Love Flying.

Love that so rarely flutters
In my heart's budget
Can your slender fingers
Lead the lockwood way?
Other days and seasons
Can you bring to me?
T'pote of all your treasures
Can you make me see
Those forgotten flowers
That were once so dear?
In your walled bowers,
Love do I not know
Those old songs, that laughter,
Sweet with hope and love?
Ah, but never come aloft!
Love do I not know
All the way your fingers
Point me out? So say,
Love that so rarely flutters
In my heart's budget.

IN THE FOG.

BY RICHARD HARDING DAVIS.

THE Grill is the club most difficult of access in the world. To be placed on its rolls distinguishes the new member as greatly as though he had received a vacant Garter or had been caricatured in 'Vanity Fair.' Men who belong to the Grill Club never mention that fact. If you were to ask one of them which club he frequents, he will name all save that particular one. He is afraid if he told you he belonged to the Grill, that it would sound like boasting.

The Grill Club dates back to the days when Shakespeare's Theatre stood on the present site of the 'Times' office. It has a golden Grill which Charles the Second presented to the Club, and the original manuscript of 'Tom and Jerry in London,' which was bequeathed to it by Pierce Egan himself. The members, when they write letters to the Club, still use sand to blot the ink.

The Grill enjoys the distinction of having blackballed, without political prejudice, a Prime Minister of each party. At the same sitting at which one of these fell, it elected, on account of his brioque and his bulls, Quiller, Q. C., who was then a penniless barrister.

When Paul Preval, the French artist who came to London by Royal command to paint a portrait of the Prince of Wales, was made an honorary member—only foreigners may be honorary members—he said, as he signed his first wine card, 'I would rather see my name on that, than as a picture in the Louvre.'

At which Quiller remarked, 'That is a devil of a compliment, because the only men who can read their names in the Louvre to-day have been dead years.'

On the night after the great fog of 1897 there were five members in the Grill, four of them busy with supper and one reading in front of the fireplace. There is only one room to the Grill, and one long table. At the far end of the room the grill glows red, and when the fat falls, blazes into flame, and at the other there is a broad bow window of diamond panes, which looks down upon the street.

The four men at the table were strangers to each other, but as they picked at the grilled bones, and sipped their Scotch and soda, they conversed with each other, and a visitor to the Grill, which does not tolerate visitors, would have counted them friends of long acquaintance, certainly not as Englishmen who had met for the first time, and without the etiquette and traditions of the Grill, that whoever enters it must sup with whomever he finds there. It is to enforce this rule that there is but one long table, and whether there are twenty men at it or two, the waiters, supporting the rule, will place them side by side.

Could the Earth Collide with a Comet?

(Scientific American, March.)

On May 13, next, the earth will be plunged into the tail of Halley's comet, and the head of that body will be but 15,000,000 miles away. It is but natural that a thinking man should ask: Is there a possibility that the earth may encounter a comet and thus come to a frightful end?

Curiously enough, it was Halley himself who first pointed out the possibility. Halley's comet, which is the nucleus of a comet, was so named at Cambridge, was so named at a 'chariot of fire' which flared up in his day, that Halley was prompted to look closely into the movements. The comet, when passing through the earth's path within a semi-diameter of the earth. Naturally, Halley wondered what would have happened had the earth and the comet been actually so close together in their respective orbits. Assuming the comet's mass to have been comparable with that of the earth (an assumption which we now know to have been utterly beyond reason) he concluded that their mutual gravitation would have caused a change in the position of the earth or its orbit, and consequently in the length of a year. This train of thought led him to consider what the result of an actual collision would have been, and he concludes that 'if so large a body with so rapid a motion were to strike the earth—a thing by no means impossible—the shock might reduce this beautiful world to irregular chaos.'

Hence Halley not only dispelled the superstition and the terrors which once followed in a comet's wake, but also pointed out a possibility which the superstitious Dark Ages had ever dreamed of. It seemed to Halley not improbable that the earth had at some remote period been struck by a comet, which, coming upon it obliquely had changed the position of the north pole, the north pole having originally, he thought, been at a point not far from Hudson's Bay. The more recent investigations of Kelvin and Sir George Darwin completely upset any such theory.

Since Halley's time the chances of a collision between the earth and a comet has engaged the attention of Laplace, for example, pointed out the possibility of a collision with the earth so vividly that he started his day and generation. He drew a picture of a comet whose mass was such that a tidal wave some 13,000 or 14,000 feet high inundated the world, with the results that only the highest peaks of the Himalayas and the Alps protruded. Laplace created a panic by a similar consideration of the subject in a paper, which was intended for presentation before the Academy of Sciences, but which was not read. Such was the popular excitement that he felt himself constrained to allay the public fears as well as he could in a soothing article published in the Gazette de France. The masses assumed by both Laplace and La Lande are so preposterous that their theories are no longer seriously considered by any sane astronomer.

The World's Coldest City.

The coldest inhabited place in the world is undoubtedly Verkhoyansk, in northwestern Siberia, with a mean annual temperature of less than three degrees above zero. Fahrenheit, and a winter minimum of 85 below.

Verkhoyansk is in north latitude 67 degrees, on the Arctic plain, scarcely more than 150 feet above the level of the sea. Probably there would be no snow there if it were not necessary to have an administrative center for a region where many thrifty Yakuts, the untiring Jews of Siberia, carry on their operations.

All its inhabitants, save a few officials and other Russians, are Yakuts. This does not prevent its being a place of some importance, for the Yakuts are the most progressive people in northern Siberia, excelling the Russians themselves in enterprise and adaptability to Siberian conditions of existence.

The average temperature of the winter in Verkhoyansk is 55 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit. The rivers freeze to the bottom, and the small streams have been known to snap and split from the force of the frost.

Yet, with all this, Verkhoyansk is, it is claimed, not a disagreeable place of residence, and is preferred by the Russian officials to many more southern and warmer posts. Its seasons, there is winter is always clear, and for the little time that the sun is above the horizon its beams are not obscured by drifting snowstorms, make life a burden to the inhabitants.

After the age of 50 people find that their strength is to some extent used to be, and they frequently suffer from sudden exhaustion, and weak heart action. To all such we recommend the invigorating tonic Ferrovin, composed of fresh beet, Citrate of Iron and pure Old Spanish Sherry Wine. Nothing could be more beneficial in such cases. $1.00 a bottle.

Backache Suffering

A wonderful medicine is this man's description of DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Mr. Fred Gunmer, Littleton, Ont., writes: 'I can honestly say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a wonderful medicine. For six weeks last fall I could scarcely walk around for pain in the back and legs, and was almost completely unfit for work. Though I tried several medicines I got no better. I saw Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills advertised and bought five boxes. After I had used three boxes, I was greatly improved and by the time I had them all taken felt as well as ever did. I would advise anyone suffering from kidney disease to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They have also cured Dr. Chase's Liment and Ferrovin for lead colic and sore throat and would not be without these medicines for anything.'

Its remarkable success and enormous sale are the result of this method of doing business, coupled with the all-important fact that Red Rose Tea has always been good tea.

Estabrooks' Red Rose Coffee will have the benefit of the same business methods. Equal skill will be employed in its selection and preparation, and equal determination to maintain its superior quality.

Estabrooks' Red Rose Coffee and Red Rose Tea will form a very strong partnership, each resting on its own quality, which, in Red Rose Tea, has been so aptly described as "good."

A good combination is Estabrooks' Coffee for breakfast and Red Rose Tea for other meals.

From this it may well be inferred that a collision was likely to take place between the earth and a comet. More recently the entire problem has been considered by Prof. W. H. Pickering of Harvard. By a collision he understands, first, that any part of the earth strikes any part of the comet; second that any part of the earth strikes the most condensed point in the head (the core) as distinguished from the larger nucleus. What the average size of the visible comet's head may be we have no means of knowing. Young estimates that for a telescopic comet it average from 49,000 to 100,000 miles in diameter. The head of the great comet of 1811 was 1,200,000 miles; that of Home's comet in 1892, 700,000, and that of naked-eye comets generally over 100,000 miles. In the last half of the last century 121 comets, including returns, penetrated the sphere of the earth's orbit. From this Prof. Pickering infers that we should expect to be struck by the core of the visible comet once in about 100,000 years, and by some portions of the head once in 4,000,000 years. Since comets' orbits are more thickly distributed near the ecliptic than in other regions of the sphere, the collisions would occur rather more frequently than this, but hardly as once in 2,000,000 years, and since it has been estimated that animal life has existed upon the earth for about 100,000,000 years, a considerable number of collisions, perhaps as many as fifty, must have taken place during that interval. In Prof. Pickering's opinion, evidently without producing any very serious results.

The old notions of the tidal effects of comets were based upon an erroneous conception of cometary masses. It seems astonishing that a man of Laplace's wonderful mathematical powers should not have concluded that a body like a comet, which can sweep through the entire solar system without deranging a single one of its members, must have a mass so small that it cannot appreciably affect the waters of the earth. As it is, comets are more likely to be captured by planets (witness the comet families of Jupiter and Saturn) than to derange a member of the solar system or to produce tidal effects.

The plunging of the earth in the tail of Halley's comet naturally causes many to wonder what will be the effect upon the inhabitants of the earth. Similar passage occurred in 1810 and 1861, but no one was the wiser until long after. Some astronomers claimed to have noticed unusual glazes and meteoric displays at this time, but whether these were really associated with the comet or not cannot definitely be stated. At all events, it may be safely held that on May 13, next, none of us will be aware of the fact that we are literally breathing the tail of Halley's comet.

THE ACADIAN

WOLFVILLE, N. S., APRIL 8, 1910.

Board of Trade.

The meeting of the Board of Trade on Monday evening was pretty well attended, although many of those present came in late and so delayed the business.

There are many other matters which should have the attention of the Board at the present time, and we hope to see such an interest displayed on the part of citizens generally as will ensure that there will be something doing during the coming summer.

Our University.

Spring is the season for improvements. New plans are made; larger undertakings are arranged for. The farmer plans for enlarging his fields, increasing their productivity and thus enhancing the value of his farm.

With this tendency in mind our thoughts have turned to the conditions at our university. Friends of Acadia must be encouraged by the advance that has been made during recent years.

There is no reason to fear, however, that the friends of the college will be satisfied with the progress attained or the victories achieved.

To-day the progressive college is adapting itself to modern life and is offering an almost bewildering variety of courses to its students.

In view of the present day demands for scientific and technical education we believe that the claims of ninety five per cent. of the living population should override the claims of tradition.

Biological is another demand in educational circles, and we are hoping to see a chair at Acadia devoted to this important subject.

One of the ambitions of the friends of the college has ever been to be able to provide an efficient and strong theological department.

Then, having in mind the proper, safe and scientific culture of the physical side of life, it would apparently be a good and popular innovation at Acadia to have an expert athletic instructor to have charge of gymnastics both on the campus and in the gymnasium.

These additions, with the absolutely necessary strengthening of some other departments, appear to us the most pressing need of Acadia. If we are correct all that is needed is the proper and plain explanation to the 'institutions' constituency, and the necessary funds will be forthcoming.

Acadia is bound to expand. Her situation, her inspiration and her history are unequalled anywhere in Canada, and we unhesitatingly predict for her a great future.

The Reviewer.

Once in a while an event occurs which is credited with contributing to the 'hilarity of nations.' The chief event of this sort within our observation occurred in the city of Rome not long since.

Ex-President Fairbanks, making a tour of the world, arrived in the 'Eternal City' on the banks of the Tiber. Arrangements were made for him to pay his respects to Humbert, king of Italy, on a particular Saturday in the month of February.

The ground on which this somewhat high-handed demand was made, was that the Methodist Church of Rome had made itself obnoxious to the hierarchy because of its proselytizing Catholics to its fold.

A fortnight before the event at Rome, there was celebrated in one of our American cities the Golden Jubilee, or the fiftieth anniversary, of the founding of the Paulist Fathers, an order which has come to rank along with the Franciscans of the thirteenth century and the Jesuits of the sixteenth.

Things muddled as fast as he can. Bishop Greer, of New York, commenting on Col. Roosevelt's experience with the Vatican, said that in his opinion the American people would regard it as a national affront.

THE LAST RESORT

When all else failed, the Doctors said, "try Fruit-a-tives"

And "Fruit-a-tives" cured Mrs. Cadieux

PLANTAGENET, ONT., JANUARY 31ST, 1910. "About March 1st 1900, I was taken deathly sick with Stomach Trouble, Backache and General Breakdown. I failed from 125 pounds down to 80 pounds, was confined to bed for eight weeks, and was unable to eat or keep anything on my stomach, vomiting nearly all the time.

Mrs. LAURENT CADIEUX

My husband bought "Fruit-a-tives" from Mr. Arthur Solman, merchant of Plantagenet, and started taking them at once, and inside of ten days, I was able to leave my bed. My stomach got strong and I could eat and retain my food. I gained rapidly and soon had my usual good health back again, and today I weigh as much as ever, 125 pounds.

THE DOCTORS ARE RECOMMENDING "Fruit-a-tives". They realize now that these wonderful fruit juice tablets will positively cure all Stomach Troubles, Indigestion and Dyspepsia—and they are using "Fruit-a-tives" in their practice.

New people realize the vital importance of keeping their blood pure. Impure blood is the chief cause of Stomach Trouble, because it is from the blood that the digestive juices are formed. These impurities may come from a congested liver, from Constipation, from weak kidneys, from an inactive skin, or from all four.

Town Council.

The regular monthly meeting of the Council was held on Wednesday evening. In the absence of Mayor Harvey, Councillor Chambers took the chair. Councillor Burgess was also absent.

A communication was read from the Acadia Loan Corporation inviting investment of town's sinking funds in their 4 1/2 per cent. bonds.

A notice from the Montreal Liquidation Co., asking to be assessed, was read and referred to the assessors.

A communication from the W. C. T. U. of the town, asking the Council to use their best endeavors to secure toilet accommodations at the railway station, was discussed, and the clerk was instructed to reply that under existing conditions there was no immediate prospect of securing such accommodations.

Worst Case of Eczema. Cure only comes when doctors give up and DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT was used.

Mrs. Wm. Miller, 82 Catherine, writes: "My daughter Mary, when six months old, contracted Eczema, and for three years the disease baffled all treatment. Her case was one of the worst I have ever seen."

Could they repeat this cantata it would doubtless be appreciated by the public if not we must await next Easter tide with much desire and rest expectations.

A lengthy letter from Mr. Burgess, Bishop in reply to Rev. A. Chipman is unavoidably crowded out this week because of lack of space. It will appear next week if possible, when this controversy will close.

In a recent book by Joseph McCabe "The Decay of the Church of Rome" it is stated, "The 10,000,000 or so of Catholics of the United States do not represent a miraculous addition to the Church represented at the Vatican. They come from Ireland, Austria, Italy, Germany, France and Mexico."

These additions, with the absolutely necessary strengthening of some other departments, appear to us the most pressing need of Acadia. If we are correct all that is needed is the proper and plain explanation to the 'institutions' constituency, and the necessary funds will be forthcoming.

Local Happenings.

The annual reception by the faculty and students of Acadia Seminary is to be given on Saturday evening of this week.

The Art Embroidery Club will meet next Tuesday evening, at the home of Mrs. (Rev.) W. L. Archibald, Westwood avenue.

We begin this week the publication of a new serial story, which will be found interesting and well worthy the attention of readers of THE ACADIAN.

A piano for sale or to rent. Apply to Miss Nellie Heckman.

Mr. Charles B. Godfrey is making some very pronounced improvements in the property which he recently purchased on Acadia street, where he now resides. The front has been newly graded and terraced, and the result is a vastly improved appearance.

Mr. J. W. Vaughn has purchased from Mr. O. D. Harris the lot on the south side of Summer street, and is already making some improvements thereon. This is a very desirable property, and in the hands of the new owner will no doubt prove to be a profitable investment.

At a reception in College Hall, given by the Propylaeum society of Acadia to their friends and the faculty, a very amusing play, 'The Clancy Kids,' was given with good effect. The characters were well portrayed and the whole affair was a credit to the college young women.

The communion at the Lord's Supper will be celebrated in St. Andrew's church next Sunday at the morning service, when Rev. Mr. Power, of Halifax, will occupy the pulpit. This evening a preparatory service will be held at 7:30 o'clock, to be conducted by Rev. Mr. Henry, of Canard.

Mr. F. C. Rand, the secretary of the Canadian Club of Kentville, has our thanks for tickets for lectures to be delivered before the club during the present year. We regret exceedingly that we were prevented from attending the lecture last evening given by Lieutenant Governor Fraser, but hope to be able to participate in other similar treats in the future.

On Friday night of last week an unsuccessful attempt was made to burglarize the D. A. R. station at Port Williams. Next morning when Station Master Pearson entered he found a piece of partly burned fuse still hanging from the safe and a burned match on the floor. The would be burglar was evidently frightened off, and no damage was done. The matter is being investigated this week.

The annual thank offering meeting of the Senior Mission Band 08th. Andrew's church was held on Wednesday evening. The public were invited but owing probably to insufficient advertising the attendance was not large. Miss Isabella Tweedell, the president, was in the chair, and after singing and scripture reading called upon the secretary, Mr. Sutherland, who gave a most interesting report of the year's work. An excellent program was then given, which included: An organ voluntary, by Harlan Davison; an original paper on 'The Godeaux,' by Miss Rhea Tweedell; instrumental duet (violin and mandolin) by Miss Annie Stewart; Grand Fro and Miss Theodora; Halifax readings by Miss Rhea Tweedell; vocal duet by Miss Chambers and Miss Tweedell; mandolin solo by Miss Theodora. The whole entertainment was most enjoyable. The offering amounted to about $12.00 which will be devoted to the work of the Band. For five years past the Band has contributed in addition to other schemes, $50 per year for mission work in Korea.

Mr. Manning K. Hill, of Port Williams, in a recent letter to Principal Cumming, states that, while pruning his orchard on March 29th, he found a nest of the Brown Tailed Moth. There must be other nests in Kings county and the Department of Agriculture is very anxious that nests found be reported to them. It is to be hoped that every owner of trees in Kings county, as well as other countries in Nova Scotia, will make a complete examination of their orchards, with a view to ascertaining whether the Brown Tailed Moth are present or not. The nests will usually be found this time of year near the end of the newer growth of branches. There will be found in the nests small caterpillars, which are ready to eat as vegetation begins to emerge from these nests and quickly consume the foliage of the trees.

The strong south wind of yesterday pretty effectively cleared the waste paper out of the yards on the south side of Main street, and untidy streets were the result. Some measure should be taken by the authorities to prevent a continuance of the evil. It is useless to attempt to keep our streets neat and attractive so long as they are to become the abiding place of store sweepings, waste paper, etc.

Notice to Orchardists. I have been induced by some of the best orchardists to put up a plan for making Concentrated Lime-Sulphur Spray. I would therefore say, that I will be prepared to fill orders at short notice. The advantage of this wash over the imported article is, that it will be freshly made, full strength and will cost you less money. Those who intend using Lime Sulphur wash for spraying should send in their orders at once. This is not a fake like American Tanglefoot, but a genuine article. Write or telephone for price and full particulars.

Miss Maude Eastwood, who has been filling a position as nurse in a Montreal hospital, returned home last week, and will probably remain for the summer. Mr. David Thompson, who has been spending the winter with his family here, returned to Boston on Saturday last. A Pioneer. In 1760, Stephen Harrington, a native of Newport, Rhode Island, then a small town, came with a widowed mother to Cornwallis, and became one of the pioneer original grantees, and land owners. His name appears as a witness to the first marriage in the township. He owned a large estate at what is now called Hilltop, which has been divided and subdivided among his descendants down to the fourth generation. On February 24th the last acre of that vast estate passed into the hands of strangers, the title being given by a daughter of his son Stephen to Charles E. Cogswell. So are the landmarks disappearing.—Register.

Statistics, when gathered, will show that each plant grows by these means of the towns and cities in the back-yard costs him in labor, worry and some other things, about $1.87. Lettuce, beets and radish cost him over ten cents a bunch to grow. A bed of onions, when carefully supervised, will produce about ten cents' worth of proper fruitage. Let any one try musk melons and see how much over fifteen cents he can make out of a bed of them. Altogether the kitchen-garden produces vegetables which are not nearly so good as he can buy in the open market and shops, and cost fully twice as much. As an economic proposition the garden of the man in the town is a joke.

But, it is said by the superstitious, that a course in spading, hoeing, raking and weeding does a man good—cleans out his digestive system and makes his liver work overtime. This is ridiculous. A man who struggles all day in business, or in grinding out sermons, is a good deal more tired in the evening, and again at daybreak, with garden tools. What he wants is a newspaper, a rocking-chair and a pipe. If he has no pipe, or no pipe, let him do the work, while the man give supervision. Work of all kind is a sort of a nuisance and annoyance, but manual labor in a garden—for fun—is a premonitory symptom of falling intelligence. A town man's back-yard or back garden should be sodded over, because grass is easy to grow and always looks well.

The Gadfly. People have delusions and these delusions, together with superstition, are inclined to remain with us. Some two hundred years ago people believed in witches and their craft, not because they could prove their existence or that certain well defined females rode upon brooms in the air but because generations of their ancestors had believed in it. It was a superstition all the same, yet they clung to it and burned alleged witches with great enthusiasm. Similar delusions cling about the activities of gardening at this season of the year. Our ancestors thought that men living in cities and towns should occupy their leisure, both early in the morning and late at night, in training vines, levishing toil and affection upon such, and picking green worms from garden plants, and otherwise at early seasons working very hard—for recreation.

It was argued, and is, that making a good big lot blossom as the rose is wholesome exercise for those who follow a sedentary calling. Gardening, we superstitiously believe, is the most temperative man's recreation.' Isaac Walton, some two hundred and fifty years ago, thought fishing was.

It is time that the horticultural dementia was checked. Too many perfectly good men are wearing out their souls in an endeavor to make sweet peas grow in poor, old, clay loam. Too many business men and professional men, including clergymen, are laboring every morning and evening with all the earnestness of a small boy playing marbles. Peripatetic trickles from too many brows. Too many backs are aching; too many hands are being blistered—and to what end.

Statistics, when gathered, will show that each plant grows by these means of the towns and cities in the back-yard costs him in labor, worry and some other things, about $1.87. Lettuce, beets and radish cost him over ten cents a bunch to grow. A bed of onions, when carefully supervised, will produce about ten cents' worth of proper fruitage. As an economic proposition the garden of the man in the town is a joke.

But, it is said by the superstitious, that a course in spading, hoeing, raking and weeding does a man good—cleans out his digestive system and makes his liver work overtime. This is ridiculous. A man who struggles all day in business, or in grinding out sermons, is a good deal more tired in the evening, and again at daybreak, with garden tools. What he wants is a newspaper, a rocking-chair and a pipe. If he has no pipe, or no pipe, let him do the work, while the man give supervision. Work of all kind is a sort of a nuisance and annoyance, but manual labor in a garden—for fun—is a premonitory symptom of falling intelligence. A town man's back-yard or back garden should be sodded over, because grass is easy to grow and always looks well.

Mr. Manning K. Hill, of Port Williams, in a recent letter to Principal Cumming, states that, while pruning his orchard on March 29th, he found a nest of the Brown Tailed Moth. There must be other nests in Kings county and the Department of Agriculture is very anxious that nests found be reported to them. It is to be hoped that every owner of trees in Kings county, as well as other countries in Nova Scotia, will make a complete examination of their orchards, with a view to ascertaining whether the Brown Tailed Moth are present or not. The nests will usually be found this time of year near the end of the newer growth of branches. There will be found in the nests small caterpillars, which are ready to eat as vegetation begins to emerge from these nests and quickly consume the foliage of the trees.

The strong south wind of yesterday pretty effectively cleared the waste paper out of the yards on the south side of Main street, and untidy streets were the result. Some measure should be taken by the authorities to prevent a continuance of the evil. It is useless to attempt to keep our streets neat and attractive so long as they are to become the abiding place of store sweepings, waste paper, etc.

Notice to Orchardists. I have been induced by some of the best orchardists to put up a plan for making Concentrated Lime-Sulphur Spray. I would therefore say, that I will be prepared to fill orders at short notice. The advantage of this wash over the imported article is, that it will be freshly made, full strength and will cost you less money. Those who intend using Lime Sulphur wash for spraying should send in their orders at once. This is not a fake like American Tanglefoot, but a genuine article. Write or telephone for price and full particulars.

A Pioneer. In 1760, Stephen Harrington, a native of Newport, Rhode Island, then a small town, came with a widowed mother to Cornwallis, and became one of the pioneer original grantees, and land owners. His name appears as a witness to the first marriage in the township. He owned a large estate at what is now called Hilltop, which has been divided and subdivided among his descendants down to the fourth generation. On February 24th the last acre of that vast estate passed into the hands of strangers, the title being given by a daughter of his son Stephen to Charles E. Cogswell. So are the landmarks disappearing.—Register.

Statistics, when gathered, will show that each plant grows by these means of the towns and cities in the back-yard costs him in labor, worry and some other things, about $1.87. Lettuce, beets and radish cost him over ten cents a bunch to grow. A bed of onions, when carefully supervised, will produce about ten cents' worth of proper fruitage. Let any one try musk melons and see how much over fifteen cents he can make out of a bed of them. Altogether the kitchen-garden produces vegetables which are not nearly so good as he can buy in the open market and shops, and cost fully twice as much. As an economic proposition the garden of the man in the town is a joke.
