Now that the Dominion government has decided to go on with the erection of public bnildings as a part of after war reconstruction and as a means of creating work for the unemployed, would it not be well for the Watford Council to apbe well for the Walford Council to approach the government in regard to the erection of the new postoffice here. The site was purchased, the plans and specifications made and the money voted by parliament before the war broke out, so there does not seem to be any good reason why the erection of the building should not be proceeded with this coming spring. #### Address and Presentation

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. George Kells, twelfth line east, on Friday, Feb. 14th, when the members of the Willing Workers Patriotic League and their immediate friends gathered together to welcome home the boys who had gone from the vicinity to serve their country in France. Quite a lengthy program had been prepared consisting of recitations, speeches, instrumentals and patriotic sougs and pared consisting of recitations, speeches, instrumentals and patriotic songs and owed its success in a great measure to the goodnatured and genial style of the chairman, Mr. Proctor Hall, One very pleasing feature of the program was the song, "When your boy comes back to you," very sweetly rendered by the Junior members of the Willing Workers. Lance-Corporal C. M. Brain and his brothers, Ptes. Will and Burt Brain, were called and each presented with solid gold signet rings and cuff-links. The address was read by Miss Mattie Sawyers and signed by Mrs. John Hall, president, and Mrs. Andrew Page, secretary of the Willing Workers Patriotic League.

Distinguished Liberal Leader Passed Away Monday. State Funeral on Saturday.

(Ottawa, Feb. 17th.) Sir Wilfred Laurier, the illustrious leader of the Liberal party of Canada for many years, died at his home on Laurier avenue at 2.50 o'clock this (Monday) afternoon. Death was due to paralysis, the first attack of which he experienced at noon yesterday. There were three successive attacks, causing complete paralysis.

The distinguished stateman had been in particularly good health all the winter contemplating with great interest the intending session of Parliament with its reflective influence upon the political situation. He was out on Saturday and went home in the evening after attending to an always extensive correspondence.

On Sunday morning he had a weak turn followed by a light stroke; at noon there was a second rupture on the brain paralysis turn followed by a light stroke; at noon there was a second rupture on the brain and though he rallied and regained consciousness, a third attack at midnight carried him to the end. He never regained consciousness, though now and then he would press the hands of those who tenderly administered to him. His death was most peaceful.

The last rites of the Catholic Church were administered during the night by the Rev. LeJeune of the Sacred Heart Church.

Church.

Many personal friends gathered at his home after the news of his serious illness became known. At about noon a marked weakening of his pulse was noticed. The attending physicians declare that it was only his great vitality which kept him alive for so long after the stroke which was in every way serious.

All day and to-night hundreds of cables and telegrams convered to his corrowing and telegrams conveyed to his sorrowing helpmate expressions of most profound sympathy. Honored in life by the high-est gift at the hands of his countrymen, he will be accorded in death all the tri-bute the state can bestow.

Sir Wilfrid's remains will be buried in Ottawa, the city of his adoption, to which he had an unswerving devotion. The funeral, under the auspices of the Dominion Government, will take place on Saturday next Saturday next.

CHOP STUFF

It is the intention of the park commission of Walkerville, this year to Eave every tree in Walkerville sprayed wheth-er they are on the boulevards or on private property, and to further this intention they have purchased a large capac-ity metor sprayer. The spraying will be done under the supervision of A. E. Tal-bot, who has been re-appointed San Jose scale inspector.

While sitting near the stove in her home at Walkerville, last Thursday, the clothing of Mrs. Chas. Morand caught fire and she was badly burned before assistance could be rendered.

The residence of Stanley Jones, 16th ideroad, Dawn, near Florence, was troyed by fire at noon, Wednesday, Feb. Very little stuff was saved.

A number of reports are coming in from farmers in the vicinity of Wingham that a number of horses are going blind. It seems to be a disease starting with sore yes and gradually turns to blindness.

Thorold has decided to observe Friday of each week as welcoming day for the soldiers returning home during the previous seven days.

Charles Fletcher, aged 11 years, son of Albert Fletcher, of Ridgetown, was knocked down by an automobile driven by a woman in Detroit and died soon afterwards.

Madeline Cook, 15 months old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Cook of Kingsville, fell into a tub of water and was drowned while the mother was absent from the house for a few minutes.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The American Women's club in London carries on all kinds of philanthropy, not only among the American women there, but people from all countries.

There is one thing of which the Canadian newspapers cannot be accused, and that is of being the recipients of blood money during the war. The newspapers did much during the war and made nothing.

The Dominion is now paying $12,-000,000 a month to soldiers and sheir dependents, and it is the belief of Major-General J. G. Langton, paymaster of the Canadian army, that the total will grow to $150,000, 000 in the current year.

Brantford Expositor: - Britain's position as financial centre of the war has been shaken in spite of her huge war bill. The "shopkeepers of England, are quite able to meet their bills and then find a reserve in their stockings or elsewhere. As in Napolean's day, so in the great war. Lloyd George's "silver bullets" has much to do with the result.

Former Russian Leaders,

With But Few Exceptions, Killed by Revolutionists

THERE are the men whom we considered the greatest of living Russians two or three years ago? Nobody knows. When we ever hear their names nowadays it is in reports of their deaths, or later in denials that they have been assassinated. Hardly a single Russian who was prominent in the war is known definitely to be living and taking any part in public affairs. Despite conflicting reports the Czar is probably dead. With the Czar has disappeared most of the Grand Dukes, a dozen or more of them. They have been murdered if discovered by the Bolsheviks, and if they are not dead they are in hiding or making their way painfully in the direction of some neutral country. Their estates have been confiscated; their wealth either seized by the alleged Government or distributed by the mob. Grand Duke Michael, brother of the late Czar, is said to be in Siberia.

There is a report that the Grand Duke Nicholas, the commander-inchief of the Russian armies, and considered the greatest military leader developed by the war up to that time, is hiding in Southern Rus-

GEN. BRUSILOFF.

There is probably no Russian who played any considerable part in the war who made such an impression upon the outside world as this Grand Duke.

Grand Duke.

Another able Russian general was Alexiev, formerly chief of staff, who reorganized the armies after the defeat of 1915. He was recently reported in command of some froops opposing the Bolsheviki, in the Don, but his fate is uncertain. Gen. Korniloff, another hero of the war, may be alive. He was reported to have escaped through the Caucasus and Persia and to have joined Gen. Allenby. It is odd, if this report is correct, that there would not have been oy. It is odd, it this report is conrect, that there would not have been an official confirmation of it from British headquarters, though it is conceivable that the Government might have sufficient reason for giving no information as to the whereabouts of such an influential leader as Korniloff. Brussiloff, the hero of the Galician victories in 1916, is known to be dead. He was killed in Moscow. Ruszky, too, is reported to have been assassinated.

Turning now to the civil heads of the nation, it is known that Premier Gollitsyn, who held office before Kerensky seized power, is in hiding with a heavy price upon his head.
He will be remembered for his failure to oppose the revolution when it rect, that there would not have been ure to oppose the revolution when it came. His predocessor, Trepoff, is in Stockholm and is supposed to be came. His predecessor, Trepoff, is in Stockholm and is supposed to be trying to organize some opposition to the present regime. Little need be expected of him. He was a bureaucrat, but a weakling. Sturmer, whom Trepoff succeeded in office, is dead, and nobody mourns him. He was a traitor, a German by ancestry and a German by inclination, who contributed more than the Czar to the unpopularity of Czardom. He sold out the Russian armies, and tried to lead Russia into a separate peace. He had no more principle than either Lenine or Trotzky. Had the monarchy survived he would have tried to do for Germany what Trotzky and Lenine were able to do after it had been destroyed. Sturmer died in prison.

One of the most despicable of Russians is one of the few who was able to escape from the country. This is Sukhomlinoff, former Minister of War, who betrayed Roumania and tried to deliver a Russian army into the hands of the enemy. He was arrested and put on trial for high treason by the Provisional Government, but when the Bolshevists or three Merensky he was released, when he had been a mod friend of leave the country. Protopopoff, formerly Minister of the Interior, who was an unspeakable tyrant and traitor, died in an asylum. Most of the leaders of the Provisional Government which reserved to the Provisional Government of the rement which preceded the Bolshevists are either dead or fugitives. Prince Lvocv is in Parts. Miluakov is said to be on his way there. Guchkov was assassinated. It is said that military leaders who were distinguished in the war, some of them remerals, are supporting themselves. generals, are supporting themselves by selling matches and shoe laces in Petrograd and Moscow. Notable service in the war against Germany s the most dangerous badge in Russia to-day.

BLACK SIBERIA.

Brief Sketches of Scene In an Asiatic

Poor lonely lives were lived with-in the walls of those camps. I know a major whose main occupation became to gather cigarbands: others gave all their attention to stamp col-lections. Petty things occupied a great place. Another major had his watch still Austrian time (he had been taken prisoner three years ago), and he told me with delight that he never had changed it. Everything is and he told me with delight that he never had changed it. Everything is done with the utmost care, slowly, because there is so much time. Written letters look like printed ones. They are illuminated with red and black ink, with here and there an underlined word. Writing that letter was a relief, hence, it was necessary to spend as much time on it as posto spend as much time on it as possible.

Others spent half of the day with Others spent half of the day with their dog, teaching it tricks, so that sometimes dogs became camp famous. And then big differences of opinion would arise because A's dog had had puppies and T had given them to friends, and they were now spoiling the little gardens of other comrades. Hence, the camp would be divided into dog owners and non-dog owners, and the matter would be taken very seriously. Some dogs be taken very seriously. Some dogs would disappear mysteriously and the whole affair would be the main topic for months.

Another time it would be pigs in-Another time it would be pigs instead of dogs which claimed the attention of all. A certain mess decided to raise pigs, which example was soon followed by other messes. Now the difficulties that those pigs brought into the camp were enormous. The camp was very small and one mess had used the space between two tennis-courts for a pen, and another a place near the hospital. At once the doctor and the president of once the doctor and the president of the tennis club protested, so all the pigs were put together in one pen. All went well until the pigs had small ones, and then there came the problem how to divide the spoils be-tween Austrian and Hungarian messes. One proposed in earnest to paint half of them yellow and black (Austrian colory) and the other half (Austrian colors), and the other half red, white, and green (Hungarian colors), so as to keep track of them. The end of it was that the Russian commander forbade pigs in camp, and during the next few weeks nothing but pork was eaten.—Scribner.

City of Gotham.

"City of Gotham" is a nickname of foreign origin with no particular applicability. Gotham is the name of an ancient village in England, whose inhabitants, according to tradition, once escaped a burdensome duty about to be put upon them by feigning stupidity. This smart trick in pretending to be fools gave rise to the expression "the wise men of Gotham" and the story of "the three wise men of Gotham who went to sea in a bowl." The name was first applied to New York city in a humorous magazine called "Salmagundi," started in 1807 by Washington Irving and two or three others, in which they made fun of the pretentions of "City of Gotham" is a nickname ing and two or three others, in which where made fun of the pretentions of some of the "wise men of Gotham," meaning the New York of that day. The magazine was read, the funmaking approved, and the nickname became permanent.

was a nobleman of considerable wealth, and the future Pope began his clerical career with the advantage of the best education money could procure. He is regarded as a scholarly and gifted man of affairs. In his first encyclical, issued Nov. 1, 1914, he said: "The immense spectacle of a general war has struck us with unutterable horror and sadness."

Fish Kilfed by Cold.

It has been proved that sudden cold sometimes causes the death of thousands of fish in the shallow waters of the tropics and subtropics. Many species are so chilled as to become helpless, and either killed directly by drowning or are washed ashore in a comatose state. The phenomenon is known locally as "freezing," although the temperature of the water may be several deture of the water may be several degrees above the freezing point.

Montekoe, a Hollander.

The first Berlin newspaper was printed in 1661 in the reign of the Elector of Brandenburg. The paper was edited by Cornelius Bontekoe, a Hollander, physician to the Elector. Robert Voelker and Elias Locker, booksellers, were privileged to sell the paper. It was a weekly and appeared Synday morning; the clerks of the booksellers would sell the papers, in winter before, and in summer after church, which was held in the open from May to September. Those of the young men who could not get a seat were allowed to climb in the trees and listen to the sermon. With his wife, Louise, and the children and the household, the Elector went regularly to church. He would, as a rule, remain standing while the Electress and children would occupy seats under the trees.

would occupy seats under the trees. After the closing prayer the newspaper sale commenced at the entrance gate. Rupert Voelker, the first bookseller of Berlin, was allowed to give the Elector a copy. After church the Electress and children would return to the palace, while the Elector would enter a palanquin and be carried to the Lustgarden. There he would read the paper, and then give audience to artists and other one Sunday a man was introduced who entertained the Elector (who believed in the appearance of the devil in some form or another) with a story which had happened to a farmer of the Review of the Rev er at the Berlin gate.

"At the Berlin gate," he said, "the farmer's horses stopped suddenly. He farmer's horses stopped suddenly. He left his wagon to coax them to go, but coaxing and cursing would not take them a step farther. The farmer turned his head and saw an ugly woman on his wagon, blaspheming God and promising the farmer wealth. Then the farmer said: 'All good spirits,' the woman did not move. The farmer got angry and said: 'Will you ride? Then ride in Jesus' name,' and the woman, the devil, vanished from the wagon."

The Elector was greatly interested in the story and ordered the physician-editor to have the story published in the next issue of the paper as ed in the next issue of the paper as a lesson to others, not to be tempted by riches. Current news was not al-lowed to be published, court functions and fables would find more fav-or with the Berliners. A bookseller from Leipzig came to Berlin to publish another paper, which was promptly forbidden by the Elector, who considered one newspaper suffi-cient for Berlin.

But Verdun was the great test. When the new marshal reached the Meuse citadel, the Germans had taken Douaumont, advanced nearly seven miles, and were almost at the last line of defence. To organize his defence Petain had first to counter attack with the elements that were just beginning to arrive while he created a line of resistance. He had to restore order out of confusion, to recreate confidence, sorely shaken. A situation as critical as that which confronted Foch when he took command last spring confronted Petain in the last days of February, 1916.

an the last days of February, 1916.
All this Petain did. Within a few days his new army could accept his watchword, "They shall not pass," and make it their own. Nothing in French history is finer than the story of Verdun, and Petain was the soul as well as the brain of that epic.

After Verdun the politicious chose

After Verdun the politicians chose Joffre, grown old and weary. It was an unhappy choice, and Nivelle's great failure at the Aisne in April and May of 1917 for the moment shook the morale of the French army and the French pation. Once were and the French nation. Once more France turned to Petain, and this time he repeated his Verdun achleve-ment on a vast scale. He reorganized the entire French army. He restored confidence, discipline, he transformed the situation in such fashion that in a few months he was able to win a new victory at Verdun and a shining success at the Aisne in taking Fort Malmaison.

The full fruits of his labors' were revealed in the fashion in which the French army was rushed to the res-cue of the situation in Picardy last cue of the situation in Picardy last spring, after the defeat of the Fifth British Army and while the Germans threatened to separate the French from the British. A finer feat than that of Fayolle's forces can hardly be recalled in all this war. From that moment onward Petain suffered by the rapid expansion of the reputation. of Foch. That the Allied commander-in-chief was the greater soldier will probably be the judgment of history, that he owes much to the loyal and competent aid of Petain is unmistak-able. That they worked together in complete harmony at all times is a complete harmony at all times is a tribute to the patriotism of each.

It is said that Joffre, Foch and Petain will be the only marshals of France created by this war. If there are additions one may hope to see included the name of Castelnau, who saved Nancy and made the Marne victory nossible in 1914. And Marne victory possible in 1914. And it Castelnau receives his batch, an equal claim may be urged for Franchet d'Esperey, whose army defeated that of Bulow at the First Marne and shared in the later long campaigns in France. Subsequently it was d'Esperey who won the recent victory of the Cerna-Vardar in the Orient and smashed Bulgaria and Mitteleuropa at a single blow. There remains Mangin — the Ney of the present struggle—who at Verdun and in all the recent battles revealed the spirit of his great Napoleonic predecessor, "the bravest of the brave." decessor, "the bravest of the brave."

Troops available for demobilization in France are daily going to England, but this movement is not large owing to the difficulty of moving troops in France. For the moment soldiers in England have the preferential chance of getting home, but it is hoped this will be equalized later by the establishment of a concentration camp in France and direct trans-

The Canadian corps at the front will be demobilized by units, which will enable Canadian committees to extend a welcome to their home battalions. # Make The Returning Soldier Welcome

THIS is an important hour for Canada. nation is entering on a new era. It is passing from war to peace. Let us start this new era right. There are thousands of soldiers returning from overseas. The Government is doing all in its power to get these men back to civil life.

It is giving a War Service Gratuity—more than any other nation—to keep the soldier going till he

It gives him a pension—where his usefulness is impaired by his service.

It teaches a man a new trade when his service unfits him for his former trade.

It gives him free medical treatment when illness recurs, and supplies free artificial limbs and surgical appliances.

It is bringing back to Canada at the public expense the soldiers' dependents now overseas.

But the Government, however willing, cannot provide the personal touch needed in this work of repatriation. That must be given by the people themselves.

The men who went from these parts to fight in Flanders deserve a real welcome home—the best we can give.

In most towns committees of citizens have already been organized to meet the soldiers and their dependents at the station, to provide hot meals, supply automobiles, afford temporary accommodation when necessary.

In addition, many other towns are organizing social gatherings to give public welcome to returned men after have been home a few days.

After he has rested, the soldier must be provided with an opportunity for employment. In towns of 10,000 population, Public Employment Offices have been established to help soldiers, as well as war-workers, secure good jobs quickly. Where these exist, citizens should co-operate. Where they do not exist, the citizens themselves should help put the soldier in touch with employment.

The fighting job is done. It has cost many a heart-burning. But it has been well done. The least we can do is to show our appreciation in no uncertain manner.

Don't let the welcome die away with the cheers.

More Maple Sugar

Last year's crop of maple sugar and syrup is all gone. Prices this year will be just about as profitable. The export trade is developing. What the dealers want is more maple sugar, more maple syrup, and better quality. Make your maple bush pay this year by tapping all the trees you can handle. As far as the boiling goes it is just about as easy to handle the sap of 5,000 trees as 500.

A Horse Is a Horse

By Archie Cameron New

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspa per Syndicate.)

A mighty crowd of men, all ages, colors, and of various states of servitude, seethed, surged and jostled each other, in the bed of Pelham street, their faces all turned towards Marks' auction stables, and their eyes impa-tiently fixed on a large red stand to the left of the open concourse. There were those bent on grim bargaining, and many of these were now turning into the street from the large concourse, to swell the larger throng of those gathered from mere curiosity, to see and not to buy.

And now the stellar attraction, a stalwart athlete, whose muscles of iron were almost visible through the blue suit that he wore, emerged from the stable offices, accompanied by a purplish rotund individual, whom many recognized as Marks. But every one present, doctors, lawyers, merchants and chiefs, soldiers in uniform, and bums without them, knew the other and proclaimed the fact as they surged again towards the red stand. "Jack Bedford," "yea, you Jack,"

"oh, you big boy," and the like rang out, as the former well-known light weight champion of the fistic ring bowed his smiling acknowledgment to the crowd. But Marks knew what he was there for, and stepped promptly to the front of the stand, while Bedford lightly vaulted over the side and was immediately swallowed up in a circle of admiring fans.

"Gents, y' know what yer 'ere for,' he announced, cryptically. "Jack Bedford, former champion lightweight and late of Boethron's circus, has brought his entire string of horses here t' be sold. Not t' be given away; y'understand! Loosen up yer purse-strings, gents. Tear th' string off yer rolls, an' let yer biddin' be fas' and furious. Jed, bring out No. 1." Marks gave the command over his left shoulder, and soon a hostler paraded before stand, leading the first of Bedford's magnificent stock of horses.

"One hundred," sang out a short fat man, with a whip in his hand, as the big bay mare again passed in front of the stand, and Marks glared at the bidder scornfully.

"We're not sellin' th' hoofs," he barked out. "This 'ere animal goes in one piece. Gents, do I 'ere any more? Hunnerd'n twenty-five? Thankee, sir. Now fifty! Fifty, ataboy! Now seventy-five! Remember, these are prime stock, not platers."

Bedford, at the side of the stand, disengaged himself for a moment from the recital of a wrinkled old fan, "who'd seen every lick between Sulliyan and Sharkey, yes, sir," and stepped up to a large, red-faced man close

"Do bid 'em up now, Jim," Bedford whispered hastily in the other's ear. "But watch your step! Get out from under if you see the bidders weaken-in'. You know the rest."

The man nodded grmily and went to the front of the stand, where he was soon engaged in "boosting the bid-

Meanwhile, one of the hostlers, standing at the entrance to the stables, felt a timid touch on his sleeve, turned with a gruff exclamation, which died on his lips as his mouth opened slowly. For facing him was a dainty little miss, whose brown curls dangled becomingly under a smart little hat, and whose saucy, bright eyes shone on him appealingly.

"Beg pardon, Miss," he said, doffing his cap. "What'd y' say?"
"May I go in there?" she asked, in a low tone, at marked variance with the shouts in the street. She pointed to the stables, packed with Bedford's

"Sorry, Miss," was the apologetic answer. "It's 'gainst th' rules. Buyers wuz allowed in before the sale, but not now. You'd get hurt. Th' boss won't "low it."

"Oh, no," she spoke up, brightly. "1 wouldn't get hurt. I'm used to horses. Besides, I know 'em all—every last one in there."

Then, as he wavered, she pressed a "clincher" into his palm.
"I'll bet you I won't get hurt," she told him, with a twinkle in her eyes. "And I'm paying my bet in advance." "I can't go in there, June," said a slightly older girl at her side. "I'm

The Pill That Leads Them All .- Pills The Pill That Leads Them All.—Pills are the most portable and compact of all medicines, and when easy to take are the most acceptable of preparations. But they must attest their power to be popular. As Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the most popular of all pills they must fully meet all requirements. Accurately compounded and composed of ingredients proven to be effective in regulating the digestive organs, there is no surer medicine to be had anywhere.

"Never mind," June replied, promptly. "You wait here." And then, holding her smiling "spell" over the host-ler, she entered the stable. She went among the horses, patting them as she moved among them, and then, apparently finding the object of her search, she flew to the side of a big white horse, with a black splotch right over his right eye.

"Freckles!" she exclaimed, delight-

"You dear old fellow!" The animal addressed looked toward her, and then, with a loud "neigh," started toward her.
"Look out, Miss," cried the hostler, warningly. "He'll—"

edly.

And then, as Freckles stopped in his tracks and rubbed his head against her shoulder, the hostler looked on in amazement.

"Why, Miss, he knows you!" "Certainly he does!" came her happy answer. "We were chums for a whole year, weren't we, Freckles?" Then she turned to the hostler. "Are you going to-sell-him-too?"

"A borse is a horse," was the grim answer. "Sure he gets sold. If you want, I'll bring him out for you next." 'What!" she cried, taken aback.

"What!" sne cried, taken about "Out—there—in that mob?"
"Have to," he snapped. "No hoss sold private t'day, Miss. Y' kin bid on though."

And then, treating the matter as settled, the hostler moved away, while June stood for a moment, in indecision, then, setting her lips firmly, she moved out among the men. According to promise, Freckles was led out before the stand and Marks called loudly for a bid.

"One hundred," answered an old stable-man almost at June's elbow, and unseen by him she darted a resentful glance at his back, then turned to her companion. "A hundred dollars-for Freckles!" she repeated scornfully. "Why not?" was the calm retort.

"He's only a horse." "Only a horse Freckles? Why-"Fifty," sang out another voice, and June turned her face back to the stand.

"That's it, gents," interposed Marks, raucously. "He's th' prize of th' lot. Not a pimple on 'im. Solid gold, as he stands. Any more?"
"Two hundred!"

Marks looked, and then grinned broadly.

"Good," he commanded, beaming on "Th' wimmin are mixin' in. Two twenty-five? Now fifty, missy? Fifty, 'at's it. Don't let 'im beat y'. Now seventy-five? Right. Now, Miss, three hundred." June trembled violently, then looked into a small reticule, while her companion tugged anxiously at her sleeve. "June, are you crazy?" she demand-"Come a-" "Two seventy-five once, two seventy-five twice—are you all done— "Three hundred." June's voice now sounded louder, as a hush fell on the "Three twenty-five," sang out Bedford's man gruffly. Another urge from Marks, and then "Three thirty" came her bid, in a choked gasp.

"Any more?" demanded Marks, but Bedford's man weakened, and a moment later Marks sang out: "Sold—to the little charmer-what's the name, Miss?"

"June Bonner," she answered, and then Bedford dropped an admirer's hand and rushed into view.

"June!" he exclaimed happily, then noting the curious glances of the crowd he took her arm and led her into the offices, and shut the door. "June, what brings you here?"

"I—I wanted—to save Freckles!"

she told him, with a little sob, and then related the rest about the sale. "And you were—bidding—against Jim Madden?" he echoed, in horror.

"Th' sale's off! The idea—he bidding against—you!"
"Oh, Jack, please—"
"The sale's off," Bedford repeated, then he grasped her hands in his. "But Freckles is yours—a present from me. I'm making enough out of the rest. I'm going to take the money and go into business—dry goods, or something like that."

"And you're-not going to fightany more?" she whispered, gazing into his eyes.

"No, I'm through!" he announced, then he grasped her hands eagerly. "But, June, will that make any difference? Tell me, will it?"

"It might," she whispered, glancing at him shyly, then lowered her eyes, as he reached out his arms." "And you'll take me — with Freckles?" he demanded hoarsely. "And give up circus-riding? Will you make the same sacrifice for me—as you were about to make for Freckles?" "A horse is a horse," she answered, whimsically. "But—but—you're Jack Bedford." And then two warm arms stole up around his neck.

EARTH'S CRUST NOT RIGID

Scientist's Statement Will Be Matter of Some Surprise to the Average Layman.

To the layman nothing may seem more rigid than the crust of the earth, but men of science say that it bends and buckles appreciably under the pull of the heavenly bodies. Observation has shown that the shores on opposite sides of a tidal basin approach each other at high tide. The weight of water in the Irish sea, for example, is so much greater at that time that the bed sinks a trifle, and in consequence pulls the Irish and English coasts nearer together. Thus the buildings of Liverpool and Dublin may be fancied as bowing to one another across the Channel, the deflection from the perpendicular being about one inch for every sixteen miles. It has also been shown that ordinary valleys widen under the heat of the sun and contract again at night.

Alphabet of Souls.

The part which gesture plays in Oriental drama is set forth in a recent Hindu volume, which says that there is a fitting gesture to represent every emotion. The gesture, in fact, is described as deaf-and-dumb alphabet of the soul. There are nine movements of the head, corresponding to nine emotions, mentioned by one authority, 24 by another; 28 movements of the single hands, and 24 or 26 of the double hands, etc.; also "hands" denoting animals, trees, oceans and other things. For example, a certain position of the hands denotes a certain emperor, caste or planet. The translator says rather naively that only a cultivated audience can appreciate Indian "actor's art."

Canadian Whale-Canning.

A Canadian whaling company has been canning whale meat for a number of months in British Columbia. In a letter to the Commercial Intelligence Branch of the Canadian De-partment of Trade and Commerce, it

"Owing to the demand for whale meat for food we have erected a can-nery where we expect to pack 30,000 to 50,000 cases of whale meat this season. We have also erected three cold storage plants to handle frozen whale meat. We also own and operate two freight steamers, one of which has a cold storage capacity of 500 tons. The species of whales taken on this coast yields three to twelve tons of prime meat, and only the prime meat is used by us at the present time for canning or freezing for food. At our plants the meat is handled in an absolutely sanitary manner, and to this end we have gone to considerable expense. Owing to the whale being a hot-blooded mammal, many of the whales brought into our stations are unfit for food, as they are sometimes captured at great distances from the stations, and whales that have been killed over twenty-four hours are not used for this purpose. Samples of our canned product are only now being sent out to prospective buyers, and we have not at present made any large sales in this country or the United States, although we have shipped 1,000 cases to Samoa and Fiji. For the frozen product, however, we already have orders for over one thousand tons, the bulk of which is being ship-ped to Boston. Our whaling season opens about April 1 and ends about October 15. Up to the present we have put up about 18,000 cases of meat at our cannery."

Repairing and Renewing Broken Equipment in Time.

Handy Hints for Repairing Machin-ery, Harness, Gates and All Other Breakable Farm Equipment—If Work Is Done Before Spring Rush Many Valuable Hours Will Be Saved at a Time When Delay Spells Greatest Loss.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THE time for a systematic overhauling of the farm equipment is at hand. Repairing at home means saving in two ways—a saving of expense and a saving of time.

Before attempting to take a machine apart it is well to thoroughly look over it to gain a clear idea of the general arrangement and location of the parts. Machines with few parts or parts whose relations are quite obvious, do not require to be marked, but machines whose parts are numerous and similar in size and in appearance should be given distinctive marks—similar marks being put on adjoining parts. These marks may be centre-pops arranged in devices so: ., ., .;, or letters stamped upon surface of the parts where there is no frictional contact.

In the stress of a busy season a broken tooth of a gear can be fixed up in a few minutes, and if properly done gears so repaired will often last an indefinite time—often many years. Chip and file the broken tooth down Draw centre line of

be made by tapping the plugs into the rim (Fig. 6).

To mend harness by sewing procure a couple of strong needles, a ball of high-grade flax shoe thread (No. 8), a ball of cobbler's wax, a straight and bent awl, and a clamp to hold the work. The clamp can be made from two oak barrel staves (Fig. 1). The thread should be made in length and strength according to the work to be done. For light work from 3 to five strands will suffice, for medium, like lines and girths, from 6 to 8 strands; and for heavy stitching, as tugs and breeching, it will require as tugs and breeching, it will require from 9 to 15 strands. Break the thread by rubbing it down upon your knee, with your right hand, and give it a sudden jerk. It should break in a long ragged end. The ends should be placed together so as to form a long tapened point. Hold strands together in your left hand. With wax in right hand draw it over the ends a few times, enough to keep them together. Now throw strands over a nail, draw ends even, twine the end in left hand over foretwine the end in left hand over fore-finger, and rub the other end down on the right knee with the right hand. When well twisted rub on more wax. Thread a needle on each end, draw the thread through the eye for about two inches. Bend back the points of the thread and twist them well into the body of the thread (Fig. 12) (Fig. 1a).

Pierce a hole in the work with a straight awl and insert a needle into the hole drawing the thread halfway through (Fig. 1b). Pierce another hole and pass a needle through for two or three inches. Through the same hole draw the other needle. With a thread in each hand pull them both quite tight. Repeat. Keep stitches straight and uniform in length (Fig. 1c).

For joining two pliable surfaces together in emergency there is, perhaps, nothing so handy, so strong and so neat as a rivet. An assortment of rivets should be kept on hand, both of soft iron tinned and of solid copper (Figs. 2, 3, 4). The split end clincher rivets are suitable for leather or stout woven material, for leather or stout woven material, as saddle girths and head halters; iron or copper flat head washer rivets may be used for leather, cloth, thin metal and for even thin strips of metal and for even thin strips of wood (Fig. 5).

The wagon is an important factor in the daily routine work of the farm, and should be kept in good running order, but it requires special consideration and experience to profitably repair the wheels, for unless the proper taper and "gather". less the proper taper and "gather" is given to the spindle, and the axle set the right way, it will result in a hard-running wagon, the wheel grinding on the collar or nut instead of playing easily between them. The farmer, however, can attend to loose spokes, tires and hub bands, checked hubs, etc. After renewing the brok-en parts and tightening up tires and loose skeins, clean the wagon thor-oughly, fill the checks with some good filler and give the whole a coat of paint. This will preserve the wood and prevent shrinking. A broken shaft or tongue may be efficiently spliced with hoop iron as shown in Fig 7. The iron can easily be bent round close by fixing one end first and then pulling it over with one hand and tapping it with a hammer Assume a broken rail of a gate, hay or stock rack. The old bar or rail is sawn off about a foot from the down rail L as shown by dotted line in sketch 8a. A short piece of new stuff is then driven into the mortice in the head (B) and out off the right stuff is then driven into the mortice in the head (B) and cut off the right length; the two are then nailed together as shown at 8b in part plan. If broken at A (Fig 8) the splicing may be made as shown in sketch by wrapping hoop iron round it, or by nailing on each side strong strips of hardwood as at D (Fig. 8).

One of the first places for a gate to get rotten is at the junction of brace and bar or back caused by wet lodging there. The only way to fix this is, as shown at C (Fig. 8) by nailing strip of hardwood firmly to

HISTORY OF DYNAMITE

IT WAS INVENTED BY NOBEL, A SWEDISH SCIENTIST

Some Facts About the Way In Which It Is Manufactured To-day-Careful Enforcement of Rules In Plants Results In Lower Accident Rate Than That of Many "Safe" Industries.

THE manufacture of dynamite was first undertaken on a small scale in 1863-65 by Alfred Nobel, a Swedish scientist. The first manufactured. while extremely crude and dangerous, was wonderfully effective when used under advantageous conditions. Its composition was of nitroglycerin and guhr, which is ordinarily described as an earthly material like Fuller's earth. It is in reality the shell remains of tiny animals and might be described as the "fossilliferous skeletons of diatomaceous infusoria." Whatever its name, this fine material was used to absorb liquid nitroglycerin to form dyna-nduid nitroglycerin to form dynamite.

The early processes of manufacture were very crude, as all mixing and handling were done by hand.

Both production and use were limited, as the blaster of that date pre ferred to use blasting powder, with which he was more familiar, and which he considered safer and more reliable.

The principal objections to the dynamite of that day arose from the fact that the dynamite was extremely sensitive; the guhr did not absorb and hold the nitroglycerin securely, but allowed it to leak out, thereby causing many accidents and the in-ert or inactive nature of the guhr reduced the effective strength of the explosive.

The real value of the new explo-was soon demonstrated, and sive was soon demonstrated, and much experimental work was begun in an effort to overcome the objectionable features. Among the accomplishments in this connection have been the substitution of active dopes or absorbents for inactive guhr, which played no real part in the explosion. This introduced a variety of metaricials the principal of wariety of materials, the principal of which were wood pulp and nitrate of soda, both of which enter into combustion with the explosive material used and add greatly to the effectiveness of the explosive. The wood pulp absorbs the liquids and at the same time is consumed in the explosion while the guhr which it replaces was not. Further progress in the art of ammonia as an economical substitute for part of the nitroglycerin.

comparatively recent years low freezing dynamites were developed, principally by the introduction of

All these changes brought about many improvements in dynamite and made it better suited for various kinds of work. To day there is at class or type of dynamite suited for every kind of blasting, and the process of manufacture has been perfected to a very high standard.

A dynamite plant differs absolutedly from all other factories. There are no large or expensive single buildings, and practically every operation is conducted in small isolated structures, heavily barricaded in order to protect other parts of the certain nitrated co structures, heavily barricaded in order to protect other parts of the plant in case of an explosion.

Two classes of materials — liquids and powders (solids) — are used in making dynamite, and many processes are required to properly prepare and mix them.

The non-explosive solids after being thoroughly tested, dried and screened are transported to buildings known as "dope" houses, where they are weighed and mixed in the correct proportions and amounts. The norare weighed and mixed in the correct proportions and amounts. The nor-mal mixing of dynamite is about 600 pounds, and only enough dope or ab-sorbent is weighed at one time to make this amount. Included with the absorbents are other materials, which act as a stab-ilizer to prevent chemical changes after the manufacture is completed.

From the dope house the dope is taken to the mixing wheels, which are large rubber-shod wheels revolving in a wooden bowl. The dope is placed in the bowl and the wheels placed in the bowl and the wheels run for a few revolutions to get it evenly distributed, when the nitroglycerin together with any other explosive materials of a liquid or solid nature, are added. The wheels are then set in motion and kept running until the materials are thoroughly mixed. The dynamite is now complete and ready to be neglect into complete and ready to be packed into cartridges.

On another line or unit of the plant automatte machines have been busy cutting heavy paper from large rolls, printing the brand and strength of the dynamite on each piece and rolling it into shells or cartridges, each of which is coated inside and out with a thin film of paraffin. paraffin.
In the "punching" house these are placed in large machines that fill each with the proper amount of dy-namite and crimp the open end senamite and crimp the open end se-curely. Each cartridge is then in-spected.

The next step is into the packing house, where the finished cartridges are packed in strong paper-head wooden boxes, each of which has been carefully marked beforehand. The dynamite is then sent direct to the outgoing cars or to the storage maga-zine for future shipment to various parts of the world to perform its misparts of the world to perform its mis-parts of the world to perform its mis-sion in the industrial upbuilding of the world.

On a well regulated plant every effort is made to keep each batch or mixing up to the highest standard of quality and uniform in every respect. To do this many unique and elaborate types of testing equipment are needed and each lot of dynamite is required to pass the most exacting British scientists have succeeded in preserving soap bubles intact for more than a month.
