The Cake that's worth the Candles

Take off the candles. Cut into generous pieces. Now the feast's begun!

The delicate texture, the honey-gold color, the rare flavor—all join to make the finest treat that ever took the form of cake.

They won't let you wait 'til another birthday to make another cake like this.

Rainbow Flour certainly does help in cake-making. Yet that's not surprising when you consider that it is the quality leader among flours. Only the rarest nutriment of the high-grade Manitoba Spring Wheat is eligible for Rainbow Flour.

Every cake will be worth a celebration when you begin the use of Rainbow Flour. Just try some.

In using Rainbow Flour for pastry, more water (added slowly) is required and less flour.

ALL FOR LOVE.

CHAPTER XIV.

AN UNEXPECTED TRAVELING COMPANION.

It had been Beth's intention to return to New Hampshire the day after the party. She thought she had made this plain to Muriel, so that she would feel free to invite Philip as soon as she chose. But Teddy, having wormed a half promise from his friend, that if he found York Harbor attractive, he would remain the week out, suggested to his wife that Miss Baldwin be also invited for a visit, and Beth pressed to prolong her stay, to help entertain and make things lively for her.

When this plan was unfolded to Beth the next morning after the ball, the keen-witted girl saw through the whole scheme at once. She was at first half inclined to be angry, while at the same time she was secretly amused. But, as she had already weathered the ordeal of meeting Philip rather creditably to herself, she thought, she resolved to play the game out, especially as she could not refuse to remain, notwithstanding her threat to Muriel, without seeming to ly urged her to come for the party.

Evidently Philip had found the place attractive, even though he had seen little or nothing of it; for when he presented himself at the Armstrongs' the next morning, he said not a word about returning to Boston, and readily concurred in various plans suggested by Ted for the remainder of the week. Philip secretly vowed that he would raze the barrier between himself and Beth before the expiration of that time, but he reckoned without his host, for Beth had been urged to tarry and assist in entertaining her friend; hence in the most apparently disinterested way, she threw her whole heart into the work of making things lively for her and others.

She was the life, the mainspring of everything. She treated Philip with charming frankness and friendliness, exactly as she treated everyone else, but she would not allow him or any one to monopolize her. She persistently avoided a tete-a-tete with any admirer to the exclusion of another; her bearing being that of one who had been delegated as assistant hostess whose duty as well as pleasure it was to fulfill her obligations to the letter. Hence Philip could never find an opportunity to see her alone, or talk with her except in the presence of others, and he chafed continually, in view of his helplessness to make any headway with her.

The Armstrongs were at their wits' end, in view of this failure of their conspiracy, even though they were amused as well as irritated by Beth's cleverness. They had never seen her so brilliant nor so tantalizingly illusive. Her resources for pleasure and entertainment seemed inexhaustible, and thus occupied, she gave them no chance to expostulate or question her attitude toward Philip. Both knew, in their hearts, that the girl belonged irrevocably to Philip; that she had loved him alone from her cradle up, and that there was an element of unswerving loyalty in her nature that would admit of no vacillation; hence no one else could ever win her.

They could also perceive that Philip had surrendered himself completely to her charms, and, as far as he was concerned every obstacle to their long-proposed union and to the consummation of Miss Crawford's hopes, together with the salvation of her fortune, could easily be overcome. But they found themselves helpless to change anything. Beth cleverly foiled them at every point up to the morning of her departure with Miss Baldwin, when, apparently, they found themselves no nearer the goal of their hopes than they had been at the beginning of her visit.

Philip went on the same train with them to Boston, where Mr. Russell was to meet Beth at the North Station for a little interview before she went on to the farm in New Hampshire.

It was a happy meeting, for Mr. Russell looked and appeared like a new man. He was full of courage, enthusiasm, and vigor, and Beth was almost overcome with joy as he clasped her to him in greeting.

"Little girl, it is good to see you again," he said in his cheery tones. "I hope you have all had a fine time down at York Harbor," he added, with a sly glance at Philip.

Beth caught the look and regained her equilibrium instantly.

"Yes, indeed we have. Muriel had a very nice house-party, and has done everything to make it pleasant for us all," she returned impersonally.

"Hum!" said her father, regarding her thoughtfully for a moment, then added: "Well, I suppose you will stay with Prue for the rest of the summer, and in the fall we will take a nice apartment here in town for the winter. I wish we could go back to the old home in Chestnut Hill, dearie, but we'll try to fix things better for you by and by," he concluded, repressing a sigh of regret, for the old place was to be sold at auction the coming week.

"The apartment will be all right, daddy dear," Beth responded, with a brave smile, even though she also longed for the old home. "I can be just as happy there, with you well and strong again; and you are looking just fine. That is joy enough for me."

"I feel fine, dearie, and we must not forget that we owe it all to Philip. I should never have got my courage back if he had not given me this lift."

Beth's eyes suddenly drooped. "I know," she said softly. "It was splendid of him, and I am very grateful to him." Then she changed the subject, and they chatted until Philip, who had attended Miss Baldwin to her automobile, returned to take leave of Beth.

"Papa," she was saying as he rejoined them, "you will run up to the farm to see us, now and then, will you not? I can't do without you very long at a time."

"Yes, for over Sunday every other week, perhaps. I reckon I'd better keep an eye on you, too. I believe you've been getting a trifle thin, of late," Mr. Russell responded, as he playfully pinched one of her cheeks. "No, indeed, papa," she quickly returned, but flushing consciously as she caught Philip's grave look. "I am perfectly well, and you do not need to have an anxious thought about me."

"All right, I'll not worry, and you may tell Prudence I'll go up next week. And now"—glancing at the clock as he arose—"you'll have just about time to get your train comfortably."

Beth shook hands with Philip with the same appearance of friendliness she had manifested ever since their first meeting, yet he was still conscious of a thus-far-and-no-farther attitude that seemed like a wall of adamant between them.

He stood looking after her for a moment with a thoughtful, despondent air; then with a resolute uplifting of his head walked to the office and purchased a ticket for New Hampshire. He was standing on the platform of the last car when Mr. Russell came into sight after having settled Beth comfortably for her trip.

"Mr. Russell, I'm going up for over Sunday," he called out to him as the train began to move. "I want to know how my little friends are getting on, and—I'll see Lady Beth laterly up."

Unable to Work for 14 Months

Mr. Henry Black.

What a helpless mass of flesh and bone the human body is, once the nerves become exhausted. Extreme weakness comes over you, and you lose control of the limbs. The next step is paralysis.

You will be fortunate if, like Mr. Black, you get the building-up process in action before it is forever too late. By forming new, rich blood Dr. Chase's Nerve Food carries new vigor and energy to every organ and every member of the human body.

Mr. Henry Black, 91 St. Catherine street east, Montreal, Que., writes:—"The wonderful results I obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food constrain me to write this letter in order that others who suffer from nervous exhaustion and weakness may use this medicine with equally satisfactory results. As the result of overwork I became completely exhausted, and was unable to work for fourteen months. As I am the father of a family, these were sad days for me, but after I had used six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I had improved so greatly that I continued the treatment until I was completely restored to health and strength. I now work twelve to fifteen hours a day, and keep in excellent health."

Mr. Russell smiled wisely back at him.

"All right, my boy, and good luck attend you," he heartily replied, as he waved him a good-bye.

About fifteen minutes later as Beth was looking thoughtfully and rather dejectedly out of her window, some one slipped into the seat beside her. Turning with surprise, for she had expected to have the section to herself, she was amazed to find the object of her gloomy reflections smiling serenely down upon her.

"Why! what does this mean. How came you to be here?" she questioned with fluctuating color.

"Well, at the last moment I thought I should like to go and see for myself how Nathan and Ziebe are prospering, and besides"—holding her eyes with an earnest look—"it occurred to me that the long ride before you might become rather irksome without companionship. Does that sound very presumptuous. My Lady Beth?" he smilingly concluded.

She was on guard instantly.

"That was certainly a kind thought, Philip," she said, smiling frankly back at him, "and I am sure your young proteges, as well as Aunt Prue, will be very glad to see you. I can hardly wait myself to see them, especially little Ziebe. Your description of her, and papa's, have attracted me strongly to the child."

She kept this ball rolling for some time. Then she talked at some length of Nathan, and of Philip's plans for him; afterward of their recent visit and various incidents connected with it; of Teddy and Muriel, and their delightful hospitality; of little Philip and his precocious ways; of Agnes Baldwin, Paul Lambert, and various others comprising their recent house-party. She then began to ply him with questions about Japan and his travels through Europe. She kept him very, very busy. She was charmingly entertaining, brilliant, and witty, and wise by turns, and Philip marveled at her versatility.

But with it all, she still kept him at a distance—he could not get one whit nearer to her. What was he going to do to overcome this decidedly uncomfortable state of affairs? Was it a hopeless task? Had she become so hardened against, so utterly indifferent to him, that he should never be able to restore her old-time confidence in, and love for, him? Yes, her love—that was what he wanted, that was what he determined now to win. But how to drive the entering wedge, how to batter down that barrier—that adamant wall of impersonality which held him so relentlessly aloof?

Remarkable Escape from Starvation—Cape Horn
Extract of letter from DAVID JAMES MASSA, of the late barque "Cobaco" of Glasgow.
"Having lost our ship on Staten Island, on the 5th of July, and having saved neither effects nor provisions, we were then compelled to travel over the island for ten days, subsisting on nothing but shell-fish and seaweed. On the 19th of July we came across another shipwrecked party of seventeen, the surviving part of the crew of the British ship "Dumfries" of Glasgow, fourteen having perished through exposure. Now, the ship was lost on the 23rd of June, and a lot of the cargo, consisting of Epps's COCOA, was washed ashore out of the wreck. There was nothing saved except the COCOA, and we, numbering twenty-five men, were kept alive on it up to the 25th of August, when we were rescued by the steamer "Mercurio" of Buenos Aires.
"Too much praise cannot be given to this COCOA. We had a good stock of it; these we used in a liquid state for drink, we also baked it on the fire, which kept us alive and warm for 6 weeks on this barren island, situated in a region of perpetual ice and snow."

Wrong Kind of Compliments

BY RUTH CAMERON.

The other afternoon I had a caller who said nice things about my house, my clothes, my flowers, my family, etc. a 1 m o s t every time she opened her pretty mouth.

And such clever and graceful nice things, too! She assured me that my old-fashioned furniture was beautiful in itself but even more beautiful as a background for my personality.

She flattered my taste in clothes by asking if I would mind if she copied a certain point in a gown which I wore. The full force of this compliment is only understood when you are told that she dresses infinitely better than I do and knows it, and knows that I know it.

She declared that I must be prepared to have her intrude frequently because she did so enjoy drinking afternoon-tea from my old blue cups; it added so much to the flavor of the tea, "which is exquisite enough in itself, my dear."

You would surely think I would have been in a glow of pleasure over all these compliments, wouldn't you? And yet, hear my confession—they meant little or nothing to me.

And now, before you condemn my lack of appreciation, let me explain. I did not feel delighted with her gracious speeches because I knew they were actuated not by genuine enthusiasm but yet by a desire to please me, out merely by the wish to say clever and pretty things, that she herself might shine thereby in the eyes of my other guests and myself.

How did I know it? I felt it just as one usually feels insincerity and pretense.

You think I may be doing her an injustice? Possibly. But I doubt it very much.

I think she is a type of a large class; the people who say gracious things and do kind acts not from any desire to give happiness but simply to make themselves appear well.

Surely you have met such people. Surely you have known by the self-satisfied smile with which they launched their pretty compliments that it was of themselves and not of you they were thinking. Surely you have realized the shallowness of their benevolence and seen it emanate beneath some slight inconvenience or annoyance or an insufficient return in gratitude.

Such people sometimes wonder why they are not more popular. They do the world an injustice. They think it unable to sense insincerity and tell a pose from a genuine feeling.

A pretty speech made with a genuine emotion behind it, an made only for the pleasure it will give and not the emotion behind it, and made only joy forever.

But the other kind, and the people who make them, we could well do without.

Ruth Cameron

Household Notes.

Waterspilled on the bed when some one is ill may be quickly dried by filling a hot-water bottle full of boiling water and placing it between the mattress and the bed clothing.

If bread crumbs are kept tightly covered in a fruit jar, they are apt to become strong. Try tying a piece of muslin over the top; this gives ventilation and also keeps out the dust.

When buying a broom test it by pressing the edge against the floor. If the straws remain in a solid mass, the broom is a good one; if they break out and bend down, don't buy it.

The old worn bedspread will make a pretty tablecloth. Trim off the worn portion and dye it a pretty color, then turn a two-inch hem around the edges and finish with a fringe.

A stove that has been splashed with fat can be effectively cleaned by dipping a rag into the soot at the back of the stove and rubbing the greasy spots before applying the blacking.

To clean silk embroidery dip a camel's hair brush in spirits of wine and brush over the embroidery until it is clean. The brush should be frequently rinsed in some spirits of wine and brush over the embroidery until it is clean. The brush should be frequently rinsed in some spirit to remove the dirt.

Hard water stains can be removed from the bathtub by taking equal quantities of soft soap and whiteness. Apply with a soft rag or flannel, wash with warm water and polish with ammonia.

The wooden skewers which come with the joint of meat from the butcher's are most useful. Dampen the point with brick dust; it will reach any corner or crevice and remove stains or dirt.

The water marks on porcelain are successfully removed by saturating a flannel cloth with kerosene and thoroughly rubbing the tub; then wash with boiling water in which a little washing soda has been dissolved.

PRESCRIPTION "A"

CURES INDIGESTION & DYSPEPSIA IN ALL ITS FORMS.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heartiness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing."

I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden.

Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a bottle of Prescription "A". A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at costly kind from them. He then spoke of the differing climates under which those twenty-five years had been spent. He congratulated the ladies on the capital manner in which they had kept all this secret, it being to him a real surprise and totally unexpected. Whatever power he possessed, he said, was at the service of his faithful parishioners, who had always been kind.

An additional gift arrived from a member of the parish and his wife—a handsome silver breakfast tray for which the rector also expressed his thanks.

The Rev. George R. Harrison, as an old St. George's boy, spoke very feelingly of St. George's and its rector, and thanked the congregation for all their kind interest in him those years back.

Refreshments were served by the ladies and a most pleasant evening was concluded in the loyal way and final benediction by the rector.—Halifax Daily Mail.

Fifty Families Homeless.
Cobalt, Ont., June 13.—Nearly fifty settlers in the townships of Tudhope, Traux, Robillard and Daek, in the immediate vicinity of the town of Charlton, lost their homes and all their belongings in a bush fire which cut a swath several miles in width, and swept through the townships Wednesday and Thursday.

The settlers, with their families, fled from their homes, and no fatalities have occurred.

Not since the Porcupine fire of 1911 has such a fire swept the north country. Not only Charlton is affected, but practically every other township in the district where slashings have been made. In addition to the farmers' homes, which were destroyed, many saw mills also have fallen and lumber camps wiped out. Twelve miles in length was covered by the fire in the Long Lake section. The large saw and planing mill of the Northern Ontario Lumber Company, which stood on the shores of Long Lake, was destroyed by fire late Wednesday evening. The Company's loss will amount to about $1,000.

On Their Silver Anniversary, the Rector of St. George's Church and Mrs. Cunningham Received a "Surprise."

A very genuine surprise was extended to the Rev. Rural Dean Cunningham and Mrs. Cunningham last night when they were suddenly called over from the rectory to St. George's Hall. They found the warden, J. G. Mitchell and G. A. Cook, in full charge, with a large gathering of the parishioners. The rector and Mrs. Cunningham were asked to go upon the platform, where Mr. Mitchell made a very happy speech of welcome and congratulation, and then read the accompanying address, after which Mr. Cook, on behalf of the congregation, presented to the rector and Mrs. Cunningham a splendid set of table silver in walnut case. At the same time little Miss Margery Mosher presented Mrs. Cunningham, with a beautiful bouquet of carnations. The address follows:

Halifax, June 9th, 1913.
To Rev. H. W. and Mrs. Cunningham, St. George's Church:
Dear Rector and Mrs. Cunningham,—When two persons have lived together for twenty-five years they should certainly know something about matrimony. It strongly appeals to us that storms and clouds have been few in your horizon, or else the pure wind and bright sunshine have dispersed them. It would be almost impossible to find a happier looking couple than your good selves, whose silver wedding we are here to celebrate. Even time has dealt very gently with you, so much so that we can scarcely realize a quarter of a century has elapsed since you pledged your vows before the altar. May the future be as bright and unclouded as the shining gifts that loving hearts have placed before you. May kind Providence long spare you and your good wife to enjoy the happiness resulting from mutual trust and love, a happiness that fame and wealth can never bestow.

On behalf of the members of your congregation, we remain,
Yours sincerely,
J. G. MITCHELL,
G. A. COOK,
Wardens.

The rector, in replying and expressing his own and Mrs. Cunningham's thanks for the kind thoughtfulness of those who had been so good to them, remarked that half of that twenty-five years had been spent in St. George's parish, where he had done his best to make others happy and as the warden said, they were going to ask the rector to sit in the pew while they did some talking, all he could say was that it was more pleasant to be in the pew than he could have imagined, and he hoped that the things dispensed from the pulpit and surrounding parts of St. George's Church might always be as acceptable to them, the actual pewholders, as it was to him and his to receive gifts of the lovely and

"STRONG AND UNITED."

Those who saw the reference in the Daily News, "to the strong and united following of Sir Edward Morris," can afford to smile broadly at the epithet. It is a case of language being used to disguise thought. But dissection will out, and we had a proof of the disunion which exists in the ranks of the People's Party, in the attack which the Gibbs organ made on Mr. Downey, in its last issue. Further, Mr. Downey, in the letter we published for him on Saturday, intimated that he could make disclosures of matters that were not generally known. Everybody knows that the disclosure did not mean there was perfect amity in the ranks of the People's Party. There would be no need to keep such a matter hidden. It would be shouted from the housetops.

Leaving now the attempted displacing of Mr. Downey as the candidate of the Morris Party, for St. George's, we turn to the representation. We would ask the Morrison organ whether the People's Party is united over the sending of Mr. Morrison to the District of Bonavista, the coming fall? Does the Daily News know anything of either of his colleagues objecting to have him on the Bonavista ticket? Can the Daily News tell the public whether the People's Party is united as to the course to be taken with Mr. Donald Morrison? Further, can the Daily News tell the public whether the People's Party is united on the matter of giving preference to Mr. Donald Morrison?

Then the Daily News might let the public know if Sir Edward Morris and the Hon. John Crosbie see eye to eye on the matter of the recent award of coal contracts for the General Hospital, which was a big thing for those who had it, and is a big thing for those who got it recently. Is it not a fact that during the past winter the General Hospital has been consuming six tons of coal a day, some five times as much coal as was used there during the Bond regime, and that the Hon. John Crosbie has been kicking about his firm losing the contract?

Again, the Daily News might let the people know if the members of the People's Party are perfectly united as to the leadership of the Trinity team. Is there not a movement on foot to get rid of the Hon. Robert Watson, by giving him a job, supposed to be the Cashiership of the Savings Bank, in order that Mr. Squires may be afforded a chance to lead the team, and is not the latter insisting on promotion to the portfolio of the Justice Office? Is not Mr. Piccott kicking for a seat in the Executive, and are things running smoothly between Sir Edward Morris and the Hon. Mr. Cashin?

To characterize the People's Party as strong is even more absurd than to call them a united band. The strength of a party depends in the attachment of the electorate to them. How can a party be strong when so many thousands of voters petitioned last year for an election in the fall of 1912 in order to turn them out of office? How can a party be strong which has deceived the people as to the cost of branch railway building? How can a party be strong which has displayed so much lamentable weakness in financing railway building? How can a party be strong which introduced the costly principle of paying the contractor in gold instead of debentures? How can a party be strong which has shown such lamentable weakness in supervising the operation of the railway system?

The inherent weakness of the People's Party was exposed in the outrage on the electorate when the leader of the People's Party not only permitted the Hon. Donald Morrison to remain in office after the exposures made last year in the Morrison Memorials, but actually took an active part in inducing Governor Williams to condone his lapses. The People's Party has shown weakness in making its Agricultural policy a dumping ground for political apprentices and a bye-word to the people at large. The purchase of spars, the reckless givings out of grants of money and grants of timber, the award of contracts to firms in which members of the Executive are interested are all sources of weakness to the People's Party. The people are determined to make an end of them and to put a period to such flagrant waste. The People's Party may be strong with the grabbers but it is weak with the electors. The mere shouting that the grabbers are strong and united is no cure of their weakness with the people. The people will have none of them. They are determined to purge public life of those who are sapping their resources and their cry is Morris Must Go Next Fall.

Last night every seat was taken, many having to stand. This company have been very successful for they have given something different to any thing ever seen here before, as Miss Buchanan writes many of her own acts. Billy Devan's song by Gilbert and Sullivan, won him rounds of applause. Harry Ingram also came in for his share of appreciation. He keeps on improving and many come specially to hear him. The pictures were splendid. It is one of the very best shows seen in a great while, and well deserving all the patronage bestowed on it. Special matinee Wednesday and Saturday.

When Mr. Borden introduced his naval policy he intimated the Govt. would encourage the development of the shipbuilding industry Canada, partly by following the policy of getting its own non-military ships built in this country whenever practicable. As shown in the powerful ice breaker for which advertisements will appear later on the "Made in Canada" principle is now being applied.

That Broad Cove Incident.

An Insult to Broad Cove's Intelligence.

In this morning's News some big political scribe holds up his hands in holy horror and with his eyes cast towards heaven "like a duck in a thunder storm" exclaims what depravity! The Premier and his two colleagues, all dignified men, in the Turkey Trot and Bunny Hug at Broad Cove! Wirra, Wirra, now Mr. "One Who Was (n't) There," and is there anything wonderful in the Premier and his colleagues dancing at a wedding in Broad Cove? We opine that the writer of this screed is either one of the members for St. John's West or that the letter was concocted at the instigation of one of them. By One Who Knows as much about Broad Cove as he does about the exact location of King Solomon's Mines. Sir Edward and his colleagues have for years past been attending the annual Broad Cove Regatta, and if the people of that place were to hear Sir Edward's description of the music of their band, the mannerisms of the people of the place and other characteristics related to boon companions in St. John's, they would be so delighted that to a man they would plump for him at the election in November next. And possibly to fulfil their desire, we will later recount some little playful experiences of the Premier at Broad Cove. Seriously the writer would have the Broad Cove people believe that we disrespect the sacrament of marriage in the humorous article devoted to Sir Edward at the wedding festivities. As a matter of fact under a separate heading next day, we gave a fine account of the wedding, and Constable Tucker, the groom, who is a personal friend of our reporters on Saturday last met one of them on Water Street who thanked him for the kindly reference made in the Telegram to his wedding. What do you think of that "One Who Was (n't) There?" You must have a high opinion of the people of Broad Cove as your master the Premier has, when you would impute to them want of perception. They know that our reference to Sir Edward at the wedding was purely a political affair, written by one of our reporters, and that you put such little value on their perceptive faculties is a greater insult to them than if columns of such matter were written. Try again, Mr. Scribe, the people of Broad Cove have your measure, as well as your master's, taken, and they will know how to letter, to their intelligence, Morris and his satellites are working the people of Broad Cove for their votes and if he is elected he has often been the case he will have a good laugh at their expense.

Miss Bewley at the College Hall.

Many very talented artists, both local and visiting, have appeared on the platform of the College Hall, and we are pleased to say that in the person of Miss Bewley, another has been added to the number; and that her rendition of "Esmeralda" last night was in keeping with the high literary standard of her predecessors, and of the College Hall. Miss Bewley is indeed clever, and what seems to be better, she is decidedly natural—a trait that some performers and public speakers lack. Her entire recital was a marvel of memory, and her personification of the nine different characters of the sketch was such as only a finished performer could accomplish. Among the different interpretations which Miss Bewley gave of last evening's programme, the item that touched us most was her depiction of the "Little Brown Baby"; and we would take the liberty of suggesting that it be repeated at this evening's performance. Of the more musical portion of the programme, it is not necessary that we say anything, as Mr. Allen's ability is long established in this respect; while Mr. Lench's effort of last season is still fresh in the public mind. We bespeak a good house for tonight's recital; and we trust that Miss Bewley will carry away with her many pleasant memories of her visit to our city, and of her reception from the literary and music-loving citizens. To-night Miss Bewley will give "Polly of the Circus."

Polly, the heroine of the story, is thrown from her horse and is carried to a neighboring house which proves to be the home of the village minister. Her ingenious conversation with the young clergyman, breathing as it naturally must, of the atmosphere of the circus, is most unique, while the ministrations of old Mandy the negro servant give color and comedy to the whole.

It is interesting to watch Polly, with her natural charm and individualism amid new surroundings, blossom into a refined woman.

Prince Albert Sick.

Quebec, June 10.—H.R.H. Prince Albert is sick on board H.M.S. Cumberland, and has cancelled all engagements in this city for to-day and to-morrow. A notable gathering of Quebec society was to have met this morning for the first time at a garden party at Spencerwood this afternoon. This morning, at 10 o'clock, Capt. Smith sent one of his adjutants to the Marine Department Office to phone to the Lieut. Governor's aide-de-camp, Capt. Pelletier, to advise him of the inability of the Prince to attend the afternoon function.
The Prince is on the sick list, and though it is said that he is only suffering from influenza, he will not be allowed to attend to-day's garden party or the tea dance organized at the Chateau Frontenac for to-morrow.

That Stabbing Case.

After Patrick Clarke had stabbed the unfortunate man John Hudson in the manner related in yesterday's Telegram, he walked quickly to the head of the Smith Co.'s pier and holding the blood besmeared sheath knife with which he had committed the deed in his hand for awhile, again began pacing the wharf to and fro. When the employees heard of what had occurred they quickly left the premises, and the man until the arrival of Constables O'Neill and Tulk had all that part of the wharf on which he paced to and fro to himself. When the officers reached him he had replaced the knife in the sheath which hung to a belt at his waist but he seemed to be in a very ugly mood. The officers pounced on and handcuffed him quickly and then dismissed him to the cells. He was warned on being arrested that any statement he would make would be used as evidence against him, and he kept quiet and uttered no word. Shortly before the stabbing occurred the man went into upper Kinging's hardware store and purchased the sheath knife which he used on Hudson. The clerk who served him took him to be a seaman and nothing about him struck the man behind the counter as being peculiar. On taking the knife he tried its edge on his thumb, seemed satisfied with it and placed it in the sheath at his waist. He put down more money than the article was worth, but seemed to be in a hurry and left the shop without waiting for the change which the clerk was procuring for him. When he got the money the clerk ran out to try and catch him and saw him go quickly down the archway leading to the Smith Co.'s premises. Shortly after he committed the desperate act which may possibly culminate in the victim's death. Both he and Hudson were good labouring men and seemed to be always on the best of terms. If there was an unpleasantness at any time between them none of their friends knew it. Though the victim's name appears on the pay lists where he was employed as Samuel Hutchings, he was generally known especially when he lived on the King's Road as John Hudson, and his family also went by the name of Hudson not Hutchings. An ante-mortem statement was yesterday taken from Hudson at the General Hospital by the prisoner, Clarke, being present. To-day the man is much improved and it is now expected he will recover.

Peculiar Luggage

Foxes Carried in Valises—(Cute Way of Smuggling Them Out of the Country).
Last week as a policeman was coming across country on an express with a prisoner for incarceration here he noticed a stranger carrying a valise in the coach which he and his ward occupied. The man seemed to have much solicitude for what the receptacle contained and frequently went to the platform of the car, opened the valise a little, and after a couple of moments closed it again. He repeated this walking out to the platform so often and seemed so perturbed that the officer's surprise was succeeded by suspicion, and he asked the other to open the valise so that he (the officer) could satisfy himself as to the contents. While speaking to him the officer placed his prisoner in care of one of the train hands. The train was now beginning to stop up for a station and the man, when he heard of the officer's request, made a bolt for liberty, and fled quickly down the archway and being a good sprinter overtook and captured his man, and bringing him back to the train opened the valise, when to the surprise of all present it was found to contain a valuable patch fox. The owner seeing the "jig" was up surrendered it to the officer, who held the belief that the fox was about to be smuggled out of the country by some of the steamers leaving St. John's. More than one fox and certainly more than two legged raynard travelled by that train, for the policeman happening a short while after this incident to go into a first class coach a stranger who was coming out against him, also carrying a valise, turned and running to the rear of the car jumped off, holding on to his precious valise and its contents and got away scot free, the officer having no opportunity to follow. It is believed the second man carried a live black fox in his valise. What became of the patch fox taken by the officer is not known, but possibly the Government can give this information.

Great Flight by French Aviator.

Berlin, June 10.—Marcel G. Brindejonc des Moulins, the French aviator, made a remarkable flight this morning from Villacoublay, near Paris, to the Johannisthal aerodrome outside Berlin in a new monoplane, the Pommyer Cup, doing the distance of 674 miles in an airline in 7 hours and 45 minutes, at an approximate speed of 87.4 m.p.h.
He made a start for Warsaw at 3:37 p.m. He left the Aerodrome at a terrific speed flying with the gale, and made but one landing at Wanne, in a gusty gale blowing at 58 miles an hour, while a fog lay on the land. At Johannisthal he was so stormy that none of the local flying men ventured an ascent.

Anonymous £10,000.

Brown Paper Parcel for a Hospital.
The London Hospital has just received £10,000 under strange circumstances. A shabbily dressed man walked into the hospital and handed the porter a small brown paper parcel, heavily sealed, with the remark that it was "for the hospital."
The parcel was taken to the secretary's office in the usual way, and put on one side for some time, as it was thought to contain periodicals.
When it was opened, however, securities estimated to represent £10,000 were disclosed, and on a half sheet of notepaper were the words, "For the good of the hospital." There was no clue to the identity of the donor. The assistant secretary says he does not know the benefactor. The securities have been found to be in order.

C.E.I. Defeated

By Stars in a Lively Contest.

The Star-C. E. I. football match was played on St. George's Field last evening and resulted in a victory for the Stars—last year's champions—by three goals to nil.

The attendance was the largest for the season and throughout the game much excitement and enthusiasm was manifested. A meeting of both teams had been eagerly awaiting and spectators were not disappointed as a good lively exhibition was served out to them by the players.

THE GAME.

Punctually at seven o'clock the teams were called together. The Stars won the choice of ends and took the advantage of a strong westerly breeze. As soon as the ball was put in motion the Stars began the attack. Power and Brien combining broke through the Institute back division; Brien tried a shot and missed by a narrow margin, the ball striking the crossbar of the goal post. Continuing the aggressiveness the Stars worked like Trojans to register the first goal; they pressed the back division of the C. E. I. hard, but Stick and Hussey put up an able defense and kept the ball clear of the danger zone. After a bombardment that lasted ten minutes the Stars succeeded in getting a corner; Brien displayed good judgment in placing the ball which was head in the net by Power.
This enlivened the Institute boys who woke up as it were. Their forwards worked the ball west and kept the Star back rank busy defending. The C. E. I. fought hard to equalize. They secured two corners and called upon Clare frequently to save and it was the strong wind that prevailed that prevented them from scoring. The Stars again put up steam and made things lively. Power, the veteran, showed up well; he controlled the ball and centered to Morgan who sent a very swift shot to Voisey who failed to save and the second goal was recorded for the Stars.

When the teams again faced each other play became fast and furious and exciting to the onlookers. The C. E. I. made a few dashes but were driven back. Brien took possession of the leather and made a pretty run, he passed to Morgan who shot for goal but Voisey cleared admirably.
Brien captured the ball and had a try.
Voisey once more distinguished himself in saving but he was rushed by Power who banged the ball into the meshes—Stars, 2. The C. E. I. still kept up a hard defence and no further scoring was done.

SECOND HALF.

After the interval play opened briskly in favor of the C.E.I. Aided by the wind their supporters expected them to score a couple of times. The Institute brought the ball to the Star territory at the outset.
Several shots were sent to Clare but nothing resulted. The Stars made an occasional visit to the western end of the field and were repulsed. The C.
E. I. forwards got in some clever combination work and tried hard to score but luck was against them.
Churchill sent a pretty shot from the right wing, the ball shaved the goal post. Resuming their rushes the C.
E. I. secured several corners in quick succession but the Star backs defended well and their opponents

Rod and Gun.

The cover cut for the June issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont., shows a striking picture of a mountain climbing scene on Mt. Robson, the highest known peak in the main range of the Canadian Rockies, which Director Wheeler of the Alpine Club of Canada says may this summer witness a race for its summit that will only have been eclipsed by the celebrated race for the summit of the Matterhorn by Edward Whymper and Giordano. The call of the Peace: The Cruise of the Viking (From St. John,

The June Bug

By H. L. BANN.

The June bug
is a small, high-tempered bird of prey which sleeps all day sallies forth at night, seeking whom he may devour. A successful sally on the part of an incensed June bug will discourage spooning at the garden gate quicker than the unlooked for appearance of father with a snake-wood cane.

The June bug is a degenerate son of the Egyptian beetle and has no sense of etiquette whatever. His favorite occupation is to break through a screened-in porch and assault fond lovers who would rather not be interrupted. Thousands of men have attempted to propose in a few well chosen words, only to be cut short in the middle of a rhapsody and have to disentangle a club-footed June bug from their fiancée's back hair. Nothing will take the pulsating romance out of a warm summer night quicker than to have a prying June bug land on somebody's left ear while he is explaining the beauties of platonian friendship.

The June bug is equipped in childhood with a suit of armor plate, which makes him impervious to attack with a palm leaf fan or anything short of a wash tub. Some people fight the June bug by going in the house and closing all the windows in rapid staccato, while others remain at their post and subdue him with a flat iron. As a result of this habit, most June bugs die a violent death and are interred the next morning in a vacuum cleaner.

Unlike the tarantula and his nephew, the bump-raising mosquito, the June bug has no bite or stinger. His chief weapon is a pair of high-powered pinchers which scatter terror and keep blue dents in their pathway. The first thing a June bug does when he sits down on anybody is to see how good hold he can get without committing murder. As a rule, his first hold is sufficient to make the front porch look like a busy bee.

If it were not for the fact that the June bug always sounds his horn before coming to a full stop against some invited guest, more people would stay in doors on hot nights and sweeter in pious accents.

WHAT'S THE MATTER?

The following lines state the usual trouble of Motor Engines, as well as the remedy.

If memorized will be a great help to the Fishermen and others operating Motor Boats:

When you want to start your engine
And the blamed thing doesn't start,
There's no use in getting rattled,
Nor in taking it apart;

Or thinking that your colls is to blame
Because she will not go,
For there are many other things
As I'll proceed to show.

Just turn your fly wheel over
While you listen to the sound;
But if there isn't any,
Then commence to look around.

First look your battery over—
Are all connections tight?
Is your wiring all connected
And everything just right?

Then when your colls are buzzing
Don't look for trouble there;
But just take out your spark plugs
And try them in the air.

If the spark is hot and lively
It will surely make a hit;
Look at your carburetor
Does your mixture pass through it?

If you adjust it any,
Note where it set before—
Or you will find your troubles
Are increasing more and more.

Perhaps you've over primed her,
So the mixture is too rich;
Cut off the gas and crank her,
Keeping in the battery switch.

If she starts just when you prime her,
Runs just while the priming lasts,
Then your mixture isn't coming,
There's a place it can't get past.

If she sneals and growls when turning,
Oil her up, she's getting dry;
If exhaust is blue and smoky,
Then cut down your oil supply.

If exhaust is black and sooty,
Then she has more gasoline
Than there's any need of using
To work best in your machine.

When your engine's running fairly,
Then bangs loudly in the base,
Giving it a richer mixture
Cure its troubles in this case.

So when it makes you wrathy,
Go sit down and rest awhile;
You can start it much more surely
If you try it with a smile.

MORAL.
If your engine's poor and trappy,
Don't swear until your hoarse;
Just dump it in the junk heap
And get a FAIRBANKS-MORSE,

Furniture Sale!

No explanation or elaboration of this Furniture Sale idea is necessary. People already know what it is. The preceding semi-annual events held at the C. L. March Co's. Store have proved to the satisfaction of even the most skeptical that the very best class of Furniture can be bought here now at decisively lower prices than it usually brings. In other words, the person that has a certain sum of money to spend in furniture can get one-third more furniture one-third better, or that person can save one-third in cost.

Encouraged by the splendid success of past sales, and having full confidence that the public understands and realizes the economic features of the event, we have by far outdone all past records by assembling thousands of pieces of the most excellent furniture that the factory could produce—to be disposed of this month. The scope of this furniture movement covers the requirements of every home, whether cottage or mansion. There are magnificent pieces and sets of the finest woods, carved and finished with elaborate care.

But the backbone of the event is of course the vast array of furniture of the moderate kind, which the average home demands—substantial, well-built furniture that gives comfort and satisfaction through years of steady service. Come and inspect the furniture at your leisure, and feel at perfect liberty to ask all the questions you like without incurring the slightest obligation to buy. Out-of-town folks will find it to their advantage when in town to see us. Young people getting married should certainly see us.

The young man suffered terrible pain.

The Wearing of the Rose.

Floral Festival for Charity on Alexandra Day.

The celebration of Alexandra Day in London and 250 cities and towns in the United Kingdom, on Wednesday, June 25th, will assume the character of a grand floral festival. Apart from the general wearing of wild roses, which the promoters believe will be even more extensive than last year, when the movement was so successfully inaugurated, there are indications that public buildings, business establishments, and private residences will be adorned with flags and floral devices, and arrangements are being made for a procession of decorated vehicles through the principal streets of the metropolis.

The demonstration will be an outward manifestation of London's devotion to Queen Alexandra, and a fervent expression of gratitude that she has been spared to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of her landing in Great Britain. Her Majesty has taken a keen personal interest in the preliminary preparations, and has approved the idea that a wild rose made by Mr. Grome's crippled girls shall be the recognized emblem for the day.

Out of every penny received from the sales more than three farthings will directly benefit charities in which Queen Alexandra is interested, while the cripples engaged in making the flowers will enjoy a steady income for several months. The cripples work fifty-four hours a week and earn an average wage of 11s. 6d. They carry on their operations amid perfect sanitary surroundings, have the attention of experienced nurses, and are given a holiday at a convalescent home. At present 300 are busily fashioning Queen Alexandra's roses, four millions of which have been ordered for the country alone.

At the head of the executive committee is the Countess of Wilton, and associated with her are some of the foremost society ladies in London. It is hoped that 20,000 helpers will volunteer their services in London. The flower-sellers will be dressed in white, with wreaths of wild roses on their hats. The offices of the committee are at 10, West Bolton Gardens, Earl's Court, and Miss May Beeman, the organizing secretary would be glad to receive communications from anyone who is willing to help.

Affecting Moments

During Closing Sederunt of the Presbyterian Conference.—Strong Men Sat Tense as the Moderator, Rev. Dr. MacKenzie, told an Intensely Human Story.—"Never Yet in a Position That Jesus Has Not Been All He Promised to Be."

Toronto, June 12.—There were not many present to-night at the end of the last session of the Presbyterian General Assembly, but the few who were present will never forget the solemn and touching words which the moderator, Rev. Dr. Murdoch MacKenzie, uttered. Strong men sat tense as he told a human story, a story that thrilled the nerves of everyone. "I have seen the faces of men thirsting for blood and have been in difficult situations, but I have ever yet been in a position that Jesus has not been all that He has promised to be."

The last moments were affecting in the extreme as the moderator told of the going forth into the world again after the magnificent time they had spent within the walls of the building. The venerable Dr. McKay prayed and the moderator gave the benediction, to which all responded with a fervent amen, and one of the most remarkable series of meetings ever held in Canada came to a close.

A resolution was passed expressing the gratitude to God of the assembly for the great success of the assembly and the congress, and calling upon all members to greater efforts for the extension of Christ's Kingdom, at home and abroad.

YARMOUTH, June 16.
The steamer Boston arrived this morning, and reports that yesterday afternoon she received a wireless saying that the five-masted schooner Paul Palmer was on fire fifteen miles off land. She started for the scene, but later received another wireless that a tug was standing by the wreck and taking off the crew.

LONDON, June 16.
In consequence of the retirement of Bruce Ismay, Harold A. Sanderson, first vice-president, becomes President of the International Mercantile Marine Co. H. Curry, manager of the Southampton-American line, has been appointed manager of the White Star Line, not director of the International Mercantile Marine, as previously reported.

LONDON, June 16.
The suffragettes were again roughly handled at Hyde Park on Sunday afternoon. They raised their flags at four points in the park, and directly they were hoisted trouble commenced. The women were rushed out of the park. One fell, and the mob believed her to be shamming. A party of sailors formed a ring about her and kept the mob back. Later she was carried out of the park, and had apparently been trampled on or kicked. Her comrades were also badly treated.

LONDON, June 16.
The Prince of Wales, who is serving as a private in the officers' training corps, which is out for annual practice, near Aldershot, was taken off-leave during the manoeuvres on Saturday. He also had his pockets searched. The Prince was sent scouting near the camp on Friday. He was ambushed and captured, and his rifle cartridges were taken from him, whilst he was searched for despatches. The Prince was jollied by his captors, who did not recognize him. He was rescued shortly afterwards by his corps, and his captors fled.

LONDON, June 16.
Queen Mary continues her campaign against gambling among society women. Last week she demonstrated her determination to stamp it out of her own entourage. It seems that her second dresser, Miss Adelaide Chandler, lost $125 betting during Derby week. In order to pay this she sold a collection of autographed photographs of members of the Royal Family, including the Queen, Queen Mother, German Empress and Queen of Norway. Miss Selby, the Queen's chief dresser, informed Her Majesty of the fact, and gave the names of the dealers who had purchased the photographs. The Queen bought them back for $200. They had been sold for $150. She then returned them to Miss Chandler, but sent her to York Cottage, where she must remain for a year and a half on ordinary salary, unless she wishes to resign from the royal service. The Queen intimated to all the maids of the Royal establishment that if she hears of them gambling in any manner in the future it will involve instant dismissal.

THREE ARRESTS.—A vagrant and two drunks were jailed by the police last evening.

Pessimists

"All things are going to the dogs," the also r a n remarks; "the government is slipping cogs; it's r u n by cranks a n d sharks. The voters turn down men like me, and e l e vate cheap skates, so how can aught but ruin be in these United States?" "Our prison system is a fake," the cattle thief complains; "it is a shame that I must break up rock in rusty chains. The whole blamed thing should be reformed; the convict has no rights; give him a cell that's nicely warmed and fixed with tungsten lights." "All things are wrong," says "Out-and-down," "in this degenerated sphere; the peckers run me out of town whenever I appear. Because I am opposed to work on principle, I'm slugged; why should a conscientious shirk be chivied round and jugged?" The man who dallies with the booze with grumbling fills the street because he has no over-shoes when snow is three feet deep. The man who loaf's the hours away beneath the summer skies is sore because he must cat hay when others have their piks. And thus it is all round, I wist, and will be till we die; whenever a man's a pessimist, we guess the reason why.

Vocational Education.

"It is to be hoped that any scheme of national education will immensely enlarge the facilities for vocational education, and be the means of bringing the University into closer touch with the business world and the locality of which it should be the spiritual and intellectual inspiration," writes Claudesley Breerton in the Nineteenth Century.

"One thing is at least certain: we shall never gain the full confidence of the business world and the working classes till we can show that education is practical, i.e., that it has an economic value; while if we are to retain the confidence of those who believe in the spiritual side of education, we must likewise hold fast to humanistic ideals. Vocational education in its widest sense means the working out of the combination of these ideals."

Farnborough, England, June 12.—The British Army airship Astra Torres met with a serious accident at its first trial here to-day. The envelope sprang a leak and part of the frame work buckled up. The crew, however, managed to bring the airship safely to earth, and none of them were injured. The trial took place in the presence of thousands of spectators.

HALIFAX, June 16.
The steamer Eyndam, from Bremen to New York, via Halifax, arrived this morning with 391 passengers for here. A few days ago a case of smallpox developed in the steerage, and the steamer has been quarantined, the 391 passengers being landed. These will be compelled to remain under quarantine for several days. After the ship is fumigated she will leave for New York with 600 passengers, including the smallpox patient.

LONDON, June 16.
It is now known that the Prince of Wales will, this summer, for the first time, take official part in English society. It is more than half a century since a bachelor Prince of Wales was the central figure of society. Next summer he will become a member of the Royal Yacht Squadron. As he strongly desires a naval life, he will probably take a short cruise this year in the super-Dreadnought Colossus.
