Does Great Damage Along the Lake Shore.

Eight Lives Probably Lost by the Sinking of the Petrel.

A Blinding Snowfall Adds to the Danger of the Storm-Rescue of a Schooner's Crew.

Saut Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 21,-The northwest gale of Saturday was ac-companied with blinding snow and colder weather. The C. H. Green, with the barges Genoa and Our Son, and the steamer Bradley and consorts, report a desperate encounter with the storm. Both tows broke adrift above White Fish Point. The Bradley secured her consorts again in the lake, but the Genoa, of the Green's tow, lost canvas and deck load. The tow line to Our Son held, and both boats succeeded in rounding White Fish Point in safety and were then picked up by the Green. These boats report a small, blackhulled schooner ashore a short distance above White Fish Point, but could not get near enough to learn her name or condition. SAD LOSS OF LIFE.

East Tawas, Mich., Oct. 21.—Capt. M. D. Dawson has arrived from the search for the Petrel. He reports having gone about 60 miles out on Lake Huron, but found no trace of her. He thinks she could not possibly outlive the gale. The Petrel is thought to have gone down with all on board. The names of the crew were: Capt. J. W. Bennett, Mackinaw; Engineer Dennis Smith, Sand Beach; Fireman Joseph Arsenault; Ernest Lebaun, George Duell, Murdock Ferguson, Barney Smith, Jas. La Plant, all of Au Sable.

VESSELS ASHORE. Amherstburg, Ont., Oct. 21.—The schooner Marion W. Page, in tow of the steamer F. E. Spinner, is ashore about five miles east of the dummy light on Lake Erie. The seas are washing over her. The Page is bound down with iron ore. There is a strong gale from the northwest.

Harrisville, Mich., Oct. 21. - The steam barge Maggie Duncan, rated A1*, ran on a rock at Sturgeon Point on Saturday, and began to fill with water. Capt. Wilson beached her here, Dundas | near the Union dock. The barge is loaded with German speigel ore from Buffalo for Chicago. It is owned by Samuel Neff & Son, of Milwaukee.

DANGEROUS RESCUE. Menominee, Mich., Oct. 21.-A catrigged schooner painted white and without cargo, is reported to be on the Pilot Island rocks at the Lake Michigan entrance to Death's Door. The schooner was holding due west, and is so well out on the rocks that her ferefoot can almost be seen. Heavy seas constantly break over the rocks and vessel, and for this reason her name could not be ascertained. A line was passed to the beach from the vessel, by means of which the last of the crew were going ashore when the Massachusetts moved by. Capt. Anderson thinks that the bottom is pretty well out of the craft.

Splendid Gathering of Farmers at Markham.

A Torchlight Procession in Toronto.

Brilliant Prospects for the Trade Free dem Cause.

Toronto, Oct. 21.—Hon. Wilfrid Laurier returned to the city Saturday night from Markham, where he and his associates had a magnificent welcome from the yeomen of York. The party went by a special train.

When the train arrived at Markham there was an immense crowd at the station. The band was playing, and the road was filled with young farmers mounted upon horses. The apmers mounted upon horses. The appearance of the leader upon the car platform was the signal for cheering, and the 3-pound one was grown in the garden of J. H. Robinson, Newand the three times three and tigers bury. were repeated until the voices were hoarse from the exercise. Mr. Tarte was almost lifted off his feet by the heartiness with which the call for cheers for him was responded to. Ald. Frankland, as the candidate of the riding, was also given a rousing reception. Following after the escort of mounted young farmers was a long line of pedestrians. The streets were lined with people, who cheered as the visitors' carriages passed.

The meeting was held in the big hall of the Agricultural Society, which was packed by the electorate. After Mr. Frankland, Thos. Bain, M.P., J. D. Edgar, M.P., and Mr. Campbell, M. P. for Kent, had spoken, the wildest kind of a demonstration took place, when the leader stood up in response to an invitation from Chairman Nighswander to address the people. The enthusiasm found expression in a chorus of mighty cheers, accompanied by the waving of hats and handkerchiefs. In the midst of it all the two sweet little children, Reva Tifft and Kathleen Reesor, advanced and presented Mr. Laurier with a pretty bouquet. The favor was gracefully acknowledged by the leader, who kissed them both. Then the crowd sang, "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." The leader made a strong plea for trade freedom, and explained his position on the school question.

Mr. Tarte, M.P., whose welcome was most enthusiastic, made a speech on the lines in his address at Sydenham, which caught the crowd. Mr. Mulock, M.P., Mr. Wm. Gibson, M.P., and Mr. James Sutherland also briefly spoke, and a reception was atterwards held at the Tremont House, where citizens of every class shook hands with the popular leader.

THE TORONTO RECEPTION.

which awaited Mr. Laurier on his return at 9 p.m., was exceedingly cordial. Many thousands of persons met the leader at the G. T. R. station, and cheered him for some minutes, as he made his way to the platform erected. There for a long time he was kept shaking hands with admirers. The Queen's Own Band struck up "The Maple Leaf," and cheering was again renewed when he was presented with an address of welcome. He replied most suitably. Thousands of young Liberals and elder admirers of the leader, too, walked in the torchlight procession which subsequently escorted Mr. Laurier and Mr. Tarte to the residence of Mr. Mulock, M.P. There more specehes were called for, and Mr. Tarte phophesied the Liberals would have twenty of a majority in Quebec Province alone. Mr. Laurier said he was simply smothered with kindness. The prospects for the future, he added, were extremely bright. The men in power have ben weighed and found wanting. All must now do their duty. Mr. Laurier spent Sunday in Toronto in the quietest possible manner, taking a much-needed rest. In the morning with Madame Laurier he attended service at St. Michael's Cathedral and spent the balance of the day at Mr.

Four Counties Ravaged by Flames Great Farm Losses.

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 21.-During the past four days destructive prairie fires have swept over parts of four counties in Western Kansas and a large scope of country in Eastern Colorado. The fire which has caused most damage started in the western party of Finney county Thursday and spread to Greely county, burning over a strip of country four miles in width, over 200,000 acres in all. A great deal of grain, broom corn, bush and forage was destroyed, together with barns, hay in the stack and outbuildings. In northern Finney much o damage was also done. In Wichita county another fire started near the town of Haleyon and covered a territory three miles wide by seven long. Four houses were destroyed and many hay stacks and grain racks ruined.

Is Bicycle Riding Injurious? There is a possibility that the fervor exhibited by all classes for the bicycle carries with it an element of danger. Exercise is essential to vigorous health, but in disesase or in those cases where the muscular force is greatly reduced paralysis, epilepsy (fits), and kindred the use of the wheel should be emaffections. Thousands are cured at their ployed cautiously. The proprietors of the very well-known remedy, Putnam's Corn Extractor, attribute the largeness of their sales not to the use of the bicycle by the people of Canada, but to the absolute certainty of their preparation to remove the most painful and obstinate corns in twenty-four hours. utnam's Corn Extractor is always certain, safe and painless. on marriage and divorce. The canon differs materially from the one first proposed, reading as follows: Sec. 1. No minister of this church shall solemnize the marriage of any person who has a divorced husband or wife still living, but this prohibition shall not be held to apply to the innocent party in a divorce, for the cause of adultery, or to parties once divorced from each other seeking to be united again. The evidence of adultery must be found in the records of Sec. 2. In all cases of doubt as to the facts or as to the pastoral duties arising under this canon, the Godly counsel of the bishop shall be sought and

The canon will receive no further action at this session, as the bishops voted to refer it to the commission on revision of the canons.

Dedication of a Beautiful Structure in London.

A New Methodist Sunday School, Seated For 1,200 Persons.

Dundas Street Center Congregation Have a Noteworthy Celebration.

Center Methodist Church was opened under the most favorable auspices. It is just eight months since the old building was burned down, and in the interval, through the kindness of the Board of Education, the services of the congregation and Sunday school have been held in the Collegiate Institute. In future, until the church proper is completed, all the services will be conducted in the fine schoolroom, which has been put up. It was fully described in the "Advertiser." Yesterday seats were provided for 1,200 persons, and the report that the structure was too small for the wants of the Sunday school was disproved. Rev. Dr. Isaac Tovell, of the First Methodist Church, Hamilton, conducted the opening services, morning and evening, being introduced by Rev. Mr. Lanceley, the pastor, as an eminent preacher, who had not before had the pleasure of addressing the Dundas Street congregation. Very appropriately, the morning service was opened by the singing of Old Hun-dred, after which Mr. Lanceley read were scholarly, yet plain, terse in expression and most earnest. In the afternoon dedicatory services, the reverend gentleman spoke particularly to the young people, and proved that he had the rare faculty, even in preachers, of being able to use language and illustrations easy of comprehension to the youngest child. In the morning discourse Dr. Tovell expressed himself an optimist as to the progress of Christianity. In graphic language he showed how great were the results that flowed from the labors of the men who participated in the first prayer meeting after the Lord's ascension. He sketched the wonderful work performed by them, by the martyrs of the early and middle ages, by the great reformers, who succeeded them in later days, by the revivalists of last century, and by the intrepid missionaries of the pres-but we must not have limp-nerved Christians to teach its truths." In the

THE DEDICATION SERVICE judgment was given for the plaintiff was held. After an invocation by Mr. Wm. Bowman, the veteran ex-superintendent of the Sunday school, Mr. J. H. Dickson, superintedent of the Hill Street Mission Sunday school, and Mr. A. N. Udy read the Scripture lessons. Mr. Wm. Yates announced that the Sunday school library would have to be replaced, and requested a liberal collection. The Epworth League quartet, composed of Misses Gunn and Case, and Messrs. Noble and Warner, sang a hymn. Mr. D. A. McDermid, superintendent of the school, referring to its needs, explained that before the old building was burned down, the need of a new one had been felt, and some $500 had been collected by a committee of young ladies. It had been hoped that in the course of a few years a building suited to their needs would erected, but they never dreamed eight months ago of being in a structure such as that they were now meeting in in so short a space. Mr. McDiarmid next caused delight to the young people by announcing that though none of the celebrations arranged for this week were for them, they would have a gathan interesting fact that the improve- ering all to themselves in a week or two. The superintendent called upon Thomas McCormiek, as a good friend of the school and of the church. Mr. McCormick congratulated the boys and girls on so soon getting into their new and beautiful structure. Dundas Street Church was the daughter of Queen's Avenue,, and Dundas Street had got ahead of the old mother, but perhaps they had not the same difficulties. However, the old mother was all right, and rejoiced in the success of her daughter. Mr. McCormick said he and Mr. Bowman could remember when there were very few Methodists in London. "Since then," he continued, we have grown up a mighty people. Methodism was intended by God to grow, and spread, and spread, till it filled the whole earth with holiness. Mr. Wm. Gibson, superintendent of the London West Methodist Sunday school, recited his early experiences as a pupil in the old North Street Sunday school, and gave words of encouragement to the teachers. Rev. Wm. Penhall, who was introduced as a former Dundas Street Sunday school scholar, and who graduated from the school into the ministry, expressed his gratitude to that school for the good it had done him. He recalled the days when Mr. George Webster was its superintendent, and Messrs. Burdette, Johnston, Bowman, Shuff, sen., and Keenleyside, were its leading teachers, while with Messrs. Beale, Shuff, jun., and others he had many hallowed associations. Mr. Penhall vigorously set forth the claims of the Sunday school on the church, and held that it was best that the boys and girls should early become members of the church. All the visitors congratulated the congregation and Sunday school upon the really beautiful structure which was now dedicated for their use. Dr. Tovell, who was the next THE BUILDING IS JUST PERFECT. He had visited and inspected Sunday schools in Toronto, Montreal and many United States cities, and his congregation in Hamilton thought they had a fine Sunday school room; but he had seen no structure so chaste, so beautiful, so well adapted for the work. "It is more complete, more suitable, than any I have inspected," Dr. Tovell added: "let us trust that the work to be done in it will be even more earnest and effectual." Dr. Tovell then deliver-ed an admirable address to the children, which riveted their attention, and Rev. E. B. Lanceley offered up the prayer of dedication, which concluded the afternon proceedings.

At all the services the congregations were very large—in the evening, when Rev. Mr. Laird took part, the audience overflowed. The famous choir of the church, under Mr. Moxon, was ence more enabled to do good work, the accountie properties of the body. the accoustic properties of the hall being excellent. At the morning service Misses Roblin and Ruse, and Messrs. Skinner and Carroll, sang a couple of quartets most artistically. Similar services were rendered in the evening. The music in the Sunday school, under the directorship of Dr. Ziegler, with Mr. James Cresswell as leader of orchestra, and L. Warner as planist, was also of a very high order. The officers of the church, with the pastor, and the officebearers of the Sunday school, worked hard to make the opening a success, and they had the assistance of a number of ladies, who aided in arranging the hot-house plants, which decorated the platform in an artistic manner. These are the general officers of the Sunday school: D. A. McDermid, superintendent; Wm. Yates and A. N. Udy erintendent; W.H. Lace and assistant superintendents; C. E. Cowley treasurer; L. W. Noble,

Cowley, treasurer; L. W. Noble, secretary; L. A. Keenleyside, assistant secretary; Alv. Nugent, librarian; E. L. Williams, John A. Heaman, G. M. Millar, E. G. Yates, H. B. Beal, assistant librarians. With such a staff, and an earnest band of some 40 teachers, the future of the Sunday school is a bright

ent day. There is, he asserted, a glorious future before the Church, if she collections, which were for the is true to her mission, as laid down benefit of the Sunday school, were over by her Head. Some of Dr. Tovell's sayings were pointed, as when he remarked: "We have our limp-covered Bibles

PRETTY FACES RULE THE UNIVERSE.

There's No Beauty Without Freshness and Pureness of Complexion.

Good complexions, handsome eyes, and graceful carriage in women have caused nonarchs to forget to rule, and millionaire to cease the worship of gold.

Our literature is filled with advertisements of complexion beautifiers, cosmetics, etc., but beauty is not skin deep. Nearly all women's ills are directly the result of irregularities of the bowels. To avoid these irregularities means to preserve that freshness and beauty of complexion which women crave more than anything else in the world. It means youth and beauty. It means freedom from dizziness, headache and biliousness. Irregularities of the bowels and the many afflictions arising therefrom, and in fact over seventy-five per cent. of all the ills women are subject to, are derived directly or indirectly from constipation, and the researches of many eminent doctors go to prove the above statement to be true.

Karl's Clover Root Tea, put up by its American proprietors after one of the most scientific formulae ever produced by medical research and skill, comprises not only herbs, which will positively cure constipation and all irregularities of the bowels, but ingredients, which will at the same time act as a tonic to the system, a panacea to the complexion and a boon to those afflicted with headache, dizziness, languor, melancholia,

He Tells Why He Left the Conservative Party.

Unsuccessful Struggle to Get His Leaders to Punish Millionaire Thieves,

And His Final Exposure of the Gang After Five Months Investigation,

The Right and the Wrong Way to Settle the Manitoba School Question.

At the Sydenham, Addington, open-air demonstration in honor of Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, on Friday last, Mr. Tarte, M.P., made his first speech in Ontario. He was very warmly received. He said: You were kind enough to invite me to this meeting. I am, indeed, very thankful to you. In the parish where I was born 46 years ago there was no school question. The French language was the only one taught, and that is the reason why I feel so timorous at addressing such a meeting as this. The Manitoba school question will have at least the advantage of forcing upon public opinion the necessity of learning both languages where the law indorses them. (Hear, hear.) Four years ago I was an honest man-(laughter)-I was a brilliant speaker, an able writer and a very good fellow indeed. Today all these good qualities have vanished from me. I am a bad man, a very bad man, a dishonest man and a bigoted man. So my friends of the Tory press say, but they did not say the same thing in the past. Four years ago I was one of their leaders. I would like to know what crime I have committed since 1891. I am glad to see some old Conservative faces in this audience. I want to address myself especially to them. All our old leaders are gone. The great old man whom I followed for twenty years, Sir John Macdonald, is gone. Sir Charles Tupper is gone. In Quebec all our Conservative leaders have gone also. Surely my friends of the Conservative party here, do not pretend to believe that Sir Adolphe Caron and "Gen." Ouimet are the leaders of my race. Four years ago I was in the Conservative ranks; I am no more with the Conservative party. (Applause.) They say that I am all changed, yet in vain do I look about me for evidences of the change.

I find I am

JUST THE SAME MAN. My wife, who knows something about me-(loud laughter)-says that I am not changed at all, but that I am the same fellow that I was in the past days. (Renewed laughter.) Again I ask, what crime did I commit? tell you in a few words. You will excuse, of course, my imperfect knowledge of the English language. You will not forget when I was 27 years old I could not speak one solitary word of English. You are all honest men here. If you discover tomorrow that in your neighbor's house there are thieves who are robbing him, you would be just as dishonest as the thieves themselves if you did not point them out. In the year 1891, as I told you, I was one of the leaders of the Conservative party in Quebec. (A voice-Well done.) leves that had quarreled between selves came to me one good morn-

They came to me bringing with them papers. It was a Sunday. I will remember the day all my lifetime. They came to my place with a bundle of papers on a Sunday morning. I read them. I say again I was a good loyal Conservative. I said to them: w, gentlemen, we will keep quiet. Let us keep quiet. I will go to my own leaders and I will get redress."

TOLD SIR JOHN MACDONALD.

I did not go to my friend the leader of the Opposition. I took the papers to Sir John Macdonald and left the papers with him. He said to me: "Tarte, we will leave them for a week," which I did. When the week was up I went up to Ottawa again and Sir John told me: "I have seen Mr. McGreevy and Sir Hector Langevin and both of them have declared that there is nothing in it, that this is a conspiracy against them." I replied: "Sir John, they told you more than that, I am afraid. They told you that they could get rid of me even if there was something behind what I have said to you." Sir John said: "No, they did not say anything of the kind." Gentlemen, what I learned later on proved to me that I was right. Those aid of the hundreds of thousands of the public exchequer they would be in a position either to buy me or crush me. I am not for sale, thank God, and, small as I am, I am not going to be crushed before making a good fight at any rate. I went down to Quebec and I took upon myself to do what any other honest man would have done, I think. I published in my own paper, over my signature, a series of accusations against those men. I accused them of having

STOLEN ONE MILLION DOLLARS. It was a grave accusation. I was immediately arrested for criminal libel, and, at the same time, I was sued before the civil courts for $50,000 damages. I was in a very difficult position. I knew that I had to deal with wealthy men, with men who had amassed wealth out of the public exchequer. I consulted the very best lawyer that I could get. I went to my friend, Mr. Casgrain, the Attorney-General in Quebec, and he advised me to choose as one of my lawyers my friend. Mr. Laurier. I retained both these 'awyers and we went to court. When Mr. Laurier had read my papers he said to me: "Well, Tarte, you have discovered a nest of thieves; there is no doubt about that. But I warn you, my friend, if you don't take care of yourself you may go to jail some of these fine mornings." (Great laughter.) Well, I found that out. I was not very long in discovering that he was right, and, gentlemen, we went before the courts, but before the courts, as anywhere else, I am much afraid it is very easy to see that the big fish eats the small fry. (Laughter.) I felt that I was not safe before the courts, and I made up my mind that instead of going to that jail where the health of Mr. McGreevy and Mr. Connolly suffered, I made up my mind to go before the electors and to Parliament. The general elections came en. and I was elected to Parliament. You know what I did, I did not do as some of my friends do. I did not accuse Thomas McGreevy, Sir Hector Langevin and all of those men and then keep still. I brought the accusa- with those who read only the Tory pa-

I must get rid of you." I have come here to state plain facts. What hap-pened? You know right well that the inquiry we went into lasted five months. At the end of that inquiry, Sir John Thompson himself, who was then the leader of the House, signed a report in which it was stated that $960,000 had been stolen from the public treasury. Ladies and gentlemen, and my Conservative friends, did I commit a great crime in putting a stop to these iniquities? Well. I discovered the crime; I had the guilty parties punished. When I say punished, I am afraid I do not use the proper word. When a poor fellow forgets himself and steals a cord of wood, or a pair of rubbers, or an overcoat, he is sent to the penitentiary for seven years. We have in our sight people who have stolen a million dollars, and their health was so poor that they could not be kept in jail more than two months. What was the consequence of that? It was this: There are dishonest men in the world, we know that. Some people in Montreal say: "If, for having stolen a million dollars, friends Connolly, Nick and Mick, and Uncle Tom, get only two months in jail, we would not be hanged if we stole a quarter of a million of dollars." They went right on, and the Curran bridge scandal occurred, where a quarter of a million dollars were stolen in two months. I desired to explain in a few words the reason why I changed my political allegiance.

THE SCHOOL QUESTION. You will expect me, I suppose, to say a few words upon the Manitoba school question. They say I am a bigoted man. I will tell you as best I can what am. I am a plain Canadian, a loyal Canadian, a French-Canadian, and Roman Catholic. (Hear, hear.) That is just what I am. On the Manitoba school question I took a very firm stand, and it is as follows: I claim that the French-Canadians have the same rights as you have. Is that fair or not? (Hear, hear.) In this land of Canada we are on the same footing. I claim that my fellow-countrymen are on the same footing as you are; my blood is just as good as your blood, I am sure of that. In Manitoba there was a system of separate schools: in Quebec there was a system of separate schools. Your English fellow-countrymen have the entire control of their schools: my countrymen have the entire control of their schools. Everyone is pleased. I am not here to say that we have nothing to improve in Quebec. We have

VASTLY IMPROVED IN QUEBEC,

I won't allow you or anybody else to come to me, to take me by the throat, and to tell me you will do this or that. I won't allow that. I claim that my countrymen in Manitoba have been' taken by the throat in the very same way, and it was not fair. But bygones are bygones. I have not the time to go carefully into the whole question. I want to address myself to the position as we find it today. The Government have bungled from beginning to end. They went to Quebec, and they said to the Roman Catholic clergy: "Give us your support, and we will re-establish the separate schools in Manitoba." They came to this great Province, and they said quietly to their friends: "Don't be afaid; we won't do anything." What did they do in Vercheres? You all heard of the election in Vercheres. I made the fight in that county, and we gained the battle there. Our opponents could not fight like men, with open faces. They went to two of the bishops, They deceived them in the most shameful way, and they said: "My Lords, if you do not interfere on our behalf we are doomed, and you will never get your separate schools in Manitoba.' The result was the bishops interfered, to their great regret now, and I do not blame them. They interfered-because they were shamefully deceived-and they published letters telling their people that it was necessary to vote for this Government, otherwise the separate schools would never be established. At the same time they had an election in Haldimand, and what did they do there? They went quietly to their leaders and told them: "It is true we have issued that remedial order, but we won't do anything." In Quebec they appealed to the Roman Catholic priests and in Ontario to their own friends, saying one thing in Quebec and another thing in Ontario. I want to ask you if this is the way to deal with a great question? We are all Canadians We have all the same interest here. to live in peace. I am a French-Canadian, you are English-Canadians. My father and my mother were of French origin; your fathers and mothers were of English origin. But when you come to look at the matter from a high standpoint, I want to know what is the difference between you and me?

(Hear, hear.) WE ARE ALL CANADIANS after all. You cannot get rid of me. My race now numbers one and a half men believed at the time that with the | millions. Your race numbers three and a half millions. I cannot get rid of dollars that they had stolen from you; you cannot get rid of me. Then we must arrange to live together peaceably, like intelligent men. (Applause.) I want to apply the very principle that I have propounded to the settlement of the difficult Manitoba school question. What are we going to do? My leader has stated his views. He has said that the Liberal party do not want to take Manitoba by the throat. I have no authority to speak for anybody except myself, but I think I may say I know the feeling in the Province of Quebec as well as anybody else. (Hear, hear.) I was a Conservative, but am now working with my friend, the leader of the Liberal party. I know both parties; I know the Province of Quebec; and, gentlemen of the Province of Ontario, I am here to say that in the Province of Quebec we do not intend to coerce Manitoba. (Applause.) What I say here I have said before my own countrymen in a dozen of meetings. I and my countrymen understand the position. We want peace. I want justice for my countrymen. I am not here to say that I do not want justice for them. Understand me thoroughly; I want justice for them, but I want justice through the proper remedy. I claim if coercion was attempted, instead of a remedy, it would be a poison, and a very bitter poison, too. How could we enforce a law against an unwilling Province? What would be the position of my fellow-countrymen in Manitoba? There are twelve thousand, all told. They are a small minority; they would simply be crushed down. I do not want them to be crushed down.

CAN BE SETTLED. What I want, what I expect, from you, is that you will put in power men who will deal squarely and honestly with that important question. As Mr. Laurier has said, we can settle the question. We can settle it on a national basis. The Government have reproached us many times for not giving them a policy. They would like that we should make a bill for them. I know cup of water; one tablespoon of out:

about me a ew years ago. Today those who read only the Tory papers believe that I am a kind of a bad man, and a very bad man at that. Believe me, however, I do not bring with me in these pockets any explosive to blow up this meeting. came as a peaceable citizen, and, believe me, I am an honest man. I may have made mistakes, but I want to ask the Conservative press and Con-servative leaders if I was a dishonest man when I was with them, why I was such a great favorite with them. Do. not forget that until 1891 I was with you. Even after my election in 1891 Sir John Macdonald sent me an invitation that I have got now, an invitation to attend the first committee of the House to elect a Speaker. Well, they made a great deal against me in connection with Mr. Mercier's name. Will you allow me to speak to you frankly, and to tell you that I FOUGHT MR. MERCIER'S POLICY until 1891. (Hear, hear.) But before going any further allow me to say that a great many of those who traduce his name today, who vilify his dead name, are not worthy to brush his shoes. (Laughter.) They cannot find a policy. They go to the cemetery to trample upon the graves of the dead. I was one of Mr. Mercier's opponents in the Province of Quebec. I was even asked by Sir John Macdonald in 1890 to take the leadership of the Opposition in Quebec, but when in my native Province a coup d'etat was accomplished by the Lieutenant-Governor taking the government of the Province into his own hands, after dismissing his Ministers, I said that I was a British citizen, that I wanted to be governed by constitutional rule, and then I fought against this coup d'etat. I thank you for the kind hearing you have given me. It was a great privilege to be invited here, and I will take with me down to Quebec a souvenir of this great meeting. I will tell my French fellow-countrymen of the enthusiasm with which their eminent compatriot and my eminent leader is received everywhere. They say I have changed my allegiance, but it is also true I have improved my company. Sir Mackenzie Bowell may be a great man, but in my estimation my friend and leader is a greater man than he, and if there is a pleasure for me it is to say that my fellow-countrymen of English origin have chosen him, a Frenchman and a Roman Catholic, as their leader. You may be sure of one thing: I know him well; I fought him for a very long time. He says he remembers the blows I occasionally gave him, but he will also, I am sure, remember the kind words that even when I was an opponent of his I uttered towards him, because I must say before I was with him I was very much tempted to be with him. As a newspaper man from the press gallery, I have seen him grow up in politics, and I was not long in discovering that before long he would be one of the great men of Canada. Do not be afraid to meet him, He is a liberal-minded man. He is a Roman Catholic, but he desires justice for you, as he desires justice for his own countrymen.

and we are improving there every day. What I am here to say is this: That In Quebec, I beg you to believe me, there is a feeling of amity and esteem for the great Province of Ontario. At times we fight foolishly, but I have no doubt that the time has come when eace, harmony and amity will exist between us. (Applause.) Medical Cards. CL. T. CAMPBELL, M.D., M. C. P. The situation in Turkey has increased. The submission of the Porte to the demands made by Great Britain, France and Russia relative to the reform of the administration in Armenia appears to be considered as only a brief respite from the gravest development. According to thoroughly reliable information the Mohammedan reform party, which aims at the disposition of the Sultan and the formation of a government under a constitution, rely upon the support of Great Britain in the event of a revolution proving even partly successful. On the other hand, it is understood that the Sultan has obtained an assurance that the three ing twenty minutes. powers will support him against any movement tending to anarchy if he adheres faithfully to his Armenian compact. He was present at the bombardment of Sebastopol adventure. According to these documents Oliver Cromwell's embalmed head, after his body, with those of his most prominent lieutenants, was disinterred after the accession of Charles II. to the throne, was placed on a pike, with those of Ireton and Bradshaw, over Westminster Hall.

On his death-bed he confessed what he had done. After various vicissitudes, including being placed on exhibition in a public show, Cromwell's head passed into the possession of the Wilkeson family. The head was kept in an oak box, is still impaled on a pike head and had evidently suffered from exposure and

FOR PEACE.

A Berlin special cabie says: Politically, the chief event of the week has been the visit of Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky to Hubertstock, Emperor William's shooting box, which is held to be a fact of prime importance. Commenting on this visit, a well informed former official said to a representative of the Associated Press today: "This visit is much more than one of courtesy, for it is intended to show France and the rest of Europe that the new Emperor of Russia means to entertain friendly relations with Germany. Count Lobanoff-Rostovsky left Germany with the conviction that his country's policy is an outspoken, frank policy of peace. He was also enlightened regarding the relations between Germany and Austria. During the audience the Emperor repeatedly assured Count Lobanoff-Rostovsky of Germany's keen desire to maintain friendly relations with Russia, and during the filmer which followed his Majesty igain referred to the subject that "in frinking the health of his guest he hoped the misunderstandings of the past were forgotten and that they would not recur.". WILLIAM WAS PLEASED. The enthusiasm which has been aroused in Alsace-Lorraine by the presence there during the past week, of the Emperor and Empress of Germany, has pleased his Majesty greatly. At Chateau-Urville, for instance, while the throng of people outside were thickly lining all approaches to the castle and cheering vociferously, the Emperor remarked to Gen. Von Hahnke: "This looks, indeed, as if this has become once more German soil." The Emperor's manner throughout was pleasant and urbane in the extreme, and the kind words which the Empress addressed to the deputation from the ladies of Metz, seemed to make a deep impression upon them. While going er the battlefields around Metz, his Majesty required no explanations, having studied the ground so thoroughly as to be familiar with every foot of it, naming at a glance the villages, farms and hills dotting the country, remark-ing: "That was where the brave Forty-Sixth lost so many men," etc. NEW PANAMA CANAL SCHEMES.

Sir Henry Tyler, formerly president of the G. T. R., of Canada, who has for some time past been lost to view, emerges to the front in a letter dated Panama, denying that the Panama Canal has been abandoned, and describing the new schemes in connection with the work. He states that it is now proposed to construct two large one on rock to be 570 yards long, 165 yards wide at its base, and 38 yards high, across the upper Chagres River at a point above where the Obispo River runs into the Chagres. The second dam will have rock sides, and will be 473 yards long, 220 yards wide at its base, and 27 yards high. This will be built across the bed of the lower Chagres River after it is joined by the bispo. Two lakes will thus be formed, the upper one supplying the higher portions of the canal with water, while appreciation of about 140 per cent over the values of October, 1894. According to the Statist a strong syndicate is now buying mining securities with resources so enormous that confidence ought to be restored. The Stock Exchange Saturday presented scenes of almost full-fledged panic. Operators began to think the inevitable smash had come until about the middle of the afternoon, when Mr. Barnato's brokers broke in and bought more than brokers broke in and bought more than a million dollars' worth of stock. That stopped the break. A rally followed, and the market today was steady. There has been one important change in the situation. The public appetite for gold mines seems by no means appeased, but it is beginning to discriminate sharply. This is the principal reason for the heavy attack on the Barnato properties, especially the Barnato bank. The huge blind pool is as much a mystery as ever. Nothing has yet been disclosed about the business it proposes to do. The concessions or privileges it possesses are said to justify a market value of $40,-000,000, even after the shrinkage of the last few days. The liquidation is likely to continue, therefore, in these properties until they are put upon a satisfactory basis.

BRITISH NAVAL ACTIVITY. The Right Hon. George J. Goschen, First Lord of the Admiralty, had a conference with Prime Minister Salisbury yesterday in relation to the retention of the British fleet at the Island of Lemnos, which is within convenient striking distance of the Turkish capital. The situation now is such that Lord Salisbury is not allowed a day's respite. Since Wednesday he has been obliged to accord interviews with the Russian, French and Turkish ambassadors and the Chinese and other Ministers. Since Mr. Goschen's return from the continent orders have been sent to Gibraltar to expedite the erection of the new dock there for the accommodation of the British Mediterranean squadron. Whether or not Gibraltar is of the first strategic importance the Government treats it as a great naval basis for the future struggle for precedence in the Mediterranean. One thousand men have been working on the new dock, and this number will be increased under instructions that have just been sent to those in charge of the work. AN ARTIST'S LUCK. The Danish painter, Tuxen, to whom the widowed Russian Empress gave a commission to paint a picture of the young Czar Nicholas' wedding, has finished his work, which is greatly admired for the faithfulness of the portraits, as well as the general effect of dignity befitting such an august occasion. There are about 30 portraits in the picture, and every one of them is declared to be a speaking likeness. Taking time by the forelock, the artist is already engaged upon the preliminary arrangements for painting the picture of the baptism of the Czar's child, not yet born, for which work Mr. Tuxen has received a commission from the same patron at the same price, $10,000. The Czarina's accouchement is now expected daily, and the family is said to be somewhat anxious there anent, but the outside world has not been enlightened as to the reason for the forebodings. Two of the court physicians are now in residence at the palace, and rooms are or a professor from

It relates to a mishap to a wealthy American. He came from Paris to London ten days ago, and lost en route his purse containing several hundred dollars and four letters of credit worth nearly $50,000. He carried the purse in the side pocket of his coat and had no how it had been lost. He reported the matter to the bank, and all the agencies in Europe were notified by telegraph to stop payment, and a liberal reward for the money was offered. Saturday's mail brought to the bank a packet from a lawyer in a little fish-ing town in Belguim. Within was the purse, water soaked, but with con-tents intact. The lawyer wrote that the purse was picked up several days ago by the crew of a Belgian trawler, floating on the waves in the middle of the English channel. Its owner now recollects that he was very seasick while crossing the channel, and that instead of going below he indulged in the malady on deck, and occasionally leaned far over the rail, in order to try to see the land beneath the waves, and for other reasons. No other explanation of the disappearance of the purse was necessary.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE. The Westminster Gazette, noticing dispatch to the Times from New York to the effect that the securing of a joint refusal by the European powers to accept the Monroe doctrine is believed to be in Lord Salisbury's mind, says that the statement is erroneous, adding that Britain is not going to the powers on any such errand Monroe doctrine, it declares, is a matter entirely between Great Britain and the United States. If the time ever comes for Great Britain to take sides on the question she will stand with, not against, the Americans. THEATRICAL MATTERS.

The autumn theatrical season is now so far advanced that managers are already arranging the details of the Christmas pantomimes. Drury Lane, which is usually conceded to take the lead in this form of entertainments, will have for this year's theme the time-honored "Cinderella," which will be arranged by Sir Augustus Harris, Gordon Surgers and Cecil Raleigh. It is also hinted that Clement Scott will have a hand in the dialogue making. Pinero's new play, "The Benefit of the Doubt," was produced at the Com-edy Theater on Wednesday last, and was the event of the week in the dramatic world. It is a comedy in three acts, and deals with the subject of or-vorce. The cast is an excellent one, whether it had been stolen or and brought out the usual crowd of notabilities on the first night. The general opinion expressed by the newspapers the next morning, Thursday, was that Pinero had not fallen below his high standard, and the critics warmly praised the production, expressing the opinion that a long run seems assured.

"Mary,-The best thing you can do is to stay where you are if you know when you are in luck. For it's like this: I have just begun to find out my mistake in getting married. I got taste enough of tie-down life last winter to satisfy me, and I will not be tied down again to the best woman that ever lived. If you come back here I go somewhere else. I have made up my mind I won't be tied down to nobody. I am drinking every cent I make and am going to keep on boozing the rest of my time. They both pleaded guilty this morning, and the chief of police said the woman had committed the act in order that she might be sent to jail. She did not want to go back to her husband, who had ill-treated her only last week, while under the influence of liquor. Her Garments Are Rich and Exquisitively Beautizul. Costly Jewels.

As the days come on apace the time draws nearer when Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt will be changed from an American maiden into a titled English woman-the Duchess of Marlborough. While the invitations to the notable wedding, which is to take place in St. Thomas' Church, Fifth avenue, New York, have not yet been issued, the most elaborate preparations are being made for the great event, and it is said that a small host of bridesmaids will contribute to the elegance of the

For the express gratification of the exclusive few, the announcement is made that invitations will be issued only to the fashionable set, as the affair will doubtless be one of the most elaborate functions that can be arranged. The bridal outfit is the matter that is now engrossing the attention of the duchess-elect, and, acompanied by her mother, and frequently her maid, she spends several hours each day on shopping expeditions.

She has strong preferences for light colors, and in selecting her wardrobe has confined herself almost exclusively to delicate shades. A costume that Macheret is making is of tan broadcloth, handsomely embroidered in silk braid of the same tint. An outer garment to be wern with it is of the Redingote style, hned with pink shot silk and elaborately trimmed with sable. hat to match this suit is of tan vervet, with a shirred brim and soft cloth crown, decorated with mercury wings and a stylish arrangement of Dresden ribbon and feathery aigrettes.

Half a dozen steamer gowns are included in the outfit, while her morning dresses and negligee robes are very beautiful creations of pompadour silks, profusely trimmed with lace, and lined with cream taffetas. Some are made in Empire style, while other show a befrilled petticoat in Valenciennes lace

Vanderbilt is to bestow upon her daughter the famous Gavit collection of the 15th century jewels and stones, which cost the owner half a dozen moderate for-tunes; added to these will be the Marlborough jewels, which the groom will supply, besides the magnificent bridal gifts that will greatly enhance the wealth in her jewel casket. It is not yet known whether the wedding reception will be held at Mrs.

Vanderbilt's new house at Seventysecond street and Madison avenue, or at the Graystone house in Fifth avenue: but no lavish expenditure will be spared to present the most resplendent appearance possible. There will undoubtedly be two marriage ceremonies, one religious and the other civil, as great care has always been taken by the Dukes of Marlborough to guard against any question of validity of a marriage entered into by them.

Hon, L. H. Pelletier will replace Hon. Mr. Angers in the Ottawa Cabinet. The risk of electing him to the Commons will not be undertaken. He will be called to the Senate—a refuge in a time of need.

MR. LAUBIER'S WAY.

(From the Toronto Star.)

Strength in political matters does not The magistrate informed her that her i necessarily mean bull-dog assertiveness: strength in meeting a grave crisis in the affairs of state does not necessarily mean a pagilistic attitude backed up by a threat. A strong statesman at such a time will be calm and firm; he may be cold and hard, or he may meet the issue with a smile and a cheery confidence in himself, his ready for use. It corrects all looseness country and his cause. He must be tool of the bowels promptly, and causes a healthy and natural action. This is a medicine adapted for the young and Miss Vanderbilt's Wedding Trosseau and firm, but he may approach the issue with the sunny ways of patriotism. asking the other side to be just and to be fair. ' The time when the issue came before the Dominion Government to be dealt with finally was the time when the sunny ways of patriotism were needed. The Govern ment did not try that way, it took the bull dog method, and the result is only too well known-failure

Government papers say that Mr. Laurier's way would postpone the evil day and keep the country in a prolonged ferment; but has the Government's way done any better? Has not the Government's method kept the country in a prolonged ferment and has it not been a vascillating. dilatory pol-37? Mr. Laurier has been a long time speaking, but he has spoken at last, and he has made his position very plain He would have a commission investigate the faces, if the Manitoba s hooks were found to be Protestant, he would see that a charge was made. In the sunny way of patriotism he would ask Mr. Greenway to make the change necessary to give justice to the minority, and if Mr. Greenway refused, Mr. Laurier would doubtless be firm enough to ask the Federal Parliament to provide OVSTOP Cards, etc., Laurier would doubtless be firm enough to remedial legislation. The difference between the ways of Mr. Laurier and the Government is that the Liberal leader would first send his commission to learn the facts; while the Government formulates its demands for a remedy without ascertaining if there be a disease to remedy. As a result of the Government's way the matter stands just were it stood when the Government took it up, and in addition relations between the Dominion and the Province are strained. The sunny way would have created an amicable feeling on both sides, and a commission could before this time have learned all the facts. It is even possible that the sunny ways would have enabled the two sides to reach an amicable agreement.

London, Saturday, Oct. 19.—There was a much better feeling at the cheese board today, and makers are rejoioing to think that perhaps they are at the turning of the long lane of low prices. The chief cause of the rise was the cabled report quoting the British market at 43s for new cheese, 38s 6d for white (old), and 29s for colored (old). The quotation last week was 37s 6d. Twelve hundred and seventy-five of the 5,225 boxes boarded were sold. Nine cents were realized for 875 boxes and 8c for 400—the output of the Cedar Spring's factory, including makes of June, July, August and September. The holder had previously refused 85-16c. The factories selling at 9c were Bryanston, Vzner and Gallabank, Forest and Uttoxeter. The cheese was all colored

Some factorymen who sold at 7 and a fraction cents last week are sorry that they did so, and one has even gone so far as to repudiate a sale after affixing his name to the contract. He claims that the buyer misrepresented the market, but is exceedingly indefinite as to the manner in which the misrepresentation occurred.

CHAPTER XIII.-THE MALIN-GERER.

Mrs. Warren met the doctor and Father Reardon at the door. She courtesied respectfully to the priest, and opened the sitting room door. "May I speak with the doctor a mo-ment, Father?" she asked, "before you see the patient?"

'Of course, Mrs. Warren," replied the "It is you who have sent for me, and you must know whether the summons is urgent." "I am very sure the patient is in no immediate danger," she said, "and I shall detain you but a moment." There was a bright light in her eyes and a red spot glowed on either cheek as she withdrew the doctor into the hallway. He could not tell whether her changed manner were expressive of hope or excitement due to renewed "Doctor," she said, "I believe he is as conscious as you or I." "Have you spoken with him?" "I have spoken to him, but he has not answered."

'What does he do?" "He keeps his eyes intently on me, listens to all I say, but gives no sign. Sometimes he seems to wander, as if he were trying to remember something, but the expression of his eyes is intelligent. There is none of the vacancy of delirium in them."

"H'm," murmured the doctor. "What do you think?" This, doctor: that he knows my face, but cannot yet understand where Mrs. Warren, without moving. he is or how he came here. Doctor, if he comes to speak, I beg you let me be the one to hear him."

'But you asked me yourself about the priest last night. "Yes, I remember. I thought then he was going to die."

'I had but just got home when Father Reardon came jogging by. He, too, had been at a bedside pretty much all night, for his parishioners, you know, are as scattered as my patients—and as few in number, I guess. Well, you are acquainted with him, as we all are, and you know how readily his sympathies are aroused. I never appealed to him in vain. When I told him about the stranger of his faith who had fallen into trouble, and of the inquiry you had made, there was no other course open to him, and he saw it, but to come."

"I wouldn't for anything," said Mrs. Warren, as if speaking to herself, 'stand between Freeman and his religion. It is more than probable that he would like to see the Father, and it is more probable still that he would speak to the priest when he would not to me. Dr. Nason," and she looked up at him appealingly, "is it true that Catholic priests always respect the secrecy of the confessional?"

never heard of an instance," he replied gravel, "where a priest dis-closed a single word told to him in his capacity as confessor. Even if there plain determination to shut him out, were exceptions, I am sure that you could trust Father Reardon."

"Yes, yes, he is a good man, and yet, I wish he had not to hear—doc-You won't permit this Mr. Golding to speak with the patient?"

The doctor drew a long breath. "Not without your permission," he "Thank you," she said. "Will you he gazed at the doctor doubtfully. Then he turned them upon Mrs. Warren steadily for a moment, finally closing them and answering nothing. The doctor did not repeat his question, but thrust a thermometer into Dutton's mouth. The patient took it in as matter-of-course fashion as if he were perfectly alive to the situation, but he kept his eyes closed and uttered no sound. Presently Dr. Nason put up his thermometer and went into the hall, closing the door behind him. There is no danger to the patient."

he said, "in the priest's visit, no matter how serious their conversation may be." Father Reardon was accordingly

"Far from it, apparently." returned

The priest bowed slightly and passed on, and after he had entered the chamber Mrs. Warren opened the door from the sitting room into the hall and sat down near it. At first they heard only the low murmur of Father Reardon's voice. He appeared to be asking questions of the sick man, and Dutton seemed to be treating his inquiries as he had those of Mrs. Warren and the doctor.

After two or three minutes of this there was the sound of another voice, speaking apparently in impatience, and Mrs. Warren exclaimed, without looking up at the doctor: "He speaks. I knew he would tell the priest," and she buried her face in her hands. Dr. Nason made no comment, but he looked very thoughtful, and his face grew even graver as the patient's voice continued, losing its sharp quality of tone and sinking to a steady,

"You see how serious it is," he said, "when the doctor thinks it advisable to bring a priest to the unfortunate man's bedside."

"I thought you said last evening," remarked King, who had been pro-feundly impressed by Mr. Warren's defiance, "that this Dutton or Freeman, as you called him then, had done a great wrong."

"So I did, and it was true. But lowered her arm. didn't I say that Freeman would come with me and do as I said? I had in mind what I could not very well tell you then, that I was following him in a spirit of forgiveness. The man had long been my friend and partner. What if he had gone wrong for once? And, especially now, shouldn't I be the first to defend him and look after his

"Guess that's so," said King, knowing what else to say, but feeling a doubt, nevertheless, as to Golding's sincerity. Had either of the others at that moment declared their belief in Warren, King would have hastened to rank himself on the old soldier's side as against all strangers and against

After several minutes had passed, Golding could not resist the impulse that drew him to the house, and he went around to the front door and knocked genty. Mrs. Warren opened it for him. She did not invite him to

"I think so." She would have attempted to withdraw, but Golding was clearly set silence. upon urging his requests anew, when Father Reardon opened the door of the sick room and came out, closing it carefully behind him. He stepped into the sitting room to get his hat, while the doctor rose, and Mrs. Warren gazed at him apprehensively, and Golding edged his way into the hall. The priest found his hat, and as he turned to go he made some commonplace remark about the weather.

"Father Reardon," said Mrs. Warren, "we have but recently finished breakfast. You have a long way to go. Won't you have a cup of coffee or tea and let Elsie get you something to eat?"

"I have had breakfast, thank you," he replied. "but I would be glad of a cup of coffee."

Mrs. Warren called to Elsie, who promptly opened the door at the end of the hall, and gave her the needed instructions. Then, while Father Reardon went down the hall to the kitchen, followed by the doctor, Mrs. Warren turned and closed the front door. Golding was standing on the threshold, but he was not proof against her and he stepped back without a word. She bolted the door and went into the sick room. Dutton's eyes were closed, but he opened them as she came in, tor, you will let him be the only one? and for an instant he looked as if he were about to say something. Mrs. Warren eagerly approached the bed, but he shook his head very slightly and closed his eyes again. Mrs. Warren opened the door into the kitchen, and drawing a chair to the threshold, see the patient before the priest goes sat down where she could keep her in?" the same time what might go on in

Father Reardon was seated at the table sipping his coffee and chatting pleasantly with Mr. Warren about farm topics and such other matters as entered into the ordinarily uneventful life of Granite people. The priest and the old soldier were more than acquaintances, though their friendship could hardly be said to be close. They entertained a high regard for one another, and never met without pausing for more or less conversation. Father Reardon was evidently not disposed to talk at length this morning, for he declined a second cup of coffee and pushed back his chair, preparing to go. Just then Golding stalked in at the back door, his face marked with a frown of determination. "Father," he said at once, "I make no complaint against the people of this house, who see fit to keep me from my friend's dying bed, but I appeal to you in the name of Christianity and ordinary humanity. Freeman Dutton is my friend and partner. I have the right to know-"Pardon me," interrupted the priest, rising; "Dr. Nason is here. Your question properly should be addressed to him. I am not a physician for the body."

"Well, but," protested Golding; "here is a dying man, and his closest friend is forbidden the house. Won't you tell me whether he has spoken to you? Is there no message that he confided to you for me? My name is Ben

"The patient spoke to me, yes. He gave me no message for you or anybody else. As to what else passed, I can only say with absolute frankness that the man in that room had no need or desire for the services of a priest.

Golding stared his discomfiture, while the priest bowed gravely and left the room. He turned back after he had entered the hall to add: "You will, of course, interpret nothing that I have said as meant to influence in the slightest degree the conduct of my friends in a matter that apparently concerns only themselves. Mr. and Mrs. Warren are their own judges as to what is right to do.'

The priest said "Good morning all round, and when he departed Mrs. Warren was standing in the doorway that led from the kitchen to the sick room, Golding near the kitchen stove and Elsie, her father and the doctor, in the hall. The latter three went into the sick room.

"I've done with appealing," exclaimed Golding, after a moment. "I demand the privilege of speaking to Freeman. The priest says he spoke to him. He'll speak to me. I'm sorry to make trouble, but this is my right, ing. and I intend to assert it."

This was spoken in a voice that was perfectly audible in the spare room, and during the speech Dr. Nason kept his eyes fixed upon the patient. Mrs. Warren did not stir. She leaned slightly against one jamb of the door and extended her right arm to the other, indicating her resolution to prevent Golding from entering. Dr. Nason bent to her ear and whis-

Mr. and Mrs. Warren stood just back of him, looking on with painful anxiety, while Elsie and the doctor were a little apart, but still where they could see and hear everything that happened. "And you think Freeman is well, exclaimed Mrs. Warren, in amazement. "He's not well, but the fever has abated; he is conscious, as we know from the fact that he talked with Father Reardon, even if there was no other proof. I should call him a convalescent with every chance of speedy recovery. I know nothing of his reasons for feigning non compos mentis, but it is pretty evident, isn't it, that he doesn't intend to have any talk with your man Golding? Believe me, Mr. Dutton is perfectly able to speak, and speak as intelligently as any of us."
