CANADIAN NURSES "CARRY ON" AS BOMBS ROCK HOSPITAL NIGHTLY; REFUSE SHIFT TO A SAFE ZONE AND CONFRONT DEATH STEADILY

Nursing Sisters From Dominion Stick to Posts Under Repeated Attacks by Huns, and Rebel Against Removal to Immune Districts.

Ottawa, June 17.—A remarkable story of the heroism of Canadian nurses is contained in the cable received by the department of militia and defence from overseas, which tells how women of the Dominion had to wear gas masks for hours while carrying out their gentle tasks. The article was written by Roland Hill from War Correspondents' Headquarters, France, and was cabled to Ottawa by Sir Edward Kemp, minister of overseas forces.

"Carry On" has been the motto of Canadian nursing sisters since the Hun airmen bombed their hospitals and their courage and steadfastness has gained them the admiration of all British, French and American soldiers who have come under their care. Night after night for over a week, two of the largest of our Canadian hospitals worked steadily, although they were in the very centre of one of the heavily-bombed areas. Several of the nursing sisters were killed and wounded, and several of the staff were wiped out.

Ready to Carry On.

The colonel of one hospital decided to send the blue-gowned girls to a distant hospital on the coast, practically immune from the raids. A few were started for this haven, then from the others came a great protest. "We will carry on," they declared, and the colonel permitted them to remain.

Each night the sisters on duty were served with shrapnel-proof shields to wear under their uniforms. Emergency operations were carried through without a hitch, and many a soldier's life was saved, although the surgical hut rocked with the force of explosions from bombs that dropped only a few yards off. In other huts, when the raid siren was blown, these indomitable girls from Canada went through their wards and gently lifted helpless patients to the floor, where, under the shelter of the sandbag barrier, that lined the hut, they were comparatively safe from flying shrapnel. Then and only then they sought shelter in the boomproof shelters. If unluckily a ward was hit by a bomb one of the first to rush to the rescue would be a nursing sister, as cool as she was courageous—a wonderful tonic for the shell-wrecked men who were in her care.

Faced Death Steadily.

In the Canadian casualty clearing stations closer to the lines the girls faced daily death and possible capture with an ever-changing front. More than one hospital has been heavily shelled during a battle when the rush of wounded was so continuous there could be no thought of evacuating the place.

Wear Gas Masks.

On some occasions during a March-April offensive the hospitals were drenched with enemy gas and the sisters had to wear gas masks for hours doing what gentle tasks they could with such a handicap. When forward casualty clearing stations were swept away little bands of these brave girls marched with the retiring troops occasionally getting a lift on an ambulance until they reached some other overworked hospital, and there they would forget their fatigue and join their comrades in the work of mercy. Some Canadian sisters who came through that ordeal actually did duty in as many as five different hospitals in the week, scores of miles apart.

A Yellow Hun.

There is a story told of a sister from Eastern Canada at one of the big base hospitals which was badly bombed. In her ward was a German officer from one of the raiding Gothas, shot through both legs when his machine was destroyed by one of our patrols. He spoke English and told the doctor that if the English put hospitals near the railways they must expect to have them bombed. The signal siren for a raid went and presently a bomb dropped some dozen huts away.

"I demand to be taken into a dugout," shouted the Hun in manifest terror. "It is an outrage on the rules of war to keep an officer here, and I will see you are punished for this."

"Are you afraid of your own cultured friends?" the nursing sister asked. "If there is any punishment coming you will get it from one of your own bombs," she added.

She went about her task attending the patients in the ward, undeterred by the explosions from other bombs. When she returned to the end of the hut where the German was, he had fainted away.

Buried Beside Heroes.

In the big base cemetery alongside the graves of hundreds of the Empire's bravest are the little white wooden crosses that mark the resting place of those heroic Canadian sisters who died on duty. "Killed in Action" is the simple inscription, and mothers and fathers in Canada can be proud of it for it is the same as that which the fighting soldier earns when he falls storming an enemy trench. They are of the same breed, those tender, valiant sisters from overseas.

FLIGHT LIEUT. JACK BOLES.

News of the death in England of Flight-Lieut. Jack Boles, son of John E. Boles of Ingersoll, and nephew of W. J. Underwood of this city, was contained in a cable received by his father Friday.

At the time of his death he was engaged in the defence of London, and was acting flight-commander.

Only a few days ago his friends here learned of the high regard in which he was held by his fellow aviators in France. One of the members of his squadron made the statement that Jack Boles was considered one of the best Canadian pilots, and that many of his accomplishments were worthy of decoration. Lieut. Boles, however, had told his associates in the flying corps that he did not believe in individual recognition, but preferred that the honors should fall to the squadron.

He was universally respected by all with whom he came in contact, and his friends in Ingersoll and in this city are deeply affected at the news of his death.

Flight-Lieut. Boles was one of the first to enlist with the 168th Battalion as a private. He afterwards entered an officers' training class in this city, and subsequently joined the R. F. C. He had been in service in England and France since November, 1916.

EASY ON FARMS UNTIL AUTUMN

Service Act to Press Lightly Until the Harvests Are Gathered.

Ottawa, June 17.—It is stated that an official announcement will shortly be issued by the Government dealing with the calling out of men engaged in agricultural pursuits. It is understood that it will contain the assurance that while the need for reinforcements must be met every care will be taken to have the enforcement of the military service act press as lightly upon the farmers as possible at least until after the completion of harvesting operations. As already announced young men of the nineteen year class, who were asked to register on June 1 will not be called out before autumn. The position of the farmers has recently been engaging the attention of the cabinet council.

ALLIED AIRMEN SAIL ACROSS ALPS TO SNAP WORKS OF THE ENEMY

London, June 17.—Allied aviators at the end of last week performed two long-distance flying feats in which they averaged 350 miles in four hours elapsed time, according to a telegram from Milan to the Chronique Italienne of Geneva. From a base south of Idnice, Italy, a party of aviators went over Austrian Adriatic ports as far as Zara, in Dalmatia, and returned. The second party went over the Tyrolese Alps to Innsbruck and then to Friedrichshafen, where photographs were taken, showing that new airplane factories are being constructed there. The aviators did not drop any bombs.

CANADA MAY FIX PRICES OF ALL FOOD

Dominion Likely To Take Up System Adopted by U. S. Government.

STANDARDIZED LISTS

Make Fair Profits for Merchant at Reasonable Cost to Consumer.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, June 17.—That price fixing, which shall be general throughout the Dominion, cannot be long delayed, is a theory which is gaining ground here, notwithstanding the fact that the present food controller has not been an advocate of he system. The declared intention of the U. S. food administration department to fix prices in all departments of food supply to protect the consumer is an example which is almost bound to be followed in Canada.

In the United States standardized price lists are to be published in every city, town, hamlet, county and township in the country for the double protection of merchants and consumer. These lists are to be made up by price interpreting committees comprised of representatives of the wholesale, retailers and consumers. The interpreting board in each locality will ascertain fair retail prices on the basis of commodities that make up a large portion of the people's diet. The published lists will give the range of maximum selling prices showing a reasonable price which will effect charges which will rule in cash and carry stores and a high price representing a fair charge at credit and delivery stores. Tradesmen on the boards are to be appointed by their own trades and will serve with a representative of the consuming interests. The local food administrator, acting as chairman, retail numbers of the committee will represent both kinds of stores.

Each board will have detailed reports of actual wholesale prices, and will ascertain what fair margins of profit should be made by the retailers. The final "fair price" news will receive wide publicity in the newspapers and reports of complaints of overcharging will if proved be followed by the prompt cutting off from the offender of his wholesale supplies. In every community price reporters are being appointed, charged with the duty of keeping watch upon store prices and reporting any deviation from the fair price list.

This method of assuring consumers that the prices they pay represent no more than cost of production plus handling and a reasonable profit, will, it is fully believed here, be adopted in Canada, with probably some modifications. The Dominion Food Board has already instituted a licensing system of retail stores. The price-fixing may conceivably be facilitated by this fact. Any overcharging after prices have been standardized might be followed by cancellation of the license of the store found guilty.

IRISH CHIEF'S DEPUTY DENOUNCES SINN FEIN; TOO GROTESQUE, HE SAY

Dublin, June 17.—Jos. Devlin, M. P., deputy leader of the Irish Nationalist party, addressing a meeting at the village of Virginia, Cavan County, in support of the candidacy of O'Hanlon, the Nationalist candidate for Parliament for East Cavan, today said the parliamentary policy was one of the principal factors in the upholding of Ireland's interests. He said the Irish party was not going to throw away the weapon.

"The Sinn Fein is not a new doctrine or a new policy," he said. "It has been before the country for twenty years, but the Irish people have paid no attention to it because it is too grotesque, and during this period of twenty years it has not raised a laborer's cottage or helped to brighten or beautify a single woman's home. The Irish party did not enter into this contest light-heartedly, and if the contest could have been avoided it would have been.

"When it was declared by the Sinn Feiners that there is no room for men like John Dillon in Irish politics, then the supporters of the constitutional movement accepted the challenge. There are now two policies before the people in this election. One will result in assured success and the other in certain failure. The promise of an Irish republic in fifty years or fifty centuries is no compensation to the men and women living in this day and generation."

THEFT EPIDEMIC RAGES THROUGHOUT GERMANY

London, June 16.—Public security in Germany is declining from one month to another and thefts in the postoffice and on the railways have become of daily occurrence, says the Frankfurter Zeitung.

The growth in burglaries, the newspaper adds, can be estimated by the amount that one insurance company (the Frankfort General Insurance Company), has had to pay out in settlement of burglary claims. In 1914 the amount was 87,405 marks. By 1917 the amount had reached the extraordinary figure of 2,126,809 marks, while in the first three months of 1918 the claims already have amounted to more than a million marks.

Less than 5 per cent of the thieves have been traced.

In the week ending June 5, a large number of horses were stolen in Berlin, several of them in broad daylight while standing in the streets.

BOOSTING CANADIANS

A native son of Canada movement is being promulgated in this city. A meeting will be held tonight in the London Loan Block of all interested in the formation of this society. It is understood that some of the prominent labor men of the city are behind the movement. The aims of the promoters is to start a campaign with the idea of placing native-born Canadians in all the municipal positions. It is pointed out that many of the best situations in the city are held by men not born in this country. The fathers of the native son movement hope to change this condition of affairs.

NEARLY 16 THOUSAND FAIL TO REPORT UNDER DRAFTEE ACT; REINFORCEMENTS NOW 79,770

Ottawa, June 17.—By fall, it is expected, the limit of reinforcements under the military service act, will have been reached. This limit is fixed by statute at 100,000, and, up to the present, making full allowance for men not properly classed as "reinforcements" approximately 70,000 men have been secured under the act. The net number of men that should have reported now totals 95,685. Of these, 15,915 failed to report and are not yet apprehended, leaving a total reporting of 79,770.

Included in this total are 2,912 imperial recruits, men voluntarily reporting, and men granted leave of absence for farming. Investigation is now under way to determine how far the men reporting for duty can be properly classed as "reinforcements" under the act. Farmers on leave of absence it is understood, will not be so classed till they actually join the colors. By military districts the figures are:

	Net Number That Should Have Reported.	Failed to Report and Not Yet Apprehended.	Total Reporting.
London	8,221	690	7,531
Toronto	17,522	2,086	15,436

AUSTRIAN PUSH BEGINS POORLY; FAILURE LOOMS

Bad Jump Off Means Drive Will Fail, Say War Critics.

GERMANY BEHIND IT

Terrible Internal Conditions Is Cause of Vienna's "Gambler's Throw."

London, June 17.—The outcome of the Austrian offensive is viewed hopefully, even confidently by the newspapers here. This view is based on the staunch resistance of the Allied defensive and the failure of the enemy to make anything like a big success in his initial advance.

It is admitted that some days must pass before the result of fighting on such a great scale can correctly be judged, but the conviction is firmly expressed in several quarters that it will end in failure for the enemy.

"Failure," say the Daily Mail, "on the first day of these attacks, as conducted on the modern German plan, has hitherto been fatal as in the case of Vimy Ridge, and in the present case the fact of failure can hardly be doubted.

Began Badly.

The newspaper cites the opinion of its correspondent on the Italian front that no enemy offensive up to this time has begun so badly and adds:

"There is strong ground for believing that an enemy failure is imminent."

An opinion is expressed by several papers that there is a direct connection between the initiation of this offensive and internal conditions in Austria-Hungary. The Daily Express describes it as "a gambler's throw, the most desperate that the war has seen," while the Times declares it is a "desperate attempt to keep up the waning spirits of such elements of the population as still remain faithful to the established institutions of the Austro-Hungarian state."

Germans Behind It.

The Daily Mail says: "It can hardly that an Austrian failure to gain a decision will have serious internal effects. Germany's hand generally is seen behind the move. The Daily News believes that it is an offensive "imposed by Germany on an ally which long ceased to have any part in the struggle, and which is sinking to a condition of internal disintegration and despair."

The Daily News says: "It can hardly escape the Austrian people that they are being driven to slaughter for the profit of Germany."

IT'S A LONG WAY YET TO FINNISH KINGDOM

Stockholm, June 17.—The official Finnish news bureau reports that the Government proposal of putting into effect a monarchic form of government has been referred to the constitution committee and probably will not be taken up until after a general election is held.

The Old Finns and Swedes and some of the Young Finns are monarchists, while the Agrarians and a majority of the Young Finns are republicans and demand a new election or a referendum.

The Dagens Nyheter says the Government is convinced that it would be impossible to get a majority for a monarchy at the present time. "The monarchists want time for campaigning among the people," the newspaper adds, "and it still is a long way to a kingdom in Finland."

APPEALS—PROOF TO H H P . . . . .

Peking, Thursday, June 13.— (By the Associated Press).—M. Shneyermff, representative of the eleven central Russian provinces, who is visiting Peking, said today that he sees no disposition on the part of responsible members of the Bolsheviki to approach the non-political organizations like big industrial concerns and co-operative societies, for aid in re-establishing order, although realizing the futility of their dream of a world proletarian revolution.

M. Shneyermff said reaction had caused the present deplorable conditions in Russia. With barely 30 per cent of the acreage planted and people starving, the situation already was acute, and promised to be worse. He painted a desperate picture of the food situation in the Central European Governments.

The mission of which he is the head is in Peking to secure the lifting of the embargo on foodstuffs to Russia by way of Siberia. He argues that with the starving populations absorbing all possible imports there would not be any chance of any of them reaching the Germans. He has appealed to the Allied legations for relief.

MANY SUB-SUNK SHIPS SALVAGED

London, June 17.—From January, 1915, to the end of May, 1918, 407 ships sunk by the Germans in British waters have been salvaged, according to details of the work of the admiralty salvage department, made public in the press today.

Up to December, 1917, 260 ships were recovered. In the present year to the end of May 147 have been salvaged the increase being due to improved methods and not to the greater activity of submarines. Among the difficulties encountered has been the emission of poisonous gases from the rotting cargoes of sunken ships which sometimes have caused the loss of lives. One salvage ship was torpedoed while working on a wreck, while sometimes the work of weeks is destroyed by the rough sea. Feats performed by the salvage department include the raising of a large collier sunk in twelve fathoms of water and involving a dead lift of 3,500 tons. Another vessel was raised 15 fathoms by compressed air.

FRENCH BETTER LINE BETWEEN OISE AND AISNE

Take Prisoners and Guns and Check Attempt To Cross the Matz.

Paris, June 17.—The French troops improved their positions north and northwest of Hautebraye, between the Oise and the Aisne, in a local operation early today. One hundred prisoners and some machine guns were captured, says the official statement issued today.

German attacks were repulsed in the Cavieres Wood and in the Vosges.

COULDN'T CROSS MATZ.

PARIS, June 16.—German troops attempted during the night to cross the Matz River, near the Oise, but were halted by the fire of the French, says today's war office statement. In local actions northeast of the woods of Genlis, south of Dammard and the region of Vinly (northwest of Chateau Thierry) the French took 70 prisoners and a number of machine guns.

French troops have reoccupied Coeuvres-et-Valsery (southwest of Soissons), an important strategic point, from which the Germans have been endeavoring to debouch their troops. The war office announcement of this adds that ground has also been gained around Montgobert.

HIBERNIA IS WRAPPED IN POLITICAL LULL

Dublin, June 17.—At present there is somewhat of a lull in the political situation in Ireland. Agitation against conscription has relaxed in the face of the Government proclamation calling for volunteer recruits; and no attempt to apply the draft is expected before October, and then only in the event of conspicuous failure to obtain the necessary number by enlistment.

The visit of protest contemplated by the lord mayor of Dublin to President Wilson has been indefinitely postponed. He is "holding himself in readiness to go to Washington when the occasion arises, but he has no expectation at present that the occasion ever will arise."

It is not intended at present to bring to trial the Sinn Feiners arrested at Whitsuntide. Their imprisonment is made regular under the regulations of the defence of the realm act, and none of them thus far has taken advantage of the provision which enables him to appeal against imprisonment.

The immediate purpose of the Government is to make a success of the recruiting campaign. They are handing it over entirely to civilians drawn from all the political parties.

HUNGARIAN GOVT. HAS TAKEN OVER ALL CROPS

Amsterdam, June 17.—All new crops have been ordered requisitioned by the Hungarian Government according to a report from Budapest. All flour mills have been put under Government supervision.

STUPENDOUS AUSTRIAN ATTACK BREAKS ON GEN. DIAZ' DEFENCE AND ROLLING BACK AT POINTS

Teuton Offensive On 100-Mile Front Is Being Held By British, French and Italian Troops—Austrians Who On Sunday Won Across Piave, Are Being Thrown Back By Furious Counter-Attacks—Rome Reports Situation As Assuring—Enemy Claims Capture of 10,0000 Prisoners, and Italians Report Taking 3,000.

Washington, June 17.—An official dispatch from Rome dated 11:55 o'clock last night, says the battle on the Italian front will assume gigantic proportions, the Austrians attempting to break down the Italian defence by a great pincer movement. It adds that the battle will last several days before a decision is reached.

With the Italian Army, Sunday, June 16.—(Delayed).—Austrian troops which forced the Piave River have been driven back. The fighting along the river is most intense.

REPEATED COUNTER-ATTACKS.

Rome, June 17.—Vittorio Orlando, the Italian premier, in an interview, said that the Italian troops, by tenaciously resisting the Austro-Hungarian troops in their new offensive in Northern Italy, and by repeated counter-attacks, they were strongly holding the enemy. The struggle, he added, was most bitter on the eastern slopes of Monetello and to the west of Sandona di Piave.

DIAZ WAS READY.

The Italian army was prepared for the Austrian attack, and there is confidence that it will be able to break the force of the blow.

Throughout the country there is a feeling of expectancy. The grave, solemn faces of the people are expressive of the seriousness of the hour, but also of the pride which is felt in the army for its splendid stand all along the difficult battlefront. The churches were more crowded than usual today, throngs of women praying for victory and for the safety of those at the front. Many women brought jewels as offerings.

HOW IT STARTED.

The enemy based his enterprise on various factors to assure him a victory, says the semi-official note. There was a relatively brief but extremely violent artillery preparation with a large number of gas shells. The bombardment was for the purpose of destroying the Italian front line and paralyzing the Italian artillery. Then, under cover of an artificial fog from bombs and smoke apparatus the enemy, in open formation, advanced to the attack. The enemy placed such faith in this preparation that he fixed his objectives for the first day's fighting more than fifteen kilometres in advance and planned to descend from the mountain area and also reach the city of Treviso from the Piave River.

SITUATION IS ASSURING.

Rome, Sunday, June 16.—The situation on the Italian front in its entirety seems very assuring, says a semi-official note issued tonight. It is added that the great battle which broke out Saturday has but begun. Although having a strength of 60 divisions, the enemy attacking forces have not succeeded in passing the Italian advanced area at any point.

Austrian pressure continues very strong along the entire front. The enemy is concentrating most powerful and fierce attacks astride the Brenta and across the Piave, and it is still possible for the fighting line to flow backwards or forwards.

A BRILLIANT DEFENCE.

With the Italian Army, June 16.—Nowhere else along the front of attack has the struggle been so severe as on the Piave line.

One of the most brilliant of the Italian actions was the defence of the Monte Moschin salient protecting the important Brenta positions. Here the Austrians suffered heavy losses. Many of their machine guns were captured.

The prisoners are ragged and ill-fed. Many of them are undersized youths. One of them remarked to the correspondent that he had no interest in the war.

The feeling of the Italians is buoyant.

AUSTRIANS AFTER TREVISO.

Italian Headquarters in Northern Italy, June 16.—By the Associated Press.—In their attempt to cross the Piave in great force Saturday the Austrians had the city of Treviso as their objective. In getting across the Piave the Austrians paid a tremendous sacrifice before the machine gun fire of the Italian defenders of the western bank.

Counter-attacks by Italian infantry and heavy Italian artillery fire have forced the enemy to retire from most of his gains along the Piave.

An order found in the pockets of prisoners was to the effect that the Austrians were to be at Preganziol, south of Treviso, on Saturday night.

TURN DRIVE INTO DEFEAT.

Rome, June 17.—The reports from the Italian fighting front are encouraging and the newspapers believe the enemy will be checked. The Echo-de-Paris says the Austrians may get a repulse which might be turned into a defeat.

The Matine declares the present battle is an unquestionable success for the Italians, because the Austrians appear to have failed.

Almost all the newspapers insist that serious political consequences in Austria-Hungary will follow a check to the Austrian offensive.

London, June 16.—The Austrian offensive has begun. The Italian and Allied armies are bravely sustaining the weight of the Austrian forces which are attacking along the front of the Italian theatre from the northwest of the Asiago plateau eastward to the Piave River and thence along that stream to where it joins the head waters of the Adriatic Sea—a front of nearly one hundred miles.

The attack opened at 3 o'clock Saturday morning in a heavy mist. Having made extensive preparations for the drive by bringing up strong reinforcements in men and guns, many of them brought from the former battle line in Rumania and Galicia as a result of the debacle in the east, the enemy is using them without stint in order to debouch from the mountain passes and cross the Piave River and gain the Venetian plains.

Everywhere the fighting is of an extremely sanguinary character, especially east of the Asiago plateau, in the Brenta Valley and on Monte Grappa.

Advanced at the Outset.

In the initial struggle the enemy succeeded in capturing several front line positions in the mountain region, and also in crossing the piave. Counter-attacks, however, have restored all the positions in the mountains, including territory to a depth of 1,000 yards along a 2,500-yard front lost and regained by the British. At last accounts the Allied troops everywhere were strongly holding the enemy, and King Victor Emmanuel's men were gallantly striving to throw back the invaders across the Piave.

The Italians have taken more than 3,000 Austrian prisoners, among them 69 officers.

As yet the Vienna war office has given only brief mention to the battle, saying that the Austrian armies had invaded the Sette Communi plateau, lying at an altitude of 3,400 feet northwest of Asiago, and that up to noon Sunday more than 10,000 Italian, English and French soldiers and a considerable number of guns had been captured.

AUSTRIAN RUSH MAY BE FEINT

It is believed the Austrian general attack is a repetition of the enemy's manoeuvre of last October, when he took the offensive from Caporetto to Monfalcone, with the intention of disguising his plan of breaking through the Alps and forcing the Italians to retire in the Bainsizza and Carso regions. Now the enemy's feint apparently is intended to conceal the development of a plan long cherished by Field Marshal Conrad von Hoetzendorf to break through from the high Asiago Plateau to the Venetian Plain, thus obliging the Italian army along the Piave to retire in order to avoid being caught by an outflanking movement.

THE WAR SITUATION

Italians, French and British troops have met the shock of the Austrian offensive along a 100-mile front in Northern Italy, and the enemy is being pushed back, where he is being held in check. Violent battles continue in the mountains from Lake Garda to the Piave and southward along the Piave, but at no place has the enemy broken through the allied defence. The full force of the Austrian blow in the mountain region drove the defenders of the Venetian Plains back to their third line, but there the Italians held and by successful counter-attacks have reoccupied important positions on the Asiago Plateau and have recaptured mountain heights along the Brenta. Around Monetello Height, where the battle line turns towards the Adriatic, the British have completely re-established the British line and maintain it against vicious enemy blows.

Gets Foothold on Grappa.

Between the Brenta and the Piave the Austrians apparently have gained a strong foothold on the western slopes of Monte Grappa, one of the key positions protecting the plains around Bassano. East and west of Monte Grappa, however, the Italians and allied troops hold the enemy in check.

Although they were able to cross the Piave at two points, just south of Montello and northeast of Venice, the enemy has been checked in strong efforts to enlarge his gains and the Italians have begun to drive him back toward the river. West and northwest of Lake Garda there has been only local activity, with Vienna claiming some local successes near Riva at the head of the lake. In two days' fighting Vienna claims the capture of 10,000 prisoners on the Piave and 6,000 in the mountain region. Fifty guns were taken along the riverfront. In their counter-attacks, begun Saturday night, the Italians already have captured 3,000 of the enemy.

A Double Stroke.

The Austrian plan apparently was to strike heavily on the north and on the east at the same moment in the hope that on one of the fronts large forces could be thrown on the Venetian Plains between Bassano and Treviso.

Although carried out in great force and with heavy bombardments, the Austrian effort seemingly has fallen short of its purpose of shattering the Italian front and rolling it back toward the Adige.

On the front in France, the fighting activity has been limited to local German attacks at isolated points. Against the French along the Matz River the enemy failed. Between the Oise and the Aisne the French improved their positions early today, capturing 100 prisoners and some machine guns.

The Lys salient in Flanders is being subjected to a heavy German artillery fire. The enemy is paying special attention to the front southwest of Ypres, east of Dickebusch Lake and to the western part of the southern leg of the salient, where the British recently carried out a considerable local advance.

BULGAR PREMIER QUITS; DIDN'T GRAB ENOUGH FROM THE RUMANIANS

Sofia, Sunday, June 16.—Via Amsterdam.—Premier Radoslavoff has tendered the resignation of the cabinet and King Ferdinand has accepted it. The ministers were requested by the King to retain their portfolios until a new cabinet is formed.

The downfall of Premier Radoslavoff most probably is due to the feeling in Bulgaria that he did not make the most of his opportunities in the negotiations during which peace was forced on Rumania and Rumania was compelled to give up the Dobrudja. Many Bulgarians have felt, it has been reported, that the Dodrudja should have been ceded outright to Bulgaria. There also has been some dissatisfaction over whether the Central Powers would back up Bulgaria's territorial claims in Macedonia. The coalition cabinet of Premier Radoslavoff, who is the Liberal leader, came into office several years before the war, and has been retained since with but a few minor changes.

THREE SERVICES HELD SUNDAY FOR SOLDIERS AT CARLING HEIGHTS

Two Protestant Church Parades and Catholic Service at St. Michael's.

There were two Protestant church parades held yesterday morning at Carling Heights for the troops in training here. The first parade was held at 9 a.m., and the second one at 9:45 a.m. Owing to the large number of soldiers in camp it was necessary to have two services, there being 2,600 men from the Western Ontario Regiment alone on parade. The services were held on the parade ground under the large tree, and they were in charge of the camp chaplains.

The Roman Catholic soldiers in camp paraded for service to St. Michael's Church under their own officers, and Capt. W. Corcoran, Roman Catholic chaplain for this district, officiated at the church. About 450 soldiers from Carling Heights were present at this service.

The church parades yesterday were not as large as those of the preceding Sunday, owing to the fact that there are about 1,000 men absent from camp on week-end leave.

DRAFTED SOLDIER TAKES OWN LIFE AT CARLING CAMP

Body of Wellington County Man Found in Lavatory.

PARENTS IN ON SUNDAY

No Motive Yet Discovered For Act—Court of Inquiry Called.

Pte. John Elkerton (3136057), a member of F. Company, 1st Depot Battalion, Western Ontario Regiment, committed suicide by hanging himself in a lavatory at Carling Heights camp some time during Sunday night. The body was discovered at 4:30 a.m. by Pte. W. H. Girvin, one of the battalion cooks, who immediately notified R. S. M. Whitfield.

Lieut. C. W. Pennecott, medical officer of the battalion, was summoned, but life was extinct, and rigor mortis had commenced to set in. It is believed that Pte. Elkerton had been dead three or four hours when discovered. The body was suspended from a water pipe by a short piece of rope.

Pte. Elkerton was a drafted man, 23 years of age, and prior to being called up resided in Wellington County, R. R. No. 1, near the village of Arris, with his parents. The latter were in to see their son Sunday, and were today notified of his death by the military authorities. No motive for the occurrence has as yet been discovered. A court of inquiry into the circumstances leading to Pte. Elkerton's death.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, pending the arrival of the dead soldier's parents.

RAISED TO STATUS OF PROVINCE WITH NEW HEADQUARTERS

Redemptorist Order Church Here Affected by Change.

Important changes affecting the Redemptorist Order in Canada have been announced by the headquarters of the order, according to instructions received by the Redemptorist Fathers at St. Patrick's Church, East London.

The members and institutions of the order in Canada have been, up to the present, classed as a vice-province, under the supervision of the province of the United States. Both French and English members of the order were directed from the United States through the Canadian headquarters in Montreal. This arrangement has been changed, and the Canadian branch, being now fully equipped, has been raised to the rank of a separate province, with headquarters in Toronto. The Canadian branch has now under construction a college and seminary at Brockville, and will, it is expected, be equipped for educational work in September.

The French branch of the order in Canada has its headquarters now at Ste. Anne de Beaupre, Que.

Rev. Patrick J. Mulhall, C. S. S. R., is now head of the Canadian province, with headquarters at Toronto. Rev. P. N. Doyle has been reappointed for the next three years as rector of St. Patrick's in this city. One of his assistants, Rev. John Barry, has been reappointed here, and the other, Rev. George Mylett, has been transferred to Montreal, where he will be rector of St. Anne's Church. He will succeeded as assistant here by Rev. Jos. McLaughlin of St. Patrick's Church, Toronto.

Several other changes are also announced to take place in Quebec and Western Canada.

LONDONER ELECTED VICE-PRESIDENT OF G. T. R. FEDERATION

Federation of shop crafts of the G. T. R. was completed at a meeting held in Toronto on Sunday. George Barnaby, one of the local delegates, was chosen vice-president of the federation. Joseph Corbett, of the Carpenters' Union; William Stinson, of the Boilermakers' and Charles Warren, of the Machinists, were the other London representatives to the meeting.

Every G. T. R. employee, other than the office staffs, freight men, train men, and station men is represented in this federation. Questions pertaining to the different trades will be dealt with by this body.

There was nothing of importance discussed Sunday, the delegates report.

No action will be taken concerning increased wages until another conference is held with the Canada War Board. While no definite word has been received from this board, yet it is expected that some action will be taken soon.

JUDGING VACANT LOT PLOTS LIKELY TO START NEXT WEEK

Arrangements Will Be Made for Preliminary Examinations Before Long.

The first examination of the gardens entered in the prize competition of the Vacant Lot Gardening Association will in all probability be made next week. A meeting of the executive will be held the latter part of this week when all the questions in connection with the expense of plowing the lots and other preliminary work will be settled. The judges will make their first round of the gardens within a few days following the meeting.

Gardens may be entered under one, but only one, of the two classes. The first in which one half or more of the plot must be planted with potatoes, and the balance with other vegetables, offers five prizes, as follows: $15, $10, and $5, presented by the Canada Trust Company, and $3 and $2, given by the association.

The second class includes the gardens which have one-third or more of the plot planted with potatoes and the balance with other vegetables. Prizes of $12, $8, $5 and $2 are offered by the gardening association in this class.

The above prizes are presented in each of the four wards for each class. In addition to these prizes others will be given for the best gardens in the whole city cultivated by members of the Vacant Lot Gardening Association and also for the best community gardens.

The following vegetables, being rich in food values, their use is strongly recommended and will count in favor of the gardener in the awarding of prizes: Carrots, turnips, onions, white beans, parsnips, beets and cabbages.

All competitors for the prizes must do all the work in the gardens. No hired help must be used.

The following methods of judging and the points allowed for each will guide the judges in their decision. These are followed in Ottawa, and it is more than probable that they will be adopted here at the meeting this week.

1. Arrangement of crops and method of planting, 20 points.
2. Uniformity of the stand, 10 points.
3. Healthiness and freedom from disease and insect pests, 15 points.
4. Quantity and value of the vegetables grown, 30 points.
5. General neatness of the plot and freedom from weeds, 25 points.

Periodic visits will be made to the gardens during the season by the judges.

The supervision and prizes committee is composed of the following members: Thomas P. Elliott, chairman; Dr. J. F. Bryant, G. L. Cooper, R. P. Pearce, Ald. F. E. Harley, J. Kirkpatrick, J. Canaan, Sergt. Dace, W. W. Gammage, Rev. H. B. Ashby and Charles Gilbert.

While it will not be definitely known until all the reports are presented at the meeting what acreage is being cultivated it is said that the number of lots under cultivation is much greater than was at first anticipated. There are a few of the gardeners who have not yet been in to sign the agreement, and these are asked to do so without delay.

The association is well satisfied with the results of its efforts towards greater production, but Gordon Philip, secretary of the board of trade, who is also secretary of the association, is already looking forward to next year's program in anticipation of still better results.

OUR HANDSOME REPORTER GOES OUT TO FIND SOME VAMPIRES, ALL HE GOT WAS "TURN DOWNS"

Liquid-Eyed Maidens May Be Baiting Their Traps For Male Prey, But This Newspaper Chap Must Have Been Out of Luck.

After reading an account of the downfall of girls in dance halls as portrayed by a prominent local clergyman, The Advertiser's most handsome reporter suddenly woke up Saturday evening, and decided to go out into the world and see life. Saturday was pay day; and accordingly the scribe, wishing to be a real sport, boarded a Springbank car, taking particular care to slip into a rear seat beside a member of the fair sex.

"Well," thought he, "if conditions are as bad as stated I am going to pick up a female tonight, dead easy." The young lady sitting next to him looked pretty fair," so the reporter decided to open a conversation. He produced a cigar (it was pay day), from his pocket, and before proceeding to light up, inquired from the fair one if she objected to him smoking. "No, not in the least," said she, as our hero puffed away.

Gazed Off Into Space.

"So far, so good," he remarked to himself, but he was baffled for the next move, as she persisted in gazing in the direction of the Forest City, and silently said nothing as the car rolled on.

Along about Woodland Cemetery the determined one, again mustering his courage, remarked to her ladyship that the cemetery presented a very pretty view.

"Yes, it does," she replied, coldly, again resuming her silent vigil.

"I have a grandmother buried there," said the newspaper chap, not in the least discouraged, but when she looked at him in such a manner as to donate "You should be there with her," our Beau Brummel decided to quit this grave subject while the quitting was good. He heaved a sigh of relief when with a brusque "Excuse me," she passed him as she dismounted at the pumphouse.

Right Next to a Peach.

Arriving at Springbank The Advertiser man strutted through the $200 gate in the direction of the dance hall. Finding that the orchestra had not yet reached the scene he wended his way to the roller coaster, where he invested a dime. Luck seemed to be with him this time, for the first car had an empty seat, there being one seemingly lonely maid seated in the centre.

"Room for one," shouted the attendant, and the scribe slipped into the vacant spot. Ahead of him sat a soldier and his lady friend, while beside the scribe sat lonely Sue.

A Roller-Coaster Romance.

After climbing the incline, they gathered speed and away they went. The millionaire in disguise vainly tried to watch the girl in the case, and hang on at the same time, finally giving it up as impossible. However, when they dipped suddenly and she screamed he made up his mind that this was all the introduction required. As the car pulled in on the home stretch he knew that he had found a companion for the evening, and accordingly they left the car together, and the boy in search of adventure strutted along, head in air, quite proud of himself.

After proceeding in this manner for a few yards he condescended to glance at his new acquaintance. Imagine his surprise when he found that his chicken had flown the coop, and the only one escorted was himself. He gazed around and perceived her trying to win a bunch of flowers at the other end of the grounds, along with the soldier boy and his friend, who had sat in front of him on the roller coaster.

No Luck With the Horses.

He did not swear (only editors do that), but was more determined than ever that he was going to make the grade. His next venture was the merry-go-round, and he decided to introduce a little kultur into the affair this time. Perceiving what he took to be a classy bird about to mount a horse (wooden one), he rushed up and seized the bridle, at the same time doffing his cap, just as Douglas Fairbanks of old, and said, "May I hold your horse?" His immediately registered hate, a la Freda Berra, and replied haughtily, "You will be holding your head, if you don't hike." He hiked, and did not stop hiking until he reached the dance hall.

Then for the Dance Hall.

Dancing was about to commence. Of course they did not open with the doxology nor did the orchestra play, "Lead, Kindly Light." They played "Moonlight" instead. The reporter, having an eye for beauty, selected his ideal in the crowd, and sidled in her direction. He had a new trick this time. After stalling by her side for a few moments he threw his voice into low gear, and began to chant something about the high cost of living. Then suddenly gazing up in pretended surprise he remarked, "Oh, I beg your pardon, I thought I was speaking to my lady friend, whom I have lost in the crowd."

"I know," said the girl, "I have met your sort before. It's a wonder you wouldn't stay in your own class, and keep away from us decent girls." He blushed several shades of pink after this peroration, and quietly evaporated into the crowd.

She Picks Her Partners.

"Well," thought the spurned youth, after regaining his composure, "there are boys I know down here, and I can meet some nice girls properly." He then spotted a fellow reporter executing a one step with a little fairy, whom he would have dearly loved to meet. With this end in view he accosted his partner in crime after the dance.

"Say, Joe," said Scribe No. 1, "give me an introduction to your lady friend, as I would like to have a dance with her." "All right, I will," replied Joe, "but it's no use, because she won't dance with everyone, you know. "Now ain't that hell," said No. 1, as he hastened to board a car determined to get away from this purity league.

One of These "Different" Girls.

He managed to get a seat in the car and disconsolately settled down for the voyage. Taking note of his surroundings along about Wonderland he perceived a real nice looking girl standing in front of him. He immediately tendered her his seat, and the offer was accepted. Then they talked, and somehow or other she appealed to him as different from the majority of girls. When the conductor made his rounds he took the liberty of paying her fare (it was pay day), and she thanked him for doing so.

And so they talked in quite a friendly way until they reached the city. "Well," asked the hired help, "are you going to allow me to see you home?" "Oh, no," she replied, "I know the way, and besides my husband is sitting just three rows forward there." And with this remark she pointed to a stalwart lad in khaki in the front of the car.

It is rumored that the handsome reporter is now a woman hater, but one thing is certain, the next time the local clergy issue any dope on London girls The Advertiser man hails from Missouri. Can you blame him? Don't crowd, girls!

DECLARE LONDONERS ARE BRINGING BOOZE INTO PORT STANLEY

ST. THOMAS, June 16.—Following the recent discussion regarding alleged "wide open" conditions at Port Stanley at the London Methodist Conference in Walkerville, the Lord's Day Alliance will ask the attorney-general for a flat, so that persons breaking the law at Port Stanley may be prosecuted. It is stated that the opening guns of the campaign will be directed against the booths on the board walk. There have been some complaints regarding liquor being brought to the lakeside by Londoners, and some attention will be given this also, provided the attorney-general's department issues the necessary orders.

Some residents of Port declare that if an investigation is made that conditions at the village will be found all right. They declare that the statement that Port is "wide open" is somewhat exaggerated.

There was a big crowd at the lakeside today.

CHARGES PILING UP

Two More Counts on Police Blotter Against Mistah Scales.

Charles Scales, colored, who has made the police station a regular weekly calling place for some weeks past, appeared at the Carling street mill of justice this morning, with two charges marked opposite his name.

The one charge, that of obstructing the street at Adelaide and Oxford streets, has been pending for some time; the second, that of assaulting Robert Green, was laid today.

Scales stated to the magistrate that he had removed all obstructions from the boulevard at the corner complained of, but Chief W. T. T. Williams said Scales removed the tables and chairs at night only and placed them back again for business during the daytime.

On the assault charge, Scales asked to be allowed to bring witnesses to prove that he was innocent. His request was granted, and the case was adjourned until Wednesday. The magistrate warned Scales if any more complaints were made concerning his "portable cafe" a heavy fine would be imposed.

BILIOUS SPELLS BECOME A HABIT

And It Requires Active Treatment to Break Up the Sluggish, Torpid Condition of the Liver.

Drumbo, June 15.—So often you meet people who are feeling miserable and out of sorts, unable to relish their food and suffering from headaches and indigestion. "It is only one of my bilious spells," they will tell you. "I have had them for years."

In other words, they have allowed this condition to become so established that it is like a habit to them to have periodical spells of biliousness.

It is easy to break up such an unfortunate habit by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. By acting directly on the liver they insure the activity of this organ in removing bile from the blood, the action of the bowels is corrected, and the digestive organs resume their natural functions.

Mr. D. C. Maynard, retired farmer, Drumbo, Ont., writes: "I was subject to sick headache and poor appetite. These bilious spells would come on me about every two weeks, and often I would have to go to bed and could not eat. This trouble was overcome by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which aroused the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels and made me feel like a new man.

"As I had also suffered from catarrh for years and was quite deaf, I began using Dr. Chase's Catarrh Powder. This treatment has done wonders for me, clearing the stuffed-up air passages, restoring hearing and overcoming foul breath. It is a pleasure to recommend medicines which have done so much for me."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

FISHING IN ALGONQUIN PARK.

The fishing this year in the Algonquin Provincial (Ontario) Park is exceptionally good. Since the open season, the speckled trout and salmon trout catches have been most gratifying to the angler. The largest fish that has been taken so far is a speckled trout weighing five and one-quarter pounds. b

MOBILIZATION CENTRE STAFF IS TRANSFERRED TO GARRISON REGIMENT

Members Join 1st Battalion Leaving Active Militia Details.

The staff at the local mobilization centre has been transferred from the active militia to the 1st Battalion, Canadian Garrison Regiment. Sergt.-Major J. Rawlings, F. Smith and P. R. Campbell, three members of the staff, appeared before the medical board Saturday and all were placed in category C. These three men are all returned soldiers. Rawlings, who is a veteran of the South African war, is an old soldier. He served in China on protection duty during the China-Japan war and was the first man to enlist in the 33rd Battalion. He went overseas with the first detached company of that unit under the command of Capt. Harry Nelles, now Lieut.-Col. Nelles After returning home Sergt.-Major Rawlings took an active part in recruiting work, giving many recruiting speeches in various towns and cities in Ontario. He was placed on the staff at the local mobilization centre last August.

F. Smith and P. R. Campbell are returned men, having spent many months on active service.

Staff Sergt.-Major George Galbraith has also been transferred to the Canadian Garrison Regiment. He has been on the staff at the local mobilization since August, 1915, and was formerly attached to the 4th Field Ambulance unit.

JUNE WEDDINGS

WILKIN—BEATTIE.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Lorne Beattie, London Township, when his sister Mayme was united in marriage to Harry John Wilkin, Rev. Mr. Alps of Granton officiating. The ceremony was performed under an arch of pink and white flowers, with a bank of evergreen. Lohengrin's Wedding March was rendered by Miss Jean L. O'Neil, niece of the groom, while little Miss Merna Hodgins, niece of the bride, gracefully performed the part of flower girl. The bride was charming in ivory satin with pearl trimmings. She wore the conventional bridal veil and orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of carnations and fern.

After the ceremony and signing of the register, the wedding party, including only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties, sat down to a sumptuous repast.

The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful wrist watch; to the pianist a gold brooch set with turquoise, and to the flower girl a gold ring. The happy couple left on a prettily decorated car, under shower of confetti, for London, Hamilton and Toronto.

On their return they will settle on the groom's farm, 15th concession, London Township, and will be at home to their friends after July 1.

NOT RIGHT, HE SAID, TO BE "YOKED WITH ANY UNBELIEVERS"

Conscientious Objector Makes This Plea.

WAS COURT-MARTIALED

With Fellow "C. O." He Faced Military Court at Wolseley Barracks.

A court-martial, with Lieut.-Col. H. L. Milligan, D. S. O., of the 1st Garrison Regiment, as president, assembled at Wolseley Barracks this morning for the purpose of trying two conscientious objectors, Ptes. William Bell and Chas. Paulick, both of the 1st Battalion, W. O. R. The men were charged with refusing to don the uniform.

The men pleaded guilty to the charge, and the court had no alternative but to convict. They claimed that according to scripture they were barred from participating in the present war.

Pte. Paulick was born in France of Swiss parents, but his father is a naturalized British citizen, therefore the son was eligible for service. Pte. Bell is the sole support of a widowed mother with another son overseas, and the military authorities pointed out that had he reported for service, he would have received exemption on these grounds. However, he refused to do this, claiming that it was not willed that he be yoked with "unbelievers" on this earth.

Four conscientious objectors have been convicted in this district, and each received a sentence of two years in civil prison. The sentences of today's court were not announced, but will be promulgated within a few days.

ANOTHER LEADING SCHOOL PRINCIPAL RESIGNS POSITION

Head of the Alexandra School Tenders Resignation.

When No. 1 committee of the board of education meets this afternoon it will have the resignation of two of its best principals to deal with.

Principal G. F. Rogers of the Collegiate Institute resigned on Saturday, and George Copeland, principal of the Alexandra School is the other.

Mr. Copeland's resignation hasn't reached the board, but will likely be dealt with at the same time as that of Mr. Rogers.

"He is one of the foremost educationalists in the city," stated Chairman A. A. Langford in discussing Mr. Copeland's resignation. "We have now two hard places to fill."

Mr. Copeland, it is understood, intends to launch into the insurance business, joining C. E. German of the Mutual Life.

11,000 CARDS FOR REGISTRATION NOW GIVEN OUT IN CITY

Big Pre-Registration Day Rush On.

Pre-registration of all persons of 16 years of age and over in London is being carried out here on an extensive scale. Since the opening of the several places in the city today for pre-registration, hundreds have availed themselves of the opportunity of enrolling under the manhood and womanhood power bill.

Registrar R. A. Bayly, in charge of the wok in London, has passed out 11,000 cards to date, and by tonight it is expected over 7,000 persons will be registered.

A great many people are still under the impression that only persons op to 60 years of age are liable for registration.

"The regulations distinctly state that every person, male or female, who is 16 years of age or over must register," said Registrar Bayly today. "This means there is no upward limit. No matter how old the person may be, he or she must register."

At The Advertiser office and other places, where pre-registration is taking place, long waiting lines indicated the interest being manifested in getting the duty performed as quickly as possible.

More Volunteers Needed.

In East Middlesex, over which W. C. Fitzgerald has charge as registrar, the work is progressing as well as could be expected. A large number of school teachers have volunteered for the work, but 20 more are needed yet for registration day on June 22.

In the townships and villages in the county registration will take place in all the rural schools.

In the annexed district under the jurisdiction of Registrar Fitzgerald, booths for registration are to be provided at the following places:

Ealing School, Hamilton road.
Pottersburg School, Hale street.
Chelsea Green School, Adelaide street south.
Presbyterian Church School, corner of Oxford and Quebec streets.
Hospital for Insane, Dundas street east.
McCormick Manufacturing Co., Dundas street east.
Empire Brass Company, Dundas street east.
Sherlock-Manning Co., Elm street.

Another Booth.

In addition to the places mentioned in Saturday afternoon's edition of The Advertiser, a registration booth was opened at the store of Gray's, Limited, this morning.

HOME UNEXPECTEDLY

Arriving home unexpectedly at noon today, Pte. John F. Tanton, son of John B. P. Tanton, of this city, took the members of his family completely by surprise when he walked into his home on Waterloo street.

Pte. Tanton was expected to arrive with the party of returned men who came last night, but had to leave the party to report at Toronto. He has returned on sick leave after serving in France with the Mechanical Transport section of the Army Service Corps. He has been attached to one of the Canadian Forestry units. He enlisted about a year ago last January while attending the University of Toronto.

CHARMING FOLK DANCERS

Two little camera stories from the lawn fete given at "Eldon House," the home of Miss Harris, Ridout street. A., and the proceeds were divided jointly between the Y. W. C. A. and the Victorian Order of Nurses. The dances featured the program and were most attractive.

MAY CUT TRANSFERS FROM SPRINGBANK TO INCREASE REVENUES

That the London street railway will advance the fares now in operation on the Springbank line on Thursday is a well-defined rumor that is current about the city. Manager C. B. King was not available to give confirmation to the rumor. It is understood that the company will allow for the present fare going to Springbank, but on the return journey no transfers will be given. In other words a trip to Springbank from any part of the city will cost five cents. Returning it will cost five cents on a Springbank car and if the passenger wishes to go to another part of the city, not reached by the Springbank cars, it will cost another ticket.

The Springbank system does not come under the jurisdiction of the city council as the great part of the line is outside of the city.

The Quality of Our Work Is Unchallenged. x-tf

HEAD OF GARBAGE DEPT. IS HELD RESPONSIBLE

Rumors Say So, and Further That Committee Is Afraid To Make Change, Though Members Deny It—Warm Council Session Seems Certain.

Has the inefficiency of the garbage collection system of London in the past been due to the fact that the supervision of the department has been inefficient?

Are the members of No. 2 committee afraid to fire the garbage superintendent and hire another?

These questions are being asked today.

Since the garbage trouble has come to a head, it has been time and again remarked that it was believed that with the present expenditure and cost, the system, should, under proper supervision, be equal to the needs of the city. Several members of the council have hinted, they seemed backward in stating it openly, that they believed the trouble lay behind the fact that the supervision was not what it should be. The board of works seems to be of the opinion that the supervision of the garbage department is at the bottom of all the trouble.

Rumors in Circulation.

It was stated by a city official, that it had come to him, that the report was general that No. 2 committee was afraid to dismiss Garbage Superintendent Walker. Three members of the committee were asked if they had heard the report. They had. It is believed that the mayor has also heard this report.

The action of certain members of the committee at a meeting held a week ago Saturday would seem to substantiate the charge. It was a star chamber meeting. Only certain members of the committee and the board of control were present.

It was decided to call for tenders for the collection of the garbage. It has been openly charged at meetings held since that the tenders do not call for a contractor, but for a garbage superintendent. This is a fact. The city supplies everything but the brains. The superintendent hired by tender would have the power to hire all men. The city would pay them by handing the money out to the contractor. The city would provide the horses, carts, and feed the horses.

"Why did No. 2 committee, or a part of it, take this action if it was not afraid of something?" asked this city official.

Favor Day Labor.

Practically every man who was present at the meeting admits that he believes the day labor collection is the best. Controller Moore, who was the chairman of the meeting, has unhesitatingly said so on two or three occasions since the tenders were called. Under the tender system, Mr. Walker would not be dismissed. He would be kept on the job and used to chase up the contractor to see that the contractor did the work that he was unable to have done. This is the manner in which The Advertiser's informant sized up the case.

"It is a very serious matter," said the official, "when matters reach this stage in London. "Mind," he remarked, "the charges that have come to me are only hearsay, but three or more of the aldermen have heard it. Members of the board of control have heard it. It might be said that the board of control discussed the matter at its Friday meeting. What is the city coming to?"

Says Committee Is Afraid.

The Advertiser asked a number of the members of No. 2 committee if it were a fact that the trouble with the garbage department rested with the superintendent, and if it was a fact that they were afraid to fire him.

One member of the committee said that he believed that this was a fact. He unhesitatingly declared that the committee was afraid to fire the superintendent and gave his reasons.

Other members of the committee said that the question of getting a new superintendent had never been discussed by the committee. Ald. Drake said that he did not think that the superintendent was to blame.

The members spoken to either declared that they were not afraid to vote to fire Superintendent Walker or else said the question had not been discussed.

"I am not afraid to vote to fire him or anyone else if they are not coming through," unhesitatingly declared Ald. O. G. Keene in answer to a direct question from The Advertiser.

Not Given a Chance.

"I'll vote to fire anyone who I think should be fired," declared Ald. Gordon Drake. However, Ald. Drake declared that he did not believe that Superintendent Walker was to blame. He said that he had not been given a chance. The garbage committee had decided on dividing the city into zones, and the collectors were to be at work in these zones at one time. This allowed for proper supervision. This scheme had never been placed in operation.

Ald. Winnett said that the superintendent was under the city engineer, and he was the man responsible, not Mr. Walker. It was up to the engineer to see that Walker did his work. The matter of firing Walker was never discussed, he maintained.

Ald. Moorehead said that Walker had never been discussed at any meetings of the committee.

Up Tonight.

However, despite those denials there are those who believe that the rumors about the city have foundation in fact. The whole question will likely be aired at tonight's council meeting. It is expected that the session will be a lengthy and warm one.

NATIONAL I. O. D. E. DENOUNCED MOVE FOR ANY ALLIANCE BETWEEN THE INTERNATIONAL BODY AND TEUTONS

Aliens Are Not Represented On Body in Question—Delegate Counsels Moderation—Do Not Set Up Stumbling Block For the Future—London Woman Tells of Work Done.

Representatives of the Local Council of Women who attended the annual convention of the National Council last week in Erantford report not only one of the most largely attended in the history of the council, but a session of exceptional interest and importance.

Mrs. H. A. Boomer, president of the local council, who was associated with Lady Aberdeen in organizing council work not only in Ontario, but in the Canadian West, a quarter of a century ago, gives the following little sketch of the convention to The Advertiser, touching upon outstanding features:

"Perhaps there has never been a larger or more representative gathering of the members of that very live organization; the National oCuncil of women, than that held at Brantford last week, when matters of the very gravest national importance were considered at its twenty-fifth annual meeting.

Ban on Aliens.

"The grave question propounded by the I. O. D. E., as to the attitude of the Canadian National Council towards the International, had the earnest consideration of the convention and the impossibility of any step being taken, beyond all alike emphatically denouncing the possibility of any relationship with the alien nations of Germany, Austria and Bulgaria, was fully recognized by the carrying of a resolution to be conveyed officially to the I. O. D. E. It was shown that at this juncture no legal process was possible, seeing that ever since the beginning of the war the International Council was in abeyance, no meetings held, no affiliation fees asked or accepted, no business transacted, nor to be transacted. Therefore no allied country could ask or have affiliation, and no disobedient members of the International be cast out. One of our London delegates compared the situation to that of the players at a ball game, where the thrower of the ball had no one at the other end of the playground (would it were a playground) to catch it. The London delegate who spoke upon the subject pointed out from the point of view of one who was as much a Daughter of the Empire as a member of the National Council of Women, that surely it would be an unwise and unpatriotic thing to do at this crisis in the world's history to seek to sever even the very slightest link in the golden chain of a future opportunity which may be ours when this cruel war ends and the work of reconstruction begins, when surely it will be granted to a united womanhood to join hands in bringing it about. 'Let us,' she pleaded, 'seeing that no country can be asked to be withdrawn from the International Council now, do nothing which may by and by be a stumbling block in our path when definite action can be taken to uphold what is right and to condemn what is wrong.

Defend Organizer.

One topic may, though perhaps very reluctantly, be just alluded to, as it is one which could hardly be passed over in silence at such a gathering as that of the annual meeting of the National Council of Women. Seeing that it had reached the ears of many members through personal and direct insinuations, and by the press of both Canada and the United States, viz., the false and libelous innuendoes against the loyalty to the Empire of the honored founder of the National Council, Lady Aberdeen:

There were very few (and none of these being among those who had worked with her step by step from the laying of the first foundation stone of our Canadian Woman's Council), who disbelieved her by believing one word of honored her by believing one word of these base assertions, but so long as even one of our newer federated associations were even bewildered by insinuations, it was perhaps well that definite and categorical replies should be given to every false assertion made, and these were given, one by one, and over the signatures of those through whose hands had passed all records and correspondence, and who knew for a certainty that whatever sums had been gathered for the welfare of the manifold and beneficent work on their behalf which had for many years been the definite and self-sacrificing efforts of both Lord and Lady Aberdeen, had gone direct to that object, and no other, that not a copper of it had been diverted directly or indirectly to any pro-German cause, for, astounding as it may seem, that was the venomous assertion made, and which it was assumed might be believed by those who knew her not.

Cleared of Aspersions.

Not only was our dear advisory president cleared of all aspersions, but facts were elicited which brought out proofs of the definite share which she and Lord Aberdeen had taken since the beginning of the war in every form of service for Empire, among them the devoting of their Scottish houses as hospitals, with the maintenance of the same, and the devotion of their two sons to military service, Lord Didley Gordon as the commander of a Scottish Regiment, winning decorations for valor in the field, and of Lord Haddo, physically unfit for service, but who from the first has worked definitely as an outstanding officer of the Y. M. C. A. at its headquarters in England.

Of special interest to the London council, we announce the election of Mrs. Sanford of Hamilton as the president of the National Council; the London local council in common with a very large number of local councils from the Atlantic to the Pacific having cast their six allotted votes for her as one for whom they had patiently waited since she had withdrawn her name as candidate, when a year ago at Winnipeg Mrs. Torrington had reconsidered her decision and had accepted the year of office in the presidential chair. A magnificent bouquet of roses and an honorary position for life were presented to Mrs. Torrington in recognition of her close relationship to the National Council in the past.

Honor New President.

In a touching, graceful and sympathetic little speech, the new president, who at the request of the givers, was chosen to present the gift, clasped hands with the retiring president. A few others from amongst the older members of the National Council of which also by request was amongst whom also by request was London's president, as being perhaps, as she herself said "probably the oldest woman of them all," having added a few words of appreciation, to which Mrs. Torrington touchingly replied, the interesting little ceremony came to an end, and business, very earnest business, took up once more the full attention of delegates who had come from the Atlantic to the Pacific to give from their very earnest consideration to the subjects upon their programme. Later on when the secretary's reports reach the branches, details may be given which cannot well be offered now. It is sufficient to say that nearly every woman who spoke upon each separate subject was practically an expert, one who knew how to back up with facts and figures the topic which she presented, and also how to reply briefly and with satisfying assurance to questions which were voiced from the crowded seats, each with its bear to show from which branch the voice came.

Prominent in Debate.

"Our London delegates were by no means amongst the silent representatives, although they were reticent where reticence seemed the wiser course. Mrs. Gordon Wright was clear and outspoken upon some legal points, quoting Blackstone with good effect, and proving that as on one subject the National Council had from year to year established a precedent, that precedent had, according to the authority from whom she quoted, become law, there being no existing law to interfere with it. It was with great regret that the London delegates learnt from Mrs. Wright that the necessity for her to preside at the Dominion Y. W. C. T. U. convention at Ottawa made her absence from the Friday's meeting unavoidable.

"London's delegates were Mrs. Boomer, Mrs. R. M. Graham, Mrs. Gordon Wright, Mrs. Rose and Miss Roberts as substitute for Miss Margaret A. Moore, the news of whose sudden and most lamented death came as a great shock to her comrades, who had so earnestly hoped that she might have been with them as had at first been arranged."

FEAR FOR RECOVERY OF LONDON AVIATOR INJURED IN AUTO

Flight-Lieut. W. S. Horn in Serious Condition.

Lieut. Wilbert S. Horne of the Royal Air Force, son of E. S. Horne, 45 Elmwood avenue, city, was seriously injured in an auto accident near Toronto, when he was thrown from a taxicab. Fears are entertained for his recovery. Lieut. Horne was proceeding from Toronto to Armour Heights in the taxicab, when it swerved and struck a telegraph pole, the London boy being thrown out, striking his head on the road.

He was removed to the military hospital where two American specialists operated for concussion of the brain. Lieut. Horne did not regain consciousness until Saturday evening, and then for but a few hours, lapsing again into a state of coma. His parents left for Toronto immediately upon being notified of the accident, and will not return to this city until condition of their son improve.

Lieut. Horne enlisted in the Royal Flying Corps last winter, and trained in Texas, where he qualified as an instructor in stunt flying and was employed in this capacity at Armour Heights up to the time of this unfortunate accident. He is well known in this city, being a popular London boy. Prior to enlisting he was employed as a clerk in Strong's Drug Store here.

FATALLY SHOT WHILE GUNNING FOR A CAT

Brantford, June 17.—Harvey Bowman, one of the oldest residents of the Kelvin district, was fatally shot on Saturday evening, word being received by the authorities this morning. Bowman, who was 88 years of age, secured to shoot a stray cat with a shotgun. Going around the barn to head off the cat, Bowman ran into a discharge of the shotgun, which had caught in Arnold's trousers while he was in pursuit. The lower portion of Mr. Bowman's right leg was practically shot away, and though amputation was carried out, he died on Sunday.

FORMER MAYOR OF OTTAWA NOW INDORSES TANLAC

Hon. T. Payment Says He Has Not Seen Its Equal in All His Experience.

There is probably no better known man in all Ottawa than the Hon. Thomas Payment, who held the high office of mayor of that city for two successive terms, and who for the past twenty-six years has been one of Ottawa's most progressive businessmen. Mr. Payment tells in a very interesting and convincing manner just what he thinks of Tanlac, the new medicine which is being so widely talked about all over Canada and the United States. His signed statement is reproduced below:

Ottawa, Canada, 6-4-18.

'During all my experience in the drug business—covering a period of twenty-six years—I don't believe I have ever handled a preparation that has given such excellent results and general satisfaction, as has Tanlac, and I consider it a very valuable medicine.

"The most remarkable feature about it seems to produce the desired results. Hardly a day passes that does not bring some person into my store telling me of the way Tanlac has helped them. I know of at least a dozen cases that have come under my own personal observation where the results obtained from the use of Tanlac have been really remarkable.

"I have implicit confidence in Tanlac, and unhesitatingly recommend it and advise anyone to give it a trial.

"(Signed) T. PAYMENT."

Tanlac is sold in London by Standard Drug, Limited, and by an established agency in every town.

COMING IN TO SEE THE BOY.

LARGE QUANTITIES of home-made pies and cakes disappeared in the course of numerous attacks in the vicinity of this city Sunday. Toward evening the cookery reserves rushed to the city during the early hours from many surrounding points were nowhere to be found. It is safe to say they were interned within the capacious spaces of the country lads who have recently come by the thousands to commence their training in the service of the world commonwealth of nations that strives against a Hunnish revival of slavery for the human race.

It was not the first Sunday one observed the inpouring of country folk to the city. But yesterday in large numbers they came in their motor cars and in their carriages "to see the boy"—not only to see him, but to feed him with all the fine, wholesome, appetizing viands that mother prepared toward the end of the week. The richest of pies, the lightest and most toothsome of cakes—the sort of cake that overcomes a man who has been doing real work at Carling's Heights for a week or two—a roast, perhaps, some rich cream that the brown cow put her heart into when she knew it was for Dick or Tom or Harry. Eggs that were hard boiled, or perhaps, deviled, and chicken that was parboiled and roasted in just the way the presiding genius of the kitchen can do it. And the first strawberries from that quarter-acre patch. (None of those for city folks!) And cookies and spiced cakes and sandwiches and jam and lettuce and radishes and some of that special hot pickle—all these and wads of the truest home-made bread that ever came out of a wood-fire oven!

These great-hearted folks that come from the sidelines and the concessions, those of them who have boys in the army, will find this summer a rare season in all their lifetime. Coming to the fair or to market or to the circus is all very well for business or a lark, and the movies once a week is a pleasant, if hurried, diversion. But now when their sons have gone from the homes—those real old-fashioned country homes that people cannot help writing songs about—there is going to be a heap more of heart interest and loving kindness in these little journeys to the camping ground. They will pray with all of us for the end of the war, but as their lads become a part of the army of democracy and receive the impulse that will stir the best of their manhood for the struggle, those who come to visit them will be more and more proud of them, proud because they will rank with the finest soldiers in the world, proud because they have accepted the call in good spirit and with the capacity for real honest hard work that stamps the farm-trained Canadian.

Victoria Park, the environs of the camp ground and wherever there were wide spaces to spread an outdoor luncheon, were dotted with parties of soldiers and their relatives yesterday. In the broad reaches of the rural communities home is more of an institution than it is in the cities. The home circle may be broken by marriage, but the family holds together because of the closer communal spirit. When boys are removed by the stern demands of war there is a serious wrench for everyone. Home-loving hearts are separated for the first time, the boy tenting on what may now be called "the old camp ground," the mother and the sire bravely carrying on at home, with a choking sensation that absence brings once in a while perhaps, but with the feeling that they must play up and meet the situation as their son has done. Something smart in the appearance of the young chap strikes them at once. He talks of platoons and corps rivalry and what the captain said about them. He has his "brass" polished to a fine golden glow, and he tells of alterations by a tailor to the coat that keeps pulling up in the back. They begin to think quite as much, if not a little more, of their boy as a soldier than they ever felt before. Has he been mistreated? Not for a minute! The sergeant is "a good scout," and the officers don't belong to the dreadful snobaucracy that so many good democrats stand in fear of. They know whatever the boy did before, with his horses and his hoe and his binder and his other farm equipment, whatever he did that was supposed to help win the war, he is now doing the biggest thing of all, and there can't be a bit of doubt about it.

They gather around the home circle, a home circle transported to nature's manifold dining tables. The Sunday dinner of the country home is an institution, a sacred institution, and many a mother carried her family Bible in the Ford when they came in. Everywhere are other families with their khaki-clothed sons, sons who bring along a friend who doesn't happen to have any near relatives, near in both the sense of kinship and distance. The city people appear to have a friendly interest in their cousins from the country (and they certainly should have), and a glorious reunion proceeds for the day.

It is a pleasant phase of the draft measure that brought the boys from eight or nine counties to the city. It takes the harshness out of war's stern commands. And before the summer has passed and before these boys have gone away to take their places in the front line, it would be well if a day or even more than one day could be devoted by the military authorities to a grand, old-fashioned country visit from the folks at home for all the men at the camp.

ANOTHER PLOT FAILS.

THOSE WHO have read the views of Vice-Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyss on the German submarine activities off the American coast cannot have failed to be impressed with his ability to trace, from existing facts, the motive of the enemy in sending his U-boats across the Atlantic. His conclusion that no blockade of the American coast is possible is evident to the veriest tyro, who can realize that the number of under-water craft required for such a venture is far beyond the limits of German production, and the distance from home is too great. Few people, however, have been able to satisfy themselves as to what was the object, unless it was merely an attempt at terrorism.

Admiral Wemyss admits that it was such an effort, but with a decided and definite object, viz., to distract the attention of the Allied fleets from the narrow seas which are being policed so thoroughly. If the American people could be brought to demand the return of American warships from duty in the North Sea and Mediterranean in order to protect their own coast, Germany would be more than satisfied. This theory was advanced in The Advertiser at the time of the raid.

There are certain channels through which all submarines from German ports must pass in order to cruise off either British or American coasts. Once they pass through these they are comparatively safe. The foe desires most earnestly to break the cordon which is drawn about these passages, and hoped by this trans-Atlantic work to induce the American warships to leave these narrows for their own Atlantic coast, thus weakening the Allied guard. He has failed, and has committed a grave error, since the only effect the submarine has had on the American people is the stiffening of the determination to see the war through to victory at any cost.

GEORGE F. ROGERS.

LONDON COLLEGIATE loses ability of a rare order through the appointment of Principal George F. Rogers as inspector of high schools in Ontario, but, at the same time, it is certain to receive an indirect benefit. Men of the Rogers type are found in every profession. And they are eventually found at the top. One may not know much about the technical skill nor the special improvements he gave to London Collegiate. But anyone who had even a casual acquaintance with the man must have known that such a personality was affecting his community, along the lines of efficiency, common sense and clear and direct vision. Added to this was sense of humor, mark of the mind that gets through superficial things.

Rogers is an impersonal sort of man. We do not imagine he is strong for banquets and being talked at, and that sort of thing. And when he has made the hit of the evening in a corking after dinner speech, he isn't the kind of man who sits down all swelled up over it. It's a strictly impersonal thing with him, but while he is in action he isn't failing to put what he has into his work. London perhaps never got sufficiently well acquainted with Rogers, because, whether for good or ill, London is a personal kind of place. To have more of the Rogers kind of mind in public life, and private life, would be a fine thing for the Forest City. But he gets into a bigger field, he will come our way often, and we will listen to him always with friendly feeling and a good heaping measure of appreciation. He's the kind of man who leaves his mental brand upon men and affairs.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Austro-German affairs have reached another crisis, but it is nothing to the critical state they will be in when war ends.

They are issuing shoe cards in Germany now. Can they not find some suitable substitute to prevent this excessive use of cards?

A Government expert says that if the skin is rubbed with fish oil and kerosene, black flies won't bite. Possibly not, but what will the neighbors do?

After all, a separate cabinet in Britain to look after domestic affairs would not be a bad idea; whether it is called a cabinet or committee does not matter much.

There is a Boston man who should be preserved carefully as the only one of his kind; he has refused not only an earldom, but any benefit from the estate of the late earl.

Has anyone anything good to say for the stoppage of garbage collection? No! Then let it be resumed immediately, even at the fearful expense of 15 cents extra per day for each collector.

There would be a terrible epidemic of murder if everyone followed the example of a Parisian, who slew a surgeon because the operation performed by the latter failed to restore the patient's health.

"FIFTY-FIFTY."

[Brantford Expositor.]

The London Free Press accuses The Expositor of lack of information and want of fairness in stating that one of the promises which Sir Robert Borden has not carried out is that of placing his cabinet on a fifty-fifty basis. It declares that the line-up is nine to nine, with Hon. Mr. Robertson, the Labor representative, not counted on either side, and that the Liberals hold the more important portfolios. The Expositor may be inaccurate, but as it understands the composition of the cabinet, according to party leanings, it is as follows:

Conservatives—Sir R. L. Borden, Sir George E. Foster, Hon. Arthur Meighen, Sir Thomas White, Hon. Dr. J. D. Reid, Hon. P. Blondin, Hon. C. J. Doherty, Hon. A. E. Kemp, Hon. J. A. Lougheed, Hon. T. W. Crothers, Hon. F. Cochrane and Hon. E. D. Robertson.—12.

Liberals—Hon. N. W. Rowell, Hon. F. B. Carvell, Hon. S. C. Mewburn, Hon. J. A. Calder, Hon. T. A. Crerar, Hon. A. K. MacLean, Hon. A. L. Sifton, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Hon. C. C. Ballantyne.—9.

This makes the score stand twelve Conservatives and nine Liberals, or eleven Conservatives and nine Liberals if, as our contemporary claims, Hon. Mr. Robertson, the Labor representative who was appointed to office by the late Borden Government, be placed on neither side.

Our contemporary will please show wherein The Expositor is misinformed, or else allow the charge of misinformation to lie at its own doorstep.

LOVE MY DOG LOVE ME.
By Louise Oliver.

Laura swam about a bit in the water of the lake, then climbed into her canoe and pulled up shore a bit to her favorite haven, where a little arm of water reaching around a breastwork of rocks, crossed a flat, sunny strip of beach.

In the canoe were a store of reinforcements, carnal and mental—candy and a novel—also a towel to dry her hair. Laura had lovely hair, of which she was justly proud.

There was only one thing lacking to complete her absolute contentment—her dog. She colored wrathfully when she thought of him, for she had very substantial suspicions that only the lake separated her from her pet.

Suddenly there was a sneeze almost directly over her head from the top of a rock. Laura looked up quickly and frowned. A man in swimming clothes was sitting there quietly watching her.

"It's just as well," said Laura tartly, "that nature takes a hand sometimes to announce new arrivals."

"Pardon me, fair mermaid, but you are the newcomer. I was here first."

There was nothing to say to this, and she decided to leave without further parley, when it occurred to her that as she had been coming to this particular little cove nearly every day for three months each summer for the last ten years, it was not for her to let a stranger rout her now.

"You're a soldier, aren't you?" she asked.

"I have the honor."

"You belong to that machine gun battalion across the lake, don't you?"

"Yes."

"Perhaps then you can tell me what became of my dog."

Laura took a piece of chocolate and then looked him steadily in the eye, as impressively as a decidedly oblique eight feet would permit. Authority should never have to look up. Moreover, when Laura looked up, with her chin tilted back, and the sunlight dancing in little spurts of flame on her hair, she looked more like a model of hope than anything else. Whatever it was, the young man quite refused to be terrified, although he almost forgot to answer, but for a different reason.

"Your dog? What kind of dog?"

"A Cairn. Not very big, white with brown spots, short hair."

"A Cairn," he said thoughtfully. "Let me see. It would be pretty hard to tell. We have dogs and dogs and then some, you see. All camps have. It's a sort of Mecca—seems to draw 'em like a magnet."

"I don't suppose there are many like Laddie," she remarked. "Dad gave him to me for my birthday, and as I had my choice of him or another row of pearls for my pearl collar, you see what I've lost. Besides he was a splendid companion, such a good swimmer. Will you look when you go back and see if there is a dog of his description in camp."

"I certainly will. But how can I let you know if I find him?"

"I come here every day," she answered. "If you could bring him here."

"I might manage it," he said slowly. "But what is I miss you?"

Laura was thoughtful. She was about to say, "Then come to the house, won't you!" But she decided it would be difficult to entertain an unknown soldier should he present himself there. Her mother would be sure to fuss, too. That was one thing about soldiers, they all looked alike, but dear knows who they were!

"Oh, I think we'll manage to meet here," she said. "I always come at this time."

"All right. Tomorrow then," he said. "I must go back now. Good-bye," and diving into the deep water on the other side of the rock, he was gone.

The next day as usual, Laura paddled into the cove. And there was her soldier with a dog.

"Mercy! That's not my dog," she cried. "That looks more like an anteater than a dog."

"I hardly thought it was,' he answered, crestfallen. "But it was the only one I could catch. Perhaps I'll have better luck tomorrow."

As usual, Laura had brought along some magazines and some candy. She offered him some of the sweets with an apology. "I don't approve of candy nowadays. But the boys insist on sending it to me from town. I've finally made them stop, but I have an accumulation of about fifty pounds. Some day, if I can get permission, I'm going over to your camp and distribute the whole thing."

"That will be splendid," he cried with enthusiasm. "Not the candy so much as the visit. There's nothing cheers the boys up so much as a—a," he was going to say pretty girl. "As a nice looking young woman," he finished. "But I must go now. You see, I haven't much time to call my own I'll try and bring your dog tomorrow."

But the next day it was the same thing. No Laddie! Instead a fox terrier, which barked incessantly.

"That's not my dog, either," said Laura. "Of course, he answers the description, but still a Cairn's a Cairn. You ought to know one when you see it."

"I must confess I don't," he answered, "but I'll try again if you'll let me."

Then the conversation turned to the war and his prospects of going across. Time flew fast.

For six days the soldier came with dogs, a different one each day, and never the right one.

"Mercy!" said Laura, despairingly, "You can't go on all summer bringing dogs. I think I'll go to camp tomorrow myself. Dad got permission from the major, and I'll go in my car and take the candy. I've got some other things, too. I hope I'll see you there."

For Laura had decided by this time after a week of this young man, that it was all right to say she hoped she'd see him. She really hoped very much that she'd see him, and she had determined to ask her father to speak to the major about him and have him over to dinner some night at Cairn Craig.

Good as her word, Laura did go to camp next day with a cargo of candy and tobacco, and was immediately taken to headquarters.

The orderly returned at once, saying the major would see her.

Laura entered diffidently, wondering what she should say to the potentate in command. She had never talked to so high an officer before.

But the man who rose from behind the big desk was her own soldier of the beach at the same time a Cairn that had been sleeping under the desk, sprang forward with a yelp of delight.

"So you're Major Denning?" said Laura rather stiffly, "and you've got Laddie, after all."

"Yes," he admitted, smiling quietly, "I've had him all along."

"I can understand your wanting to keep him, but I don't see the idea of bringing a whole menagerie over to me day after day."

"Suppose, my dear lady, I had taken Laddie over on my first trip; I could have invented no excuse to see you so often. The past week has been Utopia to me."

"Why couldn't you come to the house to see me? You are father's friend."

"I didn't want you to discover my identity until you had learned to like me for myself. I had hoped you did, a little. But I'm afraid I've made a mistake. I should have returned your dog the day he swam over here, and that would have been the end of it all."

Suddenly Laura came over and touched his arm. "No, don't be sorry. No one could possibly be cross at you after—after what you've said. And I'm glad I didn't know you were an officer—but just you."

He took her hand in both of his. "Laura, I've taken an awful fancy to Laddie; you can't have the heart to take him back without me now, can you?"

She sighed and looked away in mock resignation. "It seems to be a case of 'Love my dog, love me,' doesn't it? I suppose I'll have to take you both."

Then he gathered her up close in his arms and settled it all with a kiss.

GERMANS DEMANDING RETURN OF PRISONERS FROM REMOTE PLACES

LONDON, June 15.—Because the German delegates at the British-German war prisoners' conference at the Hague are pressing for the return of all prisoners in Canada and Africa as well as those in Great Britain, a hitch has occurred in the negotiations, telegraphs the correspondent at the Dutch capital of the Times. The difficulties of such a course, it is contended by the British delegates, particularly in respect to shipping transport, make it impracticable. The negotiations have now reached a most critical stage, but, the correspondent says, there is no reason to think they will prove abortive.

VICTORIA DAY CRIME BLAMED TO YOUTHS NEWLY UNIFORMED

One Is Arrested at Niagara, the Other in Toronto Camp.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

TORONTO, June 16.—Taken from the ranks of units at Niagara and Exhibition Camps today, Joseph Fuller, alias Frank Jackson, and Lyman Morrison, both aged eighteen years, were charged by provincial police officers with the murder of Theodore Taylor of Thomastown, a village six miles from Engiehart.

Taylor was a farmer 70 years of age, and it was reported that he had disposed of his farm for several thousand dollars, a portion of which he was believed to have had on his person at the time of the murder. He was clubbed to death and robbed of $95.

On May 25, the day after the murder, Morrison was arrested for carrying a gun and allowed to enlist by a police magistrate of the locality. That day Charles Cooper was arrested by Provincial Officer Rowell, and is said to have given the information upon which the police then commenced to act.

Fuller disappeared by canoe. Reaching Bracebridge, he came to Toronto to enlist and was taken into the ranks. When the police visited the camp it was found that Fuller was held as a deserter. It is stated that he does not deny complicity in the crime and admits striking Taylor, but not the fatal blow.

2 MORE NORWEGIAN SHIPS ARE SUNK BY SUBS OFF VIRGINIA

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Norwegian sailing ship Kreigsjaa has been sunk by a German submarine 90 miles off the Virginia coast. The navy department announced tonight that the crew has been picked up by an American warship and are being brought to an Atlantic port.

The Norwegian bark Samoa, 1,051 tons net, from Buenos Aires, was also sunk by gunfire from a German submarine about 90 miles off the Virginia coast at 8 a.m. Friday, June 14. Fifteen members of the Samoa's crew were rescued by a schooner and later transferred to another vessel, which is bringing them to an Atlantic port.

The sinking of the Samoa brings the total shipping losses to twenty vessels, as a result of the German submarine raid on the American coast.

PAGE OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Alex McCorquodale of West Zorra announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Annie Irene, to Wilbert John Smith, the marriage to take place the latter part of June.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McKenzie of Winnipeg are the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George McBroom, Hyman street.

A pleasant evening was given to the inmates of the Home for Incurables on Friday, when the little pupils of Mrs. Henderson gave a number of fancy dances. Songs by Kathleen England and Master Sam and Dorothy Munroe were much enjoyed, also readings by Miss Griffith.

The wedding was performed on Wednesday morning, June 12, in All Saints' Church, Strathroy, of Gladys Mary, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dillon of Longwood, to Daniel Morris Gallagher, only son of Mr. Michael Gallagher, Rev. Father Quinlan officiating. The bride was given away by her father and looked charming in her wedding gown of white duchess satin and bridal veil wreathed with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white peonies and wore a pearl sunburst, the gift of the groom. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Alma Dillon of Oil City, who was gowned in white silk crepe de chine and wore a white hat. The groom was supported by his cousin, Mr. John Gallagher. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a pearl crescent and to the groomsman a pearl tiepin. After the celebration of wedding mass, the wedding party departed to the home of the bride's father, where a dainty breakfast was served by the girl friends of the bride. After luncheon the young couple left amid showers of rice and confetti on their honeymoon to Toronto, the bride traveling in a tailored suit of grey silk poplin.

Mrs. Flitton of Johnston street, London South, entertained on Friday afternoon in honor of her sister, Mrs. Palmer, of Newport, Kentucky, and her old friend, Mrs. Copley of Hamilton, who are visiting her. It took the form of an old-time tea, the table appointments being very quaint and pretty, mostly old family relics. The many friends present enjoyed a pleasant time.

JIMMY COON STORIES

By Dr. Warren C. Partridge.

Copyright 1917 by George Matthew Adams.

JIMMY COON DOES LAUN DRY WORK FOR MR. FOX.

Now it sounds passing strange to say that Jimmy Coon does laundry work for the Fox family. For you and I know that Mr. Fox is an enemy of Jimmy Coon; for he is so much bigger than Jimmy that he tries his best to catch Jimmy for his Supper, Dinner and Breakfast, and also for Lunch.

But strange as it sounds, Jimmy Coon actually did Laundry for Mr. Fox. Now, as this puzzles you, I will explain. Jimmy Coon had his lovely Laundry on the bank of Mirror Pond, under the big Willow tree. And after Jimmy washed the clothes of the Little Folk, he spread their garments out to dry on the nice tender grass on the bank of the Pond.

It was a lovely sight to see Jimmy do his washing! Why, Jimmy would roll up his sleeves and set to work washing, as if he had the best Laundry in the world. My! how Jimmy would rub and scrub those clothes; and he would put on lots of the famous Coon Elbow Grease.

Why, big and little Wood Folk came for miles around to see Jimmy Coon's nice Laundry. Jimmy would take a suit of Mr. Frog's clothes and scrub and rinse them in several waters, and then he would spread Mr. Frog's nice suit on the green grass on the bank to dry.

Then Jimmy would take Mr. Green Snake's suit, and he would wash and scrub that until every bit of dirt was washed out. And after Mr. Green Snake's suit was washed, he would rinse that in several waters and then spread that pretty suit on the grass to dry.

Then Jimmy would take Mr. Lizard's elegant suit, and he would wash that thoroughly, and rinse it in several waters, and then he would spread Mr. Lizard's lovely suit on the green grass to dry. It was a beautiful sight to see Jimmy's wash out! Why, little people came for miles around just to watch Jimmy Coon doing his washing. It was a wonderful sight to see those lovely colored suits of the little People of the Woodland spread out on the green grass to dry!

And Jimmy Coon also did Laundry work for Mr. Fox. The Fox family are famous dressers, and they wear lots of clothes. And Mr. Fox came very often to visit Jimmy Coon's Laundry. And Mr. Fox did business with Jimmy Coon at his nice Laundry.

Now do you think Mr. Fox would stand still and let Jimmy Coon wash him in his nice Laundry? And do you believe Mr. Fox would allow Jimmy Coon to scrub his lovely red suit with Coon Elbow Grease, and wash and rinse his lovely suit in Jimmy's fine Laundry? How could Jimmy Coon do washing for Mr. Fox in his Laundry, under the big Willow tree on the bank of Mirror Pond?

Tomorrow—Mr. Fox Comes to Jimmy Coon's Laundry.

Then Jimmy would take Mr. Green Snake's suit, and he would wash and scrub that.

SUFFERED WITH NERVES
COULD NOT KEEP QUIET

Diseases of the nervous system are very common.

All the organs of the body may be sound while the nerve centres may be affected.

Many women become run down and worn out by household duties never ending, and sooner or later find themselves with their nerves shattered, and the heart action weakened.

On the first sign of any weakness of either the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown, do not wait until your case becomes hopeless.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will at once quieten the shaking nerves, strengthen the weak heart and build up the entire system.

Mrs. H. Bailey, 221 Earl street, Kingston, Ont., writes: "I was suffering very much with my nerves, so much so that I could not keep myself quiet at all. I was recommended to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, so I bought three boxes, and I must say I have derived much benefit from them, so much so that my friends have all noticed the change in me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Home Canning Methods

Caution Against Freezing.

From a number of sources it has been learned that the severe weather of last winter caused considerable loss through the freezing of canned goods. To prevent similar trouble, care should be taken to store canned vegetables and fruits where they will be protected from freezing. If the place of storage is not frost-proof the jars should be moved to a warmer place when the weather becomes severe.

Essentials For Canning.

It is important to plan your work so that whatever may be needed will be ready for use. Arrange everything conveniently in advance. Preliminary provisions include:

1. A reliable alarm clock in a convenient place (set to ring when the sterilizing is done).
2. All the necessary equipment in place before beginning work.
3. Jars, tops and rubbers carefully tested.
4. Fresh, sound fruits and vegetables.
5. Reliable instructions carefully followed.
6. Absolute cleanliness.
7. If working alone prepare only enough vegetables or fruits to fill the number of jars that the sterilizer will hold. Always blanch and cold-dip only enough product to fill one or two jars at the time. As soon as the jar is filled and the rubber and top bail adjusted the jar must be put into the hot-water bath.
8. In using the hot-water bath outfit, count the time of sterilization from the time water begins to boil. The water in the sterilizer should be at or just below the boiling point when jars are put in. With the water seal outfit begin counting time when the thermometer reaches 214 degrees F. With the steam pressure outfit begin counting time when the gauge reaches the number of pounds called for in directions.

UNIFORM LESSON FOR SUNDAY.
ONE GOLDEN TEXT SUGGESTION.

MONDAY.

Jesus Triumphs Over Death.—Mark, 16:1-20.

QUESTIONS FOR TODAY.

1. Verse 1-3.—On what hour of the day was Christ crucified, and at what hour did he give up his spirit?
2. Who were Mary Magdalene and Mary, the mother of Jesus, and Salome?
3. On what day and hour did these women come to Christ's sepulchre, and for what purpose?

Golden Text.—Now hath Christ been raised from the dead.—1 Cor., 15:20.

CHRIST PREDICTED HIS DEATH AND RESURRECTION.

Our scripture lesson tells the story of Christ's triumph over death, and it is the gladdest news, notwithstanding that we have been hearing it all our lifetime. His resurrection from the dead proved his words which he had uttered over and over again during the last year of his ministry, to be true, that he was to be put to death, and that he would rise again from the dead. He had great difficulty in making his disciples believe what he said; in fact, they did not believe his words, or at least, they did not understand them. They had their minds so fully made up that he was to succeed in his mission by his life that they could not bring themselves to believe in his prediction that he had to die in order that the world might live.

CYNTHIA GREY'S MAIL BOX

She Is Welcome.

Dear Cynthia Grey,—Have been a daily reader of The Advertiser for a long time, and never fail to turn to your department, which I enjoy best of all. I have received untold benefit and enjoyment from some of the letters of the pageites. As this is my first appearance I do not like to ask a favor, but, oh, Miss Grey, I would so much like to have your stocking foot pattern, size 5 years. I am a widow with two children, and sometimes it keeps me hustling to make ends meet. I will glady return the favor in any way I possibly can. A MOTHER.

Ans.—You need have no hesitancy whatever in "asking a favor," for our Mail-Box is just for the purpose of helping each other wherever possible. The pattern comes only in one size, but I am sure you will have no difficulty at all in cutting off a smaller size to suit your little one's foot.

The Ashes Did It.

Dear Miss Grey,—Here comes another of my scribbling notes, but this time I must not stay long for two reasons. One is because your space seems scarce, the other, I'm so busy.

You wished to know about my floor. Well I got the spot where lard was spilled just cleaned up dandy. It was about two weeks before I saw my request in the paper, and during that time a lady friend told me to use common ashes. I wet the mark with warm water, covered thick with ashes, let it remain on for about one hour, then used boiling water, just poured some over ashes, then I scrubbed it all up. I did that three times in one day, and the mark was completely out of sight. It just worked like a charm.

My baby boys are fine. "Lloyd George" is walking and trying hard to talk.

My garden is looking fine. I cleaned out all those horrid weeds yesterday. Aren't weeds a pest? But where don't you find 'em!

Yours, DOLLY FROM PERTH.

Ans.—When in doubt, use ashes, will surely be our rule after this, "Dolly"—for floors, I mean. For the benefit of Boxites I may say that "Dolly's" "other half" accidentally spilled some hot lard on the kitchen floor, and it made just "a nawful mark," that worried Dolly's housekeeping soul to the core. The friend's hint re using ashes may be found helpful by other reader in a simlar plight.

As to the weeds, "Dolly," I was sure they grew faster and thicker in the "Grey's" garden than anywhere else, but perhaps not.

An Unfamillar Quotation.

Dear Miss Grey,—Can you tell me from what this quotation is taken "The present will soon be future, and the future will soon be past?" Have I it at all right? I have been trying to think this out for the last couple of days, but there seems to be something wrong with my thinking-cap. Sincerely, A READER.

Ans.—Sorry, but I am unable to tell you from whence the quotation comes, or if you have it worded correctly. Guess my "thinkin cap" must be in poor working order, too! Sad, isn't it?

The Adjective "Nice."

Dear Miss Grey,—Will you please answer the following questions:

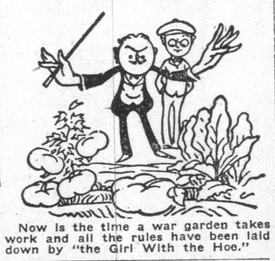

1. What is the meaning of my name?
2. Isn't my writing miserable?

I noticed in The Advertiser that "A High School Girl" would like to correspond with some nice school girl." You may send her my name and address, providing that she will write first. I don't think the adjective "nice" describes me, but I am a high school girl, so perhaps that will serve as well. Hoping to hear from her soon, and thanking you, Miss Grey, A COUNTRY MAID.

Ans.—1. Madalene, Madeline or Magdalene have the same meaning, and signify "one from Magdala."

2. Not so very mis'able, thank you.
3. Modesty appears to be one of your characteristics, anyway! I have forwarded your name, as requested.

DISTRICT INSTITUTES ELECT NEW OFFICERS

MIDDLEMISS, June 15.—The annual district meeting of West Middlesex Women's Institutes was held at the school house, Middlemiss, yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance. Mrs. James H. Matthews of Delaware presided. Most satisfactory reports of the past year's work, especially patriotic, were received from the ten branches. It was unanimously decided to make vigorous efforts in helping patriotic work, and also decided that each branch donate $2 per annum to the district fund.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. W. J. Richards of Middlemiss; vice-president, Mrs. R. Coy of Mount Erydges; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Brunt of Kerwood. Mrs. R. Coy gave an interesting paper on "Childhood to Womanhood." Mrs. Hafmett spoke, urging women to have medical inspections of all schools in West Middlesex, and the secretary was instructed to obtain full information in regard to the matter. The invitation for the next annual district meeting, to be held at Glen Oak in 1919, was accepted.

The Blue Labels and Manhattans were victorious over the Orients and Y. M. C. A. respectively at Springbank Park in Inter-Club League games on Saturday by overwhelming scores. The Y. M. C. A. boys were whitewashed to the tune of 17 to 0, while the defeat of the Orients was less severe, the score being 7 to 0.

Yankee Flint of the Labels held his opponents to one lone bingle, which was scored by Templeman. "Hank" Down was good for the Orients, allowing six hits, but the support behind him was poor. The first inning was disastrous to the losers, the cigarmakers scoring four times in this period. The game was closely fought for the next two innings, but the Labels put things on the shelf in the fourth frame by crossing the plate three times.

The game only went five innings, and with the exception of the first and fourth spasm was closely contested. Down gave no less than five clouts in the initial session, but steadied down immediately afterwards. Flint was invincible so far as hits were concerned, but passed three men in four innings. He secured a two-bagger in three times at bat. Myers of the Labels connected with the pill twice in three chances.

The contest between the "Y" team and the Manhattans was a cinch for the latter. It was a nine-inning affair, and toward the end developed into a slaughter. Seventeen hits were garnered off the "Y" slabmen. Nopper started in the box for the defeated aggregation, but was ousted in favor of Gillies, who in turn was replaced by Hicks. Seventeen clouts were obtained by the islanders, while Barney Clark held the "Y" boys to seven hits. Clark got a home run and a three-base hit in four times at bat. G. Pirie was the batting star, connecting with the ball three times out of four. Cline and Hicks of the "Y" team were high men of their nine with two bingles each.

TEN WILL START IN THE LATONIA DERBY

CINCINNATI, June 15.—One week from today the Latonia Derby, the third and last of the outstanding events of the Kentucky spring and summer racing season, will be run by the Latonia Jockey Club, which began its spring meeting of 26 days yesterday. It is estimated that the race this season will be worth close to $15,000, which places it in the same class with the Kentucky Derby, run annually at Churchill Downs in May, and the Kentucky handicap, the $15,000 feature of spring racing at Douglas Park, Louisville.

The Latonia Derby is exclusively for three-year-olds. It has been run annually without interruption since the opening of Latonia in 1833, and its list of winners includes the names of many great horses. Its distance is one mile and a half, which conforms more to the conditions of its famous prototype in England than that of any other American race dignified with the derby title. The list of eligibles follow:

Escoba, Jim Heffering, James Foster, Don Dodge, Harry Breivigel, Tacola, Dr. Levy, Lucky B., Bubbling Louder, Everest, Peerless One, Mary Maud, Cracow, Sewell Combs, Rahu, Duke of Savoy, High Cost, Herald, J. With the score tied in the ninth, Hendrix singled and was forced at second by Johns, who batted for Smith. Johnson ran for Johns. After Gedeon had lined out, Johnson started to steal second. W. O. R. NO. 2 BASEBALL TEAM DEFEAT CANADIAN GARRISON REGT. 15 TO 6

W.O.R. No. 2 team took the measure of the Canadian Garrison Regiment in a baseball game at the Heights on Saturday by 15 to 6. The winners played fine ball, and but for the wildness of Richardson the C.G.R. boys would not have been able to score to the extent they did.

The formation of an inter-company league is in progress at the heights and games will begin some time during the week. On Friday "G" Company and headquarters staged a baseball game, which was a preliminary to the schedule of inter-company games which will be played later.

MACK WILL FIGHT TO HOLD SCOTT PERRY FROM THE BRAVES

Big League Agreement Is in Danger of Abrogation as Result.

Cleveland, O., June 17.—The National baseball agreement between the American and National Leagues is in danger of being abrogated as a result of a suit filed in common pleas court today by Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Americans, asking for an injunction restraining the Boston Nationals from interfering with his playing pitcher, Scott Perry, awarded to the Boston Nationals by a majority vote of the National Baseball Commission. Perry was purchased by Boston from the Atlanta club last year, partial payment being made. After seventeen days of "bench duty," Perry left the Boston club. He was not on the Boston reserve list last winter, and Manager Mack signed him as a free agent and he pitched three full games and part of another this season before the Boston club put in a claim for him, according to Manager Mack.

Recently President Herrmann of the National Commission, with President Tener of the National League concurring and President Johnson of the American League dissenting, awarded Perry to the Boston Nationals.

Manager Mack refuses to abide by the decision and says he will fight to hold Perry.

Somebody has asked who is the timeliest hitter playing in the major leagues. The question is open to argument, but Bill Killifer probably thinks Oskee Neale is.

Somebody suggested paying the various big league teams in accordance with the number of runs they garner. Taking $20 a run as an example each member of the Jennings' crew would make about 50 cents per diem.

In some remote parts of the world they use wild ivy to cover ruins. The ancient custom might perhaps enhance the present appearance of the Tigers.

Detroit may be last now, but you can never tell. Supposing Henry Ford begins manufacturing pennant-winning ball teams?—New York Tribune. Even Henry would have a hard time building up a ball team on the present Tiger foundation.

DOUGLAS IS AGAIN WINNING SKIP AT THISTLE TOURNEY

Just as sure as the Thistle Bowling Club holds a tournament, just so sure is it that the winning rink will be skipped by W. T. Douglas. At least that has been the result on four recent occasions, and last Saturday's competition was no exception to the rule.

After the twelve rinks had concluded Saturday's competition, each playing three games, two rinks turned in cards, which, totalled up, disclosed the fact that both were tie, with three games won and a plus score of 23. It has been the rule that the rink with the greatest number of points scored be declared winners of the prizes, but the games committee, three members of which were in attendance, ruled that the two rinks, one skipped by James C. McDonald and the other by W. T. Douglas, play two extra ends for a decision. Their score cards in the competition showed scores of 37 to 14 and 36 to 13, one with one more point scored and the other with one less scored against them.

The extra two ends gave Douglas' rink a victory by 2 to 1.

Tonight's tournament will start at 7 o'clock. Summary:

"Sensible" Heels the Best Aid to "Cure" Your Corns

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG,
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins University.)

Never apply a pin, knife or a pair of scissors to a corn. You do not know what diseased bacteria lie dormant upon the steel surface, and more than likely you have not sterilized the instrument just before applying it. A dig too deep down into the flesh is apt to lead to infection of the surrounding area, and even to blood-poisoning. Not your specially devised tools, but the doctor's carefully sterilized instruments, should be applied to a corn.

Knives and similar instruments are not always necessary to remove a corn, for there are various easier and more modern devices which can remove the hardened skin from the tops of your toes.

The best possible way to cure a corn is to prevent getting it. When you see little round red spots on your toes, you should begin to take heed, for your shoes have already begun to work mischief. They are evidently too tight, and the best thing you can do for your corns is to have your shoes stretched. If you continue to wear the same shoes unaltered they will keep on pressing until in the centre of the little red, round spot you will feel a prick, a little something hard and annoying. At this time your corn is beginning to harden and cause you trouble.

If you felt that the last pair of shoes you bought were too tight do not repeat the process by the purchase of a new pair the size of which is exactly the same.

Get your shoes large enough and shaped to fit the normal foot, not the reshaped, compressed foot. Wear heels of a "sensible" height, and when they begin to wear down have them mended before they are too low, and not only spoil the shape of the shoe, but at the same time work a callous on your heel.

Some Heel Pointers.

A worn-down heel makes a most unsightly appearance. A sole that needs mending very badly does not look as clumsy as a lop-sided heel. When you recall that the heels determine your posture to the very largest extent you can at once see that your weight is thrown to one side when your heels are unevenly worn and you walk on a part instead of the entire heel.

When one part of your heel bears most of your bodily weight instead of your entire heel, your shoes at once show by their turned-out expression how they suffer from the unbalanced burden. Not only do you stand clumsily, but your shoes are often harmed beyond repair. Your feet, moreover, are cast to one side, and nature, in order to adapt itself to an additional task, makes a hard callous or works a blister upon your heel as a warning for you to mend your ways.

Caring for Feet.

If your feet suffer from weariness or perspiration bathe them as often as you have time. The warm water will refresh the feet after a good cleansing of the pores.

If you are preparing to go to a dance don an easy, lounging garment and put your feet into a gallon of warm water into which you have put one ounce of borax. You will find this strengthening for tired or tender feet.

If you wish to reduce swollen feet to fit you evening shoes, a handful of salt in your bathing water will be useful. This will also ease your tired, aching feet. Half a lemon squeezed into water will also do much to make your tired feet feel easier.

Try to rest your feet on a level with your body as often as you can. Put your feet on a chair or a desk so as to prevent a rapid rush of the scarlet fluid into your lower limbs, and get rid of that tired, aching feeling. If you hold your feet high the blood stream is more evenly distributed into all parts of your body.

Although foot rests, baths and various other devices will do very much to help your feet to become strong and well, there is nothing as good as a broad, sensible-heeled shoes to cure your feet of corns, bunions or inflamed joints, and nothing quite as good to give a well-balanced, graceful posture.

Answers to Health Questions

D. T. W. Q.—Please inform me what can be done for arms and legs that go to sleep at night and which also have a sensation of numbness.

A.—You should have your blood pressure ascertained, and an examination made of the heart and kidneys by a physician.

A DAILY READER. Q.—What is the cause and cure for bed-wetting?

A.—The causes for bed-wetting are many. Have an examination made to find the exact cause. Punishment, medicines or operations do no good. Patience, persistence, close attention to the child twice during the night and education of will power will bring results. Reward the child for control and praise the little one when successful. This will effect a cure in time.

S. B. Q.—Please give me a remedy for blotches on the face.

A.—Apply a little of the following to the affected parts about three times a week.

Sulphur loti	2½ drams
Balsam peru	½ dram
Camphor	½ dram
Green soap	1 dram
Lanolin	½ ounce
Vaseline	½ ounce

M. G.—Q.—Will you kindly advise what I should do or should not do to prevent quantities of saliva or water gathering in my stomach? I have a very nauseating feeling which I relieved by spitting out this excess water, after which I belch. This water seems to precede belchings.

A.—You should exercise outdoors, play baseball or tennis. The juices of the stomach must be analyzed at once, also the blood pressure taken. Meanwhile, honey, crushed ice, iced fruit juices and ice cream should comprise the diet.

A. B. Q.—What can be done for a stiff ear?

A.—Electric battery treatments may help you. You should have an examination made to find the exact cause.

RESERVE: Q.—Will you kindly publish a formula for the removal of superfluous hair?

A.—Remember that there are few if any methods to kill the roots. About twice a week, or when needed, a little of the following may be tried:

Calcium sulphide	2 parts
Zinc oxide	1 part
Starch	1 part

When you are ready to use this make a paste with water and apply to the parts. Let it remain on the skin for about five minutes and then wipe off gently with a soft cloth.

CONSTANT READER. Q.—What is a good blood purifier?

2. What causes one of my cheeks to flush while the other is only slightly red?

A.—Good food, fresh air and sunlight are the best remedies to purify the blood.

Emotions, gland substances which flow into the blood, excess of cold or heat, self-consciousness, all cause the capillaries under the skin to expand and usher blood to the surface of the face, causing the flush or blush.

K. J.: Q.—Please suggest a remedy for enlarged knuckles.

2. What can be done for a dry skin?

3. What will promote the growth of eyelashes?

A.—Hot oil or vaseline on the joints is worth a trial. Take 15 drops of saturated solution of iodide of potash in water after each meal. Increase one drop at a time until 30 drops are taken, then reduce them to 15 grains.

2. Apply a little of the following to your skin:

Lanolin	1 ounce
Cocoa butter	1 ounce
Glycerine	1 ounce
Rosewater	1 ounce
Elder flower water	1 ounce

3. To make the eyelashes grow more rapidly dip a soft brush into lanolin and touch the edges of the lids with it. This should be repeated every night before retiring. The eyebrows also may be made thicker by massaging them every night with finger-tips that have been dipped into lanolin.

A READER, London, Ont.: Q.—What can be done for leakage of the heart?

A.—Most heart valves "leak" in this sense. It does not often cause any serious trouble. A quiet life, lots of sleep, no excitement, and a studious life will help you.

A SUBSCRIBER, London, Ont.: Q.—Will you kindly reprint the remedy for curly hair? Also for diabetes?

A.—Purchase some quince seed and add a little rose water to it. Apply this to the hair and place hairpins in it to keep the waves in place. Let the hair dry thoroughly and then brush it lightly.

The newest treatment for diabetes is to fast in bed two to three days a week until the sugar disappears from the kidney fluids. A doctor must be in attendance, and an analysis made of the kidney fluid. Nothing should be taken except a little coffee and whiskey, and simultaneously an analysis of the kidney fluids should be made to see the amount of sugar contained therein. Continue this treatment two or three days each week until the sugar disappears entirely from the kidney fluid. This is known as the Allen fast. Foods without sugar, to be eaten on the days when the Allen fast is not carried out are meats, poultry, game, fish, clear soups, gelatins, eggs, butter, olive oil, coffee, tea and cracked cocoa. Take ten grains of bicarbonate of soda every four hours.

DIARY OF A FASHION MODEL

BY GRACE THORNCLIFFE.

Solving the Problem of a Simple Lawn Party Dress.

Madame was astonished. Miss Carlisle, who usually demands the "ultra" in the season's fashionable apparel, was actually asking for a simple organdy dress.

"You see," Miss Carlisle explained, in answer to Madame's inquiring glance, "I've been going in for all sorts of wartime economies right along. And now I've been delegated to give a short oration on 'Simplicity and Thrift' at Mrs. Warwick's lawn party for the benefit of our wounded soldiers who've returned from the front, so I want to carry out the idea of simplicity in the gown I wear."

Frock of Old-Blue Organdy.

Miss Carlisle has been doing a great deal of social welfare work, but although she was never over-dressed, even the suits she wore on her excursions to the slums were distinctive in style and material. Hence, Madame was indeed surprised when Miss Carlisle insisted that she wanted something very plain and simple—nothing exceptional.

Madame prides herself on the novelty of design her garments always display, and she very tactfully mentioned this fact to Miss Carlisle.

"Of course," responded Miss Carlisle, "I shan't object to simple novelty so long as the dress isn't too extravagant looking."

Whereupon Madame had a model brought out that seemed especially designed to meet Miss Carlisle's description of what she preferred.

Miss Carlisle, who is inclined to be rather athletic in taste and muscularly built, has the figure that requires soft lines. She is, in fact, a bit masculine, and therefore should wear the style of dress that tends to effeminate. Wherefore, the old-blue organdy which Madame displayed seemed to be quite appropriate.

Fashioned in almost colonial style, the dress is very simple in design and not at all elaborately trimmed.

The blouse, which is made of the blue material, shows a dainty vestee of white organdy and revers of its own material. The flowing kimono sleeve ends softly at the wrist in a pretty flare.

Three large hemstitched tucks in two groups are the only trimming adorning the skirt. As is shown in the accompanying illustration, the skirt is made very full. A large circle of a darker shade of blue enriches the waistline and falls in a knotted sash at the side.

Miss Carlisle was delighted with the frock. When Madame asked her if it was plain and simple enough, she answered:

"Perfectly! And I think I shall have to exemplify my theories of simplicity and thrift by wearing this style of dress at all the 'economy functions' I have promised to attend."

Madame agreed with Miss Carlisle, smiling as she said:

"Indeed, it is important to dress in keeping with the principles you advocate."

Practical Suggestions on Individual Ways to Help Win the War.

BY ALBERT BARRETT SAYRES.

Aiding Digestion of Meat.

Those who know how good practically all the Chinese dishes are, and particularly those who eat of these dishes either in restaurants or prepared at home, probably know that since the days of Confucius the Chinese have followed a simple rule in serving vegetables with meat. This rule—it might almost be considered a religious law—is that meat should never bear a proportion greater than one-third to vegetables two-thirds; in other words, at least twice as much vegetables as meat.

But even in the preparation of meat dishes the desire to serve the meat in a form best suited to digestion goes still further. The assimilative character of meat considered hard to digest is increased by the use of peptroniferous tripe and vinegar. When meat of this type is cooked—whether in soups or stews, ragouts or fricassees, pot roasts or boiled—it is said that finely-shredded tripe is added by the best cooks.

The aid to digestion of tripe so used is also said to have led the best Chinese cooks to discover and to make use of the peptic qualities found in the gizzards of birds.

What pointers for your kitchen do you discover in these simple statements of facts vouched for by those who know the ways of Chinese kitchens?

Making Butter From Potatoes.

In the adjusting of many a home to changing conditions of food supply, every kind of suggestion may contain some hint that will fit some special need. While many homes may not find it necessary to make drastic changes, in others there is the desire to experiment with all sorts of saving methods. For these, the following recipe for potato butter is given:

Peel some potatoes and boil or steam them until they fall to pieces and become floury. Then rub them through a fine sieve into a large basin which is slightly warm. To each pound of potatoes add about two ounces of butter or butter substitute and a teaspoonful of salt. Stir thoroughly with the back of a wooden spoon until the mixture is smooth throughout.

This potato-butter should be kept in a cool place. Not more than will be used within three or four days should be made at a time. If desired, butter color may be given by a few drops of butter coloring and the potato-butter may be made to keep longer by the use of the butter preservatives, which can be purchased ready made, and for whose use directions are given on the packages. If these are used they should be added at the same time the butter and the salt are added to the potatoes.

Serving Hominy Balls.

When you cook hominy for breakfast some morning prepare enough to make hominy balls to serve for dinner. To make these:

Take one cupful of the cooked hominy, a slight grating of nutmeg, the yolk of one egg, and salt to taste. Mix these thoroughly and form into small, smooth balls. Roll the balls in cornmeal breadcrumbs, then in the slightly beaten white of the egg and again in the crumbs. Brown in the oven and serve as a side dish or as a dessert with a sweet sauce.

Practicing Little Economies.

Did you know that a cracked egg may be boiled if it's first wrapped in greased paper.

Have you ever varied the breakfast egg by baking it instead of boiling it? Try this some morning when you've a good hot oven all ready.

To save heat, and so coal or gas, put a cloth over the top of the saucepan in which you're cooking potatoes before you put the lid on. Not only will the potatoes cook in less time, but they'll also be improved in mealy quality.

Nine Easy Ways to Make Delicious inegar at Home.

If you are planning to do much pickling during the season it may pay you to put up some of your own vinegar. Simple, unflavored vinegar requires about four weeks before it is ready for use. However, if you wish to put up some special flavored vinegars for your pickles, or for your preserves, you can add some special herbs and complete it in a few days. Almost any vinegar can in this way add some delightful flavor to easily made pickles.

Rickie Vinegar.

1 quart of vinegar
1 three-inch strip of stick cinnamon broken.
1 tablespoonful of celery seed
2 teaspoonfuls of whole black pepper
1 teaspoonful of grated horseradish
½ teaspoonful of whole cloves
¾ teaspoonful of mustard seed
1 tablespoonful brown sugar

Mix the ingredients well and bring to the boiling point. Allow the mixture to boil for two minutes, then let it cool and pour it over the pickles.

Currant Vinegar.

Crush two gallons of currants and pour the liquid into a barrel. Wash the remaining pulp in water and add to this two gallons of molasses. When dissolved, strain the liquid and pour it into the barrel with the currant liquid. Add sufficient soft water to fill the barrel two-thirds full. Then dissolve one cupful of strong yeast in one gallon of water and add it to the mixture. Place the barrel in the sun and shake it often while the mixture is fermenting. Then during the fall add eight gallons of water.

Gooseberry Vinegar.

Crush two quarts of underripe gooseberries and allow them to stand for 48 hours in three quarts of water. Then press the berries and strain them. Allow one pint of sugar and one tablespoonful of yeast to each gallon. When well fermented it is ready for use.

Apple Vinegar.

Put the sound cores and parings of apples into an earthenware jar, cover with cold water and add one cupful of molasses for every gallon of water. Cover the jar with cheesecloth, and in three weeks strain the liquid through cheesecloth and bottle it.

Mint Vinegar.

Use either fresh or dried mint. Fill a wide-mouthed bottle with the crushed mint, then pour in all the vinegar the bottle will hold. Let it stand for five weeks, then strain the liquid into another bottle for use.

Nasturtium Vinegar.

Gather the flowers, stems and seeds of nasturtium plants, cut them fine and fill a glass jar three-fourths full. Pour over them a strong vinegar and let stand for ten days. Then add one-half ounce of ground cloves and one-quarter ounce of red pepper to each jar. Let stand for five days, shaking well every day. Then strain and bottle.

Strawberry Vinegar.

Use four pounds of sugar to one gallon of strawberries. Mash all together, add two gallons of soft water and place the mixture in a warm place to ferment.

Raspberry Vinegar.

Bruise the raspberries and add two cupfuls of vinegar to every pound of fruit. Allow the mixture to stand for one week, stirring every day. Then strain and add two cupfuls of sugar to every pint of juice. Boil the mixture for three minutes and allow it to get cold. Then bottle and seal.

Home-Made Vinegar.

3 gallons of water
3 pounds of dark brown sugar
1 slice of toasted bread
2 cakes of yeast

Boil the sugar and water together for 20 minutes and allow the syrup to stand until lukewarm. Add the bread, which has been spread with the yeast cakes, putting yeast side down. Set in a moderately warm place for four weeks, then strain and bottle.

Good Night Stories

WHY BILLY RAT HIDES HIMSELF.

One fine day as Billy Rat was traveling down the road he met Mr. Green Frog sitting on a log sunning himself.

"Good morning, Billy Rat!" croaked Mr. Green Frog. "How are you this day?"

"Just as pretty as ever," squeaked Billy Rat, brushing down his brown coat and whipping the dust from his long tail. "It seems every day that I live I grow prettier."

"Ho! Ho! Ho!" croaked Mr. Green Frog. "Now if you were the proud possessor of such a beautiful green suit as mine then you might talk of being good looking."

"Tush!" exclaimed Billy Rat, who was always ready for an argument. "I can't see that your coat is as fine as mine."

"That's because you don't care to see!" snapped Mr. Green Frog. "I bear the reputation of being the prettiest of all the meadow folk."

"Is that so!" exclaimed Billy Rat. "Just look at my big, long tail," and he switched it up in the air above his back.

Just then two little girls, all dressed up in pretty white gowns, came around the bend of the road, their hands filled with blossoms.

Billy Rat started to hide under a stone, but Mr. Green Frog called him back.

"If You're Better Looking Than I Am, Let's Prove It."

"What are you running away for?" he asked. "Why not show yourself to the little girls. If you're better looking than I am, let's prove it," and Mr. Green Frog hopped down beside Billy Rat. "First I'll hop out there in front of the children, and you can hear what they say about me—then you go. I'm quite sure we'll soon find out which of us is the better looking."

"All right!" cried Billy Rat. "You go out first."

Mr. Green Frog quickly hopped out beside the little girls and began to sing in a coarse, hoarse voice. The little girls laughed and threw their blossoms at him.

"Isn't he a beauty!" they cried.

Mr. Green Frog was delighted and hopped back to Billy Rat's side.

"See!" he croaked. "They even showered me with their flowers. Now it's your turn."

Billy Rat brushed off his suit, and switching his great, long tail in the air, he ran out beside the little girls. He'd made up his mind that he, also, would show these little ones just how sweetly he could sing, but before Billy Rat could even open his mouth the little girls gave loud shrieks and jumped up on a stump.

"Oh, that's a horrid, old, ugly rat!" they cried, holding their dresses close to their knees.

Mr. Green Frog gave a loud laugh, and Billy Rat, broken-hearted, ran away home as fast as he could go and hid his head.

From that day to this, no one has ever heard Billy Rat say anything about his looks again. That's one subject he never talks about.

The fact is, Billy Rat was so ashamed of himself that day that now he rarely comes out of his house in the daytime, only after dark or until he's quite sure there's no one around to call him "a horrid, ugly, old rat."

"Let's Ask Mother"

"What are the kid-glove fingers for?" asked Bess.

"We're preparing for our vacation," said Mother. "This one old glove was useless without a mate. The hand part and the wrist have found other uses, and now the tips of the fingers will be tied over our bottles of toilet requisities when we travel. I have tried this many times and have always come home without anything spilling or having a cork even come the least bit loose."

Writes About "A Millionaire's Chance."

Copyright, 1918, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

There is a poor woman out West whose husband has been sent to the insane asylum. This woman has five little children and has no way of supporting them. They are beautiful children, and two of them are unusually bright.

The county authorities in the city where she lives were going to send the children to the poorhouse or the orphan asylum, when quite by accident they found out that the woman's husband was the son of a millionaire, and then the county authorities began to write to the millionaire and ask some pointed questions.

The millionaire replied without a particle of hesitation that his son had married this woman and they had had these children against his advice, and he did not feel himself in the least responsible for either the woman or the children. They might do as they pleased, as far as he was concerned, and he didn't see why he should bother his head about them.

To Save Them Sorrow.

The authorities are determined to make him bother his head and there is going to be some kind of a lawsuit. I wonder how it will come out?

What do you suppose that millionaire does with his money? Doesn't he realize that there is no fun on earth like giving money away, and no pleasure in the world like bringing up a family of children and seeing them grow and develop and learn, and turn out to be useful, fine members of society?

Do you know what I would do if I were in that millionaire's place, or in any other millionaire's place?

I would ring for my private car and I would take my secretary and my wife and my valet and my accompanying friend—such as millionaires have with them wherever they go—and I would fly to the uttermost ends of the earth to get hold of those children, and I would make them love me, and I would pet them and take care of them, and I would make that poor, friendless woman feel that she has been all wrong in what she thought of her husband's family.

A Chance to Awake.

I would make her understand she was never going to be hungry, forlorn and miserable again, and I would thank Providence for giving me something to love and some one to take care of and some one to protect, and I would say my prayers night and morning for fear that something would happen to one of those children, and I wouldn't have the fun of turning a round-eyed baby into a sturdy little chap with a heart full of courage and a brain full of intelligence.

I would give the engineer an extra fee and tell him to rush my train, for fear I might be too late to save those children one more spell of crying.

I would take them into my arms and my heart and my home, and I would surround them with love and charity and kindness and generosity, and take them with me to sit at my table and make the fire burn brighter on my hearth.

And I am willing to wager that in a week's time I would wonder how I ever managed to exist when I lived my poor, lonesome, selfish, narrow little life, so selfishly and so entirely alone.

What would you do if you were this particular millionaire and had this problem to face?

What men of substance say about The Mail and Empire.

"I would take this opportunity of saying that I thoroughly appreciate the news I obtain from The Mail and Empire. The reliable telegraphic news and the absence of sensationalism appeal to me, and always have done, as I selected your paper from among the many I bought and read at random upon my first arrival in this Dominion, apart from political reasons. Of course, being British, and believing in Britain for the British, the sentiments expressed in your columns are entirely mine. I wish you all success and an ever-increasing circulation.

Three Minute Journeys

BY TEMPLE MANNING

Where an Army's Victories Depend On the Camels It Kills.

In the Sahara the camel is not only wealth and a most prolific source of comforts—its hair making their tents, its skin their water bottles and shoes, and its milk a nourishing food for rich and poor—but it is also in times of war the most valuable aid to offence and defence the Arabs possess.

So great is the dependence of the Arabs upon the camel in war time that when they fight among themselves or battle all together with a common enemy, those opposed to them measure their victories by the number of camels captured or killed.

But these camels of the warpath aren't the common camels of trade. They are selected animals that have been specially trained and—now called "mehara"—can without undue fatigue cover a hundred miles in a day.

Usually fawn-colored, with soft, intelligent eyes, pointed ears, well developed chests, slender legs bulging with muscles, and not a superfluous pound of flesh upon their greyhound-like bodies, the mehara sweep along over the sands with a pacing step that's not disagreeable to a rider. Their feet act upon the sand as snowshoes act upon snow, spreading out and preventing the animal from sinking in too deeply.

For the mehara the desert has no terrors. Over its wastes they race at top speed and among their owners there is as much interest and more betting than at our most "wide open" race tracks. When one tribe is sure their mehara are faster than those of another tribe warfare may break out.

Thus it happens that in wartime in the Sahara each party strives to kill or to capture the other's mehara. For they know that when a force is reduced to one camel for every three men, that force will retreat. Two men ride one mehara, while the third holds on to its tail and is pulled along to safety.

One Mehari Saves Three Men.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES ASHAMED TO GO OUT

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face is sadly marred by unsightly pimples, blotches, flesh worms and various other blood diseases.

Their presence is a source of embarrassment to those afflicted, as well as pain and regret to their friends.

Many a cheek and brow cast in the mold of beauty have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost and their possessor rendered unhappy for years.

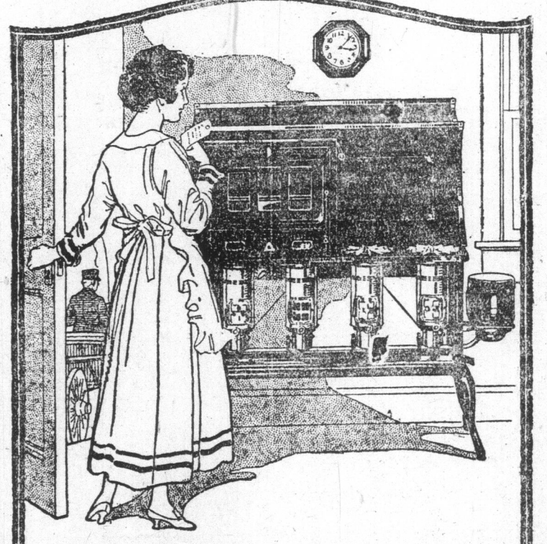

Why, then, consent to rest under this cloud of embarrassment?

There is an effectual remedy for all these defects.

It is Burdock Blood Bitters. This remedy will drive out all the impurities from the blood and leave the complexion healthy and clear.

Mrs. Katherine Henry, Port Sydney, Ont., writes: "Two years ago my face was so covered with pimples I was ashamed to go out at all. I tried several remedies, but they were of no use. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle, and by the time it was used I could see a difference. I then got two more, and when I had used them the pimples were completely gone. I can highly recommend B. B. B."

SUBMARINES "LAY" FOR DUTCH SHIPS CARRYING REPATRIATED BRITISHERS

LONDON, June 16.—The British admiralty announces that the area within five miles of where the Dutch steamship Koningen Regentes was sunk has been searched and no mines have been found. But between June 2 and 7 many new German mines were swept up in the track used by Dutch ships in repatriating British and German prisoners.

"It seems clear," says the statement of the admiralty, "that the mines were laid to catch repatriating vessels on their passage west, and that the submarine which laid them remained in the route to sink the ships on the eastern journey, if not already sunk, with British repatriated prisoners. It is remarkable that there were no German prisoners on the Koningen Regentes on this trip."

COUNTER-ATTACK BY BRITISH DRIVES BACK FOUR DIVISIONS AND RESTORES ORIGINAL LINE

Tremendous Weight of Numbers Had Penetrated Front —Italians on Left Render Invaluable Assistance — French Lines Held Firmly.

LONDON, June 16.—The Austrian troops who penetrated the line held by the British on the Italian front have been now driven back, and the British line has been completely re-established.

This announcement is made tonight in the official statement issued by the war office on the British operations in Italy, and it adds a highly encouraging chapter to the report of Saturday night which said:

"A heavy bombardment by Austrian guns opened along the entire front from the sea to the Adige at 3 o'clock Saturday morning, followed by infantry assaults throughout the day. Four Austrian divisions attacked the British forces.

"On the right the attack failed completely, the enemy losing heavily. On the left the enemy penetrated our front on a width of 2,500 yards and to a maximum depth of 1,000 yards. He has been firmly held here all day. The enemy suffered the heaviest losses."

The text of tonight's statement reads: "The pocket in the British front mentioned in the report of last night has been cleared of the enemy during the night and the early hours this morning, and we are now established on our original line.

350 Prisoners; Two Big Guns.

"Over 350 prisoners have been counted, and we have in addition captured two mountain guns and a considerable number of machine guns.

"In the early hours of yesterday, when the hostile attack was first launched, invaluable assistance both in infantry and artillery was immediately provided by the Italians on our left, and this assistance was largely responsible for bringing the Austrian infiltration to an immediate halt.

"Heavy fighting is continuing in many places along the Piave, on the eastern end of Montebello heights and astride the Brenta Valley.

"Three additional enemy airplanes were destroyed in air fighting yesterday, seven airplanes and two balloons having previously been reported. The clouds remained low and distant reconnaissances were impossible. The operations of our air service has been mainly confined to attacks on bridges for troops, which the enemy was attempting to throw across the Piave. In these attacks the aviators have been very successful."

FRENCH HOLD FIRMLY.

ROME, June 16.—(Havas agency.)—The Austrians, after a violent bombardment, attacked the French positions, but the very efficacious fire of the French broke down the thrusts of the Austrian infantry.

The enemy losses were heavy, and in addition he left numerous prisoners in the hands of the French.

The battle is in progress along the whole of the front.

WEEK-END INTERNAL AUSTRIAN SITUATION FAILED TO MATERIALIZE

Amsterdam, June 17.—The expected turn in the Austrian political situation by ministerial action over the week-end did not materialize, pending a plenary meeting of the Polish party, announced for June 21, to reconsider the Cracow resolutions, which were a virtual appeal for the independence of Poland and its separation from Austria and the Hapsburg dynasty.

It is believed, according to news advices here, that an open German-Polish breach will not ensue even should the Cracow resolutions be upheld and the situation remain undecided until such time as the parties can come to terms. Some German elements hope that the meeting on June 21 will build a bridge for an agreement. If this occurs a summer convocation of the Austrian Parliament is deemed within the range of probability.

IRISH NATIONALISTS WILL RETURN TO PARLIAMENT

DUBLIN, June 15.—By the Associated Press.—The members of the Irish Nationalist party have decided to return to Parliament the week after next.

The Irish Nationalists temporarily withdrew from attendance in Parliament as a protest against the Government's proposal to apply conscription to Ireland. Recent dispatches from Dublin indicated that the Irish party's representatives would return to the House of Commons to take part in the debate, particularly on the question of the Sinn Fein arrests. The situation that induced the Irish members to withdraw has been modified by the Government's proclamation calling for voluntary recruits in Ireland.

Amsterdam, June 17.—Emperor William has congratulated the crown prince on the recent successes gained by his troops, according to an official dispatch from Berlin.

"Under your leadership," the emperor telegraphed, "the armies of Generals von Boehm, von Below and von Hutier have severely defeated the enemy and shattered the storm of his hurriedly brought up army reserves. Eighty-five thousand prisoners and more than 1,000 guns are the outward signs of this tremendous battle success. To you and the participating commanders and troops I express my thanks and those of the fatherland.

The remains were found within a few hundred yards of where the chieftain fell at the Battle of Moraviantown. WALL STREET.

New York, June 17—Wall Street, 10:30 a.m.—War news over the week-end and indications of another huge Liberty Loan imparted some irregularity to prices at the opening of today's stock market. United States Steel yielded half a point, while Republic Iron, Baldwin Locomotive, shippings, oils and tobaccos rose large fractions to 3 points. Rails continued to be ignored, and an initial gain of 1½ points in General Motors was soon canceled. Liberty bonds were heavy.

Noon.—The market soon threw off its uncertain trend, the strength of rails and shippings affording a broader foundation. Speculative interests centred largely in specialties, however, a few of which, notably Royal Dutch Oil and General Cigars, adding very substantially to last week's gains. United States Steel overcame its early hesitancy, and other equipments and war specialties increased their advantage. Profit-taking checked the advance at noon.

MONTREAL.

Montreal, June 15.—The local market for cash oats was very firm, but domestic and local account was limited, with small business, attributed to the fact that buyers had ample supplies on hand for immediate requirements. There was no change in prices.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 96½c; extra No. 1 feed, 94½c.

Detroit, June 15.—Bears on corn and oats have recently suffered a great disappointment, for, with everything favorable for the growing crop, the price refuses to make the expected slide to a much lower level. General conditions surrounding the growing crops could scarcely be nearer perfect. A little complaint has been made in one section of the oats acreage about warm weather having done some injury, but the general outlook is so favorable that dealers are paying no attention to injury news. It is not only one of the biggest crops on record, but it is early, and this helps the chance of securing the grain in good condition. Corn planters have quit complaining.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR SGT. TICHBOURNE LARGELY ATTENDED

High Tributes Are Paid to Dead Soldier by Pastor.

An impressive memorial service was held in Talbot Street Baptist Church last evening for the late Sergt. Arthur Tichbourne, who was killed in action on May 26. The pastor, Rev. H. H. Bingham, paid a fitting tribute to the life and character of this fallen hero.

"Well do I remember," said Mr. Bingham, "the Sunday evening that this young man surrendered his life to Jesus Christ, and witnessed to the fact that it was during the reading of the Scripture lesson he was impressed that he ought to give himself to the Saviour. He was shortly afterwards baptized, and united with this church, and throughout his soldier life, I believe, continued to live a true, consistent, Christian life.

"His last letter to his mother," continued Mr. Bingham, "was written just a week before he was killed, and in it he himself paid a glowing tribute to the value of the family altar in his father's home, the strength derived from his father's prayers and consistent life, and the mighty influence of his sainted mother. These are experiences a young man can never forget or get away from."

"Religion of the Trenches" was Mr. Bingham's subject. "Turning to the subject, he said: "There are many conflicting impressions as to the religion of the trenches, but that religion is there, and much of it, no one can deny. We do an injustice to the soldiers to call them saints. All heroes are not saints. It may be flattering, but it is false to tell the soldier his patriotism will be his passport to paradise, and that his reward be heaven. No one knows better than the soldier that he cannot make his own atonement. Merit in death does not atone for sin. It is not the death, but a man's attitude toward God in life and death that saves. There is no doubt many soldier lads trust in God far more than they are able to express.

"These men are catching a fresh vision, many of them, of the meaning of the cross of Christ. Before they went to France God seemed to many as some vague, infinite being in a far-off heaven, unconcerned about the sorrows and struggles of men, but at the front thousands have caught a new vision of God. They see the glory of God shining in the face of Christ. They see that it was God in Christ suffering for them and bearing their sins, entering into their struggles, sorrowing with them, and so any message that speaks of a crucified Christ unfolding God to men will always be listened to by soldiers.

"There are no hypocrites in the trenches," said the speaker. "The stern life of battle and struggle is not conducive to making hypocrites. A soldier is usually out and out a believer or an unbeliever. His faith, too, is simple, majestic and compelling. He may have little regard for forms or rituals. He may pay no attention to religious phraseology, but if a Christian he knows something of the comradeship of Christ, and he knows he needs the constant friendship and fellowship of Christ to keep him steadfast, for the hardest work for the soldiers is not to hold the trenches, but to retain their ideals and spiritual outlook, to keep their vision amid the sodden and sickening scenes of war. The cross of Christ has revealed to these men the great source of forgiveness, strength, peace and comradeship. It is no wonder," said Mr. Bingham, "the most popular hymn at the front is 'When I Survey the Wondrous Cross.'"

The Elgar Ladies' Quartet sang two very appropriate selections during the service.

HIGH TRIBUTES PAID TO SGT. GORDON WILEY

At a memorial service held in Askin Street Methodist Church Sunday evening a striking tribute was paid by Dr. H. S. Dougall to the memory of Sergt. Gordon Wiley of No. 3 Stationary Hospital, who died of wounds received when enemy airmen bombed the hospital on May 28. Sergt. Wiley was a member of the church, and prior to enlisting also attended the Askin Street Sunday school.

During the service Dr. Dougall pointed out to the congregation the loss which the church had received in the death of Sergt. Wiley, a soldier of true, moral strength.

"He left Canada early in the war," said the pastor, "feeling the call of duty. He spent almost three years overseas, yet never expressed the desire to come home. In a recent letter to his mother Sergt. Wiley remarked that as long as he was able he should be in the fight. It is such sons that uphold our cause in France."

The pastor quoted extracts from letters written by Sergt. Wiley, which served to bring out the good qualities of the young hero.

The subject taken by Dr. Dougall Sunday evening was "Guardian Angels."

QUERIES REGARDING MILITARY SERVICE

Send in Your Problems and They Will Be Answered From Official Information by The Advertiser.

B. E. R.: Q.—1. Will a person who is in the United States have to come back and register June 22, or can he register whenever he returns?

2. Could a person obtain a registration card from the registration booths to take home to fill out for a person who is not able to attend, and cannot read or write?

3. Which would be the proper way to appeal an exemption granted to a B man until November. Apply now, or wait till the time is up and then ask for an extension?

4. Would a man who obtained exemption last fall while working a 100-acre homestead, and also had 50 acres rented, need to notify the registrar that he has since purchased the 50 acres? He now has no interest in the 100-acre farm which he was working at the time he was exempted.

A.—1. He can register before he leaves, or after he returns. In the latter case the booths would have been closed and he would then need to go to the postoffice.

2. No; if the registrar is notified prior to June 22, efforts will be made to send a deputy to the home and register such a person.

3. Better appeal within the ten days allowed you, if you are not satisfied with the decision. You can also apply for an extension before the expiration of your exemption, if you wish.

4. He must notify the registrar of any change in his address, but as long as he is still employed as a farmer he has not changed his occupation, and need not notify the registrar of it.

FLOWER SUNDAY IN LONDON CHURCHES HELD YESTERDAY

Special Services Conducted to Mark Day.

Children, flowers, singing birds and bright music had a conspicuous place in the services in several of the Methodist and one of the Anglican churches of the city yesterday. It was the annual Flower Sunday at the time of year when Mother Nature offers a wealth of flowers for decoration purposes, and has spilled over the fields with lavish hand the golden-hearted Marguerites. The First Methodist Church was, as always on Flower Day, a veritable summer bower. The white-petaled, yellow-centred dairies garlanded the pillars of the gallery, the choir loft and pupit step rails, and palms, peonies, hanging baskets and flower-festooned bird cages, in which canaries chirruped, added to the charming effect.

The children of the Sunday school occupied the gallery, even the smallest tots following the service with decorum and evident interest.

Rev. W. R. McIntosh of King Street Presbyterian Church, at the morning service, told the story of "Acres of Diamonds." In the afternoon a mass meeting of the Sunday school was held in the church, when Dr. Dearness of the Normal School gave an address on "The Message of the Flowers."

Members of the beginners' and primary departments gave most pleasing songs, and enjoyable music was contributed by the Sunday school orchestra under the direction of Miss Florence Eggleston. All collections for the day were for Sunday school purposes.

Little Children Received.

An interesting feature of the Flower Day service in the Memorial Methodist Church was the reception of wee tots of the cradle roll into the primary department, tiny boys and girls of 4 years old. Members of the primary department held open on the platform a flower-garlanded gate, through which the smaller children passed after demurely marching up the aisle, the ceremony symbolizing their entrance into the church school.

Much interest was manifested by the juniors of the congregation, as well as the grown-ups, in the story of "The Blue Flower" (Van Dyke), admirably told by the pastor, Rev. B. H. Robinson, M.A.

Flower Sunday was observed in the Dundas Centre Methodist Church by song services both morning and evening by the Sunday school, choir and orchestra, the pastor, Rev. W. E. Pescott, giving a short, appropriate address at each service. Under the direction of Mrs. Jas. Haskett, the church had been artistically adorned with festoons of daisies and smilax, clusters of peonies, hanging baskets and cages of singing birds. Twelve little girls in white frocks, with wreaths of daisies in their hair, occupied the front row in the choir, themselves as winsome as the flowers.

St. George's Church.

The children's choir, trained by Mr. Humphreys, was a feature worthy of special praise in connection with the children's flower service in St. George's Church, West London. The canticles were chanted and the hymns sung with a precision that would have done much credit to a trained choir of adults. Flowers in profusion brightened the church, and these suggested the text of the morning sermon of the rector, Rev. G. B. Sage. "The flowers appear on the earth, the time of the singing of birds is come."

Large congregations were present at both morning and evening services.

A Flower Day service was held in the First Congregational Church.

At Hyatt Avenue.

Flower day services in Hyatt Avenue Methodist Church held yesterday morning and afternoon were largely attended. The church was decorated with flowers, while cages of singing birds added to the summertide atmosphere of the occasion. In the morning, Rev. E. S. Rowell gave a most interesting illustrated address on the nature of sin and the method of its cure by cleansing through Jesus Christ. In the afternoon, Rev. S. Anderson gave an address which was much enjoyed by young and old. C. P. Myrick, superintendent of the Sunday school, presided. In the evening, the pastor preached to the Epworth League on "The Open Window."

TAG DAY NETS $750 FOR CHILD'S WELFARE WORK

When all the returns are in it is confidently expected that in the neighborhood of $750 will be realized from the Child Welfare tag day held on Saturday. With the $100 promised by the president of the London Child Welfare Association, Sir George Gibbons, this will give $850 towards the $900 required to engage for one year a welfare nurse, considered indispensable to the effective carrying on of the work. Much credit for the success of tag day is due to the acting convener, Mrs. John Gemmell, and Miss Rudd, convener of the publicity committee. The mothers' clubs rendered fine service, looking after their own districts, and much appreciated help was given by the W. C. T. U. Mrs. A. T. Edwards took charge of the downtown district. Mrs. F. R. Hardie proved a most valuable aid to Mrs. Gemmell in organizing for tag day.

A meeting of the London Child Welfare Association is being held this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. building, and all interested in the campaign to save London babies and give them all possible chance to grow up to healthy, vigorous citizenship are cordially invited to attend. Plans for the immediate future and particularly for the summer season, will be made at this meeting.

PATRICIA

"THE BELGIAN."

"The Belgian," produced by the eminent director, Mr. Sidney Olcott, and released by the United States Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, marks the first independent effort of the producer, for he financed and directed the picture himself. "The Belgian" is the first of a series of productions Mr. Olcott will make this year.

"The Belgian" was made under Mr. Olcott's personal supervision and encompasses his years of experience with big attractions staged in various parts of the world for many of the most important of producing organizations. The picture has been indorsed by the Belgian diplomatic staffs in New York and Washington, as well as the entire Allied ambassadorial staff in the United States. The story is steeped in the patriotic spirit of Belgium, and touches notes of sympathy as only the deft combination of masters like Frederick Arnold Kummer, the author, and Mr. Olcott can achieve with artistic realism.

Valentine Grant and Walker Whiteside, famed both from their accomplishments on the stage and screen, portray leading roles. The other members of the cast, including Arda La Croix, Sally Crute, Giorgia Majeroni and others, are all highly capable and support their scenes to the full extent of the requirements of the scenario.

At the Patricia today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

11-CENT AVERAGE

Eleven cents was the average saving of the school children of London in the Penny Bank during March and April. The highest average was at Egerton Street School, where each pupil deposited 22 cents. Ryerson was next, with 21, and Alexandra 20. St. George, with 7 cents, was the lowest, and Empress, a close second, with 8.

London is slipping considerably below the rest of Canada. Of the large cities, London is far the lowest. Little Blenheim was her equal. St. Thomas was one cent below. Hanover and Harriston were 7 and 6 cents respectively.

Cornwall School Section leads, with an average of 70 cents, with New Toronto next, at 62 cents.

The total deposits for March were $36,645, and April, $33,424. The increase over last year is about $2,000.
