THE IRISH SITUATION.

A new era of Fenian scares seems to have been inaugurated in England. The latest rumour is that a number of men have been detailed to destroy public buildings in various cities.

Outrages like that perpetrated in Liverpool are calculated to do immeasurable injury to any cause. It is noted as a curious fact that during the recent distinguish is self and the is in the desage of subdued hope, on a discontinuous fact that during the recent distinguish is the standard in the search of subdued hope, on a discontinuous fact that during the recent distinguish is safety and the search of subdued hope, on a discontinuous fact that during the recent distinguish is safety and the search of subdued hope, on a discontinuous fact that during the recent distinguish itself which cannot distinguish itself unless the leading men opposed to it are ill. CORRECT PHASES OF THE CASE.

A London correspondent writing to New York says: Mr.

Were pouring molten iron into moulds when they discovered a mould when they discovered a mould that had apparently been tampered with. They were just ready to raise the ladle and fill this particular mould, when they decided to make a closer examination. This they did by scraping away the sand from the inside of the mould. This process revealed a paper bag, which contained about two pounds of gunpowder. This hellish plot is believed to have been got up by a number of malecontents who are now on a strike.
