LUNATIC TAKES CHARGE OF BOIESTOWN STATION

Takes Possession of the Station House at Boiestown, Tears up Rails and Demolishes Things Generally—Newcastle Jail.

A lunatic named Palmer, becoming violent, attacked H. H. Woods, station agent at Boiestown Saturday night, drove him away and proceeded to damage the building with an axe.

He smashed windows, even beating out the sashes, broke up the furniture in the office, destroyed the semaphores, venting his insane wrath upon all the lights in and about the station. Then he proceeded to tear up a portion of the rails and to pile obstructions on the track.

While the madman was engaged tearing up the track, the station agent H. H. Woods, returned to the station, and, finding that the telegraph apparatus had escaped the fury of the lunatic, wired to Newcastle, giving an account of the trouble and asking the despatcher here to notify the conductor of the train.

Mr. Tozer, the station agent at Newcastle, managed to get in communication with the train at Doaktown, the next station above Boiestown, and what might have been a serious accident was averted.

The train kept on its way to Boiestown, but stepped a short distance from the station, and the train crew sallied forth to look for the lunatic. They found him still busily engaged at his work of destruction, and closed in upon him. The man put up a terrific fight, and some of the train men were badly scratched and torn before they succeeded in capturing him.

As the madman had torn out a section of the track, it was found necessary to summon a wrecking train from Newcastle to repair the damage done, and it was about three hours before the train was able to proceed to Chatham.

Conductor Logan was in charge of the train, which carried quite a number of passengers.

Palmer was at one time an inmate of the Provincial Hospital but had been discharged from that institution not long ago. It was thought he had been cured, but on Friday night he became violent and on Saturday proceeded to destroy things as detailed above.

The man was brought to Newcastle last night and is now in the County jail. He was in charge of I. C. R. policeman Jones and Savoy. The unfortunate man will be taken to St. John tomorrow.

W. M. AITKEN OFFERED BRITISH CANDIDACY

Montreal, Nov. 11.—A special cable from London says—“Mr. W. M. Aitken, Montreal, has been offered the Unionist candidacy in North Cumberland in the British Parliament and there are good reasons for believing that he will accept. Mr. Aitken is acting under the guidance of Mr. Bonar Law. The North Cumberland constituency is now represented by the Hon. Geoffrey Howard, a Liberal, and the son of Earle Carlisle. His majority in 1908 was 237 in a vote of 8,700. In 1910 Mr. Howard's majority was 34. The only occasion since 1885 when the seat had been carried by a Unionist, was in 1800, when the Unionist candidate carried the seat by 700 majority. In all other elections the Liberals have won.”

Mr. W. M. Aitken, one of the cleverest and most successful business men in Canada has ever produced, is a native of Newcastle, son of Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Aitken. He is now a leading financier of Montreal, and should be decided to turn his attention to politics will doubtless make a success of that business. Newcastle is proud of her son.

Concerning Mr. Aitken the Montreal Star of the 11th inst has the following:

“For some time past it has been rumored that Mr. Aitken would make his home in London, and the report that he will likely seek a seat in the British Commons practically confirms this.”

“This news will come as a great surprise to many except his friends, who always expect the unexpected from Mr. Aitken, who has had a wonderful career in the financial world, and as a result of his merger proclivities, made himself a millionaire at the age of 30.”

“By many he is regarded as a financial genius, and the ablest young man in the Canadian financial world has been in many years.”

“Mr. W. M. Aitken came to Montreal about three years ago from Halifax, N. S., where for a few years he had been engaged in financial operations of a successful character.

“He was born at Newcastle, N. B., where his father is a retired Presbyterian minister.

“For a young man—he is slightly over thirty—he has made a remarkable success of his financial operations. He was satisfied with a good school education and got into business as quickly as he could. He went to Halifax, and started in the insurance business. He did not remain long in that line, however, as managing financial deals proved a stronger attraction.

“He was successful in the deal which brought about the amalgamation of the Commercial Bank of Windsor with the late Union Bank of Halifax, and later was associated with the late John F. Stairs of Halifax, then president of the Nova Scotia Steel Co., in re-adjusting the finance of that company.

“Mr. Stairs, up to the time of his death, proved a strong ally of the budding financier and there was a strong friendship between them.

“One success followed another, the creation of the Royal Securities Corporation being the most important, and in the name of that organization, all the business of Mr. Aitken is now carried on.

“He has taken a prominent part in the organization of such industries as the Porto Rico Railway, the Western Canada Power Co., The Canada Cement Co., and the Steel Company of Canada, and has recently been concerned with the re-organization of Price Bros., the big lumber concern.

“Mr. Aitken married a daughter of Brigadier-General Drury of Halifax.

“In Canadian politics, Mr. Aitken is known as a Conservative, though he never played a prominent part in public affairs. It is supposed by his friends here that if he runs for a seat in the British House, he will do so as a member of the Conservative Party.”

SAY RECIPROCITY SPELLS RUIN TO CAPE BRETON MINES

Public Meeting at Sydney Last Week Feared That American Coal Operators Invasion Would Loosen Their Grip on the Canadian Consumer.

Sydney, Nov. 10.—Cape Breton tonight protested emphatically against reciprocity in coal with the United States, when at a large public meeting held in the Sydney Lyceum, under the auspices of the Country Club, resolutions, expressing the opinion that the removal of the coal duties would be ruinous to this county, were unanimously adopted.

Mayor Gunn of Sydney presided at the meeting, and addresses were delivered by the wardens of Cape Breton county and the mayors of five other Cape Breton towns. M. J. Butler, general manager of the Dominion Coal Company, represented the coal operators, and a delegation comprising representatives of the lodges of the Provincial Association was present to support the movement.

There was a thorough unanimity of opinion. All the speakers agreed that the present time was a crisis in the affairs of Cape Breton, and that with American coal making the inroads into the Canadian markets, that it is now doing, it would be nothing short of the ruin of Nova Scotia if the protection of the federal tariff was removed.

would be nothing short of a national calamity,” said Ex-Mayor Crowe, of Sydney, in speaking to the resolution, and this was the general keynote of the meeting.

Nearly all of the speakers touched on the conditions prevailing when reciprocity was in force with the United States in 1885 and showed how they had now changed. “In those days,” said Mayor Kelly, of North Sydney, “Cape Breton supplied most of the New England market, for the American mines and systems of transportation were not developed. Now American producers can not only take care of their own markets, but are selling a million tons of coal in Italy each year taking it right past the doors of Britain and other European coal-producing centres. If the Americans can undersell European prices in their own markets, what will they do to Canadian operators if the tariff barrier, which alone keep them out of our markets now are removed.”

THE MATERIALS USED IN “THE D. & L.” EMULSION are the finest the market affords, regardless of expense. In cases of wasting diseases, loss of weight, or loss of appetite, it is taken with great benefit.

CANADA'S NET DEBT IS $336,268,546

Ottawa, Nov. 10.—According to the public accounts volume published today the funded debt of Canada payable in London was $2,900,902 pounds at the end of the last fiscal year. The net debt of the Dominion was $336,268,546, an increase of $12,338,267. Accounts show consolidated fund receipts of $101,503,710; expenditure $79,411,574, leaving a surplus on this account of $22,091,963. In addition to this, however, there was a total capital or special expenditure of $35,971,911, of which $19,968,064 was on the National Transcontinental Railway, and $2,414,171 on bounties.

ONTARIO MAYOR DISQUALIFIED FOR SELLING TO HIS CITY

Perth, Ont., Nov. 8.—Dr. J. S. McAllum, mayor of Smith's Falls, has been declared disqualified and unseated by a decision of the county judge here. Dr. McAllum in 1909 purchased from M. Ryan of Smith's Falls, 400 bags of cement which he proposed to use in construction of a business block, but plans for the building fell through. Last June Dr. McAllum, as head of the corporation, executed an agreement with a Belleville firm for construction of granolithic walks and subsequently it was alleged offered his cement to the contractors, who accepted the offer. This, it was held, was a violation of the municipal act and an application for the mayor's disqualification and unseating followed. Dr. McAllum was ordered to pay all costs.

IS MRS. CRIPPEN STILL ALIVE?

Alix, Alta., Nov. 12.—Great excitement has been caused here by a report that a woman who arrived in town on Wednesday is none other than Belle Ellmore, Dr. Crippen's wife. The report started from the fact that the woman fainting when Crippen's name was mentioned in her presence, and again fainting when she read in a newspaper that Crippen had been sentenced to hang.

The woman answers in some degree to the portraits of the missing woman. It is said here that the police are watching her movements.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'GUTCHEON

"One moment, please. Rasula knows that I came out here to represent Sir John Brodney. He knows how I am regarded in London. He is jealous because I have not listened to his chatter. I am not responsible for the probable delay in settling the estate. If you are not very careful you will ruin every hope for success that you may have had in the beginning. The crown will take it out of your hands. You've got to show yourselves worthy of handling the affairs of this company. You can't do it if you listen to such carrion as Von Blitz and Rasula. Oh, I'm not afraid of you! I know that you have written to Sir John, Rasula, asking that I be recalled. He won't recall me, rest assured, unless he throws up the case. I have his own letters to prove that he is satisfied with my work out here. I am satisfied that there are enough fair minded men in this crowd to protect me. They will stand by me in the end. I call upon!"

But a low of dissent from the throng brought him up sharply. His face went white, and for a moment he feared the malevolence that stared at him from all sides. He looked frequently in the direction of the distant chateau. Knives shined from many ashes. Von Blitz was screaming with insane laughter, pointing his finger at the discredited American. While they shouted and cursed, his gaze never left the chateau in the hills. He did not attempt to cry them down. The effort would have been in vain. Suddenly a wild, happy light came into his anxious, searching eyes. He gave a mighty shout and raised his hands, commanding silence.

Selma, clinging to his side, also had seen the skyrocket which arose from the chateau and dropped almost instantly into the wall of trees. There was something in the face and voice of the American that quelled the riotous disorder. "You fool!" he shouted. "Take warning! I have told you that I would not turn the guns of England and America against you unless you turned against me. I am your friend, but by the great Mohammed you'll pay for my life with every one of your own if you resort to violence. Listen! Today I learned that my life was threatened. I sent a message in the air to the nearest battleship. There is not an hour in the day or night that I or the people in the chateau cannot call upon our governments for help. My call today has been answered, as I knew it would be. There is always a warship near at hand, my friends. It is for you to say whether a storm of shot and shell!" Von Blitz leaped upon a platform and shouted madly: "Fools! Don't believe him! He cannot bring der ships here! He lies, he lies!" At that moment a shrill clamor of voices arose in the distance, the cries of women and children. Chase's heart gave a great bound of joy. He knew what it meant. Chase pointed his finger at Von Blitz and shouted: "Can't, eh? There's a British warship standing off the harbor now, and her guns are trained!" But he did not complete the astounding, stupefying sentence. The women were screaming: "The warship, the warship! Fly, fly!"

In a second the entire assemblage was racing furiously, doubtfully, yet fearfully, toward the pier. Von Blitz and Rasula shouted in vain. They were left with Chase, who smiled triumphantly upon their ghastly faces.

"Gentlemen, they are not deceived. There is a warship out there. You came near to showing your hand to-night. Now come along with me, and I'll show my hand to you. Rasula, you'd better draw in your claws. You're entitled to some consideration. But Von Blitz! Jacob, you are standing on very thin ice. I can have you shot tomorrow morning."

Von Blitz sputtered and snarled. "It is all a lie! It is a trick!" He would have drawn his revolver had not Rasula grasped his arm. The native lawyer dragged him off toward the pier, half doubting his own senses.

Just outside the harbor, plainly distinguishable in the moonlight, lay a great cruiser, her searchlights whipping the sky and sea with long white lashes. The gaping, awestruck crowd in the street parted to let Chase pass through on his way to the bungalow. His manner was that of a mediæval conqueror. He looked neither to right nor to left.

"It's more like a Christian Endeavor meeting than it was ten minute ago," he was saying to himself, all the time wondering when some reckless unbeliever would hurt a knife at his back. He gravely winked his eye in the direction of the chateau. "Good old Britt!" he muttered in his exultation.

CHAPTER XII

THE LANTERN ABOVE.

CHASE sat for hours on his porch that night gazing down upon the chateau. Lights gleamed in a hundred of its windows. The bitterness of his own isolation, the ostracism that circumstance had forced upon him, would have had maddening on this night had not all rancor been tempered by the glorious achievement in the market place. He wondered if the princess knew what he had dared and what he had accomplished in the early hours of the night. He wondered if they had pointed out his solitary light to her—if now and then she bestowed a casual glance upon that twinkling star of his. The porch lantern long almost directly above his head.

The chateau was indeed the home of revelry. The pent up, struggling spirits of those who had dwelt therein for months in solitude arose in the wild stampede for freedom. All petty differences between Lady Deppingham and Drusilla Browne, and they were quite common now, were forgotten in the whirlwind of relief that came with the strangers from the yacht. Mrs. Browne's good looking, eager husband revolved in prospect of this delicious night, this almost Arabian night. He was swept off his feet by the radiant princess, the Scheherazade of his boyhood dreams. His blithe heart thumped as it had not done since he was a boy. The Duchess of N. and the handsome Marchioness of B. came into his tired, hungry life at a moment when it most needed the light. It was he who fairly dragged Lady Agnes aside and proposed the banquet, the company, the hanging garden for rest and the last refreshment.

Late in the night, long after the dinner and the dance, the tired but happy company fled to the picturesque hanging garden for rest and the last refreshment. The hanging garden was a wonderfully constructed open air pleasure suspended between the chateau itself and the great cliff in whose shadow it stood. The cliff towered at least 300 feet above the roof of the spreading chateau, a veritable stone wall that extended for a mile or more in either direction.

Near the chateau there was a real waterfall, reminding one in no small sense of the misty veils at Lauterbrunnen or Giesbach. The swift stream which obtained life from these falls, big and little, ran along the base of the cliff for some distance and was then diverted by means of a deep, artificial channel into an almost complete circuit of the chateau, forming the most beautiful picture of a stream. It sped along at the foot of the upper terrace, a wide torrent that washed between solid walls of masonry, which rose to a height of not less than ten feet on either side. There were two drawbridges, seldom used, but always practicable. A small stationary bridge crossed the vicious stream immediately below the hanging garden and led to the ladders by which one ascended to the caverns that ran far back into the mountain.

Two big black irregular holes in the face of the cliff marked the entrance to these deep, rambling caves, wonderful caverns wrought by the convulsions of the dead volcano, cracks made by these splintering earthquakes when the island was new.

The garden hung high between the building and the cliff, swung by a score of great steel cables. These cables were riveted soundly in the solid rock of the cliff at one end and fastened as safely to the stone walls of the chateau at the other. It swung stanchly from its moorings with the constancy of a suspension bridge and trembled at the slightest touch.

It was at least a hundred feet square. The floor was covered with a foot or more of soil, in which the rich grass and plants the tropics furnished. Cool fountains sprayed the air at either end of the green inclosure. The illusion was complete.

The walls surrounding the garden were three feet high and were intended to represent the typical English garden wall of brick. To gain access to the hanging garden one crossed a narrow bridge which led from the second balcony of the chateau. There was not an hour in the day when protection from the sun could not be found in this little paradise.

Bobby Browne was holding forth with his usual exuberance on the magnificence of the British navy. "There she is now, sleeping off there in the harbor, a great big thing with the kindest of hearts inside of those steel ribs—her majesty's ship the King's Own! Think of it! She conveys a private yacht, she stops off at this beautiful island to catch her breath and to see that all are safe, then she charges off into the horizon like a bird that has no home. May I offer you a cigarette, princess? By the way, I wonder how Chase came off with his side this morning."

"Saunders tells me that he was near to being butchered, but luck was with him," said Deppingham. "His ship came home."

"It was a daring trick. I'm glad he pulled it off. He's a man that fellow is," said Browne. "See, princess, away up there in the mountain is his home. There's a light. See it? He keeps rather late hours, you see."

"Tell me about him," said the princess suddenly. She stepped and walked to the vine covered wall, followed by Bobby Browne.

"I don't know much to tell you," said he. "He's made an enemy or two, and they are trying to drive him out. We've asked him down here just because we can't bear to think of a fellow creature wasting his days in utter loneliness, but he has so far declined with thanks. The islanders are beginning to hate him. They distrust him, Britt says. Of course you know why we are here. You—"

"Every one knows, Mr. Browne. You are the most interesting quartet in the world just now. Every one is wondering how it is going to end. What a pity you can't marry Lady Agnes!"

"Oh, I say!" protested Browne. She laughed merrily. "But how dull it must be for Mr. Chase! Does he complain?"

"I don't know," said she. "Britt—that's my lawyer—Britt says he's never heard a murmur from him. He takes his medicine with a smile. I like that sort of fellow, and I wish he'd be a little more friendly."

"He has learned to know and keep his plate," said she coolly. "Perhaps she was thinking of his last night in the palace garden. Away up there in the darkness gleamed his single, lonely, pathetic little light. 'Isn't it rather odd, Mr. Browne, that his light should be burning at 2 o'clock in the morning? Is it his custom to sit up?'"

"I've never noticed it before, now you speak of it. I hope nothing serious has happened to him. He may have been injured in— I say, if you don't mind, I'll ask some one to telephone up to his place."

"Yes, do telephone," she broke in. "I am sure Lady Deppingham will approve. No, thank you. I will stand here awhile. It is cool, and I love the stars. Five minutes later he reappeared to her, accompanied by Lady Agnes. She was still looking at the stars.

"Lady Deppingham called him up," said Bobby. "He answered in person," said her ladyship. "He seemed strangely agitated for a moment or two, Geneva, and then he laughed—yes, laughed in my face, although it was such a long way off. I asked him if he was ill or had been hurt. He said he never felt better in his life and hadn't a scratch. He laughed—I suppose to show me that he was all right. Then he asked me to thank you for bringing a warship. You saved his life. Really one would think you were quite a heroine or a goddess or something like that. I never heard anything sweeter than the way he said good night to me. There!"

The light in the bungalow bobbed mysteriously for an instant and then went out. "How far is it from here?" asked the princess abruptly. "Nearly two miles as the crow flies, only there are no crows here. Five miles by the road, I fancy. Isn't it, Bobby? I call him Bobby, you know, when we are all on good terms. I don't see why I shouldn't if you stop to think how near to being married to each other we are at this instant."

"I wonder if help could reach him quickly in the event of an attack." "It could if he'd have the kindness to notify us by phone," said Browne. "But he won't telephone to us," said Lady Deppingham resolutely. "He's not so communicative as that." "Surely he would call upon you for help if he—"

The princess smiled in a vague sort of way. "I've met him quite informally, if you remember."

"I should say it was informally. It's the most delicious story I've ever heard. You must tell it to Mr. Browne, dear. It's all about the enemy in Thorberg, Mr. Browne. There's your wife calling, Bobby. She wants you to tell that story again about the bishop who rang the doorbell."

The next morning the captain of the King's Own came ashore and was taken to the chateau for déjeuner. Late in the afternoon the marquis and his party, saying farewell to the princess and the revived legation, put out to the yacht and steamed away in the wake of the great warship. The yacht was to return in a month to pick up the princess.

Geneva, her maids, her men and her boxes, her poodle and her dachshund were left behind for the month of March—not without misgiving, it must be said, for the marquis, her uncle, was not disposed to look upon the island situation as a spot of long continued peace.

"You won't be able to get help as cleverly and as timely as that American chap got it last night," protested the marquis. "Warships don't browse around like gulls, you know. Karl will never forgive me if I leave you here." "Karl is of a very forgiving nature, uncle, dear," said Geneva sweetly. "He forgave you for defending Mr.

"I hope no harm comes to you here in this beautiful place!"

Chase, because you are such a nice Englishman. I've induced him to forgive Mr. Chase because he's such a nice American—although Mr. Chase doesn't seem to know it—and I'm quite sure Karl would shake his hand if he should come upon him anywhere. Leave Karl to me, uncle."

And so they sailed away without her, just as she had intended from the beginning. Lord Deppingham stood beside her on the pier as the shore party waved its adieus to the yacht.

"By Jove, Geneva, I hope no harm comes to you here in this beautiful place!" said he, a look of anxiety in his honest eyes. "There goes our salvation if any rumpus should come up. We can't call 'em out of the sky as Chase did last night. Lucky beggar! That fellow Chase is slipping, by Jove!"

That's what he is. I wish he'd open up his heart a bit and ask us into that devilish American bar of his."

"I've never noticed it before, now you speak of it. I hope nothing serious has happened to him. He may have been injured in— I say, if you don't mind, I'll ask some one to telephone up to his place."

"Yes, do telephone," she broke in. "I am sure Lady Deppingham will approve. No, thank you. I will stand here awhile. It is cool, and I love the stars. Five minutes later he reappeared to her, accompanied by Lady Agnes. She was still looking at the stars.

"You don't know him, Geneva."

It is wide, long, and deep. It has the coal capacity that makes cooking easy all over the top—and for heating the oven so that a large joint roasts perfectly at the same time. More, it saves fuel and reduces coal bills. You'll never have to sacrifice your baking for your cooking on top with this reliable fire box. The best results are always certain.

There are a great many more exclusive points of merit in a Kootenay that you must see to thoroughly understand. The nearest McClary agent will gladly go over them with you, one by one. Before you decide on any range, write the nearest McClary branch for full particulars. It will cost only a cent for information that means money in your pocket.

Does Not Stimulate

Ayer's Sarsaparilla does not stimulate. It does not make you feel better one day, then as bad as ever the next. It is not a strong drink. No reaction after you stop using it. There is not a drop of alcohol in it. You have the steady, even gain that comes from a strong tonic and alterative. We wish you would ask your doctor about this. He knows. Trust him. Do as he says. What are Ayer's Pills? Liver Pills. How long have they been sold? Nearly sixty years. Do doctors recommend them? Ask your own doctor and find out.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the New Brunswick Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis will be held in the Board of Trade Rooms, St. John, on Tuesday, November 15th at 8 o'clock, P. M. The program will be announced in a few days and will comprise addresses by prominent men in the Provinces and the annual report of the Association.

POST OFFICE BOXES

One hundred and seventy-five small post office boxes have arrived and have been installed, which relieves the work at the wickets very much. The Graphic would suggest that Chief Huggis place an officer on duty at the office between 6 and 8 and instruct him to make all keep in line and take their turn. It is not very convenient for ladies who come to the office to be obliged to stand around until the crush is over before they can get their mail. At present it is a case of the stronger having advantage over the weak. All should be made to stand in line and take their proper turn.

A YEAR'S PROGRESS IN

THE CEMENT INDUSTRY

The current issue of "Construction" contains an editorial review of the operations of the Canadian cement interests for the past year, expressing gratification that the formation of the merger has not led to any undue advance in cement prices.

"As long," concludes "Construction," as the cement interests continue to develop the industry along these lines, as long as they continue to be constructive, they are deserving of the good will and support of the Canadian building public. Constructional development and improvement is, and will continue to be, in Canada for some years hence, one of the greatest factors in our growth. Cement has become as indispensable in structural work of every character and type, as are the hands of the laborer who does the work, and an ambitious country will never tolerate a monopoly in a material so universally used in both public work and private enterprise."

LOBSTER REGULATIONS

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Nov. 5. A meeting of representative lobster packers and fishermen on Thursday protested against the new regulations requiring more space between the latins of the traps and larger meshes for head nets. They declared the enforcement of regulations means the ruin of the industry, as the factories would have to close down. They recommended shortening the season as the best way of preserving the fishing. A resolution to that effect passed, also another that pending consideration of their request, the Government suspend the new regulations for one year.

"I do not believe there is any other medicine so good for whooping cough as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. Francis Turpin, Junction City, Ore. This remedy is also unsurpassed for colds and croup. For sale by all dealers.

THE VOICE FROM THE SOIL.

The following timely Article is abridged from George Fisher Chipman's excellent contribution under above heading in the current "Canadian Magazine," and we earnestly commend it to the attention of our farmer readers and of all others as well as an instance of what can be accomplished by any class of workers when they decide to stand shoulder to shoulder against all sorts of monopoly, inequality and oppression daily dealt out to the disinherited, disorganized and weak of the earth:

Referring to the Grain Growers' Associations, founded in Saskatchewan in 1901 by W. R. Motherwell, now provincial minister of Agriculture, and Peter Dayman, Manitoba a few months later by J. W. Scallion; and later in Alberta, Mr. Chipman says that "Today there are approximately 28,000 farmers arrayed under the banner of 'Equal rights to all and special privileges to none.' The leaders are chosen and the campaign is on."

In the early days, the article proceeds, the farmers went west to find freedom and prosperity but were held up, instead, by the railroads and the Elevator companies who shipped them of everything but a bare pittance. Then came the federal Manitoba Grain Act which placed the grain trade of the West under federal supervision and jurisdiction. The new law said that the farmer should be allowed to ship in car lots instead of using elevators. But the railways distributed cars to suit themselves, not the farmers, and the latter were still at the mercy of the corporations.

Then Messrs. Motherwell and Dayman did some thinking, and the great Farmers' Union was born in Saskatchewan in 1901, and a railway agent was fined $50 for not supplying cars accordance with the Manitoba Grain Act, the Supreme Court confirming the fine. Improvement in western conditions dates from this fine. Alberta farmers, among whom was a branch of the American Society of Equity fell into line after Manitoba, and a united front was shown the robber corporations. "The farmers of the prairie have awakened to the fact that if conditions are to be altered so that EVERY CANADIAN WILL HAVE AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY, the initiative must be taken by the men who produce the wealth of the nation. They realize that in order to have any influence in the Councils of the nation they must have numerical strength and unity."

"Though the farmers started out on their work as a protest against the unjust exactions of the elevator combine, they have attacked monopoly wherever they have found it. They have learned through bitter experience that the farmers of Canada are supporting combines and monopolies in all directions and that the wealth produced by the tillers of the soil is being gathered in by a comparatively small number of men at the heads of great enterprises. Under a protective tariff, they have watched manufacturers create combines and take from the farmer heavy toll on all that he buys. Under favorable legislation, they have seen the railways go in and possess the land which Nature intended for the farmer, and THROUGH THE BANKING MONOPOLIES THEY HAVE SEEN THE READY MONEY OF THE NATION TURNED INTO THE HANDS OF A FEW. The farmers have realized that the land speculator is no friend of theirs, and as the work goes on they are putting themselves into a position from which they can demand justice from all quarters.

"The work is not yet done. There are still scores of abuses to be re-med. The farmers want to see the principle of the Initiative, the Referendum, and the Recall established as a part of the constitution of every Canadian legislature. Then they feel they will have an opportunity to see that the legislators who now sit in the halls of parliament will represent the people whose votes elected them."

May the farmers of New Brunswick and all others who make their living, not by speculating in values produced by other people, but by useful labor, take the above to heart and go and do otherwise.

HOW TO CURE STOMACH TROUBLE

A Great Sufferer From Indigestion Tells How She Was Cured.

Stomach trouble is a general name for all forms of indigestion, whether great pain after eating, belching of wind, heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, or the sharp pains that often make you think you have heart trouble. There are two things noticeable in indigestion. One is that doctors always always find indigestion a prominent symptom in a bloodless run-down state. The other, that sufferers usually find relief when a tonic is taken that restores the general health. Without a doubt stomach trouble is simply stomach weakness, and the cure is to make the stomach strong enough to digest food without trouble. Any other treatment is patchwork and cannot cure. As the processes of digestion are controlled by the blood and nerves, the stomach that is too weak to digest food needs a tonic to give it strength. And in all the world there is no better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They actually make new, rich blood, tone the nerves and so strengthen the stomach and all the bodily functions. We submit the following as proof that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure even the most obstinate cases of stomach trouble. Mrs. John Graf, Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., says: "For years I suffered great torture from indigestion. I took many different medicines, but instead of benefitting me I was growing worse all the time, till my stomach got so bad I could neither eat nor drink without pain. Even cold water would cause me suffering. Nor did I get any relief when the stomach was empty, as I still suffered from a horrid burning pain. I went to Edmonton and consulted one of the best doctors there, but he told me that he could do nothing for me, that all I could do was to diet. For some time I took only hot water and a small piece of brown bread for my meals but even that did not help me and I got so weak and run down that I despaired of ever being well again. I bought a so-called electric belt and wore it for six months but it was simply money wasted. Then one day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did not know they were intended to cure indigestion, but being assured that they were, decided to try them. I soon found the Pills helping me, but my condition was so bad when I began using them that I continued taking the Pills for about five months before I felt that I was completely cured. Then I could eat any kind of food, and although more than two years have passed since my cure, I have not since had the least sign of the trouble. I can most heartily recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone suffering from this terrible trouble."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Preaches on Temperance

Last Sunday being Temperance Sunday, Rev. W. J. Dean in the Methodist church in the evening spoke plainly or more plainly on the liquor traffic than did Rev. S. J. MacArthur and Rev. Dr. Cousins on the same subject at the Sons of Temperance meeting on Oct. 14th ult.

Rev. Mr. Dean took as his text Isaiah V: 14—"Hell hath enlarged herself and opened her mouth without measure," and said, in part:

"The deepest hell is the place for the man who deliberately, either as a treat or for profit, gives intoxicating liquor to another. It is done in Newcastle. Only a few days ago a man, whose besetting sin is intemperance, was given liquor by a prominent man of this town."

The speaker went on to depict a council in Pondenonium, where Lust, Moloch, Strife and Mammon each offered to go to earth and try to destroy men. Mammon, or the love of gain, was most commended by the evil one.

"It is hard to keep calm," the preacher continued, "when one sees such evil around him. If there were a monster at the mouth of the Miramichi—God knows there is one at Hotel Miramichi—which, like the Cretan Minotaur, claimed once a year a number of our young people for food, there would be no young man so cowardly as to refuse to join an attempt to overcome such a monster. The Indians—I do not know how they get it, perhaps by the wayside—it has of late been something dreadful to see them rolling along up the Northwest drunk. I have seen them, along about Kirk's Corner. There are numbers of men coming into this town with prescriptions for liquor from doctors outside of the town, even, I am told, from doctors outside of the county to druggists here to be filled. Perhaps the law for such cases is not stringent enough. Don't let us blame others but let us each wake up and do what we can to stop the terrible tide of evil flaming in our town. Hell has enlarged herself and opened her mouth without measure."

A MOTHER'S PRAISE

Mothers are always willing to shower their praises on a medicine that not only relieves their precious little ones from pain but removes the cause and keeps them well, bright, active and happy. Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets. No other medicine for little ones has received such praise from thousands of mothers. These Tablets never fail to relieve the little ones from any of the many little ills that afflict them. Mrs. Thos Hodgson, Riviere du Loup Station, Que., writes: "I always keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house and have given them to my two little ones with the best results. I always recommend them to my friends as they are a grand remedy." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Do You Suffer from Piles?

If so, you would ask you to enquire amongst your friends the value of Zam-Buk for this ailment! You cannot but meet with some one who has proved how excellent it is.

Mr. H. E. Hill of Shelvin, Man., writes:—"I suffered a long time with piles and tried numerous remedies, but without effect. Having tried a sample of Zam-Buk and being encouraged by the result, I persevered, using two boxes. It worked like magic, and effected a complete cure in a very short time."

Mr. James Ruddy of Killaloe, Ont., says:—"I suffered greatly from piles. The pain from these—as anyone who suffers from them will know—was almost unbearable. I tried first one remedy and then another, but all without effect. Then I heard about Zam-Buk and determined to give this wonderful balm a trial. I obtained a supply and commenced with the treatment, and to my great joy, after perseverance with Zam-Buk, I obtained permanent relief from the agonizing pain of the piles. Having been cured by Zam-Buk I heartily recommend the balm to all sufferers."

Zam-Buk also cures inflamed sores, eczema, scalp sores, ulcers, abscesses, cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, cuts, burns and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores sell at 50c box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse substitutes and imitations.

POOR CO

Now—and Then

YEARS ago when none of us knew better we took our wheat to the village mill and our good friend the miller ground it for us the best he could.

It wasn't his fault if our wheat was mostly grits or if it was frosted or smutty. He did the best he could with the materials we gave him and the facilities he had for grinding.

The making of flour to-day is not a mere grinding process. The great Ogilvie Flour Mills of to-day are a vast commercial enterprise extending from ocean to ocean.

Royal Household Flour

is a world product. It is well known in Africa as well as in Canada. It is as much appreciated in the poorest household at home as it is in the Royal Household abroad. To make Royal Household Flour the product it is, involves vast capital and resources. Every advanced process, every modern device that can in any way improve the quality of Royal Household Flour is immediately adopted regardless of expense.

If the production of ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR was purely a milling process it would not be better than any good flour. But it is not the milling alone that makes it the finest flour in the world. It is the all embracing system of care and watchfulness and scientific knowledge that surround it at every stage from wheat field to kitchen. Canadians may well be proud of Royal Household Flour. It is no small thing to have it to say that the world's most perfect flour is made in Canada from Canadian wheat and has become a world-wide factor through Canadian skill and capital.

"Royal Household" is head and shoulders above ordinary flour in quality. The best flour for Bread and Pastry is "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD". To try it is to prove it.

If you send in your name and address, and the name of your dealer, Ogilvie's Book for Cooks containing 125 recipes of excellent Recipes will be sent free of charge. Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Limited.

The Single Tax In City of Vancouver

Mayor Writes Mayor of St. John of How it is Workin

His Worship the Mayor is in receipt of a letter from the Mayor of Vancouver giving some interesting information as to the working out of the single tax system in that city. Vancouver started fifteen years ago by making a reduction of 50 per cent in the improvement tax. The result was so beneficial that in 1906 a cut of 25 per cent more was made, and this year the building tax was eliminated altogether and so adopted the single tax in its entirety, and that city no longer regards what it is doing as an experiment. The Mayor says the land owners really benefit more than even the builders and building owners, for while the tax on improvements has not been abolished the land tax has not been increased, but remains at 22 mills on the dollar, just what it was before the single tax was adopted. With the tax the same on improved and unimproved property the owners prefer improvements. Vancouver's Mayor says the municipal statistics clearly show the single tax has stimulated building. Before the first fifty per cent was voted in 1895 the per capita value of building improvements represented approximately $200 per capita. In 1905 they had increased to $284. A similar increase was shown following the reduction of 25 per cent. In 1908 the per capita valuation of building improvements was $302.66 and in 1909 it was $308.17, and yet, says His Worship, these figures do not half tell the story, for the reason that the population increased from 17,000 in 1894 to over 100,000 last year, and in the last five years has been trebled. Building operations in Vancouver have exceeded those of any other Pacific coast city, and in this connection the Mayor gives figures showing this increase. The real property valuation in 1895 was $13,829,724 the improvements $4,317,660, making a total of $18,147,384. In 1909 the figures were: real property $48,281,330, improvements $24,405,210, total $72,686,540. Since the reduction of the improvement tax to 25 per cent in 1906 more steel and granite buildings have been erected than during any previous decade and in proportion to the city's size more substantial and costly buildings have been erected than elsewhere, while since the adoption of the single tax in its entirety the building development has been even more rapid and upwards of a million dollars worth of building is expected to be done this year including the erection of six steel sky scrapers. The Mayor says 75 per cent of the toilers own their own homes. The Mayor, concluding, declares that the single tax prevents a boost in prices, as no owner wants to pay extra taxes.—Globe.

Rev. Mr. Barker is well known in this section, having married a daughter of Robert Watson, formerly of Douglstown. At the close of Rev. Mr. Robb's address a vote of thanks moved by W. S. Loggie, M. SUFFERED FOR YEARS WITH STOMACH TROUBLE

"Fruit-a-tives" Promptly Cured Him

DANIEL SAUNDERS, Esq.

Last summer, Mr. Oatway, a druggist of my town, recommended "Fruit-a-tives" to me. While taking "Fruit-a-tives", I in no way gave up any foods that I was in the habit of eating, neither did I stop smoking. "Fruit-a-tives" has done wonders for me and I strongly advise all my friends to use it.

Mr. Daniel Saunders, of Shoal Lake, Manitoba, is one of the best known gentlemen in Canada's great wheat country. He lived for years in the West—made a success of his farming—and has now retired from active business life to enjoy the fruits of his work.

When a man of such financial and social standing voluntarily testifies to the great benefits he has received from taking "Fruit-a-tives" there can be no doubt but that "Fruit-a-tives" deserves the confidence of every reader of this paper.

a mild flirtation. "She's off with Saunders now," went on Britt. "That's why you can't find him, my lord. If you really want him, however, I think you can reach him by strolling through the lower end of the park, but don't fail to shout."

"I do want him, confound him! I want to ask him how many days there are left before our time is up on the island. Demned annoying that I can't have legal advice when I—" "How many days have you been here?"

"How the devil should I know? That's what we've got Saunders here for. He's supposed to tell us when to go home and all that sort of thing, you know."

Deppingham, phlegmatic soul, was forever disturbing Saunders with calls to duty, although Saunders was British enough in his British way to maintain—in confidence, of course—that he was in the employ of Lady Deppingham or no one at all. Nevertheless he always lived under the shadow of duty. At any moment his lordship was liable to send for him to ask the question. And this brings us to the hour when Saunders unfolded his startling solution to the problem that confronted them all.

First he confided in Britt soberly, sagely and in perfect good faith. Britt was bowled over. He stared at Saunders and gasped. Nearly two minutes elapsed before he could find words to reply, which proves conclusively that he must have been something of a shock to him. When at last he did express himself, however, there was nothing that could have been left unsaid—absolutely nothing. He went so far as to call Saunders a doddering fool and a great many other things that Saunders had not in the least expected.

ers stared at him in blank astonishment. "Get married?" murmured first one, then another. "Are you crazy?" demanded Browne. Britt was grinning broadly.

"Certainly not," snapped Saunders. "Oh, by Jove!" exclaimed Deppingham, relieved. "I see. You mean you contemplate getting married. I congratulate you. You gave me quite a shock, Saund."

"I don't mean anything of the sort, my lord," said Saunders, getting very red in the face. Miss Pelham looked up from her notebook quickly. He winked at her, and her ladyship saw him do it.

"I mean that it is high time that Lady Deppingham and Mr. Browne were getting married. We haven't much time to spare. I!"

"Good Lord!" gasped Bobby Browne. "You are crazy, after all." "Open the window and give some air," said Britt coolly.

"See here, Saunders, what the devil is the matter with you?" roared Deppingham. "My lord, I am here to act as your legal adviser," said Saunders, with dignity. "May I be permitted to proceed?"

"Rather queer legal advice, 'pon my word."

"Please let him explain," put in Mrs. Browne, whose sense of humor was strongly attracted by this time. "If there is anything more to be learned concerning matrimony I'd like to know it."

"Yes, Mr. Saunders, you may proceed," said Lady Agnes, passing a hand over her bewildered eyes.

"Thank you, my lady. Well, here it is in a nutshell: I have not spoken of it before, but you and Mr. Browne can very easily comply with the provisions of the will. You can be married at any time. Now, I!"

"And where do I come in?" demanded Deppingham sarcastically. "Yes, and I?" added Mrs. Browne. "You forget us, Mr. Saunders."

"I include Mrs. Browne," amended Deppingham. "Are we to be assassinated? By Jove, clever idea of yours, Saunders! Simplifies matters tremendously."

"I hear no objection from the heirs," remarked Saunders meaningly, whereupon Lady Agnes and Bobby came out of their stupor and protested vigorously.

"Miss Pelham," said Britt, breaking in sharply, "I trust you are getting all that a woman can have no more than one husband? Lady Deppingham has one husband. She can't take another without first getting rid of this one."

"Saunders," said Deppingham, arising and lighting a fresh cigarette, "you have gone clean daff. You're loony with love. You've got marriage on the brain. I'd advise you to take some one for it."

"Do you mean that for me, Lord Deppingham?" demanded Miss Pelham sharply. She glared at him and then slammed her notebook on the table. "You can't do that to me, Mr. Saunders, but you can't do that to me. I'm sick of this job. Get somebody else to do your work after this, I'm through."

"Oh!" exclaimed every one, in a panic. It took nearly ten minutes to pacify the ruffled stenographer. "Perhaps we could arrange for a divorce all round," cried Saunders, suddenly laughing. "On what grounds?" laughed Browne. "Give me time," said the lawyer. "It's barely possible that there is no divorce law in Japat," remarked Britt, enjoying his conferee's misery. "Are you quite sure?"

of this down. I wish to warn you, ladies and gentlemen, that I expect to overthrow the will on the ground that there is insanity on both sides. You'll oblige me by uttering just what you feel."

"My plan is very simple," began Saunders helplessly. "Demmed simple," growled Deppingham.

"We are living on an island where polygamy is practiced and tolerated. Why can't we take advantage of the custom and beat the natives at their own game? That's the ticket!"

Of course this proposition, simple as it sounded, brought forth a storm of laughter and expostulation, but Saunders held his ground.

"You have only to embrace Mohammedanism or paganism, or whatever it is, temporarily—just long enough to get married and comply with the terms. Then, I dare say, you could resume your Christian doctrine once more, after a few weeks, I'd say, and the case is won."

"I pay Lady Deppingham the compliment by saying that it would be most difficult for me to become a Christian again," said Browne smoothly, bowing to the flushed Englishwoman.

"How very sweet of you!" she said, with a grimace which made Drusilla shiver with annoyance. "You don't need to live together, of course," floundered Saunders, getting rather beyond his depth.

"Well, that's a concession on your part," said Mrs. Browne, a flash in her eye. "I never heard of such an asinine proposition," spluttered Deppingham. Saunders went completely under at that.

"On the other hand," he hastened to remark, "I'm sure it would be quite legal if you did live to—" "Stop him, for heaven's sake!" screamed Lady Agnes, bursting into uncontrollable laughter.

"Stop him? Why?" demanded her husband, suddenly seeing what he regarded as a rare joke. "Let's hear him out. By Jove, there's more to it than I thought. Go on, Saunders."

"Of course if you are going to be nasty about it—" began Saunders in a huff. "I can't see anything nasty about it," said Browne. "I'll admit that our wife and our husband may decide to be stubborn and unreasonable, but it sounds rather attractive to me."

"Robert!" from his wife. "He's only joking, Mrs. Browne," explained Deppingham magnanimously. "Now, let me understand you, Saunders. You say they can be married according to the customs—which, I take it, are the laws—of the islanders. Your plan provides Browne with two charming wives and gives me but one. There's nothing to compel Mrs. Browne to marry me."

"But, my lord," said Saunders, "doesn't the plan give Lady Deppingham two husbands? It's quite a fair division."

"It would make Lord Deppingham my husband-in-law, I imagine," said Drusilla quaintly. "I've always had a horror of husbands-in-law."

"And you would be my wife-in-law," supplemented Lady Agnes. "How interesting!"

"Saunders," said Deppingham soberly, "I must oppose your plan. It's quite unfair to two innocent and uninvolved parties. What have we done that we should be exempt from polygamy?"

"You are not exempt!" exclaimed the harassed solicitor. "You are merely not obliged to; that's all. You can do as you choose about it, I'm sure. I'm sorry my plan causes so much levity. It is meant for the good of our cause. The will doesn't say how many wives Mr. Browne shall have. It simply says that Agnes Ruthven shall be his wife. He isn't restricted, you know. He can be a polygamist if he likes."

"You're right," said Britt. "The will doesn't specify. But, my dear Saunders, you are overlooking your own client in this plan."

"As I understand the laws on this island—the church laws, at least—a man can have as many wives as he likes. Well, that's all very well for Mr. Browne. But isn't it also a fact that a woman can have no more than one husband? Lady Deppingham has one husband. She can't take another without first getting rid of this one."

"Saunders," said Deppingham, arising and lighting a fresh cigarette, "you have gone clean daff. You're loony with love. You've got marriage on the brain. I'd advise you to take some one for it."

"Do you mean that for me, Lord Deppingham?" demanded Miss Pelham sharply. She glared at him and then slammed her notebook on the table. "You can't do that to me, Mr. Saunders, but you can't do that to me. I'm sick of this job. Get somebody else to do your work after this, I'm through."

"Oh!" exclaimed every one, in a panic. It took nearly ten minutes to pacify the ruffled stenographer. "Perhaps we could arrange for a divorce all round," cried Saunders, suddenly laughing. "On what grounds?" laughed Browne. "Give me time," said the lawyer. "It's barely possible that there is no divorce law in Japat," remarked Britt, enjoying his conferee's misery. "Are you quite sure?"

GREAT TURNOVER IN UNITED STATES Democrats Capture the House of Representatives But Republicans Still Hold the Senate.

There were many surprises in the U. S. elections on the 8th instant. The Democrats captured New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, Ohio and Indiana, all northern states, from the Republicans, and kept the "solid south" as usual. The result in New York is a heavy blow to the prestige of Theodore Roosevelt. The Democrats carried New York state by about 66,000; New Jersey by 30,000; Massachusetts by 33,000; Ohio by 60,000; Connecticut by 3,500; while the Republicans held Pennsylvania by only 20,000 and Iowa by 10,000. The Massachusetts vote was approximately: Democratic 220,000; Republican 187,000; Socialist 12,000; Prohibition, 3000.

SOCIALIST GAINS Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 10.—The remarkable showing made by Thomas Van Lear, public ownership and socialist candidate for Mayor of Minneapolis is the feature of the election. Conceded no more than 5,000 votes at the outside, Van Lear ran up 1,000 behind the democratic and republican nominees, who are so close that a contest may be made. Van Lear polled approximately 11,000 votes.

HEARST LOSES The vote of the Independence League in New York state went below that of the Socialist, scarcely exceeding 60,000.

WOMEN'S CAUSE GAINING Denver, Nov. 10.—Four women will sit in the eighteenth General Assembly of Colorado as the result of the election. These are Alma Lafferty, Louise U. Jones and Louise M. Kerwin, all elected to the House of Representatives from Denver district on the Democratic ticket, and Agnes Riddle, Republican representative for Adams-Arapahoe and Elbert counties. In the last General Assembly, Mrs. Lafferty, who was rejected, was the only woman representative. There are no women senators. The cause of woman suffrage gained in state of Washington, adding that state to Wyoming, Colorado, Idaho and Utah, where women have equal political rights with men.

THE NEXT CONGRESS The next House of Representatives stands: Democratic 225; Republican, 165; Socialist (Victor Berger from Milwaukee.) The Republicans control the senate by a majority of 6. The cause of the Republican defeat was largely the public dissatisfaction at the big cost of living which was blamed to the high tariff and the failure of Roosevelt and Taft to do anything to effectively curb the power of the Trusts.

The current issue of "Construction" contains an editorial review of the operations of the Canadian cement interests for the past year, expressing gratification that the formation of the merger has not led to any undue advance in cement prices. "As long," concludes "Construction," as the cement interests continue to develop the industry along these lines, as long as their policy continues to be constructive, they are deserving of the good will and support of the Canadian building public. Constructional development and improvement is, and will continue to be, in Canada for some years hence, one of the greatest factors in our growth. Cement has become as indispensable in structural work of every character and type, as are the hands of the laborer who does the work, and an ambitious country will never tolerate a monopoly in a material so universally used in both public work and private enterprise.
