Guelph's Anniversary, This is the Anniversary of the Patron Saint of England, and in honor thereof, and also because of its being the 47th Anniversary since the first tree was cut down on the site where the Town of Guelph now stands, the Union Jack floats from the tower of the Town Hall. Forty-seven years ago the echoes of the crash of the first tree as it fell sounded through the solitudes of what was then a dense forest. Let us recall the graphic description of this interesting ceremony from the pen of its founder, Mr. Galt. After describing his journey from Galt to the place selected for the future town, the talented novelist goes on to say—"We walked to the brow of the neighboring rising ground (a few feet east of the Grand Trunk station) and Mr. Prior having shown the site selected for the town, a large maple tree was chosen—on which, taking an axe from one of the workmen, I struck the first stroke. To me at least the moment was impressive—and the silence of the woods that echoed to the sound was as the sigh of the solemn genius of the wilderness departing for ever. The tree fell with a crash of accumulating thunder, as if ancient Nature were alarmed at the entrance of social man into her innocent solitudes with his sorrows, his follies, and his crimes."

Truly the sound of that falling tree was the last sigh of the genius of the wilderness; for where the forest then stood, there has been built up a prosperous town, with busy streets, and possessing all the life and stir of a business community. The history of Guelph has been marked by steady growth until now in the forty seventh year of its age, its population numbers over 8,000 souls. What it may be in forty seven years more no one can tell, but it possesses all the elements of prosperity, and we have every reason to believe and hope that its progress will be as steady and as solid in the future as it has been in the past. Though it is three years yet to the time, we would suggest that when the fiftieth anniversary comes round, its citizens should mark the event by some celebration fitting to the occasion, and that those then living who came to Guelph at that time or immediately after should have an opportunity of recounting their recollections of its earliest history. There are but few of them now left, and every successive year is making inroads on their ranks.

New York, April 23.—President Watson has submitted a detailed report of Dunan's statements. After enumerating the charges made by Dunan he says that upon an examination of the accounts for six months ending without the usual dividend periods, he found an unusually large sum far beyond the average of former years had been charged as current working expenses, and on this basis the true net earnings did not appear. He states that in declaring a dividend of one per cent. in September last, he acted on Dunan's accounts prepared by himself and submitted as correct, which he then believed. He adds that the business of the road continues good and is in better condition than ever before, and he believes that the recent attempt to injure the credit of this company will result in placing them in greater prosperity than ever before in the minds of the public.

Both animals are lively steppers, and the difficulty will be to keep them down to a walk.

The Town Council of Templeton, Ont., has passed a by-law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors.

Free Trade and Protection.

We find in the Montreal Witness a very timely and sensible letter on free trade and protection from the pen of Goldwin Smith. We cannot give the letter in full, but will pick out for the benefit of our readers a few of the leading ideas it contains:—

"Free trade," he says, "as a rule, is the dictate of common sense in the case of nations, as well as in the case of individual members of the same nation. But to the application of any principle of a practical character there are, or may be, practical exceptions. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred you have only to consider in making a purchase where, at the time, you can get the article best and cheapest. Yet expediency, to say nothing of affection, might lead the strictest of economists to deal with his own son in preference to a stranger, if by so doing he could give his son a start in business, and help him to become self-supporting. So a settler in a remote district might be wise in encouraging a store in his immediate neighborhood, though for a time it might not supply him quite so well or so cheaply as one at a distance.

"Now, in the case of Canada, it is impossible to exclude from view the fact that, as regards our commercial and economical relations, we are a part of the American continent, though politically we are a dependency of Great Britain. Whether we will or not, we must be affected by the fiscal policy of the United States. If the United States choose to adopt a protective policy and to raise the rate of wages by so doing, we cannot prevent this policy from influencing the current of emigration, which is sure to set towards the country in which the highest wages are offered to the emigrant.

"We are all doing our utmost to draw emigration into Canada. But, among friends, it may be whispered that our first business is to stop emigration out of Canada. We already have in Quebec a surplus population which is constantly emigrating to the States. Only the other day I heard of an American employer who called for two hundred French-Canadians, and got them without difficulty. This population, though apparently not equal to the Anglo-Saxon in farming, is of a race remarkable for textile aptitude, for taste in manufactures, and for ready submission to factory organization. If by according to our native manufacturers a moderate amount of protection we could induce our French peasantry to remain at home and to enrich their own country by the produce of their labor, is it certain that we should not be doing that which political economy as the science of enlightened self-interest enjoins? Might not all owners of property and all producers in Canada be speedily indemnified for a slight temporary sacrifice by a great increase of the prosperity of the country? In adopting such a policy we should perhaps be deviating from the general rule which bids us buy in the cheapest market, but should we not be conforming to the higher rule which bids us prefer the greater gain to the less? I have put the case to eminent English economists and have found them unable to deny its force.

"In the case of England there can be no hesitation in adhering to a thorough-going policy of Free Trade. With her vast accumulation of machinery and of organized labor, Free Trade to her is a monopoly of the markets of the world. Yet even England adjusts her tariff to the encouragement of her manufactures; she admits the raw material of manufactures free, while she raises revenue on wine, tea, coffee and cigars. If what are called the natural rights of the individual citizen are to be the absolute rule of our fiscal policy, is not the right of buying where you please, and does not the State violate justice, and exceed the limits of Government equality by interfering with either?

"It is true that protection is liable to abuse both in point of amount and of point of duration; that rings are apt to be formed for the

The Militia.

While the House was discussing the estimates for Wednesday night, Mr. Mackenzie speaking of the appropriation asked for militia purposes, stated that the Government had been seriously considering how they could best remodel and improve the militia force in Canada. It is well known that for a long time the Volunteers have been in a semi-disorganized state, and that the policy pursued by the late Government tended to dishearten this valuable body of men, and utterly to demoralize the force. The Government now propose to place the whole militia force under the command of a Major-General, who will be selected from the British army, and in whom the men will have thorough confidence. The force is to be reduced in number, but the same amount will be expended on it, and it is expected that by following out this plan greater efficiency will be secured in those who remain in its ranks. The Government also propose to establish a military college or school, where students can get a thorough training in military and engineering tactics, as they do at West Point in the States. This school will be located at either Kingston, Montreal or Quebec. By such a course of instruction it is hoped that a greater degree of efficiency in officers and men will be secured, and that while still civilians they will become valuable to the State as soldiers, should their services in such a capacity ever be required. We think that the recommendations of the Government are timely and judicious, and we trust they will be carried out, without delay and with spirit. The men belonging to the force require some encouragement, and something done to put them in good heart, for during the late Administration they were neglected and their services undervalued.

The London Advertiser says:—"Dr. Orton, the accidental member for Centre Wellington, is the recognized butt of the House. His ignorance of Parliamentary rule and etiquette, and overweening conceit, make him an easy victim for his joke-loving companions."

The Tory papers delight in telling their readers about once a week that Mr. Blake and Mr. Mackenzie are not pulling one way, and that the former is not at all friendly to the Government. Mr. Blake gave the lie to all these stories when he said in the House on Monday that he had as much confidence in his friends of the present Administration as was possible for him to have in any Government.

It is amusing to notice how quickly the bottom gets knocked out of the very few charges the Tory press try to fasten on the Dominion Government. The latest instance is a Tory "fact" copied from a New Brunswick paper, which has been going the rounds, to the effect that the Government has been advertising for tenders for cars which had already been contracted for—the call for tenders thus being bogus and for the purpose of covering up a job. The Hon. Mr. Mackenzie gave the story a flat contradiction on Monday night, and so the fact has been changed like all the others into purest fiction.

The North-West Committee.—This Committee is still sitting, and if report speaks true, is obtaining evidence of a most important character in reference to the troubles in Manitoba in 1870-71. It is reported that among other startling revelations Bishop Tache in giving his evidence disclosed the extraordinary fact that at the time the Ontario Government offered $5,000 for the apprehension of Riel, Lieut. Governor Archibald was instructed by the Dominion Government to get Riel out of the way, in fact to give him and Lepine any reasonable amount they might ask on condition of their leaving the country. At the request of Archibald, Bishop Tache communicated with Riel, who agreed to take $3,000 and clear out. This amount was advanced by Donald A. Smith, and paid by the Dominion Government. If this is correct then it affords another proof of the tortuous policy and unprincipled diplomacy practised by Sir John Macdonald.

MR. GLASS AND HIS DETRACTORS.—The Conservative journals raised a great cry when Mr. David Glass was appointed Crown prosecutor at the Goderich Assizes, and said that this was his reward for helping to turn out John A. Macdonald. We notice a correspondence in the Hamilton Times, in which Mr. Glass declines the Crown business at the St. Catharines Assizes, and in a letter to Mr. Mowat gives his reasons as follows:—"When I consented to take the business at Goderich, it did not occur to me that this could be construed as a political favor, because of what had so lately transpired at Ottawa, considering that the two Governments are so entirely distinct from each other. I find, however, that my opponents are even now putting a false interpretation upon this, as they have done throughout in regard to my conduct at Ottawa." Will these journals now be magnanimous to give Mr. Glass credit for his independence and integrity? An important feature in the new Controverted Elections Bill is that the defeated candidate is liable to be petitioned against, as well as the elected one. The one might be guilty of acts of corruption as well as the other, and it is right that the acts of both should be subjected to scrutiny, and if both are found guilty, that they be disqualified.

THE INFLATION BILL.—President Grant has vetoed the bill passed by Congress for the issue of more paper money. He does so in response to the almost universal demand of the press in the Union for a reduction of the paper issue, and a return as soon as possible to specie payments. The question now is, what will Congress do—acquiesce in the decision of the President, or carry through some other scheme?

DEPUTATIONS.—The Finance Minister is besieged with deputations, representing the manufacturing, mercantile and other industries, who are bringing their various claims and grievances in connection with the new tariff under his notice. On Wednesday no less than eleven of these deputations waited on him, all of them keenly alive to their own interests, and presenting their views with considerable ability.

AN HUMBLE FOLLOWER OF G. W.—A good little boy out west undertook to come to the G. Washington on his mother in this way: He cut off the cat's head with the traditional hatchet, and then hid the defunct feline in the meal barrel. When the old lady went for meal to make the "ice cake" for the frugal morning repast, she discovered the cat and interviewed her little son. He said, "I did it, mother, with my little hatchet, but I'll be swizzled if I can tell the whole truth about this little affair." Now, most mothers would have kissed that brave, truthful lad on his noble brow, and kept right on using the meal out of the barrel just the same, but this one didn't. She said: "Come across my lap, my son; come across my lap." He came, and for a while there rose a cloud from the seat of his trousers that effectually hid the son from view, and the old woman now sports goggles and is lavish in the use of eye salve. The good little boy had peppered the seat of his pants.

PENNY POSTAGE.—Great Britain received the penny postage system in an odd sort of way. Rowland Hill saw a poor woman whose husband was away, look earnestly at the outside of a letter, from him and then decline to take it—the postage was too great. He expressed his sympathy, but when the postman was gone, she explained that the letter was "all outside." Her husband and she had agreed upon signs and tokens to be conveyed by lines and dots and variations of the address, so that she could learn without fees that he was well or ill, was coming home soon, or would send her money next week, and so on. The future reformer thought it a pity the poor should be driven to such shifts, and undertook to secure cheap postage for the people, and did it almost unaided.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.
Ottawa, April 22.

In reply to a question put by Col. Higinbotham, Mr. Mackenzie stated that the Government could not, whilst providing all the facilities in their power, undertake so expensive an arrangement as the free passage of immigrants from Quebec to the North-west. In the case of the Menomites, a special contract had been made.

In answer to the same hon. member, The Minister of Militia stated that the question of Brigade Camps was now engaging the attention of the Government.

Mr. Ryan (Montreal) on a motion for papers, brought up the question of the dismissal of the late Harbour Commissioners of Montreal. He supplemented his motion by a long speech in defence of the action of the late Commissioners.

Mr. Mackenzie rebuked Mr. Ryan for what he declared to be a gross and scandalous attack on the Hon. John Young, calculated only to excite unutterable disgust. The papers when brought down would speak for themselves. It appeared that certain parties, favored by the late Commissioners, proposed to do work under contract for $60,000, while an English firm offered to do the work for $35,000. The first named firm, being afterwards allowed by the Commissioners to revise their tender, offered to take the work for $37,500, and in the face of this the Commissioners awarded it to the same persons, a Chicago firm, for $40,000. The result was the dismissal of the Commissioners, which Mr. Mackenzie held was an act rendered imperatively necessary by the circumstances.

The motion was then agreed to. Dr. Brouse then moved for a Committee to consider the propriety of establishing a Bureau of Sanitary Statistics.

Mr. Mackenzie would advise Dr. Brouse to withdraw his motion, and if the Government found they could constitutionally do so, they would themselves bring down a measure to the effect the object desired.

The motion was then withdrawn. The House went into Committee on the estimate.

On the vote for Militia being taken up, Mr. Mackenzie gave a general outline of the scheme of the Government for the re-organization of the force. He desired that in future the Militia should, if less numerous on paper, be better paid and organized, so as to secure a more efficient available arm of defence. It was, he said, clear from experience, that the Militia, in active service, had been saved from disaster by the spirit and devotion of the officers and men rather than by military capacity. The first essential was confidence in their chief, and it was proposed in future to place the whole force under the control of a Major-General of the British army, as a first step in the direction indicated. Then it was intended to establish a military college on the West Point plan, if not so extensive as that establishment, for the thorough training of officers. These young men would receive an education fitting them for other branches of the public service, so as to utilize them in times of peace. There were land and buildings now in possession of the Government at Kingston, Montreal, or Quebec amply sufficient for this institution.

After a conversation, in which Sir John A. Macdonald, Mr. Hillyard Cameron, Major Walker, and Mr. F. Mackenzie of Montreal, took part in a sense generally favourable to the proposed scheme, the vote was carried.

The Committee rose and the House adjourned.

ATTACKS ON THE TAXES.—The Ottawa Times says:—In the days of Cæsar Augustus, we are told, every one, in response to his decree, went to his own city to be taxed. Times are changed, for in the days of Queen Victoria, every one comes to Ottawa to escape taxation. We have deputations here at present, objecting,

- 1st, To the sugar tax.
- 2nd, To the tea tax.
- 3rd, To the tax on shipping material.
- 4th, To the tax on velvets, &c.
- 5th, To the cheap wine.
- 6th, To the tobacco tax.

The day that any Finance Minister imposes a tax that will not be pleaded against by those concerned, we shall expect it to grow dark with sunrise, and that water will run up hill. But taxation is like other evils, one that people must submit to, and one to which they sooner or later get accustomed. Yet, some of the people now protesting against these duties, have been abusing the Government for not rushing into an undertaking that would have cost a hundred and fifty to two hundred millions.

THE ENGLISH-RUSSIAN BARGAIN.—By the treaty between the Queen and the Emperor of Russia for the marriage of the Duke of Edinburgh with the Grand Duchess Marie-Alexandrovna of Russia, it is stipulated that Her Imperial Highness shall not be in any way hindered in the full, free and unrestrained exercise of the religious worship of the Orthodox Church in which she has been brought up. Nevertheless, "of her own free will" she shall accompany her august Consort to the churches established by law in England and Scotland. The children are to be brought up as Protestants. The Emperor of Russia assigned to his daughter two marriage portions of one million rubles, each to bear interest at five per cent. If the Duchess becomes a widow the English Parliament has provided that she shall be paid £6,000 per annum.

THE SOURCE OF THE NILE.—A Cairo correspondent says that Sir Samuel W. Baker really accomplished so nearly nothing by his expedition up the Nile that the Khedive refused at first to pay him for the service he claimed to have rendered. Colonel Gordon, an Englishman formerly of the Chinese Army, is in command of the new expedition, and Colonel C. C. Long, a Marylander, late of the Union Army, is his first officer. The expedition expect to be absent three years, and to achieve what Baker failed to. Their purpose is to explore the sources of the Nile, to suppress the slave trade, and make accessions to the territory of the Viceroys.

CONSIDERATE.—The owners of the Goat Island property are erecting a pavilion a little below the Sister Islands, for the accommodation of excursionists and refuge for those who may happen to be on the island in time of a storm. It will be 40 x 60 feet, covered with a slate roof and finished in ornamental style.

WRECKERS.—During last October a large quantity of flour was washed ashore along the beach of Lake Huron. The "wreckers" in those quarters appropriated about two thousand barrels, contrary to the new Act which requires a report at the nearest Custom House from parties receiving property from wrecked vessels. A penalty of $200 is inflicted for contravention of this law.

FACTS FOR ADVERTISERS.

In this, as in everything else, the best papers will command the best prices. It is cheaper to pay 5s. for inserting your advertisements in a journal having a circulation of 5,000, than to pay 2s. for one that has only a circulation of 1,000. Of this you may be sure, that any journal that inserts advertisements so cheaply, is in fact, an almost worthless medium. If it were really a good one, it would have no need to lower its prices, for its sheet would be better filled without the sacrifice. You may lay it down as a rule that every journal knows its value, and that if it adopts low prices it is because it is conscious that it has a low circulation in number or respectability.—Wilson's Handbook for Advertisers.

Special Notices.

A NUMEROUS CASES OF POISONING
Have occurred from the sale to the public of Hypophosphites, containing strychnine, without being properly labelled, purchasers of Dr. Wheeler's Compound Extract of Phosphates and Calissa are requested not to confound the two preparations, as is frequently done, under the impression that both are of the same medicinal properties. Phosphates are necessary elements of the animal organism and absolutely essential to the composition of every solid and fluid of the human body, and are the natural exciting agents of the functions of nutrition, and determine perfect cell formation and the growth of tissues. For supplying the waste resulting from mental and muscular exertion there can be no substitute for Phosphates while the system remains chemically constituted as it is. Attributing the effects of strychnine to the action of hypophosphites has led to false deductions and errors in practice, and greatly misled the public in their true interests.
