Ayton Tied Stars
In a rather colorless and uninteresting game, Ayton succeeded in holding the Stars to a tie here on Tuesday evening. The Stars had only a portion of their regular line-up on the field, and as a result the visitors were very much in the limelight. The Stars secured the first tally after ten minutes of play, and nothing further occurred until the second period, when Referee Tom Doersam, of Ayton, awarded his team a penalty. This was not considered a goal, but a little later the referee repeated, and this time his team scored a goal. As a result of the game having no bearing on the group standing, the Stars did not protest the matter, and allowed the goal to count. Henry Haeting substituted in goal for C. Wendt and Pat Lobsinger and Jos. Diemert also filled in, and all did good work.

Jacob Kreller Deceased
Mr. Jacob Kreller of Clifford passed away on Friday last in his eighty-third year. He had been ill for the past year, and was confined to his bed for six months. Born in Waterloo in 1847, he came with his parents to Normandy in 1885. In 1886 he married Dorothy Kopsa of Normandy, and after farming in that township for four years they moved to Bentinck, where Mrs. Kreller died in 1887. The following year Mr. Kreller married Mary Kehopf, and a few years later they moved to Howick, where they continued to reside until 1919, when they retired to Clifford. He leaves to mourn his loss his widow, five sons, Louis J. of Chicago, George of Saskatchewan, Theo. of Calgary, Chas. H. and Wm. J. of Howick; also four daughters, Mrs. Adam Hossfeld of Carriek, Laura L. of Kitchener, Lucy M. of Muskoka, and Esther (Babe) at home, also twenty-five grandchildren.

The funeral took place on Monday in Hanover cemetery, and was conducted by Rev. J. H. Lemon of Clifford. The pallbearers were his two sons, and four grandsons. Relatives from Guelph, Kitchener, Mitchell, Warton, Elora, Ayton, Hanover, Mildmay, Neustadt and Walkerton were present at the funeral.

Lawn Social To-Night
The lawn social, to be held on Thursday evening of this week at the home of Herbert Lark, south of Mildmay, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the Lutheran Church, will be a big attraction. The committee have secured Willie Bell, the renowned comedian and vocalist, for the evening's program, with Miss Phyllis Gray as accompanist. A brass band and the Mildmay Harmonica Boys will also take part. Don't miss this event. A good time for every person.

Autos Collide on Main Street.
Last Sunday morning, at Rev. G. F. Brown was turning into his home here, after having taken the morning service at the 10th concession church, a Michigan touring car, which was following a little distance behind, bumped into Mr. Brown's car, doing some little damage to both vehicles. The new traffic cop, now stationed at Walkerton, was soon upon the scene, and upon hearing the story of all parties concerned, was able to get the trouble squared away satisfactorily. It was very fortunate that no person was hurt in the mixup.

Successful Social
The Ladies Aid of the United Church have reason to be gratified with their annual garden party, held at the home of Mr. Thos. H. Jasper on the 12th concession of Carriek last Thursday evening. The weather throughout the day was wet and threatening, but it cleared away in time, and there was a fine attendance. The program was given by Bob Wilson, assisted by Miss Grace Bonnick, accompanist, and their numbers very greatly pleased the audience. The Mildmay Harmonica Boys also made a splendid hit. The chair was taken by Rev. Dr. Fothergill. The fine grounds were splendidly illuminated by L. H. Koenig's Delco system. The net proceeds amounted to about $150.

Stars Capture Group Honors
The Mildmay Stars, by defeating Holstein on the latter's grounds last Friday evening took first place in the group competition, and now enter the Senior series of the W. F. A. The Stars were not at full strength for this game, and the Holstein players went to the very limit to trim their old rivals. Chas. Wendt, who has played goal for the Stars for years, was unable through illness to accompany the team, but Clarence Kunkel, who substituted between the stakes, turned in a wonderful performance, and kept the Holstein players from scoring, although there were several mighty close, hot shots directed at the Mildmay goal. Right at the first dong of the bell, the Holstein fellows went at it hammer and tongs, and the Star defence were kept exceedingly busy to keep them from scoring. After the keen edge of the attack had worn off, the Stars took the aggressive, and before the end of the game, they had rolled up a score of four goals while their opponents were held without a tally. Lutkin scored two goals, Walker got one, and Joe Raybould got the fourth. The Stars' line-up was changed somewhat, Howard playing back with Jack Schurr, and Godfrey Schuett playing on the forward line, with Geo. Kaufman, the manager, taking a rest.

Leander Dentinger of Formosa and Albert Ruetz of Carlsruhe left last week for Rome, where they will complete their studies for the R. O. priesthood.

Daily Coach Service
The Central Ontario Bus Lines Limited, has established a coach line service between Arthur and Kincardine, the buses making fares their first trip on Tuesday. The fares are slightly higher than railway fares. It is questionable if the venture will be profitable, as it has been tried before and abandoned. Mildmay is included in the schedule.

Fire Damaged Stable
Boys playing with matches are supposed to have started a fire in P. D. Liesemer's frame stable on Wednesday evening of last week. The fire alarm was sounded, and the brigade promptly responded. In a very few minutes a stream was playing on the building, and the fire was extinguished before it had gained serious headway. The loss was fully covered by insurance in the Formosa Mutual.

Western Crops Light
In conversation this week with a Manitoba business man who is in close touch with crop conditions, we learned that the crop prospects in the three Western provinces are not very encouraging. Continued dry weather has so seriously retarded the growth and development of the crops that the total yield is now estimated that the total yield will be at least two hundred million bushels short of last year's crop.

Gives Promise of Speed
Peter M. Lobsinger's pacing colt, Dickson Valley, is being put through a light course of training this summer, and is showing some remarkable speed. The other day he clipped off 1 1/4 miles on the highway in three minutes flat, which is equivalent to 2.24 for a mile, and as he is just rising three years old, he will, with proper training, be able to greatly lower this record. Dickson Valley is developing nicely, and will undoubtedly find a place among the speediest equines in the country before long.

C. W. N. A. Convention
The City of London extended a very warm and cordial welcome to the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, which held its annual convention at the Hotel London last Thursday and Friday. Nearly three hundred weekly publishers were present, and many matters of vital interest to the craft were discussed. One of the outstanding features of the Convention was an address by Mr. J. E. McConnell, president of the firm of McConnell & Ferguson, advertising agents. Mr. McConnell was formerly a Walkerton man. T. H. Yull, another expert in advertising, also spoke very helpfully. Arthur Ford, of the London Free Press spoke on editorial writing; W. H. Griffin of Southern Press, Toronto, on commercial printing, and John E. Allen of New York on Linotype work.

On Thursday afternoon the members of the Association were given a fine drive about the city, and in the evening were banquetted by the London Council at the Hotel London. The ladies of the party enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. J. E. McConnell on Thursday afternoon. London has a population of 70,000, and is the commercial capital of Western Ontario. It has never experienced a boom, but its growth and progress has been steady, sane and substantial. It has 225 manufacturing plants, involving an investment of $42,000,000, with an annual production of $38,000,000. It is a very important educational centre with twenty-two public schools, eight separate schools, three Colleges, Normal School, Technical and Commercial High School, in addition to the Western University. It has a number of beautiful parks, with its ideal summer resort at Port Stanley.

Social Hygiene Council Meets

Leading Health Association Reports Excellent Year's Work

The drastic measure of separating the sexes after they have reached the age of ten years in public and high schools, and perhaps even later in the institutions of higher learning and the universities, was recommended by the standing committee on venereal disease at the annual meeting of the Canadian Hygiene Council, in Montreal, recently. The object behind this proposal is the control of gonorrhoea, which, it was stated, has increased very much within the past few years among adolescents and adults under twenty years of age. Objection was taken to this, however, on the grounds that co-education, as the great educator, Froebel, pointed out, had many fine things to offer the youth of the country. The recommendation was, accordingly, forwarded without adoption for the consideration of the incoming executive.

Another question on which the meeting split was the matter of the prevention of venereal disease. Prophylaxis would prove more effective than spiritual guidance in ridding the country of this disease. Dr. C. P. Fenwick, of Toronto, stated: "We talk about immunizing people against typhoid and scarlet fever, and as long as we are content to leave venereal disease to the spiritual administrators we are not doing our full duty." Dr. A. H. Desloges, director of the division of venereal disease for the Province of Quebec, differed strongly from Dr. Fenwick, stating that prophylaxis was a dangerous doctrine, which would only encourage sexual laxity. Dr. Gordon Bates gave the last word on the question by stating that so highly controversial a subject could hardly be taken as one of the platforms of the council. Another objection to its adoption was that it would antagonize the governments on whom they were depending for support.

Resolutions and recommendations were adopted regarding the treatment of drug addicts; the prevention of blindness by gonorrhoeal infection at birth through the enactment of laws by each province making the proper prophylactic measures compulsory; and approving the principle of medical examination before marriage. Besides his recommendation against co-education, the report of the venereal disease committee stated that syphilis was becoming less prevalent. It also expressed the opinion that the provinces should be left to work out their individual solutions of the control of the provincial clinics. The rural health centres should, the report stated, be used as bases for propaganda, while greater discretion about results should be practised by the smaller hospitals so that patients would be encouraged to take the routine Wassermann tests.

Drug Committee Reports

The report of the narcotics committee recommended "that (1) it be made more difficult each year for drug addicts to secure supplies, and that this process must be made so difficult that the addict will be afraid of having his supply cut off. (2) That treatment in an institution must be given to all known addicts. Treatment for those people while they are free to walk about and get additional supplies is useless. (3) That all patients who have received treatment in an institution must be supervised and watched for a long period after their treatment is completed. There is no use treating them by cutting off drugs and then turning them loose to go back to their old associates and friends. (4) That the patient must know that he is not only being assisted to quit the habit, but that the same people will assist him to remain free from it. (5) That a confidential register should be kept of all drug addicts who have received treatment at public expense, and these people should be supervised for a period of at least three years. (6) That drug addicts should not be treated in prisons and reformatories, because it is in prisons and reformatories that they meet the type of young men who are easily led into the drug habit. (7) That the provision should be made in each province for the establishment of an institution for the care of drug addicts and that physicians should be specially trained to undertake the care of drug addicts."

The resolution concerning medical examination before marriage was as follows: "That we approve the principle of medical examination before marriage; that legislation as at present proposed should not be passed unless and until preceded by an adequate period of public education; that public education as to the desirability of medical examination before marriage should be undertaken."

The financial statement showed expenditures amounting to $37,813, revenue of $37,143 and a deficit of $694. Assets amounted to $15,216.

Greater education on the necessity of immunization and isolation in the case of communicable diseases was still needed, Dr. Grant Fleming reported, as there were over 1,000 deaths in Canada in the past year from diphtheria and other diseases of a communicable nature. It was reported that the work of the county health units was most encouraging, especially in the Province of Quebec, where a large decrease in infant mortality was noted.

Tennis and Bare Legs

London Daily Express (Ind. Cons.): The Wimbledon authorities, threatened with an avalanche of bare-legged competitors, are said to be about to issue an edict commanding stockings. Aesthetically they are right. Not only do legs look better when clothed—go to any revue if you doubt it—but there is something incongruous, as the witty Sonrita Alvarez has pointed out, in wearing a frock but no stockings. If the convenience of the players and the advantages to be had from extra agility and ease are to decide those weighty issues, then the lawn tennis championships of the future, perhaps of the very near future, will be fought out by men in "shorts" and women in bathing dresses; and Wimbledon will be like unto the Lido or Deauville, only more so.

The Church's Reawakening

Edinburgh Weekly Scotsman (Con): The emphatic decision of the two great branches of the Scottish Church to accept the overtures which pledge them to unite, though confidently expected in view of the approval of the congregations throughout the land, is none the less momentous and epoch-making. The development of the idea of re-union has coincided with a changing and a broadening conception of religion itself. The rigid adherence to points of difference that have kept the Churches apart has given way to a fuller recognition of the more vital principles on which they are at one. We have reached a stage when in religious and social affairs the nation needs a clear and undivided lead; and now, as Dr. Drummond remarked, the Church can consolidate its moral weight on the side of truth and righteousness.

The League and the Movies

Manchester Guardian (Lib.): An American has proposed that the League of Nations should be made world censor of films. To evolve a world censorship of films is more than we can fairly ask of the League. Fortunately, the problem tends to solve itself, though slowly. The British Dominions and colonies exercise through their Governments their own checks on presenting to unsophisticated peoples the sensualities and sensationalisms of Hollywood. They have now, very rightly, seized on the addition of speech to picture, to devise, with Government subsidy, the sort of chronicle play that will show the young Australians the evolution of his country from bushranging to nationhood, and give the young Canadian a glimpse of Wolfe on the St. Lawrence and of Montcalm's memorable end on the Heights of Abraham. Sheer weariness of gunmen and vamps will yet reform the cinema without the aid of a League censorship.

WORLD'S FASTEST TANK DISPLAYS ITS SPEED

Christie, new type of tank, which attained a speed of 52 miles per hour during the military tournament and garden party at Governor Island, N.Y., recently.

Naval Limitation

Glasgow Herald (Cons.): No country has been so earnest in the cause of disarmament as Britain. In reduction of both land and sea forces we have continuously given a lead to other nations, and that in spite of the fact that the policing of our far-scattered Empire and the interconnecting ocean routes throws a heavy responsibility on both services. Our good faith in the matter of naval disarmament is conclusively demonstrated by the fact that the announcement of America's swollen cruiser program coincided with a reduction in our naval building scheme. Mr. Hoover can rely absolutely on Britain's cooperation in any fair plan of naval reduction.

Elsie Pain in the London Daily Chronicle (Lib.): The completely happy person, if experienced in anything but small doses, is apt to be irritating—just as a very immaculate small boy, or a person who never gets hot or dishevelled after a set of tennis. It seems very unfortunate—not to say unfair—that when happiness and a cheerful disposition are such obviously desirable things they should be so unfashionable. They are unfashionable, in this sophisticated age. To describe anyone as a "jolly girl" may be all right where her own sex is concerned; but it will spoil her chances of exciting masculine interest as effectively as if she was said to have a shiny nose.

SHOCK FELT

London—Daily Mail despatches from Christchurch, N.Z., today stated that 21 earthquake shocks occurred there within eight hours Saturday, two of which were as severe as the initial shock which rocked the countryside last Monday. The reports said the populace walked the streets throughout Saturday night, fearing to enter the buildings. Wellington despatches to the London Daily Telegraph revealed today that, as a result of the recent earthquake, Mount Stevens, nearly 4,000 feet high, disappeared completely. Slopes have been levelled, trees destroyed and the water supply at Westport cut off. Diphtheria, the report said, was making heavy inroads at Karama.

M. I. T. to Use Zeppelin in 'War' Against Aviator's Nuisance, Fog

New Dirigible Mayflower Will Aid in Round Hill Tests of "Blind Landing" Device and Superaudible Sound Waves

The new Goodyear-Zeppelin Airship "Mayflower" will be used for extensive aeronautical research by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, it has just been announced here. The studies will include aerial navigation through fog, communication and meteorology.

Experiments will also be conducted with a new "blind landing" device, in which electrical cables are buried beneath the surface of the airport. The induced currents in the cables influence special instruments in the aircraft, adding them to come safely to the ground despite visibility conditions.

Use of the airship, arranged by the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation, is one step in the expansion of the research facilities at the Round Hill Airport of Col. E. H. R. Green at South Dattmouth, Mass., where the institute short-wave radio research station has been in experimental operation for several years.

Work on Dock Started In anticipation of the arrival of the "Mayflower" within a month, erection of an aircraft dock 140 feet long and 72 feet wide has been started at Round Hill Airport. The foundations have been completed.

The "Mayflower" is expected to start her flight from Akron, O., early next month. In addition to her operating personnel, an experienced ground crew of 25 men will be stationed at Round Hill to handle the docking operations. During the summer the "Mayflower" is expected to make flights to various parts of New England in connection with the research in which she will take part.

The ability of the airship to hover over one location will prove a great aid to many of the experiments. Various types of antenna will be studied as the airship will have instruments to measure direction and strength of radiated energy.

Experiments also will be carried on in super-audible sound waves, with the object of determining their possible application to airplane navigation. Other studies will deal with altitude meters built on radio design, which will give accurate readings of heights above the nearest ground, instead of the height above sea level.

Will Test Beacons The fog research work, which began several months ago, includes studies of the penetrating characteristic of lights of various colors through artificial fog. This work, through the use of the "Mayflower," will be extended to include radio beacon aids to navigation.

The general research programme will be in charge of Prof. Edward L. Bowles of the Department of Electrical Engineering.

The "Mayflower," the latest of four nonrigid airships built by the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation, has a gas capacity of 80,000 cubic feet, and is inflated with the non-inflammable helium. She is 123 feet long, 37 feet in diameter, and is powered with two 70-horsepower Ryan-Siemens motors, which give her a speed of 58 miles an hour and a cruising radius of 550 miles without refueling.

Steps Toward the World Court

New York World: One by one the steps are being taken which will bring the United States into the World Court. The League Council sitting at Madrid, has approved Elihu Root's formula as a basis for our entrance. Its action was unanimous, as was the previous action of the world committee of jurists which submitted Mr. Root's proposal (embodied in a draft protocol) to the Council. It was now necessary to obtain the assent of the member nations of the Court, and the ratification of the United States Senate. The plan devised at Geneva and formally set in motion by the Council in Madrid is to hold a meeting of the member nations in September, simultaneously with the meeting of the League Assembly. Here, it is anticipated, approval to the Root formula will be promptly and freely given. The leading European statesmen—Briand, Stresemann, Sir Austen Chamberlain—who have spoken on the matter—have all treated our entrance as assured; some little hesitation has appeared in Latin America, but it appears from the vote of the three Latin-American members of the Council that it is melting away. Barring an unexpected hitch, by the end of September the door should be open for Senate action.

Election Pledges

London Evening Standard (Ind. Cons.): There is rather too much of a tendency in the average voter, when polling-day has been reached, to regard the result in the light of the result of a sporting contest. This side or the other has won the Cup, and that is that, until the next general election approaches. We shall make a great mistake if we permit ourselves to fall into that frame of mind now. The pledges that have been given must be remembered, and those who have given them must be reminded of them, until they have been fully and securely implemented.

The Young Plan

London Times (Ind.): The settlement upon which the Committee of Experts have now agreed—a settlement already known to the world after the name of their chairman as the Young Plan—completes the work left unfinished by the Dawes Committee. It fixes a final figure for German liabilities under the Treaty of Versailles, and it provides suitable machinery by which these liabilities may be discharged through the ordinary routine transactions of international finance.

Diesel Motor for Airplanes Proves Successful

New Power Plant Marks Aviation Milestone—500 to Be Built Monthly

Detroit—Large-scale production of Diesel airplane motors—a type radically different from existing aircraft engines—is contemplated by the Packard Motor Car Company in a new manufacturing plant nearing completion here. The factory will have a capacity of 500 motors a month. The new Diesel motor is now practically perfected for aircraft use, according to Packard officials. It was developed by Capt. L. M. Woolson, Packard aeronautical engineer. As the climax of nearly four years of experimenting, Captain Woolson made a non-stop flight from Detroit to Langley Field, Va., in a Diesel-powered airplane, marking an important milestone in the quest for new sources of airplane power.

He covered the 650 miles in six hours and fifty minutes. The motor, used $4.68 worth of furnace oil as compared with $24 to $26 worth of gasoline, which would have been used by the conventional type of motor, it was said.

The Diesel motor presents many obvious advantages for aircraft use, according to its sponsors, but has not been used hitherto because of its weight. The Packard motor weighs less than three pounds per horse power. Efficient aircraft gas engines weigh approximately 17 pounds per horsepower. The weight of the fuel required for a Diesel motor, however, is said to be considerably below that of the conventional type.

High cylinder head temperatures which must be avoided in gasoline engines to prevent fires are no hazard in this new type. The designers also point out that it has been possible to fly the new motor without exhaust stacks or manifolds, thus eliminating difficult design problems. It is of radial type and offers less head resistance than the average radial gasoline engine the engineers claim.

Each of the Diesel's nine cylinders works independently, and the engineers say it is probable four would produce enough power to keep an airplane aloft at low altitudes, minimizing the possibilities of complete engine failure. Since the carburetion system does not depend upon gravity, the motor will operate successfully in any position, they add.

Ignition is furnished by compression of the air charge. Hence there are no high tension electric currents to become short circuited and stop the motion. This also eliminates radio interference. Packard officials say, so that fliers may be guided more safely when running "blind" through fog and thick weather. This feature is regarded as of great importance as aircraft are expected to rely more and more upon radio beacons for direction.

The Vote

New Statesman (London): The fate of elections, it is often said, depends on the "floating vote," which changes sides according to the temporary merits of Governments and Opposition policies and leadership. But this view represents the situation. There is a floating vote of this sort; and it is an important electoral factor. But there is also a floating vote, probably as large, that depends not on considered judgement, but on pure prejudice. There are voters who may vote either way, according to a "stunt" which reaches the consciousness of the non-political electors. There are voters who will certainly vote for a political party if they vote at all, but care so little that it needs a successful "stunt" to get them to the booth. And there are even astonishing thought—quite a number of voters who have been on the register for many years, and have never even troubled to vote at all, despite all the expensive propaganda which the various parties have lavished upon them. Even the voter who does vote ordinarily regards voting at least as much in the light of duty as a privilege.

Airplane or Aeroplane?

Truth (London): Having expressed a preference for the American word "aeroplane," I was a trifle disconcerted to read in the Times last week a letter from a gentleman who dogmatically declared that "airplane" was "not English—only journalese." Next day, however, I was relieved by a crushing report in the Times to the effect that "airplanes" was advocated by Professor Skeat about 1913, on the grounds that it was more English than "aeroplanes." Evidently you pay your money and takes your choice.

When Food Sours

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention. It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

The Talkies to Shakespeare

Modern producers of plays have long ago given up the idea of rendering Shakespeare in his entirety, and although the modern playgoer would shrink from allowing the greatest of all the playwrights to be manhandled in the unscrupulous way of the Restoration or create the early Victorian stage, well-meaning suggestions are, from time to time, thrown out for bringing Shakespeare up to date. No less a person than the English dramatist, Ashley Dukes, himself a playwright of rare charm of style and invention, has even gone so far as to suggest recently that, while Shakespeare should not be acted in modern clothes, he should be rewritten in modern English.

The advent of the talkies will, perhaps, make the realization of this seemingly inconceivable suggestion inevitable, for the technique of the talkies being even more remote from that of the Elizabethan stage tradition than the modern theatre, with its still surviving traces of the Tudor inn-yard, the transition to modernized speech could hardly be resented. Miss Mary Pickford, in her enthusiasm for her newly found speech, has perhaps anticipated the wish of the most fervent reformers when she disclosed her ambition to tackle Shakespeare "in a real setting" by a talkie version of the "Taming of the Shrew." And who, indeed, will not delight to see and hear Dug taming Mary in that rollicking way which is all his own?

Those, however, who may still desire to see their Shakespeare in his traditional, though hardly real, setting will be grateful to Dr. Harley Granville-Barker, who has just issued a solemn warning to the governors of the Stratford Memorial Theatre against making the new home of Shakespearean drama a place of grandiose and startling productions, against, that is, that "real" setting for which the talkies can be depended on so much better than any theatre.

"In Stratford," Dr. Granville-Barker writes in a letter to the London Times, "the object must be the creating and sustaining of a sober, sensitive and intelligent tradition of the acting of Shakespeare, and the interpreting of his plays for their own sake, the whole canon of them."

The West and the east

John S. Holyland in the Nineteenth Century (London): It is common to hear reference made in the West to the disillusionment which followed the War, especially in regard to political affairs. However bitter this disillusionment may be the west, it was probably much greater in the East. Before the War India was immensely interested in many aspects of Western life and had a great belief that the West might bring to her many very valuable benefits. This feeling has now all but disappeared—at any rate amongst the vast majority of nationally minded Indians. Few are now found (apart from a very small body of moderates, headed by Tagore) who are willing to admit that the West has really anything to teach India. On the contrary, the majority are deeply concerned lest India be corrupted beyond repair by the pervasive forces of Western civilization. As a great living Indian philosopher has expressed it: "There are men in the East who spend sleepless nights in cursing God because He has allowed these civilized to get into their lands."

A Will-o'-the-Wisp

Winnipeg Tribune (Ind. Cons.): Canadian farmers might as well make up their minds to the fact that whenever trade in any item of agriculture produce reaches a substantial figure there will be a demand for higher protection from the American farmer, and the demand will be answered with drastic action. Desirable as it is, the United States market for farm products is a will-o'-the-wisp, and the farmers who have pursued it politically for many years will have to adjust their economic reasoning accordingly.

An unanswered question in animal behaviorism is why high-strung thoroughbred racers prefer the company of a scrub pony they know to that of fellow-thoroughbreds.

DO NOT NEGLECT YOUR LITTLE ONES

At no time of life is delay or neglect more serious than at childhood. The ills of little ones come quickly and unless the mother is prompt in administering treatment a precious little life may be snuffed out almost before the mother realizes the baby is ill. The prudent mother always keeps something in the medicine chest as a safeguard against the sudden illness of her little ones. Thousands of mothers have found, through experience, that there is no other medicine to equal Baby's Own Tablets and that is why they always keep a box of the Tablets on hand—why they always feel safe with the Tablets.

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which by regulating the bowels and stomach banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and promote healthy, natural sleep. Concerning them, Mrs. Isaac Sonia, St. Eugene, Ont., writes:—"I have been using Baby's Own Tablets ever since baby was a month old and have found that they reach the spot and do more good than any other medicine I have ever tried. I always keep the Tablets in the house and would advise all other mothers to do so." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Canada and Naval Defence

Toronto Telegram (Ind. Con.): The pacifists in the commons are again howling for further cuts in the National Defence estimates. And to pacify the pacifist the minister declares that this young nation spends less per inhabitant for defence than any other nation in the world. And from this distance it looks as if the Minister's statement wasn't anything to boast about. Canada has set up as a nation with embassies at Paris, Washington and Tokio. She insists on the right to make treaties and settle disputes with foreign powers off her own bat. She practically tells the Mother Country to go away back and sit down, that she is running a household of her own. Like the man who is playing a "bob-tail flush," she is all right as long as she isn't "called." But some time the showdown will come. And when it does, what has Canada got to show? When she shows the smallest defensive expenditures in the world, what a laugh will follow. However, if Canada has filled her hand by drawing in the British Navy that laugh won't be loud. Neither will it contain a trace of mockery.

Disarmament and Security

Professor H. A. Smith in the Spectator (London): In the actual order of things disarmament is not the parent of security, but rather the offspring. In civilized countries the average man walks about unarmed, not because the carrying of arms is illegal, but because he is practically certain that nobody is going to attack him. If he believed himself to be in danger he would go armed in spite of the law, since no man values the law above his own life. So it is with nations. They will disarm when they feel safe, and not till then. Until this feeling of security is established a general treaty of disarmament is as impossible as would be a statute prohibiting the carrying of rifles in Afghanistan.

WOMEN vs MEN AS MOTOR DRIVERS

How many women drivers are there in Ontario? How many in Toronto? The department of highways does not know, neither does the Ontario Motor League, nor the Ontario Safety League. Statistics are not compiled separately for the sexes. "Women drivers do not figure in accidents to the extent of men. They are equally good drivers," W. D. A Surgery Marvel
A powerful magnet in a surgeon's hands at Pottsville, Pa., pulled a tiny sewing needle from the centre of a baby's brain, where the needle had been imbedded, and the child stands a good chance of living. Several days before, Mrs. Jennie Harvey found the threaded end of a needle protruding from above the left eye of her baby daughter, Rosanna, nine months old. The mother tried to pull the needle out, but the thread slipped through the eye of the needle and the needle disappeared. An X-ray examination showed the needle resting vertically in the centre of the infant's brain. Dr. J. B. Rogers opened the baby's scalp and held an electric magnet over the place where he thought the needle was. The needle, blackened during the time it had been in little Rosanna's head, came out. Dr. Rogers said the child stands a good chance of recovery.

Mr. James Wheeler Green, for more than 60 years in newspaper work in Ontario as a printer, editor and publisher, celebrated his 80th birthday, when he was host to a gathering of children, grandchildren and other relatives, at his home in Doon last week. Mr. Green is well known throughout the province as a pioneer newspaper man, having published the Gorrie Vidette and the Parkhill Gazette, and later establishing weekly papers in Mildmay, Tavistock and Wellesley. In 1908 he became connected with the Toronto Mail and Empire, and for 17 years served in its circulation department, in this capacity visiting every part of the province. In later years he was a particularly familiar figure in Northern Ontario, having entire charge of this district.

Three years ago he retired from active work, spending the summer months at his home at Doon, and the winters in the Southern States. Mr. Green was born in Waterloo county close to his present home and both his parents were of the United Empire Loyalist stock.

When I was ogguring you I had to leave the house at ten That pair is only starting in to spend the evening then. An' furthermore, we never sat and courted in the dark— "Which means," said Ma "our shadows used to cuddle in the park. "The language that they use," said Pa "beats anything I have heard. Why just the other night he said she was his goo-goo bird. Another time he told her that she was his fairy queen. It's utterly ridiculous and her just turned nineteen. When we were old as them we didn't talk like that. "And there's a simple reason, we were married then," said Ma.

ANOTHER OMELETTE

Only a few weeks ago a truck containing several crates of eggs took to the ditch on the Guelph road just below Mr. Burns' farm, a little over a mile below Ferguson and soon there was an omelette. The good eggs salvaged were scarcely worth the work of rescue and clean-up. Last Thursday another similar accident happened on the Rockwood highway, some three miles below Guelph, when Peter Gold, of Toronto, deposited some twenty-four hundred dozen of choice hen-fruit without any care whatsoever. He scrambled out of the awful mess, only to find his truck almost a complete wreck and the entire loss a small fortune.—Fergus News-Record.

Class feeling is the nice thrill you get when your flivver creeps past a big car on a hill.

In the opinion of Attorney-General Wm. H. Price, 30 days in jail for drunken automobile drivers is, in the majority of cases, a proper sentence. "If I were a magistrate," said Hon. Mr. Price, "I would not hesitate to give a man thirty days for being drunk in charge of an automobile. If he gets less than that, he is lucky."

A freak of nature appeared on the farm of Harry Fleming, near Owen Sound, when a duck with four legs was hatched. The bird, which is now several weeks old, is one of the liveliest of the brood. The duckling has two legs on each side of the body similar to an animal, all of which were well formed. It uses, however, only two forelegs.

KEEP YOUNGSTERS AT HOME
 A clergyman is quoted as saying that he believed Brampton the worst town in the province for children hanging about the streets at night.
 Of course his knowledge of conditions in other towns is nil. Every town and village has the same problem. They have tried the curfew bell, they have tried other means, to compel the children to be in their homes at a reasonable hour at night.
 There is, after all, only one solution.
 When parental authority and parental discipline fail, the law can do little for the welfare of the children in the way of keeping them off the streets at night and away from bad associates. The Brampton minister speaks of what comes under his personal observation, but his vision is limited. Child nature and parental delinquency are not peculiar to any one locality.

those who persist in violating the provisions of the Highway Traffic tate to do his duty, and that means the rights and safety of others will find that he proposes to curb their antics.

 With respect to old cars, he says

 With a provincial general election consider such a step most advisable.

LAVISH use of ball and roller bearings in the Ford car greatly reduce friction and contribute to easier operation and longer life of the car. Note the coasting ability of the Ford car as compared to any other automobile in its weight class.

Examination of the chassis will at once show the advantages of these bearings. On the rear axle pinion and differential all the taper roller bearings are held to such close limits that adjustment is unnecessary, pinion and ring gear always being held in proper mesh.

Spiral roller bearings are used in the rear hub because of their large bearing surface and ability to carry heavy loads. One is also used on the drive shaft at the universal joint end, to assure perfect alignment.

Taper roller bearings in the front wheels have a simple adjustment. Roller thrust bearings on the spindle bolts make for easy steering. Two bearings, one above and one below, take up the thrust on the steering worm.

The fan shaft operates on a roller bearing. The generator, the transmission, the connection between the spline and drive shafts, the clutch, the flywheel—all these important parts are made more efficient and enduring through the use of ball and roller bearings.

These bearings form a striking illustration of the engineering skill and care used in building the Ford car.

"NO BETTER WILL BE MADE"
 Looking back only comparatively few years, we may remember many things which were taken seriously then, but which cause a smile today. Such a smile may be evoked by an advertisement appearing in the Review of Reviews of 1899.
 Properly displayed and accompanied by an illustration that looks very much like an ordinary rubber-tired buggy without a tongue, the advertisement said, in part:
 "The latest and best Horseless carriage. Combines all requirements for an ideal and practical pleasure or business vehicle. No better will be made. Time cannot improve. $600. Delivery in sixty days. Send for illustrated catalogue and interesting reading matter about self-propelled vehicles.
 The fellow who wrote that advertisement took in quite a lot of territory. "No better will be made. Time can not improve it." Think of that—30 years ago.

WARNING NOT HEEDED
 Every few days here is an item in the papers about somebody being drowned while swimming a few minutes after eating a heavy meal. In spite of the countless warnings given against this practice young people, not children but young people old enough to know better, will persist in going in swimming right after a meal. Consequently they are seized with cramps and unless help is at hand speedily go to their death. The doctors, the safety associations and expert swimmers are continually repeating their warnings through the press and notices at bathing beaches, but these go unheeded, as do the most including some cheques, payment of potent warnings of all, the accounts which has been stopped.

POLICE EFFICIENCY
 The city of London, England, the largest city in the world, last year had eighteen murders and all cases were solved. Eleven persons were convicted and the other seven who were accused committed suicide. This is in remarkable contrast to Chicago, where a murder a day is committed. The total of persons apprehended for murder there is always out of proportion to the murder toll and the persons convicted and hanged represent a smaller proportion still. In London apprehension and conviction for murder is the regular thing, indeed a virtual certainty. In Britain there is great police efficiency, absence of political interference with the police, a certainty of conviction and a greater respect for the courts and for law and order. This explains London's excellent showing.

WIDE WATERS

by CAPTAIN A.E. DINGLE

© 1924 by SCOTT & BOWEN, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED. PUBLISHED BY N.S.A. SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

Alden Talbot Drake is contemptuous of the idle life he is leading in his luxurious home. The urge which took him to sea on leaving school has never left him. One night he slips away from a party at his house and makes his way to Sailortown, ancient rendezvous of men who follow the sea, where he meets up with little Joe Bunting, a sailor. They drink each other off their feet in a barroom, and Drake is carried upstairs, presumably to be shanghaied next morning aboard the Orontes. Drake hears himself denounced by Captain Stevens of the Orontes as being not even fit for shanghaied. Drake mutters: "This is too much of a good thing"—and marches through the door of the room in which he was thrown the night before. At the threshold he stops, however, upon hearing a woman's voice.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

In the passage three people walked slowly by, two men, and a girl.

"So it's as well you were delayed over the men," a deep, puzzling, unstrange voice was saying. "I shouldn't have brought Mary into a den like this; but time is short, and you must sail today."

"Oh, please don't worry about me," answered the girl's voice. "It's fun. I wanted to see—Oh, look!" the voice dropped to a stage whisper. "There's a man in there!"

Drake groaned silently. He wanted to take a square look at the owner of that voice. It was a rich, liquid, happy voice. It sent a queer ripple along his throat. But he dared not take his arms from his face. He knew, by the next voice, that they had passed on.

"All the men are aboard but one, Captain Manning." This was Stevens speaking. "I'll have a man in half done all that's needed in change of masters. You'll take the Orontes out to stavia. Take good care of Mary, and see her safely to her brother's place. I'll get the business that's keeping me ashore all settled by the time you get back. Then we'll talk about what's to be done."

Drake's first peep showed him the thick gray bearded, copper-bronzed old gentleman of nautical aspect whose fat chaise horses he had startled with his clanging gate. His next was more than a peep, for he raised his head, and looked straight into the wide blue eyes of the girl who had handled those frightened horses. He shuddered.

He wanted, as he had wanted no other thing in life, to show that clean, self-possessed young lady that he belonged of a clean race, too. He wanted to tell her something. He could still hear her voice. He could hear the deep rumbling tones of her father, if Captain Manning were her parent; hear too the blatant, confident roar of Stevens. He hated Stevens more than ever. Stevens apparently was the sail-master of the Orontes clipper; with Mary Manning as passenger; Stevens, a brute, a manhandler who set himself up a judge of a man's value as a man.

"He says I'm not even worth shanghaied! Caesar! I'd like to argue that with him!"

But how? Drake took steps to peep outside again. If he could just catch Mister Stevens alone for a moment, with that girl out of the way, he would see. The big blond beast might batter a clumsy customer like the crimp, slow moving, slow thinking, a creature of one idea. But Drake had known the day when he could handle himself an hour. The crimp tried to send me a putty dude." The fellow laughed discordantly. Evidently playing to the girl, thought Drake. "If you saw it, Miss Mary, you'd want it for a dolly, but you'd have to wash it first."

"DON'T BE FUNNY. HOW MUCH?"

"Are you speaking about a man?" came the girl's voice, cool and unappreciative. Drake never could decide, even years later, whether the girl meant that to be frosty, or was having fun with Stevens too deep for his understanding. Now they were coming past the door again.

"Tried to dump the dude onto me, sir. I hammered him well."

"Who, the dude?" queried the girl, sharply.

"Hush, child! Let Mister Stevens get through. Time's short," cut in Captain Manning.

"The crimp," said Stevens. "I would feel like a child heater if I hit that double left handed thing in silk striped pants that—"

"Yes, yes," said the captain impatiently. "Never mind the dude. You get your ship warped out to the pier-head whether you have a full complement or not. You'll lose the rest if you don't." The trio were right at the door. Drake simply had to peep. "I above a bit. He had licked the half-deck bully on his first voyage to sea. There was nothing like confidence.

"So you'll get on board, Captain Stevens, and haul out to the pierhead before your crew jump," the old gentleman was saying. "Mary, my girl, take care of yourself. Make a good holiday with Jack, and he'll bring you home when he comes. I'll write you at Cape Town."

Drake followed stealthily. His hopes were dashed, for the three left the place together and walked towards the Docks. He stood on the sun-bathed pavement, staring after them.

Then he hurried down the quieter side street. The sight of three gilded balls over a grimy window full of knives, pistols, sextants, ship models, and curios from all the Seven Seas rounded out a resolve which set his pulse bounding again. He slipped inside.

"How much, Uncle?" he demanded, producing his gold fob watch.

"Where'd y' pinch it?" returned Uncle, a jeweler's glass in one sharp eye alongside a battleship's ram of a beak.

"Don't be funny! How much?"

"It got a name in it. 'Tain't vort much. Gif y' a arf quid fob an' all."

"How much can I buy a suit of dungarees and a shirt for?"

"Tree arf crowns."

Drake mentally calculated. He had to send a telegram.

"Give me a good pair of stout shoes for these togs and pumps, and we'll make the deal," he said. "I want the odd half crown cash."

Rearranged in blue dungarees, shod with wooden pegged shoes, still minus a cap, Drake almost ran until he found a telegraph office. There he spent fifteen precious minutes coding a message to his lawyer. After which he ran in good earnest through the Dock gates, for he had seen the long jibboom with the snowy furling jibs, slowly creep out of sight above the dock wall.

The Orontes was moving out to the locks. Drake mingled with the gang shifting her lines as she warped along. He hauled wet, heavy bowlines enthusiastically. But Lord! how soft he had grown! How his arms ached. How his breath caught.

Drake recalled all his earlier knowledge of a ship's arrangement. He had no fear about being seen for a brief while, where all men were strangers. He knew there was only one man aboard who would be likely to know the men he had shipped, and that man, recently the mate, was now walking the poop, master. A whistle shrilled out aft. The mate ran to the forecastle rail to answer; and Drake ducked and ran into the forecastle itself. Some steel ships, he knew, had a steel bowsprit which entered the forecastle through the bows, and was hollow to the big wide keel. The Orontes had. He wriggled into the convenient cavity like an eel, and lay there palpitating jubilantly.

Overhead the dreary gang tramped the capstan around.

CHAPTER V. MAG'S FANCY BLOKE.

Crouched in his narrow steel shell, Drake thrilled to the adventure he had hurled himself into.

He inhaled a deep breath, for the confines of his steel shell grew stuffy. Dry red lead dust tickled his throat and nostrils. He sneezed. Thanked the stars there was nobody to hear. Then started to sneeze again, and fought desperately to stop the explosion; for voices sounded appallingly near. At the forecastle door.

"Won't be fit for a lady to look into those hogs get settled down here," Captain Stevens was saying. "I am rather proud of this ship's forecastle. It's the driest, roomiest, lightest forecastle I ever saw in a sailing ship. Wonder you never saw it before."

"Oh, Daddy never let me come forward!" laughed Mary Manning. "It is a nice big place, isn't it? How many men live here? O-oh!"

Some Rules to Follow In Feeding the Pre-School Child

- Rules for Eating
1. Children should wash their hands before eating.
  2. Food should be eaten slowly and chewed thoroughly.
  3. Include some fresh vegetables in each day's meals.
  4. Give each child at least a pint of milk a day.
  5. Water should be given freely between meals, but not at bed time.
  6. A glass of milk and a piece of bread or some fruit is all that should be given to a well child between meals and then only if he is really hungry.

Cooking Food

Cereals.—Coarse cereals require at least three hours' cooking in a double boiler, fine cereals at least one hour. Cereals are largely composed of starch and fibre. Long cooking is necessary to soften the fibre and thoroughly cook the starch. In a fine cereal, heat penetrates more quickly to the centre of each grain than in a coarse cereal—hence the necessity of longer cooking of coarse cereals.

Vegetables.—All vegetables need to be thoroughly cooked. Steaming is the best method of cooking vegetables, because there is not as great a loss of food material, particularly the valuable mineral salts. If vegetables are cooked by boiling, however, the water in which they are cooked (stock) should be kept, and used when making soup or vegetable sauce. Potatoes are best baked, or boiled with the skins on and peeled afterwards.

Eggs.—Should be soft cooked, codded, poached or scrambled, not fried.

Meats.—Should be roasted, boiled or broiled. Fried meats should not be given to children. Most stews made with potatoes and other vegetables are recommended, provided they are thoroughly cooked and the fat has been removed.

Soups.—Clear soups have practically no food value, but soups made from meat, to which vegetables and barley, rice or macaroni are added, make valuable food. Thick soups, especially those made from peas and beans with the addition of milk, are nutritious and cheap and may largely be substituted for meat and eggs.

Serving Food

Meals should be served at regular hours. Dinner for children should be served at noon.

Food should be served warm and well cooked, on clean plates and on a clean table. Food that is "off flavor" or tainted should never be served.

Milk should be kept cool—if possible on ice.

Fles should be kept away from food.

Unbalanced Memory

It is so easy to forget a kindness, and to remember a kick. Yet controlling our recollections is almost as important as controlling our temper. We are apt to forget completely a hundred little kindnesses and courtesies which one has shown us, and to remember a single careless slight or thoughtless word. Often we hear it said of some wrong or foolish deed, "I have never thought so well of that man since then; it was there he showed his real character,"—as if a man's real character appeared more in one separate deed to which, perhaps, he was sorely tempted, than in the striving and overcoming of many days and years.

Symbols In Rugs

Montreal—Interpretations of drawings on Oriental carpets were exemplified by D. W. Thomas, president of St. David's Society, in an address on "The Influence of the Orient over American and European Countries."

Various industrial contributions of the Orient to other nations of the world and a short history of the Orient opened the speaker's remarks. In early days, Oriental rugs were not marketed. They were given as relatives or friends as tokens of remembrance or friendship. But to-day, the Orient, like all other countries, has commercialized all its products and its arts. Nevertheless, the same art as that of preceding centuries still prevails in all exported carpets.

To the majority of possessors of Oriental rugs, the speaker stated, the designs are without meaning. But such is not always the case for every design such as the eight pointed star, the sun, the flowers, the four cardinal points and the bird, is the symbol of an actual thing. Imitation of the style existing in pillars erected in Persia has also prevailed throughout the centuries.

These carpets are found chiefly in Persia. There is a notable difference between the style of Northern Persia and that of Southern Persia. The latter differs from the first in the abundance of curves rather than the geometrical and symmetrical forms of these differences were illustrated by the speaker.

A dingle that swatches the hips makes it doubly attractive and becoming to the woman with a mature figure. ## Useful-ness

In youth you must lay in a stock of knowledge which may carry you through life, whatever your after pursuits may be, with usefulness and honor. But recollect, this is not to be done without exertion, without the frequent sacrifice of momentary pleasure and gratification. Self-denial is a virtue of the highest quality, and he who has it not, and does not strive to acquire it, will never excel in anything. Conybear.

Western Hills

During my months in Peking, of the many things I enjoyed those that stand in my memory for delight are excursions outside the city. I had been prepared by photographs for the beauty of the Great Wall, but it was exciting beyond expectation. Besides the power that belongs to all great walls, the sense of fortitude and stability, there is an impression of active energy; as though soldiers were hardy needed to defend it, and its many watch-towers were for its own use only. It is an inspiration to stand on a Tower and see the Wall travelling determinedly as far as the eye can reach in either direction, up hill and down dale, discovering even in the valleys ridges on which to perch itself, a breathless impetus carrying it to the top of the highest hills.

Puffing the pass by train the Wall had impressed me merely as a magnificent enclosure. The first hint of its livingness was at the station where we stopped. Here it fled from the mechanical monster which had cut it through, a headlong flight up precipitous hillsides leaving its stairway wrecked behind it. We joined it by a gentler slope, and found it broad as a lane and generally in wonderful preservation.

My visit was in July and the hills, obviously never very green, were completely bare. In the crannies of the Wall itself were hints of what wild flowers there might be, strange varieties generally of things well known at home: salvia, campanula, morning glory, etc. There were also Mongolian lying in wait for the innocent sightseers, with stalls of lemonade and other refreshments.

My last trip in the Western Hills was in late October, to the great pilgrimage temple of Miao Feng Shan—the Mountain of the Marvelous Peak. To go there we followed the Pilgrims' Way. This, while not much more than a path in width, is one of the very few made roads in North China, paved in its length. In the first stage my vivid recollection is of persimmon orchards. The trees, far larger and more bushy than any to be seen in an English orchard, were laden with large golden fruit, brilliant as oranges among sparse crimson leaves—the sight of the orchards alone would have been well worth the journey. The stage ended at the house of our host, Lo Ching Shan Chai, so christened by the late Emperor. In English the name sounds elaborate, though it is certainly appropriate, the Nature Lover's Mountain Lodge. It was situated in Ming Tao Kow, Cherry Glen by interpretation, the leaves, autumn-tinted, still made the foreground brilliant as it fell rapidly from us.

Below a mountain stream rushed, tearing its way between trees and boulders, with here and there a smooth sheet of water. . . . The view from the dwelling house itself was broad, enclosed by fine outlines of ordered hills, blue and purple at sunset against a primrose sky. Half a mile up a steep glen on the other side of the stream, the temple of our host was dedicated "To all great men who loved nature." The tablets of Keats, Shelley, Walt Whitman and Shakespeare, among English-speaking nature-lovers, and many another great one from every nation, were there in company with two fine old Buddhas who, when the village temple was overtaken by destruction, had found a refuge here.—Rachel Wheatcroft, in "Siam and Cambodia in Pen and Pastel."

Sunday School Lesson

July 14. Lesson II—Ezekiel Teaches Personal Responsibility — Ezekiel 33: 7-16. Golden Text—Every one of us shall give account of himself to God.—Romans 14: 12.

ANALYSIS.
I. INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY, ch. 13: 1-32.
II. THE WATCHMAN'S WARNING, ch. 33: 1-20.

INTRODUCTION—The earlier prophets address themselves to the nation as a whole, rather than to the individual. They emphasize the common duty and the common responsibility, and this surely needs emphasis, especially in our own age of somewhat exaggerated individualism. But in Ezekiel's time, the nation was swiftly going to destruction. The common life of nation, city, and country town, of sanctuary and temple, was being broken up. The people were emigrating to other lands, dispersed or captive. Individual character and faith now become all important. Only by these, in strength and purity, could the religion of the fathers be preserved. Only by a new sense of individual and personal responsibility could men meet the urgent need of their time, bear its heavy burdens, and preserve hope for the future. Only by faithful men, relying upon the covenant faithfulness of God, could the inner life of the nation be saved from utter extinction and revived in the glory of the new age of deliverance toward which the prophets looked with eyes of confident expectation. In both Jeremiah and Ezekiel we find this new emphasis upon the relation of every man directly and personally to God, upon the cultivation of the inner life of the spirit, and upon individual moral conduct and responsibility.

I. INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY, ch. 13: 1-32.
Apparently it was a common thing in those first years of captivity and exile for the people to put the blame for all their troubles upon the sins of their fathers. "Our fathers sinned," they said, "and we bear the consequences." "The fathers have eaten sour grapes and the children's teeth are set on edge" (compare Jer. 31: 29, 30). It was an easy way to throw off responsibility, all the easier because in some measure it was true. Children do suffer for the sins of the parents (see Exod. 20: 5 and 34: 7). The mistake they made was in supposing that in the whole truth, and refusing to accept their own share of the blame. The prophet declares also the parallel and complementary truth that a man is not hopelessly implicated in the penalties which follow upon the sins of the past. The way to life and the favor of God is open to him if he will turn from the ways of evil and do what is lawful and right in the sight of God.

The fundamental truth is that stated in v. 4. All souls belong to God. He is interested in, and concerned with, every soul of man, his character and his destiny. Ultimately every man will be judged according to his own deeds, whether they be good or whether they be evil (see Jer. 17: 10; Eccl. 12: 13; Rom. 2: 6).
It is interesting and helpful to study the character of the "just" man as described by Ezekiel, vs. 9-14-17. He does not frequent the idol sanctuaries, nor partake of their sacrificial feasts upon the mountains. He does not break the social laws by which the sanctity and purity of the home are guarded. He has considerable regard for the poor and the needy. In a position of authority he hath executed true judgment between man and man. He has reverence for the laws of God. The character of the unjust man is just the opposite of this. The one is rewarded by a good life in the favor and under the blessing of God. The other is punished by the loss of that favor and blessing, in which is true life, and so by a death of sin, a spiritual death, which begins even while he lives, and from which he can escape only by the mercy of God, and by reformation of conduct, vs. 21-23, 27, 28; Isa. 55: 6, 7.

For God is merciful as well as just. He has no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but rather that he should turn from his ways and live. (Compare Psalm 103: 8-12; Isa. 57: 16-18; Micah, 7: 18, 19; 1 Tim. 2: 4; 2 Peter 3: 9. His mercy crowns and perfects his justice. It is not primarily God's will, but their own iniquity that brings ruin upon them, v. 20.

II. THE WATCHMAN'S WARNING, ch. 33: 1-20.
There is much in this chapter that is a reiteration of the prophet's teaching in ch. 18. But a new situation has arisen. It is the twelfth year of the captivity (B.C. 536), and news has just come of the fall of the city of Jerusalem into the ruthless hands of the Chaldeans, v. 21. All hope of a speedy restoration of the captives was now gone. Ezekiel's prediction had come true, and the people could no longer doubt that he had spoken to them as a prophet of God. Formerly they had been excusing themselves, blaming the sins of their fathers for the calamities that had come upon them, ch. 18. Now they are in despair—hope and pride have vanished. Ezekiel feels very heavily the responsibility which rests upon himself as well as upon them, upon himself as God's watchman, charged with their care and right guidance, and upon them because they are now convinced of the truth of his repeated warnings, and that he has indeed spoken to them the words of God.

From the beginning of his prophetic ministry Ezekiel had been led to think of himself as a watchman unto the house of Israel (v. 7. Compare 3: 15-21). His duty was to warn the wicked of his way to turn from it. No man has ever felt more deeply than he the importance and obligation of such a task—the task of the spiritual leader in every age and in every nation. The dependency of the people committed to his care is evident in their words as quoted in v. 10. Moffatt renders, "Son of man, tell Israel: This is your cry, that 'our transgressions and our sins press upon us, we are wasting away under them; how can we live?' They no longer excuse themselves—they admit their sins, but despair of forgiveness. The prophet's words are full of comfort and of hope for the truly repentant. None of his sins that he hath committed shall be mentioned unto him. The way of repentance and of well-doing will be for him the way of life, v. 16. This is the justice, and this is the equity, of the way of the Lord.

Woman (trembling): "Under the bed."

Farm Notes

The well arranged herbaceous border is a charming feature of the well-kept home grounds. If the plants have been well selected there is assured a continuous flower display from early spring until the autumn frosts arrive. The perennial border may be started either by the purchase of plants in the fall or spring of the year or by raising the plants from seed. The latter way is much more economical and this is the season of the year when the seeds should be planted for next year's border. In a new bulletin on "Herbaceous Perennials" by Miss Isabella Preston of the Horticultural Division of the Dominion Experimental Farms, it is recommended to establish the seed bed in a shady position though not under a tree. The soil need not be rich, but if it is very heavy it is recommended to lighten it was sand. For good germination the surface soil must be very fine. Miss Preston recommends a width of four feet for the bed and a length limited only by the available garden space and the quantity of plants desired to be grown. This bulletin, which contains a wealth of horticultural information, the result of many years' experience and observation, is now ready for distribution at the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. The perennials best suited for Canadian gardens in all parts of Canada are enumerated and described and their culture carefully dealt with.

Grades for Strawberries
The marketing of all kinds of produce is materially helped when properly graded. The Fruit Commissioner of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has offered recommended grades for strawberries. First of all it is recommended that the fruit be divided into Number 1, Number 2, Canning, and Number 1 for jam. The specifications for Number 1 strawberries call for fruit with the calyx and a short stem attached, which are well formed, of good color, firm but not over-ripe, free from surface moisture, bruises, bird pecks, mould, and from damage caused by sand, disease or other means. The minimum diameter for this grade is three-quarters of an inch, measured from side to side.

Number 1 canning strawberries are recommended to consist of field run fruit, clean, sound, ripe, firm, and of uniform size, of good color and free from malformed or monkey-faced berries. The specifications for Number 1 jam strawberries call for field run fruit, clean, ripe, and of good color, free from malformed or monkey-faced berries.

In order to allow for variations incident to careful commercial grading and handling, an allowance of five per cent. under the prescribed size and five per cent. by volume may fall below the remaining requirements of the grade.

The Fairies

The fairies have never a penny to spend.
They haven't a thing put by.
But theirs is the dower of bird and of flower
And theirs are the earth and the sky.
And though you should live in a palace of gold
Or sleep in a dried-up ditch,
You could never be poor as the fairies are,
And never as rich.

Since ever and over the world began
They have danced like a ribbon of flame,
They have sung their song through the centuries long
An dyet it is never the same.
And though you be foolish or though you be wise,
With hair of silver or gold,
You could never be young as the fairies are,
And never as old.

Food and the Girl

London Evening News (Ind. Cons.):
When doctors are in conference they sometimes do agree. American doctors in their annual congress at Atlantic City differed in the blame they assigned to cigarettes, late hours and insufficient winter clothing as causes of illness among girls of 14 to 19 years; but they did agree that the chief cause of the high rate of tuberculosis among them was that they did not eat enough. Well, it is not so over here. Overeating is almost the universal fault, it by overeating one means taking a few ounces at each meal more than is absolutely needful to renew vitality. If the development of tuberculosis in the average English girl depended solely and wholly on her starving herself she would never get tuberculosis.

Public Health

Le Devoir (Ind.): Twenty-five years ago the United States was hardly more advanced in matters of hygiene than we are at present. Thanks to constant and intensive propaganda, in the art of which our neighbours are past masters, they have arrived at astonishing results. The City of New York can show an incredible death rate for such a dense agglomeration of people. It is education in the school, the factory and the home which has accomplished these results. As soon, in fact, as the majority of citizens are convinced of the importance of hygiene, of the elementary truth that health is the first gift of nature and must be protected, public bodies are forced to adapt their budgets in consequence.

Wife (With newspaper) — "Just think of it! A couple got married a few days ago after a courtship which lasted fifty years."
Husband — "I suppose the poor old man was too feeble to hold out any longer."

Wet 2 tablespoons Indian meal with cold milk and add to above, cooking 10 minutes. Remove from fire and cool slightly, then add 1/2 cup each of sugar and molasses, 1 egg, a little butter, pinch of salt, 1 teaspoon each ginger and cinnamon, and bake in a very slow oven three hours.

Sprinkle a little nutmeg over the top (if you like the flavor), cover with a top crust and bake until crust is browned and well done. Economical and easily prepared. Also delicious either warm or cold.

Spanish Soup
Two cups canned tomatoes, three cups Savita broth, two tablespoons butter, half cup chopped sweet peppers, salt. Melt the butter, add the peppers and simmer five minutes. Add the tomatoes and Savita broth and simmer twenty minutes. Strain, season and serve.

Date Muffins
One-third cup butter, 1/4 cup sugar, 1 egg, 3 level teaspoons baking powder, 3/4 cup milk, 2 cups pastry flour or bread flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, scant 1/2 pound dates. Cream butter and sugar, add egg beaten light. Sift together three times the dry ingredients and add to the milk. Beat thoroughly and add the dates cut in pieces. Bake in hot well-buttered muffin pans.

Ottawa—The big Ford tri-motor seaplane, which was recently acquired by the Entomological Branch of the Department of the Interior, will leave Ottawa almost immediately for West Tree, Ont., north of Sudbury, where experimental dusting operations will begin in an effort to control the spread of the spruce budworm, which is ravaging the balsam and pulpwood stands of the district.

Art of the Arab Palace

About the construction of the Arab Palace there is something essentially insubstantial and ethereal. The slender columns, whether single or grouped, seem quite overborne by the apparently enormous weight of masonry which they sustain, and it is not until one realizes how much of this is merely wood that the secret is explained. Then the symbolic origin of the curious style becomes clear. It is all an idealized reminiscence of the nomad life of the desert. The columns are nothing more than tent-poles, the vaulted ceilings are the tents, while the brilliantly-colored walls, with their fantastic adornments, represent the flimsy, filmy draperies, the tapestries and hanging rugs that gave an air of easy luxuriance to the tent interiors.

The decorative work in the Arab palace is of that peculiar intricacy and richness which is popularly associated with the Alhambra. The walls, every inch of them are covered with arabesques of the most amazing splendor, which at first appear to have been traced and sculptured by hand, but are, in fact, worked on plaster of Paris laid in plates upon the smooth surface of the wall. Interwoven with the somewhat artificial geometrical designs and the less-frequent motifs of greater vitality are mottoes in Arabic characters, extolling the greatness of Allah, the exploits of Moslem sovereigns, the beauty of the Alhambra halls and gardens.

All this is so much unlike anything to which the visitor from the West is accustomed that he should not find it difficult to transport himself into medieval times of his own imaginings. He can people the towers and terraces with Moorish knights in luxuriously-appointed armour—courts and halls, now empty and silent, with nobles and fair ladies in robes of brilliant whiteness or many-hued silks—the upper apartments used in strowdwinter (most of which are now modified, neglected or destroyed) with those same courtiers and ladies, adorned profusely with gold and precious stones, reclining on luxurious divans, in halls lit with hanging lamps of brass or gold, heated with braziers of exquisite design, and perfumed by eastern gums burning in censurers, the niches meant for which still remain. This imaginative transformation of the upper apartments is the most necessary of all for us to make, for only so can we enter into the life of the Alhambra during those brief Spanish winters, when there was less of western warfare and more of eastern delight. Oriental carpets of a luxury undreamed of were brought from Persia and Damascus to cover the marble floors, and though the visitor to-day sees only the bareness proper to . . . summer, we may be sure that the short days in those halls of splendor were no less idyllic than long.

Debunking Debunkers

New York Sun: There are two kinds of biography which are equally bad. The one errs on the side of adulation; the other on that of refutation. The one makes imitation angels of all its subjects; the other makes of them limbs of Satan. Debunkers are entitled at least to this much credit: they have made sticky sentimentally unfastidious in biographical writing. But the debunkers themselves need debunking when they permit their method to degenerate into slander for profit.

The Cost of Crashing

New York Herald-Tribune: There is discussion among jurists as to whether airplanes should be liable only for damages they inflict through negligence or absolutely liable, and a strong argument for the latter view is the extreme difficulty of proving that the pilot (who is likely to be dead) was negligent. The Connecticut law makes the plane liable only when there has been negligence, but the law, already adopted in twelve States, which has been drafted by the Committee on Uniform State Laws makes it absolutely liable.

A very fine time was spent last Wednesday afternoon at the Jacques re-union just south of here. This affair was pulled off last year and was so successful that it was repeated with equal success.

It is a good idea to commemorate the memory of those stalwarts who made this country what it is today. Were it possible for some of those who passed years ago to return to this earth, wouldn't they get a shock. Contrast the decent respectable moral lives they lived with the present fiasco. From the way the women of today behave we have come to the conclusion that fear of the law, not the in-laws, which should characterize womanhood, prevents them from making a greater exhibition of themselves. Really, the way they dress is shameful, disgusting.

The pioneer mother worked, slaved, endured privations, were poor, but they were becomingly attired. What do the men of today know about hard work as compared to those who lived 50 or 60 years ago. The land was cleared for them, they have all kinds of labor-saving machines, yet they know nothing of the happiness of the pioneers who at times had not enough money to pay for a stamp.

There are least 50 per cent. of the farmers in every Tp. in Ontario ready to sell out. Instead of burning, gas and oil and neglecting their farms, were they to get down to business and tend their grandfathers—yes, there would be none of this. All honor to our forefathers. More of those who are here should endeavor to perpetuate their memory.

Belmore and McIntosh have got off to a good start with their new minister. We heard him at Belmore on Sunday night and liked his method and matter too. It was a trying day for a young man, inducted last Friday, and conducting re-opening services at Belmore morning and evening. We must congratulate the Belmore people on the transformation wrought within their church. It is now as neat and imposing a little country church as there is in these parts. We could see the people were delighted with their minister, Mr. Turnbull, and well they may be. He has got among a people who will be good to him and appreciate his every
