CHATHAM, N. B. - - - - APRIL 17, 1890.

Ottawa. Our Ottawa letter of this week does not contain anything of importance, save evidence that tariff changes are receiving a great deal of attention and are very sharply criticised, especially by the maritime members and the great body of men engaged in the natural industry of the country. They are shown to be especially hard upon lumbermen, fishermen and mechanics - in fact upon all classes save the manufacturers, in whose interest they are made.

The Atkinson Charges. Whatever may be the asperities growing out of political differences or disappointments, it will be admitted by every good citizen that the man who endeavors maliciously and without sufficient evidence, to degrade the status of his country's rulers and assail their integrity is himself guilty better than a criminal, and if we mistake not this will be the feeling most people in this province will entertain for Mr. Atkinson of Carleton County, who allowed himself to be put forward as the accuser of Hon. Attorney General Blair in the charges which he formulated last week, as reported in the Advance of 10th. We stated our opinion, when announcing the charges, that the fact of Mr. Atkinson being put forward to make them indicated that the more able and respectable members of the opposition must have grave doubts as to their value. If they could be proved, Mr. Blair would not only be driven out of public life, but the existence of the Government, itself, would be involved. It will, therefore, be realized, that if Mr. Hanington, who leads the opposition, or Mr. Stockton, who is second in command on that side, had believed in the truth of the charges, one or the other of them would have formulated them and not left the job to a man of Mr. Atkinson's calibre and position in the house. It is well-known that Mr. Atkinson is the member of the opposition who is always ready for any work that is to be done, so long as it will give him notoriety. He has, too, for a good while, been the confidante of a gentleman in York, whose vindictive pursuit of the Attorney General is known to everybody familiar with the politics of that County, and Mr. Atkinson seems to court the doubtful distinction of allowing himself to be used as that person's foil in his attacks upon the gentleman he, evidently, envies, but to whose eminence in public life he can never hope to attain by the methods which he has resorted for the last two years. The public care little for people of the Atkinson stamp, but they watch the course of such men as Messrs. Hanington, Stockton and Phinney with interest, because they are leaders amongst us, and when they are found following a man of Attorney General Blair's position in public life and endeavoring to fasten upon him the guilt of a charge such as that made by Atkinson, after it is apparent to the public that he is innocent, they cannot but share the odium of their degrading work. If Mr. Blair were guilty of accepting money from Mr. Leary of New York for his election fund in return for giving that gentleman the Government contract to build the St. John dock, it would be a disgrace to the province. Mr. Hanington, Mr. Phinney and others actively engaged in the investigation of this charge - for that is Mr. Atkinson's indictment against Mr. Blair - must have been convinced by Alderman Kelly's testimony that there was not the least justification for it. Yet, they went on with the matter, and seemed to grow the more rabid, if any indignance became the more manifest. Mr. Hanington professed, at first, that he hoped the charges were untrue and some of his followers did the same thing. The sincerity of these declarations may be estimated at their true value in the light of Mr. Hanington and Mr. Phinney's conduct before the committee, for no one who has followed the reports of the proceedings can escape the conviction that these gentlemen would prefer the disgrace of their province, which would follow proof of the charges, rather than that the innocence of Mr. Blair, which is so manifest under the evidence, should be established.

Every man who is loyal to the country and its institutions, and whose political prejudices do not outweigh his patriotism, will be glad to know that the evidence before the committee has not only failed to sustain the disgraceful charges of Mr. Atkinson, but absolutely disproved them. Accompanying that feeling, however, will be one of disappointment that the opposition leaders failed in their duty, both as public men and gentlemen, in not washing their hands of the dirty job the moment that the proof of Mr. Blair's innocence was placed before them. Such conduct as theirs will go far to lower the standard of our politics and weaken the confidence of the people in the integrity and purposes of our public men. Mr. Hanington and those led by him in the Assembly have, by themselves and with the assistance of the opposition press, carried on a most discreditable crusade against premier Blair and other members of the Government ever since the beginning of the present year. They have caused the country to be flooded with charges of all kinds of corruption against their successful opponents, in the hope, apparently, that the public mind might, in some measure, be prejudiced thereby. Their want of success seems to have maddened them to a degree of recklessness seldom exhibited by self-respecting men, and their crowning failure in the only charge they have had the courage to formulate, so that it could be investigated, only adds new vindictiveness to their programme, the carrying out of which has already disgusted the public with their tactics and want of political decency.

The gentlemen interested against Mr. Blair in the charges endeavored, in the first place, to defeat the motion made, at his request, for an immediate investigation. And, even when that failed, they were not content with having the enquiry confined to the issue of the Government contract and formulated by Mr. Atkinson, but attempted to get authority under which they might take evidence bearing on almost any matter, whether it related to the charges or not. All the circumstances give color to the suspicion that they did want an investigation. They have not attempted to explain why they withheld the charges until the business of the session was so far advanced as to warrant the expectation that the house would be prorogued within a week. There were, of course, no facts in their possession to warrant the charges made, yet the story of Mr. Blair's chief enemy, who got up "the information," was common property before the session opened - that is to be told to anybody who would listen to him, just the same as any other monomaniac would do. The plan was to give notice of the resolution for a committee, so that the usual time might elapse before it was appointed. Then they sought to widen the enquiry so as to make its scope embrace the work of what is generally known as a "smuggling committee." This would enable them to prolong the trial of Mr. Blair far beyond a reasonable date for prorogation and to influence the house and country against certain bills introduced by Mr. Blair. They have, however, been forced to do the mark-to come into court and tell all they know. That the result is an exposure of their own conduct against the Attorney General, a refutation of their calumnies and a complete vindication of his absolute innocence of the charges formulated, is most satisfactory.

It was proved by the evidence that Alderman Kelly, of St. John sent his partner, Mr. Murphy, to Fredericton in January with a packet containing bills for the house and country against certain bills introduced by Mr. Blair. They have, however, been forced to do the mark-to come into court and tell all they know. later when the $1,500 was paid to Mr. Barry at Fredericton.

The reality of the matter was objected to by Mr. Hanington but was admitted. Mr. Kelly continued: never knew of any arrangement of any kind, with Mr. Blair, directly or indirectly, under which this subsidy was to be awarded to Leary in consideration of his contributing to the election fund.

To Mr. Mitchell-I supported the government solely on account of Ritchie's appointment. Re-examined by Mr. Hanington-I did not tell anyone it was mine or he had thought that these funds were from Leary as they came from the Grand Truck or Hickson. The contract read from the Globe was for $2,500 only. We only claimed they should give the dock the agreed on as much as another company claimed. That was from $7,500 to $10,000. This was claimed right through by the delegation.

Mr. Kelly was examined by Mr. Phinney at such length as to when he first knew the dock contract was signed, his relations with Leary, and his cash advance to Leary. He said: The general said they wanted it immediately. I collected the money from the general fund. I sent some to other gentlemen outside of York. I got none of the money back as subscribed, and don't expect it.

To Mr. Hetherington-I never considered the dock contract as a bribe or a gift. I was here within two or three weeks. I met Mr. Gregory then. He said: "Mr. Hanington-When Mr. Gregory said there was $10,000 or $12,000 in the pocket of Leary, I was sure that was more than that." I told Gregory I did not know my partner was here that date. He said: "The general told me that the renewal of two or three million in the hotel register and I said the initials were 'G. W. Leary.' I said 'more than that.' I was giving him the money."

Most important testimony was given by the attorney general himself, he has admitted the right to accept money from a very full and frank statement of all that had taken place within his knowledge in connection with the matter. He denied that he had ever any communication, either verbal or written with Mr. Leary, or any other person, who had authorized any other person in his behalf to have any communication with that gentleman in respect to his contributing money to the elections, nor had it ever been intimated to him directly or indirectly, that Mr. Leary would contribute or had contributed one cent. With a frankness which no doubt had a marked effect upon those who listened, he stated that when Solicitor General Pugsley, at his meeting on the 12th of January urged him to come to St. John and address a public meeting at the Institute he (Mr. Pugsley) stated that if it was any inducement he thought the friends of the government in St. John would contribute to help them out in York and this was the first intimation he (Blair) had that any such contribution would be made. No mention was ever made of Mr. Leary making any contribution, and he (Blair) never saw or heard of Mr. Leary's name mentioned in connection with contributing money to the elections.

Referring to the contract Mr. Blair said that on the 3rd of January, when he had declined to sign, probably because of the 12th of January urged him to come to St. John and address a public meeting at the Institute he (Mr. Pugsley) stated that if it was any inducement he thought the friends of the government in St. John would contribute to help them out in York and this was the first intimation he (Blair) had that any such contribution would be made. A Canton, China, paper estimates that 750,000 people die every year in China by fire and flood, but it is not satisfied. One of the boldest preachers in the English Church is Alfred Williams, M. A., professor of Logic and Metaphysics in King's College, London. His recently published volume of sermons, entitled "Church and Creed," is attracting general attention, and may be taken as the latest expression of the rapidly-growing Broad Church school of thought in the English Church.

The Equinox of Greenland can be seen from the North Pole. It is called the Reader, and the editor thereof, one Lars Moller, sets up and prints the paper. He also designs and engraves the illustrations, which, it may be said, are not remarkable for excellence. His printing establishment was only a makeshift, but the members of the Danish literary society, and living heard of Moller's difficulties, sent him new type, printing ink, paper and a larger press than he had been using.

Sir Edward Watkin's scheme for a tunnel under the English Channel will be less unpopular now, since it has had a result quite unexpected, with everybody pleased. In his experimental borings for the tunnel he has discovered beneath Shakespeare's cliff, at Dover, a vein of coal of excellent quality. It is believed to be an extension of the French and Belgian coal fields, and to afford a supply of fuel. If the present promise is realized it will add enormously to the wealth of England, for it will supply coal just where it is needed for ocean steamers, and will open a new manufacturing district in a region now almost entirely agricultural, and give a new value to lands from which it has hitherto been impossible to derive any profit.

reference to the resolutions adopted at the Interprovincial conference held at Quebec in October, 1887, with copies of all communications or replies received by the government of this province from any of the said governments relating thereto; also, copies of all orders in council with reference thereto of the carrying into effect of the resolutions of this legislature with reference to the Quebec resolutions (so called) passed at the session of this legislature in March, 1889.

Hon. Mr. Tweedie committed the bill amending the law providing for the survey, reservation and protection of lumber lands, Mr. O'Brien in the chair. Mr. Tweedie explained the bill. Its object was to do justice to a class of bona fide settlers on the Upsalquitch and Restigouche rivers who would have their grants long ago for the sudden departure from the province of a certain labor act commissioner, some years ago.

D. Atkinson condemned the policy of the government in reserving a frontage of four rods in connection with free grants lands. The crown land department should have discretionary powers to deal with all these cases. He had always found the grant surveyor general and his predecessor (Mr. Mitchell) very attentive and obliging in their official capacities.

Mr. Phinney said there were a number of parties in Kent county who were not yet got their grants. He read letters from different persons in his county in proof of his statement, and mentioned several cases of what he regarded as extreme hardship, referring particularly to the cases of Mr. S. Powell and Mr. Finlay Melchior.

Messrs. Tweedie and Mitchell explained that it was very difficult to deal with all the cases of hardship. Sometimes the trouble was with the settlers themselves, and sometimes with the labor act commissioners. The crown land department was always willing to deal fairly with all cases coming before it.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Blair, the house went into committee of the whole. Mr. Douglas in the chair, on a bill (already agreed to) by law on the power of making additional by laws upon county councils and passed a resolution declining to concur in the amendments made by the legislative council and changing the phraseology of the bill.

Hon. Mr. Tweedie committed the bill incorporating Blackville Public Hall Company, Mr. Rourke in the chair. Agree to.

FREDERICTON, April 11.-The opposition soon to be determined to prolong the session and caused nearly the whole of to-day to be frittered away in useless discussion brought on by Mr. Hanington who opposed the request of Mr. Wilson as chairman of the Committee appointed to investigate Dr. Atkinson's charges against Attorney-General Blair, that said committee should be empowered to call on the house and that they might proceed with the investigation.

Mr. Hanington said he had given notice when the committee organized that he desired to put Mr. George Murphy on as the first witness, but Mr. Kelly, his partner, was called.

Hon. Mr. Mitchell called attention of the House to the fact that Mr. Hanington was out of order, in referring to proceedings of the committee.

anxious to secure afforded the press hostile to the accused leader chance to prejudge the case, as it was improperly doing, and thus prejudice the public mind. Was it not evident that the real cause of opposition to the members of the committee being, excluded from attendance was that they might proceed with the investigation, was in order the public might in the meantime, read and be impressed with the charges made and the comments of the opposition upon them - comments which, in some cases, were most improper, unfair and unwarranted at the present stage of the enquiry.

Mr. Hanington referred to charges made by Mr. Blair against members of "the old government," etc. and also to the "Pacific Scandal" charges. Said he, if the attorney general be innocent of the charges made against him until his guilt was proved it was fair to assume that he was innocent.

Dr. Atkinson said the government seemed anxious to force on this investigation at all hazards. The insinuation was that the tactics of the opposition, was to cause unnecessary delay in the investigation until to-night, when they expected that Mr. Murphy would be present. He would be glad if the attorney general proved his innocence of the charges made against him and until his guilt was proved it was fair to assume that he was innocent.

PERSONAL.—Mr. R. H. McWilliams, bookkeeper with Mr. J. B. Snowball, Chatham, is in Carleton. He intends to remove all his household effects to Chatham. His mother will accompany him. Snowball left England yesterday for home.

"ROYAL DEATH" seems to be coming to the attention of Mr. J. S. St. Hart, after his performance of Wednesday last week on the ice against McKeen's black Dan Mare and Russell's grey Dean horse. He is to ride to-morrow on the same track. This looks like a chance for some of the flyers.

INSURED AT OCEAN.—Mr. Warren C. Winslow has been authorized by the British American Assurance Company to accept all classes of fire risks, lease policies and make endorsements, without delay or reference to the head office.

A NEW TAILORING establishment is to be started in a few days by Mr. B. R. Boothillier, late cutter with W. S. Loggie, Esq. Mr. Boothillier is well known and will, no doubt, command a fair share of public patronage. He intends to keep on hand a good assortment of materials suitable for gentlemen's garments and also give attention to the cutting of ladies' coats and dresses.

REV. P. W. DIXON, the esteemed parish priest of Newcastle, has gone to Bermuda for the benefit of his health. On Friday last an address was presented to him by a committee representing his parishioners, accompanied by a substantial token of their regard. We regret that a copy of the address and reply reached us only yesterday—too late to appear in this issue. We will, however, publish it next week.

GOOD PRICES.—About $400 worth of farm produce, etc. was sold at the annual sale on the Dickson farm, Newcastle last week. Quite a goodly number of farmers made the bidding brisk. No. 1 upland hay brought $15.50 to $16.00 a ton, No. 2 $11.00; seed oats 65 cents a bushel; seed wheat $2 to $2.50 a bushel; seed barley $1.20; seed potatoes, $1.25 a bushel; wool in 30 cents a pound.

MR. TURNER WILSON.—The Toronto Merchant says:—"An increase in public patronage, particularly in most of the professions, is a pretty good indication that the man who is thus favored is a success. And judging from this, Mr. P. Turner Wilson, auditor and accountant, Toronto street, this city, may be said to have secured the desideratum. He is a first-class practical book-keeper and accountant, and is therefore eminently qualified for the examination or superintending of merchant's books who have not time to overlook their book-keeper's work. And although he makes this class of work a specialty, all pertaining to a professional accountant's duties receives a large share of his attention."

ENTERTAINMENT.—A large audience greeted the entertainment held by the members of the St. Michael's C. T. A. Society, in aid of the Hotel Dieu, in Masonic Hall, on Thursday evening last. The Irish Drama, "The O'Connell," was repeated and rendered in good shape. Mr. Maher's singing was good and Mr. Sheridan, who is always popular, was received with loud applause upon each appearance he made. His singing and character sketches were well received. The selected songs, Messrs. Louster and Dunn, performed their parts well and were applauded. The concert solo by Mr. W. Gould was very fine and called forth applause. He showed himself to be a master. The concert, Mr. Crisp's singing was also well received. The selection by the band was particularly fine and the Farce, "The Demijohn," was full of fun and received loud applause. The orchestral music, led by Mr. McEneaney, very interesting part of the proceedings: the providing of the inner man, as he is called by the inner woman, has provided literally from a broken heart. Patiently he had borne toil and poverty and misrepresentation and calumny. Even betrayal and the ignominy of a mock trial, and the scourging and the spitting of the stones, had not broken his heart. He himself even when the myriads of darkness were let loose upon him, and when the loving father's face, which in all the past had shone approvingly upon him, was now set in judgment, the man was more than ever he could bear. There was a better cry of anguish, and what was mortal in the Nazarene succumbed to the temporary domination of the King of Terrors. The effort of the captives does not dare to raise any question as to the certainty of Christ's death.

her husband and for herself she feared, or woman's tone and tongue never yet revealed a secret. Nellie Travers stood in her room stunned and bewildered, yet trying hard to recall and put together all the scattered stories and rumors that had reached her about the strange conduct of Clancy after he was taken to the hospital—especially about his heart broken when told that it was Lent. Clancy had rescued him and little Kate from hideous death. Somewhere, somehow, this man was connected with the mystery which encircled the long hidden truth in Hayne's trouble. Could it be possible that he did not realize it, and that her sister had discovered it? Could it be—oh, heaven!—could it be that Kate was standing behind that lonely and friendless man and the revelation that would set him right? She could not believe it of her! She would not believe it of her sister! And yet what did Kate mean by charging Mrs. Clancy to watch him—the drunken husband? What could it mean but that she was striving to prevent Mr. Hayne's ever hearing the truth? She longed to learn more and solve the riddle once for all. They were still earnestly talking together down in the dining room, but she could not listen. Kate knew her so well that she had not closed the door leading into the hall, though both she and the landlady of Company B had lowered their voices. It was disgraceful at best, thought Miss Travers, it was beneath her class, that she should hold any private conversation with such a man. Confidences with such were contamination. She half determined to rush down stairs and put an end to it, but was saved the doing so by fresh voices, heavy ringing tones, and the stamp of heavy boots heard at the door; and as Bayner entered, sobbing in Boyce and Graham, Mrs. Bayner and the landlady fled once more to the kitchen. When the sisters found themselves alone again, it was late in the evening. Mrs. Bayner came to Nellie's room and talked on various topics for some little time, watching narrowly her sister's face. The young girl hardly spoke at all. It was evident to the elder what her thoughts must be. "I suppose you think I should explain Mrs. Clancy's agitation and mysterious conduct, Nellie," she finally and suddenly said. "I do not want you to tell me anything, Kate, that you yourself do not wish to tell me. You understand, of course, how I happened to be there?" "Oh, certainly, I was thinking of that. You couldn't help hearing; but you must have thought it queer—her being so agitated, I mean."

ing herself, she began to try them, and speedily became interested. Her back being to the door, she did not notice that another visitor was soon ushered in—a man. She continued slowly "picking out" the melody, for the light was growing dim and it was with difficulty that she could distinguish the notes. Twice she essayed a somewhat complicated passage, became entangled, bent down and closely scanned the music, began again, once more became involved, exclaimed impatiently, "How absurd!" and whirled about on the piano stool, to find herself facing Mr. Hayne. Not that the bandage was removed from his eyes it was no such easy matter to meet him. Her sweet face flushed instantly as he bent low and spoke her name. "I had no idea any one was here. It quite startled me," she said, as she withdrew from his hand she had mechanically extended to him with the music. "It was my hope not to interrupt you," he answered, in the low, gentle voice she had marked before. "You helped me when my music was all about the other night. May I not help you find some of this?" "I wish you would play, Mr. Hayne."

"I will play for you gladly, Miss Travers, but wait music is not my forte. Let me see what else there is here," and he began turning over the sheets on the stand. "Are your eyes well enough to read music—especially in such a dim light?" she asked, with evident sympathy. "My eyes are doing very well—better than my fingers, in fact, and, as I rarely play by note after I once learn a piece, the eyes make no difference. What music do you like? I merely looked at this collection thinking you might see something that pleased you."

"Mrs. Bay told me you played Rubinstein so well—that melody in F, for one."

"Did Mrs. Bay speak of that—his face brightening. "The glad they found anything to enjoy in my music."

"They found a great deal, Mr. Hayne, and there are a number who are envious of their good fortune—", for one," she answered, blithely. "New play for me Mrs. Waldron will be here in a minute."

"And when Mrs. Waldron came in a little later Miss Travers, seated in a wicker chair and looking intently into the eyes of the man who was playing, she was listening as intently to the soft, rich melodies that Mr. Hayne was playing. The freight was flickering on her shining hair; one slender white hand was toying with the locket that hung at her throat, the other gently tapping on the arm of the chair in union with the music. And Mr. Hayne, seated in the shadow, bent slightly over the keyboard, absorbed in his pleasant task and playing as though all his soul were thrilling in his finger tips. Mrs. Waldron stood in silence at the doorway, watching the unconscious pair with an odd yet contented expression in her eyes. At last, in one long, sweet, sighing chord, the melody softly died away, and Mr. Hayne slowly turned and looked upon the girl. She seemed to have wandered off into dreamland. For a moment there was no sound; then, with a little start of surprise, she roused herself. "It is simply exquisite," she said. "You have given me such a treat!"

"I'm glad, I owe you a great deal more pleasure, Miss Travers."
