There are a good many complaints in this section, writes a Kent correspondent of the Transcript, concerning the conduct of our member for Ottawa, Mr. P. A. Landry, who treats the people of Kent Co. in a manner that is actually contemptible. When he was canvassing in St. Marys, he told the people that he would call often to see them, but after being elected he forgot all about us and spends his time lecturing on temperance in Westmorland, where he is not wanted; and instead of being in Kent with his constituents he is all the time attending some convention or "ginger tea party."

The flat land between the Oromocto bridge and the residence of R. D. Wilmot, jr., is owned by a number of farmers residing in the parishes of Burton and Lincoln, and after the grass is cut the owners turn their cattle on to this land for fall grazing. Large herds in this way are thrown together. One morning two very fine bulls, belonging respectively to J. D. Wilmot and Charles H. Clowes, met on the point, and after the customary introductory salute, such as pawing for a a time with their fore feet and bellowing lustily, they charged in deadly combat. But three rounds were fought, the only spectator being a solitary pedestrian, when the honor of the house of Wilmot was triumphantly sustained by its champion, who broke the neck of the Clowes bull. The victorious animal, after gazing for a few moments at the lifeless body of his antagonist, walked off with head erect, apparently quite proud of having gained the day. Messrs.
