Evangelist Dwight L. Moody Injured.

Five German Children Agree to Commit Suicide.

Pitiable Plight of the Peasantry in Russia.

Ninety Men-of-War to Take Part in a Columbus Celebration.

Tourist and Guide Perish.

VIENNA, Sept. 7.—Herr Schuckler, of Stuttgart, a tourist in the Alps, and his guide, were both killed by falling over a precipice.

Moody Injured.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Dwight L. Moody, the evangelist, was thrown out of a carriage at Belfast on Saturday night and is confined to his room with a sprained foot.

Fighting in West Africa.

ST. PAUL DE LOANDO, Sept. 7.—Troops attempted to force 250 laborers employed by the Congo Free State Railway to go ashore from a vessel against their will yesterday. A fierce fight ensued, and many were killed and injured.

Attempt to Blow Up a Church.

WARSAW, Sept. 7.—An unknown man actuated by religious hatred attempted to blow up the Orthodox Greek Church with a dynamite bomb while worship was in progress to-day. The man was horribly mangled. The congregation escaped uninjured, although the sanctuary was badly damaged.

Five Children Attempt Suicide.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—Clara Weinecke, aged 13, of this city, agreed with her four brothers and sisters to commit suicide, in order to escape the cruelty of a brutal stepmother. All the children were rescued from death except Hermann, aged 7, who perished. Clara was tried on a charge of inciting to murder and has been found guilty and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

The Queen at Perth.

Edmund Yates says: "The Queen stopped at Perth for nearly an hour last Tuesday morning, and her Majesty was received on the platform by the Marquis of Breadalbane. Her Majesty leaning on a stick, walked slowly down the incline leading from the door of the carriage to the platform, when she stopped for a moment to speak to the Marquis of Breadalbane before entering the hotel. The royal breakfast-room was decorated with flowers."

Grand Naval Gathering.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Ninety men-of-war of all nations are expected in Genoese waters for the grand Columbus celebration there on Sept. 8. Lord Brassey, writing to the Times on the lessons of the naval maneuvers, concludes by saying that the frequent break-down of machinery in the newly-commissioned ships points to a necessity for more practice at sea. It points to nothing of the kind. Machinery too flimsy for the work it has been expected to perform has, in every case, been at the bottom of the mischief.

In Pitiable Plight.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The worst fears that were entertained about the Russian famine have been realized, and the cholera has duly followed in its wake. To take care of 100,000,000 persons there are just 12,000 practicing doctors in Russia—that is, one doctor to every 8,333 persons! Most of the medical men are settled in the towns, so that in the country disease can do its work with but scant hindrance among a resigned and fatalist people who regard death as a necessary evil and will do nothing to cure illness or to alleviate pain from which they may suffer.

British Harvest Prospects.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Mark Lane Express says that all estimates confirm the assurance that there will be 8,000,000 to 8,250,000 quarters of British wheat. Hence it will be necessary to import from 19,000,000 to 19,250,000 from abroad. As to the new cereals this year it is admitted that the yield of barley is up to the average, but it is feared that the quality is below the average. New English wheat is selling very low, although slightly improved, the better sorts 30 shillings to 34 shillings in London, and 28 to 33 shillings in the provinces. Old wheat is selling for 30 shillings to 35 shillings in the provinces. Flour is nominally selling for 33 shillings, but a decline to 30 shillings is menaced.

Harrison's Fallacies.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Daily News, commenting on President Harrison's letter of acceptance, says that President Harrison has followed Lord Salisbury's contention but a little way as a party leader. He has written a strong appeal, which, like Lord Salisbury's manifesto, indicates a sense of weakness rather than strength. The contention that protective duties keep up wages is based, the News says, on false information.

The Chronicle says that Harrison's letter is energetic in assertion. Between the lines may be seen waving the patriotic flag. On silver he utters either platitudes or speaks with a double voice.

The Times says that the good sense shown by Harrison in his comments on the silver question is mixed up with the fallacies on the subject of protection, presenting a remarkable contrast.

The International Monetary Conference.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—In regard to the international monetary conference the Government has heard nothing from Secretary Foster, whose ignoring of the change of Ministry seems not likely to assist the conference arrangements. The Associated Press is authorized to state that both Mr. Gladstone and Sir William Vernon Harcourt, his Chancellor of the Exchequer, are averse to the conference discussing anything affecting the currency of the British Empire. Mr. Gladstone thinks that if anything is done to relieve the strain of the monetary system of India it ought to be effected without an agreement or conference with the United States authorities. Mr. Gladstone thinks that the conference will lead to nothing and privately expressed the opinion that Mr. Goschen had gone too far in treating with Secretary Foster. He did not like the idea of a suspension of India's silver currency, but finding that the India office insisted upon an early settlement of the question he has consented to submit it to the Cabinet.

Dr. Talmage's Farewell.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—Rev. Dr. Talmage preached a farewell sermon last night at the Crystal Hall. At a banquet which took place before the service, a vote of thanks for the doctor's eminent services to Christianity was carried amid great applause. Dr. Talmage was presented with a gold watch with a commemorative inscription. The vote of thanks was subsequently ratified by an immense audience. The subject of the sermon was "The Authenticity of the Bible." After the service the preacher shook hands with the vast throng.

Napoleon at Sedan.

PARIS, Sept. 8.—Cassagnac has written a letter denying the statement prominently portrayed in Zola's last novel, "Debacle," that on the fateful day when Sedan succumbed to the enemy, it was easy to see that the Emperor showed himself to the army painted and powdered to conceal the ravages of care and disappointment. Cassagnac says that on that day Emperor Napoleon leaned upon his shoulder when entering his carriage to surrender himself to the victorious Germans. Napoleon, he says, often dined with him, and he avows his knowledge that the Emperor was not in the habit of using cosmetics.

$10,000 Stitched in His Clothing.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The authorities of the poorhouse at Belfast, Ireland, are endeavoring to find the relatives of James Stewart, who was admitted as a pauper to the poorhouse and died suddenly soon after. On examination of his clothing after death it was found that he had nearly $10,000 in United States money and certificates of twenty mining shares stitched in the lining of his coat. The name of Stewart is not uncommon among the Scotch-Irish in Ulster, and it is believed that this Stewart belonged there originally and had probably returned after a long absence in the United States. No one has indentified him.

Bristol May Make a Bid.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—A committee of the Bristol Dock Board appointed to report on the cost of providing pier accommodations for Atlantic steamship lines has considered the details of a scheme submitted to them by prominent engineers, who propose to build wet and dry docks at Bristol to accommodate the largest ocean steamers at a cost of £900,000; a landing pier, which will be available at any time, at a cost of £100,000, and a railway, to better accommodate timber merchants, at a cost of £65,000. They also proposed to build a long pier at Portishead, 7½ miles from Bristol, costing several thousand pounds to construct, which work a private company will undertake.

IN LABOR'S FIELD.

The Hamilton Motor Men and Conductors Go Out on Strike.

About 50 of the 80 or more motor men and conductors employed by the Hamilton Electric Street Railway Company went out on strike Wednesday afternoon. The men left their cars standing on the tracks all along the lines of the company. About 30 of the employes refused to strike and these, with a few unskilled men, are trying to keep some of the cars running. The strikers claim that the company have been working them fifteen hours a day for four days in the week, and four hours a day for two days a week, while the agreement with the city was that the men were not to be compelled to work more than ten hours a day. It is also said the company refuses to pay the motor men and conductors for overtime, as stipulated in the bylaw.

The Dominion Trades and Labor Congress opens in Toronto to-day (Thursday). Judging by the conversation of the delegates now here the principal topic to be discussed will be Chinese immigration on the Pacific coast, and the sentiment of total prohibition of such immigrants is very strong.

A Child in the Shadow of the Gallows.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 8.—Milly Brown, a 14-year-old colored girl, was to have been hanged to-morrow for the murder of a small child, but Gov. Tillman has granted a respite until Oct. 7. In the meantime he will consider an application for her pardon.

Through Sound, River, Canal and Lake.

BOSTON, Sept. 8.—Capt. C. C. Morgan, of this city, sailed from Hull, Mass., last evening in his steam launch Island Queen for Cleveland, Ohio, via Long Island Sound, Hudson River, Erie Canal and Lake Erie. The vessel is 30 feet over all, 6 feet beam and draws but 18 inches.

A Daring Robbery.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 8.—A lone bandit held the Pacific Express messenger on the Wichita Coal Creek Express last night at Grand Abene station almost within the city limits. The messenger was bound, gagged and the key of the safe taken from him. The robber secured several thousand dollars.

Embargo on Sheep Removed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Minister Lincoln has notified Secretary Rusk that the English Government has removed the prohibition on the entrance of live sheep to Great Britain. The conditions are that the sheep shall have been taken over in vessels with no other animals, and that the vessels shall not have touched at forbidden ports.

Killed by a Trolley Car.

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—John H. Heard, aged 25, employed at Polson's Iron Works, was going home from work to-night on his wheel. When on King street, just outside the Government House, he attempted to cross the track in front of a trolley car, when another bicyclist coming from the opposite side collided with him, and he was thrown to the ground. A trolley car went over him, crushing his head, cutting off a leg and otherwise mangling his body. Deceased was unmarried.

What a Hornet's Nest Did.

MERCED, Cal., Sept. 8.—A hornet's nest fell on a stage team that was passing through the Yosemite Valley the other morning, when the stage had just passed Inspiration Point, which is on the edge of a precipice several hundred feet above the Merced Canyon. Four horses were on the stage and all jumped over the bluff. The leaders were hung on trees by the harness and were choked to death. The wheel horses were not killed. Two passengers were in the stage. One had a leg broken and the other an ankle sprained. The driver was thrown over with the stage and was seriously injured.

HAMBURG HOPELESS.

HAMBURG, Sept. 7.—The cholera is making steady and rapid progress in this city, and the transparent denials of the authorities only deceive those who wish to be deceived. The appalling increase in the number of fresh cases and deaths Saturday left the people almost without hope. Now another heavy increase of the sick list and the death list has consummated their hopelessness and despair.

The newspapers are virtually dumb as to the increase, and most of the sanitary officials open their mouths only to falsify the facts. The number of inspectors and physicians employed by the city has been doubled, and one cannot walk the streets without meeting half a dozen agents of the health department. Trade in everthing except food, drink and medicine is dead. The loss of merchants and shopkeepers since the beginning of the plague are estimated at 200,000,000 marks ($50,000,000). Fears of financial crash have become general within the last few days. In view of this perilous state of affairs, the banks have announced that they will give 30 days more time on payments due them.

Services of prayer are held daily by the clergy. They are well attended. Just before and after the services there is a semblance of life in the streets, at other hours only servants going to market or officials of the Health Department are seen.

Late reports show that the disease is gaining ground in the city, and that the mortality is disproportionately heavy among female patients. Many deaths are occuring in asylums and prisons.

ACTION OF THE ONTARIO BOARD OF HEALTH.

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—At a special meeting of the Provincial Board of Health this evening the following resolution was unanimously adopted: "That in view of the action of the President of the United States, who has issued an order establishing a quarantine of twenty days against vessels carrying emigrants so as to prevent the introduction of cholera into ports of the United States, thereby deflecting the stream of emigrants to our shores; and also seeing the unprepared condition of the quarantine station at Grosse Isle and other Canada ports, the Provincial Board of Health of Ontario, through the honorable the Minister of Agriculture, desire to urge most strongly on the Government of the Dominion of Canada the advisability of issuing immediate regulations enforcing a quarantine of twenty days against all vessels carrying emigrants to Canada ports."

NEW YORK HARBOR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—There were 28 vessels at quarantine this morning from all parts of the world. Among those released were the Venezuela, from Laguaray, the Fulda and the Massachusetts, from London, with freight. Those held at quarantine are La Bourgogne, Stubbenhuk, Darmstadt, Persian Monarch, Elbe, Cochemere, Elysia, Wyoming, Corean and Waesland. If no sickness is found on the City of New York, her cabin passengers may be allowed to land this afternoon. Among those on the City of New York are Chauncey M. Depew, the wife and daughter of Secretary Chas. Foster and Digby Bell, the actor.

THE DISEASE ON THE INCREASE.

ST. PETERSBURG—Cholera returns for Sept. 4 for the whole of the empire place the number of new cases at 4,779 and the deaths at 2,073—an increase of 453 new cases. In the city of St. Petersburg yesterday 138 new cases and 34 deaths were reported. This is an inceease of 35 new cases.

HAVRE—There were reported in this city yesterday 27 new cases of cholera and seven deaths.

BERLIN—Cholera returns of the Imperial Board of Health place the number of new cases in Hamburg yesterday at 702 and deaths at 333. The board also reports eighteen new cases and nine deaths in Altona yesterday.

A QUESTION OF JURISDICTION.

There is likely to be a conflict between the Dominion Government and the Provincial Government of Quebec in regard to the action of the Quebec Board of Health, which adopted a resolution prohibiting the bringing in of emigrants into that Province by land or water. It was also decided to forbid any vessel coming from any infected port to land anywhere in Quebec. The question arises as to whether the Provincial Government has the authority to enforce such an order.

FUMIGATING CANADIAN MAILS.

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 7.—The work of fumigating all mails from Canada was begun to-day at Rouse's Point. A tight box car is used for the purpose.

FROST KILLS CHOLERA.

W. P. Hugenin, who is visiting in Chicago, says: "There is nothing which kills the cholera microbe like a touch of frost. I have spent some years in Shanghai, China, where there is a plague of cholera every year. I have seen the dreaded malady run its disastrous course unchecked for six months during the hot season. Day by day among the white population deaths were so numerous that for one mile from the town to the cemetery was a line of men four deep with coffins on their shoulders, waiting for an opportunity to bury their dead. I recollect having often seen the chaplain recite a short prayer at one grave and hasten to another to perform a similar office, and so on for a weary round of twelve hours. That is the case year by year for six months, but the moment the autumn chill sets in the disease vanishes. There is something of a comfort for Chicago and America in the thought that they have almost arrived at the frosty season."

STOPS ALL IMMIGRANTS.

A Reuter's telegram from Montreal says the Quebec Provincial Board of Health has absolutely stopped the entrance of all emigrants. If this is true, it quite upsets the Canadian Government's stoppage, which does not apply to British or Scandinavian emigrants.

The following telegram was received from the United States consul at Quebec: "Emigrants from steamship Circassian started for points in the Western States via Canadian Pacific Railway, entering at Sault Ste. Marie and Detroit, quarantined for twenty hours."

BAGGAGE BURNED.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—The baggage of the Scythia's steerage passengers, which has undergone disinfection by super-heated steam, was overhauled yesterday, and it was found that in some cases the process had had disastrous results. Shoes were shrunken and twisted out of shape and rendered as hard as iron. Almost every lot of baggage was damaged, and many of the women sat down and cried when their trunks were opened. A man whose disinfected trousers did not reach to his shoetops tied them down with strings.

GOOD NEWS FROM TEHERAN.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Times' Teheran correspondent says: The cholera epidemic has ceased here. The bazars are again open, and business has been resumed. The mortality here is variously estimated at from 13,000 to 20,000, while for the whole of Persia is at least 30,000.

THE INDIAN CHOLERA SCURGE.

Aubrey Murray, an English military-looking gentleman now on a visit to St. Louis, was right in the midst of all the frenzied excitement of the Indian cholera scourge of 1877 and maddening suffering of the epidemic, and refers to them with a shudder. He said recently to a Globe-Democrat reporter:

"Perhaps the strangest and most inexplicable peculiarity of the ravages of Asiatic cholera is its marked capriciousness. I was in the city of Peshawar when it was raging there, and I saw an entire side of a street literally devastated, while the other side enjoyed the most perfect immunity. I have also known it to enter a barracks and claim for its victims the occupants of one entire row of cots, while soldiers sleeping not ten feet away would be entirely unaffected. During my stay in Peshawar I witnessed as many as 1,500 deaths a day from the scourge. Of course, there was neither the time nor labor to give these victims a separate burial. So we did the next best thing.

"Close to the city the blazing sun had burned and parched the earth until there was made in the ground a great crack fully 300 feet long by 50 feet deep. Into this huge crevice we poured a torrent of slack lime that came to within twenty feet of the top. Into this seething caldron we tossed the thousands of cholera victims, and on top of each day's consignment of victims we poured more slack lime. The lime, you see, greedily scraped the bones of all flesh and devoured it, and the open grave emitted not a particle of sickening stench from the decaying human flesh. I saw the same thing done at the cities of Scinde and Delhi, and in all I must have seen 50,000 natives who died from cholera buried in the manner described. The only difference was that at the latter two places prodigious trenches had to be dug, the sun's fierce rays having failed to provide the yawning gap in the earth.

"That the Asiatic cholera—which, by the way, is indigenous to India, and ought to be named for that country—is the most fatal of all varieties of the malady is generally known; but the suddenness of death in its path doesn't seem to be generally known. It usually runs its course in an hour. It seldom ever lasts longer than three."

AT THE FUMIGATING ROOM.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The square iron room for fumigating purposes is said to be even more powerful than that at North Brother Island and the most complete in the country, if not in the world. The room is lined entirely with corrugated iron, and contains several hundred feet of coiled iron. A steam pressure of 227 pounds to the square inch can be obtained, with a temperature of 208 degrees Fahrenheit.

UNHAPPY HAMBURG!

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The Standard's Hamburg correspondent gives the following cholera record for Wednesday: Fresh attacks, 916; deaths, 302; interments, 629. He states that 700 bodies await interment. He says: "The epidemic has renewed its virulence in the suburbs and in the neighborhood of the central cemetery, where whole families have been swept away. In order to reduce the chances of infection the authorities recommend the smallest possible funerals without flowers, palls or any unnecessary paraphernalia. The warm, damp weather here favors the spread of the plague. The president of the board of health has been dismissed from office.

THE YELLOW FLAG.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Sandy Hook reports that the Normanna and Rugia have the yellow flag up again this morning and that it also flies at Hoffman Island.

DETROIT WILL QUARANTINE TWENTY DAYS.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 8.—The Board of Halth, acting under the authority given by the Surgeon-General's circular, has decided to establish a twenty days' quarantine here against immigrants coming by way of Canada. Twenty days will be the limit, but it does not follow that all or any immigrants will be detained that length of time. If there is any sickness on the train suggestive of cholera, passengers may be held twenty days or less, according to circumstances.

NOTES.

Brussels officials report one case of cholera.

The North German Lloyd steamer Herman sailed from Bremerhaven for New York Tuesday night, and has 800 immigrants in the steerage.

The steamer Trave of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, from Bremen, sailed from Southampton for New York Wednesday evening. She has 307 passengers in the saloon, but her steerage is empty.

The steamship Wyoming, which arrived at New York Tuesday night has 50 Russians. The emigrants are liable to be detained for some time.

The oil tank steamer Brilliant which arrived at New York quarantine from Hamburg Sunday has been allowed to go to New York city. She had no passengers.

Prof. Virchow has published the results of his inquiries in Russia in regard to cholera. He declares that the measures in force in Russia for treating persons attacked with the malady and for preventing its spread are excellent and that Russia is ahead of Germany in this respect. The virulence of the plague in the Volga district he attributes to the physical condition of the inhabitants, who are so reduced by famine that it is impossible to save them once they are attacked by cholera.

Cholera reports from Hamburg for Wednesday show there were 655 new cases, a decrease of 47 compared with the figures of Tuesday. The deaths were 315, a decrease of 18.

There were reported in Havre Wednesday 19 new cases of cholera and 11 deaths. This is 8 fewer cases and 4 more deaths than were reported Tuesday.

BURNED BUILDINGS.

Fires in Stratford, Thorold, Halifax and at Other Points.

STRATFORD, Sept. 7.—The residence of G. G. McPherson, barrister, was badly gutted by fire and water early this morning. The house was insured for $2,000 and the furniture for $1,500, which it is expected will fully cover the loss.

THOROLD, Ont., Sept. 7.—Last night a fire broke out in a brick store on Front street, owned by Hugh James, badly damaging the interior of the building. Loss between $700 and $1,000. The furniture of the Orange lodge is badly damaged.

BRIGHTON, Ont., Sept. 7.—Another disastrous fire occurred in this town about 11 o'clock last night. All the frame buildings situated between John Guny's and J. Morrow's, on the north side of Main street, belonging to J. E. Proctor and T. B. Taylor, and the Eyre estate, directly opposite our brick block were totally destroyed; contents saved. Loss covered by insurance.

HAMILTON, Sept. 7.—A fire at the Burlington Glass Works this morning was caused by sparks from the furnace, igniting some dry wood in the blow house. The fire totally destroyed the works and outbuildings which occupied more than half of the block. About $10,000 worth of stock in the storehouses destroyed. Total loss estimated at about $35,000. An insurance of $37,000 will fully cover the loss. The works will be rebuilt. The works had been shut down for the regulation two months and were to open again in a week. Three hundred men and boys are out of work.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—Fire to-night destroyed the block between Twelfth, Thirteenth and Catherine and Temple streets. The loss is estimated at $400,000.

A SURGICAL TRIUMPH.

Incisions Made in a Woman's Neck and Swallowed Teeth Removed.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 8.—Miss Josie Nelson of South Minneapolis, has been lying at the point of death at the Northwest Hospital for the past six weeks, but because of a remarkable surgical operation made recently will recover. She has taken only liquid food for more than a year, and had become so weak she could not raise her head. As a last resort physicians, by the use of a stethoscope, located an obstruction in the oesophagus, about two inches below the clavicle or collar bone.

Miss Nelson was given an anæsthetic and an incision made on the left side of her neck, about four and one-half inches in length. The doctors dissected down to the oesophagus, opened it and there found two teeth, pointed downward, firmly inserted in the interior walls of the œsophagus. They almost entirely obstructed the passage. Questioned about the matter after she recovered conciousness, Miss Nelson said that six years ago, while in a fit of laughter, she swallowed the two teeth, which were then attached to a triangular piece of rubber.

What renders this piece of surgery truly remarkable is the delicate region of the human anatomy in which the incision was made. For instance, if the pneumo-gastric nerve has been cut death would have been instantaneous. Had the subclavian arteries been severed, the patient would have bled to death in three or four minutes.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

A Suggestion from the Sixth Ward.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

In an item in yours of a few days ago I notice that there is still a small sum of public improvement money to our credit in the 6th ward, and presuming this suggestion will meet with general approval by citizens of this ward, I would propose that instead of any more being spent as the rest has been that this balance be set aside as a fund to pay death and damage claims out of, for injuries fatal or otherwise received by citizens in trying to cross or turn the corners of our streets where all or most of our money has been spent. As an instance of the work I would refer to I need only mention the southwest corner of Elmwood avenue and Wortley road as one of the most efficient neck breakers yet completed—I have no reference to work in course of construction—and it is only due our engineer, the 6th ward aldermen and superintendent of construction that their names be placarded at this corner until for shame, if not for the public good, they see fit to have it altered before, as I have hinted, the city has to pay for someone's broken neck.

A Five-Year Benefit Order in Trouble.

LOWELL, Mass., Sept. 7.—An injunction was granted yesterday against the officers of the Supreme Lodge of the American Protective League, a five-years' benefit order, who are charged with squandering the funds of the order. It is alleged the order owes $2,000,000 and has only $170,000 in its benefit fund.

Played Indian on the Warpath.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 8.—Just before the Labor Day parade Jonathan L. Moore, of this place, who had rigged himself up as an Indian, got full of firewater and proceeded to take the town with a keen-edged hatchet. He tomahawked three men and cleaned out a hotel and some officers before he was landed in the lockup. The injuries inflicted were only flesh wounds and not serious.

DIDN'T KNOW IT WAS LOADED.

THIS YOUNG MAN Is the son of the woman who regardless of cost, does her washing with any compound or crystal her grocer likes to send her. She "DOESN'T KNOW THEY ARE LOADED," (but they are), and in time she finds out how mistaken she has been in not using COTTAM'S recently improved WASHING COMPOUND. All respectable grocers keep it.

HOW MOORS EAT BUTTER.

A Queer and Amusing Letter From a Government Agent at Casablanca.

A butterine company of the Western States recently wrote to the United States consular agent at Casablanca, Morocco, asking if it would be feasible to introduce their product into that country. They received the following very curious and interesting letter in reply:

U. S. CONSULAR AGENT.
CASABLANCA, MOROCCO, July 19, '92.

MESSRS.,—Your favor of June 2 to hand and contents noted, and in reply I am sorry to say that nothing can be done in this locality with the class of goods you speak of. Native butter is too plenty and too cheap to undertake to compete with it at the distance you are writing.

And, again, you give your goods a very bad recommendation to sell to the natives. You say it won't turn rancid; by that the Moors would imagine they could get no stink out of it, in which case it would be quite tasteless to them. They say of butters "No stink, no good!"

The Moors never put salt in butter, and to prepare it for use they press it into coarse stone jars, containing from 10 to 40 pounds, the aperture just large enough to pass their fists through; when full or nearly so, they plaster the top over with soft cow dung, they bury it in the ground, and when it has been there from three to five years it is taken out all ready for use. It then contains all the colors of the rainbow, and as many different tastes and scents. Butter is no use to the Moor until it is toned up to that pitch, and unless you can conjure up an article that will outstink the Moorish butter when prepared for use, don't write me any more on that subject. Ever at your command. J. COBE.

THE TRAVELING DAIRY.

Butter Making as a Fine Art — Interesting Report From Middlesex.

The traveling dairy, managed by F. B. Linfield, B.S.A., has been working in the county of Middlesex for the past two weeks. Meetings have been held at Newbury, Glencoe, Appin, Napier, Delaware, Strathroy, Adelaide, Parkhill and Ailsa Craig. The meetings have not been attended as well as might have been expected, but probably the busy season, threshing and fall wheat seeding has kept many away that would otherwise have been present. While, however, such a statement will apply to some, it does not apply to all. A great many are altogether indifferent to what may be learned at such a meeting. It is those who have the reputation of being the best butter-makers in the neighborhood that are always present. They understand that butter-making is one of the fine arts, and are only too anxious to take the opportunity and get the experience of those who have studied the art under some of the master workmen of the country, and they are not disappointed in their expectations. Though the gentlemen in charge handle their subject scientifically, yet the methods they illustrate and explain are such as any farmer in the country could practice with profit to himself and also the man who buys the article made.

There have not been many samples of milk brought to be tested, but occasionally quite a few samples were tested for cheese factories which were near where the meetings were held. A few samples taken at the Glencoe factory on Monday morning, from the milk as brought to the factory, illustrated forcibly the injustice of paying for milk by weight alone. No. 1 sample tested 4.3 per cent.; No. 2, 3.1 per cent.; No. 3, 4 per cent.; No. 4, 2.6 per cent.; No. 5, 3.7 per cent.; No. 6, 3.8 per cent.; No. 7, 1.9 per cent.; No. 8, 3.8 per cent. Note No. 4 and No. 7, as compared with No. 1 and No. 3. The two latter are worth nearly twice as much as the two former for either butter or cheese making, yet according to the pooling system of payment each patron got the same, pound for pound.

1. Do you think the deep pails or creamers are better than the shallow pans? ANS.—Yes, if rightly handled. Set the pails as soon after milking as possible, delay means loss. Set the pails in cold water, and cool the milk quickly to 45 degrees, and 40 is butter. Set in a barrel or tank of iced water is the best, as the water keeps cold as long as there is any ice there; but if you have to depend on cold water which should never be over 50 degrees, it should be changed within one-half hour after the milk is put into the tank and in warm weather, if the water is not very cold, it should be changed again two hours after. Most practical men let the milk stand for 24 hours before they skim.

2. What is the advantage of those creamers? ANS.—Fresh skim milk, more cream, fresh cream and generally better flavored cream, thus more and better butter.

Stanley Heights.

Western Ontario's Pleasing Summer Resort.

Fine Pleasure Grounds, Good Fishing and Shooting and a Haunted Cave.

[Detroit Evening News.]

A pleasing land of drowsy-head it was,
Of dreams that wave before the half-shut eye,
And of gay castles in the clouds that pass,
Forever flushing 'round a summer sky.

The above lines from "The Castle of Indolence" aptly describe a little summer resort on the north shore of Lake Erie which, although until recently comparatively unknown outside of the Canadian cities in its immediate vicinity, has lately taken on a decided boom and is destined to be heard from in the future. As you approach the harbor of Port Stanley, Ont., you wonder where the town is. Situated at a point of Lake Erie where the land recedes perceptibly from the general contour of the Canadian shore, thus forming a sort of bay, the village nestles picturesquely among a number of high hills, which are apt to lead one to believe that the inhabitants are not at home, until the boat is fairly within the jaws of the harbor. Then you discover that although the folks may be at home they are not making much noise about it.

Although the town is more than half a century old, it has not been very prosperous in a business way, and at the present time does not contain a permanent population of more than 500 people. Old tumbledown warehouses, crumbling spiles and a general air of dilapidation along the dock speak of the once thriving lake trade which the port enjoyed. Fifteen years ago, say the old sailor residents, Port Stanley was as lively a little port as there was along the chain of lakes, and it was no uncommon thing to see 20 or 30 craft of all descriptions in the harbor at one time. Times were good for sailors those days and large quantities of coal were freighted across the lake from Cleveland and taken to London and other places on the cars. But times have changed, and now there are not 50 vessels, all told, seen in the harbor all season. Those that do come in are looking for shelter from the severe storms and sudden squalls which frequently rage on Lake Erie. The Canadian Government has neglected the dredging of the harbor and the water has become so shallow that it is now unsafe for a deeply laden vessel to enter the mouth of the piers in a heavy sea.

PORT STANLEY AS A SUMMER RESORT.

Port Stanley possesses all the natural advantages of a first-class summer resort and is becoming more and more popular as the years roll by. Its situation among the hills and the balmy quiet which usually reigns throughout the village suggests the name of Peaceful Valley as a more appropriate one for the town. The river becomes a winding stream as it flows northward toward St. Thomas, nine miles distant, and at that place it is almost a bubble. The hill which surround the village are almost as high as the Black Hills of South Dakota, but unlike the latter, are densely covered with the stately pines and sturdy oaks of the forest, whose thick foliage bends and sways majestically under the influence of the summer winds.

There are hills to the east, hills to the west and hills to the north, but the premier hill of all is that known as Fraser Height, situated on the west side of the harbor. Over twenty years ago the Grand Trunk Railroad, then known as the Great Western, secured a lease of the ground now known as the Fraser hill, and Wm. Fraser, the present proprietor of the Fraser House, sub-leased the hill and afterward purchased a considerable tract of land upon which he built a commodious summer hotel and laid out grounds remarkable for their natural beauty. Independent of the hotel is a large dining hall for the accommodation of picnickers, and on the grounds are dance houses, merry-go-rounds, swings, etc. The hill is 150 feet above a wide stretch of sandy beach, and the bank in some places is so steep and the overhanging bluff so precipitate that it would seem like inviting instant death for a person to attempt the descent. In other places, however, the bank is on more of an incline, and the ascent from the beach below is made comparatively easy by flights of stairs placed at convenient points. On picnic days an elevated tramway is run from the beach to the hill. The tramway connects with the elegant little passenger steamer Joe Milton, which runs hourly excursions out into the lake.

A GALLANT CAPTAIN AND A HUSTLING ONE.

Capt. John Ellison, whose personality is best described by saying that he is as red, round and rosy as a harvest apple, controls the steamer and the inclined railroad. He is also engaged in an extensive fishing business, which industry is remarkably lucrative in those waters. He is an astute advertiser, and his one time method was to circulate hand-bills among the excursionists announcing a trip to the nets, in which the fishermen were represented as having a desperate catch-as-catch-can wrestling match with the monster sturgeon, which are almost as common as the smaller fry. Arrived at the nets, a man from the fish boats, which were usually towed behind the steamer, would don his oilskins and plunge into the midst of the finny tribe. Selecting a sturgeon almost as large as himself, he would engage in a mock battle with his adversary, and finally land him in the boat, to the awe and admiration of the passengers from interior cities and the agricultural districts. Capt. Ellison also runs a turning factory, saw mill and boarding house, and has in contemplation the erection of a summer hotel. In fact, he is as versatile as the hen that hatched ducks from goose eggs, and is generally regarded as the pooh-bah of the town. Although not over 5 feet 5 inches in height, he weighs over 200 pounds, but can turn a handspring with the agility of a circus athlete. The captain has an able lieutenant in his son Arthur, who is just about as broad as his father is long.

A man who is regarded as a fixture on Fraser Heights is Fred Loftus, who has been "taking pictures" there for years. Although speaking with a decided English accent, Loftus says his grandfather was of Irish extraction, his grandmother was German, his father was Welsh and his mother was Scotch. He himself, however, was born on the ocean, and he would like to know if some letter-box or puzzle editor can tell him to what nationality he really belongs. The photographer has all sorts of customers—from the bashful country swain out for a time with his best girl to the shallow-brained Canadian dude. The country people are usually the best customers, but if there happens to be a ripple in the sky, they postpone the date of sitting. So you see, photographers have their dark days the same as Hugh Conway. But whether business be lively or dull, Loftus is the same happy-go-lucky, song-and-dance individual that you see in light comedies.

ANNIE PIXLEY'S FAVORITE SPOT.

The Fraser House is a well-appointed hostelry, and receives guests from various parts of the country. Here Annie Pixley, the merry soubrette, spends the major part of her summer vacation. She is a relative of Proprietor Fraser, and her charities in the village are well known. Mr. Fraser's two daughters, one of whom is happily married to Manager Honeysett, are an attraction in themselves, and the proprietor may well feel proud of the increasing popularity of Port Stanley as a summer resort. A 'bus, which resembles nothing so much as Detroit's open patrol wagons, conveys passengers to and fro between the Fraser House and the quaint little depot in the village. The driver of the vehicle, Martin Fraser, is a sturdy Scotchman of the old school, and well understands the business of guiding the horses up and down the terribly steep roadway that leads to the heights.

A summer spent in Port Stanley is like a passing dream, as one day doth tread upon another's heels, so fast they follow. Stand upon the hill on the afternoon of a midsummer day. Beneath and before you stretch the sheeted waters of old Erie, which has gathered to its treacherous bosom many an ill-fated sailor and vessel. Away off on the distant horizon you may discern the shimmering sail of a schooner. She is bowing merrily along under a moderate breeze, but in less than an hour's time she may be scudding for shelter, with scarcely a stitch of canvas on. A beautiful panorama of white, blue and green greets the eye, and as you "list to the wild waves as they beat on the shore," a pleasing sense of rest comes over the senses, and you are almost lulled into a state of sweet repose. Rouse yourself and look north of you. A succession of hills and dales, fields of waving corn and wheat, and gently undulating lands, the whole perfumed with the scent of sweet clover and bright flowers, tell of as fine a farming district as there is in the country.

A GREAT PLACE FOR EXCURSIONISTS.

The bathing facilities at Port Stanley are unexcelled. A nice sandy bottom, combined with the pleasure of being able to wade into the lake for several hundred feet, attracts the multitude, regardless of sex or age, and the more turbulent the waves the greater the sport. And the stories of the great catches made by amateur fishermen would put to blush the fairy tales of Munchausen. Boating is also a favorite pastime, both lake and river being well patronized. When large excursions visit the town myriads of small craft of all kinds may be seen flitting hither and thither—provided the water is calm.

A great number of excursions are run to Port Stanley during the summer, the people coming mainly from the neighboring cities and towns. The London and Port Stanley division of the Grand Trunk road runs three trains daily, and as London is only 22 miles distant the village is the summer residence of a great many families of London's upper ten. Several picturesque little cottages have been erected, and the surroundings of some of them are calculated to inspire sentimental feelings in the breasts of the most prosy. Several of the cottagers have baptized their dwellings, and such signs as Erie Cabin, Glen Erie Lodge, Idlewild, Broadview and Willow Cottage are common.

FAVORITE RESORT OF OHIOANS.

The village has also become a great resort for campers, and several Americans the past summer crossed the lake on the Joe Milton, which makes weekly trips to Cleveland, and pitched their tents in Canada. Detroiters will remember reading a dispatch from Port Stanley in which it was stated that an American flag which was flown from the camp of a party of Youngstown, O., young men had been taken down and torn into shreds. The details of the incident were not related in the dispatch. It appears that a neighboring party of London campers became incensed at the sight of an innocent little flag of the Stars and Stripes pattern and at dead of night, when the Youngstown boys were peacefully dreaming the loyalists sneaked up and tore down the flag. The townspeople were just as indignant over the insult as were the Youngstown campers, and resented the action of the brave young men from London by presenting the Americans with a brand new flag. When the boys left Port Stanley for Cleveland that new Stars and Stripes flew from the mast-head of the Joe Milton, and as the steamer moved out into the lake, "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," was sung by several lusty young voices.

PORT STANLEY'S HAUNTED CAVE.

An article on this little summer resort would not be complete without mention of the haunted cave. Yes, do not be incredulous, for Port Stanley has a real haunted cave. Whisper! Away back in the dim and misty past, tradition has it that a band of smugglers did a flourishing traffic between the American and Canadian shores. They had two or three schooners that were as swift as the wind, and they remained undiscovered for a long time. An honest fisherman named James Payne lived a secluded and lonely life in a hut on the beach below and considerably to the west of Fraser Heights. The bloodthirsty smugglers suspected him of being an informer, and one wild and awful night Payne was murdered in cold blood and his body hid in the smugglers' cave. Although the fisherman was missed, it was a long time before his decomposed remains were found, but like the ghost of Hamlet's father, his spirit is said to hover in the vicinity of the murder. The alleged spirit is now said to be clothed in the garb which the fisherman wore in life, and several people aver that as the shadows of evening descend o'er the lake, Payne, with slow and stately tread, emerges from the cave, and with a long, bony hand stretched toward Cleveland, and the other raised toward heaven, in deep, sepulchral tones, recites the circumstances of his murder and calls for vengeance. The cave is an ordinary hole in the bank, which does not extend very far into the ground. None of the villagers will go near the locality in the daytime, and they would as soon go through a fat churchyard as pass the haunted cave after nightfall.

THE TOWN BOUND TO BOOM.

That Port Stanley is about to assume a healthy boom there can be no question. Several parcels of real estate have recently been sold to capitalists, notably the ground known as Bishop's Hill, where Bishop Walsh, of London, once had his episcopal residence. Some capitalists from Cleveland are interested in this property, and are talking of building a summer hotel on the plan of such institutions at summer resorts on this side of the border. The Grand Trunk lease expired recently, and that company has secured a renewal of it for six months. The Michigan Central and Canadian Pacific railroads are both said to be after the lease, and, in case either of them gets it, it is thought great things would result from the change. American capital and enterprise once interested in a place which has the natural advantages of Port Stanley are bound to boom it.

It is a delightful place in which to spend a summer vacation. It is only 135 miles from Detroit, and a very pleasant trip by water is to take the Cleveland steamer to Cleveland, and have a daylight ride across Lake Erie to Port Stanley. STARK.

IRON HIGHWAYS.

The Transcontinental Association Going to Pieces—Complicated Switch Work.

About twice as much power is required to stop an express train as to start one.

The Transcontinental Association has begun to go to pieces. The Canadian Pacific gives notice of its intention to withdraw from the association, taking effect Jan. 1. A number of reasons are given for taking this step, and they all hinge on the quarrel between that company and the Southern Pacific.

The most complicated piece of switch work ever constructed in Canada is that now being laid at the corner of King and York streets, Toronto. It was made by the Dominion Switch Company, of Montreal, and consists of 900 pieces of iron, costing about $5,000. Two double tracks cross at right angles, and there are three double track switches.

CABINET MAKING.

Premier Abbott's Early Retirement Probable—Speculations as to His Successor.

MONTREAL, Sept. 7.—The Monde tonight says Sir John Abbott will resign the Premiership at the end of the month.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 7.—Everybody who takes any interest in politics at the Capital is at present busy Cabinet making. It is generally conceded by all that Premier Abbott will retire at an early day. As to his successor, Sir John Thompson is still generally named as the coming man. A few probably favor Sir Chas. Tupper, and the name of Hon. John Haggart has been put forward. Sir Chas. Tupper, it is said, would not accept if offered it, and Mr. Haggart, it is well known, would not be an aspirant with Sir John Thompson in the field. Premier Abbott is also said to favor the Minister of Justice, and he has the privilege of submitting the name of his proposed successor, although Lord Stanley is not obliged to send for the man so nominated. This, it will be seen, removes nearly apparent obstacles from Sir John Thompson becoming First Minister of the Dominion.

Mr. Job Scales, of Toronto, writes: "A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact, I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in this state a friend recommended me to try a bottle of Northrup and Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this expression of my gratitude."

When you put on a suit of clothes you do not want one that appears to have been built for someone else. It is very unpleasant to wear clothes that require an act of reconstruction to secure a fit. They should be made to fit properly, and what does not do so is not to be tolerated. The fit of a suit is essential. If it does not fit the whole effect is a failure, and the longer the material will wear the worse we like it. How men retain their self respect in an ill-fitting garment is difficult to make out. It is a badge of bad taste and an evidence of poor workmanship. Our suits are made of handsome and durable fabrics, and the finish and fit as near perfection as is attainable.

PEOPLE should be very careful what they eat just now. If the food taken into the stomach does not digest it ferments and becomes sour, producing an acid. —[BROWNING.

London, Thursday, Sept. 8.

SIR EDWIN ARNOLD says he is more afraid of bronchitis than of cholera.

EDWIN J. LOVELACE, formerly of the Petrolea Topic, has taken possession of the Essex Free Press. He is a thorough newspaper man, and will keep this good weekly up to the high standard it has attained in recent years.

AN ORDER has been issued by the British Government permitting the free import of sheep from the United States. For some years past sheep from the neighboring country, on entering Britain, have come under the same regulation as cattle, and had to be slaughtered at the port of entry.

A CONTEMPORARY erroneously asserts that Canada has not the same need to take precautions against cholera as the United States, for the reason that no vessels come from infected ports to the Dominion. The fact is that a vessel arrived at Quebec yesterday from Hamburg. No one need get excited, but it is well to keep clean and keep the authorities stirred up to a sense of their duty.

THE Toronto Empire is an apt pupil of the great stretcher. It says, referring to the recent Conservative picnic at Petrolea, that "a couple of thousand of men are employed in the oil refining industry alone." We turn to the statistical year book for 1891, just issued by the Dominion Government and we find it there stated that there were in the previous year 12 refineries in operation in the whole of Ontario, "employing about 250 men." Everyone who knows anything about the oil refining business can see at once how wide of the truth the high tax organ is. The year book gets nearer it.

THE one satisfaction which most people will derive from the result of the Sullivan-Corbett prize-fight at New Orleans is that the Boston rowdy has been soundly thrashed. Both men, it appears, were severely battered and bruised. If they had been entirely knocked out, their absence from the world need have grieved but few, for their influence is not for good. It has to be confessed that the fight caused enormous interest throughout the world, and it may be pertinent to inquire why. It is an exhibition of "noble science," they tell us, for two human beings to stand up and whack at each other, till their bodies are full of bruises and one or both have the wonderful machinery of the human frame ruthlessly broken down. This pernicious doctrine is doubtless the result of false teaching in regard to physical prowess that has come down to us from the days of savagery, when "might was right," and the bloody slaughter of one's fellows was the passport to fame and prestige, as is yet too often the case. It might no be difficult to trace the foundation for the public interest in prize fights to the glorification of warfare and of bloodletting, which the men interested in promoting international strife have kept up from time immemorial, and which permeates society in every country where huge armaments are, from various selfish pretexts on the part of a few, maintained at the expense of the workers. The other element that serves to interest many men in prize-fighting is the gambling spirit. But for the money bet on the result of the New Orleans exhibition there would not have been a tithe of the interest in the result that has been exhibited. So long as the blood-letting and gambling spirit is unrestrained, so long will we have recurring revolting exhibitions of this description. The professional bruisers exist because their calling pays.

"TOO MUCH EDUCATION!"

Mr. Robillard, Conservative M. P. for Ottawa, has been down to the Maritime Provinces, and he finds the exodus to the States still in progress. This M. P. has a novel explanation of the exodus. The young men and women, he argues, are now educated, and that is why they seek fresh fields for their industry. Once the population by the sea knew little, and they were contented with little, now they read and think and break away from the land of restricted trade, as seems best for them.

Then there is one cure for stopping the exodus: abolish the public schools, burn down the newspaper offices. Mr. Robillaird has a great head. But would not the reduction of taxation, the abolition of trade restriction, the natural development of Canada be better fitted to retain for Canada, the thousands of her sons and daughters who now annually flock across the border to find scope for their energies in the wider field afforded by the States?

LONDON'S DISFRANCHISEMENT DEFENDED.

The London Free Press flies into a tantrum whensoever it is shown that Mr. Carling occupies a seat in Parliament which was stolen for him. It is really no wonder. Our contemporary knows that Judge Elliot was writing its editorials, defending the proposal to steal the seat, in advance of the time when he was called upon, by virtue of the Franchise Act, to give judgment on the question of the bogus votes, and the Free Press doubtless feels that it is called upon to rush to the defense of both the recipient of the stolen seat and the unjust and partisan judge whenever their conduct is referred to. So be it. But our contemporary should keep to the merits of the case, and not try to mislead its readers. The facts are so fresh in the minds of the people, so notorious in point of conclusiveness, that no man unblinded by partisan bias will be misled by the turnings and twistings of our contemporary.

The question at issue is whether or not the bogus voters had a right to vote. Their right was assailed by the Liberals. The first notice given by the Liberals was held to be perfectly valid by six Superior Court judges, four of whom were Conservatives, and therefore by no possibility biased in favor of the Liberal contention. But even if it had not been valid, Revising Officer Fraser ordered a new notice to be served, and it was served in ample time before the day of trial on all the men whose right to be on the list was objected to by the Liberals. When the cases were tried, in every instance where there was the slightest hope of success, the Conservative agents fought determinedly, calling witnesses and combatting the evidence of the Liberal agents. The burden of proof was placed upon the Liberal agents in every case, and not a man was struck off unless the Liberal counsel called witnesses and made out a prima facie case against him by proving either that the man was not qualified or that he had been served with and disobeyed a subpœna (which, as is well known, is a legal ground for removing the defaulter from the list). In each instance where a prima facie case was not made out the name remained on the list. Despite the fact that the list was purged in this effective manner, despite the fact that six Superior Court judges held that the Liberal notices were correct, and thus sustained the purging of the lists by the revising officer and the removal of the bogus names, the agents of Mr. Carling appealed against the decision and thus had the bogus voters kept on the lists till after election day. The Free Press up to that date contended that the decision of the Superior Courts against the retaining of the bogus voters on the list was just, and it maintained, on the eve of the election, that the friends of Mr. Carling did not count on those bogus votes, and had been anxious to have them out of the way before election day. Up to that time, too, Judge Elliot professed to be waiting for the decision of the Superior Courts in order that he might honor it, as has been the course pursued by all just judges in British lands from time immemorial.

On election day some 128 of the 229 bogus voters were prevailed upon to go to the polls, and their votes were received, subject to the finding of the county judge, who, unfortunately for the good name of this fair constituency, is made by the Franchise Act final arbiter in the matter. Then Judge Elliot, who had professed to be waiting for the Superior Court decision that he might act in accordance with it, showed his contempt for it by deciding that Chief Justice Hagarty, Chief Justice Armour, Mr. Justice Street, Mr. Justice Falconbridge, Mr. Justice Maclennan and Mr. Justice Burton knew nothing about the question heard before them, and that they were wrong when they decided in favor of the London Liberals. This was the course pursued by the man who had been so very impartial that he had been writing violent partisan editorials during the hearing of the case. Judge Elliot found that it was necessary to count the bogus votes to secure the election of his patron, Mr. Carling, and he counted them, in defiance, we unhesitatingly assert, of law and justice, though he was undoubtedly given the power so to act by the infamous Franchise Act. Great wrong was done to the majority of the electors of London. The Free Press, but a few days before contending that the bogus votes should not and would not be counted, became what it has continued to be, the champion of the most scandalous transaction. Now, that newspaper would have the public forget its past record, forget the attitude of the Superior Court judges, and accept the steal as an accomplished and an entirely defensible transaction. That cannot be while the self-respecting majority of the people of London have memories. Our contemporary but insults the intellect of the intelligent when it becomes special pleader for the men who engineered the great theft by means of which a minority candidate sits in Parliament for London.

TOPICS OF TO-DAY.

The latest issues of Little's Living Age, Nos. 2,513 and 2,514, well maintain the high reputation it has so long, and so deservedly held. Three articles in No. 2,513 should be read in connection, viz.: "The Migration of the Races of Men Considered Historically (by James Bryce, the well known author of "The American Commonwealth"); "The Ulsterman in America," a representative of the old-time immigrant; and "The Mafiosi," representing the extreme modern type. Other timely articles appear in these numbers, "A Journey to England in 1683," is rather a picture of social and public life in England in ye olden time, by J. J. Jusserand; "In Young Parliamentary Days," by Henry W. Lucy, is an account of the rescue of a pile of valuable papers, with a synopsis of their contents; "Sir John Franklin," by Sir Henry Elliot, who, as a very young man, lived for three years as one of the family in the house of the great explorer; "English Court Life in the Eighteenth Century," will prove extremely entertaining; "Mental Imagery," by Alfred Binet; "Reminiscences of Clerical Duty;" the concluding paper on "A Ride in the Great Sahara;" "Historical Rimini," by E. Martinengo Cesaresco; "Study in Character," by Lord Salisbury; "Lord Tollemache and His Anecdotes;" "The Death of Gustavus Adolphus;" with fiction and poetry.

Whittier's poem, "In School Days," is one with which even the school children are familiar. Some way the sweet verses are very easy to learn by heart, and when they are once committed to memory they have a way of lingering there long after the school children have become grown men and women. It is said that the one romance of Whittier's life was woven about the tangled-haired girl who long years ago had said she loved him; and Whittier's bachelor life is traced by those who love romances to his love for her. Iconoclasts take pleasure in contradicting and ridiculing this story; but those who believe in it are much happier in their belief than are those who deny it in their historical accuracy:

IN SCHOOL DAYS.

Still sits the school house by the road,
A ragged beggar sunning;
Around it still the sumachs grow
And blackberry vines are running.

Within the master's desk is seen,
Deep scarred by raps official,
The warping floor, the battered seats,
The jackknife's carved initial.

The charcoal frescoes on its wall;
Its door's worn sill, betraying
The feet that, creeping slow to school,
Went storming out to playing.

Long years ago a winter sun
Shone over it at setting;
Lit up its western window panes
And low eaves' icy fretting.

It touched the tangled golden curls,
And brown eyes full of grieving
Of one who still her steps delayed
When all the school were leaving.

For near her stood the little boy,
Her childish favor singled,
His cap pulled low upon a face
Where pride and shame were mingled.

Pushing with restless feet the snow
To right and left, he lingered,
As restlessly her tiny hands
The blue-checked apron fingered.

He saw her lift her eyes, he felt
The soft hands light caressing,
And heard the trembling of her voice,
As if a fault confessing.

"I'm sorry that I spelt the word;
I hate to go above you,
Because," the brown eyes lower fell—
"Because, you see, I love you!"

Still memory to a gray-haired man
That sweet child face is showing.
Dear girl! the grasses on her grave
Have forty years been growing.

He lives to learn, in life's hard school,
How few who pass above him
Lament their triumph and his loss
Like her—because they love him.

Viscount Hintor, the organ-grinding son and heir of the bankrupt and insolvent Earl Poulett, is once more entertaining the holiday seekers at Southsea, in England, with his hurdy-gurdy, and is reaping shoals of coppers and sympathy for "the real live nobleman who has been so badly treated by his people." In view of the fact that neither the old Earl nor yet Lord Hinton is a reputable citizen, it is a comfort to learn that Lord Hinton's eldest son, the Hon. William Poulett, was removed from his parents at a very early age, with their full consent, and has been carefully educated and brought up by wealthy persons who are interested in his future. He is now a young fellow, 22 years of age, and has seen but little of his father, the ex-clown; or of his mother, the ex-ballet dancer, both of whom now earn their living by means of a hand organ, with which they perambulate the streets.

AFRAID OF ELLIOTIZATION.

[Montreal Herald.]

It seems hardly possible that the returning officer will declare Mr. Belley elected; and if he does a recount should give the seat to Mr. Savard, unless Chicoutimi possesses a Judge Elliot.

THREE COUNTRIES.

[St. Thomas Journal.]

A pertinent question is asked by the Woodstock Sentinel-Review when it inquires what England has done for Canada in the dispute with the United States over the canals? All through the controversy the Dominion has stood alone, and our connection with Great Britain does not appear to have strengthened the hands of the Canadian Government in the slightest degree. The Americans have "retaliated" just as freely as though the British bulldog were not supposed to be standing behind Canada, growling and threatening. The Government of the United States is fully seized of the fact that Great Britain will not interfere in American-Canadian disputes until it is forced to, and therefore when election time comes around the anti-British element in the United States is treated to an exhibition of tail-twisting, and Canada is the only sufferer. Were Canada an independent nation she would not be subject to these quadrennial persecutions, as it is Great Britain, not the Dominion, that excites the ire of the Finertys. To-day the Dominion is simply a buffer between the two countries. As an independent republic she would at once disarm the hostility of the American Irish and secure the hearty sympathy of the great body of the right-thinking American people, who are fully satisfied with their territorial possessions, but yet consider it somewhat anomalous that on this continent monarchical institutions should still exist. We believe that under such circumstances the ties of affection and tenderness between England and Canada would be no weaker than they are to-day, and that the Dominion would become an intermediary between the mother land and the great Republic, helping to teach each the lesson that the peoples of the three countries are one in history, in achievement, in ambition, and that their future should be that of the members of a family who, though separated by the necessities of adult life, yet look upon each other as the nearest and best of friends.

"German Syrup"

Martinsville, N.J., Methodist Parsonage. "My acquaintance with your remedy, Boschee's German Syrup, was made about fourteen years ago, when I contracted a Cold which resulted in a Hoarseness and a Cough which disabled me from filling my pulpit for a number of Sabbaths. After trying a Physician, without obtaining relief—I cannot say now what remedy he prescribed—I saw the advertisement of your remedy and obtained a bottle. I received such quick and permanent help from it that whenever we have had Throat or Bronchial troubles since in our family, Boschee's German Syrup has been our favorite remedy and always with favorable results. I have never hesitated to report my experience of its use to others when I have found them troubled in like manner." REV. W. H. HAGGARTY, of the Newark, New Jersey, M.E. Conference, April 25, '90.

ATHLETICS.

THE SULLIVAN-CORBETT FIGHT.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 7.—The crowd that flocked in the streets to-day was noticeably larger than on any previous day of the fighting carnival. The town was chock full at four o'clock this afternoon, and all the men who stood along the curbs were talking about to-night's fight.

The mob went out to the club house in every car that started from anywhere along the line. By half-past seven the galleries in the arena were as full as should have been. The reserved seats were only pretty well filled.

At the tossing for corners Delaney for Corbett won, and selected the "lucky" corner, as it is called—the one that Fitzsimmons had twice and McAuliffe and Dixon occupied this week.

Both were stripped all the way up and down except that they wore trunks and shoes and stockings. Corbett seemed nervous after he had taken his seat and swung his legs from the floor up and back again like an amateur. Then all hands collected in the middle of the rings and shook hands. It was announced that Sullivan weighed 212 pounds and Corbett 187. Five-ounce gloves were then distributed. Sullivan had trouble in getting his hands into his. Corbett was ready in an instant.

Round 1—This was a ridiculous exhibition. Sullivan made no less than seven feints with the left for Corbett, but Corbett ran round the ring each time, and no blow was struck.

Round 2—Corbett made no effort to do anything but walk around. The big fellow stood up leisurely and looked at Corbett, and then let go a left on Corbett's shoulders and a clinch followed. On the breakaway Corbett touched him on the breast. Another clinch followed. Corbett got in a slight blow on the stomach before the second round ended, and the crowd was happy.

Round 3—Sullivan missed a left-hander for the jaw and then touched him on the stomach. The first good blow struck was by Corbett, who ran in on top of a run by Sullivan. Whenever Sullivan led Corbett ducked and John could not touch him.

Round 4—Sullivan made two runs at Corbett, but Jim ran away and no blow was struck. It looked like one man after another in a race, excepting two light blows that Corbett got in on the champion's face.

Round 5—In this round Sullivan caught Corbett a fairly hard blow on the chin, but Corbett clinched and nobody was hurt. Sullivan made a rush and Corbett went at him. Corbett smashed him on the stomach and face, and had the big fellow's nose bleeding in no time. Then the house got up and yelled.

Round 6—Corbett jumped around like a cat and worried the big fellow.

Round 7—Two slaps, one from each, opened this round, and after a bit of fighting Corbett let his left go on John's stomach. John did not seem to mind it, but Corbett went at him and gave him two good smashes in the face with the left and two more soon after. Sullivan's nose was bleeding again freely. Corbett ran in and rushed Sullivan to the ropes, getting in several blows on the big fellow's body. Sullivan could make no return. He was tired when he went to his corner, though he had done nothing in the round but take punishment.

Round 8—Sullivan came out worried looking. He made a left lunge at Corbett, but Corbett ducked cleverly. Sullivan landed his right on the ribs, but Corbett got in several blows on the face and body. Sullivan seemed to be played out or waiting for a chance to land a knock-out blow.

Round 9—Corbett led, but without effect. Sullivan led, but Corbett ducked. Then Sullivan gave him a back-hander on the face and one on the shoulder. Sullivan did not show any want of wind, although Corbett hit him five times. Corbett was away ahead in points, but his blows did not seem to weaken the big fellow, who appeared only tired.

Round 10—The men eyed each other like panthers. Sullivan let go his left for the jaw, but only touched lightly. No heavy blows were struck.

Round 11—It now began to look like a long fight. Sullivan could not get in a straight blow on the Californian, and Corbett could not hurt John when he did land. Finally Corbett made two good cracks on Sullivan.

Round 12—Sullivan was still steady, and it looked as if they might fight 100 rounds. Corbett struck Sullivan three times in the stomach within three seconds, getting away each time and running around, but his blows did not seem to be effective. Sullivan made a rush, but Corbett ran away, and when he came back he laughed. The same thing occurred twice.

Round 13—Sullivan had a weary look when he came from his corner. Sullivan rushed Corbett and Jim ran away, Sullivan did all the moving up, Corbett jumping backward.

Round 14—No blow struck in the round would have broken a pane of glass.

Round 15—Sullivan went in to do Corbett this time, and rushed Jim three times. The Californian's long reach held John at bay, and the big fellow could not break in under guard. On the contrary, Corbett's left found Sullivan's face twice. In two more rushes by Sullivan Corbett held him off and plunked John on ribs and stomach.

Round 16—A mutual rush occurred, but both missed their blows. Corbett finally got in several light blows.

Round 17—Sullivan succeeded in getting a light left in Corbett's face. The house had a good deal to laugh at in the men's actions, but nothing to get excited over.

Round 18—Corbett struck the big fellow four times on the face in succession, and the spectators raised a howl. Sullivan here got in a blow on Corbett's breast. Then Corbett taunted John up amid more howls. The people seemed to be with Corbett.

Round 19—Sullivan hit Corbett on the neck pretty hard, and Corbett countered on the stomach. Sullivan missed a blow meant for the face, and Corbett laughed. Sullivan's face took on a savage smile; he chased Corbett around the ring. Corbett again struck Sullivan in the stomach and face.

Round 20—Sullivan struck Corbett's breast. Corbett caught Sullivan on both sides of the head close to the ropes. Corbett followed this up with several more blows. Sullivan could not protect himself nor get in a single blow in return. He was plainly weakening. Corbett was fresh and confident at the sound of the gong, at which time he was smashing Sullivan at a great rate.

Round 21 and last—Sullivan came from his corner in the same shape that he had shown for a dozen rounds before. He had the same cross expression on his face and seemed to be as stong as at any time during that period. He continued to do the "edging in" and Corbett followed "edging away." Then Corbett jumped back, rushed forward and hit John on the nose twice in succession and then gave him a crack on the side of the head that made him close his eyes. With this Corbett was on top of him in no time with both hands, and John L. Sullivan became an unconscious, beaten man. He staggered about for a second or so, and while displaying this fatal weakness Corbett went down on him again as a crow lights on corn where there is no dummy in the middle of the field. A blow on the ear and one on the jaw settled the business and the championship. The last blow sent the great John L. to the floor with a thump, the second time in all his long career that he had ever been knocked down. Sullivan made an effort to rise but he failed. His seconds had to come to him and assist him to his corner. It was over two minutes before he recovered himself.

Sullivan tried to address the crowd. His voice was very hoarse as he said: "Gentlemen, all I have to say is that I stood once too long in the ring, and that I am glad America has so good a champion."

The time of the fight was 1 hour and 23 minutes.

NOTES ON THE FIGHT.

The purse was $25,000 and the stakes $10,000. The winner is declared the champion pugilist of the world.

John Lawrence Sullivan was born in Boston 35 years ago, and Corbett first saw the light of day in San Francisco 25 years ago. Sullivan is 5 feet 10½ inches high and Corbett 6 feet 1½ inches tall.

The betting at the New York Stock Exchange was 60 to 40 on Sullivan.

Betting closed in the New Orleans pool rooms at 1 to 3 against Sullivan and 13 to 5 against Corbett.

The crowds on the streets in San Francisco apparently went wild over the news of Corbett's victory.

A POLICEMEN'S TUG-OF-WAR.

The tug-of-war between the Montreal and Toronto police teams at the Montreal police games on Wednesday, resulted in a big surprise, the Montreal team winning easily. There were two pulls of five wins each. The Montreal team got the advantage in both.

Further bloodshed was averted by the Garfield Park Club officials deciding to have no races. The contests were declared off for one day, it was declared, in respect to the memory of Captain Brown.

QUEEN NANCY BREAKS ANOTHER RECORD.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 7.—Nancy Hanks this afternoon broke the world's trotting record of the regulation track by going a mile in 2:07 at the State fair grounds.

HOW NANCY WON.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 7.—Fully 50,000 persons greeted Nancy Hanks as she came on the track at 3:45. Doble nodded his head and a great cry arose as Nancy started off. The gallant mare flew up the track, making the quarter in 32½, and the cheers broke out afresh. Steadily she flew around the turn. All watches tell that she had reached the half in 1:05½. She flies toward the three-quarters without the semblance of a skip and reaches it in 1:34½. Doble is leaning forward and giving her a free rein. Like the wind she comes down the stretch and under the wire. Half a minute elapsed before the card came out reading "2:07," and the excitement and enthusiasm knew no bounds. Doble was carried to the stand on the shoulders of the crowd.

M. A. Holbein, the long distance amateur champion, concluded at midnight yesterday his great 24 hours' road race, and successfully accomplished the feat of breaking his former record of 336 miles in the above time. Mounted on a Swift pneumatic safety, he started from Biggleswade on the North road at midnight on Monday, and at 10:35 last night had lapped his previous score, and in the remaining 85 minutes before midnight managed to add another 23 miles, making the total distance 359 miles. POLAR PERILS.

Arctic Explorers as Well as a Relief Party May Be Left to Perish.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A special to the Herald from Philadelphia says that Secretary E. J. Nolan, of the Academy of Natural Sciences, said last night: "If the reports of ice extending hundreds of miles sout of McCormick bay are true, God help Peary and the Kite relief party."

Considerable fear is felt in this city as to the fate of the Arctic explorers, owing to the delayed arrival of the Cryolite bark Ivigtut from the Greenland port of the same name. Most serious fears are entertained that the Kite has never reached McCormick bay, but it stuck in the ice. As she took no extra supplies, and it is believed she will be forced to spend the winter in the ice, it is feared that her provisions will become exhausted before Jan. 1.

The English Wheat Crop.

LONDON, Sept. 6—The Mark Lane Express says that all estimates confirm the assurance that there will be 8,000,000 to 8,250,000 quarters of British wheat. Hence it will be necessary to import from 19,000,000 to 19,250,000 from abroad. As to the new cereals this year it is admitted that the yield of barley is up to the average, but it is feared that the quality is below the average. New English wheat is selling very low, although slightly improved the better sorts 30 to 34 shillings in London and 28 to 33 shillings in the Provinces. Old wheat is selling for 30 to 35 shillings in the Provinces. Flour is nominally selling for 33 shillings, but a decline to 30 shillings is menaced.

Live Stock Markets.

EAST BUFFALO, N. Y.

EAST BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Cattle—Offerings about 6 cars, 2 of which were fresh stock. A load of 1,100-lb Colorado steers sold at $2 80, and a load of Dakota cows and heifers for $2 50; 2 loads of grass steers, of 1,015 to 1,040 lbs, sold at $3 25 to $3 30. The feeling is steady and firm, and for good and fair cattle the prospects is considered favorable.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts light; 3 loads of Canada lambs, fair to good quality, sold at $6 25 to $6 35, or about 15 to 25c better than yesterday; about 4 loads of native stock of only fair quality. The tone of dispatches from Eastern markets indicated a better feeling and prospects of improved prices. Lambs sold stronger and sheep about steady. The feeling is stronger and prospects look better for fair to good stock for the balance of the week. For common light ends and poor sheep and lambs the inquiry is very light.

Hogs—The early receipts were 6 cars. Corn grades sold at full strong yesterday's prices to 10c advance. Yorkmen paying $5 35 to $5 50 for good grades of Yorkers from light to strong weights, and $5 to $5 25 for pigs, 1 load of 210 lb good hogs selling at $5 65; roughs, $4 40 to $4 50; and stags, $3 50 to $4. About 10 cars came in about noon, and more were reported to arrive late in the day. The market later was weak and about 5c lower, with some unsold stock at close.

They Favor Dehorning.

York & Elliott, of Brownsville, write that the report that they "had lost a steer from the effects of dehorning and that several others of the herd were in a bad shape," is incorrect. "The steers were," they add, "sold on the Toronto market two weeks ago today and were in fine shape. We have never lost any cattle of any kind from dehorning, or had any bad results, although we have dehorned over 400 head for ourselves and others. The last cattle we dehorned was before ahe commissioners and they were healed up months ago."

A Terrible Warning.

"Mayor Spencer," said an old citizen as he stopped the mayor on the street this morning, "is it true that the Americans are going to run the London and Port Stanley Railway?"

"Somebody will get it," replied the mayor.

"Then beware," rejoined the old citizen, in a grave voice and solemn manner. "Don't let those people lay a finger on it. They want this country and that is one of their schemes to gobble it up."

And shaking his head ominously the venerable gentleman passed on. The bystanders smiled.

St. Marys District Methodists.

At the recent financial meeting of St. Marys district Methodists, at Granton, the assessments of the superannuation fund, as forwarded by the treasurer, were adopted without any changes. Relating to Thamesford, it was moved and seconded that the request of the quarterly official board of Thamesford be granted, viz., that no grant from the mission fund be solicited for the present conference year; and the district meeting congratulates them on their liberality and enterprise. The motion was carried. A resolution expressive of love and sympathy for the sufferers at St. Johns, Nfld., was unanimously adopted; and a collection is to be taken in all the congregations to aid in building a new college on or before the last Sabbath in September. The May district meeting will be held at St. Marys, in connection with which will be held a Christian Workers' Convention. The following committee was appointed, viz., Rev. J. Scott, B. L. Hutton, James Ferguson, John Kennedy and H. L. Rice, J. H. Follick and Joseph Beavers, to make the necessary arrangements.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Following is the official bulletin issued this morning by the Health Board: "New York, Sept 8, 10 a.m.—No cases of cholera have appeared in this city. The death reported by Dr. Deshon as from Asiatic cholera, proves on autopsy not to have been caused by that disease."

After the "Mill."

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 8.—After the close of last night's battle Corbett said he could have whipped his man much sooner, but that he was a trifle wary. Sullivan was an object of pity, and he frequently cried like a child. He says the trouble was with his legs. It is estimated that fully $300,000 changed hands in this city alone. The amount received by the Olympic Club for seats during the "carnival" is estimated at $130,000. The disbursements, including prize money, amounted to $55,000.

The British warship Magicienne has arrived at Montreal.

The Allan Line steamship Pomeranian narrowly escaped colliding with the steamship Labrador in the river at Montreal Wednesday. The anchor of the Pomeranian was left hanging to the stern of the Labrador.

At St. Michael's Palace, Toronto, on Wednesday Mr. H. A. Vandusen, merchant, of Tara, was united in marriage to Miss Maggie A. Ford, third daughter of the late John Ford, late of the inland revenue department, Prescott.

Mr. Charles Schmidt, a well-known hotel-keeper of Hamilton, died Wednesday after a short illness. Deceased was born in Hanover, Germany, and came to Canada in 1876, residing at Listowel and Wingham before settling in Hamilton. He was 43 years of age and was respected by all who knew him. The funeral will take place at Wingham.

Hubert Ashplant's boot and shoe store, under Molsons Bank and Ontario Loan buildings, west corner Market Lane, has for the past fifteen years been famous as a scene of bustling activity and brisk business; but the past few days has seen an unusually busy time for all hands. A continuous stream of cases containing new goods in all classes of fall footwear has been pouring in via Grand Trunk and Canada Pacific—the result of Mr. Hubert Ashplant's trip to the Montreal and Quebec markets. These cases (numbering towards 200) contain an immense range of bargains bought for cash, and are now being unpacked and marked off at prices to suit the closest buyers. On Saturday, the 10th, these goods will be offered to the public. As has been seen from time to time in our advertising columns, Hubert Ashplant has all his goods marked in plain figures at the very lowest prices, and sells at one price only, which is the only square way to do business with the public. Give him a call. b

Adam Graeme, of Mossgray.

By Mrs. Oliphant.

"Fine weather this," said the young laird.

"Ay, it's weel enough," said John Brown, examining the sky with the curious eye of a connoisseur, "but ower drouthy, sir—ower drouthy; and ower muckle drouth is guid for neither beast or body, let alane the craps. Yon muckle park at Shortrigg will be burned brown afoor the July rain, and syne it'll be as wat as a peat moss; ye'll never be dune, sir, noo ye hae ta'en up the farming trade—ye'll never be dune battling wi' the weather."

Halbert laughed.

"I am not so warlike, John. I shall be content with the rain when it comes. Are they all weil at the mount—Mrs. Fendie and the young ladies?"

"Middling, middling," said John Brown; "we have our bits of touts noo and then, but we're no to compleen o'; and the noo, ye've nae time to think o' being no weel, for Mr. A ick's coming hame."

"Indeed!" said Halbert; the news interested him. "When does Mrs. Fendie expected him, John?"

"I hear about the harvest—August or September," said the factotum of Mount Fendie; "but we'er gaun to gar the haill country-side tand about, so we've begone in time. But ye'll mind he's no a free-spoken, pleasant lat like yourself, Mr. Graeme, begging your pardon for the freedom; he's ane o' your fleeaway sodger officers, and ther's mair of the same kind coming wi' him."

Halbert enjoyed his popularity; but at the same time he became still more interested in Alick Fendie, who, being less popular, promised to be more aristocratic than himself.

"Has he been long in India, John?" asked Halbert.

"Na, no that lang. I mind him mysel frae he was a kittlin o' a laddie like that wee evil spirit o' a brither o' his. He's been twa—three years out bye yonder," and John jerked his ponderous thumb in the direction of the sea. "I wad just like to see him fechting—or the like o' him—fusionless, shilpit laddies. I'm no Wallace Wight myself, but I could tak twa o' them in ilka hand!—and that minds me, Mr. Graeme, that my Auntie Isabell up at Murrayshaugh bothers folk even on about your young lady. I'm no meaning the lady that is to be ye ken, but just Miss Maxwell. Our auld auntie's ta'en a notion that she ken's some o' the auld family—the Murrays. It's a havers, ye ken, for Miss Lucy's leeving, than Eesabel hersel; but the young lady hasna been at Murrayshaugh for lang, and the auld wife cleaves a body asking about her. I tell's her it was said in the town that Miss Maxwell was no weel. She's aye been awfu' delicate like; isna she no weel, Mr. Graeme?"

"She has been very ill," said Halbert; "but she is recovering now, I hope. She lost a friend lately."

John Brown paused respectfully, rendering the instinctive homage which men pay to grief.

"I saw Robbie Caryl the day," said John, after an interval; "R bbie was in last week wi' some grand salmon at Dunbres market, and he saw a man there that has a son a sodger, some gate near where Mr. Alick is; and there's word—sure word, Robbie says—that Peter Delvie—ye wadna ken Peter? was killed yonder wi' a wheen mair, fechtin' wi' thae wild Indians—Afighans—what is't they ca' them? Onyway Peter's dead; and what the auld man, Saunders, will say till't noo, is mair than I ken."

"He was harsh to him, I believe," said Halbert,

"Ay, ye may say that; but I'm no sae sure he aye meant it; ye see he was proud o' the lad, and when he gaed an ill gate, Saunders nigh broke his heart. Ye wad maist say he had na heart, yon hard auld man—but it's ill telling. Robbie was gaun to the minister to get him to break it to Saunders. I wadna do't for a' Fendie."

The roads to Mossgray and the Mount separated at this point. Whistling gayly, John Brown set off at considerable speed, to make up for the gossiping slow pace with which he had begun; and Halbert leaped over the stile, and again opened the letter of Mr. Monikie.

It was a startling letter; the young man's face flushed with the angry color of mortification and wounded pride, as he read it—

"I hear from Menie," wrote the pragmatical man of Aderdeen, "that you are not so good friends as you might be; and you know how often I have warned you, Halbert, about the danger of an unstable temper; a weakness to which I have always seen you were liable. It is a bad sigh of a lad like you—a great evil—to have an unsteady mind, and to meditate breaking lightly the ties you have yourself made. Even as it regarded only yourself, I would have thought it my duty to impress your infirmity upon you, but far more when it endangers the comfort of a girl like my Menie. It disappoints me, Halbert; I confess that, though I might know better, after my long experience as a teacher of youth, I had expected other things from you; but human nature, even with all advantages, and when its judgment is matured like mine, is prone to vain expectations, and you have disappointed me.

"I do not think I would be justified in trusting the happiness of a good girl like Menie in hands that want the firmness which is needful in my eyes to a manly character. I hoped you had more of it, Halbert; and Menie herself, like a dutiful child as she has always been, agrees with her father, and says she thinks you will be very glad to be free, and at liberty to form new engagements. Also Menie sends a message that she forgives you, and has given to me the half of the coin you broke with her; a foolish, superstitious, and heathenish ceremony, which I should have certainly condemned had I known of it, or could I have fancied that my daughter and my pupil would ever think of so foo ish a thing.

"Young John Leith of Blackdean is giving us much of his company, and helps to keep up our spirits, otherwise we might have felt your backsliding even more than we do. I have never seen the marks of instability in him that I used to lament in you, though he has not had the same advantages of education; indeed, in every way I have reason to be pleased with him, and so has Mrs Monikie and Menie. If Menie settles near us it will be a great satisfaction, and I think it is not unlikely.

"I hope you will learn to correct these faults which I have pointed out to you, and we will always be glad to see you here, in spite of what has passed. I trust I can forgive an injury, especially when it has been made an instrument of good; and if you hear of any changes in my family, I hope you will be able to think of them without any great disappointment, seeing that I always remain, with compassion upon the errors of your youth. Your sincere friend, Matthew Monikie."

Halbert was very red, very angry; he folded up the letter bitterly, and felt indignant at treatment so unjust. His first flash of jealous resolution was to start for Aberdeenshire immediately, and carry off the the faithless Menie from his supplanter the Laird of Blackdean. The merry, pretty, Menie! He had been getting rather indifferent, there was no denying that; but now when he had lost her, tender recollections of his first love returned to the honest heart of Halbert. Something swelled in his breast of that sad disappointment with which youthful people see the first tie of their own forming rudely snapped asunder. One or two tears rose into his eyes; the petulant, fickle Menie was victor over him.

But Halbert was not long melancholy. He began to think of the injustice—the insult.

"It is very well for herself; she has only taken the first word of fivting; she was wise," muttered the angry Halbert, as he turned on his heel, and with a quick, impatient step went on to Mossgray; and so he salved his wounded pride and consoled himself, not without a pleasurable consciousness, increasing as he grew familiar with the idea, that he was free.

Lucy Murray and Adam Graeme had borne the first epidemic grief of youth on that water-side before him. The last example perfected the story of the others. The woman's sad endurance—the man's passionate pain—these were not types broad enough for universal humanity. Only a few here and there can feel as they did, but Halbert's lighter emotions were of the common stock; the momentary melancholy—the sting of mortification—the buoyance of new life and freedom. Lightly the cloud passed over the head of Halbert, a thing to be laughed at by and by; for he had no ideal to be sacrificed. And so he completed the tale of youthful disappointments; he brought them into the ordinary level, the common stream of life.

In the kitchen of Mossgray Robbie Caryl the fisherman stood in grave and earnest conversation with the housekeeper and her niece. Neither cuddie nor creels were visible to-day, and Robbie himself wore his Sabbath-day's well-preserved suit, and his Sabbath-day's look of gravity.

For headache, toothache and all other aches, St. Jacobs Oil has no equal.

We have no hesitation in saying that Dr. J. D. A fault which humbles a man is of more use to him than a good action which puffs him up with pride.—[Thomas Wilson.

The greatest architect and the one most needed is hope.—[Henry Ward Beecher.

Among the pains and aches cured with marvelous rapidity with Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, is ear ache. The young are especially subject to it, and the desirability of this Oil as a family remedy is enhanced by the fact that it is admirably adapted not only to the above ailment, but also to the hurts, disorders of the bowels, and affections of the throat, in which the young are specially subject.

In so complex a thing as human nature we must consider it is hard to find rules without exceptions.—[George Eliot.

A man's wife should always be the same, especially to her husband; but if she is weak and nervous, and uses Carter's Iron Pills, she cannot be, for they will makes her "feel like a different person," at least so they all say, and their husbands say so too.

No really great man ever thought himself so. The idea of greatness in the mind answers but ill to our knowledge, or to our ignorance of ourselves.—[Hazlitt.

Carter's Little Liver Pills must not be confounded with common Cathartic or Purgative Pills as they are extremely unlike them in every respect. One trial will prove their superiority.

It is said that Hon. James G. Blaine is negotiating for a winter home at Los Angeles, Cal., owing to his precarious health.

BRIGGS WAS COOL.

He Got Time to Save Three Lives as Well as His Own.

LEADVILLE, Col., Sept. 7.—Charles Edwards, a local prize fighter, went into Col. Sellers' mine on Sunday with the intention of killing one "Red" Briggs, with whom he had an old grudge.

When Edwards met Briggs he was holding the rope at the mouth of the mine, lowering three men to the bottom. Edwards drew his pistol, and, placing it at Briggs' head, told him he was about to shoot. Briggs protested that if he was to let go of the rope it meant sure death for the men below, and asked for more time.

Edwards allowed time. When the men in the shaft safely reached the bottom Briggs suddenly grabbed an iron bar and struck Edwards with it over the head, inflicting injuries which will likely prove fatal.

The Tripod.

According to the Babylonian Talmud, "Nine hundred and three are the kinds of death made in this world." Physiologists drop the nine hundred, declare that life stands on a tripod and assert that we die by the lungs, the heart or the brain.

The troubles that assail the majority of men and women in this age arise from the great nervous system. The wonderful nerve organization is a most complicated structure, and so marvelously arranged that the slightest trouble in any one part at once affects the whole.

The brain is the great connecting link between the mind and body; and all the organs of the body may be said to be the agents of the mind, inasmuch as the mind manifests itself through them all. It is therefore of the utmost importance that the great nerve system should be kept in perfect order and repair.

The sleepless, nervous, irritable, despondent and dyspeptic are suffering every day from terrible nerve troubles. These ailments, which at first appear hardly worthy of attention, lead straight on to paralysis and insanity when neglected.

Hundreds of men and women in our public and private insane asylums are the victims of nervous troubles which might have been cured had early attention and proper care been given to them.

To-day the victims of nerve troubles have a sure and unfailing cure in Paine's Celery Compound, which is known to the medical faculty as a great "nerve food." This heaven-given preparation possesses the necessary virtues and powers to snatch the nervous from the perils which surround them. It is a cure for sleeplessness, irritability and despondency—troubles that are as common in our country as toothache. There is little hope for the nervous individual if the ordinary medicines of the day are used, as they cannot reach the nerve centers. Paine's Celery Compound alone is fitted for the great work; thousands have used it, and none have been disappointed with the results obtained.

Nervous and broken-down mortal, we counsel you to try the remedy that never fails if you value life and wish to be strong and happy.

Murdered Two Men.

DULUTH, Minn., Sept. 7.—Jack Murphy attempted to renew a quarrel with Frank Hanck last night, when Hanck shot him through the bowels. Jack Haggerty protested, when Hanck shot him also. He died an hour later. Murphy cannot live. Hanck escaped.

A Too Amorous Police Officer.

MONTREAL, Sept. 7.—The assistant superintendent of police, John Cousineau, of St. Cunegonde, was arrested to-day for an assault on Madame Gaguer. Cousineau attempted to kiss Madame Gaguer on the public streets.

Drowned Near St. Thomas.

ST. THOMAS, Sept. 7.—This morning, between 7 and 8 o'clock, Edward Moore and A. McCaffrey, of this city, went for a row an Pinafore Lake. When about 150 or 200 feet from the shore, something was discovered to be wrong with the seat of the boat, and McCaffrey stood up to fix it, and some water was shipped. Moore became frightened and jumped up. The boat filled with water and both were thrown out. McCaffrey managed to swim ashore, but Moore was drowned. The body was secured after being in the water two hours, life being extinct. The deceased was about 26 years of age. His mother and a sister, Mrs. Powers, live on Center street. He leaves three brothers—Thomas, Pacific House, in this city; Frank, a fireman on the M. C. R., and William, of McWilliams & Moore, grocers, Detroit.

Everybody Satisfied.

A woman stood weeping on the steps of a church in Warsaw. A stranger approached and inquired the cause of her sorrow.

"I am very unfortunate," said the woman, "I wanted to have my child baptized, but the priest wants two roubles and I haven't a kopek."

"Is that all?" said the stranger, as he handed the poor creature a five-rouble note, adding; "Go, get your child baptised and bring me the change."

The stranger waited at the church door until the happy mother came out with her christened baby and returned three roubles to the stranger with profuse thanks.

"My good woman," said the benefactor, "you need not be surprised at what I have done; I like to see everybody around me happy. The priest has been paid, your child has been baptized and I have got rid of a bad five-rouble note!"—[L'Italie.

—Mr. George H. Cowan, B.A., barrister, of London, Ont., is in the city on a visit to Mr. T. Shirley, and expresses himself very much delighted with the city and its surroundings. The village will not only lose live good business men, but will miss them and their families in social circles.—[Port Stanley correspondence of St. Thomas Journal.

A Victoria, B. C., dispatch says: "Miss Cartmel, who, for two years, has been connected with the rescue work of the Methodist Church in this city, left for Vancouver this morning to take the Empress of Japan for the Orient where she will continue to labor with a class of native "Bible women." Last evening she was presented with an address and a souvenir by the ladies." Miss Cartmel has many friends in London who will rejoice to hear of her success.

With a paint box and step ladder he started to ornament the plate glass window, and in a few minutes a big crowd blocked the sidewalk and road. The police appeared on the scene and drove the people back in order to open up a passage. "Josie Mills at the Opera House all next week" was the inscription on the window.

Guelph Presbytery.

A meeting of the congregation of Chalmers' Church, Guelph, was held on the evening of the 6th inst., to consider what steps should be taken in regard to the resignation of the pastor, Dr. Wardrope, laid on the table of the Presbytery at its meeting in July. There was a large attendance both from the city and county. Rev. Dr. Torrance was appointed chairman, and, the meeting having been opened with religious service, he stated the object for which it had been called. It was moved by Mr. David Stinton, after expressing strong attachment and respect for the pastor, that no opposition be offered to the acceptance by the Presbytery of the resignation, and that a retiring allowance of $400 be guaranteed for Dr. Wardrope during his lifetime. This was seconded by Donald Guthrie, Q.C., who stated that the congregation had increased from 115 at the beginning to its present membership. After a few further remarks the motion carried by 63 to 26. The edifice is worth at least $25,000.

Mark Murphy's Comedians.

Mr. Mark Murphy and his company of comedians will present their latest New York success, "O'Dowd's Neighbors," at the Opera House to-morrow evening. "O'Dowd's Neighbors" is one of those theatrical productions which for want of a better name can be called a musical farce. The management boasts that it is the largest company traveling this season that interprets what may be termed legitimate farce-comedy. There are no less than 32 people in the cast, and the costumes used are new and strikingly attractive. Rollicking comedians, pretty girls, and artists whose vocal abilities are well known, together with the comedy, will go to make up an extremely entertaining combination. The principal comedians of the company are Mark Murphy and James Thornton, and these fun-makers never fail to capture an audience. Another strong card is Miss Marie Cahill, the dancer (late of the Miss Helyett Company), who executes the Spanish dances in a way that will make Carmencita look to her laurels. Plan is now open.

CANADA AND CHOLERA.

What the President of the Quebec Board of Health Discovered.

Criminal Neglect That Can With Difficulty Now Be Remedied.

THE TOO OLD POLICY.

[Toronto Telegram.]

When the health of Canada was threatened by no dire epidemic the Government in general, and Hon. John Carling in particular, saw no use in improving the quarantine arrangements at Grosse Isle.

Just now when there is danger the same eminent personages do little because it is too late to do much.

It does seem that in a matter of such grave importance the Government ought to be too big to borrow a policy from the Dutchman, who would not shingle his house in fine weather because the roof did not leak and could not do the work when it was raining because it was wet.

NO QUARANTINE SERVICE.

[Montreal Witness.]

Canada has no defense against the entrance of cholera, and can have none this season. That is the conclusion of Dr. Lachapelle, president of the Provincial Board of Health, who had just returned from a visit to the quarantine station at Grosse Isle. Beyond being a very favorable place for a quarantine station, there is, it appears, little at Grosse Isle beyond the presence of two medical men to justify its being termed a station. There is no suitable shelter even for people landed at the station, the sheds built in 1847 being uninhabitable, and the accommodation "insufficient" and "unfit." Some baths and closets recently put up "are in a very filthy state," because "there is no water even for these." There is apparently do water for any but drinking purposes, and this is obtained from three surface wells which would not furnish enough for even drinking and cooking were there a rush of steamers, and a water famine would ensue immediately. There is "no water for washing clothes." The "old oven is almost useless, and it is quite impossible to heat the air sufficiently with it to disinfected." Hot air and hot water, without which no real disinfection can be accomplished are practically unprocurable on the island. "There is no disinfecting apparatus for operation either on the wharf or on the island." Just what pretense at disinfection has been made at Grosse Isle already can only be guessed at, unless the report of the "Cremon," a steamship from "Hamburg" and "Antwerp," two infested European ports, is takes for an example. The chief officer of this vessel reports that on arrival at Grosse Isle on Wednesday last Dr. Montizambert ordered the whole of the passengers and their luggage to be disembarked. There is no wharf at this quarantine station alongside which a vessel can be brought, and no steam tug or ferry boat provided for disembarking the passengers and their luggage. There was a high wind and a rough sea, making it dangerous to land passengers by means of ships' boats, and after a trial this means had to be given up. The master of the ship telegraphed to Quebec for a tug and lighters and by means of these the passengers and their luggage were taken off on Thursday morning. When the "lighters" reached the wharves of the station, the passengers could not reach the top of the wharf because some of the steps were gone, and finally they "were landed on shore by hand." There "was no machinery or hoists" to handle the baggage with, and this also had to be landed "by hand." The passengers, officers and crew were then made "to bathe and wash their clothes," and "their trunks were kept open three whole days to thoroughly air their clothes." On Saturday morning the vessel with all her passengers left the station. This report shows that no attempt at real disinfection of either the passengers or their luggage was made at Grosse Isle, and confirms the report of Dr. Lachapelle that the means of disinfection do not exist. Disinfecting machines were bought at Toronto, and it was claimed that these would be set up and be in working order at Grosse Isle to-day or to-morrow. Dr. Lachapelle, on being reminded of these disinfectors, said that "they would be better than nothing, but rapid disinfection was impossible at Grosse Isle at present." Wharves, it appears, cannot be completed this fall, or even next summer, and no effective service can be established. There is no need of commenting upon the utter lack of preparation implied in these probably guarded statements of a Government official. Cholera patients cannot be treated in any numbers at Grosse Isle, infected people cannot be quarantined there, for there is no accommodation, and luggage and goods cannot be disinfected there even in comparatively small quantities. Two or three really infected ships could not be dealt with, yet there threatens to be a regular rush of ships with immigrants owing to the practical closing of American ports as a result of the President's proclamation of twenty days' quarantine against all ships carrying immigrants. Canada cannot allow the mouth of the St. Lawrence to become a plague blockaded cul-de-sac, yet that is what it must become if an attempt to quarantine all vessels and disinfect them be made. Real disinfection would not be secured in any event, and the plague germs unkilled might remain unhatched during the winter only to break out into plague spots all over the country next spring. Doctor Lachapelle's remedy, though a very heroic, and a very drastic one, appears to be the only one that is open to us. He says:

"There is only one thing to do to protect Canada from cholera, and I cannot speak too strongly on the matter, as I feel that the situation is exceedingly serious. We must immediately refuse access to the Dominion to all ships coming from infected ports. This should be rigidly enforced until the close of navigation, and in the meantime the post at Grosse Isle may be in a manner equipped. The Government seem to have realized the gravity of the situation, but too late to do much good this season. In fact it will be 1894 before the pier and other proposed appliances can be completed."

Dr. Lachapelle has urged the Dominion, in a dispatch, to close our ports to all steamers from infected ports on the continent during this season or until the cholera ceases. The measure, extreme as it seems, will only be a partial defense and it is doubtful whether our quarantine officers can deal effectively with vessels from British ports only. The indignation against the Government, which is nothing but a mass of corruption, depending for its existence upon its power of corrupting the whole country, and which therefore concerns itself little over the real welfare of the country, is rising in view of the present situation. Even the Government organs cannot conceal the public disapprobation which has suddenly manifested itself.

Mr. Isaac Williams:

Dear Sir.—I have been a sufferer for a long time with general debility and weakness in my back. The doctors could do me no good. MORMONS GOING TO MEXICO.

One of the Elders Purchases a Large Tract of Land Near Jiminez.

JIMINEZ, Mex., Sept. 7.—Elder James Martin, of the Mormon Church, has purchased a tract of 50,000 acres of farming land near this place upon which he proposes to establish a Mormon colony. He was offered a concession of the land by the Mexican Government, but he preferred not to be bound by any restrictions which might hinder the growth. For 50,000 acres of farming land near this place the price paid was $75,000. Elder Martin says the colonists will come from Utah. The large Mormon colony at Ariope is in a very flourishing condition.

DUEL BETWEEN PRINCESSES.

Authentic Details Would Be of Exceeding Interest.

VIENNA, Sept. 7.—No small sensation has been made by the report of a duel between two ladies of the high Austrian nobility. The Princess Pauline Metternich, the honorary president of the Vienna Musical and Theatrical Exhibition, and the Countess Kilmannsegg, the wife of the Stathalter of Lower Austria, and president of the ladies' committee of the exhibition, had a fearful quarrel over some arrangements at the exhibition. The affair was regarded as so serious that it could only be settled by blood. The ladies traveled to Vadug, the capitol of the little principality of Litchtenstein, on the Swiss frontier, the town which Prince Alois, of Litchtenstein, some time ago offered to the Pope as a city of refuge in the event of his being obliged to leave the Vatican.

The duel was fought with rapiers. At the third round the Princess was slightly wounded on the nose and the Countess on the arm. Thereupon the two seconds, Princess Schwarzenberg and Countess Kinsky, advised them to embrace, kiss and make friends, which accordingly they did. Their wounds were attended to by Baroness Lubinski, a Polish lady who has studied medicine and obtained a doctor's degree, whom they had prudently sent from Warsaw to attend the duel.

Terrible Tragedy in Illinois.

BLOOMINTON, Ill., Sept. 7.—At Payne, this county, shortly after midnight Richard Wright and his daughter were awakened by a shout. The man recognizing the voice as that of his son-in-law, Dole Judah, went out toward the fence when a shot was fired by Judah. Wright ran in the house and got an axe and started toward Judah when a scuffle ensued. The old man was shot once in the head and twice in the neck, killing him. His daughter secured the axe and struck Judah on the back of the neck, killing him instantly.

A Human Ostrich.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Cliquot, a human ostrich with an amazing swallow, is the chief attraction in a local museum. He is a Frenchman, and there is nothing about his trim, slender exterior to indicate that his throat development or his capacity is greater than that of common men; but, nevertheless, he bolts bayonets, sabers, swords, watches and other junk with such ease and nouchalance that Bingo, the glass eater from Africa, is fretting himself white with jealousy. After Cliquot swallows a watch of common size bystanders may put their ears to his blue lisle thread covered breast and listen to the timepiece ticking away in his interior. He pushes thin sword blade after swore blade down his gullet until a dozen are sheathed there. Another unique feat is the swallowing of the blade of a saber to which is fastened the butt of a musket, which Cliquot fires off while the steel stands upright in his vitals. He disgorges these foreign substances as easily as he takes them in.

Hilda Thomas, the popular ballad singer, has just married a third husband. She buried her second husband, Blakeley, the variety actor, about a year ago. From her first husband she secured a divorce in Indianapolis about 1886.
