District and General.

Strathroy's tax rate has been struck at 27 mills. Last year it was 26 mills. The annual Irish picnic at Port Stanley will be held on Thursday, August 12th.

Four thousand persons attended the Negro emancipation anniversary at Sandwich.

One load of old hay was sold for $18 a ton on the market at London, Ont., on Friday.

Since the objective in the machine gun fund is to raise enough to buy ten quick-firers.

Forest council has made an appropriation of one thousand dollars for a machine gun.

Farmers within a radius of 100 miles of London, Ont., have purchased 1,700 autos this year.

The Manitoba Grain Growers have promised some 10,000 acres' produce for patriotic purposes.

Bothwell, Thamesville, Dutton and Ridgeway will have hydro electric power in a few weeks.

The Alvinston canning factory owned by the Dominion Canners will not be in operation this year.

The collapse of a culvert, due to heavy rain, caused the wrecking of cars on the Wabash Railway near Corinth.

Sheriff Dugald McColl, of Elgin, died at St. Thomas on Tuesday in his seventh year. He was formerly a member of the Ontario Legislature.

The Dominion revenue for July shows a net gain of $123,483, but for the first quarter of the current fiscal year a net decrease of $382,262.

The Minister of Education has fixed October 7th and 8th as the dates on which the West Middlesex Teachers' Institute will be held this year.

Miss Mary O. Graham is suing the town of Strathroy for $200 damages for the act of a gang of hydro men who cut down a tree in front of her residence.

Leamington is undertaking to present the military department with a machine gun, notwithstanding the fact that the town has made cash contributions for patriotic purpose aggregating $25,000.

Four Merin young men got on the top of a store in that place and started throwing stale eggs at an Indian doctor and his wife on the street below. The men were brought before the magistrate and were fined $12 and costs each.

The death occurred in Strathroy of Miss Alice McNally, daughter of the late William McNally, of Metcalfe township. Miss McNally had been ailing for three weeks at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ezra Gough, where she passed away.

German airships raided the east coast of England on Monday night, killing one man, eight women and four children, and wounding four men, six women and two children. Aeroplanes attacked the Zeppelins and destroyed one of them.

The donation of at least 20 machine guns to the Canadian troops is the aim of the Middlesex Patriotic League, which was organized at London to direct a machine gun campaign in London and Middlesex county. The Lewis gun, of English manufacture, and costing $1,000, is the type decided upon.

Do not allow worms to sap the vitality of your children. If not attended to, worms may work irreparable harm to the constitution of the infant. The little sufferers cannot voice their ailment, but there are many signs by which mothers are made aware that a dose of Miller's Worm Powder is necessary. These powders act quickly and will expel worms from the system without any inconvenience to the child.

Your King and Country Need Your Money NOW!

At a special meeting of the committee of the Glencoe Patriotic Association, held on Thursday evening, it was unanimously decided to raise money for one or more machine guns. Our boys at the front must be equipped with every possible weapon to avoid unnecessary loss of life and to hasten the day of victory. It is the duty of every Glencoe citizen to do his part, and do it now.

The committee wish you to decide and be prepared to give very liberally towards protecting your home and country. Monday, August 16th, the following canvassers will call on every citizen:—Dr. J. Y. McLachlan, E. T. Huston, L. Suttler, J. A. Scott, Rev. C. H. P. Owen, Jas. Poole, E. M. Doull and C. B. McLean.

Bulletins of progress of canvass will be posted at 10.30 a. m., 12 noon, 3 p. m. and 6 p. m. on the bill boards between the Merchants Bank and Scott's drug store.

Think of what others are doing! Appin is busy and has already raised hundreds of dollars. Strathroy is giving two or more guns, Mount Brydges one, Thamesville three or more.

Any person outside of the village who feels his country's call may contribute to any member of the committee.

DO YOUR DUTY, AND DO IT NOW.

SOME LOCAL OPINIONS.

Reeve J. A. McLachlan:—I think the purchase of a machine gun is the best move the village has made yet.

Councillor Allan McPherson:—We must do something and we must assist in a financial way if we cannot go ourselves.

Councillor A. J. Wright:—I am in hearty sympathy with the movement. We should have awakened to our duty long ago.

Councillor P. D. Keith:—We are all of the same opinion. Is anybody saying different?

J. H. Neve:—England expects this day every man to do his duty. It is a duty incumbent upon me as a British subject to either pay or fight. I prefer the former and am willing to contribute to any cause that will hasten victory for the allies and alleviate the suffering of those in the front.

Rev. Dr. Ford:—I do not like war, but as this war has been forced upon the empire we must do our best to support it and to help our friends who have gone to the front. We can do no better than to supply them with proper weapons.

Rev. Mr. Howson:—The crisis which our empire has reached in these days demands our support. The men who have gone to the front must have our help in the best way we can. If machine guns are needed, as we believe they are, Glencoe should do its share.

Rev. Mr. Owen:—The man who can't go should ask himself:—Is the next best thing that I am doing an equivalent? A life is worth a lot of dollars.

F. G. Humphries:—Let us do our duty. Those of us at home that do not fight, let us provide all that is necessary for those at the front, who are fighting for freedom and liberty. Remember Belgium!

Postmaster R. Clananan:—Something has to be done. We have been resting on our oars, and anything I can do for the soldiers at the front I will do gladly.

J. E. Roome:—I know it is a good cause and will gladly do what I can.

Ex-reeve J. N. Currie:—Liberty is responsibility and responsibility is duty and duty is to preserve the exceptional liberty we enjoy within the law and for the law and by the law. Money alone is powerless but money stamped with personality is mighty. Money represents ourselves.

R. C. Vause:—I have no sons to send but am willing to help send others. The English taxpayer is now paying over 50% of his income. We are practically doing nothing.

E. Mayhew:—I think it is a good thing and will heartily support any and all efforts to further the cause of British liberty.

P. E. Lumley:—Am favorable to the cause and will do all I can.

C. Dean:—I think it is a splendid idea, because our boys at the front are handicapped for want of machine guns.

G. M. Barker:—A man who is not willing to help his country in a time like this is not a loyal citizen.

Geo. A. Parrott:—I think the idea is alright and every man should do his share.

Herb. Moore:—We have been talking long enough. It is now time to act.

Ex-reeve Neil Graham:—It is little enough for us to do.

G. A. McAlpine:—We are thinking more seriously of the situation every day and I am willing to help along the cause.

J. M. Anderson:—I am in favor of the movement.

James Wilson:—I am for a machine gun.

George Precious:—I am willing to do what I can but none of us are doing what we ought. Those who cannot fight should help in another way.

J. L. Tomlinson:—Let us get busy and do something. The time for talking is past.

Jas. Poole:—I am in hearty accord with anything and everything that will put our boys on the best footing possible, and to that end will support them financially and morally to the best of my ability.

J. N. Sexsmith:—It is time we woke up and saw that our boys at the front got fair play.

J. Russo:—The only way to get a machine gun is to dip in our pockets—not talk. The Italian club I belong to in London has raised a large amount for the Patriotic Fund.

McLay & Munro:—We are thinking more and more about the war every day and glad to think there are others who would go ourselves if we thought it would turn the tide.

Wm. McAllum:—Duty first; if not to fight, pay your share. I will pay mine with interest.

John Walker, M. D.:—The place to fight the Germans is where they are now, not to wait until our country is invaded. It is the duty of every Canadian citizen to do what he or she can to defeat and drive back into its own country the barbarous German army.

Alfred Aldred:—Am in favor of anything that will carry on the war successfully, and will subscribe towards a machine gun.

W. D. Moss:—If the militia department say they want machine guns, that is the proper way to spend our money.

J. D. Smith:—I do not think it is a wise act. The government will do as they please anyway and should raise the money.

Dr. McLachlan:—I favor giving our forces adequate equipment to shorten and successfully end the war. Liberty is worth many machine guns.

D. Lamont:—I am in sympathy with it and will give all I am able to give.

C. O. Smith:—A machine gun is supposed to do the work of 80 men—work the machine.

C. Davidson:—Let the citizens meet the collectors with a smile and go deep down in their pockets.

John McMillan:—We ought to do something.

Geo. Parrott:—Consider the sooner we take action to give assistance in the way of guns the better. I will do what I can financially.

Wm. Tomlinson:—Get a gun.

C. George:—It is our duty to help and to protect that liberty which we enjoy.

John Oldrieve:—I believe Glencoe ought to do something.

Alex. McNeil:—I think it is all right—a good thing. It should have been done before.

J. B. Henry:—I don't see why the town can't support a machine gun if they go at it.

George Wilson, clerk and Fenian veteran:—I unhesitatingly advise the propriety of procuring a machine gun and will promise to do what I can toward the accomplishment of the design. I agree with the idea of canvassing to raise the necessary funds.

A. B. McDonald:—Get the gun if that is what the department wants, or the equivalent for other purposes.

W. S. Rogers, Fenian veteran:—By all means get a machine.

R. W. Roberts:—A good cause. We must help it along.

E. T. Huston, village treasurer:—I am in sympathy with the movement to raise by donation one or more machine guns, without which our boys at the front are working at a disadvantage.

L. Suttler:—While our men are at the front protecting the empire the duty of providing them with every possible comfort and munitions rests on all at home. The bugle call will be heard Monday, August 16th.

APPIN'S NEW PARK

Huge Success of Garden Party at Formal Opening.

Hon. Finlay McDiarmid, minister of public works, formally opened the recreation park at Appin on Wednesday evening. Between 2,000 and 3,000 people assembled for the occasion.

The committee in charge provided a programme of unusual merit. Robert Wilson, comedian, of Toronto, and Miss Alice Dunbar, comedienne, of St. Thomas, furnished the lighter part of the entertainment. Chris J. Pink, tenor, of London, aroused patriotic fervor with his admirable rendering of national songs. The music for the occasion was furnished by the 1st Hussars' Band, of London. Miss Downie, of Toronto, acted as accompanist.

Perhaps the most popular feature of all was the dancing of the four little Scotch dancers of London, Marion Start, Theresa Cooper, Irene Anderson and Kenneth Dunlevy, pupils of Mrs. Alice Henderson.

The more substantial part of the programme was furnished by public speakers of established reputation. Duncan C. Ross, M. P. for West Middlesex, who has contributed a machine gun for the Canadian soldiers, opened the meeting with an address that was eloquent and timely. George Elliott, M. P. for North Middlesex, followed with a speech in the same patriotic vein, enlivened with touches of humor that appealed to the audience.

The event of the evening was the formal opening of the park for the use of the village of Appin and the township of Ekfrid by the Hon. Finlay McDiarmid. This was followed by a presentation ceremony in song by 40 of the little girls of the village and surrounding community, who presented Mr. McDiarmid with a beautiful silk flag as a souvenir of the occasion.

With a gravity befitting the anniversary of the declaration of war, Mr. McDiarmid expressed his appreciation of the souvenir and with ready skill turned it to account by giving an impressive explanation of the significance of the British flag.

Peter McArthur, who delivered a brief address of welcome on behalf of the recreation committee, was also authorized to make an important announcement. It was the feeling of the community that Appin could not better express its devotion to the cause of liberty than by presenting a machine gun for the use of Canadians at the front. He was asked to announce the opening of a subscription list for that purpose, which was headed by Robert Webster with a contribution of $100. During the twenty-minute intermission which followed this amount was increased to $357, and as the subscription list is open at the office of the Royal Bank in Appin, it is hoped that the full $1,000 will be contributed by the prosperous farmers of the district within the next few days.

Wardsville High School.

The results of the Middle School examinations for entrance to Normal have been made public, and the candidates from the Wardsville High School have been remarkably successful. Seventy-five per cent. of those writing have passed, while in the Lower School examinations, reported some time ago, eighty per cent. were successful—that is, out of nineteen candidates from the two forms, fifteen obtained certificates. This record is decidedly higher than the average throughout the province.

The names of the successful Middle School students are as follows:—James Campbell, Ross Doyle (honors), Hazel Fennell, Fred Mann, Hazel Moore, Marjory Watterworth.

Death of Miss Margaret McAlpine.

The death of Miss Margaret McAlpine, which occurred at her home here on Friday last after a prolonged illness, is deeply regretted by a large circle of relatives and friends in Glencoe and vicinity. Miss McAlpine was a lady of noble qualities and was held in the highest esteem by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance.

Since coming to Glencoe from Ekfrid township nearly forty years ago she took an active part in furthering the cause of the church and its institutions, being especially interested in missionary and temperance effort.

Miss McAlpine leaves six brothers and two sisters—Alexander and Neil, of Glencoe; Hugh T., of Orford; John Donald and Archibald, of Ekfrid; Mrs. John D. McKellar, of Glencoe, and Miss Janet, of Ekfrid.

The funeral took place on Monday afternoon from her late residence on King street. Service was held in the Presbyterian church, of which she was a member, and interment was made at Oakland cemetery. The six brothers acted as pallbearers.

ENEMY OCCUPIES THE POLISH CAPITAL

Bavarian Troops Enter City of Warsaw in Name of the Kaiser

A despatch from London says: The Germans are in possession of Warsaw, capital of Poland, and the third largest city in the Russian Empire. Bavarian troops entered the city this morning, having taken successively the Blonie lines and the outer and inner fortresses of the town itself, the Russians only fighting rear-guard actions to allow their main army to make good its escape.

According to a despatch from Petrograd, the troops which were covering Warsaw retired without being attacked towards the new front assigned to them on the east bank of the Vistula. They blew up behind them all the bridges over the river.

This victory undoubtedly has cost the Teutonic allies an enormous price, hundreds of thousands of their finest troops having fallen in the last few weeks of the campaign in Poland.

While to the Bavarians commanded by Prince Leopold has fallen the honor of taking over Warsaw in the name of the German Emperor and his consort, who are expected to make a State entry within a few days, the real conquerors are the troops fighting under Field Marshal von Hindenburg, along the Narwé River to the north-east; the Austro-Germans crossed the Vistula to the south of the city, and the armies of the Austrian Archduke Joseph Ferdinand and the German field marshal, von Mackensen, which are advancing northward between the Vistula and Bug Rivers.

Even now, although the steadiness of the Russian troops and their fierce counter-attacks have gained much valuable time for them, it is problematical whether the whole Russian army will succeed in reaching the positions chosen for it or whether, if it should get there, it will not find those positions turned by the Austrians, who have crossed the Bug south-east of Cholm, and by the Germans, under General von Scholz, and von Gallwitz, who have crossed the Narwé.

At the north-eastern end of the line the Russian communications are further threatened by Gen. von Buelow, who is advancing toward Dvinsk on the Vilna-Petrograd railway. Indeed, the Austro-Germans have set three traps to catch and destroy the Russian army. None of them was sprung, but one was so near to closing that the Grand Duke Nicholas was forced to evacuate Warsaw and now is fighting with all his might to prevent the others from cutting off his retreat.

French Official Estimate of War Losses

A despatch from Paris says: The losses of Europe in the war up to May 31, as compiled by the French Ministry of War, are as follows:

Nations	Killed	Wounded	Prisoners	Total
France	460,000	660,000	180,000	1,300,000
England	181,000	220,000	90,000	471,000
Belgium	49,000	49,000	15,000	113,000
Russia	1,250,000	1,680,000	850,000	3,780,000
Germany	1,630,000	1,880,000	490,000	4,000,000
Austria	1,610,000	1,865,000	910,000	4,385,000
Turkey	110,000	144,000	95,000	349,000
Totals	5,290,000	6,478,000	2,630,000	14,398,000

This table was prepared for publication early in June, but was withheld, because the French authorities feared the enormity of the figures might have a bad moral effect on the people.

CANADA TO HAVE 40,000 IN FIELD

Full Army Corps Soon Will Be Maintained on the Flanders Front.

A despatch from Ottawa says: That Canada will have a full army corps in the field to be commanded by General Alderson, with Generals Currie and Turner in charge of the two divisions composing it, is the understanding in British military circles, according to the statement of Hon. Col. McBain, who was in Ottawa after his return from the other side on official business.

It is understood that the first division, which is still in France in a depleted condition after the St. Julien and Festubert fighting, will be brought up to strength by reinforcements, and with the second division, which is still in England, will form an army corps which is to take the field during the coming autumn. The reinforcements necessary to keep an army corps of 40,000 men up to strength will be heavy, and explain the urgent present call for more recruits.

According to Col. McBain, the allies are making thorough preparations to meet and repel another German offensive in the west, where it is expected very shortly.

That the Zeppelin menace has been exploded and that the submarine peril was if anything less of a danger than when the paper blockade was inaugurated, was Col. McBain's statement. The British navy was generally understood to be making good progress on the undersea boats, he said, and it was currently reported that up to date fourteen of them had been damaged.

Gen. Von Bissing Recalled.

A despatch from Amsterdam says: According to the Echo Belge, the recall of Gen. von Bissing, the German Governor of Belgium, has been decided on by Emperor William.

TURK SUBMARINE BASE DESTROYED

French Fleet Bombards and Destroys the Village of Spelia

A despatch from Paris says: One armored cruiser, two cruisers, torpedo boats, dredgers and an aeroplane ship of the French fleet demonstrated off Sighadjik and Seala Nova, on the coast of Anatolia. Sighadjik was bombarded and the Customs house and part of the fortifications destroyed. An armored cruiser bombarded the fortifications of the Turkish quarter of Seala Nova and a fortified point to the west of that town, while the other vessels of the squadron shelled and destroyed the village of Spelia, supposed to be a supply depot for submarines of France's antagonists.

The following Russian official communication concerning the operations in the Caucasus says:

In the direction of Olti the Turks have been expelled from the Norchene region. Towards Sari Kamysh we occupied after a fight the villages of Alaklissa, Kars and Ardost. In the region of Alshkert there was an obstinate engagement.

Italy's Ultimatum to Turkey

A despatch from Rome says: The tension between Italy and Turkey is declared here to be becoming daily more acute. Italy is said to have asked for categorical explanations concerning Turkey's alleged refusal to withdraw her troops from the Cyrenaica district in Tripoli, and Turkey is pursuing what is described as her usual policy of procrastination.

In official circles here the feeling is held that hostilities on the part of Italy may commence at any moment, as Italy's last note to Turkey was almost of the character of an ultimatum. Two hundred and fifty thousand men in the Provinces of Bari, Foggia, and Lecce are said to be prepared to sail from Brindisi on short notice.

Notes to Take the Place of Gold

A despatch from London says: In view of the importance of the strengthening of the gold reserves the Treasury has instructed the post-office and all public departments making cash payments to use notes instead of gold whenever possible, says a Press Bureau announcement.

The public is earnestly requested in the interests of the nation to co-operate with the Treasury in this policy by paying all available gold to the post-office and the banks, and in making payments whenever possible in checks and notes instead of in gold.

MAJ.-GEN. VON BUELOW IS KILLED IN BATTLE.
 A despatch from Amsterdam says: According to the Berlin newspapers, Major-Gen. von Buelow, brother of the commander of the Niemen army, was buried at Berlin. He had been mortally wounded in battle recently.

OPENING OF FINE LOCK AT PORT SEVERN MARKS EPOCH IN GEORGIAN BAY'S HISTORY

Mr. W. H. Bennett, M.P., performs the opening ceremony of the new lock at the western terminus of the Georgian Bay and Trent River Canal, at Port Severn. The Port Severn Lock is the first step in the direction of the linking up of the Georgian Bay and Lake Simcoe waters by a navigable route. It is of reinforced concrete, cost $150,000, and took two years to build. Thousands of people came in from surrounding points in motor boats and yachts for the event.

FIVE DROWNED TRAPPED IN CAR

Automobile Fell Into Lake and Pinned Down Occupants.

A despatch from Huntsville says: A terrible drowning accident occurred at a small lake one mile west of Utterson, in the Muskoka district, last week, when five Toronto people lost their lives and three others, two of whom were boys, and a third, the chauffeur, narrowly escaped.

The Drowned.
 Henry R. Alley, 16 Foxbar Road, Toronto.
 Fred Alley, 9 years, 16 Foxbar Road, Toronto.
 Elizabeth M. Lawson, 179 Dowling Avenue, Toronto.
 Angus Lawson, 12 years, 179 Dowling Avenue, Toronto.
 Beverley Swabey, 7 years, 61 Admiral Road, Toronto.
 The Saved.
 Harold Swabey, 61 Admiral Road, Toronto.
 Douglas Lawson, 14 years, 179 Dowling Avenue, Toronto.
 John Clarke, the chauffeur.

The party, which consisted of Mr. Henry R. Alley and his son, Fred Alley; Miss Elizabeth M. Lawson and her two nephews, Douglas and Angus Lawson, and the two sons of Mr. Charles Swabey, of Toronto, and Beverley and Harold Swabey, were all guests at the Cliff House, Port Sydney. They set out in an automobile owned and driven by John Clarke, of Utterson, to make a trip in the country.

The lake just west of Utterson is crossed by a floating bridge about 200 yards long, and a driving rain-storm had just come up just as the automobile was crossing it. The car when nearing the shore apparently skidded to one side and crashed through the railing, plunging into 30 feet of water. Clarke and the two older boys, Harold Swabey and Douglas Lawson, managed to free themselves and reach the bridge, but the other five were trapped in the car and sank to the bottom of the lake.

OVER 900 TURKISH VESSELS SUNK

Among the Number Lost Have Been Seven Large Steamers and a Dozen Sailing Ships

A despatch from Petrograd says: Russian destroyers in the Black Sea continue their devastating work upon the flotilla carrying supplies for Constantinople. Altogether over 900 enemy vessels have been burnt or sunk since the beginning of the war, among the number being several large steamers and a dozen sailing ships of a thousand tons each. Most of the vessels were, of course, small coasting craft, which counted on their insignificance to escape the vigilance of the Russian scout boats. Some were sunk at sea, but the majority were burnt at anchor or within easy reach of shore. Care has been taken also to destroy all boat building yards along the coast so that this small vessel trade upon which Constantinople is largely dependent for the necessities of life may safely be regarded as having been extinguished.

ATTITUDE OF ROUMANIA IS WORRYING GERMANY.
 A despatch from Berlin says: A warning that nothing can be expected from Roumania is conveyed to the readers of the Tages Zeitung in an editorial by Count Ernst Reventlow. His article, which is headed "Roumania's Falling Quotation," summarizes the situation in the following paragraph:

"Those friendly relations with Roumania made sacred by tradition and, on the German side, by firm confidence, can hardly longer be considered as existing."

The principal ingredient in a good time is a vivid imagination.

ICE CREAM BRICKS

Ice cream frozen in boxes—enough in each box to serve five or six—is a method of shipping that the City Dairy has developed until discriminating dealers everywhere have them on sale.

A pail of chopped ice and a little salt will enable you to serve Ice Cream at that picnic.

U. S. WILL CONTEST THE DACIA DECISION.

A despatch from Washington says: The announcement from Paris that a French prize court had confirmed the seizure of the American steamer Dacia as a fair prize found the State Department preparing to protest, the decision which carries with it forfeiture of the vessel. It is planned to make this a test case of the right of a neutral country to grant registry to a belligerent-owned merchant ship.

The Dacia's cotton cargo is not involved, the French Government having purchased the cotton through a special appropriation.

ITALIANS' GUNS BLOW UP TRAIN

Cars Filled With Austrian Troops en Route to Rovereto.

A despatch from London says: Italian artillery fire struck a troop train filled with Austrian soldiers going to Rovereto and completely wrecked it. Five hundred troops were burned to death in the cars, and 15 miles of track were damaged. In addition eight wagons of ammunition were exploded in the same locality.

"At Palazzo eight attacks by the Italians were repulsed, but the ninth attack resulted in the capture of several miles of newly-constructed trenches. The Italians have brought up more heavy guns against Gorizia, the systematic bombardment of which has begun. The Austrians are replying feebly."

The Italian army has resumed the offensive in the region of Gorizia. A heavy artillery fire was directed on the Austrian positions on the plateau of Deberio, which was followed by an infantry attack.

EXPLAINS TO KAISER WHY HE SURRENDERED.

A despatch from Berlin says: The Emperor, it is officially announced, has received a despatch from Dr. Seitz, Governor-General of German South-west Africa, explaining his surrender to Gen. Louis Botha, early in July. Dr. Seitz says further successful resistance was impossible, as the German colonial force was surrounded by enemies greatly superior in numbers and cut off from the base of supplies. The condition of the horses, for which no oats were available for several months, he adds, rendered it hopeless to attempt to break through the enemy lines.

ALL ARE GIVEN CHANCE TO SAVE THEIR LIVES.

A despatch from Petrograd says: A statement issued by the Admiralty relative to operations in the Black Sea says:

"Our sailors destroy Turkish vessels because they carry coal and petrol, materials of war, but take every measure to save the crews. The vessels are cannonaded only when they fail to halt after they are signalled. In those cases where sailors prefer to remain ashore by swimming in order to avoid capture they never are shot. All who surrender are taken aboard warships and transported to Sebastopol."

AN AUSTRIAN GENERAL SUCCUMBS TO PLAGUE.

A despatch from Zurich says: The number of cases of Asiatic cholera in the Austrian Empire on Aug. 10 totalled 629, according to an official announcement made in Vienna. Among those who succumbed to the disease was Gen. von Ziegler, the commander of an army corps, who was the only officer of the entire staff who refused to be inoculated against cholera.

TO END MARTIAL LAW IN FRENCH INTERIOR.

A despatch from Paris says: The Committee of the Chamber of Deputies on National Administrative Questions has pronounced itself in favor of withdrawing the zone in the interior of the country from the operations of martial law and returning it to the common law basis. The committee has requested the Government to consider the proposal.

SIX OF CREW DROWNED IN TORPEDOED TRAWLER.

A despatch from London says: The trawler Grimbarian and the steamer Portia (433 tons), of Liverpool, were sunk on Thursday, presumably by a submarine. Six of the crew of the Grimbarian were drowned and four were rescued.

The British steamer Castello, of 891 tons net, has been sunk. The crew, with the exception of one man, who was drowned, has been saved.

The Meaning of "Piccadilly."

Piccadilly, in London, was so called from Piccadilly jail, the chief depot of a certain sort of lace made in vogue during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The lace was called Piccadilly lace from its little spear points, a diminutive of "pica," a pike or spear. In the reign of James I the high ruff was called a piccadilly, though divested of its lace edging.

Peculiar Headress.

The most remarkable headress known to man is that of the Zulu chief. It consists of mud, bones, feathers and any other material that the ingenuity or pride of the wearer can dictate. It may rear itself for three feet above the head of its owner—sometimes even higher. The basis for the headress is a soft clay, which is molded upon the top of the head and into which the articles used for ornamentation, are inserted. Sometimes this clay, permitted to dry as hard as brick, remains on the head for weeks or months. Strangely enough, the hair is not killed through this treatment. Many wearers of the strange headress can boast of much thicker and more abundant hair than the women who make daily visits to beauty shops in the more civilized countries.

NOBLEWOMEN TAKE MANY SPIES

COMMITTEE ORGANIZED BY LADY GLANUSK.

Famous English Society Women As
Trappers of German
Spies.

Everybody has heard of the tremendous ramifications of the German military spy system, which has Britain's army and navy under observation, writes an American correspondent in London.

Englishmen were too careless to shake off this spy danger, which penetrated into every branch of national life, but English women took up the matter, brought the most dangerous spies to trial, put the others under armed guard, and in various other ways made the lives of spies and suspected spies a burden to them.

They have proved that women are the only efficient "spy trappers."

The leaders of the undertaking are women of title, for they alone would have the authority, means, and prestige to carry out a difficult and far-reaching work.

The organizer and "chairman" of the committee that has been rounding up the spies is Lady Glanusk, wife of a peer and officer, a woman of keen mind and very determined, yet tactful, personality.

Other members are the Duchess of Wellington, who is president; the Duchess of Beaufort, the Duchess of Sutherland, the Marchioness of Sligo, Countess Bathurst, the Countess of Lanesborough, Viscountess Massereene and Ferrard, Viscountess Massereene and Ferrard, Viscountess Cobham, Lady Vincent, Lady Leith of Fyvie, Mrs. Harold Baring and others.

Intuition Wins.
Among them are some of the most notable beautiful women in English society and others who are distinguished by their winning personality. Perhaps the most striking beauty is the Viscountess Massereene and Ferrard, whose husband is the chief of a celebrated Irish family. Equally attractive in her way is the young Duchess of Sutherland.

Womanly intuition and womanly guile exercised by these attractive "spy trappers," on many social occasions, have led many Germans to make admissions they would never have made to a man.

Before the war thousands of Germans were in positions of trust in England, ranging from heads of banks down to such positions as butlers in prominent English families and head waiters in leading hotels.

Many people believe that German butlers in the employ of British Cabinet Ministers and British generals have been the most important agents for conveying military information to the enemy. Standing silent and discreet behind their employers and their guests at the table, they listened to many military secrets, and they also had other opportunities for gathering information.

Catching a Butler.
One of the fair members of the committee dined one evening at the house of an English general with a small party of persons highly placed in military and official life. When the general joined the ladies in the drawing-room after dinner the fascinating "spy trapper" drew him aside and said:

"General, before I go, I want you to arrest your butler and search his belongings. He is a German spy," she said.

"But Lady—," said the general, in amazement, "he has been with me for ten years. The man is an excellent butler."

"No doubt," said the lady, "but he is also an excellent spy. Never speak to me again if I am wrong."

The butler's room was searched and many notes of an incriminating character were found. The lack of positive evidence that he had sent information to the German Government saved his life, but he was sent to prison with a host of other German spies.

Seized Wireless.
The "ladies' committee" has hunted down all German head waiters employed in the principal English hotels and restaurants and caused them to be removed to detention camps. These men, owing to the peculiar character of their work, enjoyed an excellent opportunity for meeting persons of all the important classes of society, and in the free expansion that ordinarily takes place at the table all kinds of confidences were exchanged within their hearing.

Many Germans of high social position and great wealth, some of them naturalized British subjects, have been pursued by the relentless "ladies' committee." Prof. Arthur Schuster, a born German, but a naturalized Britisher, was surprised at his luxurious country seat when a band of detectives descended on him and seized his private wireless apparatus.

Lady Glanusk has turned the drawing and reception rooms of her fine house, at Mayfair, into offices for the committee.

"Owing to the fact," said Lady Glanusk, "that no serious effort has been made by our menkin to round up the 75,000 alien enemies in our midst, I felt the call to start a protest by women, as it is women who are the greatest sufferers by war."

My husband and two sons are fighting at the front and thousands of women can say very much the same."

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Tummy Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, or if troubles come suddenly—as it generally does—the Tablets will bring the baby safely through. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE 'PHONE IN WAR.

Scarcely a Battle in Which Wire Does Not Participate.

The role played by the telephone wires in the war, to say nothing of the barbed variety that protects nearly 300 miles of battle front, is prodigious. With aircraft the telephone wire has largely replaced reconnoitering parties and vedettes. There is scarcely a skirmish, battle or artillery attack in which the wire doesn't participate, sometimes in co-operation with aeroplanes, sometimes without.

Every corps of the French army has a certain number of motorcar telephone shops, each equipped with two complete installations with four miles of wire and an adequate number of ground stakes and forked pickets that may be stuck in the bayonet socket of a rifle, serving as a temporary pole. Each of these outfits has also its wireless equipment, with antennae to reach a height of 60 feet, and a dynamo connected with the motor of the car to set up the wireless outfit and put it in operation. The enemy's artillery is constantly on the watch for these motorcar wiremen, and occasionally gets them.

Projectors and aircraft ordered from Ypres by wireless played a great role in the first battle of Ypres. The air-men were able to ascertain just what troops the Germans were bringing up, while the projectors arrived in time to discover the Prussian Guards attempting a surprise attack, and to enable the British to cut them up.

ORIENTAL MENDACITY.
A Little Thing Like the Truth is of No Account in Egypt.

If Orientals have one fault more than another it is a disregard for truth. In the early days of the English occupation of India, the English Judges were astounded at the conflicting stories told by witnesses, and they soon learned to set them all down as unworthy of credence.

In American courts it is also well known that the Chinese are very penurious of the truth, and that oath will prevent them from giving false witness. In Egypt it is also very easy to get native witnesses to swear to anything, true or untrue.

For instance, Ahmed, a native of Cairo, had a slave who peeped over a wall into Suleiman's harem, and the ladies considered themselves insulted. Suleiman wanted revenge, but he could not bring his wives into court to testify, so it was agreed that Suleiman should accuse Ahmed's camel of walking on Suleiman's land. A crowd of witnesses came forward and for two days testified about the camel and the land, until the English Judge decided in favor of Suleiman.

It was not until a week afterward that the Judge discovered, to his great surprise, that Suleiman had no ground and Ahmed had no camel.

NO IDEA
What Caused the Trouble.

"I always drank coffee with the rest of the family, for it seemed as if there was nothing for breakfast if we did not have it on the table."

"I had been troubled for some time with my heart, which did not feel right. This trouble grew worse steadily."

"Sometimes it would beat fast, and at other times very slowly, so that I would hardly be able to do work for an hour or two after breakfast, and if I walked up a hill, it gave me a severe pain. (The effects of tea are very similar to those of coffee because they each contain the drug, caffeine.)"

"I had no idea of what the trouble was until a friend suggested that perhaps it might be coffee drinking. I tried leaving off the coffee and began drinking Postum. The change came quickly. I am glad to say that I am now entirely free from heart trouble and attribute the relief to leaving off coffee and the use of Postum."

"A number of my friends have abandoned coffee and have taken up Postum, which they are using steadily. There are some people that make Postum very weak and tasteless, but if made according to directions, it is a very delicious beverage." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c package.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.—sold by Grocers.

OLD DISEASE MYSTERY.

British Officer Finds Cause of 4,000 Year Scourge.

Lieut.-Col. Leiper, of the London School of Tropical Medicine, has just returned from Egypt, where he had been investigating bilharziasis, and has communicated an important discovery respecting this disease to the Royal Society of Medicine.

The disease, which has been a scourge to the Nile delta for thousands of years, has been discovered to have been the cause of death in mummies dating back to 2,000 B.C.

In his report Col. Leiper cited a village where 90 per cent. of the children are infected. It has long been known that the disease was transmitted by water, but the life and history of the parasite have remained unestablished.

It has been discovered that the disease is started in a worm which lives in the human body. The eggs of this worm pass from the body into canals and pools, where they enter molluscs and there undergo certain evolutions. They emerge from the molluscs in a form enabling them to enter the human body through the skin. In this way the disease is commonly contracted while bathing and washing.

Col Leiper contends that the disease can be exterminated by filling the pools during the dry season.

Don't sleep on your left side, for it causes too great a pressure on the heart. Don't sleep on your stomach, for that interferes with the respiration of both lungs and makes breathing difficult. Don't sleep on your back, for this method of getting rest is bad for the nervous system. Don't sleep sitting in a chair, for your body falls into an unnatural position, and you cannot get the necessary relation. Don't sleep standing up, for you may topple over and crack your skull. ## POWER FROM VOLCANOES.

Italians Are Using Steam From Craters to Generate Energy.

Italy's newest product is electric energy from volcanic steam. Not far from the little city of Volterra, in Tuscany, is a region of volcanic hot springs that for a century have been a source of boric acid, and that in addition supply heat for drying the crystals and for the power needed in preparing the material for market. Borings of 30 or 40 feet are said to yield an unending supply of steam at pressures up to more than three atmospheres, and of temperatures up to more than 700 degrees Fahrenheit. The steam has been wastefully used in small engines of an old, non-condensing type, but in recent experiments the heat of the springs—made to generate steam from fresh water, and this is employed in low-pressure turbines for driving electric generators. The large area to be served with electric energy from the earth's own heat, if present expectations are realized, will include the neighboring cities of Volterra, Siena, and Leghorn.

BULLET WOUNDS INFECTED.

"Clean" Punctures Unknown to Man Who Treated 10,000 Cases.

Clean wounds apparently do not exist, said Dr. H. S. Souttar, late surgeon-in-chief of the Belgian field hospital, in a lecture before the Royal Society of Medicine in London. Much has been written about the clean wound left by the modern bullet, but the doctor never met one in his experience in Flanders, and a colleague who had treated 10,000 wounds in the present campaign confirmed this opinion. Every wound is infected, although not all the organisms produce disease.

Doctor Souttar found it was a mistake to think a wounded man could apply his first idea dressing properly. It required clean hands and non-interference with the actual wound. His instructions were that the skin around the wound should be disinfected with iodine, carbolic, or even soap and water, but the wound should not be touched. External appearances of wounds are often deceptive. Back of a small puncture in the skin may be a cavity as large as a fist, perhaps with a piece of shell or a bullet at the bottom.

Tea in the Trenches.
It is said that tea is the favored beverage of the soldiers in the trenches. It is certain that tea is the most refreshing and sustaining drink under the circumstances, and it has good warmth-giving qualities. It is the first experience of tea for many of the soldiers, and the taste will undoubtedly spread when they return to their homes after the war. In fact, everything points to a greatly increased consumption of tea all over the world, and as the supply is insufficient to cope with it, the high prices now obtaining may continue for some years.

"Strange," said the first tramp, meditatively, "how few men our youthful dreams ever come true."

Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

Purifying Steel.
Engineering describes the process invented by Lord Chetwynd for purifying steel that a Sheffield foundry has now been using for a year and a half. The steel, which is manufactured in the usual way in the Siemens-Martin furnace, is first poured or "teemed," into a special ladle. Now steel, when poured into a ladle in the ordinary way, draws with it into the ladle a part of the slag. The slag becomes so intermingled with the steel that it cannot separate from it completely and rise to the surface before the molten mass is poured into the ingot moulds. This difficulty Lord Chetwynd's process obviates. Two iron electrodes are fitted to the bottom of the special ladle, and two graphite electrodes are so placed that they can be lowered to rest in the layer of slag that covers the molten steel. As soon as that happens, an electric current is sent through the steel, which raises the temperature of the metal, and makes it rotate. That frees it from the gases and particles of slag that it brought from the furnace. The process lasts about thirty minutes, and the expenditure of current is small.

THE LINEMAN IN THE TROPICS.

The Animals of East Africa Have No Respect for the Wires.

The life of a telegraph or telephone lineman in the tropics is not easy, for a service that uses overhead wires is subject to constant damage both from wild animals and from wild men. The animal culprits are of all sizes, from elephants and giraffes down to white ants and spiders. The giraffes of East Africa, when they find their progress checked by a telegraph line, do not know enough to draw back or "duck" their heads, but push on and carry the wires with them, and sometimes the poles, too. Teak is the only wood that certain kinds of ants respect, so instrument cases have to be made of that or of metal. Bees make nests in telegraph instruments, and spiders attach their webs to the porcelain insulators. When the webs become coated with dew, the insulation is for the time being destroyed. In Argentina, spiders breed in millions in the pampas grass. As soon as the egg hatches, the young spider spins a single web, which the wind carries across the country. Veils of webs sometimes stretch from poles to poles and cover all the wires. Bees have been known to bore holes in lead cable and lay their eggs in them. In the region round Victoria Nyanza, the natives tear down the wire to use for personal adornment. Because of the many annoyances that are inseparable from an overhead system in the tropics, the wireless system has superseded it in many places.

HAVE YOU A BAD SORE?

If so, remember these facts—Zam-Buk is by far the most widely used balm in Canada! Why has it become so popular? Because it heals sores, cures skin diseases, and does what is claimed for it. Why not let it heal your sore?

Remember that Zam-Buk is altogether different to the ordinary ointments. Most of these consist of animal fats. Zam-Buk contains no trace of any animal fat, or any mineral matter. It is absolutely herbal.

Remember that Zam-Buk is at the same time healing, soothing, and antiseptic. Kills poison instantly, and all harmful germs. It is suitable alike for recent injuries and diseases, and for chronic sores, ulcers, etc. Test how different and superior Zam-Buk really is. All druggists and stores at large carry it. Use also Zam-Buk Soap. Relieves sunburn and prevents freckles. Best for baby's bath. 25c. tablet.

Buttinsky, who heard some traveling men talking about the monorail, adopted his usual tactics.

"I rode on one of those once," he piped in.

The Fall of Warsaw.

Is there any Mark Tapley on our side who will call the fall of Warsaw a gain? It is time to cease minimizing the successes of the enemy and taking a sunny view of our own reverses and failures. The time is past when it served any useful purpose to reverse the sombre clouds and try to show that they had a silver lining. In the earlier part of the war it was perhaps reasonable to put everybody in good spirits, to uphold general confidence, and keep business going as if stout-heartedness at home were all that was required. This was overdone, or perhaps it is better to say it was too long continued. The breaking of the war news gently, so to speak, tended to grow into a serial fiction. The time came when not good, but positive harm, could be done by sugar-coating the facts. The fall of Antwerp was a serious thing for the Allies, but it was not so represented in the censored news. It was the end of the long and doubtful struggle for the outflanking of the enemy's forces on the west. It was the beginning of the tremendous and repeated efforts of von Kluck's forces to hack their way to Calais. It placed the enemy in a better position to carry on air-raiding and submarine operations against Britain. The retaking of Peremyt and of Lemberg by the enemy was airily spoken of as of inconsiderable military importance, whereas the former capture of these strongholds by Russia was hailed as the beginning of Austria's downfall. When it seemed inevitable that Warsaw must yield to this concentrated attack of the enemy we began to hear that Russia did not look upon the holding of that city as very material.

Whatever the strategic importance or unimportance of a gain by the enemy, it is well to look the facts in the face. The enemy is not to be overcome by optimism or contempt or by anything but superiority in the field. Our generals, our munitions, our troops must be more than a match for those of Germany and her allies. That we will win eventually is true, but it is necessary to fight as if we had grave doubts about our winning, and that is to fight for life. It is when the issue is uncertain, when a beligerent power feels that everything turns on the courage and skill with which it battles, that it is most formidable. We must fight as if victory had to be snatched from defeat. That Germany is able to send such overpowering armies against Russia and at the same time keep the French and British armies practically at a standstill on the western front shows that the Allies must put forth greater efforts, and those sustained efforts, before the power of the enemy is broken—Mail and Empire.

The question is not What have got? but What are you doing with it?

Many who are today boasting of their patriotism have not the first idea of the meaning of the true principles of patriotism. No one who today is living in indolence or luxury in these times is a patriot.

The Calgary Herald says:—It was had in Canada more newspapers of the independent kind and less of the kind that are tied body and soul to the chariot wheels of political parties, we would have a cleaner, better country.

After one year of war things do not look any too rosy for an early victory. We must simply stick on the job, supply more men, more guns, more ammunition. The cruel, heartless enemy must be crushed, and the only way to accomplish it is to keep right on the job.

Split Log Drag in Kent.

"The split log drag has accomplished more for the roads of Kent county than any other thing," was the enthusiastic statement of a farmer of the county who has watched with interest during the past year or two the remarkable improvement of roads in the county, following the advent of the drag.

Continuing, the farmer said:—"In the section of the county in which I live I can show you roads that are as good as any in this part of the province. A few years ago they were among the worst. Since the split log drag has been used every road has showed improvement. Farmers first said that the old fashioned road scraper was just as good and maybe a little bit better, but they have learned that they made a mistake and as far as road building goes nothing can touch the drag. Everyone has not learned how to use it properly and when to scrape the roads, but with the placing of additional drags in commission and with the acquiring of more knowledge, the roads of Kent will not long be known as impassable."—Leamington Post and News.

LADY SMITH-DORRIEN.

General's Wife Is Known as the Friend of Soldiers' Wives.

In the army General Sir H. Smith-Dorrien is called "The Soldier's Pal," and now the "Tommies" are saying all sorts of nice things about the general's handsome wife. For Lady Smith-Dorrien is looking after the soldiers' wives and children, and she has been entrusted with funds for this purpose by the Government. A short time ago a number of soldiers' families had to move out of their quarters at Salisbury to make room for the men of Kitchener's army, so Lady Smith-Dorrien came to their rescue, and for weeks busied herself in finding them homes all over the country. When the "Tommies" heard that they gave three hearty cheers for her ladyship, and well she deserved them, too. With the soldiers' wives Lady Smith-Dorrien is as popular as her husband is with his troops. Her morning post-bag is heavy with letters from soldiers' dependents asking for advice, and each one receives a sympathetic reply.

An enthusiastic sportswoman, Lady Smith-Dorrien loves horses, and she is working for their comfort on the battlefields of France and Belgium. She is the president of the Red Cross Fund, which provides veterinary surgeons and base hospitals for war horses. Her ladyship has the support of many influential society people in her charitable undertakings. It was at a social gathering that she is said to have rallied Lord Kitchener about his single blessedness. "Madam, I have not married!" answered K. "Dare not! What do you mean?" asked her ladyship. "The contrast between my state and that of Smith-Dorrien would be sure to make me unhappy," was Lord Kitchener's gallant reply.

It was just after the South African war that Lady Smith-Dorrien married her husband, who arrived in England fresh from his triumphs in the Boer war. Presents were showered on the happy couple, but her ladyship confesses that the one she values most is a little silver statue of a Gordon Highlander. It was subscribed for by every man in the Highland regiment in commemoration of Doornkop. On that occasion General Smith-Dorrien rode across the enemy's front amidst a hail of bullets to turn back the Gordons, who were in danger of being surrounded by the Boers.

The "Official Bath."

An interesting description of the British soldier's monthly "official bath" is sent from the front by a member of a London Scottish regiment:

"Yesterday we had a novel experience," he says. "As none of us had seen soap or warm water for over five weeks, we were ordered to take an official bath. We were taken to a town in the rear of our lines and escorted to a large building where facilities had been arranged for the purpose. In the first room we were numbered off into squads of 10 men or so. In a second room we emptied our pockets and laid aside our boots, bonnets, puttees and sporrans. In a third room we threw the rest of our clothes into a heap, and then made a double-quick to the showers. There were two men to each shower, and we were allowed 10 minutes under the hot water with a generous supply of laundry soap.

"At the end of our 10 minutes we hurried on to a drying room, where each man got a heavy towel as thick and rough as my carpet. Then we rushed off to a dressing room, where an attendant gave us anything we wanted in the way of brand new underwear, shirts and socks, while on hooks at one side were our clothes, which had been thoroughly fumigated."

"After we had got back our bonnets, boots and other property we were ushered into a room where a squad of barbers awaited us. When they were through we marched, single file, into a tea room for tea and cigarettes. Could anything be better arranged!"

K. of K.'s Advice.

Gen. Kitchener, the British War Minister, recently denied the authenticity of an interview. Apropos of this denial an English correspondent said in Washington:

"I once tried to interview Kitchener myself. I tackled him after dinner in a hotel lounge, as he sipped his coffee and puffed on a huge cigar. He stared at me when I proffered my request, then he blew a cloud of smoke and said:

"I never gave an interview in my life and I never intend to."

"This seemed decisive enough. I felt myself getting red and I stammered as I prepared to go:

"Well, then, Gen. Kitchener, will you at least give me your autograph? It would be worth having."

"He blew another cloud of smoke. Then he answered:

"You'd better go and make your own autograph worth having."

The Garhwals.

The Garhwals of India who are raw with the troops at the front, have very simple habits. They have practically no fear of wild beasts, and in their native country they hunt the tiger, leopard, and the bear, armed only with sticks and knives. The home of the Garhwals is in the Himalayan district, which is famous for its beautiful scenery and the excellent hunting to be obtained on its mountain sides. These dusky soldiers are fearless fighters, and King George, when in France, decorated a member of the 1st Battalion of the 30th Garwal Rifles with the Victoria Cross for conspicuous bravery against the Germans.

magistrate advised them should the weather permit, to go ahead with the work on Sunday. If they did not, they should be held liable. "We need the grain and can ill afford to lose any of it."

New wheat is being marketed at Glencoe quite freely at one dollar per bushel standard. The sample is said to be good and the yield from 35 to 40 bushels to the acre.

While operating a circular saw at the Fletcher foundry a few days ago Mahlon Annett had the misfortune to get the second finger of his left hand so badly cut as to necessitate its being amputated at the base.

Despite the unfavorable weather conditions that have prevailed during the last few weeks, Ontario will still have a good average crop, and perhaps a little better, according to reports which have come in to the department of agriculture.

Road maintenance is just as necessary as road building. A little attention occasionally with scraper or leveler would keep almost any road in good condition at little expense. The knowing how and when to get to work and then getting it in is what counts.

The annual picnic of Burns' church, Mosca, will be held on Labor Day (Sept. 6) in Archie L. Munroe's grove, Kilmartin. An exceptionally good fry-grain is being prepared, which will include the London Pipe Band and favorite entertainers in song, story and speech.

Harry Finlayson, eldest son of Archie Finlayson, of Glencoe, left Regina for Montreal on Wednesday last where he expects to spend a few months in training with a number of others before crossing the seas to join the celebrated Princess Pats as reinforcements.

At the Alaskan, Sask., fair, Isaac Walker, postmaster, took four firsts and two seconds in the horse section and two firsts for grain and a first and a second for vegetable exhibits. Walker took four firsts in the swine section, one first for cattle, one first for grain and two seconds and a third for horses.

The Union Sunday School in School Section No. 1, Ekfrid, will hold a basket picnic in H. D. McDonald's grove on the banks of the Thames on Thursday, August 20th. There will be a good program of sports, featuring a tug-of-war between married and single ladies, a baseball match, prize for best looking lady on the grounds, etc. Music will be furnished by the Muncie brass band.

A patriotic lawn fête, including a tea and a firework program, will be given by the ladies of Glencoe and surrounding country on Friday evening, August 27th, at the home of Chas. Dean, Main street, proceeding afterwards to buy materials to carry on the work of sewing and knitting for the soldiers, and other Red Cross purposes. Full particulars later. Everybody keep this date open and help on the good work.

In compliance with the proclamation of the provincial executive asking that Wednesday last be observed as a day of special prayers for the success of the cause for which we are fighting a war, and the date being the anniversary of the declaration of war, a union service was held in St. John's church in the evening. Rev. Mr. Owen conducted the meeting and Rev. Dr. Ford gave an address of some 45 minutes suitable to the occasion were sung and the meeting closed with the National Anthem and the benediction.

The home of Mrs. Chas. Small, 844 Stedwell street, London, presented a very pretty picture on Friday morning evening, August 28th, being the birthday of her granddaughter, Estella Smith, of Glencoe. A number of the young lady friends of Estella came in and surprised her. The tea room was decorated with sweet peas, and a dainty luncheon awaited them. Much merriment was created in the finding of treasure hidden in the birthday cake. Prizes were given for these articles. After luncheon the evening was spent in games and music.

At last we are getting some good harvest weather, and the farmers are working like trojans and rejoicing at the same time. Around Glencoe crops have suffered but little from the wet weather. The yield was never so abundant, and while there are a few complaints of wheat beginning to sprout in the shock, it is believed that with favorable weather for the next few days the grain crops generally will be housed in good condition. There is still some hay out in the stock and fields and has not yet been cut, all practically uninjured.

The Glencoe baseball team was walloped in a game with Tall's Corners on Wednesday. Our boys are sadly out of practice this season.

All those comfortably situated at home should not forget that our soldiers must be prepared for another winter campaign in the trenches.

The moving picture show on next Wednesday evening will be for the benefit of the Junior Red Cross funds. There will be a special musical program.

The provincial fruit inspector states that Ontario's apple crop this year will not be one-fifth the usual production. Late spring frosts is given as the chief cause.

Probably the most reliable fruit expert in the district at the present time is the irrepressible small boy, who naturally hesitates to give incriminating evidence.

Woman Against Woman or A Terrible Accusation.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Stunned, mentally helpless, Ailsa stood staring at her father, realizing in a vague, undefined way that her last hope had dropped from her, yet not blaming him, understanding, as she did, the terrible influence which he could no more have resisted than he could the will of God.

She could not speak to repudiate the awful lie he had uttered, and what could have been the use even had she done so? She heard the old clergyman's voice speaking words of reproach which she did not even dimly understand, and then that faded.

She waited, waited; she could not have told whether it was for moments or hours; but the silence seemed freighted with horror; then started like one in a dream as once more Nathan Simonson stepped toward her.

"You have disappointed me in more ways than one," he said, with his ever-present smile. "I am not going to either reproach or rebuke you, but there is one time when your irrevocable decision must be made. I am going to send your father out again. Is it to be for a minister or an officer of the law? The answer remains alone with you."

She opened her eyes like one who had been asleep. She put her hand to her mouth, and her finger-nails knocked against her teeth, with a sound that startled her. But there was still no more idea of yielding in her heart than there had been upon her entrance there.

"You have my answer already," she returned, dully. "Not the most dastardly charge within the power of mortal man to make could I prove me now. You have already done your worst. Let my father answer for a crime, if crime he has committed. I will refuse to sell my soul for his unholy life."

She leaned back against the wall and closed her eyes. It seemed to her that all her strength had gone at once. The excitement of the night before, the misery she had suffered, and this together, would have proved too much for a stronger woman than she, and she realized that unconsciousness was threatened.

As she leaned there, white and exhausted, Simonson smiled again, and taking a stealthy step toward her, he uncorked the vial and carefully extended his hand, placed it directly beneath her nostrils.

The sweet, pungent odor, filled the room. Carefully he held his breath.

For one moment she did not seem to comprehend what the dense odor was that impregnated the atmosphere about her, then slowly she opened her eyes and gazed straight into his own.

She saw the triumphant smile, the hideous sneer of the heavy features, the glow in the bulging eyes, and—the vial in his dirty, outstretched fingers.

It told her the truth, but the dizziness that oppressed her caused her to fall back against the door. She passed her hand across her eyes helplessly, as if to clear a film from her vision. Then she swayed and tottered—further—further—until she lay cold and still in the arms of the man she most abhorred.

Deceitfully Simonson inserted the cork in the vial with his teeth, then drew it from him, never drawing breath until it was beyond his reach.

"Quick, Valworth!" he exclaimed. "We must lose no time in getting her away from here. Dunraven will know well enough where to find her when her absence is noticed, and will come directly here. You know that, in spite of all our talk to the contrary, that we cannot detain her against her consent, and he must not find her here, and I defy him or all the detectives in New York at once to find her there."

"A carriage?" stammered Valworth, stupidly.

"Yes, a carriage. Quick, man!"

"But can't they trace us by a carriage?"

"No, you fool. I shall take particular care that they don't. Don't stop to question my methods, but if you would save yourself, go at once."

Valworth picked up his hat. For the first time there seemed to be something almost sullen in his manner, but Simonson was too much occupied with his burden to think of that.

Ailsa lay there like a dead thing, cold, lifeless, and with but a single glance in her direction, Valworth stumbled from the room.

He went down-stairs like a drunken man, though he had but one drink that morning, holding himself up by the rickety balustrade, and let himself into the street.

He looked about him in a dazed way as the cold air cut across his face. The snow was falling heavily, in cutting sleet rather than soft flakes. He drew back under the shelter of the doorway and shivered.

What was it that he had done? For the first time in years the enormity of his sin seemed to strike—perhaps because he had added to it this crowning disgrace.

He had foully besmirched the character of his own child, his Ailsa, the fairest, purest flower that ever blossomed in the flesh and mire of pollution. He had no regrets for the blows that he had struck her, for the want and deprivation that he had caused her; but under all that temptation she had remained good, and pure, and true, and he would as soon have thought of doubting the purity of God as to have doubted her now, yet he had lied—upon his own child! Lied to save himself, and accomplish the ends of a man whom he knew to be a dastard and a scoundrel!

For the first time in all those long, long years he hated himself with that loathing that only such self-censure can know.

And then, too, he seemed to realize for the first time the terrible influence possessed by the priest.

Slowly, with painful distinctness, all the years of his past life rolled before him, ghastly in its memories. He was again a young man, handsome and respected, the lover of a pure young girl. He saw her his wife, saw himself slowly but surely falling from his respected estate, saw her heart breaking, knew himself a murderer, realized all the woe and shame he had brought to that child whom he had betrayed into her present position, and suddenly a low cry issued from his lips.

It was Nathan Simonson who had done it all.

The scales had dropped from his eyes. He rushed out into the storm like an insane creature driven by mania.

He had forgotten the cold, forgotten the cut of the sleet—forgot everything, except that new and unrecognized repentance upon him.

How clear it all was to him now—that frightful influence—and with what exactitude that was surprising, he recalled all Ailsa's words—that which she had said of Simonson's infatuation for her mother. It was true! Ghastly—horribly true!

How he hated the Jew!

He was stumbling down the street, his eyes more haggard than before, his limbs almost palsied.

He stopped abruptly and gazed up at a building—a plain brick structure of no pretension, but printed in black letters on an electric light that hung before the door were the words:

"—Precinct Station."

He hesitated.

His hands were blue with cold, his teeth chattering, but he did not know it. He looked irresolutely at the sign, then with one mad, headlong rush he entered the building, and cried out to the man behind the desk:

"For the love of Heaven, arrest and hang me! I am a murderer! Not alone of one man, but of a woman—my wife, as well—and worse than all, for her—my child! Arrest me—I am a murderer!"

"There was a wild commotion in the Precinct Station. Quicker than thought a policeman was upon either side of him, imagining they had in sanity to contend with; but Dowd Valworth threw off their hands.

"I am neither mad nor drunk!" he cried, excitedly. "Only a man stricken with remorse in the eleventh hour. Let me alone! I have come here of my own accord, and have given myself up. I am not going to try to escape. Don't stop to think of me. Go there at once—to my house, for her—my child! You will find her in—that man's power, the creature who has accomplished all this ruin and misery! She lies there like a dead thing in his arms, but he has not sight, and Simonson staggered backward, his eyes bulging more than ever, a loamy whiteness overspreading his grimy face.

He had recognized the gray-blue of the uniformed officer. Never mind me! Go there and rescue her!"

The sergeant behind the desk came out, and placed his hand upon the man's shoulder, soothingly.

"If you intend to accuse yourself of a crime, my good fellow," he said, quietly, "you must take care. Remember that what you have—"

"Oh, for the love of Heaven, drop all that! What do I care what becomes of me? Go there to her! To her! He sent me for a carriage to take her away. When I do not return he will take alarm, and find one himself to take her away, then the power of the police would be nothing compared with his infamous ability! Go there! Then, if you do not find her, call me a madman, if you will! Only go there! You have not the right to refuse to see!"

"Give me the address, and I will send one of my men at once," returned the sergeant.

"Not one, but two or three. He will not yield without a struggle, and you know nothing of his terrible power. I warn you now there will be a horrible struggle—something which you do not expect. Take plenty of men, and let there be no mistake. Wait! Let them take me with them! I wish to show the infernal demon that I have escaped his devil's grasp at last!"

CHAPTER XXIX.

A dead thing Ailsa lay in the arms of the man she hated and feared most on earth, fortunately unconscious of the pollution of his touch. He stood there for a long time, looking down into the white, motionless face, his thoughts his own, but the expression of his hateful countenance giving evidence of the triumph he felt in her position. But the burden of her physical weight grew too great at last, and he placed her upon the filthy bed that would have revolted her could she have looked upon it with sensible eyes.

Again he stood, looking down upon her, fashioning their future life, perhaps, in his own evil mind, a life in which God played no part, judging by the cynical curve of his licentious lips; but he seemed to have forgotten time, for as the moments rolled by, and Dowd Valworth did not return, no apprehension disturbed him.

Once he laid the tips of his dirty fingers upon her white cheek, noting the difference with a smile of amusement, strangely out of place, but otherwise he was as motionless as she.

He aroused himself with a heavy sigh by and by, and went to the window to look out.

It was so much above the ground, however, that he could see nothing

A WAR-TIME DINNER.

Pork and Beans With Worcester Sauce Is Cheap and Nourishing.

Greenwood is one of those intolerable men who always rise to an occasion, says a contributor to Punch. He is the kind of man who rushes to sit on the head of a horse when it is down. I can even picture him sitting on the bonnet of an overturned motor bus and shouting, "Now all together!" to the men who are readjusting it.

We were going down to business when Perkins introduced a new grievance against the censor.

"Whatever do they allow this rot about food prices in the paper for?" he began.

"It unsettles women awfully. Now my wife is insisting on having her housekeeping allowance advanced twenty-five per cent. I tell you she'd never have known anything about the advances if they hadn't been put before her in glaring type."

The general opinion of the compartment seemed to be that the censor had gravely neglected his duty.

"I agreed with my wife," said Blair, who is a shrewd Scotchman, "and told her that she must have an extra two pounds a month. Now a twenty-five per cent advance would have meant five pounds a month. Luckily providence fashioned women without an idea of arithmetic."

Most of us looked as if we wished we had thought of this admirable idea.

"My wife drew my attention to the paper," said Greenwood loftily. "I did not argue the point with her. Finance is not woman's strong point. I rang for the cook at once."

Everyone looked admiringly at the hero who had dared to face his cook.

"I said to her," continued Greenwood, "Cook, get the store's price list for to-day and serve for dinner precisely the things that have not advanced. You understand? That will do." So you see the matter was settled.

"Er, what did your wife say?" asked Perkins. "What could she say? Here was the obvious solution. And I have noticed that women always lose their heads in an emergency. They never rise to the occasion."

The next morning I met Greenwood again.

"By the way," I asked, "did you have a good dinner yesterday?"

Greenwood looked me straight in the eyes. There is a saying that a liar cannot look you straight in the eyes. Discredit it. "That dinner was excellent," he replied. "I wish you had been there to try it. And every single thing at per-war prices."

But that night I came across Mrs. Greenwood as she emerged from a Red Cross working party loaded with mufflers and mittens.

"Glad to hear these hard times don't affect your household," I began diplomatically.

Mrs. Greenwood smiled. "What has Oswald been telling you?"

"Nothing except that he had an excellent dinner yesterday."

"I wasn't there," said Mrs. Greenwood. "I went to my mother's. You see, cook conscientiously followed Oswald's instructions. He had sardines, Worcester sauce, macaroni, and tin-

INVENTIONS OF PARSONS.

Rev. Alex. John Forsyth invented the Percussion Cap.

The case of a clergyman spending his week-days in a factory making shells is not nearly so extraordinary as some of the newspapers would have us believe. Ever since the olden times when monasteries were the centres of learning, priests have been pioneers in the fields of invention and discovery. Especially does this seem the case where warlike things are concerned, says London Answers.

Strange as it may seem, members of the Church stand in the front rank of the inventors of weapons of destruction. The case mentioned above brings to light an interesting instance, a correspondent mentioning that next year will be the centenary of the invention of the percussion lock, which superseded the flint lock, and was the discovery of a Scottish minister, the Rev. Alexander John Forsyth.

Likewise, although the origin of gunpowder is wrapped in mystery, two men are given the credit for its discovery, and both were monks. One was Friar Bacon, who can, without fear of contradiction, be called the father of British scientific research. His undoubtedly knew how to make gunpowder, but never realized the uses to which it might be put.

The other is a German monk, Schwartz, whose claim is supported by the majority of authorities. As might be expected, however, the heads of the Church show little appreciation for the cleverness of its members when directed towards improving the machinery of destruction. This was made apparent a year or two ago when an Italian monk invented an automatic rifle, which it was claimed would fire 350 shots a minute.

He wished to submit it to the Italian Government, but his superiors ordered him to destroy the designs of such a murderous weapon. Rather than do that, however, he abandoned his monastic career, and it is quite possible that if his invention justifies the sacrifice he made for it, we may get striking proofs of its destructiveness in the present war.

Reformed.

"How is Dick getting along with the woman that married him to reform him?"

"She has reformed him, all right."

"Sure enough?"

"You bet. Before he was married he used to be as good as a meal ticket for me, but when I met him yesterday and tried to borrow a five, he made me pay back a tenner I owed him."

HEROINE OF RUSSIAN ARMY.

As Bride Put on Uniform and Went to Front With Husband.

Some time ago, travelling on the same train to Warsaw, were a man and a woman—the man a young undergraduate who had joined the Russian army as a volunteer, and the woman, the daughter of a princely landowner in the Caucasus, who bore one of the noblest names in the history of Crusia. The man, who was an officer, was going to join his regiment, and during the two days' railway journey the two young people, who had fallen in love at first sight, became engaged. On arriving at Warsaw they went straight to the nearest Orthodox Greek Church, where a kindly priest married them.

The girl refused to leave her husband, and, managing to obtain a soldier's kit and assuming the name of Lourenty, followed him to the firing-line. She soon obtained her baptism of fire, for the position where she and her husband were stationed was one of the most critical on the River Raska and subjected to continual German attacks. During one encounter her husband, who was only a lieutenant, found himself the only officer in a condition to command four companies, and his wife acted as lieutenant. The Germans were mowing the Russians down, and the young officer sent one of his men to the front line of trenches to give the order to retire. But the front line men, excited beyond control, refused, owing to an order given by their late commander. Twice the husband sent, but the men refused to move. Then the husband, as a last resort, sent his wife. She tried to persuade them, but without success. Every moment the Germans were getting nearer, and their fire became hotter, while their coming meant instant death for every man; so the girl lifted the butt end of her rifle and brought it down on the soldiers of first one man and then another. Her angry voice and forceful action had the desired effect, and the men evacuated the trenches and ran towards the back line, Laurenty staying till every man had reached a safer place. As she stood there a sharp shell hit her right arm. In another ten minutes not a single man would have been left alive in that trench.

When Laurenty returned she found her husband wounded in the leg; husband and wife were sent to the same hospital, and the soldier-princess was soon presented to the commander-in-chief and received the Cross of St. George, the V.C. of Russia, for her valor.

VILLAGES RUN BY WOMEN.

Shortage of Men in Europe Making Great Changes.

Owing to the war, women in England and France are taking up many odd callings to make up for the shortage of men, but in the country women have already done whatever lies nearest to their hand.

In the village, the butcher, the baker, the candlestick-maker, may all be women, and there is at least one small town in Devon in which women form the chief business element. The principal hotel is run by a woman and her daughter, a woman deftly cuts the joints and orders her son about.

A bakeress bakes the nicest bread, and her daughter trudges far into the country with two baskets slung on her back, a picturesque figure of the female worker. The wine merchant is a woman who worked up a nice little business, while a chemist's shop is owned by a woman, to say nothing of the trades which are to be found everywhere, sweetstuff shops, fancy shops and the like.

France, being a country where universal service is the rule, is nowadays depending largely on the work of women, but even in the times of peace there were places where they were the chief workers. At Prouisay, in the Department of the Oise, most of the public appointments are held by women, and will be until their present holders die.

There is a postmistress instead of a postmaster; the telegraph department is run by a woman; a station mistress directs the porters at the local station; a lady barber cuts the hair of the community, and the town crier also tacks "ess" on to the name of her calling.

Solving a Problem.

The arithmetic lesson that day had been hard and trying and now, at the closing hour, Tommy stood before the teacher waiting to hear results.

"Your last problem was wrong," was the verdict. "You will have to stay after school and do it again."

Tommy looked at the clock. "Tell me, please, how much am I out?" he asked.

"Your answer is 2 cents short."

Tommy's hand dived into the pocket where his most treasured possessions were stored. Swiftly he separated two pennies from a bunch of shoe strings, a penknife and some marbles and pieces of chalk.

"I'm in a hurry, please," he said; "if you don't mind, I'll pay the difference."

Her Opposite.

Nell—Do you believe people should marry their opposites?

Belle—Yes; my fiancee lives just across the street.

An optimist is a man who smiles at kicks, and a pessimist is a man who kicks at smiles.

but the chimney pots of the neighboring houses with their cleanly covering of new fallen snow, while the air was filled with the swirling flakes blown hither and thither by the angry wind.

For the first time he seemed to realize that Dowd Valworth ought to have returned, and looked about him with that shifting glance that indicates apprehension.

"Can anything have happened to him?" he questioned of himself, in his deep, guttural, unmusical voice. "Or is there some slight difficulty about getting a carriage? That is it, I suppose. I half wish I had gone for it myself. I wonder if I would dare leave her here while I go to fetch one? Confound his stupidity! He is growing into an imbecile too rapidly to suit even me. I wonder if I would dare leave her?"

He returned to the bed and, once more stood looking down upon her, feasting his gluttonous eyes upon her perfect beauty.

"Mine!" he muttered. "All—all mine! And I shall know too well how to protect my own interests. Curse it all! I wish Valworth would come!"

He walked to the door of the outer room, and opening it, listened in the hall.

There were only the children's voices coming in shrill little screams from below, with the occasional interruption of a mother calling to her offspring, and the slam of a door, caused perhaps by the wind.

There was no sound of the return of Valworth, however, and closing the door softly behind him, the old Jew stole back to the bedside of the girl.

She had not moved.

He looked down upon her silently, but remained only a moment so. He lifted his head, and listened intently, almost eagerly.

There was surely the sound of a footstep upon the stairs. That was the top floor, and none of the other rooms up it were rented. Surely it must be Valworth. Once more he hurried, but with noiseless tread, to the door, and opened it carefully.

Ay, surely it was he, but what was the change in the man's countenance? What was that exultant light in his eyes? What was the meaning of that strange smile upon his lips so unusual to them?

But no sooner had these mental questions formulated themselves in Greenwood's brain, than he put them aside, smiling at his own folly.

"Have you got it?" he questioned, eagerly. "Have you—"

But before he could complete the second query the two men who had accompanied Valworth to the store, his eyes bulging more than ever, a loamy whiteness overspreading his grimy face.

He had recognized the gray-blue of the uniformed officer. Never mind me! Go there and rescue her!"

BRITISH NAVAL POWER.

A Paris Paper Enumerates Its Benefits to the Allies.

In a long article headed, "What We Owe to the British Navy," the Temps enumerates the benefits conferred on the Allies by their naval supremacy, which, while safeguarding their colonial possessions, has transferred German colonial possessions to other flags. Millions of square kilometers of territory and millions of inhabitants are no longer covered by the German flag.

But for the British naval power, instead of the siege being laid to Tsing Tau, the German China Squadron could have a free hand against the Indo-China possessions. It would not have been Duala and Edea in the Cameroons which have been bombarded, but St. Louis and Dakar in Senegal. The Koenigsberg, unbottled, would have rained shells on French towns in the Indian Ocean, deprived of their communications with the Mother Country. The troops of the great French colonies in Africa and Asia would have been unable to hold out for long. This is what is now happening in the German territories, all of which are to-day virtually captured. All German commerce destroyers have disappeared. The distant seas are free to the Allies, and neutral shipping, and their navigation is unimpeded.

After eleven months of war there is not a German port outside of Europe. Except in the Baltic and on the North Sea there is not a single ship able to sail under the German flag. Short-sighted people are hypnotized by the incessant torpedoing by submarines, but when they reflect that not a single transport, store ship, or modern warship, has been torpedoed they are forced to admit that the German submarine action is without military importance.

Seasonable Dishes.

Banana Ice Cream.—To the crushed pulp of six bananas add one cupful sugar, one-half tea-spoonful salt. Pour in a quart of milk and pint of cream. Mix well and freeze.

Fruit Iced Tea.—Steep some fresh tea and put on ice. When cold pour in the juice of pineapple, strawberries, apples, banana and any other fruit you like all mixed together.

Huckleberry Pancakes.—Sift together in a deep bowl one quart of flour, two teaspoonfuls of salt, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, add three well-beaten eggs and four tablespoonfuls of milk. Beat to a smooth batter, then add one pint of cream, one pint of milk, the grated rind of one lemon and two cupfuls of huckleberries. Fry and serve very hot with powdered sugar.

Baked Stuffed Cucumbers.—Wipe and peel cucumbers, cut in two-inch pieces crosswise and remove seeds. Mix four tablespoonfuls bread crumbs, two tablespoonfuls finely chopped cooked ham and two tablespoonfuls grated cheese (Parmesan is best). Moisten with tomato sauce and season with salt and pepper. Put cucumber cups in shallow pan, fill with mixture, surround with hot water or chicken stock and bake half an hour. Then cover with buttered crumbs and bake until brown.

Peach Fritters.—Remove skins from three or four peaches and cut in small pieces. Mix and sift one cup flour, one and one-half teaspoonfuls baking powder, three tablespoonfuls powdered sugar and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Add one-third cup milk gradually, while stirring constantly, and one egg well beaten. Then add peaches. Drop by spoonful into hot fat and fry until delicately brown. Drain on brown paper, sprinkle with powdered sugar and send to table on folded napkin, with lemon sauce.

Lemon Sauce.—Put three-fourths cup sugar into saucepan, add enough fourth cup water and let boil five minutes. Remove from fire, add two teaspoonful butter, bit by bit, and one tablespoon lemon juice.

Peach Cake.—Mix together two cups sifted flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, one heaping tablespoon butter, one-half cup sugar and milk enough to make soft dough. Roll out half an inch thick and lay on flat, buttered baking pan. Have peaches ready, peeled and cut into lengths. Press these into dough in rows. Sprinkle with granulated sugar and bake. Cut in squares and serve hot with sweetened cream.

Potato Soup.—Pare four medium-sized potatoes, quarter and boil with small onion and two or three stalks of celery. When done, remove onion and celery, mash potatoes, add enough boiling milk to make of creamlike consistency (about three cups), one tablespoonful butter, one and one-half teaspoonfuls salt and one egg until light, put in tureen, strain soup through colander into tureen and serve.

Mock Venison.—Make a sauce of one tablespoonful brown flour, one tablespoonful butter and one cupful stock of water. When thoroughly cooked and smooth, add one tablespoonful currant jelly, one tablespoonful mushroom or Worcestershire sauce and bring to boil. Heat thin slices of mutton in this until hot, but do not let the mutton cook.

Breaded Parsnips.—Wash and trim parsnips, scrape (if large, split them) and boil ten minutes in salted water. Take from fire, drain, lay in cold water half-hour. Wipe dry, roll in beaten egg, then in bread crumbs, set aside for about an hour, then fry in deep, boiling fat as you would doughnuts. Take up in wire spoon and serve in hot dish. Oyster plant is good cooked in the same way.

Household Hints.

Bran is far better than soap for cleaning paint.

Charcoal powder is excellent for cleaning fine knives.

Fie crust should be rolled in one direction—away from you.

Bread should be kept always wrapped up in a clean cloth.

A cloth moistened with alcohol is effective in cleaning piano keys.

Housewives will find the butcher's apron a great convenience, as it covers even the sleeves.

When a bedroom floor is to be washed, see that it is thoroughly dried and aired before night.

Never leave a package of coffee anywhere near butter, eggs or milk—they will absorb the flavor.

To polish a black marble clock rub over with olive oil and finish with a clean chamois leather.

Soups suffer less than anything else by being heated a second time, but they should be re-flavored.

Braising kept in a covered or other dish with a small cup of water in the centre will keep moist and fresh.

Salt curdles new milk, so gravies, etc., should not be salted until the dish is prepared ready to serve.

If you have an earthenware bread pan with a cover, the loaves of bread can be put in it without wrapping up.

Kerosene will soften boots and shoes that have been hardened by water and will render them pliable as new.

Finger marks are best removed from furniture by washing with water colored with vinegar, then wipe with a dry cloth.

If you spill ink on a carpet, soak it up immediately with blotting paper, then wash out with warm water and clean flannel and dry with a soft duster.

A solution of salts of lemon and warm water will remove iron-mould from linen. The article should be well rinsed afterward in clean water and allowed to dry.

A good way to get rid of a mouldy smell in the cellar is to dust well over the walls and floor unslacked lime, leaving it on for a day or two then brushing it off.

Wild flowers can be transplanted successfully if care is taken to put them in places with about the same exposure and character as they were in before. It is well to move a great deal of the natural soil with the roots.

After using cold water starch many housekeepers throw it away. This is wasteful. Allow it to settle and pour off the clear water. Put the starch in the oven and leave until the starch is dry and a hard cake. This should be put away for future use.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON.

AUGUST 15.

Jeroboam Leads Israel Into Sin—1 Kings 12. 25-33. Golden

Text.—Exod. 20. 4. 5a.

I. Jeroboam's Jealousy of Rehoboam (Verses 25-27.)

Verse 25. Built Shechem—In the early days Shechem was a strongly fortified city. It was overthrown by Abimelech (Judg. 9. 45). Jeroboam did not build it. He restored it. He strengthened it by walls and made it his royal residence.

Built Peniel—On the east side of the Jordan. Jeroboam had subjects on both sides of the river. It was highly important that both places be strongly fortified. Peniel was undoubtedly near the fords of the Jordan, so that an outpost stationed there could defend the land from invasion. Peniel was anciently called Peniel (Gen. 32. 22, 30).

26. Said in his heart—The Feast of the Tabernacles was approaching and many of his people would go to Jerusalem. The City of God, or Holy City, still had strong attractions for the faithful. It was usual for the people not only to attend the feast, but to remain in Jerusalem many days.

Kingdom return to the house of David—Jeroboam's fear was well grounded. If Jerusalem was to continue as the centre of religious unity, Jeroboam could not expect to hold his people. His own life would be insecure (see 2 Sam. 4. 7, where Ishbosheth was killed by his own subjects).

II. Jeroboam's Sin (Verses 28-31)

28. Two calves of gold—In Egypt, the Israelites became familiar with the worship of the sacred ox. It was natural that not only in the wilderness (Exod. 32. 4, 8) but here also the calf was used in imitation of Egyptian idolatry. But Jeroboam, just as much as Aaron, knew the wrongfulness of idol worship.

It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem—Not because the journey would have been fatiguing. The Israelites were used to such foot travels. Jeroboam meant, as the margin says, that his people had "gone up long enough." They had chosen a new king and kingdom; it was incumbent upon them to choose a new religion. Why go up to Jerusalem to worship when they could do so at home?

29. Bethel . . . Dan—Bethel was at the extreme south of the new kingdom and Dan, formerly Laish, was at the extreme north of Palestine. These places had been associated with religious rites in former times (Judg. 18. 30; 20. 18, 26; 1 Sam. 10. 3).

30. This thing became a sin—In violation of the second commandment.

31. Houses of high places—Like the Acropolis in Athens, so in Palestine the molten or carved gods were set on high.

Priests from among all the people—In the kingdom Jeroboam was founding the priests were not all taken from one tribe (for example, the tribe of Levi). He instituted a new order of priests.

III. Jeroboam's Feast (Verses 32, 33)

32. Ordained a feast—As a counter attraction to the Feast of Tabernacles and for the purpose, of course, of keeping his people at home.

In the eighth month—A month later than the Feast of Tabernacles. This feast was a harvest feast. As the harvest was a month later in northern Palestine, Jeroboam could set his feast (also a harvest celebration) that much later.

33. Went up into the altar—As Solomon dedicated his temple, so Jeroboam personally consecrated his altar in Bethel for worship. He evidently let some of the new priests (verse 31) dedicate the altar in Dan.

Devised of his own heart—Jeroboam's religion and worship were man-made. They had not the sanction of God. They were his personal, unauthorized, and wrongful innovation. They therefore became stigmatized as "Jeroboam's sin."

MINE WARFARE A NEW PROBLEM

WHEN THE TRENCHES COME CLOSE TOGETHER.

"Listeners" Guard Against Explosion of the Enemy by Countermining.

Trench warfare has gradually and by force of circumstances led to mine warfare. The first line of trenches in the fighting zone constitutes an advanced defence of points of support (villages, woods, chateaux, farms, deep roads, etc.), and serves to establish communication between them. So long as the two adversaries are not in complete touch with one another and remain separated by distance of 500 to 600 yards, this advanced line is not continuous, being simply occupied by sentries and pickets. When by rushes in the open and then by sapping, the advanced lines are brought sufficiently close to make all progress impossible without heavy losses from bombs and grenades, mine-warfare commences.

In this new phase the distance between the French and German trenches varies from about 25 to 50 yards. By a rapid and unexpected rush it would seem easy to throw oneself into the enemy positions.

Driving Saps. But while the works of the attacking party advance, the enemy in his turn has linked up the elements of his advanced line, flanked them with numerous machine guns, equipped them with bomb-throwers, and Mine-throwers, and thrown up in front of the parapets network of iron wire, accessory defences of all kinds.

Thus the simple fact of driving saps and parallels close up to the enemy has the initial effect of fixing many of his men to the spot, and of keeping them constantly under threat of an attack. If such attack takes place, it can only be crowned with complete success after making breaches, by the destruction of the accessory defences, and the silencing of the flanking fire. These results may be achieved by heavy artillery fire, and even by the prolonged use of machine guns; it has been found that with 10,000 cartridges a gap of some twenty yards can be made. But these methods are noisy, and must, to remain effective, immediately precede the attack. Hence their use warns the enemy that it is going to take place. He is then on his guard, all take up their firing positions, the breaches made are immediately swept by a flanking fire, and the success of the attack is all a matter of chance.

8937 SMART VACATION DRESS.

May times is one confronted with the difficulty of deciding on the most satisfactory dress for the vacation—Is it to be an Empire, a Princess or what? Shall it have a low neck, short sleeves, yoke skirt or—"Oh, on just what shall I decide!" A dress that will be found highly satisfactory in determining these little vexatious points by combining many of the season's most popular features, is Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8937. The pattern includes a Quaker collar and cuffs, a waist with a gathered yoke and a one-piece skirt gathered to a two-piece hip yoke. The pattern cuts in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure, requiring in size 36, 6 1/2 yards 36-inch material.

Patterns, 15 cents each, can be purchased at your local Ladies' Home Journal Pattern dealer, or from The Home Pattern Company, 183-A, George Street, Toronto, Ontario.

To locate these listeners are placed at the end of each branch of the counter-mine. When the first noises are reported, suitable measures are taken. Mine warfare will then begin in earnest. Contact by listening is established. Sometimes the entanglement of galleries and branches is such that an enemy gallery is arrived at or even a chamber discovered; thereupon the fuses are immediately cut.

HUMAN KINSHIP ESSENTIAL

Because Religion Did Not Prevent War Shall We Quit Trying to be Religious?

"God hath made of one blood all nations of men."—Acts xvii, 26.

This age seems further away than any other from a realization of the truth of this text. For nationalism has served to plunge the world into strife and sectarianism has made a hell in hearts where heaven should be enshrined. Sectarianism in religion and nationalism in politics have bred hatreds out of the conditions that confront mankind.

In the realm of religion the days when hatred flamed into the fires of martyrdom have given place to days of tolerance, but in the realm of political life a dislike of the unlike—"Kindles cruelties and fans the fire of war."

Family quarrels are notoriously bitter, and bitter indeed is the present quarrel among many members of God's family of nations. The influence of religion ought to be able to quell the spirit of strife, but religion as now organized, or rather as now disorganized, is impotent. Nor can any revival of religion that seeks only to restore what has been succeeded in creating permanent conditions of human betterment, for what has been can never be again save as it lives in the higher vision and works in the greater aims of the day that now is.

Broader views of religion must be cultivated before it will be able to bind men in a pact of peace. It is not my view of God or your view of Him that is essential. It is not the approach to Him by way of the teachings of Parsees or Taoists or Buddhists or Christians, either Catholic or Protestant, or of Jews or of any creed you will that matters. It is humanity that matters. It is the fact of human kinship that is essential. Nor does kinship mean a likeness that is merely a sameness. Sameness makes a mob but does not make a family. In the family all are different, though all are alike. And kinship means a tolerance of each by all. More, it means co-operation between the unlike until the varying qualities of each are put to the service of all.

This is the hour of destiny for religion. Its business of teaching a tolerance that passes into brotherhood through the path of co-operation was never so important as now. What shall we do? Quit? Sam Fessenden rightly said "God Almighty hates a quitter." Shall we say that all religion is useless? Shall we say that all religion is useless save the particular brand of which we happen to approve? Rather let us one and all recognize the value of individuality in religion as in all the realms of life. Then it will be easier to co-operate with men of many minds and many creeds, as all men seek unity and peace through fraternity.—Rev. Addison Moore, D.D.

TELL THEIR GREAT DEEDS.

(By James L. Hughes.)

Stories of dauntless heroes
Dying for liberty,
Winning for truth and honor
Triumphant victory;
Tell these great stories ever;
We should forget them never.

Heroes of Balacava,
Heroes of Waterloo,
Heroes who saved St. Julien,
Fearless were they, and true,
Tell their great deeds forever;
We should forget them never.

What shall the coming ages
In story tell of you?
Honor, and faith and freedom,
Impel you right to do,
You must record your story,
Either of shame or glory.

Never was freedom threatened
As now by despot power,
Never was duty clearer
Now is your testing hour,
You must record your story,
Shall it be shame or glory?

Duty to home and Empire,
Duty to liberty,
Calls you to valiant action;
What will your answer be?
You must record your story,
Shall it be shame or glory?

Civilization weeping
For Belgium's heart that bleeds,
Calls in the name of mercy;
"Wake and do noble deeds!"
Wide are the gates of glory,
Enter! Record your story,

Water on a Red-Hot Stove.

Why it is impossible to throw a few drops of water on a red-hot stove? Perhaps you never knew that this cannot be done.

The water can never touch the stove at all. What you see is a few drops rolling rapidly over the surface. These become smaller and smaller until they entirely disappear. If the drops are on a perfectly level place it can be proved that they are not in contact with the stove itself by the fact that one can see under them to the other side of the room.

What is the explanation?
The bottom of the drop changes at once to steam or vapor on coming close to the hot surface. This vapor is supplied by the drop as it gradually goes away—in other words, the drop rests on a cushion of vapor until it has entirely disappeared.

You may ask why the drop is not immediately evaporated or changed to steam. The answer is this: The water-vapor that intervenes between its under surface and the red-hot stove is not a good conductor of heat; consequently the full intensity of the heat cannot get to the water itself, the only amount available for this purpose being that transmitted through the vapor.

Johnnie's Demand.

A young hopeful of four was at table with mother on Sunday morning, the father being from home for the week-end. "Now, Johnnie," said his mother, "you'll sit in father's chair this morning and say grace."

"Well, mother, if I'm to be father I must have two eggs," returned Johnnie, imperiously.

Unkind Silence.

Money talks, but it never tells us whether or not we are investing it wisely.

"Salary" comes from the Latin word "sal"—i.e., salt—Roman soldiers having received a daily portion of salt as part of their pay. Hence the expression, "not worth his salt."

"BY MEDICINE LIFE MAY BE PROLONGED."—So wrote Shakespeare nearly three hundred years ago. It is so today. Medicine will prolong life, but be sure of the qualities of the medicine. Life is prolonged by keeping the body free from disease. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil used internally will cure coughs and colds, eradicate asthma, overcome croup and give strength to the respiratory organs. Give it a trial.

For God, King and Country.

Ten reasons why you should enlist or subscribe to the Canadian Patriotic Fund to the extent of your ability:

1. Love to my country and to the Empire, of which we are a part, either to fight myself or help to make it possible for others to fight in this supreme struggle.
2. As a Canadian I have enjoyed the protection and privileges of British citizenship and have never yet been called upon in defence of the Empire.
3. I have paid no war tax. My mother country has borne the burden of my protection alone.
4. In this hour of trial I desire Great Britain to realize that every Canadian is supporting and upholding her cause.
5. The war in which we are engaged is a righteous cause, a struggle for truth, liberty, and for the sacredness of treaties and the given word.
6. If I cannot go myself, I can help to make it possible for others to go. Guaranteeing to their families, provision during their absence, and some comforts to those in the field.
7. Every soldier who has gone from Canada is as truly my representative as he who went from Middlesex.
8. Those who have gone to the front are making greater sacrifices than anything that I can do at home. Therefore I must help.
9. Think of the comforts and safety I am enjoying in comparison with the suffering and danger of our soldiers in the trenches, and the shell swept battle fields.
10. An unparalleled crisis in the world's history calls for supreme sacrifice on my part, I must do my duty. I must fight or pay. A great issue is at stake; let us buckle down and with one mighty effort, give until it hurts. There will really be no blessing to us, if we do less than this.

A lady writes: "I was enabled to remove the corns, root and branch, by the use of Holloway's Corn Cure." Others who have tried it have the same experience.
