EAST INDIES.

CALCUTTA, JANUARY 23.

His Majesty's Ship Champion, from Rangoon the 10th inst. arrived yesterday, and Capt. Snodgrass reached Town, with the Dispatches, yesterday evening. Captain Snodgrass brings with him the Preliminary Treaty of Peace.

Government Gazette Extraordinary.

Capt. Dawkins, A. D. C. arrived early this morning, bearing a Dispatch from His Excellency the Commander in Chief, a Copy of which is published for general information.

Head-Quarters, Bhurtpore,

To the Right Honorable LORD AMHERST, Governor General, &c. &c. &c.

MY LORD,

I have the satisfaction to acquaint your Lordship, that the Town and Citadel of Bhurtpore fell yesterday morning to the British Army under my command.

Since my Dispatch of the 11th instant, the whole attention of the Engineers was directed towards the completion of the Mines under the projecting Bastion on the left, and the North East Angle on the right.

On the 14th instant, a Mine under the Bastion on the left was precipitately exploded, and failed in its object. I therefore directed two more Mines to be driven into the Bastion, which were blown on the 16th, and, with the aid of a day's battering, an excellent Breach was made.

The explosion of the Mine under the North East Angle, at eight o'clock yesterday morning was the signal for the storm, when the columns, composed of Brigadier General McCombe's Brigade on the right, and Brigadier General EDWARD'S Brigade on the left, advanced with the greatest order, gallantry, and steadiness, and, notwithstanding a determined opposition on the part of the enemy carried the Breaches. In the course of two hours, though vigorously and bravely defended at every Gate-way and Bastion, the whole Rampart surrounding the town, together with the command of the gates of the Citadel, were in our possession; Major General Nicolls having moved his column to the left, until he met a detachment of His Majesty's 14th foot, commanded by Major Everard, at the Kombeher Gate. The Citadel was surrendered at about four o'clock.

I regret to state that the Mine have exploded in an unexpected direction, several men of His Majesty's 14th foot, at the Head of the Column of attack, lost their lives, and Brigadier General McCombe, Brigadier Patton, and Capt. Irvine, Major of Brigade of Engineers, received severe contusions.

Having directed Brigadier General Sleigh, commanding the Cavalry, to prevent the escape of the enemy's troops after the assault, I am happy to say that he made such a disposition of his forces, that he succeeded in securing Doojun Sal, who with his wife, two sons, and a hundred and sixty chosen Horse, attempted to force a passage through the Eighth Light Cavalry.

I cannot compute the loss of the Enemy at less than four thousand killed, and owing to the disposition of the Cavalry, hardly a man, bearing arms, escaped. Consequently, as by the surrender of the Town, all the Stores, Arms, and Ammunition are in our possession, I may say that the whole Military Power of the Bhurtpore State has been annihilated. The Prisoners, after having been disarmed, were set free.

The Returns of Killed and Wounded have not yet been received, but I am happy to be able to state, that they are few considering the Service on which the Troops have been employed. I, however, transmit a Return of the Officers who have been reported. I regret that the Service has lost three valuable Officers in Captain Armstrong, H. M.'s 14th, Captain Pittman, H. M. 59th, and Captain Brown, of the 31st Regt. N. I. who fell leading their men on the Ramparts. Brigadier General Edwards who was wounded gallantly leading his Brigade, is also, I fear, past recovery.

I have sent this Dispatch by my Aide-de-Camp Captain Dawkins, who will also take two of the Enemy's Standards, of which I request your Lordship's acceptance, and in referring to Captain Dawkins for any further information which your Lordship may require, I beg to recommend him to your protection.

I have the honor to be, My Lord, Your Lordship's most Obedient Humble Servant, COMBERMERE, List of Officers Killed and Wounded in the Assault of Bhurtpore, on the 18th Jan. 1826.

GEORGE SWINTON, Secy. to the Govt.

General Orders by the Right Honorable the Governor General in Council.

FORT WILLIAM, 29th January, 1826.

A Royal Salute and Three Volleys of Musketry to be fired at all the Stations of the Land Forces, serving in the East Indies, in honor of the Capture, by Assault, of the Fortified City of Bhurtpore, on the morning of the 18th inst. by the Army, under the personal Command of His Excellency the Right Hon'ble Lord Combermere, Commander in Chief, and of the Unconditional Surrender of the Citadel of Bhurtpore, on the same day.

By Command of the Honorable the Governor General in Council.

GEORGE SWINTON, Secy. to the Govt.

CALCUTTA, JANUARY 30.

Bhurtpore.—The reduction of Bhurtpore, of which the details are now before the public, in the despatches from His Excellency, the Commander in Chief, is an event, to which it is impossible to advert without indulging in the expression, of that satisfaction, which it has universally excited.— Few occurrences have been watched with more general anxiety or welcomed with greater exultation. Not that any doubt of the termination was entertained, nor any apprehension admitted, that our forces, so admirably constituted and ably commanded, should have failed to triumph. It has been all along anticipated, that this fortress must, and would fall, and the public judgment is confirmed by the result. But, though we have continued to contemplate the scene in the fullest confidence of its ultimate tendency, there is no doubt, that the general tenor of Native feeling has worn a very different complexion, and all the States of Hindostan have looked if not to a total failure, yet to an incomplete success, and another compromise of our military reputation. Nothing could have removed such an impression, short of the circumstances which have occurred—it was necessary to take the place to show that it could be taken, and although, therefore we regret the loss of the gallant individuals who perished in the assault, yet we are satisfied to think that they have not fallen in vain: the capture of the town, by storm, has proved, that Bhurtpore is no exception to the fate of Indian fortresses, and has annihilated the belief, that hostile opposition might find a shelter behind impregnable barriers from British discipline and valour.— That Bhurtpore has kept such hope alive, we know not only from the concurrent voice of popular prejudice, but the recorded testimony of a sagacious and intrepid foe. The Nepal General UMMAH SETH THAPPA employed it as an argument to rouse the sinking courage of his Prince, and animate him to a protracted contest. In the papers relating to the Nepal war that have been published, we find this Chief thus addressing his Raja: "If they will not accept our terms what have we to fear. The English attempted to take Bhurtpore by Storm, but the Rajah RUMJEET SINGH destroyed an European Regiment and a Battalion of Sepoys. To the present day, they have not ventured to meddle with Bhurtpore, and one fort has sufficed to check their progress. In the present day, this can be no longer asserted, that Bhurtpore ceases to be the reliance of secret enemies, the encouragement of open foes, the source of national discredit, and the germ of future warfare.

Independently of these considerations, however, the fall of Bhurtpore is the theme of legitimate congratulation, as an achievement which adds fresh laurels to the British Indian Army, and confirms the high character it so deservedly enjoys.

The success of our operations before Bhurtpore, is the more satisfactory, that they have not endangered the safety of the young Raja BIRAJANT SINGH. He, with a few adherents, fell into our possession and on the morning of the 19th, was restored to the residence of his ancestors. Lord COMBERMERE, and Mr. METCALPE, each leading the led by one hand, conducted him to the palace, at the head of H. M. 15th Regiment. The sight is described, by an eye-witness, to have been highly interesting, and to have filled all the Natives who attended with astonishment and delight. His Excellency the Commander in Chief, with all his suite, breakfasted in the Citadel, after visiting the most remarkable buildings, the high bastion and cavaliers.

DURJUN SAL was to be sent on the 20th, under a guard to Agra, to await the orders of Government. Brigadier MAC COMBE, and his Brigade garrison Bhurtpore.

It appears that the deserter HERBERT was not killed in the assault. He and three others, who were taken, are in course of trial by a Court Martial.

From the Calcutta John Bull.

On the morning of the 18th inst. the hitherto proud and impregnable Fortress of Bhurtpore fell by storm into the hands of His Excellency Lord Combermere, after a siege of nearly one month.

The possession of the Citadel, which still held out, at the dispatch of the express, was looked for in a few hours, as the enemy were totally destitute of the means of holding out, now that the Fort itself had fallen into our hands. At one time the white flag was observed, flying from the citadel; but at the moment of the express coming away, it had been hauled down.

We have just heard that the Citadel surrendered unconditionally, and we believe our readers may rely on the intelligence. Durjun Sal was taken by Cornet Balfour of the Cavalry.

As we may expect the return of the Enterprise from Rangoon, with the ratified Treaty of Peace with Ava, about the 5th or 6th of February, it would appear a very desirable object, that her services should be made available towards forwarding to England the important news both from Rangoon and Bhurtpore, within a shorter period than they can be conveyed by the usual route of the Cape. This might be accomplished by dispatching her to the Red Sea, with a Courier, who should find his way with all speed to Alexandria, and from that to Europe. The gaining by this means of a month, or perhaps six weeks, might on many obvious accounts be attended with the best advantages. Over and above relieving the suspense which must be felt in England as to the result of the late engagement at Promé, and of the siege of Bhurtpore, it might prevent the adoption of measures, which otherwise will scarcely be carried into execution before they are found unnecessary.— We merely, however, throw out the suggestion as one not altogether undeserving of attention, if capable of being carried into effect.

January 31. We have perused Letters from Bhurtpore of the 20th. They speak in high terms of the bravery displayed by the besieged on our Troops reaching the top of the breach—"The French, says our letter, never stood the British bayonet so well." "The enemy were burning their dead in heaps of 50, and the ground was strewed with mangled bodies." "Our letter calculates our killed and wounded at between four and five hundred.— Durjun was sent off to Agra on the morning of the 20th.

Adverting to the suggestion which we threw out yesterday relative to the despatching the Enterprise to the Red Sea, for the purpose of conveying a Courier with despatches for England, announcing the fall of Bhurtpore, and the conclusion of Burman War, if the treaty be ratified, we may venture to affirm, that an early knowledge of these events at home is a matter of such importance, that even if thirty days are gained, the end would in a great measure be answered. Independently however of this consideration, we confess that the attempt would afford us peculiar gratification, as it would put the measure of communication by Steam via Suez to something like a practical test, tho' by no means under the most auspicious circumstances; yet we venture to think the result would justify a future more regular system being attempted. We have ever strongly advocated the passage across the Isthmus of Suez, and nothing has happened to weaken the opinion we have formed of its feasibility—of its importance there can be no question. We are not now disposed to recur to the general subject, which however, would offer a far more promising presage that the particular proposition we now desire to introduce to notice.— The extreme distance from Point Pariras to Suez may be calculated in round numbers, at five thousand miles, and allowing the Enterprise to average 150 miles per diem, she would effect the passage in 34 days, and a Courier proceeding immediately to Alexandria would be enabled to deliver the despatches to the British Consul in Egypt in 43 days at the very furthest, from their leaving Calcutta. Without doubt, the usual period of inter-communication between the British Consul and the Government at home is known here; but in this case it might be deemed advisable to push on the original Courier. We believe there is at all times ready access to the Continent of Europe from Alexandria. The journey from Genoa to London is made in ten days, and if twenty are allowed for the passage across the Mediterranean, the despatches would be in London 70 days after their leaving Calcutta. But we think they would in fact not be longer than sixty. Some objection may be started as to Quarantine; to obviate this let the despatches be placed in a tin case to be inclosed in another, filled with Gunpowder, or any other more suitable ingredient. The authorities on the continent could not object to allow the outer case to be opened—and the inner one to be despatched to our Ambassador at Paris—who would forward it express.

As we hope we may rely with confidence on the ratification of Peace with the King of Ava taking place, we may not be very premature, in looking to the probable consequences of the new political and commercial relations, that will then be established between the two powers. The first that appears to strike us as the most prominent, will be the rapid amelioration of the subjects of his Burmore Majesty, in all the arts and habits of civilized life. From all that has yet been said of the character of this singular people we are led to think that better or more promising objects for civilizing experiments are not to be found in the East. Destitute of every thing like Caste among them, these obstacles to the progress of civilization, which the Hindoos have, do not exist among the Burmese—and do not exist among the Burmese as they are, it is only matter of astonishment that with so little intercourse with more polished nations, they should have made the progress they have done. They appear to have escaped the degrading influence of superstition in a manner quite remarkable; and their minds, if not enlightened by many rays of knowledge, are not at least so pre-occupied by the absurdities of a superstitious system of faith, as to be shut against its entrance when presented to them. A fairer field for the exertions of benevolence and Christian Charity never perhaps presented itself to British exertions and looking to the zeal and ardour lately displayed, to ameliorate the condition and enlighten the darkness of the Eastern world, we cannot doubt that the opportunity about to be afforded by our new relations with Ava, will be eagerly laid hold of.

It is also, we think, allowable to foretell from our new relation with this part of the Eastern Peninsula, that the interest of commerce will be very greatly promoted. The absence of caste comes again to be a circumstance in regard to this people, over which the merchant, as well as the philosopher and the Missionary may rejoice; and when the natural and artificial riches of the country are better known, and the short-sightedness of an Asiatic and Domestic Government superseded by the more liberal and enlarged views, which our relations with Ava will undoubtedly engender, it is not perhaps easy to see the extent, to which a market for the commodities of the western world may be opened. We know enough of the Empire of Ava, to be satisfied, that in general the climate is favourable to human life, and to the production of some of the most valuable articles of commercial interchange; and we believe, that in the new acquisitions of territory on the Coast of Tenasserim, sea ports for their dispersion over vast and populous countries, hitherto little known, will be found.

In a political point of view; it may indeed be objected that as we extend our territories, we must enlarge our measures of defending them, and the consequent expence must swallow up any advantages that a more enlarged trade may offer.— The question is too complicated, and we are yet too much in the dark, as to the character of the people, with whom we are coming into contact, to enable us to judge of the weight of this objection. But we apprehend, that whatever weight it might have in itself, the circumstances, in which our Empire is placed, must always shut our eyes to its consideration. The necessity of enlarging our territory flows from the very nature of our dominion; and to retain power and footing, which we possess, we must consent to stretch that power over countries, which in themselves present no objects, to tempt our ambition, or our avarice.

But perhaps the most immediate advantages, that will be found to flow, from our new relations with Ava, will consist in the light, that will be thrown on the Geography, and National History of this part of the Peninsula. On these subjects, we have hitherto been in the dark, to an extent not very honourable to us, as a scientific nation; but the reproach, we have no doubt, will now soon be wiped away.

We congratulate our fellow subjects in the United Kingdom, on the restoration of good order in the Manufacturing districts, where many had been hurried on to acts of outrage, the cause whereof (the pressure of the times) must be deplored; that no further eleemosynary aid seems necessary, proves a favourable change in their condition, which appears to be in a state of gradual improvement.—While we advert with pride to the brilliant and glorious successes of our Country's Arms in India, we deeply sympathize with Greece, and profess no inconsiderable share of alarm for the perilous state of her rising liberties; let us still, however, not despair that something more may be effected to terminate this war of devastation, horror and blood, by the intervention and negotiations of other powers, than by the desperate valour, the almost incredible heroism of this gallant but devoted people exerted in the best, the most sacred of causes, but, unfortunately, unable to contend with the combination of insulted courage, overwhelming numbers and reckless bigotry.

MELANCHOLY.—On Wednesday evening last, while in the act of Bathing in company with other young Jads, George Fearerby, a promising youth about 16 years of age was unfortunately drowned, owing, it is generally supposed to having taken a fit of the cramp. His body was found the same evening and interred on Friday last.

From the Halifax Nova Scotian, June 28.
H. M. BIRD DOTTRELL.—We are happy to give insertion to the following contradiction of a report which was inserted in the Nova Scotia of the 18th inst. relative to the detention of some American fishing craft in the Bay of Fundy by H. M. B. Dottrell.

PORTSMOUTH, (N. H.) June 8.
The schr. Hammond, Tallyho, from the Bay of Fundy, arrived here yesterday, with a full fare of fish; and informs us, that the articles which appeared in the Eastport Sentinel relative to her capture by H. M. brig Dottrell, has no foundation in truth. Capt. T. states that while on the fishing ground he was boarded by the crew of a large frigate, who treated him with politeness; that the officer merely inquired of him whether he was not fishing too near shore, and on being informed that he was more than 3 miles distant from land, he was left unmolested, with an offer to accompany him to another fishing ground if required. Capt. T. requests this contradiction to have as general a currency as the original report, which has been extensively circulated.

From the New York Albion of June 24.
Lord Charles Somerset, Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, of whom so much has been said in disparagement, has returned to England and challenged his traducers to bring forward their charges. Before leaving the colony, a public dinner was given to his Excellency by the inhabitants; addresses were presented signed by all classes of people, expressive of their esteem for his person and character, and indignation at the conduct of his accusers. The investigation is not to take place before next year.

PARLIAMENTARY PROCEEDINGS.

Scottish Currency.—In the committee of the House on Monday, 18th of May, it was finally settled that Parliament should not meddle with the currency of Scotland for the present. The evidence that came out in the course of the inquiry it is stated was such, that both Mr. Peel and the Chancellor of the Exchequer voted with the majority of the Committee.

Free Trade.—Mr. Huskisson, on the 12th of May, on moving for certain returns of shipping, made a most luminous speech in defence of his measures, comprising a mass of matter on practical trade and navigation scarcely now where else to be found.

West India Slavery.—On the 20th of May Mr. Brougham brought the Slave Question before the House of Commons, and after a most voluminous speech offered the following resolution:—
"That this House has observed with deep regret that nothing effectual has been done by the Legislature of His Majesty's Colonies in the West Indies, in compliance with the declared wishes of his Majesty's Government, and the resolution of this House of the 15th of May, 1823, touching the condition of the slaves; and this House will, therefore, early in the next session of Parliament, take into their most serious consideration such measures as may appear to be necessary for giving effect to the said resolution."

This resolution having a tendency to pledge the House to adopt compulsory measures against the colonies, was of course opposed by Ministers.—Mr. Canning advocated a mild and conciliatory course of proceeding, and expressed himself desirous of giving the Colonial Legislatures more time to consider and carry into effect the plans for meliorating the condition of the slaves recommended by Earl Bathurst and his Majesty's Government. Mr. Brougham's motion was lost—36 to 100.

Mr. Canning in the House of Commons on the 19th of May, in reply to Lord Milton, who enquired if it was the intention of His Majesty's Government to apply a sum of money to the relief of the distressed manufacturers, stated that, from all the accounts he could collect, the sufferings of the people were essentially mitigated, and that he had good reason to believe that the worst had passed. As to the plan of his Majesty's government applying a sum of money from the national coffers, he was, after mature deliberation, averse to it: because it went to establish a precedent which might hereafter prove inconvenient, and to check the tides of benevolence which were now flowing in such bounteous streams: and because, as he had stated before, the causes which seemed to render such an appropriation necessary, were in a state of alleviation. The subscriptions advertised in the London papers at the last dates, amounted to £90,000, nearly four millions of dollars. A correspondent informs us upon the authority of a letter from Kendal, that £100,000 had been in the whole subscribed.

The Communication of J. C. M'Pherson in reply to R. Robertson's of the 27th ult. is received, but came too late for insertion. It will be attended to in our next.
