AS no one claimed the body of the man, W. Kelly, who was killed by a train near the Brooke siding last Wednesday, Coroner Dr. Martyn, of Alvinston, handed over the body to W. H. Harper, of Watford, Inspector of Anatomy for the county, and interment was made in the Watford cemetery on Saturday.

SEVERAL FARMERS in this vicinity are now threshing their wheat crops, the grain running from 35 to 45 bushels to the acre. The oat and barley crop is now looking better than was expected last week when the deluge of rain left the water up to the bands on low lying lands. Now that the weather is settled all the grain will soon be in and the loss will not be as great as predicted a week or so ago.

LIUT.-COL. R. I. TOWERS, of Sarnia, who has been appointed to the command of the 70th Regiment, C.E.F., is one of the best known officers and citizens of this section. T. DODDS & SON have received an acknowledgment of the package of old razors sent to Toronto to be forwarded to Sheffield to be put in order for the boys at the front. Another shipment will be made shortly. If you have an old razor around the place, bring it in to Dodds', as many are needed. An old country firm is generously fixing them up as good as new. The soldier boys need them, and you know a man does not feel much like fighting if he needs a shave.

THE first open air concert of the season was given by the Citizens' Band on Friday evening last. The program, though short, was much enjoyed by all who heard it. The crowd would have been larger if the concert had started earlier. Nine o'clock is too late to commence. The children were tired waiting and should have been making for home at that hour. Let future concerts start at 7:30 or 8 o'clock. When all business places are closed at 6:30 there is no excuse for such a late start.

THE Monetary Times publishes the following pithy sentence sermons applicable to war time: Workers not shirkers are needed now. Blue-pencil blue talk but nevertheless work hard. Do your part in the common round and daily task. Do not act as a negative influence in national development. Business never comes to the man who waits—at least not good business. Would you rather be doing business in a country other than doing business in a country other than Canada? Keep up your spirits, if only

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Ten million men in the German army and navy service to-day! Should we wonder why more recruits are needed in Canada?

Anybody who proposes peace at the present moment is classified by the act as a pro-German. It is only the Germans who have anything to gain at the present time by peace. Those who are busy insinuating peace proposals had better consider their position if they wish to retain the confidence of the allies.

The saner element in the German nation is beginning to assert itself. There is a campaign going on to suppress the "Hymn of Hate," of which decent Germans have always been rather ashamed. The whole sane section of the socialist party is campaigning against the policy of annexation which the militarists swear by. A prodigal nation may come to its senses amid swine and the husks as well as a prodigal son.

A reduction of $200,000 in the outlay on road construction in Ontario under the Good Roads Act this season, is indicated by the estimates submitted to W. A. McLean, provincial engineer of highways, by the score of counties interested. Last year the actual expenditure on road construction was $847,000, of which the Government contributed one-third. The estimates this year provide an outlay of only $640,000. This amount may be exceeded, but the department puts the limit under $700,000.

Westminster Gazette.—Our young men are not falling in the field, and our workmen will not fall in the factory. We are not in a state of alarm and discouragement because the Germans have got to Lemberg; we are not wringing our hands because temporarily there is a deadlock in the western arena. We are doing our utmost to make ourselves as we are a naval power, and, though no other nation has ever accomplished that feat in the history of Europe, we mean to do it. Of course we make mistakes, and, of course, our accomplishments fall short as yet of our hopes and expectations. But we set no limit to our effort except what is enough, and we shall not weary until in concert with our allies we have achieved our purpose.

A correspondent of the Toronto Globe writes: I read an article in the Globe on Monday last deploring the apathy of a large number of young men and those the best fitted in every sense of the word toward enlistment. This crass indifference to the critical condition in which our Empire finds itself at the present moment is indicative to me of something far more alarming and much deeper than appears on the surface; it is to my thinking a sort of dry rot, deadness of soul, the result of having things come too easily, and their acceptance as the merest matter of course. The freedom and prosperity which these same young men enjoy and hold in such slight esteem were won by young men who had not a tithe of their advantages in civilization or education, nor in sport, but who valued the liberty which has made these things possible in our day as something worth dying for, and who did not count the cost. Is there any way of awakening these young men to a sense of their attitude?

HOME HINTS

Few people realize how wholesome grape fruit is. The Americans in Ohio and Michigan use them almost as much as oranges. In them we get the natural quinine that our system often requires. A friend of mine (a doctor's wife) uses the rind in this way: cut it into a pitcher; pour water in it, and after standing a few days, take it before meals as a healthful tonic. The way I like grape fruit, and I think it very pleasant to taste, is to quarter and cut to get the rind off easier; then cut inside in small pieces in glass dish, sprinkled to taste with sugar. Let stand one hour or so, then pour about a coffee cup of cold water over; stir well and set away until wanted to serve either as a dessert or sauce.

Make your rural house beautiful. Lay out spacious grounds around the farm house, plant shade trees, lay gravel roads and plant flowers. Don't lay up all your net earnings for the benefit of your heirs and lawyers, but spend some of it in beautifying your home. The farmer who always shuts his eyes to the aesthetic features of his life and screws himself down to the task of making money, loses a large portion, and the biggest portion too, of his existence. His home should be an attraction to himself, to his wife, and above all to his children. Unpleasant homes in too many instances drive the sons of farmers to the towns, to excitement and dissipation and to wreck. Such sons do not generally leave pleasant homes.

What are you doing to build up your own town? Are you doing anything? "Honest Injun," now what are you doing? Your property is here, your business probably is here, your heart even is here, when you come to think of it. Every dollar added to the value of the town adds something to what you personally are worth. If there is a town in Canada worthy of the pride and interest of its citizens it surely is this town. What are you doing towards making it grow larger, to grow better, to grow more beautiful or more desirable as a place of residence? Are you doing the slightest thing? Are you as much as restraining from abusing those of your neighbors who are working, one way or another, in it's best interest? Do you even make it a point to buy your goods at home where competition is keen, stocks large and prices low? Finally, do you ever think about this matter at all? The village's interests are your interests; it's property is your prosperity, and it's pride ought to be your pride. Is it? And, if not, is it simply because you have never thought about the matter in this light? Think now. Straight and honest thought on this matter is not merely important, it is vital.

WATFORD PEOPLE PRAISE SIMPLE MIXTURE

Many in Watford praise the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-I-ka. This remedy is the most THOROUGH bowel cleanser ever sold being even used successfully in appendicitis. ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it the gasses rumble and pass out. Adler-I-ka cannot gripe and the INSTANT action is surprising. Taylor & Son, druggists.

What Britain is Doing

A striking tribute is paid to the part Great Britain has played in the war, which shows how she is bending her energies to the colossal task, by the Chicago Daily News. It enumerates these things:
 1—Holding the seas for the ships of her Allies as well as for her own.
 2—Protecting the coasts of her Allies as well as her own.
 3—Struggling in co-operation with the French to smash the Turks and win the Balkans for the Allied cause.
 4—The rendering of great aid to the French and Belgian troops in resisting the terrible onslaughts of the Germans on the Allied left wing.
 5—Making loans and supplying munitions to nearly all her partners in the war.
 6—Pursuing a financial policy in Southeastern Europe likely to promote the cause of the nationalities.
 7—Putting into the field more than ten times as many men as she ever promised.
 8—Guarding her own soil and people against an invasion, which, if it came—and it is believed to be far from impossible—doubtless would be the most savage, the most unsparring, ever known. With how many men? Well, with enough. To hear some people talk one would suppose that upon Britain was laid the duty of defending every land but her own."
 There are those in Britain and Canada who are disposed to find fault because more has not been accomplished. Independent testimony like the foregoing ought to be convincing evidence that Britain is doing her part well.

The Pill That Brings Relief.—When, after one has partaken of a meal he is oppressed by feelings of fullness and pains in the stomach he suffers from dyspepsia, which will persist if it be not dealt with. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the very best medicine that can be taken to bring relief. These pills are specially compounded to deal with dyspepsia, and their sterling qualities in this respect can be vouched for by legions of users.
 At the present time over 80 per cent. of the women in Great Britain are engaged either in voluntary work or in professional or industrial work.

A Charming Little Miss Who Posed to Aid a Charity.

COSTUME OF COLONIAL DAYS.

With a Bevy of Her Playmates Phyllis Byrne Helped Raise a Fund For Wounded French Soldiers—Puzzles and Games For Little People.

A beautiful entertainment was held in New York recently, in which children were conspicuous. It was the Lafayette fete and had for its object the raising of funds to help the wounded soldiers of France. The entertainment was mostly tableaux, and the girls and boys who took part were dressed in costumes of the colonial period of our history. In those days the dress of both men and women was much more elaborate than the styles that now prevail. Men wore their hair long, and, like the ladies, they powdered it on dress occasions. Very quaint and pretty the little folks looked in their old time dress. The girl here pictured is Miss Phyllis Byrne. Doesn't she look sweet as a lady of the olden time? There were many more similarly dressed, and after the tableaux they danced the minuet and the Virginia reel. The little dancers made a charming picture, had a good time and at the same time did something to relieve suffering.

Missing Word Game.
A game that affords much amusement is played with a letter that has been written beforehand, with blank spaces left where the adjectives belong. The writer does not let the players know what he has written, but asks each for an adjective, placing the adjective so given in the blank spaces in regular order. When the spaces have all been filled the letter is read to the company, and it never fails to be amusing.

The game may be varied by leaving a number of blank spaces, and instead of asking for adjectives to fill them the writer may ask for any part of speech that the players may choose to give him. As no one knows about what the letter is written, a very incongruous epistle will be the result.

Transmutations.
Example.—When the letter A is slightly covered it has been of use. (A veiled—availed).

1. When X is large it is a model.
2. When D has suffered pecuniary punishment it is explained.
3. When the letter I is rented it is a small island.
4. When D satisfied its hunger it became a time.
5. When X hammered it was explained.
6. When J went fishing it disagreed.
7. When M imitated a dog it went on board a boat.

Answers: 1, X ample—example; 2, D fined—defined; 3, I let—let; 4, D'ate—date; 5, X pounded—expounded; 6, J angled—jangled; 7, M barked—embarked.

leave off the first two and last letters and I become something to study. My whole is pleasant to gather around. What is it?
Answer.—Hearth.

Charade.
My first is a dog
Of no special breed;
His name you oft see
In papers you read.
My second is seen
In a ragged old dress,
But when in a nice garment
It causes distress.

My two form one word—
In all rivers 'tis found,
And in other swift waters,
But ne'er on dry ground.
Answer.—Cur, rest—current.

LACE AND EMBROIDERY.

Directions For Making Corner of a Table Spread.

Embroidery.—Most of the leaves are outlined in buttonhole stitch, others have one side worked in buttonhole stitch and the other side in chain, small trail or stem stitches. The veins, scrolls and stems are done in stem stitch and the fillings of the leaves in honeycomb, herringbone, braid or buttonhole stitch, the latter in one or two rows. Work the small leaves on the scrolls and stems in satin, buttonhole or herringbone stitch and turnovers in buttonhole stitch. The flowers are treated in the same way as the large leaves and their sepals worked in satin stitch.

Drawnwork.—For the band of drawnwork leave one and three-quarters inches of linen and draw out threads

FRUIT NEWS

Plums will be at their best the last two weeks in August. The first to get to market are the Gages and Burbanks. The Burbank is the best Japanese plum. Everybody knows the preserving qualities of the Gages. The quality this season is unusually fine and it will be well to put down an extra supply. Early River and Alexandra peaches are also ready. They are both supremely delicious sliced with cream. The Triumph is the first yellow fleshed peach, and excellent for canning. Better quality will be obtained both in peaches and plums if orders are placed early.

LIEUT. R. H. STAPLEFORD of Watford, wounded at Festubert on June 15th and invalided home.

WELCOME HOME

Lieut. Stapleford Receives an Enthusiastic Reception by the People of Watford and Vicinity.

The first of what it is hoped will be a series of hearty welcomes to our returning soldiers was given on Saturday evening when Lieut. R. H. Stapleford arrived home from the battle front on a three months' leave to recuperate from his wounds, and it lacked nothing in warmth and enthusiasm. When it was learned that Lieut. Stapleford was on his way home a committee was named to make suitable arrangements for his reception, and they did their work well and were ably assisted by the people of the town. At about 6.15 a crowd began to gather at the C. T. R. station, word having come that Lieut. Stapleford was in London and would arrive in Watford on the 8.39 train. By the time the train pulled in every foot of space on the platform and approaches was taken up and the railway yard was filled with automobiles. When he alighted from the train, limping on crutches, he was met by Lt.-Col. Kelly and a detachment of soldiers under command of Adjutant Browne of Alvington. After a hearty cheer the band struck up, "O, Canada," and Lieut. Stapleford who was accompanied by Lieut. Chesham, of Strathroy, was escorted to Lieut. J. H. Mitchell's auto where his wife and family, including baby Mons (whom he had never seen until they met him in London) had already been seated.

Reeve F. Kenward then stepped forward and read the following address:—

TO LIEUT. R. H. STAPLEFORD—
On behalf of the citizens of Watford I wish to express our pleasure upon your safe return to your old home town and to your family. We gladly welcome you and trust you may speedily recover from your wounds and be able to answer Roll-Call at the front again. We congratulate you on the "Bit" you have had the honor to do for King and country and hope to hear from you again. Canada has every reason to be proud of her boys at the front, and we are justly proud of our Watford contingent. We are sorry that some have fallen but hope to be able to welcome many of them back again when the menace to our Empire is past. We are sorry that owing to your arriving so late in the week we could not make arrangements as we wished, but hope to be able to add to our welcome of to-day at an early date. Again we wish you speedy recovery and every success as an officer and one of our "Boys."

(Signed) F. KENWARD, Reeve. Watford, Aug. 14th, 1915.

Lieut. Stapleford made a short reply thanking the people for the warmth of their welcome and protesting that he had merely done his duty.

Reeve Kenward then called on Mr. R. Stirett, of Petrolia, Dr. Pickering, Messrs. H. J. Petypiece and John Farrell, of Forest; Lieut. Chesham, of Strathroy and Rev. F. G. Robinson, of Watford, to say a few words. The first speaker tendered a hearty welcome to the returning officer and praised him and the other heroes from this district who have helped in the noble and self-sacrificing work of endeavoring to crush the German despot and his hateful system of militarism, and thus preserve the cherished British ideals of liberty and democracy so dearly bought by our forefathers on the field of battle. The speakers endorsed the sentiments expressed in the civic address of welcome and were glad of the opportunity of joining with the people of Watford in the enthusiastic welcome accorded Lieut. Stapleford.

The "Maple Leaf" and "God Save the King" were then sung and a procession formed by Sergt. Davis, acting marshal. The Citizens' Band was followed by a detachment of volunteers, 20 strong, then came the auto with Lieut. Stapleford and family and over thirty other autos, most of them gaily decorated with flags and bunting. The procession went up Main St. to the Public Library, turned and went back to Front St. where the National Anthem was played and Lieut. Stapleford was

The streets were crowded with people of all ages, from the venerable octogenarian to the toddling babe, everybody who possibly could turned out to add to the welcome. Main Street was profusely decorated with flags and bunting.

Lieut. Stapleford has been invalided home for three months. One ankle was badly fractured by a shrapnel shell and is still in bad shape. The foot will be saved, several plates having been inserted, but it is doubtful if the ankle will ever be strong enough to permit of heavy marching or work necessary in the firing line. He has six other wounds, one a bayonet thrust in the arm, but these all have healed.

While in London Lieut. Stapleford was interviewed by a Free Press reporter and he made the following statement. It will be found of interest:

"He paid a glowing tribute to Col. Becher, Major Smith, Capt. "Fritz" Robinson, Lieut. Campbell, Capt. Helliwell, Capt. Swift, Capt. Wilkinson, and other officers of the 1st Battalion who were killed or wounded.

"Col. Becher was one of the finest officers a battalion ever had," said Lieut. Stapleford. "He was a splendid soldier, brave, considerate, and a most likeable man. The officers and men thought the world of him, and they were sorry to lose him. I was talking to him a minute before he was killed. He gave me an order to take reinforcements to Capt. Smith, and I had hardly left him when he was killed. He was calm to the last and died like a hero.

"Capt. Smith, of Chatham, was wonderful. He took his men to the second line of German trenches. He was having a terrible time, and sent back for reinforcements. Getting no answer, and as he was wounded himself, and not useful for fighting, he decided to go back for reinforcements himself. He crawled the whole distance, although every step gave him terrible pain. Just as he reached our trenches he was killed by a sniper. It was a brilliant bit of work.

"Lieut. Campbell, of Mount Forest, who has since died of wounds, was another officer who played the game magnificently. He is certain to get the Victoria Cross, as his feat was one of the most courageous we ever heard of. He was shot in the hip, badly hurt, and the Germans were crowding him. He was in charge of a machine gun, and lay down in the trench. He held his legs up and a sergeant placed the gun on it, and fired 3,000 rounds. He was beside me on a cot, and I thought he would recover. He was a fine chap. Capt. Helliwell, Capt. Swift, Capt. Wilkinson, in fact, all of them showed the stuff they were made of. The men in the ranks fought like demons, and never gave up for a minute. We got an awful grueling, but we did not fail to do credit to Canada.

"The machine guns of the Germans are what are doing the great damage, and our troops will have to get more. The enemy place them in their trenches on concrete in a semicircle and they are hidden so that it is almost impossible for the big guns of the British and French to reach them. If they do not all the guns are put out of action, with the result that they pepper us constantly. We must have more machine guns, although more are coming. We have been using the Colt gun, and it is not so satisfactory as the Lewis gun. However it seems impossible to get them. The campaign for machine guns here should produce good results, although it is going to be difficult to get them for a time.

"I saw Lieut. Chester Butler just before I left. He came to visit me in the hospital and has recovered from his wounds. He is in the record office, and is doing well. He is a fine officer. "The reception Sir Robert Borden is getting in England is wonderful. He, Major-Gen. Hughes and others visited us, and in every hospital he was given a splendid reception. He is one of the big figures in Great Britain at this time.

"In fact, the Canadians are treated with every consideration. The men in hospitals are visited by the scores, who are anxious and willing to do everything possible for them. They place motor cars at your service, and do what they can to make one comfortable. When we walk the streets we are given the best that can be had.

"I was at Shorncliffe for a time, with the machine gun section. I met Lieut. Forbes-Mitchell and other officers of the 18th. This battalion is in great shape, one of the finest in the world and is ready. I expect to hear any day that they have gone to the front. There is a rumor that they will go to the Dardanelles, but no person knows anything about that, definitely, except those in high authority. They will give a good account of themselves."

War Notes

Petrograd, Aug. 16.—The Germans attacked Ossowetz to-day, preceding the attack with a bombardment by asphyxiating gas bombs. The wind suddenly changed, and the Germans fled in panic to escape the poisonous fumes.

Three thousand Germans, who were caught between the fire of the fortress and that of their own artillery, were overtaken by the gas and practically annihilated.

Ossowetz is a fortress in northern Poland near the German border.

Amsterdam, Aug. 16.—Despatches from Berlin to-day state the Government has commenced the 1915 crop of oats throughout the Empire.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 16.—Hon. T. Chase Casgrain announced at the Canadian Club banquet in Vancouver to-day that he had been officially advised by the Minister of Militia that fifteen thousand of the Canadian soldiers now in Britain will be sent to the Dardanelles.

London, Aug. 16.—Parton, Harrington and Whitehaven, in Cumberland, England, on the Irish Sea, were bombarded to-day by a German submarine, a British official statement to-day announced. Some fires were caused, but the damage was slight and there were no casualties.

The text of the statement follows:—

THE CALL TO ARMS

Every fit young Canadian should be in khaki.

The need of the Empire for your services was never greater.

Britain's war is Canada's war and Canadians must share in its results.

Every male German over the age of 17 is compelled to perform military duty.

Every Canadian owes a similar duty to his country and to the Empire. He is expected to do the duty voluntarily, and the time is now.

Conscription has been a hateful word to all Britishers. It depends upon how those of military age come forward in this supreme crisis whether conscription will be necessary or not.

The King's Scapegoat

An Account of a Duel Fought in the Sixteenth Century.

By F. A. MITCHEL

[This story is more than a story. It is a historical account of a duel that occurred 400 years ago and a fine illustration of the difference between the method of settling affairs of honor or among men in the olden time and the beginning of the nineteenth century, when mortal combat to settle difficulties between individuals may be said to have received its quietus in the new world in the death of Alexander Hamilton at the hands of Aaron Burr.]

"How comes it, Gulchet, that you are able to make so brave a show with the revenues which you have, for I know that they are not excessive?"

The question was asked of Guy Chabot Sieur de Jarnac by the dauphin, who afterward became Henry II., king of France.

Jarnac, embarrassed at such a question, was unfortunate in the choice of words used in his reply. He said that his stepmother kept him, giving him everything he required. Henry deliberately misconstrued the statement and reported to members of the court that Jarnac had boasted of a love affair with his stepmother.

Horrified, indignant at such an accusation, the young man publicly declared that whoever had made the assertion was "a malicious villain and had wickedly lied." Then, hastening to his father's chamber, he threw himself at his feet and protested that he was innocent of the charge. Having convinced his father, he returned to court intent upon avenging the injury done him.

The dauphin found himself in a very unpleasant position. When princes err there must be a scapegoat. Francis Vivonne, Sieur de Chatagnerie, a courtier in favor both with King Francis and the dauphin, a young warrior of great prowess, though a friend of Jarnac, seeing that he would confer a great favor on the future king by doing so, took up the quarrel in his behalf, declaring that it was to him and him alone that Jarnac had made his boast.

Duels at this time were a part of the feudal tradition and law of France, requiring the consent of the king. Francis referred the matter to the privy council, which after a long debate recommended that permission to fight be refused. But no sooner had the king died and the dauphin ascended the throne than Chatagnerie addressed a letter to the new king, repeating his accusation, whereupon Jarnac made a request that the duel be permitted to take place. The king consented, and arrangements for the contest were forthwith made.

Chatagnerie was twenty-six years old, while his adversary was thirty-six. The former was also of great strength and very ready with his sword. He was continually boasting of his feats of arms and ever ready to pick a quarrel. In short, he was just the man to vindicate his royal master in his contemptible charge.

At that time the same rule of the code, that the challenged party should have the choice of arms, existed as it has since. Jarnac had accused his adversary of a lie and had been challenged; therefore he was permitted to fight in any way he pleased. Upon the advice of his fencing master he demanded the heavy armor and long double edged sword in vogue a century before. The reason for this was that his opponent had been wounded in battle in the right arm and had never regained perfect use of it, and the heavy iron gauntlet and sword would naturally hamper the movements of this arm. Chatagnerie's great strength gave him an advantage in closing with his enemy, downing him and stabbing him while prostrate. The armor in this case would be to his disadvantage. Jarnac also stipulated for heavy shields, which would be an advantage to the weaker party, who would naturally be on the defensive.

Chatagnerie seemed to have no fear whatever of making an easy conquest of his adversary. As he was accustomed to boast of the deeds he had performed, he now boasted of the deed he was about to perform. He ordered a banquet to be served in his tent on the field, to which he invited the court to celebrate his victory.

Naturally the affair was the sensation of the day. The courtiers were largely on the side of the king's scapegoat, and Henry did not deny that his own sympathies were with Chatagnerie. The provincial nobility, of whom the Jarnac family were members, regarded Jarnac as the defender of their honor and looked upon him as their champion. One of the powerful Guise family was to act as second for the royal scapegoat, and the Duke de Vendome of a rival family to the Guises asked the king's permission to act for Jarnac. He was refused and, disgusted at the king's favoritism, withdrew, followed by the other princes of the blood. The constable of France then filled the position.

The king having announced his intention to preside at the encounter, the constable made arrangements in accordance with the dignity of the occasion. The field having been selected, a space for the combat was marked out and suitable accommodations provided for the king, court and nobility, the king and his tribune in the center, the tribune being the constable and marshals of France, who were the judges.

The day of the duel was a beautiful morning in midsummer. Crowds from Paris began early to pour forth toward the battleground. The archers of the guard took the place of modern policemen in keeping the crowd from breaking through the barrier and invading the field of battle. The king arrived, attended by his sister, princes of the blood and many nobles. A singular feature was an executioner and his assistants, who were intended to take charge of the corpse of the vanquished, in case he was killed, for hanging on a gibbet.

As soon as the king was seated the herald advanced and proclaimed the combat, asserting that no one should interfere with either of the combatants on peril of his life. Chatagnerie left his tent, accompanied by some 500 of his friends. Jarnac next appeared, escorted by the grand equerry and 120 gentlemen wearing his colors. The shields of the combatants were hung on either side of the king. Then came the ceremony of the presentation of the arms, which was principally a testing of the weapons. This having been accomplished, there was another long proclamation from the herald, and the combatants having paraded around the field, preceded by their arms, after a religious ceremony in which each affirmed his cause to be a just one, they were conducted to their stations, and the herald, advancing, shouted, "Laissez aller les bons combatants," which means in plain American, "Let 'em go!"

Such is a condensation of the preliminaries to a duel in high life during the middle of the sixteenth century. The fight was by no means commensurate with the preparation, for it was decided quickly. The duelists advanced. Jarnac slowly, protecting himself with his shield; Chatagnerie rapidly and full of confidence. As soon as they met the latter sprang upon his opponent, aiming a crushing blow at his head. Jarnac, instead of warding off the blow with his sword, as was to be expected, received it on his shield and ducking, made a thrust for his opponent's legs. He struck Chatagnerie in the hollow of the knee. Before the latter could recover himself Jarnac repeated the thrust at the same point and cut the tendons, giving a new phrase to dueling—the coup de Jarnac, which in those days was not a foul, but perfectly legitimate. Chatagnerie staggered, dropped his sword and fell, the blood flowing from his wound.

A cry of amazement greeted this conquest of the champion swordsman of France within a few seconds by one who had no especial reputation as a man at arms.

By the code of that day three courses were open to the victor—he might kill his opponent and hand his body over to the executioner to be hanged; he might spare his life after exacting a restoration of his honor by the vanquished confessing himself to be in error, or he might surrender him to the king. Jarnac called upon his enemy to restore him his honor. Chatagnerie's reply was an attempt to rise, but it failed. Jarnac, then advancing to the king, said:

"Sire, I entreat you to esteem me a man of honor. I give you Chatagnerie's life. It is our youth alone which is the cause of this trouble. Let no imputation rest either on his family or upon him on account of his offense, for I surrender him to you."

But the king, not realizing that his scapegoat was unable to continue the fight, made no answer. Jarnac raised his eyes to heaven. "Lord, I am not worthy, for it is not to myself, but to thee, that I owe the victory." Then, returning to Chatagnerie, he begged him to surrender. But the scapegoat, raising himself on one knee and regaining his lost sword, endeavored to strike. Jarnac stepped back, saying, "Do not move or I will kill you."

"Kill me," replied the vanquished man and fell back exhausted from loss of blood. Again Jarnac went to the king and implored him to give him the victory, a victory which condemned the king himself, but Henry refused. Jarnac, expecting that his former friend would bleed to death, cried: "Sire, he is dying. For the love of heaven, accept his life at my hands!" Henry, refusing to pronounce his own condemnation, still refused till the constable joined his entreaties to those of Jarnac. Then Henry, seeing that the sympathies of the assembly were against him, said to Jarnac, "You have done your duty, and your honor should be restored to you." And he ordered that Chatagnerie be removed. Jarnac had the right to be escorted from the field by his followers to the sound of martial music, but he declined the honor.

When he refused the king, having had time to curb his disappointment, called him to the tribune and, as the victor was about to kneel to him, embraced him, saying that he had fought like Caesar and spoken like Aristotle. Never was there such multiplicity of preparation for so brief a contest, never a more flagrant case of a man guilty of a contemptible act accepting the defense of another and being judge of the issue, withholding the verdict until forced by opinion to pronounce it.

At the conclusion of the tournament the brilliant assembly broke up, and the king leading the way, all returned to Paris. Jarnac's victory fell no less heavily on the king than on his defender. Chatagnerie felt his fall so keenly that he refused to live after it. The surgeons bound his knee with bandages, but he tore them off. Again they put them on, and again the miserable man tore them off, repeating the act till at last he bled to death.

HE WENT BY THE RULE.

Noted the Exceptions.
It is not bewildered foreigners alone who fall into the traps for the unwary that our confusing grammar and orthography lay. Many a despairing American with no natural aptitude for spelling hesitates or flies to the dictionary long after his student days are over because, although he remembers the rule, he does not remember the exceptions.

"And in our rules of spelling," protested one unfortunate professor—not of orthography—"it isn't even a case of 'majority rules'; it's merely plurality. Sometimes, I'm sure, the minority of exceptions to a rule isn't beaten by the words that comply with it by more than one."

A correspondent of the New York Sun recalls an illustrative incident of his school days. His teacher was self satisfied and young, though he knew it all—but did not.

There was in the class a young lady who rejoiced in the good Scots name of Gilles. When the class was organizing the "professor" read her name as "Jillies." The young lady protested, but in vain; "G' before 'I' is soft."

Well, of course an eighth of a quart is a jill, but what of a fish's gill? And the "know it all" teacher should have been hanged on a gibbet, but even he would not have asked the hardware man for a jibbet. Not in his jibbist moment of pedagogic authority would he have said, "Jibbet, give me a jilt wheeled jig," if he wanted the liverrman to supply him a gig with gilded spokes for his holiday diversions. Not even he, snapshot arbiter of linguistic niceties, would have asked at the library for Jibbon's "Decline and Fall."

And if he has a daughter who she be a jilt? But Gilles must be called Jillies because "g" before "i" is soft—Youth's Companion.

Napoleon III.
Kinglake, the British historian, gave a curious explanation of the origin of the title of Napoleon III., assumed by Louis Napoleon. He said that when Louis Napoleon's adherents were manufacturing public sentiment to receive him a subservient minister, who was preparing a proclamation, wrote these words: "The people's cry will be 'Vive Napoleon III!'" The printer mistook the three exclamation marks for three I's, and the proclamation was so issued. This was considered a good story when it was related, but it has lacked confirmation.

Chicago.
The word Chicago is taken from the Indian word "Chicagou," the redskin word for thunder and name of the Indiana thunder god. The name was given by the Indians to the "Chicago river," an inlet into Lake Michigan, and this gives its name to the city.—Indianapolis News.

Distinction.
"What distinction do you make between 'entertainment' and 'art'?"
"Entertainment," replied the theater manager, "is what people want. 'Art' is what people want to make other people think they want."—Washington Star.

Pretty Thin.
"Thin?" replied the man who was talking about a mutual acquaintance. "Well, he's so thin that when he eats macaroni he can only swallow it one piece at a time!"—Pittsburgh Press.

FACIAL PLASTER CASTS.

Having One of Them Made is a Mighty Disagreeable Process.

Perhaps nothing can be imagined more disagreeable than the process of taking a plaster impression of the features.

The person whose face is to be "taken" is placed flat upon his back, his hair smoothed back with pomatum to prevent it covering any part of the face, and a conical piece of paper, a straw or a quill put in each nostril to breathe through. The eyes and mouth are then closed, and the entire face completely and carefully covered with salad oil.

The plaster, mixed to a proper consistency, is then poured over the features to the thickness of one-quarter or one-half inch.

In three or four minutes this plaster can be taken off as if it were a film, but they are very long minutes. The victim must not sneeze, smile, cough or otherwise move a muscle, or the whole process will have to be repeated.

When a cast of the entire head or of the whole human figure is required, either a cast of the face is added to a mass of clay which is to be modeled to the entire figure, or the whole figure is modeled from drawings prepared for the purpose. This is the work of the sculptor.

When the clay model is finished a mould is made from it. A thin ridge of clay is laid along the figure from the head to the base, and the front is first completed up to the ridge by filling up the depressions two or three inches deep.

The ridge of clay is now removed, the edges of the plaster are oiled, and the other half is done in a similar way. The two halves are then tied together with cords, and the plaster poured in.

In complicated figures, like the Laocoon, the statue is oiled and covered with gelatin, which is cut off in sections by means of a thin, sharp knife, each piece serving as a mold for its own part of the new statue.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Newspaper Extras
One of the prevalent misconceptions regarding the war is that "it is a thing for the newspapers." The objection is the result of a prevalent notion that there is money in newspaper "extras." Nothing could be further from the truth. There is no money sale copies of newspapers at any time because the sale price seldom covers cost of white paper alone, and "extras" are issued after regular hours involving special telegraphic tolls, overtime for printers and the rest, the lot very considerable. For the average newspaper the war makes great additional expense, with loss of revenue occasioned by the disturbance of business, consequently is anything but a welcome visitor.

One the prevalent misconceptions regarding the war is that "it is a good thing for the newspapers." The observation is the result of a prevalent conviction that there is money in newspaper "extras." Nothing could be further from the truth. There is no money in sale copies of newspapers at any time, because the sale price seldom covers the cost of white paper alone, and when "extras" are issued after regular hours, involving special telegraphic tolls, overtime for printers and the rest, the loss is very considerable. For the average newspaper the war makes great additional expense, with loss of revenue occasioned by the disturbance of business, and consequently is anything but a welcome visitor.

The German Temper

Perhaps the most salient weakness of the common mind of Germany is the persistent judgment of the mind of other nations by its own standard. Because Germans have convinced themselves, or rather, have allowed themselves to be indoctrinated with the notion that they are the salt of the earth they are convinced that every other people is ready to welcome them as the heralds of a new and higher civilization. They actually present themselves as the apostles of freedom and, to all appearance, imagine that the waiting world is ready to herald their advent with sword and fire as the dawn of liberty. When they find that their peculiar brand of "kultur" is detested rather than appreciated, this does not abate one particle of their conceit. German rule, if not accepted, must be imposed.

That in brief is the notion that had been assiduously instilled into the German mind. With Germans it has become an article of faith that they have been created to dominate everything and everybody. According to their idea they are the embodiment of super-humanity, the flower of mankind. Therefore, they assume, in order to establish their dominion they are justified in using all means lawful and unlawful, in pursuing a premeditated policy of frightfulness, and in violating all law, human and divine. If this is the end of civilization then civilization has proved a curse rather than a blessing, and freedom, right, honor, names not realities, reached only to be found apples of Sodom.

Help the Wounded

One thing this country absolutely owes to the men who are fighting its battles in France and Belgium. Those who are so wounded as to be in any way incapacitated or to lose any part of their earning power must be provided for out of the national funds. There must not be the faintest shadow of a possibility that any man who has lost a limb or had his nerves shattered in his country's service will become dependent upon charity.

The war has been in progress for a year. Many of our men have been at the front for six months and longer, and the problem of providing for the crippled is already arising. It must be faced, thoroughly and promptly. Canadian self-respect will make short work of any Government which fails to do its full duty on this score. There is no reason why the men should be a burden on the community; there are many trades at which they can earn a good living and feel themselves independent, if the necessary training is provided for them and they are supported while receiving it. The time for action is now.

Buying at Home

I bought some rags of Tailor Scragg's and paid him when I got 'em; he wept with glee; "For now," says he, "I'll pay my bills, dod rot 'em." So on the run he took the mon, and paid the corner grocer, whose trade was bad, and who was sad, because the wolf draw closer. This made him smile, and for a while the man of teas and sages, thought cheerful thinks, forget the kinds, and paid his clerk with wages. And William Burk, the old head clerk, put up some thankful phrases; his wife was ill--his druggist's bill had worried him like blazes. The druggist cried, "Doggone your hide, I thank you for your roubles; I'm in a hole and need a roll to ease my weight of troubles." The druggist paid that winsome maid, his first assistant, Annie, and just for luck she blew a buck for roller skates for granny. And thus my seeds brought help to lads and girls beyond the counting; much trouble ceased, and joy increased, and kept on mounting, mounting. You see, my friend, if you should spend your coin with local dealers, you're spreading glee and ecstasy to beat the sunshine spielers.

His Own Enemy

There are men reading these words who can from experience say the writer of Proverbs knew what he was talking about when he said, "A man of great wrath shall suffer punishment; for if thou deliver him, yet thou must do it again." You can't save a hot-headed fiery-tongued man from his disposition by reasoning with him. He needs a walloping to bring him to his senses. The man who is always aching for a fight will never get the lust for conflict out of him until somebody licks it out of his body. The quarrelsome, meddling fellow who jaws and laws everybody will never get sense until it costs him enough to make it hurt. There is the litigious old farmer who "lawed" until he lost his homestead and had to go at last to work for his day's pay. He is not as fond of law, although it is just as hard to say what he might do if he had enough money to tempt a lawyer. There is that business man who quarreled with his neighbors and friends until they let him alone and his business died with dry rot. He is clerking at ten dollars a week and no doubt if he hadn't to keep his mouth shut where he is, his tongue would get him in trouble still.--SOLOMON.

The Western Fair, London, Ont.

The railway rates for the Exhibition this year are very favorable. One way ordinary first class fare will prevail over all roads from Toronto west, and fare and one-third from outside points. Tickets will be good from Friday, September 10 to Monday, September 20th. Exhibitors rates are good at one fare and a third from Tuesday, September 7th, to Wednesday, September 22nd. These rates and long dates should be an inducement for the people of Western Ontario to pay London a visit during exhibition week. There will be a number of changes this year. The Ladies' Work and School exhibit, instead of being in the gallery of the Main building, will be in a separate building on the ground floor, next to the Agricultural Building and connected with it by a passage way. A new building has been erected for the Dog Show near the Machinery Building and just opposite the Midway. There will be a first-class program of attractions twice daily and the management are confident that with good weather conditions the Exhibition will be a great success. All information, prize lists and programmes from the Secretary, London, Ontario.

"Chickens, of course."

"Well, ma'm that's what the cat has had."

Michigan has an outbreak of a new cattle disease. Animals are dying in large numbers. It is not like the foot and mouth disease. At Elsie, in Clinton county, 10 cattle were reported to have died from a peculiar bleeding at the mouth, preceded by a heavy swelling in the head. From Hart, in Oceana county, some reports of deaths in the same manner. The state authorities are of the opinion, from descriptions written and telephoned, that the wet weather has caused the growth of some weed, which under ordinary dry conditions is scarce, of a poisonous nature. This, coupled with the sour grass wet weather always produces, will bring about a forage poison.

curb. A couple of days preceding the election there was a parade in which there were 500 cars as well as perhaps 100 waggons. This would simply give you some idea of the interest the public were taking in the vote. Even had they been handicapped as in Ontario yet the vote would have carried. A question now of enforcing the law will be the point, and there is a general feeling throughout the province that the Alberta Government will make an effort to see that it is carried out, in fact so strong is the feeling now on this point that the Government has a pretty good idea what will happen to them if they do not enforce it. With kindest regards to yourself and all other old friends, Yours very truly, GEO. W. HAGLE. August 7th, 1915.

Death of W. J. Ward

W. J. Ward, a well-known and highly-respected citizen of Sarnia, died at his residence there, aged 65 years. He carried on a private banking business there. The deceased gentleman was born at Valcartier, Quebec, on January 1st, 1850, and came with his parents to Upper Canada and settled in Metcalfe township in 1863. He was educated at the old grammar school in Stratroy, and taught school for three years, afterwards entering Fawcett's Bank, Watford. He had followed the banking business ever since in New Hamburg, Bridgen, and for the last twelve years in Sarnia.

He was a member of the Anglican church and a prominent Mason and Shriner. He was buried at Sebringville on Friday.

Willoughby—Campbell

A happy event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell, 6th line, at ten o'clock, Wednesday morning, August 11th, when their daughter, Hazel Henrietta, in marriage to John W. Willoughby, of Smith's Falls, Rev. J. F. Sutcliffe, uncle of the bride, officiated. The bride, who wore a dress of cream duchess mousseline silk, and veil prettily trimmed with orange blossoms, and carrying a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley, entered the parlor on the arm of her father, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Howard Walker, cousin of the bride. After a dainty wedding dejeuner the happy couple left by auto for Watford, and from there took the train to Toronto and other points east. The bride's going-away dress was of navy blue serge, made in military style, with hat to match. After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby will reside on his farm on the bank of the Rideau River near Smith's Falls.

Geo. A. Lewis Shoots Self

Detroit, August 16.—George Andrew Lewis, aged 45, founder and principal of the Lewis School for Stammerers, shot himself three times, once in the head and twice through the breast, at his home early to-day. He is still alive, but recovery is considered improbable. He first started his school at Petros, Ont. A nervous breakdown, due to despondency over a broken hip, which he sustained in an accident during the winter, is given as the cause for the suicide attempt. Mrs. Lewis, on August 2, filed suit against her husband for separate maintenance.

Bambridge—Campbell

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Campbell, Dutton, a pretty wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon, August 11th, when their youngest daughter, Margaret Elma, in marriage to John G. A. Bambridge, son of Mr. J. Bambridge, of Watford. At 5 o'clock, the groom, attended by Ernest Lawrence, of Toronto, took his place beneath the green arch, prettily banded with flowers, to await the bride. To the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, played by Miss Lola Campbell, the bride's sister, the bride, daintily gowned in white silk crepe, trimmed with seed pearls, and wearing veil and orange blossoms, entered with her father, preceded by the bridesmaid, Miss Elna Hollingshead, wearing a charming pink silk gown, and the maid of honor, Miss Vera Bambridge, sister of the groom, in a pretty apple green silk frock. The simple and impressive marriage service of the Presbyterian church was read by Rev. N. A. Campbell, of Inwood, uncle of the bride. After the ceremony the thirty guests sat down to tables decorated with white dahlias and gladioli, and partook of the dainty wedding supper served by the girl friends of the bride. While the guests were looking at the many beautiful gifts, the town band, of which the bride's father had been leader for over twenty years, as a compliment to their leader, played several selections on the front lawn. The young couple left for a short honeymoon in Muskoka, the bride wearing her travelling suit of blue silk. Upon their return they will reside in Dutton. The groom's gift to the bride was a cameo necklace, to the bride's attendants and pianist pearl necklaces, and to the groomsmen a gold tiepin.

SUMMER HEAT HARD ON BABY

No season of the year is so dangerous to the life of little ones as is the summer. The excessive heat throws the little stomach out of order so quickly that unless prompt aid is at hand the baby may be beyond all human help before the mother realizes he is ill. Summer is fatum, dysentery and cholera are most prevalent. Any one of these troubles may prove deadly if not promptly treated. During the summer the mother's best friend is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and keep baby healthy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Patriotism the Dominant Note

"This will be 'Patriotic Year' at the Canadian National Exhibition, and our directors desire that all exhibitors will endeavor to give effect to the patriotic idea in the decoration of their booths." This is a paragraph taken from a circular sent out by the Exhibition officials to all exhibitors, and is in keeping with the general plan laid out for the year. The idea is to make the whole Exhibition a lesson in loyalty and Empire patriotism, and every exhibitor who gets space will be required to have a British flag or Union Jack prominently displayed. The Fair at Toronto this year will be one grand patriotic picture.

WYOMING

Wyoming, August 16.—Farmers, in order to expedite matters, are cutting by hand the lower portion of their fields, hoping a day of sunshine may allow binders to operate. The tangled and lodged grain complicate cutting difficulties. A few days would bring to a close a harvest of unusual promise, but sadly deteriorated through a continuation of rain. Mrs. John Maw, an elderly resident of the south part of the village, is suffering at her home from an attack of paralysis.

The Minister of Education has fixed October 7th and 8th as the dates on which the West Middlesex Teachers' Institute will be held this year.
