MR. STEWART GETS HIS ANSWER

Convincing Reply from Dr. L. G. Pinault to Mr. Stewart's Unfounded Charges.

To the Editor of The Campbellton Graphic, Campbellton, N. B.

Before replying to the remarks made by Mr. D. A. Stewart concerning me in the House of Assembly, at Fredericton, on the 19th of March, I have asked myself whether the marks of confidence and esteem spontaneously manifested to me by a large number of well thinking citizens, Liberals and Conservatives, do not sufficiently compensate me for these unreasonable attacks, and whether the ridicule and contempt which the gentleman has brought upon himself does not sufficiently punish him.

However, since it is possible that Mr. Stewart is not the only second hand politician to ignore the Public Health Act, I take the liberty to rectify a few misrepresentations.

If the honorable member had read the Act before criticizing its administration and before attacking me personally, he would have seen that the province is divided into districts, each district comprising several counties, and that each district is in charge of a doctor who is called the district medical officer, and that such officer is the president of the board of health of the different counties under his jurisdiction. Doctor Desmond, of Newcastle, being the medical officer of the district in which Restigouche is comprised, he is therefore president of the Restigouche Board of Health.

A few years ago I was asked to become a member of this board and I accepted providing there would be no politics mixed with it and there has been none; a good proof of it is that I contributed to appoint Mr. A. McDonald, one of Mr. Stewart's political friends, to the position of Secretary of the Board, the only position carrying a salary. My vote in the deliberations has no more weight than the rest except on subjects touching the medical sciences when naturally my opinions would be accepted.

I was asked to interrogate the past and the present members of the board and try to get from them any information that would even be suspicious of politics in the hands I ever took in Board of Health matters. If he succeeds I will give him $50.00 that he will remit to the hospital of his choice and if he does not he will give me $50.00 that I will deposit in a bank.

The Punkhurst meeting? Being in charge of the Campbellton free V. D. clinic I was asked to form a committee called the hygiene committee for the Town of Campbellton with request that the committee procure a hall, see to the advertisement, reserve rooms at the hotel, etc. In the time, and Mr. D. Stewart, the committee was composed of Liberals and Conservatives in about equal numbers. All those who were not sick or out of town did their share, with the result that the visiting doctors proclaimed that the Campbellton meeting was one of the best organized meetings they had witnessed, and expressed their regret that they were not finding such good organization everywhere.

Mr. Stewart is very unjust and unfair to the other members of the committee in saying that I "took charge of the meeting", insinuating that I must have full credit for what was done. I did only my share and part of the success is due to Mrs. Edward Alexander, Mrs. D. A. Harquail, Mr. A. McDonald and His Honor Judge Melatchy who had to be out of town that day. The other two members of the committee was Mrs. James A. Champoux out of town that day. One of the speakers paid a tribute of admiration to Honorable Doctor Roberts, Minister of Health, for the drafting of the Health Act, and for the good work he is doing in the province to the benefit of all. That speaker, a doctor, expressed the views of almost the whole medical profession of this province and if the M. P. E. for Restigouche doubts it, he has only to induce one of his doctor political friends of this county to come once to our medical meetings and have a report of what is said of Honorable Doctor Roberts and of the Health Act.

Mr. Stewart is preaching economy. His ideas are changing with the changes of government on this subject. In 1911, after the Laurier government was defeated, Mr. Stewart gathered a few political friends around him and proposed for Liberals victims. It happened that I was the doctor appointed to give medical care to the Indians on the Restigouche reserve at the annual salary of $200.00. The Department of Indian Affairs was at once asked to dispense with my services, and $200.00 in the life Mr. Stewart was taken entirely from me.

Mr. Stewart is very unjust, even to doctors Martin of Carleton and Fremont of Campbellton, at a salary double of what I had received. They all refused. The Indian agent re-

FATHER CORMIER DIED HERE MONDAY

Funeral Services Held This Morning—Attended by Hosts of Friends.

In the parish of Rev. Father Cormier, which occupied at the Hotel Dieu Hospital here on Monday, 19th inst., the Roman Catholic Church was held a funeral service for the late Father Cormier. The deceased gentleman had been suffering from a long illness for some time and he died at his home on Monday evening.

Was Well Known Here. The late Father Cormier was well known in Campbellton. Born in Gaspe forty-one years ago he came here when young and worked for a time for the Shiloh Lumber Co., and later with Mr. George St. Onge. Having decided to enter the priesthood, he studied in Montreal and Ottawa and secured his theological education in Montreal. He was ordained on the 29th of June 1911 and took up his first clerical duties in Newcastle as assistant to Father Dickson there. Some two years later he was appointed parish priest at Douglastown, N. B., and from there he went to Jacques River where he assumed the charge as parish priest in 1921.

The deceased gentleman leaves to mourn the loss of an affectionate brother, two sisters, Mrs. L. Charney of Campbellton, one full brother, Peter of Campbellton one half brother Louis, and a sister Mrs. Evelyne Cormier, all of this place. To these surviving relatives the heartfelt sympathy of the community is extended in the loss of this highly esteemed brother.

Services Largely Attended. The remains of the late Father Cormier rested one day at the residence of his sister Mrs. Evelyne Cormier, from where they were conveyed to the Church of Our Lady of the Snows. A translation of the remains was held there on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock and the great building was crowded to the doors. Office of the dead was held on Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The Rev. Father Cormier and the following priests were present: Revs. A. Melanson, A. A. Boucher, R. Robichaud, J. Wilson, W. Gagne, Cyr. N. Savoie, F. M. Lanctot, E. Delagarde, J. A. Allard, J. P. Levesque, M. J. Picket, L. J. Sivret, P. Veillard and J. A. Hart.

The funeral services were held this morning at nine o'clock. Father Boucher sang the mass, Father Hart of Dalhousie acted as deacon, Father Delagarde of Nash's Creek as sub-deacon, and Bishop Chasson of Athol, confere of ordination, presided at the funeral address in French while Bishop Chasson of Chatham spoke in English. Both addresses were most impressive and Father Lantegrie's fitting remarks were unusually eloquent. Father Melanson conducted the service at the grave and said the closing prayer. He was an intimate friend of the late Father Cormier and paid a fitting tribute to the faithful service of his brother-clergyman. The services were very largely attended, a number of the late priest's parishioners from Jacques River being present as well as many people from different parts of the county who came to pay a last tribute of respect to a departed friend who had earned and deserved their highest esteem.

We have the New Men's Silk Bandana Mufflers, 36 inches in the Original Patterns now in vogue. Price $4.50.

FERGUSON & WALLACE. I received orders from the Department to employ a doctor at his discretion for every case. Since then the medical attendance of the Indians has never lost less than $1,000.00 yearly. Quite a saving, Mr. Stewart. I say to the Honorable Member that if I were, I would not let the position of Harbor Physician remain in the hands of one of Mr. Stewart's political friends. I would have accepted it or worked to have it given to a man in sympathy with the present government. I feel it would be unjust to remove a man from office only on political grounds although Mr. Stewart thinks differently. I hear that nations are punished for their crimes by being visited with wars, and cities by being infested by pestilence. I can not find out what grave offence has been done by the County of Restigouche to be represented at Fredericton by Mr. Stewart.

TWO WOMEN BURNED TO DEATH

Mrs. W. Good of Dalhousie Jct., Lost Her Life in Attempt to Save Her Aunt.

A shocking tragedy occurred at Dalhousie Junction on Tuesday morning when Mrs. Wadsworth Good and her aged aunt, Mrs. Douglas, lost their lives in a fire which completely destroyed their home. The fire broke out between nine and ten o'clock and Mrs. Good and her aunt were at the barn. Apparently Mrs. Good noticed that the house was on fire and rushed to rescue her aged aunt without informing her husband of the blaze. How far she got on her hazardous mission is not known as she perished with the older lady. Whatever efforts Mr. Good made to rescue the inmates of the burning building or to hinder the blaze proved futile for the fire, whipped into fury by the terrific gale that was blowing at the time, spread through the whole house with fiendish rapidity and made it utterly impossible to reach the doomed inmates from any angle.

The previous day's fall of light snow was swirled and eddied by the wind to such an extent that even the nearest neighbors living less than a quarter of a mile away were not aware that there was a fire in the neighborhood. Consequently no assistance was offered Mr. Good until it was too late.

As far as is known, there was little insurance on the building or furniture and the material loss is estimated at between $2000 and $3000. Mr. Good is the sole survivor of the household as there were no children in the family and the sincere sympathy of the community is extended to him in this calamitous occurrence.

A CLUB BONSPIEL. The Campbellton Curling Club will hold a club bonspiel Friday afternoon and evening, March 23rd. Snuggly will be served in the Banquet Hall of the rink at six o'clock.

WESLEY CHURCH. The Third Quarterly Official Board Meeting of Wesley Methodist Church was held last Thursday night. The Board extended an invitation to Rev. F. E. Boothroyd to remain as pastor for a fourth year. Mr. Boothroyd asked for time to consider. Reports of various departments of the church work were given and these were found to be in a prosperous condition, especially those referring to young people's work. Plans were also reported for special services leading up to Easter.

THREW STONES AT LOCAL EXPRESS

Two Passengers in Coaches Struck and Injured—No Clue to Guilty Parties.

Passengers on the local express works runs between Levis and Campbellton had a thrilling experience last night when the train was just east of Val-Brilliant on the run to this place. Two stones were hurled through the windows, one coming from each side and two of the passengers, a woman and a boy about five years of age, were struck by the missiles.

The unfortunate woman who was a Mrs. M. Albert of St. Simon, P. Q., was struck on the head and received a very severe cut. She was taken off the train at Amqui where her injuries were given medical attention. It was found that they were not serious and she was able to continue her journey.

The boy in the second class coach also received a severe cut in the head from one of the stones. He was accompanied by his father who gave their name as Gendron of St. Lucieville, P. Q. The boy and his father left the train at Causapscal where the little fellow's injuries were attended to by a doctor.

The train was backed up to the scene of the outrage and an endeavor made to find the culprits but no trace of them could be found. Up to the present the guilty parties have not been apprehended but the C. N. R. authorities are making every effort to locate them.

THE LONDON TIMES APPLAUDS CANADA

Fine Tribute to the Financial Aid Accorded Mother Country in War.

London, March 12.—With reference to the award of former Premier Veniot as arbitrator of the differences between the British and Canadian Governments in the adjustment of the financial standing over from the war, the financial editor of the London Times says this virtually completes the settlement of the financial transactions between the Governments of Great Britain and Canada. In connection with the war Canada altogether advanced to Great Britain over one thousand million dollars and the Canadian banks granted advances of approximately three hundred million dollars.

"In making such large advances," the Times financial editor continues, "Canada played no small part in providing the sinews of war, and the readiness with which she agreed in 1918 to the arrangement of set-offs proposed for the British treasury is fully recognized on this side. There would never have been any question of the rate of exchange if the form of advance had been clearly defined when originally made. The dispute really arose in consequence of clerical omissions.

"In placing dollars at our disposal and accepting sterling in repayment, part of them at par, in the cancellation of mutual indebtedness, Canada has made a contribution to the English cost of the war which everyone must recognize. It is a fact that in addition to sending half a million men, the cost of which was borne entirely by the Canadian people, Canada provided facilities for the Imperial Government on favorable terms and this will enhance, not harm, her credit."

PRESENTATION TO REV. AND MRS. E. J. SHAW

On Tuesday evening Feb. 27th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Keys of Miller Section in the congregation of Dalhousie the close of Cottage Prayer Meeting brought a pleasant surprise to the Pastor and his wife, Rev. E. J. and Mrs. Shaw.

A large number gathered representing all parts of the congregation. Mr. John McEwan of Upper Charlo was appointed Chairman who related the programme for the rest of the evening. Mr. James Wright a Veteran Elder was called upon to read an address expressing the warm and good will of the congregation. Then Mr. Charlie Miller conducted the pastor a short distance and in a few well chosen words behalf of the congregation presented him with a beautiful sleigh as a token of esteem and Mrs. William Miller on behalf of the ladies presented Mrs. Shaw with a handsome tea set and a waiter's tray as an evidence of their friendship. Mr. Shaw suitably responded and thanked them for their friendship and good will. Then the chairman called on Mr. J. E. Dean of Dalhousie for a speech feelingly spoke of the happy relations between pastor and people. After a dainty lunch was served by the ladies a splendid musical programme was carried out. On the whole a most enjoyable evening was spent the meeting came to an end in the usual jovial manner.

Address
Dear Mr. and Mrs. Shaw:
We, the members of your congregation respectively ask that you and your esteemed wife accept this modest gift, not on account of its intrinsic value, but as a small token of our esteem for you, and as an evidence of our good will, which will be further manifested at time rolls on.

No Longer Fears Whooping Cough

Toronto Mother Tells of New Vapoizing Salve.

The quick direct treatment for colds of children and grownups, too, is an application of Vicks over throat and chest at bed-time. Not only is Vicks absorbed thru the skin, but its healing vapors of Chamber, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Turpentine, etc., are breathed all night directly into the affected air passages. Relief usually comes by morning. Just as good, too, for cuts, burns, bruises and itching skin troubles.

Mrs. William Morrison of 114 Sheridan Ave., Toronto, says: "Last fall our baby had whooping cough so bad that we were afraid of losing her. I heard about Vicks Vapoizin from my neighbors and decided to try it. Every morning and night I applied it as directed on the pamphlet inside of the box, and in a few days the coughing seemed to break up the cough and ease her, especially through the night when it was most troublesome. I have also used it for colds with good results and would not be without it."

At all drug stores 50¢ a jar. For a free test size package, write Vicks Chemical Co., 844 St. Paul St., W. Montreal, P. Q.

Though Vicks is new in Canada, it enjoys a remarkable sale. Over seventeen million jars used yearly. It is expected that Dalhousie's four mills will begin operation this spring. This gives promise of increased activity in the lumber business on the north shore this summer. Two of these mills were shut down last summer while the shingle mill there has not operated for the last two years.

WILL NOT RENEW EXISTING LEASE

Premier Veniot Makes Important Statement Re Grand Falls.

"The decision of the Government is that the present rights and leases in connection with the Grand Falls power will not be renewed after they expire on May 1st next," Hon. Peter J. Veniot announced in his first speech in the Legislature as Premier on Tuesday afternoon.

The new Premier made this definite statement in the course of an important pronouncement in connection with the application for the rights now held by the Grand Falls Company, which is controlled by the International Paper Company interests of New York. He has continued asking that the Government undertake the development of the water power at the Grand Falls on the St. John River, the most potential natural water power in Canada east of the Niagara Falls, as part of the activities of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission.

The Government is not in a position at the present time, the Premier said, to cancel the existing leases and rights and could not do so even if it wanted to until May 1st next, but he announced, the decision of the Government is that they will not be continued. "The policy of this government," Hon. Mr. Veniot resumed, after the applause which greeted his announcement had subsided, "is that no longer shall companies be able to dangle franchises before capitalists and prevent the people from enjoying the full benefit of the natural resources of this province."

Urges People to Be Patient.

In respect to the prospects of Government development of the Grand Falls, Premier Veniot said that he wished to urge patience upon the part of the people and to say that caution would be the watchword of the Government in deciding whether or not to enter upon such a vast undertaking. The Government, he said, was now investigating both the cost of carrying out the development as well as the possible market for the power in the event of the development taking place and if it could be shown that the development can be carried out and the interests of the province be thoroughly safeguarded, the chances were it would go on.

But I cannot state the policy of the Government in that regard until we have had time to gather all of the necessary information," continued Premier Veniot. "I want to ask the people of the province that they be patient. They are assured now, as a result of the statement I have already made, that no company will be able to retard the progress of this project when we arrive at the time to go ahead. But give the Government time to go carefully into the matter and to be sure that there will be a market which will yield sufficient revenue from the sale of the power to meet all the charges in connection with the project, including interest charges, depreciation and sinking fund, before we are prepared to embark upon a proposition of such magnitude. In connection with the new development at Musquash—and I don't say there have been any—but if there have been any we will have the advantage of the experience gained by connection with that matter to guide us in what we do at Grand Falls. In conclusion, I want to say very positively that no undertaking will go on at Grand Falls until the Government is convinced, absolutely convinced, that the province's financial interests can be thoroughly protected."

DEVELOPMENT OF GRAND FALLS

Edmundston Wants 5,000 Horse-Power—Enough Business in Sight.

St. John, March 11.—G. O. Foss, chief engineer of the New Brunswick Hydro-Electric Commission, returned on Saturday from St. Leonard's Edmundston and other places in northern New Brunswick. He had a meeting with the town councillors of Edmundston on Friday at which they decided to contract for 5,000 horse-power upon the completion of the Grand Falls development if the province should decide to go on with the work.

"This is a decision of no little importance because of Premier Veniot's intimation that a decision by the province to harness Grand Falls might depend very largely upon the proof that there would be a market for a considerable amount of power, so that the province would be virtually assured of a return upon its money."

It is now known unofficially that the Bathurst-Lumber Company, the Fraser Companies, Ltd., the International Paper Company and some other interests would welcome power at the price at which it could be obtained through provincial development at Grand Falls. Already there is a slight sale at the beginning of more than enough power to justify the government in making the expenditure necessary for the initial unit at Grand Falls, and the first development could readily be expanded by further expenditures as these are justified by the load to be picked up through transmission lines in various directions, Campbellton being the first example.

CHAPTER I

It was a strange feeling to wake in the morning and realize that one was again in Belgium. During the early summer of 1918, it had been the only city to which we could report in a "good" way and meet our friends. It was then the conflict of life. Shop and Estaminets were in full swing, and troops were continually passing through it on their way to other localities. After an English breakfast at the Hotel we made our way to the garage where the light lorry had a good rest and extra provisions in the way of gasoline.

We drove to the Grande Place, and there we saw the horrible destruction that had been wrought by German shells in that most interesting part of the old town. The church had absolutely disappeared, not a wall was standing, and the stones with which it had been built was piled nearly on the site. It was distressing to think of all the beauty and romance that had gone forever. Within the church the blind organist had poured forth his stinging at the organ one day, had been killed by the bursting of a shell. The very much damaged. The clock on the old Spanish Tower is still standing, but has stopped and its poor lifeless hands give the structure almost the appearance of human death.

Around the square the shops had been completely demolished but the cellars remain and over them new buildings are being erected. It is interesting to see what wonderful cellars they were, so deep, so extensive, and arched in brick and stone. The Captain had been hit by a shell while doing a gallant deed of rescue at Bethune, so we took a photograph of the scene of his exploit, and then turning our back upon the Grande Place, we went down the street, making our way into the country in the direction of Noues-les-Mines. We missed the huts and camps that had been used to decorate the sides of the road. In their places, we saw only green fields, and instead of lorries and motors, we passed countrymen engaged in their peaceful work. The old shell-hole in the front which was large enough to be a duck pond, has now been filled up, and the flower beds were blooming in great profusion. The house had evidently been thoroughly repaired, and wore an air of comfort. We rang the bell and a maid came to the door. I told that we had come to call upon Madame and we were shown into a luxurious drawing room. I was anxious to see if my change of costume would be a complete disguise. It was not for when Madame arrived, she gave an exclamation of surprise and welcomed us heartily to the old home. She said that she was the first British officer whom she had seen since the Armistice. It was indeed curious to be back in the old house where I had lived for several months, and to see it in its new condition. Monsieur Delaporte was away on his holidays, but the daughters of the family and two sisters-in-law came in, and we had a most pleasant time talking over old war-experiences and struggling to make each other understand our French and English. Luckily, one of the young ladies had lived for several years in England, and she became the liaison-officer between us and the family. Nothing would do but we should stop and have lunch. I was shown my old bedroom which was now incorporated as part of the drawing room and wears a sumptuous aspect. The mirror over the mantelpiece still stands in the old place and the iron shutters still show the holes made by shrapnel. "Vive chambre" said Madame, as she threw open the door. Lucienne was served in real French style and was a charming meal. I had the honor of sitting between two ladies who had been decorated with the Croix de Guerre for military service during the war, my hostess and her sister-in-law.

It was with many regrets that we had farewell to our kind hostesses and we opened up the lorry and drove to the garden gate to see the light lorry with its billiard of cement. There could be no more meetings between British people and those who were kind to us during the war, the sentiment between the two nations would be a more real and living thing. On the opposite side of the street, the mine building looked as if it had never been there, and the houses which were passing in and out of the gates showing that business was as usual. We passed the various houses which had been the headquarters of the Division and the Divisional Artillery. There was the old bandstand where occasionally in the afternoon our land used to enliven us with its music. There was the school which had been used as a hospital. Very and memorably all dying men would be a more real and living thing. country road leading to Loos. We could see the Double Grassier and Loos Grassier, at the foot of which our battery had been stationed when we took Hill 70 on August 17th, 1917. Loos itself was quite unrecognizable, for out of the ruins was springing a new red brick village. Still, the roads were there and many a time in the darkness we had trodden them where shells and gas made the place a precarious home.

Our first visit was to the old Crucifix which stands on a mound to the east of the town. Nearby our engineers kept a store of material in the shape of barbed wire, spades, and other necessary articles for the carrying on of military operations. It was known as Crucifix Dump, and many Canadians have gruesome memories of working parties which used to meet there for supplies on black nights in wind and rain. Falling gas-shells often made it a particularly unhealthful spot. We took a photograph of the Crucifix. It always struck me that the figure was peculiarly pathetic, pierced and battered by shrapnel and with nesting birds making it their refuge. At the top of the mound, in front of the cross, was a German officer. All suppose the body has been removed to Germany. The tunnel which the Australians dug to connect Loos with our trenches on Hill 70 still remains, but we did not visit it. It used to be a curious sensation to walk through the tunnel in the White Chalk pit only by the candle stuck on the top of one's steel helmet.

We had no need of "safety first" precautions now to the lorry carried us openly up the road to the famous Hill. Here were many signs that we were in the war-zone. White mounds of chalk showed where the trenches ran, and rusty barbed wire, and bits of corrugated iron were piled up here and there.

We turned to the right up the Loos road and soon came to a large chalk quarry where men were at work. There were old French soldiers and they were very much interested when they heard we were Canadians. They took our pocket cigarettes as a bribe of army comradeship. The quarry men had been the famous one where the British were when they were in the line. I could not identify the place accurately. There were many openings to dug-outs, which have now fallen in, and the men told us that they still occasionally find human remains. Only last year when the debris of a shelled house by the road was cleared away, the bodies of seventeen British officers and men had been found in the cellar. They had been entombed there when the building was hit.

The view from the road was immensely interesting. To the west, lay the village of Loos and in the distance the mine heads of Maroc and Bracquemont. To the east, beyond the rich wheat fields, lay the ruins of Lens. The famous iron towers of Winglee had disappeared.

We were now on the site of our ancient battle ground, and we determined to go forward across the wheat fields, and look for the famous Chalk Pit which had been a shell-hole in our front line. Making our way through the tall wheat where there was a slight evidence of a narrow path, we came to a chalk quarry which now runs a railway. The quarry has been much enlarged by excavations, but was evidently the old place where the rabbit-warren of dugouts used to house a whole company of men in the line. We saw few British soldiers there who were at work on the Graves Commission. The body of a man had just been discovered in the Chalk Pit and was now being dug out. By some remnant of uniform, it was found to be that of a German soldier and was to be removed for burial.

How strangely changed was that place. We looked towards Lens in which we could see new buildings going up, and we thought of the old days when raiding parties set out at night from the Chalk Pit to attack the German lines, or when Jack Johnson's "Pinapples" "Black Pigs" and other kinds of shells enveloped the neighborhood, and we were in the line. Now the summer wind fanned the innocent wheat-fields as softly as a child breathes in sleep. We longed to wander into the trenches on the Loos side of the road, but time was pressing, so, re-entering the lorry, and declining the invitation offered by the sign in front of an estaminet to visit the tunnel, we made our way onwards to the town of Loos.

It was well for us, perhaps that our ramble on the Hill, then cut short, for the numerous dug-outs were veritable death traps. The wood supports in them had been removed for fire-wood, and the deep openings were concealed in the long grass. A single line of chalk, on which the wheat would not grow, crossed many of the fields, and no doubt, was the site of "Hugo Trench," "Hurrah Alley," and "Tomb Alley."

By this time it was late in the afternoon, so, skirting the new brick houses of the city of St. Etienne, we made our way to Lens in time for dinner. The town is a strange jumble of dirt and ruins and new houses. The roads are bad and the place is crowded with returning inhabitants, working men, and commercial travellers. The favorite restaurant is an old army hut which at one end is a dining room, and at the other a sitting room. A rough kitchen makes an extension at the dining room end. The lady who runs the establishment is a middle-aged woman of very wholesome proportions. As it was late for the regular hour for dinner, she had to cook one specially for us. The Captain as usual went out to his photographs, leaving the Gunner with him, while Maurice and I enjoyed a smoke until the meal was ready. A number of commercial travellers were talking robbily in the sitting-room, and I could almost fancy myself back in some little Hotel in the Province of Quebec. At length the meal was prepared. Our friends turned up and with appetites stimulated by much walking, much jolting and the cool summer air, we set to work to consume large quantities of some dirty-looking bread and bowls of strong black coffee lightened by a small portion of condensed milk. The place was not attractive, but when we remembered what Lens used to be, and how we had looked upon its ruined streets from peep-holes in the parapet of the trenches, we were thankful enough that we were able to get a meal there of any kind. The estaminet was hidden away in a backyard where new buildings of pretentious dimensions were waiting to be built. When we had paid for the meal, a not exorbitant price, we started off to resume our pilgrimage. We were actually now in the region on which our artillery had been concentrated for several years. We felt that we were really in the thick of things. We had made that city a hot place for German occupation and now the work of destruction evident on every side was our own doing. We took the road which led to Loos. We were now facing the high ground which is known as Vimy Ridge. Before we entered the town of Loos, we made a detour up to a wooded hill known as the Bois de Riamont. This hill had been our chief artillery observation post in times gone by, and the Gunner became excited and voluble when he found himself walking up the path which led to the place where he had spent many a lonely, many an anxious night and day, directing the fire of the heavy battery in the rear.

On the top of the hill where the observation post had been, a huge water tower had been erected. It was still in the process of construction and a ladder leading up to a flat roof on top invited us to climb. We did so and from that commanding eminence we had a wonderful view of all the plain. Lens lay to the north-west and to the south-east we saw Vimy and other villages. Far away to the south, near the city of Arras, the water tower made an ideal observation post. We wondered how long it would last if the German artillery concentrated upon it. We went back through the wood to the lorry, and then towards Loos. The Gunner was anxious to see his old battery position, so he directed Maurice to a cross road on our left, and at last we stopped in front of a modern farmhouse. Here was the identical spot where the 6th Canadian Siege Battery had had one of its nine-point guns. We laughed at the excitement of the Gunner when he discovered the site of his old battery. A young farmer, who had just finished the building of his house and was now erecting some stables, welcomed us very gladly and took great pride in pointing out the scars which war had made upon his paternal acres. He showed us the entrance to a very curious German dug-out which had been concealed under the ruins of an old house. When these were removed, the dugout had come into view, and the Gunner regretted that he had not known of the existence of this place of refuge during the war. I would have saved the Battery many an anxious moment. The light was too dim to permit our taking photographs of the farmer and his family, but the warm handshake he gave us told us that the heart alliance between Canadian and Frenchmen in that region is strong and sincere.

BEFORE MY BABY CAME

I Was Greatly Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydenham, Ont.—"I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I had started to take it. I just felt as though I was tired out all the time and would have weak, faint spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little rest, night or day. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I only took a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to recommend this good medicine. I will send that little book you sent me to any one I can help. You can with the greatest of pleasure use my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will help others take it."—Mrs. HARVEY MILLER, Sydenham, Ont.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many women are poorly at such times and get into a weakened, run-down condition, when it is essential to the mother, as well as the child, that her strength be kept up.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It may be taken in safety by the nursing mother.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! The little "Freezone" on an aching corn instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with your fingers!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and all calluses, without soreness or irritation.

The Cause of Heart Trouble

Faulty circulation causes the generation of gases in the stomach which inflate and press on the heart and interfere with its regular action, causing faintness and pain. 15 to 20 drops of Mether Seigel's Curative Syrup after meals sets digestion right, which allows the heart to beat full and regular. 50c and $1.00 bottles at druggists.

Mrs. P., Montreal, writes: "I have used your Curative Syrup for heart trouble, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will return your money." 2-23

"Would Wake Up Screaming"

"The Least Sudden Noise or Loud Talking Would Startle Him."

"Up to the age of eight, my boy was a strong, healthy child, full of life and energy. While playing leap frog one day with some boys of his own age, and, while in a stopped position, he fell forward on his back and in the falling his foot caught in an iron grate and dislocated his hip. The pain was so great that he faintly and the other boys were so frightened they ran away. For hours he suffered terrible pain and when found and brought home was very weak, with a swollen and leg swollen twice its size. The doctor set the bone but the pain and exposure were too much for the poor boy and he became unconscious. A high fever set in and for weeks he lay between life and death, raving for hours at a stretch. One day he opened his eyes and murmured 'Mother,' but this is the only word he could utter he was so weak, but I knew the worst was over. He got stronger but for months was in a nervous condition. The least sudden noise or loud talking would startle him and he would begin trembling. He was quite sane and the swelling money." 2-23

New Ways of Serving Fresh Fruit

Nearly all dieticians place a high value on fruits in the daily diet. And they are so plentiful in our markets that the housewife should make more use of them in their natural state than she usually does. Cooked fruits are good and have their place also, but why not use the fresh in every way possible?

The fruit cocktail acceptably takes the place of soup unless the family is very hearty eaters and hard workers.

A fruit salad, if crackers and cheese are served with it, may be substituted for the ordinary salad and dessert.

Grapefruit Cocktail.

To make four cocktails removes the pulp from two medium-sized, heavy ripe grapefruit, removing all the white skin and seeds, leaving the flesh in firm pieces. Strain over the fruit the juice of half a lemon and a sweet orange, dust it with sugar, and set it to chill. When ready to serve, fill four glasses with the solid fruit, then turn in as much of the juice as may be required to moisten for a drink when desired. Top the glass with a seeded white grape, a preserved cherry or a sugared, stuffed date. In warm weather a spray of fresh mint leaves dipped in water, then dusted with sugar, can be used.

Orange and Grape Cocktail.

Allow one large or two small oranges to each cocktail. Remove all skin seeds and inside skin, leaving the pulp in as large pieces as possible. Wash, cut open and seed white grapes. Fill glasses with the solid fruit, adding the grapes and oranges, dust them with sugar, add the juice of half a lemon and set to chill. When ready, fill glasses with the solid fruit, adding juice enough to moisten. Garnish the top with a cherry or with a large chilled olive.

Grapefruit Salad

Remove all the skin and seeds from two large grapefruit, leaving the pulp in as large pieces as possible. Set them aside to chill and drain. Wipe ready to make the salad, drain the pulp and add to it a tablespoonful of minced pepper, the same of minced celery leaves, and a heaping tablespoonful of cut chives. Moisten this salad with a little heavy French dressing, and serve on white lettuce leaves. Garnish with a stuffed olive. Do not dress it until it is ready to serve, for it loses its fresh, crisp attractiveness if allowed to stand.

Craze for Dancing Is Dying Out

Whether the craze for dancing among young people is passing is a query raised from the fact that while for several years now 400-connection with the senior laymen of the Ottawa Collegiate Institute there has been an annual dance, this year it has been cancelled. Despite the fact that attendance at the collegiate has increased, due in part to the operation of the Adolescent Act, which raised the school age, not sufficient subscribers could be procured for this function and it has been decided to abandon it for the year at least.

Women Jurors Hard on Their Sex

Berlin, Feb. 20—German women, recently accorded the right to sit on juries in criminal cases, have shown an inclination to impose even more severe punishment than men, particularly in cases where the defendants themselves have been women.

Here and There

Ottawa, Ont. — It is announced by the Canadian Pacific Railway that the improvements planned manifestly a keener desire among young people for outdoor activities such as skating and skiing. The ski club in connection with the college has a large active membership and the change in taste will probably be welcomed by many parents at least who have been dubious as to the moral and physical effects of the dancing craze.

The Easter Breakfast

Premium Ham or Bacon

That breakfast on Easter Morning should consist of Bacon and Eggs has become almost an honored national institution as Turkey for Thanksgiving.

But on this Easter Morning, bright with the promise of Springtime—vigor and joy—the Bacon certainly should be "Premium"—the word's standard—as befitting the occasion. Substitute ordinary Bacon or Ham for Swift's "Premium" and you dull the joy of the meal.

For Swift's "Premium" Bacon is of characteristic and distinctive quality. Firstly, by its choice selection—"Premium" Brand must have just the right proportion of fat and lean. Then next it possesses an unmatched succulence and savouriness due to the exclusive Swift process of curing and smoking.

Be careful to get Swift's "Premium" when you buy Bacon or Ham—make sure of it this coming Easter Morning. Order from your Butcher or Grocer.
