have a glass of lemonade instead."
"I know I ought to drink that warm milk but the fire's out and I don't want to stop to light the oil stove just to heat it. I'm so sleepy I think it will do me more good to get right to bed." I suspect from what I have seen that the exceptions are as common as the rule. Yet I know she thinks she drinks that warm milk almost every night for I have heard her lament at not getting fat and tell people how hard she tries to, quoting that as one of the things she does.

I am told that the plump lady who doesn't see why she doesn't get thin takes her diet in much the same way. She is convinced that she diets but so her friends tell me, her diet is carried on something like this: "I never eat second helpings but this is so delicious." "I really don't eat any lunch." "I know I ought to drink lemonade, but the soda here is wonderful. So just this once."
"Just this once," what a wonderfully helpful phrase that is for us self-deceivers. Whatever should we do without it? If all the 'this ones' that are used each day on this earth were piled on top of each other don't you think they'd reach to the farthest star and back again?
"I ought not to read in this light. I must be more careful of my eyes."
By constantly saying that another woman I know convinces herself that she is taking the care of her eyes which she had been told to take.
Is there any more common method of soothing one's conscience when it complains about some neglected duty saying write those letters. "I really must write those letters." If you say it enough it becomes hypnotic and you get a sense of virtue out of it as if you really were writing them.

Whatever Should We Do?

"I really must." "I ought not to do that." "Just this once." "I'm going to-morrow"—how in the world should we keep that sense of virtue that, according to our standards is so precious to all of us, if we do not have such phrases as these to put as screens between ourselves and our failures.
Sometimes I think that self-deception is the worst thing in the world because it keeps us from so scorning ourselves that we shall really have to be something better than we are, and then again I see it as one of the blessed dispensations that keep us from an insanity of self-disgust that should wipe out the race.

Britain Talks of Increased Tariff

ON WOOLLEN IMPORTS.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Worsted manufacturers who have been urging higher import duties on their line of products seem to have made an impression on the British officials and from present indication there will be an upward revision of duty. The government virtually has decided to push forward vigorously especially toward those industries suffering from unfair and abnormal foreign competition.

Civic Improvements

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I wish to congratulate you on your splendid Editorial this evening. It is timely and to the point. We have reached a crisis in civic affairs and as you rightly point out, are without strong leadership. The city has not made the progress expected under the new charter because we have had at the Council Board men who were too conservative and timid and who lack the courage to modernize the city.

The present Council is now finishing its term and leaves behind it a record for conservatism which is altogether unsuited to the present age. For four years the citizens have demanded among other things:

1. The extension of water and sewerage facilities in congested districts as well as on the borders of the town, to improve the health of the people and lower the death rate which is nearly double that of London.
2. The gradual abolition of slum-dwellings, the building of tenements by the council and by building societies at a reasonable rental.
3. Sidewalks without holes, rocks, mud, etc., with concrete curbs and gutters to give the people a chance to keep from under the wheels of motor cars.
4. The abatement of the dust nuisance by a more extensive use of tarvia.
5. The abolition of the mud and filth of New Gower and Duckworth Streets by a tarvia top dressing or by a permanent pavement.
6. The top dressing of Water Street to eliminate the noise and abolish the mud splashing to the side walks now so prevalent.
7. Well defined town planning to prevent the indiscriminate building of houses, shacks, etc., at all angles to the street and without sewerage connections or sidewalks.
8. The collection of garbage before 8.30 a.m.
9. The collection of taxes without fear or favor.

10. One of two markets so that out of town produce could be displayed and compared, prices standardized, avoid house to house peddling and remove from New Gower and other streets the traffic congestion caused by outport vendors which forms a menace to the fire department.

11. The extension of the street car system to the higher levels and suburbs and so encourage building in the open spaces.

12. The employment of modern horse draw machines in winter to clear sidewalks of snow and prevent slickness in the main streets.

13. A two months trip for the city engineer to Canada and the U.S. to study modern methods in city administration.

These are some of the outstanding needs of the city and the present council through its Mayor has repudiated publicly to such demands that the Council cannot "make bricks without straw" and no attempt has been made to produce the "straw" which could be found in large bundles among tax defaulters and in other directions.

Many of the above much needed improvements could be carried out without any additional cost to the tax payer, others could only be financed by a Bond Issue of probably $500,000 at an annual cost of $25,000 which no doubt could all be raised locally as there is over $20,000,000 in the savings banks at 3%.

The permanent development of all modern cities is usually financed on capital account and if we wait for permanent improvements to be paid for out of current revenue these improvements will never be made and St. John's will always remain 50 years behind the times. A part of the interest charge can be obtained by a strict attention to the collection of taxes and arrears. Economies can be made in street repairs where permanent paving is done. Enough money is spent yearly repairing Duckworth and New Gower Streets to pay the interest on the cost of permanent pavement. Increase in taxation of say 10% would represent only $2.00 to $4.00 for each household per year this could easily be afforded (many spend this amount per week on amusements and liquor) as we now pay only about half what we would have to pay if we lived in Canada or the United States.

This is a matter in which the Government should take an active interest, what is the use of filling the city with tourists if they are to return home full of complaints re some of the city's outstanding characteristics such as mud, dust, rough sidewalks and dirt. Let Mayor Cook or some progressive man with a stake in the city come out publicly with a progressive platform somewhat as above outlined and ask for candidates who will support such a policy and I believe a progressive council would be elected by a strong vote. Such a policy would mean "work and wages" for hundreds of men and would offset the city of the "stick in the mud" conservatives who say "we don't want improvements that have to be paid for." I am,
Yours truly,
PROGRESS.

"HAIR-GROOM"

Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy, Well-Groomed all Day.

"Hair-Groom" is a dignified, jombing cream which costs only a few cents a jar at any drugstore. Millions use it because it gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to the hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair.

Items From Bonavista South

Since last writing we had a touch of frost here, but it is somewhat milder again.

The schr. Veta M., Capt. Aubrey Brown, is loading codfish at Red Cliff for Mr. John Quinton, the enterprising merchant of that place.

The C.T.R., Capt. Walsh, of Plate Cove West, was a recent arrival from St. John's.

Our friend, Thomas Devine, J.P., of King's Cove is on a visit to the city.

Mr. Gould, the popular merchant of Open Hall, is also in St. John's.

Your correspondent noticed among the candidates in the forthcoming civic contest in the capital the name of Mr. J. T. Martin, and takes this opportunity to wish the popular Jimmie success.

Rev. Fr. Fitzgerald to whom I made reference in my former notes is visiting his parishioners at Plate Cove, Open Hall and Fickle Cove.

I understand that the C. of E. School Inspector was at Open Hall on a tour of inspection yesterday.

We are glad to notice that Mr. Reg Curtis is again in charge of the C. of E. School at Open Hall after a term at the Normal School.

The readers of the Telegram will no doubt be glad to hear that our old friend, Lord Morris when last heard from was in good health. His Lordship is still very much interested in the welfare of the old homeland. We trust to have the pleasure of seeing him again.

Dr. Levesconte of King's Cove was on professional business to Tickle Cove last week.

We learned with very great regret, the news of the tragic death of Capt. Stewart Winsor of Wesleyville. Many of us remember the pleasant faces of Capt. Stewart and Capt. John White when they visited us a couple of years ago as delegates of the United Fishermen.

Mr. Austen Lawton is a visitor to his home at King's Cove. Austen spent some time in New York and is looking well so I understand.

Mr. Jno. Monks died recently at King's Cove.

The roads around this section are being put in good condition by the different Road Boards, but there is still room for improvement.

It seems quite a job to get the daily papers insofar as your correspondent is concerned. Several issues of this week's Telegram have not reached us yet.—COR.

INTER CLUB BILLIARDS.
 Masons Leading By 97 Points At End Of First Round.

The closing game of the first round of the inter club billiard tournament between the B.S. and Masonic Clubs took place at the former's rooms last night, when A. J. Moakler (B.S.), defeated G. Freeman (Masonic), by 101 points. Moakler, who took the lead from the start, played splendid billiards throughout. With the first round series now ended, the Masons are leading by 97 points. The second round will be played on the Masonic tables, commencing on Monday, November 30th.

"ALL AROUND THE CUSHIONS."

I shall endeavour, in these articles on, "the most beautiful and scientific of all indoor games," to begin with the reader on the assumption that he knows nothing whatever of the game and gradually and carefully go from step to step until breaks of respectable dimensions can be made.

If the beginner will persevere and assiduously practice along the lines laid down in these articles (which, by the way, embody the main ideas of the best recognized authorities), he ought, in a very short while, to be able to perform very creditably with the cue.

Commencing Billiards.

The Cue: It is so very important to have a cue that will suit your particular style and manner of play that the beginner ought to take the advice of some experienced player as to the proper selection of his cue. General weightings from 15 to 14½ ounces and weighing from 15 to 1 1/2 ounces are about right for the average player. Some players in our own city use much lighter and much heavier cues than these weights but it is only after years of experimenting that they have decided on their use. It will be well for the beginner, at first, to select one between the weights mentioned; regarding the length—a good rule to follow in this connection is to have the cue the same length as the height of your chin from the floor.

RONALD O'TOOLE WINS 10-MILE RACE.

New Local Record Established.

Upwards of 2,500 people witnessed Ronald O'Toole, Newfoundland's champion distance runner, cover the 10-mile course of 140 laps at the Prince's rink last night in amazing fashion, and despite the fact that the grind was a hard and tiresome one, and with so many corners to contend with he had lots left in him at the finish to cut loose with a splendid burst of speed, which carried him across the line in record time, after an exhibition of running seldom, if ever, seen in this country. O'Toole established a Newfoundland record, having covered the course in the fast time of 56 min. 48½ seconds, beating Laurie Jackson's indoor record time in the same rink by 56½ seconds, and his own local road time by 10 seconds.

Topic Of Discussion.

The big racing event was the topic of discussion in sporting circles for over a week, and it was felt that the contest would be an exciting one from start to finish. Hawboldt, upon entering the arena, was accorded a tremendous ovation, and the signal for his appearance was the playing of "The Maple Leaf." He was followed a minute later by John Bell, the old warrior, a winner of many a hard-fought race, and next in order to him were Gower Stone, a coming runner with a great future before him, Ron O'Toole, the champion, and Jake Ralph, all of whom received a similar reception. After a few words of instruction had been given by S. P. Cullen, and the announcement made that 160 laps of the course had to be covered, the crack of the pistol sent the runners away at 8.20 o'clock.

The Race

From the outset O'Toole took the lead, with Hawboldt, Bell, Ralph and Stone following in the order named. With the pace a trifle slow, all the runners kept together in the above order for a few rounds, and the only change was that Stone exchanged places with Ralph after the eighth lap. At the end of the first mile Hawboldt was chasing O'Toole hard for

Old Comrades' Association

CHURCH LADS' BRIGADE.

The annual meeting of the Old Comrades' Association took place in their club rooms on Thursday night. The Treasurer's report showed the Association was in a healthy state financially and that the past year was a most successful one, which goes to show that the retiring officers were faithful to their trust. The election of officers for the coming year was presided over by Major Outerbridge and resulted as follows:—

President—A. Wight, elected.
 Vice-Pres.—T. Hallett, elected.
 Secy.—L. Hookey, elected.
 Treas.—A. Thomas, re-elected.
 Chaplain—Rev. J. Britton, re-elected.
 Guard—W. Curlew, elected.
 Committee: Messrs. John Crane, E. Chafe, K. Ruby and R. Vaisey.
 Auditors: Messrs. W. Cornick, John Crane and James Crane.

After the election of officers several matters of importance were discussed after which Mr. Crane, on behalf of Major Williams, presented the Association with a very beautiful picture, which the members appreciate very deeply, as it is but another way in which our genial Major remembers the lads who served with him. The club rooms are now in first class condition and contain a beautiful billiard table, second to none in the country. It is hoped that all ex-members of the Brigade will join up and enjoy the privileges of their old pals as they did in their boyhood days while going through the ranks.

Those interested in military matters will be glad to meet at Queen's College Concert with Corporal Brewster, who fought under the Duke of Wellington.

Dusk

A little chill wind came off the sea
 As the dusk was closing in,
 It whispered over the wrinkled sand
 Bringing sweet dreams to a sleepy land.
 But it brought only sorrow and pain to me
 As the dusk was closing in.
 The white spray came up the darkling beach
 As the dusk was closing in,
 The ripples ran back with a gurgling sound,
 And their laughter sung back from the rocks around.
 But for me their magic was out of reach
 As the dusk was closing in.
 A sea-bird circled above my head
 As the dusk was closing in,
 With exultant scream to the coming storm
 And the joy and the strength of life in his form.
 But to me there came only a dream long dead
 As the dusk was closing in.

Says Eskimos Prosper While Aleuts Decline

FORMER ARE TAKING TO WESTERN WAYS OF INDUSTRY.

Seattle, Nov. 12.—Eskimos inhabiting northwestern Alaska are prosperously advancing into new ways of living, but Aleuts, occupying the Aleutian chain of islands, seem downward bound to annihilation, a course into which they set before this country bought Alaska from Russia in 1867.

This report was brought by the cutter Bear of the Coast Guard when she reached Seattle from her 37th annual cruise into the Arctic Ocean. Indians, the other natives living in Alaska, dwell in the eastern part of the territory, where the Bear does not touch.

Eskimos of continental Alaska have taken extensively to trapping foxes and marketing the pelts. For this industry they resort to St. Lawrence Island, American ground in the Bering Sea, and to the 300-mile stretch of northwestern coast of North America on the Arctic Ocean between Point Hope and Point Barrow, the northern tip of Alaska.

But the outstanding demonstration of advancement among the Eskimos noted last summer by Lieut. Commander William P. Wishar, executive officer of the Bear, was that of the King Islanders.

King Island, three-quarters of a mile long and 700 feet high, lies in the northern end of the Bering Sea, near where Bering Strait connects the Pacific and Arctic Oceans. Its population of 175 lives in huts that are built on stilts, so precipitously do the sides rise from the chill waters.

The King Islanders have long been known for the ornaments they carve from walrus ivory and which they market every summer in Nome. Last summer they found a longshoremen's strike on in Nome. They fell to at the work, and for it received $15,000. This money they spent in Nome for supplies, largely flour, tea and sugar. The Bear took the Islanders home, and carried 30 tons of their purchases, including furniture.

For other staples, the King Islanders are usually well fixed. Right at their island they take the big walrus whose tusks afford ivory; the hair seal, which affords meat, heat and light, and the ugrook, a large seal whose flesh is sweet and nourishing. Blubber—layer fat beneath the skin—taken from the hair seal is burned by using moss and a wick.

Before Russia sold the territory the Aleuts numbered 25,000 in an archipelago extending westward 1,200 miles from the Alaska Peninsula to 500 miles from the Kamchatka Peninsula of Asia and dividing Bering Sea from the rest of the Pacific Ocean. But white men's vices—leading to white men's diseases—and in general white men's ways of living without white men's age-old training—set the Aleuts into the path of destruction.

Villages have become few in the Aleutian Islands. In Attu, at the western end of the Archipelago Wishar

The Family Budget

How Much for Insurance?

WHEN you draw up your family budget, do you set a stated percentage of your income aside for life insurance protection? If so, how much? Is it anywhere near adequate?

Life insurance should provide protection not only for children while they are dependent but for the assured's old age.

It is not an easy matter to determine how much insurance a man should carry in proportion to his income, his expenses and his family responsibilities. That's a matter upon which you may need professional advice. Mutual agents are equipped to give well considered counsel in such matters.

To-Night Last Chance to See "Twin Beds"

Monday Balfour Stock Company Will Play "The Unwanted Child."

Those who haven't seen the Balfour Stock Company's presentation of "Twin Beds" should avail of the opportunity to-night when it will be repeated for the last time. The bill is one continuous scream from beginning to end—there is a laugh in every line. The principal comedy role is cleverly enacted by W. W. Hankins, who provides gales of laughter in the role of Monti. His is a difficult part which he plays with dexterity. Loreta Nicholson and Chas. D. Hiser are seen in particularly good roles. Their acting is smooth and realistic. The entire supporting cast is excellent. There are six acts of refined vaudeville, which in themselves are attractions worth the admission.

On Monday the entire company will be seen in a play that has created a sensation wherever it has been played. "The Unwanted Child" is without doubt the most sensational production of its kind ever staged. What chance has the unwanted child? Starting out in life without a mother's love or a father's care. Every man, woman and child should see this play. It will make you think. It will help you realize the importance of each wedded couple and their duty to humanity. As an extra attraction Mr. Jack McKenna will recite "The Face On The Barroom Floor," with animated pictures. This is a wonderful week-ender show, which every person should make a special effort to see. Seats are now selling at the Box Office.

Stupendous Production at the Nickel Monday

LATEST FEATURE A STORY OF PARIS FILLED HIGH WITH NOVEL SCENES.

Slave markets of antiquity have their counterparts in modern life, according to Dimitri Buchowetzki, whose production "Men," starring Pola Negri, contains an illustration of how women are bought and sold to-day.

Filed by the Russian director as his first American-made picture for Paramount, "Men" contains the story of the amazing adventures of a French girl, "Cleo," who begins life as a waitress in a cheap wine shop and rises to fame as a dancer in Paris.

The role of "Cleo" is played by Pola Negri. Surrounded by a host of men who strive to win her favors by fair means or foul, she finally promises to give her company to the highest bidder.

Handled by the masterly direction of Dimitri Buchowetzki, the scene which follows is probably unsurpassed in the history of motion pictures. The camera moves from face to face where greed, passion, fear, avarice and desire are depleted upon each countenance. Bidding, one against the other, these men play the modern equivalent of the slave merchants of ancient times.

Chosen to support Pola Negri in this powerful picture of life among certain sections of European society which comes to the Nickel Theatre Monday, are well known players such as Robert W. Fraser, Robert E. Stone, Joseph E. Howard, Monte Collins, Gino Corrado and Edith Norton.

Dimitri Buchowetzki produced "Men" from his own original story which was dramatized by Paul Bern.

Eternal Life of Universe

Sun May Lose Light in Few Millions of Years, But That Will Not Mean End of All Things.

Is the universe immortal? A rather theoretical question as it cannot very well effect man's relation to it, and as it is rather small comfort to know that other worlds may roll on even if this one meets disaster, but it still brings up many interesting points. It is reassuring, for example, to know that the sun will probably burn on for some few millions of years. At any rate, the question has been interestingly discussed by Charles Nordmann, well known scientific writer, in "LeMaitre," Paris, he says: "Is the universe eternal; or, like man, is it marching on to inevitable death? Ticklish questions, the solutions of which always manage to escape us a little."

"Science in the nineteenth century believed that the universe tended inevitably to reach a stage where all be levelled down, where there will be no difference in either temperature or movement. This thermic death of the universe results from the Carnot principle. But now recent discoveries have brought a glimmer of hope into the souls of those who have been unable to resign themselves to admit that the universe is perishable."

"It seems well-proved that matter may transform itself into energy. A body which emits light sends forth energy, loses in bulk. Thus we know that the sun diminishes by 4,000,000 tons each second that it sheds its rays on the world. This seems a goodly amount to lose in bulk, but it is not great when one considers the total mass of the sun, which weighs two octillions of tons—2,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons."

"At this rate it will require some millions of years before the light of the sun will fall—a reassuring piece of news."

"But that is not all. It has been proved—so far as may be proved in such a case—that the stars form themselves by condensing as they leave the primitive nebula. This condensation heats them to a maximum beyond which the stars, still continuing their process of condensation, lose little by little their brilliancy until they are finally extinguished. Our sun approaches this deathly state. This is why among the stars it is relatively very small, very dense and hot—some six million degrees on its surface."

"Thus the masses little by little diminish in the universe and wear themselves out in energy. Does this mean, then, certain death? Not at all. To escape from such a fate it suffices that the radiating energy should reconstitute matter, and form in certain conditions, the simplest of atoms, the atom of hydrogen. This possibility is believed in by such scientists of first rank as MacMillan Lodge and Neher."

"True, there still remains a difficulty. The stars which no longer shine and have become cold would end by obstructing the heavens. If they were eternal they would be far more numerous than they are. To explain away this difficulty it is enough to admit that the dead stars which accumulate beneath a gold crust, pressures and temperature which are counted by millions of atmospheres and degrees, end by bursting into tiny atoms, thus returning to the universe works their bulk which for a time had been paralyzed. These the ories are speculative but are quite compatible with recent discoveries in science. To-day it is conceivable that the world may pass eternally through the same phases and, like the phoenix, arise again and again from its ashes."

Twisted Quotations

It is a sound rule, applicable to speakers and writers, that quotations should be verified.

No article or speech dealing with the training of children is considered complete without Solomon's injunction, "Spare the rod and spoil the child."

But Solomon said nothing of the sort! What he did say was, "He that spareth the rod hateth his son," and "rod" does not mean a cane, stick, or slipper, but simply, as Hebrew scholars know, "parental authority or guidance."

The word translated "rod" is the same as that used in the passage (Psalm 23) where David says, "The Lord is my shepherd. . . His rod and his staff they comfort me." The rod was the symbol of authority and guiding power.

Often, too, people quote David as having said, "All men are liars." The

An EASTERN CAP

The New Hotel

(By H. SHORTIS.)

The contractors for New Hotel are making wonderful progress, and, in a very short time we will have a magnificent edifice erected in this city of which the whole country may well feel proud.

In another month the roof will be on, and we will have a still better idea of what it will look like. But a general view of this solidly constructed building, with its splendid archways and lobbies, and a grand reception or dining room can now be discerned, and will undoubtedly be a credit to this country.

This Hotel will fill a long-felt want in this community and will attract scores and hundreds of visitors from all quarters, with new ideas for further progressive movements that will be of lasting benefit to our Dominion.

I am sure the projectors of the Hotel have been pleased with the numerous suggestions for a distinctive name, and this we must certainly have if we are going to make it the success that it deserves.

The name suggested by the Managers of the Royal Newfoundland Hotel is certainly a high-sounding title, but everyone, even visitors to our hotel, is in Newfoundland, therefore lacking in the name of our country seems superfluous. Even if this title were adopted it would certainly very soon be contracted to the "Royal Hotel" of St. John's, Newfoundland. This brings to my mind at once that the principal Hotel in St. John, New Brunswick, so well known for the past fifty years or more, is also called the "Royal Hotel."

When I was connected with the General Post Office in this city, I was continually meeting scores of letters re-addressed from St. John, N.B., to St. John's, Newfoundland, and can readily see that half the visitors coming here will have to telegraph at once to New Brunswick Hotel to get their correspondence sent here as quickly as possible. Such a similarity of names will never do, and the sooner we forget that title the better.

If my suggestion for a name will be accepted, I certainly wish to commemorate the historic name of Fort William. I can give many precedents for this, but the following should suffice. In Winnipeg their principal hostelry is called "Fort Garry Hotel," in remembrance of the old fur traders who founded the city. The remains of the old Fort are still to be seen in close proximity to the Hotel, but only date from 1835—just ninety years ago, whereas our Fort William was the principal source of defence against the renowned D'Arville in his French raid and must have been erected several years before that. It seems almost sacrilegious to be effacing this old Fort which has been one of the principal land marks in this city of St. John's for almost two hundred and fifty years. Fortunately, we have several other forts in more picturesque locations at the Narrows, and which must be preserved for future generations to foster our love and pride of country. In what better way can we install this than to keep telling our children and grandchildren how their ancestors fought and bled for the land we live in?

Now I wish to give the many readers of the Telegram some idea of what Fort William was like, which I have found in my researches in the old records. Here is the best description of what I have found:—"Fort William was built to command the entrance to the harbor of St. John's, and serve as a last resort of defence for its inhabitants. It was situated on the hill on the North East of the town."

"It was square in shape with four bastions, of stone or earthen works standing out from the angles to fortify or protect the walls."

"There was also a palisade of stakes or posts."

"A trench or ditch or moat surrounded this Fort, which I have no doubt was similar to the plans of the many old castles still to be seen in England, Ireland and Scotland."

"Over this trench was a draw-bridge with a small tower at one end."

"There were four cannon mounted on this tower. The balls for these cannon weighed four pounds."

"Under the tower there was a cellar for keeping gunpowder."

"It was undoubtedly a formidable fortress when built, and it well stocked with provisions and ammunition would put up a strong defence."

We can all remember the building where the officers' quarters were situated, in rear where the first Railway Station was erected, also the Ordnance Street very near where the East End Fire Hall now stands.

The Governor's residence was in the rear of York Street, with a fine garden surrounding it, but there is nothing of very little to trace these old historic spots to-day.

It has been my wish for many years to commemorate these old historic spots with Tablets, giving the facts connected with their early history of St. John's, so that our own people would reverence these localities, and the many tourists that we expect here would recognize, at once, what an important place our city was hundreds of years before those splendid cities of Winnipeg and Chicago were thought of.

I trust that I have said sufficient to draw the attention of our authorities to this matter, and what I would like to see is a proper tablet, engraved or carved in the front of our new Hotel, showing that the old Fort was like—and then we'll always remember why the Hotel should be called Fort William.

Germans Aid in Attempt to Recover Sub

FIRST FRUITS OF LOCARNO PACT.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The people of London are particularly interested in the fact that German deep sea divers are aiding in the attempts to locate the British monitor submarine M-1, which last week made a dive in the English Channel with 68 officers and men on board and failed to come to the surface.

Whether it is a business proposition on the part of the Germans or a voluntary service is not quite clear, but some persons prefer to regard it as "a striking act of humanity and worthy of being considered the first

Freed from suffering

An ex-alderman of the City of Hamilton got permanent relief from Kidney afflictions by taking Gin Pills.

"I have been unable to rest at night with pains around my kidneys and through the small of my back, at times so bad that I was unable to rise from bed without assistance. The trouble so affected my kidneys that urination was at times difficult, and at other times so frequent as to cause me great inconvenience. I started on a course of Gin Pills and before I had taken half a box I felt relief. Before I had completed the second box the pains had left my back and I felt quite restored and well again. I attribute my present excellent health entirely to Gin Pills."—J. S. Lillis, Hamilton, Ont.

YOU, too, can obtain release from suffering by using Gin Pills. Lame back, distressing headaches, bladder weakness, and swelling in the limbs, can be traced to kidney derangement. Gin Pills restore the kidneys to normal action and promote health by filtering the blood stream and helping the system to expel poisonous matter.

Don't delay. Buy a box of Gin Pills to-day and achieve good health as thousands of others have done.

The newspapers are filled with descriptions and pictures of the wonderful apparatus of which the Germans are the sole possessors. The machine weighs half a ton and is equipped with an electric light and a telephone. The area, some 12 miles of Start Point, where oil rose to the surface on the water on Saturday, seemingly indicating the probable location of the submarine, has been marked by buoys, and it is here that the first attempt to find the submarine will be made.

It is understood that this will be the first time the German apparatus has been tried in the open sea. All previous tests have been made in the still waters of an inland lake, and it is therefore, thought possible that the present experiment may not be successful. In any case the locating of the M-1 is considered problematical, as she may have travelled some distance under water before she became incapacitated or may have drifted with the currents in the Channel since she sank. Naval officials say they will not be surprised if the Germans locate one or more of their own submarines, sunk by the British in the neighborhood where the M-1 went down after they had taken toll of British shipping.

London the Biggest University City

"The last thing a Londoner thinks about London is that it is a university city. With his usual facility he reads of the beginning of term at Oxford and Cambridge without noticing the simultaneous opening of the academic year at London University," writes Mr. John Kingsgate in the Daily News.

"Yet London University is the biggest in the Empire.

"Her scattered colleges and rather loosely-knit constitution make it difficult to realize that she has almost as many students in residence as Oxford and Cambridge combined. But her two principal colleges—unassuming King's in the Strand, and more retiring University in Gower Street—alone total over 2,800 whole-time day students as against the 1,400 of Balliol, Christ Church, Brasenose, and New which are Oxford's biggest.

"In different parts of London are 35 other colleges and institutions affiliated to its University. The Imperial Science at South Kensington has 750 students, the East London 600, the Economics (off Kingsway) 800, the Birkbeck 600; and the Bedford for Women with 550 is far bigger than more famous Newham.

"Excluding evening classes, the registers of London University for the last academic year showed 8,860 internal students or undergraduates working for one or other of its almost innumerable degrees and diplomas. Against this Oxford has 4,150 and Cambridge 5,000 undergraduates, who, combined, outnumber London by only 200.

"Glasgow with 4,900 students, Edinburgh with 4,400 and the famous McGill, of Canada, and Sydney, in Australia, with 2,500 each, leave London the biggest 'Varsity in the Empire."

Postage Stamps as a National Commodity

As a trader in postage stamps, Portugal is said to be the foremost country in the world, although the distinction is not an enviable one, according to some journals. The question arises because of criticism directed against Turkey on account of a new system of 100,000,000 stamps of nineteen different values, notes the London Observer. Now these stamps are not of the speculative character produced for collectors rather than correspondence, it avers, but are a legitimate supply for genuine postal needs. This newspaper tells us further that during recent years Turkey has been making use of locally printed stamps of no particular pretension, and with the star and crescent device. But she wishes to assert her importance as a nation by producing a stamp worthy of her position, and it is said that while many of the new stamps will undoubtedly find their way into albums, far more will be used for correspondence. We read then:

"For an example of what countries will do in issuing stamps of an unwanted or speculative character, one must take Portugal rather than Turkey. Two years ago Portugal began operations with an issue of a series of stamps of sixteen different values, commemorating the flight of Portuguese aviators across the Atlantic. Last year in a similar way, but with double the number of values, the poet Camoens was commemorated. Early this year another new issue was produced, and again with more than thirty different values. This time it was for the centenary of the novelist, Branco. Next came a series of four special stamps commemorating the deeds of Portuguese troops in the Great War. More recently still there has been an issue, in sixty-six different values, in memory of the Marquis de Pombal, who planned the reconstruction of Lisbon after the Great Earthquake."

Use SIMONDS SAWS and MACHINE KNIVES

has been in general use for ordinary purposes, says The Observer, and some of them have been sold only through the Portuguese Mint, to which stamp dealers have to send their requests. A similar practice in Italy was stopped some time ago, owing to strong protests from Italian collectors, according to this newspaper, which goes on to say:

"With the rapid growth of stamp-collecting it is hardly surprising that the postal authorities of various countries should take into account the activities of collectors. At the same time it is generally recognized that a postage stamp is a symbol of national dignity, and that any prostitution for purely speculative commercial purposes can only lower a country's prestige."

NOT NECESSARY.

I worked for months for Gingham Gas, who runs the hardware store. I shined a 11 1/4 x 1 1/4 polished brass and maintained the floor. Oh, an I packed a hundred weight of hardware, I would say, "I wonder what that Gingham skate would do were I away? He surely knows that of his store I am the stay and prop; if I should come here nevermore his revenue would drop. I am the bulwark of his trade, its cornerstone. Am I, his rosy prospects soon must fade, if I should say goodbye. And yet a measly wage he pays—this Gingham must admit; and now I'll stamp him for a false, and if he balks I'll quit." When next I saw this Gingham, I said to him, "By Jones, for honest toil by day and night, you pay but meager bones, I am the mainstay of your store, its staff and pillars nine; and now you'll have to pay me more, or promptly I'll resign." For hiltzen's sake, resign," he said; "relieve me and my clerks; long, long you've had a swollen head, and thought you've been the works. Although you've been of little use I've kindly let you stay, still hoping for a good excuse to fire you, on a day. And now that good excuse you bring, and I'll get rid of you; pray watch me while I smile and sing, and dance the tra-la-loo." Now in my lone and darkened shack I drearily lament; if I could get my old job back, I'd be a wiser gent.

Household Notes.

Remember that cornmeal griddle cakes require longer baking than wheat cakes.

If you plan or paste your samples to your shopping list you will be sure to have them.

Have a little basket for odds and ends that need pressing when there is opportunity.

Farina croquettes are improved by the addition of a little finely minced pimento.

When sending flowers to a mother, include a tiny nosegay for the newborn babe.

Browned nests of mashed potato filled with peas make a nice garnish for planked chicken.

Sewing scraps can be used to scour the kitchen utensils. Thus saving your dish-cloths.

Harbor Grace Notes

An aged and respected citizen of this town passed away at his home on Harvey Street, Thursday morning last, in the person of Mr. Augustus Pynn. He had been in poor health for some time, but had reached the good old age of eighty-three years.

The late Mr. Pynn was a joiner, cabinet-maker and wheel-wright by trade, displaying his talent by making many fine and intricate pieces. His leaves to mourn his passing his wife, formerly Miss Jane Alcock of this town; six sons, Messrs. Selby of St. George's, John of Petty Harbor, George W. of Gambo, Albert of St. John's and Henry and Norman of this town; two daughters, Mrs. Alice Moore, of Sydney, and Mrs. Arch Yetman of this town; one sister, Miss Lilly Pynn, also residing here, and thirty-six grandchildren. The funeral was held on Saturday, when all that was mortal was laid to rest in the Church of England Cemetery to await the Resurrection Morn. Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved.

St. Paul's Women's Association and St. Catherine's Girls' Guild held their annual sale of work in St. Paul's Hall on Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week, and it proved a decided success. The various stalls were nicely decorated. Plain and fancy work was on sale, also candy and vegetables, each stall being well patronized while the centre of attraction was the refreshment table where the ladies were kept quite busy. The very fine sum of $396.00 was realized the first night, and on Thursday $105.00, making a most encouraging amount to the workers, as a result of their efforts.

The Ladies Aid and Girls' Guild of the United Church are holding their sale of work on Wednesday and Thursday nights of the following week, at Coughlan Hall, and we trust the ladies will meet with a good measure of success.

Mr. Robert Lee, Manager of the "Movie" here is now opening up a picture house at Bay Roberts, and will conduct two shows a week there, Tuesdays and Thursdays. The line of pictures shown at the British Hall here attract all movie fans, and we wish Mr. Lee abundant success at Bay Roberts.

Capt. Campbell, of the Salvation Army here, is leaving on Tuesday next en route to the United States, where he will remain for six months on furlough. He recently underwent an operation for throat trouble at St. John's, and is unable to carry on his Army work in his present state of health. Since coming to town, Capt. Campbell has made many friends who will wish him a speedy recovery to good health again, and a pleasant sojourn while absent.

Rev. Mr. Pickering, of the United Church, is visiting Bell Island during this week-end, to attend a missionary meeting which is being held there. Rev. Mr. Harris, the former pastor of the United Church here and now residing at Carbonear, will fill the vacancy at the Church here, during the morning and evening services on Sunday. The congregation will be glad to welcome him back again in their midst.

Sergt. A. Dwyer, who has been on fishery protection service on Labrador during the summer, returned home recently.

Mr. Jack Casey left here on Thursday last for Corner Brook, where he has accepted a position.

Mr. John Butt, Collector of Customs at Blanc Sablon during the summer months, returned home again recently.

Rev. Fr. Casey arrived in town last week from Fortune Harbor, on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Casey.

S. S. Meikle from North arrived on Wednesday afternoon, and after discharging a quantity of freight, continued on her trip, which we understand is her last for the season on this route.

The friends of Mr. Willis Stevenson, who has been seriously ill for several days past, will be pleased to know that his condition has shown signs of improvement, and we hope that he will soon be able to get around again.

Mrs. George Davey and Miss Irene Willis, of St. John's were in town last week on a visit to Miss Bertha Willis, "Eawthorne Cottage." They returned to the city again by Wednesday afternoon's train.

Beebe's New Book Falling Leaves

There are many adventures, stirring deeds and other things that thrill in Mr. William Beebe's book, Jungle Days (Putnam, 10s. 6d. net), but his chapter on "Falling Leaves," though told of the jungle, is so true of our own woods, forests and countryside just now that we cannot refrain from giving some of the paragraphs from this prose poem of Nature at this time of the year.

"The living leaf—both singly and in foliage mass—has been epitaphed, eulogised, sung, praised and smiled for centuries, but except for occasional references to the 'ere and yellow leaf' dying, falling and dead leaves have been left where they lie, with only the incense of their funeral pyres woven into the haze of Indian Summer," states Mr. Beebe. Later in the chapter he writes:—

"Now and then, near my feet, a leaf draws its edges together, turns a little and rustles gently all by itself as if even in death it dreamed of some unpleasant trifle, something which would please a green leaf, in sunlight, swaying high in air. Then, like a crumpled bit of paper in a wastebasket, it settles lower among its fallen fellows. Here it will wait patiently for the impact of the heavy rains, three or four months hence, to soften its stiff, crinkling tissues, and remould it into incrustations of other leaves to come.

"Falling leaves have a wind song all their own which is to be heard only when listened for consciously. When a fitful breeze is blowing, if the ear is held close to the ground, a low intermittent clatter and shuffling is audible, with occasionally a real 'rustle' as a delicately balanced leaf is blown over. Stand up and the carpet of dead leaves becomes silent, their gentle talk lost in the hubbub of living, moving foliage.

"In these jungles a falling leaf has a whole scale of sounds, as it runs the descending gamut of collisions.

Queen's College Concert will prove a real treat for lovers of good music and singing, while those who enjoy wit and humour will laugh as they have never laughed before.—nov21.5f

Our Dumb Animals

REPORT FROM CHIEF AGENT WEEK ENDING NOV. 21ST.

Attended to the landing of twenty-eight head of cattle from S.S. Ceuta. The cattle were very much bruised. Dr. Bishop was called to see a cow which was sick. Nothing could be done to save the cow, but the calf was saved. I called Mr. Cornick's attention to the condition and accommodation for cattle, which could be a lot better with very little expense. He promised to attend to it. Humanely put to death a dog for Mr. J. Moore, Brien Street that had been run over by a horse and carriage. Found a pony on LeMarchant Road which to my mind is very old and past its labour. It had strayed away and had been out all night. I found the owner who says it went away late in the evening and he couldn't find it. The pony will have to be destroyed. I have received several complaints from expressmen about delivering parcels late at night. Horses are yoked at 9.30 in the morning and are in the harness until 12 o'clock on Saturday nights. Some times, when people are not at home to receive their parcels, expressmen have to call twice. I think for the sake of man and beast things could be better and stopping be done earlier. I think there should be a law preventing clipping of cattle in a country like this and with such weather conditions. I have been informed that some ladies have refused to hire sleighs when the owners have their horses clipped. Attended to the discharging of fifty head of cattle, several horses, sheep, pigs and poultry from the Canadian Sapper. The steamer had rough weather and lost two or three head of cattle. The horses were exposed to much hardship, but came through alright. They were immediately taken away and the cattle were sold the same afternoon. Some registered cows were landed in boxes for Mr. A. V. Ross. All cows in this condition in the future will be landed in this way. Received reports of cattle being out at night under the bad weather. I received forty-two calls, all of which have been attended to. Quite a number of unlicensed dogs have been put to death. Also received complaints about dogs on the South Side attacking people. I will be attending to this. Cabmen are requested to keep their horses covered as much as they possibly can. An improvement is noticeable in truckmen giving their horses a spell going up hills instead of riding on their loads. I hope those who are in the habit of riding will do likewise. Four horses have been sent off the street for treatment.

charging of fifty head of cattle, several horses, sheep, pigs and poultry from the Canadian Sapper. The steamer had rough weather and lost two or three head of cattle. The horses were exposed to much hardship, but came through alright. They were immediately taken away and the cattle were sold the same afternoon. Some registered cows were landed in boxes for Mr. A. V. Ross. All cows in this condition in the future will be landed in this way. Received reports of cattle being out at night under the bad weather. I received forty-two calls, all of which have been attended to. Quite a number of unlicensed dogs have been put to death. Also received complaints about dogs on the South Side attacking people. I will be attending to this. Cabmen are requested to keep their horses covered as much as they possibly can. An improvement is noticeable in truckmen giving their horses a spell going up hills instead of riding on their loads. I hope those who are in the habit of riding will do likewise. Four horses have been sent off the street for treatment.

G.W.V.A. Circus Popularity Contest

If the lady candidates in the forthcoming Municipal Contest will receive the same support from their friends and admirers as are the fair contenders in the War Vets' popularity contest then they must certainly lead the poll and St. John's will enjoy the unique reputation of having a lady as Deputy Mayor. The close of yesterday's voting found the respective positions unchanged from yesterday's official standing with Mrs. Kinella still leading by a small majority, which Miss Marlon Moore second, and Miss Stella Crane valiantly holding her place as third. A new high record for one day's polling was established by Miss Margaret Firth who produced 2,925 votes. Miss Fannie Coady brought in 2,600 and will undoubtedly prove a strong incentive for numerous friends (particularly in the West End) to have the honours taken from the East End.

Easy Lessons in AUCTION BRIDGE

New Series by WYNNE FERGUSON
Author of "Ferguson on Auction Bridge"

ARTICLE No. 5

There are still a number of auction players who as dealer do not understand what to do with certain types of hands. Most players know when to bid no-trump or one of a suit but every now and then they hold hands that puzzle them. For example, suppose you dealt and held the following hand:

Hearts—A, K, J
Clubs—9, 7, 4, 3
Diamonds—A, K, Q
Spades—8, 5

What would you bid? The only proper bid with this hand is one no-trump and yet the heart of this hand passed. It is too strong to justify a pass for if you do, there is a very good chance of the hand being passed out. It will also mislead partner as to strength held. Here's another hand:

Hearts—A, K, 4
Clubs—A, 9

Hearts—K, J
Clubs—1, 6, 3, 2
Diamonds—9, 3, 2
Spades—A, K, 10, 4

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and passed, A bid one spade, Y one no-trump, B passed and Z bid two hearts. A and Y passed and B bid two spades, Z bid three clubs, A and Y passed and B bid three spades, Z bid four clubs, A doubled, Y redoubled and B bid four spades. Z and A passed, Y doubled, B redoubled and all passed. Y opened the ace of hearts and then led the trey. How should A play the combined hands? After winning the second trick with the king of hearts, A should lead the king of spades. He should then lead a low diamond and win the trick in B's hand with the king. He should then lead a low spade and win the trick with the ace in his own hand. In this particular hand, Z failed to follow suit on the second round of spades. A was now in a position where he could count Z's hand very accurately. Y's lead of the ace and the fact that B held the deuce indicated that Y originally held only two hearts. Therefore Z must have held six hearts. Z's bid and rebid of clubs indicated that he must have held at least five clubs so that his original holding must have been six hearts, five clubs, one spade and one diamond. Therefore, A at the sixth trick should lead a diamond and finesse the jack. Played in this way, AB should make their contract for YZ can only make the ace of hearts and two spade tricks. Play out the hand for practice.

Problem No. 3

Hearts—8
Clubs—none
Diamonds—none
Spades—K, 9, 5, 3

Hearts—Q, 7
Clubs—none
Diamonds—none
Spades—A, Q, 8

Hearts—K, 9
Clubs—none
Diamonds—none
Spades—J, 6, 2

There are no trumps and Z is in the lead. How can YZ win three of the five tricks against any defense?

Answer to Problem No. 3

Z should lead the jack of spades and A's best play is the queen. If A should play the ace, YZ will win the balance of the tricks. If A allows the jack to hold the trick, AB can only win one trick. When A therefore, plays the queen of spades, Y should win the trick with the king and lead the eight of hearts. If B plays the ten, Z should play the king and then lead the nine. If B plays low, Z should play the nine, forcing A in the lead. A can now lead a heart or a spade. If the former, Z wins the trick and leads a spade. If A leads the ace and small spade, Y will win the remaining tricks. In either case, therefore, AB can win one spade and one heart trick so that YZ win three of the five tricks against any defense.

Little Jack Rabbit

Soothing Syrup's a wonderful thing. For a tummy ache or a sneaker sting. It makes one feel so comfy and warm. Just like the sunshine after a storm.

And that's just what happened to Mr. Wicked Wolf as soon as he had swallowed Dr. Quack's wonderful medicine. You remember what might have happened as we ended last night's story, or what probably would have come to pass had not the famous duck doctor cured Mr. Wicked Wolf's hunger pains in the nick of time. I'll let you guess, for I'd hate to put the dreadful con-sequences into words.

"Ah, I feel better—almost well," smiled the old wolf, rubbing his hairy vest with his hairy front paw. "Why, I feel perfectly well. Not the least twinge of a hunger pangs."

"Glad I could be of service to you," replied Dr. Quack, the famous duck doctor, locking his little black medicine case. "Sorry that I must hurry on. Uncle Lucky has sprained his pinkie toe, the one that has the rump-tatz, you know. Goodbye," and turning to Peter Pig, he asked him to drive on.

Dear me, at first poor Peter Pig scarcely heard the brave duck doctor. Peter was so frightened he had all but lost his sense of hearing. Indeed, he had lost control of his tongue, for without a word, he clapped the reins on the back of Donkey Longears, who at once started off towards the dear Old Bramble Patch.

"Goodbye," again quacked the brave duck doctor, waving a wing to Mr. Wicked Wolf, who, wonderful to relate, stood quietly on the Old Cow Path, his face wreathed in smiles and his tummy soothed with Dr. Quack's magic syrup. With a bow, the old wolf watched the donkey cart rumble down the hill. Then, his face still a-smiling, he trotted off to his little rocky den in the Shady Forest.

"When!" at last exclaimed Peter Pig, having found his breath and the use of his tongue. "I never was so frightened in all my life. Thought my last minutes had come, sure as the hills on the first of the month."

"Pretty close shave," agreed Dr. Quack, jumping out of the rig as the little donkey stopped at the gate in the old picket fence, that ran all around the dear Old Bramble Patch. The next minute the little rabbit hopped out of the bushes. "Hurry, hurry Dr. Quack. Uncle Lucky's little pinkie toe is larger than his big one already."

"I'll unhitch Donkey Longears and put him in the Little Red Barn," called Peter Pig, as Dr. Quack and the bunny boy hurried toward the tiny white bungalow. "Can't always sometimes tell how long the effect of soothing syrup will last. Mr. Wicked Wolf

Locarno Treaty Lauded at Guild Hall Banquet

CHAMBERLAIN AND GERMAN AMBASSADOR SHARE LOVING CUP.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The ancient ceremonies attending the induction of London's new Lord Mayor including a long symbolic procession through the streets, which from time immemorial has been a feast for the eyes was carried out to-day in wintry, but bright-sunny weather, and attracted the customary great crowds.

The new Lord Mayor, Sir William Robert Pryke, is 78 years of age, but is still so sprightly that he was referred to by the City Recorder in his speech "as His Peety Pan."

The procession itself was on this occasion a sort of miniature Wembley Exhibition on wheels—a pageant of empire trade. The feature was Australia's giant plum pudding, guarded by a kangaroo and a nodding cow with six white horses driven by Father Christmas with a bobbed beard.

The ceremonies culminated with the historic guild Hall banquet, with its great Baron of beef and turtle soup, its city trumpeters to welcome the important guests, and other ancient rites of London's city father.

The banquet is a traditional occasion for political oratory, and there was a brilliant company of ministers of the Crown and prominent men in all walks of life.

Hint of Locarno.

There was a hint of Locarno in another Franco-German gesture, the French ambassador, M. Delfourieu making it a point of specially greeting the German Ambassador Dr. Stamer and chatting with him for several minutes at the reception preceding the banquet.

Among the guests were the United States, Spanish, Portuguese and Brazilian ambassadors, Admiral Lord Beatty, the Archbishop of Canterbury and Dean Inge. In passing the loving cup Mrs. Baldwin, on the one side, and Austen Chamberlain on the other, drank with Dr. Stamer.

After the royal toasts were honored Mr. Chamberlain toasted "The Ambassadors and Ministers" expressing the belief that peace was better off than a year ago, the foreign secretary devoted himself to the events at Locarno. He was convinced that what was done there responded to the conscious need of the whole world and would be ratified by every country, for he added, "no statesman would dare assume the responsibility before history of dashing from our lips the cup of hope that Locarno has presented and no nation dare face the obliquity which would follow denial to the world in the hour of its greatest need of its deepest and profoundest hope."

Mr. Chamberlain continued:

Spirit of Locarno

"But it is not the written treaties of Locarno which alone will work the change we desire. It is the spirit of Locarno that the world needs and must cherish. Mr. Lord Mayor, thanks to your hospitality I have drunk tonight a loving cup with the German Ambassador. What he and I have done this evening may our nations do to-morrow."

"We will work in the spirit of Locarno, that the peace of our world may be kept and civilization recovered from its wounds."

Mr. Chamberlain concluded with the hope that the same spirit for mutual good-will would hover over the treaty powers conference at Peking, bringing new fellowship between the East and West. He coupled the toast with the name of Senor Merry del Val, the Spanish ambassador, dean of the diplomatic corps, whom he described as "a representative of a sovereign so closely allied with our royal house, well known and admired in our country and of a nation with a great future."

The Spanish ambassador, responding, paid high tribute to the City of London, which he said, "amid all storms, political and otherwise, stands serene and immovable, a pledge to humanity of all most sacred and precious in life, a guarantor and trustee of peace."

High Tribute

He paid high tribute also to Mr. Chamberlain's accomplishment at Locarno. It was not only at Locarno that Great Britain evidenced her will for peace but she had sent the Prince of Wales half around the world as a messenger of peace, who had journeyed indefatigably in many countries and among many races, bearing in the folds of his mantle the "pax Britannica" founded less on force than on the power of Justice.

The British Minister Stanley Baldwin, replying to the toast to His Majesty's ministers, warmly praised Mr. Chamberlain's efforts at Locarno, saying:

"Everyone of his colleague is proud of him."

Apart from this reference, Premier Baldwin's speech mainly concerned home and dominion affairs and British trade and industrial prospects, in which he expressed tempered optimism. He believed that a large supply of cotton from America would stimulate Lancashire trade, and that the peaceful settlement of Western Europe would greatly help in restoring prosperity. Dealing with the valuable, unselfish and unheralded work of the common people he caused laughter by remarking:

"There are millions of good men whose names never get into the newspapers."

The other speakers included the Air Minister, Sir Samuel Hoare, who announced his department's willingness to lend a machine to contest for the Schneider Cup in 1926 in the United States and Earl Beatty, who urged the need of maintaining an effective navy.

"Heavenly" Twins

Among certain savage tribes in South-Eastern Africa, twins are regarded as the Children of Heaven, and are believed to possess the power of controlling the elements.

In times of drought the people will dig a hole in the ground, put the mother of twins in it, and pour some of their precious water upon her. They believe that this will cause rain to fall.

When a thunderstorm occurs the people appeal to a twin to "talk to Heaven" on their behalf. In many cases the mediator is a mere child, but the natives have implicit faith in his power to persuade the thunder and lightning to go away and leave them in peace. As soon as the storm has abated the youngster is reverently thanked for his intervention.

Snapshots in the Dark

After several years' investigation, Josef Suglye, of the Industrial Experimental Station of Osaka, Japan, is reported to have invented a black glass that is expected to prove of great military value.

The new glass is opaque to all but ultra-violet rays, and by its use battle formations or the movements of an enemy can be photographed in darkness without detection.

Moving pictures, it is claimed, can also be taken in the dark by the use of this black glass.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The inherent financial strength of Britain despite the industrial depression is illustrated by the announcement that during and since the war the people's investment in one pound war savings certificates, to the end of September, has totalled 750 million sterling, the amount remaining so invested being 370 millions.

During 1925 certificates have been selling at the rate of a million sterling per week and each week brought 10,000 new buyers.

MIVARD'S LINIMENT FOR COLIC

Campaign to

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—Spent in preparing campaign to eradicate tuberculosis in Canada.

This campaign is by the National Research Council of Canada. It will launch the scientific work along this line in new policies which it will co-ordinate with the tuberculosis forces which will receive a further impetus.

The announcement of the National Council of Research to undertake this work last spring, during the war against tuberculosis, was a landmark in the history of research work in human anatomy (polity) in Canada.

At this meeting, drawn up which were the whole of the tuberculosis research. The report was sent to the committee of the National Council—a small body of importance in the various items of the report was sent to the Council. After the amount of money required to carry out the programme, it was decided that the Government would have a share in the cost of the vote passed by Parliament last year, which with all of the money available to the Council, the amount of $30,000 available which, it is estimated, will be enough to carry the work until next spring.

The value of the money, it is pointed out by H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, cannot be measured in money basis.

The Council by providing houses for ideas and a complete program of research, is helping all the work in Canada in such a way that there is no duplication—work which has never been done before.

It is estimated that the work can be well advanced in some of the most important fields. Some of it is being done by the millions of dollars spent by institutions and individuals. As a matter of fact, the Federal Government has spent huge sums annually.

Opium Smuggling

AMAZING STORE ACCIDENT

"News of the World" By the merest chance, a Shanghai police officer has discovered a store of opium worth $1,000,000. The store was hidden in a room in a building in Shanghai. The police officer was on duty at the time and discovered the store while on duty. The store was hidden in a room in a building in Shanghai. The police officer was on duty at the time and discovered the store while on duty.

Campaign to Eradicate Tuberculosis.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—After six months spent in preparation, the national campaign to eradicate all forms of tuberculosis in Canada has been launched.

This campaign is being directed by the National Research Council of Canada. It will not increase so much the scientific work now being done along this line—although certain new policies will be inaugurated—but it will co-ordinate it. The anti-tuberculosis forces of the country will receive a leadership which hitherto has been lacking.

The announcement that the National Council of Research was going to undertake this work was made last spring. During the summer months data was collected on all branches of tuberculosis research, and in October a meeting of the most prominent scientists now engaged in the war against tuberculosis was held in Ottawa. This meeting was attended by those who are doing research work in human, bovine and avian (poultry) tuberculosis.

At this meeting a report was drawn up which set forth under 13 headings the whole field of tuberculosis research. This report was sent to the committee of the National Council—a smaller body—and here the various items were tabulated in the order of importance. From there the report was sent to the National Council. After estimating the amount of money which would be required to carry out the whole programme, it was decided that the Council would have enough money out of the vote passed at the last session of Parliament to go on practically with all of them. Accordingly the Council decided to start in at once and $30,000 has been made available which, it is thought, is enough to carry the work through until next spring.

The value of the campaign now underway, it is pointed out by Dr. J. H. Crisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, cannot be estimated on a money basis.

The Council by providing a clearing house for ideas; by laying out a complete programme, and by co-ordinating all the work now being done in Canada in such a way as to prevent duplication—is doing something which has never been done before. It is estimated that most of this work can be well advanced in five years. Some of it may be concluded.

Millions of dollars are being spent by institutions and individuals. As a matter of fact, the Federal Government has been spending huge sums annually.

Opium Smuggler's Cave

AMAZING STORE FOUND BY ACCIDENT.

(News of the World) Special. By the merest chance the police of Shanghai have alighted upon one of the most immense stores of opium in the world, weighing at least 1,000 lbs. It lay in an underground cave, guarded by a cunning maze of secret passages, concealed doors, and unsuspected traps, illuminated by electricity, ventilated by electric fans, and connected by tunnels with three separate and unsuspected houses. It constitutes one of the biggest drug stashes in history, and because Shanghai is a port whence it is suspected some considerable supplies for the world's drug traffic, the discovery is likely to have far-reaching and important effects. The story opens with an ordinary raid on a Chinese shipping office at King Lung Li, an alley-way of the Siantung-road.

The place was in the form of an arcade, and had been suspect for some time. It was twice previously raided by the Shanghai police, swooping down upon it and given it a thorough search each time without coming across much as a grain of the drug. On the third occasion they spent an hour ransacking the place, and eventually found themselves in possession of some five pounds of dope, and three Chinamen, one of whom lay asleep in bed, grasping in his outstretched hand a small jar of cooked opium. So far, then, the raid had been justified. But the police were by no means satisfied. The officers, leading the raid went outside and saw on their flanking caps. Then one of them had a brain wave, and the men in the party were turned on to measuring up the block of buildings—a suggested area of shops and lodging-houses—both inside and out. An amazing discovery was made. The tapes were entirely unaccounted for a space some ten feet high and forty feet wide, which, closed between cement walls, apparently possessed neither doors nor windows. Men of the raiding party promptly sent up to the roof, where they found another such structure. It seemed they were standing just an ordinary old-tiled Chinese roof. Closer search, however, disclosed the fact that in one corner a number of the tiles appeared to be loose and displaced, and further investigation showed that the officers had stumbled on what was undoubtedly the hidden and only outside entrance to the underground store. The congested block of buildings was quickly surrounded, and then those already in the "entrance hall," so to speak, began a series of experiences that were to last the whole day. More than half a dozen concealed doors were discovered, and with them over half a dozen secret chambers.

All on the water-tight compartment principle, guarding the actual store-houses. Each separate chamber was connected with its neighbor by a concealed ladder reached only by a hidden trapdoor. There was, in addition, an amazingly elaborate and intricate maze of narrow passages, and in one case a hollow wall was found. This, together with other obstacles, the police demolished with axes, but at length they found their progress barred by a steel door at the end of a long descending tunnel cut in the earth. This door was forced from its hinges, and the detectives crossed the threshold of the opium cave. By the light of electric bulbs the police searched the pile after pile of opium of every class and description; opium from Kschewan, Turkey, Persia, and India. It was packed in slabs, in packets, and in balls, and the sticky reek of the vast accumulation of the drug almost overpowered the officers. The work of removal disclosed a further secret chamber—a place that had evidently been used by the smugglers as a sort of office. Here was seized a quantity of papers which, it is expected, will throw a flood of light on the operations of the smuggling that goes on in Shanghai and perhaps also on the vast ramifications of the world-wide traffic and the sinister syndicate controlling it. Elsewhere were discovered boxes which reeked of opium, two large copper cans used for boiling the drug, scales for weighing it, and implements for cutting it up for sale. Of the three Chinamen arrested and taken before the magistrate, two were servants in the place; the other was staying there temporarily. Two were ordered to pay £50 each and the third man £100. It is pretty clear, however, that the real people behind the affair have not yet been traced, and their identity remains a mystery at the moment.

MEM-O-REA'S OUTSTANDING PROGRAMME. Commencing next week, Majestic Theatre will release the first of a series of super special pictures. As previously announced, these pictures compare favorably with "The Covered Wagon," "Loves of Mary, Queen of Scots" and "Robin Hood," and surpass many of the much greater advertised features. There are about twelve in number of those celebrated pictures, costing a fabulous amount of money. Such pictures as "North of 36," are not easily secured, but the Management have been very successful in this respect, and instead of capturing one or two, have secured a complete dozen.

MEM-O-REA next week will extend himself in his revelations and mind reading act, and the public are herewith informed that they will avail of this opportunity to convince them more so than ever, that he is all that he claims to be.

Rita Johnson, the dancer who has already won fame in this country and elsewhere, will be seen in an entirely new act next week.

The Pony Contest is still waxing strong, and everywhere one hears of competitors who are fast piling up big votes. Much interest is still attached, and the question is still asked: "WHO IS GOING TO WIN THE SHEPHERD PONY?"

Railway Records

The highest speed on record of an express train was attained on May 9th, 1904, when on the Great Western Railway, a mail train from Plymouth to Bristol touched a definitely registered velocity of 101.3 miles an hour. The same line holds the record for performing the fastest over-all journey, covering 118 1/2 miles from Bristol to Paddington in 89 min. 46 sec. at an average speed of 78.3 miles per hour.

The world's record for many years has been held by the Cornish Riviera Express, which every day travels from London to Plymouth without a stop, 225.7 miles in 247 minutes (writes R. McNaught in "Railway Records").

In Great Britain the largest station is Waterloo (London), where in twenty-four hours, 1,400 trains are dealt with at 2 platforms; the busiest junction is Clapham Junction, through which upwards of 2,000 trains pass every twenty-four hours.

A Great Speaker

LORD ULLSWATER IN LIGHTER VEIN.

Among the many accomplishments of Lord Ullswater, better known as Mr. James William Lowther, one of the greatest speakers of all time, were his rich vein of humour and his large-hearted charity. In his life of retired leisure, Lord Ullswater, following many distinguished precedents, has written a delightful volume of reminiscences, in which his characteristic gifts find full expression. "A Speaker's Commentaries" (Arnold) will appeal to an unusually wide circle of readers, for it is full of piquant stories, and it is a volume that will find a place on the shelf of every politician. Lord Ullswater mixed from his infancy with "people who matter." As a child in Berlin, where his mother was then living, he was among the playmates of the ex-Kaiser.

My recollection of him is that even then he did not readily brook contradiction, was always masterful in our children's games, and always claimed, though he had not always achieved, the victory. He would also insist upon by brother Gerard dipping his finger in the inkpot, so that he, William, should not be the only one to have, as he had, a black nail on his withered hand.

Another friend of Lord Ullswater in his younger days was "Bobby Spencer," afterwards Lord Spencer, who never forgot that he was "a high-born aristocrat," and "not an agricultural labourer."

A story partly illustrative of this characteristic used to be told of him at Cambridge. On his return from a short Easter vacation, he was asked by his friends where he had spent it. "In Portugal," he said. "In Portugal? What a strange place! Did you know anybody there?" "No," he replied, "only the King."

Here is a wrinkle that will appeal to Occupants of Unsafe Seats in the House of Commons. After making a speech or two, a certain Mr. Wharton, who was standing as a Parliamentary candidate, was taken ill, and sent for the local solicitor to take his will.

In this document, after expressing great gratitude for the generous reception which had been accorded to him, he bequeathed to the various charities and institutions of the borough large sums of money from his (imaginary) estate. . . . The news of his generosity and intended beneficence rapidly spread, and on the polling day he was duly returned.

Some interesting sidelights on the relations of the late Lord Randolph Churchill and the late Lord Salisbury are given. The latter, on being asked whether the loss of Lord Randolph would not be a serious blow to his Government, is said to have replied: "Did you ever know a man who, having got rid of a bull on his neck, wanted another?" Among the strange stories of the book is that of Mr.

A Great Speaker

LORD ULLSWATER IN LIGHTER VEIN.

Campbell of Dunstaffnage, told by him to Lord Ullswater:— He said that when he was a young man he went out to Australia. On one occasion, as he was driving a flock of sheep down from his farm towards the town, an old newspaper which was being blown about by the wind got round his feet. He disengaged himself from the encumbrance and resumed his tramp, but the newspaper again got round his feet. In time he picked it up and read it. In the advertisement columns he found an advertisement inquiring for the whereabouts of one Campbell, presumed to be the heir to the Dunstaffnage estate, and this eventually turned out to be none other than himself.

That newspaper was probably the "News of the World." Here is a good story of a night in the House of Commons in 1914.

Mr. Williams was in the middle of an excited debate and feeling was running very high, not only in the House itself, but in my wife's gallery, where some alterations had taken place between Lady Londonderry and Miss Asquith. I received a pressing appeal from Mrs. Asquith to keep order among the ladies admitted to that sanctum. This duty generally fell to my wife, but she was abroad, in Madras, at the time, and so I scribbled the following reply:—

Dear Mrs. Asquith,—I have as much as I can manage in keeping order amongst the devils below, without having to control the angels above. A capital story relates to the Queen Victoria Memorial. After it was unveiled the police were instructed to give information about the allegorical figures grouped round it. One of these is "Maternity," representing a buxom lady with several children at her knees and feet. An inquirer, on being informed of the meaning of the figure, replied, "Maternity? Then she ought to be ashamed of herself, for she has no wedding ring."
