We cannot emphasize too strongly that the immediate prob-lem facing the committee is to keep the household fires burning, the stores varm and the factories running for the next three weeks, until the shortage can be relieved by the arrival of new stocks of coal. It is highly re-prehensible for any persons to at-tempt to obtain from the stock, which is being handled by the committee, supplies of coal which they will need burning in February and March. e members of the committee will do their best to prevent such orders being supplied, and citizens should co-operate with them in these efforts. The problem is a difficult one to handle, and it is the plain duty of a good citizen to back up those who are en-deavoring to work out the problem without entailing suffering on any

Good News

The news from General Aylmer's forces which are advancing along the Tigris to the relief of General Townshend's forces at Kut el Amara, continues to be most satisfactory. We learn first that General Aylmer had succeeded in forcing an advance from Ali Gherba, 50 miles from the Kut, and that on the seventh instant, that he had fought three divisions of Turks near Sheikh three divisions of Turks near Sheikh Saad in the Tigris, that he had carried the position and that he was pursuing the Turks in retreat, but that the pursuit was hindered by heavy rains. This gave rise to some appre-hension as Sheikh Saad is about 25 miles from the Kut. These anxieties has been allayed by the good news receipt of cheque for $20.00 from Wilsent last night by the Secretary for the Colonies. MATINEE-JACK AND JILL-BEST PANTOMIME.

There will be a matinee at Rossley "Jack and Jill" will be pre sented, and it is declared by all who have seen it to be the best yet. There are numerous dances, lots of song and plenty of fun for all. Madge Locke in her songs and dances is much admired. Mr. Ballard Brown as the "Giant" is seen at his best. The girls and children all go through their various parts splendidly. Bonnie Rossiey in her songs and dances is very dainty and sweet. Jack and Marie Rossley old favorites, have the crowd in roars all the time. A clean, clever show. Don't miss seeing the Pantomime "Jack and Jill."

"The Church in the Firing Line."

(From the Westminster Gazette.) The book with the above title, which the Rev. Douglas P. Winnifrith, M.A., chaplain to the forces, has written is full of interest. The Bishop of London, in a foreword, speaks of it as containing "a tale of simple heroism not often surpassed in history," and General Smith-Dorrien. who contributes a preface, strongly recommends the public to read the book. Its author was with the 14th Infantry Brigade Field Ambulance from the commencement of the war, and was with it at the battles of Le Cateau, Mons, the Marne, the Aisne, La Bassee, Ypres and Armentiers covering a period of eight months' continuous fighting-and he therefore speaks with authority.

To the friendly character of the French priests and villagers in connection with the burial of our dead. Mr. Winnifrith makes frequent allu-

"I myself on many occasions have witnessed the general grief and loving sympathy displayed by the peasants when they stood with me beside the grave of our comrades. They would cast flowers into the grave, plant others upon the mound, and promise to faithfully tend it, as, with eyes dimmed by tears, they expressed their thanks to those who had crossed the sea to fight and die for La belle France."

Of course, the British soldiers could not in every case be buried by their own chaplains, but the French priests have always been very glad to lend whatever assistance they could.

Amusing incidents occasionally light up the tragic occurrences of the battlefield. In the darkness one of the officers fell into a moat, and as he was dragged out covered with green slime, and wet to the skin, he remarked: "Well, that's an experience." Someone described the mildness of his language as nothing less than "a miracle of grace." But all were sorry for the officer, and they hung him up to dry in front of the camp fire. The Transport Sergeant whose duty it was to superintend the care of horses, hearing the splash in the water, ran to the moat and exclaimed: "Oh, it's only a man; I thought it might be a 'orse!"

Again and again Mr. Winnifrith bears testimony to the great bravery of our men. He tells of the stretcher bearers depositing their bleeding burdens, wiping the sweat from their brows, and then willingly and eagerly returning to pursue their work of mercy "where the bullets were falling like rain." The fortitude of the wounded is magnificent. One doctor

"Believe me, the Victoria Cross is won over and over again in a single day. The men are brave! What if you were to see how the wounded act after the excitement of battle! They suffer their wounds, great and small, without a murmur; they get their wounds dressed; take chloroform, give consent to have their limbs amputated just as if they were going putated just as if they were going to have their hair cut. They are gloriously brave."

One man, with his jaw blown away, could not speak, and made signs that he wished to write. When paper and pencil were brought, it was no selfish request he had to make, no message even for loved ones at home he had to he wished to write. When paper and send: he simply wrote: "My captain is a brave man and deserves the V.

Suggests Plan to Stop "Piracy."

Paris, Jan. 5.—"It is only by destroying the retreat of the corsairs and the possibility of their receiving supplies, and breaking down their information organization that naval bandittism can be ended," says the Temps in discussing the torpedoing of vessels by enemy forces. "The occupation of Castelorize is the first step in this direction. All means for clearing the Mediterranean of pirates must be taken with hesitation as to islands. the international status of which has not been definitely fixed, and measures of survillance must be imposed.

"The enemy cannot invoke laws | which it systematically violates, and neutrals who allow pirates to remain in their waters need not be surprised if we enter to seek to destroy the shipwreckers. Their sovereignty cannot be offended by acts of public salubrity, by which sailors and passengers of all nations will benefit."

with a bullet wound in my left shoulder. Well I would like to be in St. John's for to spend my Christmas, and supposing I was in hospital I would have some one down to see me, but where I am here, I see nobody from week's end to week's end. The only person that I see clear of the hospital nurses is the minister, and he calls to see me once a week. Well I was wounded on the 6th of November, and I was put on board of a hospital ship on the 7th, and I was a week on her. Then I arrived at Maita and was put in hospital and I can tell you I was not sorry when I could lay in a nice soft bed once again, and this is my first day that I can sit up since I arrived on the 12th, and I am now propped up with pillows. I am not able to lay on my back; I have to lay on my right side, but I hope to be able to get up soon. Just fancy I didn't see a bed for nearly three months and never had a boot off my foot in that time and now I have to lay in bed for about six weeks before I can be to take the second to the second the second that the second that the second that the second the second that the second the second that t have to lay in bed for about six weeks before I can get up.

Wishing you a merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year.

There are two hundred course of people to the Church of the Sacrad Heart where selection. of our boys going to the front this week. How are all home. I was expecting some letters last mail. I went to see the nuns from Killmarnack to-day. I asked the boys to come down to see them again on Christmas to see them again on Christmas They which he was held. He leaves to the other than the course of heart, where solemn Requirem mass was celebrated by the Rev. M. F. McGuire, P.P., for the repose of his soul. After mass his funeral was attended by a large number of people, testifying to the esteem and respect to the church of the Day. The priest here is very kind to us. I have been in many towns since I left home. I am well and getting fat again. I enjoy army life fine. I would like for Clar to be here with tin which he was held. He leaves a wife and four sons to mourn the loss of a good husband and kind father. May his soul rest in peace.

The deceased was a daughter of the late Martin O'Dris-coll, Bay Bulls, where she was born eighty years ago. Her ancestors came from Cork and Tipperary, from whom she had inherited that deep-rooted Irish faith, which she retained all through life. She was gifted with a high degree of intelligence, and had a very retentive memory. She was re-markable for her great spirit of charity. She was a devoted Catholic, and always kept eternity before her. She was fortified with all the rites of Holy hurch. She received Holy Viaticum frequently, and had a consolation, which few mothers have, of receiving the last absolution from her own son. Her death like her life was truly edifying. She was full of confidence is

The "Exploits of Elaine" was the chief attraction at the Nickel Theatre esterday. The Exploits, the ninth episode of which was shown, is the most sensational of all the serials with the most thrilling scenes and best photography." The Death Ray" which was the title of yesterday's chapter were seen in a beautiful three part drama: "The Awakening Hour." This was one of the dantiest stories ever was one of the dantiest stories ever seen at the movies; the well known actress Neil Craig played a great character. "His Superficial Wife" is an impressive social drama, while the comedy was one of the Keystone Co.'s best. The programme will be repeated to-day and all should see it.

IN "THE DIVORCE QUESTION."
This company, which has already established itself strongly in this city, continues to increase its population. larity amongst our theatre-going public and they made another big hit at the Casino Theatre last night in the presentation of "The Divorce Ques-The play summed u the stand of the Roman Catholic Church and its stout repudiation of divorce law; also an instance is cited, proving beyond all question of doubt the awful results of one of the many cases of divorce. The crowded, attentive and appreciative audience present enjoyed immensely the admixture of pleasure, impressiveness and emotion-Prior to the acts the Compony inroduced some specialties which were horoughly entertaining, as shown by the frequent and prolonged applause and woman, who are married, having two children, a boy and a girl, get divorced and both re-marry and have another family. The former children were put with relatives who neglect-ed them, so they ran away. The girl mixes up with adherents of the White Slave Traffic and the boy becomes a dope fiend. It happens that the boy makes an effort to rescue his sister, but is remonstrated with and he shoots one of the gang of his sister's be-trayers and takes refuge in the church. There the boy tells the whole story to the priest who protects him. Friends of the priest who came to consult him on certain matters are presented with their children. The affections of the parents turn to the children of their second marriages, though they are both willing to contribute largely to the support of their former children. The persistent reusal of either parent to the girl's plea to be taken home, results in her death. The boy becomes despondent, strikes the father a stunning blow, is prevented from striking his mother by he priest and then leaves the place but is again found by the priest who brings him back. The parents heart broken by the remorse, both agree to take the boy home, but it is too late he has fallen into the hands of the law for shooting one of those who was the means of ruining the life of his sister. Therefore, the result of the divorce is that one of the children died from the excesses of grief and exposure, the other lies in the shadow

The play was well staged and has to be seen to be properly appreciated. Harden Klark, as Father Jerome, the parish priest, excelled. Albert Patterson, as "Dopie Doe," was very effective. Lillian Dean and Thomas Brower, as Mrs. Rodger Manners and Herbert Lockwood, the divorced parents, won much distinction. Maisie Cecil, as one of their children, made a great impression. Frank Urban, made of the gallows. Cecil, as one of their children, made a great impression. Frank Urban, made a typical Pat Kelly, the caretaker; Charles E. Mills was very effective as Eugene Lawrence, the lawyer, who is a firm believer in divorce. Billy Webb (Harold Kicklebrush) and Auralia Clarke (Catherine Spauling) who were prevented from getting married in a hurry by the priest, added in a no small degree to the success of the play. The "Divorce Question" will be repeated to-night. What about Your 4

SION BILL.

LONDON, To-day, Sir John Simon, who recently resigned from the Cabinet on the compulsion issue, summed up his arguments against the Bills. His opponents he declared, in enacting the measarts he declared, in enacting the mean are in the House would throw away one great national possession. The country had entered upon war to decountry had entered upon war to de end the doctrine that the supreme fend the doctrine that the supreme consideration ought to be national unity, he said, and in view of the attitude of labor, it is in the highest titude of labor, it is in the highest. unity, he said, and in view of the titude of labor it is in the highest from British headquarters an interdegree unfortunate this Bill is introdegree unfortunate this Bill is introduced. "I hope it is not too late to take a practical step to avoid compulsion. I urge the Government to go over the results of Earl Derby's canvas and make another appeal to men who do not come forward. Asstot the labor attitude it is evident as long as you can take an unwilling individual and put him in the army, there will be the greatest difficulty in maintaining industrial fredom in which I am sure every Commoner desired to leave untouched. Premier Asquith, himself, rose for the final plea in favor of the Bill, after Sir John Simon had concluded. The Premier referred once to the feers of Labor that the Bill the fears of Labor, that the Bill BEBATE IN REICHSTAG ON the fears of Labor, that the Bill would lead to industrial compulsion and that employers would be able to dismiss obnoxious employees and compet them to become soldiers, he explained the Government would introduce an amendment which would safeguard this point. "I believe," he added. "when the provisions of the Bill are fully realized and the people understand that every suggestion and complaint will be carefully listened to, we shall have something like a general assent. I hope the Bill will pass without dissent. Certainly no more effective blow could be struck for the success of our arms." The announcement that the Government were prepared to meet labor objections with an amendment preventing employers using it to their advantage was greeted with cheers and was regarded as especially significant, inasmuch as the Premier had just come from a Conference with Labor Leaders. "There had been an immense amount of misconception, misunderstanding. Some sections and compassed attacks upon the executive disample of the Reichstag. The present system of controlling the home press news and the service to foreign countries is being energetically attacked by representatives of all parties, who are virtually unanimous in demanding liberty to discuss questions of international policy. They insist that the German people have shown itself cool headed, mature and patriotic enough to be permitted to look the situation in the face and form its judgment of events and on the nation's problems. A Socialist speaker expressed the belief that the time had come when discussion as to what the aims were could be permitted with advantage both at home and abroad. The censorship, said the Socialist speaker, acted one sidedly and passed attacks upon the executive committee of Socialists, but suppressuld lead to industrial compulsion mense amount of misconception, mis-understanding. Some sections and committee of Socialists, but suppressunderstanding. Some sections and classes regarding it as a step toward Universal Conscription or as a form of instrument for industrial compulsion. I assure you there is nothing further from the intention of the framers of the Bill than that it should be used for any such purposes. The Government certainly has no intention of circulate exaggerated accounts. Altered to the committee of Socialists, but suppressed the committee of Socialists and the committee o

THE LONDON BUDGET. LONDON, To-day, Cettinje, the capital of Montenegro, ow seems likely to suffer the fate of elgrade, and British observers already are asking anxiously, what the nenace of the Austrian conquest of Montenegro is likely to hold over the Allies at Saloniki. Fighting is going on all round Cettinje, a small town which nearly a year ago, ceased to be the seat of the Montenegrin Government and never before in the long history of the little Montenegrin kingdom has it been compelled to bow to a foreign conquerer. As in the Serhia's case, the Entente press finds it inexplicable why Italian assistance was not sent long ago to Lovcen, which it is said could have been rendered impregnable with a com-paratively small number of men and a few heavy guns. The reduction, the Montenegrin press points out, will enable Austria not only to command officials to protect him as a subject of Britain against the seizure of his mail since 1899, when he began the mail order business. He came to Maine 35 years ago from Annapolis. In the recent trial he acted as his own counsel. His sentence was deferred pending appeal.

vulnerable to an attack from the sea. Any really great Austrian naval base in the magnificent harbor of Cattaro is would have been impossible without Lovcen, but under the circumstances, the Austrian possession of Cattaro is almost as great a menace to Italy as the German conquest of Calais would have been to Britain. While attention is centred on the developments on the Adriatic coast, it is announced from AMERICA WILL TAKE NO FURTHER Adriatic coast, it is announced from Rome that two Italian transports, the Rome that two Italian transports, the Brindisi and Citta Di Palermo, last week struck mines and sank. On the Russian front the Austrian official communication records that renewed desperate attacks everywhere were repulsed. The Petrograd communication is silent on the subject, but the Russians usually withhold mention of their movements until they are well en the road to completion. There have been no important developments on the Western front. The blowing up of a large German munitions depot near Lille is admitted in the German cans, slain by vinc.

co, beyond its demand for the apprehension and punishment of outlaws or at most to hold General Carranza responsible for the murders if it is shown his officials were negligent.

the Coalition Ministry. This fact would be regarded at home and abroad as a symbol of the nation's unity. He concluded with the statement: "I have the authority of Earl Kitchener and the General Staff, that we require at once not only the unmarried men enrolled under the Derby scheme, not only married men who are waiting to be called, but also the whole available part of the 65,000 men with whom this deals. The opposition in the Commons to the Conscription Bill crumpled last night to a few conscientious objections. A fortnight Murphy, Kilbride Road, and Hubert Webber, Hr.

The result appears to have been due partly to the evidence that the country favors the measure and partly to Asquith's often displayed ability with the Executive Committee, Labor Party and Labor members in the Commons this afternoon, in which he induced three Labor members of the Ministry to withdraw their resignations temporarily. The Machine Gun and its Development.

Tests against piecked shots have shown that one machine gun will make more hits than 50 marksmen. One may safely say that as a target hitter, a machine gun is equal to a

The development of this most effective of the weapons has been very interesting, and much money and time has been spent in perfecting it. Machine guns of a primitive kind were found in early history.

In 1382 the army of Ghent put 200 chars de canon to the field, being a wheeled carriages, garnished with spikes and scythe blades. In 1411 the Burgundian army is said to have had 2,000 of these weapons. Louis the Twelfth had a machine gun which fired 50 shots at one round.

The Ribaudequin Chinois captured from the Chinese by the French, in 1860, is believed the earliest type of machine gun known. It is believed that this gun was built about the beginning of the fourteenth century. It consisted of a very heavy truck reinforced with iron. On this truck vere mounted four iron barrels nine feet long. They were all fired at once by a train of powder leading to each barrel.

The most important development was the Danish nine barrel gun, nounted in sets of three, on a twowheeled carriage. One set of barrels was fired at a time. Closely following this came the American revolving cannon capable of firing three charges in quick succession, this gun was very popular in the war of 1812, and doubtless was responsible for some sensational sea victories, but a really quoted. Gatlin, Reffye, Requa, Hotchkiss, Gadner, Bessemer and Maxim, each similar, lighter, more compact, more accurate, or having greater firing speed than its predecessors. The Maxim, is the one mose widely used by the warring nations to-day. It weighs 50 to 60 pounds and fires 450 to 600 rounds per minute.

The Colt automatic is another very popular type, very similar to the Maxim, and with about the same rate of fire. It weighs only about 40 pounds. The Lewis is similar to the Colt gun, but about two pounds lighter.

The Maxim, Colt and Lewis are all highly scientific machines of the deadliest kind; machine guns in the highest sense of the word.

LIGHT, HEAT, COMFORT!

The proprieto of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the ost widely known and best frequented shop in the district." He was asked to explain. Holding up three fingers he said, "I believe in the trinity of LIGHT, WARMTH, COMFORT. I should dazzle the moths until the candle drew them, I should bring them into a warm, comfortable shop, filled with a soft, pleasing radiance, and the rest is-well, mere child's play."

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside tt. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would come of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would come of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would come of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would come of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would come of dark corners, the intangible feeling that it is not a second to the dark corners and the dark corners are the corners and the dark corners are the dark corners and the dark corners are the ing that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerful--all these are part of its appeal. Truly a shop with an individuality.

We cordially invite all progressive business men to visit our showroom and see our latest Lighting and Heating Appliances, by the adoption of which the ideal outline in the above extract from a London paper may be easily secured. TRAINS.

By GEORGE FITCH,

Author of "At Good Old Siwash." Trains are used to transport freight and passengers, mentioned in the order of their importance, from hither to you. At this particular minute let us consider passenger trains. A passenger train consists of an engine, a baggage car, a conductor, a peanut salesman, a brakeman with throat trouble and several passenger coaches. It is operated on what is known as a schedule, which is America's most popular work of fiction. The schedule shows the time at which the prospective passenger should arrive at the station in order to get a good seat near the stove in the waiting room. Passenger trains are divided into three classes-limited, local and accommodation trains. Limited trains are very fast and only stop for crossings, semaphores, side tracks, cows on the track, hot boxes, orders and coal. They are very luxurious, and are supposed to get you to your destination on time, for which you pay from $5 to $10 extra. This explains the "limited" part. You have to ante before you get on, and there is a $10 limit. Local trains stop at all stations and elsewhere, and are very careless, losing ten minutes here and thirty minutes there with the utmost unconcern, like a messenger boy. They are patronized by the plain people, and are afflicted with prehistoric coaches and newsboys who prey on the passengers and sell them peanut's, figs and Elinor Glynn's latest works in a horse whisper at the end of the car. Local trains run from "Aoughwaw to Sstreech," according to the brakeman, and the next station is "Arglouuuuu." If a man is stubborn about it he can reach almost any town in the country on a local train. A man once travelled from New York to San Francisco on a local train, but it took so much time that he had to walk back. Accommodation trains are compos ed of freight cars and a caboose, in which passengers ride on the floor and the ceiling alternately. Accommodation trains are so named because they frequently wait on a side track while a farmer's hogs get fat enough for him to ship with profit. Waiting for an accommodation train and waiting for a new comet are two operations requiring more misguided patience than anything else on record. Passenger trains transport their patrons to terrestrial points for from two to three cents a mile, and to the Great beyond occasionally without extra charge. In the middle west the rate is two cents a mile, but in the sparsely settled east the povertystricken lines manage to get three cents a mile in most instances.

Apology.

Whereas I entered Mrs. Tapper's touse on Christmas morning while in a state of intoxication and there made use of language which seriously reflected upon the reputation of Mrs. Tapper and her two daughters, and whereas owing to misunderstanding a question addressed to me by the Court, I repeated the Slander in Court. Now I hereby unreservedly withdraw the statement made by me in the Court and beg to state that I know nothing whatever that can in any manner reflect upon the good name of Mrs. Tapper or her two daughters. I regret that I should be the cause of annoyance or trouble to them, and I beg to tender to them this apology for my conduct. I further undertake to pay all the costs of these

And all my days I shall devote to robbing warfare of its goat: I hope to see the nations stand like loving brothers hand in hand, remote from bitterness and strife-and to that end I pledge my life. I now am ready to orate in any town, in any state, which will put up a hundred wheels, and guarantee me bed and meals. I ask the money in advance, because I cannot take a chance on being stung by hayseed grads which hate to jar loose from the scads. Blest be the day when warfare ends! If you believe in peace my friends, and hope to see the whole world free, arrange a lecture date for me, and I from war will take a fall, in schoolhouse, church or village hall, in tabernacle, tent or manse -the money strictly in advance.
